shed a tear. To urinate: since mid-C.19. Since ca. 1940, ? earlier, often elab. to shed a tear for Nelson: prob. at first RN, but soon spread to the other Services' (P.B.).—2. (? hence by antiphrasis) to take a dram, hence—from ca. 1860—any drink: 1864 (H., 3rd ed.); 1876, Hindley, 'I always made time to call in and shed a tear with him'. Less gen. and very ob. by 1930.

shedduff. A middle-class corruption (—1909) of chef-d'œuvre. Ware.

shee. See she, 2.

sheebing. 'Black-market racketeering and profiteering in Germany. From the German schieben ... "to push or shunt", the racketeer gangs making a practice of uncoupling a goods wagon from a train and shunting into a siding' (Petch, 1946): British army, and civilian officials', in Germany: later 1945+.

sheela(h). See sheila.

sheen. Counterfeit coin: c.:—1839 (Brandon); H., 1st ed. Occ., from ca. 1880, as adj. Ex shan(d), q.v., very prob. (cf. Brandon's and H.'s designation as Scottish); but perhaps influenced by next.—2. Hence, money: Aus. low: C.20. Baker.

Sheeny; occ. sheeney, -ie, or shen(e)y. A Jew: 1816 (J.H. Lewis, Lectures on the Art of Writing, 7th ed.: Moe): in C.20, always opprobrious (Powis says 'unpleasantly racist'); in C.19 not always so (witness H., 5th ed., 1874=1873). Thackeray, 1847, 'Sheeney and Moses are ... smoking their pipes before their lazy shutters in Seven Dials.' From ca. 1890, occ. as adj., as in Licensed Victuallers' Gazette, 23 Jan. 1891, "'Don't like that Sheeney friend of yours," he said.' To be noted is this passage from Richard Llewellyn, None But the Lonely Heart, 1943, "'Well, there's sheenies and Sheenies you know ..." he says. ... "Then there's Yids and Non Skids, to say nothing of the Shonks. Then there's Three Be Twos, and Jews.'" (See also my article, on Jews' nicknames, in Words at War: Words at Peace 1948.)—2. Hence, a pawnbroker: mid-C.19—20.—3. A dark-coloured tramp: tramps' c.:—1932 (F. Jennings, Tramping with Tramps).—4. A very economical, money-careful man: military: C.20. (F. & G.) W. risks the guess that sheeny may derive ex Yiddish pron. of Ger. schön, beautiful, used in praising wares; very tentatively, I suggest that the term arose from the sheeny, i.e. glossy or brightly shiny, hair of the average 'English' Jew: cf. snide and shine, q.v. P.B.: Leo Rosten, The Joys of Yiddish, 1918, quotes heavily from this entry, dismisses the suggested derivations, and proposes instead that the term is ex Yiddish 'a miesse meshina ('An ugly fate or death'), a phrase widely used by and among Jews.' Cf. deriv. of Dee-Donk, q.v.

sheeny or S; etc. Adj. See sheeny, n., 1.—2. Fraudulent (person); base (money): late C.19—20. A rare sense, due prob. to sheen, q.v.

sheep A second-classman: Aberdeen University: 1865 (G.

Macdonald).—2. In keep sheep by moonlight, to hang in chains: late C.18–mid-19. A.E. Housman's note to The Shropshire Lad (1898), ix (OED).

sheep-biter. A butcher: early C.18. See OCCUPATIONAL NAMES, in the Appendix.

sheep-dodger; sheep-dodging. A sheep hand; 'sheep mustering and droving' (Archer Russell, Gone Nomad, 1936): Aus.: C.20. Cf. poddy-dodger, -ing.

sheep-guts (, old). A term of contempt: coll.: C.19–early. Cf. the N. Country silly old gimmer, applied to a woman.

sheep in wolf's clothing. A boy looking like a 'wolf', but so timid as to ask permission to kiss a girl: teenage girls': since ca. 1950.—2. 'A clergyman (not wearing his clericals) who tries to appear a man of the world' (Leechman): since ca. 1930.

sheep-pen. (?) Midshipmen's quarters: naval: early C.19. Fredk Marryat, Frank Mildmay, 1829 (at p. 202 of the 1897 edition), 'Reflecting, as I returned to the "sheep-pen", that I had nearly lost my promotion.' Moe.

Sheep-Shaggers, the. The Black Watch: Scot. military nickname: mid-C.19–20. P.B.: highly offensive, and not used—the prudent—in the hearing of one member of the Regt, let alone a crowd; even a subdued 'baa!' could be dangerous.

—2. The Coldstream Guards: C.20. 'For reasons which are mercifully lost in the mists of time, guardsmen of other regiments—men not kindly disposed towards the Coldstream—bestowed upon them the unsavoury soubriquet of "sheep shaggers"' (Carew). See shag, v.

sheep-shearer. A cheat or swindler: c.: late C.17–mid-18. B.E.

sheep-sick. (Of land) grazed too long by sheep: Aus. rural coll.: C.20. B., 1943.

sheep-walk. A prison: c. of ca. 1780–1840. Messink, 1781.

sheep-wash, n. Inferior liquor: Aus. and NZ: C.20. B., 1941, 1942.

sheep-wash, v. To duck: Winchester: from ca. 1890. Ex sheep-dipping.

sheepo. A shepherd: Aus. and NZ: C.20. Jean Devaney, The Butcher Shop, 1926.—2. As sheepol, it is the call 'for the rouse (rouse about) to fill "the catching pen" (Straight Furrow, 21 Feb. 1968): NZ shearers': C.20.

sheep's back, on the. Dependent upon wool: Aus. coll.: C.20. B., 1942, 'Australia's economic existence'.

sheep's head. In like a sheep's head—all jaw, c.p. applied to a garrulous person: late C.18–early 20. (Grose, 2nd ed.) See jaw, n.—2. In two heads are better than one—even if one is only a sheep's head, a c.p. aimed at the second party to a plan, etc.; often in retort to the trite two heads are better than one. C.20 (? late C.19–20).

sheep's tail. Sheep's-tail fat: S. African coll.—1888. Pettman.

sheepskin-fiddle. A drum: ca. 1810–60. Whence sheepskin-fiddler, a drummer (Lex. Bal.).

Sheer Nasty; Sheer Necessity. Sheerness: RN: late C.19–20. Bowen. (Naval men go there only when necessary.) 'Sheerness [Kent] closed down in 1960 after 300 years as a Naval depot' (Granville).

sheet. A £1 note: orig. Cockneys', 1940s (Muover), > since ca. 1950, c. and drugs world. Bournemouth Echo, 20 Nov. 1968.—2. In on the sheet, up for trial; 'crimed': army coll.: from ca. 1905. (F. & G.) Cf. sheet it home.—3. In have a sheet short, to be mentally deficient: Aus.: since ca. 1910. B., 1942, who adds 'sometimes short of a sheet of bark'.

sheet-alley or -lane. Bed: mid-C.19–early 20. Cf. Bedfordshire and blanket fair, and Baumann's (go) down sheet lane into Bedfordshire, to go to bed.

sheet in the wind or (less gen. add. by 1930, slightly ob.) wind's eye, a. Half drunk: 1840 (Dana, in adumbration); 1862, Trollope, 'A thought tipsy—a sheet or so in the wind, as folks say' (OED); R.L. Stevenson, 1883 (wind's eye). S. >, ca. 1890, coll.; now virtually S.E. Cf. a sheet or two in the wind, for which Moe cites Fredk Chamier, The Life of a Sailor, at I, 239, 1832. All app. derive ex three sheets in the wind, absolutely drunk: 1821 (Egan); 1840, Dana: mainly sporting s. >, ca. 1860, coll. >, ca. 1930, S.E.

sheet it home to (a person). To prove something against him: coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Perhaps ex entry of person's name on a charge-sheet.

sheet of tripe. A plate of tripe: low urban:—1909 (Ware).

sheets. In between the sheets, in bed: from ca. 1860 coll. >, by ca. 1935, informal S.E.—2. In (it) keeps your sheets full, a farewell, the ref. being to bed—not nautical—sheets: RN: later C.20. (Peppitt).—3. See sheet in the wind.

sheevo. See sheave-o.

Sheffield handicap. A sprint race with no defined scratch, the virtual scratch man receiving a big start from an imaginary 'flyer': Northern coll. and dial.: late C.19–early 20.—2. A defecation: prob. rhyming s., on crap: C.20.

Sheffields; Sheffs. Shares in the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire Railway: Stock Exchange (—1895): resp. coll. and s. A.J. Wilson, Stock Exchange Glossary. Cf. Saraha.

sheikh; loosely but usu. sheik. A 'he-man': s.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1922. Edith Maude Hull, The Sheikh, 1919 (UK), 1921 (US), was a best-seller of the period. See last sentence in entry at shoot a line.—2. Hence, a lover, a girl's 'young man': from ca. 1926: mostly US (OED Sup.).—3. Hence, any attractive and/or smartly dressed young man: from ca. 1931.

sheik(h), v. Esp., go sheik(h)ing, to seek feminine company: Aus.: since ca. 1925. B., 1942.

sheila or -er; occ. shiela(h) or sheela(h). A girl: Aus., hence NZ: late C.19–20. The -a form has, in WW1 and after, been much the more gen.; is presumably influenced by the female Christian name. A perversion of English dial. and low s. shaler (Brandon, 1839; H., 1st ed.).

sheister. See shicer; shyster.

shekels; occ. sheckles. Coin; money in gen.: coll.: 1883, F. Marion Crawford, but prob. used at least a decade earlier,—cf. Byron's anticipation of 1823. Ex shekel, the most important Hebrew silver coin.

Sheldogger, the. The Sheldonian Theatre: Oxford undergraduates':—1922 (Marples, 2). Cf. -agger endings, under 'OXFORD -ER', in Appendix.

shelf, n. An informer; esp. one who has himself participated in the crime: Aus. c.:—1926 (Jice Doone). Cf. senses 4 and 5, and:—2. A pawnshop: Aus. c.: since ca. 1930. (Baker.) Cf. on the shelf, in pawn: C.19–early 20. Lex. Bal.; H., 1st ed.—3. As the shelf, the dress circle in a cinema: Aus. juvenile: since ca. 1945. B., 1953.—4. In on the shelf, transported: c.: ca. 1850–70.—5. (?) Hence, on the shelf, under arrest: army: ca. 1870–1930.—6. On the shelf, dead: from ca. 1870. Whence off the shelf, resurrected (gen. as take off the shelf): earlier C.20. [—7. As applied to old maids and unemployed or involuntarily retired persons, it is S.E.]—8. See dog-shelf.

shelf, v. To inform upon: Aus.: since ca. 1920. Vince Kelly, The Shadow, 1955.

shelfer. An informer to the police: Aus. and NZ c.:—1932. (Baker.) A var. of shelf, n., 1.—2. (Usu. in pl, as in) 'The "shelfers", those good-sized cod which in the last three days of our work we stretched out in tiers, shelved on beds of ice... They are the pride of the trip—for every kit of them we reckon to earn plenty of money' (Steven Piper, The North Ships, 1974): trawlermen's.

she'll be apples!; ...jake!; ...right! Quintessentially Aus. and NZ expressions of gen. reassurance and optimism: 2nd and 3rd, from earlier C.20, and usu. as she's...; the 1st, since mid-C.20 (perhaps, as Wilkes suggests, ex rhyming s., apples and spice, 'nice', or from 'apple-pie order'). Sometimes combined, as 'She'll be right, mate—she'll be apples!' See she, 5. (Wilkes; P.B.)

shell, n. An undress, tight-fitting jacket: military: from ca. 1880. St James's Gazette, 22 Dec. 1886, 'Tunics and shells and messing-jackets and caps.' Abbr. S.E. shell-jacket (1840, OED).—2. The female pudend: C.19–20: coll. verging on euph. S.E.—3. A hearse: lower classes':—1923 (Manchon, 'corbillard des pauvres').—4. In in (one's) shell, sulky; not inclined to talk: tailors' coll.: mid-C.19—early 20. (B. & L.) P.B.: a specialised nuance of S.E. shell = reserve, as 'She came out of her shell', 'He went into his s.' (SOD; 1853).—5. See old shell.

shell, v. As in 'He shelled it', dropped a catch: Cricketers': later C.20. D.B. Gardner reports hearing it in July 1977.

shell-back. A sailor of full age, esp. if tough and knowledgeable: nautical coll.:—1883. Perhaps for the reason given by W. Clark Russell in Jack's Courtship (1883), 'It takes a sailor a long time to straighten his spine and get quit of the bold sheer that earns him name of shell-back.'

shell down. See shell out, 1.

shell-happy. Suffering from shell-shock: army: WW2. (P-G-R.) Cf. bomb-happy.

shell-out, n. Corresponds with v., 1: coll.: C.20. B., 1942.

shell out, v. To disburse; pay (out): coll.: C.19–20. (Maria Edgeworth, Tom Moore, Headon Hill.) Scott, in 1816, has shell down, but this form is very rare. Ex shell, remove a seed from its shell (etc.).—2. As v.i., to hand over what is due or expected, pay up: coll. from ca. 1820. Egan, 1821.—3. To club money together, gen. as vbl n.: ca. 1820–50. Egan's Grose.—4. As v.t., to declare: a rare coll. of later C.19. Mrs Henry Wood (OED).—5. In shell (a person) out, to pluck him at cards or dice: low:—1923 (Manchon).

shell-proof, n. and adj. (A) boastful or foolhardy (fellow): army: WW1. (F. & G.) Cf. bomb-proofer.

shell-shock. Cocoa: c.: from ca. 1918. Michael Harrison, Spring in Tartarus, 1935.—2. Casual-ward tea: tramps': from ca. 1919.—3. A drink of spirits: Aus. low: id. B., 1942.

shell-shock bread. Bread arriving, impaired, to those in the front line: NZ soldiers': 1916–18.

shell with name on it. See name on it.

shellback. See shell-back.

shelling peas. See easy as damn it, very easy.

shells; occ. shels. Money: cf. of ca. 1590–1620. (Greene.) Cf. the use made of cowries.

s'help. See s'elp (me bob).

shelter-stick. An umbrella: Cumberland s. (—1904), not dial. EDD.

shelve, gen. v.t. To hold over part of (the weekly bill): printers' coll.: from ca. 1870.

shemale. See she-male.

shemozzle; occ. shimozzel, s(c)hlemozzle, even chimozzle. A difficulty or misfortune; a 'row': from late 1880s: East End, orig. (esp. among bookmakers) and mainly. Referee, 1 Dec. 1889, schlemozzle; Binstead, 1899, shlemozzle; anon., From the Front, 1900, chimozzle; J. Maclaren, 1901, 'If Will comes out of this shemozzle.' It is a corruption of Ger. schlimm and Hebrew mazel; lit. and orig., 'bad luck'.—2. Hence, loosely, 'an affair of any sort' (F. & G.): lower classes' and Services': C.20.

shemozzle (etc.), v. To make off, decamp: orig. (ca. 1901) and mostly East End, >, by 1914, fairly gen.

shenan(n)igan or -in; occ. shenan(n)iken, shi-(with either ending), and, nautical, shenanecking (Bowen). Nonsense, chaff; (the predominant C.20 sense): trickery, 'funny' games: orig. (ca. 1870), US; anglicised ca. 1890. R. Barr, 1902, 'If I were to pay them they might think there was some shenanigan about it.' Perhaps fantastic on the Cornish shenachrum, a drink of boiled beer, rum, sugar, and lemon; but much more prob. the base is nenan(n)igan (etc.) and the origin the East Anglian and Gloucestershire nanna(c)k, nan(n)ick, to play the fool, with imm. origin in the vbl n. nannicking (etc.): EDD. It has, however, been suggested by Mr A. Jameson (of Sennen) that the term derives from the Erse sionnach (pronounced shinnuch): cf. Anglo-Irish foxing, hiding or malingering. P.B.: in later C.20 the most common form seems to be shinnanegans.—2. Hence, as v.i. and t.: late C.19–20.

shenan(n)i(c)ker. A shirker: from the middle 1890s. Ex prec., 2.

shen(e)y. See sheeny.

Shepherd's Short-Range Group. 'G.H.Q., Cairo; especially when it was moved forward' (P-G-R): army: 1940–3. Ex Shepherd's hotel; cf. Groppi's Light Horse.

shepherd, n. 'Every sixth boy in the cricket-bill who answers for the five below him being present' (F. & H.): Harrow: late C.19–20.—2. A miner holding but not working a gold mine: Aus. miners': since ca. 1870. B., 1942.

shepherd, v.t. To shadow; watch over (e.g. a rich relative, an heiress, a football or hockey opponent): 1874, H., 5th ed., 'To look after carefully, to place under police surveillance': s. >, ca. 1910, coll. (See esp. B. & L.) Perhaps ex the tending of sheep. (OED).—2. To follow (a person) in order to cheat or swindle him, or else to get something from him: from ca. 1890: Aus. s. >, ca. 1920, coll. Morris.—3. To force (the enemy) into a difficult position: military s. (Boer War) >, ca. 1915, coll.; by 1930, almost S.E. Daily Telegraph, 2 Apr. 1900, 'Cronje was shepherded with his army into the bed of the Modder by a turning movement'.—4. To act as a 'shepherd' (see n., 2): Aus. miners': since ca. 1880. Baker.

shepherds. Short for shepherd's plaid.

shepherd's clock. Another synonym of bushman's clock; cf. settler's clock: Aus. coll.: late C.19–20. Baker.

shepherd's friend. The dingo: Aus. ironic coll.: late C.19–20. B., 1942.

shepherd's plaid. Bad? mid-C.19—earlier 20. (P.P., Rhyming Slang, 1932.) Franklyn, Rhyming, doubts its authenticity, therefore prob. 'rare'. Contrast Robin Hood, good.

sherbet. (A glass of) any warm alcoholic liquor, e.g. a grog: s.:—1890. Ex catachresis. (Not among the upper classes.) B. & L. Cf.:-

sherbet(ty). Drunk: 1890, Licensed Victuallers' Gazette, 8 Feb., 'By the time one got to bed Tom was a bit sherbetty'; ob. Ex sherbet, q.v.

sheriff. An occ. Service term for the provost sergeant in a unit: mid-C.20. Ex 'Western' films rather than the old English office. (P.B.)

sheriff's ball. An execution: ca. 1780–1850. (Grose, 1st ed.) Whence dance at the sheriff's ball and loll out (one's tongue at the company, to hang (Ibid.)); synon. dance on nothing at the sheriff's ball (Grose in his Ohio); and, also in Grose, 1st ed., go to rest in a horses' night-cap.

sheriff's basket or tub. A receptacle set outside a prison for the receipt of charity for the prisoners: resp. late C.16—mid-17 (Nashe) and ca. 1630–60 (Massinger). OED.

sheriff's bracelets. Handcuffs: ca. 1780–1850. Grose, 1st ed. Cf.:

sheriff's hotel. A prison: ca. 1780–1850. Grose, 1st ed. Cf.:

sheriff's journeyman. A hangman: early C.19. Lex. Bal. Cf.:

sheriff's picture-frame. The hangman's noose: ca. 1780–1850. Grose, 1st ed.; Egan.

sheriff's posts. 'Two painted posts, set up at the sheriff's door, to which proclamations were affixed' (OED): late C.16—mid-17. Jonson.

sheriff's tub. See sheriff's basket.

sherk. See shirk.

Sherlock Holmes! A c.p. directed at detection of the obvious: from ca. 1898; very ob. Obviously with ref. to Conan Doyle's famous detective. Often abbr. to Sherlock!

Sherman tanks. Americans: rhyming s., on Yanks: since WW2. (Ronnie Barker, Fletcher's Book of Rhyming Slang, 1979.) Cf. Aus. var. septic tanks. A Sherman was a US medium tank, WW2.

sherrick, v.t.; sherrickin(g). vbl n. To scold severely, or to show up, in public; such a scolding or showing up: low Glasgow coll.: C.20. MacArthur & Long, 'That strange and wild appeal to crowd justice and crowd sympathy which Glasgow describes as a "sherricking"'. Ex Scottish sherra, sherry-, shirra- or shirrymoor, a tumult or a 'tongue-banging' (EDD).

sherry, shirry. A scurry; a rapid or furtive departure: from ca. 1820; even in dial., very ob. Haggart, 1821, 'The shirry became general—I was run to my full speed' (OED). Ex the v.—2. A sheriff: low:—1859; ob. H., 1st ed., at tip the double.—3. Cheap ale; taverns: late C.19—early 20. Ware.—4. In go to sherry, to die: circus-workers':—1887 (Baumann). Prob. ex sense 1.

sherry, v. (Also sherry off.) To run away (esp. hastily): 1788 (Grose, 2nd ed.). In C.19—20, often shirry (as in Haggart, 1821) and, from ca. 1850, † except in dial. The OED, prob. rightly, suggests ex (to) sheer (off); less likely, a perversion of Fr. charrier, to carry off; less likely still, though not impossibly, ex an offensive-nationality idea, sherry the wine being from Xeres (now Jerez) in Spain.

sherry-cobbler. A cobbler made with sherry: coll.: 1809; ob. 'Ouida'. (Thornton.)

sherry-fug. To tipple sherry: university: ca. 1870—1915. Cf. fug, q.v.

sherry off. See sherry, v.

Sherwood Forest. 'The two rows of Polaris missile tubes which run along each side of a submarine's interior. They resemble the trunks of trees in a forest glade' (Granville, letter, 1961): RN: since 1960.

Sherwood Foresters, the. The 45th Regiment; from ca. 1881, the 1st Nottinghamshire Regiment: mid-C.19—20: military coll. >, by 1910, S.E. Dawson.

she's got her run on. A senior Public School girls' c.p.: applied to a period: C.20.

she's right! See she'll be apples ...; but note that she's right, Jack! implies, in NZ, the same smug self-congratulation as the Brit. fuck you, Jack, I'm all right! See esp. DCpp.

shevvie. C. 1860—90, as in Daily News, 2 Dec. 1864, 'This is a term recently introduced as a genteel designation for cat's meat, and evidently derived from cheval, French for horse, as mutton from mouton, &c.'

shew. See show.

shic. See shick, n., 2.

shice, n.; occ. chice, schice, shise. Any worthless person or thing: c. of ca. 1860—1910. Rare. Prob. ex:—2. Nothing, as work for shice: c. or low s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Still very common, 1979, among market traders (M.T.). Personified in that trade's c.p. Shice McGregor's about today, trade is slack.—3. Counterfeit money: c.: 1877, Anon., Five Years' Penal Servitude, 'I ascertained while at Dartmoor that a very large "business" is done in shice.' Either ex shicer, 1, q.v., or direct ex Ger. Scheisse, excrement, or ex the v., sense 1.—4. 'An unprofitable undertaking. A wash-out. "To catch a shice" = to have an unremunerative deal': grafters': late C.19—20. Cheepjack, 1934.—5. As the shice, welshing: c.: C.20. F.D. Sharpe, 1938.

shice, v. To deceive, defraud, leave in the lurch, betray; v.i., to 'welsh': c.: from ca. 1860. (Baumann.) Ex n., 2.—2. To befool: low:—1887 (Baumann).

shice (chice, schice, shise), adj. No good: c. or low s. (—1859). H., 1st ed. at chice. The term was first used by the Jews in the last century.'? ex Ger. Scheisse. (See also shish.)—2. Whence (or directly ex shice, n., 3, q.v.), spurious, counterfeit: c.: 1877, 'Two shice notes' (source as in n., 3).—N.B.: Senses 1 and 2 have variants shicery, shickery.—3. Drunk: low: late C.19—early 20. Presumably ex sense 1 influenced by shicker, adj., q.v.

shicer; occ. schicer, shiser, and, in sense 2, rarely skycer. An unproductive claim or (gen. gold-) mine: Aus.: 1855 (Argus (Melbourne), 19 Jan.): s. >, ca. 1880, coll. >, ca. 1910, S.E. (The occ. spellings are, in this sense, merely illiterate and, in any case, very rare.) Either ex shice, adj., 1, or n., 2, qq.v., or—as W. suggests—direct ex Ger. scheisser, a voider of excrement; or, just possibly, ex shicery, q.v.—2. (? hence, or ex shice, adj., 1) A worthless person (the predominant, and virtually the only C.20, sense); a very idle one; a mean, sponging man; a humbug: low:—1857 ('Ducange Anglicus'); H., 1st ed. Also shyster (H., 1874). In Aus., C.20, often uncompromisingly used for 'a crook' (B., 1942); and Powis, 1977, has 'A cheat or "welsher"', adding var. sheister. This latter meaning has been Aus., esp. turf, coll., since ca. 1895 (Morris). Cf. scheisspot.

shicery. Bad; spurious: c. or low s.: from ca. 1860; very ob. F. & H., giving no illustration. Either ex shicer, 2, or a perversion of shickery, q.v.

shicey. A var. of shice, adj., esp. in sense 1. B. & L.
shick, n. A drunken person: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1943.) Ex the adj.—2. A slice, share, rake-off: the underground: since late 1950s. Groupie, 1968.

shick; shicked. Drunk: low Aus.: C.20. (C.J. Dennis; Baker.) Abbr. shickered.

shicker, n. Intoxicating liquor: mostly Aus.: C.20. (C.J. Dennis.) Esp. in on the shicker, drinking (heavily). Ex: shicker, v.i.; occ. schicker, shikker, shikkur. To drink liquor; get drunk: C.20 (prob. from late 1890s: cf. next entry): mostly Aus. low. Ex:

shicker, etc. Adj., drunk: from late 1890s. (? ex the v.) Binstead, 1899, 'She comes over shikkur and wants to go to shleebe.' Ex the Hebrew for 'something unclean or reprehensible. The East End Cockneys got it from the early Jewish immigrants in the 80s of the last century' (Barford, letter, 1971). Rosten, spelling shikker, defines the Yiddish as simply 'drunk'. Cf.:-

shickered. Topsy: C.20 (?also very late C.19). Ex prec.—2. Bankrupt; very short of money: c.: since ca. 1945. Robin Cook, 1962.

shickery; rarely shikker. (Cf. shicery, q.v.) Shabby, shabbily; bad, badly: c. or low s.: 1851, Mayhew, 'The hedge crocus is shickery togged.'? ex shice, adj., 1.—2. Occ., in late C.19—20 (though very ob. by 1935), drunk. Perhaps ex shicker, adj. Cf. shick and shickered.—3. Spurious: see shice, adj.

shicksa. See:-

shi(c)ksel. A nice Gentile girl: Jewish coll.: mid-C.19—20. A diminutive of shiksa: see sense 2 of:

shickster; occ. shickser, shiksa, shikster, shickster, and († by 1903) shakester. A lady: 1839, Brandon, shickster; 1857, Snowden (Magazine Assistant, 3rd ed.), shikster; 1859, H., 1st ed., shakester and shickster; 1899, Binstead, shiksa.—2. Hence, any (Gentile) woman or girl: mostly Jewish and pej.: late C.19—early 20. Contrast sheggetz, q.v. Adopted from Yiddish; it is the feminine of Yiddish sheggetz, a Gentile man; sheggetz and, through it, shicksa come from the Hebrew sheckets, which means "detestable thing" or (ritually) "unclean animal". Mr Leonard Goldstein, 1967, adds "'Shicksa" today is about as pejorative as its opposite term, "Jewess"... "Goy" has few opprobrious connotations, and can be used almost interchangeably with "gentile".—3. A Gentile female servant: among Jews: late C.19—20.—4. A none-too-respectable girl or woman: mid-C.19—20: low. 'No. 747', 1891, p. 414, 'As I was leavin' the court, a reg'lar 'igh-flyng shickster comes up,' refers to mid-C.19; cf. H., 3rd ed., 'A "gay" lady'. That senses 1 and 4 may orig. have been c. is a possibility, as appears also in:

shickster-crabs. Ladies' shoes: tramps' c.:—1864; ob. H., 3rd ed.

shie. See shy, v.

shielah (Jice Doone). See sheila.

shier. See shyer.

shif. Fish: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.).—2. Aus. c. var. of shiv, a knife: C.20. (Ian Grindley, 1977.) Cf. chiv(e), q.v. shift, n. (Esp. do a shift). To stool: low: ca. 1870—1930.—2. To decamp: Aus.: C.20. Baker.—3. Synon. with next, 6.—4. In go on a shift: see sod, 5.

shift, v.t. To dislodge (a body of the enemy): coll.: 1898.—2. To murder: 1898.—3. (The operative origin of senses 1, 2) to dislodge from its back, i.e. to throw (of a horse its rider): coll.: 1891.—4. To eat; more gen. to drink: s. (1896) >, ca. 1910, coll. All four senses, OED.—5. To change (clothing): nautical coll.: C.20. (Bowen.) ex dial.—6. To travel speedily: Aus. coll.: late C.19—20. Of a sprinter it is often said that 'He can shift!' (B., 1942.). But also, since ca. 1919, English.

shift (one's) bob. To move, go away: mid-C.18—early 20. Grose.—2. To exchange places: naval: ca. 1805—50. W.N. Glascock, Naval Sketch-Book, II, 1826 (Moe).

shift-monger. A young man-about-town: taverns': ca. 1881-90. (Ware.) Ex stiff shirt-front of evening dress.

shift yer barrow! Move on!: Glasgow, mostly lower classes':—1934. Cf. on yer bike!, and:- shift your carcass! Synon. with move your carcass!

shifter. A sly thief; a sharper: ca. 1560-1640: c. >, ca. 1600, s. or coll. (Awdelay, Florio, Withals.) Prob. ex S.E. shift, to use shifts, evasions, expedients, though this is recorded not before 1579 (OED).—2. 'An alarm, an intimation, given by a thief to his pal!' (Vaux): c. of ca. 1810-40. Because it causes him to shift.—3. A drunkard: from ca. 1896; ob. Ex shift, v., 4.

shifting. A warning; esp. an alarm conveyed by the watching to the operating thief: c.: from ca. 1820; ob. Cf. shifter, 2. [This may be a F. & H. error.]

shifting backstay. 'Man who, not being very bright, is moved from job to job in the hope that he may be found a niche where he can cause the least trouble. Backstays help the shrouds to support a mast in heavy weather' (Granville): RN: C.20.

shifting ballast. Landsmen—esp. soldiers—aboard: nautical: late C.18-mid-19. Grose, 1st ed.

shifting dullness. See round, n., 2.

shifty cove. A trickster: from ca. 1820 (ob.): low. See cove; cf. shifter, 1.

shig. A shilling: Winchester: from ca. 1840; ob. Mansfield. Cf. shiggers, q.v.—2. Hence, shigs, money, esp. silver: East End: from ca. 1860. H., 3rd ed.

shiggers. White football shorts costing 10s.: Winchester: mid-C.19-20. Ex shig, 1.

shigs. See shig, 2.

shikerry. See shickery.

shikker, -ur. See shicker.

shiksa, shikster. See shickster.

shiksel. See shicksel.

shill, schill. A confidence-trickster's confederate, as in 'I became a "shill" (a stooge) for Harry the Gonof who sold purses' (C. Drage, Two-Gun Cohen, 1954: General Cohen, who emigrated at 16 to Canada, on his childhood in the London East End): Can. and Aus. c.: since early C.20.—2. In Can. carnival s., also one who plays or bets in order to encourage the genuine customers: C.20. Perhaps a shortening of synon. shillaber; prob. ex US. Also known as a stick. see Underworld. Powis, 1977, lists the term as Brit. c., 'A decoy, particularly in fraud or the three-card trick, who lures or encourages a victim.'

shilling. 'Circular hammer-mark on wood—the sign manual of a poor carpenter' (Leechman): Can.: C.20. P.B.: but surely Brit. in orig.

shilling(-)dreadful († in C.20), shocker. A (short) sensational novel sold at one shilling: coll. >, ca. 1905, S.E.: 1885, Athenæum, 14 Nov., 'Mr R.L. Stevenson is writing another shilling-dreadful'; s. shocker, July, 1886 (OED). The earlier term is on the analogy of penny dreadful, q.v.; the latter, due to desire for variation. Cf. thriller and yellow-back qq.v.

shilling emetic. 'A pleasure boat at a seaside-resort': nautical (officers'): C.20. (Bowen.) Cf. sicker, 1.

shillings in the pound; e.g. eighteen or, say, twelve and six, to indicate slight mental dullness or mild insanity; He's only twelve and six in the pound': NZ: from ca. 1925. Niall Alexander, 1939.

shilling tabernacle. A Nonconformist tea-meeting at one shilling per head: lower classes':—1909 (Ware); ob. by 1930. Cf. tin tabernacle.

shilling to ninencepence, bring a. See ninencepence to ... shilly-shally. To be undecided; to hesitate; vacillate: 1782 (Miss Burney): coll. till ca. 1850, then S.E. Ex the n. (1755, Shebbeare), itself ex the adj. (1734, Chesterfield), in its turn ex stand shill I, shall I (Congreve, 1700), earlier stand shall I, shall I (Taylor, 1630); shilly-shally as n. and (in C.20, ob.) adj., orig. coll., both > S.E. early in C.19. F. & H.; OED.

shimmy (1837, Marryat); more gen. shimmy (1856, H.H. Dixon, OED). A chemise: coll.; not, as the OED asserts, merely dial. and US. Whence shimmy-shake, q.v.—2. The game of chemin de fer, of the first two syllables of which it is a corruption: Society: late C.19-20. A.E.W. Mason, The Sapphire, 1933, 'I think we ought to play a little at the shimmy table.'

shimmy, v. To oscillate or vibrate, esp. of the front wheels of a small motor-car: Can.: ca. 1924-39. (Leechman.) Ex-shimmy-shake. A kind of foxtrot popular in 1920s: coll. > S.E. shimozzel, -le. See shemozle.

shin, n. A kick on the shin-bone: (esp. London) schoolboys' coll.:—1887 (Baumann).

shin off. To depart: mostly Cockney: from ca. 1870. A. Neil Lyons, Arthur's, 1908-2. Hence, to decamp in haste: Aus.: C.20. Also simply shin, or do a shin. B., 1942.

shin out. To pay up (v.i. and v.t.): proletarian: from ca. 1860; ob. B. & L.

shin-plaster. A cheque; a bank-note: adopted, ex US, ca. 1860 (H., 3rd ed.); ob. by 1910. The US sense was '(doubtful) paper currency', late C.18-19: see esp. Mitford M. Mathews, Dictionary of Americanisms.—2. A Canadian 25-cent bill (note): Can.: late C.19-20; but, since ca. 1930, merely historical, the issue ceasing in 1923. (Leechman.)

shin-scraper. A treadmill: c.: 1869, J. Greenwood, 'On account of the operator's liability, if he is not careful, to get his shins scraped by the ever-revolving wheel.' † by 1920.

shin-stage, (take) the. (To go) a journey on foot, not by stage-coach: non-aristocratic coll.: mid-C.18-mid-19. (Ware.) Cf. Shank's mare.

shinan(n)igan or -in or i(c)kin. See shenan(n)igan.

Shinboners. N. Melbourne VFL footballers: Aus., esp. Melbourne, coll.: C.20.

shindig. An altercation, a violent quarrel, a tremendous fuss: late C.19-20. Ex shindy, 3.—2. A dinner party; a large (and lively) party: Aus.: since ca. 1925. (Sydney Morning Herald, 18 Aug. 1963.) Used by Sinclair Lewis, Babbitt, 1922; in orig., therefore, prob. Irish-American. P.B.: in this sense, some Brit. use also, since mid-C.20.

shindy. A spree or noisy merrymaking: from ca. 1820. Egan, 1821, 'The Jack Tar is ... continually singing out, "What a prime shindy, my mess mates!"' Either ex 'the rough but manly old game of "shinty"' (J. Grant, 1876) or, more prob., ex sense 3, which therefore presumably derives ex shinty.—2. A (rough) dance among sailors: nautical:—1811 (Lex. Bal.); Smyth.—3. See shines (cf. shindy, 1, 2). (The sense, a row or a commotion, from the 1840s, is gen. considered S.E., but it may orig. have been coll. Ex sense 1 or sense 3.) shine, n. A fuss, commotion, row: coll.: from ca. 1830. (The Individual, 8 Nov. 1836.) Esp. make (or kick up) a shine. Perhaps ex shine, brilliance, influenced by shindy, 1.—2. Hence, boasting; chaff(ing); esp. no shine, honestly, sincerely, genuinely: tailors': mid-C.19-20. Tailor and Cutter, 29 Nov. 1928.—3. Money: from ca. 1840: (? c. >) low s. (Egan, 1842.)? ex shiners (q.v.). Cf. shiney, shino.—4. A glossy paint; enamel: builders' coll.: C.20.—5. In cut a shine, to make a fine shew; coll.: 1819 (OED). Occ., † in C.20, make a shine.—6. In take the shine from, or out of, to deprive of brilliance; to surpass, put in the shade: coll.: 1818 (Egan, Boxiana, I, out of); 1819, Morre, from, which is † in C.20. (OED) Contrast.—7. In take a shine to, to take a fancy to or for: coll.: adopted, ex US, in Aus. by ca. 1890, where occ., in C.20, shine up to; and in Brit. by 1910 at latest (H.A. Vachell, Quinney's 1914). Cf. dial. shiner, a sweetheart.

shine, v. To raise money, or display it: late C.19-early 20. Ex shine, to excel.—2. To boast: tailors': ca. 1860-1930. Cf. shiner, 4., a boaster. It occurs in C.20 Aus., in nuance 'to show off' (Baker).—3. See rise and shine!

shine, adj. Good; likable, e.g., 'a shine chap': Aus. and NZ: C.20. Ex brightness as opp. obscurity. C.J. Dennis, 1916, spells it also shyin', and defines it 'Excellent, desirable'.

shine like a shilling up a sweep's arse. To be refulgent: low coll.: earlier C.20. Spike Mays, No More Soldiering for Me, 1971, 'With a bit of elbow grease and some wax polish it'll shine ...' The var. show like ..., to be extremely conspicuous, occurs in Barry England, Figures in a Landscape, 1968.

shine like a shitten barn door. Low coll. synon. of prec., C.18–mid-19. Swift, Polite Conversation, 'Why, Miss, you shine this morning like a sh—barn-door'; Grose, 3rd ed. shine-rag. See win the shine-rag.

shiner. A knife; a dirk: nautical lowerdeck: late C.18–mid-19. Bill Truck, 1824.—2. A mirror; esp. a card-sharpers': from ca. 1810; perhaps orig. c. Vaux.—3. A clever fellow: coll. and dial.: from ca. 1820. Halliwell.—4. (?Hence, ironically) a boaster: tailors': ca. 1860–1930. In Aus., earlier C.20, 'one who shows off; an exhibitionist' (Baker). Cf. shine, v., 2–5. A silk hat: coll.: 1867 (F. Francis: OED).—6. A stone so built into the wall of a house that its thick end is outward: S. African: 1881 (Douglass, Ostrich Farming).—7. A diamond: S. African: 1884 (Queenstown Free Press, 15 Jan.: Pettman). Cf. shiners.—8. As Shiner, the inevitable nickname of any man surnamed Green or Wright, Black or White, Bryant (Bryant & May's matches) or Bright: Services': late C.19–earlier 20. 'Traffrail'; F. & G.—9. A black eye: RN [P.B. and more gen.]: since ca. 1920. C.S. Forester, The Ship, 1943.—10. A French-polisher; a window-cleaner: builders': resp. coll. and s.: C.20.—11. See:- shiners. Money; coins, esp. guineas and/or sovereigns: 1760, Foote, 'To let a lord of lands want shiners, 'tis a shame.' Occ. in singular as a gold or, less gen., a silver coin: C.19–20: Surr 1806 (OED); 'Pomes' Marshall. Cf. shine (n., 2), shindy, shino.—2. Jewels: C.20. (D.L. Sayers, 1934.) Ex shiner, 7.—3. A cleaning-up parade; something highly polished: army: from ca. 1920.—4. As the Shiners, the 5th Regiment of Foot, later 1881–1968, the Royal Northumberland Fusiliers: 'the Fifth Fusiliers, as they preferred to be known... always placed great store by "bull", and in Ireland in 1769 became known as "The Shiners" because of its exceptionally smart "turn out", refurbishings and pipeclay' (Carew).

shines. Capers; tricks: adopted, ex US, ca. 1860: coll. Cf. the elab. monkey-shines; also shindy with its sense-history very similar to that of shine, shines, nn.—2. ?hence, copulation between human beings: from ca. 1870.

shiney. See shiny.

shiney-rag. See win the shiney-rag.

shingle. In be, or have, a shingle short, to be mentally deficient: Aus. and NZ version of 'a tile loose': since mid-C.19, s. >, ca. 1910, gen. coll. Mundy, 1852; Mrs Campbell Praed, 1885. (OED).—2. See shit on a raft.

shingle-merchant. A doctor: RN: since ca. 1820; app. † by 1890. (Fredk Chamier, The Life of a Sailor, 1832.) Ex S.E. shingle, a small signboard. (Moe.)

shingle-splitting. The bilking of creditors by retiring to the country: Tasmanian: 1830 (Hobart Town Almanack); † by 1900. Here, shingle = a piece of board. Morris.

shingle-tramper. A coastguardsman: RN coll.:—1867; ob. by 1900, † by 1920. (Smyth.) Because he constantly walked the shingle of the (pebbly) shore.

shining saucepan and rusty pump. A nautical c.p. (late C.19–20) applied to a happy ship. Bowen.

shining time. Starting-time: Can. railroadmen's:—1931. At rise of the shining sun.

Shinkin-ap-Morgan. A Welshman: a coll. nickname: mid-C.17–mid-18, when Taffy (q.v.) > gen. A broadside ballad of ca. 1660 (see Farmer's Musa Pedestris) has: 'With Shinkin-ap-Morgan, with Blue-cap, or Teague [q.v.],/We into no Covenant enter, nor League.'

Shinner. (Usu. pl.) A Sinn Féiner: coll.: from ca. 1917. (H.A. Vachell, Quinney's Adventures, 1924.) Ex pron. shin fāner.

shino. An ob. (1930) var. of shiny, money: from ca. 1860. On shiner, influenced by rhino, q.v.

shins. See break (one's) shins; clever shins.

shiny, shiney, n. Money; esp. gold nuggets: 1856 (Reade); † by 1930. Cf. shiners, 1, and shine, n., 3.—2. As the Shiny, the East, esp. India: army: late C.19–earlier 20. (B. & P.) Ex the brilliant sunlight. Cf. Sweatipore.—3. As shin(ey), 'inevitable' nickname of men surnamed White or Bright: Services': late C.19–earlier 20. ('Traffrail'.) See also shiner, 8.—4. (Usu. pl, shinies.) A 'glossy' magazine: upper-middle-class coll.: late 1970s. (Peter York, Style Wars, 1980.) Printed on shiny paper.

Shiny Bob. One who thinks very well of himself: Aus.: since ca. 1925. (B., 1942.) See shine, v., 2.

shiny-bum, v.; shiny-bumming. To have a desk-job; the occupant; the occupancy: Aus.: WW2. The v. and vbl n. occur in Dymphna Cusack & Florence James, Come in Spinner, 1951; the n. shiny-bum, in Cusack, Southern Steel, 1953.

shiny rag. See win the shiny rag.

Shiny Seventh, the. The 7th Battalion, Royal Fusiliers (City of London Regiment): military: late C.19–20. (F. & G.) Ex 'the always brightly polished brass buttons of their tunics, in contrast to the dark metal buttons worn by the other three battalions with which they were brigaded under the Territorial System.'—2. Also, the 7th Hussars: military: mid-C.19–early 20. "'Shiny" is the normal nickname of all regiments bearing the number Seven' (R.J.T. Hills, 1934).

Shiny Sheffield (or Shef). The destroyer HMS Sheffield, hit by an Argentine Exocet missile off the Falkland Is., 4 May 1982; she subsequently went down: RN: 1971–82. Because some of her components were made of Sheffield stainless steel. BBC News, 4 and 5 May 1982.

shiny ten. In the game of House, "'Ten" is always "Shiny Ten"—by analogy with the nickname of the Tenth Lancers: The "Shiny Tenth" (Michael Harrison, Reported Safe Arrival, 1943): late C.19–20. See TOMBOLA, in Appendix P.B.: there was no such regt; presumably the author meant:-

Shiny Tenth, the. The 10th Royal Hussars: military: late C.19–20. (R.J.T. Hills, Something about a Soldier. 1934.) Formerly the Chainy Tenth.

ship, n. A body of compositors working together: printers' coll.: 1875 (Southward's Dict. of Typography: OED). Abbr. companionship; cf. stab.—2. An aircraft (any sort—not only a flying-boat): RAF: 1939+. (Jackson.) Perhaps an adoption of US Air Force usage, where pursuit ship = fighter aircraft, bombardment ship = bomber, etc.; if so. prob. joc. (P.B.).—3. A bus: Sydney busmen's joc.: since ca. 1944.—4. In out of a ship, out of work: theatrical: ca. 1880–1910. Ware (at whispering gallery).—5. See old ship; three-island ship; spoil the ship.

ship, v.t. To pull out of bed, mattress on top: Sherborne School: from ca. 1860.—2. To turn back in a lesson: Shrewsbury School: from ca. 1860. Both are prob. ex ship (off), to send packing.—3. To drink (v.t.): nautical coll.:—1887 (Baumann). Lit., take on board.—4. (Ex sense 1.) To turn upside down, to 'rag': Oxford undergraduates': C.20. Alec Waugh, The Baliols, 1934, 'Aesthetes... whose rooms are shipped on bump-suppers.' And in the same author's The Loom of Youth, 1917, as Public School s. This sense has been wittily derived from 'to shipwreck'.—5. To obtain promotion: RN: C.20. Granville, 'An A.B. who is rated Leading Seaman "ships his källick".' Ex S.E. sense, 'to take aboard'. Cf. ship a swab, and white lapel.—6. To assume (an expression): RN: since ca. 1900. Granville, "'Unship that grin, my lad!'" ship a bagnet. To carry or wear a bayonet: naval: late C.18–mid-19. W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, I, 1825 (Moe).

ship a swab. To receive a sub-lieutenant's commission: RN: mid-C.19–early 20. (Bowen.) The 'swab' was the single epaulette conferred by this rank. But it occurs much earlier in W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, I, 1825, where, on p. 113, it = to be a fully qualified captain. (Moe.) To ship an epaulette occurs in Glascock's Sailors and Saints, 1829, at II, 14; at I, 5, occurs ship swabs, thus 'Boy's shipping swabs' before they shave'—glossed as 'Mounting epaulettes, which in his day denoted a captain'. Cf. ship the white lapel.

ship blown up at Point Nonplus. (Indicates that a man is) plucked penniless or politely expelled: Oxford University: ca. 1820–50. (Egan's Grose.) Point Nonplus is a punningly imaginary geographical feature.

ship-husband. A sailor seldom on shore and even then anxious to return to his ship: nautical coll.: from ca. 1840; ob. (Marryat, 1842.) Punning the now ob. ship's husband, an agent that looks after a ship while it is in port. See also ship's husband.

ship in full sail. (A pot of) ale: rhyming s.:—1857 ('Ducange Anglicus').

ship (one's) land-face. To revert to one's sea-going attitude: nautical: late C.19–20; ob. (Bowen.) With hard-case skippers a significant c.p. was fetch me a bucket of water to wash off my land-face: a hint to the crew of squalls ahead.

ship-mate. See shipmate.

Ship of Troy, the. Var. of the Horse of Troy: F. & G.

ship the white lapel. To be promoted from the ranks; esp. to become an officer of marines: naval coll.: mid-C.18–early 19. (In 1812, marine officers began to wear, not white lapels but epaulettes.) Cf. ship a swab.

ship under sail. A begging or a confidence-trick story: rhyming s., on tale: C. 20. Jim Phelan, 1939.

Shipka Pass. See all quiet...

shipmate. A special sense of the S.E. term occurs in N.W. Bancroft, From Recruit to Staff Sergeant, 1885: 'The time [on 21 Dec. 1845] passed pleasantly enough, for we were engaged in looking up "shipmates" (i.e. men who had come to India in the [same] ship)': Indian Army. Cf. townie.—2. In be shipmate with, to have personal knowledge (of a thing): nautical: late C.19–20. Bowen, 'E.g. "I've never been shipmate with single topsails".' shipment. An imposition: Shrewsbury: late C.19–20. (Marples.) Ex ship, v., 2.

shippe, -y. A shipkeeper: coll.: since ca. 1885. Arthur Morrison, To London Town, 1899.—2. 'Shipmate, the fisherman's version of the Navy's old ship' (Granville): C.20.—3. A shipwright: id. Ibid.

ship's. Naval tobacco: RN coll.: since late C.19. (Good-enough, 1901.)—2. Naval cocoa: RN coll.: C.20. Bowen.—3. Sodomy; esp. have a bit of ship's, to commit it: low: C.20. Cf. navy cake, from which it prob. derives.

ship's cousin. A rating or apprentice berthed aft, but working with the men: nautical: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) Prob. suggested by S.E. ship's husband.

ship's husband. 'Captain who is inordinately proud of his ship's appearance and "puts his hand in his pocket" to keep her "tidley"' (Granville): late C.19–20.—2. 'Old Naval name for the first lieutenant' (Ibid.) Cf. Jimmy the One, the C.20 term.

ship's lungs. Dr Hall's patent bellows for ventilating men-of-war: RN coll.: late C.19–early 20. Bowen.

ship's price. 'Charge for food, sweetmeats, cigarettes, etc., smuggled on board and sold at double the price' (Granville): training ships': C.20.

ships? I see no ships – only hardships! C.p. uttered (the speaker sometimes putting an imaginary telescope to his eye) by anyone overhearing a mention of 'ships'—or of 'hardships': mostly Services': since mid-C.20, perhaps earlier. (P.B.)

ships that pass in the night. 'A regular's term for wartime serving airmen and officers' (Jackson): RAF coll.: 1939+. Ex the cliché started by the famous novel so entitled (see my A Dictionary of Clichés). This novel, by Beatrice Harraden, published in 1893, itself drew its title from Longfellow's Poems, 1873.

shipwrecked chorus. See gutbucket.

shipwrecked. Topsy: East London:—1909 (Ware). Cf.:

shipwrecky. Weak; 'shaky': mid-C.19–20: coll. (not very gen.). Hughes, 1857. OED.

shiralee, shiralee. A swag or bundle of blankets, etc.: Aus.: from ca. 1880; ob. Ex an Aboriginal word. Cf. bluey, q.v. (Morris.) The word was given fresh life by its use as the title of D'Arcy Niland's novel, 1955.

shirk, n., in its orig. sense, 'shark, sharper', 'needy parasite' and 'to live as a parasite' (C.17–18), may have been coll. or s. or even c. Also sherk, shurk. A var. of shark.

1052

shirk, v. (As used at Eton, j. = S.E.—) At Winchester, from ca. 1860, shirk in is to walk, instead of plunging, into water, while shirk out is to go out without permission. Cf. shirkster.

shirking party, the. An occasional P.B.I. (q.v.) name for the Royal Engineers supervising work done by Infantrymen: WW1.

shirkster. One who shirks: Winchester: from ca. 1860. Ex shirk, q.v.

shirralee. See shiralee.

shirry. See sherry, n. and v.

shirt. In fly around and tear (one's) shirt, to bestir oneself: coll.: C.19–early 20.—2. In lose (one's) shirt, to become very angry: from ca. 1865. Ex:—3. In get, or have, (one's) shirt out, to make or become angry: from mid-1850s. 'Ducange Anglicus' (have); H., 1st ed. (get). Ex the dishevelment caused by rage. Cf. shirty, q.v.—4. In that's up your shirt!, that's a puzzler for you!: mid-C.19–early 20. F. & H. Contrast:—5. In up my (your, etc.) shirt, for myself, to bet all one's money on, hence to risk all on (a horse): from ca. 1890. The OED records bet at 1892, put at 1897. P.B.: hence, a further meaning (cf. sense 2) of lose (one's) shirt, to lose one's all at the races: C.20.—8. See boiled shirt; historical s.

shirt-buttons. In go on s.-b., (of clock or watch) to be erratic: since ca. 1920. (L.A.) Ex shoddy works.—2. 'Trivial counters, to categorise unworthy payment': coll.: later C.20. L.A. cites Mrs Finnegan, wife of the Olympic boxing gold-medal winner, as saying, 27 Oct. 1968, on her husband's likelihood of turning professional, 'He's not turning out for shirt-buttons'. Cf. washers.

shirt collar. (The sum of) five shillings: rhyming s., on dollar: from ca. 1850; ob. (Everyman, 26 Mar. 1931.) Oxford scholar is more usual. Franklyn, Rhyming, records the var. shirt and collar.

shirt-front wicket. A cricket-pitch that looks glossy and is extremely hard and true: Aus. cricketers' coll. (—1920) >, by 1934, S.E. Lewis.

shirt full of sore bones, give (one) a. To beat him severely: coll.: C.18. Thomas Fuller, Gnomologia, 1732 (Apperson).

shirt in the wind. A piece of shirt seen through the fly or, much more gen., through a hole in the seat: late C.19–20; ob. Gen. flag in the wind.

shirt lifter, shirtlifter. 'A male homosexual' (Wilkes quotes Baker, 1966): rhyming s., on poofster: Aus. low.

shirt-sleevie. A flannel dance: Stonyhurst: late C.19–20. 'The costume is an open flannel shirt and flannel trousers' (F. & H.).

shirtey. Incorrect for shirty, q.v.

shirtiness. The n. (late C.19–20) formed from shirty, q.v. shirtsleeves and shirt-sleeves is a lower classes' c.p. (ca. 1900–12) distinguishing the poor from the rich, hard work from luxury. Ware.

shirty. Angry (temporarily); ill-tempered (by nature); apt to become quickly angered: from late 1850s. H., 1st ed.; Maugham, 1897, Liza of Lambeth, 'You ain't shirty 'cause I kissed yer?' Ex shirt, 3 q.v.

shise, shisier. See shice, shicer.

shish. A late C.19–20 var. of shice, adj., 1, and the v., qq.v. Perhaps on shit(ty).

shish joint. A 'shady' bookmaker and assistant: turf c.:—1932. Also knocking joint.

shisher. A var. of shicer, 3: C.20. Slang, p. 246.

shit, shite, n. Excrement; dung: late C.16–20 (earlier as diarrhœa, a sense † by C.15): S.E., but in C.19–20 a vulgarism. As n., shite is in C.19–20 comparatively rare except in dial. As excrement, prob. ex the v., common to the Teutonic languages: cf. shice, shicer, qq.v. I.e. it is ultimately cognate with shoot. [A later note added:] It has always been common in earthy speech, and seems to be particularly so in that of Can., esp. in C.20, if I judge correctly from the evidence supplied, over a period of many years, by a number of Canadians—most of them, well-educated men; all, exceptionally knowledgeable. The Dict. omits some of the many compounds and phrases containing the terms; others, that are included, are too numerous to cross-ref. here. N.B.: many compounds and all proverbs (even Swift's shitten-cum-shites) from n. and v. are S.E., but where they survive (e.g. shit-breech) they survive as vulgarisms: they (e.g. shit-fire, s.-word) do not here receive separate definition unless (e.g. shit-sack) in a specifically unconventional sense: all those which are hereinunder defined have always been coll. or s. See Grose, P., and A.W. Read, Lexical Evidence, 1935 (Paris; privately printed), for further details. Some fig. uses are as follows:—2. As a term of contempt applied to a person (rarely to a woman), it has perhaps always, C.16–20, been coll.; in C.19–20, it is vulgarism. In C.19–20, esp. a regular shit, in late C.19–20 an awful s. Cf. shit-house, q.v.—3. (Gen. subjectively.) A bombardment, esp. with shrapnel: army: WW1. (B. & P.) Still in use in the Falkland Is. campaign, 1982: 'Artillery rounds were referred to as "shit", particularly when incoming, and a target which had been wiped out with casualties had been "greased" (McGowan & Hands, Don't Cry for Me, 1983). With this use of greased, cf. creamed.—4. Mud: Services': WW1, and prob. before, as certainly after. Ibid.—5. 'Before the war WW1, didn't you sportsmen call everybody who didn't hunt and shoot by a very coarse name, which we can change euphemistically into—squirts?' (H.A. Vachell, The Disappearance of Martha Penny, 1934).—6. 'Bad weather is always invariably "shit"' (Sgt-Pilot F. Rhodes, letter, 1942): RAF: since ca. 1918. Cf. synon. dirt.—7. Short for bull-shit in senses 'hot air; blarney': Can. army: WW2. Esp. in 'Don't hand (or feed) me that shit!' = I don't believe you. Adopted by Brit. Services, since mid-C.20, usu. as 'Don't give me that shit!' (P.B.).—8. 'An over-fanciful concoction of food' (L.A.): chefs': since ca. 1945.—9. Applied to various drugs, and used by addicts and police: marijuana, since ca. 1950 (Frank Norman, Encounter, 1959)—hence, shit-smoker (Ibid.); heroin, since ca. 1960. Cf.:—10. Tobacco, esp. boot shit, prison tobacco: Aus. prison c.: later C.20. McNeil.—11. Abuse; unfair treatment; as in '[the West Indian youths] think because they've taken so much shit from the police, they're going to dole some back in court' (a solicitor, quoted in New Society, 24 Jan. 80): low coll., an extension of sense 7: later C.20. (P.B.).—12. In in the shit, in trouble: low coll.: since mid-C.19. Often land (another) in the shit, or fall in the shit (oneself): since ca. 1870. Cf. the envious (e.g. he) could fall in the shit and come out smelling of violets (roses, etc.).—13. Hence, among soldiers in WW1, in the shit = in the mud and filth; in mud and danger; in great and constant danger. (P.B.: E.P. was one of those soldiers, and no doubt wrote this entry with feeling.)—14. In only a little clean shit!, a derisive c.p. addressed to one debauched or self-fouled: C.19–20. In Scot., gen. ... clean dirt.—15. In not to mean shit, not to mean anything, to mean nothing: low: since ca. 1955. A shortening of not to mean shit to (someone), as in 'He doesn't mean shit to her any more' = she's so used to him that she takes him for granted; not, therefore, as derogatory as it sounds: low: since ca. 1920, at latest. (Based on a L.A. note, 1977.)—16. As an exclam., shit! or shite! is rather low coll. than a vulgarism: C.19 (?earlier)—20. Cf. Fr. merde!—17. See shoot the shit. shit, shite, v. To stool: C.14–20: S.E., but in C.19–20 a vulgarism; at the latter stage, shite is less gen. than shit. See n., 1.—2. To vomit: low coll.:—1887 (Baumann). Cf. shit through ...—3. To disgust, as in 'It shits me' (Dick): low Aus.: since ca. 1930. I.e. 'it gives me the shits'.—4. in get shit of, q.v., to get rid of.

shit a brick. To defecate after a costive period: low: late C.19–20. Cf. bake it.—2. As exclam., an expletive of annoyance: Aus., since ca. 1925; adopted, ca. 1960, in Brit.—3. In Yeah, you could shit a brick. Like hell, you could: Can.: since ca. 1930.—4. See shit bricks.

shit (or fuck) a day keeps the doctor away, a. An Aus. c.p., dating since ca. 1925. After the proverbial an apple a day ... shit a top-block. To become excited or angry or both: shipyard workers', then rather more gen.: C.20. 'Get that straightened—if the boss sees it, he'll shit a top-block.' Top-block is a ship-building term.

shit and corruption; shit and derision. Bad weather, with rain and flak; clouds, with rain: RAF aircrews': 1940–5. P-G-R.—2. Both these phrases, and also shit and molasses!, > expletives of annoyance: mostly Services': since ca. 1945; the third, poss. earlier. (P.B.)

shit and sugar mixed. A low c.p. reply to a question concerning ingredients: C.20.

shit-ass luck. Extremely bad luck: Can.: C.20. shit-bag. The belly; in pl, the guts: low: mid-C.19—earlier 20. F. & H.—2. An unpleasant person: low: since late C.19.

shit barge; also crap barge. A ship lacking efficiency and discipline, and generally known to be such: RN: resp. C.20 and since ca. 1945. (Granville, letter, 1967.)

shit blue lights. To feel extremely afraid: Services': since ca. 1940. P.B.: often intensified by the elab. ... and rows of houses. Cf. synon. (in a) blue funk, andshit (esp. be shitting) bricks. To be really worried: low Can.: C.20.—2. To be thoroughly frightened: army: WW2. Cf. shit a brick.

shit-can, v.t. To wrong (someone deserving it): Aus. low: since ca. 1950.

shit creek. See up shit creek ...

shit-disturber. See shit-stirrer.

shit doesn't (or don't) stink. See think (one's) shit ...

shit-eating. 'Most of us had to be sycopphants ("shit-eating" we called it) (Steven Piper, The North Ships, 1974): trawlermen's: C.20.

shit - eh (? or I) 'Isn't that just too bad!'; (ironical) 'Tough!': Aus.: since ca. 1945.

shit-face is a low, late C.19–20 term of address to an ugly man. (W.L. Gibson Cowan, Loud Report, 1937.) Cf. cunt face.

shit fish. Fish caught around sewage outfalls: fishermen's: C.20.

shit-head. An objectionable person: orig. NZ low, since ca. 1918: >, by mid-C.20, also Brit. low. In later C.20 often unhyphenated, as in 'Your detractors are shitheads, pure and simple' (a letter pub'd in Time Out, 19 Mar. 1982: P.B.).

shit hits the fan, when; and then the shit'll hit the fan. 'A c.p. indicative of grave or exciting consequences': Can.: since ca. 1930. 'Wait till the major hears that! Then the shit'll hit the fan!' Douglas Leechman, who adds that 'the allusion is to the consequences of throwing this material into an electric fan'. P.B.: adopted, mid-1960s, in UK; occ. with omelette or saUCE substituted as euph. for shit.

shit-hole. The rectum: low coll.: C.19–20. Cf. shitter.—2. Occ. var. of piss-hole, as adj. of disapproval: Services': later C.20. (P.B.)

shit-hot. Unpleasantly enthusiastic; e.g. 'He's shit-hot on spit and polish': Can. soldiers': 1914+.—2. Very skilful, cunning, knowledgeable: low: since ca. 1918. P.B.: by mid-C.20, although still 'low', always used in approbation, usu. of a performer or his performance, as 'He scored a couple of shit-hot goals'.—3. Up to the minute; extremely topical: coll.: since ca. 1950. 'A truly shit-hot story' (Lionel Davidson, The Chelsea Murders, 1978).

shit-house. A C.20 var. of shit, n., 2, a nasty person. Cf. shit-pot.—2. A commode: mostly among furniture-removers: late C.19–20.—3. A hospital (or a hospital ward) or a home for very old people who have lost control of their natural functions: hospital staffs': C.20.—4. Frequently used in the Services for any place not at highest state of cleanliness, as 'This room's like a shit-house!'; I have even heard it, used quite thoughtlessly, applied to a lavatory itself: since ca. 1950, prob. much earlier. Hence, also as adj.: 'What a shit-house camp!' (P.B.).—5. In stand out like a shit-house in the fog, a low Can. c.p.: C.20. P.B.: cf. the Brit. phrase like a brick-built shit-house, applied to things, occ. to persons, large, solid, and ugly: C.20. shit-house luck. Very bad luck indeed: low Can.: C.20. Cf. shit-ass, and prec., 4.

shit-hunter. A sodomist: low: C.19—early 20. (F. & H.) Cf. turd-burglar.

shit in a field. See all about—like ...

shit in it! Stop it!; shut up!; Services', perhaps orig. RN lowerdeck: since ca. 1930. Cf.:-

shit in your teeth! A retort on disagreement: C.18—mid-19: coll.

shit-kicker. See shitkicker.

shit-list. Esp. in, e.g. 'You're right at the top of my shit-list, brother!', I regard you with complete disfavour, and shall do all in my power to make life unpleasant for you: low: since ca. 1920. Perhaps there was orig. a pun on short-list, as of candidates for interview. (L.A.; P.B.) shit-locker. Bowels: RN lowerdeck: since ca. 1910.

shit! mother, I can't dance. A low, joc. Can. c.p., 'just for something to say': since ca. 1920. See DCpp.

shit not far behind that, there's. A workmen's c.p., evoked by a noisy breaking of wind: late C.19—20. Cf. a bit near the mud: low synon.: C.20.

shit off a shovel, like. Smart, prompt, esp. of human movement: RN: since ca. 1950. It is linked with the MN's When I say shit, jump on the shovel, 'Do as I say (and quick about it)': same period. (Peppitt.) P.B.: both phrases were quite well known and common in army and RAF usage, mid-C.20.

shit official, in the. In serious trouble: army, mostly officers': 1942—5. Intensive of shit, n., 12.

shit on. To impose on, use shamelessly: low: late C.19—20. Cf. do it on, 1. 'He's shitting on you.' Cf. shat upon, and shit on from ...

shit on a raft. Beans on toast: RN: since late 1940s. (Peppitt.) Cf. shit on a shingle, mince on toast: army and RAF: id. Perhaps borrowed ex US. (P.B.)

shit on from a great height. (Of one who has been) landed in great trouble by others: low (esp., since ca. 1925, RAF): C.20. P.B.: often in var. shat (up)on from ..., q.v.; also as v.t., e.g. 'It's time he was shit (or shat) (up)on ...'

shit on your own doorstep. Always negative, as Don't ... or It'd be stupid to ...: it is foolish to 'foul one's own nest': low: since late C.19. A low var. of 'foul ...' is shit or shit in (one's) own nest.

shit or bust. As it's shit or bust with (e.g. him), he loves bragging: low coll.: late C.19—early 20. I.e., he's all wind. Supplanted by:—2. Be shit or bust, to be given to trying desperately hard; to do a thing and damn the consequences: non-cultured coll.: since ca. 1910. 'I set out in direct disobedience of orders. ... My batman was delighted. ... "I like you, sir," he said. "You're shit or bust, you are"' (Keith Douglas, Alamein to Zem Zem, dated 1946 but pub. in 1947). But 'I'm shit or bust' was, in WW2, very often used ironically, to mean 'I'm completely indifferent'.

shit or get off the pot! A Can. Army c.p. WW2, directed at a dice-player unable to 'crap out'. In U.S. usage (still current) it has the broader meaning of "Either do it or get out of the way and let someone else try" or simply "Make up your mind" (Robert Claiborne, 1966). So, too, in English s. since ca. 1945 (L.A.).

shit order, in. Applied to a dirty barrack-room, hut, dress, equipment, etc.: army: C.20. But, as L.A. points out, also 'of army, RAF establishment or personnel, lacking in proper standard of military order or discipline, as in "If we were fighting the desert war ... they could work in shit order"' (D. Hayes, Tomorrow the Apricots, 1971). Cf. scruff order.

shit out (on), v.i. and t. To miss an opportunity, or one's due: Services': since mid-C.20. 'Sorry! Last one's just gone. Looks as if you've shit out, doesn't it?' or 'The rest got one, but I shit out on it.' (P.B.)

shit-pan alley; euph., bed-pan alley. Dysentery ward in a hospital: army: since ca. 1915.

shit-pot. A thorough or worthless humbug (person); a sneak: low s., and dial.: mid-C.19—early 20. See also shitpot, and cf. synon. scheisspot.

'shit!' said the king, often elab. to ... and all his loyal subjects strained in unison or ... and ten thousand loyal subjects shat. An Aus. c.p.: C.20. Of the same order as 'hell!' said the duchess, q.v. P.B.: equally well known in UK, since ca. 1950 at latest, where a further var. is ... and forty thousand arseholes strained in the dust. cf. aw, shit, lootenant—and the lootenant shat.

shit-sack. A Nonconformist: 1769 (Granger's Biographical History of England, concerning Wm Jenkin); this coll. term may have arisen in late C.17; † by 1860. Grose, 2nd ed., repeats Granger's anecdotal 'etymology'.

shit-scared. Extremely scared, almost to the extent of nervous diarrhoea: low, perhaps orig. RAF: since ca. 1935.

shit-shark. A night-soil collector: low: mid-C.19—early 20.

shit - shave - and shove ashore. Var. of shave, shilling, and shove ashore, as the RN lowerdeck evening-leave routine. Further variants, all involving alliterative sh ..., are shit, shine, shave, shampoo and shift, and the Can., esp. WW2, which includes shower and shoe-shine, as indeed may the Brit. version.

shit-shoe (occ. s.-shod). 'Derisive to one who has bedaubed his boot' (F. & H.): a low coll. of mid-C.19—early 20. Cf. shit, n., 14.

shit, shot and shell. The ammunition in the anti-aircraft 'rocket' barrage, first used in the Portsmouth area: RN lowerdeck: 1942 + . (Granville.) Even nails and bits of old iron were used.

shit-stirrer. One who, by his actions, causes everybody unnecessary trouble: low: late C.19—20. Hence the v., shit-stir, and vbl n. shit-stirring, also as adj. The Can. form of the agent is shit-disturber.

Shit Street. Esp. in Shit Street, in extreme difficulties, in dire trouble: low: since ca. 1920. Cf. up Shit Creek.

shit through the eye of a needle. As in 'I could ...' or 'it'll make you ...' in refs to diarrhoea and its causes: low, perhaps orig. mostly London: since late C.19. An occ. elab. is ... without touching the sides.

shit through (one's or the) teeth. To vomit: low: late C.18—mid-19. Grose, 2nd ed., gives the following c.p., (Hark ye, friend), have you got a padlock on your arse, that you shite through your teeth?

shit to a blanket. In cling or stick like or close as ..., to stay, be, very close to, usu. in an unwanted way: low: since ca. 1930. (G. Kersh, Fowler's End, 1956—but concerning the 1930s.) E.g. a suspected crook's exasperation at a persistent detective, 'He sticks as close to me as ...' Cf. the mid-C.19—20 like shit to a shovel, very adhesive (ly) indeed, also low coll., with which contrast shit off a shovel.

shit(-)wallah. A sanitary man: army: late C.19—mid-20. P-G-R.

shit weighs heavy! A low Can. c.p., directed at a boaster: late C.19—20.

shite. See shit, n. and v.

shite(-) hawk (or written solid). A nasty person: low: C.20. Cf. shit-bag, 2. Ex:—2. A vulture: Services', in India later C.19—mid-20; elsewhere in the tropics, of kites and other scavenging birds of prey, since mid-C.20. (E.P.; P.B.) —3. The badge of the 4th Indian Division: army: 1940 + . —4. (Cf. 2.) A seagull: MN: C.20. (Peppitt.)

Shite-hawk Soldiers, the. The RAF Regiment: army: later WW2 + . For a few years after their formation, mid-WW2, they wore khaki battledress with RAF berets and the RAF blue eagle shoulder-flash; cf. prec., 2. Later they became known as the Rock Apes. (E.P.; P.B.)

shite-hawk's breakfast. In feel like a ..., to feel absolutely dreadful, e.g. as a result of the previous night's alcoholic excesses, etc.: RN lowerdeck: mid-C.20. Heart, 1962. (P.B.)

shite-poke. The bittern: Can.: since ca. 1880. 'From popular belief it has only one straight gut from gullet to exit, and has therefore to sit down promptly after swallowing anything (D.E. Cameron, letter, 1937). But Dr Leechman says that the shit- or shite-poke (euph. shy-poke) is a bird of the heron family and that it is so named because 'it habitually defecates on taking flight when alarmed'. He adds that the bittern is, in Canada, called the thunder-pump, 'from the noise it makes'. shithead. See shit-head.

shikicker. 'Western cowboy novel/film' (Hawke): RM: later C.20. Cf. synon. oater.

shitnatto. 'Nothing doing!': c.: later C.20. See quot'n at boat, above.

shitpot, adj. Second-rate: Aus. low coll.: later C.20. (McNeil.) See also shit-pot.

shits, the. An evident dislike of operational flying: RAF Bomber and Fighter Commands: 1940+. (S/Ldr H.E. Bates.) Ex the mid-C.19–20 coll. sense 'diarrhoea'.—2. In, e.g. 'He gives me the shits', he annoys me and I dislike him intensely: low coll.: since mid-C.20. May also be applied to things, organisations, activities, etc., as 'Politics and priests give me the shits'. (P.B.)

shitten door. See shine like...

shitten look, have a. To look as if one needed to defecate: workman's coll.: late C.19–20.

shitten luck. See luck, 1.

Shitten Saturday. Easter Saturday: (dial. and schools': from ca. 1855; ob. (H., 2nd ed.) Ex Shut-in Saturday, for on it Christ's body was entombed.

shitter. The rectum or anus: low: C.20 (prob. much older). 'Shove that up your shitter!' is a vulgar retort to an unwelcome suggestion. (P.B.)

shitters. Diarrhoea: dial. and low coll.: C.19–20. Cf. synon. skitters, squitters.

Shitting Chickens, the. The 14th/20th King's Hussars: army: mid-C.20. Ex the shape of the eagle, or 'hawk', in the regimental badge. (P.B.)

shittle-cum-shaw, shittle (or shiddle)-cum-shite, shittle-tidee. Occ. as nn. in allusion, often as exclamations: both contemptuous: C.19–early 20 dial. and low coll. reduplications on shit and shite, app. influenced by shittle, fickle, flighty.

shitty, n. See next, 2.

shitty, adj. Of poor quality; shabby and unfair of behaviour or conduct, as 'What a shitty way to treat a bloke!': Services' coll.: C.20. (P.B.)—2. Angry; irritated; very resentful: Aus.: since late 1930s. David Williamson, The Removalists, performed 1971, pub. 1972, 'Ross—about to put off meeting his girl: "She won't be as shitty if she knows I'm getting paid."' Hence, also Aus., since ca. 1960, have a shitty on (someone), to be angry, or in a bad mood, with: Russell Braddon, The Finalists, 1977, "Sorry I had a shitty on you," King murmured.'

shiv, n. and v. (To) knife (someone). Alt. spelling of chiv, q.v.

shivaree. (Much) official talk: 1926, Galsworthy, The Silver Spoon, concerning a law-suit, 'Next came the usual "shivaree" about such and such a case, and what would be taken next, and so on.' For the etym., see next.—2. The Can. shape of:-

shivaroo. A spree; a party: Aus.: 1888, (Sydney) Bulletin, 6 Oct., 'Government House shivaros'; slightly ob. On Fr. chez vous ex US shivaree, a noisy serenade, itself a corruption of charivari, itself echoic. See also sheave-o, and shivoo.

shivaveo. See shivoo.

shiver (one's and my) timbers! See timbers, 1 and 3.

shivering Jemmy (occ., in late C.19–20, James). A beggar that, on a cold day, exposes himself very meagrely clad for alms: low, mostly London:—1860 (H., 2nd ed.). Perhaps ex s. J., dial. for shivering grass. Cf. shallow cove and see shallow dodge.

shivers, the. The ague: coll.: 1861 (Dickens, in Great Expectations: OED).—2. Hence (often cold shivers), horror, nervous fear: coll.: from ca. 1880. In C.20, both senses are S.E. Cf.:

shivery-shakes. The same; chills: coll.: mid-C.19–20. Whence:

shivery-shaky. Trembling, esp. with ague or the cold: coll.: mid-C.19–20. Anon., Derby Day, 1864, 'He's all shivery-shaky, as if he'd got the staggers, or the cold shivers.'

shiv(e)y. (Of wool) 'carrying small, fine particles of vegetable matter' (B., 1959): Aus. coll.: C.20. Perhaps ex Yorkshire dial. shivvins, 'fragments of wool, rough yarn, &c. in woollen matter' (EDD).

shivoo. 'A party, celebration, esp. if noisy' (Wilkes, whose earliest example, from Alexander Harris, The Emigrant Family, 1849, is spelt shivaveo): Aus. Jon Bee, A Living Picture of London, 1828, has 'A "Chiveau", or merry dinner'; E.P. used head-word shevoo, but all Wilkes's later quot'ns, 1889–1970, except one (chivoo, 1919) are spelt shivoo. Prob. all are variants of the synon. late C.18 chevaux, q.v. at sheave-o, 2. Cf. shivaroo. (P.B.) shlemozzle. See shemozzle.

shlemiel. See shlemiel.

shlenter. Occ. var. of schlenter.

shlep. See schlep.

shliver. Occ. var. of chiv, a knife: Manchon, 1923.

shmee, shmuck. Heroin: drugs' world: later C.20. (Home Office.) Cf. synon. smack. Shmuck, see shmuck, 2.

shnide. A var. of snide, n. 3. (Norman.) Since the late 1950s, it has been the pron. current among teenagers, esp. in 'a shnide remark' (R.S.).

shnozzer. See snorer.

shoal. See shoal.

shoal-water off, in. E.g. 'In shoal-water off the horrors,' on the brink of delirium tremens; 'near' in any fig. sense: nautical coll.: late C.19–early 20. Bowen.

shobbos of, make. To set in good order; to tidy up: Jewish: late C.19–20. To make clean and neat as if for the Shobbos or Sabbath.

shock-a-lolly. See wally.

shock-absorber. An observer (as opp. the pilot): RFC: WWI. F. & G.

shock-absorbers. Female breasts, the suppliers of pneumatic bliss, a cultured coll. of the 1960s–70s: since ca. 1950. (Petch, 1976.)

shocker. Also complete shocker. 'A hopeless individual or object—simply terrible' (H. & P.); a thoroughly unpleasant fellow: Services', the latter mostly officers': since ca. 1920; >, by mid-C.20, gen.—sometimes used in affectionate reproof, e.g., to a child, 'Oh, you're a right little shocker, you are!' Prob. ex shocking, adj.—2. A shock-absorber: motorists' and motorcyclists': since ca. 1925.—3. See shilling shocker, which, from 1890, it occ. displaces. Coll. > S.E. shocking. Extremely shocking or disgusting or objectionable: coll.: 1842, Browning, 'Shocking/To think that we buy gowns lined with Ermine/For dolts...' (OED), but doubtless in spoken use a decade earlier at least. Cf. shockingly.

shocking, adv. Shockingly: low coll.: 1831, "'Vot a shocking bad hat!"—the slang Cockney phrase of 1831, as applied to a person: in 1833, Sydney Smith describes New York as "a shocking big place"' (OED).

shockingly. Extremely or very, esp. in pej. contexts: 1777, Miss Burney, 'Dr Johnson... is shockingly near-sighted' (OED). Cf. shocking, adj.—2. Shockingly ill: coll.: 1768, Goldsmith, 'You look most shockingly to-day, my dear friend' (OED).—3. Hence, from ca. 1880, 'abominably', very badly. W.G. Marshall, 'Shockingly paved' (OED).

Shocks. Choques, a small Fr. town near Bethune: army: WWI. F. & G.

shod. 'Colloquially applied to motor vehicles. A car with good tyres is described as well shod' (B.P.): Aus.: since ca. 1945.—2. See hosed and shod.

shod (all) round, be. To know all about married life: coll.: C.18–early 19. Swift, in Conversation, I, "'Mr Buzzard has married again..."' "This is his fourth wife; then he has been shod round."—2. 'A parson who attends a funeral is said to be shod all round, when he receives a hat-band, gloves, and scarf: many shoeings being only partial' (Grose, 2nd ed.): late C.18—mid-19.

shoddy-dropper. A seller of cheap serge: Aus. and NZ c.:—1932. B., 1942, for the Aus. usage.

shoe (or S.). Always the—. A room in Southgate Debtors' Prison: C.19.—2. A tyre, esp. of a car: garages' s.: from ca. 1920. Richard Blaker, Night-Shift, 1934.—3. A sanitary pad: Aus. feminine: since late 1940s. Ex shape.—4. See tread the shoe awry.

shoe-buckles. See not worth a... shoe is on the mast, the. 'If you like to be liberal, now's your time': a c.p. of C.19: sailors' > gen. lower classes'. In C.18, 'when near the end of a long voyage, the sailors nailed a shoe to the mast, the toes downward, that passengers might delicately bestow a parting gift.' (Ware.)

shoe-leather! Look out!; be careful!: c.: mid-C.19—20; ob. ('Ducange Anglicus'; H., 1st ed.) Perhaps cf. Warwickshire dial. s.-l., a kicking (EDD).—2. 'If you were requested to shy along the shoelather you at once cast about for the salt meat' (G.E. Morrison, 1882, quoted in C. Pearl, Morrison of Peking, 1967): Aus. nautical.

shoe (one's) mule. To embezzle: coll.: ca. 1650—1720. Nares. shoe pinches him, his. He is drunk: coll.: C.18. Franklin's Drinker's Dict.—2. Robert Barltrop writes, letter to P.B., 1981: 'throughout my lifetime in London, probably among the working class generally, the phrase has meant that the man referred to has (or prob. has) a large penis. Its origin is in myths that the size of a man's feet, or of his nose [cf. big conk..., q.v.], corresponds with his sexual proportions.' shoe-string; esp. operate, or do it, on a shoe-string. A small sum of money, esp. as working capital: coll.: adopted, in late 1950s, ex US. (See W. & F.).—2. Hence the adj. shoe-string, operating on a (very) small capital; 'run' very economically: coll.: since ca. 1960. 'Acting in Scruggs, an off-beat, shoe-string movie' (Woman, 23 Oct. 1965). P.B.: E.P. may have dated this rather late; the phrase was popularised by Laurier Lister's revue Airs on a Shoestring, which opened at the Royal Court Theatre in 1953.

shoe the cobbler. 'To tap the ice quickly with the fore-foot when sliding' (F. & H.): coll.: from ca. 1840; ob. Cf. cobbler's door, q.v.

shoe the goose. To undertake or do anything futile or absurd: coll.: C.15—18. (Hocleve, Skelton, Breton.) By late C.18, it has > a proverb, gen. in form shoe the goslings, usu., however, applied to a busybody smith. Apperson.—2. To get drunk: coll.: C.17. (Cotgrave.) Extant in Shropshire and Herefordshire dial. (EDD).—3. As (go) shoe...!, a derisive or incredulous retort: coll. C.16—18. (B.E.) Cf. sense 1.

shoe the horse. To cheat one's employer: lower classes': —1923 (Manchon). Perhaps ex:

shoe the (wild) colt. To demand an initiation-fee from one entering on office or employment: dial. (—1828) and coll.; very ob. as the latter. Punning colt, a greenhorn. F. & H. favours wild, Apperson omits it. E.P. later added: Part of initiation ceremony, 'Swearing on the horns', performed at the Gate House, Highgate, at least as late as 1900.

shoelather. See shoe-leather.

shoemaker. The large Antarctic gull: nautical:—1867 (Bowen). Perhaps joc. on its scientific name, Skua antarcticus.

shoemaker's pride. Creaking boots or shoes: dial. and coll.: mid-C.19—20. Cf.:

shoemaker's stocks, be in the. To be pinched by strait shoes: ca. 1660—1910. Pepys, 1666 (OED); Ray, 1678; B.E.; Grose. Cf. shoemaker's pride.

shoes. See children's shoes; die in a devil's shoes; over boots...

shoes are made of running leather, my, your, etc. I, you, etc., am—are—of a wandering disposition, or very restless: semi-proverbial coll.: from ca. 1570; ob. Churchyard, 1575; Hone, 1831. (Apperson.) Cf. C.20 synonym. itchy feet.

shoesmith. A cobbler: joc. coll.: C.19—early 20. On S.E. sense, a shoeing-smith.

1056

shoey. A shoeing-smith; a farrier: army: late C.19—20. F. & G.—2. As Shoey, the 'inevitable' nickname of men surnamed Smith: Services': late C.19—earlier 20. Ibid.

shoful (1828, Sessions); occ. shoful(l) (1839), schoful (1859), shofel (1839), shofle (1862), shouful (—1914), (? only in sense 4) shovel (1864); often showfull (1851). (Only in sense 1 as an adj.) Counterfeit money: Brandon, 1839; 1851, Mayhew; 'No. 747'. Yiddish almost imm. > Cockney s. verging on c., which indeed it may orig. have been—as Smythe-Palmer, 1882, says it was. Ex Yiddish shofel, worthless stuff, ex Ger. schofel, worthless, base, ex Yiddish pronunciation of Hebrew shaphel (or -al), low, as the OED so clearly sets forth. (Also shoful money: cf. shoful-man, q.v.).—2. A low-class tavern: low: ca. 1850—1910, and perhaps never very gen. (Mayhew, 1851.) Prob. directly ex the adj. shoful (see sense 1) with place or tavern suppressed.—3. A humbug, an impostor: ca. 1860—90. (H., 3rd ed.) See sense 1.—4. (Often spelt shofle, occ. shovel.) A hansom cab; among cabmen, a 'shoful' cab, according to Mayhew (London Labour, iii, 351), is one infringing Hansom's patent: 1854 (Household Words, vol. 3: OED); ob. by 1910, virtually † by 1930. There is little need to suppose with the OED that this sense may have a distinct origin, though H., 3rd ed., suggests the similarity of a hansom to a shovel or a scoop, and his successor in the 5th ed. cites (à titre de curiosité) a friend's 'shoful, full of show, ergo, beautiful—handsome—Hansom.'—5. See:

shoful (jewellery). Sham jewellery: 1864 (H., 3rd ed.), but prob. a decade older. Here, shoful may be adj. or n. (see shoful, 1): cf. shoful money.

shoful-man. A counterfeiter of coins, notes, etc.; occ. = shoful-pitcher: c.: 1856 (Mayhew).

shoful(-)money. Counterfeit money: c.: from the 1850s. See shoful, 1.

shoful (etc.)-pitcher. A passer of counterfeit money: c.: —1839 (Brandon, shofels); H., 1st ed. (shoful).

shoful-pitching. Passing of counterfeit money; c.:—1857 ('Ducange Anglicus'); H., 2nd ed.: but the ref. in 'No. 747' is to some twelve years earlier than in 'Ducange Anglicus'. shoful pullet. 'A "gay" woman' (H., 2nd ed.): low (? c.): ca. 1860—90.

shog. To amble along, as on—or as if on—horseback: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) It comes ex English dialect and is coll. rather than s. See EDD.

shoke. A hobby; a whim: Anglo-Indian: mid-C.19—20. B. & L.

sholl. (Gen. v.t.) To crush the wearer's hat over his eyes: c.: from ca. 1860 (H., 3rd ed.); ob. by 1930. ? ex shola (hat), a sola topee.

shong. A catapult: Aus., mostly juvenile: since ca. 1925. (B., 1943.) Ex synonym. shanghai.

shonky; shonk. A Jew: low; mid-C.19—20. Knock, 1932 (for ca. 1903—24); Matthews, Cockney, 1938 (the latter). The former is the diminutive of the latter which derives (ex American) ex Yiddish shonnicker, 'a trader in a small way, a pedlar'.—2. As Shonky, 'Nickname for any stingy, miserly, "close" person; one who hates paying for a round of drinks but is not averse to accepting treat from others' (Granville): RN: C.20. Ex sense 1.—3. As shonk, nose: Cockneys': C.20. 'Keep your cherry-picking shonk out of it!' (George Forwood, 1962) = Mind your own business! Perhaps ex distinctive feature in sense 1. (P.B.) shonky, adj. Mean; money-grubbing: late C.19—20. Ex the n. shont. A foreigner: Cockneys': ca. 1880—1915. (J.W. Horsley, I Remember, 1912.) Cf. shonk.

shoo to a goose, cannot say. To be timid, bashful: from ca. 1630: coll. till C.19, then S.E.—with boh much more frequent.

shook, ppl (adj.), itself sol. Robbed; lost by robbery: c. of ca. 1810—80. Vaux, 1812, 'I've been shook of my skin, I have been robbed of my purse.' Also in Vaux, 'Have you shook? = have you succeeded in stealing anything? See shake, v., 3 and 4.—2. A synonym, ca. 1810—50, of rocked, q.v. Vaux.—3. In that shook (him, or me, etc.), that astonished, surprised, perturbed, perplexed, baffled, him: orig. Services', esp. RAF, since 1939; >, fairly soon, very widespread and gen. (Sgt-Pilot F. Rhodes, letter, 1942; H. & P.) Intensively: 'I was shaken rigid (or rotten)'. See shook rigid.

shook on. (Sense 1, gen. of a man; 2, of either sex.) In love with, or possessed of a passion for: Aus.: 1888, 'Rolf Boldrewood', 'He was awful shook on Madge; but she wouldn't look at him.' E.P.'s later note: also NZ—and applicable to either sex: cf. Jean Devaney, The Butcher Shop, 1926, 'Being "shook" on a man.'—2. Having a great fancy for (a -thing): 1888, Boldrewood, 'I'm regular shook on the polka.' Cf. the very Aus. crook, ill. B.P.: Sense 1 has, since ca. 1945, been only joc.; sense 2 is very common, esp. in the negative not much shook on.

shook rigid. Var. of shaken rigid (see shook, 3), and of same period: orig. illit., it came to be adopted by the literate as a jocularly. P.B., 1974, recalls hearing of a sermon by an army chaplain, early 1950s, in which the preacher declaimed: 'And the Egyptian army reached the Red Sea, saw what had become of the Israelites—and they were shook (pause) rigid!' L.A., 1978, adds 'or even prick-rigid'. Cf. the earlier-shook-up; esp. reg'lar s.u. Upset; nerve-racked: low coll.: late (? mid) C.19–20.

shool, Shool. A church or chapel: East London: from ca. 1870. (Ware.) Ex the Jews' term for their synagogue.

shool; occ. shoole (Grose, 2nd ed.) or shoal (C.19); often shule (C.18–20) To go about begging, to sponge, to 'scrounge': dial. and s.: from 1730s. Smollett, 1748, 'They went all hands to shoaling and begging'; Lover, 1842. Perhaps ex shool, a shovel, via dial. shool, to drag the feet, to saunter.—2. Hence, to skulk: dial. and s.: from ca. 1780; ob. Grose, 1st ed.—3. To impose on (a person): 1745 (Bampfylde Moore Carew: OED). Ex sense 1.—4. To carry as a 'blind': 1820 (Clare): dial. and s.; ob. OED.

shooler or shuler; occ. shoolman. A beggar, vagabond, 'scrounger', loafer: 1830, Carleton, 'What tribes of beggars and shulers' (EDD); F. & H. (shoolman).

shoon. A fool; a lout: c. of late C.19—early 20. ? on loon. shoosh. Silence: Aus., esp. among two-up players: since ca. 1925. Lawson Glassop, Lucky Palmer, 1949, "'Gents," he said plaintively, "a bit of shoosh, please, gents. Just a little bit of shoosh. We don't want no coppers breakin' in on us.'" P.B.: ex the very widespread injunction to be quiet, as in 'Shoosh now! Daddy's trying to read', etc.

shoot, n. Dismissal, esp. in get, or give (a person), the shoot: earlier C.20. Ware derives it ex a flour-mill's shoots.—2. As the Shoot, The Walworth Road station: London: late C.19—early 20. Because 'a large number of workpeople alight there' (F. & H.); punning rubbish-shoot.—3. Also as the Shoot, Walthamstow: London: ca. 1900–10. It was then—in part—a dump for undesirables.—4. In do a shoot, to fire the guns: artillerymen's coll. > j.: since ca. 1910. P-G-R.—5. Amount, number: see the whole shoot.

shoot, v. To experience the sexual spasm: low: mid-C.19–20. Cf. synon. come.—2. Hence, and also as shoot a bishop, to have a 'wet dream': low: later C.19—earlier 20.—3. To quote a man a close price even at the risk of loss: stockbrokers': ca. 1870–1910.—4. To unload: railwaymen's: later C.19—earlier 20. (The Echo, 29 July 1872.) Prob. on shoot rubbish.—5. To inject (e.g. smack, heroin): adopted, ca. 1965, ex U.S. R.S. cites a Daily Telegraph book review, 22 Nov. 1973.—6. In will you shoot?, will you pay for a (small) strong drink?: Aus. c.p.: ca. 1900–14.—7. To give utterance to: 1929. Ex sense 1 of-shoot! Go ahead; speak!: from ca. 1925. Ex the cinema: in making a film, shoot!=use your camera now: orig. US.—2. Euph. for expletive shit!: Can.: C.20. Current in US much earlier: 'It appears, e.g., in Tom Sawyer [1876], though probably not as a conscious euphemism' (Robert Claiborne, 1966).

shoot a bishop. See shoot, v., 2. Cf. bash the bishop, (of the male) to masturbate.

shoot a card. To leave one's card at a house: Society: ca. 1910–40. 'Sapper', The Third Round, 1924.

shoot a - rarely the - line. To talk too much, esp. to boast: RAF since ca. 1928, Army officers' since 1940. List from Grenfell Finn-Smith, April 1942; Richard Hillary, The Last Enemy, 1942 (also line-shooter); 1942, Sgt-Pilot F. Rhodes (private letter), "'Shooting a line"', for boasting, probably the most characteristic of all R.A.F. phrases'; H. & P., 1943; Partridge, 1945. Jackson notes that in the 1920s the RAF used shoot a line of bull, which they soon shortened; the longer phrase may combine the theatrical shoot one's lines (declaim them vigorously), and bulsh, and the American shoot off one's mouth, as Jackson has suggested. The phrase perhaps dates from as early as 1919, for line-shooter occurs in a song sung at Christmas, 1925: witness C.H. Ward-Jackson, Airman's Song Book, 1945. Perhaps, as Professor F.E.L. Priestley has suggested, reminiscent of the fact that in the early 1920s every 'sheik' had a special verbal approach—or 'line'—with the girls. See also line-shoot.

shoot a lion. To urinate: euph. coll.: later C.19.

shoot a man. Gen. as vbl n., shooting a man, the common practice of jobbers who, guessing whether a broker is a buyer or a seller, alter their prices up or down accordingly: Stock Exchange:—1935.

shoot a paper-bolt. To circulate a false or unauthenticated rumour: coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

shoot-about. See shootabout.

shoot-and-scoots. A gen. army synon. of imshee artillery, q.v.: 1915–18.

shoot at a pigeon and kill a crow. To blunder deliberately: coll.: from the 1630s; ob. by the 1930s. Apperson.

shoot between or (be)twixt wind and water. To coit with a woman: coll.: early C.17—early 20. Ludowick Barrey, Ram Alley, 1611 (Moe).—2. To infect venereally: late C.17—early 19. (B.E.; Grose.) Gen. in the passive, punning the S.E. sense, 'to receive a shot causing a dangerous leak' (in that part of the hull which is sometimes above water and sometimes below: SOD). P.B.: and clearly there is a physiological pun as well.

shoot down - shoot down in flames - shoot down from a great height. 'To defeat in an argument; to be right on a question of procedure, dress, drill, etc.': RAF: resp. since ca. 1938, 1939, 1940. Grenfell Finn-Smith, in list sent to me in April 1942 has the first, as has H. & P.; the latter records also the second; E.P., New Statesman, 19 Sep. 1942, has the first and second; Partridge, 1945, 'The first—though far from colourless—is the weakest; the second connotes a victory that utterly routs the opponent—as does the third, with the added connotation of calm and/or great intellectual superiority in the victory.' Obviously ex aerial warfare; compare the Navy's salvo.—2. Only shoot down: 'Shot down. Pulled up for not saluting or for being improperly dressed' (H. & P.): RAF: since 1939. In gen., 'To reprimand a subordinate' (R. Hinde, 1945). Of same orig. as 1. See also shot down.

shoot-flier. The agent in next. R.Samuel, East End Underworld, 1981, glossary.

shoot-fly. The snatching theft of watches: c.:—1933 (Charles E. Leach).

shoot for the stick. To shoot with a view to a good bag, not merely for pleasure: sporting coll.: 1834 (OED). Ex a tally-stick.

shoot (one's) grandmother. To be mistaken or disappointed; often as you've shot your grannie: coll.: ca. 1860–1960.

shoot in (another's) bow. To practise an art not one's own: C.17–18: coll. soon > S.E.

shoot in the eye. To do (a person) a bad turn: coll.: late C.19–20.

shoot in the tail. To coit with (a woman); to sodomise: low: mid-C.19–20.

shoot into the brown. To fail: Volunteers': ca. 1860–1915. (Ware.) Ex rifle-practice, at which the poor shot misses the target, his bullet going into the brown earth of the butt.

SHOOT LINEN

shoot (one's) linen. To make one's shirtcuffs project beyond one's coatcuffs: coll.: 1878 (Yates, in The World, 16 Jan.). Cf. shoot your cuff, q.v.

shoot (one's) lines. To declaim vigorously; theatrical: from ca. 1870.

shoot (one's) load. (Of the male) to experience an orgasm: low: C.20. (T.C.H. Raper, 1973.) Cf. shoot, v., 1.

shoot (one's) milt. Synon. with prec.: low: mid-C.19—earlier 20. Also shoot (one's) roe.

shoot (one's) mouth off. Var. of shoot off (one's) mouth, than which, C.20, it is commoner. (Dorothy L. Sayers, Murder Must Advertise, 1933.) Also, as H. Wade, Constable Guard Thyself, 1934, shoot one's mouth. Cf.:-

shoot (one's) neck off. 'To talk loudly and self-assertively' (P-G-R): mostly Services': ca. 1920–50. Ex prec.; cf. shoot out (one's) neck.

shoot off. To depart hastily or very quickly: NZ: since ca. 1919. (Jean Devanney, Bushman Burke, 1930.) Cf. shoot through.

shoot off (one's) mouth. To talk; esp. to talk boastfully or indiscreetly; to tell all one knows (cf. spill the beans): orig. (1887) US and =talk abusively; anglicised, thanks to the 'talkies', in 1930–1; in Canada, by 1925. Cf. say a mouthful, spill the beans.

shoot on early. Beginning work at 6 a.m.: London labourers': from ca. 1920. Evening News (London), 13 Nov. 1936.

shoot on the post. To catch and pass an opponent just before the tape; sporting: from ca. 1870; ob. B. & L.

shoot (out one's) neck. 'To butt into a conversation with an unwarranted air of authority; to make a long speech where either brevity or silence is indicated. Often with an implication of boasting or exaggeration'; military: from 1915. (B. & P.) Of US orig.

shoot over the pitcher. To brag of one's shooting: coll.: C.19.

shoot (one's) star. To die: late C.19—early 20. Ex evanescent shooting stars.

shoot that! Oh, be quiet!: late C.19—early 20. Prob. abbr. next.—2. Stop talking (about), as in shoot the shop!: id.

shoot that hat! A derisive c.p. retort: ca. 1860–72: mainly London. Cf. all round my hat!; I'll have your hat!; what a shocking bad hat!

shoot the amber. (Of a motorist) to increase speed when the amber light is showing, in order to pass before the red ('stop') light comes on: motorists': from late 1935. P.B.: in later C.20 gen. shoot the lights; one who does so is known, perhaps mainly journalistically, as an amber gambler.

shoot the bones. To throw dice; gamblers': since ca. 1942. (Duncan Webb in Daily Express, 11 Sept. 1945.) Also shoot craps, adopted from US ca. 1940.

shoot the breeze. To chatter idly; to gossip: Can., adopted ca. 1950 (if not a decade earlier), ex US. (Leechman.)

shoot the cat. To vomit: C.19–20; coll. Lex. Bal., 1811; Marryat in The King's Own, 1830, 'I'm cursedly inclined to shoot the cat.' A C.17–18 var., jerk the cat; a C.17–20 ob. var., whip the cat, as in Taylor the Water Poet, 1630.—2. 'To sound a refrain in the infantry bugle call to defaulters' drill, which, it is fancied, follows the sound of the words "Shoot the cat—shoot the cat"' (F. & H.): army: late C.19—early 20.

shoot the crow. To depart without paying:—1887 (Fun, 8 June); ob. by 1930.

shoot the gulf. To achieve a very difficult task; ironically, to achieve the impossible: coll.: ca. 1640–1760. Howell; Defoe, 'That famous old wives' saying'. Perhaps, as Defoe asserts, ex Drake's 'shooting the gulf' of Magellan. OED.

shoot the lights. See shoot the amber.

shoot the moon. See moon, n., 4 shoot the pit. See pit, 4 shoot the shit. To chat; tell tall stories: Can. army: WW2. P.B.: since ca. 1950 (? earlier) also Brit. Services', and esp. in the 2nd sense, 'boasting'.

shoot the sitting pheasant. 'To injure or destroy the life or reputation of one who is entirely helpless to defend himself, and therefore has no chance': coll. (—1931) now verging on S.E. Lyell, 'To shoot at a bird, except when it's in flight, is the height of unsportsmanship.'

shoot the tube. See tube, n., 9.

shoot through. To go absent without leave: Aus.: since ca. 1940. (Dymphna Cusack, 1951.) Cf. go through, 4.—2. Hence, to escape from prison: Aus. c.: since ca. 1950. Ian Grindley, 1977.—3. Hence, simply 'to depart', as 'Well! It's four o'clock—time we were shooting through': Aus.: later C.20. (P.B.) Cf.:-

shoot through like a Bondi tram. To travel very fast (and not stop): Sydneysites': since ca. 1935. (B.P.)

shoot up. 'To dive on to' (an enemy 'plane): aviators': from 1917. (New Statesman and Nation, 20 Feb. 1937.) Ex the shooting that follows.—2. 'To "shoot up" a place or a person is to make a mock diving attack' (Sgt-Pilot F. Rhodes, 1942): RAF: since late 1939. [P.B.: but cf. 1] Jackson, 1943, 'The origin is American gangster slang meaning to attack with gun-fire.'—3. To inject drugs: drugs' world: adopted, mid-1960s, ex US. John Wyatt, 1973.

shoot up the straight, do a. To coit with a woman: low: mid-C.19–20. Cf. do a rush... and shoot in the tail.

shoot (a person) up with. Not to do something that someone wishes done; to do something other than what was desired: military: from ca. 1925.

shoot white. To ejaculate: low: from ca. 1870. Whence a Boer War conundrum.

shoot your cuff! 'Make the best personal appearance you can and come along' (Ware): lower classes': ca. 1875–90. The semantics are those of shoot one's linen, q.v.

shootable. Suitable: sol. when not joc.: from ca. 1830. OED.

shootabout. An irregular form of football: schools', esp. Charterhouse: late C.19–20. Also shoot-about, as in A.H. Tod, Charterhouse, 1900. Cf. punt-about and run-about.

shooter. A gun or pistol; esp. a revolver: resp. 1840, 1877: s. >, ca. 1910, coll. OED.—2. A shooting-stick: printers': from ca. 1860. Prob. on sense 1.—3. A black morning coat as distinguished from the tail coat worn by the Fifth and Sixth Forms: Harrow: from ca. 1870. Hence, more gen. = any black morning coat: C.20. OED Sup.

shooter's hill. The 'mons veneris': low: late C.19–20; ob. Punning Shooter's Hill, London.—2. Whence take a turn on Shooter's Hill, to coit.

shooting a man. See shoot a man.

shooting a ruby, n. A hæmoptysis, i.e. a spitting of blood: hospital nurses': since ca. 1935. Nursing Mirror, 7 May 1949.

shooting double-headers. 'We would use both nets, so that the whole of a large area [of water] would be encircled. This is called "shooting double headers"' (Nino Culotta, Gone Fishin', 1963): Aus. fishermen's: since ca. 1920. Ex the game of two-up.

shooting for, be. 'Recently, in hospital, I saw a very old man tottering about and discovered that he was 93... "and shooting for 100". Aiming at, hoping to reach.' (Leechman.) Mostly Can.: since ca. 1920.

shooting gallery, the. The front line: military: WW1. The metaphor exists also in Ger. military s.—2. See lines book.

shooting-iron. A rifle: mostly marksmen's: adopted, ca. 1918, ex US.

shooting-match. See whole shoot, the.

shooting season, the. The 'confusion of a sea battle, when a rating could, with impunity, murder tyrannical petty officers or officers': RN: C.19—earlyish (and perhaps mid-)20. Peppitt adduces C. McPherson, Life Aboard a Man o' War, 1829. It happened also in the Army, certainly during WW1 and WW2; although I never heard the term, I surmise that it probably existed. Not the sort of thing that gets openly discussed, yet there was the occasional dark hint.

shooting stick. A gun: ca. 1825–1900. E.J. Wakefield, Adventure, 1845.

Shop, shop. As the Shop, the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich: army: mid-C.19—early 20. Kipling, where opp.

'Sandhurst'. A special use of:—2. (A shop.) A place of business; where one works: coll.: since early C.19. Thomas Surr, Richmond, 1827, 'The office, or shop as he called it.' An extension of the basic sense (a building, a room, where things are sold).—3. Often, Oxford or Cambridge University: from ca. 1840: s. >, ca. 1880, coll.; slightly ob. Clough in his Long Vacation Pastoral, 'Three weeks hence we return to the shop'; Thackeray, 1848. Esp. the other shop, which is often used of a rival (chiefly, the most important rival) establishment of any kind.—4. Linked with the prec. sense is the joc. one, place—any place whatsoever. (Thus, in political s., the House of Commons, as in Trollope's Framley Parsonage, 1861; among small tradesmen, one's house or home, as in H., 5th ed.; among actors, the theatre, from ca. 1880, says Ware.) Mid-C.19–20.—5. Hence, in racing, a 'place' (1st, 2nd, or 3rd): from ca. 1870. H., 5th ed.—6. An engagement, 'berth': theatrical: 1888, Jerome K. Jerome, 'Being just before Christmas... there was no difficulty in getting another shop' (OED). From twenty years earlier in dial.: see the EDD. Also gen. s.: 1898, W. Pett Ridge, Mord Em'ly.—7. (As the Shop.) Stock Exchange s. >, ca. 1900 coll. >, ca. 1910 j., as in The Rialto, 23 May 1889, 'The latest name for the South African gold market is the Shop.'—8. (As the shop.) The promoting interest behind an issue of stock: Stock Exchange:—1935.—9. (As shop.) A prison: c.: late C.17–18. (B.E.; Grose.) Cf. to shop in c.—10. ? hence, the mouth: dial. and s.: from ca. 1860. Whence shut your shop!, be silent!—11. (Certainly ex 'prison' sense.) A guard-room: military: mid-C.19–20; ob. by 1914, virtually † by 1930.—12. A causing to be arrested: c.: from ca. 1920. (Edgar Wallace, e.g. in A King by Night, 1925.) Ex the v., 1–3.—13. (Cf. sense 4.) A public house: buckish: ca. 1810–40. Pierce Egan, London, 1821.—14. As the Shop it is Melbourne undergraduates' s. for the University: since ca. 1910. B., 1943.—15. In come or go to the wrong shop, 'To come (go) to the wrong person or place to get what one requires' (Lyell): coll.: late C.19–20.—16. See all over the shop; live over the shop; shut up shop; sink the shop; top of the shop; two-to-one shop; the v., 7.

shop, v. To imprison: late C.16–20: S.E. until mid-C.17, coll. till late C.17, then c. B.E., Grose.—2. To put (an officer) under arrest in the guard-room: military:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.).—3. To lay information on which a person is arrested: c.: since early C.19. (J.H. Lewis, The Art of Writing, 7th ed., 1816: Moe.) Ex sense 1.—4. Whence, or directly ex sense 1, to kill: c.: late C.19–20. (F. & H.) Perhaps influenced by ship, to send packing.—5. To dismiss (a shop-assistant): from ca. 1860; ob. (H., 3rd ed.) Prob. ironically on S.E. shop, to give a person work (1855, OED).—6. (Gen. in passive.) To engage a person for a piece: theatrical:—1909 (Ware). Ex n., 6.—7. In get a shop, or be shopped, to gain 1st, 2nd or 3rd place: the turf: from ca. 1870. H., 5th ed. (get a shop); the other from ca. 1890). Ex n., 5.—8. To punish severely; pugilistic: ca. 1870–1910. B. & L.—9. To deliberately get (someone) into trouble: Services: since ca. 1930. Ex sense 3.—10. To shop at: Can. advertisers' and radio coll.: since ca. 1957. 'Shop Eaton's' for 'Shop at Eaton's' affords a good example. (Leechman.) shop around. (Of housewives) to go round the shops in search of the best offers being made: since mid-1950s: coll. > informal S.E. (Petch, 1969).—2. Hence, (mainly, though not exclusively) of women 'trying' numerous men before deciding to marry: since ca. 1960. 'Why don't you marry, Liz?'—'Oh, I may. I'm still shopping around.' See also shopping.

shop-bouncer. Var. of shop-lift, n., q.v.: low s., bordering on c.: mid-C.19–early 20. H., 1st ed. Ex-shop-bouncing. Shoplifting: c.:—1839 (Brandon). shop-door. Trouser-fly: from ca. 1890. Also your shop-door is open! shop-lift, n. A shop-thief; esp. one who, while pretending to bargain, steals goods from the shop: ca. 1670–1830: c. until ca. 1700, then S.E. (Head, 1673; B.E.) See lift. shop-lifter. The same: 1680 (Kirkman: OED): c. or s. until shop lobber. A dandified shop-assistant: ca. 1830–70. Sinks, 1848.

C.19, then coll. till ca. 1840, then S.E. Cf. shop-lift. (Perhaps always S.E.: shop-lifting.)

shop-masher. A very well, or much, dressed shop-assistant: lower classes': ca. 1885–1910. Baumann.

shop-mumper. A beggar operating in shops: c.:—1887 (Baumann).

shop-officer. A professional soldier: military coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Prob. ex shop, n., 1.

shop-pad. A shop-thief: C.18: s. > coll. Dunton, 1705 (OED). See pad, n.

shop-un. A preserved as opp. to a fresh egg: coll.: 1878, dramatist Byron, 'I knows 'em! Shop-'uns! Sixteen a shilling!'

shopkeeper. An article still, after a long time, unsold: 1649 (G. Daniel, who uses the frequent var. old shopkeeper: OED).

shoplift; shoplifter. See shop-lift, shop-lifter.

shopper. He who causes the arrest of a malefactor: c.: C.20. Edgar Wallace.

shoppie, -y. A shop-girl or, less often, -man: coll.: C.20. 'Taffrail', Pincher Martin, 1916; H.A. Vachell, Martha Penny, 1934.—2. A shoplifter: see AUSTRALIAN UNDERWORLD, in Appendix, at shoppy.

shopping, participle, hence also n. Looking around for a wife or, vice versa, a husband: since late 1940s: by 1965, coll. (Woman's Illustrated, 2 Jan. 1960: 'Does Your Date Rate as a Mate?') See also shop around.

shop(p)o. See shapo.

shoppy; shoppying (job). See AUSTRALIAN UNDERWORLD, in Appendix.

shorders. A Cockney var. of shorters or drinks in short measures: C.20. Franklyn.

shore boss. The steward's name for the superintendent steward': nautical coll.: C.20. Bowen.

shore loafer. Any civilian: bluejackets' pej. coll.: late C.19–20. 'Taffrail', Carry On!, 1916; Bowen.

shore saints and sea devils. A nautical (mid-C.19–20; ob.) c.p. applied to such sailing-ship skippers as were lambs with the owners and lions with the crew. Cf. ship one's land-face, q.v. Bowen.

shore-side. Retirement; life as a civilian: RN coll. of late C.19–20. Ex pidgin. (Granville.) Cf. China side.—2. The shore or beach; ashore: RN: C.20. 'Are you coming shoreside this afternoon?' (P-G-R.).

Shoreditch. See Duke of Shoreditch.

Shores. Lake Shore & Michigan Railroad shares: Stock Exchange coll.: late C.19–20. A.J. Wilson, Stock Exchange Glossary, 1895.

short, n. A card (any below the 8) so tampered with that none above the 8 can be cut, thus reducing the chances of an honour's turning up to two to one: gaming: mid-C.19–20. (Not to be confused with shorts, short whist).—2. In something short, (a drink of) undiluted spirits: coll.: from ca. 1820. Either because, as Egan (1823) suggests, 'unlengthened by water' or, as OED proposes, ex short name—e.g. 'brandy', not 'brandy and water'. Egan also gives the abbr. short; cf. adj., 1, and:—3. A 'short' drink, i.e. of spirits, as opp. beer, but not necessarily absolutely undiluted; 'They were drinking shorts' might include, e.g., brandy with a dash of soda, but not a 'brandy sour', which is served in a tall glass, and is therefore 'a long drink': coll.: C.20. (E.P.; P.B.) Cf. short-length, q.v.—4. A short circuit: electricians' coll.: C.20.—5. A short excerpt; a short film or musical composition: coll.: from not later than 1927.—6. See long and the short.

short, v. Of a selection committee: to shortlist (a candidate): esp. Civil Service: since ca. 1930.

short, adj. Undiluted: coll.: from ca. 1820. See n., 2.—2. A cashier's 'Long or short?' means 'Will you have your notes in small or large denominations?', short because thus there will be few notes, long because many, or because the former method is short, the latter long: bankers' > gen. commercial coll.: from ca. 1840.—3. 'A conductor of an omnibus, or any other servant, is said to be short, when he does not give all the money he receives to his master' (H., 3rd ed.): from ca. 1860; ob. Cf. short one, q.v.—4. Not very 'bright'; stupid: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942, 'Esp. "a bit short".' Ex 'a shingle short'.—5. See bite off short; taken short.

short and curlies. The short hairs, used fig., as 'Got him by the short and curlies'—caught him properly: army: since ca. 1935. (P-G-R) Since WW2 it has gradually and widely spread (Sir Edward Playfair, 1977). P.B.: in curlies there is perhaps a ref. to public hair. See short hairs.

short and dirty. See Winter's day.

short and sweet – like a donkey's gallop. A coll. elab. of short and sweet: late C.19–20: coll. and dial. Apperson.

short and thick – like a Welshman's prick. A low c.p. applied to a short person very broad in the beam: mid-C.19–20. P.B.: see long and narrow ..., to which this may have started as a 'dovetail'.

short-arm inspection. An inspection 'conducted periodically ... to detect symptoms of venereal disease': military: from ca. 1910. (B. & P.) With a pun on pistols. Occ., since 1916, abbr. short-arm.

short-arse. A short person: coll., orig. mostly Cockneys': since ca. 1890. Ex short-arsed.—2. (S.-A.-) 'Inevitable' nickname of men surnamed Longbottom: C.20.

short-arse driver. An artillery driver: artillerymen's: from ca. 1910. Irrespective of height.

short-arsed. (Of a person that is) short: coll.: since ca. 1870. Cf. duck's disease.

short as a carrot. Esp. snap as short ..., to snap, break off, short and sharp, as a carrot does: lowerdeck coll.: (?) late C.18—early 20. Basil Hall, 2nd series, 1832.

short circuit. Gastro-enterotomy: medical: C.20. Richard Ince, Shadow-Show, 1932, 'The pleasant little major operation they call ... facetiously "a short circuit".'

short cock. Cheese: Yorkshire s. (—1904), not dial. EDD.

short hairs. In get, or have, by the s. h., so to hold (lit. and fig.) that escape is painful or difficult: (low) coll., esp. among soldiers: from mid-1890s. Ex the hair on one's nape or that around the genitals. P.G. Wodehouse, The Head of Kay's, 1905, 'We have got them where the hair's short. Yea. Even on toast'; Galsworthy, The Silver Spoon, 1926, 'If [she] is not taken by the short hairs, she'll put it across everybody.' It seems to have originated in the US; at least, it occurs there, in form get where the hair is short, in George P. Burnham, Memoirs of the United States Secret Service, 1872.—2. (Only have ...) Hence, to know a subject, a theme, very thoroughly: Aus.: since ca. 1935. (B.P.) short(-)head. A horse that fails by a short head: racing coll.: 1883. J. Greenwood, 'That horribly anathematised short head.'

short home, come. To be put in prison: coll.: C.17–18. Ex S.E. sense, to fail to return (orig. and esp. from an expedition).

short horse is soon carried, a. 'A little business is soon despatched' (B.E.): coll.: ca. 1670–1770.

short(-)length. A small glass of brandy: coll. (Scots, esp. Glasgow): 1864, Glasgow Citizen, 19 Nov. 'The exhilarating short-length.' See short, n., 2 and 3.

short-limbered. Touchy: late C.19—early 20. Cf. short-waisted.

short of a sheet. Mentally deficient: see sheet, n., 3.

short(-)one. A passenger not on the way-bill: coaching: ca. 1830–70. Because the way-bill is short of this passenger's name: C. short, adj., 3.—2. See short 'un.

Short Range Desert (or Shepherd's) Group. See Groppi's Light Horse.

short reply in the plural, a. 'Balls!' = nonsense; c.p. reply to 'prolix tendentious questions (ex Parliamentary official report)' (L.A., 1974): C.20.

short(-)stick. (Occ. collective.) A piece, or pieces, of material of insufficient length: drapers': from ca. 1860. Once a Week, 1863, viii, 179.

short strokes. In be on the ..., (of the male) to be approaching orgasm: humorous rather than euph.: C.20. (L.A., 1977.) Cf. paradise strokes, and long strokes.

short, (or long) soup. A soup with short, or one with long, noodles in it: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1920. (Edwin Morrisby, 1958.)

short time. A visit to a prostitute for one copulation in only: low coll.: late C.19–20. See LONG TIME NO SEE!, in Appendix.

short-timers. An (amorous) couple hiring a room for an hour or two: low: C.20. Manchon.

short top edge. A turned-up nose: tailors': from ca. 1860.

short 'un. A partridge: poachers':—1909. Ware derives ex 'the almost complete absence of tail feathers'. Contrast long 'un, and see tall 'un.

short-waisted. Irritable; touchy: esp. among tailors: from ca. 1870. Cf. short-limbered.

short(-)weight. (Of a person) rather simple; mentally, a little defective: C.20.

shortening, vbl. n. Clipping coins (as a profession): c.: ca. 1865; ob. 'No. 747'.

shorter. A coin-clipper: low s. verging on c.: 1857, (Borrow, Romany Rye).

shorters. See shorders.

shorthorn; mechanical cow. A Maurice Farman biplane, either without (shorthorn) or with (m. cow), long front skirts: Air Force nicknames: 1913; now only historical. OED Sup.

shots. Short-dated securities: money-market coll.: from ca. 1930. OED Sup.

Shotty is an inevitable nickname of men surnamed Wright: Services': earlier C.20. (F. & G.) Who was the original? —2. And of men surnamed Little: late C.19–20. 'Taffrail'.

—3. Also of short men in general: C.20.—4. A nickname for tall persons, esp. if male: mostly Aus.: since ca. 1925. (B.P.)

shot, n. Amount due for payment; one's share thereof: late C.15–20: S.E. until late C.18, then coll. (Grose.) Cf. the whole shoot.—2. A corpse disinterred: body-snatchers' s. > j.: 1828, (The Annual Register); ob. by 1900, virtually † by 1930. App. ex a good shot for the doctors. OED.—3. A meridional altitude ascertained by shooting the sun: nautical:—1867 (Smyth).—4.

An extremely hard cake, tart, etc.: coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

—5. Hence, something difficult to tolerate or believe: id. Ibid.—6. Money: low:—1923 (Ibid.).—7. A photograph taken with cinematograph camera: coll.: US (ca. 1923), anglicised by 1925. OED Sup.—8. A dram (of spirits): coll.: US, anglicised by 1932. Ibid.—9. A dose (of a drug): 1929. Ibid.—10. A stroke with cane or strap: Harrow School: late C.19–20. Arnold Lunn, The Harrovians, 1913.—11. An injection: medical: adopted, ca. 1920, ex US. Cf. sense 9; shoot up, 3, and shoot, v., 5.—12. In like a shot, very quickly; immediately: coll.: 1809 (Malkin: OED). Hence:—13. In like a shot, very willingly, unhesitatingly: coll.: since late C.19.—14.

In that's the shot!, that's the idea: Aus., and almost a c.p.: since ca. 1945. (A.M. Harris, The Tall Man, 1958.) Cf. that'll, or that would, be the shot!, that will, or would, be most satisfactory: id. Culotta.—15. In have a shot (at), to make an attempt (at something): coll.: late C.19–20.—16. In have a shot at, to make a fuss of: Aus.: since ca. 1930. Nino Culotta, Cop This Lot, 1960. [P.B.: perhaps an E.P. misapprehension of:]—17. In have a shot at, 'to try to "get at" or "take a rise out of" someone (from shot, a remark aimed at someone, esp. in order to wound OED 1841)' (Wilkes): Aus.: C.20. P.B.: app. use = Brit. take the mickey (out of).—18. As the Shot, Aldershot: army: from ca. 1880. F. & G.—19. See do a shot; hot shot; pay the shot; shot!, 2.

shot, v. To make a weak-winded horse seemingly sound: horse-dealers':—1874 (H., 5th ed.). By dosing with small shot to 'open his pipes'.

shot, (ppl adj., always be shot). 'To make a disadvantageous bet which is instantly accepted' (F. & H.): the turf: from ca. 1880.—2. To be photographed: photographers' coll.: from ca. 1885.—3. Tippy: from ca. 1870. Ex being wounded by a shot. Cf. the US shot in the neck, perhaps the imm. origin, and shot-away, and overshot.—4. To be exhausted: Aus.: since ca. 1920. F.B. Vickers, First Place to the Stranger, 1955, 'Another man turned on the water and out it gushed. But only for a minute, then it spluttered, then it dribbled. "She's shot," the man at the hose shouted.' (Cf. she, 5.) Also (of persons), at the end of one's tether: Wilkes supplies a quot'n from 1945, and suggests '?shoot one's bolt'.

shot! Look out, a master's coming!: Royal High School, Edinburgh: late C.19–20.—2. Abbr. good shot!; gen. 'shot, sir!': late C.19–20: coll. >, by 1920, S.E. Collinson.

shot at dawn (e.g. you'll be). A c.p. applied to a person in trouble: joc., at first Services, from ca. 1915, > gen.; by 1980, perhaps ob. E.g., 'Don't let your mum find out—you'll be shot at dawn!' (F. & G.; P.B.) Ex death at the hands of a post-court-martial firing-squad.

shot-away. Drunk: nautical: late C.19–20. Bowen; Colin Evans, The Heart of Standing, 1962, 'Once you start worrying yourself it gets so big you can't even see the sides, and then you become so knotted everybody thinks you're either shot-away or working it' [it = 'your ticket', for release from the Navy]. Cf. shot, adj., 3.

shot-bag. A purse: 1843, Durivage, 'Depositing the "tin" in his shot-bag'; ob. by 1930. Ex shot, money, as in shot in the locker.

shot between or (be)twixt wind and water. See shoot between...

shot-clog. A simpleton tolerated only because of his willingness to 'pay the shot': mid-C.19—early 20. Cf. shot-ship, q.v.

shot down, ppl adj. Beaten in an argument: aircraft engineers': from ca. 1918. (Daily Herald, 1 Aug. 1936.) Ex planes being shot down in WW1.—2. Crossed in love: mostly RAF: WW2. (Nevil Shute, Pastoral, 1944.) Ex sense 2 of:

shot down in flames. See shoot down.—2. Hence, crossed in love; jilted: RAF aircrews': 1940+. Partridge, 1945.

shot first, I'll see (him, her, gen.) you. Damned if I'll do it!: low coll.: 1894 (John Strange Winter': OED). A var. of shot if...

shot for less, in (the currently most unpopular country) people are. 'A c.p. (often jocular) implying that the bearer is lucky to be living in such a tolerant country' (B.P.): Aus.: since the late 1940s. 'You're reading my book. In —, people are shot'—or 'being shot'—'for less'. Cf. Ned Kelly was hanged—or hung—for less. P.B.: some use also in UK, mid-C.20.

shot full of holes. Topsy: NZ (1915+) and Aus. (since ca. 1918). B., 1941, 'An elaboration of juvenile'.

shot-ging. A catapult: Aus., mostly juvenile: since ca. 1925. (B., 1943.) Suggested by shanghai + shot + gun + sling.

shot himself! A c.p. applied to someone breaking wind in or near a company of men, often with the c.p. comment, if he's not careful, he'll shit himself: late C.19–20.

shot if —, I'll (or may I) be. Mildly imprecatory or strongly dissenting: low coll.: 1826, Buckstone, 'He, he, he! I'll be shot if Lunnun temptation be anything to this.' H., 1st ed., has the ob. var., I wish I may be shot if—. Cf. shot first...

shot in the eye. An ill turn: coll.: late C.19–20; slightly ob. Pearson's Magazine, Sep. 1897, 'Getting square with the millionaire who had done him such an unscrupulous shot in the eye.'

shot in the giblets or tail. Pregnant: low: mid-C.19–20.

shot in (one's or) the locker. Sufficient money for one's purposes and needs: coll., prob. orig. naval s.: late C.18—late 19. George Brewer, Bannian Day (a farce), 1796, at I, iii, 'I've always got a shot in the locker' (Moe); Sgt-Major T. Gowing, writing to his mother from Allahabad, 1872, 'I enclose a draft on Gurney's Bank that will, I think... put all straight, and leave a good shot in the locker'. Hence not a shot in the locker, destitute of money, ideas, or anything else: RN coll.: mid-C.19—early 20. Bowen.—2. In have still (or still have) shot in the (or one's) locker, to be still potent: late C.19—earlier 20.

shot of. An early-C.19–20 var., perhaps mostly Cockney, of shut of. An early occurrence is in Sessions, Oct. 1836.

shot on a hand. Beaten by a better hand: Aus. card-players': since ca. 1918. B., 1953.

shot on the post, be. To have a competitor pass one as one eases for, or wearies at, the finish: athletics coll.: 1897. Ex:—2. The same of horses in racing: adumbrated in 1868: coll. (By 1920, both senses were S.E.) OED.

shot on the swings, n. A copulation: ? mainly Scot.: since late 1940s. R.S. cites Daily Telegraph, 10 Sep. 1975, in a Scottish police-court report.

shot-ship. 'A company sharing and sharing alike' (F. & H.): printers': from ca. 1875.

shot-soup. Inferior pea-soup: nautical: late C.19–20; ob. Ex peas like bullets.

shot to (e.g. you!)! You score there: a c.p. 'aimed at indifference or complacent cocksureness at lucky chance or when sharp practice has triumphed' (L.A.): Services': WW2. shot 'twixt... See shoot between...

shot up; shot to ribbons. Very drunk; as drunk as one can possibly be: RAF: since late 1939. (Partridge, 1945.) Ex aerial warfare: Cf. shoot up.

shot up the arse (more politely, back). Rendered hors de combat by some witticism; detected, found out: army: C.20.—2. (Of aircraft) shot-up from the rear: RAF: WW2.

shotgun. See ride shotgun.

shotgun mixture. A pharmaceutical mixture containing numerous ingredients, any one of them prob. efficacious: C.20.

shotgun wedding (or marriage). A wedding necessitated by the bride's pregnancy (i.e., orig. at her armed father's insistence): adopted, ex US, (?) early C.20, prob. at first as coll., soon > informal S.E., esp. in fig. usage, e.g. in the commercial world, a shotgun merger. (P.B.)

shotter. See fly-balance.

shouful. See shoful.

should say (suppose, think), I. I'm very much inclined to say, etc.; I certainly do say, etc.: coll.: 1775, C. Johnston, 'I should rather think he has a mind to finger its finances' (OED).—2. Esp. I should think so too!, a phrase used in satisfaction at a hitherto wilful child's, animal's, etc. eventual compliance with command: domestic coll.: C.20, prob. earlier. Always enunciated with emphasis, and presumably in agreement with the offender's unspoken decision to co-operate. (P.B.) shoulder, n. See narrow in the shoulder(s); over the left...; slip of the...

shoulder, v.i. and t. To take passengers without entering them on the way-bill, thus defrauding the employer: coaching: ca. 1815–70. (The London Guide, 1818; 'Jon Bee'.) Cf. shoulder-stick.—2. Hence, v.t., of any servant embezzling his master's money: from ca. 1860 (H., 2nd ed.); ob. by 1930. Both senses very frequent as vbl n.

shoulder-feast. A dinner for the hearse-bearers after a funeral: ca. 1810–60. Lex Bal.

shoulder-knot. A bailiff: ca. 1825–80. (Sinks, 1848.) Ex hand clapped on to victim's shoulder.

shoulder of mutton. See good as a shoulder...

shoulder-sham. A partner to a 'file', q.v.: c.: late C.17—early 19. B.E. shoulder-stick. A passenger not on the waybill, i.e. one whose fare goes into the pockets of driver and guard: coaching: ca. 1825–70. Cf. short one, and shoulder, v., 1.

shoulder walnut. To enlist as a soldier: coll.: 1838 (D. Jerrold); † by 1900. Walnut = the stock of gun or rifle; cf. brown Bess and the coll. use of mahogany.

shouldering. See shoulder, v.

shouldology; sleeveology. Discussion of shoulders and sleeves by tailors: C.20. Cf. collarology.

shouse. A privy, a conflation of shit-house: Aus.: since ca. 1925. (B., 1941.) L.A. notes shoust as a post-WW1 Cockney var. Cf. shed, shawk.

shout, n. 'A call to a waiter to replenish the glasses of a company: hence, a turn in paying for a round of drinks. Also, a free drink given to all present by one of the company; a drinking party' (Morris); the last sense is rare: Aus. and NZ, since mid-C.19; occ., in UK, later C.20. An early occurrence is in Wm Kelly, Life in Victoria, 1859.—2. Hence, one's turn to entertain another: from ca. 1885. E.g. 'It's my shout this time.' Baumann.—3. Hence, in go on the shout, to embark on a bout of drinking; to drink to excess: from ca. 1890: orig. Aus.; by 1905, gen: Kipling (OED).—4. In stand (a) shout, to pay for drinks all round: 1887, 'Hopeful', 'There is a great deal of standing "shout" in the Colonies' (OED).—5. A summons (to duty): nautical, esp. stewards', coll.: C.20. 'He'd asked me for an early shout' (Frank Shaw, 1932).—6. An alarm: fire brigades': since ca. 1880.

shout, v. To stand drinks to the company, hence to even one person: v.i., 1859 (H. Kingsley); v.t., to pay for drinks for (a person, persons), hence for (say) 'smokes', 1867 (Lindsay Gordon); hence, late C.19–20, to entertain (a person, persons). Aus., hence NZ; by 1864—witness H., 3rd ed.—well-known in England. (Morris; OED.) Ex shouting to the waiter to fetch drinks.

shout and holler. A collar: rhyming s.: C.20. (Lester.) Cf. synon. holler, boys, holler.

shout (one)self hoarse. To get drunk: gen. s.:—1903. Punning lit. sense of the whole phrase and the s. sense of shout, v. (q.v.).

shout the odds. To talk too much, too loudly, or boastingly: lower classes': from ca. 1910. (F. & G.) Ex the race-course. P.B.: an uncle of mine, at school in the 1920s, always remembered in later life a master whose pet phrase was 'Boy, do you think I stand up here shouting the odds for the good of my immortal soul? No! I do it for money, and so...'
shout up. To address vigorously by way of warning: coll.: from ca. 1930.

shouted, be. To have one's wedding banns proclaimed: since ca. 1860. Williams Westall, Sons of Belial, 1895.

shouter. One who 'shouts' (see v., 1): 1885 (Douglas Sladen: OED).—2. He who shouts the numbers at Housey-Housey (Tombola): army coll.: earlier C.20. (P-G-R.) Since ca. 1950, gen. caller (P.B.).

shouters. The (school) house's shouting in support of its rowing crew: Public Schools': late C.19–20. By the 'OXFORD -ER(s)'. shouting, vbl n. (Issuing) an 'all-in' invitation to drink. See shout, v. 1.

shov. A knife: c.:—1909 (Ware). Ex chiv(e) on shove.

shove, n. A coition: coll.: C.18–20. (Ned Ward, 1707.) Esp. in give (a woman) a shove. Cf. shove, v., 2, and push.—2. Empty talk; self-glorification: coll., at first (ca. 1880) low urban, but by 1887 (at latest), gen.; † by 1920. Prob. ex:—3. Energy; initiative: (low) coll.: from the 1870s; ob. Presumably suggested by equivalent push.—4. As the shove, a dismissal: 1899, Whiteing in No. 5 John Street, has both get the shove and give the shove, to be dismissed, to dismiss. Cf. push, n., 10, and:—5. In (be) on the shove, (to keep) on the move; moving: coll.: late C.19–20. Milliken, 1893, 'There's always some fun afoot there, as will keep a chap fair on the shove.' P.B.: † by mid-C.20.

shove, v.t. To thrust, put, carelessly or roughly or hurriedly into a place, a receptacle: familiar S.E. often merging into coll.: 1827, Scott, 'Middlemas ... shoved into' his bosom a small packet.' Also shove aside (1864) or away (1861). OED.—2. Gen. v.t. To coit (with): coll.: C.17–20. 'So it's dirty, a whitey shoving a dinge?' (Alan Hunter, Gently Coloured, 1969).—3. To pass (counterfeit coinage): since ca. 1880; orig. c., but soon also police s. (Robert Barr, The Absent-Minded Coterie, 1906.) Cf. shove the queer.—4. (Of cabmen) 'to adopt unfair methods to obtain fares' (Baker): Aus.: ca. 1880–1920.—5. To stop; to forget: low Aus. and NZ: since ca. 1910. Slatyer, 'You can shove that caper'. Ex shove it up your arsel, a vulgar phrase throughout the English-speaking world; and the C.20 Brit. var. shove it where the monkey shoves (or shoved) his nuts!

shove along. To cause sailing ships to make as much speed as possible: naval coll.: late C.18–19. W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, I, 1825 (Moe).—2. To make one's way quietly: coll.: early C.20. James Joyce, Ulysses, 1922; Manchon.—3. In in shove-along, in echelon: military: late C.18—mid-19. (Source as sense 1.) By Hobson-Jobson.

shove for. To go to; make a move towards: coll.: 1884, Mark Twain, 'Me and Tom shoved for bed.' Cf. shove, n., 5, and shove off.

shove-halfpenny. A gambling game akin to shovel-board: 1841, Punch, 27 Nov., 'The favourite game of shove-halfpenny': s. >, ca. 1910, coll. On the † shove-groat, slide-groat, and shoveboard (later shovel-board).

shove in (a thing). To pawn it: low coll.: late C.19–20. Ware. shove in (one's) face. To put in one's mouth: low coll.: late C.19–20. A.A. Milne, Two People, 1931, (self-made millionaire loquiter) 'For years ... I used to say, "Here, shove that in your face," whenever I offered anybody a cigar.'

shove in the eye, etc. A punch in the eye, etc.: coll.: late C.19–20. Whiteing, 1899, 'Mind your own bloomin' business, or I'll give yer a shove in the eye.'

shove in the mouth. A drink: 1811 (Lex. Bal.); ob. by 1930.

shove it! Stop annoying me and go away!: Aus. low: C.20. See shove, v., 5.

shove it up your anal canal (often with canal rhyming anal). A low Aus. c.p.: since ca. 1930.

shove (one's) nose in. To interfere; interpose rudely: low coll.:—1887 (Baumann); still current, 1980. 'She's always shoving her nose in where it's not wanted, that woman.'

shove of the mouth is a var. of shove in the mouth.

shove off, v.i. To depart: coll.: C.20. (Ware.) Ex nautical sense, prob. on push off, q.v. Cf. shove along.

shove on. To lay a bet of so much on (a horse): turf coll.: late C.19–20. Manchon.

shove the moon. To slip away with one's goods without paying the rent: low: 1809 (G. Andrewes, slang-lexicographer); † by 1880. See also moon, n., 4.

shove the queer, the article being omitted. To pass counterfeit money: c.: mid-C.19–20; ?orig. U.S. (Matsell.) See queer, n., and shover, 1.

shove the tumbler. To be whipped at the cart's tail: c.: late C.17—early 19. B.E.; Hall's Memoirs, 1708, 'Those cast for Petit-larceny shove the tumbler'; Grose. A tumbler is a cart. Randle Holmes, 1688, has shove the flogging tumbler.

shove under. To kill; mostly in passive, be shoved under: Aus.: C.20. (Archer Russell, A Tramp Royal in Wild Australia, 1934.) Ex shove underground, to bury: itself a coll., dating since ca. 1870, but Eng. as well as Aus. and NZ.

shove-up. Nothing: c. or low s. of ca. 1810–60. Ex † shove-up socket, a 'gadget' enabling a candle to burn right out. Vaux.

shovel, n. A hansom cab. See shoful, 4.—2. An engineer in the Navy: nautical: ca. 1855–70. Because they were rough and ignorant. (Century Dict.) P.B.: ?or ex main tool of a stoker's trade. See also shovel-engineer.—3. In he, or she, was fed with a (fire-) shovel, a c.p. applied to a person with a very large mouth: ca. 1780–1850. Grose, 1st ed. (fire-s.).—4. In put to bed with a shovel, to be buried: coll.: from ca. 1780 (Grose, 1st ed.). In C.19, occ. with a spade.—5. In put up (one's) shovel, to cease work; working-men's coll.: late C.19—earlier 20. Cf. hang up (one's) boots.—6. In that's before you bought your shovel!, that is one against you; that settles your hash: coll.: ca. 1850–1910.—7. See bloody shovel.

shovel, v. To pass, hand, give: S. African low s.: since ca. 1925. 'Shovel us a burn ... Give me a light' (C.P. Wittstock, letter, 1946). Joc. on shove, v., 1.

shovel and broom. A room: rhyming s.: since ca. 1910; by 1959, ob. Franklyn, Rhyming.

shovel and tank. A bank (for money): rhyming s.: C.20. Franklyn 2nd.

shovel-engineer. 'An artificer engineer; an engineer-cum-stoker, which used to be a warrant rank but is now abolished' (Granville): RN coll.: earlier C.20. (F. & G.) See shovel, n., 2.

shovelling is a form of bullying at Sandhurst, ca. 1830–55: coll. 'Spread-eagling the victim on the table and beating him with racquet-bats and shovels' (A.F. Mockler-Ferryman, Annals of Sandhurst, 1900). Cf. ventilating, q.v.

shover. A passer of base coin: c.: orig. US; anglicised ca. 1890. Abbr. shover of the queer.—2. (Also shuvver.) A chauffeur: joc. coll.: 1908 (SOD).

shover of the queer. The same: c.: US, anglicised ca. 1870. Figaro, 20 Feb. 1871, 'A saloon... headquarters of all the counterfeiters and shovers of the queer in the country.' See queer, n., and shove, v., 3.

shoving money upstairs. 'When a man is worrying about going bald, someone tells him banteringly it must be with "shoving money upstairs"' (Petch, 1946): c.p., mainly North Country: C.20. Instead of putting it into a bank—where it's safer.—2. Spending money on useless 'cures': Londoners': since ca. 1920. Julian Franklyn.

shoving shit uphill, vbl n. Sodomy: low joc.: C.20. (P.B.)

show, n. Any public display (a picture-exhibition, a play, a fashionable assembly or ceremony, a speech-making, etc.): coll.: 1863 (Sala.: OED). Ex show, an elaborate spectacle.

—2. Hence, a matter, affair, 'concern': 1888, Rider Haggard, in the Summer Number of the Illustrated London News, 'Their presence was necessary to the show.'—3. A group or association of persons. Mostly in boss, or run, the show, to assume control; act as manager: 1889, boss (perhaps orig. US); in C.20, often run; and implicatively in give the show away, to blab, confess; to expose the disadvantages or pretentiousness of an affair, esp. one in which a group is concerned: 1899, Delannoy, £19,000, 'I didn't want to give the show away': s. >, by 1930, coll. (Lyell).—4. A (gold) mine: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.—5. In bad, or poor, and good show!, phrases expressive of disapprobation and approval or praise: Services' (mostly officers'): since ca. 1925. Other qualifying adjectives may be used, e.g. wizard, WW2. Prob. ex:—6. A fight, an attack: WW1 military, but not, I think, before 1915. (B. & P.) Ex sense 1.—7. Hence, in put up a show (gen. qualified as in sense 5), to give some, gen. good, account of oneself: orig. Services', from 1915.—8. 'During the run-up to a race, a broadcasting service gives... a "show" on that race... the prices being offered at that time on the various horses taking part' (Ladbroke's Pocket Betting Guide, 1976): the turf: since late 1940s. Cf.—9. In there's another show, a 'tic-tac' (q.v.) has signalled new odds: turf c.:—1932.—10. As the show, signs by which three card-sharpers, who have a 'mug' in tow, tell one another how to play: c.: C.20. Also known as showing out.—11. In do a show, to go to a public entertainment: coll.: since ca. 1906.—12. See steal the show.

show, v.i. In boxing, to enter the ring as a combatant: boxing coll. of ca. 1813–50, the OED's latest example being of 1828.—2. Hence, to appear in society or company; at an assembly, etc.: coll.: 1825, Westmacott, 'He shows in Park'; 1898, Jean Owen, 'If the king was in the cabin... no subject might show on deck' (OED). In C.20, this sense is ob., show up being much more gen.: show up, likewise coll., occurring first in W. Black's Yolande, 1883 ('Don't you think it prudent of me to show up as often as I can in the House... so that my good friends in Slagpool mayn't begin to grumble about my being away so frequently?') and meaning also to 'turn up' for an appointment. [E.P. noted, in a later ed.] It is, after all, extant; although at a lower social level, as in 'I asked him... if my bird had shown' (turned up).—3. To exhibit oneself for a consideration: coll.: 1898, Daily News, 2 Apr., 'He got a living by "showing" in the various public houses' (OED).—4. To surrender, give up, desist: coll.: from ca. 1930. In the j. of cards, 'to show' is to throw in one's hand. Daily Telegraph, 16 Apr. 1937.—5. To gain a place: turf coll.: C.20. Julian Symons, The Thirtyfirst of February, 1950.

show a front. To turn out in haste, and as best one can, for a short-notice parade: army: late C.19–early 20. (B. & L.) Hence, a front showing, such a parade; because while one might pass muster at the front, at the back...

show a leg. To run away: c.:—1823; † by 1900. Egan's Grose.—2. (Gen. in imperative.) To rise from bed: mid-C.19–20: nautical >, ca. 1910, military. Lit., show a leg from under the bedclothes. John Masefield, The Conway, 1933, notes that the full call on that training ship has, from before 1891, been: 'Heave out, heave out, heave out, heave out! Away!/Come all you sleepers, Hey!/Show a leg and put a stocking on it.' Cf. rise and shine. [E.P. later noted:] It is recorded for 1818 (Alfred Burton, Johnny Newcome: Moe). Orig. to make sure that the occupant of the bed was male—not an illicit female bed-warmer.

show a point to. To swindle; act dishonourably towards: NZ coll.: late C.19–20. Cf. give points to.

show an Egyptian medal. See Egyptian medal.

show-box, the. The theatre: theatrical: from ca. 1870; ob. B. & L.

show (one's) brush. See brush, n., 1.

show (one's) cards. To disclose one's power or plans: since ca. 1580: coll.; soon S.E.

show-down. A test of the real strength and backing of two persons, parties, peoples: adopted ca. 1930 from US: coll until ca. 1940, then S.E. Ex bluff poker.

show hackle. See hackle.

show like a shilling up a sweep's arse. See shine like...

show (him) London. To hold one, upside down, by the heels: schools': from ca. 1880. Opp. see London, to be thus held; also, to hang by the heels from a trapeze, a horizontal bar, etc.

show ldt. To go sick: army coll.: from 1915. (F. & G.) If, as a result, one left one's unit, certain equipment was, in certain circumstances, handed in at the quartermaster's stores.

show-leg day. A windy day: London coll.:—1887; ob. Baumann.—2. A very muddy day: London coll.: ca. 1880–1925. (Ware.) Often pron. shulleg-day.

show of flash. A slight, an affront, to a gang's tenets of proper behaviour: Teddy-boys': since ca. 1950. Clancy Sigal, Observer, 1 Mar. 1959.—2. Hence, any display of truculence or arrogance, e.g. by arrested youthful gangster to police: later C.20. (P.B.)

show-off, n. One who 'shows off': coll.: late C.19–20. Godfrey Blunden, No More Reality, 1935. 'MacKissock's a "show-off".' Ex-show off, v.i. To act, talk, ostentatiously or in order to attract attention to oneself: coll.: from ca. 1790. (Gilbert White; D.C. Murray: OED.) Frequently as vbl n.

show-out, n. 'Another cardinal rule in making contact with a snout [= informer] was that the detective never made the first move. When you entered the rendezvous and saw your man you waited for the "show-out"—a brief nod—before you joined him' (John Gosling, The Ghost Squad, 1959): police s.: since ca. 1920. See also show, n., 10.

show out, v. 'This is a not uncommon practice in shipyards and works where men are mainly employed. When workmen are sitting talking, generally after a meal, one of the company will suddenly shout: "Let's show him out!" The victim, who is usually a boy or a youth, or sometimes a simple male who will not cause a "rough house", is pounced upon and exposed, his privates "anointed" with spit, grease, ashes, or anything handy. Women in works are not unknown to act the same. In a big shipyard on the Tyne, where I once worked, the boys were continually being warned by the men not to show their noses in the ropeworks near by, or the women employed there would show them out and tar them. A young man, unfit for war service, once told me that he was employed clearing a wood at a colliery for pit props. The only labour available was female, and they were not long on the job before they "showed Jimmy out". In telling the tale he always added with relish that he had his revenge on them individually' (Communication made in 1946): coll.: mid-C.19–20. Also, occ., lay out.

show (one's) shapes. To 'turn about, march off' (B.E.): late C.17–mid-19.—2. 'To be stripped, or made peel at the whipping post' (Grose, 1st ed.): mid-C.18—early 19.—3. To come into view: coll.: 1828 (Scott; OED); ob. by 1930.

show the flag. To put in an appearance, just to show that one is there: business and professional men's coll.: from ca. 1919.

show the white feather. To display cowardice. See white feather.

show-up, n. An exhibition (of work): coll.: 1930. (OED Sup.) Prob. suggested by Fr. exposé and exposition.

show up, v. See show, v., 2. Esp. of a released convict reporting once a month to the police: c.:—1933 (Charles E. Leach).—3. To report (a boy): Charterhouse: C.20. E.g., 'I'll show you up.'

showbanker. See scowbanker.

showbiz. Show business: the commercial, and the professional, side of the world of entertainment; orig. of the theatre and music hall, then of films, then of radio and TV: s. at first, ?early 1930s, it had, by ca. 1960, > coll. (Chambers's C.20th Dict., 1972 ed.). Those are American dates; Brit. usage followed within a couple of years. In both countries, it began as theatrical. W. & F., 1975, include it, without dates or quot'n. It hadn't been accepted by 'Webster's Second International', 1934, but it did appear in 'Webster's Third', 1961. I don't know of the printed appearance of the derivative adj. showbizzy earlier than in Beatles, 1975, although I surmise there must have been earlier ones.

showboat, n. Large 8-wheeled van. See HAULIERS' SLANG, in Appendix.

showboat, v. To show off, 'swank around', as in 'We won't allow you to showboat around in your uniform. We are a very shy and retiring organisation' (A recruiting advertisement for 21 Special Air Service, pub. in London New Standard, and reported in Guardian, 11 Feb. 1981).

shower. 'A dust storm—as in Cobar shower, Bedourie shower, Darling shower, Wilcannia shower, etc.' (B., 1959): Aus. rural: late C.19–20. All are place-names.—2. See quot'n at drag, n., 23. A contribution from players to operators: Aus. two-up gamblers': C.20. Tom Ronan, Vision Splendid, 1954.—3. A large number of aircraft: RAF: WW2. 'A shower of Messerschmitts' (P-G-R).—4. Short for shower tea, an occasion when a bride is given small 'prezies' by her women friends: Aus.: since ca. 1950. (B.P.; Camilla Raab.) P.B. prob. ex US. Before leaving Hong Kong, 1967, to get married, my wife was given a 'shower tea' by Aus. and US women friends, to receive a 'shower' of small gifts for her new status as housewife, tokens of larger wedding-presents to come. Camilla Raab: Wilkes notes only kitchen tea, when the gifts are items specifically of kitchen equipment.—5. In what a shower!: army c.p. directed at members of another unit: since 1919. 'Some of the louisiest showers of rooks you ever saw' (Gerald Kersh, Bill Nelson, 1942). L.A. notes the phrase's prob. origin in a shower of shit from Shropshire: Londoners': early C.20. Reinforcement by alliteration. What a shower!, or the deriv. it's showery!, was, in the RAF, ca. 1930–50, a c.p. 'addressed to one who has just made a bad mistake' (Partridge, 1945).—6. In (e.g. I didn't come down in the last shower (of rain)), 'A claim to a larger share of experience and shrewdness than one is being credited with' (Wilkes): Aus.: C.20.—7. See-shower bath. Ten shillings: rhyming s. (on Cockney pron. of half a sovereign); usu. shower, esp. in pl, as shahs to a shillin', odds of 10 to 1: sporting rhyming s.: C.20. Franklyn, Rhyming.

shower of bastards. As a term of contempt and loathing has, in the Services since ca. 1955, largely displaced shower of shit (see shower, 5); by ca. 1970, often merely derisive, in a semi-affectionate, tolerant way. (P.B.) shower of shit. See I'm off in a... showful(l) and compounds. See shoful.

showie or showy. A handkerchief worn 'for show only': Aus.: since ca. 1950. Ross Campbell, Mummy, Who Is your Husband?, 1964.

showing next week's washing? Your shirt is showing (at the flap): non-cultured c.p.: C.20. P.B.: also used among girls for a slip showing below hem of skirt.

showing the girls the horse with the green tail. 'Twice weekly there were Other Ranks' dances at the Cavalry Club [Aldershot]... where there were cavalry goings on in the straw laid down to comfort sick horses; a process known throughout cavalry history [until horses disappeared] as "showing the girls the horse with the green tail"; this was a highly popular pastime for shop girls' (Spice Mays, The Band Rats, 1975).

shows, the. A fair with sideshows and roundabouts: Scottish and N. Country coll.: late C.19–20.

shrap. Wine used in swindling: very local c. of ca. 1592. (Greene, The Black Book's Messenger.) Prob. ex + shrap(e), a bait, a snare.—2. Shrapnel: army coll.: from 1914. F. & G. shrapnel. French currency notes of low denomination: NZ army: WW1. They were often holey, as though punctured with shrapnel.

shreddies. Male underwear: coll.: since ca. 1960. Because of its usual state among bachelors. (P.B.)

shred(s). A tailor: late C.16—early 19. Jonson, shreds; Massinger & Field, B.E., and Grose, 1st ed., shred. OED. Cf.: shreds and patches. A tailor: coll.: C.18—early 20.

shrewd. In Picture Post, 2 Jan. 1954, there was an article on youthful 'spivs'. It began thus: 'The word "Spiv", it seems, is out of date. The new word, we are reliably informed, is "Shrewd"—and it is used as a noun, adjective and verb. The "shrewd" is not an American by-product. He is home-bred and thoroughly English, in style and slang.' With the word itself, compare shrewdy, andshrewd head. A C.20 Aus. and NZ var. ofshrewdie, -y. A shrewd, esp. a cunning, person; a trickster: coll.: late C.19–20. Mostly military and Aus. F. & G.

Shrewsbury clock, by. A coll. phrase lessening or even cancelling the period of time—or the fact—mentioned: late C.16–20; ob. Shakespeare; Gayton, 'The Knight that fought by th' clock at Shrewsbury'; Mrs Cowley, 1783; Stevenson, 1891. Apperson.

shriek. An exclamation-mark: coll.: 1864. (Dean Alford); ob. Whence shriek-mark. Cf. synon. screamer and Christie.—2. An alarmed, surprised, or reproachful outcry: coll.: 1929 (OED Sup.).—3. A 'scream' (q.v.): coll.: 1930 (E. Bramah: Ibid.).—4. A call at nap; e.g. 'It's your shriek' (or turn to call): card-players' (at Cambridge): from ca. 1890.

shriek-mark. An exclamation-mark: authors', typists' coll.: C.20. Cf. Christie.

shriekers, adj. Noisily, demonstratively drunk: mostly Services': since ca. 1940. The 'OXFORD -ER(S)' suffix on shrieking (pissed) or drunk . (P.B.)

shrieking sisterhood. Women reformers, hence female busybodies: journalistic coll.: ca. 1890–1910. Milliken, 1893, 'This yere shrieking sisterhood lay ain't 'arf bad.'

shrieks of hysterical laughter. A c.p., used when someone has advanced an untenable proposition or made a ludicrous suggestion: mostly Aus.: since ca. 1950. 'I'm going to sell this car. Should get about eight hundred for it.'—'Shrieks of hysterical laughter.' (B.P.) Cf.:

shrieks of silence was the stern reply. There was no reply: Aus. c.p.: since the early 1950s. (B.P.)

shrift. In he hath been at s.!, an ecclesiastical c.p. of C.16: applied to one who has been betrayed he knows not how. (Tyndale, The Obedience of a Christian Man, 1528.) The implication is that the priest to whom he confessed has betrayed him.

shrimp. A harlot: ca. 1630–70. Whiting, 1638, in Albino and Bellama.—2. 'Tamping machine used for cleaning ballast and returning it to the track. The many cranks and pistons make them look like shrimps' (McKenna); railwaymen's: C.20. Also known as a Waltzing Matilda (Ibid.).

shrink, n. Psychiatrist: a back-formation ex head-shrinker: adopted, ca. 1965, ex US, where current since 1960 (W. & F.). (P.B., 1974; COD, 1976.) Hence, as v., to act as a psychiatrist, as in 'British Leyland's shrinking is now done by ... a small company that enjoys talking to people' (Peter Dunn, Sunday Times mag., 18 Oct. 1981).

shroff up; buff up. To smarten up: RN: C.20. Resp., Urdu shroff, a banker (who judges the quality of coins); cf. buff, v., 3.

Shroppie, the. The Shropshire Union Canal: canalmen's: late C.19–20. (Granville, letter, 1966.)

shrubbery. (Gen. the female) pubic hair: coll.: late C.19–20. Cf. synon. bush.

shtibbur. See stiver.

shtick. Act; behaviour: adopted, mid-1970s, ex US. '... why the comic Fyffe Robertson sttick?' (Red Daniells, in Brit. Jnl of Photography, 1 Aug. 1980). Prob. ex Ger. Stück, bit, piece, via Yiddish. (P.B.)

shtoom (or shtum), keep; properly, stoom (stum). To keep quiet; to 'act dumb': low; mostly East End of London: C.20. Often in imperative, or as keep shtoom. 'Simply the Anglicised phonetic spelling of S. German "stumm"—dumb, silent. Presumably it reached England through Yiddish' (R.S.). Powis, 1977, notes stumm and crum, 'emphatic version of "stumm"'. shtumer. See stumer.

shucks! Nonsense!; I don't care! coll.: 1885 (OED): US partly Anglicised ca. 1900. Ex shuck, typifying the worthless, itself orig. (and still) a husk or shell.—2. Hence, an exclam. of annoyance, frustration, etc.: Can., adopted ex US, ca. 1910; in mid-C.20 also Brit., esp. juvenile.

shuff - duff. Super high frequency direction-finding gear: RN: since ca. 1955. (Granville, letter, 1962.) Phoneticised initials, a natural extension of huff - duff, q.v.

shuffer. A chauffeur: from ca. 1905. (Milward Kennedy, Death to the Rescue, 1931.) Cf. the commoner synon. shover.

shuffle, v.t. To feign, as in shuffle asleep, pretend to be asleep. Whence shuffler. Winchester: mid-C.19–20. Ex S.E. sense, act evasively.

shuffle-bottom. A fidgety child, often in address: domestic: since late C.19. (P.B.)

shuffle-hunter. A Thames longshoreman: nautical: temp. George IV.

shuffler. (App.) a drinker; prob. one who 'wangles' or 'scrounges' drinks: Brathwait, 1652. Always with ruffler and snufler. OED.—2. Usu. in pl (shufflers), the feet: pugilistic: ca. 1840–90. (Augustus Mayhew, Paved With Gold, 1857.) The old-time boxer used to shuffle about on his feet; it was Jim Corbett who introduced—or at least popularised—'ballet dancing' in the ring. But Robert Barthrop, letter to P.B., 1981, amends: '(a) much more likely that the word was used for a person, not the feet, and (b) ... All boxers shuffle, i.e. slide their feet backwards and forwards on the canvas. It is the necessary basic movement ... "dancing" is a bit of bravura.' And he instances a report from the Whitehall Evening Post, 6 June 1788, about 'a desperate battle between Mullins, alias Shuffler, a broker, and one Alexander, alias Smoakey, a Jew, which was determined in favour of Smoakey, in 45 minutes.'—3. A tramp; any vagrant: market traders': C.20 (prob. since ca. 1870). (M.T.) App. a ref. to that shuffling gait which carries a man along economically for mile after mile.

shuffling mutes. See make shuffling ...

shuftl. Alternative, and more 'correct', spelling of shuftly in the following entries.

shuftiscope. Instrument used by a doctor for research in cases of dysentery: army: since ca. 1930.—2. A telescope; a periscope: mostly army: since ca. 1935.—3. Hence, 'a long metal probe with a light on it used by Customs officers for probing into cars and baggage' (Sanders): since ca. 1945. The Times, 12 Apr. 1962, news item. All 3 senses exshuftly, v. (Usu. in imperative) 'Look' or 'watch': RAF, since ca. 1925, ex stations in the Middle East; whence soon also army. Jackson, 'The origin is Arabic'. Also shufti (or -y) or sharfty (W/Cdr R.P. McDouall, 1945). Also as a n., esp. in have a shuftly (at); as 'a look' it has, since ca. 1944, been NZ Services': 'We had a good shuftly' (Slatter). For a going shuftly see going recce; see also airmen of the shuftly.

shuftly bint. A (Middle Eastern) woman willing to reveal her charms: orig. RAF, whence also army: since ca. 1930. Cf. the cry shuftly cush! (see shuftly, and cush, n. 3) in a vulgar WW2 song about King Farouk of Egypt; shuftly bint occurs in a companion ditty about his queen, Farida (M. Page, Songs and Ballads of World War II, 1973).

shuftly-hatch. 'A trap door in the cab of some trucks through which a passenger could keep a lookout for enemy aircraft' (Peter Sanders, 10 Sep. 1967): army in N. Africa: 1940–3.

shuftly-kite. A reconnaissance aircraft: RAF, esp. in N. Africa and Burma: 1940–5. P-G-R.

shuftly-truck. A scout car: army in N. Africa: 1940–3. Peter Sanders.

shuftyscope. See shuftiscope.

shug, sug. Money: Aus. low: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) The second is pron. as first: short for sugar, n., 1.—2. Domestic coll. abbr. for sugar, the sweetener: C.20. (P.B.)

shule, shuler, shuling. See shool, shooler, shooling.

shulleg-day. See show-leg day.

'shun! Attention!: military coll. (from the middle 1880s) >, ca. 1910, j. Cf. hipe, q.v.

shunt, n. A serious accident, in motor racing: racing drivers': since late 1950s, ? earlier. Stirling Moss, in a TV programme, 30 May 1969; Now!, 2 Nov. 1979.

shunt, v. To move aside:—1859 (H., 1st ed.); to kill:—1909 (Ware): railwaymen's coll. Ex lit. sense.—2. To shift responsibility of (a thing) on to another person: coll.:—1923 (Manchon).—3. To shunt (a horse) is to start it in a race 'with no intention of winning ... , to induce the handicapper to reduce the horse's weight as if it were a bona fide loser' (Baker): Aus. racing: C.20.—4. Also shunt off. To get rid of peremptorily, to dismiss (someone): Aus.: since ca. 1910. Baker.—5. To do as next, 1:—1908 (OED):- shunter. 'One who buys or sells stock on the chance of undoing his business, on one of the provincial Stock Exchanges, at a profit' (Atkin in Home Scraps, 1887): Stock Exchange coll.: from ca. 1885. Ex railway terminology. Also shunting, C.20.—2. An able organiser: C.20. (SOD). Likewise ex railway sense.—3. A Railway Traffic Officer: Army (mostly officers'): late C.19–20. The Green Curve, by 'Ole Luk-oie', 1909.

shunting. A switch engine: Can. railroadmen's:—1931. Deprecatory.

shurk. Var. of shark: see shirk.

shushy. Chicken: market-traders': C.20. (M.T.) Cf. synon. chookie, coopie.

shut, n. A shutter: since ca. 1780. Sessions, Jan. 1789 (p. 184).

shut-eye. Sleep: Services' and low coll., since late C.19; >, by 1925 at latest, gen. joc., esp. as a spot of shut-eye. John Stockholm, 'A Day on the Lower Deck', Navy and Army Illustrated, Dec. 1899 (Moe); (in Aus.) K.S. Prichard, The Black Opal, 1921.—2. Hence, a deception, a trick, a swindle: Glasgow:—1934.

shut it! Be silent!; stop that noise!: from mid-1880s. 'Pomes' Marshall, ca. 1890, 'Oh, shut it! Close your mouth until I tell you when.'

shut (one's) lights off. To commit suicide; whence, loosely, to die: from ca. 1929. Lyell.

shut of, be or get. (See also shot of.) To be free from, rid of: late C.16–20; S.E. until C.19, then coll.; in late C.19–20, low coll. 'Rolf Boldrewood', 1888, 'Father ... gets shut of a deal of trouble ... by always sticking to one thing'; R.L. Stevenson, 1891, 'What we want is to be shut of him.' In active mood from ca. 1500, whence this passive usage. Cf. dial. be shut on, as in Mrs Gaskell's Mary Barton, 1843, and shut, a riddance. Cf. the US var. get shed of.

shut(-)out, have (got) a. (Of the goal-keeper) to have no goals scored against one: at ice-hockey: from 1936. (Wireless commentator, 17 Feb. 1937; Evening Standard, 25 Feb. 1937.) Cf. S.E. lock-out and s. put up the shutters. Immediately ex the jargon of baseball, where "to shut out" = to hold scoreless in an entire game' (Robert Claiborne).

shut (one's) pan. To hold one's tongue: see pan, n., 5.
shut the books. To cease from business operations: coll.: 1858; ob. by 1930.

shut up. To end (a matter): coll.: 1857, Dickens, 'Now, I'll tell you what it is, and this shuts it up' (OED).—2. (Gen. in imperative: cf. shut it! and shut your face, head, mouth, neck!) To cease talking; stop making a noise: Sessions, July 1850; Mursell, Lecture on Slang, 1858, 'When a man... holds his peace, he shuts up'; Maugham, 1897. S. >, ca. 1890, coll. Ex S.E. sense, to conclude one's remarks. The C.17 equivalent was sneek (or snick) up!, q.v.—3. V.i. 'To give up, as one horse when challenged by another in a race' (Krik, Guide to the Turf; Krik was the pseudonym of B. Reid Kirk, Amicus Equus... And a Guide to Horse Buyers, 1884): racing coll. (?orig. s.). Cf. shut up, adj.—4. Hence, to stop doing something (no matter what): low: C.20.

shut up, adj. Completely exhausted: ca. 1860–1900. H., 3rd ed.

shut-up house. 'The land headquarters of the local Press Gang': naval coll.: late C.18–mid-19. Bowen.

shut up or put up! See put up or shut up!

shut up shop. To cease talking: mid-C.19–mid-20. Cf. shop, n., 10.—2. In shut up (someone's) shop, to make him cease; to kill him: late C.19–early 20.

shut up shop-windows, have. To be bankrupt: coll.: ca. 1675–1850. Ray, 1678 (Apperson). Cf. shutters.

shut up, you little... See what did you do...?

shut up your garret! Hold your tongue!: low:—1909 (Ware). Cf.:

shut your face, head, neck, rag-box! Be quiet!; Stop talking: low: from mid-1870s: perhaps (except for last, which occurs in Kipling, 1892) orig. US, for shut your head! is recorded first in Mark Twain in 1876 and this appears to be the earliest of these phrases; shut your neck is in Runciman, Chequers, 1888; shut your face, from before 1903. All on the analogy of shut your mouth!, which, though admittedly familiar, is yet S.E. Cf. shut it! and shut up, 2, qq.v. Later variants are shut your trap!: low: late C.19–20 (Dr R.L. Mackay); ... cakehole!: joc. coll.: since mid-C.20 (P.B.); ... crunch! (Undercurrents, Dec. 1978: 'Shut your crunch or I'll shove your choppers down your spudgrinder!').

shuts. As n., a hoax, a 'sell'; as interj., 'sold again!' Christ's Hospital (School): from ca. 1860. Cf. done!

shutter, gen. pron. shetter. To convey a 'drunk' on a shop-shutter to the police-station, the police carrying him: low Cockney:—1909; very ob. Ware.

shutter(-)bug. An amateur photographer: Aus.: adopted, ca. 1945, ex US. (B.P.) P.B.: some use in UK, later C.20. Amateur Photographer Magazine, passim.

shutter-racket. The practice of stealing from a building by boring a hole in a window-shutter and taking out a pane of glass: c. of ca. 1810–60. Vaux.

shuttered (often pron. shettered). In a state of complete ignominy: low:—1909 (Ware). Presumably ex shutter.

shutters. In put up the s., to 'bung up' the eyes of one's opponent: boxing: mid-C.19–early 20.—2. In put up the s., to stop payment, announce oneself bankrupt: coll.: mid-C.19–20. Ex S.E. sense, to close a shop for the day. Cf. shut up shop-windows.—3. In put up the s. against, to debar, or to black-list, someone: coll.: since ca. 1925. Sydney A. Moseley, The Truth about a Journalist, 1935.—4. In got the shutters up, surly: proletarian:—1909 (Ware).

shuttle-bag. See swallow the shuttle-bag.

shuvly-kouse. A public house: low urban:—1909; virtually † by 1930. Ware, 'This phrase spread through London from a police-court case, in which a half-witted girl used this phrase.'

shwaiya, shwiya. See schwaya.

shy, n. A quick and either jerky or careless (or jerkily careless) casting of a stone, ball, etc.: coll.: 1791 (Brand:

OED). Ex v.; 1, q.v.—2. Hence, A 'go', attempt, experiment, chance: coll.: 1821, Boxiana, III.—3. Fig., a 'fling', a jibe or sarcasm (at...): 1840, De Quincey, 'Rousseau... taking a "shy" at any random object' (OED).—4. The Eton Football sense, orig. (1868) coll., soon > j.—5. A thrower, esp. in cricket: coll.: 1884 (OED).—6. In have a shy for (someone), to search for: Aus.: since ca. 1920. Baker.—7. See coco-nut shy.

shy, v. (In late C.19–early 20, occ. shie.) V.i., to throw a missile jerkily or carelessly or with careless jerkiness: coll.: 1787, Bentham, 'A sort of cock for him... to shie at' (OED). Perhaps ex shy(-)cock, q.v.—2. Throw, toss, jerk: coll.: lit., 1824, Egan; fig., Scott, 1827, 'I cannot keep up with the world without shying a letter now and then.'
shy, adj. Short of (money, provision, etc.); lacking entirely: low coll.: 1821, Haggart, 'Although I had not been idle during these three months, I found my blunt getting shy'; W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book (II, 142), 1826, 'As there was eight... of us lock'd by the legs, the duty—the duty roster—'looked shy in the ship' (Moe). Hence Aus. synon. shy of, since late C.19; Can., id., often simply shy. Cf. US shy, shy of, lacking, short of (OED, 799, §6, b), a usage perhaps influencing, but not originating, the Aus. P.B.: E.P. orig. noted this term as † by 1900 in UK, but it has certainly lingered into later C.20, perhaps a borrowing back from the Commonwealth or USA; I heard it occ. in the army, as an alternative to synon. diffy, 1950–70.—2. Disreputable; not quite honest: 1849, Thackeray, 'Mr Wagg... said, "Rather a shy place for a sucking county member, ay, Pynsent?"'; 1864, H.J. Byron, 'Shy turf-transaction.' S. >, ca. 1900, coll.; by 1930, ob. Prob. ex S.E. sense, timid, bashful.—3. ? hence, doubtful in quantity and/or quality: 1850, Thackeray, 'That uncommonly shy supper of dry bread and milk-and-water'; Mark Lemon, 1865, 'Her geography is rather shy, and I can make her believe anything.' (OED). Rare in C.20, virtually † by 1935.

shy(-)cock. A wary person, esp. one who keeps indoors to avoid the bailiffs: 1768 (Goldsmith: OED); Grose, 1st ed.—2. Hence, a cowardly person: 1796 (F. Reynolds: OED). Both senses † by ca. 1850, the latest record being of 1828, in The Night Watch, I, p. 232 (Moe). Prob. ex lit. sense, a cock not easily caught, one that will not fight.

shy-making. Alluded-to by Somerset Maugham in Cakes and Ale, 1930, thus, 'Popular adjectives (like "divine" and "shy-making"),' this adj., used lit., was nevertheless ob. by 1934. It was coined, or rather first recorded, by Evelyn Waugh. P.B.: despite E.P.'s 'ob.' here (in 1st ed.), the term has persisted at least until 1982—perhaps influenced by the popularity of E.W.'s novels—and may be compared with other similarly-formed adj., e.g. blush-making, and sick-making, q.v. at -making.

shy of the blues. Anxious to avoid the police: c.: from ca. 1870; ob. James Greenwood, 1883.

shyer, shier. One who throws as in shy, v. (q.v.): coll.: —1895 (OED).

shyin'. See shine, adj.

shypoo (occ. shipoo). 'Liquor of poor quality' (Wilkes); hence, as adj., inferior, cheap, worthless: Aus.: the 1st, since late C.19; the 2nd, since ca. 1920 (Baker). Ronan, 1962, suggests an orig. in 'bastard Chinese': just possibly it could come from Cantonese sai po, a little shop (P.B.). Occ. short for shypoo shanty, a 'sly-grog' shop, andshypoo joint. An inferior public-house: Aus. low: since ca. 1925. Baker.

shypoo shop. 'A place where you bought beer and wine, but nothing stronger' (Tom Ronan, Only a Short Walk, 1961): Aus.: C.20.

shyster. An unprofessional, dishonest, or rapacious lawyer (1856); hence, anyone not too particular as to how he conducts business (1877); hence (—1903), a generic pej.: US, Anglicised resp. ca. 1890, 1900, 1905. Either ex shy, adj., 3, or ex shicer: cf. next sense. (Thornton, F. & H., OED.) Powis, 1977, notes shicer or sheister as 'a cheat or "welsher"'.—2. 'A duffer, a vagabond' (H., 3rd ed.): from ca. 1860. This sense, independent of US shyster, is a var. of shicer, 2, q.v.—3. A worthless mine: Aus.: late C.19–20. (Baker.) I.e. shicer, 1, influenced by senses 1 and 2 above.

si quis. A candidate for holy orders: from ca. 1860; ob. (H., 3rd ed.) Ex the public notice of ordination, so named because it began Si quis, if any...

sibe. A Siberian bird. See BIRD-WATCHERS' SLANG, in Appendix.

sice. Sixpence: c.: ca. 1660–1850. (Tatham, 1660 (OED); Covent Garden Drollery, 1672; B.E.; Grose; Lytton.) Ex sice, the six in dice.

sick, n. Mostly in give (someone) the sick, to disgust: low coll.: ca. 1840–1930. Sessions, Nov. 1849, 'If I have many such markets as this, it will give me the sick.' Also, esp. later, *the sick*s, as in John Brophy, Waterfront, 1934.

sick, adj. Disgusted; 'fed up'; exceedingly annoyed or chagrined: coll. An early occurrence is in an unidentified British song reprinted in The Port Folio, 17 May 1806, p. 304, thus, 'Of the sport I got sick, so threw up the game' (Moe). Ex sick (of), thoroughly weary (of), prob. via sick and tired (of).—2. (Of a ship) 'in quarantine on suspicion of infectious disease' (Bowen): nautical coll.: C.20.—3. Without trumps: Aus. card-players': from ca. 1870. B. & L.—4. Silly, stupid; extremely eccentric, (slightly) mad: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Orig. euph.—5. As applied to humour: morbid—esp., gruesomely morbid; mentally or morally unhealthy; callous; viciously unkind; callously or sadistically unkind: but often too unreal, or even too ludicrously morbid, to carry a deadly sting: coll.: adopted, ca. 1959, ex US; by 1965, S.E. (Cf. sense 4.)—6. In knock (one) sick, to astound, 'flabbergast': coll.: —1923 (Manchon). Cf. 1 and 4.—7. See pig-sick.

Sick and Tired. 'Signal and Telecommunications Department' (Railway, 2nd): railwaymen's: since ca. 1955(?).

sick as a cat, cushion, dog, horse, rat, — as. Very sick or ill indeed: coll. verging on S.E.: resp. 1869, Spurgeon; ca. 1675–1800, Ray, Swift; late C.16–20, G. Harvey, Garrick, Mrs. Henry Wood; ca. 1680–1830 (Meriton, 1685; Sterne; Grose), then coll.; late C.19–20, ob. (F. & H.) As a horse does not vomit, to be as sick as a horse connotes extreme discomfort. Northamptonshire dial. is logical in that it applies the phrase to a person 'exceedingly sick without vomiting' (Miss Baker, 1854). Sick as a cat, in earlier C.20, had the nuance 'extremely annoyed': s. >, by late 1930s, coll. (Lyell); cf. sick, adj., 1. Later variants are the Aus. C.20 sick as a blackfellow's dog (B., 1959), and sick as a parrot, noted by Philip Howard, Words Fail Me, 1980, as a (mainly footballers') cliché for 'extremely chagrined'; he traces it to scare-stories in the popular press, early 1970s, about psittacosis or parrot fever—but cf. the C.17–19 melancholy as a parrot, q.v. at melancholy. For sick as muck, see muck, n., 11.

sick-bay cocktail. A dose of medicine: RN: since ca. 1925. P-G-R.

sick-bay goose. a bed-pan; hence, gooseneck bos'un, a Warrant Wardmaster: RN: C.20.

sick-bay loungers. Fellows that go to Sick Bay to avoid Divisions or studies: Royal Naval College, Dartmouth: C.20. Cf.:-

sick-bay moocher. A malingerer: Conway cadets': from before 1891. (John Masefield, The Conway, 1933.) See moocher.

sick-bay shackle. A safety-pin: RN: since ca. 1939. News Chronicle, 4 Nov. 1954.

sick-bay tiffy. A medical orderly in the sick-bay: RN: since—1914 (Knock). Cf. tiffy.

sick bunk. A hospital bed: army coll. (regimental aid-posts)': 1940–5. P-G-R.

sick friend. In sit up with a s.f., (of a man) to excuse oneself for absence all night from the conjugal bed: from ca. 1880; slightly ob. by 1930. Cf. , prob. ex, the earlier go and see a sick friend, to go womanising: low: from ca. 1860; cf. also the wider-purposed see a man about a dog.

sick, lame and lazy, the. A sergeant-major's lumping together of all his battalion's "useless mouths": army coll. or c.p. from at least as early as the Afghan War of 1863 (Sgt-major T. Gowing), and still current in later C.20. Occ. the sick, the lame, and the lazy. Cf. R.C.s, Parsees... (P.B.)

sick-list, on the. Ill: coll.: C.20. Ex s.-l., an official list of the sick.

sick man (OR S.M.) OF EUROPE, THE. 'Any reigning sultan of Turkey': political nickname (coll. verging on S.E.): 1853, when used by Nicholas I of Russia to Sir George Hamilton Seymour, the English Ambassador at St Petersburg; slightly ob. (Ware.) P.B.: by 1930, historical, but occ. applied, journalistically, in later C.20, to any European country that is 'going through a bad patch'.

sick market. A market 'in which sales of stock are difficult to place': Stock Exchange coll.: from ca. 1860. B. & L.

sick of the fever burden. To be 'bone' lazy: coll.: C.16–17. E.g. in Fulwood's Enemy of Idleness, 1593, 'You have the palsey or eke the fever burden'; Ray. (Apperson.) Cf. sick of the Lombard fever.

sick of the idle crick and the belly-work in the heel. As prec.: coll.: ca. 1670–1750. Ray, 1678, thus: sick o'th' idle crick, and the belly-work i' th' heel, therefore prob. orig. Northern dial. Derisive, presumably, of an illness alleged to excuse idleness. Cf.:

sick of the idles. Exceedingly lazy; idle without the will to work: coll.: 1639, John Clarke; Ray, 1670. Ob. by 1850, but not yet †. Cf. prec. 2 entries, the C.20 synon. idle-itis or lazy-itis, and:-

sick of the Lombard fever. The same: coll.: ca. 1650–1720. Howell, 1659; Ray, 1670. (Apperson.) Cf. sick of the fever burden.

sick of the simples. Foolish: see simples.

sick up, v.i. and t. To vomit: low coll.: late (? mid-) C.19–20.

sickening. Unpleasant; inconvenient; (of persons) rude: Society coll.: from ca. 1920. Denis Mackail, Greenery Street, 1925, "Just a little demonstration of two men telephoning to each other. Twenty seconds by the clock." "Don't be sickening, Ian," [said Felicity]. P.B.: usage quite soon (? by 1935) became much more widespread and gen. Cf. sick-making, q.v. at -making.

sicker, as in sixpenny, or shilling, sicker, a seaside pleasure-boat: C.20. (Warwick Deeping, 1944.) Cf. shilling emetic.—2. (Usu. as the sickier) a sick-room, an infirmary: Public Schools': since ca. 1910. By the 'OXFORD-ER'. Cf. san, and:—3. As the sickier, the medical officer's report: army, mostly officers': WW1. F. & G.

sickie. A day off, allegedly because of sickness: Aus.: since ca. 1930. (B.P.)—2. A day of one's 'sick leave', esp. 'to take a sickie'—a day of such leave of absence: Aus.: since the late 1940s. (B.P.) Hence, attributively, as in 'a sickie conscience' (Sydney Morning Herald, 8 Sep. 1963).

sickrel. 'A puny, sickly Creature' (B.E.): late C.17—early 18. OED says that it is c.: but B.E. does not so classify it. Pej. on sick: cf. cockerel on cock.

sicks (occ. sick), the. A feeling of nausea. See sick, n.

Sid Walker gang. A crash-landing salvage party (from a salvage and repair unit): RAF: 1939+. Jackson, From the Cockney comedian of that name famous for his broadcast song "Day after day, I'm on my way, Any rags, bottles or bones?" This philosophic fellow, who died before WW2 ended, has, by posing problems and asking, 'What would you do, chums?' generated a c.p.

side, n. Conceit, swagger; pretentiousness. Earliest and often put on side, to give oneself airs, to 'swank'. (Hatton, 1878; 'Pomes' Marshall.) Ex side, proud, or more prob., as W. suggests, by a pun on put on side at billiards.—2. In on the side, in addition; not downright illegally, yet dubiously, in unacknowledged commissions, tips, bribes: coll.: late C.19–20. Cf.:—3. In (have/having) a bit on the side, indulge 'in an extramarital affair' (Powis): coll.: later C.20.—4. In on the (e.g. cool) side, rather cool: from—1923 (A.J. Anderson), coll. > side, v.i. Harrovians' s., from ca. 1890, as in Lunn: 'He'll side to his kids about when he was at school with us'. Cf. and ex the n., 1; cf. also side about.—2. To hide away: police: since ca. 1920. Maurice Proctor, Man in Ambush, 1958.

by 1933, S.E. (Collinson; OED Sup.).—5. See one side of his mouth; over the side.

side! Yes: Northern c.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.). Orig. perhaps in 'I side with you' (B. & L.).

side about. To put on 'side': Public Schools': early C.20. (P.G. Wodehouse, Mike, 1909.) Cf. side, n., 1, and v., 1.

side-board(s). See sideboard(s).

side-burns. See sideburns.

side door pullman. See sidedor Pullman.

side edge. Whiskers [presumably sideburns]: tailors': from ca. 1860. Cf. side-lever.

side-kick. A close companion; a mate, occ. an assistant, on a job: Can. and Aus.: from not later than 1914. Ex the side-kicker of USA, where, since 1920, side-kick has been the more frequent; side-kicker is occ. heard in England, as e.g. in P. MacDonald, Rope to Spare, 1932. As side-kick it was, WW2, common in the British Army as a whole. Cf. offsider, q.v.

side-lever, gen. in pl. Hair growing down the cheek at the side of the ear: C.20. (Author first heard it in 1923.) Cf. side-wings, sideboards, and the US sideburns. P.B.: side-burns has since > coll. Eng.

side-lights. Eyes: nautical: late C.19–20. Bowen.

side out (a matter); mostly, side it out. To settle an argument; to discuss a matter and come to a decision; apparently mostly RN, and ratings', at that: C.19; ? † by ca. 1890. W.N. Glascock, The Naval Sketch-Book, 2nd series, 1834, I, 24, "'Don't mind him," says Sal, "leavin Tom and the captain-o'-the-top to side it out", and 225, "... to settle the score in the reg'lar way, and to side it out in the bay below"' (Moe).

side-pocket(s). In want as much as a dog (or toad) wants a s.-p., a c.p. applied to one who desires something unnecessary: late C.18—early 20. Grose, 1st ed., toad (at toad); dog in Grose, 2nd ed., where also the var. as much need of a wife as a dog of a side-pocket, applied to a debilitated old man. Quiller-Couch, 1888, 'A bull's got no more use for religion than a toad for side-pockets.' Occ. monkey, unrecorded before 1880 and † by 1930; very rarely cow, as in Whyte-Melville, 1862. (Apperson.) side-scrapers. 'Side-wings', 'side-levers', qq.v.: London middle classes': ca. 1879–89. Ware.

side-sim. A fool: C.17 coll. (Nares records for 1622.)? opp. Sim subtle, a crafty person or a subtle one. Sim = Simon. Cf. simple Simon.

side up with. To compare, or compete with: coll.: late C.19—early 20. Punch, 23 Feb. 1895 (OED Sup.)

side wind. A bastard: naval: ? ca. 1780–1850. (W.N. Glascock, Sailors and Saints (I, 17), 1829. Moe.) Mr Ramsey Spencer neatly suggests a nautical pun on S.E. by-blow.

side-wings. Side whiskers: late C.19—early 20. Cf. buggers' grips.

sideboards. A 'stand-up' shirt-collar: low:—1857 ('Ducange Anglicus', who lists also var., side-boards). H., 1st ed., shows that the term was applied to the collars of ca. 1845–55.—2. Side whiskers: coll.: since late C.19.

sidebox, v.t. To surround in a menacing manner, as in 'The next day I got sideboxed by three faces [well-known criminals] in a club' (John McVicar, New Statesman, 20 Aug. 1982 p. 25): c.: later C.20.

sideburns. Side whiskers: form-adopted, ca. 1945, ex US, and sense-adapted. A var. of burnsides, named after the famous General A.E. Burnside (1824–81), who affected them.

sidedor Pullman. A box-car: Can. railroadmen's and tramps' ironic: C.20, adopted—1931 ex US. In Toby: a Bristol Tramp Tells His Story, Bristol Broad-sides, 1979, spelt side door pullman.

sidelights. See side-lights.

'sides. Besides; moreover; late C.16–20: S.E. until C.19, then coll. and dial.

sidewalk. See superintendent of the ...

sideways. Of a sum of money: split each way, i.e. winner and place: racing s.: C.20. Mark McShane, The Straight and Crooked, 1960, 'Saucepan, sideways, Lanternjaw' = One pound, half to win, half for a place.—2. See go sideways.

sidewinder. 'An unknown, but very fast, horse; a "dark" horse' (Leechman, 1976): Can.: since ca. 1960. F. Ludditt, Campfire Sketches, 1974, 'George had a string of packhorses, but always seemed to bring in one real "sidewinder"'. Not recorded, in this sense, but their origination is doubtless correct: 'From the Western sidewinder rattlesnake, which moves by coiling from side to side.'

sidewipe. A sly insinuation: C.19. Bill Truck, Sep. 1824.

sidey. See sidy.

sidey-boy. See seedy-boy.

sides. Side whiskers: mostly RN: C.20. (Granville, letter, 1967.)

sidledywry. Crooked: late C.18—early 19. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Ex sidle + awry.

sidy; occ.—but incorrectly—sidey. Conceited; apt to 'swank it': 1898 (OED): s. >, ca. 1910, coll.; ob. Ex side, q.v.

sif, siff. See syph.

sift, v.t.; occ. v.i. To steal small coins, i.e. such as might be conceived of as passing through a sieve: thus F. & H. (1903); but in 1864, H. says that it = to purloin 'the larger pieces, that did not readily pass through the sieve!' It appears, however, that F. & H. is right, for in H., 1874, we find 'To embezzle small coins, those which might pass through a sieve—as threepennies and fourpennies—and which are therefore not likely to be missed.'

Sifton's pets. Eastern European, esp. Ruthenian and Galician, immigrants: Can. (esp. Manitoba): ca. 1900–10. Brought in under the immigration scheme of the Hon. afterwards Sir, Clifford Sifton (1861–1910), at that time Minister of the Interior. (Roger Goodland, letter, 1938.)

sig. A signature: Harrow School: late C.19–20. Marples.—2. A signaller: army: WW1 and since. In the Royal Corps of Signals, a (usu. joc.) abbr., in address or ref., of Signalman, as 'Tell Sig. Smith I want to see him' (P.B.) Earlier, also in sig[alling]-station.

sigarneo. A loose form of sirgarneo. See Sir Garnet.

sighing Sarah. See Whistling Willie.—2. A shell that 'sighs' in its distant flight: military: WW1. G.H. McKnight, English Words, 1923.

sight. A multitude or a (great) deal: late C.14–20: S.E. until mid-C.18, then coll. (in C.20, virtually s.). Sheridan & Tickell, 1778, 'They wear ... a large hat and feather, and a mortal sight of hair' (OED).—2. As adv.: coll. >, ca. 1890, s.: 1836, T. Hook; 1889, Grant Allen, 'You're a sight too clever for me to talk to' (OED).—3. An oddity, often pej. ('You've made yourself a perfect or regular sight'): late C.17–20: S.E. until C.19, then coll. Cf. fright, q.v.—4. An opportunity or chance. Esp. get within sight, to near the end, and get within sight of, to get anywhere near. Coll.: late C.19–20.—5. 'A gesture of derision: the thumb on the nose-tip and the fingers spread fan-wise: also Queen Anne's fan. A double sight is made by joining the tip of the little finger (already in position) to the thumb of the other hand, the fingers being similarly extended. Emphasis is given by moving the fingers of both hands as if playing a piano. Similar actions are taking a grinder ... or working the coffee-mill ... ; pulling bacon ... ; making a nose or long nose; cocking snooks, &c.' a passage showing F. & H. to advantage. (The custom seems to have arisen in late C.17: see the frontispiece of the English Theophrastus, 1702, and cf. the Spectator, 1712, 'The "prentice speaks his disrespect by an extended finger.") T. Hook, 1836, 'Taking a double sight' (OED); Dickens, 1840, 'That peculiar form of recognition which is called taking a sight'; cf. H., 2nd ed., at sight. A var., recorded in Sessions, 6 Apr. 1847, was give a sight.—6. In put out of sight, to consume; esp., to eat: coll.: from ca. 1870. Cf. get outside of.

sight, v. 'To tolerate; to permit; also, to see; observe' (C.J. Dennis): Aus.: C.20.

sight for the gods. A cause of wonderment; coll. only when ironic: from ca. 1890. Hume Nisbet. Cf. the literary enough to make the gods weep.

sighted. 'Singled out for attention as a possible candidate for a disciplinary charge': Royal Sussex Regiment: C.20. Roussillon Gazette, Apr. 1911 (S.H. Ward).

sighter. A minute dot on a card: card-sharpping c.:—1894 (OED).—2. See fly-balance.

sights. See take sights (of).

sightseers. 'Card-sharps' term for the "hedge" or crowd of members of the public around the action of a three-card-trick conspiracy, each such undecided person being regarded as a potential "mug" (Powis, 1977).

sigma (phi). Syphilis: coll. medical euph.:—1933 (Slang, p. 193). Ex Gr. letters written on the patient's certificate.

sign (one's) hand or name. See bite (someone's) name.

sign of a house or a tenement to let. A widow's weeds: 1785 (Grose); ob. by 1900, virtually † by 1930. In American low s., a house for rent (Irwin).

sign of the cat's foot or ... cock's tooth. See live at the sign ...

sign of the feathers, the. A woman's best good graces: mid-C.19—early 20.

sign of the five, ten, fifteen shillings, the. An inn or tavern named The Crown, Two Crowns, Three Crowns: late C.18–20; ob. Grose, 2nd ed.

sign of the horn, at the. In cuckoldom: C.19.

sign of the prancer, the. The Nag's Head (inn): from ca. 1565 (very ob.): c. >, in C.19, low s. Harman. Also the Sign of the Prancer's Poll, B.E., Grose.

sign of the three balls, the. A pawnbroker's: C.19–20: coll. >, ca. 1910, S.E.

sign on the dotted line. To sign: joc. coll.: from ca. 1925. Ex the instructions on legal and official documents.

sign the coal warrants. To have a parting drink on board a ship ready to sail: nautical: mid-C.19. Albert Smith, To China and Back, diary entries for 26 July and 28 Nov. 1858.

signal basher, usu. in pl. A signaller: army: since ca. 1930. P-G-R.

Signalman Jimmy. The figure of Mercury in the Royal Corps of Signals badge: RSC: since ca. 1939. (P-G-R.) In later C.20 usu. simply Jimmy: see Jimmy, 10.

signboard. The face: ca. 1870–1910. Cf. dial, q.v.

signed all over. (Of a good picture) clearly characteristic of its creator: artists':—1909 (Ware). See written all over, the later C.20 form, used fig.

signed servant. An assigned servant: Aus. coll.: ca. 1830–60. (Morris.) Ex that convict system under which convicts were let out as labourers to the settlers.

significant. Attractive, esp. as being in the forefront of modernity: art s. verging on j.: from ca. 1920. A vogue-cheapening of significant, very expressive or suggestive, perhaps influenced by significant, important or notable.

Signs of the Zodiac, the. (Members of) the Christchurch Club: Canterbury, NZ: C.20. 'When the Christchurch club was started by twelve squatters ... there were never more than two of the twelve visible at the same time,' L.G.D. Acland, 'Sheep Station Glossary', (Christchurch) Press, 1933–4 (cited by B., 1941.)

Sigs, the. The Royal Corps of Signals: army: prob. since the Corps's formation in 1920. Cf. sig, 2.

sigster. A short sleep: low: ca. 1830–60. (Sinks, 1848.) Cf. zizz.

Sike or Psych (pron. sike), the. The Society for Psychological research: from middle 1880s. Baumann.—2. A member thereof: id. (Ibid.) Also sike.

sikhery; Sikh's beard. See PRISONER-OF-WAR SLANG, §5, in Appendix.

sil. See silver-beggar.

Silas Hocking. A stocking: theatrical rhyming s.: late C.19– 20. Silas Hocking's very popular novels appeared over a period of fifty years or more, beginning in ca. 1879.

silence. To knock down, to stun: implied in 1725 in A New Canting Dict. (at silent).—2. Hence, to kill: C.19–20.

silence in the court – the cat is pissing. A c.p. addressed to anyone requiring silence unnecessarily: ca. 1780–1850. (Grose, 1st ed.) Cf. the C.20 juvenile c.p. silence in court—the monkey (or donkey) wants to speak (Brit.) or talk (Aus.: B.P.): see esp. I. & P. Opie, Lore and Language of Schoolchildren, 1959.

silence-yelper. An usher in a court of law: c.:—1909 (Ware). I.e. 'silence!' -yelper.

silencer. A blow that knocks down or stuns: C.19–20. Ex silence, 1.

silent. Murdered: c.:—1725 (A New Canting Dict.). Cf. silence, 2.

silent beard. The female pubic hair: coll.: late C.17—early 19. (T. Brown (d. 1704): Works, ii, 202.) Cf. silent flute.

silent cop. A traffic dome: Aus.: adopted, in late 1920s, ex US; by 1955, coll.; by 1966, verging on S.E. 'About 100 times as common as poached egg' (B.P., 1963). Cf. sleeping policeman.

silent death. An electric train: railwaymen's: since ca. 1950. (Railway, 2nd.) Cf. whispering death.

silent deaths. A night patrol, armed with daggers, lurking in no-man's-land to surprise German patrols: military: 1915–18. F. & G. silent flute. The male member: late C.18—mid-19. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Cf. silent beard.

silent hours, the. From 11 p.m. to 5.30 a.m. (ship's bells not sounded): RN coll.: since ca. 1910. P-G-R.

silent – like the 'p' in swimming. A fairly common c.p., used in explaining a pronunciation. 'Her name is "Fenwick", but the "w" is silent, like the "p" in "swimming".' Since ca. 1914. (Leechman.) Var. the 'p' is silent, as in swimming (or in bath). A pun on pee, to urinate.

silent Percy or Susan. A type of German high-velocity gun, and its shell: military: WW1. F. & G.; B. & P. silent walkabout. 'Inability to obtain work because the trawler-owners have put the word about: Fleetwood trawlers. "A Life Apart": ITV programme, 13 Feb. 1973 (Peppitt).

silk. A QC or KC: 1884 (OED): coll. till ca. 1905, then S.E. Abbr. silk-gown, a QC: 1853, Dickens, 'Mr Blowers, the eminent silk-gown.' A Counsel's robe is of silk; a Junior Counsel's stuff.—2. Hence, in obtain, receive, take, silk, to attain the rank of Counsel: legal coll. >, ca. 1905, S.E.; obtain: very rare before C.20, and perhaps always S.E.; receive (Standard, 16 Aug. 1872); take (Globe, 6 May 1890). Contrast spoil silk, to cease being Counsel; esp. on promotion: legal coll. >, ca. 1900, S.E.: 1882, Society, 4 Nov., 'Ere long he "spoiled silk" (as the saying is), and was made a Serjeant.' ?ex despoil oneself of.—3. Sense 2 should not be confused with carry, or sport, silk, to ride in a race: turf coll.: 1884 (Hawley Smart). Ex the silk jacket worn by jockeys. Nor these with:—4. A bishop: ecclesiastical: late C.19—early 20. The apron is of silk.

silk facings. Beer-stains on the garments being made or altered: tailors': from ca. 1870. Ex watered silk. Cf. canteen-medal.

silk-gown. See silk, 1.

silk-port. 'Assumption of a gentleman commoner's gown': Oxford University: ca. 1820–60. (Egan's Grose, 1823.) Pierce Egan added a fair amount of Oxford s. to Grose.

silk-snatcher. A thief addicted to snatching hoods or bonnets from persons walking in the street: c. of ca. 1720–1840. A New Canting Dict., 1725; Grose, 1st ed.

silks and satins. Esp. in support (one's) s. and s., to parade, or prank oneself out in. silk and satin: modistes' coll.: later C.19—early 20. Baumann.

silkworm. 'A woman given to frequenting drapers' shops and examining goods without buying': coll.: C.18. Steele, 1712, Spectator, no. 454 (OED).

sillikin. A simpleton: 1860 (G.A. Sala: OED); ob. by 1920. Cf.:-

silly, n. A silly person: coll.: 1858, K.H. Digby, 'Like great sillies' (OED).

silly, v. To stun: coll.: ca. 1850–1900. Sessions, 10 May 1859, 'I felt great pain from the blows... it half sillied me at the time.' Prob. abbr. knock silly, lit. in its S.E. sense, but coll. when = to infatuate: late C.19–mid-20.

silly, adj. 'The answer to "How are you?" is often "Feeling a bit silly" (has a hangover)' (Peter York, Style Wars, 1980): upper-middle-class coll.: later 1970s.

silly, adv. Sillyly: C.18–20: S.E. until mid-C.19, then (low) coll. and dial.

silly as a hatful of worms; ... a bag; ... a two-bob watch; ... a wheel. 'Extremely silly or stupid' (B., 1959, with ref. to first two): Aus.; the 1st and 3rd also Brit.; the 3rd, and prob. the others, NZ: since ca. 1930, the 3rd perhaps a decade earlier. (H. Griffith; Dick; P.B.) Cf. daft as a brush, and see esp. mad as a cut snake.

silly (or S.) Billy. A clown's juvenile butt: coll.: ca. 1850–1900. Mayhew, 1851, 'Silly Billy... is very popular with the audience at the fairs.'—2. Hence, gen. affectionately, a 'silly' (q.v.): coll.: late C.19–20. Cf. silly Willy.

silly buggers. See play silly...

silly cunt! A low pej. address or ref. to a person: late C.19–20. In 1914–18, the soldiers applied the term, with or without this or some other epithet, to material objects. See cunt, 3.

silly kipper. A mild term of disapproval; affectionate address to a child: non-aristocratic: earlier C.20. Cf. giddy kipper.

silly (old) mo. See mo, and DCpp.

silly season. In Great Britain, the months of August and September, when—owing to recess of Parliament and to other prominent persons' being on holiday—there is a shortage of important news, the lack being supplied by trivialities. (Such a periodical as The Times Literary Supplement, however, welcomes August–mid-September for the working-off of arrears: the authors and publishers concerned feel perhaps less enthusiastic.) 1871, Punch, 9 Sep., 'The present time of the year has been named "the silly season"' (OED): coll. till ca. 1910, then S.E. Whence:

silly-seasoner, -seasoning. A typical silly-season article or story (1893); the writing and publishing of such matter (1897). Still coll. OED.

Silly Suffolks, the. An occ. nickname of the Suffolk Regiment (1881–1959): 'Their slowness of speech—speech delivered in a dialect barely comprehensible to a foreigner from outside East Anglia—seemed to preclude intelligence' (Carew). But the inference was quite wrong, and it was a fine regret.

silly Willy. A simpleton: coll.: C.17 (? till C.19). Cf. silly Billy, 2. (Also dial.: mid-C.19–20.)

silver-beggar or -lurker. C.: s.-b., 1859 (Sala); s.-l. (H., 3rd ed.) from ca. 1860; both ob. by 1930. 'A tramp with briefs (see brief, n., 2) or fakements (see fakement, 1) concerning bogus losses by fire, shipwreck, accident, and the like; guaranteed by forged signatures or shams (see shams, n., 2) of clergymen, magistrates, &c., the false subscription-books being known as delicates' (see delicate). Also, from ca. 1870—'sil' = (1) a forged document, and (2) a note on "The Bank of Elegance" or "The Bank of Engraving"', i.e. a counterfeit banknote; likewise ob. F. & H.

silver bullets. 'Money contributed to the war loans': journalistic coll. verging on j.: 1916–18. Collinson.

silver-cooped. (Of a naval seaman) deserting for the merchant service: nautical coll.: late C.18–early 19. Ex the bounties offered to the crimps. Bowen.—2. Hence, (of any merchant seaman) 'shipped through the crimps': nautical coll.: C.19. Ibid.

silver fork. A wooden skewer, used as a chopstick when forks were scarce: Winchester: † by 1870.

Silver Fork School, the. A school of novelists stressing the etiquette of the drawing-room and affecting gentility: literary coll. of ca. 1834–90. The school flourished ca. 1825–50 and included Disraeli, Lytton, Theodore Hook, Lady Blessington, Mrs Trollope. Four-pronged silver or electro-plated forks, though known long before, ousted the steel two-prongs only ca. 1860.

silver hell. A low-class gaming saloon or den: coll.: from ca. 1840; ob. Moncrieff, 1843, 'He's the principal partner of all the silver hells at the West End.' Only or mainly silver was risked. This term, like dancing hell, soon > S.E.

silver hook. See catch fish...

silver-laced. Lousy: low s. (? orig. c.) of ca. 1810–1910. (Lex. Bal.; Baumann.) Ex the colour of lice.

silver pheasant. A beautiful society woman: 1920s. Manchon.

silver plate! Please: joc.: since ca. 1916. A Hobson-Jobson of French s'il vous plaît. Gavin Holt, Drums Beat at Night, 1932, has the var. silvoo play!

silver saddle. A bed-pan made of stainless steel: since ca. 1950. "They call them silver saddles in the Air Force," he said' (Leslie Blight, Love and Idleness, 1952: L.A.). silver sausage. A barrage balloon: 1938+. (H. & P.) Ex its shape and, in the sun, its colour.

silver spoon. See born with a silver spoon; hoon.

silver-tail (or solid). A 'swell'; 'someone affluent and socially prominent' (Wilkes): Aus. derogatory, orig. bushmen's: since—1890 (Morris cites A.J. Vogan, The Black Police). Opp. copper-tail. Also as adj., and silvertailed.—2. Hence, an affected person, one who puts on airs, a social climber: since ca. 1910. B., 1942.—3. A better-class prisoner in gaol: Aus. c.: since ca. 1930. H.C. Brewster, King's Cross Calling, 1944 (B., 1953).

Silver-Tailed Dandies, the. The officers of the 61st Foot Regiment: 'a Peninsular War nickname, in allusion to the elaborate silver embroidery on the tails of their coats' (F. & G.). But see also the Flowers of Toulouse.

silver-wig. A grey-haired man: coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

silvers or S. Shares in the India Rubber, Gutta Percha, and Telegraph Company: Stock Exchange: ca. 1890–1915. Ex the works at Silvertown.

silvery moon. A Negro: rhyming s., on coom: later C.20. Ronnie Barker, Fletcher's Book of Rhyming Slang, 1979.

silvoo play! See silver plate!

Sim. 'A follower of the late Rev. Charles Simeon' (H., 2nd ed.): ca. 1850–60. The Rev. Charles, d. 1836, was 54 years Vicar of Holy Trinity, Cambridge. Abbr. Simeonite (1823).—2. Hence, and far more widely at Cambridge University, a quiet, religious (esp. if evangelical) man: ca. 1851–70, then only historical. Bristed, 1851.—3. As sim, a confidence-trickster's dupe: Aus. c.: C.20, (B., 1942.) i.e. a simpleton.—4. Coll. Shortening of (aircraft cockpit) simulator: RAF: later C.20. 'Each session consists of two sim rides...' (Phantom).

simkin or simpkin; or with capitals in sense 1. The fool in (comic) ballets: theatrical coll. of ca. 1860–1920. (Mayhew, 1861: OED). Ex simkin, a fool.—2. Only simkin; occ. samkin: champagne: Anglo-Indian coll.: 1853 (H., 3rd ed.); ob. 1935. Ex native pron.

simon (or S.). A sixpence: c.: late C.17–19. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.; H., 5th ed.) Prob. by a fancy on the name: since tanner, 6d., is unrecorded before 1811, simon cannot derive from 'the old joke... about St Peter's banking transaction, when he "lodged with one Simon a tanner"' (Household Words, 20 June 1885), but tanner may well have come from Simon in this connexion.—2. A trained horse: circus: from ca. 1850; ob. Is this a pun? On what?—3. A cane: King Edward's School, Birmingham: ca. 1850–90. Ex Acts 9. 43.

Simon Pure (occ. Simon- or simon-pure), the or the real. The real or authentic person or, from ca. 1859 (H., 1st ed.), thing: coll.: the real S.P., 1815, Scott; the S.P., 1860, W.C. Prime (OED). Ex Simon Pure, a Quaker who, in Mrs Centlivre's A Bold Stroke for a Wife, 1717, is, for part of the play, impersonated by another character; see esp. Act V, scene

1.—2. Its use as an adj. is mainly, as it certainly was orig. (Howells, 1879), American.—3. 'Simon Pures: Amateurs in the realm of sport' (Baker): Aus. sporting: since ca. 1920. Sarcastic—and perhaps ironic.

Simon soon gone. In Aweleby, Simon soone agon, 'He, that when his Mayster hath any thing to do, he will hide him out of the way': c. of ca. 1560–90.

simp. A simpleton: coll.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1910. In use at St Bees at least as early as 1915 (Marples).

simper like a furnity-kettle. To smile; look merry: coll.: C.18–early 19. In form frumety-kettle, however, it occurs in L'Estrange in 1668; and simper like a pot that's ready to run over is recorded by Apperson for 1631.

simpink. See simkin.

simple infanticide. Masturbation: pedantic coll. or s.: late C.19–20.

simple-lifer. One who leads 'the simple life': 1913: coll. >, by 1930, S.E. Collinson; OED Sup.

simple sailor, a. 'The Naval Officer's self-description' (Granville): c.p.: C.20. How 'simple' he is appears very clearly in the novels of William McFee, C.S. Forester (see esp. that magnificent book, The Ship), Humfrey Jordan, and others. Often 'I'm a simple sailor' serves a very useful purpose. P.B.: the army equivalent is, of course, simple soldier: from very early C.20, if not before.

simpler. A simple or foolish man much given to lust: c. of late C.16–early 17. Greene, 1592; Rowlands, 1602. (OED). I.e. simple+er.

simples, be cut for (in C.17–early 18 of the). To be cured of one's folly: mid-C.17–20: s. (not c.) until ca. 1820, then mainly, and in C.20 nothing but, dial. Apperson records it for 1650; B.E.; Swift; Grose, 1st ed. In C.18 often in semi-proverbial form, he must go to Battersea, to be cut for the simples, as in Grose, 1st ed., where also the corrupt var., . . . to have their simples cut, for at Battersea simples (medicinal herbs) were formerly grown in large quantities. Cognate is the C.18 semi-proverbial sick of the simples, foolish: coll.

simply. Used as an intensive, e.g. simply frightful; simply too awful for words, my dear!; etc., it is very much a coll.: upper and middle classes: since (?) 1920s. (P.B.)

simpson; occ. incorrectly, simson. Also with capital. Water used in diluting milk: dairymen's: 1871, Daily News, 17 Apr., 'He had, he stated on inquiry, a liquid called Simpson on his establishment.' Ex the surname Simpson, that of a dairyman who, in the late 1860s, was prosecuted for such adulteration.—2. Hence, inferior milk: 1871, Standard, 11 May, Police Report, 'If they annoyed him again he would christen them with Simpson, which he did by throwing a can of milk over the police.'—3. Almost co-extensive is the sense, 'that combined product of the cow natural and the "cow with the iron tail"' (Standard, 25 Dec. 1872). Cf. Mrs Simpson (H., 5th ed., 1874) and Simpson's cow (—1903), the (village) pump: mostly among dairymen. Cf. also chalkers and sky-blue, and next entry.—4. Hence, a milkman: mostly London: late C.19. Baumann.—5. See my name is Simpson . . .

simpson or S., v.; incorrectly simson. To dilute (milk) with water: 1872 (The Times, 24 Dec.). Ex n., 1, q.v. Also Simpsonise, gen. v.t.

Simpson-pump. A pump as a means of diluting milk: dairymen's: from ca. 1879. (Punch, 31 Jan. 1880.) Cf. prec.

Simpsonise. Gen. v.t., to dilute milk with water: dairymen's: 1871 (Echo, 13 Dec.: OED). Ex simpson, n., 1; cf. simpson, v.

Simpson's cow. See Simpson, 3.

Sims circus. 'The American flotilla of destroyers sent over first on America coming into the War': RN: 1917–18. (F. & G.) Admiral Sims commanded the USN during WW1.

sin. (E.g. 'It's a sin that or to . . .') A shame; a pity: C.14–20: S.E. until C.19, then coll. (OED). Cf.:—2. In like sin, very vigorously; furiously: late C.19–20. Here, sin = the devil.

sin-bin. Penalty box: ice-hockey players', commentators', journalists': since ca. 1946. The penalty against an offending player is a two-minute 'rest' there. Some 'crimes', however, attract a more than two minutes' penalty. 'Prob. Canadian, almost the homeland of ice-hockey' (Claiborne, 1976).—2. As in 'Sin-bins or opportunity centres? Caroline St-John Brooks assesses special units for the disruptive' (headline in New Society, 8 Jan. 1981); in the article, the writer has '[Children disruptive in school] are sent to special units—the "sin-bins" of the newspaper headlines.' Hence, anywhere where miscreants, or the merely mischievous, may be sent to 'cool off'.—3. See shaggin' waggon.

sin bosun, the. The ship's chaplain: RN: since ca. 1925. (Granville.) There are numerous bosun compounds—e.g. custard bosun.

sin-shifter. A Catholic priest: Aus.: since ca. 1930. (Jock Marshall & Russell Drysdale, Journey among Men, 1962). An allusion to Confession.

Sinbad. An old sailor: nautical: ca. 1860–1910. Ex the legendary figure.—2. It has, since the 1890s, been 'the Wardroom name for a Royal Naval Reserve Officer. Dates from the time when the first batch of R.N.R. officers joined the Royal Navy from the Mercantile Marine. These were known somewhat unkindly as "the Hungry Hundred". Later a small batch arrived who were called "the Famishing Fifty"' (Granville).

Sinbad the Sailor. A tailor: rhyming s.: late C.19–20.

since . . . Humorous phrases for 'a very long time; since long ago (or before)' are many: a few of the more coll. are recorded here. Gen. coll., late C.19–early 20, is since the battle of Crecy; Can., since early C.20: since Caesar was a pup (John Beames, 1932) and since Willie died, "'We haven't had so much fun since . . ."'—said in approbation of a good time' (Leechman); a Brit. equivalent, C.20, is since Nellie had her operation (L.A.), with which cf. the Aus. since Auntie had her accident (B.P.). Special to the RAF is the punning since Pontius was a pilot, as in 'He's been in that mob since . . .'—cf. the saying applied to an old airman 'He flew second dickey to Pontius Pilot [Pilate]': us. ref. long service: since mid-WW2, and also used in the FAA. Of the same semi-erudite order, and dating from ca. 1946, are: since the Air Ministry was a tent and, referring to Air Ministry Orders, since AMOs were carved on stone. A gen. var. on these is the (perhaps) later—E.P. dates it from 1920s—since Jesus Christ played half-back for Jerusalem, obviously ex 'soccer', and an older MN version, in Thomas Wood, True Thomas, 1936, p. 242, since Noah touched his pay. See also mashed the potatoes . . .

since when I have used no other. A c.p. applied to any (gen. domestic) article. Originating in a Punch cartoon, 1884, showing an unmistakably grubby 'bloke' writing a testimonial, 'Two years ago I used your soap, since when . . .', and popularised by the Pears Soap advertisement, on the same lines, by Phil May. Ob., but still heard occ., in later C.20.

sine. A House team, exclusive of Colours (sine coloribus): Eton: since ca. 1870. Marples.

sines. (Generic for) bread, whereas a sines is a small loaf: Winchester: from ca. 1870; † by 1915. Perhaps a pun on natural sine(s) and sign(s).

sing, v. 'To break from evasion, or from false cover, to tell the truth' (L.A.); hence, to inform to the police: c.: adopted, ex US underworld, ca. 1930; by 1940, police; by 1950, gen. Cf. sing like a canary, and the earlier synon. sing out, the prob. orig.—2. See don't sing it!

sing a bone is the Aus. Aboriginal practice of pointing the bone at someone under a curse: the former is s., the latter is S.E.: sing a bone, late C.19–20. (B., 1942.) For the practice, see Archer Russell, A Tramp Royal in Wild Australia, 1934.

sing like a bird called the swine. To sing execrably: coll.: ca. 1675–1750. Ray, 1678; Fuller, 1732. (Apperson.)

sing like a canary. An elab. of sing, 1: mostly police. (A. Hunter, Gently Coloured, 1969; Powis.) But he sings more like a whore's bird than a canary, meant, in late C.18–early 19, that the singer had a strong, manly voice. (Grose, 2nd ed.) A whore's bird = a debauchee.

sing o (or oh) be easy. 'To appear contented when one has to come to complain, and dare not' (Grose, 3rd ed.): coll.: ca. 1785–1830.

sing out. C. of ca. 1810–40. Scott, 1815, in a note to Guy Mannerling, ch. xxviii, says, 'To sing out or whistle in the cage, is when a rogue, being apprehended, peaches against his comrades.' (N.B., the phrase is not sing out in the cage.) Cf.:

sing out beef. To call 'Stop thief': c. of ca. 1810–40. (Lex. Bal.) More gen. ry beef or give or whiddle (hot) beef. Possibly a 'hyming synon.

sing placebo (or P.). See placebo.

sing-sing, or show your ring! 'Invitation to perform at an informal troop concert'; failure to sing, etc., brought the forfeit mentioned (ring = anus, hence backside); 'I remember hearing it in Cyprus, late 1950s' (P.B., 1975). But it goes back to before WWI, esp. among the Regular Army's Other Ranks.

sing small. To make less extravagant or conceited claims or statements: coll.: 1753, Richardson, 'I must myself sing small in her company'; Grose, 1st ed.; Clement Scott, 1885. Perhaps suggested by S.E. sing another, or a different, tune, to speak, act, very differently, though it may follow naturally ex C.17–early 18 sing small, to sing in a small voice: cf. Shakespeare's 'Speaks small like a woman.'

sing us a song! 'A call from the gallery when an artist is disapproved of' (Granville, who adds 'this exhortation is euphemistic for something grosser'): music-halls': late C.19–earlier 20.

Singapore tummy. Diarrhoea, with extreme queasiness, contracted in Singapore: at Singapore, among expatriates: C.20. (Petch, 1969.) Regional var. of Delhi belly, Malta dog, etc. singe. See shave, n., 7.

Singers. Singapore: orig. RN, hence other Services': since ca. 1930. (Granville, 1962.) By the 'OXFORD -ER(S)'. Cf. Honkers, Hong Kong.

singing face. A soldier who could lead the singing on the march: army in India: mid-C.19. 'We were off to measure our strength with the Afghans. All went swinging along as merry as wedding bells. We had a lively time of it; singing faces were in requisition' (Sgt-major T. Gowing, writing home from Nowshera, 24 Mar. 1864). Elsewhere in A Soldier's Experience, 1902 ed., Gowing has 'Men who have got "singing faces" are often in requisition'. (P.B.) single-peeper. A one-eyed person: ca. 1780–1850. (Grose, 1st ed.) On single-eyed.

single-pennif. A £5 note: back s., on finnup (see finnif): from ca. 1850. Also, in C.20 c., a £1 note.

single-ten or singleten. See senses 1, 2 of:

singleton. 'A very foolish, silly fellow' (B.E., where spelt single-ten): late C.17–early 19. (Grose, 1st ed.) Prob. ex + S.E. single, (of persons) simple, honest, on simpleton, but possibly ex single(-)ten, the 10 in a card-suit, thus: the '10' is below and next to the knave and—by the age-old juxtaposition of fools and knaves—is therefore a fool.—2. 'A nail of that size', says B.E. puzzlingly; Grose, who likewise has singleten, is no clearer with 'a particular kind of nails'. Late C.17–early 19. 'Could a singleton nail be one of a size that once sold at a penny each?' a correspondent asks. Rather, a nail one-inch long; if sixpenny nail, sevenpenny nail, nails 6 and 7 inches long. (Julian Franklyn.)—3. 'A cork screw, made by a famous cutler of that name [Singleton], who lived in a place called Hell, in Dublin; his screws are remarkable for their excellent temper' (Grose, 1st ed.): coll.: ca. 1780–1830.

singular or plural? A hospital c.p. inquiry when eggs appear on the diet-sheet: military: 1915–18. B. & P.

sinister, bar. Incorrect for bend sinister (occ. baton sinister). [Later:] The noted heraldist Julian Franklyn corrects me thus: 'Not incorrect for bend sinister or for baton (which is always sinister). Simply a crass vulgarity—a kitchen or scullery way of referring to a bastard.' He adds that 'there is no special mark for a bastard—various marks are used at various periods'.

Sinjin's (or -un's) Wood. St John's Wood: London satirical: 1882–ca. 1900. (Ware.) Ex the pron. of the English surname St John as Sinjun. Cf. the Grove of the Evangelist.

sink, n. A toper: coll.: mid-C.19–earlier 20. Cf. common sewer.—2. A heavy meal: Leys School: late C.19–20.—3. Hence, a glutton: id.—4. As the sink (or Sink), the Royal Marine office in a battleship: RN: late C.19–earlier 20. Bowen.—5. As the sink, the throat: mid-C.19–20.—6. In fall down the sink, to take to drink: late C.19–early 20. ? An extension of sense 1, or rhyming s. See also down the sink, wasted, squandered.

sink, v. To 'lower' or drink: from ca. 1926. Gavin Holt, Drums Beat at Night, 1932, 'Let's go out and sink a few beers. We can talk at the pub.'

sink (her). To intromit the penis: low (? orig. nautical): C.20. Cf. sink the soldier, and see she, 4.

sink-hole. The throat: low: ca. 1830–90. (Sinks, 1848.) Cf. sink, n., 5.

sink me! A coll. imprecation: 1772, Bridges, 'But sink me if I... understand'; very ob. Prob. orig., and mainly, nautical.

sink the boot in. To kick (someone) brutally: low Aus.: C.20. (B., 1953.) Cf. Brit. put the boot in.

sink the Dutch! Exclaim.: RN officers': early C.20. Musings, p. 13.

sink the shop. To refrain from talking shop: coll.: late C.19–20. Prob. on sink the ship. (This sense of shop is excellent S.E.; in many ways preferable to jargon, except where a technical term is indispensable.)

sink the soldier. (Of the male) to copulate: low: C.20. Cf. dip the wick, and bury old Fagin.

sinker. A counterfeit coin: c.:—1839 (Brandon). Gen. in pl., bad money, 'affording a man but little assistance in keeping afloat' (H., 3rd ed.).—2. A small, stogy cake (of the doughnut kind): late C.19–20. Gen. in pl. Cf. the RN C.20 s. meaning, 'a suet dumpling' (P-G-R). Prob. because, as Claiborne notes, 'both are heavy enough to sink in water'.—3. A shilling; tramps' c.:—1932 (F. Jennings).

sinks. The five: dicing coll.:—1860 (H., 2nd ed.). Ex Fr. cing.—2. For the Sinks, see Sacks and the Sinks.

sinner. A publican: coll.: ca. 1860–1930. Ex Luke 18.13.—2. Affectionately for a person (usu. male), as in 'You old sinner!' or 'The old sinner should arrive any moment'; coll.: late C.19–20. Cf. the affectionate use of scamp, scallywag, bastard, etc.

sip, n. A kiss: London's lower classes': ca. 1860–1905. (Ware.) Ex the bee sipping; cf. that popular early C.20 song in which the male warbles, 'You are the honeysuckle, I am the bee.'—2. See:- sip, v. To urinate: back s., on piss:—1903. Hence also do a sip.

siphoning. A beating with a length of rubber pipe: Eton College: mid-C.20. See quot'n at hosing.

sipper. Gravy: low: late C.19–20. ? ex dial. sipper-sauce (ex C.16–17 S.E. siiber-sauce), sauce, influenced by to sip. Cf. jiipper, q.v.—2. A tea-spoon: low: ca. 1810–90. Sinks, 1848.

sippers. 'A sip from the "tot" of each member of the mess, allowed to the Leading Hand who measures the rum' (Granville): RN: since ca. 1900. By the 'OXFORD/RN -ER(S)' on sip.—2. Peppitt defines the mid and later C.20 sense: 'A sip from a seaman's tot, levied by mess mates for minor services': RN. Cf. gulpers, q.v.

sir. One's teacher: Elementary schools': C.20. 'I'll tell sir.' Ex the sir of respectful address.

Sir Basil Spence, the. The Household Cavalry Barracks: Cockney soldiers': since ca. 1960. Ex the famous architect—?and rhyming on S.E. tents.

Sir Berkeley. Female genitals; hence, sexual intercourse (from the male angle): late C.19–20. James Curtis, They Drive by Night, 1938, 'The quick-lime was burning him up now. No more of the old Sir Berkeley for him.' Short for Sir Berkeley Hunt: mid-C.19–20 var. of Berkeley, q.v.

Sir Cloudeley. A choice drink of small beer and brandy, often with a sweetening and a spicing, and nearly always with lemon-juice: nautical: late C.17–mid-18. B.E. (at flip) spells it Clousley. Ex Clowdisley Shovell (1650–1707), knighted in 1689 for naval services, esp. against pirates.

Sir Garnet; often all Sir Garnet. All right: whether as predicate or as answer to a question: from ca. 1885. 'Pomes' Marshall, 'And the start was all Sir Garnet, /Jenny went for Emma's Barnet.' In C.20 often corrupted to (all) sirgarneo. Both forms were slightly ob. by 1915, very ob. by 1935. A Cockney var., in e.g. E. Pugh, Harry the Cockney, was Sir Garry. Ex Sir Garnet (later Viscount) Wolseley's military fame. (Wolseley, 1833–1913, served actively and brilliantly from 1852 to 1885.)

Sir Harry. A privy; a close-stool. (C.20, in going to, or visit, Sir Harry: C.19–20: coll. and (in C.20, nothing but) dial.; app. orig. dial. (H., 2nd ed.) Cf. Mrs Jones. Cf. Sir John, 2. —2. Whence, constipation: lower classes:—1923 (Manchon); ob. by 1930.

Sir Jack Sauce. See Jack Sauce.

Sir John. A close-stool: coll. (C.19) and dial. (C.19–early 20). Cf. Sir Harry, 1.—2. Penis: joc. coll.: C.19–20. Cf. John Thomas, and see quot'n at servants' entrance.—3. See John, 3, and—

Sir John and Baby John. 'A pun. Senior surgeon/doctor of a two-man medical team. "Doctor at Sea", ITV show, 21 Apr. 1974' (Peppitt)—from the book by Richard Gordon, pub'd. 1953.

Sir Oliver. An ephemeral fast-life var. of Oliver, 1, the moon: P. Egan, Finish to Tom, Jerry, and Logic, 1828.

Sir Posthumous ('s) Hobby. A man fastidious or whimsical in his clothes: coll.: ca. 1690–1830. (B.E.; Grose, 2nd ed.) Punning hobby, an avocation.

sir reverence. See reverence.

Sir Roger. See fat as Sir...

Sir Roger Dowler. Suraj-ud-Dowlah, who (d. 1757) permitted 'the Black Hole of Calcutta': military: C.18. B. & L. (at Upper Roger). By Hobson-Jobson.

Sir Sauce. See Jack Sauce.

Sir-spelt C-U-R! C.p. provoked in offices', etc., by someone remarking, e.g., 'I must write a letter. "Dear Sir...";' or with ref. to an unpopular senior: perhaps orig. Services': since mid-C.20, at latest. (P.B.)

Sir Sydney. A clasp-knife: c. of ca. 1810–50. Vaux. Why?: unless Sydney, Aus., already had a notorious underworld.

Sir Thomas Gresham, sup with. To go hungry: C.17 coll. Hayman, 1628, 'For often with duke Humphrey [q.v.] thou dost dine, /And often with sir Thomas Gresham sup.' Sir Thomas Gresham, 1519–79, founded the Royal Exchange and was a noted philanthropist.

Sir Timothy. 'One that Treats every Body, and pays the Reckonings every where' (B.E.): coll.: late C.17–early 19. Prob. ex a noted 'treater'.

'sir' to you! A c.p. of mock dignity: C.20. P.G. Wodehouse, The Pothunters, 1902; H.A. Vachell, Vicar's Walk, 1933.

Sir Tristram's knot. A hangman's noose: coll.: mid-C.16–early 17. (Wm. Bullein.) Prob. ex some famous judge or magistrate.

Sir Walter Scott. A pot (of beer): rhyming s.:—1857; ob. 'Ducange Anglicus'.

sirtech. See sirtech.

sirgarneo; all sirgarneo. See Sir Garnet; cf. sigarneo.

sirrah may orig. (C.16) have been coll.

sirtech. A cherry; more properly, cherries: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed., where spelt sirtech and defined as cherries). The 'logical' seirrehc is impossible, the former e is omitted, hc reversed, and t interpolated to make the ch sound unequivocal.

sirreverence; frequently sir-reverence. Human excrement; a lump thereof: late C.16–20; S.E. until ca. 1820, then mainly (in C.20, nothing but) dial. In late C.18–mid-19, a vulgarism. (Grose.) Ex save (via sa) reverence, as an apology.

sis; often sis. Sister: coll.: gen., term of address: orig.

(—1859), US; anglicised before 1887 (Baumann). (The OED dismisses it as 'U.S.?'—2. (Also sis or siss). An Aus. shortening of next: since ca. 1935. Dymphna Cusack, 1953. sissie, sissy; occ. Cissy, cissy. An effeminate boy or man; hence a passive homosexual: late C.19–20; ob. in latter sense (cf. pansy, q.v.). Ware declares it to have originated in 1890 as a Society term for an effeminate man in Society; the OED Sup. that it was orig. US s.—but is this so? Ex sissy, sister, as form of address orig. (—1859) US but anglicised before 1887: coll.: cf. sis. sissified. Effeminate: coll.: since ca. 1925. Ex prec.

sister. A term of address to any woman: (low) coll.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1925, at first chiefly among journalists; ob. by 1980.—2. As Sister [in charge of the] Children's [ward, etc.], Sister Theatre, etc.: medical coll.: C.20. See Slang, p. 193.

sister of the Charterhouse. A great talker, esp. in reply to a husband: C.16 coll. Tyndale, referring to the monks, says in 1528, 'Their silence shall be a satisfaction for her.' The foundation (1384) of this benevolent institution allows for women as well as men—Brothers and Sisters of Charterhouse.

sister Susie. 'A woman doing army work of any sort. Primarily a Red Cross worker': military: 1915–18. F. & G., 'From a war-time popular song, "Sister Susie's Sewing Shirts for Soldiers".' Hence:—

sister Susie bags. "Dorothy bags"—more commonly known among the men [soldiers in hospital] as "Sister Susie bags" (Olive Dent, A V.A.D. in France, 1917). Cf. prec.

sit, n. An engagement (for, in, work): printers': 1888 (Jacobi: OED). Abbr. situation. But that it has always been also gen. is shown by Baumann (1887). P.B.: cf. the 'situations vacant' advertisements in newspapers, known coll. as sits vac. —2. Esp. have a sit with (a girl, a boy): Aus., mostly teenagers': since ca. 1920. Norman Lindsay, Saturdee, 1933.—3. In (be) at the sit, 'To travel by buses and trams for the purpose of picking pockets' (G.R. Sims in The Referee, 17 Feb. 1907: OED): c.

sit, v. To hang (on a branch); lie, rest (on the ground): S. African coll.: C.20. Ex Cape Dutch zetten, to lie, to rest. Pettman.—2. To sit for, to take (an examination): middle-class coll.: C.20. (Angus Wilson, A Bit off the Map, 1957.) P.B.: in later C.20, informal S.E.

sit a buckjumper. To ride a buckjumping horse: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1880. B., 1942.

sit-down, n. A sit-down meal: Can. (ex US) hoboese' coll.: late C.19–20. Fredk Niven, Wild Honey, 1927.

sit down, v. To land: airmen's coll.: from ca. 1925; † by 1950. OED Sup.—2. To settle (at or in a place); to take up land: Aus.: C.20. Baker.

sit-down-upons. Trousers: 1840 (J.T. Hewlett: OED); ob. by 1930. Cf. sit-upons.

sit down - you're rocking the boat! See rock the boat.

sit for (one's) portrait. To be inspected 'by the different turnkeys... that they might know prisoners from visitors' (Dickens in Pickwick): prison: ca. 1835–80.

sit her down. See sit down, v., 1.

sit-in-'ems. Trousers: joc.:—1887 (Baumann). Cf. sit-down-upons.

sit in tight boots. To be ill at ease with one's host: semi-proverbial coll.:—1855 (H.G. Bohn, Handbook of Proverbs: Apperson).

sit like a toad on a chopping-block. To sit badly on a horse: coll.:—1785 (Grose, 1st ed.); † by 1920. A picturesque simile as applied to a side-saddle. In Lincolnshire dial., ... on a shovel (EDD).

sit longer than a hen. See sitting breeches.

sit-me-down. One's posterior: semi-nursery, semi-joc.: late C.19–20. Cf.:

sit-me-down-upon. A C.20 joc. var. of prec. Dorothy L. Sayers, Clouds of Witness, 1926, 'He's left the impression of his sit-me-down-upon on the cushion.'

sit on or (rare in C.20) upon. To check; snub or rebuke: 1864

(H., 3rd ed., sit upon). Often as sat upon, squashed, 'pulled up'.

sit on a bag of fleas. To sit uncomfortably; be uncomfortable: coll.: from ca. 1830. If of hen fleas, then in extreme discomfort.

sit on a draft-chit, esp. be sitting ..., about to be transferred to another ship: RN lowerdeck: since ca. 1920. (P-G-R.) Granville points out that its full force is 'unable to leave until one's relief arrives.'

sit on (in C.19 upon) the fence. (Rarely ride, occ. be.) To be neutral, waiting to see who wins: orig. political s., ex US (—1830), anglicised ca. 1870; in C.20, coll.

sit on the splice. See splice, n., 3.

sit pretty. To (be very comfortable and) look pretty: coll.: C.20. Orig. US. Ex fowls, esp. chickens, sitting prettily on the nest.—2. Esp. (be) sitting pretty, (to be) in a very advantageous position: coll.: since ca. 1920. I.e., as Claiborne suggests, to be 'handsomely situated'.

sit still. (Of the Aborigines) to be peaceful: S. African coll.: 1852 (Godlonton, The Kaffir War, 1850–51: Pettman).

sit tight. To sit close, stay under cover; not to budge: coll.: from mid-1890s.—2. Cf. the C.18 sense: to apply oneself closely to: 1738 (OED).

sit up, make (one). 'To make one bestir oneself, to set one thinking, to surprise or astonish one.' (Pettman, who wrongly regards it as esp. S. African): coll.:—1887 (Baumann).

sit up and beg. 'He can make it sit up and beg' indicates that a man has become extremely proficient in working some material, e.g. a metal: c.p.: since ca. 1930. Ex teaching a dog to do so.—2. But 'it sits up and begs' (or 'it is sitting up and begging') is at least a generation older—and it refers to an erectio penis: low: late C.19–20.—3. Applied to the position adopted by a rider on early veteran motorcycle: motorcyclists': C.20. (Mike Partridge, 1979.)—4. Phrase used to describe elderly cars or old-fashioned bicycles: coll.: since ca. 1950. Perhaps ex 3, and ultimately ex, like 1, a dog taught to do so: the upright appearance. (P.B.) sit up and take notice. To take (a sudden) interest: coll.: adopted, ex US, by 1900. (OED Sup.) Cf.:-

sit up and take nourishment. To become alert or healthy after apathy or illness: from ca. 1890: coll. till ca. 1920, then joc. S.E. Ex the sick-room + S.E. take notice, (esp. of babies) 'to show signs of intelligent observation' (Dickens, 1846: OED).

sit up like Jacky. See Jacky, 6.

sit-upon, n. One's posterior: euph.: since late-C.19. Cf. sit-me-down.—2. As v.: see sit on.

sit-upons. Trousers; a shortening of sit-down-upons. J.T. Hewlett, 1841.

sit with Nellie. To learn a new job, trade, occupation, etc., by sharing work, under instruction, of someone already adept at it: coll.: C.20. Usu. as vbl n., sitting ... (P.B.) See DCpp at sitting.

sith-nom, sithnom. A month: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). P.B.: but this month seems to be indicated by the intrusive si.

sitter. A sitting-room: Harrow (from ca. 1890) >, by 1902, Oxford University undergraduates'. (Charles Turley, Godfrey Marten, Undergraduate, 1904.) The term has > gen. in bed-sitter. Cf. brekker, rugger, soccer.—2. In cricket a very easy catch: 1898, Tit-Bits, 25 June. 'Among recent neologisms of the cricket field is "sitter".' So easy that it could be caught by a fieldsmen sitting.' W.J. Lewis, The Language of Cricket, 1934.—3. An easy mark or task (1908). Ex shooting a sitting bird. (SOD.) Senses 2 and 3 > coll. ca. 1930.—4. (Cf. senses 2, 3.) A certainty: C.20. Hence for a sitter, certainly, assuredly: Arnold Lunn, The Harrovians, 1913.—5. Hence, an easy target: artillerymen's coll.: since ca. 1910. P-G-R.—6. A regular drinker of alcoholic liquor: Aus., esp. Sydneysites': since ca. 1940. (Gwen Robyns, Evening News, 16 Feb. 1949.) He sits and sits—and drinks and drinks.—7. 'An enemy submarine on the surface' (Granville): RN: WW2. Cf. sense 5.

sitting-breeches. In have (one's) s.-b. on, or in C.19 occ. wear (one's) s.-b., to stay long in company: coll.: ca. 1780–1910.

(Grose, 1st ed.) From ca. 1880, sit longer than a hen. Cf. the Yorkshire sit eggs, to outstay one's welcome (EDD).

sitting drums. One's working-trousers: tailors': C.20.

sitting in the garden with the gate unlocked. See garden, 4.

sitting on a goldmine, (usu. she's). Low male c.p. applied punningly and admiringly to a demure and innocent girl apparently unaware of her sexual attractiveness: since mid-C.20. (P.B.) App. ex US prostitutes' phrase of 1940s (B. Rodgers, The Queens' Vernacular, 1972).

sitting on their hands. (Of an audience) that refuses to clap: theatrical: from ca. 1930.

sitting pad. Begging from a sitting position on the pavement: c.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Cf. pad, n., 10, q.v.

sitting pretty. See sit pretty.

sitting-room. The posteriors: late C.19–early 20: joc. (Cf. sit-me-down, q.v.) Prob. ex the smoke-room story of 'only a pair of blinds for her sitting-room' in connexion with a pair of drawers. Cf. the mid-C.16–early 18 sitting-place, the posterior, the rump.

situation. A 1st, 2nd, or 3rd place: 1871 (OED): racing coll. >, ca. 1905, S.E. 'Thormanby', Men of the Turf, ca. 1887, 'The three worst horses, probably, that ever monopolised the Derby "situations".'

Sitz, the. The 'phoney war' of late 1939–early 1940: coined, 1940, in retrospect and as a pun on the German 'blitz' invasion of N.W. and N. Europe; by 1946, ob. 'Gunbuster', Battledress, 1941; P-G-R, 1948. P.B.: also sitzkrieg, on Blitzkrieg.

siv(v)ey or sivvy, (u)pon my. On my word of honour! low: mid-C.19–early 20 (H., 1st ed.); J. Greenwood, 1883.) Not asseveration, but prob. davy, corrupted, or, as Baumann implies, soul.

siwash, n. A mean and/or miserable seaman: Nova Scotian (and US) nautical: from ca. 1840. Bowen, 'The Siwash is described as the meanest type of Indian.' Leechman adds that it is 'a corruption of the Fr. sauvage, wild, savage. Common on the Pacific Coast of North America. I've heard it since 1910' (Leechman).

siwash, v. To put on the 'Indian list' of those to whom intoxicants may not be served: Can.: C.20; by 1959, ob. (Leechman.) 'The Siwash list is by no means obsolete, but only a few old-timers so refer to it. The expression would be understood by most people, however' (Leechman, 1967).

siwash gunner. 'Acting gunnery officer. What a siwash duck is to a real duck. (An Alaskan dog that resembles an Eskimo dog)' (Granville): RN: C.20.

six. A privy: Oxford University: ca. 1870–1915? origin.—2. See gone for six; hit for six; throw a seven.

six-and-eight. Honest: rhyming s., on straight: since ca. 1930. John Gosling, 1959.—2. A 'state', as in 'Wasn't home till sparrow-fart and my old tiger (wife) was in a right six-and-eight' (Red Daniells, 1980): rhyming s.: later C.20. The combination of figures is prob. ex next, 2. (P.B.)

six-and-eightpence. 'The usual Fee given, to carry back the Body of the Executed Malefactor, to give it Christian Burial,' B.E., who classes it as c.: more prob. coll.: late C.17–mid-18.—2. A solicitor or attorney: coll.: 1756 (Foote); Baumann. † by 1910. Because 6 shillings and 8 pence ($\frac{2}{3}$ of £1) was a usual fee. Cf. green bag.

six-and-tips. Whiskey and small beer: Anglo-Irish coll.: ca. 1780–1850. (Grose, 1st ed.) An elab. of † six, six-shilling beer.

Six-and-Twos, the. The 62nd Regiment of Foot, Later the Wiltshire Regt: army: C.19–early 20. (F. & G.) Ex the figures of the number. Also known as the Splashers and the Springers.

six-by-four. Toilet paper, 'bumf': army officers': WW1 + . B. & P., 'The dimensions in inches of the Army Article'. P.B.: prob. influenced also by the ever-present 'four-by-two', the size of the piece of flanellette used for pulling through a rifle barrel.

six-cylinder hat. A large, non-regulation cap affected by many despatch-carrying cyclists: army: WW1. F. & G.

six doss in the steel. Six months' imprisonment: Aus. c.: C.20. (B., 1942.) See the elements doss and steel.

six feet and itches. Over 6 feet: lower classes':—1909 (Ware). Ex inches written as ichs.

six foot. '6 ft 5½ in. space between tracks' (Railway, 2nd): railwaymen's coll.: C.20.

six foot of land—that's all the land you'll get! A c.p. addressed to one who expresses a desire to 'own a bit of ground (land)': C.20. See landowner.

six knots and a Chinaman. Unknown speed: RN: late C.19–20. Of anecdotal orig. (Peppitt.)

Six Mile Bridge assassin. (Gen. pl.) A soldier: Tipperary: late C.19–early 20. Ware, 'Once upon a time certain rioters were shot at this spot, not far from Mallow.'

six-monther. A third-term cadet in the old training-ship Britannia: RN coll.: late C.19–early 20. Bowen.

six months hard. A card: rhyming s.: C.20. Esp. in WW1 for a ticket in the game of House (tombola). Franklyn, Rhyming. Ex coll. six months' hard (labour).

six-monthser. A very severe stipendiary magistrate: police coll.:—1909 (Ware). I.e. one 'who always gives, where he can, the full term (six months) allowed him by law.'

six o'clock. One's rear quarter, as in "Watch your 6 o'clock", cover your rear/look behind you' (B.P.): Aus.: army and RAF (Phantom) coll. verging on j.: later C.20. Ex method of giving direction by the clock-face, e.g., 'At 3 o'clock from the bushy-topped tree'. Cf. deep six. (P.B.)

six o'clock swill. The rushed drinking before 6 p.m. in hotel bars. Mainly Victorian, since ten o'clock closing was introduced into N.S.W. some years back' (B.P.): Aus.: since ca. 1930. Also NZ, as in 'New Zealanders... vote to-day on whether to end their "six o'clock swill"' (Daily Mail, 23 Sep. 1967).

six-o-six; gen. written '606'. Salvarsan, a remedy for syphilis: medical, hence military coll.: from ca. 1910. B. & P.

six of everything, with. Respectably married: work-people's coll.:—1909 (Ware). Applied only to the girl: her trousseau contains six of everything.

six-on-four, go. To be put on short rations': RN: late C.19–20. Thus, a six-on-four is a supernumerary borne on a warship: Bowen, 'Supposed to have two-thirds rations.' See six upon four.

six penn'orth. See high as six...

six pips and all's well! Six o'clock and all's well!: c.p.: from 1933. Ref. both to the radio time-signal and to the nautical six bells and all's well.

six pots. In it is (was, etc.) six pots up (e.g. his sleeve, he (etc.) is (was, etc.) drunk: mid-C.19–early 20. Ware.

six-pounder. 'A servant maid, from the wages formerly given to maid servants, which was commonly six pounds [per annum, plus keep]' (Grose, 1st ed.): coll.: ca. 1780–1850.

six quarter, get. To be dismissed from employment: commercial: ca. 1860–1910. (B. & L.) Origin?

six-quarter man; three-quarter man. A superior—an inferior—employee: cloth-drapers'—1909. Ware, 'There are two widths of cloth—six quarter and three quarter.'

six (-) to (-) four. A whore: rhyming s.: C. 20. (James Curtis, What Immortal Hand, 1939.) Ex racing odds.

six upon four. Short rations: nautical coll.: earlier C.19. L.L.G., 20 Dec. 1823 (Moe). Because the rations of four had to suffice for six. See also six-on-four, go.

six-water grog. Grog in which water: grog: 1:6. Nautical coll.:—1826 (W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, II: Moe). In mid-C.19–20, often six-water.

six-wheeler (usu. in pl.) A draught horse: cavalrymen's: late C.19–20; by 1945, ob. Anthony Armstrong, Captain Bayonet, 1937.

sixer. Six months' hard labour: c. or low s.: 1869, 'Pomes' Marshall, 'I see what the upshot will be, / Dear me! / A sixer with H.A.R.D.'—2. A sixth imprisonment: 1872 (OED): low s. rather than c.—3. The six-ounce loaf served with dinner: prison c.:—1877.—4. Anything counting as six: orig. (1870) and mainly in cricket: coll. H.A. Vachell, The Hill, 1905, 'Never before in an Eton and Harrow match have two

"sixer" been hit in succession' (OED). (This is that novel which did for Harrow what E.F. Benson's David Blaize did in 1916 for Winchester, which the author 'disguises' as Marchester.)—5. 'A naval cadet at the beginning of his second year': RN: C.20. (Bowen.)? because he has six terms ahead of him. P.B.: cf. six monther, q.v.—6. A Christian girl: East End of London: late C.19–20. Ex Yiddish Shicksa (same sense).

—7. A scout with six younger boys in his charge: Boy Scouts' coll.: since ca. 1910. P.B.: soon > j.—8. 'Six of the best'—six strokes of the cane: Public Schools': C.20.—9. In chuck, or throw, a sixer, to be startled or completely nonplussed: Aus.: since ca. 1910. (Dal Stevens, Jimmy Brockett, 1951.) Ex cricket—or dice; cf. throw a seven.

sixes. Small hook-curls worn by men; composed of forehead hair, they are plastered to the forehead: military: ca. 1879–90. (Ware.) Ex shape. If Manchon has not erred, the term app. > number sixes and an underworld term, still extant though ob.

sixpence to scratch (one's) arse with, not (a or to have), Penniless: low coll.: the full version from mid-C.19; the shorter, bowdlerised, earlier C.20 (Lyell); already ob. by ca. 1940; † with decentralisation of currency, 1971. Cf. (e.g. he) hasn't got a ha'penny to jingle on a tombstone.

sixpences. See spit sixpences.

sixpenny. A playing-field: 1864 (Eton School Days): Eton College; ob. by 1930. It takes its name from the junior cricket club founded in 1830 and known as the Sixpenny Club, the subscription being sixpence; the name applied only in the summer.—2. The chocolate-coloured, white-ringed cap awarded as a 'colour' for junior cricket at Eton: mid C.19–20.

sixpenny, adj. Inferior, cheap; worthless: coll.: ca. 1590–1630. Esp. sixpenny striker, a petty footpad (as in Shakespeare's 1 Henry IV).

Sixpenny Sick. The Portsmouth—Gosport ferry: Portsmouth area: 1930s. (Peppitt.) Cf. skilling emetic.

sixpennyworth; ninepennyworth. A prison sentence or term of six, of nine, months: London's East end: since ca. 1945. Richard Herd, article in Evening News, 12 Nov. 1957.

sixteen annas, at full speed; esp. go sixteen annas, to go flat out, as in steeplechasing: Anglo-Indian: C.20.

sixteen annas to the rupee or ounces to the pound, not. See not sixteen annas...

sixth-forming. A caning by the prefects assembled in the sixth-form room: Public Schools' coll.: late C.19–20. Desmond Coke, The School across the Road, 1910.

sixty. A British 60-pounder gun: army coll.: from ca. 1910. B. & P.—2. Sixty was the 'inevitable' nickname, in the Army (esp. on Egyptian service), for men surnamed Hill: from ca. 1919. Ex Hill Sixty, a famous locality on the Western Front in WW1; cf. Jebbel, q.v.—3. In like sixty, very vigorously or rapidly: orig. (1848) US, anglicised ca. 1860. (H., 2nd ed.; OED.)? abbr. like sixty to the minute or like sixty miles an hour. Cf. forty, q.v.

sixty-four dollar (later, sixty-four thousand dollar) question, the. The crucial question; the most difficult one, a real puzzler: coll., adopted ex US mid-C.20. $64 was orig. the top prize in a US 'double or quits' radio quiz show. Alan Hunter, Gently by the Shore, 1956, 'You've just answered the sixty-four dollar question, whether you know it or not...' See esp. DCpp. at that's the sixty...

sixty-four - ninety-four. WW1 army c.p. It's the number the cooks sing out, when we hold the last Sick Parade, before going up the line' (R.H. Mottram, The Spanish Farm Trilogy, 1927).

sixty-miler. A collier transporting coal from Newcastle to Sydney: Aus., esp. NSW, coll.: C.20. B., 1959.

sixty nine! The shearers' code-warning that ladies or visitors are approaching and bad language is "out of order" (Straight Furrow, 21 Feb. 1968): NZ: C.20.

sixty-niner; occ. variants, flying sixty-nine and swaffonder or swassander. The sexual practice known in France—and in Britain and the Dominions—as soixante-neuf, 69: RN ratings': since ca. 1940. See soixante-neuf.

sixty per cent. A usurer: coll.: 1853 (Reade); ob. by 1935. Cf. Fletcher, 1616, 'There are few gallants ... that would receive such favours from the devil, though he appeared like a broker, and demanded sixty y' th' hundred.'

sixty-pounder. A suet-dumpling; military: 1915–18. Sidney Rogers, Twelve Days, 1933.

size, n. Jelly (to eat): London street s.: ca. 1840–90. Augustus Mayhew, Paved With Gold, 1857.—2. In the size of (a thing), what it amounts to: coll.: since ca. 1885. (OED Sup.) Ex dial. (EDD). See that's about the size of it!

size, v.; gen. size up. To gauge, estimate; to regard carefully (in order to form an opinion of): coll.: orig. (1847), US; anglicised ca. 1890. Marriott-Watson, 1891, size († by 1930); Newnham Davis, 1896 (OED), size up. Cf. the rare S.E. size down, v.t., to comprehend.

sizes. Short rations: RN: C.20. (Bowen.) Ex six-on-four, q.v. sizzler. An exceedingly fast ball, racehorse, etc.: coll.: late C.19–20. Cf. the familiar S.E. sense, a broiling hot day.—2. 'A restaurant steak served on a metal plate ... so hot that the meat sizzles vigorously when it reaches the table' (Leechman): coll., mostly Can. since ca. 1945.

skads. Var. spelling of scads: L.A. cites Edward Thomson, Lament for Adonis, 1932.

skag. See scag.

skalbunker. See scowbunker.

skallewag. See scalawag.

skate, n. A troublesome rating: RN: since ca. 1920, perhaps adopted ex US, where, since ca. 1890, it has been short for cheap skate (W. & F.): 'A leave-breaker and "bad hat", generally. A skater on the thin ice of Naval law and discretion' (Granville). Cf. bird in this sense, and skates-lurk. L.A., 1969, adds 'But skates are out for themselves and pull a fast one against their mates, so that I have only heard "skate" from ex R.N. men with intensive "absolute skate".' However, Mr P. Daniel, in a transcription of a lively lowerdeck conversation, starts with 'Hello you skates—dripping and loafing as usual?', in which it is clearly joc.—2. See sense 2 of:

skate, v. To 'act Jack-my-hearty; to go in search of wine, women and song' (Granville): RN: since ca. 1925.—2. (Also skate off or do a skate.) To depart hurriedly: Aus. low: since ca. 1925. B., 1942.

skate-bashing. 'Groups of civilian youths who beat up sailors call it skate-bashing, because sailors are like skate: ("two-faced and no guts")' (New Society, 3 June 1982, p. 381). But cf. skate, n., 1, and kipper, 2.

skate-lurker. See skates lurk. Prob. the 'dodge' is skates lurk, the impostor skatelurker.

skater. An NCO's, esp. a lance-corporal's chevron: army: late C.19—earlier 20. (F. & G.) Perhaps because its wearer 'skates on thin ice' between private and full corporal.

skates. 'Wire shoes issued to the Infantry in Sinai and speedily condemned as worse than useless'. (The Soldiers' War Slang Dict., 1939): army: 1917–18.—2. In put or get (one's) skates on, to hurry; evade duty; desert: army, perhaps pre-WWI; >, by 1919 and in at least the 1st sense, gen. F. & G.

skates(-)lurk. 'A begging impostor dressed as a sailor' (H., 1st ed.): c.; † by 1903. Perhaps = skate's lurk, a fish's—hence a 'fishy'—trick! (Bowen has skate-lurker). P.B.: just poss. the orig. of skate, n.

skating, adj. Drug-exhilarated: raffish: since ca. 1955. 'She had nearly half a bottle—and, boy, was she skating?' 'Hardly a question, but rather an exclamation of delighted astonishment, therefore "... was she skating!'" (Leechman.)

skating rink. A bald head: joc.: since ca. 1910. (Wm Riley, Old Obbut, 1933.) Short for flies' skating-rink (C. 20). Granville notes it as RN lowerdeck, with var. eggo: cf. egg, n., 5, the head.

skeary, skeery. Terrifying; (mostly US) timorous: low coll.: C.19–20. (Blackmore.) P.B.: prob. dial. form of scary.

sked. A scheduled time to transmit/receive: radio operators' coll., soon > j.: since (?) ca. 1930.

skedaddle. A hasty flight; a scurry: coll.: with article, 1870, Mortimer Collins; without, 1871, Daily News, 27 Jan. (OED) Ex:

skedaddle; occ. (though not in C.20) skeedaddle, v.i. (Of soldiers) to flee: orig. (1861), US, anglicised ca. 1864. H., 3rd ed., 'The American War has introduced a new and amusing word.' Prob. of fanciful origin, though H.'s 'The word is very fair Greek, the root being that of "skedannumi", to disperse, to "retire tumultuously", and it was probably set afloat by some professor at Harvard' is not to be dismissed with contempt.—2. Hence, in gen. use, to run away, decamp, hastily depart: coll.: 1862; Trollope, 1867, OED.—3. Also ex sense 1, (of animals) to stampede or flee: 1879 (F. Pollock: OED). skedaddler; skedaddling. One who 'skedaddles' (1864, OED); the act (—1898).

skeery. See skeary.

skeeter. A mosquito: coll.: orig. (1852), US; then, ca. 1870, Aus.; then ca. 1880, Eng.,—but it is still comparatively rare in Brit. P.B.: servicemen in mosquito-plagued stations overseas have, since ca. 1950 at latest, preferred stynon. mozzie.

Skeffington's daughter. See scavenger's daughter.

skeg, n. and v. ('Take a look' (Hawke), as in 'Keep a skeg on the street', keep watching: RM: later C.20. Ex E. England dial. (EDD).

Skeggy. The East coast seaside resort Skegness: Midlands', from which so many of its summer visitors come: C.20. (P.B.) skein. A glass of beer: army: early C.20. (F. & G.) 'Could this be a perversion of Ger. Stein, an earthenware beer-pot, in use in US from 1901?' (R.S.).

skein of thread. Bed: from ca. 1870. P.P., Rhyming Slang, 1932.

skelder, v.i. To beg, esp. as a wounded or demobilised soldier: c.: late C.16—mid-17, later use (esp. in Scott) being archaic. Ben Jonson.—2. V.t., to cheat, defraud (a person); obtain (money) by begging: c.: late C.16—mid-17. (Ben Jonson.) Perhaps Dutch bedelen perverted.

skeldering, vbl n. and ppl adj. of skelder: late C.16—mid-17 c. Ben Jonson, who, I surmise, introduced it from Holland; cf. skellum.

skeleton. 'A typical sentence, not to exceed sixty words; no word therein to be of more than two syllables,' as an old journalist defines it: journalists' coll.: C.20.

skeleton army. Street-fighting or -brawling: London: late 1882–3. Ex the Skeleton Army 'formed to oppose the extreme vigour of the early Salvation Army' (Ware).

skeletons fucking on a tin roof. The epitome of rattling noise, as in a noise like two (or a pair) of skeletons ... , or it rattles like ... : adopted, ca. 1940, ex N. America. There is the additional pun on rattle, to copulate.

skel(l)ington. A sol. (and a dial.) form of skeleton: C.19–20. (EDD.) In C.20 occ. used for humorous effect.

skel(l)um, scellum. A rascal, villain: perhaps orig. coll., but certainly very soon S.E. (Coryat, D'Urfev.) Ex Dutch or Ger. schelum.

skelter. A quick run, a rush, a scamper: dial. (—1900) >, by 1920, coll. (OED Sup.) Ex helter-skelter.

skerfer. A punch on the neck: boxing: ca. 1880–1930. Ex scruff.

skerrick. A small fragment; particle; scrap: C.20. (I.L. Idriess, 1931; M.T.) Ex N. Country dial. (EDD). Hence the mainly Aus. not a skerrick, intensifying 'nothing', as 'Did you find anything?' or 'Did they leave you anything?' Cf. scuddick.

skers (pron. scurze). A naval rating wearing a full set (moustache and beard); often in address: RN: since ca. 1925. Abbr. whiskers: contrast skin. (Granville; P.B.)

sket. A skeleton key: c.: from ca. 1870. By telescoping skeleton.

sketch, n. A person whose appearance offers a very odd sight (cf. sight, 3, q.v.): coll.: from ca. 1905. E.g. 'Lor', what a sketch she was!—2. A small amount; a drop (of liquor): late C.19. (OED.) Cf. sketchy.

sketch, v. To deal with (someone) in a disciplinary way: army: WW2.

sketchy. Unsubstantial (meal); flimsy (building, furniture); imperfect: coll.: 1878 (OED).

sketting. full-dressing: RN officers':—1909 (Ware). Perhaps a pun on scuttling.

Skewington's daughter. See scavenger's daughter.

skew; occ. scew. A cup or wooden dish: c. of ca. 1560–1830. (Awdelay, Brome, B.E., Grose.) Ex Low L. scutella, a platter, a dish: cf. the Welsh gipsy skudela in the same sense (Sampson).—2. At Harrow School, from ca. 1865, a hard passage for translation or exposition; also, an entrance examination at the end of term (that at the beginning of term is a dab). (F. & H.; OED.) Ex skew, v., q.v.—3. In back s., weeks:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). See kew.

skew, v.t. To fail in an examination: gen. as be skewed: 1859, Farrar in Eric, or Little by Little; 1905, Vachell. OED.—2. Also v.t., to do (very) badly, fail in (a lesson): likewise Harrow (—1899). Occ. v.i.: late C.19–20 (Lunn, The Harrovians, 1913). Perhaps ex skew at, look at obliquely, esp. in a suspicious way.—3. App. only be skewed, to be caught or punished: schools':—1923 (Manchon). Ex sense 1.

skew-fisted. Ungainly, awkward: coll.: late C.17–18. B.E. skew-gee. Crooked; squinting: low coll.: late C.19–20. Ex on a, or the, skew, slantwise (1881). Cf. skewvow.—2. Hence, a squirt: low coll.: C.20.

skew-the-dew. A splay-footed person: low late C.19–20; ob. Cf. skewvow.

skew-whiff, adj. and adv. Crooked(ly); askew: dial. and coll.: 1754 (SOD).—2. Hence, tipsy: C.20. See fog-bound.

skewed. See skew, v., 1 and 3.

skewer. A pen: ca. 1880–1930. Ex shape.—2. An Aboriginal throwing-spear: Aus.: since ca. 1860. Archer Russell, In Wild Australia, 1934.—3. A sword: ca. 1840–1900. Sinks, 1848.

skewgy-newgy. A composition of caustic used to keep decks clean: yachtsmen's: 1886 (St James's Gazette, 7 Apr., 'The mysterious name'). Very!: unless it be perchance a reduplicated perversion of caustic. P.B.: perhaps cf. S.E. squegee. skewings. Perquisites: gilders', from ca. 1850. Ex skew, to remove superfluous gold leaf. 'Analogous terms are cabbage (tailors'); bluepigeon (plumbers'); menavelings (beggars'); fluff (railway clerks'); pudding, or jam (common)' (F. & H.). See those terms.

skewvow. Crooked: coll. or s.: ca. 1780–1880. (Grose, 1st ed.) An elab. of skew, a slant, or possibly a joc. perversion of skew-whiff, q.v. Whence skew-gee and skew-the-dew, qq.v.

ski. A taxi: Aus., esp. bodgies': since ca. 1950. (Dick.) Rather ex taxi than by rhyming s.—2. Whisky: RAF: WW2. The no. 11 (Legs Eleven) Squadron song, in Jackson, 2, p. 140, penultimate line: 'And wherever there's a bottle or a chota drop of "ski" ...'—3. See sky.

ski-slope. 'Series of steep ladders that progress through many decks' (John Malin, 1979): MN, esp. Townsend Thoresen Ferries'.

skib. A house-painter: builders': C.20. Cf. the Warwickshire dial. skibbo, a house-painter, a whitewasher. (EDD.) The var. skiv (ca. 1920+) was probably suggested by skivvy.

skid, put on the. To act, speak, cautiously: coll.: 1885 (Punch, 31 Jan.). Ex skid, a chain or block retarding a wheel. Also (s)he might put the skid on is a coll. semi-c.p. applied to a talkative person, occ. with the addition with advantage to us, you, his listeners: ca. 1870–1930. H., 5th ed.—2. See skiv.

skid, v. To go; to depart: mostly joc., esp. schoolboys': early C.20. (Collinson.) cf. synon. scoot and scuttle; see also skidoo.

skid artist. 'Get-away [after a crime] car driver' (Powis): c.: later C.20.

skid lids. Boys racing, speedway fashion, on ordinary bicycles: 1945+. A factual rhyme.

skid lid. A motorcyclists' crash-helmet: since late 1950s. (David Wharton, 1966.) Cf. prec., and s. lid, a hat.

skid marks. Faecal smears on the inside of underpants: low coll.: C.20. (P.B.)

Skid Road. 'That part of town where the hopeless down-and-outs congregate. Derived from a logging term, the skid road, a logging road down which logs were skidded to the river or other water for driving to the mill. When a logger had blown his stake and was ready to return to work, he waited at the end of the skid road, hoping for a lift back to camp. Hence, any place where penniless men congregate. Almost invariably, and quite mistakenly, rendered as Skid Row' (Dr Douglas Leechman): US and Can.: late C.19–20 and C.20 (Row). It isn't definitely known whether Can. or the US originated the term; it may have arisen simultaneously in the two countries. Cf.:-

Skid Row. A notoriously depressed street in a city: Aus., esp. Melbourne and Sydney: adopted, ca. 1955, ex US. (B.P.) Some use also in UK (P.B.). See prec.

skiddi(c)k. See scuddick.

skidoo, skiddoo. To make off, to depart: 1907 (Neil Munro: OED Sup.). Ex skedaddle.

skids, as in 'The skids are under him', he has been dismissed from a job: army: 1940+. (P-G-R.) Post-WW2, > gen.; applied to, e.g. a politician who has lost his popularity (P.B.).

skie. See sky, v.

skied, skyed. (Of a picture) hung on the upper line at the Exhibition of the Royal Academy: artistic coll. >, ca. 1900, S.E.: 1864 (H., 3rd ed., at skyed). Opp. floored, q.v.

Skies. Italians: Aus. rhyming s., on Eyeties: since (?) 1920s. B., 1943; B.P.

skiet-skop-en-donder film. A blood-and-thunder film; a Western: S. Africa: since ca. 1930. 'The words are from the Afrikaans: skiet, shoot; skop, kick; en, and; donder, fight.' (Cyrus A. Smith, letter, 1946). Also thud and blunder (film): Cape Times, 3 June 1946 (Alan Nash).

skiff. (Presumably) a leg: low s. of ca. 1890–1910. Morning Advertiser, 6 Apr. 1891, 'To drive an "old crock" with "skinny skiffs".'? origin: perhaps cognate is dial. skiff, to move lightly, skim along;? cf. also † dial. skife, to kick up one's heels.—2. See scut, 3.

skiff, v.t. To upset, to spill: Christ's Hospital (School): C.20. Marples.

skiffle. A great hurry; among tailors, a job to be done in a hurry; low coll. or s.: late C.19–20. With this thinning of scuffle, cf. that of bum in bim (q.v.); the word exists also in West Yorkshire dial.

skikster. Occ. C.20 Aus. var. of shickster, 1, 2. B., 1942.

skilamalink. Secret; 'shady': East London: late C.19–20; ob. Ware, 1909, remarks: 'If not brought in by Robson, it was re-introduced by him at the Olympic Theatre, and in a burlesque.' Origin? R.S. writes, 1973: 'In my early youth (ca. 1910–25) I occasionally met skinamalink, a derisory noun or nickname for unusually skinny and undersized individuals... its form is, app., based on skilamalink, but its meaning is that of skilligaren.' R.S.'s word lasted at least until late 1940s—used of me (P.B.).

skill. 'A goal kicked between posts': football: ca. 1890–1920. (F. & H.) This being the result of skill.

skillet. A ship's cook: nautical: ca. 1880–1930. Ex the cooking-utensil.

Skillegreen. An extremely thin person: lower classes':—1923 (Manchon). Perhaps, by slurring, ex S.E. skin-and-bones, but see also skilly, 1.

Skillingers, the. The 6th (Inniskilling) Dragoons: army: mid-C.19–20; very ob. Also known as the Old Inniskillings.

skilly. Gruel; oatmeal soup: 1839 (Brandon): low s. >, ca. 1890, coll. >, ca. 1920, S.E. Abbr. skilligolee, perhaps on skillet, often, in dial., pron. skilly (W.).—2. Hence, a fount carrying its own lead: printers': ca. 1870–1910. It was unpopular with compositors, for it lent itself to ill-paid piece-work.—3. 'Tea or coffee supplied to messes': Conway cadets: late C.19–20. John Masefield, The Conway, 1933.—4. 'A stew made of a little of everything' (W.G. Carr, 1939: Moe): RN lowerdeck: late C.19–20.

skilly and toke. Anything mild or insipid: proletarian: from ca. 1860. (B. & L.) See prec., 1, and toke, n., 1.

sidly-pot. A teapot: HMS Conway: late C.19–20. See skilly, 3.

skin. Money: c.: 1869, Daily News, 29 July, 'They thought it contained his skin (money)'; ob. by 1930. Perhaps the 'skim' of milk, i.e. cream.

skimmish, skimmish. Drink; liquor: market-traders'; Romanies', tramps', and other travellers': C.20. (W.H. Davies, New Statesman, 18 Mar. 1933.) Hence as v., to 'drink alcoholic liquor', as in 'He was out skimmishing', and skimmished, drunk, tipsy (M.T.). Also skim(m)isher, 'a heavy drinker' (M.T.) or 'a public, an inn, esp. if rural' (Robert M. Dawson). To me it sounds like a word ex Shelta.

skimmer. A board-brimmed hat: Sedgely Park School: ca. 1800–65. (Frank Roberts, Cottonian, autumn 1938.) One could send it skimming into the air.—2. (Also skimming dish.) A fast planing motor-boat: RN: since ca. 1935. (P-G-R.) It skims along.

Skimmery. St Mary's Hall: Oxford University: ca. 1853–1910. Whence Skimmeryman, as in Verdant Green. By slurred pron. of St Mary.

skin, n. A purse: c.: ca. 1810–80 (Vaux; Haggart; Mayhew); 'extant until ca. 1895 or later in Australia' (Baker, letter). Because made of skin. Hence, a queer skin is an empty one.—2. Hence, and? ca. 1830–60, a sovereign. (F. & H.) Perhaps partly by rhyming suggestion of 'sovrin'.—3. A horse; a mule: army, from late C.19; also Aus. (B., 1942) and Can. (see skinner, 4).—4. Foreskin: coll.: mid-C.19–20.—5. Women in general, girls in particular: as in 'a taut drop of skin', a shapely female: RN: C.20. A bit of skin is also Anglo-Irish. See comment at skin and blister.—6. A person: Anglo-Irish: late C.19–20. 'He was known far and wide as a decent old skin' (Brendan Behan, Borstal Boy, 1958). Cf.:—7. An RN lowerdeck vocative: since ca. 1950. Perhaps opp. skers, q.v. Heart, 1962 (P.B.).—8. An official explanation required for any discrepancy: Post Office telegraph messengers' (—1935). Perhaps ex skin, v., 7. Among railwaymen, it = an incident report: prob. since mid-C.19 (McKenna, 2, p. 243).—9. A cigarette paper: prisoners' c. and drugs world: later C.20. John Wyatt, 1973; Home Office.—10. Shortened form of skinhead, q.v.: since ca. 1970. (Bournemouth Echo, 2 Jan. 1971; Petch.) 'No skins will be served', notice outside a Camden Town (N. London) bar, reported in Time Out, 13 June 1980: 'What is it then that provokes skins to punch, kick, nut and razor?' (Ian Walker, New Society, 26 June 1980).—11. In get under (one's) skin, with complementary have (got) under (one's) skin, to irritate: to be constantly irritated by, aware of, someone or something, as in the famous love-lyric by Cole Porter, 1936, 'I've got you under my skin': coll.: since ca. 1925.—12. In go on the skin, to save money by rigid economy over a period: military, esp. in India: from ca. 1885; ob. (Richards.) P.B.: perhaps ex skin a flint, louse, etc.—13. In in a bad skin, angry; ill-humoured: late C.18–19. (Grose, 3rd ed.) Prob. suggested joc. by S.E. thin-skinned. In bad skin and in good skin (good humoured) were revived as army usage in WW1 (Fredk Manning, Her Privates We, 1930).—14. In have a skin, to possess (overmuch) self-assurance: RN: since ca. 1920. (Granville.) Short for thick skin; cf. have a hard neck.—15. In in his (or her) skin! an evasive reply to a question as to a person's whereabouts: coll.: C.18–20. (Swift, Polite Conversation, Dialogue I.) Cf. there and back.—16. See next of skin.

skin, v.t. At cards, to win from a person all his money: 1812 (Vaux).—2. Hence, to strip (of clothes, money); to fleece: 1851 (Mayhew). In C.20, almost coll. Cf. skin-game, skin the lamb, and skinner, 1, qq.v.—3. To steal from: c. or low s.: 1891, Morning Advertiser, 21 Mar., 'Sergeant Hiscock... saw him skinning the sacks—that is, removing lumps [of coal] from the tops and placing them in an empty sack.'—4. To shadow, esp. just before arresting: c.: late C.19—early 20.—5. In gaming, to 'plant' (a deck of cards): from ca. 1880.—6. To lower (a price or value): 1859 (H., 1st ed.); ob. by 1930.—7. Also skin alive. To thrash: orig. (—1888), US; anglicised ca. 1895. Headon Hill, 1902, 'I'd have skinned the 'ussy if I'd caught her prying into my grounds.' skin, adj. Fresh, new: RM: later C.20. Hawke.

skin-a-guts. A proletarian var. (—1923) of S.E. skin-and-bones, a very thin person. (Manchon.) Cf. skin-and-grief.

skin a louse for the sake of its skin (or hide). To be extremely thrifty: coll.: late C.16–18. In C.19–20, flea is substituted for louse. (Apperson.) Cf. S.E. skinflint, and next 2 entries:—

skin a razor. To drive a hard bargain: coll.: later C.19—early 20.

skin a turd. (e.g. he'd). (He) is parsimonious: low Can. c.p.: late C.19–20.

skin alive. See skin, v., 7.

skin and blister. A sister: rhyming s.: late C.19–20. (F. & G.) Franklyn, Rhyming, comments, 'it is one of the few rhyming slang phrases that is never employed in a reduced form, the reason being that to refer to women and girls as "skin", or as a "bit of skin" [see skin, n., 5], is highly disrespectful, implying a laxity of morals...'

skin-and-boner. A very skinny horse: sporting coll.: C.19. Blackwood's, July 1823.

skin-and-grief. A var. of skin-and-bones, (a) skinny (person): lower classes:—1887; ob. by 1930. Baumann.

skin and whipcord, all. Extremely fit; with not a superfluous ounce of fat: coll.: (US and) Colonial: ca. 1880–1940.

Skin-Back Fusiliers, the. 'A satirical attribution of a Serviceman's affiliation to an imaginary regiment or unit: WW2' (L.A., 1976). Cf. skin the live rabbit, for the name occurs in a bawdy song in which foreskins are mentioned (P.B.).

skin-coat. The female pudend. Esp. in shake a skin-coat, to coit: mid-C.17–18.—2. Only in curry one's skin-coat, to thrash a person: C.18—mid-19.

skin-disease. Fourpenny-ale: low: ca. 1880–1914.

skin diver. A naked diver: Aus. pearl-divers' coll.: since ca. 1865. Ion L. Idriess, Forty Fathoms Deep, 1937.

skin dog. A male 'sexual athlete': Can. low: since ca. 1950. Cf. skin, n., 5.

skin(-)lick (or solid). A film in which some of the characters appear in the nude, and which usu. includes scenes of sexual intercourse: since ca. 1972. Chambers's C.20th Dict., 1977 Sup.

skin-game. A swindling game: 1882. Ex skin, v., 1, 2.—2. Hence, a swindle: C.20. Cf. skin-house.—3. Facial plastic surgery as practised on would-be glamorous women: since ca. 1935.

skin(-)head. See skinhead.

skin-house. A gambling den: from ca. 1885; ob. by 1930. Suggested by skin-game.

skin-merchant. A recruiting officer: coll.: late C.18—mid-19. John Burgoyne, The Lord of the Manor, 1781, at III, ii: Capt. Trepan says: 'I am a manufacturer of honour and glory—vulgarly called a recruiting dealer—or, more vulgarly still, a skin merchant.' A cynical reflection on the buying and selling of skins; cf. gun-fodder.

skin of (one's) teeth, by or (C.16–17) with. Narrowly; difficultly: mid-C.16–20: S.E. until C.19, then coll. Orig. a lit. translation of the Hebrew. Cf. hang on by the eyelashes, 2.

skin of the creature. A bottle (containing liquor): Anglo-Irish: mid-C.19–20. See creature.

skin off your nose! (, here's to the). Your good health!: a, mostly Services', toast: earlier C.20. F. & G.—2. In esp. it's no skin off my nose (occ. his, your, etc.), it makes no difference to me, because (the affair, activity, etc.) will put me at no disadvantage; a declaration of disinterest: coll.: since mid-C.20. (P.B.) skin out, v.i. To desert: RN: C.20. Bowen.

skin pop, v. 'Inject narcotic drug (heroin, for example) into the skin rather than into a vein ("main-lining"): the words "skin-popper" may be used as a term of patronising contempt by a confirmed addict to one just starting' (Powis): drugs world: adopted, ex US, late 1950s. John Wyatt, 1973; W. & F.

skin the cat. 'To grasp the bar with both hands, raise the feet, and so draw the body, between the arms, over the bar,' (F. & H.): gymnastics: 1888 (US).

skin the lamb. Lansquenet (the game of cards): 1864 (H., 3rd ed.); ob. A perversion of lansquenet.—2. V. When an outsider wins a race, the bookmakers are said to 'skin the lamb': 1864 (H., 3rd ed.) Lit., fleece the public. Also, from ca. 1870, have a skinner, ob. by 1930.—3. Hence, to concert and/or practise a swindle: from ca. 1865.—4. Also to mulct a person in, e.g. blackmail: from ca. 1870.

skin the live rabbit. To retract the prepuce: low: late C.19—early 20.

skin-tight. A sausage: (lower classes') coll.: ca. 1890–1930.

skin-the-pizzle. The female pudend: low: mid-C.19—early 20. See pizzle.

skindiver. See skin diver. In its later C.20, sporting, sense, it is S.E. (SOD).

Skindles. A restaurant at Poperinghe on the Western Front: army: 1915–18. (F. & G.) Ex the fashionable resort at Maidenhead.

Skinfinteries, the. The Museum of Economic (by 1903, Practical) Geology, in Jermyn Street, London, W1: ca. 1889–1910. Daily Telegraph, 11 May 1889.

skinfult. Esp. in to have had, or got, a s., to be extremely drunk: coll.: since early C.18. Franklyn, 1737; Bill Truck, Dec. 1825; P-G-R, 1948.—2. Hence, to have had a skinfult, to have had more than enough of anything; to have had too much to put up with: low coll., mostly Services': C.20. (Graham Seton, Pelican Row, 1935; P-G-R.) Cf. bellyful.

skinhead. One of a gang of teenage louts and hooligans characterised by their closely cropped or shaven heads: at first, mid-1960s, coll.; very soon > S.E. Cf. similar bovver-boys, punks, mods and rockers, etc. Early in 1970s Richard Allen published a series of novels, Skinhead, 1970, and Skinhead elaborations. Ex the earlier (since late 1940s) skin-head, n. and adj., (a) bald-headed or close-cropped (man).

skinned. See eye peeled.

skinned rabbit. A very thin person: coll.: later C.19—earlier 20.

skinner. Mayhew, 1856, "'Skinners'", or women and boys who strip children of their clothes', in order to eye lustfully their nakedness: low s. verging on c. K. Chesney, The Victorian Underworld, 1970, suggests that this may simply have been an easy and profitable form of theft. (P.B.) Cf., however:—2. 'One guilty of indecent assault, esp. on children' (D. Leechman, citing A. Schroeder, Shaking it Rough, 1976): Can. c.: since ca. 1950—or earlier.—3. In have a skinner. See skin the lamb, 2. Here, skinner may be a punning corruption of winner; the whole phrase, however, is prob. a light-hearted perversion of skin the lamb, as H., 5th ed. (1874) suggests. Hence, a skinner has by 1893 >= a result very profitable to the 'bookies' (OED), as it had, in essence, been twenty years earlier.—4. A driver of horses: Can.: late C.19–20. (John Beaumes.) Cf. skin, n., 3.—5. A hanger-on for profit at auctions: auctioneers': mid-C.19—early 20. (J. Greenwood, In Strange Company, 1873.) Cf. odd-trick man.—6. A very successful bet, from the bookmakers' point of view, on a horse-race: Aus., since mid-C.19 (Wilkes), and, since ca. 1920, Brit. (Sunday Times, 3 Oct. 1965).—7. An appointment deliberately missed: Aus.: since ca. 1925. B., 1943.—8. Sexually 'in her': low Aus. rhyming s., rare: since ca. 1930.

skinnors. Mental torture; terrible anxiety: low urban: earlier C.20. (Ware.) Because it 'flays' one.

skinny, n. A girl or young woman: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Cf. skin, n., 5.

skinny dip. A swim in the nude: Aus.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1960. Also hyphenated, as v., > Brit.: used by Michael Billington, Guardian, 17 Sep. 1981, 'The women [at the Turkish bath] talk, fantasise, bicker, skinny-dip...'

skinny Liz. Any elderly woman: St Bees: C.20. (Marples.) P.B.: but this is mere localisation of gen. and widespread skinny Lizzie, rudely applied to a thin woman of any age. It shows yet another example of the attraction of assonance in popular speech.

skins. A tanner: coll.: ca. 1780–1860. Grose, 1st ed.—2. As the Skins, the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, earlier the Enniskillen Regiment: prob. since early C.19. Carew suggests an anecdotal orig., a battle fought stark naked in the Peninsular War, but may it not be simply an elision?—3. See skin, n., 8 and 9.

skint. Very nearly or, more usu., completely penniless: orig. joc., lower classes' and Services', > by 1945 fairly gen. (F. & G.) In Cockney, skint stony for emphasis: 1930s (Jim Wolveridge, He Don't Know 'A' from a Bull's Foot, 1978). I.e. skinned. See also boracic.

skip, n. A dance: Anglo-Irish coll.: late C.19–20. Cf. hop, q.v.—2. A portmanteau; a bag, a valise: gapers': C.20. (Cheapjack, 1934.) P.B.: specialisation of dial./S.E. skiff or skip, a basket or other container.—3. Shortening of skipper, captain, master: since early C.18: in almost any context where skipper may be used informally. Cf. SHORTENINGS, in Appendix.

skip, v. To make off (quickly): C.15–20: S.E. until ca. 1830, then coll. (mostly US) with further sense, to abscond. Marryat, King's Own, 1830.—2. Hence, to die: late C.19–20. Often skip out. Savage, Brought to Bay, 1900.—3. In skip (bail), to abscond on bail: c. > gen. coll.: C.20. Cf. 1.

skip it! Don't trouble! Forget it!: coll.: adopted ca. 1939 from US.

skip-jack. See FOPS, in Appendix.

skip-kennel. A footman: coll.: ca. 1680–1840. B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.

skip-louse. A tailor: coll.: 1807 (J. Beresford: OED); ob. by 1930. Cf. prick-louse.

skip-stop. A train that 'skips' every second station: Aus.: since ca. 1925. (B.P.)

skip the gutter! Houp la!; over she goes!: proletarian: ca. 1865–1910. B. & L.

skipper; in C.16—mid-17, often skypper. A barn: c.: mid-C.16–19; but after late C.19, only in skipper-bird, q.v. (Harman, 1567; B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) As H. suggests, prob. ex the Welsh ysgubor (a barn), of which the y is silent, or, as OED proposes, ex Cornish sciber (the same).—2. Hence, a 'bed' out of doors: tramps' c.: late C.19–20. In later C.20, an empty house, where one can 'doss': vagrants': (James Wilson, Social Work Today, 22 Jan. 1980).—3. The devil: C.19 ex skipper, a captain.—4. A master, a boss: coll.: late C.19–20. Ex skipper, S.E., captain: cf. coll. sense of captain.—5. An army captain: an early occurrence is in A. Burton, Johnny Newcome, 1818 (Moe): naval, hence army (mostly officers') coll., early C.20. Always the skipper and not Skipper So-and-So. Also, since 1917 or 1918, the commander of an aircraft in flight: RAF coll.—7. One who is retreating: c.:—1909 (Ware). Cf. skip, v., 1.—8. A mode of address, as in 'What's the time, skipper?': since ca. 1920. Cf. captain, colonel, squire, used thus.

skipper; gen. skipper it. To sleep in a barn or hay-rick, hence under, e.g. a hedge: c.: mid-C.19–20. 'No. 747', p. 413, valid for 1845; Mayhew, 1851, 'I skipper it—turn in under a hedge or anywhere.' Ex skipper, n., 1. Cf. hedge square and: skipper-bird. Mid-C.19–20 c., as in: Mayhew, 1851, 'The best places in England for skipper-birds (parties that never go to lodging-houses, but to barns or outhouses, sometimes without a blanket).' Also keyhole-whistler. Ex skipper, n., 1, and v., qq.v.

skipper's daughter. A crested wave: from ca. 1888: coll. >, ca. 1910, S.E.

skipper's doggie. A 'midshipman acting as captain's A.D.C.': (F. & G.): RN: C.20.

skippy. A logger(?): Aus. miners': C.20. Gavin Casey, It's Easier Downhill, 1945.

skips. The ship's captain: RN lowerdeck: since ca. 1925. Familiar for skipper. P-G-R.

skirry. A run or scurry: either coll. or familiar S.E., as is the v.: resp. 1821, Haggart (who also has the v.), and 1781, George Parker. Ex scurry.

skirt. A woman: mid-C.16–20: S.E. until late C.19, then s. Hence, a light skirt is a loose woman: late C.19–20 (Manch.). Other compounds: a bit, or piece, of skirt, a woman, a girl: since late C.19, and not necessarily pej. or contemptuous; do a bit of skirt, to coit with a woman: id.: merely an elab. of do, v., 10; flutter a skirt, to be a harlot: late C.19⁺early 20; run a skirt, to keep a mistress: C.20 raffish. As the skirt, women in gen; women collectively: late C.19–20. Hyne, 1899.

skirt, v. To skirt-dance: coll., mostly Cockneys': from ca. 1880. Nevinson, 1895, 'I've seed the Sheenies step-dancin' in the Lane, and I've seed the sisters Toddles skirtin' at the Cambridge, but I never see dancin' as was a patch on Lina's that night.'—2. As v.i., to be a harlot: late C.19–early 20.

Skirt-Chasers, the. The Royal Army Service Corps: army: since ca. 1940. A pun on 'R.A.S.C.' P.B.: the Corps was 'rationalised' out of existence in 1965. Cf. the older Ally Sloper's Cavalry.

skirt-foist. A female cheat: c. of ca. 1650–1700. A. Wilson, ca. 1650.

skirt-hunting. A search, 'watch-out', for either girls or harlots: coll.: late C.19–20. (James Spenser, Limey Breaks In, 1934.) A Service (esp. RAF) var., WW2, was skirt-patrol (H. & P.). skit. Beer: army: from the 1890s. (F. & G.) Ex S.E. skit, a small jet of water.—2. A large number; a crowd; esp. in pl., lots (of): coll.: 1925 (A.S.M. Hutchinson: OED Sup.). Cf. US scads in same sense.

skit. (Gen. v.t.) To wheedle: c.: late C.18–mid-19. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Prob. ex S.E. skit, to be skittish, to caper.

skite, n. A boaster; boasting: Aus.: mid-C.19–20. Abbr. blatherskite; or possibly ex Scottish and Northern dial., a person viewed with contempt; cf. also skyte.—2. Hence, showy, ostentatious behaviour; 'side': mostly Aus.: ca. 1850–1950.—3. A motorcycle: 1929 (OED Sup.). Perhaps ex the abominable noise it makes.—4. In on the skite, having a terrific binge: Scottish Public Schools': C.20. Cf.:—5. In go on the skite, to go drinking: army: ca. 1920–45. P-G-R.—6. See skyte.

skite, v.i. To boast: Aus.: since mid-C.19.

skiter. A boaster: Aus.: since late C.19. Wilkes.

skitey. Boastful: NZ: since ca. 1925. Cf. prec.

skits. A schizophrenic: since ca. 1930, but not common before ca. 1960. Ex schizo.

skitsy. Afraid, timorous: Milton Junior School, Bulawayo: since ca. 1920. Cf. skittish (horse).

skitter, n. A person: pej.: earlier C.20. Perhaps ex mosquito.

skitter, v. Aus. var. of scutter, q.v.: C.20. (Ruth Park, Pink Flannel, 1945.) Orig. of skitters (B.P.). skitterbug. A Bren-gun carrier (small, lightly-armoured, tracked vehicle): Aus. army: WW2. (B., 1943.) Prob. ex prec. or next, with a pun on jitter bug (P.B.).

skitters, the. Diarrhoea: Services': since ca. 1930. (P-G-R.) Cf. synon. squitters, and skitter, v.

skitting-dealer. A person feigning dumbness: c.: C.18. Ex † skit, to be shy.

skittle, n. Chess played without 'the rigour of the game': coll.: mid-C.19–20. OED Sup.

skittle, v. To knock down; to kill: mostly Aus.: late C.19–20. (B., 1942.) Ex the game of skittles. P.B.: in Eng., usu. skittle out or over, mostly in 1st sense, and with implication of easiness.—2. V.i. ex the n.: id.: Ibid.

skittles. Nonsense: coll.: 1864, The Orchestra, 12 Nov., 'Le faire applaudir is not "to make oneself applauded", and "joyous comedian" is simply skittles.' Perhaps ex not all beer and skittles.—2. Hence, an interjection: coll.: 1886, Kipling, "Skittles!" said Pagett, M.P.' It was the nickname of a famous London courtesan in 'the Langtry period' (1881–99).

skittling. The feminine practice of washing stockings, handkerchiefs and 'smalls' in the bedroom or bathroom wash-basin: hotel-keepers' and hotel-staffs', esp. in Scotland: since ca. 1920.

skitz. Var. of skits; ex schizo, a schizophrenic.

skiv (1858, OED); skidd (1859, H., 1st ed.). A sovereign (coin). 'Fashionable s.', says H.; ob. by 1910, virtually † by 1930. ? on sov.—2. A bookmaker's runner or tout: the racing world, esp. at Epsom: late C.19–20. Perhaps ex:—3. Short for skivvy: from ca. 1925. Marples.—4. See skib.

skive, n. An evasion; a loafing: low: since ca. 1925. (Norman.) Ex the v.

skive, v.t. and i. To evade (a duty, a parade, etc.): Services': from 1915; the v.t. from slightly later. (F. & G.) Perhaps ex Lincolnshire skive, to turn up the whites of the eyes (EDD), or from Fr. esquiver, or from dial. skive, to skim or dart about, esp. rapidly. P.B.: by mid-C.20, very widespread and gen., and often as skive off, v.t. and i.

skiver. A shirker, 'schemer': orig. army, since ca. 1915 (G. Kersh, 1941); by ca. 1950, gen. Ex prec. 'Some children can stop a class in its tracks. What should be done with the muckers about, the skivers, the bunkers off?' (New Society, 8 Jan. 1981).

skivess. A female servant: Stowe School: 1930s. (Peregrine Worsthorne, in The World of the Public School, 1977.) Cf. scut, 3, and:- skivvy, n.; occ., at first, skivey. A maid-servant, esp. a rough 'general': from ca. 1905. (W.L. George, The Making of an Englishman, 1914.) Perhaps a perversion of slavery.

skivvy, v.; skivvying, vbl n. To perform heavy, boring, menial household chores, either in the home, or in hotel or other institution: coll.: later C.20. Ex n.

skivvy! 'A naval association or exclamation' (Ware): late C.19–early 20. Ex Japanese sukebei, 'bawdy, lecherous' (E.V. Gatenby, 1939).

skiz. See skizzen.

skoff. See scoff.

skolfuring. Trading stores or equipment to civilians: army: almost certainly a perversion of next, and † by 1939.

skolka, v.t. and i. To sell or bargain: Murmansk and N. Russia forces': 1918–19. (F. & G.) A Russian word meaning 'how many?' or 'how much?' Vbl n., skolkering. (Applied esp. to illicit traffic in food and rum between our men and the natives.)

skolly. A non-European delinquent or loafer or criminal: S. African c. and police s.: C.20. (Cape Times, 23 May 1946.) Via Afrikaans ex Dutch schullen, to lie low.

skookum. Satisfactory ('Everything's skookum'): Can. West Coast: late C.19–20. Chinook jargon; lit., 'strong'. Cf.: skookum house, often prec. by strong. A gaol: West Can.: C.20; slightly ob. by 1952. (Leachman.)

skoosh or skosh. A sweetheart: army: early C.20. (F. & G.) Poss. cognate with dial. scouse, to frolic.

skoot. See scoot.

skoshi. A little (Fr. un peu): United Nations troops': ca. 1951–5 in Korea. (Ldiwah, July 1953.) P.B.: hence, some use among Brit. Servicemen in Far East, later 1950s–early 60s. Ex Jap. sukoshi, little.

skowbanker. See scowbanker.

skower. See scour.

skowse. See scouse.

skran. See scran.

skreigh. See screich.

skrim. See scrim.

skrimmage. See scrimmage.

skrimp, skrump or scrump, v.i. and v.t. To steal apples: dial. and provincial s.: late C.19–20. In James Spenser, Limey Breaks In, 1934, it appears as Birmingham s. (C.20) in the gen. sense: to rob orchards. Cognate with scrounge, q.v.—2. Hence, to 'scrounge': army: late C.19–20.

skrimshank, -er. See scrimshank, -er.

skrip. A c. spelling of scrip, q.v.

skrouge, skrowdige. See scrouge, v.

skrump. See skrimp.

skrant. A whore: Scots dial. >, by 1890, coll.: mid-C.19–20.

skuddick. See scuddick.

skug. See scug.

skulker. 'A soldier who by feigned sickness, or other pretences evades his duty, a sailor who keeps below in time of danger; in the civil line, one who keeps out of the way, when any work is to be done' (Grose, 1st ed.): 1748 (Smollett, Roderick Random; Moe): coll. till ca. 1830, then S.E.

skull. The head of a two-up penny: Aus.: since ca. 1910. Lawson Glassop, Lucky Palmer, 1949, where the nuance is 'a two-up penny turning up heads'. B., 1953.—2. In out of (one's) skull, out of one's mind; mad; crazy; drunk, as in 'slewed out his skull': adopted, ca. 1970, ex US. John Wainwright, Death of a Big Man, 1975.—3. A passenger in a lorry. See HAULIERS' SLANG, in Appendix.—4. See skull-race, -thatcher.

Skull and Crossbones, the. The 17th Lancers: army: mid-C.19–20; ob. Ex the regimental badge. Also Bingham's Dandies, (the) Death or Glory Boys, (the) Gentlemen Dragoons, and (the) Horse Marines.

skull-dragging, n. 'Pulling a victim downstairs by his feet so that his head is painfully battered' (B., 1953): Aus. c.: since ca. 1930.

skull job. Fellatio or cunnilingus. See head job.

skull up (to). To climb to (e.g. the masthead): RN: ca. 1810–50. (Basil Hall, 1831.) I.e. scull. P.B.: ? or to touch with the top of one's head.

skullbanker. See scowbanker.

skul(l)duggery. Underhand practices; villainy: coll., orig. joc.: C.20. An extension of the mostly American senses (malversation of public money; obscenity), spelt skulduggery, of the Scottish sculduggery, in C.19–20: also sculduggery (or sk-), itself of obscure origin.

skull's adiy!, my. I'm awake, alert, shrewd!: C.19. Cf. fly, adj. skunk, n. A mean, paltry, or contemptible wretch: coll., mainly of course US. 'An early U.K. use occurs in the Peninsular War memoirs of Rifleman Costello (1857), referring to malingerers at Belem base hospital in 1809' (R.S., 1973). H., 5th ed., 1874; Referee 1 June 1884, 'The bloodthirsty and cowardly skunks.' Ex the stink-emitting N. American animal.

skunk, v. To betray; leave in the lurch: London school-boys:—1887 (Baumann). Ex prec.—2. Whence (?), not to meet a bill of exchange: Commercial:—1923 (Manchon). —3. To defeat (an opponent)—in cribbage, by a large score; in other games of chance, to nil: Can.: adopted, late C.19, ex US. (Leechman.)

skunk-haul. A very small catch of fish: Grand Banks fishermen's: C.20. (Bowen.) Cf. skunk, n.

skutcher. Synon. with snozzler, q.v.: NZ:—1935. P.B.: perhaps a slovening of it's got you?

skute. See scoot.

Sky; occ. Skil. An outsider: Westminster School:—1869. Ex the Volsci, a tribe traditionally inimical to Rome; the Westminster boys being Romans.—2. Hence, though recorded earlier, 'a disagreeable person, an enemy' (H., 2nd ed.): ca. 1860–1910.—3. An Italian. See Skies.—4. As sky, a pocket: c.: 1893 (P.H. Emerson); Edgar Wallace; Charles E. Leech. Abbr. sky-rocket, q.v.—5. A tackle at football: Harrow School: C.20. (Arnold Lunn, The Harrovians, 1913.) Ex v., 3.—6. In have a sky, have a look, to glance around: ? mostly Liverpool: since ca. 1920. Matutinal meteorology.—7. Whisky: Aus.: since ca. 1950. (B.P.) Ex whisky. Cf. ski, 2.

sky, v. To throw up into the air; esp. sky a copper, as in the earliest record: 1802 (Maria Edgeworth).—2. Hence, with pun on blue (v.), to spend freely till one's money is gone: from ca. 1885. 'Pomes' Marshall, 'With the takings safely skyed.' Ob. by 1930.—3. To throw away; at football, to charge or knock down: Harrow: from ca. 1890. (F. & H., 1903; Vachell, 1905.) Ex sense 1.—4. See skied. Coll. >, ca. 1910, S.E.—5. (Of a horse) to throw (its rider) high into the air:

Aus., mostly rural: mid-C.19–20. (Tom Ronan, Moleskin Midas, 1956.) A special application of sense 1.

sky(-)artist. A psychiatrist: RN lowerdeck and army: 1940+. (Granville; Michael Harrison, 1943.) By Hobson-Jobson—and wit.

sky-blue, n. Gin: perhaps orig. c.: 1755 (Connoisseur); Grose, 3rd ed. † by 1859.—2. Thin or watery milk: late C.18–20: S.E. until ca. 1850, then coll. (H., 1859.) Ob. Cf. simpson, n., and chalkers.—3. A long-term prisoner: S. African c.: C.20. (Cape Times, 23 May, 1946.) Ex the blue jacket he wears.—4. (Usu. in pl.) 'Officers of the Hudson's Bay Company, so called from the colour of their uniform (no longer worn). My earliest reference is 1821.' (Leechman): Can. coll.: since ca. 1815; by 1940, ob.

sky-blue pink. Joc. c.p. for colour unknown or indeterminate: since ca. 1885.

sky falls, - we shall catch larks, if or when the. A semi-proverbial c.p. retort on an extravagant hypothesis: late C.15–20; ob. Cf. if pigs had wings... See esp. Apperson, who quotes Heywood (1546), Randolph (1638), Bailey (1721), Spurgeon (1869), G.B. Shaw (1914), and others.

sky-farmer. A beggar who, equipped with false passes and other papers, wanders about the country as though in distress from losses caused by fire, hurricane, or flood, or by disease among his cattle: c.: 1753 (John Poulter); † by 1850. As Grose, 1st ed., suggests, either because he pretended to come from the Isle of Skye or because his farm was 'in the skies'.—2. A farmer either without, or with very little, land: Anglo-Irish (esp. Southern): mid (? early) C.19–20. (J.W. Joyce, English... in Ireland, 1910.) Perhaps ex sense 1, but prob. of independent origin.

sky-gazer. A sky-sail: nautical: from ca. 1860; ob. On nautical sky-scraper. P.B.: should perhaps be sky-grazer.

sky-hacking (or one word), n. Back-biting; slander: Aus.: since ca. 1925. (Baker.) P.B.: ? cognate with chiike, q.v., also spelt chy-ack.

sky-high, v. To scold (a person) excessively: proletarian: from ca. 1880. Ex give sky high, q.v., and:—2. Very high indeed: coll.: 1818 (Lady Morgan), adv.; 1840, adj. OED.

sky-hog. An airman that flies low over houses: 1945+. On road-hog.

sky-hook. 'A useful, but mythical, piece of apparatus which enables an airman to hover over one spot. Can also be used for any difficult job of lifting.' (Gerald Emanuel, letter, 1945): RAF, esp. among the regulars: since 1918. But Dr Douglas Leechman vouches for its use, in Canada (esp. among loggers), as early as 1909.—2. The DH6, a WW1 trainer aircraft: RFC/RAF. (P.R. Reid, Winged Diplomat, 1962.) Also called the clutching hand.

sky-juice. Rain: joc.: early C.20. See juice, n., 4, and cf. juicy, adj., 3.

sky-lantern. The moon: coll.: ca. 1840–70. Moncrieff, 1843. sky-light; skylight. An eye: nautical 1836 (Michael Scott); ob. by 1930.—2. A 'daylight' or unliquored interval at top of one's drinking glass: 1816 (Peacock); ob. by 1880; † by 1920. (OED.) Suggested by daylight.

sky... limit. See limit, 2.

sky-line. The top row of pictures at an exhibition: artistic coll.:—1911 (Webster). Suggested by skied, q.v.

sky-lodging. See:—

sky-parlour. A garret: 1785 (Grose): coll. >, ca. 1840, S.E. Also (in Baumann) sky-lodging: lower classes' coll.:—1887; slightly ob. by 1930.

sky-pilot. A clergyman, esp. if working among seamen: low (—1887; Baumann) > nautical s. (1888, Churchward) > by 1895 (W. Le Queux, in The Temptress) gen. s. >, by 1910, gen. coll. Because he pilots men to a heaven in the skies. Cf. pilot-cove, q.v.—2. Hence, loosely, an evangelist: from before 1932. Slang, p. 245.

sky-rocket; occ. skyrocket. A pocket: rhyming s.: 1879 (J.W. Horsley); Powis, 1977.

sky-scraper; occ. skyscraper. A high-standing horse: coll.:

1826 (Hone: OED); ob. Like the following senses, it derives ex the nautical skyscraper, a sky-sail.—2. A cocked hat: nautical: ca. 1830–90.—3. The penis: low: from ca. 1840.—4. An unusually tall person (gen. of a man): coll.: 1857 ('Ducange Anglicus').—5. In cricket, a skied ball: coll.: from ca. 1890; slightly ob.—6. A rider on a 'penny-farthing' bicycle: ca. 1891–1900. Daily News, 7 Mar. 1892, 'Often derisively styled "sky-scraper"' (OED).

sky the rag or towel or wipe. To give in, yield: boxers'; 1st and 3rd, Aus. (C.J. Dennis, 1916); the 2nd since ca. 1890 >, by 1910, soldiers' coll. (F. & G.)

sky-topper. A very high person or thing (e.g. house): coll.: later C.19—earlier 20. (B. & L.; Manchon.) Var. of sky-scraper.

sky wire. A radio aerial; an antenna: Aus. radio hams': since ca. 1955. (B.P.)

skyycer. See shicer.

skyed. See skied.

Skying a Copper. Hood's poem, 'A Report from Below', 'to which this title was popularly given until it absolutely dispossessed the true one' (Ware).—2. Hence, 'making a disturbance—upsetting the apple-cart': lower classes': ca. 1830–50; Hood dying in 1845. (Ware.)

skylark, n. and v.; derivative skylarker, skylarking. (To) frolic, play (silly) tricks: perhaps orig. s., but soon S.E., via nautical coll. An early occurrence is in Sessions, Apr. 1803.

skylarker. A housebreaker that, both as a blind and in order to spy out the land, works as a bricklayer: c.: mid-C.19—early 20.

skylight. See sky-light.

skypiece. 'Smoke trails of sky-writing' (H. & P.): RAF: since ca. 1930. Ex painting.

skypyer. See skipper, n., 1.

skyrocket. See sky-rocket.

skyscraper. See sky-scraper.

skyser (= skyycer). See shicer.

skytte. A day-boy: Shrewsbury School: from ca. 1840. (Pascoe, 1881.) Gen. in pl.: Desmond Coke, The Bending of a Twig, 1846, 'Are not the despised Day Boys called Skytes—"Scythians" or "outcasts"?' Cf. the Westminster Sky.—2. A fool: Scottish Public Schools' coll.: mid-C.19–20. (B. & L.) See also skite.

slaat. See let's slaat.

slab. A milestone: low: ca. 1820–1910. ('Jon Bee', 1823; Baumann.) Abbr. slab of stone.—2. A bricklayer's boy: ca. 1840–90. Ex dialect.—3. A portion; a tall, awkward fellow: both Aus.: late C.19–20. C.J. Dennis.—4. A slice of bread and butter: streets': C.20. E.C. Vivian, Ladies in the Case, 1933.—5. A long paragraph: journalists': since ca. 1910.—6. In on the slab, on the operating table: RAF aircrews': 1940+. (L.A.) The butcher's slab.—7. A sandwich. Cf. sense 4, and see CANADIAN ADOLESCENTS', in Appendix.—8. See slabs.

slab dab. A Glover: early C.18. See OCCUPATIONAL NAMES, in Appendix.

slabber sauce. Salt beef and salt fish, pulped, stewed, and flavoured with cayenne pepper: naval: C.18 (?—mid-19). Peppitt cites S. Childers, A Mariner of England, 1908, '18th Century Memoir'. Slabber, now mostly dial., is akin to S.E. slaver and slobber (SOD). Perhaps because it induced excessive saliva.

slabbed and slid. 'Dead and gone. One who left prison a long time ago, and who has been forgotten, may be spoken of as "slabbed and slid", meaning that he went out long ago and that anything may have happened to him' (Tempest): prison c.: mid-C.20.

slabbering-bib. A parson's, lawyer's, neck-band: late C.18—mid-19. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Lit., a slobbering-bib. (F. & H., wrongly, slabbering-bit.)

slabs. Testicles: butchers' back s.: C.20. Muover.—2. Plaice that have recently been spawned: trawlermen's: C.20. (D. Butcher, Trawlermen, 1980, glossary.) Cf. ivy leaf, 2; penny stamps, qq.v.

slack, n. The seat (of a pair of trousers, gen. mentioned): coll.: mid-C.19–20. Prob. ex slacks, q.v.—2. A severe or knock-down punch: boxing: C.19. Ex Jack Slack, a powerful hitter. Also slack un. Cf. Mendoza and auctioneer.—3. Impertinence, decided 'cheek': s., since early C.19, > 1910, coll.; by mid-C.20, ob. (A. Burton, Johnny Newcome, 1818 (Moe); Boxiana, IV, 1824.) Abbr. slack-jaw.—4. A 'spell of inactivity or laziness': coll.: 1851 (Mayhew: OED). In C.20 Aus., esp. among sheep-shearers and cane-cutters, the slack=the slack period or off-season (J. Devanney, By Tropic Sea and Jungle, 1944). Cf.—5. In hold on the slack, to be lazy; avoid work: nautical:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.); ob. by 1930. Ex the loose or untautened part of a rope.—6. A 'depression in rail level' (Railway): railwaymen's coll.: late C.19–20. Ex the slack in a rope.—7. See hang on the slack.

slack, v. To make water: late C.19–20. Ex relaxation. Also slack off. Cf. slash.

slack Alice. A slovenly woman: coll., mostly N. Country, esp. Yorkshire: late C.19–20.

slack and slim. Slender and elegant: proletarian: later C.19—early 20. Baumann.

slack bobs. The small minority of boys excused from rowing and cricket, but allowed to play tennis: Eton: C.20. (J.D.R. McConnell, Eton: How it Works, 1967.) Cf. dry bobs and wet bobs, qq.v.

slack in stays. Lazy: nautical coll.: C.19–20. (John Davis, The Post-Captain, 1806: Moe.) Bowen. 'From the old description of a ship which is slow in going about.' But Granville glosses 'Slow in the uptake, dull-witted'.

slack off. See slack, v.

slack out. To go into: Public Schools': C.20. E.F. Benson, David Blaize, 1916.

slack party. Punishment for defaulters: Royal Naval College, Dartmouth: C.20. (Granville.) Ironic; cf. slack in stays.

slacken your glib! Shut up! low:—1887 (Baumann).

slacker. A shirker; a very lazy person: coll.: 1898 (OED). Cf. slackster.

Slackers. Halifax, Canada: R. Can. N: WW2. (P-G-R.) See also Squibbly.

slacks. Trousers (full length): 1824: coll. >, ca. 1905, S.E. Surtees. (OED.) In C.20, orig. applied esp. to an English soldier's trousers.—2. Pilfered fruit: late C.19–20: green-grocers' s. >, by 1920, j. slackster. A 'slacker' (q.v.): coll.: early C.20. Daily Chronicle, 6 Nov. 1901, 'There are "slacksters", as the slang of the schools and universities has it, in all professions' (OED).

slag, n. Has many senses, or nuances, all pej. The earliest is from later C.18, a coward, 'one unwilling to resent an affront' (Grose, 2nd ed.). A C.20 example is in Neil Bell, Crocus, 1936, as showmen's s. Corruption of slack-mettled. See slaggy.—2. 'Cheat, villain, contemptible person' (J. McVicar, McVicar by Himself, 1974): prison c.: since ca. 1930.—3. One who looks at the free attractions but avoids the paying shows: showmen's: since ca. 1880.—4. Hence, a layabout; a rough: market-traders': since (?) late C.19. (M.T.) Cf. slink, n., 2.

—5. 'A man, never less than 35, who has often been in trouble with the police and who, more often than not, is liable to be sentenced to preventive detention when he next gets into trouble' (A.T. Roeyes, letter in Manchester Guardian, 11 Sep. 1958): low, mostly London: since ca. 1945. Cf. synon. lag.—6. A prostitute; but rare except in old slag, always contemptuous: low: since late 1950s. Cf. 'The eternal teenage sexual paradox is that boys who "put it about" are called "studs" by their admiring friends, but girls who do the same are "slags" (and nobody likes them) ...' (a St Paul's, London, schoolboy, quoted in Harpers & Queen, Aug. 1978). Cf. also:—7. Collective for 'young third-rate grafters, male or female, unwashed, useless' (Robin Cook, 1962): since ca. 1945: c. >, by ca. 1960, also low s. Also, ibid., such an individual.—8. Females collectively: low: since ca. 1950.

'Suburban slag filling in time' (James Barlow, The Burden of Proof, 1968).—9. A (watch-)chain, whether of gold or of silver: c.—1857 ('Ducange Anglicus'); ob. by 1930. Perhaps a perversion of slack (hanging slack).—10. Rubbish; nonsense: Aus.: earlier C.20. Vance Palmer, Golconda, 1948.

slag, v. To expectorate or spit (v.i.): low Aus.: C.20. "Hell," muttered Richie, "he's slaggin' on me car!" (Dick.) Ex Scottish dial. slag, to moisten, to besmear.—2. 'To admonish in violent terms' (Powis): low: later C.20. Cf.—3. To 'run down', to slander: low: since ca. 1945. Norman, Encounter, 1959.

slag about. To come and go around and about: low: late 1970s. 'Slagging about in all weathers...' (Red Daniells, Brit. Jnl of Photography, 1 June 1979). Cf. slog, trog, and relevant senses, e.g. 6, of slag, n.

slagger. A brothel-keeper: c. or low:—1909 (Ware). Prob. a corruption of slacker. Cf. slag, n., 6.—2. The agent ex slag, v., 2 and 3. Letter, Guardian, 27 June 1982.

slaggy. The adj. for most senses of slag, n.: low: C.20. W. Buchanan-Taylor, Shake it Again, 1943, 'It seemed slaggy to me. (A slag is a person who is not much bottle—not much good; a person for whom you have no respect, even if he or she is holding a poke (plenty of money))...'.

slam, n. A var. (—1887) of slum, n., 2, 4, 5.—2. An attack; esp. the grand slam, the big attack: army: WW1. (Frank Richards, Old Soldiers Never Die, 1933.) Ex bridge.

slam, v. To brag; esp. among soldiers, to simulate tipsiness and brag of numerous drinks: from ca. 1880. Cf. slum, v. Perhaps ex:—2. To 'patter'; talk fluently: itinerant showmen's: from ca. 1870. Henley, 1884, 'You swatcler coves that pitch and slam.' According to H., 5th ed., ex 'a term in use among the birdsingers'—presumably dealers in singing birds—'at the East-end [of London], by which they denote a certain style of note in chaffinches.'—3. To strike or punch (someone): since ca. 1910. (Dave Marlow, Coming, Sir, 1937.) Sometimes as siam him one.

slam-bang shop. A var. (Bee, 1823; † by 1910) of slap-bang shop: see slap-bang.

slam hammer. Slide hammer. Sometimes called a "slam hammer", "slam puller", or "Yankee" ... A tool used by car thieves to pull out the cylinder of the ignition lock; it also has a legitimate use in removing dents in wing and bodywork of cars' (Powis): later C.20.

slam-slam. To salute: Anglo-Indian:—1909 (Ware). Ex salam.

slammer. A prison: Can. c.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1965. Cf. earlier US c. slammer, a door (W. & F.) P.B.: by later 1970s adopted also in UK: Christopher Hitchens, New Statesman, 18 Jan. 1980, 'two charges ... which would have carried a maximum of 14 years in the slammer'. Cf. entry twister, at JIVE, in Appendix.—2. Anything exceptional; a 'whopper': late C.19—early 20.

slammer shuffle. A walking peculiar to convicts. See prec., 1. Also known as the prison waltz.

slamming. Adj. corresponding to slammer, 2: id.

slaney. A theatre: c.: from ca. 1880. Ex slum, to act.

slang, n. The special vocabulary (e.g. cant) of low, illiterate, or disreputable persons; low, illiterate language: 1756 (Toldervy: OED): c. >, ca. 1780, s. >, ca. 1820, coll. >, ca. 1850, S.E. Likewise, the senses 'jargon' (1802), 'illegitimate colloquial speech', i.e. what now we ordinarily understand by 'slang' (1818), and 'impertinence' or 'abuse' (1825), began as s. and > S.E. only ca. 1860. (Earliest dates: OED.) The etym. is a puzzle: the OED hazards none; Bradley, Weekley, Wyld consider that cognates are afforded by Norwegian slenja-keften, to sling the jaw, to abuse, and by several other Norwegian forms in -sleng: that slang is ultimately from sling there can be little doubt,—cf. slang the mauleys, sling language and sling the bat, qq.v.; that it is an argotic perversion of Fr. langue is very improbable though not impossible. (See esp. the author's Slang To-Day and Yesterday, rev. ed., 1935, pp. 1–3.) All the following senses, except the last two, derive ultimately ex sense 1.—2. Nonsense; humbug: ca. 1760–90. Foote, 1762.—3. A line of work; a 'lay' or 'lurk': c. of ca.

1788–1800. Hence, (upon the slang, at one's own line of work. G. Parker.—4. A warrant or a licence, esp. a hawker's: from ca. 1810: c. >, ca. 1850, s. (Vaux; H., 3rd ed.) Hence, out on the slang, travelling with a hawker's licence (H., 3rd ed.).—5. A travelling show: showmen's:—1859 (H., 1st ed.).—6. Hence, a performance or 'house' in a show, e.g. a circus: showmen's: 1861 (Mayhew). Cf. slang-cove and -cull.—7. (Gen. in pl.) A short measure or weight: London, mostly costermongers': 1851 (Mayhew).—8. (Ex Ger. c. schlange, a watch-chain, or Dutch slang, a snake: OED.) A watch-chain; any chain: c.: from ca. 1810. Vaux.—9. See slangs, 1.

slang, adj. Slangy: 1758: c. >, ca. 1780, s. >, ca. 1820, coll. >, ca. 1850, S.E. Ex slang, n., 1.—2. (Of persons or tone.) Rakish, impertinent: ca. 1818–70: s. > coll. Ex sense 1.—3. (Of dress.) Loud; extravagant: coll.: ca. 1830–70.—4. (Of measures, weights,) Short, defective: costers': 1812 (Vaux).—5. Hence, adv., as in Mayhew, 1851, 'He could always "work slang" with a true measure' (OED); ob. by 1930.

slang, v.i. To remain in debt: University s. of ca. 1770–1800. See (?) Smeaton Oliphant (à propos of tick), The New English, at II, 180. F. & H.—V.i.—2. To exhibit at (e.g.) a fair: 1789 (G. Parker). See slang a dolly...—3. V.i. and t., to cheat, swindle, defraud: 1812 (Lytton): s. > coll.; slightly ob. by 1930.—6. V.t. to abuse, scold, violently: 1844 (Albert Smith: OED); in C.20, coll. Cf. slanging, q.v.

slang a dolly to the edge. 'To show and work a marionette on a small platform outside the booth'—as a means of attracting customers for the play shown inside: showmen's: ca. 1875–1940. (John o'London's Weekly, 4 Mar. 1949.) The phrase shows that slang, v., 2, was current well into C.20.

slang-and-pitcher shop. A cheapjack's van or stock-in-trade: mid-C.19–20. Ex slang, a hawker's licence, + pitcher, q.v.

slang-boy. (Gen. pl.) A speaker of (underworld) cant: late C.18—mid-19. (G. Parker, 1789.) Also boy of the slang.

slang-cove, -cull. A showman: cull, c. or showmen's s. of ca. 1788–1850 (G. Parker, 1789); cove, showmen's s. of mid-C.19–20 (Mayhew, 1851).

slang-dipper; -dropper. A slang-dipper is 'one who gilds metal chains for the purpose of selling them as gold.' A slang-dropper is the man 'who disposes of them, as he usually does so by pretending to pick [one] up in the street under the nose of his victim, [whom] he immediately asks to put a value on it': c.:—1935 (David Hume). See slang, n., 8.

slang it. To use false weights: low: mid-C.19–20. Cf. slang, n., 7, and v., 3.

slang the mauleys. To shake hands (lit., sling the mauleys): late C.18–20: low London. (G. Parker, 1781.) Of mauley (q.v.), the hand, the dial. form is mauler (EDD).

slang-tree. A stage; a trapeze: resp. itinerant actors' and showmen's: mid-C.19–20. Ex slang, a travelling show. Cf. slang-cove, and climb (up) the slang-tree, to perform; make an exhibition of oneself: showmen's: resp. mid-C.19–20 and late C.19–20.

slanged, ppl. adj. In fetters: c.: 1811 (Lex. Bal.). Cf. slangs, 1, and slang, v., 4.

slanger. A showman: circus-men's:—1933 (Edward Seago, Circus Company). Prob. ex slang, n., 5.

slanger of (one's) mauleys (or morleys). A boxer: one who excels with his fists: 1822 (David Carey, Life in Paris); † by 1890. (Carey spells it morleys.) I.e. slinger. Cf. slang the m... slanging, vbl n. Exhibiting (e.g. a two-headed cow) at fair or market: showmen's s. verging on c.: late C.18–19. (G. Parker, 1789.) Ex slang, v., 1.—2. Abuse; violent scolding: mid-C.19–20: s. >, ca. 1880, coll. >, ca. 1910, S.E. (Lever, 1856: OED). Ex slang, v., 6.—3. Singing: music halls': ca. 1880–1900. Ware derives it ex 'the quantity of spoken slang between the verses.'

slanging, adj. Performing, as slanging buffer (dog) and slanging pig (elephant): circus: late C.19–20. (Laura Knight, Oil Paint and Grease Paint, 1936.) Cf. slanger and slanging, n., 1; also buffer and pig, n., 8.

slanging-dues concerned, there has or have been. A low London c.p. uttered by one who suspects that he has been curtailed of his just portion or right: ca. 1810–50. Vaux. slanging match. An altercation: since ca. 1860: coll. >, ca. 1910, S.E.

slangs. Fetters; leg-irons: c.: from ca. 1810; ob. (Vaux.) Cognate with slang, a watch-chain or any chain whatsoever. Cf. slanged, q.v.—2. As the slangs, a collection of travelling shows; the travelling showman's world or profession: showmen's: prob. from ca. 1850, though app. the first record occurs in T. Hood the Younger's Comic Annual, 1888 (p. 52). Ex slang, a travelling show.

slangular. Belonging to, characteristic of, slang (highly colloquial speech): joc. S.E. verging on coll.: 1853 (Dickens). On angular. (Likewise slanguage, which, however, is definitely S.E.: 1899. Cf. Slango-Saxon, from ca. 1920: a word condemnatory of the slangy tendency of English.)

slangy, flashy or pretentious (ca. 1850–90), and (of dress) loud, vulgar (ca. 1860–1900), may orig. have been coll. Cf. slang, adj., 2, 3.

slant, n. A chance; an opportunity (e.g. of going somewhere): 1837, Fraser's Magazine, 'With the determination of playing them a slippery trick the very first slant I had' (OED). Ex nautical slant, a slight breeze, a favourable wind, a period of windiness. Also Aus. ('Tom Collins', Such is Life, 1903). —2. A plan designed to ensure a particular and favourable result (or scene of operations for that result): Aus.: 1897 (P. Warung); ob. by 1935. OED.—3. A sidelight (on); a different or a truly characteristic opinion (on) or reaction: US, anglicised ca. 1930. Via angle (on).

slant, v. To run away: c.: from ca. 1890. Ex dial. (Graham, 1896), to move away, itself ex slant, to move, travel, obliquely (OED, §3, a). —2. (V.i.) to exaggerate: ca. 1900–1930. Prob. ex slant, 'To diverge from a direct course.' —3. In racing, to lay a bet (v.i.): from ca. 1901.

slanter. A trick: Aus. (rare): C.20. (Wilkes, whose first quot'n is from C.J. Dennis, where used adj. for 'unfair'. Variants are schlanter, shlanter, slinter; perhaps cf. slant, n., 1, as well as schlenter, q.v.)

slantindicular (1855, Smedley); occ. slanting- (1840, J.T. Hewlett) or slanten- (1872, De Morgan). Slanting, oblique; neither perpendicular nor horizontal: joc. coll., orig. —1832—US (see esp. Thornton). OED.—2. Hence, fig.: from ca. 1860.—3. Occ. as n. and adv. Ex slanting on perpendicular. Cf.:

slantindicularly, etc. Slantingly, obliquely: 1834 (De Quincy): joc. coll. (OED). Though recorded earlier than the adj., it must actually be later.

slaoc. Coals: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.).

slap, n. Plunder, booty, 'swag': c.: late C.18—early 19: mainly Anglo-Irish. ? ex slap, a blow.—2. Make-up: theatrical: 1860 (H., 2nd ed.); ob. by 1930. 'Pomes' Marshall, 1897, 'You could just distinguish faintly/That she favoured the judicious use of slap.' Perhaps ex the dial. version of slap; perhaps, however, as Ware suggests, ex 'its being liberally and literally slapped on.' —3. 'A slap-up meal' (Anderson): beatniks': since ca. 1959. Anderson, 'Others have the folding-lettuce for slap.' —4. In have a slap at, to engage in a fight with; to attempt: coll.: since late C.19.—5. See nap the slap.

slap, v. Gen. slap along. To move, walk, quickly: from ca. 1825: coll. and (in C.20, nothing but) dial. ? ex slap, i.e. bang, a door.

slap, adj. Excellent; first-rate; in style: from ca. 1850; ob. Mayhew, 1851, 'People's got proud now ... and must have everything slap.' Abbr. slap-up.

slap, adv. Quickly, suddenly, unexpectedly: coll.: 1672 (Villiers); Sterne. Also slap off (Reade, 1852, 'Finish ... slap off') and † slap down (1865, Dickens). Lit., as if with a slap.—2. With vv. of motion: coll.: 1676 (Etherege, slap down);

1766, Mrs F. Sheridan; 1890, 'Roll Boldrewood'. —3. With vv. of violent collision or impact: coll.: 1825. Meredith, 1861, 'A punch slap into Old Tom's belt.' —4. Directly; straight: coll.: 1829, Marryat, 'I ... lay slap in the way'; Barham, 'Aimed slap at him.' All senses: mainly OED.—5. Precisely: coll.: 1860, H., 2nd ed., "'Slap in the wind's eye," i.e. exactly to windward.'

slap a few on the deck. To fire a few rounds: artillerymen's: WW2. P-G-R.

slap and tickle, a; esp., have a bit of slap and tickle. 'Necking', to 'neck'; but, since late 1950s, usu. to make love: the former, since ca. 1910, the latter since ca. 1920; since ca. 1950, both are coll. The former occurs in, e.g., Somerset Maugham, The Lion's Skin, ca. 1924.

slap-bang, whether adj., adv., or n. (except in its c. sense), is almost certainly S.E.; but slap-bang shop, which 'lived' ca. 1780–1850, is prob.—until C.19, at least—coll., while its abbr., slap-bang (in 'Ducange Anglicus'), is c. In 1785, Grose, who gives a secondary sense that is indubitably coll. or even s., defines it thus: 'Slap-bang shop, a petty cook's shop where there is no credit given; but what is had must be paid down with the ready'—i.e. with cash—'slap-bang, i.e. immediately. This is a common appellation for a night cellar frequented by thieves, and sometimes for a stage coach or caravan': with the latter, cf. the later, long †, slap-bang coach.

slap-bang in the middle. Right in the middle: despite prec., has in C.20 Aus. and Brit., a distinctly coll. flavour. (B.P.; P.B.) slap-dash, v. To do something happy-go-luckily or carelessly: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) In Eng. usage, as adj. and adv., S.E. since C.17 (SOD).

slap down. See slap, adv., 1 and 2.

slap-happy. Very—strictly, boisterously—happy; esp., recklessly happy: coll.: adopted in 1942 from US (see quot'n at stream-lined). Jackson. I.e. back-slappingly happy.—2. A synonym of punch-drunk: since ca. 1945. London Evening News, 27 Oct. 1950.

slap in. To put in a formal application to higher authority, e.g. for redress of grievance, leave, etc.: RN lowerdeck: since ca. 1930. P-G-R; Heart, 1962.

slap in the belly with a wet fish. See better than ...

slap of the tongue. A reprimand or a sharp reply: Anglo-Irish: late C.19–20.

slap off. See slap, adv., 1.

slap-up, n. A battle; an attack: NZ troops': WW1. The word persists [ca. 1935], both in NZ and—though less gen.—in Aus., for a fight of any sort. Cf., with latter nuance, synon. punch-up.

slap-up, adj. Excellent; superior, first-rate; grand: 1823, Bee, who says that it is Northern but does not distinguish between persons and things; 1827, Sporting Magazine, 'That slap-up work, Sporting Magazine' (OED); of persons, certainly in 1829, 'slap-up swell' (Thackeray, 1840, has 'slap-up acquaintances'); both, s. >, ca. 1860, coll. These terms were ob. by early C.20, but the adj. persists, 1980, esp. in slap-up meal, feed, dinner, etc. Cf. bang-up, 2.

slapper. A blow; a punch; esp. on the lowerdeck, a wound: C.19. Bill Truck, Sep. 1824.

slash, n. An outside coat-pocket: c.:—1839 (Brandon); H., 1st ed. Abbr. slash pocket. Ex slash, a vertical slit for the exposition of the lining or an under garment of a contrasting or, at the least, different colour.—2. A urination: c., and low: C.20. See the v., 3.—3. Hence (?), a drink: low London: since ca. 1930. (Arthur La Bern, Pennygreen Street, 1950.) For the semantics, cf. piss-up, a drunken bout.—4. In in the slash, fighting; tailors': from ca. 1860. B. & L.

slash, v.i. To cut a person across the face with a razor: c.:—1933. Esp. as vbl n. Charles E. Leach, On Top of the Underworld. —2. V.t. To deprive (an accomplice) of his share: c.:—1933 (Ibid.). Cf. carve up, q.v.—3. To urinate (usu. of males): low: C.20. (Jonathan Thomas, 1976.) P.B.: rare; much more common as n., esp. in have, or go for, a slash. Cf. slack, v.

slasher. Any person or thing exceptional, esp. if exceptionally severe: from ca. 1820: coll. Cf. ripper, q.v.—2. A man in charge of a 'fleet' of steam or petrol locomotives: Public Works'—1935. Perhaps ex.—3. A fast driver: busmen's: since ca. 1925. Contrast scratcher, 6.—4. A hockey stick: Cranbrook School: since ca. 1920. Proleptic.—5. A knife or a dirk; a sword: RN, mostly lowerdeck: C.19. (Bill Truck, Sep. 1823.) Cf. Slashers, 1.

slashereroo. Excellent, most attractive: Aus.: since ca. 1944. (B., 1953.) The suffix -eroo was adopted from US servicemen; slashing + -eroo.

Slashers, the. The 28th Regiment of Foot (now the Gloucestershire Regiment): army: during and since the American War of Independence. (James, Military Dict., 1802.) Ex an attack delivered, at the Battle of White Plains in 1776, with their short swords (F. & G.) Also the Old Braggs and the Right-Abouts.—2. As slashers, testicles: low: C.20. Barry England, Figures in a Landscape, 1968.

slashing. Exceptionally vigorous, expert, successful, brilliant, notable: from ca. 1820: coll. till C.20, then S.E. Dickens, 'A slashing fortune,' 1854. Cf. slasher.

slashing, adv. Very; brilliantly: coll.: from 1890s; ob. F. & H., 1903, 'A slashing fine woman; a slashing good race; and so forth.' Ex slashing, adj.

slat. A sheet: c.: a mid C.17—mid-18 var. of slate, n., 1, q.v. Coles, 1676; B.E.—2. A half-crown: c.: a late C.18—early 19 var. of slate, n., 2. (Grose, 2nd ed.) It has, among market-traders and since ca. 1830, been used to denote a crown (or 5-shilling piece, hence value), with half-a-slat for half-a-crown (half-crown, 2s 6d)—and is still (1976), despite metrication, used to denote the equivalents (M.T.).—3. See slats.

slate, n. A sheet: c.: 1567, Harman; 1622, Fletcher; Grose, 1st ed.: † by 1840, and prob. ob. a century earlier. ? origin, unless a perversion of flat (even, level): cf. Ger. Blatt. Cf. slat, 1.—2. A half-crown: c.: late C.17—18. (B.E.) ? origin. Cf. slat, 2.—3. As in Andrew Lang, 1887 (earliest record), "'Slate" is a professional term for a severe criticism' (OED): book-world coll. >, ca. 1905, S.E.; by 1930, slightly ob. Ex v., 1.—4. A quarrel: from ca. 1880. Ibid.—5. In on the slate, 'written up against you': lower classes' coll.: late C.19—20. Ware.

slate, v. To criticise severely: coll.: 1848, (Alaric Watts; Blackmore; Saintsbury; Kipling; Kernahan. Ex.—2. To abuse; reprimand or scold severely: 1840: s. (orig. political) >, ca. 1870, coll. Ex.—3. To thrash; beat severely: ca. 1825—70, then very rare: app. orig. Anglo-Irish. If this sense is earlier than the next but one, then it may well derive ex the Scottish and Northern slate, 'to bait, assail, or drive, with dogs,' esp. since this hunting term was used fig. at least as early as 1755.

—4. Hence, as a military coll., to punish (the enemy) severely: 1854, in the Crimea; ob. by 1914.—I, for instance, never heard it used during WW1,—and by 1930 virtually †.—5. (Perhaps the originating sense; presumably ex covering a roof with slates.) To 'bonnet', knock his hat over the eyes of (a person): 1825 (Westmacott); H., 3rd ed. Ob. by 1890, † by 1930. As v.i. in form, fly a tile.—6. (Perhaps ex the military sense.) To bet heavily against (a horse, a human competitor): sporting: from early 1870s; slightly ob. by 1930. H., 5th ed. (1874)—7. In medical s., gen. in the passive, to prophesy the death of (a patient): late C.19—20. (Ware.) Ex putting his name on a slate: see the author's Slang. (For all except the last two senses, dates from OED.)—8. To assign (someone) for a job: Services': since mid-C.20. Usu. in passive + for, as 'We've got you slated for 2 i/c to Tom', or 'He's slated as Jim's replacement'. As 7, ex putting name on a slate. (P.B.)

slate loose or off, have a. To be mentally deficient: s. >, ca. 1900, coll.: loose, 1860, H., 2nd ed.; off, 1867, Rhoda Broughton (OED). The latter, ob. Cf. shingle short, tile loose and also screw loose, qq.v., and dial. have a slate slipped.

slated, ppl adj. See slate, v., esp. in senses 1, 2. Cf. slating.—slated, be. See slate, v., 7, 8.

Slater's pan. A coll. nickname for the gaol at Kingston, Jamaica: West Indies: late C.18—early 19. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Ex the deputy provost-marshal.

slather. See open slather.

slathered. Tipsy: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B.P.) Prob. ex N. Country dial. slather, to spill, to rain, to slobber.

slating, vbl. n. See slate, v., esp. in senses 1, 2, 4.—2. Adj., little used.

slats. The ribs: US, whence Aus.,—1916 (C.J. Dennis), and Can. (John Beames); by ca. 1950, also Brit., esp. in a kick, or punch, in the slats (P.B.). Ex shape.

slaughter, n. A wholesale dismissal of employees: proletarian:—1935. Also a work-out.—2. 'Superintendent Kneff lost his temper. "If we can't catch 'em, we must find the slaughter," he decreed. (A slaughter is the quiet, secluded spot, generally a farm or a walled car park, where thieves transfer stolen goods from one vehicle to another, split consignments into easier-handled amounts, display items to receivers, and go about their unlawful occasions.)' (Jeffrey Scott, 'Wheelman for the Cleaners', in John Creasey's Crime Collection, 1977); police s.: since 1950s. Elliptical for slaughter yard, used metaphorically. Recorded earlier in Angus Hall, On the Run, 1974. Cf. make a killing, and perhaps next, 2.

slaughter-house. A gaming-house where men are employed to pretend to be playing for high stakes: sharpers' c.: 1809 (OED); ob.—2. A shop where, at extremely low prices, goods are bought from small manufacturers (glad of a large turn-over even at a very small profit): 1851 (Mayhew). One would, if it were not for the label laws, name several firms that buy thus. Cf. slaughterer.—3. A factory paying miserable wages: operatives':—1887 (Baumann).—4. The Surrey Sessions House: c.:—1909 (Ware).—5. 'A particularly hard sailing ship with a brutal afterguard': nautical: late C.19—early 20. Bowen.—6. A low brothel: white slavers' c.: C.20. (Londres.) Ex sense 3. slaughterer. A vendor buying very cheaply from small manufacturers: 1851 (Mayhew). Cf. slaughter-house, 2.—2. 'A buyer for re-manufacture: as books for pulp, cloth for shoddy, &c.': late C.19—20 commercial. F. & H.

slaughterman. A manufacturer paying very low wages: (esp. furniture) operatives':—1887 (Baumann). Cf. slaughter-house, 3.

slave. An aircrewman or aircrewwoman: RAF (since ca. 1939) and WAAF (1941+). Jackson. Humorous.

slave-driver. A stern taskmaster or master: coll.: from ca. 1840. P.B.: hence, by back-formation, v. slave-drive.

slave (one's) guts or heart or life (usu. with out). To work extremely hard, usu. with acute anxiety implied: coll.: since late C.19. Baumann (Heart); Manchon.

slave over a hot stove. Esp. in, e.g., 'Here am I, slaving all day ...', the housewife's sometimes ruefully joc., sometimes completely serious, summing up of her existence, usu. with 'while you just enjoy yourself' either stated or implied: in later C.20, almost a c.p. (P.B.)

slaver. A 'white slave' trafficker: coll.: since ca. 1885; by 1950, almost S.E., and ob. Robert Roberts, A Ragged Schooling, 1976.

slavey. A male servant: coll.: ca. 1810—60. (Vaux, Thackeray.) Ex slave.—2. A female servant: coll.: ca. 1810—70. Vaux.—3. Esp. a hard-worked 'general': 1821 (Egan); P.H. Emerson. Cf. skivvy.—4. A servants' attic: London students':—1887 (Baumann); ob. by 1930.

slavey market. An employment bureau for domestic servants: C.20. (Eric Horne, What the Butler Winked At, 1923.) A pun on S.E. slave market.

slaving gloop. A servant: c.: C.19. B. & L. slawmineyeux. A Dutchman: nautical: ca. 1860—1910. Ex Dutch ja, mynheer (yes, sir).

slay. At Shrewsbury School, from ca. 1890, as in Desmond Coke, The Bending of a Twig, 1906, "'Slays" are spreads [feasts], ambitious beyond all imagining, ordered from the Shop.' Cf. the adj. killing.

sleaze, n. Sleaziness: coll.: later C.20. 'Cognoscenti of trash, aficionados of sleaze' (Peter York, Harpers & Queen, Oct. 1976); 'The [play] was dripping showbiz sleaze' (David Robson, Sunday Times, 23 Mar. 1980). Both forms of n. ex-sleazy. Grimy or dilapidated—or both; (cheap and) inferior: adopted, in late 1950s, ex US. A blend of slimy and greasy.—2. Hence, in Brit., garish and disreputable: since ca. 1959. 'Half the wardrobe were in some sleazy night club that was raided' (John Winton, We Saw the Sea, 1960). P.B.: SOD dates sense 1, 1946; adj., and n. sleaziness, by 1983, informal S.E. sledder. A thief: Liverpool street arabs': late C.19—mid-20. (Arab)? Origin.

sledging. In cricket, the taunting of a batsman by members of the opposing team in order to undermine his confidence' (Wilkes): Aus. sporting (!): 1970s.

sleek-and-slum shop. 'A public house or tavern where single men and their wives resort' (Bee): c. of ca. 1820—90. See slum, a room.

sleek wife. A silk handkerchief: c.:—1823; † by 1920. Egan's Grose.

sleep around. '(Of a woman) to be on terms of sexual familiarity with various men friends and acquaintances' (L.A., 1969): coll.: since late 1940s. P.B.: later applied also to males; perhaps not quite so indiscriminating as is implied in pej. 'promiscuous'. Prob. an extension of the euph. sleep with, to copulate. Cf. sleepabout.

sleep at Mrs Greens. See sleep with ...

sleep black. To sleep unwashed: chimney-sweeps' coll.: mid C.19—earlier 20.

sleep-drunk. Very drowsy; 'muzzy': coll.: from ca. 1870; ob. Ex heavy awaking.

sleep like a cow. (Of a married man) 'i.e. with a * at one's a-se', Grose, 1st ed., who quotes the quatrain, 'All you that in your beds do lie,/Turn to your wives and occupy;/And when that you have done your best,/Turn arse to arse, and take your rest'; for a var. here unquotable, see Grose, P. A mid-C.18—mid-19 low coll. P.B.: presumably E.P. meant, in the 1st ed. of this Dict., the couplet: 'All people that on earth do dwell/Turn to your wives and fuck them well.'

sleep on (or upon) a clothes-line. Capable of sleeping in difficult place or position; hence, able to rough it, to look after oneself. Coll.; from ca. 1840.

sleep on bones. (Of children) to sleep in the nurse's lap: coll.: C.19—early 20.

sleep the caller. To lose a shift by failing to hear the caller: miners' (esp. N. Country) coll.: late C.19—20. I.e. to oversleep (by failing to hear) the caller.

sleep tight. See goodnight—sleep tight ...

sleep-walker. A sneak thief: Aus. c.: C.20. B., 1942.

sleep (one's) way (up). (Of a woman) to gain advantage by dispensing sexual favours, as in Alan Hunter, Gently in Trees, 1974: '[She] is a promiscuous bitch, to my certain knowledge. She was using Adrian [a theatrical producer] to sleep her way to the big time': later C.20, poss. ex US. (P.B.)

sleep with Mrs Green. To sleep in the open: NZ tramps' c.,—1932; hence, also Aus. (Baker). Aus. var., in K.S. Prichard, Kiss on the Lips, 1932, sleep at Mrs Green's. I.e. on the green grass. Cf. Greenfields, 1, and Star Hotel.

sleepabout. A man that will 'sleep around', q.v.: since ca. 1975. (H.R.F. Keating, book review, The Times, 16 Nov. 1978.) A blend of 'sleep around' and 'layabout.' (P.B.)

sleepers. A player too much favoured by his handicap: lawn tennis:—1923 (Manchon).—2. A delayed-action bomb: from 1940.—3. (?) Hence, as in 'Haydon who ... was recruited by Karla the Russian as a "mole", or "sleeper", or in English, agent of penetration' (John Le Carré, The Honourable Schoolboy, 1977); he remains 'asleep' until called upon to act for his masters, perhaps many years later: espionage: since ca. 1945.—4. A book, gramophone record, etc., that, after starting unsatisfactorily to sell, eventually becomes a 'hit': trade coll.: since ca. 1950. (B.P.; David Wharton.) Cf.:—5. In the secondhand book trade, a book one dealer finds in another dealer's stock, and buys considerably underpriced according to the current market: 1970s. (Geoffrey Wakeman, 1980.) A specialisation of 4.—6. 'Second man on diesel' (Railway, 2nd): railwaymen's: since late 1950s.—7. A sleeping pill, or sedative drug: since late 1920s. The agential sleep, a soporific.

sleeping. Slow-witted: Glasgow:—1934. Cf. slept in, q.v. sleeping near a crack (, I, he, or you) must have been. A c.p. reply to an inquiry as to how a male has caught a cold: lower and lower-middle classes': late C.19—20. (Ernest Raymond, Mary Leith, 1931.) An innuendo in respect of the anatomical crack.

sleeping-partner. A bed-fellow: joc. coll.: mid-C.19—20.

sleeping policeman. A ramp on a private or restricted-access road to slow down traffic: since (?) ca. 1960; by 1970, coll.; by 1977, virtually S.E. Cf. silent cap. (P.B.) sleepless hat. A hat with the nap worn off: ca. 1860—1905. H., 3rd ed.; Baumann. Cf.:

sleepy. Grose, 2nd ed., has this punning c.p.: the cloth of your coat must be extremely sleepy; for it has not had a nap this long time: late C.18—early 19. Whence sleepless hat, q.v.; cf. wide-awake.—2. Repaid, recompensed: low:—1923 (Manchon).

sleepy buds. Var. of sleepy seeds.

sleepy Lizzie. Seems to elaborate Lizzie, 2—or is this the shell? Rifleman W. Hackett, in Wounded Five Times in a Second, a memoir of WW1, also mentions Black Marias, q.v. at sense 2, and Tiny Tims.

Sleepy Queens, the. The 2nd Foot Regiment (ca. 1880—1901, the Queen's Royal Regiment): army: from ca. 1850; very ob. by 1930.

sleepy-seeds. The mucus forming about the eyes in sleep: nursery: late C.19—20. Suggested by sand-man (q.v.) and sleepy sickness. Also, same milieu and period, sleepy buds (P.B.).

sleepy-walker. A sleep-walker: lower classes' coll.:—1887 (Baumann).

sleeve. See six pots.

sleeve-board. A word hard to pronounce: tailors': from ca. 1870. Ex hardness.

sleeveology. See shouldology.

sleever. An order taken by a 'commercial' on a good day but held up for the next day, to preclude reporting a blank day to his employers: commercial travellers': late C.19—20. I.e. an order 'up one's sleeve'.—2. A drinking straw: NZ: C.20. B., 1941, compares Aus. (long) sleever, a long drink: later C.19—mid-20.

slender in the middle as a cow in the waist, as. Very fat: C.17—20 (ob.): coll. till C.19, then dial. Burton, 1621; Fuller, 1732; Evans, Leicestershire Words, 1881. Apperson.

slept in (he, she, etc.). A Glasgow c.p. (—1934)=too late; not quick enough.

slew. To defeat, baffle, outwit: late C.19—20; since ca. 1930, predominantly Aus. (Baker). Implied in next, 2.

slewed; occ., early, slued. Topsy: coll.: 1834, M. Scott (slewed); 1844, Dickens (slued). A later C.20 intensive is slewed out of (one's) skull. Ex slew, to swing round.—2. Hence, beaten, baffled: coll.: late C.19—earlier 20.—3. Hence, lost in 'the bush': Aus.: late C.19—20. Boyd Cable, letter, Observer, 30 Oct. 1938, 'The man who (on tramp,) loses the track and gets "bushed" or "slewed" may easily die of thirst or "do a perish".' slewing a head. See pullaway at AUSTRALIAN UNDERWORLD, in Appendix.

slice, n. A slice of bread and butter: coll.: C.20. Anon., 'Down and Out', Week-End Review, 18 Nov. 1933.—2. In take a slice, 'To intrigue, particularly with a married woman, because a slice of [sic] a cut loaf is not missed' (Grose, 2nd ed.): coll.: mid-C.18—mid-19. Ex the C.17—20 proverbial it is safe taking a shive (in C.18—19, occ. slice) of a cut loaf, as in Shakespeare's Titus Andronicus. (Apperson.) Extant as take (or help yourself to) a slice off the loaf, as in Arthur J. Sarl, Gamblers of the Turf, 1938, 'You could safely help yourself to ...'; and, allusively, in Alan Hunter, Gently Does It, 1955, 'He'd give his arm to tumble her [and] I wouldn't mind a slice myself, if it comes to that.'—2. An attractive girl: teenage boys': 1982. (Mrs Helen Burt.) Cf. hunk, q.v., and the synon tart, pastry, etc.

Slice of Cheese, the. 'The monument erected by Mussolini west of Tobruk. It was wedged-shaped' (Peter Sanders, Sunday Times mag., 10 Sep. 1967); army in N. Africa: 1940–3.

slice of fat. A profitable robbery: c.:—1887 (Baumann).

slice of ham. Var. of plate of ham.

slice of knuckle pie. A punch in the mouth: low: C.20.

(Heart, 1962.) Cf. synon. knuckle sandwich, and contrast: slice of pie. Army var. of piece of cake: ca. 1940–6. P-G-R.

slice off. To settle part of (an old score): Services':—1909 (Ware).

sliced bread. See greatest thing since ...

slick, n. 'A fine result or appearance': Conway cadets: C.20. (John Masefield, The Conway, 1933.) Ex the adj.

slick, v. To despatch rapidly, get done with: coll.: 1860 (H., 2nd ed.); ob. Ex slick, to polish: cf. polish off, q.v.—2. See eron, §2, in Appendix.

slick, adj. Neat or smooth; attractive, desirable: Can.: adopted, ca. 1946, ex US. 'Boy, look at Jane! There's a slick chick.' (Leechman.) The term slick chick for a girl, esp. a young lady, was fashionable among teenagers, beatniks, etc., in the late 1950s (Anderson); cf. quot'n at canary, 12.—2. See slickee ...

slick-a-dee. A pocket-book: Scots c.:—1839 (Brandon); H., 1st ed.; ob. by 1930. On dee, the same.

slicked down. (Of male head-hair) plastered down with brilliantine, etc.: coll.: adopted ca. 1930 from US.

slickee-slickee, n., and slicky-slick, v. Theft; to steal; not in a big way: United Nations troops in Korea: ca. 1951–55. (Iddiwah, July 1953.) By pidgin English out of slick, not quite-honestly smart, itself adopted, ca. 1918, ex US—as coll., not s.

slicker. A city person 'who tries to out-fox the country folk; or someone who dresses "real slick" in very fancy, stylish or expensive clothing. Usu. a man. Also "city slicker"' (Robin Leech, 1980): Can.: later C.20, adopted ex US, as it has been in coll. English, where the term city slicker is, when used as e.g. political pej., bordering on informal S.E. W. & F., 1960, note 'archaic' for US, but give quot'ns ca. 1950 for both terms. The orig. is the US Samuel Slick of Slickville, The Clockmaker of Thomas Haliburton, 1837; slick ultimately ex sleek. (P.B.) slicks. Magazines printed on glazed stock: Can. journalists', printers', publishers', news-vendors': since ca. 1930. (Leechman.) Cf. synon. glossies, and shinies.

'Slid! Coll. abbr. God's lid, a late C.16–17 petty oath. OED.

slide, n. Butter: RN lowerdeck: since ca. 1930. Hence slide and glitter, butter and marmalade: id.: inaccurately glossed as 'toast and marmalade' in Weekly Telegraph, 13 Sep. 1941. Ex greasiness.—2. See slide up ...

slide, v. (Esp. in the imperative.) To decamp: coll.: US (—1859) anglicised ca. 1890. Whiteing, 1899, 'Cheese it, an' slide.' Occ. slide out. Ex slide, to move silently, stealthily.—2. See let it slide!; and slide your jive, at CANADIAN ADOLESCENTS', in Appendix.

slide up the board or the straight, do a. (Of a man) to coit: low: from ca. 1870. Cf. rush up the straight.

slider. An ice-cream wafer: Glasgow:—1934 (Alastair Baxter).

sliders. A pair of drawers: coll.: late C.17–mid-18. J. Dickens, 1699.

slieveen. A deceitful person: Newfoundland coll. (? dial.): late C.19–20. (L.E.F. English, Historic Newfoundland, 1955.) Ex Gaelic sligheach, sly.

'Slife! God's life!: C.17–18 coll. Preserved only in period plays and Wardour Street novels. By abbr. Cf. 'Slid, q.v., and:

'Slidikins. A petty oath: coll.: late C.17–18. Ex 'Slid on 'Sbodikins. OED.

'Slight! God's light!: a late C.16–17 oath: trivial coll. OED. slightly-tightly. Bemused (not drunk) with liquor: fast life: ca. 1905–14. (Ware.) Perversion of slightly 'tight'.

sligo, tip (someone) the. To warn by winking; wink at: 1775, S.J. Pratt, 'I tips Slappim the sligo, and nudges the elbow of Trugge, as much as to say, ... I have him in view' (OED). Prob. on sly: o is a common s. suffix.

slim, n. Rum (the drink): c.: 1789 (G. Parker); † by 1850. ?rum perverted.—2. As Slim, 'The Navy's ironic name for a fat man' (P-G-R): since ca. 1920.

slim, adj. Tricky, artful: 1674 (SOD); by later C.19 coll., almost s.; by mid-C.20, ob. 'We were discussing "slim" practices and the prevalence of the basic desire to get something for nothing' (Punch, 15 Jan. 1919).

slim-dilly. A girl, young woman: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Cf. skinny.

slime, n. Semen: low: C.19–20.

slime, v.i. To 'cut' games; to loaf: Durham School: late C.19–20. Ex S.E. slime, to crawl slimly.—2. To sneak along: Felsted: late C.19–20. Whence do slime, to take a mean or crafty advantage. Cf.:—3. To move, go, quietly, stealthily, or sneakily: Harrow: late C.19–20. Howson & Warner, 1898, 'His house-beak slimed and twug him.'—4. Hence, to make 'drops' at racquets: Harrow: from ca. 1900.—5. To flatter, to curry favour: Aus. low coll.: later C.20. (McNeil.) Cf. deriv. of sense 1.

slimy. Deceitful; treacherous: coll.: C.20. Ex slimy, vile.

sling, n. A draught of, 'pull' at a drink, bottle: 1788 (OED); † by 1903, prob. by 1860, perhaps (cf. W.) by 1830. Cf. go.—2. A bribe: Aus. c. and low: since 1930s. Also sling back (K.S. Prichard, Golden Miles, 1948: Wilkes). Ex v., 10.—3. Hence, a tip (of money): Aus.: since ca. 1935. (B., 1959.) Senses 2 and 3: cf. v., 2, 3.—4. In beat it for the sling, fail to appear in court. See AUSTRALIAN UNDERWORLD, in Appendix.

sling, v. To utter: coll.: C.15–20. (OED.) See sling language and cf. sense 3.—2. To distribute or dispense: s. (—1860) >, ca. 1890, coll. H., 2nd ed., 'Sling, to pass from one person to another.'—3. Hence, to give (as in 'Sling us a tanner'): low (—1887) >, by 1910, low coll. Baumann.—4. To do easily: from ca. 1864: s. >, ca. 1900, coll. Mainly in sling ink, etc.—5.

To use (e.g. slang); relate (a story): from ca. 1880: s. >, ca. 1910, coll. Mrs Lynn Linton, 'I am awfully sorry if I slung you any slang' (OED). See sling a yarn and sling slang.—6. To abandon: C.20: mostly Aus. H. Lawson, 1902, 'Just you sling it [liquor] for a year' (OED).—7. For c. usage, see sling (one's) hook, 2, and sling the smash. In c., moreover, sling = to throw away: late C.19–20: cf. sling, to abandon.—8. Short for sling a snot, q.v.—9. V.i. to sleep in a hammock: Conway cadets: late C.19–20. (John Masefield, The Conway, 1933.) Abbr. sling one's hammock.—10. 'To pay a bribe or gratuity, esp. as a percentage of wages or winnings' (Wilkes): Aus.: since 1930s. Cf. n., 2 and 3.—11. To fire (shells): army: WW2. P-G-R.—12. (Of a horse) to throw (its rider): Aus.: since ca. 1910. B., 1943.—13. In let her sling!, see sling yourself!

sling a book, poem, an article. To write one: from ca. 1870: s. >, 1900, coll. Cf. sling ink, q.v.

sling a cat. To vomit: low: mid-C.19—early 20. Cf. jerk the cat.

sling a daddle. To shake hands: low: from ca. 1870. Cf. slang the mauleys.

sling a foot. To dance: coll.: from ca. 1860; ob. Cf. sling (one's) body.

sling a hat. To wave one's hat in applause: ca. 1830–1930.

sling a nasty part. To act a part so well that it would be hard to rival it: orig. and mainly theatrical: from ca. 1880. Ex:

sling (or jerk) a part. To undertake, to play, a role: theatrical: from ca. 1880.

sling a pen. See sling ink.

sling a pot. To drink (liquor): from ca. 1870: coll. rather than s.

sling a slobber. To give a kiss; hence, to kiss: low:—1909 (Ware). Ex sling, v., 3 (q.v.) and slobber, which, very low s. for a kiss, dates from late C.19.

sling a snot. To blow one's nose with one's fingers: low: from ca. 1860. Also, from ca. 1870, simply sling (v.i.): ob. (H., 5th ed.) Cf. docker's hankie.

sling a tinkler. To ring a bell: ca. 1870–1930.

sling a yarn. To relate a story: C.20: s. >, ca. 1930, coll. Cf. sling language, q.v.—2. Hence, to tell a lie: 1904, The Strand Magazine, March, 'Maybe you think I am just slinging you a yarn' (OED).

sling about, v.i. To idle; to loaf: from ca. 1870; in C.20, coll. sling (one's) body. To dance vigorously: London proletarian:—1909 (Ware). Cf. sling a foot.

sling (one's) bunk. To depart: ca. 1860–1910. (B. & L.) I.e. sling up one's hammock (and go).

sling (one's) Daniel. To make off; decamp: low: from mid-C.19. Sessions, Nov. 1866, 'One of the constables said, "Sling your dannel!"' Occ. var. dannet. Cf. sling (one's) hook.

sling 'em out! The c.p. of the RN lowerdeck dhobying firm: C.20. (Granville.) The 'em = dirty clothes. See DCpp.

sling (one's) hammock. To be given time to settle down in new surroundings' ('Taffrail', The Sub, 1917); esp. in a new ship: RN coll.: since late C.19.

sling (one's) hook. To run away; depart, secretly or hastily, or both: low: from ca. 1860. H.; Baumann, 1887; Kipling, 1892, 'Before you sling your 'ook, at the 'ousetops take a look.' In C.19, sometimes take... (Baumann); poss. nautical (hook = anchor), though Ware derives it from mining procedure. Cf. hook it, and sling (one's) Daniel.—2. Hence, to die: ca. 1860–1960.—3. To pick pockets: c.: 1870s. (Anon., Five Years' Penal Servitude, 1877: OED.) Perhaps in this sense hook = finger (P.B.).

sling ink; occ. sling a pen. To write: from ca. 1864: s >, ca. 1900, coll. Orig. US and app. coined by Artemus Ward.

sling it. To leave one's work or one's job: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1910. (K.S. Prichard.) Cf. sling up.

sling (one's) jelly or juice. To masturbate: low: from ca. 1870.

sling language or words. To talk: mid-C.19—earlier 20: s. >, ca. 1900, coll. Cf. sling, v. 1, sling a yarn, 1, and sling the bat.

sling-next. To two cadets sleeping on either side of oneself: Conway cadets': late C.19–20. (John Masefield, The Conway, 1933.) See sling, v., 9.

sling off, v.i. To utter abuse or cheek or impertinence.—2. V.t. with at, to give cheek to, to jeer at, to taunt. Both: late C.19–20. (See Slang, pp. 2–3.) In C.20, esp. Aus. (Wilkes).—3. To depart; to make off: Aus.: since ca. 1925. B., 1942.

sling (a person) one in the eye. To punch one in the eye, gen. with the implication of blackening it: 1899 (Whiteing).

sling one up. Var., army and RAF, of throw (a commissioned officer) one up, to salute: since 1930s. Jackson.

sling over. 'To embrace emphatically': Society: ca. 1905–14. Ex US, says Ware.

sling round. 'To air-test an aircraft' (Jackson): RAF, and civilian test pilots': since ca. 1930. The pilot does aerobatics.

sling round on the loose. To act recklessly: from ca. 1875; in C.20, coll. Poss. an elab. of sling about, q.v.

sling (one's) service about. To boast, esp. of the length of one's service: Services': earlier C.20. F. & G.

sling (a person) slang. To abuse, scold violently: from ca. 1880: s. >, ca. 1910, coll. See sling, v., 5.

sling tail. Pickled pork: low: ca. 1825–90. Sinks, 1848.

sling the bat. To speak the vernacular (esp. of the foreign country, orig. India, where one happens to be): military: late C.19–20. (Kipling, 1892.) See bat.

sling the booze. To stand treat: low: from ca. 1860. Cf. sling, v., 2.

sling the hatchet. To exaggerate greatly; tell yarns; lie: low: since—1821; ob. by mid-C.20. In nuance 'tell a pitiful tale': 1893 (P.H. Emerson, Signor Lippo). Also as throw...:—1789; ob. by 1930—2. To sulk; skulk; sham: nautical: from ca. 1850. Whence the vbl nn. hatchet-slinging and -throwing; the former in G. Parker, 1789. 'App. a variant on draw the longbow' sling the language. To swear fluently: lower classes':—1903; ob.—2. To speak a foreign language: military: from 1915. Cf. sling the bat.

(W.).—3. To make off; escape: c.:—1923 (Manchon). By prob. deliberate confusion with sling one's hook, q.v.—4. To talk plausibly: Services': late C.19—early 20. (F. & G.) Ex sense 1.

sling the lead. A C.20 Glasgow var. of swing the lead.

sling the smash. To smuggle tobacco to prisoners: c.: from the 1870s. (Anon., 1877, Five Years' Penal Servitude: OED.) Cf. sling, v., 2.

sling the tip. To give a hint; impart information: proletarian: from ca. 1860. B. & L.

sling to. To pay out (esp. protection) money to; to bribe: Aus.: since ca. 1920. See sling, v., 10.

sling (one's) tross. (Usu. in imperative.) Go away: low: late C.19. 'A variant of the more common "sling your hook"' (P.J. Keating, ed., Working Class Stories of the 1890s, 1971). See tross.

sling type. To set type: printers' s.:—1887 (Baumann) >, by 1910, coll., and by 1930, ob.

sling (esp. it) up. To abandon (job, country, talk, action, etc.): Aus.: late C.19–20. G.B. Lancaster, Jim of the Ranges, 1910. 'I've sling her [Queensland] up. Give her the go, the old Jade.'

sling words. See sling language and contrast sling the language, 2.

sling yourself! or let her sling! Bestir yourself! get a move on!: low: from ca. 1880; the former is very ob. Cf. sling one's Daniel.

slinge. To play truant; to stay away from work: Newfoundland coll.: C.19–20. (L.E.F. English, Historic Newfoundland, 1955.) Ex Irish and Sc. Dial slinge to skulk.

Slinger. 'Inevitable' nickname of any man surnamed Woods: Services': late C.19—early 20. (Bowen.) Cf. Lac(k)ery; Timber.

slingers. Bread afloat or dipped in tea or coffee; dumpings; sausages: low (—1889) >, by 1900, Services' and (esp. sausages) Aus. B. & L.; Goodenough, 1901; P.B.—2. As the slingers, dismissal; rejection; abandonment: low, then gen.: since ca. 1940. Frank Norman, 1959.

slink, n. A sneak, skulker, cheat: dial (—1824) >, ca. 1830, coll. The Examiner, 1830, 'Such a d—d slink' (OED). Ex slink, an abortive calf, etc.—2. Hence, in C.20, and esp. among market traders, a loafer, as in 'slinks and slags, loafers and layabouts' (M.T.).—3. Meat fat; hence slink-walloper, someone fond of it; hence, adj., greedy, hence inferior: RN training ships': early C.20. J.R. West, referring to TS Indefatigable. (Peppitt.) slink, v.i. To abort: low:—1923 (Manchon). See n., 1, for orig.

slink, adj. See n., 3.

slinkers in for (someone), put the. To hint adversely to authority about (someone): L.A. notes hearing it ca. 1960. To slink evokes an impression of craftiness and slyness.

slinky. Sneaky, mean, sly, furtive: dial. and coll.: since late C.19. E.g., among schoolboys, a slinky one = a silent but pungent fart, released with malice aforethought (P.B.). Ex slink, n., 1.—2. Hence, (of a person's gait) stealthy: late C.19–20.—3. Hence, (of gait) slyly smooth; glidingly and unobtrusively sensuous or voluptuous: C.20. Senses 2, 3 have been influenced by slink, to move stealthily, as has: slinter. A trick, esp. if unfair; mostly in work a slinter, to effect a mean trick, tell a false story: Aus. low: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Cf. slant, n., 4; slanter, and schlenter, qq.v.

—4. Sense 3 applied esp. to a woman's smooth and clinging dress or gown, e.g., 'a slinky little number in black, with velvet trimming': coll.: later C.20. (P.B.)

slip, n. A counterfeit coin: ca. 1590–1630: perhaps orig. c., as its use by Greene suggests. Origin doubtful. The derivative nail up for a slip, to try and find wanting (late C.16—early 17), may, orig. at least, have been coll.—2. A slash-pocket in the rearward skirt of a coat: ca. 1810–40. Vaux.—3. Abbr. side-slip, a method of losing height quickly without gaining speed: RAF coll.:—1932. Cf. slip off.—4. A slipper: domestic: since ca. 1880. Daphne du Maurier, Rebecca, 1938.—5. Baked custard: middle-class: since ca. 1860. Slippery stuff.—6. A small sum given by the operators to a loser now penniless, to enable him to get home: Aus. two-up-players': since ca. 1920. (B., 1953.) They slip it to him.

slip, v.i.; gen. be slipping. To weaken, physically; go downhill, fig.; lose grip, ground, status, etc.: coll.: C.20. Ex one's foot slipping.

slip (her) a crippler; sometimes ... a quick crippler. Synon. with slip a length, 1: low, mostly Services': since (?) ca. 1950. (P.B.) slip a joey. (Of a woman) to have a miscarriage; but also, to give birth to a child: Aus. low: C.20. (B., 1942.) Ex joey, 4. slip (her) a length. To coit with (a woman): low: late C.19–20.—2. Hence, slip him a length, to reprimand: army: since ca. 1925.—3. Of a man, to have homosexual relations with: Aus. low s.: late C.19–20. Construction: slip a length into. Colin MacInnes, June in her Spring, 1952.

slip at, let. To rush violently at a person and then assault him vigorously: coll.:—1860 (H., 2nd ed.) Cf. slip into.

slip (one's) breath, cable, wind. To die: resp. 1819 (Wolcot: OED); 1751, Smollett, 'I told him [a doctor] as how I could slip my cable without direction or assistance'; 1772, Bridges. Orig. nautical s.; by mid-C.19, gen. coll. In post-WW1 days, slip one's breath and wind are never heard; they > † ca. 1910. slip-horn. See fish-horn.

slip in the gutter. (Bread and) butter: rhyming s.: C.20. Franklyn, Rhyming.

slip into. To begin punching (a person) vigorously, gen. with the connotation that the person 'slipped into' receives a sound beating: low coll.:—1860 (H., 2nd ed.). In later C.20, Aus. low (Wilkes). Cf. slip at.—2. To set about a task, a thing, will a will, vigorously: low coll.:—1887 (Baumann).—3. To coit with (a woman): low: from ca. 1870.

slip it. To decamp, make off: ca. 1880–1920. (J.W. Horsley, Prisons and Prisoners, 1898.) Cf. S.E. to slip away.

slip it about (a woman). To coit with: C.20. Cf. slip into, 3. slip it across or over (a person). To hoodwink; to befool: from ca. 1912. B. & P.—2. To punch or strike: army: C.20. Also push...

slip of the shoulder. (Of the woman victim) seduction: coll.: C.19.

slip off (height). To fly lower esp. by rapid descent: aviators' coll.: from ca. 1925. New Statesman and Nation, 20 Feb. 1937.

slip off the hooks. See hooks, 5.

slip (one) self. To let oneself go; make the most of a thing or opportunity: Cockney coll.: from ca. 1890. Edwin Pugh's Cockney stories, passim.

slip-slop. Kissing: early C.18. See MISCELLANEA, in Appendix.

slip-slops. 'Soft' drinks: C.18. Ned Ward, The Whole Pleasures of Matrimony, 1714 (cited by W. Matthews).—2. Slippers: domestic coll.: C.20, prob. earlier. Also a var. of flip-flops, the oriental drag-slippers or sandals. (P.B.) And see thongs.

slip-stick. A slide-rule: Can. engineers' and architects': since ca. 1940. (Leechman.) Cf. RN look-stick.

slip (one's) trolley. To go mad; to lose control of one's emotions: since late 1940s. Ex slipped off his trolley, or lost it? Perhaps orig. trolley-bus or tram-drivers' s., as R.S. has suggested; if so, then dating from ca. 1925 or earlier.

slip up, v. To swindle; to disappoint: Aus.: 1890, Melbourne Argus, 9 Aug., 'I'd only be slipped up if I trusted to them' (OED). Ex slip, to elude, evade, stealthily; give the slip to.—2. In slip (a girl) up, to render her pregnant unexpectedly or by trickery: lower classes':—1923 (Manchon).—3. v.i. To make a mistake, to fail: mid-C.19–20; US, anglicised ca. 1910 as a coll. var. of make a slip. OED; Lyell.

slip-up, n. An appointment or rendezvous intentionally failed: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.—2. An error, the n. ex prec., 3: coll. verging on informal S.E.: since (?) mid-C.20. 'Fraid you've made a bit of a slip-up there.' (P.B.) slip (one's) wind. See slip (one's) breath...

slipper. A sixpence: tailors':—1909 (Ware). Because it slips into cracks and corners.—2. A slipper-shaped bed-pan for both sexes and both purposes: hospital coll.: late C.19–20.

slipper Sam. A gambling card game: late C.19–20.

Slipper-Slopper. See old Mother...

slippers on (, with or it's got). Said of a noiseless fart: schoolboys': C.20. (L.A., 1978.) Cf. stinky, 1.

slippery, n. Soap: c.:—1839 (Brandon); ob. by 1939.—2. Forged banknotes: orig. c., then low s.: prob. throughout C.20. (Petch, 1971.) Cf. slither, n. and slip, n. 1.

slippery, adj. Quick: coll.: late C.19–20. Prob. ex slippy.—2. Clever; (very) skilful or adroit: lower-class: since ca. 1930. Peter Crookston, Villain, 1967, 'Some of the old blacksmiths were very slippery.'

slipping, be. To be dying: white-slavers' c., applied to a prostitute (working for a pimp): C.20. (Londres.) Cf. slip (one's) breath...

slippy. Quick; spry, nimble: dial. (—1847) >, ca. 1880, coll. Esp. look slippy (Runciman, 1885) and be slippy ('Rolf Boldrewood', 1889). Coulson Kernahan, 1902, 'We must look slippy about it... It's lucky I haven't far to go.' Ex slippy = slippery in its fig. as well as lit. senses. OED.

slips. In theatre or cinema, the sides of a gallery: Aus: since ca. 1920. (Baker.) Wilkes, letter, 1979, comments, 'Not Aus. I had seats in the gallery slips at Covent Garden in the 1950s, and they were so advertised', to which Camilla Raab adds, 'since season 1946–7, according to C.G. archives'.

slips his braces, he. Said of a man complainant to homosexuality: coll.: C.20.

slit, the female pudend. When not euph. it is a low coll.: C.17–20.—2. Clitoris: raffish: since ca. 1920.—3. A slit trench: army coll.: frequent in both WW1 and WW2. Petch cites Capt. Harold Dearden, RAMC, Medicine and Duty, 1928, for WW1 usage. Cf. slittie.—4. (Gen. in pl.) Women: low: since early 1920s. Ex 1.

slither, n. Counterfeit money: c.:—1929 (OED Sup.). Cf. slippery, n., 2.—2. A rush, a great hurry: 1915 (Edgar Wallace: OED). Ex the v.—3. Short for slither and dodge, a lodge (e.g. of Oddfellows): rhyming s.: late C.19–20. New Statesman, 29 Nov. 1941.

slither, v.i. To hurry (away): low:—1889 (B. & L.); also Aus. (B., 1943). Ex slither, to slide: cf. slide, q.v. Imm. ex dial. (EDD).

slitherum. A counterfeit coin: c.: C.20. (Yorkshire Post, latish May 1937.) Ex slither, n., 1; lit.: a 'slither' one.

slithery. Sexual intercourse: c., and low: C.20.

slittie. A slit trench: army, Other Ranks': 1940–5. P-G-R.

sloan. To hamper, obstruct, balk: lower classes': 1899 only. Ex jockey Sloan's trick—learnt from Archer—of slanting his horse across the track and thus obstructing the other riders. Ware.

Sloane Rangers, the. Generic nickname, coined by Peter York for his article in Harpers & Queen, Oct, 1975, for the distinctive upper-middle class, ex public and finishing school girl secretaries, living around Sloane Square, London, and going to their county homes at weekends. A witty pun blending the district, the cartoon character The Lone Ranger, and various regimental names. P.Y. writes, 'They haven't a big vocabulary, though they heighten the effect of their few adjectives by exaggeration—"the most", "utterly", "riveting", "spastic", "blissful", "draggy".' See esp. P. York, Style Wars, 1980, for a wickedly observant natural history of the genus. (P.B.) slob. A 'softy', a fool, a (stupid) lout: (orig. low) coll.: C.20. (Ruth Park, Pink Flannel, 1955.) Ex the Anglo-Irish slob, 'A soft fat quiet simple-minded girl or boy:—"Your little Nellie is a quiet poor slob"; used as a term of endearment' (P.W. Joyce, English... in Ireland, 1910).—2. Hence, a heavily-built, slow-moving, dull-witted, meagre-principled, imperceptive man: since ca. 1920. (Reminder from L.A., 1976.) Since WW2, occ. of a female. P.B.: prob. reinforced by US influence.

slobber, n. Ink badly distributed: printers' coll.: from ca. 1870.—2. A kiss: Cockneys': late C.19—early 20. (W.S. Maugham, Liza of Lambeth, 1897.) See sling a slobber and slobberation.

slobber, v. To fail to grasp (the ball) cleanly in fielding: cricket coll.: 1851 (Fycroft); † by 1890. (Lewis.) For semantics, cf. butter in its cricketing sense.

slobber-awing. A complete circle on the horizontal bar: circus s. verging on j.:—1933 (E. Seago).

slobberation. Kissing, esp. (lit.) sloppy kissing: low coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Cf. sling a slobber.

slobberings. Money, esp. cash: c.:—1923 (Manchon).

slobgollion. 'An oozy, stringy substance found in sperm oil': whelmen's: from ca. 1880. (Clarke Russell.) Perhaps a perversion of slumgullion (q.v.) on slob, mud, ooze. P.B.: cf. also the older slubberdegullion.

slockdolager; slogdolager. See sockdolager.

slog, n. (A period of) hard, steady work: coll.: 1888 (OED). Hence, have a slog on, to work hard or hurriedly or both: id. Ex v., 6.—2. A hard punch or blow; (at cricket) a hard hit: coll.: 1867 (Lewis); as a 'slogger' (sense 3), it appears also in 1867 (ibid), but is rare. Ex v., 1; cf. v., 4.—3. A large portion, esp. of cake: Public Schools': late C.19—20.

slog, v.t. To punch, hit, hard: coll.: since early C.19. Sessions, Sep. 1824, 'One of them said, "Go back and slog him"'; 'settle the matter by a combat à l'outrance, or "slogging" as such encounters were generally called by the men of "Ours" [= our regi]' (N.W. Bancroft, From Recruit to Staff Sergeant, 1885); Bengal Horse Artillerymen's: 1840s. A century later, in H.D. Miles, Dick Turpin, 1941, "'Slog her, Nan; that's the cheese.'" Cf. to slug.—2. Hence, to trash, chastise: 1859 (H., 1st ed.).—3. Hence, fig., attack violently: coll.: 1891, Spectator, 10 Oct., 'They love snubbing their friends and slogging their enemies' (OED).—4. (Ex sense 1.) To make runs at cricket by hard hitting: v.i. and v.t.: coll.: resp. early 1860s (H., 3rd ed.) and in 1867 (Lewis).—5. V.i., to walk heavily, perseveringly: coll.: 1872 (Calverley: OED). Prob. ex sense 1. Cf. foot-slogger, q.v.—6. V.i. To work hard and steadily, often with away, v.t. with at: coll.: 1888, Daily News, 22 May, 'I slogged at it, day in and day out' (OED). Ex sense 1.—7. V.i., to steal fruit, esp. apples: school-children's: from ca. 1880. (Neil Bell, Crocus, 1936.) Cf. scrounge, v., and scrump.

slog (one's) guts out. An intensification of prec., 6: C.20. (P.B.)

slog it on. See schlog...

slogdolager. See sockdolager: Manchon.

slogged, get. To be charged an excessive price: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) See schlog...

slogger. Gen. in pl. A trial or 2nd division rowing-race: Cambridge: ca. 1852–80. In etym., prob. cognate with ensuing senses; H., 1860, proposes slow-goers, but this seems unlikely. Cf. the Oxford toggers, q.v.—2. A boxer (Sinks, 1848); any deliverer of heavy blows: coll.: 1857, T. Hughes, 'The Slogger pulls up at last... fairly blown.' Ex slog, v., 1.—3. At cricket, a hard hitter: coll.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.).—4. A (hard) punch: pugilistic: 1824 (Boxiana, IV); ob. by 1930.—5. A slung shot (as a weapon): c.: 1892 (OED).—6. A quick worker: proletarian coll.: from ca. 1860; slightly ob. by 1950, but the nuance 'a hard and persistent worker' remains, 1980. Ex v., 6. B. & L.; P.B.

slogging, vbl n. (cricket, 1860: Lewis) and ppl adj. See slog, v., various senses.

slonk. To sleep, doze, or just laze: Services': since ca. 1950. Interchangeable with gonk. (P.B.) E.P. suggests perhaps a blend of sleep + either gonk or honk, both of which are echoic, but there is also a strong element of slump, v.i.

sloo. 'To get out of the way' (L.E.F. English, Historic Newfoundland, 1955): Newfoundland coll.: C.20. An adaptation of E. slew or slue (v.i.), to swing round.

Slood. Var. of Slud, q.v.

sloom. See keep sloom.

sloop. A neckerchief: c.:—1933 (Charles E. Leach). Perhaps because 's a loop.

sloop of war. A whore: rhyming s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.); † by 1874: H, 5th ed., has 'Rory o' More, the floor. Also to signify a whore.'

sloosh. A wash, a sound of washing: from ca. 1905. (OED Sup.) Ex sluice.—2. Hence, sloosh or slooshy, v.i. and v.t., to wash: 1907 (W. de Morgan: Ibid.).

slop. A policeman: abbr. of back s. (—1859) esclop (properly ecilop, police); ob. (H., 1st ed.) Already in the 2nd ed. (1860). H. writes 'At first back slang, but now general.'—2. A tailor: from ca. 1860; ob. Cf. slops.—3. At Christ's Hospital (School), pej. for a person: mid-C.19–20. Cf. Nashe's 'slop of a ropehaler' (1599).—4. A prisoner's overcoat: Dartmoor c.: C.20. (H.U. Triston, Men in Cages, 1938.) Ex slops, old and very cheap clothes.

slop back. To drink freely, as in Slatter, 'Slopping back the suds': NZ: since ca. 1925.

Slop Carriers, the. The Australian Army Service Corps: Aus. army: 1939+. (B., 1942.) Play on initials: cf. Skirt Chasers. slop chest. 'Ship's clothing store' (Granville): RN: C.19–20. Cf. slop, 4.

slop-chit. A 'form made out by the Supply rating, which enables a man to buy "slops" in the stores' (Granville): RN coll.: C.20. See quot'n at adrift.—2. Hence, as in 'I can't do that job, I've enough on my slop-chit already' (cited by Granville): since ca. 1900.

slop-feeder. A teaspoon: low (?orig. c.): from ca. 1810. (Vaux.) Ex slop(s), tea.

Slop House, the. The House of Commons: journalistic: since ca. 1910. (Sydney Horler, The Dark Journey, 1938.) Ex the amount of 'slop' talked there.

slop-made. Disjointed: Aus. coll.:—1909; very ob. (Ware.) Presumably ex sloppily made.

slop over; slop over (in one's) talk. 'To exhibit exaggerated effusiveness of manner and words': from ca. 1870; coll. >, by 1900, S.E. B. & L.

slop-pail. A man doing housework: low coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

slop trade. Trade that is 'no class': tailors' coll.: mid-C. 19–20.

slop-tubs. Tea-things: c. >, ca. 1870, low: from ca. 1820; ob. (Egan's Grose.) Cf. slop-feeder.

slope, n. A running-away, making-off; escape: coll.: US (—1859) anglicised ca. 1880. Esp. do a slope: coll. and dial.: from ca. 1890. Ex the v.—2. As Slope (usu. in pl; also as adj.), (a) Chinese: some use among Brit. and Aus. servicemen in the Far East: from early 1960s, perhaps earlier. Ex WW2 US Service usage, orig. Slope, later Slope (W. & F.). Also var. Slope-head. Cf. Chink; Tid; Choagy. (P.B.)

slope, v. To make off; run away, decamp: coll.: orig. (1839) US, anglicised ca. 1857 (see 'Ducange Anglicus'). Song-writer Vance; Pomes' Marshall. Either ex let'slope! as H., 1st ed., proposes, or ex slope, to move obliquely.—2. With adv., esp. off (1844, Haliburton) and occ. home(ward), the latter in Mayne Reid, 1851: coll.: orig. US, anglicised by 1860.—3. (Ex sense 1.) 'To go loiteringly or saunteringly,' 1851. SOD.—4. (Likewise ex sense 1.) V.t., to leave (lodgings) without paying: 1908 (OED). Ex slope, 1, influenced by dial. slope, to trick, cheat. OED.—5. In c. of early C.17 (e.g., Rowlands, 1610), to lie down to sleep; to sleep. (Cf. slope, v.t., to bend down). It replaced couch a hog's head.

Sloperies, the. 99 Shoe Lane, London, EC4, the publishing address of Ally Sloper's Half-Holiday: ca. 1884–90.

Sloper's Island (or I). A weekly-tenement neighbourhood: London: from ca. 1870. Esp. ca. 1870, 'the Artisans' Village near Loughborough Junction, originally in the midst of fields; now in the centre of a densely populated neighbourhood' (F. & H., 1903). Ob. by 1910, † by 1930. Prob. ex sloper, one who decamps.

sloping billet. A comfortable job for a married naval man: RN: C.20. (Bowen.) I.e. with many opportunities to be ashore with one's family.

slopper. A slop-basin: Leys School, Cambridge: late C.19–early 20. The 'OXFORD -ER'.

slopping-up. A drinking bout: low: ca. 1870–1930.

sloppy. Very sentimental: coll.: late C.19–20. Ex sloppy, feeble, infirm. Cf. slushy.—2. Negligent, inefficient, careless, slack: coll.: C.20.

slops. Tea still in the chest: s. or low coll.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Ex slops, (weak) tea as beverage.—2. Sailors' ready-made clothing: RN: C.19–20. See also slop-chest, -chit.—3. Subjects other than classics or Mathematics: Cambridge University:—1923 (Manchon).—4. Synon. with ales, q.v., shares in Messrs Allsopp's Breweries; in C.20, also their product: perhaps esp. in Service messes. (P.B.) Cf.:—5. Beer: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B.P.)—6. The Service Police: RAF: ca. 1930–42. Ex slop, n., 1.—7. In serve out slops, to await punishment: RN: C.19. C. McPherson, Life Aboard a Man of War, 1829 (Peppitt).

slosh, n. Slush (liquid mud): dial. and Cockney coll.:—1887 (Baumann).—2. A drink; drink in gen.: from the mid-1880s.—3. Hence, tea: schoolboys' s. (C.20) ex dial. (—1899) EDD.—4. Nonsense, esp. if sentimental: from ca. 1920. (Denis Mackail, 1933.) Ex slush + bosh.—5. A form of coarse billiards, 'in which all the coloured balls except red were used, and the striker of the white ball could cannon, pot or go in off. It was a game for the exuberant and not very skilful' ('Blake', i.e. Ronald Adam, Readiness at Dawn, 1941): RAF officers' messes': since late 1930s (? earlier). (P.B.)—6. Beer: RN lowerdeck: since ca. 1910. Echoic. Cf. slops, 5.—7. Boiled rice: Christ's Hospital (School): C.20. Marples.—8. Coffee: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1953.) Cf. senses 2, 3.—9. A blow, as 'a slosh across the chops': coll.: C.20. Exslosh, v. To hit, esp. resoundingly, and often wildly: low coll. > gen.: C.20. 'I sloshed him one' (Sessions, 13 Dec. 1904); 'Im what I sloshed for readin' my letters' (A. Neil Lyons, Clara, 1912). Prob. ex S.E. slosh, to splash about in mud—influenced by dial. sloush, v.t., to sluice—via US slosh around, explained by 'Major Jack Downing' in 1862 as 'jest goin rite through a crowd, an mowin your swath, hitten rite an left everybody you meet' (Thornton).

slosh and mud. A collar stud: theatrical rhyming s.: late C.19–20. Franklyn, Rhyming.

slosh around. To strut about; take one's 'swanky' ease: proletarian:—1923 (Manchon). Cf. slosh, v.

sloshed. Drunk: low coll. > gen.: late C.19–20. P.B.: cf. the Chinese idiom, 'as drunk as mud'.

slosher. A school boarding-house assistant: Cheltenham College: late C.19–20. ? ex US slosh, to move aimlessly about. P.B.: or a perversion of usher?

sloshiety paper. A gushing Society periodical: journalistic: 1883–ca. 1890. (Ware.) Punning society + sloshy, slushy.

sloshing. The vbl n. of slosh, v.; esp. a thrashing: from ca. 1916. Lyell.

sloshy. Emotional, excessive in sentiment: orig. at Harrow: A. Lunn, The Harrovians, 1913; 1924, E.F. Benson, in his delightful Cambridge novel, David of King's, "'Positively his last appearance," said David. "Rather theatrical, but not sloshy . . ."; 1933, Daily Mirror, 26 Oct. "'Sloshy talk"'. Ex sloppy + slushy.—2. Very moist: preparatory schools': from ca. 1910. E.F. Benson, David Blaize, 1916, 'Sloshy buttered toast'. Ex dial. P.B.: dial. sloshy may well be the orig. of sense 1, i.e., dripping, 'wet'.

slot, n. A prison cell: Aus. c.: later C.20. (B., 1953.) Hence, gaol generally (Wilkes).—2. In down the slot, (of a slow train) diverted to allow faster trains to pass: railwaymen's: since ca. 1910. Railway.

slot (strictly 's!ot! Thank you very much: Aus.: since ca. 1945. Obviously 'thanks a lot'. (B.P.)

slot (one) in. To choose (someone) to fill a vacancy, as 'We're slotting you in as 2 i/c to Tom for the time being': Services', > gen.: later C.20. Cf.:—2. To score a goal: sporting, mostly soccer, as in the commentator's 'Oh, and he's slotted that one in beautifully': later C.20. (P.B.)

Sloth Belt, the. Southern India: army officers in India, 'a derogatory expression': late C.19—earlier 20. (Charles Allen, ed., Plain Tales from the Raj, 1977.) Ex heat-induced lethargy + pun on uniform 'cloth belt'.

slotted kip. A two-up 'kip' in which, to hold a two-headed penny, a slot has been cut: Aus. two-up gamblers' c.: C.20. B., 1942.

slotted job. A woman: low, orig. Services': since ca. 1940; ob. by 1970. Physiological.

slouch. See no slouch.

slour. To lock (up); fasten: c.:—1812; ob. by 1890, virtually † by 1930. (Vaux; Ainsworth.) H., 3rd ed., classifies it as prison c.?origin unless perchance a perversion of lower.—2. Also, to button (up) a garment: esp. in sloured hoxter, an inside pocket buttoned up: 1812 (Vaux, slour up); the simple v. is unrecorded before 1834 in Ainsworth's Rookwood.

sloured is a var. (—1923) for slowed, q.v. Manchon.—2. See slour, 2.

slow. Old-fashioned; behind the times: 1827, The Sporting Times, 'Long courtships are...voted slow' (OED). The Winchester sense 'ignorant of Winchester notions', dating from ca. 1880, is a var.—2. Hence, (of things) tedious, dull, boring: coll.: 1841 (Lever: OED).—3. (Of persons) humdrum; dull, spiritless: 1841 (Lever: OED).—4. Hence, sexually timid: late C.19–20. 'If there's anything a woman hates, it's a slow man': heard by the author late in 1914, the aphorist being a virtuous, lively and intelligent middle-aged woman, speaking en tout bien, tout honneur.

Slow and Dirty, the. The Somerset & Dorset Railway: railwaymen's: 1874—ca. 1966. Robin Althill, The Somerset and Dorset Railway, 1967.

slow as molasses in winter (, as). Exceedingly slow: coll.: late C.19—earlier 20. (Collinson.) In winter, molasses is very stiff. Later C.20 Can. version is slower than molasses in January (Leech, 1981).

slow as a wet week, as. (Of persons) very slow; esp., unenterprising, mostly in sexual matters: late C.19–20.

Slow, Easy and Comfortable, the. The South-Eastern and Chatham railway: railwaymen's: C.20. Railway, 2nd.

Slow Starvation and Agony. A joc. interpretation of the initials of the Shaw Savile and Albion shipping line: since ca. 1910; by 1965, ob.

slowed. Imprisoned; in prison: c.:—1859; ob. by 1890, † by 1920. (H., 1st ed.) Ex slow, retard, but perhaps influenced by slour, 1, q.v.: cf. late C.19–20 slower, to check.

slowpoke. A dull or (e.g. socially or sexually) slow person: Aus.: C.20. (Christina Stead, Seven Poor Men of Sydney, 1934.) Perhaps a corruption of slowcoach.

slows, the. In troubled with the slows, slow-moving, lazy: sporting: since ca. 1870. In later C.20 reduced to have (got) the slows, as in Dick Francis, Rat Race, 1970. Perhaps orig. US and punning US slows, milk-sickness.

slubberdegullion. A dirty and/or slobbering fellow; a sloven ne'er-do-well: from ca. 1615; ob. by 1930. Perhaps orig. coll., which (witness B.E. and Grose, who wrongly spells it slubber de gullion) it may have remained till C.19. On slubber (later slobber); cf. tattereddemalion (Ware) and slobgollion.

'sluck. See 's' luck!

'Slud! A C.17–18 oath: coll. var. of 'blood! Jonson, Fielding. OED.

sludge. Beer: office- and shop-girls': ca. 1955–60. The var. plasma lasted less than the year 1958. (Gliderdale.) P.B.: the term had wider currency than E.P. allows; e.g. Service messes.

sludger. Member of a 'crew of Greater London Council "mud hoppers" [sludge-removers], working with dredgers': coll.: from before the GLC ever existed. Peppitt refers to the London Evening News, 5 March, 1973.

slued. See slewed.

slug, n. An unascertained kind of strong liquor: 1756, Toldervy, 'Tape, glim, rushlight, white port, rasher of bacon, gunpowder; slug, wild-fire, knock-me-down, and strip me naked'; † by 1790. OED.—2. ? hence, a dram, a drink: 1757, Smollett, The Reprisal, at II, viii (Moe); since ca. 1880, mainly US. Hence, fire a slug, to take a drink of potent liquor, as in Grose, 1st ed.: ca. 1780–1840.—3. A set-back; a (great) disappointment: coll.: late C.19–20. Ex dial. slug, a defeat. Cf. the v.—4. An Eton Fellow: Windsor townsmen's: 1825 (Spy); † by 1890.—5. A heavy bill: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942. Ex 3.—6. A small shell (projectile): army: 1940+.—7. An armour-piercing shell or shot: artillerymen's: 1940–5. P-G-R.—8. 'A horse lacking vitality': Aus. coll.: C.20 (B., 1953.) Probably not a transferred sense of S.E. slug but a backformation ex S.E. sluggish.—9. A nugget of gold: Aus. miners': C.20. (K.S. Prichard, 1932.) See quot'n at speck, v., 3.

slug, v.t. To strike heavily: dial. (—1862) soon > coll. Echo, 8 Mar. 1869, 'He has several times been told by unionists on strike that he would be "slugged" if he went on as he was going' (OED). Perhaps ex dial. slug, a heavy blow, recorded thirty years earlier. Cf. slog, v., 1, q.v., and slug, n., 3.—2. To smoke: S. African children's: since ca. 1930.—3. To charge (someone) as a price: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B.P.) 'He slugged me a quid.' Cf. schlog, q.v.—4. To drink: Anglo-Irish: mid-C.19–20. (P.W. Joyce, 1910.) Ex n., 2.

slug-up. A 'frame-up' (fraudulent charge or victimisation) Aus. c.: since ca. 1910. B., 1942.

slugged, get. Synon. of slogged ...; cf. slug, n., 5, and v., 3. sluggers. 'Wardroom telescoping of sloe gins, gin cordials flavoured with sloe berries. [—2.] Heavy seas that pound a ship's hull; from the boxing sense of hard hitting' (Granville): RN: C.20.

sluce. The female pudend: low coll.: late C.17–20; ob. 'Facetious' Tom Brown.—2. Hence, copulation: low: C.20. Bill Naughton, Alfie Darling, 1970, 'I asked her would she like a sluice. She wasn't quite sure what I meant.'—3. The mouth: low: ca. 1830–1930. Prob. ex sluice, a channel, influenced by † sluice, a gap; but cf. sluice-house.—4. Fuel pipe: motorcyclists':—1950. (Dunford.)

sluice-house. The mouth: low: 1840 (Egan); very ob. by 1930. Cf. sluice, 2.

sluice (one's, or) the bolt, dominoes, gob, or ivories. To drink heartily: low: resp. mid-C.19–20 (H., 3rd ed.), id., late C.18–20 (Grose, 2nd ed.) and mid-C.19–20. All slightly ob. Cf. sluice, 2, and:

sluicery. A public house: low: ca. 1820–90. (J. Burrowes, Life in St George's Fields, 1821; Egan, Life in London, 1821; H., 1st ed.) Contrast sluice-house.—2. Hence (?), a drinking-bout: low:—1923 (Manchon).

sluicing. Pickpocketry in public wash-places: c.: from ca. 1920. Edgar Wallace, Room 13.

Sluker. An inhabitant, esp. a harlot, of the Parish of St Luke, London: Cockney:—1909 (Ware). Cf. Angel, q.v.

slum, n. A room: c.: ca. 1810–50. (Vaux.)? origin, unless Bee is right in deriving it ex slumber.—2. Nonsense, gammon, blarney: c.: ca. 1820–1910. Egan's Grose cites, from Randall's Diary, 'And thus, without more slum, began'; H., 5th ed. Prob. ex sense 4.—3. Hence, Romany: c.: ca. 1821–50. 'Jon Bee', 1823, 'The gipsey language, or cant, is slum.'—4. A trick or swindle: c.: 1812 (Vaux); 1851, Mayhew. Whence fake the slum, to do the trick; effect a swindle: c.: mid-C.19—early 20; up to slum, alert and knowing: c.:—1823 (Egan's Grose).

—5. ? hence, a begging letter: c.: 1851, Mayhew, 'Of these documents there are two sorts, "slums" (letters) and "fake-ments" (petitions).' Ob.—6. Hence, any letter: prison c.:—1860 (H., 2nd ed.) Ob.—7. (? ex slum, a begging letter.) An innuendo, a discreditable insinuation: c.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.); † by 1900.—8. A chest; a package (e.g. a roll of counterfeit notes): c.:—1859; ob. H., 1st ed., "'He shook a slum of slops", stole a chest of tea.' Perhaps ex sense 4.—9. In the language of Punch and Judy showmen (partly c., partly Parlyaree), the call: from ca. 1860. Cf. slum-fake and slumming, 2, q.v.—10. Sweetmeats for coughs: market-traders' (e.g. Petticoat Lane): C.20. Also, in full, cough-slum slum, v. To talk nonsense; speak cant: c. of ca. 1820–80. Cf. slum, n., 2.—2. Hence, v.t., to trick, cheat, swindle: c.:—1859. H., 1st ed., in var. form, slum the gorgor, 'to cheat on the sly, to be an eye servant,' which is †—prob. since late C.19.—3. Hence, v.t., to hide; to pass to a confederate: c.:—1874. Implied in H., 5th ed. though already implied in slumming, 1, q.v.—4. V.i., to hide: c.:—1923 (Manchon).—5. V.t., to do hurriedly and/or carelessly: coll. (1865) >, ca. 1900, S.E. (OED). Perhaps suggested by slam (a door), influenced by slum, a poverty-stricken neighbourhood.—6. V.i., to enter, or haunt, slums for illegal or rather for illicit or immoral purposes: University s.: Oxford, ca. 1860; Cambridge, ca. 1864 (H., 3rd ed.): ob. by 1910, virtually † by 1935.—7. Hence, 'to keep to back streets in order to avoid observation' (B. & L.): University s.: late C.19—early 20.—8. Hence, from ca. 1899, to keep in the background: gen. coll.; ob.—9. V.i., to act: low theatrical: from ca. 1870; ob. Cf. slumming, 2, and act in slums, to act in very small towns or in low plays (B. & L.).—10. Applied to those members of the Government who, disapproving a policy, sit among the back-benchers: Parliament: since ca. 1920.

(Cheapjack, 1934).—11. The front or bosom of their 'frock': RN training-ships' boys': ca. 1870–1940. Goodenough, 1901.—12. Cheap prizes, esp. for children: fairground and carnival s., also Can.: late C.19–20.—13. Abbr. slumgullion: 1908 (OED).

slum-box. A (typical) house in the slums: coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

slum-fake. The coffin in a Punch and Judy show: showmen: from ca. 1860. Cf. slum, the call, and slumming, 2.

slum-scribbler. One who employs penmanship for illicit ends, e.g. for begging-letters: c.:—1861 (Mayhew).

slum shop, sleek-and-. See sleek-and-slum shop.

Slum(m)abad. Islamabad, the new capital of Pakistan: United Nations personnel: since 1976. (J.B. Mindel, Kfar Tabor, 1977.) Cf. Slumopolis.

slumber in. Public Schools' s. of late C.19–20, as in P.G. Wodehouse, Tales of St Austin's, 1903, 'To slumber in is to stay in the house during school on a pretence of illness.' slumber-suit. Pyjamas: derivative: from ca. 1924. Ex drapers' j. slumgullion. 'Any cheap, nasty, washy beverage' (H., 5th ed.): from ca. 1870; ob. Perhaps a fantasy on slub (= slob) and the gullion of slubberdegullion (cf. slobgollion, q.v.); certainly fanciful. (As a watery stew or hash, it is US.)

slumguzzle, v.t. To deceive: anglicised ca. 1910. Ex US. slummy. Gibberish; 'ziph': ca. 1820–50; low s., perhaps orig. c. 'Jon Bee', 1823, 'Dutch Sam excelled in slummy—"Willus youvus givibus glasso ginibus".'

slumming, vbl n. Passing counterfeit money: c.:—1839 (Brandon); ob. by 1930. Perhaps ex slum, v., 1.—2. Acting: low theatrical: from ca. 1870; ob. Miss Braddon, 1872, 'The gorgor's awfully coaly on his own slumming, eh?' Cf. slum, the call, and slum-fake, q.v.—3. 'The secreting of type or sorts' (Jacobi): printers' s.:—1888. Ex slum, v., 3, q.v.

slummock, improperly -uck (v.t. and i.). To clean carelessly, imperfectly; to dust: coll.:—1923 (Manchon). A back-formation from S.E. slummocky, slovenly.

slummy. A servant girl: low: late C.19–20. ? ex slummy, careless, influenced by slummy, from a slum neighbourhood. Cf. slavey.—2. One who lives in a slum: coll.: late C.19–20. Pat O'Mara, The Autobiography of a Liverpool Irish Slummy, 1934.

Slumopolis. Slum London: joc. coll.:—1887 (Baumann). On Cottonopolis.

Slump Alley. Carey Street, where the Bankruptcy Court is situated: mostly Londoners': since ca. 1930.

slunch. Eton pudding: C.20. Also slunching.

slung. (Of a picture) rejected: artists' and art-students':—1909 (Ware). Prob. suggested by hung, and next.—2. In get slung, to be tossed by a horse: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Short for Aus. coll., since mid-C.19, get slung off. Cf. sling, v., 12. slung out on hands and knees. Dismissed: tailors': ca. 1870–1930.

slung sword, ship (one's). To be promoted to warrant officer: RN: late C.19–20. Bowen.

slur. A method of cheating at dice: ca. 1640–1750: perhaps orig. s. or coll., but soon j. (therefore S.E.). Ex slur, to make a die leave the box without turning (Nash, 1594: OED).

slurge. 'A very ropery recruit' (H. & P.): Services': earlier WW2. Perhaps a blend of slack + snurge. See ropey.

slurp, v. To eat, to drink, noisily, messily, in an uncouth way: coll.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1955. Echoic, and prob. influenced by such cartoon 'noises' as 'slurp, drool'. (P.B.)

slurpies. 'Psychedelic slurpies, forms or patterns formed by the manipulation of rays of light, and similar passé forms of decoration' (heard on BBC Radio 4, 17 Feb. 1975: P.B.). Prob. ex the idea of slop food or pap.

slush. Food: nautical: late C.19–20. Ex nautical S.E. slush. Cf. slushy, n.—2. 'Coffee and [?] or tea served in a common coffee-house' (Ware): proletarian; among tramps, applied only to tea: late C.19—earlier 20.—3. Counterfeit paper money (esp. notes): c., orig. US, anglicised in 1924 by Edgar Wallace (OED Sup.). Ex the inferiority of slush.—4. 'To work and toil like a slave: a woman who toils hard' (P.W. Joyce, 1910): Anglo-Irish: late C.19–20.—5. As Slush, the town of Sleaford, Lincolnshire: RAF stationed in the area: late 1940s–50s, perhaps longer. (P.B.) slush-bucket. A foul feeder: coll.: ca. 1780–1850. (Grose, 1st ed.) Extant in dial. [and not entirely † in coll.: P.B.].—2. Since ca. 1950, Aus. var. of next. (B.P.)

slush fund. A secret fund of money, prob. raised from dubious sources, kept by a large organisation, political or commercial, for bribery and other shady dealings: orig. US s., since ca. 1860, > C.20 coll. (W. & F.); adopted in Aus. ca. 1930 (B.P.), and later in UK, where given wide publicity at the time of the Leyland 'Slush fund case' in May 1977. (P.B.)

slush-pump. A trombone: musicians' (esp. in theatres): C.20. Ex saliva tending to gather in instrument: Cf. the entry at fish-horn.—2. A car with automatic gears: car-dealers'. 'Not used so much these days' (Clive Graham-Ranger, Sunday Times mag., 9 Aug. 1981, p. 42).

slusher. A cook's assistant at shearing time on a station: Aus. coll. >, ca. 1910, S.E. (Melbourne Argus, 20 Sep. 1890.) Cf. slushy, 2. Morris.—2. One who (prints and) circulates counterfeit paper-money: c.: 1924 (Edgar Wallace, Room 13). Ex slush, 3.

slushy. A ship's cook: nautical coll.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Ex slush, refuse fat of boiled meat. Cf. slush, 1.—2. Hence, influenced by slusher (q.v.), a cook's assistant at a shearing: Aus. coll.: 1896, A.B. Paterson, in The Man from Snowy River, 'The tarbo, the cook, and the slushy ... with the rest of the shearing horde.' (Morris.) In C.20, slushy is much more gen. than slusher, 1.

slushy, adj. Extremely sentimental: C.20. Ex slushy, washy, rubbishy. Cf. sloppy, q.v.

slut about, v.i. To go about working: coll., esp. at Harrow School: C.20. Lunn, 'They [the 'swots'] groise their horrid eyes off and get out of fagging in a term or two, while we poor devils [the 'hearties'] have to slut about "on boy" for three years'. P.B.: i.e. to work as a slut, in sense of slavey or skivvy or scut, does.

sly. Illegal, illicit: low s. (? c.); perhaps orig. in run sly, to escape (late C.18—early 19. F. & H., whose quot'n long anticipates the sporting sense: (of a dog) to run cunningly.) Then in (up) on the sly, private(ly), stealth(ily), secret(ly), illicit(ly): 1812 (Vaux): coll. >, ca. 1870, S.E. Mayhew, 1851, 'Ladies that liked a drop on the sly' (OED) Cf. sly-boots, q.v.

sly-bag (or solid). A cunning person: Aus.: since ca. 1930. (B., 1953.) Perhaps ex ratbag or—sly-boots; ca. 1730–1830, occ. sly-boot. A sly or crafty person: coll.: ca. 1680, Lord Guilford was thus nicknamed (North, Lives of the Norths, p. 169). Esp.—see B.E. and Grose—a person seemingly simple, actually subtle or shrewd. In C.19–20, often joc. and hardly if at all pej. Cf. † sly-cap, a sly or a cunning man (Otway, 1681), and the much more gen. smooth-boots, late C.16—early 18.

sly grog. 'Liquor sold without a licence' (Wilkes): Aus.: since early C.19. Esp. in compounds, e.g. sly grog shop (Wilkes cites H. Widowsen, The Present State of Van Diemen's Land, 1829); sly grog seller, -ing; s.g. tent (1861); s.g. joint (1969); sly-groggery (B., 1942) = sly grog shop, which was itself, by ca. 1930, shortened to sly-grog.

smabble or snabble. To despoil, knock down, half-skin: arrest: c. of ca. 1720–1840. (A New Canting Dict., 1725.) See snabble.

smabbed or snabbed. Killed in battle: ca. 1780–1840. (Grose, 1st ed.) Ex smabble.

smack. A liking or fancy: tailors' coll.: from ca. 1870. 'He had a real smack for the old 'un' (F. & H.). Cf. C.14—mid-17 S.E. smack, enjoyment, inclination (for a place).—2. A 'gag': coll.: 1889, Pall Mall Gazette, 'I am longing to have a smack at these Matabeles' (OED).—3. Hence, an attempt (at): coll.: late C.19–20. (Manchon.) Prob. ex dial.: see EDD. Hence at one smack, at the first try; (all) at the one time: id.—4. Heroin: adopted, mid-1960s, ex US. Alex Stuart, The Bikers, 1971.—5. See little smack, a half-sovereign.

smack-bang, adv. Suddenly and violently: echoic coll.: prob. since mid-C.19. 'Commodore Keyesran smack bang into several enemy cruisers' (W.G. Carr, Brass Hats ..., 1939, RN in WW1: Moe). An elab. of S.E. smack in this sense, which dates from later C.18 (SOD).—2. As in 'smack-bang in the middle', right, exactly, in the middle: an intensification: C.20. (P.B.) Cf. slap-bang.

smack calfskin. To kiss the Bible: low: C.19.

smack in the eye. A rebuff, refusal; severe disappointment; set back: coll., perhaps at first esp. Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) A more graphic var. of the synon. S.E. smack in the face (SOD).

smack (a man) in the rattle. To charge a rating with an offence and confine him in the brig: RN: C.20. Globe and Laurel (the RM magazine), Sep.-Oct. 1976.

smack it about! Get a move on!: RN: C.20. 'Waiter, I've only got five minutes; just smack it about and get me some sweet' (Musings, 1912, p. 52). Granville, 'From the vigorous smacking about of brushes when painting the ship's side.'

smack on (occ. in). Esp. catch smack on, squarely, or with heavy, accurate impact: C.20. (L.A., 1977.) Cf. smack-bang and bang on.

smack(-)smooth. Perfectly even, level, smooth: 1755 (Smollett: OED): coll. until late C.19, then dial. Ex smack, vbl adv. See docked ...—2. As complement, with semi-advl force: 'so as to leave a level surface': 1788 (Dibdin).—3. Hence, adv.: smoothly; without hindrance: C.19–20: like sense 2, coll. till C.20, then mainly dial. H. Martin, 1802, 'A tour ... went on smack smooth' (OED). smack the lit. To divide the booty: c.: ca. 1850–90. Burton, Vikram and the Vampire, 1870. (The term is suspect.)

smack-up, n. A fight: NZ: from ca. 1906; from ca. 1918, also Aus. Hence, NZ army in WW1, a battle. With orig. cf. punch-up, swear-up.

smack up, v. To attack, 'go for', a person: Aus.: since ca. 1919.

smacked up, be. To come off worst in a fight of any kind: NZ: C.20.—2. To be wounded: id.: WW1. Also be smacked.

smacker. A peso: S. American English: late C.19–20. C.W. Thurlow Craig, Paraguayan Interlude, 1935, 'I will give you a thousand beautiful smackers for your church ...' Mac took out a thousand peso bill and handed it to me.' P.B.: prob.: influenced by US s. smacker, a dollar, ex 'the sound of the silver dollar hitting the counter' (W. & F.), and:—2. £1 sterling, note or coin: Aus. (C. Stead, Seven Poor Men of Sydney, 1934); Brit. from perhaps a few years later (P.B.). B.P. notes, of Aus. usage, 'used of large sums only; two smackers would not be used'—but 'a couple of smackers' is acceptable in Eng. Cf.:—3. A dollar bill (note): Can.: adopted, ca. 1925, ex US (Leechman).—4. A boy; a youth: Aus.: since ca. 1930. Dal Stevens, Jimmy Brockett, 1951.—5. In (go down) with a smacker, (to fall) 'smack': proletarian:—1887 (Baumann).

smackeroonie, -y. A kiss: teenagers': early 1980s. (Joanna Williamson, 1982.) A smacking kiss, hence smacker, given the US s. suffix -eroo + a 'diminutive'.

smacking, adj. Superlative; 'splendid': 'Here's smacking luck to you, my dear boy' (Bill Truck, Jan. 1822): coll.: C.19. smacking-cove. A coachman: c.: mid-C.17—early 19. (Coles, 1676; B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) Ex whip.

small, n. See *small*s, 2.

small.. In phrases meaning 'to have a low opinion of (persons, mostly of oneself)': think small beer of: 1825 (Westmacott: OED), Thackeray, Lytton: ex small, i.e. weak or inferior, beer; ... coals of (H., 2nd ed.): ca. 1860–90; ... potatoes of: perhaps orig. US; adopted mid-C.19; ... things of: late C.19—early 20: all var. coll. All versions have, almost from their first use, been as much, or more often, employed in the negative, to imply 'hold a high opinion of (usu.) oneself' or, unkindly meant, 'to be conceited', e.g., 'in the language of the poetaster he considered himself "no small potatoes!"' (N.W. Bancroft, From Recruit to Staff Sergeant, 1885); 'Vogler [the S. African googlie bowler] had reason to think no small things of himself' (Pall Mall Gazette, 19 Sep. 1902); 'Thinking no pale ale of himself' (Francis Francis, Newton Dogvane, 1859) is a joc. var. of small beer, q.v.

small and early; (or hyphenated). An evening party, few-personed and early-departing: 1880 (Lord Beaconsfield: OED); coll. till C.20, then S.E.; ob. Adumbrated in Dickens, 1865, 'Mrs Podsnap added a small and early evening to the dinner.'

small arm, (one's or) the. The penis. Esp. in small-arm inspection, a medical inspection, among men, for venereal disease: military: from ca. 1910. Ex small arms, revolvers and rifles. See esp. B. & P. (3rd ed., 1931), P.B.: since ca. 1950, at latest, usu. short-arm, and only in the context given here.

small beer, n. and adj. (Something) unimportant, trifling: C.17–20, coll. Shakespeare in Othello: 'To suckle fools, and chronicle small beer'. Hence think no small beer of oneself, have a good opinion of oneself, as in De Quincey (? earliest record), 1840. See small..

small bull's-eyes. The odds and ends, the smouldering remains, of a fire: London Fire Brigade: C.20. They glow like a bull's eyes. Or, rather, 'they are targets for the jet' (of water from the hose). Julian Franklyn, a Volunteer Fireman during WW2.

small cap O. A second-in-command; an under overseer: printers': ca. 1870–1930. Lit., a small capital letter O, i.e., a capital in a word all of equal-sized capitals, as OVERSEER.

small cheque. A dram; a (small) drink: nautical: from ca. 1880; ob. Cf. knock down a cheque, spend all in drink: see knock down..

small coals. See small..

small cuts. A small pair of scissors: tailors': late C.19–20.

small-dodgers. See ARMY SLANG, verse 2, in Appendix.

small fortune, a. An extravagantly large sum paid for something, esp. for something small: coll.: since ca. 1890. Ex the largish amount implied in, e.g., 'he won a small fortune on the pools'.

small-gang, v.t. To mob: low: mid-C.19—early 20. Mayhew, 1851 (OED).

small go. 'A reasonable night out with everybody happy and nobody drunk' (H. & P.): Services: since ca. 1930. P.B.: † by 1950.

small jeff. A small employer: tailors': late C.19–20. Cf. flat-iron jeff, q.v.

small-parter. A player of small parts: theatrical coll.: C.20. Passing Show, 24 June 1933.

small pigs (rare in the singular). Petty Officers: RN lower-deck: C.20. As opposed to Naval pigs; cf. the Guards Regiments' drill pig (Granville).

small pill. A diminutive football (used on runs): Leys School: late C.19–20.

small potatoes or things. See small..

small thing. See do that small thing.

small world! A c.p. of greeting to an acquaintance met unexpectedly: since ca. 1920. Ex the full it's a small world. P.B.: in late C.20, cliché elicited by any similar coincidence.

smalley or -y. Small, little, esp. in smally porsh, a small portion, esp. of food: orig. RN, since ca. 1940; hence soon army and RAF. P.B.: a friend in an army unit, later 1950s, suffered puns about his little Porsche car.

smalls. The Responsions examination: Oxford University coll.: ca. 1841, as E.A. Freeman (1823–92) shows in his article in Contemporary Review, vol. 51, p. 821; Bristed, 1852; 'Cuthbert Bede', 1853; Hughes, Tom Brown at Oxford, 1861. Perhaps, as the OED points out, ex in parvoiso (or -suis). At Cambridge, the corresponding term is little-go, q.v.—2. 'Towns not boasting a regularly built and properly appointed theatre' (Androssan Herald, 11 Sep. 1891): theatrical coll.: from ca. 1890. F. & H., however, in 1903 defines thus, implying a singular: 'A one-night performance in a small town or village by a minor company carrying its own "fit-up".' Hence do the smalls, to tour the small towns: theatrical coll.: C.20.—3. Underclothes, men's or women's: coll.: C.20. Ex S.E. smalls, 'small clothes, breeches'.—4. Small advertisements, esp. those in classified lists: mainly journalistic coll.: since ca. 1910.

smarm; occ. smalm, v.i. To behave with fulsome flattery or insincere politeness: coll.: from not later than 1915. Ex:—2. smalm, smarm, coll. (late C.19–20), to smooth down, as hair with pomade. (SOD) The old spelling smalm suggests to Dr Leechman the—to me—probable solution: smear + balm.

smarminess. Oily politeness: coll. The n. ex-smarmy. Apt to flatter fulsomely, speak toadyingly or over-politely or with courteous insincerity: coll.: from ca. 1915. Ex:—2. smarmy, (of hair) sleek, plastered down: coll.: C.20.—3. Also as adv. in both senses, esp. 1.

smart, n. A very elegant young man about town: (London) Society: ca. 1750–80. OED.

smart, adj. Rather steep (ground): mid-C.17–20: S.E. until late C.19, then coll. (ob.) and dial. OED, and esp. EDD. Cf. steep (price).

smart Alec. A know-all, an offensively smart person: coll.; orig. (ca. 1870), US, anglicised by 1930. (OED Sup.) Also Smart Alick.—2. (Usu. ... alec.) A train conductor: Can. railroadmen's:—1931. Ex 1.

smart arse (or one word). An obnoxiously—not a cleverly—smart person: Aus.: since mid-1930s. Hence also as adj., sometimes smartarsed. (Wilkes.) Cf. smartary-pants.

smart as a carrot, (as). Gaily dressed: 1780: coll. until mid-C.19, then dial., which it had been since 1791 at least. Grose, 2nd ed., as smart as a carrot new scraped. Apperson.

smart as be damned, (as). Extremely smart in appearance: coll.: C.20. (F. Brett Young, Jim Redlake, 1930.) See also the like paragraph and the be damned entry.

smart as threepence. Smartly dressed: lower classes' coll.:—1887 (Baumann). Cf. right as ninepence.

smarten up (one's) parade. To work more efficiently; to make oneself smart: army and RAF: since ca. 1925. (L.A.) † by 1950 (P.B.).

smarty. A would-be clever, cunning, or witty person: US (1880), anglicised—as a coll.—ca. 1905, chiefly as an impertinent and esp. in Aus. and NZ. P.B.: by mid-C.20, mainly juvenile use.—2. A fashionable person; one in the swim: coll.: from ca. 1930. E.F. Benson, Travail of Gold, 1933, 'Social smarties.'

smarty-pants. A smart person, either clever or fashionably dressed; one who would be either: a coll. elab. of prec., both senses: prob. adopted ex US, perhaps first in Aus., late 1930s; in later C.20 mostly juvenile, or imitation juvenile, usu. envious or pej. Cf. fancy-pants, and smart arse. (P.B.) Jon Cleary, Just Let Me Be, 1950; Nicholas Blake, The Whisper ..., 1954.

smash, n. Lit. and fig., a heavy blow: coll. and dial.: 1779 (OED). In 1780, it was used like smack, 2, q.v.—2. Mashed vegetables, esp. turnips: ca. 1780–1830. Grose, 1st ed., 'Leg of mutton and smash, a leg of mutton and mashed turnips (sea term). Cf. modern smash, mashed potatoes.—3. Counterfeit coin: c.: late C.18—early 20. (Potter, 1795.) Cf. smash, v., 2, and smash-feeder, q.v. ? because it ‘smashes’ acceptors.—4. Loose change: c.: mid-C.19—20; rhyming s. on cash. F. & H.—5. Tobacco: c.: from late 1880s. Cf. sling the smash, q.v. ? because it breaks regulations.—6. A drink of brandy in iced water: Aus.: ca. 1920—30. B., 1942.—7. A fearsome person: Aus.: since ca. 1910. Jean Devaney, Paradise Flow, 1938—of a man violent in drink. Proleptic.—8. Money; wages: low Aus.: since ca. 1920. Kylie Tennant, The Joyful Command, 1953, ‘Giving her his smash on pay-night.’—9. See smash, v., 5.

smash, v. To kick down stairs: c.: late C.17—early 19. (B.E.; Grose, 2nd ed.) Prob. imitative (OED).—2. To pass, occ. to utter (counterfeit money): c.: from ca. 1810. Lex. Bal.—but see smasher, 5. Cf. smashing, adj.—3. To give change for (a note, a coin): from ca. 1810: either c. or low s.; ob. Vaux.—4. To beat badly: pugilistic coll.: from ca. 1820.—5. V.i., to go bankrupt; be ruined: coll.: 1839 (Hood: OED). Occ. smash up: not before 1870s; very rare in C.20. Var. go (to) smash: coll.: mid-C.19—20. H., 1st ed.—6. Esp. in smash a brandy-peg, to drink one: army officers: 1880s. Ware cites Daily News, 7 May 1884.—7. To break burglariously into (a house, etc.): c.: from ca. 1920. (Edgar Wallace, We Shall See, 1926.) Cf.:—8. To commit a smash-and-grab raid on (a shop, etc.): c.: since the late 1940s. Peter Crookston, Villain, 1967, ‘When you’re driving away from a jeweller’s you’ve just smashed...’ smash!; smash me!; smash my eyes! A coll. and dial. imprecation: ob. in C.20: resp. 1819 (mostly N. Country dial.); 1894; 1833 (Scott: OED). H., 3rd ed., defines smashman-Geordie as ‘a pitman’s oath’ in Durham and Northumberland: cf. Geordie and smasher, 6.

smash a load. To get rid of twenty counterfeit coins: c.:—1933 (Charles E. Leach). See smash, v., 2.

smash a pass. To overstay one’s leave: military: WW1. E.W. Mason, Made Free in Prison, 1918.

smash-ankle. Deck hockey: RN: C.20.

smash-feeder. A silver or a Britannia-metal spoon: c.: resp. ca. 1839—59 and ca. 1859—1910. (The best imitation shillings were made from Britannia metal.) Ex smash, n., 3.

smash me!; smash my eyes! See smash!

smash off. (Of a pilot) to take off in a hurry. See kick the tyre ...

smash the record. See record, 1.

smash the tea-pot. To lose the privilege of tea: prison c.: from ca. 1880. Hence to have (one’s) tea-pot mended, or get it down the spout, to have the privilege restored: id. B. & L.—2. To break one’s pledge of abstinence: proletarian:—1909 (Ware).—3. To kill someone: mostly Can.: C.20. (Leechman.)

smash up. To barricade one’s cell: prisoners’ c.: later C.20. Sean McConville, in The State of the Language, 1980.

smashed, adj. Reduced in rank: RN:—1909 (Ware).—2. Tippy: since ca. 1960. Jimmy Sangster, Foreign Exchange, 1968, ‘Getting smashed on airline champagne.’ Cf. synon. shattered.

smashed(-)up. Penniless: low: ca. 1830—1900. (Mayhew, I 1851.) Suggested by broke; see smash, v., 5.

smasher. Anything very large or unusually excellent: coll.: 1794 (EDD).—2. Hence, from the 2nd nuance, applied to persons, esp. since post-WW1, an extremely pretty girl; also, e.g., in admiration of an infant, ‘Ooh, aren’t you a little smasher!’: coll. I say, what a smasher! was a c.p. from the post-WW2 radio-comedy series ‘Stand Easy’ (see Nigel Rees, Very Interesting... but Stupid, 1980). See smashing, adj., 3.—3. A damaging or settling blow (Bill Truck, Feb. 1826); a heavy fall (1875: OED): coll.—4. Hence, a crushing reply, a very severe article or review: coll.: 1828, Blackwood’s Magazine, ‘His reply... was a complete smasher’ (OED); ob. by 1940.—5. A passer (1795, Potter) or, less gen., an utterer (1796, OED) of false money, whether coin or note: c.: late C.18—20. It may argue an existence for smash, v., 2, at least sixteen years before the app. earliest record.—6. Hence, a base coin or, says F. & H., forged note: c.: mid—late C.19. Mayhew, 1851.—7. A N. Country seaman: nautical:—1883 (Clark Russell). Prob. ex smash!, q.v.—8. ‘A soft felt hat with a broad brim’ (Pettman): S. African coll.: from ca. 1885. Pettman.—9. A receiver of stolen goods: c.:—1929 (OED Sup.); Charles E. Leach, On Top of the Underworld, 1933, Prob. influenced by 5 and 6.

smashing, vbl n. The passing or uttering of false money: c.:—1812 (Vaux). Ex smash, v., 2.

smashing, adj. Counterfeit: c.: 1857 (Borrow).—2. Engaged in ‘smashing’: c.: 1899 (OED).—3. Excellent; the adj. corresponding to smasher, 1 and 2. C.19—20. It had in WW2, a phenomenal popularity in the RAF; smashing job might be ‘a very fine aircraft; a task excellently performed; a girl exceedingly easy on the eye’ (Partridge, 1945). On 4 Feb. 1850, Harry (later Sir) Burnett Lumsden said, ‘When our cloth arrives we shall be the most smashing-looking regiment in India’ (Journal of the Society for Army Historical Research, 31, autumn 1953, article by Sir Patrick Cadell, ‘The Beginnings of Khaki’). The adj. caught on among post-1945 civilians; after ca. 1957, it began to lose popularity, except among schoolchildren, teenagers, lower middle class. This sense may have originated in boxing; cf. ‘Bartlett and Peacock had a smashing set to for three hours! during which time no less than 72 rounds were fought’ (Plymouth Telegraph, early 1822). Moe.

smashing, adv. Intensive—‘very’ or ‘much’ or ‘extremely’ or ‘notably’: C.20. Gerald Kersh, The Nine Lives of Bill Nelson, 1942, ‘He’d done... a smashing hot job’ (extremely expert and artistic piece of tattooing). Ex prec., 3. smashing line. A beautiful girl: low: ca. 1920—40. Cf. smasher, 2.

smatteract. As a matter of fact: shorthand typists’: C.20.

smawm. A var., mainly dial., of smarm.

smear. A house-painter: c.: late C.17—mid-18. (Street Robberies Considered, ca. 1700.) Ex the rough work of many painters.—2. Hence, a plasterer: c.: 1720—1820: c. >, ca. 1750, s. A New Canting Dict., 1725; Grose, 1st ed.—3. A murdered person: Aus. c.: since ca. 1925. B., 1943.—4. See tumour.

smear, v. To defeat heavily at fisticuffs: Aus. low: from ca. 1925. (B., 1942.) Cf. wipe the floor with.

smear-gelt. A bribe: c. or low s.: ca. 1780—1840. (Grose, 1st ed.) Prob. ex the long-established Yiddish schmiergeld (L.W. Forster): Rosten relates it to greasing the palm.

smear it with butter and get the cat to lick it off! See bum-fluff.

smearly. Superlatively good, esp. of clothes, fashion: teenagers’ early 1980s. (James Williamson, 1982.) Cf. hoopy, above.

smell, n. A boastful, conceited or otherwise objectionable boy; Sedgeley Park School (now Cotton College): ca. 1800—65. (Provost Husenbeth, History of Sedgeley Park, 1856.) Cf. the C.20 use of stinker.—2. In get a smell at, (only in interrogative or negative.) To get a chance at; to approach: (low) coll.:—1887 (Baumann) Cf. smell, 2, q.v. Ex olfactory inaccessibility. Sniff may be substituted: C.20.

smell, v. To make smelly; fill with offensive odour: coll.: 1887. OED.—2. (Gen. with negative.) To approach at all, be even compared with, in ability: from ca. 1915. E.g. ‘Fleetwood-Smith can’t—rarely ‘doesn’t—smell Grimmer as a batsman’; ‘“Are you as good as he is at batting?” “No; can’t smell him.”’ Ex smell, to detect, have an inkling of. Cf. smell, n., 2.

smell a rat. To detect something suspicious; to be suspicious: prob. orig., say ca. 1630—1830, c.; then, via coll. > S.E. Dryden, 1668 (Moe); Grose, all edd.

Smell Burn, or as one word. Melbourne: Aus. rhyming pun, rather than rhyming s.: C.20. B., 1943.

smell garlic. To ‘smell a rat’, q.v.: Cockneys’:—1887 (Baumann); ob. by 1930.

smell (one’s) hat. To pray into one’s hat on reaching one’s pew in church: joc. coll.:—1887 (Baumann). Cf. shampoo attitude.

smell like a badger's touch-(h)ole. Emit an offensive odour, either naturally or, more usu., because heavily and artificially scented: RN, influenced by W. Country: since early C.20 (? earlier). Miss Rosemary Sutcliffe, OBE, quotes her late father, Captain, RN ret. Cf.:-

smell like a whore's boudoir or garret or handbag. To be heavily scented; esp. 'of a man using scent (or merely highly scented hair-oil, after-shave lotion, etc.)' (Cdr C. Parsons, RN ret, 1977): resp. mainly RN; MN; MN and army—but interchangeable of course: C.20. 'Garret' here = handbag: see garret, 3 and 4.

smell my finger! A low male c.p. with an erotic implication: late C.19–20.

smell of bread and butter. To be tied to nursery ways: Public Schools' coll.: late C.19–20. H.A. Vachell, The Hill, 1905.

smell of broken glass. A strong body-odour, e.g. in a Rugby footballers' changing-room after a game: male joc.: earlier C.20. (P.B.) Cf.:-

smell of gunpowder, there's a. Someone has broken wind: army: late C.19–20.

smell of the barman's apron, he's had a. A c.p. applied to one who easily gets drunk: since ca. 1920. For smell, sniff is occ. substituted; P.B.: and for barman, barmaid. Cf. the Aus. synon. two-pot screamer.

smell of the roast. To get into prison: coll.: ca. 1580–1640. Nares.

smell-powder. A duellist: coll.: ca. 1820–60. (Bee.) Cf. fire-water.

smell the footlights. To come to like theatricals: theatrical coll.: from ca. 1870. P.B.: cf. the c.p. (? quot'n, cliché) 'The smell of the greasepaint, the roar of the crowd'—which is occ. parodied by reversal, 'The roar of the greasepaint...'

smeller. A garden: c.: early C.17. (Rowlands.) Prob. ex smelling cheat, 1, q.v.—2. The nose: late C.17–20: c. >, ca. 1750, s. B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.; Walker, 1901, In the Blood, 'I tipped 'im one on the smeller as soon as 'e said it.' Cf. smellers, 1, q.v.—3. Hence, a blow on the nose: boxing: from early 1820s. ('Jon Bee'.) Cf. noser.—4. Hence, in late C.19–20, fig.: a grave set-back. In Apr. 1931, a well-known novelist told the author that he had got 'a rap on the smeller of a criticism' from a certain London periodical.—5. Anything exceptional in the way of violence, strength, etc.: coll.: 1898, Kipling, 'Good old gales—regular smellers' (OED Sup.) Cf. snorter.—6. A sneaking spy; a Paul Pry: late C.19–20; slightly ob. The Century Dict.—7. An objectionable fellow: NZ: late C.19–early 20. See quot'n at straight wire; cf. smell, 1, and, semantically, the fig. stinker.—8. In come a smeller, to have a heavy fall (lit. or fig.): low: late C.19–early 20. (Manchon.) Cf. 4 and 5.

smellers. Nostrils: 1678, Cotton, 'For he on smellers, you must know, / Receiv'd a sad unlucky blow.' Prob. ex smeller, a feeler, e.g. of a fly.—2. As a cat's whiskers', it may orig. (1738) have been coll.—Grose, 1st ed., clearly classifies it as coll. or s.—but from ca. 1850, at latest, it has certainly been S.E.

smellie, -y, n. A film, or a play, in which scents or sprays are used to create a realistic effect: since ca. 1958.

smelling cheat or chete. A garden; an orchard: c.: 1567 (Harman); B.E.; Grose, 1st ed. † by 1830; ob. as early, prob., as 1700. Lit., a smelling, i.e. fragrant, thing.—2. A nosegay: C.17–early 19 (prob. ob. by 1750): c. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) It seems likely that after C.16, the predominating sense of smelling cheat is nosegay, for in 1610 Rowlands writes, 'Smellar, a garden; not Smelling cheate, for thats a Nosegay.'—3. The nose, says F. & H.: but this I believe to be an error caused by confusion between smeller and smelling cheat.

smelly. 'Shady', dishonourable, illicit, suspicious: low and police: C.20. (Manchon, 1923; G.F. Newman, Sir; You Bastard, 1970.) Prob. after fishy.

smelt. A half-guinea: c. of ca. 1630–1830, but ob. as early, prob., as 1750. Shirley, 1635 (OED); Shadwell; Grose, 1st ed.

Not impossibly an s perversion—s perversions are fairly common in English c. and s. (cf. the prefix-use of s in Italian)—of melt (v. as n.): the 'melt' or melting-down of a guinea. Cf. smish for mish, qq.v.—2. In (esp. go) westward for smelt, on the spree: semi-proverbial coll.: early C.17. (Dekker & Webster.) Lit., in search of 'conies', male or female, a smelt being a simpleton.

smelt it, dealt it. Retort from one accused of farting, which may be countered by the further accusation, said the rhyme, did the crime: schoolboys': later C.20. Peter Woods, in New Society, 24 Mar. 1983, p.466.

smice. To depart; make off: Aus. low: since ca. 1925. (B., 1942.) Yiddish? 'Yes; it means "to smack"' (Julian Franklyn).

smicker, v.t. and i.; smicker after. To chase amorously: ca. 1650–1750. Dryden, An Evening's Love, 1661, at III, i, 'Must you be smickering after wenches while I am in calamity?' (OED). P.B.: E.P. may be reading in too much here; EDD has 'to smile alluringly, to smirk or grin'.

smiddy. A blacksmith's section (technically, 'bay') in a marine-engineering works: such Scottish workmen's coll.: from ca. 1885. Lit., the Scottish form of smithy.

smiff-box. The nose: pugilistic: ca. 1860–90. H., 3rd ed.

smifligate: smifligation. Ob. variants of spiflicate, -ation: 1839 (Dickens: OED).

smig. A sergeant-major instructor in gunnery: army: since ca. 1920. H. & P.

smigget(t). 'Lower-deck term for a good-looking messmate' (Granville, who says 'ex Maltese'): RN: since ca. 1925.

smiggins. A barley soup, a (cold) meat hash: prison c.: ca. 1820–80. Knapp & Baldwin, The Newgate Calendar, vol. iii, 1825 (OED); Brandon. A nickname, perhaps ex a warder named Higgins. (C. etymologies are heartbreaking.) B., 1943, lists the C.20 Aus. usage of the 2nd nuance.

smile, n. A drink of liquor, esp. of whisky: US (1850), anglicised ca. 1870: s. till C.20, then coll. Jerome K. Jerome, 1889 (OED). Cf. the v.—2. 'Bare flesh—either sex—showing between shirt, or pullover, and jeans, back and front; or, earlier, gap between silk stocking and suspender belt' (Mr and Mrs David Hardman, 1977): the earlier, ca. 1910–50; the later since ca. 1950.

smile, v. To drink (liquor, esp. whisky): adopted, ex US, ca. 1870; long since ob.—2. In I should smile!, a lot I care!: c.p.: 1891 (OED). Cf. I should worry!

smile like a brewer's horse. To smile delightedly or broadly: coll.: C.17. (Howell, 1659.) A brewer's horse thrives on its food and the circumambient odour of hops.

smile-please run. 'A photo-reconnaissance flight' (Jackson): RAF: 1939+ . Ex the photographer's stock phrase.

smileace! Silence!: joc. coll.:—1909 (Ware); † by 1930. Cf. smole smiler. Boiled beef: Cotton College: ca. 1860–1914. Ex a horse named Smiler. (Frank Roberts, Cottonian, autumn 1938.)—2. A kind of shandy-gaff: 1892 (Daily News, 16 Nov.: OED); ob. by 1930.

smirk. 'A finical, spruce Fellow' (B.E.): late C.17–early 19. Ex the v.

smish. A shirt: c.: early C.19–early 20. (Vaux.) Perversion of mish, q.v., or via s(e)miche=chemise (Baumann).

smit. In love: mid-C.19–20 coll., joc. on archaic past ppl.

smitch off. To run away; abscond: low: late C.19–early 20. Perhaps ex dial. smitch, smoke, or a perversion of mich(e), q.v. at mike, v.; cf. E.P.'s etym. of smelt, 1. In P.J. Keating, ed., Working Class Stories of the 1890s, 1971. (P.B.)

smite, n. An infatuation, a passion: Society: ca. 1932–40. (Mrs Belloc Lowndes, The House by the Sea, 1937.) Cf. crush, n., 4.

smite, v. To obtain money from (a tutor): University: ca. 1780–1830. (Grose, 1st ed.)? ex smite hip and thigh. Cf. rush and sting, qq.v.

smiter. The arm: c.: ca. 1670–1815. Coles, 1676; B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.

Smith. See what an O. Smith!

smithereens; smithers. Small pieces or fragments: coll. and dial., orig. Anglo-Irish: from ca. 1840; the latter, only dial. after ca. 1890. S.C. Hall, 1841, 'Harness... broke into smithereens'; Halliwell, 1847, 'Smithers, fragments, atoms'. Actually, smithers, of obscure etym. but perhaps cognate with smite, is the earlier, -een being (as in colleen) an Irish diminutive suffix. Esp. go, and blow, to smithers, and blow, break, knock, split to or into smithereens, and (rare in C.20) go to smithereens; cf. all to smithereens, all to smash. OED; EDD.

Smithfield bargain. A bargain or deal in which the purchaser is taken in: coll.: ca. 1660–1830. ('Cheats' Wilson, 1662; Richardson, 1753.) Adumbrated in Shakespeare's 2 Henry IV, I. ii. Ex the horse and cattle (now the great meat) market.—2. Hence, ca. 1770–1840, a marriage of convenience, with money the dominant factor: coll. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Cf. Breton, 1605, 'Fie on these market matches, where marriages are made without affection.'

Smithfield hank. An ox infuriated by ill-treatment: ca. 1780–1830. Grose, 1st ed.

smitz. See MOCK AUCTION SLANG, in Appendix.

smoak, -y. C.17–18 spelling of smoke, smoky, qq.v.

smock. Of all the numerous phrases in F. & H. and OED—'usually suggestive of loose conduct or immorality in, or in relation to women' (OED)—only two are to be considered; they may possibly be coll. and certainly the latter is not s.:—smock-alley (Ned Ward), the female pudend; smock-pensioner, a male keep. Cf. skirt, q.v.

smoke, n. A cigar, cigarette, or pipe: 1882 (OED): coll. >, ca. 1910, S.E.—2. As the Smoke (1864: H., 3rd ed.); the big Smoke (—1897); the great Smoke (—1903), London: orig. tramps' s. >, ca. 1900, gen. coll. Hence go (drive, etc.) up the Smoke, to go to London. Cf. Auld Reekie, Edinburgh; Aus. has used the big smoke as coll. for any city since mid-C.19 (Wilkes).—3. A railroad fireman: Can. railroadmen's:—1931. Ex the nature of his job.—4. (Also smoke-on: ex have a smoke on.) A blush: Scottish Public Schools': from ca. 1885. (Ian Miller, School Tie, 1935.) See v., 4.—5. In like smoke, rapidly: ca. 1806, an Irish lady's-maid writes of the Russian postillions that 'they drive like smoke up the hills' (The Russian Journals of Maria and Katherine Wilmot, 1803–1808, ed. J.H.M. Hide); 1833, M. Scott: coll. till ca. 1870, then S.E. Ex the manner in which smoke disperses in a high wind. An early C.19 RN elab. was like smoke and oakum (W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, I, 1825: Moe).—6. Short for smoke-out: A. Hall, The Mandarin Cypher, 1975.—7. In in smoke, in hiding; hence, go into smoke, go into hiding: Aus. and NZ c.: since early C.20. B., 1942.—8. See Cape Smoke; watch my smoke!

smoke, v. To hoodwink, deceive: coll.: late C.16—earlier 17. Moe cites Middleton, Blurt Master Constable, 1602, at I, i. Hence the nuance, to ridicule, make fun of: late C.17—mid-19: coll. >, ca. 1800, S.E. Ned Ward, in The London Spy, 'We smook'd the Beaus... till they sneak'd off one by one'; Miss Burney; Keats. Perhaps ex smoke, to suspect (a person).—2. As a specific nuance of this: 'to affront a Stranger at his coming in' (B.E.): late C.17–18.—3. To coit with (a woman): C.17–19.—4. To blush: Public Schools': from ca. 1860. Farrar in St Winifred's, 1862 (OED). Cf. the C.16 smoke, to fume, be very angry.—5. To decamp: low Aus.: since mid-C.19. (Morris.) Ex smoke along, to ride at great speed.—6. To perform fellatio: low: C.20. Hence she's a smoker, or she smokes, a c.p. directed at a female who will.

smoke-boat. A steamer: sailing-ships' pej.: late C.19—early 20. Bowen.

smoke 'em. An illicit yet frequent method of getting from one station to another—by moving along slowly and watching for the smoke of an approaching, or an overtaking, train: Can. railroadmen's:—1931.

smoke, gammon, and spinach, -all. See all smoke...

smoke-ho; -oh; smoko. A cessation from work in order nominally to smoke, certainly to rest: coll.: 1897 (Frank Bullen); H. Lawson, 1900. OED.—2. Hence, a cup of tea, orig. one drunk during a rest: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1920.

(Sarah Champion).—3. Cups of tea, collectively; a pot, a billy, of tea: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1925. Margaret Trist, 1946, 'I'll just trou the men's smoko over.'

smoke-jack. A steamship; esp. a steam warship: RN: ca. 1830–90. (Fredk Chamier, The Life of a Sailor, 1832, at II, 16: Moe.) Cf. smoke-boat; -stack.—2. An inspector of factories, esp. of their chimneys: proletarian:—1923 (Manchon).

smoke like a chimney. To smoke (tobacco, usu. cigarettes) heavily and habitually: coll.: C.20. (P.B.)

smoke off. (Gen. in imperative.) To cease blushing: Scottish Public Schools': from ca. 1890. (Ian Miller, School Tie, 1935.) Prompted by smoke-on, q.v. at smoke, n., 4.

smoke out. A secret, or an at least protected, departure or removal operated by someone other than the speaker(s); a 'safe house': espionage: since (?) ca. 1950. (Adam Hall's novels, passim.) Prob. ex idea of smoke-screen.

smoke pole. A shot-gun: Can.: since ca. 1950 (poss. a generation earlier). Leechman cites P. St Pierre, Chilicotin Holiday, 1970. Cf. smokestick, q.v.

smoke-stack. A steamer: sailing-ship seamen's pej. coll., as is their steamboat man for a sailor therein: from not later than 1885.

smoke-trail. Vapour- or condensation-trail left by aircraft: coll., esp. among civilians in WW2; since superseded by standard j., often abbr. con(-)trail (P.B.)

smoked haddock, the. The paddock: racecourse rhyming s.: C.20. Franklyn 2nd.

smoked Welshman. Any dark-skinned man speaking a little English, esp. the variety known as 'Bombay Welsh': army joc.: later C.20. (P.B.) smoker. A chamber-pot: low: mid-C.19—early 20. Ex steam arising therefrom in cold weather.—2. A voter: Preston s. or coll.: ca. 1800–1832. See Halliwell. Because every man that used the chimney of his cottage had a vote.—3. A steamer: coll.: ca. 1825–50. (OED.) Cf. puffer.—4. One who blushes: Public Schools': 1866 (OED). Ex smoke, v., 4.—5. A sultry day: low coll.:—1887 (Baumann); ob. by ca. 1935. Cf. scorch.—6. A black-headed cuckoo-shrike: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.—7. A locomotive: Can. railroadmen's:—1931. Cf. 3, and smoke, n., 3.—8. 'Driving home at night in his "smoker" (car that a trader is using for himself) or just whatever car is left over' (Anthony Cowdy in the colour sup. of the Sunday Times, 24 Oct. 1965): secondhand-car dealers': since late 1940s. Ex a smoker or smoking carriage, or compartment, on a train. But cf.:—9. A high mileage car: car dealers'. (Clive Graham-Ranger, Sunday Times mag., 9 Aug. 1981). Ex the exhaust emissions.—10. See smoke, v., 6.

smokers. Smoked salmon: since ca. 1925. By the 'OXFORD -ER(s)'; cf. champers.

smoker's tickers. 'Shag tobacco; any coarse dark tobacco' (B., 1943): Aus.: since ca. 1925.

Smokes. In the (great) Smokes, an occ. var. (Manchon, 1923) of smoke, n., 2, London.

smokestick. A rifle: Aus. army: 1939 +. (B., 1942.) Cf. smoke pole.

Smooky. See smoky, 2 and 3.

smoking. Vbl n. of smoke, v., esp. 1, 4.—2. See you'll be smoking next.

smoko. See smoke-ho.

smoky. Jealous: s. or coll.: late C.17—mid-18. B.E., who is, I think, wrong in classifying it as c. Ex smoky, suspicious.—2. As Smoky, the 'inevitable' nickname of men surnamed Holmes: Services': earlier C.20. (F. & G.) With a jest on smoky homes. P.B.: ? or on Sherlock Holmes and his famous pipe.—3. As Smoky, nickname—whether in address or ref.—of a railway fireman: ? mostly Can.: C.20. Cf. smoke, n., 3.—4. Alert; esp. alert and shrewd: earlier C.18. Colley Cibber, The Refusal, 1721, Act III, Sir Gilbert asks his daughter: 'But now, Child, the Question is whether you have common sense or no (for they don't always go together): are you smoky? Have you all your Eye-teeth yet? Are you peery, as the Cant is? In short, do you know what I would be at now?' Ex the sense 'suspicious'.

Smoky Joe. 'A Fleet Class minesweeper. This type being coal-burning' (Granville): RN: WW2. P.B.: the attraction of assnance; cf. skinny Liz.

smole, n. and v. Smile; esp. in (he) smoled a smile (or smole): joc. >, by 1900, non-aristocratic:—1909; slightly ob. 'Invented' by F.C. Burnand, ca. 1877, in Punch, says Ware. Cf. smilence!

smooch, v.i. To caress amorously: Can.: C.20. Cf. smoodge, smooze.—2. Hence (?), to flirt or (v.i.) to court: beatniks' > gen.: since ca. 1959. Anderson, 'Come smooching with me, real-ly' (cf. really).

smoocher. A gold-digger without a licence: Aus.: ca. 1851–1900. (Eric Gibb, Stirring Incidents in Australasia, 1895.) Cf. smoodger (s.v. smoodge).

smoochy. Adj. from smooch, esp. sense 1. 'Masters of the three-minute pop song whether it be an uptempo number or a smoochy ballad' (Steve Orme, reviewing records in Loughborough Trader, 15 Aug. 1979).

smoodge, v.i. To flatter, wheedle, speak with deliberate amiability: Aus.: late C.19–20. Ex to smoothe.—2. Hence, to make love, pay court: Aus.: C.20. C.J. Dennis (smooge). Hence, smoodger, the agent, and smoodging, the action. Prob. ex ob. S.E. smudge, v.t., to caress, and dial. smudge, to kiss, to yearn for, smudge after, to begin to pay court to: on dial. smouch, to kiss. But in the Addendum, E.P. added: 'Smooodge: to flatter or fawn. Still used in Anglo-Jewish slang and pronounced shmooze... from the Hebrew's shmoo-os, meaning news or hearsay. Later came to mean gossip, flattery' (A. Abrahams, Observer, 25 Sep. 1938). It 'is now used only in jocular fashion. Even when we use it in sense 2, our mind is half on sense 1. If a man is said to be smooching with a girl, he is more likely to be trying to make amends for forgetting her birthday than planning to make an attack on her virtue. "Stop smooching!" is said to young couples holding hands, etc.' (B.P., 1963).

smoodge up to. Var. of prec.: B., 1943.

smoot. See smout, n. and v.

smooth as a baby's bottom; like a b.b. See baby's bottom.

smooth white. A shilling: c. and low: late C.19–early 20. (F. & H.) See white, n., 1.

smootherouter. 'Steve was a born diplomat, the greatest "smootherouter" ... the perfect Adjutant' (Anthony Phelps, I Couldn't Care Less, 1946): coll.: C.20.

smothie (or -y), n. A ladies' man; (among non dancers) a good dancer: RAF: since ca. 1920. (H. & P.) Ex his smooth ways and manners.—2. A smooth-spoken person, esp. if male: since ca. 1925. (Nicholas Blake, The Whisper in the Gloom, 1954.) P.B.: untrustworthy plausibility and deliberate charm are always implied in this pej. term, at least in later C.20.

smoothy. Adj. corresponding to prec., 2.

smooze. NZ var. of smoodge, 2: Jean Devaney, The Butcher Shop, 1926.

'smorning. This morning: coll.: late C.19–20. Dorothy L. Sayers, Murder Must Advertise, 1933, "'When's he coming?" "Smorning".'

smother, n. A hiding-place for stolen goods; an overcoat folded over a pickpocket's arm to mask his movements: c.:—1933 (Charles E. Leach).—2. Trade s., mid-C.19–20, as in Mayhew, 1851, 'A "lick-up" is a boot or shoe re-lasted, and the bottom covered with a "smother" ... obtained from the dust of the room' (OED).—3. 'Good stuff; material of quality; coat; overcoat' (M.T.); Cheapjack, 1934, specifies 'a fur coat or overcoat'; F.D. Sharps, 1938, a macintosh: market-traders', grafters'; common in the underworld and its fringes: perhaps orig. market people's, from ca. 1870. E.P. suggested 'prob. ex the warmth it gives', but Powis prefers a deriv. ex Yiddish schmutter, q.v. (P.B.) smother, v. To cover up; to hide: Aus. and NZ c.:—1932. (B., 1942.) See quot'n at AUSTRALIAN UNDERWORLD, in Appendix. smother a parrot. To drink, neat, a glass of absinthe: Anglo-French: ca. 1900–14. (Ware.) Like so many parrots, absinthe is—or was—green. Leechman: prob. direct ex synonym. Fr. étrangler un perroquet.

smother (or sm'other) evening! A c.p. of cynical refusal: music-halls': 1884–5. (Ware.) Ex one of the great Arthur Roberts's songs; it was thus titled and themed.

smother (up). To secrete a part of (the accumulated stakes and winnings): Aus. two-up-players' and esp. operators': C.20. Tom Ronan, Vision Splendid, 1954, 'Darcy [the cash-holder] was too shaky with laudanum. He couldn't smother up the money. We had to leave it all in sight and just let you spin for our win.' Cf. smother, v.—2. To wear a mask, or a stocking over the face, during a crime: ?mostly S. African: since late 1940s. Angus Hall, One the Run, 1974.

smouch. 'Dried leaves of the ash tree, used by the smugglers for adulterating the black, or bohea teas' (Grose, 1st ed.): ca. 1780–1840: perhaps orig. c. or s., despite the OED's assumption that it is S.E.—2. See-Smouchy. A Jew: 1825 (The Universal Songster, I, 172). See Smous.

Smouge. 'Nickname for all men surnamed Smith' (Granville): a C.20 RN var. of Smudger.

Smous, Smouse; Smouch, Smoutch. A Jew: Smouse, 1705 (Bosman); Smous, 1785 (Grose, who restricts it to a German Jew); smouch, 1765 (C. Johnston); Smoutch, 1785 (Cumberland). The -s, -se, forms are rare in C.19; both -s(e) and -ch forms are † by 1880, except as archaisms. Why the OED should treat smou(t)ch—an alteration of smous(e)—as S.E., and smous(e) as s., I cannot see: both, I believe, are s., smous(e) coming direct ex the Dutch smous (identical with German-Jewish schmuos), pater, profit, Hebrew schmuoss, news, tales (OED; W.); Sewel, 1708, proposed derivation ex Moses,—cf. Ikey.—2. Hence, in S. Africa, an itinerant (esp. if Jewish) trader: coll.: smou(t)ch, 1849; smouse, 1850, but anticipated fifty years before. Also Smouser: 1887 (Pettman); smousing, itinerant trading, from mid-1870s, is another S. African coll. OED; Pettman.

smous(e), v. Corresponding to prec., 2. Pettman.—2. Hence, to pet, to flirt: 'There are two of them smousing in that room', cited as of 1938, by Prof. W.S. Mackie in Cape Argus, 4 July 1946: S. African.

smout, smoot, n. A compositor seeking occasional work at various houses: printing:—1888 (Jacobi). While smoot is, in C.20, more gen., smout is recorded the earlier. Ex:

smout, smoot, v.i. To work on occasional jobs at various houses or even at one if it is not one's regular place of employment: printing: from ca. 1680: in C.20, smoot (app. unrecorded before 1892) is the more gen. (Moxon.) In C.17–18, v.t. as smout on (a firm). OED. Perhaps ex Dutch smutte, to slink: cf. dial. smoot; to creep, and smoot after, to court (a girl) furtively (EDD).

Smoutch. See Smous.

smudge. A photograph: grafters': from ca. 1920. (Cheapjack, 1934.) Ex blurred effect seen in many cheap photographs. Also elab. smudge merchant.—2. See Smouge; Smudge is another var. of:-

Smudger. One of several 'inevitable' nicknames (cf. Shoey) of men surnamed Smith: army: C.20 F. & G.—2. As smudger, an inferior street photographer: photographers': C.20. Cf. prec., 1. Hence, any photographer: Services'; espionage: since mid-C.20.—3. An engine-cleaner: railwaymen's': C.20. Railway.

smug, n. A blacksmith: C.17–18: perhaps c. Rowlands, 1609; Ned Ward; Grose. Prob. ex C.16–17 smuggy, grimy, smutty, dirty.—2. Smuggling: Anglo-Chinese (—1864). H., 3rd ed. Cf. smug, v., 1, and smug-boat, qq.v.—3. A (quiet and) hard-working student; esp. (at Oxford) one who takes no part in the social life of the place: university: 1882 (OED); ob. See quotation from Goschen at sap, n., 2, and cf. scrubber, 3, q.v.; Ex smug, consciously respectable.—4. Hence, an unpleasant, unhealthy boy to be avoided: schoolboys' (—1923). Manchon.—5. A person affectedly clean: coll. (—1923) Ibid. Ex the S.E. sense, a self-satisfied person.

smug, v. To steal; run away with: 1825, T. Hook (OED): c. rapidly > low s. Perhaps ex smuggle: cf. smug-boat and smuggling, 2, qq.v.—2. To hush up: 1857, Morning Chronicle, 3 Oct., 'She wanted a guarantee the case should be smuggled'; prob. orig. c.; by 1900, s. ? ex sense 1 or ex smug, to smarten up.—3. (? hence) to arrest, imprison: c.: from mid-1880s. J.W. Horsley, Jottings from Jail, 1887, 'Then two or three more coppers came up, and we got smugged, and got a sixer each.'—4. V.I., to copy; to crib: from ca. 1860; ob. Perhaps ex sense 2.—5. To work hard; university: from ca. 1890. Ex smūg, n., 1, q.v.

smug-boat. A boat carrying contraband; esp. an opium boat off the Chinese coast: nautical coll. (—1867) Smyth. Ex smuggle; cf. smug, v., 1, and:

smug-lay. The 'dodge' of selling (almost) worthless goods on the ground that they are valuable contraband: c. of ca. 1810–50. Lex. Bal. Ex smuggling.

smuggling. See smug, v.—2. (In pl.) smuggings! Mine! schoolboys' s. (—1859), shouted at the conclusion of a game, when (e.g. at top-spinning or marbles) it was lawful to purloin the plaything. H., 1st ed.; in 1825, Hone notes that this practice is called smuggling. Ex smug, v., 1.

Smuggins. Var. of Smudger, 1: since ca. 1920. (Peter Sanders.)

smuggle, gen. v.t. To sharpen (a pencil) at both ends: schools: late C.19–20; ob. Cf. the late C.17–18 smuggle, to caress.

smuggle the coal (or cole). 'To make people believe one has no money when the Reckoning is to be paid,' Miège, 1687; † by 1750. See cole.

smuggler. A pencil sharpened at both ends: schools': see smuggle. Esp. at Winchester.

smuggling, n. Bringing harlots into college: Oxford: ca. 1815–60. Spy, 1825. Cf.:

smuggling-ken. A brothel: c. of ca. 1720–1830. A New Canting Dict., 1725; Grose, 1st ed. Punning smuggle, to caress, and smuggle, to 'contraband'.

smugs! Bullies running away with all the marbles at the end of a game used to call smugs!: Aus. schoolchildren's: earlier C.20. (B.P.) Cf. smug, v., 1, and smuggling, 2, qq.v.

smurf. A youth employed, under the Youth Opportunities Scheme, by transport conservation society, e.g. Crich Tramways Museum, and the Loughborough Main Line Steam Trust: early 1980s, Ex the busy elf-like creatures of a current National Petrol advertising campaign. (Mr Chris Irwin, 1981.)

smut. A furnace; a copper boiler: c.:—1811 >, ca. 1840, low s.; † by 1890. (Lex. Bal.) As a furnace, app. † by 1859: witness H., 1st ed. Ex smut, soot.—2. See brother Smut.

smut-hound. A man with a marked predilection for bawdiness: coll.: C.20.

Smutty is the inevitable nickname of all men named Black: since ca. 1880. John Newton Chance, Wheels in the Forest, 1935.

snab. See snob, 1.

snabble. To arrest: c.: 1724, Harper, 'But filing of a rumbo ken, / My Boman is snabbled again'; † by 1790. Gen. as snabbled.—2. To rifle, plunder, steal; knock down, half-stun: c. of ca. 1720–1840. (A New Canting Dict., 1725; Grose.) Also smabble, q.v.; cf. snaffle.—3. Hence, to kill, esp. in battle: c.: mid-C.18–early 19. (Grose, 1st ed.) Cf. smabbled, q.v.—4. Gen. v.t., to copulate: low s.: late C.18–early 19. F. & H.

snack, n. Booty: c.: ca. 1660–1750. Thomas Betterton, The Revenge, 1680, at V, iii (Moe).—2. Hence it is prob. that snack, a share, esp. in go snacks, be partners,—cf. go snicks,—may orig. have been c.: see B.E.—3. A racquets ball: Winchester: later C.19.—4. A certainty; hence, a thief's or a swindler's dupe: Aus. c.: C.20. B., 1942.—5. Hence, something easy to do; esp., 'it's a snack': Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B.P.) snack, v. To share booty; to hand over as share of booty: see prec., 1: id.

snack up. To have a (hurried) meal: army: C.20.

snacker. "'You'd make a good snacker on a Hull ship,' meaning a deck boy' (Steven Piper, The North Ships, 1974); also used as term of address to the deck boy/odd-job man aboard a trawler: C.20.

snaffle, n. 'A Highwayman that has got Booty' (B.E.): c.: late C.17–18. perhaps ex snaffle, a bridle-bit; but prob. allied with snaffle, v., 1, q.v.—2. Talk uninteresting or unintelligible to the others present: coll.: from ca. 1860; †. (H., 3rd ed.) Perhaps because such conversation acts as a snaffle; more prob. ex East Anglian snaffle, to talk foolishly.—3. Hence, (a) secret talk: c.:—1923 (Manchon).

snaffle, v. To steal: 1724, Harper, 'From priggs that snaffle the prancers strong'; Grose: c. >, ca. 1840, dial. and low s. Cognate with snabble, q.v. Cf. snaffle, n., 1, snaggle, and snavel.—2. To seize (a person); arrest: c. (—1860) >, ca. 1890, low s. (H., 2nd ed.) Ex snaffle a horse.—3. To 'appropriate', to seize a thing for oneself: mostly military: from the middle 1890s. (OED Sup.; B. & P.) Ex sense 1.—4. To catch or cut off (in the air): Air Force: from 1915. (F. & G.) Ex sense 2.

snaffler. A thief, only in snaffler of prancers (horses): from ca. 1780: c. >, ca. 1840, dial. and low s. (Grose, 1st ed.) Ex snaffle, v., 1.—2. A highwayman: ca. 1786–1840: c. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Cf. snaffle, n., 1.—3. As=one who arrests, very rare: C.19.—4. A blow or stroke or punch: lowerdeck: ca. 1790–1850. Bill Truck, 1821.

snaffling lay. Highway robbery as a trade: c.: mid-C.18–early 19. Fielding, 1752, 'A clever fellow, and upon the snaffling lay at least.' Ex snaffle, v., 1; cf. snaffle, n., 1, and snaffler, 2.

snafu. 'Situation normal—all fucked (politely, fouled) up': Services', orig. and mainly army: since ca. 1940. (P-G-R.) A slightly later, mostly army officers', var. was snefu (or even sneefoo), where e=everything; but that was † by 1950. At first, written S.N.A.F.U., but soon shortened and typographically 'solidified'. By 1943, it had spread to the Americans. Cf. the US derivative v., meaning 'to bungle; to reduce to chaos', as in 'Everything snafues from the start' (Grover C. Hall, Jr, 1000 Destroyed, 1961). See DCpp.

snag, n. 'A formidable opponent' (C.J. Dennis): Aus. s., prob. mainly Sydney: C.20. Ex snag, an obstacle. Neil James, 1975 (AUSTRALIAN UNDERWORLD, in Appendix.)—2. A jagged tooth: Aus.: since ca. 1910. (Ruth Park, Poor Man's Orange, 1950.) Cf. snags, 1.—3. (Usu. in pl.) A sausage: id. B., 1942 (pl); R. Park, 1950 (sing.).—4. An aircraft apprentice with one small chevron (snag): RAF, Halton: from ca. 1939.—5. See also few snags.

snag-catcher. A dentist: low: ca. 1880–1900. Cf. prec., 2, and snags, 1.

snagger. A proletarian: Clifton College: since ca. 1910. 'The College ran [in 1915] a Saint Agnes mission for poor children' (J. Judfield Willis, letter).—2. A clumsy or inexperienced shearer; a cow-hard to milk: Aus. rural: since ca. 1910. B., 1943.

snaggle, v.i. and t. To angle for geese as a means of stealing them: either c. or low s.: from late 1830s; ob. Often as snagglng, vbl n. (Brandon; H., 1st ed.) Prob. a corruption of sniggle (as in eel-fishing) and perhaps cognate with snabble and snaffle, v., 1, qq.v.

snaggle-tooth. A proletarian woman, esp. if a shrew, with an irregular set of teeth: urban lower classes' coll.:—1909 (Ware).

snagglng. See snaggle.

snags. False teeth: ? mostly RN: ca. 1800–50. It occurs in W.N. Glascock, Sailors and Saints (I, 183), 1829. (Moe.)—2. See snag, 3.

snail(-)pie. Rice pudding: Guards Depot, Caterham: 1914–18. John o' London, 3 Nov. 1939.

snail(e)y. A bullock with horn slightly curled, like a snail's: Aus. coll.: from ca. 1880. 'Rolf Boldrewood', 1884. Morris. 'Snails! God's nails!: a coll. petty oath: late C.16–early 19. OED.

snail's gallop, go a. To go very slowly indeed: semi-proverbial coll. >, ca. 1850, dial.: from ca. 1545. 'Proverbs' Heywood; Ray, 1670; N. Bailey, 1725; Colman, Jr., 1803; Combe, 1821; Brogden's Lincolnshire Words, 1866. Apperson. snaily. See snailey.

snake, n. A skein of silk: tailors': later C.19—early 20. Ex shape.—2. A lively party: RAF: from ca. 1925; † by 1950. Jackson, 'Thus, "Out on the snake"—out on a party'. Perhaps cf. snake-juice, and certainly cf. snake-charmers.—3. A switchman: Can. railroadmen's: —1931.—4. A very long rag-worm used as bait: anglers': C.20. Bournemouth Echo, 4 July 1968.—5. As the snake, the hose: London Fire Brigade: C.20.—6. In give (a person) a snake, to vex, annoy: low:—1887 (Baumann); ob. by 1930.—7. A senior NCO, esp. a sergeant: Aus. army: WW2 and after. See snake-pit, 3. Wilkes.

snake, v. To steal (something) warily: c.: from ca. 1885. Ex dial.—2. To wriggle about in the air by constant jinking when taking evasive action' (Jackson): RAF: since ca. 1938; by 1944, j. Cf. the American snake- (or snaky) hips.—3. (Also snake off.) To go quietly; slip along quietly: Anglo-Irish: C.20. Brendan Behan, Borstal Boy, 1958, uses both terms—as exact synonyms. To move silently, as a snake does.

snake about. To take evasive action: RAF aircrews' coll. (1939) >, by 1943, j. Ex prec., 2.

snake-charmer. A bugler; a Highland piper: army: late C.19—early 20. (F. & G.) Cf.:-

snake-charmers. A dance band: RAF: since ca. 1930. (Jackson.) Ex snake-charming by music, and cf. snake, n., 2. There may be a ref. to 'Snake Hips' Johnson, the dance-band leader.—2. Plate-layers: Aus. railwaymen's: C.20. B., 1942.

Snake Gully (course). A country racecourse: Aus. sporting: since 1930s. (B., 1953.) Imaginary country town. From the 1930s radio-comedy series 'Dad and Dave' (Wilkes). Cf. woop woop.

snake-headed. Spitefully angry; vindictive: Aus.: C.20. C.J. Dennis.

snake-hips. Ironic for man with middle-aged spread' (L.A.): mostly RAF: from ca. 1935. Cf. snake, v., 2, and snake-charmers, 1.

snake in the grass. A looking-glass: rhyming s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.); ob. by mid-C.20 (Franklyn). Like its fig. meaning, it can be a treacherous enemy; the phrase originates from Virgil, Eclogue iii, 93 (Brewer).

snake in your pocket?, a – or got a ... ? or, in full, have you got a ... ? An Aus. c.p., addressed to one who is slow to 'shout' his friends to a round of drinks: since ca. 1920. (B.P.) The implication being that the snake will bite him if he puts his hand in his pocket to get at his money.

snake-juice. 'Any improvised alcoholic drink; strong liquor generally' (Wilkes): Aus.: C.20. Perhaps ex snakes, 3. Hence snake-juicer, an addict to bad liquor (Baker): since early 1920s.

snake off. To slip quietly away: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1910. (H. Drake Brockman, The Fatal Years, 1947.) See also snake, v., 3.

Snake-Pit, the. The haunt mentioned at fishing fleet, 2, q.v.: RN: C.20. Granville.—2. Perhaps hence, the Maymo Club lounge: Burma: ca. 1925–41.—3. Sergeants' mess: Aus. Services': WW2 and since. B., 1943.

snake-tart. Eel-pie: mid-C.19—early 20. Cf. dove-tart, pigeon-pie.

snake the pool. To take the pool: billiards: from ca. 1880.

snake yarn. A tall story: Aus. juvenile: since ca. 1935. B., 1953.

snakes. A prison warder's felt-shod shoes or slippers: c.:—1923 (Manchon). So he snakes along silently.—2. In great snakes!, a coll. imprecation: 1897 (F. T. Bullen); slightly ob. by 1930. Orig. US (why in snakes occurring in 1891 in Scribner's Magazine). OED.—3. In see snakes, to have delirium tremens: adopted, ex US, ca. 1900. Earlier form have or have got snakes in one's boots, remained US.—4. See bag of snakes; caution to snakes.

snake's belly. See lower than a snake's...

snake's hiss. (To) piss: Aus. rhyming s.: C.20. Franklyn, Rhyming.

snake's (or snakes) honeymoon. A tangled mass of, e.g., ropes: RN: since ca. 1950. (Peppitt.)

snakesman. Only in little snakesman, q.v. Cf. sneaksman.

snaky, -ey. Bad-tempered: Aus.: since early C.20. (Wilkes's earliest quot'n is dated 1919.) Cf. snake-headed, of which it is perhaps a shortening (P.B.).—2. Jealous: Aus.: since ca. 1939. Cusack & James, Come in Spinner, 1931.

snam. To snatch; esp. to snatch (from the person): c.:—1839 (Brandon). Hence, (up) on the snam, thus engaged: mid-C.19—early 20.

snap, n. A share: c.: mid-C.16—early 20. (Awdelay, 1561.) Also snaps, as in go snaps, to go shares (cf. snack, q.v.): late C.18–20; Pegge, ca. 1800; H., 1st ed., spells it snapps, q.v. Cf. snick, n., q.v.—2. (A synonym of cloyer, q.v.) A sharper, cheat, pilferer; esp. a thief claiming a share in booty (cf. sense 1): c.: late C.16—early 17 for booty (cf. sense 1); c.: late C.16—early 17 for 'cloyer' nuance; ca. 1620–1720 for 'sharper' senses: former in Greene, latter in Fletcher and L'Estrange. In Ned Ward, 1731, brother snap is a sharking lawyer: C.18 s.—3. Energy; adopted, ex US, ca. 1890, as coll.; >, ca. 1910, S.E. Doyle, 1894, 'A young man... with plenty of snap about him' (OED). Cf. synon. go, pep, vim.—4. A short engagement (for work): theatrical: from ca. 1890. Cf. snapps, q.v.—5. As in soft snap, an easy matter, business, project; a profitable affair; an easy job; occ. a pleasant time: s. >, ca. 1910, coll.: from ca. 1885; orig. US (1845). In C.20, often simply snap, esp. in it's a snap. Cf. it's a snip, in the same sense, and:—6. In give the snap away, to blab; give the game away, 'blow the gaff': low s.: from ca. 1870.—7. Packed food; hence, snap tin, a container for a packed meal: railwaymen's: since ca. 1920. (Railway). P.B.: ex N. Midlands dial. for mid-morning snack: see esp. Orton & Wright, A Word Geography of England, 1974, and cf. bait, 3, another synon. regional word spread by the railways.—8. 'An ampoule of amyl nitrate sewn into cotton-wool pads': drug addicts': since ca. 1950. Because 'broken with a sharp sound under the nose and inhaled' (Robin Cook, The Crust on its Uppers, 1962).—9. In on the snap, on the look-out for something to steal: c.: mid-C.19–20. Cf. snapper-up of unconsidered trifles, and sense 2. Hence:—10. In on the snap, looking out for occasional work: from ca. 1890: s. >, ca. 1910, coll. Cf. sense 4.

snap, v.i. To go shares with sharpeners or thieves: early C.17 c. Field, 1609 (OED), Cf. snap, n., 1 and 2, also snack, snick (n.).

snap! Exclam. called forth by any (usu. minor) coincidence: coll.: C.20. Ex the parlour/nursery card-game so called.

snap-jack. A pancaker: Aus.: late C.19–20. B., 1942.

snap out of it! Go away quickly! low: adopted, ex US, ca. 1925; superseded by:—2. Wake up! (e.g., out of a day-dream); realise the truth! 'Be your age!': coll.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1933.

snap the glaze. To break shop-windows or show-case glasses: c.: ca. 1780–1840. Grose, 1st ed.

snappage. A share in booty: c.: early C.17. (Rowlands.) Cf. snap, 1, and snappings.

snapped, ppl adj. Abrupt, sudden, unexpected: coll.: 1893, Leland. OED.

snapper. An accomplice; a sharer (in booty): c.: ca. 1530–50. Cf. snap, n., 1.—2. A taker of snapshot photographs; the taker of the snapshot in question: from ca. 1908: coll. now verging on S.E.—3. 'A railway ticket inspector, so called because he "snaps" holes in tickets' (Culotta): Aus.: since ca. 1930.—4. 'A vagina that its proud possessor can tighten at will' (Hollander); loosely, any vagina (W. & F.) [P.B.: I think E.P.'s pun here is unintentional]: C.20 in US; since ca. 1950 in Britain. Cf. snatch, n., 2.

snapper-rigged. (Of a ship) poorly rigged and found; (of a man) poorly clothed: East Can. (and US) nautical: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) Perhaps ironical on snappy, smartly dressed. Cf.:-

snapper rigs. Old clothes: Liverpool street arabs': late C.19—mid-20. (Arab) Ex rig, n., 5, and, Liverpool being a port, prec.

Snappers, the. The 15th Foot, now the East Yorkshire Regiment: military: 1777 in the American War. F. & G.: owing to lack of ammunition, the men snapped their musket locks in order to befool the enemy. Also known as the Poona Guards, ob.

snappin. A packed lunch; hence, any packed food: Merseyside workers': since ca. 1910. A var. of snap, n., 7, q.v.

snapping. A share in booty: c.: late C.16—early 17. (Greene, 1591.) Cf. snap, n., 1, snappage, snapper, and snapps.

snapps. A var. of snap, n., 1, q.v. H., 1st ed., "Looking out for 'snapps'", waiting for windfalls'; H., 2nd ed., 1860, adds 'or odd jobs'. Cf. snap, n., 4 and 10.

snappy. Smartly intelligent; energetic; lively; pointed (story): coll.: 1873.—2. Whence, smart (of dress); neatly elegant: coll.: 1881; ob. OED.—3. Short-tempered; irritable; apt to 'snap' at people: coll.: since late C.19. 'Taffrail', Pincher Martin, 1916, 'Don't act so snappy'.—4. In make it snappy!, look lively!; be quick!; coll., adopted ex US: C.20. Cf. snap out of it!

snappy undercut; or merely undercut. A smart sexually attractive girl: butchers' (C.20) >, by 1935, fairly gen. Cf. snazzy undercut, a raffish, later C.20, var. (L.A., 1976).

snaps. Handcuffs: policemen's: ca. 1870–1910. (Jerome Caminada, Twenty-Five Years of Detective Life, 1895.) Ex the sound they make on being closed about the arrested person's wrists.—2. (Or Snaps.) A Naval photographer: RN: since ca. 1940. (Granville, 1962.) Cf. synonym. smudger.

snare, v. 'To acquire; to seize; to win' (C.J. Dennis): Aus.: late C.19–20. Ex snaring animals. In Public and Grammar Schools' coll., C.20, also 'to steal' (Sunday Times, 1 Sep. 1968, an article on the findings of sociologists R. Lambert and S. Millham). Cf.:—2. To cheat; hence, snare sheet, a slip of paper with notes for use in an examination: Marlborough College: C.20. According to Lambert & Millham, more widespread than just Marlborough.

snargasher. A training aircraft: Can. airmen's: 1939+. (H. & P.) A corruption—perhaps rather a deliberate distortion—of 'tarmac-smasher'.

snarge. An ugly or an unpleasant person: lower classes' and military: C.20. (F. & G.) Perhaps ex snitch, n., 3, + nark (s. sense). Cf. snurge, q.v.

snarl, n. An ill-tempered discussion; a quarrel: tailors': from ca. 1860. (Tailor and Cutter, 29 Nov. 1928.) P.B.: ex S.E. verb (SOD).

snarl, v. To steal; acquire illicitly—or even lawfully: circus: since ca. 1920. (Edward Seago, Sons of Sawdust, 1934.) Perhaps ex American snarl, a tangle.

snarler. A bad discharge: Aus. Services': since ca. 1919. 'Services no longer required.' (L.D.M. Roberts.)

snarls. See bunch of snarls, a disagreeable person.

snarl(e)y goster (usu. pl.). A sausage: RN. Heard, late 1950s, from a petty officer who had been through RN training school HMS Ganges as a boy seaman. (P.B.)

snart. A cigarette: army: since ca. 1925. P.B.: I am almost certain that this is an E.P. 'ghost-word', for it is prob. merely a London pron. of snout, q.v., tobacco.

snatch, n. A hasty or illicit or mercenary abduction: coll.: C.17–20. 'Melancholy' Burton, 'I could not abide marriage, but as a rambler I took a snatch when I could get it.'—2. Hence, ultimately, though imm. ex Yorkshire dial.: the female pudend: late C.19–20. Cf. snatch-blatch, -block, -box, and:—3. Hence, girls viewed collectively as 'fun': from ca. 1930. Peter Chamberlain, 'Yet another couple of "snatch".'—4. The pick-up, by a towing plane, of a glider: RAF coll. (1943–4); by 1945, official. Gerald Hanley, Monsoon Victory, 1946.

snatch-blatch. The female pudend: ca. 1890–1915. On snatch, 2. Cf.:-

snatch-block. MN var. of snatch, 2. Ex the technical snatch block, 'a block that can have a rope clipped rather than threaded' (Peppitt), whence the anatomical sense. Yet, even there, snatch is the more usual term. Cf.:-

snatch-box. A further punning elab., cf. prec., on snatch, 2: low: C.20. Prob. suggested by match-box, but cf. also box in this sense.

snatch-cly. A pickpocket, esp. one who snatches from women's pockets: c.: late C.18–19. (Grose, 2nd ed.; Baumann.) See cly.

snatch game, the. Kidnapping: c.: from ca. 1920. John G. Brandon, The 'Snatch' Game, 1936.

snatch (one's) time. To resign from a job: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1943; Gavin Casey, Downhill Is Easier, 1945.) Hence also snatch it (Alan Marshall, 1946).

snatched (car or cab). A car taken back from an owner-driver who has failed with his payments: taxi-drivers': since ca. 1925. (Herbert Hodge, 1938.) Cf.:-

snatcher. One who, when hire-purchasers fail to pay instalments, seizes (part of) the furniture: trade: from ca. 1920. (Daily Telegraph, 19 Oct. 1934.) Abbr. of an assumed furniture-snatcher. Cf. prec.—2. A young and inexperienced thief: c.: from ca. 1860. B. & L.—3. An assistant conductor: busmen's: since ca. 1945.—4. Short for tizzy-snatcher: C.20. 'Bar-timeus', Naval Occasions, 1914 (R.S.). snatchers. Handcuffs: Glasgow policemen's: since ca. 1890. (Ex-Inspector Elliot, Tracking Glasgow Criminals, 1904.) Cf. synonym. c. snitchers, and snaps.

snavel, n. See running snaffle and cf. running smobble.

snavel, v. To steal, esp. by snatching or by pocket-picking: c.: from ca. 1810. ('Jon Bee'.) A corruption of snabble or of snaffle (v., 1), or perhaps a fusion of both.—2. Hence, to catch; to take: Aus.: mid-C.19–20. Vance Palmer, The Passage, 1930, 'It's dead easy to make work. Dead easy, too, to snavel a few hours off if you use your head.'

'Snayles! A C.16–17 var. of 'Snails!, q.v.

snazzy. Fashionable, smart: Aus.: adopted, ca. 1943, ex US servicemen. (Dymphna Cusack, Say No to Death, 1951, 'A couple of snazzy little cameras'; D'Arcy Niland, The Shiralee, 1955.) Also, by 1954, English s.—Perhaps a blend of snappy + jazzy.—2. 'Smooth': see CANADIAN ADOLESCENTS', in Appendix.

snazzy chassis. A girl's good figure, esp. in lassie with a snazzy chassis: Aus.: since ca. 1945. Cf. prec., and snappy undercut, q.v.; partly rhyming. (B.P.)

sneak; in late C.18–19, gen. the sneak. The practice, or a specific act, of creeping in stealthily with a view to robbery; a theft thus effected: c.: late C.17—earlier 20. Esp. in upon or (C.19–20) on the sneak, stealthily, mainly in ref. to robbery (B.E.; Vaux); from ca. 1820, prowling for booty: cf. v., 3. Hence to go upon the s., to slip into houses whose doors are left open and there steal: c.: early C.18 (James Dalton, A Narrative, 1828, p. 31); ob. by early 20.—2. Partly hence, a stealthy departure or flight: c.: from ca. 1810. Vaux, who lists the elab. give it to (a person) upon the sneak. Cf. v., 2.—3. A pilferer, a stealthy enterer with a view to theft: from ca. 1780: s. >, ca. 1830, coll. >, ca. 1880, S.E. Grose, 1st ed., where occur the specialised morning and evening sneak, one who pilfers at that particular time; Vaux, 1812, has morning s. as the practice of 'going out early to rob private houses or shops by slipping in at the door unperceived' (cf. sense 1).—4. One who informs or peaches on his fellow(s): schoolboys' s. since late C.19 >, by mid-C.20, gen. coll. verging on informal S.E. See v., 5. (P.B.)—5. 'The dispute as to whether... the legitimate underhand trundler should be allowed to indulge in "daisy cutters" or "sneaks", and "grubs", as they were called' (Sir Frank Benson, Memoirs, 1930): cricketers': late C.19—early 20.—6. See area sneak; upright sneak; sneaks, 1. sneak, v.t. To steal from (a place) after stealthy entry: c.: from ca. 1810; ob. (Vaux.) Prob. ex n., 1. Cf. sense 4.—2. To escape from (a person) by stealth: c.: from ca. 1810; extremely ob. (Vaux.) Cf. sneak, n., 2.—3. To walk about looking for something to steal or pilfer: c.: from ca. 1820; ob. Bee.—4. To filch; steal furtively, stealthily: coll.: 1883 (OED). Ex sense 1.—5. To tell tales (v.i.): schools': 1897, Daily News, 3 June, 'Sneaking, in the ethics of the public school boys, is the unpardonable sin' (OED); by 1930, coll. Ex sneak, to be servile. Cf. n., 4.

sneak-cup. Erroneous for sneak-up, a sneak or skulker: late C.16–17. OED.

sneak on the lurk. To prowl about for booty: c.: from ca. 1820; ob. An elab. of sneak, v., 3, q.v. See lurk.

sneaker. 'A large cup (or small basin) with a saucer and cover,' esp. for drink; e.g. a sneaker of punch: from ca. 1710; perhaps orig. s., soon > coll.; by 1830, S.E. Y. & B. 2. (Gen. pl.) Var. of sneaks, 1: coll., orig. (—1891) and still mainly US, Eng. preferring sand- or tennis-shoes, plimsolls, daps. However, Tempest, 1950, glosses 'Shoes worn by a cat burglar. Any rubber or crepe-soled shoes used when burgling.' Manchon, 1923.—3. A coward: ca. 1800–1850. Moe cites Harry Woodriff's article, 'English Smugglers', London Magazine, Aug. 1822.

sneaking-budge. A lone-hand thief or robber: See budge, 1. sneaks. C. from ca. 1870 as in James Greenwood's In Strange Company, 1873, 'Sneaks... are shoes with canvas tops and india-rubber soles.' Ex sneak, n., 2. See also sneaker, 2.—2. As 'Sneaks!, God's neaks!, a coll. petty oath: early C.17. (Marston.) Properly, neaks should be neakes or neagues = nigs. A var. of the oath occurs in Fletcher, 1619, 'I'll... goe up and downe drinking small beere and swearing 'odds neagues.' OED. Cf. 'Snigs!, q.v.

sneakman. A stealthy thief, cowardly pilferer: c.: from ca. 1810. (Vaux.) Properly, one who goes 'upon the sneak', q.v. Ex sneak, n., 1, but perhaps influenced by snakesman, q.v.—2. Hence, a shoplifter: c.: mid-C.19–20. H, 1st ed.

sneek up!, snick up! Go hang!: late C.16–17 coll.; extant in dial. ('Women of Abingdon' Porter, 1599; Shakespeare; dramatist Heywood.) Lit., lath! Cf. shut up!, q.v., and the Derbicism put a sneek before one's snout, to watch one's speech, to say little or nothing.

sneefoo. See snafu.

sneerg. Greens: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.).

sneeze. The nose: from ca. 1820; very ob. by 1930. ('Jon Bee'.) Ex sneezer, 2.

sneeze at. To underrate, disregard, scorn: coll.: 1806 (Surr: OED); Combe, 1820, 'A... dame... who wish'd to change her name, / And... would not perhaps have sneezed at mine.' In C.20, mainly in not to be sneezed at, q.v.

sneeze- or snuff-lurker. A thief that operates after disabling his victim with snuff, pepper, or any similar unpleasantness: c.: from ca. 1859; ob. H., 1st ed., sneeze-lurker. As = snuff, sneeze, once S.E., is now dial. Cf. snuff, 1, and:

sneeze- or snuff-racket, give it (to a person) on the. To do this: from ca. 1820; ob. by 1930. See prec.

sneezed at. See not to be sneezed at.

sneezer. A snuff-box: c. of ca. 1720–1880. A New Canting Dict., 1725, 'Cog a Sneezer, Beg a... Snuff-box'; Vaux. Ex sneeze, snuff.—2. The nose: 1820 (OED). Cf. snorter, last sense.—3. Hence, a pocket-handkerchief: low:—1857 ('Ducange Anglicus'); ob. by 1930.—4. A drink, esp. a dram of something strong: from ca. 1820: dial. >, ca. 1835, s. J.T. Hewlett, 1841, 'He knew he should get a sneezer of something short for his trouble'; Dickens. (OED.) Lit., enough to make one sneeze. Cf. snifter, 1.—5. Something exceptionally good or bad, big or strong or violent, in some specified respect: s. >, in late C.19, coll.: 1820, a blow (dial. >, ca. 1840, s.); a gale, 1825 (W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, I: Moe), mainly nautical; a very well bowled fast ball, late C.19–20 (cricket); in 1836, Haliburton speaks of 'a regular sneezer of a sinner'; a martinet (military s. of—1903). OED; F. & H. Cf. prec. sense, snorter, 2, and snifter, 2.—6. A mouth-gag: c.: from ca. 1890. (Rook, Hooligan.) Ex sense 3. sneezes (or S.), like. Vigorously, intensively; remarkably: lower-class coll.: C.20. (Dorothy L. Sayers, Strong Poison, 1930.) Perhaps sneezes is a euph. for Jesus and, oddly yet quite possibly, the phrase = like the devil.

sneezing-coffer. A snuff-box: c. of ca. 1810–50. (Vaux.) Cf. sneezer, 1.

Sneezy. The second month in the French Republican Calendar: late C.18–early 19. Ex (le mois) brumaire, the foggy month.

snefu (or caps). See snafu.

snell. A needle: c.; hawkers' s.: from ca. 1845. Ex Scots snell, sharp.

snell-fencer. A needle-hawker: id. 'No. 747'.

Sneller. A student going to, and being at, the University of Oxford on a Snell exhibition: Oxford undergraduates' coll.: C.19–20. Ernest Barker, Age and Youth, 1953.

snelt. A sneak-thief; a term of abuse: NZ and Aus. c.: C.20. (B., 1941, 1942.)? Yiddish.

snerge. See snurge.

snib. A petty thief: c.: ca. 1605–1840. (Dekker; Egan's Grose, where it is described as Scotch cant. OED.)? cognate with snib, to check.

snib, v. To coit with (a woman): low Scots: from ca. 1810. Prob. ex snib, to fasten (a door); cf. snib a candle, snuff it, and-snibbet. Sexual intercourse: low: C.20. Prob. ex Scottish and Northumberland dial. snibbet (or -it), a mechanical device involving an 'eye' and an insertion (EDD, snibbit, sense 1). P.B.: but cf. prec., and-snibley, esp. a bit of snibley, as in 'Ad a nice bit of snibley last night'. Sexual intercourse, mostly from the male angle: low: C.20. Cf. prec.

snibs! A term of derision or defiance: late C.19—earlier 20. snice mince-pie, it's a. A c.p.: from ca. 1916; ob. by 1930. Suggested by the sibilance of a nice mince-pie, esp. when prec. by it's. See s-.

snick, n. A share: s. and dial.: from ca. 1720. At Winchester, go snicks (—1891), to go shares. A var. of snack, q.v.—2. Esp. in for a snick, for a certainty; proletarian: late C.19–20. J.J. Conington, A Minor Operation, 1937, 'Not a light showin' at any o' the windows—empty for a snick.' For the origin, cf. snip, n., 4.

snick, v. To slip, cut, across or along (a road) suddenly or quickly: coll.: 1883 (OED). Ex snick, v.i., to cut, snip, esp. crisply.—2. See snicking.

snick-fadge. A petty thief: c.: mid-C.19–20. Ex S.E. snick off.

snick up! See sneek up!

snicket, a bit of. A girl: since ca. 1945. (Richard Gordon, Doctor at Sea, 1953.) Ex Lancashire dial. snicket, a forward girl. R.S.: 'The Lancashire dial. meaning, "a forward girl", contrasts with the W. Riding dial. meaning of snicket—a "passage-way" or "short cut between houses" (cf. W. Riding "ginnel"), apparently derived from snick, v. Perhaps this Lancashire lass kept her assignments in Yorkshire back-alleys, unless the allusion is to a biological passage.' Cf. snippet.

snicker. A glandered horse: late C.18—early 19. (Grose, 3rd ed.) Cf. snitched.

snicking. A surreptitious obtaining: c. or low s.: ca. 1670–1750. Head, 1673 (OED). See snick, n., and cf. snack, snap (v.), and snicktog. P.B.: cf. synonym. nick, and the evolution of Snottingasham > Nottingham.

snickle, v.i. To inform, peach: c.: mid-C.19–20: mostly US. (Matsell.) Prob. ex the now dial. snickle, to snare.

snicks, go. See snick, n.

snicktog. To go shares: c.: late C.19—early 20. Perversion of snick, n. Cf. snack (esp. as go snacks), snip, n., 1, and v., snick (esp. go snicks), and snicking, q.v.v.

snid. A sixpence: mainly Scots c. (—1839); ob. by 1900, virtually † by 1930. Brandon.

sniddy. See snide, adj.

snide, n. An occ. form of snid, q.v.—2. (Occ. snyde.) Anything spurious, esp. base coin or sham jewellery: c. (in C.20, low): implied in snide-pitcher, q.v., as early as 1862, but by itself unrecorded before ca. 1885, except in H., 5th ed., 1874, 'Also... as a [n.], as, "He's a snide", though this seems but a contraction of snide 'un'; perhaps, however, the ref. in 'No. 747', p. 416 is valid (as = base metal) for 1845. The origin seems to be S. German "aufschneiden" (to boast, brag, show off, exaggerate, talk big), no doubt reaching English via Yiddish, as such words tend to do' (R.S.).—3. Hence, a contemptible person: c. >, by 1890, low: see quot'n from H. for sense 2.—4. 'The business of passing counterfeit half-crowns and other imitation silver coins': c.: from ca. 1920. (James Spenser, Limy Breaks In, 1934.) Abbr. snide-pitching, q.v.

snide, snyde, adj. Spurious, counterfeit, sham, bogus: c.: 1862, 'Snyde witnesses' (OED); but the ref. in 'No. 747', p. 418, points to 1845. Cf. deriv. at n., 2.—2. Hence, mean, contemptible; esp. underhand: c. since ca. 1870; by ca. 1940, gen. low coll. H., 5th ed.; 'Pomes' Marshall, 'His pockets she tried,/Which is wifely, though snide.' Both senses also in forms sniddy and snidey: late C.19–20.—3. Hence, loosely, wrong, incorrect: C.20. David Esdaile, Daily Mirror, 18 Nov. 1933, 'Slang is snide... the antithesis of correctitude.' P.B.: rare in this sense: 2 is the most common.

snide and shine (or S. and S.). A Jew, esp. of East London: East London Gentiles:—1909 (Ware). For shine, cf. sheeny. snide lurk. The passing of counterfeit money: c.: from ca. 1845. 'No. 747'.

snide-pitcher. A passer of base money: c.: 1862 (OED). See snide, n., 2.

snide-pitching. The passing of counterfeit money: c.: 1868, Temple Bar, 'Snyde-pitching is... a capital racket.' See snide, n., 2; cf. snide-pitcher.

snide shop. An agency for the selling of counterfeit notes: c.: from ca. 1920. Edgar Wallace, Mr Reeder.

snider. See snyder.—2. A sly fellow, a spy, a connoisseur: c.:—1923 (Manchon). Prob. ex snide, adj.

snidesman. A 'snide-pitcher' (q.v.): c.: 1897 (Arthur Morrison: OED).

snidey. See snide, adj.—2. Snappish, irritable: Glasgow:—1934.—3. Bad; unfavourable: c., and low: from ca. 1870. Also sniddy.—4. Dirty; military: from ca. 1875. B. & L.

snidget. Excellent: Aus. juvenile: since the 1930s. (B., 1953.) Cf. snifter, 2, perhaps sneezer, 5, and snodger.

snie; occ. snv. A hole filled with water; a hidden pool, even if large: Can. coll.: C.20. (John Beames.) Leechman: ex Can. Fr. chenal, a canal-like watercourse.

sniff, v.i. To drink (strong liquor): from ca. 1920. (Michael Harrison, Weep for Lycidas, 1934.) Cf.:—2. To 'inhale fumes (e.g. glue) for "kicks"' (Home Office): orig. teenage and other addicts, > gen. coll.: later C.20. Ex the lit. S.E., as is the earlier sniff coke, where coke (= cocaine) is used generically, and the phrase = to take drugs: adopted ex US ca. 1930.

sniff of the barmaid's apron. See smell of the barman's...

sniffer. The nose: pugilistic: ca. 1840–90. Augustus Mayhew, Paved With Gold, 1857.

sniffer?, will you have a. Will you take a drink?: Anglo-Irish c.p.:—1935. Perhaps influenced by snifter, 1, and sniff, 1.

sniffy. Scornful, disdainful; occ. ill-tempered: coll. and dial.: from ca. 1870. Lit., apt to sniff in contempt. Cf. sneeze at, q.v. sniftem. An inhalant: fair-grounds': C.20. This -em is a characteristic (minor yet determinant) of fair-ground slang—cf. stickem below. Perhaps a var. or even a perversion of the mock-Latin -um; cf. the mock-Latin -us of bonus and hocus-pocus.

snifter, n. A dram: low: from ca. 1880; ob. Prob. ex US snifter (1848), a small drink of spirits: (Thornton.) Cf. sneezer, 4. P.B.: not ob. [E.P.'s date is prob. ca. 1930]; in the sense of a drink, a 'pick-me-up', 'a quick one', it was Service officers' coll., still extant mid-C.20, as in 'There was no demand for the popular six o' clock "snifter" at all [in the officers' mess]' (Tim Carew, Korea: The Commonwealth at War, 1967).—2. Any thing or person excellent, or very big or strong: late C.19–20. Ex dial. snifter, a strong breeze. Cf. sneezer, last sense, and snorter, 2.—3. See snuff and snifter.

snifter, adj. (Very) good or satisfactory: early C.20. (F. & G.) Ex prec., 2. Cf.:-

snifty conner. Good food: Services' (esp. RAF): ca. 1925–45. (Jackson.) See conner.

snifty-sneyde. Supercilious, disdainful: Lancashire s. (—1904), not dial. (EDD.) Cf. sniffy and snidey, 2.: qq.v. snig, n. A policeman: urban schoolchildren's, mostly boys': C.20. (Bill Naughton, One Small Boy, 1966: L.A.) A dial. form of sneak?

snig, v. To steal; pilfer: 1892 (Kipling; EDD). Ex dial. P.B.: prob. cognate with snick, q.v. at snicking; cf. interchangeable rick and rig. Cf. also sneak and snitch.

sniggered if (e.g. you will), I'm. A mild asseveration (—1860). Very ob. H., 2nd ed., 'Another form of this is jiggered.' Cf.:-

'Sniggers! A trivial oath: coll.: ca. 1630–1890. Rowley, Smollett, Haliburton (OED). Whence perhaps sniggered, q.v. Cf.:-

sniggle, v.i. To wriggle; creep stealthily: 1821 (Bill Truck); prob. dial. >, ca. 1900, coll. Ex snuggle.—2. Whence, to get (something) in surreptitiously: dial. (—1881) >, ca. 1900, coll. OED.

sniggy. Mean, penurious: C.20; ob. (EDD.) Prob. ex Yorkshire dial.

'Snigs! God's nigs, a trivial oath: coll.: ca. 1640–90. (OED.) More prob. a var. than an abbr. of 'Sniggers!', q.v. Cf. Sneaks!, q.v.

snilch, v.i.; rarely v.t. To see; to eye: c. of ca. 1670–1850. (Coles, Grose, 1st ed.)? origin.—2. Hence, to examine closely, to feel suspiciously: c.: mid-C.19–20; ob. Manchon. sninny. A girl or young woman: Aus. low: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) A perversion of synonym. Aus. skinny.

snip, n. A tailor; often as a nickname: late C.16–20: s. >, in C.18, coll. (Jonson, Grose, Trollope.) In late C.19—earlier 20, the inevitable Services' nickname of all men surnamed Taylor or Parsons. Ex to snip, to go shares: coll.: mid-C.19–20. (B. & L.) Cf. snick, n., 1.—8. See snips.

snip, v.t. To cheat: low: ca. 1720–1840. (A New Canting Dict., 1725.) Cf. snip, n., 2, q.v.

snip-cabbage or -louse. A tailor: resp. C.18—early 19 (E. Ward, 1708); from ca. 1820 (Bee, 1823). But are very ob. For former, cf. trade sense of cabbage.

snipe. A lawyer: from ca. 1860. (H., 2nd ed.) Prob. ex:—2. A long bill, esp. among lawyers, whose bills are often tragicomic in their length: from ca. 1855. (H., 2nd ed.) Ex the long-billed bird.—3. See snipes.—4. (Gen. in pl.) A cigarette-end: vagrants c.: C.20. (W.A. Gape, Half a Million Tramps, 1936.) Cf. the v., 2.—5. A trimmer (stoke-hold): Aus.: since ca. 1910. Dymphna Cusack, Southern Steel, 1953.—6. A small poster glued—for political purposes—to a telegraph pole or a wall: Aus.: since ca. 1945. (B.P.)—7. A sniper's hide; "a snipe", as the Provos [q.v.] euphemistically called their murderous ambushes' (Hawke): N. Ireland: since late 1960s.

snipe, v. F. & H.'s 'to fire at random into a camp' is prob. an error.—2. To pilfer: low:—1923 (Manchon) Prob. ex shooting. Also since ca. 1920, low Aus. s. (Tom Ronan, Vision Splendâid, 1954).

sniped, be; sniping. Terms in use among OTC cadets in 1914—mid-1916, thus in Blaker: 'Men, so far, had gone off from Cartwright's Unit, gazetted to battalions by a process known among the Cadets as "sniping"... It was impossible to detect any system according to which groups or isolated individuals were "picked off" [as though by a sniper] and gazetted... [Cartwright's] name was not among the sniped'. The terms, Blaker makes clear, were also applied specifically to being "asked for" by some particular Colonel who was training a new battalion'.

sniper. 'A non-union wharf labourer' (B., 1943): Aus.: since ca. 1930.—2. In (he) went for a crap (or shit) and a (or the) sniper got him, a (mostly) Aus. army 'joc. reply to request for anyone's whereabouts' (Wilkes): prob. since WW1. Cf. Kipling's post-WW1 'Epitaph for the Refined Man', who 'stepped aside for [his] needs'—and was killed. Cf. also synonym. he shot through on the padre's bike. (P.B.)

snipes. A pair of scissors: c.: ca. 1810–1910. (Vaux.) But as snips, its use continues in this sense among market traders: 1978 (M.T.).—2. Second-mortgage bonds in the New York, Lake Erie, and Western Railway: Stock Exchange:—1895 (A.J. Wilson, Stock Exchange Glossary).

snipey or snipy. Crafty, esp. of a hiding-place: prison officers': C.20. Jim Phelan, Tramp at Anchor, 1954.

snippet. The female pudend: Liverpool: late C.19–20.—2. Hence, intercourse with a girl: Liverpool: C.20. Cf. snicket, q.v.

snippy. Snappy; captious; coll.: C.20. Ex dial. Lit., cutting. (EDD) R.S.: 'Cf. S. Ger. schneppisch used precisely in this sense by Goethe: Faust, Part I, 1808, referring to Gretchen's first curt refusal of Faust's advances.'

snips. Handcuffs: low: from ca. 1890. Ex snip, adv. denoting sound. OED.—2. See snipes, 1.

snish. Ammunition: army: early C.20. (F. & G.) Ex Scots and Northern dial. snish (more gen. sneesh), snuff.

snitch, n. A fillip on the nose: c.: ca. 1670–1750. (Coles, B.E.) Also snitchel: same status, period and authorities.—2. The nose: late C.17–20: c. >, ca. 1830, dial. and low s. B.E. at snite.—3. Hence (cf. nose, n.), an informer, esp. by King's evidence: only in turn snitch, to turn King's evidence: later C.18–early 19. (Grose, 1st ed.; Lex. Bal.) P.B.: some use among C.20 schoolchildren, as var. of sneak. Cf. v., 1, 2.—4. Synon. with and perhaps ex snitcher, 5: NZ: C.20. (B., 1941.) Perhaps suggested by 'to peach or snitch on someone' and 'a peach of a person or thing'.—5. In get a snitch, a take a dislike, as in 'Got a snitch on me' (Slatter): since ca. 1930. Perhaps ex v., 2.—6. See snitches.

snitch, v.i. To peach, turn King's evidence: c.: C.19–20. (Vaux, Maginn.) Prob. ex the n.; perhaps cognate with snilch, q.v. Cf. to nose.—2. V.t. To inform against: c.: C.19–20; rare, the gen. form being snitch upon. OED.—3. To purloin: 1933, Dorothy L. Sayers, Murder Must Advertise, 1933, 'He... snitched other people's ideas without telling them'.—4. To arrest (a person): c.: mid-C.19–early 20. B. & L.

snitchel, n. See snitch, n., 1.—2. V.t. to fillip on the nose: c.: late C.17–early 18. B.E.

snitched, ppl. adj. Glandered: horse-dealers' s.:—1876 (Hindley). Cf. snicker, q.v. snitcher, n. A member of a set of bloods: ca. 1760–80. (The Annual Register, 1761: OED.)? origin.—2. One who peaches; an informer: c.: 1827 (OED); John G. Brandon, The One-Minute Murder, 1934. Ex snitch, v., 1.—3. In pl, hand-cuffs; or strings used therefor: c.:—1860 (H., 2nd ed.). Cf. snitches.—4. A detective: c.:—1923 and Aus.: (Manchon). Ex sense 2.—5. A person or thing remarkably good, strong, attractive, etc.: NZ and Aus.:—1935. Cf. sneezzer, snifter.

snitcher, adj. Excellent; attractive: Aus.: since ca. 1930. (Baker.) Ex prec., 5.

snitches. Handcuffs: c.: from ca. 1870. A corruption of snitcher, 3.

snitching. The art and practice of peaching; turning King's evidence: C.19–20: c.

snitching-rascal. A var. of snitcher, 2. Vaux. († by 1890.)

snite his snitch. 'Wipe his Nose, or give him a good Flap on the Face': resp. late C.17–20 (c. >, in C.19, low s.; B.E.) and late C.17–early 19 (c.; Grose, 1785). By itself snite is S.E. > dial.

sniv, n. An attention-seeking ploy, undertaken in order that it could be 'written up' in the journal compulsorily kept for periodical inspection by officer-instructors: RN officer cadets': mid-C.20. (Heart, 1962.) Prob. ex sniveller. (P.B.)

sniv, v. To hold one's tongue: c.: ca. 1810–50. Ex snib, to fasten.—2. sniv! See bender! C. of ca. 1810–40. Vaux.

snivel, do a. To tell a pitiful tale: tailors': from ca. 1865. B. & L.

sniveller. A toadying seaman: nautical: late C.19–20. Bowen.

snivey. See hook and snivey. The meaning of snivey now seems to be lost, appearing nowhere except in this context.

snizzle. To fornicate: lower classes':—1923 (Manchon). Origin? Possibly cognate with dial. sniggle (see EDD, at sniggle, v., 2).

snob, n. A shoemaker, cobbler, or an apprentice thereto: from ca. 1780: s. >, ca. 1800, coll. and dial. In Scots coll., C.19–20, snob. (Grose, 1st ed.)? etym. Cf. snobber.—2. Hence, in the RN, 'a man earning extra money by repairing shipmates' boots in spare time': late C.19–20: coll. 'Taffrail'; F. & G.—3. A townsman: Cambridge University: ca. 1795–1870. Perhaps ex sense 1. Cf. the corresponding cad.—4. Among workmen, a 'blackleg' or 'scab': coll.: from ca. 1859; very ob. Abbr. snobstick, q.v.—5. The last sheep to be shorn, because the most difficult: Aus. rural: C.20. (B.P.) Prompted by cobbler, 2.

snob, v.i. and t. 'To sloven one's work' (F. & H.): tailors': ca. 1870–1930.

snob-shop. The regimental boot repairer or maker's workshop: military coll.: late C.19–20. (F. & G.) See snob, n., 1. snob-stick. See snobstick.

snobber. A shoemaker, cobbler: coll.: 1900 (OED). Ex snob, n., 1. Esp. a RN nickname (H. & P.)

snobbery. Slovenly work; slack trade: tailors': from ca. 1870; ob. Cf. snob, v. Whence, hide the snobbery, to conceal bad workmanship, inferior material.

snobbing, n. Boot-repairing: coll.: C.19–20. See snob, n., 1. Hence snobbing firm, group of ratings that repair their shipmates' boots and shoes: RN: C.20. Granville.

snobby. An army boot repairer: army: late C.19–earlier 20. Fredk Manning, Her Privates We, 1930.

snob's boot. A sixpence: tailors': ca. 1870–1930. Cf. snob's duck.

snob's cat. In full of piss and tantrums, like a ..., a low c.p. applied to a person: ca. 1820–50. ('Jon Bee'.) A var. of like the barber's cat, (all) full of wind and piss.

snob's duck. 'A leg of mutton, stuffed with sage and onions' (F. & H.): tailors' ca. 1870–1930. See snob, n., 1, and cf. snob's boot.

snobstick. A non-striker, a 'scab': workmen's coll.:—1860; ob. (H., 2nd ed.) Prob. a corruption of knobstick, q.v., as H., 2nd ed., suggests.

snodder. One who dislikes spending: grafters': C.20. (Cheap-jack, 1934.) Ex Yiddish.

snoddy. A soldier: low: ca. 1890–1914. A corruption of swaddy, q.v.

snodger, n. and adj. Excellent (person or thing), attractive (etc.): Aus.: since ca. 1925. (B., 1942.) Arbitrary; yet cf. snitcher and snidget. Ob. by 1978 (Wilkes).

snog, n. A flirtation; a courting: esp. among beatniks: since ca. 1959. (Anderson.) P.B.: but as in, e.g., have a snog, earlier; a var. of:-

snog, v. 'To make love with repletion of kissing and cuddling; hence snogging session, making love' (L.A., 1977): very common throughout WW2 [and still, 1983, not ob.: P.B.]. I surmise a dial. alteration of snug, cosy, notably as in that snuggling-up which so often preludes a warmer conjunction.—2. Hence, to flirt, or to court, esp. in be or come or go snogging: beatniks', adopted, ca. 1959, ex gen. s. (Anderson.) The term, esp. as be or go snogging, seems to have orig. in the RAF, late 1930s (Partridge, 1945).

snogged up. Smartened up; 'all dressed up': RAF: WW2. snogging, n. Vbl n. corresponding to snog, v.

snoodge. See snooze.

snook, n. See snooks, 2.

snook, v. To answer an examination paper throughout; to defeat (someone) in argument: Shrewsbury: late C.19–20. (Marples.) Ex 'cock a snook?', q.v. at snooks, 2. See also snork, v.

snooker. A freshman at the Royal Military Academy: RMA:

1872 (OED). Prob. ex snook, a var. of snoke, to sneak about (v.i.).

snooker, v. To delude, trick, 'best', 'be too much for': from 1914 at latest. (OED Sup.) Ex the game: cf. S.E. euchre.

snooks. The imaginary name of a practical joker; also a derivative retort on an idle question—'Snooks!' (F. & H.): from ca. 1860; ob. H., 2nd ed.—2. In cock (or cut) snooks or a snook, to make the derisive gesture described at sight, 5: coll.: (resp.)—1903; 1904; 1879. (F. & H.; OED.) Orig. obscure. 'Cf. Fr. faire un pied de nez, Ger. eine lange nase machen. Perhaps name Snook-s felt as phonetically appropriate (cf. Walker' (W.).)—3. 'A term of endearment for a small child' (B.P.): Aus.: since ca. 1925. Cf. snookums. Cf.:—4. In be (dead) snooks on, to be in love with: Aus.: earlier C.20. Miles Franklin, Old Blastus of Bandicoot, 1931.

snookums. A trivial endearment; esp. applied to a lap-dog: coll.: 1928. (OED Sup.) Cf. diddums, and prec., 3.

snooky. Critical; pernickety: Aus.: since ca. 1910; by 1960, ob. Frank Clunes, Try Anything Once, 1933, 'There was a snooky guy up in the corner listening to all I had to say.' P.B.: prob. a var. of snoopy; see—snoop; gen. snoop around. To pry; go about slyly: orig. (ca. 1830) US; anglicised as a coll. ca. 1905; by 1935, gen. considered virtually S.E. Ex the Dutch snoepen. (Thornton.) Hence snooper, snooping, one who does this, and the action; also snoopy, adj.: all anglicised ca. 1920.—2. Hence v.t. snoop, to 'appropriate', steal on the sly: coll.: 1924 (Galsworthy, The White Monkey).—3. To be a Service policeman: RAF: 1939+. (Partridge, 1945.) Ex sense 1.

Snoops, the. Service (>, in late 1944, RAF) Police: RAF: since ca. 1939. (E.P., New Statesman, 19 Sep. 1942.) Short for snooper, ex snoop.

snoopy. See snoop, 1.

snoose. See snooze.

snoot. Superciliousness; affected superiority: coll.: prob. a back-formation ex snooty, q.v. (L.A., 1976.) Cf.:—2. A disagreeable, or a supercilious, person: Aus.: since ca. 1930. B., 1942.—3. See droop-snoot.

snootful, have a. To be tipsy: Can.: adopted, ca. 1940, ex US. snooty. (Of persons) unpleasant; cross, irritable; supercilious: Society and near-Society: from ca. 1930. (Denis Mack-ail, Summer Leaves, 1934.) Perhaps on snoopy (see snoop) but ex snooty: cf. Lancashire snoot, v.i. to sneak, hang round. Adopted ex US; used in Can. from ca. 1920. P.B.: E.P. noted at snoot, 1, 'Ex turning up one's nose or snoot (dial. snooty): perhaps rather 'looking down one's nose at', than the Lancs. dial. which is not really relevant. See also snouty, adj.

snooze; occ. snoose (ob.); in late C.18—early 19, occ. snoodge. A sleep; esp. a nap or doze: 1793 (OED): c. >, by 1820, s. >, ca. 1840, coll. Ex snooze, v.—2. Whence, a lodging; a bed: c.: from ca. 1810; ob. Vaux; Brandon.—3. A three-month sentence of imprisonment: Aus. c.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Cf. dream and rest and the American sleep.

snooze, v.; occ. snoose († in C.20) and snoodge (late C.18—20: Grose, 2nd ed.: since ca. 1850, illiterate). To sleep: 1789 (George Parker): c. >, ca. 1810, s. >, ca. 1840, coll. Grose, 1788, 'To snooze with a mort [wench] ... Cant.'—2. Hence (in late C.19—20, the prevailing sense), to doze, take a nap: from ca. 1840: coll. Thackeray, 'Snooze gently in thy arm-chair, thou easy bald-head.' Etym. problematic: the word may have been suggested by 'sleep', 'nap', and 'doze', but may simply be echoic—cf. zizz. R.S. has suggested that the word is a blend of S.E. snore and doze—an attractive theory.

snooze-case. A pillow-slip: low:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.): ob. by 1930. Ex prec., 2.

snooze-ken. Var. of snoozing-ken.

snoozem. Sleep; a sleep: low: 1838 (Beckett, Paradise Lost); ob. by 1900, † by 1930. An elab. of snooze, n., 1.

snoozer. One who 'snoozes': coll.: 1832, Basil Hall.—2. 'One of those thieves who take up their quarters at hotels for the purpose of robbery': c.: mid-C.19—20. Mayhew.—3. A baby:

Aus.: C.20. Baker.—4. A Pullman sleeping-car: Can. railroadmen's:—1931.

snoozy. See snooze.

snoozing, n. and adj. See snooze, v. From ca. 1810. Cf.: snoozing(-)ken. A brothel: c.:—1811 (Lex. Bal.) See snooze, v. Also, according to F. & H., a lodging-house, bed-room, bed. Occ. snooze-ken.

snoozle, v.i. To nestle and then sleep; to nuzzle: resp. ca. 1830, 1850: coll. and dial. Perhaps, as W. suggests, ex snooze + snuggle + nuzzle.—2. Hence, v.t. to thrust affectionately, nuzzle: coll. and dial.: 1847 (Emily Brontë: OED).

snoozy, n. A night-constable: c. of ca. 1820—60. (Egan's Grose.) Ex snooze, v., 1.

snoozy, adj. Sleepy; drowsy: coll.: 1877 (OED). See snooze, n., 1.

snore. (A) sleep: low: since ca. 1920. James Curtis, They Drive by Night, 1938, 'He had not had much snore the night before.' Extension of S.E. sense.

snore-bag. A sleeping-bag: army officers': 1939+. P-G-R.

snore like a pig in the sun. To snore vigorously or stertorously: coll.: mid-C.19—early 20. Manchon.

snore-off, n. A short sleep: low Aus., C.20 (Ruth Park, 1950); adopted, ca. 1925, in NZ (Slatter). Cf. snore.

snore off, v. Ex prec. Nino Culotta, Cop This Lot, 1960.

snore through it. To move easily, to glide; to act effortlessly: ca. 1805—50. Bill Truck, 1823. Semantically cf. walk it.

snorer. The nose: pugilistic: ca. 1840—90. Augustus Mayhew, Paved With Gold, 1857.—2. Bed: army: C.20. Proleptic.—2. See snorrer.

snoring, be. Thomas Skeats, barrow-boy (as in the Daily Mail of 24 July 1963), says, 'What you gotta watch is that your pears don't go "sleepy", as we say, in the 'eat. When it's very 'ot and they get real soft, we say they are "snoring": barrow boys': since ca. 1910. (Sleepy has long been S.E.)

snoring breeze. A strong, noisy breeze: RN coll.: (?) mid-C.19—mid-20. Goodenough, 1901.

snoring-kennel. A bedroom: low coll.: 1703 (Ned Ward). Cf. snoozing-ken; cf. also MISCELLANEA, in Appendix.

snork, n. A rebuff, a setback: Shrewsbury School: late C.19—20. (Desmond Coke, The Bending of a Twig, 1906.) Perhaps cf. dial. snork, a snort; cf. also the v.—2. Hence, snorks!, an exclam. of defiance: id. Ibid.—3. A baby: Aus. and NZ: C.20. (B., 1941.) Perversion of stork, the baby-carrier.—4. Hence, a youth, a stripling: Aus. coll.: later C.20. McNeil.—5. See snorker.

snork, v. To surpass; cap (another) in argument, repartee; do the whole of (an examination paper): Shrewsbury School: late C.19—20. Perhaps ex n., 1. Cf. snook, v., q.v.

snorker. (Usu. in pl.) A sausage: Public Schools' and Aus. coll.: C.20. (L.A.; B., 1941.) In Aus. also as snork.

snorzer. 'A difficult customer' (M.T.); 'a scrounger' (Powis, who spells it snorer): low: C.20. Ex Yiddish shnorzer, a beggar: see esp. Leo Rosten, The Joys of Yiddish, 1968.

snort, n. A 'pull'—a drink—of spirits: Society: since late 1920s. P.G. Wodehouse, Young Man in Spats, 1936, 'He produced his flask and took a sharp snort.' Ex the snorting cough induced by a large 'pull' at a brandy, whisky, rum. P.B.: in K. Hemingway, Wings Over Burma, 1942, applied even to tea: RAF in Burma: 1942.

snort, v. To take drugs through the nose (cf. sniff): drugs world: adopted, ex US, mid-1960s. Time Out, 15 Feb. 1980, 'those already into snorting cocaine or amphetamine sulphate'.

snorter. A gale; a strong breeze: 1855 (OED): s. >, ca. 1890, coll. Cf. sneezer, 5, q.v.—2. Anything exceptional esp. in size, severity or strength: 1859, J. Lang, 'The Commander-in-Chief... certainly did put forth "a snorter of a General Order"' (OED): s. >, ca. 1890, coll. In Aus., usu. a very hot day (B., 1942).—3. A punch, blow on the nose: boxing: 1818 (Boxiana, II); H., 5th ed., 1873. Cf. sneezer, 5, q.v.—4. The nose: from ca. 1860. Cf. sneezer, 2. Baumann defines it as the mouth and classifies it as boxing s.: I do not know it in this sense, but he may well be right: he almost always is!

snorting. The ppl adj. corresponding to snorter 2; esp., excellent: late C.19–20.

snorting-pole. A foot-brace at the end of a bed: Can. lumbermen's: C.20.

snorty. Irritable, irritated; peevish; captious: 1893, Kate Douglas Wiggin, 'She found Mr Gooch very snorty, very snorty indeed' (OED). Ex snort contemptuously. Cf. snotty, adj., 2.

snossidge. A sausage: London's lower classes': ca. 1890–1900. Ware.

snot. Nasal mucus: C.15–20: S.E. until C.19, when dial. and a vulgarity. Cognate with snite, q.v.—2. Hence, a term of contempt for a person: C.19–20: s. when not dial.; ob. except in dial. An early occurrence is in Sessions, Dec. 1816, p. 43.—3. A gentleman: Scots c.:—1839 (Brandon).

snot, v.i., v.t. and v. reflexive. To blow the nose: late C.16–20: mostly dial.; in C.19–20, also (though very ob.) a vulgarity. Ex snot, n., 1.

snot-box. The nose: low coll.: mid-C.19–early 20. Ex snot, n., 1.

snot-condensing, n. Sleep: C.20. Ex heavy breathing.

snot-gobbler; gobbling, n. and adj. 'Very commonly heard in the Army. Usually abusive, it seems to cover all forms of personal dirtiness, uncouthness, unkemptness, filth and so on, both physical and mental. Also used of talking filth' (P.B., 1974): low coll.: since mid-C.20.

snot-rag. A pocket-handkerchief: low: late C.19–20. Cf. snot-box and snotter. James Joyce, Ulysses, 1922.

snotted, ppl adj. Reprimanded: c.: late C.19–early 20. Prob. a perversion of snouted, rooted up as with the snout; perhaps on snotty, adj., 2. Cf. snotting.

snotter. A dirty, ragged handkerchief: low: from ca. 1820; ob. (Bee.) Ex snot, mucus.—2. The nose: low: from ca. 1830; very ob.—3. A handkerchief-thief: c.: mid-C.19–20; ob. H., 1st ed.—4. A midshipman: nautical:—1903 (F. & H.). Perhaps influenced by nautical snotter (a short rope spliced at the ends). More gen. snotty, q.v.

snotter-hauling. The stealing of handkerchiefs: c.: mid-C.19–20. Ex snotter, 3.

snottery. A C.20 Glasgow var. of snotty, adj., 2.

snottie. See snotty, n.

snotties' nurse, the. 'The Sub-Lieutenant in charge of the Gunroom' (Granville): RN: late C.19–20. R/Adm. P.W. Brock, CB, DSO, adds, 1963, 'The snotties' nurse was responsible for the midshipmen's instruction and training, vetting their journals, arranging courses... and generally doing everything possible to see that they got a fair run at the Seamanship Exam for the rank of lieutenant... He was usually a lieutenant-commander, certainly not more junior than a senior lieutenant.' R.S. notes the var. snotty walloper, citing Charles Morgan, The Gunroom, 1919.

snottily. Adv. of snotty, adj., 2.

snotting. A reprimand: tailors': 1928 (Tailor and Cutter, 29 Nov.). Cf. snotty, adj., 2.

snottinger. A handkerchief: low: from ca. 1860; ob. (H., 2nd ed.) Ex snot, n., 1, on mucking. Cf. snot-rag, and snotter, 1.

snottle-box. The nose: low: mid-C.19–early 20. Cf. snot-box.

snotty; occ. snottie. A midshipman: nautical: 1899 (Navy and Army Illustrated, 23 Dec.: Moe). Prob. ex snotty, adj., 2, not snotty, adj., 1; 'Taffrail', however, derives it ex the buttons worn by midshipmen on their sleeves, whence arose the jest that the buttons were there to prevent them from wiping their noses on their sleeves (cited by F. & G.) See also snotties' nurse.

snotty, adj. Filthy; mean, contemptible: late C.17–20: S.E. until C.19, then dial. and s. Ex snot, n., 1. Cf. S.E. snotty-nosed, and EPITHETS, in Appendix.—2. Angry, short-tempered; apt to take offence; very proud; proudly conceited: orig. dial. >, by 1847 (Sessions, May) s.; in C.20, coll. Prob. ex sense 1. snotty walloper. See snotties' nurse.

snout, n. A hog's head: c. of ca. 1720–1800. (A New Canting Dict., 1725.) Ex a hog's nose.—2. Tobacco: c.:—1896 (OED). 'Stuart Wood'. Tempest, 1950: 'The word originates from the days when smoking was prohibited in prison. When smoking, the lag [q.v.] cupped his hand and pretended to rub his nose while taking a "draw" on his cigarette.'—3. Among hawkers, a cigar: late C.19–20. Ex sense 2 and (?) shape.—4. A betrayer; an informer to the police: c.: from ca. 1920. (Edgar Wallace; Charles E. Leach.) Cf. nose, q.v.—5. Hence, a detective: low Glasgow:—1934.—6. A cigarette: low London: C.20. (Norman.) In 1950s, much used by Teddy-boys and National Servicemen. See v., 5.—7. In have a snout on (someone), to bear him a grudge: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Ex v., 1.—8. See take a snout.

snout, v. 'To bear [a person] a grudge' (C.J. Dennis): military and Aus.: C.20. Ex pigs.—2. Whence, snouted, 'treated with disfavour' (id.): ibid.: id. Cf. snotted, snotting.—3. To be an informer; to lay information: c.: since ca. 1925; by 1940 at latest, also police s. Ex snout, n., 4. Douglas Warner, Death of a Snout, 1961, 'Thereafter Ruskin snouted, and snouted good.'—4. (Also snout around.) To discover, spot, 'nose out': police s.: later C.20. Alan Hunter, Gently Where the Roads Go, 1962. (P.B.)—5. In phrase snout us out!, a request to a friend for a cigarette: army other Ranks': since early 1950s. See the n., 6. (P.B.) snout baron. In prison, a major trafficker in tobacco: since ca. 1930. (Tempest, 1950.) See baron, 2, and snout, n., 2.

snout day. Tobacco-issue day: prison c.: C.20. Ibid.

snout-piece. The face: coll.: C.17–19. 'Melancholy' Burton, 1621.

snouter. A tobacconist: c., whence police s.: since late 1940s. Ex snout, n., 2.

snouting, vbl n. Giving information to the police: c.: from ca. 1920. Edgar Wallace.

snouty, n. Var. of snout, n., 2. F.D. Sharpe, 1938.

snouty, adj. Overbearing; haughty; insolent: coll.: 1858 (OED); somewhat ob. Cf. sniffy, and snooty, which has superseded it.

snow, n. Linen; esp. linen (later, any washing) hung out to dry or bleach: c.:—1811 (Lex. Bal.); H., 1st ed. Ex whiteness. Also occ. snowy. In C.20, esp. in snow-dropping, q.v.—2. Cocaine: adopted, ex US, ca. 1920 as c. >, ca. 1930, s. (Edgar Wallace, passim; Irwin; Home Office, 1978.) Ex appearance.—3. Silver; silver money: Services' and low: C.20. (F. & G.; Tempest, 1950.) Cf. c. adj. white, of silver. McKenna, 1970, glosses it as 'Small silver, i.e. sixpences', in railwaymen's coll.—4. A white-coloured hair-cream: Aus., esp. undergraduates': ca. 1910–30. A song in The Student Corps, 1918, enshrines the heart-rending words, 'Gone are our blazers and creamy pants, Gone brilliant and "snow".' Communicated by B.P., who confesses 'Unknown to me'.—5. 'A blond inferior schoolboy, a bully's victim, as in "What did you say to me, snow?"' (Barry Humphries, Nice Night's Entertainment, 1981, gloss.): Aus.: later C.20.—6. See snowy, 2.

snow, v. To deceive; to try to throw (someone) 'off the scent': police s.: later C.20. Alan Hunter, Gently Instrumental, 1977, p. 102. (P.B.) snow again! or, in full, snow again, I didn't get your drift. Please repeat that, I didn't catch what you said (or meant): Can. c.p.: since ca. 1930; by 1959, ob. (Leechman.) See DCpp.

snow-broth. Cold tea: 1870 (Judd); ob. by 1930. Ex snow-broth, melted snow.

snow-bunny. A Royal Marine trained in Arctic warfare; also as v.: 'They intend to snow-bunny the whole Corps eventually': RM: late 1970s. Ex the white camouflage suit. (Marine V. Glynn, 1978.)—2. A young girl companion of winter-sportsmen: Aus. coll.: ca. 1950s. One of the 'characters' popularised by Barry Humphries (Mrs C. Raab, 1982).

snow-drop, n. See snowdrop.

snow-drop, v. To steal: low Aus.: late C.19–20. (Ruth Park, 1950.) Prob. a generalisation ex-snow-dropper or -gatherer. A linen-thief: c.: from ca. 1810, though snow-dropper is unrecorded before 1864, -gatherer before 1859. Ex snow, 1. Hence:—

snow-dropping. Linen-thieving; in C.20, stealing any washing hung out to dry: c.: from ca. 1810; recorded, 1839 (Brandon); 1950 (Tempest). An early C.20 var., noted by David Hume, 1935, is sweeping the snow. Ex snow, n., 1.

Snow-Puncher. A Canadian (soldier): Brit. Army: WW1. Neil Lyons, 1915.

snow rupee. A genuine rupee: Southern Indian coll.:—1886. Ex* Telegu tsanauvu, authority, currency, by process of Hobson-Jobson. Y. & B.

Snowball. A Negro: from ca. 1780. (Grose, 1st ed.) Ironic nickname.—2. See not a snowball's...

snowball, v., usu. in passive. To return (a car) to its original owner: secondhand-car dealers': since ca. 1950. Ex the throwing of snow-balls?

snowball hitch. A knot that easily loosens: RN: C.20. (Granville.) It comes adrift.

snowbirds. Women that bring clients to dope-pedlars: c.: since ca. 1938. Ex snow, cocaine.

snowdrop. An American military policeman: 1942+. (Daily Express, 12 June 1944.) Ex his white helmet and pipe-clayed equipment.—2. 'Among the female guests there were few if any snowdrops' (Violet Bonham-Carter, Churchill as I Knew Him, 1965): Society term for 'a drooping white flower of early spring': C.20.

snowed in. 'The condition of the table or board when the shearers are working too fast for the shed hands to keep up' (Straight Furrow, 21 Feb. 1968): NZ: since ca. 1920. Ex the piles of fleeces.

snowed under; snowed up. Over-burdened with work; having a heavy back-log of work to attend to: coll.: the under version prob. adopted ex US: since ca. 1930.

snowing down South (, it's). Your slip is showing: Aus. feminine c.p.: since late 1940s. Perhaps an adaptation of English schoolchildren's it's snowing in Paris, current, since ca. 1919 and recorded by I. & P. Opie, The Lore and Language of Schoolchildren, 1959.

Snowns. A trivial oath: late C.16—early 17; coll. abbr. Od's nouns. OED.

snowy, n. Linen; esp. that hung out to dry: c.:—1877. Ex snow, n., 1.—2. As Snowy, an 'inevitable' nickname of men with flaxen or bleached hair: lower classes': late C.19—20. Also, in Aus., for men surnamed Baker: C.20. (Cf. Dusty Miller.) Also, there, of Aboriginals: late C.19—20. In the second and third nuances, often Snow.

snozzler. Any person or thing remarkable for excellence, skill, strength, etc.: NZ (—1935); Aus. (B., 1942). Prob. suggested by such terms as snifter and bobby-dazzler, of which pair it may be a blend.

snub-devil. A clergyman: ca. 1780—1900. Grose, 1st ed.; Baumann.

snubber. A reprimand: Public Schools':—1909 (Ware). Prob. by the 'OXFORD -ER'.

snuck. A sol. past tense of S.E. sneak (in), used joc.: adopted ex US earlier C.20. 'I just snuck in and took a look' or 'I craftily snuck a dekkto at...' (P.B.)

snudge. One who, to steal later, hides himself in a house, esp. under a bed: c.:—1676; † by 1840. (Coles; B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) A special development ex snudge, to remain snugly quiet.

snuff, n. In beat to s., to defeat utterly: coll.: 1819 (OED); ob. by 1930.—2. In give (a person) s., to rebuke, reprimand, scold: coll.: 1890, Anon., Harry Fludyer, 'He rather gave me snuff about my extravagance, but I was prepared for that.' Hence, to punish: coll.: 1896 (Baden-Powell: OED).—3. In in high s., in 'great form'; elated: coll.: 1840 (Dana); ob. by 1940. OED.—4. In up to snuff, alert; not easily tricked; shrewd: coll.: 1811, Poole, 'He knew well enough/The game we're after: zooks, he's up to snuff.' Lit. of one who knows to what dangerous uses snuff can be put. Egan's Grose adds: 'Often rendered more emphatic by such adjuncts as "Up to snuff and twopenny," "Up to snuff, and a pinch above it."' snuff, v.i. To blind (esp. a shopkeeper) with snuff and then, all being well, steal his goods: c.: from ca. 1810; ob. Vaux.—2. See snuff it, snuff out.

snuff and butter (maiden). A Eurasian girl: Anglo-Indian: since early 1920s.

snuff and snifter. Vigorously and continuously: ca. 1805—60. Blackwood's, July 1823, 'Mr D. Abercromby has now been hard at it [speaking], tooth and nail, snuff and snifter, bubble and squeak, for about a quarter of an hour, or twenty minutes, and yet he is as fresh as a two-year-old, and without a symptom of closing his potato-trap' (Moe).

snuff and toddle. To die: see TO DIE, in Appendix.

snuff-bottle. 'Anything shocking, mortifying or destroying, e.g. a tax demand...' 'That put the snuff-bottle on him/it' = 'That put an end to him/it', thus M.T., which neatly indicates its semantics thus: 'One takes an animal for a snuff of the snuff bottle, i.e. to be destroyed... Cf. "to snuff it" [q.v.]'. Occ. var. snuff-box.

snuff-box. The nose: 1853 ('Cuthbert Bede': OED); ob. by 1930.—2. A gas-mask: mostly civilians': 1939+. New Statesman, 30 Aug. 1941.—3. A newspaper's list of deaths; its obituaries: Aus. journalists': since ca. 1920. (Baker.) A list of those who have 'snuffed out'.—4. Occ. var. of prec.

snuff it. To die: s. (—1874) >, ca. 1900, coll. H., 5th ed., 'Term very common among the lower orders of London... Always to die from disease or accident.' Ex snuff out, q.v.

snuff-lurker. See sneeze-lurker.

snuff out, v.i. To die: s. (—1864) >, ca. 1900, S.E. (H., 3rd ed.) Prob. ex snuffing out a candle. Cf. snuff it.

snuff pepper. To take offence: coll.: C.17. On synon. (take) pepper in the nose.

snuff-racket. See sneeze-racket and cf. sneeze-lurker.

snufflers. The nostrils: ca. 1650—1750: s. and dial. Cleveland. OED.

snuffle. The nose: low: ca. 1825—70. Sinks, 1848.

snuffler. A veterinary surgeon: market-traders': C.20. (M.T.) See etym. at snuff-bottle.—2. See DUPERS, in Appendix; for snuffling community, see HARLOTS, and cf. DUPES.

snuffy. Drunk: low: ca. 1820—1920. (Bee, 1823; H., 3rd ed.) Perhaps ex snuffy, apt to take offence, displeased, angry.

snug, n. A bar-parlour at inn or 'public': from ca. 1860: s. (ob.) and dial. Ex snug, comfortable; cf. S.E. snuggery. P.B.: in later C.20 (?) revived as coll., verging on informal S.E.

snug, v. To coit with: C.19—20; ob. Ex snug, to make comfortable: cf. euph. ease.—2. Also v.i.: C.19—20; ob. Prob. ex snug down, to nestle.

snug, adj. Drunk: low: late C.19—early 20. Cf. euph. comfortable, and snugly...—2. In all's snug, all's quiet: c. of ca. 1720—1840. (A New Canting Dict., 1725; Grose, 1st ed.) Cf. the † S.E. snug, secret, concealed, private. Cf. snug's the word!

snug as ... (, as). Some coll. intensifiers for 'the utmost in comfort', comfortable(-y), are: ... as a pig in pease-straw: ca. 1635—70. Davenport, 1639, 'He snores and sleeps as snug/As any pigge in pease-straw'; ... a bug in a rug: since ca. 1760. See quot'n at mopus, 3. (Both these recorded by Apperson.) A late C.18—19 nautical version was ... as a duck in a ditch (W.N. Glascock, The Naval Sketch-Book, I, 1825: Moe). Baumann, 1887, lists ... as old Pamp: lower classes'. But who was Pamp? The name is prob. fanciful ex a pampered person.

snuggly. A public-house snuggery: public houses': since ca. 1890; by 1940, ob. Sessions, 18 Jan. 1900.—2. A woman's muff: since ca. 1940. (Laurence Meynell, The Lady on Platform One, 1950.) It keeps one's hands snug and warm.

snugly moored in Sot's Bay. Dead drunk: RN: since mid-C.20 (?earlier, perhaps much earlier). Peppitt cites H. Baynham, From the Lower Deck, 1969. Cf. snug, adj.

snug's the word! Say nothing of this!: coll.: C.18—19; ob. by 1860. (Congreve, Maria Edgeworth, Lover: OED.) snug, adj., 2, and mum's the word!

snurge, n. A Poor Law Institution: from ca. 1920. Answers, 21 Sep. 1940.—2. An objectionable, contemptible person: Services' and schoolboys': mid-C.20. One reputed to 'go around sniffing girls' cycle-seats'; cf. twerp, and the (prob.) var. snarge. Prob. ex the v. (P.B.)

snurge, v. 'To get out of doing some unpopular job': nautical: C.20. (Bowen.) Prob. ex dial., snudge, to sneak, to sulk, curry favour (EDD).

snurgle, v. 'When the Marines [were] sneaking up on an unsuspecting enemy [it] was [called] "snurging"' (McGowan & Hands, Don't Cry for Me, 1983): RM: Falkland Is. campaign, 1982.

sny. See snie.

snyde. See snide.

snyder; snider. A tailor: coll.: C.17—early 20. (F. & H., an early C.17 quot'n; H., 2nd ed.) Ex Ger. Schneider, tailor; prob. imported by soldiers.

so. Tippy: coll.: from ca. 1820. Ex so-so, 1.—2. Menstruating: women's euph. coll.: mid-C.19—20.—3. Homosexual: from ca. 1890. Thus 'a so man' is a homosexual, 'a so book' a Uranian novel, poem, etc. Cf. the Venetian cosi. Petch adds that in the 1930s, it was often pronounced as if with a lisp, tho; the usage was ob., if not †, by 1950 (P.B.).

so, adv. Very: as a mere counter of vague emphasis, it is admittedly S.E.; yet it has a coll. tinge.—2. Tautologically in intensifications, it is a proletarian coll.: (?) mid-C.19—20. 'It gets on my nerves, so it does!': 'A well-doing young man, so he is' (both in MacArthur & Long).—3. See ever so.

so-and-so. Objectionable person, as in 'that old so-and-so': coll.: C.20; but gen. and frequent only since ca. 1945. Euph. for bastard or bigger or bitch, as the context determines. In later C.20 usu. qualified, as 'he's a right so-and-so', or 'Watch her! She's a bit of a so-and-so, she is.'—2. (Or with caps.) Senior Ordnance Store Officer: army: ca. 1890—1914. Ware.

So Brien or S'O'Brien (or -an). The Aus. steamship Sobraon: nautical: late C.19—early 20. Ware.

so busy I've had to put a man on! See getting any?

so crooked he couldn't lie straight in bed. A c.p. used of a very unscrupulous man: Aus.: since ca. 1925. (B.P.)

so drunk (that) he opened his shirt collar to piss. Blind drunk: low coll.: C.19—early 20. A later var. is '... pulled out his tie and pissed in his pants'.

so dumb she thinks her bottom is just to sit on. Self-explanatory: prob. since late C.19.

so fast his feet won't touch (sc. the ground, deck, etc.). Sergeant-major's threat of condign punishment for an offence, as 'I'll have him (you, etc.) inside (sc. the guard-room) so fast...': mainly army: since ca. 1910. (P.B.; E.P., the date—he remembered the phrase from WW1.)

so fools say! A c.p. retort, esp. Cockneys', to a person asserting that one is a fool; occ. elab. with, You ought to know—you work where they're made: from ca. 1890; ob. Edwin Pugh, passim.

so glad! A c.p. of ca. 1847 (introduced by the French King) and of 1867–68 (from a song in W. Brough's Field of the Cloth of Gold): mostly London. Ware.

so help me Bob, etc. See s'elp...

so is your old man! A c.p. from ca. 1900; ob.; often so's... (John G. Brandon, 1931; Slang, p. 280.) See esp. DCpp.

so long! An revoir; good-bye!: coll.: 1834 (OED and SOD). In the Colonies, often pron. soo'-long [note in 1st ed. of this Dict.]. Cf. Ger. so lange (OED), but more prob., as W. suggests, the term is a corruption of salaam, though Ware's suggested derivation ex the Hebrew Selah (God be with you) is not to be wholly ignored. [E.P. later added:] It is perhaps short for 'Goodbye. So long', elliptical for 'God be with you so long as we are apart'. Or perhaps ex Hebrew shalom, peace, used by Jews as a term of farewell: the most likely theory of all.

so lucky that if he fell in(to) the river, he'd only get dusty, he's. A c.p., implying exceptional luck: C.20. A polite version of 'if he fell in the shit he'd only come up smelling of violets' (P.B.).

so many minds—you'll never be mad, you are of. A semi-proverbial c.p. of ca. 1670–1750. Ray, Swift. (Apperson.)

so mean (s)he wouldn't give anyone a fright (and variants). See mean...

so say. Say so. Esp. you don't so say: c.p.: earlier C.20. Cf. shay so.

so-so. Drunk: coll.: 1809 (Malkin).—2. Menstruating: women's euph. coll.: mid-C.19—20.

so sudden. See this is so sudden!

so thin you can smell the shit through him. A low, mostly Cockneys' c.p., applied to an extremely thin man: from ca. 1880.

so very human was. ca. 1880–84, applied in so many ways that the Daily News, 27 Oct. 1884, could speak of it thus: 'In the slang of the day, "so very human."' (Ware.) Rather a c.p. than s.

so what? That does not impress me!: Cockney c.p., very soon > gen.: adopted, ex us, 1936. A prob. deliberate, but ephemeral, native var. was so well? See DCpp.

soak, n. A heavy fall of rain: Aus. coll.: C.20. (B., 1942.) P.B.: ex Eng. dial., as in the old weather-lore, 'Ash before oak, we're in for a soak'.—2. A drunkard: Aus. and Eng.: since ca. 1910. But see soaks, and cf.:—3. In in soak and come out of soak, drunk; to regain sobriety: low coll.:—1887 (Baumann). Ex S.E. soak, a heavy drinking bout.—4. In put in soak, to pawn: late C.19—20. See v., 3.

soak, v. To ply with liquor: coll.: 1882 (Banim) (OED). In C.20, gen. in passive. Ex soak, to saturate. (N.B., soak, v.i. to drink heavily, is S.E.)—2. Hence, to spend in drink: coll.: C.20.—3. To pawn: 1882, G.A. Sala, 'Soak my gems' (OED).—4. V.i. gen. as soak it, to be lavish of bait: anglers' coll.: late C.19—20.—5. To charge (a person) an extortionate price; to tax heavily: orig. (late 1890s) US; Anglicised by 1914. OED Sup.—6. Hence (?), to catch (a person) out, 'have him set', give (him) unpleasant work: military: from 1915. (F. & G.) Esp. in passive, as 'I was soaked for a fatigue'.—7. To borrow money from: ca. 1925. Dorothy L. Sayers, Have His Carcase, 1932, 'Poor, but not mercenary or dishonest, since he refused to soak Mrs W'. Ex senses 5 and 6.—8. (Also soak it or let it soak.) Of the male: to linger over the sexual act; to delay withdrawal: low coll.: C.19—20.

soak (one's) clay or face. To drink; esp. to drink heavily: resp. C.19—20 (ob.) and C.18. (Barham, 1837.) Cf. soak, 1. OED.

soaked. Tippy; very drunk: see soak, v., 1. Cf. saturated.

soaks. 'Folks' in the convivial sense; usu. in address, by one joining a drinking session: C.20. Rhyming s., with pun on S.E. soak, a tippler.

soap, n. Flattery: 1859 (H., 1st ed.); ob. In C.20, gen. soft soap, q.v. Ex the v.—2. Cheese: Royal Military Academy:—1903; ob. F. & H.—3. Girls collectively: ca. 1883–1900. (Ware.) Ex the more gen. bis of soap, girls, esp. harlots and near-harlots.—4. 'A hard worker; one who curries favour': Bootham School: C.20. (Bootham.) Cf. synon. sap, and soft soap. See v., 2.—5. A simpton; a dupe: Aus. c.: since ca. 1925. (B., 1953.) As soft as soap. P.B.: the dating is E.P.'s; by Baker's listing date, it could derive ex Joe Soap, q.v.—6. See how are you off for soap?; not know from a bar of soap.

soap, v.t. To flatter; address ingratiatingly: 1853 ('Cuthbert Bede'); ob. Cf. soft-soap, v.—2. To work hard; to curry favour': Bootham School: C.20. (Bootham.) See n., 4.

soap-and-baccy pay(master). An accountant officer of the Victualling Branch: RN: C.20. Bowen.

soap and bullion. Soup-and-bouilli: nautical:—1883; ob. (Clark Russell.) Partly a play on words and partly because of its nauseating smell. Also hishee-hashee.

soap and flannel. Bread and cheese: RN lowerdeck: C.20. (Granville.) Cf. soap, n., 2, and soap and towel.

soap and lather. Father: rhyming s.: late C.19—20.

soap and towel. 'A bread and cheese meal' (McKenna, Glossary): railwaymen's: C.20. Cf. soap and flannel.

soap and water. Daughter: rhyming s.: late C.19–20. F. & G. soap-crawler. A toady: ca. 1860–1910. Ex soap, n., 1.

soap opera. 'Daytime radio serials for women. As in operas, the plot is less important than characters who attract emotional involvement. Often sponsored by soap manufacturers' (B.P.): coll.: adopted ex US, in Aus. by mid-1950s, Eng. since late 1950s.

soap over, v.t. To humbug: low:—1857; ob. ('Ducange Anglicus'). Cf. soft-soap.

soap-suds. 'Gin and water, hot, with lemon and lump sugar' (Bé): low: ca. 1820–70.

soaps. Shares in A. & F. Pears: Stock Exchange:—1895 (A.J. Wilson, Stock Exchange Glossary).

soapy. Unctuous; ingratiating; given to 'soft soap': 1865 (OED).—2. (Of fits) simulated, or caused by, chewing or eating soap: 1886 (Daily News, 13 Dec.: OED). Cf. cordite-chewing in C.20.—3. Silly, stupid; effeminate: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) See soap, n., 5.

soapy Isaac. See suet(ty) Isaac.

soash. See sosh.

sob sister. A writer of articles for the more emotional, sensation-mongering newspapers, esp. a woman journalist replying to women readers' inquiries: journalist replying to women readers' inquiries: journalistic, adopted ca. 1930 from US. Cf. sob stuff.

sob story. A hard-luck story: C.20: coll. >, by 1940, S.E.

sob stuff. Intentional and, gen., excessive sentimentality (to appeal to the emotions—and often the pocket): orig. (ca. 1919) US; anglicised, by 1921, as a coll., now verging on S.E. OED Sup.; Lyell.

sobbing sisters. German six-barrelled mortars: military: 1940–5. 'The bombs came over in broken volleys of six with a peculiar slow, sobbing wail' (V. Peniakoff, Private Army, 1950).

sober as a judge on Friday (, as). Very—oh, so very slightly—tipsy: coll.:—1923 (Manchon). His work for the week ends on Friday. Elab. of the dial. sober as a judge (1864: EDD.).

sober-gradge fight. A fight arising out of a long-standing quarrel: Can. coll.:—1932 (John Beames).

sober-water. Soda-water: punning coll.: mid-C.19—early 20. 'Cuthbert Bede', Verdant Green, 1853–7.

soc, Soc. A trades-union man: printers': ca. 1870–1910. Ex Society.

socage. See TAVERN TERMS, §9, in Appendix.

soccer. Association football: from ca. 1890.: app. orig. Charterhouse; by 1903, gen. OED records socket at 1891, soccer at 1895; in C.20 almost always soccer. By truncated assoc. + 'OXFORD -ER'. Cf. rugger.

social E. A middle-class evasion of social evil (prostitution): coll.: ca. 1870–1905. Ware.

social secretary. A joc. ref. to one's spouse when one has been given an invitation; e.g. 'I shall have to consult my ...': later C.20. (P.B.) social tit. A 'poodle-faker'; an officer fond of dancing: RN: since ca. 1925. P-G-R. society. A workhouse: artisans':—1909 (Ware). Evasive.

society journalist. A contributor to the Society Journalist: journalists': ca. 1875–78. Ware.

Society-maddist. A person that, not born in Society, spends much time and money to get there: Society: ca. 1881–95. Ware.

socius. A companion, a chum: Winchester: C.19–20; ob. Ex the school precept, sociati omnes incedunt. Cf. the occ., cultured use, since mid-C.19, of socius as a comrade, itself perhaps ex the ecclesiastical term.—2. Whence, v.t., to accompany: ibid.: mid-C.19—early 20.

sock, n. A pocket: c.: late C.17—mid-18. B.E.—2. As used by Shadwell in The Squire of Alsatia, 1688, at I, i, it seems to = a small coin (cf. rag): prob. c.—3. A blow, a beating: late C.17–20: c. >, ca. 1850, low s.; † as a beating, except in give (one) sock, to beat or thrash soundly:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.); but this was ob. by late C.19, the OED recording var. give (one) socks, 1897. Cf. sock into. B.E.. at tip. Cf. sock, v., 1.—4. Eatables; esp., dainties: Eton: 1825 (C. Westmacott: OED). Perhaps ex suckett, dainty. Note that at Sedgeley Park (the original form of Cotton College), socks was, ca. 1805–45, any kind of confectionery and sock, derivatively, anything pleasant or agreeable. The Cottonian, Autumn 1938. In his History of Sedgeley Park, 1856, Provost Husenbeth derived it from sucks, long sticks of toffee.—5. (?) Hence, credit: low:—1874 (H., 5th ed.). Whence on sock, 'on tick' (Baumann, 1887).—6. In put a sock in (earlier into it!), be quiet!; stop talking, it being the offender's mouth: from ca. 1910: military, esp. in WW1, >, by 1920, gen. (B. & P.) P.B.: by 1940 at latest, the phrase could mean also 'Stop being annoying!', whether the annoyance was vocal or anything else, e.g. of German bombers, 'I wish the bastards'd put a sock in it.' In 1983, it has a dated ring to it.

sock, v. To hit; strike hard; drub, thrash: late C.17–20: c. >, ca. 1850, s. B.E.; Kipling, 1890, 'We socks 'im with a stretcher-pole.' Origin obscure.—2. Hence, to 'give it' to a person: 1890, Kipling, 'Strewth, but it socked it them hard!—3. V.i., to deliver blows: 1856 (OED). E.g. 'Sock him one on the jaw!' Ex sense 1. Cf. sock into, q.v.—4. To treat one to 'sock' (see the n., 4): Eton:—1850 (OED).—5. Hence, to give (one something): Eton:—1889. A mere extension of this occurs in the upper and upper-middle classes' sock, to offer, as in Evelyn Waugh, A Handful of Dust, 1934, 'I'll sock you to a movie.'—6. Cf. v.i. to buy, to eat, 'sock': Eton: 1883, Brinsley Richards, 'We ... socked prodigiously.'—7. ? hence, v.i., to get credit: low: late C.19–20; ob. (F. & H.) Cf. sock, n., 5.—8. To win: Winchester College: late C.19–20. (Wrench.) Cf. sock, n., 3.—9. To save up, put aside, deposit in the bank: Aus.: since ca. 1930. Cusack & James, Come in Spinner, 1951, 'I bet he's socked a pretty packet away.' Ex a sock used as bank.—10. To 'tip' (a schoolboy) with money: Public Schools': late C.19–20. (Peter Sanders.) Ex sense 5.

sock, adv. Violently: (low) coll.: late C.19–20. Charles Turley, Godfrey Marten, Undergraduate, 1904, 'One of you 'as 'it Susan sock in the eye.'

sock a boot into. To take advantage of the misfortunes of (a person): lower classes': C.20. (F. & G.) See prec., 1 and 2; prob. imm. an elab. of next. Cf. put the boot in, q.v.

sock into. To hit vigorously; pitch into: 1864 (H., 3rd ed.). Ex sock, v., 3. Early C.20 Aus. has var. sock it into (C.J. Dennis).

sock it to me (, baby)! A 'teenybopper' (q.v.) cult expression of vague meaning: 'liven things up!' Propagated to the point of absurdity by radio disc-jockeys: since 1967. See esp. DCpp., where the phrase is treated at length.

sock (someone) one. See sock, v., 3.

sock-shop. The tuck-shop: Eton: mid-C.19–20. Ex sock, n., 4.

sockdologer (1830), -ager (—1848), rarely -iger (1842); occ. so- (1869) or slock- (1838) or slog- (1862); also stock- (1864, H., 3rd ed.). Occ. -li. A very heavy blow; a 'finisher': US, anglicised, to some extent, ca. 1870; ob. A fanciful, ansonantal elab. of sock, a blow (see sock, n., 3, and cf. v., 1), influenced by doxology, 'regarded as final' (W.).—2. Hence, anything exceptional: US (1869), partly anglicised ca. 1890; ob. by 1935. Blackwood's Magazine, Feb. 1894, 'The pleasant remembrance of the capture of a real sockdologer' (large fish), OED.

socked out. Out of commission, as in 'To add to our [pilots'] problems, Scotland is socked out with weather ...' (Phantom): RAF: later C.20. An extension of sock, v., 1. (P.B.)

socket. A sloven, lout, simpleton, fool: coll.: 1772, Bridges, 'The rabble then began to swear,/What the old socker said was fair'; ob. Also sockie (ob.) and sockhead, †.—2. A heavy blow: low: from ca. 1870. Ex sock, v., 1.—3. One who strikes hard: low: from not later than 1930. (OED Sup.) Ex sock, v., 1.—4. See socket.

socket. See burnt to the socket; and—socket-money. 'Money demanded and spent upon marriage' (B.E.): late C.17–18. Perhaps ex socket, the female puhend.—2. Hence, 'money paid for a treat, by a married man caught in an intrigue' (Grose, 1st ed.): mid-C.18–mid-19. (Bridges, 1772.) Cf. dial. socket-brass, hush-money.—3. Also, 'a whore's fee, or hire' (Grose, 1st ed.): late C.18–mid-19.—4. Ex senses, 2, 3: hush-money: from ca. 1860; ob. H., 3rd ed. Cf.:

socketer. A blackmailer: ca. 1860–1910. (H., 5th ed.) Ex prec., 4.

socketing. A var. (ca. 1810–50) of burning shame, 2. 'Jon Bee'.

sockhead; sockie. See socketer, 1.

socko-boffo. Absolutely outstanding, as in 'risking the production's chances of being a socko-boffo hit' (Catherine Stott, Sunday Telegraph, 23 Aug. 1981); entertainments world: adopted ex US, later C.20. A blend of sock, v., 1 + echoic of impact. (P.B.)

socks. In leave the socks on!, don't shear the 'socks' or wool between the sheep's knees and feet: NZ shearers': C.20. Straight Furrow, 21 Feb. 1968.—2. See hot socks; old socks; pull (one's) socks up.

sod. A sodomist: low coll.: C.19–20.—2. Hence, a pej., orig. and gen. violent: since early C.19. Sessions, June 1818, 'As he passed me he said the other was a bloody sod.' In later C.20, often applied to circumstances, as 'It's a proper sod, it really is!' (P.B.). Often used in ignorance of its origin: cf. bugger.

—3. A sodden dumper: Aus.: from ca. 1910. (Ion L. Idriess, Lasseter's Last Ride, 1931.) Prob. influenced by Scots sod, a bap.—4. At Charterhouse, it is, in C.20, applied to a person, esp. another schoolboy, doing anything dirty, e.g. spewing.—5. To go on a sod or to sod is, at Cranbrook School in C.20 (of prefects et al.), to try to catch someone doing wrong. At some schools the phrase is go on a shift.—6. Non-pej. for 'chap, fellow' or even for 'girl, woman': Eng. and Aus.: late C.19–20. 'Good on yer, Martha, yer old sod!' (Elizabethan O'Connor, Steak for Breakfast, Sydney, 1962: B.P.).

sod about. To play the fool, indulge in horse-play; to potter about, to waste time: low: late C.19–20. Cf. arse about, bugger about, fuck about.

sod all. Nothing: orig. mostly RN, since ca. 1920; by 1950 at latest, gen. low. Var. of bugger all, damn all, fuck all.

sod-buster. An agricultural (not a pastoral) farmer: Can. (and US): C.20. Claiborne adds, 1976, 'Originally, a pioneer farmer in the US or Canadian prairies, the dense, tough, native sod of which took a lot of busting.'

sod it! Low coll. expletive: since ca. 1880. Cf. bugger it!, etc.

sod off! Go away!: low: C.20. An exact semantic equivalent of bugger off!

sod you! A milder form of fuck you! low: since latish C.19. Hence sod you, Jack, I'm inboard, a mainly and orig. RN var. of fuck you, Jack, I'm all right! (Granville).

soda. Something easy to do; someone easy to do: Aus. low: since ca. 1925. Vance Palmer, The Passage, 1930, "'Just one more guess, Lew ...' Lew chuckled. "Umph, that's a soda. Must be the old doctor."' sodding, adj. A vague pej., as in 'I've been in your sodding country' (Bernard Hesling, The Dinkumization and Depommification, 1963): late C.19–20. Cf. sod it!, and, in usage, bloody; fucking.

soddick. 'Soft tack: bread, cakes, etc. Lower deck via the slovenly soddock, from soft tack' (Granville): (?) later C.19–20. Cf.:-

sodduk. Conway cadets' var. of prec.: from before 1880. John Masefield, The Conway, 1933.

sodge. 'Short for sodger, a soldier, and applied to a Royal Marine. Also a term for a lubberly deck-hand; from a seaman's traditional attitude towards a Royal Marine' (Granville): RN lowerdeck: C.20 (? earlier). See soger.

sodger. See soger and soldier, n., 1.

Sodgeries, the. The Military Exhibition, Chelsea Barracks, in: 1890. London. Ex sodger on Colinderies, Fisheries, etc. Ware.

Sodom. London: literary coll.: C.19. Ex Sqdom, generic for any very corrupt place.—2. Wadham College, Oxford: from ca. 1870; very ob. ([H., 5th ed.) Rhyming.

sods, odds and. See odds and sods.

Sod's law. That 'law' which decrees that if something can go wrong, it will; and that if it doesn't, it might: coll., gen. since early 1970s. Applied perhaps mostly to trivial inconveniences and mishaps. Cf. Murphy's law, Spode's law, and esp. See DCpp. (P.B.)

sods' opera. 'An unofficial and extremely low concert, usually held in barracks' (Granville): Services' (I heard it in late 1915): C.20. Hence, from ca. 1925, RAF for 'the din of jollification; a drunken party' (L.A., 1950). Claiborne, 1976: 'The reference is, I believe, to a (probably mythical) work of that name, late C.19, slanderously ascribed to Gilbert & Sullivan.' P.B.: Claiborne is perhaps citing a var. of The Buggers' Opera—an obvious pun on Gay's Beggar's Opera, 1728—of which all that now remains in Service memories is the list of dramatis personae, including, among others, 'Penis, The Count: a young upstart; Test and Ickles, hangers-on to the Count; Anus, a little brown fellow, usually tight; Scrotum: an aged and wrinkled retainer; etc.'

soft, n. A weakling; a very simple or a foolish person: dial. (—1854) >, by 1860, coll. George Eliot, 1859 (OED). Cf. softy, q.v.—2. Bank notes (as opp. to coin): c.—1823 (Egan's Grose); H., 1st ed. Also soft-flimsy, from ca. 1870. Cf. Cf. US soft, adj. applied to paper money as early as ca. 1830, and do soft, to utter counterfeit notes: c.: from ca. 1870.—3. In a bit of hard for a bit of soft, copulation: mid-C.19–20. Contrast soft upon . . . , which perhaps prompted a pun.—4. In do the soft to, to flatter, 'blamey' (a person): coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

soft, adj. Half-witted: coll. (and dial.): 1835, Marryat, 'A good sort of chap enough, but rather soft in the upper-works'; adumbrated by Miss Burney in 1775. (OED.) Ex soft, 'more or less foolish, silly or simple.'—2. (? hence). Foolishly benevolent or kind; constantly helping others without thinking of one's own advantage or interests: coll.: 1890, 'Rolf Boldrewood', 'He . . . did a soft thing in bringing those other chaps here' (OED). Ex soft, compassionate.—3. Easy, idle, lazy: coll.: 1889, Daily News, 12 Oct., 'People crowd into literature [sic], as into other "soft" professions, because it is genteel'; 1905, H.A. Vachell, 'You wanted a soft time of it during the summer term' (OED). Ex soft, involving little effort or no work.—4. Broken in spirit: 1898 (Sir G. Robertson: OED): coll., Anglo-Indian >, by 1910, gen. Ex soft, physically weak, lacking in stamina.

soft-arse. An archaism: Scottish Public Schools': late C.19–20. (Ian Miller, School Tie, 1935.) Cf. hard (arse) or soft?, third class or first? (on the railway): low coll.: late C.19—earlier 20. soft as a whore-lady's heart ('as). Not soft at all; hard-hearted: C.19—earlier 20. Contradictory to the legend that prostitutes have hearts of gold.

soft as shit. Not physically nor morally tough; often applied by workmen to a man that can speak without filth and does occasionally think of something other than gambling, drinking, womanising: low coll.: late C.19–20.

soft as shit and twice as nasty, as. A rural c.p. (the South of England) applied by country people to pasty-faced, loose-moralled visitors or residents from the city: late C.19–20. (Heard by me in Kent, June 1932.) P.B.: it has a much wider currency than E.P. allowed here; cf. common as cat-shit . . . and mean as pig-shit . . .

soft ball. Lawn tennis: Royal Military Academy, Woolwich: late C.19—early 20 coll.

soft bar. See bar, n., 2.

soft(-)belly. A wooden-frame car: Can. railroadmen's: —1931.

soft case. A 'gull'; an easy sell; one easily 'conned': RN: early C.20. Musings, 1912, p. 156.

soft collar. A soft job; a very suitable locality; something easily obtained: something comfortable or agreeable: Aus. coll.: ca. 1860–1920. 'Tom Collins', Such Is Life, 1903, 'Soft collar we got here—ain't it?' Ex driving horses in buggy or bullocks in waggon. Cf.:-

soft cop, (be) on a. To have an easy job; be on 'a good thing':

Aus.: since ca. 1925. (B.P.) A var. is a sweet cop. Cf. prec. soft down on. In love with: low coll.: from ca. 1870. Elab. of soft on.

soft-flimsy. See soft, n., 2.

soft ha'porth. A 'softy'; a person easily imposed upon or duped: mostly working-classes': C.20.

soft horn. A donkey, lit. or fig.: coll.: from ca. 1860; ob. (H., 3rd ed.) Because an ass's ears, unlike horns, are soft. See-soft is your horn. You've made a mistake: c.p.: ca. 1820-50. (Bee.) P.B.: does this back-date prec.? I.e. 'You're an ass!'

soft mick. In army usage, mid-C.20, a gen. intensive, as in drunk as soft mick; 'as stupid as' or 'stupider than soft mick'; and, e.g., 'There's more ammo in the bottom of that swamp [Kota Tinggi training area, W. Malaysia] than soft mick'. (P.B., with thanks to Ronald Pearsall, late WO1, R. Signals.)

soft-nosed. Stupid: RN: C.20. Contrast hard-nosed.

soft number. An easy task or job, 'a cushy billet': orig. army, since ca. 1910 (F. & G.); by ca. 1916, also RN (Robert Harling, The Steep Atlantick Stream, 1946). Perhaps ex music.

soft on or upon. In love with; sentimentally amorous for: 1840: S.E. >, ca. 1880, coll. 'Rolf Boldrewood', 1888, 'I... thought she was rather soft on Jim' (OED).

soft option. The easier, or easiest, of choices in any given circumstances; a 'soft number', q.v.: coll., usu. derogatory: since early 1970s. L.A. noted the term in 1974. 'Stanley [Falkland Islands' capital] is regarded by the islanders who live outside it as a kind of soft option, a place of bright lights, idleness and decadence' (Ian Jack, Sunday Time mag., 13 Aug. 1979). (P.B.)

soft-pedal, v.i. and t. To subdue; tone down; proceed circumspectly in an affair: coll.: later C.20. A. Hunter, Gently Coloured, 1969, 'The best we can do is soft-pedal it, play it down, stick with the book.' Ex piano or organ pedals controlling volume. (P.B.)

soft-roed. Tender-hearted: Londoners' coll.: later C.19-early 20. (Baumann.) Ex fish-roe.

soft roll. A girl easily persuaded to coit: since late 1940s. Easy to 'roll in the hay': roll, an act of coition from the male point of view, comes ex US.

soft sawder, n. See sawder.—2. V.t. and i. (gen. hyphenated): to flatter: coll.: 1843 (Haliburton); Hickie's Aristophanes, 1853 (OED). Ex soft sawder, n. (see sawder). Cf.: soft sawder to order. An elab. of soft sawder, n.: 1883 (Entr' Acte, 7 Apr.); ob.—2. Ware records the sense 'clothes made to order' and implies existence ca. 1883-1900.

soft-sawderer. A flatterer: coll.: mid-C.19-20. Ex Soft-sawder. Cf. soft soap.

soft-skinned vehicle. An unarmoured vehicle: army coll. (1940) >, by 1944, j. As an apple is to a coconut, so...

soft soap, n. Flattery; 'blarney': orig. US; adopted in Brit. by the time that Sgt T. Gowing wrote from 'Camp before Sebastopol, March 29th, 1855... We all received great praise, or soft soap, from Lord Raglan' (A Soldier's Experience, first pub'd 1885). Ex soft soap, potash soap, on soft sawder.

soft-soap, v. To flatter: US (1840), anglicised ca. 1870. Ex the n. A var., ca. 1875-1910, was soft-sop over.

soft sawder. Occ. var., e.g. in Carlyle, of soft sawder.

soft spot. 'An easy, comfortable, or desirable berth, thing, or circumstance.' (F. & H.): late C.19-20; slightly ob. Ex Northern dial. spot (—1877), a place of employment, a job (EDD).—2. In have a soft spot for (someone or -thing), to be either sentimentally or affectionately attached to: coll.: since ca. 1880. Cf. soft on.

soft stuff. Unarmoured vehicles: army s. (1940) >, by 1941, coll. (P-G-R.) Cf., perhaps ex, soft-skinned vehicle.

soft tack. Bread, as opp. hard tack, biscuits; nautical: since earlyish C.19. (Bill Truck, Jan. 1822.) Cf. soft tommy, q.v., and soddack or -ick.

soft thing, a. A very obliging simpleton: coll.: mid-C.19-20. Ex soft, adj., 1.—2. A pleasant, an easy, task; an easy contest or win: coll.: from ca. 1890. Ex soft, adj., 3, q.v.

soft tommy. Bread, as opp. biscuits; nautical: from late C.18.

It occurs in the English 'Bob Rousem's Epistle to Bonypart' quoted, 4 Aug. 1804, in an American magazine, The Port Folio (IV, no. 31, p. 246, col. 2), 'If you can't take care what you are about, you'll soon be afloat... in a high sea, upon a grating, my boy, without a bit of soft tommy to put into your lantern jaws.' The phrase be afloat (up)on a grating=to be in a dangerous situation. It occurs still earlier in George Brewer, Bannian Day, 1796, at l.i, p. 2. (Moe.) Cf. synon. soft tack, and see tommy, 1.

soft touch. 'A person easy to borrow from or sponge on' (Petch): coll.: since ca. 1910. Cf. touch, n., 9, and soft, adj., 2.

soft upon the hard. Phrase applied to a heavy fall, as 'lose your balance and come down "soft upon the hard" with your face in contact with some of the blocks' (Gowing): coll.: C.19. Contrast soft, n., 3.

softers. 'Soft soap', q.v. (the n.): RN (mostly lowerdeck): since ca. 1930. (P-G-R.) The 'OXFORD/RN -ER(S)' softly softly catchee monkey. 'Gently does it!': go circumspectly to achieve your object: mock-pidgin c.p.: prob. since late C.19. See DCpp.

softie; properly softy. A silly, very simple, or weak-minded person: coll. and dial.: 1863, Mrs Gaskell, '[Nancy] were but a softy after all.' By 1940, S.E. Often, in later C.20, big softie.

sof. A sovereign (coin): schools': late C.19-early 20. Ex sov, q.v.

sogger, sojer; sodger, n. A soldier: coll. and dial.: C.15-20.—2. If applied to a sailor, it constitutes a grave, disgracing pej., for it connotes shirking and malingering: nautical coll.:—1829 (W.N. Glascock, Sailors and Saints, I, 149: Moe). Cf. Clark Russell in Sailor's Language, 1883, and see sodge.

—3. Gen. sodger: a big cross made on an examination-paper to indicate a glaring error: Winchester:—1839 (Wrench). Cf. percher.—4. See soldier, 1; and for Sogeries, see Sodgeries.

sogger, v.; occ. sodger or sojer. To shirk and/or malingering; to pretend to work: mainly nautical:—1840; in C.20, coll. (Dana.) Also soldier.

soggies. Breakfast cereals: upper-middle-class s.: later 1970s. Peter York, Style Wars, 1980.

soggy type. A dull-witted and slow-moving person: RAF: since ca. 1937. (Jackson.) See wet, adj., 7, which prob. suggested it.—2. One who drinks excessively: RAF: since ca. 1938. (Robert Hinde, 1945.)

soil. To tour in the country: theatrical: ca. 1750-1800. Theatrical Biography, vol. I, 1772.

soiled dove. A high-flying harlot: coll.: later C.19-early 20. Dove=purity.

soixante-neuf. Adopted from French, is a term diagrammatically descriptive (69) of a reciprocal sexual act: late C.19-20: orig., upper and middle classes', but by 1914 or 1915 fairly common in the Forces, esp. the Navy, as swaffonder or swassonder (or -ander); by 1920, soixante-neuf was coll.—and, by 1960, virtually S.E.

solar. Sola (topee): orig. (—1878) a sol. spelling. (Y. & B.) Ex Hindustani shola.

solarist. The main aim of 'the solarists... is not to actually see anything [while on package tours overseas], but just go and shove themselves down on a bit of beach, get brick red and come home' (Kenneth Hudson, quoted in Radio Times, 27 Oct. 1979).

sold, ppl adj. Tricked: see sell, v. Cf.:

sold again and got the money! A costermonger's c.p. on having successfully 'done' someone in a bargain: ca. 1850-80. (H., 1st ed.) Ex sell, v. Cf.:

sold like a bullock in Smithfield, ppl adj. Badly cheated or duped: almost a c.p.: ca. 1810-50. (Vaux.) Cf. prec.

sold on (something), be. To be enthusiastic about, very much attracted by, it: coll.: since late 1940s. 'She's very taken, of course, but I'm not exactly sold on it myself.' Cf. 'I'll buy it/tha't: I agree—that seems a sensible idea. (Petch, 1969; P.B.)

sold out. Bankrupt: coll.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.); ob. by 1930.—2. To have sold all one's stock (of some article): coll.: late soldier, n. A red herring: from ca. 1810: sailors' and seaports'. (Lex. Bal., 1811.) Also sodger, soger.—2. A boiled lobster: ca. 1820–1910. Both ex red uniform.—3. An inferior seaman: nautical coll.: early C.19—earlier 20. (Bill Truck, Sep. 1824.) Cf. sodge and soger, 2, qq.v.—4. A forest kangaroo: Aus. coll. >, ca. 1920, S.E.: from late 1890s. 'Rolf Boldrewood' (OED).—5. 'The senior Royal Marine officer on board. Young Soldier, his subaltern' (Bowen); as '(senior) Marine officer', it goes back to very early C.19, to judge by W.N. Glascock, The Naval Sketch-Book, 2nd series, 1834, at II, 32 and 33 (Moe).—6. An upright (often, in j., termed a 'runner') of 9 inches by 3, gen. used as a support for 'shuttering': Public Works:—1935. They are usually placed at intervals, edge on to the shuttering: and thus they resemble a rank of soldiers.—7. See old soldier; soldiers.

C.19–20. Perhaps on the analogy of S.E. be sold up, to have had part or all of one's goods sold to pay one's creditors.

soldier, v. See sojer, v.; but this form began by being coll., and in C.20 is S.E.—2. V.i., to clean one's equipment; doing routine work or fatigues: military: 1885 (OED): s. >, ca. 1915, coll.—3. V.t., to use temporarily (another man's horse): Aus.:—1891 (Century Dict.); ob. by 1930.

soldier bold. A cold: rhyming s.: from ca. 1860; † by 1940. P.B.: but see soldiers bold.

soldier on. To persevere against peril and/or hardship: military coll.: esp. 1916–18. Often as a c.p. in form soldier on, chum (B. & P.). P.B.: the phrase > gen. coll. and is still very much alive, 1983.

soldier-walking. 'Any operation by blue-jackets on land' (Bowen): RN: C.19—early 20. Cf. soldier, n., 5.

soldiers. 'Fingers' of buttered bread: nursery and domestic coll.: C.20. 'He cut his buttered bread into soldiers to dip into the yolk' (Paul Scott, Staying On, 1977: Mrs C. Raab). Prob. orig. so named as a ruse in urging reluctant children to 'eat up' (P.B.).—2. Tinned sausages: intercontinental lorry drivers': later C.20. Hilary Wilce, article in New Society, 2 Feb. 1977 (P.B.).—3. As the Soldiers, Aldershot (the garrison town) Assoc. Football Club: sporting coll.: C.20.—4. In Oh, soldiers!, a proletarian exclamation: later C.19—early 20. (Ware.) P.B.: prob. euph. Oh, sod it!—5. See soldiers bold.

soldier's (best)friend. His rifle: late C.19–20. Often by the soldier, used ironically. Cf. the Ger. soldier's bride, and the C.18—early 19 married to Brown Bess.

soldier's bite. A big bite: coll. and dial.: C.19–20.

soldiers bold, adj. Cold: Aus. rhyming s.: C.20. Often shortened to soldiers. Cf. soldier bold. (P.B.) soldier's bottle. A large bottle: coll.: late C.17—early 19. B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.

soldier's breeze. A var., dating from the early 1890s, of soldier's wind, q.v.: coll. >, by 1910, S.E.

soldier's farewell, a. 'Go to bed!', with ribald additions and/or elaborations: military:—1909 (Ware). Cf. sailor's farewell, q.v.—2. Also (in WW1, and after)='Good-bye and bugger (or fuck) you!' M. Lincoln, Oh! Definitely, 1933, "'Goodbye...!' he yelled... "Soldier's farewell", he said amiably.'—3. 'By WW2 it had come to mean the 7s 6d weekly maintenance payable by the father of an illegitimate child' (Edward Bishop, letter to P.B., 1978). (=37½p.)

soldier's friend, the. 'The metal polish used for cleaning brass buttons, etc.' (F. & G.): army coll., ironic: earlier C.20.—2. See soldier's best friend.

soldiers (! or ?) — I've shit 'em! A c.p. 'expression of contempt for another unit (especially if slovenly)': military: from ca. 1912. (B. & P.) Cf. scraped 'em off me putties. Prob. suggested by the proverb, applied to the mean, misshapen, ridiculous: He (etc.) looks as though the devil had shit him flying.

soldier's joy. Masturbation: low coll.: ca. 1850–1910.—2. Pease pudding: nautical: C.19. A Burton, Johnny Newcome, 1818 (Moe).

soldier's mawnd. A sham sore or wound in the left arm: c.: late C.17—mid-18. (B.E.) Cf. mason's maund, q.v.—2. Hence, 'a pretended soldier, begging with a counterfeit wound, which he pretends to have received at some famous siege or battle' (Grose, 1st ed.): c.: mid-C.18—early 19.

soldier's mast. A pole mast without sails, 'during the transition period from sail to steam in the Navy' (Bowen): nautical coll.: mid-C.19.

soldier's pomatum. A piece of tallow candle: late C.18—mid-19. Grose, 2nd ed.

soldier's privilege. Complaining: WW1 army coll. >, in later C.20, almost proverbial as 'grumbling (or grouching) is the soldier's privilege'. Cf. sailor's pleasure. (E.P.; P.B.)

soldier's supper. A drink of water and a smoke: coll.: 1893 (OED). Ware, 'Nothing at all—tea being the final meal of the day.' Cf. subaltern's luncheon.—2. As a c.p. (e.g. a soldier's supper to you!), 'piss off and go to bed': esp. in Glasgow:—1934. Cf. soldier's farewell. Peppitt notes that the mid-to later C.20 RN nuance is 'a pee and turn in'.

soldier's thigh. An empty pocket: dial. and s.: mid-C.19–20; ob. EDD.

soldier's threepenn'orth, a. Short leave: army: earlier C.20. I.e. a shave, a shit and a shine. Cf. the RN a shave, a shilling, and a shoe ashore.

soldier's wash, a. 'Cupping water in the hands instead of using a flannel' (Muvver): Cockneys': C.20.

soldier's wind. A fair wind either way, a beam wind: nautical coll., since early C.19; >, ca. 1890, j. A Burton, Johnny Newcome, 1818 (Moe).

sole-slogger. A shoemaker: lower classes':—1887; ob. Baumann recalls Shakespeare's 'surgeon to old shoes'.

solemn; esp. in give one's solemn, 'to swear on oath', 'give one's word': ca. 1890–1915. (W.L. George, The Making of an Englishman, 1914.) Short for solemn word (or oath).

solemn(h)oly. Excessive seriousness: coll.: from ca. 1860. This blend of solemn + melancholy is an extension of the joc. S.E. adj. coined in America in 1772 (OED Sup.). A ludicrous perversion is lemoncholy, q.v.

solfa. A parish clerk: late C.18—mid-19. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Ex intoning responses.

solid, n. A road: tramps' and Romanies' s.: C.20. (Robert M. Dawson.)

solid, adj. (Of time) complete, entire: C.18–20: S.E. until ca. 1890, then coll. 'Rolf Boldrewood', 1890, 'I walked him up and down... for a solid hour' (OED).—2. Severe; difficult: Aus.:—1916 (C.J. Dennis); also gen. coll.—3. (?) Hence, extortionate; unreasonable: Aus.: since ca. 1918. B., 1942.—4. Stupid, 'thick': RN, since (?) ca. 1925, > gen. s. (Granville.) Solid ivory above the ears.—5. Staunch; 'unbreakable in a tough situation' (Ian Grindley, 1977): Aus. c.: since ca. 1945. P.B.: but this nuance is not far off S.E. as exemplified in SOD.—6. See JAZZ, in Appendix.

solid, adv. Low coll.: mid-C.19–20. As = severely: C.20.

solid dig. Copy that is to be set very close: printers': mid-C.19–20. B. & L. solitary. Solitary confinement: 1854 (Dickens: OED): prison s. >, by 1900, coll.—2. 'A whale cruising by himself, generally an outcast and savage bull': nautical coll.: late C.19–20. Bowen.

sollicker, n. and adj. (Some thing or person) very big or remarkable: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Perhaps sock-dologer conflated.

sollomon. See solomon.

Solly, like the more usual Ikey, means 'a Jew': coll.: since ca. 1870. A very common Jewish surname and given name. P.B.: i.e. a diminutive of Solomon, as Ikey is for Isaac.

solo. A solitary walk (without a 'socius', q.v.): Winchester: from ca. 1870.

solo creeper. 'Sneak thief operating absolutely alone' (Powis): c., and police coll.: later C.20.

solo player. 'A miserable performer on any instrument, who always plays alone, because no one will stay in the room to hear him' (Grose, 1st ed.): joc. coll. of ca. 1780–1850 punning the lit. sense.

solomon. A hatter; one who cleans or repairs toppers: Eton:

C.20. Ex a proper name.—2. A job: navvies': ca. 1860–1910. (D.W. Barrett, Navvies, 1880.) Julian Franklyn proposes an ellipsis of 'Solomon and Job'.—3. In do a Solomon, to pretend to be very wise: earlier C.20. Joan Lowell, Child of the Deep, 1929.—4. A late C.17–early 19 var. of salmon.

solomon-gundy. A mid-C.18–19 coll. form of salmagundy. Cf. salmon-gundy.

Solomon Isaac. A Jew: Can.: ca. 1870–1914. Cf. Solly, q.v. sol and obs. See ob and sol.

solus. An advertisement on a page containing no other advertisement: advertising coll. (from ca. 1926) verging on j. some. Both as adverb of quantity and as an intensive adjective—equivalent respectively to much, or very, and great, lovely, etc.—some was originally, and still is, an Americanism that has contributed laudably to the gaiety of nations and enabled the English to take their pleasures less sadly. As an adjective, e.g. some girl!, it is a 20th century importation (rare before WW1) into England, but as an adverb, e.g. going some, it was known at least as early as 1890 in Britain. In America, the earliest examples are 'I hunt some and snake a little', 1834, or in a slightly different sense, 'He stammers some in his speech', 1785; and 'She's some woman now, that is a fact', 1848. Nevertheless, the Americans prob. adopted both the adj. and the adv. from English dial.: see EDD. Cf. the French, 'Ça c'est quelque chose' and next entry. OED and Sup.; Ware; Thornton; Weekley; Fowler.—2. See and then some.

some hopes! It is most unlikely: a c.p. dating from ca. 1905. (B. & P.) Cf. what hopes!

some mothers do (h)ave 'em. (Often pron. in imitation of Cockney.) A jibe at clumsiness or a blunder: orig. Cockney, since (?) ca. 1920; > gen. coll. as the title of a BBC TV series, 1974. (L.A.) See also DCpp., where Vernon Noble notes the phrase's (? earlier) popularity in the N. Country. Ex the next, as is the inversion, some children don't half have 'em, 'used derivatively of "squares"' (Petch, 1974).

some people (occ. parents) rear (occ. raise) awkward children. A c.p., dating since ca. 1880 (? earlier) and directed at someone who has been (very) clumsy. By 1960, on the verge of becoming a proverb.

some say 'Good old sergeant!' A c.p. spoken or shouted by privates within the sergeant's hearing; gen. one added (often affectionately), others say 'Fuck the (old) sergeant!': army: since ca. 1890. (B. & P.) The c.p. was civilised, and personalised, in 1919, as, e.g., some say 'Good old Paul!—some (or I) say 'Sod for other rudeness) old Paul!' A perhaps later var. of the 'dovetail' is in some say 'Good old Paul!—others tell the truth! See DCpp.

some when, adv. Some time: Society c.p.: ca. 1860–70. (Ware.) P.B.: extant in later C.20, and more widely than just 'Society'.

somebody (or someone) up there loves me (you, etc.). 'I am very fortunate at the moment'; 'You are obviously in favour with the right people': c.p.: adopted, ca. 1960, ex US. The ref. is to heaven, but the phrase may be used less fig., with direct allusion to senior authorities. (P.B.) somebody's dropped his false teeth! A c.p. à propos of a sudden noise, esp. a crash: since ca. 1925. In 1939–45, a Forces' c.p. in respect of a bomb or a shell exploding in the distance.

something, adv. with adj. An intensive, esp. with cruel (s. cruel = cruel or cruelly): dial. and low, in C.20 sol., coll.: mid-C.19–20. E.g. 'E suffered something cruel'—or, frequently, 'some-think cruel'; 'the heat was something frightful'. P.B.: in later C.20, frequently something 'orrible, or something rotten (both = very bad(ly)); usu. as deliberate sol., as in 'He "created" something horrible' = was extremely, and demonstratively, angry.—2. As in 'the something something' (the bloody bastard), 'the something horse' (the bloody horse): a coll. euph.: mid-C.19–20; in C.20 use, gen. considered S.E.—3. Hence as v. in past ppl, somethinged = damned, etc.: 1859 (OED).

something about (one), have. To show character and ability; to be, in some undefined or intangible way, charming or, perhaps of some mystery, fascinating: coll. (and dial.): since ca. 1890 (? earlier). 'That fellow has something about him, I must admit' (EDD Sup.). Cf. the analogous use of there's something to (a person or thing) and he's certainly got something.

something above the ears, have. To be intelligent: since ca. 1925. P.B.: seldom heard in later C.20. Contrast dead from the neck up, and solid, adj., 4.

something damp. See damp.

something chronic. See chronic, adj.

something else. 'So cool [i.e. excellent; abreast of contemporary music] it defies description' (Victoria, BC, Daily Colonist, 16 Apr. 1959, 'Basic Beatnik'): Can. jazz-lovers': since ca. 1956. P.B.: some use in UK, 1960s—early 70s, for (usu. joc.) admiration, not necessarily to do with music: 'Well, now, JP [Jet Provost training aircraft] pilots are something else', heard 1972, meaning 'they're good—but probably quite mad!' By late 1970s, wider still: 'Prices were something else' (E. Clarkson, Guardian, 1 Aug. 1979), i.e. outrageously high.

something good. A good racing tip: s. (from ca. 1890) >, ca. 1920, coll.—2. Hence, a profitable affair, a safe but not generally known investment, venture, etc.: coll.: C.20. E.g. 'I'm on something good.'

something in socks. A bachelor, or what a girl wants: joc.: since ca. 1910.

something in the City. In lit. vagueness, obviously S.E.; but, pointedly coll. from ca. 1890, it denotes a shady financier, a nondescript and none too honest agent, and esp. a criminal or even a burglar. Ware.

something in the public line. A licensed victualler: coll. Dickens, who, in 1840, originated—or, at the least, gave currency to—the phrase; prob. on the public business.

something like. Phrase of approval, left deliberately vague: coll.: C.20. E.g., 'Here, have a drop of this [liquor]'—'Ah, now that's really something like!', i.e., an understatement for 'exactly what I wanted/needed'. Cf. coll. that's more like it! (P.B.)

something nasty in the woodshed, to have seen, esp. in the c.p. He (or she) has seen something ..., applied to 'a crazy, mixed-up kid': Brit. and Aus.: since the late 1940s. Irony of the modern psychiatric tendency to explain evil by adducing some such 'traumatic experience' as having seen one's mother with a lover in the woodshed. (B.P.) This c.p. was originated by Stella Gibbons in her immortal Cold Comfort Farm, 1932, the satire that put an end to a vogue for novels of rural passions and dominant grandmothers' (R.S., 1959).

something short. See short, n., 2.

something-something!, what the. A euph. for what the bloody (or the effing) hell!: Coll.: C.20.

something the cat's brought in. See like something.

something to hang things on. An infantryman's joc. coll. description of himself: WW1. F. & G., 'In allusion to the paraphernalia of his heavy marching order kit.'

somethinged. See something, 3.

sometimes I wonder! A c.p., meaning—and deriving ex—'Sometimes I wonder whether you are right in the head or entirely sane or ...': an animadversion prompted by an inane remark the unfortunate person has just made: C.20. (B.P.)

somewhere in France was, in 1914–18, often put to joc. uses or to senseless variations and thus > a c.p. B. & P., 'The heading of most Western-Front soldiers' letters home.'

somewheres. Somewhere; approximately: dial. and low coll.: mid-C.19–20. 'It's somewheres along of fifty quid' (F. & H.); R.L. Stevenson, 1883, 'I know you've got that ship safe somewheres' (OED) Cf. the frequent sol. anywheres and the rare nowheres.

sommie. (In gymnastics) a somersault: sporting: prob. since early C.20. Orig. a children's term; I heard it ca. 1905.

son. In such phrases as son of Apollo, a scholar (late C.17–mid-19), son of Mars, a soldier (C.16–19), son of Mercury, a wit (id.), son of parchment (id.: B.E., by a slip, has parcement), son of prattlement, a barrister (C.18–mid-19), and son of Venus, a wencher (late C.17–mid-19), are—except for son of Mars, perhaps always S.E.—coll. verging on, and in C.19 being, S.E.: prattlement is in A New Canting Dict., 1725; the first, third, fourth, and sixth in B.E.—2. In son of wax, a cobbler: coll.: C.19.—3. See old son; son of a...; and: son of... Successor of, as in, e.g., 'Cheaper seats likely if "Son of Concorde" flies', a Daily Telegraph headline of 29 Mar. 1979. A joc. derivation from a number of Hollywood sequel-film titles: coll. usage by late 1970s. (Sir Edward Playfair, 1979.) An early UK use is in A. Stuart, The Bikers, 1971: 'the camera team dedicated to the production of yet another Son-of-Woodstock', i.e., of the film made of the mass youth/hippy pop festival held at Woodstock, NJ, Aug. 1969 (P.B.).

son of a bachelor. A bastard: coll. bordering on S.E.: mid-C.17–early 20. Roger Boyle, Earl of Orrery, Guzman, 1669, I, 1 (Moe).

son of a bitch. (Lit., a bastard, hence) a pej. for a man, a fellow: coll.: C.17–20. Anon., 1676, 'There stands Jack Kitch, that son of a Bitch'.—2. 'A moustache and imperial whiskers favoured by cattle-buyers and wool inspectors in the 1890s' (B., 1942): Aus.: † by 1914.

son of a gun. 'A soldier's bastard' (Bee, 1823); but, as gen. pej. (increasingly less offensive), it dates from early C.18. P.B.: in C.20, occ. as an exclam. of surprise: low coll.

son of a sea-cook. A term of abuse: nautical coll.: 1806 (John Davis, The Post-Captain: Moe); M. Scott, 1836, 'You supercilious son of a sea-cook'.

son of a sow or sow-gelder. A pej. for a man, a fellow: coll. verging on S.E.: C.17–mid-19. Chapman has sow-gelder.

son of the white hen. A lucky person (properly male): C.17–18: coll. (Jonson, 1630; Poor Robin's Almanack, Feb. 1764.) Ex Juvenal's gallinae filius albae. Apperson.

son of a whore. (Lit., a bastard, hence) a pej. for a man, a fellow: coll.: 1703 ('Facetious' Tom Brown); ob. by early C.20—if used at all, S.E. Cf. whoreson as adj.

song. In on song, in good form: sporting, esp. Association Football: since ca. 1960. Football report in the Observer, 1 Dec. 1974, 'Any side on song would have given them the runaround early' (R.S.). Cf. S.E. in good voice.—2. In (e.g. his morning and evening song do not agree, (he) soon tells another story for one told even recently: late C.18–19: coll. >, ca. 1830, S.E. (Grose, 2nd ed.) An elab. of change one's, or sing another, song.—3. See nothing to make a song...

song and dance; occ., as in H.A. Vachell, Quinney's, 1914, little... Anyone's 'performance' in the course of doing his job: C.20. A salesman, e.g., reels off his patter.—2. A homosexual: rhyming s. (on Nance): since ca. 1910; by 1940, ob. and by 1960, †. Franklyn, Rhyming.—3. A fuss; a commotion: coll.: late C.19–20. Hence, nothing to make a song and dance about, trivial, unimportant, unimpressive.

song of the thrush. A brush (lit. and fig.): rhyming s.: prob. from ca. 1860. Franklyn 2nd cites D.W. Barrett, Among the Navvies, 1880.

sonk. Var. of:—

sonkey, n. A lout: c. or perhaps only low:—1887: (Baumann). Cf. sawney and sukey for both form and sense.

sonkey or sonky, adj. Silly, stupid; idiotic: Aus. low: C.20. H. Drake Brockman, 1938, 'Mrs Abbott and her sonky ideas' (Baker). Ex the n.

sonnie; properly sonny. A coll. term of address to a boy or to a man younger than oneself, though not if the addressee is old or middle-aged: OED records at 1870, but prob. existing a decade earlier. In Aus., the -on- is occ. pron. as in the preposition, as Morris remarked, citing A.B. Paterson's rhyme of sonny with Johnnie.

sonno. 'Son', fellow, lad; mostly in addressing men: Aus.: since ca. 1910. (Baker.) Cf. boyo, and prec.

sonny, v. To catch sight of, to see, to notice: c.: 1845, in 'No. 747'; app. † by 1900. Cf. granny, to understand.

Soo. Staff Officer Operations: RN: since ca. 1914. ('Sea Lion', The Phantom Fleet, 1946.) Ex the official abbreviation S.O.O.

sooer. See soor.

soogan. A cowboy's bed-roll: Can.: adopted, ca. 1920, ex S.W. US.—2. Hence, any bed-roll, but esp. a transient worker's: Can.: since ca. 1930. As Dr Leechman has suggested, soogan, a blanket roll, may have originated in the soogun, or hay rope, once used to tie the roll.

soogey. To scrub, to scour: RN: late C.19–20. Granville, who adduces the derivative (RN and MN usage) soogey-moogey, 'a mixture of soap, soda and sundry ingredients used for washing paintwork or scrubbing decks', says 'Derivation obscure.' But perhaps cf. Scottish sooch (pron. approx. sooghk, rather than sook), 'the sound of anything falling heavily into water or into soft mud'; an echoic word, the moogey being reduplicated, though with a reminiscence of mushy in its literal sense. More prob., however, soogey represents a corruption of squeezee; and moogey simply rhyme-reduplicates it. Also spelt souji-mouji (Bowen); and suji-muji, as in 'There are no sailors to-day', says [Conrad], "only Suji-Muji men" ... Mere washers of paint. Deckhands on modern ships wash and chip paint, morning, noon and night' (James Hanley, Spectator, 26 Jan. 1934).

soogey the bulkhead. To go on a drinking bout: RN: C.20. Ex prec.

soogun. A hay rope: Shelta: C.18–20. B. & L. soojey. Var. of soogey.

sook, sook(e)y, sookie, n. A coward; a timorous person; 'a mother's boy' (McNeil): 'an Aus. cry-baby' (B. Humphries, Nice Night's Entertainment, 1981, gloss.): Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Cf. sukey, 4, a simpleton.—2. A calf: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1943.) Ex suck?

sookey, adj. Sentimental: Aus.: since ca. 1925. Dymphna Cusack, Southern Steel, 1953.

sool. To set (a dog) on: Aus. coll.: from ca. 1890. (Morris.) Also sool on: C.20. Prob. ex dial. sowl, to handle roughly, or sowl into, to attack fiercely (EDD).—2. Hence (as of a dog a cat), to worry: id.: 1896, Mrs Parker, "'Sool 'em, sool 'em" ... the signal for the dogs to come out.'—3. Hence, to run: Aus. juvenile: since ca. 1930. B., 1953.—4. Sool after, to pursue (a person, esp. of the opposite sex): Aus.: since ca. 1935. (Gavin Casey, It's Harder for Girls, 1942.—5. To wheedle; to bamboozle: Aus.: C.20. (Sarah Campion, Bonanza, 1942.) Hence, soolin' sod, a hypocrite (male): Aus.: C.20. Campion, 1942.

sooler. A warmonger: Capricornia, Australia: 1914–18. (Xavier Herbert, Capricornia, 1939.) Ex prec., 1.

soon run dry. An occ. military c.p. (1915–18) on rum-jars, on which were stamped the initials S.R.D. (service rum diluted). B. & P.

sooner. A shirker; one who would 'sooner loaf than work': in Brit., perhaps mostly RN; also Aus.: since late C.19. (Moe; B., 1942.) Cf.:—2. A dog, esp. one that would 'sooner feed than fight': since (?) late C.19. Leechman glosses Can. use as 'a dog that would rather defecate indoors than out': C.20. Cf.:—3. 'I once asked my father why cats were called "sooners". "Sooner shit than eat", the old man replied. (Oh well, curiosity killed the cat.)' (Muvver): Cockney: C.20.—4. 'A jibbing horse (one that would sooner go backward than forward)' (Niall Alexander, letter, 1939): NZ; Aus. (Baker): C.20. Hence, as in P.A. Smith, Folklore of the Australian Railwaymen, 1969, a worn-out locomotive (Wilkes).—5. A swindler; a trickster: Aus.: since ca. 1920. Vance Palmer, Separate Lives, 1931.

sooner, adv. Better, as in 'You had sooner go, you had better go, you would do well to go: lower classes' coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Ex S.E. sooner, 'more readily as a matter of choice' (OED).

sooner dog. See sooner, n., 2.

soonish. Rather soon; quite soon; a little too soon: 1890 (EDD): coll. and dial.

soop. An occ. var. (from ca. 1910; e.g. in John G. Brandon, The One-Minute Murder, 1934) of:

sooper. A var. (—1909) of super, n., 1–5. (Ware.) P.B.: it is also used to represent a certain emphatic way of saying super, adj., esp. as exclam. Also occ. soopah.

soor; occ. sooer. An abusive term: Anglo-Indian (—1864) and Army's. Ex Hindustani for a pig. H., 3rd ed.

soor dook. See sour dook.

Soos. Shares in the Minneapolis, St Paul, & Sault Ste Marie Railroad: Stock Exchange coll. (—1895), sault being pron. soo. A.J. Wilson's Glossary.

soot. A foolish var. spelling of suit: mid-C.19–20.

soot-bag. A reticle c. (—1839) >, by late 1850s, low s. Brandon; H., 1st ed.

sootie or -y. A dealer in soot: coll.: C.19–20. Boxiana, II, 1818.

sop. A simpleton; a milk-sop: from ca. 1620: S.E. until ca. 1850, then coll.; ob. H., 1st ed.—2. As Sop, any Sopwith aircraft: RFC/RAF: WW1.

soph, Soph. A sophister: coll.: mid-C.17–20: mainly Cambridge; ob. at Oxford by 1720, † by 1750. OED records at 1661; D'Urfev, 1719, 'I am a jolly soph.' Partly ex sophomore, which since C.18 is solely US. Cf. Harry Soph.

sopped through. Sopping-wet: lower classes' coll.:—1887 (Baumann).

soppy. Foolishly sentimental, 'soft': coll.: since early C.20. Dr Niels Haislund cites H.G. Wells, Joan and Peter, 1918, 'What Joan knew surely to be lovely, Highmorton denounced as "soppy". "Soppy" was a terrible word in boys' schools and girls' schools alike, a flail for all romance.' (Cf. wet.) Lit., wet with sentiment.—2. Hence, be soppy on, to be foolishly fond of (a person): coll.: from ca. 1924.

soppy boat. Gen. pl. 'Nickname for Folkestone fishing craft': nautical: mid-C.19—early 20. (Bowen.) Ex their wetness.

soppy date. See date, n., 5.

soppy (h)a'p'orth. Var. of soppy date (perhaps its orig.), a 'soppy and silly person: coll., children's and proletarian: since (?) 1930s. (P.B.) See soppy.

Sopwith Pup. 'Sopwith single-seat Scout of the R.F.C. and Type 9901 of the R.N.A.S., soon became known as the Pup' (B. Robertson, Sopwith, 1970): WW1. 'It was the "pup" of the Sopwith 1½-Strutter, quite a large aircraft' (Mrs Barbara Huston, 1981).

sore, adj. Angry; disgruntled: coll.: 1830, (Fredk Marryat, The King's Own, p. 143 of the 1896 ed.)—prob. dating from rather earlier. (Moe.) Hence in get sore, 'to become aggrieved' (C.J. Dennis): coll., esp. Aus. and US: late C.19–20. Cf. sore as a boil, as. Angry, resentful ('sore'): Aus.: C.20. Kylie Tennant, The Honey Flow, 1956.

sore as a snouted sheila. As resentful as a girl who has been 'stood up': Aus.: since ca. 1940. B., 1959.

sore finger or toe. Esp. in dressed up, dolled up, done up like a ..., too elaborately or conspicuously over-dressed, with an implication of discomfort: Aus.: since early C.20. Cf. Eng. coll. stand out or stick out like a sore thumb. Wilkes.

sore fist. A bad workman: tailors': from ca. 1870; ob. ? ex write a poor hand, to sew badly, likewise tailorese.

sore-head. A curmudgeon: Aus.: late C.19–20. (C.J. Dennis.) Cf. coll. like a bear with a sore head, grumpy and disagreeable.

sore leg. A German sausage: military: ca. 1880–1915.—2. A plum pudding: low London: from ca. 1880; ob. Prob. ex spotted dog.

sorra. Dial. and, to some extent, coll. form of sorrow: C.19–20.

sorrow! Sorry!: late C.19—early 20: orig. and mainly joc., and mostly Society. F. Morton Howard in The Humorist, 3 Feb. 1934, 'Oh, sorrow, uncle! Sorrow—sorrow!' Ex sorrow as an imprecation (cf. sorrow on ...!). The OED's C.15 instance of sorrow=sorry is inoperative; this use was prob. rare.

sorrowful tale. Three months in gaol: rhyming s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.); ob. by 1930.

sorry. 'Mate, pal, chum. Usually in vocative and chiefly among Yorkshire and Lancashire troops': military in WW1 and after (as, doubtless, before). From dial.; perhaps ultimately ex sirrah. (B. & P.) P.B.: I doubt if this really qualifies, unless used, perhaps joc., by anyone other than a North Midlander.

sorry! I am sorry!: C.19–20: coll. >, by 1850, S.E.

sorry? 'Used to indicate that one has not heard or not understood; for many people it seems to have replaced "I beg your pardon?"' (P.B., 1974, who says, 'I first heard it early 1960s'.) But it goes back to before WW2; was at first coll., but by 1965, at latest, informal S.E.

sorry and sad. Bad: rhyming s.: C.20.

sorry – but I've got a ... See but I've got a ...

sorry you spoke, aren't you? A c.p. dating from ca. 1905; ob. (W.L. George, The Making of an Englishman, 1914.) P.B.: cf. the sometimes ironic, sometimes joc., sorry I spoke, used to allay an upset caused by a perhaps unwitting remark; it occurs in Musings, 1912 (p. 12), and has survived into later C.20.

sort, n. A companion of the opposite sex; thus, 'All the girls and their sorts are going to the pictures' (Baker): Aus.: since ca. 1925. Sorts, good or bad, of people.—2. In England, a girl: low: since ca. 1945. (Norman.) Prob. ex Aus., where this sense existed since ca. 1910: cf. Frank Chine, Try Anything Once, 1933, 'I've a great little sort to meet' (in 1911 or 1912).—3. In a bad, or a good, sort, a bad, a good, fellow or girl, woman: coll.: from ca. 1880. In C.20, bad sort is rare except as not a bad sort. J. Sturgis, 1882, 'They cursed and said that Dick was a good sort' (OED). Cf. Fr. espèce (de).—4. In that's your sort!, a term of approbation, gen. of a specific action, method, occ. thing: 1792 (Holcroft); H., 3rd ed. Ob. by 1910, virtually † by 1935. By ellipsis. Cf. there you go! sort, v. To shoot up; to attack fiercely: army: since ca. 1940. 'We went to Div. H.Q., which had been well and truly sorted' (John D'Arcy Dawson, European Victory, 1946). Cf. sort out, 2 and 3.

sort 'em out (– they're all there)! Jeering c.p. addressed to someone clumsily trying to change gear on a motorised vehicle: since mid-C.20. Cf. synon. Do you want (or need) a knife and fork? (P.B.) Yehouda Mindel, of Lower Galilee, recalls a WW2 var., they're all in the box—just pick the right one.

sort of; a sort of. In a way; to some extent; somehow; one might say: dial (—1790) >, ca 1830, coll.: a sort of, ob. by 1890, † by 1930; sort of, app. not before ca. 1830. Thackeray, 1859, "'You were hurt by the betting just now?" "Well", replied the lad, "I am sort of hurt."' Orig. and mainly US is sorter (1846), orig. a sorter (as in Marryat's American Diary, 1839); cf. Thornton, passim. P.B.: in some people's speech merely a verbal tic or hiccup, a noise 'to keep the lines open', with no more meaning than 'er... um... er'. See also kind of, kinder.—2. Hence, merely modificatory, deprecatory, or tautological: C.20. Denis Mackail, Summer Leaves, 1934, 'Wissingfield's our sort of village', i.e. (simply) our village.—3. In these sort of, as, e.g., 'These sort of cases' for 'this sort of case', i.e. 'such cases': mid-C.16–20: S.E. >, by 1887, somewhat catachrestic >, by 1920, coll. (Baumann.) In 'These sort of things are done by conjurers' (well-known novelist) there is a confusion between 'This sort of thing is done... and 'These sorts of things are done...'

sort of thing. A tag c.p. of late C.19–20. Ernest Raymond We, The Accused, 1935, 'What he doesn't know about the law isn't worth knowing, sort of thing' and 'You've everything you want in here, sort of thing?'

sort-out, n. A fight, a mella; workers':—1935. Ex v., 2 and 3.

sort out, v. To tease; leg-pull (v.t.): Cockney: C.20. Also to take on, as, e.g., 'I took him on' or 'sorted him out'; 'Why are you taking me on, I'd like to know!'.—2. To fight: low: C.20.—3. To pick a quarrel with and use force upon someone: Services: since ca. 1934. (H. & P.) Cf. n., 1.—4. To choose (someone) for a job, esp. if it be unpleasant or arduous: Services (esp. RAF): since ca. 1938. H. & P., 'Who sorted me out for this one?' Ex, e.g., wool-sorting.—5. In Aus., to reprove or reprimand (someone): since ca. 1930. (B., 1942.) P.B.: by 1950, Services' Eng.; cf. sort, v.; and sense 3. sorts. In of sorts, inferior; unsatisfactory: coll.: C.20. E.g. 'He's certainly a writer—of sorts.' Ex the ob. of sorts, of various kinds. P.B.: cf. the army quartermasters' j. in, e.g., 'One cases [sic], wooden, packing, local pattern, of sorts.' —2. See all sorts; out of sorts.

sorty. Similar: coll.: 1885; ob.—2. Mixed: coll.: 1889, 'A "sorty" team.' (Both OED.)

Sosh (long o). Socialism: political writers', mostly: since ca. 1918.

sosh, adj. Used to express annoyance at, e.g., something unnecessary; also as in 'Sosh on you!' = Thanks for nothing! (always heavily sarcastic): Loughborough Grammar School: mid-1970s. Ex sociable, used ironically. (Phillip Reed, 1979.)

so(-)brangle. A slatternly wench: low coll. and dial.: late C.17–19. (Grose, 2nd ed.; EDD.) Cf. so, a slut (in mid-C.19–20, dial.).

sosseled, sossiled; sossed. See sozzled.

sossidge is frequent but unnecessary, for sausage should, in ordinary dialogue anyway, be pron. precisely thus. Ware has sossidge-slump, decline in popularity of Germans consequent on the Kaiser's telegram to Kruger in 1896: political: 1896–7. sot-weed. Tobacco: coll.: C.18–early 19. T. Brown, 1702; Grose.

sou (earlier sous souse). Esp. in not a sou, not a penny; penniless: coll.: not a sou from ca. 1820 (Byron); not a souse, ca. 1675–1820, as in D'Urfey, 1676. Ex the French coin, orig. of considerably higher value than 5 centimes. In C.19 and occ. (though ob.) in C.20, not a sous. The phrase not worth a sous occurs in Charles Dibdin's 'Nautical Philosophy', pub.—app. in 1793—in The Britannic Magazine, I, 442 (Moe).

sou (one)self. To wound oneself deliberately: military: 1917–18. Ex s.i.w. (self-inflicted wound) pron. as one word.

souji-mouji. See soogey.

soul. In be a soul, to be a drunkard, esp. on brandy: coll. or s.: late C.17–mid-18. B.E., 'He is a Soul, or loves Brandy' Ex soul, a person, + Fr. soûl, tipsy (as in Mathurin Régnier, d. 1613). Cf. soul in soak, q.v.—2. In have no soul, to lack sensibility or gen. decency or emotional force: coll.: 1704 (Swift: OED Sup.). P.B.: in C.20, often used ironically or trivially, 'Have you no soul?' Cf.—3. In have a soul above (something), to care not about, be indifferent or indifferently superior to (something): coll.: 1899 (G.B. Burgin: OED Sup.). P.B.: but see next.—4. For (u)pon or bless my soul!, see the latter.

soul above buttons, have a. To be, actually or in presumption only, superior to one's position: coll.: C.19–20. Adumbrated in Colman, 1795, luminous in Marryat and Thackeray. See prec., 3.

soul-and-body lashing. 'Under sail, a piece of spun yarn tied round the waist and between the legs to prevent a man's oilskins blowing over his head when aloft': nautical: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) Because a matter of life and death.

soul-case. The body: late C.18–20; ob. by 1900. Grose, 3rd ed.—2. Hence, a person, as 'those poor soul-cases down in the engine-room': MN: C.20. (P.B., with thanks to Clive Hardy, 1979.)—3. In belt or worry or work the soul(-)case (or solid) out of (someone), 'To subject to extreme hardship or punishment' (Wilkes): Aus.: C.20.

soul-doctor; -driver. A clergyman: resp. late C.18–mid-19; late C.17–mid-19. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed., both; Sinks, 1848, the latter, applied to a Methodist minister.) On soul-chaplain or -priest. (In US, ca. 1818–49, an Abolitionists' name for an overseer of slaves. Thornton.)

soul-faker. A member of the Salvation Army: lower classes': 1883–ca. 85. Ware, 'Before their value was recognised'.

soul-hunter was, ca. 1900–14, a Cambridge undergraduates' term for 'a man intent on saving the souls of others' (Marples, 2).

soul in soak. Drunk: nautical: ca. 1820–1910. (Egan's Grose.) Lit., soaking drunk: see soul, 1, and soak.

soul-searcher. A drink: 1909 (Phillip Gibbs, The Street of Adventure); † by 1920.

soul-smiter. A sensational novel (of the sentimental sort): book-world coll.:—1923 (Manchon); ob. by 1930. The 1980s prefer to speak of 'a sloppy thriller'.

Soul-Trap, the. Whitefield's original chapel, built 1776, in Tottenham Court Road, London: ca. 1776–1914.

soldier's mawnd. B.E.'s spelling of soldier's mawnd, q.v.

sound, v. Gen. sound a cly, to 'try' a pocket: c.: C.19. Lex. Bal.—2. V.i., to knock or ring to see if the occupants of a house to be robbed are at home: c.:—1933 (Charles E. Leach, On Top of the Underworld). Cf. drum, v.

sound, adj. Sound asleep: domestic coll.: C.20.

sound as a bell, roach, trout. Perfectly sound or healthy: coll. bordering on S.E.: resp. 1576 (1599, Shakespeare); 1655, T. Muffett, but in late C.19–20, † except in dial; from late C.13, also in Skelton, but in C.19 mainly, and in C.20 only, dial. (Dial., by the way, has also, from mid-C.19, sound as an acorn.) Apperson, Baumann, 1887, recorded sound as a pippin, rosy-cheeked; very healthy: lower classes' coll. Ex the apple's 'high colour'.

sound card. See TAVERN TERMS, §2, in Appendix; cf.—

sound egg. A very 'decent' fellow: C.20. Denis Mackail, Strand Magazine, Apr. 1934, 'Another and infinitely superior sex still remained, full of stout fellows, sound eggs, and great guys.' sound (one's) flute. To blow one's whistle: police: since ca. 1925. Free-Lance Writer, Apr. 1948.

sound off. To become (very) angry about a particular topic or on a particular occasion: adopted, ca. 1955, ex US.—2. To boast; talk too much: Aus. c. and low s.: since ca. 1950. (Ian Grindley, 1977.) Brit. usage also, ex US. Claiborne's comment, 1976, fits both senses: 'From the U.S. Army command to "Sound off!" while marching, i.e. to count in cadence "Hup, two, three, four" ... Its U.S. meaning is merely "to speak one's mind".'

sound on, be. To have orthodox or well-grounded views concerning: coll.: orig. (1856) US, adopted ca. 1890. Cf. next.—2. Hence, to be both intelligent on and reliable in (a given subject): coll.: from ca. 1900. E.g. 'He's very sound on the little-known subject of psychopaedics.'

sound on the goose, be. An elab. of prec., 1: adopted, ex US, ca. 1890; ob. by 1930. Milliken, 'Arny Ballads', 1892.

sound-spotting, n. Ascertaining position of enemy guns from the sound of firing: artillerymen's coll.: 1940–5. P-G-R.

sounder. Catachrestic when, in C.18, used of a wild boar's lair and when, in C.19–20, applied to a boar one or two years old, or when, as by Grose in 1785, it is used, in the pl form!, for a herd of any swine. Properly, sounder is a noun of assembly for a herd of wild swine.

soundings, in. Near the bottom of one's heap of sheets (in machining): printers': mid-C.19–20. B. & L. Ex nautical j.

sounds. Music; esp. in, e.g. 'Hit me with the sounds!'—play me some music: teenagers': early 1980s. (James Williamson, 1982.)

sounds man. 'Person providing amplified reggae music at illegal drinking establishment' (Powis): later C.20.

soup. (Collective from 1856, simple from ca. 1890.) Briefs, a brief, for prosecutions given to junior members of the Bar (esp. at Quarter Sessions) by the Clerk of the Peace or Arraigns, to defend such poor prisoners as have no choice, at two guineas a time: legal s. >, ca. 1910, coll. Law Times, 1856, 'But will soup so laded out ... support a barrister in the criminal courts?'—2. Hence (both collective and simple), the fee paid for such briefs or such a brief: 1889 (B.C. Robinson): s. >, ca. 1910, coll. OED.—3. Bad ink: printers': from ca. 1870. Ex its thickness or intrusive clots.—4. A fog: coll.: C.20; ob. except in pea-souper.—5. Melted plate: c.: late C.19–20; ob. If of silver, also white soup.—6. Nitro-glycerin: c.:—1905. Prob. orig. US. In NZ c.,—1932, gelignite.—7. 'Any material injected into a horse with a view to changing its speed or temperament' (Webster, 1911); low s., orig. and mainly US. (—8. Rare, though prob. to be considered coll., is soup, a picnic at which 'a great pot of soup is the principal feature' (Century Dict.): ca. 1890–1930.)—9. Bad weather: RAF: since ca. 1915. (Jackson.) Cf. 4.—10. 'The broken part of a wave' (Pix, 28 Sep. 1963): Aus. surfers'.—11. In in the soup, in a difficulty; in trouble: coll.: since late C.19. Pall Mall Gazette, Nov. 1898. 'Of course he knows we're in the soup—beastly ill luck' (OED). Major C.E. Hare, in The Language of Field Sports, 1949, attributes it to that huntingfield mishap or a rider getting down from his horse into a ditch of dirty water. Cf. in hot water.—12 Short for soup plate, q.v.

Soup and Gravy, the. The Navy: rhyming: C.20.

soup plate. A taxicabman's badge: taxidrivers': since ca. 1910. Herbert Hodge, Cab Sir?, 1939.

soup-plate track. A small race-course: Aus.: since ca. 1920. B., 1942.

soup-shop. A house (see fence, n.) for the disposal of stolen plate: c.: 1854 (OED). Punning the S.E. sense. F. & H., 'Melting-pots are kept going, no money passing from fence to thief until identification is impossible.' Cf. soup, 5.

souped, be. To get into trouble: Anglo-Irish; late C. 19–20. James Joyce, Ulysses, 1922, 'Luck I had the presence of mind to dive into Manning's or I was souped'. Ex soup, 11.

souped(-)up. (Of a car) supercharged: Can. motorists': 1945+. Adopted, ca. 1957, by Britain. Courtenay Edwards in Sunday Telegraph, 24 Sep. 1961.

souper. A 'super', i.e. a watch: c.: mid-C.19—early 20. ('Ducange Anglicus'; H., 1st ed.) See super, 6.—2. A cadger of soup-tickets: coll.: from ca. 1875. Ex souper, a Roman Catholic converted to Protestantism by free soup or other charity. Cf. rice Christian.—3. See pea-souper.

soupy. Vomitingly drunk: low:—1909 (Ware).

sour, n. Base silver money, gen. made of pewter: c.: 1883 (J. Greenwood). Cf. plant the sour, to pass counterfeit coin, and sour-planter, one who does this: from ca. 1885. Cf. shover, q.v., and snide, n. and adj. Also in swallow the sours, to conceal counterfeit money: c.:—1887 (Baumann).

sour ale. See mend like sour ale...

sour-apple tree. See tied to the sour...

sour cudgel, a. A severe beating: coll.: C.17. Withals, 1608.

sour-dook; Scottish soor dook. Buttermilk: c.:—1932 (T.B.G. Mackenzie, Fortnightly Review, Mar. 1932). Adopted from Scots.

sour on. To form a distaste or dislike to: US (1862), anglicised as a coll. ca. 1895. Daily News, 13 Nov. 1900, 'Dan soured on Castlereagh boys ... forthwith' (OED). Ex be sour towards.

sour-planter. See sour.

sour(-)puss. A morose person: adopted in 1942 from US. (John Bull, 14 Aug. 1943.) Ex US sour puss, a sour face.

sourdough. An experienced old-timer in the northwest: Can.: late C.19–20. It arose during the Yukon gold-rush and refers to the sour dough carried for use in emergency. Robert Service's Songs of a Sourdough, 1907, popularised the term; by 1910, it was coll. Leechman amends: 'The sourdough was, rather than for use in an emergency, used as a yeast in making bread. At each baking, a portion of the dough was retained and allowed to go sour or ferment. It was essential that the sour dough be kept warm and so the old timers took it to bed with them in cold weather.'

sours. See sour.

sous. See sou.

souse, n. A getting drunk: from late 1920s; † by 1950. OED Sup.—2. A drunkard: Aus.: since ca. 1925. B., 1942.—3. See sou; sell sous.

souse, v. To drink to intoxication: ca. 1920–80. (OED Sup.) Ex souse, to drench, or perhaps a back-formation from soused.

souse-crown. A fool: coll.: late C.17—early 19. (B.E., Grose.) Ex souse, a thump.

soused. Tippy: coll.: mid-C.19–20. Ex soused, soaked in liquor. Cf. sozzled.

soush. A house: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Additional s, euphonic.

sousing. Physically thorough or drastic; satisfyingly vigorous: coll.: very approx. C.17–18. Roger Boyle, Mr Anthony, 1672, at V, i, 'a soucing revenge' (Moe).

south. As the South, the South London Music Hall: London coll.: late C.19–20.—2. In dip south, to put one's hand in one's pocket for money, esp. if it is running low: Aus. and NZ: C.20. Cf.:—3. In put down south, lit., to put into one's pocket; hence, to put away safely, to bank, not to spend: late C.19—earlier 20. Cf. trouser, and:—

south, v. To put (something) into one's (esp. trouser) pocket: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1959.) Elliptical for prec., 3.

south jeopardy. The terrors of insolvency: Oxford University: ca. 1820–40. (Egan's Grose, 1823.) Ex jeopardy, danger, + some topical allusion.

South Ken, the. The Victoria and Albert Museum, London: coll.: from ca. 1905. (Margery Allingham, Sweet Danger, 1932.) Situated in South Kensington.

South of France. A dance: rhyming s.: late C.19–20.

south-paw. See southpaw.

south sea or S-S-. Any strong distilled liquor: c. of ca. 1720–50. A New Canting Dict. (1725), where also south-sea mountain, gin: c. of ca. 1721–1830 (also Grose, 1st ed., where confusingly printed as 'SOUTH SEA, mountain, gin'). Prob. ex the South Sea Bubble (1720).

South Spanier. 'A North Country ship in the Spanish trade': nautical coll.: late C.19–20. Bowen.

Southead. A score of 26: darts-players': earlier C.20. (London Evening News, 2 July 1937.) Once upon a time 2s 6d was the fare from London. Cf. bed and breakfast.

southerly buster. 'The cool, gusty wind that springs up at the end of a hot day, sometimes bringing a shower of rain (originally in Sydney)' (Wilkes): Aus.:—1850. In later C.19, also burster.—2. In Brit. nautical coll., less specifically, 'Strong wind from the south or south-west' (Granville): C.20, prob. earlier.—3. A cocktail or other mixed alcoholic drink: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Suggested by 1. southerly wind. A shortage of anything: RN lowerdeck: ca. 1850–1914. In the Naval Review of 1930 appeared some miscellaneous notes by Captain George S. MacIlwaine, RN (Sub-lieutenant, 1865; Commander, 1897), this being among them. (R/Adm. P.W. Brock.)

southpaw (earlier, hyphenated). A left-handed boxer: pugilistic: US, anglicised in: 1934, Daily Telegraph, Sep. 21, concerning Freddie Miller, 'He is, in boxing parlance, a "southpaw"'. Ex US baseball s. (—1918). An American correspondent of Mr John Moore's has sent him, ca. 1967, this convincing explanation—'On regulation baseball fields, the batter faces East, so that the afternoon sun won't be in his eyes; the pitcher, therefore, must face West, which in the case of the lefthander puts his throwing arm and hand (or "paw") on the South side of his body.'—2. Hence, a car with left-hand drive: car dealers': since mid-1940s. Woman's Own, 28 Feb. 1968.

Souths. Shares in the London & South-Western Railway: Stock Exchange coll.:—1895; † by 1930. A.J. Wilson's glossary.

soutie. English sailor, soldier or, above all, airman serving in S. Africa: S. African: 1939+. (Cyrus A. Smith, 1946.) Ex Afrikaans sout, salt (ex Dutch zout).

souvenir, n. (Gen. pl.) A shell: army: 1915–18. G.H. McKnight, English Words, 1923.—2. A French girl's illegitimate child by a 'Tommy' father: ca. 1916–39. (Petch, 1974.)

souvenir, v. To take illicitly: military: 1915; ob. (B. & P.) Ex s., to pick up as a souvenir. (Cf. the joc. S.E. senses in the OED Sup.) Wilkes gives examples of its Aus. currency up to at least 1955.

sov. A sovereign: coll.: 1850, New Monthly Magazine, 'As to the purse, there weren't above three or four sovs in it.' Also half-sov. (OED.) Since the departure of the coin as currency, it denoted a £1 note (G.F. Newman, The Gwonor, 1977).

sovereign, for a. Assuredly; 'I'd bet on it': coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

sovereign's not in it, a. A nautical c.p. (—1909) applied to a person with jaundice. Ex the sufferer's dark yellow. Ware. Sovereign's parade, the. The quarterdeck [officers] of a man-of-war in' C.18—early 19: RN. Bowen.

sow, n. See David's sow; grease a fat sow.

sow, v. To lay (mines): army coll.: 1940–5. P-G-R.

sow-belly. Salt pork: Services': later C.19—early 20. In Can., any pork.

sow potatoes (or scarlet-runners, etc.) on his neck, you could or might. A lower classes' c.p. (—1887; ob.) applied to a man with a dirty neck. Baumann.

sowar. An Indian cavalryman: Regular Army coll.: late C.19–20. (B. & P.) By the extension of a Hindustani word. Opp. Sepoy, q.v.

sowcar. A term of abuse: army: late C.19—earlier 20. Ex Hindustani sahukar, a native banker, esp. one doing business on a large scale. Some Hindu bankers are alleged to be misers, hence its use thus.

sowr. To beat severely: c.: ca. 1720–50. (A New Canting Dict., 1725.)? = sour.

sow's baby. A sucking pig: late C.17–20. B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.—2. Sixpence: c.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Because smaller than a hog (a shilling).

sow's ear. In come sailing in a sow's ear, a coll. of ca. 1670–1770 (Ray, Fuller). Apperson does not explain the phrase; ? = to prosper.—2. In make a sow's ear (of), to blunder, to mess something up: since ca. 1946. Ex the proverb 'you can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear'. Cf. synon. var. make a pig's ear of.

sozzled; occ. (rare after ca. 1920) sozzled; rarely soseled (virtually † in C.20). Topsy: late C.19–20. 'Pomes' Marshall, 1897, 'She was thick in the clear,/Fairly sosselled on beer'; Norah James in Sleeveless Errand, 1929 (sozzled). Prob. ex dial. sozzle, to mix in a sloppy manner (OED; EDD): cf. dial. sozzly, sloppy, wet, and, more significantly, US sozzle, to render moist (Thornton).

space-pusher. An advertisement-cannasser working on a periodical: from ca. 1925.

spaced. Short for next, 1 and 2: adopted, ca. 1970, ex US.

spaced out. 'Very high on a hallucinogen or psychedelic' (Janssen, 1968): drugs world: adopted, latish 1960s, ex US. 'Spaced out of her mind on hash and speed' (A. Stuart, The Bikers, 1971). Loosely, exhilarated on any drug. Cf. spacy.—2. Hence, unrealistic, tending to theoretical analysis and exposition, but based upon insufficient data and a lack of understanding and sympathy: among young people: adopted, ca. 1971, ex US. 'Noted among clients of a pop festival on Exmoor in June 1976. "What did the participants think of the Melchett Report on pop festivals?"—"Just spaced out"' (R.S., citing Observer, 13 June 1976).

spacers. '[He]'s a walking cumcupia of drugs; downers and lifters and speeders and freaked-out spacers' (Alex Stuart, The Bikers, 1971): drugs world: adopted, late 1960s, ex US. Ex prec., 1.

spaces: in the wide open spaces; occ. the vast open spaces. This once serious phrase has, since ca. 1925 >, for the irreverent, something of a derisory c.p. (Cf. Collinson, p. 89.)

spacy. Under the influence of narcotic drug: drugs world: since late 1970s; prob. adopted ex US. Ex spaced out, 1. 'Some spacy kid ... appeared stoned on American TV' (Lois Wingerson, New Scientist, 7 Aug. 1980).

spad. A type of single-seater biplane: RFC/RAF coll.: 1916–18. (F. & G.) Ex the initials of the Société pour Aviation et ses Dérivés.

spade. A Negro: low: from ca. 1920. Since ca. 1954, it has mostly designated a West Indian. Ex the colour of the card suit; Cf. 'as black as the ace of spades'.—2. In go for a walk with a spade; take a spade for a walk: to defecate: army in N. Africa: WW2. Ex the earthing-over in a latrineless land. P-G-R.

spadge. To walk: Christ's Hospital (School): since ca. 1780. Ex L. spatiare. (Marples.) Whence, as n., an affected or mincing manner of walking: id.: from ca. 1880.

spadger. A sparrow: dial. (recorded, 1862, as spadger-pie) >, ca. 1880, coll. (orig. provincial). Occ. adj. By dial. corruption rather than fanciful change. Perhaps. cf. Ger. Spatz, a sparrow.

spag. 'Plastic tubing used to insulate wire in electronic equipment' (B.P.): radio s., esp. Aus.: since late 1950s. Ex spaggetti—from the resemblance.—2. (Also Spaggie.) An Italian: Aus. derogatory: since early 1960s. (Wilkes.) Abbr. spaggetti, the Italian dish.—3. A spastic; hence, an idiot, foolish person: E. Midlands schoolboys' var. of spaz: later 1970s. Derivatives: spag-chariot; occ. spagmobile, a wheelchair. (D. & R. McPheely, 1978.) See spastic. (P.B.)

spaggers; loosely spraggers. Spaghetti: smart young set: ca. 1955–60. (Gilderdale, 2.) The 'OXFORD -ER(S)'. See spag, 2.

Spaghetti Junction. The convoluted motorway interchange at Gravelly Hill, near Birmingham, was already known by this nickname in late 1971, even before it opened for use later in 1972. Drive: AA Motorists' Magazine, New Year 1972 (P.B.)

spaghetti Western. 'A western (cowboy film about the American West) produced by the Italian movie industry' (Barnhart): coll.: adopted ex US s. early 1970s; also in Aus. (B.P.).

spalpeen. A low fellow; a mean one; a scamp or rascal: Anglo-Irish coll. >, ca. 1905. S.E.: 1815, Maria Edgeworth, 'The spalpeen! turned into a buckeen, that would be a squireen,—but can't,' neatly illustrative of the Celtic diminutive suffix -een (properly, in); the radical is of uncertain meaning. The imm. source is S.E. spalpeen, a casual farm labourer.—2. Hence, a youngster, esp. a boy: coll.: 1891 (Bram Stoker: OED); by 1920, virtually S.E.

spam can. Midland Region railwaymen's derogatory term for Southern Region 4–6–2 express passenger locomotives of the 'West Country' class: mid-C.20.—2. 0–6–0 Class 'Q' 'austerity' freight locomotive: railwaymen's: WW2—ca. 1968. Like 1, ex shape; also called a biscuit-box, (Both senses from Clive Hardy, of Derby, 1979.) 'Spam, 1939 [from initial and final letters of spiced ham.] Proprietary name for a type of tinned meat' (SOD Sup.).—3. Derogatory term among pilots of veteran, fabric-covered aircraft, e.g. D.H. Tiger Moth, for the more modern, enclosed, all-metal type of light aircraft: flying clubs': since ca. 1970. (Mrs Barbara Huston, 1979.)

spam medal. RN version of Naffy gong, q.v.

spandau or S-. Generic for the latrines at Ruhleben internment camp, 1914–18. Ex the 'mushroom' munition-town of Spandau.

spandule. A gremlin that—but only at 9,999 feet—enjoys being tangled up with the air-screws: RAF: 1940–5. See GREMLIN, in Appendix.

spang. Entirely; exactly; fair (e.g. in the centre); straight and with impetus: coll.: C.20, mostly Colonial. Ex US right spang (1843), wholly, exactly, fair (e.g. in the centre), ex spang, irresistibly or with an impetus, a spring, a smack, itself ex Scottish and Northern spang, to leap, bound. Thornton; EDD.

spange, adj. and, occ., adv. New; dressy, smart: R.M.A., Woolwich: from ca. 1880. 'A spange uniform', a new one; 'You look spange enough.' (F. & H.) Perhaps ex Northern dial. spanged, variegated.

spangle. A seven-shilling piece: c.:—1811; † by 1903. (Lex. Bal.; Egan's Grose.) Ex its brightness.—2. A sovereign: theatrical: ca. 1860–1905. Ware.—3. An acrobat: circus coll.: late C.19–20. (C.B. Cochran, Showman Looks On, 1945.) Cf. spangle-guts, shaker. A harlequin: theatrical: from ca. 1870. Ex spangled costume.

Spanglish. For some examples of mixed Spanish and English, see Appendix.

Spaniard. Gen. pl. 'Brighton fishing boats, from a colony of Spanish fishermen in that town' (Bowen): nautical: C.19.

Spanish (or s); gen. the S. Money; esp. ready money, and again esp., in coin: from ca. 1786; ob. Grose, 2nd ed.; Barham, 1837, 'Bar its synonyms Spanish, blunt, stumpy and rowdy.' Elliptical for Spanish coin or gold.—2. A (large) Spanish onion: (lower-class) coll.: mid-C.19–20. B. & L.—3. See TAVERN TERMS, §3c, in Appendix.

Spanish, adj. As a pej.; common in coll. and s. ca. 1570–1750 and by no means rare until well on into C.19. Ex commercial and naval rivalry (cf. Dutch, q.v.). See ensuing terms and, esp., 'Offensive Nationality' in my Words!—2. For walk Spanish, to desert one's ship, see chalks.

Spanish coin. 'Fair words, and compliments' (Grose, 1st ed.): ca. 1780–1850. Ultimately ex Spanish courtesy derided; imfr. ex Spanish money.

Spanish fag(g)ot. The sun: 1785 (Grose); † by 1850. Ex heretic-burnings.

Spanish fly. Cantharides—extremely potent aphrodisiac, taken in food or drink: C.19–20; coll. until ca. 1910, then S.E.

Spanish football. See blue fever.

Spanish gout; needle; pox. Syphilis: resp. late C.17–early 19 (B.E.); Grose, 3rd ed.; early C.19; C.17–early 19. French, Italian, similarly used.

Spanish guitar. A cigar: rhyming s.: late C.19–20. Wilfred Granville, A Dictionary of Theatrical Terms, 1952.

Spanish mare, ride the. To sit astride a beam, guys loosed, sea rough, as a punishment: nautical: ca. 1840–80. F. & H.

Spanish money. 'Fair Words and Compliments' (B.E.): coll.: late C.17–18. Cf. S. coin.

Spanish padlock. 'A kind of girdle contrived by jealous husbands of that nation, to secure the chastity of their wives' (Grose, 2nd ed.): (prob.) C.16–mid-19.

Spanish pennants. See Maltese lace.

Spanish pike. A needle: coll.: 1624, Ford, 'A French Gentleman that trays a Spanish pike, a Tailor'; † by 1700.

Spanish plague. Building: dial. and coll.: late C.17–mid-18. Ray.

Spanish pox. See Spanish gout.

Spanish trumpeter; also King of Spain's trumpeter. An ass braying: ca. 1780–1850. (Grose, 1st ed.) The clue is Don Key.

Spanish worm. A nail met in a board while sawing: carpenters' coll.:—1785; † by 1860. (Grose, 1st ed.) Ex shape.

spanjer; usu. in pl. 'Spanjers. Gremlins which live above 20,000 feet—anti-fighter types!' (H. & P.): RAF: ca. 1940–5. Prob. ex dial. spang, 'with impetus, with a smack' (itself ex spang, 'to heap'); see spang, and cf. spandule.

spank, n. A resounding blow, esp. with the open hand: coll. and dial.: from ca. 1780. Grose, 1st ed.; in cricket, 1873 (Lewis). Ex spank, v., 1.—2. Hence, the sound so caused: coll. and dial.: 1833 (H. Scott: OED).—3. A robbery effected by breaking a window-pane: c.: ca. 1810–50. Hence spon the spank, robbing thus. (Vaux.) Cf. spank a glaze.—4. In up the spank, at—or, to—the pawnbrokers': East Enders': from ca. 1870. (Nevinson, 1895.) Perhaps ex up the spout on bank.—5. See spanks.

spank, v. To smack, slap, with the open hand: coll. (—1727, N. Bailey) and dial. Echoic (cf. spang)—2. Hence, to crack (a whip): coll. (rare and ob.): 1834 (M. Scott: OED).—3. To bring down, insert, slappingly: coll. and dial., mainly the latter: 1880, Tennyson, 'An 'e spanks 'is 'and into mine'.—4. To rob (a place) by breaking a window-pane (spanking a glaze is the c. term): c.:—1812 (Vaux). Cf. spank, n., 3.—5. V.i., to fall, drop, with a smack: coll.: 1800, Hurdis, 'The sullen shower ... on the ... pavement spanks' (OED); slightly ob.—6. V.i., of a boat pounding the water as it sails along: coll.: C.19–20. Basil Hall, 1st series, 1831, p. 60.—[The next group, and prob. sense 6, derive ultimately ex spank, to slap, to make a spanking sound, etc., influenced by dial. spang (see spang above).]—7. To move quickly and briskly; to ride, drive, smartly or stylishly at a smart trot or a graceful canter: dial. (—1807) >, by 1811, coll. Lex Bal.: Thackeray, 1860, 'A gentleman in a natty gig, with a high-trotting horse, came spanking towards us.' Frequently with along (first, 1825, in dial.); and esp. of a ship bowling along.—8. Hence, v.t., to drive (horse) with stylish speed: coll.: 1825 (Westmacott:

OED); 1840, Thackeray, 'How knowingly did he spank the horses along.'

spank, adv. With a smack: coll.: 1810 (OED); rare, ob. Ex spank, v., 5.

spank a (or the) glaze. To break a window with the fist: c.:—1839 (Brandon). See also glaze, 1; spank, n., 3, and v., 4. spank along. See spank, v., 7.

spank away. (Of a ship) to travel fast: RN coll.: C.19. Wm Maginn, Tales of Military Life, 1829—see quot'n at bone in the mouth.

spanker. A gold coin; gen. in pl. as = ready money, coin: prob. c. (1663, Cowley) >, ca. 1730, s.; † by 1830. (Grose, 1st ed.) Prob. ex † dial. spank, to sparkle. Cf. spanks, q.v.—2. Any thing or person unusually fine, large, or excellent: coll. and dial.: 1751, Smollett (concerning 'a buxom wench'), 'Sblood, ... to turn me adrift in the dark with such a spanker.' Ex spanking, adj., 1, q.v.—3. Hence, a resounding blow or slap: coll.: 1772, Bridges; Meredith, 1894, 'A spanker on the nob' (OED); in cricket, 1877 (Lewis).—4. A horse that travels with stylish speed: coll. and dial.: 1814 (Scott: EDD). Ex spank, to trot (etc.) smartly.

spanker, adj. Synon. with spanking, adj., 1. Roger Boyle, Guzman, 1669, at I, i (Moe).

spanking. A (good) beating, esp. with the open hand: coll. and dial.: mid-C.20. (H., 1st ed.) Ex spank, v., 1.

spanking, ppl adj. Very large, fine, smart, showy; excellent: coll. and dial.: from early Restoration days. Fanshawe, ca. 1666; Bridges, 1772, 'A table ... a spanking dish.' Esp. of girls (—1707): cf. spanker, 2, q.v.—2. Hence, though influenced by the v. of motion, (of a horse) rapidly and smartly moving: coll. and dial.: 1738 (OED).—3. Hence, (of persons) dashing: coll.: C.19–20.—4. (Of pace) rapid; esp. smartly and vigorously rapid: coll.: 1857, T. Hughes, 'The wheelers in a spanking trot, and leaders cantering,' (OED).

spanking, adv. Very: coll.:—1887. Baumann, 'A spanking fine dinner.' Ex dial.

spankingly. Rapidly; esp. with smart rapidity: coll.: C.19–20.

spanks. Coin (gold or silver): c.: ca. 1720–1840 (A New Canting Dict., 1725.) Ex spanker, 1.

spanky. Smart; showily smart: ca. 1870–1935. Ex spanking, adj., 1.

spanners. A girl whose appearance is sexually exciting: Aus.: since ca. 1950. A spanner tightens nuts; in s., nuts = testicles.

spar. A dispute: coll.: 1836 (OED). Ex spar, a boxing-match.

sparagrass. See sparrow(-)grass.

Sparagras, the. That express freight train which 'takes Asparagus during the Season from Worcester to Crewe': railwaymen's: from ca. 1905. (Daily Telegraph, 15 Aug. 1936.) Cf. the Spud.

spare, adj. Idle; loafing; low: from ca. 1919. (Gilt Kid, 1936.) Ex look spare, 'To be idle: not engaged on any particular job' (F. & G.); army: WW1. cf. dial. spare, dilatory.—2. Absent, esp. without leave, as in 'The Old Man turned down my compassionate, so I went spare': army: 1939+.—3. Angry, as in 'When the sarnt sees this, he'll go fucking spare': army: since ca. 1940.—4. Hence, crazy; (almost) mad: mostly teenagers': since late 1950s. 'They send me spare' = they drive me crazy.—5. See bit of spare; go spare; going spare.

spare a rub! Oblige me with some!; after you with it!: tailors' c.p.: from ca. 1860. B. & L.

spare boy. Treacle; golden syrup: Aus., mostly rural: since ca. 1920. B., 1943.

spare file. A man with no definite job to do: army: WW2. (P-G-R.) The file of 'rank and file'.

spare general. An overbearing or conceited superior below the rank of general: sarcastic military coll.: from 1915. (F. & G.) Cf. spare parts, q.v.

spare me days! 'A pious ejaculation' (C.J. Dennis): Aus. coll.: C.20.

spare parts. A person either incompetent or unsuitable: military: from 1915. (F. & G.) I.e. not actually in use.

spare prick. A useless fellow: Services', orig. army: since 1939. It shortens spare prick at a wedding, ex the phrase standing about like a . . . May be used elliptically and allusively, as in, 'Wherever we went, I continued to stand out like a spare prick' (Laurie Taylor, New Society, 4 Nov. 1982, p.205). Cf. spare wank.

spare tyre. A roll of fat around one's middle: coll.: since late 1940s. Woman's Realm, 11 Mar. 1967.

spare whank (or wank). A spare man; (among gunners) a spare gunner: army: since ca. 1930. See wank, and cf. spare prick.

spark, n. A diamond: c.:—1874 (H., 5th ed.) Ex S.E. spark, orig. diamond spark, a small diamond. Cf. sparkle, 1, and sparkler, 2.—2. In bright spark, ironic for a dull fellow: coll. verging on S.E.: late C.19–20. Cf. S.E. gallant spark; ex spark, a beau, via gay spark.—3. In have a spark, to be a youth, or man, of spirit: Conway cadets': from before 1890. (John Masefield, The Conway, 1933.) Ex the cliché, have no spark of courage. Contrast spark in (one's) throat.

spark, v. To watch closely: Aus. c.:—1901. ? ex sparkler, 1.—2. To send a wireless message to (ship or person): nautical and wireless operators': since ca. 1920. Frank Shaw, Atlantic Murder, 1932, 'If Scotland Yard . . . spark a ship that wanted people are aboard'.—3. To court (a girl): Can.: earlier C.20. (Leechman.) Adopted ex US.—4. To react to a stimulus, to respond: coll.: since ca. 1955. Ex electricity. (P.B.)

spark in (one's) throat, have a. To have a constant thirst: 1785 (Grose); but adumbrated in Scots ca. 1720. Ex the proverbial the smith had always a spark in his throat (Ray, 1678); cf. Spurgeon, 1880, 'He is not a blacksmith but he has a spark in his throat.'

spark out; gen. pass spark out. Utterly; to become unconscious through liquor, to faint, to die: pugilistic: C.20 (Gilt Kid, 1936.) Ex dial. spark out, utterly extinguished (EDD), which has itself, in later C.20, > coll. (P.B.) See sparkers.

spark prop. A diamond breast-pin: c.: from the middle or late 1870s. Ex spark n., 2.

sparkler. A wireless-telegraphist rating: RN: C.20. (Granville.) Cf. sparks, 1.

sparkers. 'Unconscious or deeply asleep: "She was sparkers"' (Powis, 1977). By 'OXFORD-ERS' on the spark of spark out. (P.B.) sparkle. A diamond: low:—1923 (Manchon). Prob. ex a confusion of spark, n., 2, and sparkler, 2: for there is no connexion with the S.E. sparkle (a diamond) of a late C.15—early 18 (OED).—2. Hence (?), generic for jewellery: c.:—1935 (David Hume).

sparkle up. To hasten; be quick: proletarian: from ca. 1865; ob. B. & L.

sparkler. An electric train: railwaymen's: since ca. 1939. (Railway, 2nd.) Ex the sparks emitted from the live rails.

sparklers (rare in sing.). Bright eyes: mid-C.18–20: S.E. until 1850, then coll.; in C.20, s. In pugilistic s. of ca. 1805–60, any sort of eye, as in Boxiana, III, 1821, 'One of his sparklers got a little damaged'.—2. Sparkling gems; esp., diamonds: since ca. 1820: S.E. until mid-C.19, then coll.; in C.20, virtually s. Tempest, 1950, writes, 'Obsolete word once used for diamonds, which today are mostly referred to as ice'; but Powis, 1977, lists it without qualification as 'diamonds'.—3. Flares from enemy aircraft: RN: WW2. (P-G-R.) Ironic on the children's fireworks (P.B.).

sparko. Later C.20 coll. var. of sparkers. See quot'n at inflecture.—2. Var. of next, 1. Taffrail, Carry On!, 1916.

sparks. A nickname, mostly in vocative, for a wireless operator: Services': since ca. 1916. ('Taffrail', 1917.) Ex electric sparks.—2. The torpedo officer: RN: from ca. 1915. Bowen.—3. The X-ray department: medical students':—1933 (Slang, p. 193).—4. Precious stones: c.: C.20. Manchon, 1923; Leach, 1933.—5. (Ex 1.) Electrical apparatus repairer in REME: army: 1943+.—6. An electrician: builders': since ca. 1945.—7. In get the sparks, to set the aim of a machine-gun on an enemy trench after dark 'by firing into the wire-entanglement and noting where the sparks fly off as the bullets cut the wire': machine-gunners' coll.: 1915–18. F & G.

Sparks Theory, the; the Stinks Theory. The theories that nerve impulses are transmitted electrically or (Stinks) chemically: medical coll.: since ca. 1940. (B.P.)

sparky, n. A wireless operator: Services: since ca. 1918. Cf. sparkler, and sparks, 1.

sparm-fish. A sperm-whale: nautical coll.:—1887 (Baumann).

sparrer. A boxer: coll.: 1814, 'Rival sparrers', (OED).—2. Hence, from ca. 1860, a sparring partner: coll. This is virtually the sense in Thackeray and Shaw (OED).—3. (Properly sparrow.) A find in a dust-bin, e.g., silver spoon or thimble: dustmen's:—1895 (Ware). Cf. sparrow, 1.

sparring bloke. A pugilist: mid-C.19–20: c. >, ca. 1880, low. B. & L.

sparring partner, (one's). One's companion or friend: coll.: C.20. Ex pugilism. Wife; occ., husband: joc. domestic coll.: late C.19–20.

sparrow. 'A small weedy fellow' (B., 1942): Aus.: C.20.—2. As Sparrow, the ship Spero: nautical, a Hobson-Jobson nickname: C.19. Ware.—3. See sparrer, 3; sparrows; hairy canary.

sparrow-bill maker. A workman that 'forges wrought-iron nails from iron rod' (Evening News, 28 Sep. 1955): industrial s. (C.20) > industrial coll. >, by 1945 at latest, official j.

sparrow-catching, n. Walking the streets in search of men: low: from ca. 1880.

sparrow-cheater. 'In the area of the City [in London] a corps of small boys, known popularly as "sparrow-cheaters", dealt with the [horse-dung] by means of dustpans and brushes, dodging in and out of the traffic' (William Golant, quoting the Atlee papers, ca. 1900, in the Listener, 3 Jan. 1981). Cf. sparrow-starver, and that's for the birds.

sparrow-crow, at. A joc. Aus. euph. for sparrow-fart, 2: C.20. (Baker.) Cf. sparrow's cough.

sparrow-fart (or solid). A person of no consequence; a 'twerp': Anglo-Irish: C.20. James Joyce, Ulysses, 1922, 'Miss This Miss That Miss Theother lot of sparrowfarts skitting around talkin about politics they know as much about as my backside'.—2. In at sparrow-fart, at daybreak: dial. >, ca. 1910, coll.: popularised by WW1. Cf. prec., and sparrow's cough.

sparrow(-)grass; sparagrass. Asparagus: mid-C.17–20: S.E. until early C.19, then dial. and coll.; by 1870, low coll. or, rather, sol. 'Cuthbert Bede', in 1865, 'I have heard the word sparrow-grass from the lips of a real Lady—but then she was in her seventies' (OED).

sparrow-mouthed. (Of a person) having a large mouth: lower-class coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

sparrow-starver. A collector of dung from off the streets: lower classes':—1923 (Ibid.). Cf. sparrow-cheater.

sparrers. (Rare in sing.) Beer, or beer-money, given to dustmen: 1879 (OED). Perhaps ex the colour of the birds and these men [P.B.: or the insignificance of the amount given?]. Still current for 'perks' among dustmen a century later.—2. A milkman's secret customers: milkmen's:—1901 (OED). Why?

sparrow's cough, at. At dawn: a polite Eng. var. of 'at sparrow-fart': since late 1930s. Jane Gordon, Married to Charles, 1950.

sparrow's knee-caps. Applied to, e.g., a small boy's almost non-existent arm muscles: coll.: C.20. Ex the parody of The Village Blacksmith: 'The muscles of his brawny arms stood out like—sparrow's kneecaps!' (P.B.)

sparrow's ticket, (e.g.) come in on a. To gain an illicitly free admission to a match, contest, competition, show, what-have-you: Aus.: C.20. Baker.

spasm. The verse of a song, stanza of a poem: joc. coll.: late C.19–20. Ex stanza + the agony caused by much amateur singing.

spassiba! Thanks!: military coll. in N. Russia in 1918–19. (F. & G.) Direct ex Russian.

spastic, n. and adj. 'An unkind and utterly tasteless epithet for a maladroter or his clumsiness. Favoured by the more animal type of drill instructor. But cf., I suppose, the earlier synon. use of Cretin' (P.B., 1974): Services: since mid-1950s. Cf. spag, spaz, qq.v. But see also the quot'n at Sloane Ranger for evidence of wider usage.

spat, a quarrel, a smart blow, a smacking sound,—all C.19–20,—is, when not US, rather dial. than coll.—2. See spats.

spat, v. To cane: Public Schools': from ca. 1910. (Francis Beeding, Take it Crooked, 1932.) Ex prec., 1.

spatch(-)cock. A fowl killed, dressed and either grilled or broiled at short notice: orig. (—1785) Anglo-Irish, but from ca. 1850 mainly Anglo-Indian: coll. >, ca. 1860, S.E. (Grose, 1st ed.; R.F. Burton, Goa, 1851: OED) Either abbr. dispatch-cock, or corrupted spitchcock (? spit-cock): W.

spatch(-)cock, v. To insert, interpolate: orig. military coll. >, almost imm., gen. S.E.: 1901, General Redvers Buller, The Times, 11 Oct., 'I therefore spatchcocked into the middle of that telegram a sentence in which I suggested it would be necessary to surrender.' Ex the n.—2. Hence, to modify by interpolation: military coll. >, by 1902, gen. S.E.: 1901, 24 Oct.; 1901, 16 Nov., The Speaker, 'Generals spatchcock telegrams and receive dismissal' (OED).

spats. Those stream-lined covers over landing-wheels which are in aircraft designed to reduce air-resistance: aviators': from 1934. (Daily Telegraph, 9 Feb. 1935.) 'If the wheels of a "spatted" plane do not retract, it is said to have permanent "spats"' (H. & P.): RAF: since ca. 1935.—2. Slabs of bread and butter to assuage hunger about 4 p.m.: Marlborough College: C.20.—3. Hence, butter: Public and Grammar Schools': later C.20. (Lambert & Millham, Sunday Times, 1 Sep. 1968.) Prob. influenced by S.E. pats of butter.

spatfed. See prec., 1.

spatter. To strike (somebody); 'make a mess' of him: low: since ca. 1945. (Angus Wilson, Anglo-Saxon Attitudes, 1956.) Ex S.E.

spawny. (Very) lucky: RAF: since ca. 1930. Jackson. 'Thus, "You're spawny to get your promotion so soon."' Perhaps ex the near-cliché, the best ever spawmed. P.B.: in later C.20, also army. Usu. in phrase spawny git, and envious.

spaz(z). Schoolboys' var. of spastic, q.v. (Christopher Parsons, 1977; New Society, 31 Jan. 1980.) Cf. spag.

speak, n. Esp. in make a (gen. good or rum) speak, to make a (gen. good) haul, get a (good) 'swag': c.—1811 (Lex. Bal.); † by 1860. Ex speak to, q.v.

speak, v. To pay court: lower classes':—1909 (Ware).—2. 'The ship now began to speak, as it is termed... the breeze was beginning to tell' (Basil Hall, 1st series, 1831, p. 162); RN: C.19.—3. See cat speak; can I speak to you?; not to speak to.

speak a little louder — I'm deaf in that ear. I was wrong; but let's say no more about it: c.p.: ca. 1918–25. (R.S., 1975.)

speak at the mouth. To say one's say: ca. 1870–1910. Ex N. Country dial.

speak brown to-morrow. To get sunburnt: Cockney: 1877–ca. 1900. (Ware.) Cf. taste the sun.

speak-easy (or solid). A shop or café where liquor is illicitly sold: US (late 1880s), anglicised by 1925. (OED Sup.). One speaks softly in ordering it. Cf. speak-softly shop.

speak by the card. To speak precisely, most accurately: coll.: C.17–20; S.E. in C.19–20. Shakespeare in Hamlet, 'We must speak by the card, or equivocation will undo us.'

speak fancy waistcoats. To speak with the utmost accuracy: RN: C.20. Granville.

speak French. (Of a horse,) to be an excellent steeplechaser: turf:—1923 (Manchon).

speak holiday. To use choice English: coll.: late C.16–17. Shakespeare.

speak in (someone's) knuckle. To interrupt someone's conversation or story: N. Country: C.20. Ex the game of marbles, where the boy about to shoot may be 'advised' to do this or that and say 'I wish you wouldn't speak in my knuckle.'

speak like a book. To talk excellent sense: informatively, accurately: coll.; from ca. 1840; prob. from US, where 'talk like a book' occurs as early as 1829. Cf. like a halfpenny book.

speak like a mouse in cheese. I.e. faintly; indistinctly: proverbial coll.: late C.16—early 20.

speak proper. To speak Standard Received English: var. of talk proper, q.v.

speak-softly shop. A smuggler's house: c. or low:—1823 (Bee); † by 1890. Cf. speak-easy.

speak the same language. To have the same sort of upbringing, hence the same general ideas: coll.: since ca. 1930. P-C-R.

speak to. To rob (person, place); to steal: c.: 1799 (OED); 1812, Vaux; † by 1860. A var. of speak with, q.v.—2. See spoke, or spoken, to.

speak up Brown (or Ginger) (— you're through, i.e. on an imaginary telephone)! A low c.p. comment on another's loud fart: since early 1930s. Cf. good evening Vicar! and paste up...!

speak white. 'Boorish English-speaking people sometimes instruct French Canadians, speaking French, to "speak white"' (i.e. English): Can.: C.20. Dr Leechman cites Maclean's Magazine, 2 Nov. 1963.

speak with. C. of ca. 1720–1810, as in A New Canting Dict., 1725, 'I will never speak with any thing but Wedge or Cloy, I'll never steal, or—the basic sense—have to do with—' a nuance † by 1785—'any thing but Plate, or Money'; Grose, 1st ed. (to rob, steal). Cf. speak to, 1.

speakeasy. See speak-easy.

speakers. Rare outside of on speakers, on speaking terms (with someone): since ca. 1950. (Jessica Mitford, Hons and Rebels, 1960.) By the 'OXFORD -ER(s)' speakie. Ephemeral coll. term for a motion picture with soundtrack, a 'talkie': 1928–9. (OED Sup.) Cf. audie.

speaking to the butcher. See I'm speaking to the butcher—not the block.

speaky. Booty; capture of booty: c.:—1887 (Baumann). Ex speak; n.; see speak to.

spear, n. In get the spear, 'to be sacked from a job' (Wilkes): Aus.: C.20. Hence give the spear, to dismiss (B., 1959), an elab. of next.—2. See hold a spear.

spear, v. To dismiss: Aus.:—1911 (Wilkes cites S. Rudd, The Dashwoods).—2. To throw (someone) out of a shop, a pub, etc.: Aus. c. and low, > gen s.: since early C.20. See AUSTRALIAN UNDERWORLD, in Appendix.

spear a job. To obtain employment: Aus.: since early C.20. Baker.

spear-carrier. A 'walk-on' part in a play, with no words to speak: actors' coll.: C.20. (Mrs C. Raab.)

spear flounders. To conduct an orchestra: Aus.: since ca. 1925. Baker, 'Whence, "flounder-spearings".'

Spearmen. See Delhi Spearmen.

spec. A commercial venture: orig. (1794) US; adopted ca. 1820 as s. >, ca. 1890, coll. (Bee, 1823.) Abbr. speculation. cf. sense 5.—2. Hence, 'a lottery, conducted on principles more or less honest, the prize to be awarded according to the performance of certain horses' (J. Greenwood, 1869): racing (mostly London): ca. 1850–65.—3. A good or enjoyable thing or a pleasant occasion: nautical, from early C.19; by 1891, Winchester s. 'The ship's all alive... and all volunteer... To join in the spre and the spec' (W.N. Glascock, The Naval Sketch-Book, 2nd series, 1834, I, 271: Moe). Perhaps ex 'special occasion'. Hence, at Winchester, on spec = on a pleasant occasion or outing (Wrench, 1891). See also speck, n., 2.

—4. As the Spec, the Speculative Society: Edinburgh advo-cases' coll.: mid-C.18–20.—5. In on spec, on chance; as or at, a risk; esp. on the chance of getting something or of making a profit: 1832 (Marryat: OED): s. >, ca. 1890, coll. Ex 1.—6. See specs, 2.

speccing on (one's) fez. Expecting to obtain one's cap: Harrow: late C.19–20. (Lunn.) Cf. speck, v.

speci. Abbr. specimen: s. (—1923) rather than coll., for it is infelicitous. (Manchon.) Cf. spess.

special, v. To act as a special nurse to (a person): nurses' coll.: from ca. 1910. 'She came to special me.' By abbr.

special, adv. In a special way; especially, particularly: C.14–20: S.E. until early C.19, then coll. (in C.20, almost sol.). Helps, 1851, 'A case came on rather unexpectedly... and I was sent for "special" as we say' (OED).

Special Branch again!, the. 'Ironic phrase used when an eccentrically dressed or filthy person is seen' (Powis): later C.20.

speculate. To invest money, in the hope of bringing good luck: Romanies', hence a few tramps', s.: since ca. 1930. (Robert M. Dawson.) Ex speculate.

specimen. A person: from middle 1850s: derogatory, coll. if with bright, poor, etc., s. if alone. Thoreau, 1854, 'There were some curious specimens among my visitors' (OED). Ex such phrases as specimens of the new spirit abroad, via such as strange specimen of the human race (Dickens, 1837). Cf. spess, q.v.

speck, n. A place; a position: Liverpool: late C.19–20. Ex S.E. speck, a spot. Hence you're only in the meg specks, lit. the halfpenny seats (cf. meg, n., 2)—often used fig., connoting 'You are inferior in some respect, e.g. your school': Liverpool c.p.: C.20. (Frank Shaw.)—2. 'A parade on shore for a special occasion' (J.R. West, concerning the TS Indefatigable, 1909): RN training ships: late C.19—early 20. (Peppitt.) P.B.: 'A shortening of spectacle', wrote E.P., 1977—but more prob. synon. with spec, 3, q.v.—3. As the Speck, Tasmania: Aus. Continentals': C.20. Because Tasmania is so small compared with Australia.

speck, v. To exult; to show oneself confident of a victory: at certain Public Schools, esp. at Shrewsbury: late C.19–20. Desmond Coke, The House Prefect, 1908, 'Look at the joy of the beastly County [players]! "They're specking horribly," the watchers say.' Ex expect.—2. To search for gold after rain. Whence, "specking" (B., 1942): Aus. miners': late C.19–20. Rain-erosion may uncover a lode, or a few specks of alluvial gold.—3. (V.t.) To discover thus: Aus. miners': C.20. (K.S. Prichard, 'Charley Beck... had specked a thirty-ounce slug, several smaller ones, and struck a reef': Mrs Jinney's Shroud' in Kiss on the Lips, 1952.) P.B.: might not senses 2 and 3 be ex a slovening of prospect (for gold)?

specked wiper. A coloured handkerchief: c.: ca. 1690–1890. B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.

specking. See speck, v., 2.

speckle-belly (or S.). A Nonconformist, a Dissenter: provincial s.:—1874; slightly ob. by 1930. H., 5th ed., 'A term used in Worcester and the North, though the etymology seems unknown in either place.' Perhaps ex the tendency of the lower middle class to wear coloured waistcoats: cf. specked wiper, q.v.

speckled. Of a mixed nature, appearance, character, merit; motley: coll.: 1845, S. Judd, 'It was a singularly... speckled group' (of persons). OED.—2. 'Demoted': Rugby: since ca. 1916. (Marples.) To revert to a speckled straw hat.

speckled potato. A spectator: early C.20. A joc. perversion.

speckled wipe. Early C.19 var. of specked wiper. Egan's Grose.

specks. (App. never in singular.) Damaged oranges: costers' coll.: 1851 (Mayhew); H., 1st ed. Ex the markings caused by mildew, etc. Hence, any marked fruit: id. (R. Samuel, East End Underworld, 1981).

specs (earlier, specks). Spectacles for the sight: dial. (orig. and mainly specks: 1807, Hogg) >, ca. 1820, coll., and mainly specs (Egan, Life in London, 1821). Also, later, a pair of specs. Barham, 1837, 'He wore green specs with a tortoise-shell rim'; R.D. Blackmore, 1882, 'Must have my thick specks' (OED).—2. Specifications; detailed requirement: coll.: since mid-C.20. Also sing., as in job spec, the details of a post. (P.B.) spectacles. (Cf. prec., 1, q.v.) Two scores of 0 by a batsman in the one match: cricket coll. >, ca. 1910, S.E.: 1865, Wanostrocht, 'The ominous "spectacles" have been worn by the best sighted men'; 1885, P.M. Thornton; 1898, Giffen; W.J. Lewis, 1934. Abbr. pair of spectacles, same meaning; 1862. Lewis records the rare v., be spectacles, as early as 1854. Ex '0—0' in statistics.

spectacles-seat. The nose: 1895 (Meredith, in The Amazing Marriage: OED); ob. by 1930.

speech. 'A tip or wrinkle on any subject. On the turf a man will wait... until he "gets the speech", as to whether [a horse]... has a good chance. To "give the speech" is to communicate any special information of a private nature' (H., 5th ed.): mainly racing: from ca. 1872. Since ca. 1920, largely superseded by dope, q.v.

Speecher (or s.). The speech-room: Harrow: from ca. 1890. Influence of 'OXFORD -ER'.—2. Hence, speech-day: Ibid.: —1903 (F. & H.); Vachell, 1905.

speechless. Extremely drunk: coll.: 1881 (Besant Rice: OED). Cf. synon. legless.

speed. An amphetamine, esp. methedrine: drugs world: adopted, ca. 1965, ex US. (Groupie, 1968.) Hence, as v.i., to 'use' these drugs: since ca. 1967 (Jagger).

speed-cop. A policeman observing the speed of motorists: coll., orig. (ca. 1924) US, anglicised by 1929. OED Sup.

speed-merchant. One who cycles or, esp., motors at high speed: US; anglicised ca. 1920. Cf. road-hog, q.v. (The forms speed-bug and speed-hog are hardly eligible, for they have not 'caught on'.)—2. Whence, from ca. 1926, a very fast bowler: cricketers'. In this compound, merchant=chap, fellow.

speed the wombats! Aus. synon. of stone the crows!, starve the lizards!, etc.; a mainly humorous exclamation: since ca. 1925. B., 1942.

speedo. A speedometer: motorists': since ca. 1920. Passing Show, 21 July 1934.

speedo lark, the. The used-car-dealers' trick of turning back the odometer: Aus. dealers', hence also motorists': since ca. 1920. (B.P.) A speedo is strictly a speedometer. See clock, v., 7.

speedy. Living a loose life; apt to be amorous: joc. coll.: —1923 (Manchon). Punning fast.

speedy man. A messenger plying, on foot, between New College and Winchester College: New College, Oxford: ca. 1810–40. Spy, 1825.

speel. To decamp: Northern c.:—1839; ob. by 1910, virtually † by 1930. (Brandon; H., 1st ed.) Ex speel (Scottish and Northern dial.), v.i., to clamber, (of the sun) to mount. Cf. speel the drum, q.v.—2. See spiel.

speel-ken. See spell-ken.

speel the drum. To make off for, or to, the highway, esp. with stolen property: c.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.); † by 1930. Ex speel, 1.

speeler. See spieler.

Speewa. 'A legendary station of doughty deeds (the orig. Speewa was near Swan Hill on the Murray River); a place of "great men and tall tales". Whence, on the Speewa' (B., 1959): Aus. coll.: C.20. See crooked Mick.

spefflicate. See spifficate.

speiler. See spieler.

spiel, adj. Smart: Winchester; † by 1903. (F. & H.) Perhaps ex spick and span.

spell, n. An incorrect spelling: coll.: C.18–20.—2. Hence, a mode of spelling a word: coll.: C.19–20. Monthly Magazine, 1801, 'Why should this spell (as school children say...) be authorised?' (OED).—3. A playhouse, a theatre: c.:—1812; ob. Also as adj. Both in Vaux, 1812. Abbr. spell-ken, q.v.

spell, v. To advertise; put in print: c.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.). Esp. spelt in the leat, advertised-for in the newspaper, hence 'wanted'. Ob.—2. To be spelt: coll., esp. children's:—1877. Baumann, 'How does it spell?'

spell baker. To attempt something difficult: C.18–19 coll. From old spelling books, where baker was gen. the first dissyllabic word.

spell-binder, spellbinder. A 'spiller of rhetorical dope' (Allan M. Laing): journalistic coll., verging on rank j.: adopted, ca. 1910, ex US, where it was earlier applied to Theodore Roosevelt.

spell for. To long for: proletarian: mid-C.19–20. B. & L. spell it out. In, e.g., must (or shall) I spell it out for you?, surely it's obvious enough already?: usu. sarcastic: since ca. 1950. To make absolutely clear, as 'He spelt it out for them, almost in words of one syllable' (P.B.) See DCpp.

spell-ken or spellken; occ. spell-ken (—1860). A theatre: c. of ca. 1800–90. Jackson, ca. 1800, as quoted by Byron in Don Juan, note to XI, 19; Vaux. Ex Dutch spel (Ger. spiel), play; cf. spieler, q.v., and † S.E. spill-house, a gaming house.

spell-oh; occ. spell-ho or (in C.20) spell-o. A rest: nautical, and later, Aus. coll.: C.19–20. W.N. Glascock, Sailors and Saints (I, 215), 1829 (Moe); Henry Lawson, 1900, 'Bill ... was having a spell-oh under the cask when the white rooster crowed' (OED). Ex spell-oh, a call to cease work or to rest. —2. Allotted work: on the Conway: from before 1891. John Masefield, The Conway, 1933.

spelt in the lear. See spell, v.

spencer. A small glass of gin: low London: 1804 (OED); † by 1880.

spend, (up)on the. Spending: late C.17–20; S.E. until late C.19 then coll. (rarely upon). Saturday Review, 17 Dec. 1904, 'The Government is "on the spend"' (OED).

spend a penny. To urinate: euph. coll.: C.20. Strictly, to use the w.c. in a public convenience: mostly feminine. (Hilda Lewis, Strange Story, 1945.) Daily Telegraph, 8 Mar. 1977, had a brief news item headed '2p to spend a penny'. The first public convenience to charge one penny was opened outside the Royal Exchange, London, in 1855.

spending departments, the. War Office and Admiralty: Parliamentary joc. coll.:—1887; † by 1920. Baumann.

spendulic(o)s is a low perversion (—1923) of spondulicks, q.v. Manchon.

sperrib. A wife: London lower-middle classes':—1909 (Ware); ob. by 1930. Slowning of spare rib.

speshul if pron. with accent on first syllable is unnecessary, for that is precisely how special is pronounced; if, however, with accent on the second, it is sol.—2. As n., it meant, in 1884–5—the time of the Sudan War—a lie. Ex the news-vendors' cry. (Ware.) Cf. British official, q.v.

spess. A specimen: schoolboys': 1879 (Prof. Arnold Wall). Felstedian, July 1899, 'Others ... calling out ... "frightful spes-ses", which word is specimens.' Cf. speci, q.v.

spew-alley. The female pudend: low: C.19.—2. The throat: low coll.: mid-C.19—early 20. Cf. gutter lane and red lane.

spew (one's) guts (up). To vomit violently and comprehensively: low: C.20. (P.B.)—2. Hence, to inform the police on one's friends: c.: from ca. 1930. Cf. spill (one's) guts or the works, and synon. come (one's) cocoa.

spew her caulking or spew (the) oakum. 'A ship spews oakum when the seams start' (F. & H.): nautical coll. (from ca. 1860) >, ca. 1890, j. Young's Nautical Dict., 1863.

spew it. To leave one's job on a ship, go home, report again in the afternoon and try for another job, there or elsewhere: London docks': since ca. 1930. (New Statesman, 31 Dec. 1965.) 'It' = the ship, hence also the job.

spew (one's) ring (up). To vomit violently: low: since ca. 1920. (The BBC let this pass on 1 Mar. 1963.) the ring = the anus.

spice. C. of ca. 1800–50, thus: a spice, a footpad; the spice, footpad robbery. (Vaux.)? ex spice of adventure or danger. Earlier in the high toby spice, highway robbery: c.: late C.18—mid-19. Jackson, ca. 1800, as quoted by Byron in his notes to Don Juan, xi, 'On the high toby spice flash the muzzle.'—2. Spicy sex-items in the newspapers: newsagents' coll.: C.20.—3. Joc. pl of spouse: since (?) ca. 1950. Cf. grice, joc. pl of grouse, etc. (P.B.) spice, v.t. To rob: c.:—1811; † by 1850. (Lex. Bal.) Cf. the n.—2. Gen. in full, spice the soot, to mix ashes and earth in with soot: chimney-sweepers' s.: 1798 (OED); ob. by 1930.

spice-gloak. A footpad: c. of ca. 1810–60. (Vaux.) Ex spice, n. spice island. The rectum; a privy: low: ca. 1810–50. Lex. Bal.—2. Whence, applied to: any filthy, stinking vicinity: low coll.: ca. 1810–70. (Ibid.) Punning the Spice Islands.

spicer. A footpad: c.: ca. 1820–60. (F. & H.) Ex spice, v., 1. spicey or spicy, n. Usu. in pl spicies, spicy books or magazines: booksellers' and newsagents' coll.: since ca. 1910.

spicy. Spirited; energetically lively: 1828, 'A remarkably spicy team' (OED); Puck, 1844, 'The milliners' hearts he did trepan, / My spicy, swell small-college man.' Ob. perhaps ex † Scottish spicy, proud, conceited.—2. Hence, smart-looking; neat: 1846, T.H. Huxley, 'The spicy oilcloth ... looks most respectable' (OED). Cf. spicy, adv.—3. Hence, handsome: 1868, Whyte-Melville, (of a horse) 'What a spicy chestnut it is.'—4. Sexually 'luscious' or attractive: low coll.: from ca. 1870. Ex spicy, highly flavoured. P.B.: perhaps earlier, for this is prob. the sense in Albert Smith, Natural History of the Ballet Girl, 1847, 'the Gent, who anticipates "something spicy"' from the title of this brochure, had better put it down ... before he flings it away in disgust.'

spicy, adv. Smartly: low: 1859, Meredith, 'He've come to town dressed that spicy' (OED). Ex spicy, adj., 2, q.v.—2. Hence, in cut it spicy, to act the beau, the dandy: lower classes': from ca. 1880. Manchon.

spider. A wire pick-lock (of considerable utility): c.: 1845 in 'No. 747'; † by 1920.—2. Claret and lemonade: ca. 1890–1915.

Ex.—3. A drink of brandy and lemonade: Aus.: 1854 (Melbourne Argus); ob. by 1900, † by 1930.—4. A wireless operator's badge: RAF: since ca. 1935. Gerald Emanuel, 'From the shape'.—5. A light gig: Aus.: since ca. 1910. B., 1942.—6. An inspector: navvies': ca. 1870–1910. D.W. Barrett, Navvies, 1881.—7. As Spider, a nickname for men surnamed Kelly: earlier C.20. Robert Barltrop, letter to P.B., 1981: 'Spider Kelly was a feather-weight champion in the 1930s (he was an Irishman and related to the proprietors of Robert Brothers' circus). I have always understood "Spider" to be a nickname for a man with skinny arms and legs.' Cf. spider-catcher, 1.—8. As Spider, a nickname for men surnamed Webb: since ca. 1910. A pun on 'spider('s)-web.'—9. See swallow a spider; MOVING-PICTURE SLANG, §3, in Appendix.

spider-brusher. A domestic servant: 1833 (T. Hook: OED); ob. by 1890, † by 1930.

spider-catcher. A very thin man: late C.17—mid-18. B.E., whose for is, I think, obviously a misprint for of in 'a Spindle for a Man'.—2. A monkey: coll. and dial.: ca. 1820–70. Halliwell.

spider-claw, v.t. To grasp and stroke (the testes): low: late C.19—early 20. (As F. & H. gives no date, this is a mere guess.)

spider-web. (Gen. pl.) Wire-entanglement: military, but not very gen.: 1915; † by 1920. G.H. McKnight, English Words, 1923.

spidereen. Nautical, ca. 1860–1915: 'an imaginary vessel figuring in an unwilling reply: "What ship do you belong to?" "The spidereen frigate, with nine decks, and ne'er a bottom' (F. & H.). H., 3rd ed.

spiel, n. A hard-luck story: tramps' c.:—1932 ('Stuart Wood'). Ex sense 2 or 3 of the v.—2. A grafter's patter: late C.19–20. P. Allingham, 1934.—3. Set or formal advice: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1959.)—4. 'A wordy explanation' (B., 1959): Aus.: C.20.—5. A drinking club: c.: later C.20. (Now!, 10 Apr. 1981.) Prob. a shortening of spieler, 4, with a widened meaning. (P.B.)

spiel, v. See speel.—2. To talk glibly, plausibly; to patter: mostly Aus.: from ca. 1870. Perhaps a back-formation ex spieler.—3. Hence, to 'tell the tale': tramps' c.:—1932 ('Stuart Wood').—4. To race 'all out'—at full speed: Aus. sporting: C.20. B., 1942.

spiel-ken. A var. of spell-ken.

spiel off. To 'spout', utter plausibly: vagrants' c.: C.20. W.A. Gape, Half a Million Tramps, 1936, 'When my turn came I was not ready to "spiel" off the answers.'

spieler; occ.: speeler or speller. A gambler, esp. a card-sharper; a professional swindler: Aus. and NZ: 1886, New Zealand Herald, 1 June, 'A fresh gang of "speelers" are operating in the town' (OED). Ex Ger. Spieler, player, esp. at cards, a gamester.—2. Hence, a glib and crafty fellow: Aus.: from ca. 1905.—3. A 'weaver of hard luck stories': tramps' c.:—1932 ('Stuart Wood'). Cf. spiel, v., 3.—4. A gambling-den: c.: from ca. 1925. (Charles E. Leach.) But also any room in which card-games are habitually played: London's East End: since ca. 1945. (Richard Herd, 1957).—5. A 'barker': grafters': C.20. (Cheapjack, 1934.) Cf. sense 2.—6. A fast horse (usually speeler): Aus. sporting: C.20. (B., 1942.) Ex spiel, v., 4.—7. A welsher: Aus. sporting: since ca. 1910.

spierised, be. To have one's hair cut and shampooed: Oxford University: ca. 1870–1910. (H., 5th ed.) Ex Spiers, a barber in 'the High'.

Spierson orchestra. The orchestra of Spiers and Pond: Society coll.: 1885–ca. 1900. Ware.

spif. See spiff, adj., 2.

spiff, n. See spiffs.—2. A 'swell': from ca. 1873; ob. by 1910, † by 1930. (H., 5th ed.) Abbr. spiffy, but imm. ex spiff, adj., 2. spiff, v. t. Only in past pl. passive: see spiffed.—2. V. t., to pay, or allow, commission as to (say) half-a-crown on (a named article): trade: from ca. 1890. Ironmonger, 19 Sep. 1891, 'A "job" chandelier... may be "spiffed", say 1s., but a more unsaleable one should bear a higher sum,' i.e. carry a higher commission. (OED.) Ex spiffs, q.v. Cf. spiff, adj.

spiff, adj. Esp. s. stores, one where 'spiffs' are in force, and spiff system (recorded by OED at 1890), the procedure of paying commission to the assistants: from ca. 1889. Ex spiffs, q.v.—2. (The form spif is almost wholly dial.) Smartly dressed; dandified; in good spirits or health; excellent, superior: dial. (—1862) >, ca. 1870, s. >, ca. 1890, coll.; ob. F. & H. has: 'Awfully spiff,' 'How spiff you look', "'How are you?" "Pretty spiff".'? abbr. spiffy, q.v.; cf. spiffing, and spiv, qq.v.

spiffed, ppl adj. Smartly dressed; tricked out; very neat; spruce: 1877 (W.S. Gilbert: OED); ob. by 1930. See spiff, v., 1, and cf. spiffing and spiffy, qq.v.—2. Tippy: mainly Scottish:—1860 (H., 2nd ed.); ob. by 1930. Perhaps ex skew-whiff, or even ex squiffed (q.v.) influenced by skew-whiff. Cf. screwed and squiffy.

spiffing; occ., though rarely in C.20, spiffin. (In dial., spiving.) First-rate, excellent; (of, or as to, dress) fine, smart, dandified, spruce: dial. and s. >. ca. 1900, coll.: 1872, 'The Vulgar Pupkins said... "It was spiffing!"'; G. Moore, 1884. Perhaps ex dial. (—1865) spiffyn, n., work well done. OED, which relates rattling, ripping, topping. Cf. spiff, adj., 2, and spiffy, qq.v., and the dial. spiffer (1882), anything exceptional or very large, fine, good.—2. Hence, adv.; ob.

spifflicate, etc. See spifficate, etc.

spiffs; occ., esp. in C.20, in the singular. Trade (esp. drapery) s. as in H., 1859: 'The percentage allowed... to [assistants] when they effect sale of old fashioned or undesirable stock.' (Cf. spiff, v., 2, and adj., 1.) Prob. cognate with dial. spiffyn: see spiffing.

spiffy. Smart, in the fashion; fine (in appearance); spruce; first-rate, excellent: coll. and dial.: 1860 (H., 2nd ed.). Recorded before spiff, adj., 2, but prob. ex this adj., which may have existed in dial. (where earliest in print) some years earlier than 1860. Cf. also spiffing, for it is certain that spiff, n., 2, spiff, v., 1, spiff, adj., 2, spiffed, 1, and spiffy form a semantic and presumably a phonetic group, and I suspect that the trade group—spiff, n., 1, spiff, v., 2, spiff, adj., 1, spiffs, and dial. spiffyn (see spiffing etym.)—is cognate and ultimately ex the same radical; that root, prob., is either an echoic v.—cf. biff—with some such sense as to hit (hard), hence to startle or astonish, or an adv. of the spang kind—cf. its use in dial. spiff and spack bran new, quite new (EDD).

spifficate (—1785); often spifflicate (1841,—in dial.) and, mainly Cornish dial., spefficate (1871): s. that, ca. 1870, > coll. 'To confound, silence, or dumbfound' (Grose, 1st ed., 1785); hence, to handle roughly, treat severely, to thrash (OED 1796); hence, to crush, destroy, kill, as in Moore, 1818, 'Alas, alas, our ruin's fated; All done up, and spifficated!' (OED); hence, as in 'Jon Bee', 1823, to betray (a thief) to the intended victim or to the police—a very ob. sense; and, ex the first or the third nuance, to do something mysterious (and unpleasant) to, often as a vague threat to children—a sense dating from ca. 1880 or at latest 1890, the author hearing it first, as a child, ca. 1900. In C.20, the last is the prevailing signification, the first nuance being very ob. In C.20, it is often fig.: to ruin, to destroy, as in D.L. Sayers, Have His Carcase, 'It completely busts up and spifficates the medical evidence.' Etym.: OED, 'Prob. a purely fanciful formation. Cf. smiffigate, v.'; W., '?Fanciful word on suffocate. Cf. dial. smothercate,' which word blends, or perhaps, confuses smother and suffocate; H., 3rd ed., 'A corruption of ["stifle"], or of "suffocate";' E.P., very diffidently, 'Ex spill, to spoil by injury or damage, to render useless, to destroy the value of (a thing)—as in OED, 600, §5, c—on the analogy of either castigate, the f being perhaps due to the influence of stifle or even of smother (in both of which the vowels are obviously inoperative on a problematic spiffigate) or, more prob., merely arbitrarily intrusive as are so many elements of unconventional vocables; or, preferably, ex spill, as above, + stifle, the dial. form of stifle, +, or with ending on the analogy of, castigate, or ex spill + stifle + ending as in fustigate, to cudgel. Cf. the later smiffigate, q.v., and the (app. much later) dial. tussicated, intoxicated.' spifficating, ppl adj. Castigatory; crushing: coll.: 1891, Meredith, 'You've got a spifficating style of talk about you' (OED). Rare and ob. Cf.:

spiffication. The being 'spifficated', the action of 'spifficating'; severe punishment; complete destruction: (mostly joc.) coll.: mid-C.19—earlier 20. Sir Richard Burton, 1855, 'Whose blood he vowed to drink—the Oriental form of threatening spiffication.' Ex spifficate, q.v. Ronald Knox, in The Body in the Silo, 1933, uses it (p. 296) for 'suffocation'.

spiffification. A sol. form of spiffication: late C.19—20. Due to -ifi-.

spigot, brother, knight, man, son of the S.E. clichés verging on coll.: from ca. 1820; Scott has the second and third. A tapster; an alehouse-keeper. OED.

spigot-sucker. A tippler: coll.: C.17—18. (Cotgrave.) Ex the vent-hole peg of a cask.—2. A mouth-whore: low: C.19—20; ob. Ex physiological spigot.

spike, n. A casual ward: tramps' c.: 1866 (Temple Bar, xvi, 184). Ex the hardness of beds, fare, and treatment.—2. Hence, the workhouse: (low)s.: 1894, D.C. Murray, 'To sleep in the workhouse is to go "on the spike"' (OED). Cf. spiniken (-kin), q.v.—3. An Anglican High Church clergyman: ecclesiastical: late C.19—20. (The OED records it at 1902, but Mr R. Ellis Roberts clearly remembers it in the middle and late 1890s.) Ex spiky, 1, q.v.—4. A bayonet: military: late C.19—20.—5. A needle: lower classes':—1923 (Manchon).—6. Hence, a needle, or a syringe, for injecting a drug: drugs world: adopted, ca. 1960, ex US. John Wyatt, 1973.—7. As Spike, the 'inevitable' nickname of all (male) Sullivans: Services': late C.19—earlier 20. (Bowen.) In areas where Irish potato-hoers were working, tramps used frequently to assume the name on entering the spike (sense 1).—8. Also a nickname for men surnamed Hughes: mid-C.20. (P-G-R.) P.B.: a well-known US 'zany' musical group, perhaps slightly later than the P-G-R entry, was 'Spike Hughes and His City Slickers'.—9. In get the spike, to become annoyed or angry: low: 1895 (EDD). Cf. get the needle in the same sense. Ex spike, n., 5. Also, in C.20, have the spike (EDD).—10. See spiky.

spike, v. (Of an editor) to reject (a news-item, etc.): journalistic: 1908 (A.S.M. Hutchinson, Once Aboard the Luger).

—2. To hit or strike; to knock (some one) down: Aus. low: since ca. 1920. Baker.—3. To render a drink dangerous, either by surreptitiously adding strong(er) alcohol, or by actually poisoning it: (?c. >) s. > gen. coll.: adopted ex US mid-C.20 (? earlier). W. & F. give 1900 as an early US date, and indicate gen. use by ca. 1920; orig. simply 'to fortify a drink with alcohol'. Perhaps ex 'spiking a gun', rendering it useless. (P.B.) spike, adj. See spiky, 1.

spike-bozzle (or solid). As in 'Two Zeppelins have been effectively dealt with—or "spikebozzled", which is, one gathers, the correct R.N.A.S. vernacular for complete demolition' (Aeroplane, 9 June 1915: with thanks to Mr & Mrs Colin Huston): prob. orig. RN, and ex to spike (a gun) + a fanciful ending.—2. Hence, to do away with, supersede: RAF and army: from ca. 1918; ob. by 1930. OED Sup.

Spike(-)Park. The grounds of a prison; hence, from ca. 1860, the Queen's Bench Prison: 1837 (Dickens: OED); H., 3rd ed. (secondary sense); both † by 1890.

spike-ranger. A continual tramp from casual ward to casual ward: c.: from ca. 1897.

spikers. Sharks: nautical: late C.19–20.

spiky. 'Extreme and uncompromising in Anglo-Catholic belief or practice': orig. and mainly Church: 1881 (SOD). Ex the stiffness and sharpness of opinions and attitude. P.B.: the term lingers: Towler & Coxon, in Fate of the Anglican Clergy, 1979, define spike or spikey as theological colleges' s. for 'High church, addicted to ceremonial excess'. I suggest a derivation ex Victorian Gothic church architecture.—2. As Spiky, a var. of spike, n., 7. F. & G., 'From the celebrated prize fighter'.

spill, n. A small fee, gift or reward, of money: 1675 (Crowne: OED); B.E.; Grose, 1st ed. † by ca. 1840. Constructed with of (e.g. a spill of money): C.18—early 19. Prob. ex to spill; cf. a splash, a small quantity, of liquid.—2. A fall; a tumble, esp. from a horse: from ca. 1840: coll. >, ca. 1890, S.E. (Barham.) Ex spill, v., 1.—3. A drink: ca. 1890–1914. Ware.—4. 'A declaration that all offices are vacant and that new elections will be held. Mostly in the Labor Party' (B.P.): Aus. political: since ca. 1930; by 1950, coll.: by 1966, virtually S.E.

spill, v. To cause to fall from vehicle (from ca. 1706 or 7) or from horse (—1785): coll.: resp. Swift and Grose.—2. Hence, from a boat, a box, etc., etc.: coll.: mid-C.19–20. OED.—3. V.t. To confess, divulge: c. (—1932) now verging on low s. ('Stuart Wood', Shades of the Prison House.) From U.S. P.B.: prob. a shortening of spill the beans, or (one's) guts, or the works, rather than these being elaborations. Cf.:—4. Hence, used frequently in Aus. by women when engaged in slander or in mere gossip: since ca. 1945. 'You know that I won't tell a living soul. Do tell! Spill!' (B.P.)

spill and pelt. 'The practical fun at the end of each scene in the comic portion of a pantomime': theatrical: from ca. 1830. (Ware.) Ex things deliberately spilt and hilariously thrown.

spill (one's) guts. To inform on one's friends to the police: low s.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1930. More usu. than synon. spew (one's) guts; cf. spill the works. An interesting anticipation occurs in Sessions, July 1879, p. 442, 'Workman [accused of burglary] asked me to go to his wife... and tell her that he had been about Maudsley's job, and she must keep her "guts" what she knew about it.'

spill milk against posts. A phrase, says Ware used in 'extreme condemnation of the habits of the man spoken of': lowest class:—1909.

spill over. That part of a newspaper or magazine contribution which has been deferred to the end of the periodical: journalistic coll. (for the S.E. turn-over): C.20.

spill the beans. To blab; to divulge, whether unintentionally or not, important facts; to confess; to lay information: US, anglicised by: 1928 (D.L. Sayers, The Bellona Club, 1928); J. Brophy, English Prose, 1932. Orig., to 'make a mess' of things. Cf. mouthful and shoot off one's mouth, qq.v.

spill the works. A c. var., from ca. 1929, of prec. John G. Brandon, The One-Minute Murder, 1934.

Spillsbury, come home by. To have a 'spill', lit. or fig.: coll.: late C.17–18. (Hackett's Life of Williams, 1692.) Cf. Clapham, Peckham, qq.v.

spilt in Lex. Bal., Egan's Grose, Baumann, Manchon, is a misprint for spill, n., 1.

spilt milk. See cry over spilt milk.

spin, n. A brisk run or canter; a spurt: coll. >, by 1890, S.E.: 1856 (OED); 1884, The Field, 6 Dec., 'After a short undecided spin, Athos took a good lead'. Ex to spin (along).—2. A spinster: Anglo-Indian coll.: 1872, 'A most unhappy spin' (OED). Ware dates it from 70 years earlier.—3. 'A piece of experience (always with an adjective: "rough spin", "fair spin", etc.) [? From spin for the toss of a coin, OED 1882, or spin in various uses implying duration, OED 1856, 1875]' (Wilkes): Aus.: C.20. With tough spin, a bad time or a spoiled chance, cf. synon. lean trot. Hence get or give a (e.g. fair spin), to get, give a fair chance.—4. (also spinnaker). £5, whether note or sum: Aus.: C.20. (Partridge, 1938; B., 1942.) Used esp. in two-up: see boxer.—5. In go for a spin, to go for a drive in a motor-car; occ. on a motor-cycle or in its side-car: coll.: ca. 1905–55. Cf. sense 1.—6. In up for a spin, (of an NCO) 'brought up for a reprimand for some minor offence' (F. & G.); army: WW1+. Cf. v., 2.—7. In get a spin, contemporary var. of spin, v., 2.—8. See go into a flat spin.—9. 'A cab rank. Authorised taxi stand' (Tempest, 1950): c.: mid-C.20.

spin, v.t. To fail in an examination: mostly military colleges (—1859) and esp. the RMA, Woolwich. (H.L., 1st ed.) Mostly in passive, as in Whyte-Melville, 1868, 'Don't you funk being spun?' Ex spin, to cause to whirl.—2. Hence, v.i., to be failed in an 'exam': 1869 (OED); rare. Cf. prec., 7.—3. To tell a story: RN: since late C.18. (W.N. Glascock, Sailors and Saints, 1829, at I, 177: Moe.) Cf. next, and synon. phrases.—4. Shortening of spin (a) drum. Now!, 10 Apr. 1981.

spin a bender; a cuff; a cuffers; a dippy. To tell a tall story or stories (1st, 3rd, 4th); to 'bore the mess with a long, pointless story' (Ware, the 2nd); to tell a probable story (5th): RN: late C.19–20. The dippy, used only in this phrase, may pass. derive ex dippy, crazy (to tell the truth); the rest, stories that bend or cuff the ear, and the imagination. See cuffer, and cf.:—spin a twist. Var. of spin a yarn, q.v. at yarn, n. See also twist, n., 8.

spin (someone's) drum. 'To search a house' (Powis): police and c.: later C.20.

spin fox. To court (a woman): Aus.: since ca. 1930. (Alan Marshall, These Are My People, 1946.) Ex the game of two-up? P.B.: or ex fishing?

spin-house. See spinning-house.

spin-off (later, written solid). An important secondary result, esp. the final, most significant, consequence: adopted, late 1940s, ex US.—2. Hence, loosely, any result, however minor or irrelevant, of something bigger, as 'of course, non-stick frying-pans are a useful spin-off from the US space programme': since the early 1960s, when that programme started giving rise to so much j.—3. fig., 'A benefit, either anticipated or gratuitous' (R.S., quoting BBC, Nov. 1970).

spin street-yarn. See street-yarn.

spin-text. See spintext.

spin the bar. Army version of spin a bender, etc. See bar, n., 2.

spin the bat. To speak vigorously, very slangily: the Army in India: mid-C.19—early 20. (Ware.) Perhaps ex spin a yarn + sling the bat, qq.v.

spin the dope. To tell a (good) story, e.g. in chiromancy: Aus.: since ca. 1920. K.S. Prichard, Haxby's Circus, 1930.

spin the fanny. To 'tell the tale', to spin a good yarn or deliver a good, set 'spiel': fair ground grafters': since ca. 1925. (Richard Merry.) Cf. fanny, n., 7.

spin (one's) yarn upon (one's) own winch. To tell one's own story: naval: late C.18—mid-19. Matthew Barker, L.L.G., 25 Oct. 1823 (Moe.) See yarn, n.

spinach; spin(n)age. See gammon and spinach.

spindle. The penis: (low) coll.: C.19—early 20. Cf. S.E. spindle side.

spindle-prick. Vocative to a man deficient in energy: low: late C.19—20. (Only mildly abusive.)

spindles, make or spin crooked. (Of a woman) so to act as to make her husband a cuckold: coll.: late C.16—17. Florio.

spine-bashing. Sleeping or, at least, lying down: Aus. army: WW2+. (Rats, 1944.) Hence, spine-basher, a lazy man. Cf. charpoy- or pit-bashing, the Brit. Service synonyms.

Spinifex wire, the. A N. Aus. version of the bush telegraph: since ca. 1930. (H. Drake Brockman, Men Without Wives, 1938.) Hence, a spinifex wire, a rumour, esp. if well-founded (Ibid.). Cf. synon. mulga wire.

spinniken, -kin. See spinniken. ca. 1890—1935.

spink. Milk: RMA, Woolwich: ca. 1890—1935. ? origin if not a perversion of drink nor ex spinked cattle nor ex Fife spinkie. P.B.: ? ex the name of the milkman. RMA Woolwich was amalgamated with Sandhurst in 1922.—2. A youth: RN: ca. 1800—70. (Bill Truck, 1821.) P.B.: ex dial. for small birds, esp. the chaffinch; ? whence, in W. Midlands, a diminutive person (EDD).

spinn-house. Incorrect for spin-house (see spinning-house).

spinnage. See spinach.

spinnaker. See spin, n., 4.

spinner. £50: Aus. low: since ca. 1910 (B., 1942.) Cf. spin, n., 4.—2. A parachutist with twisted rigging lines in his parachute: RAF: 1939+. (Jackson.) He spins as he descends.—3. 'Chris has just finished a rotating shift, "a spinner" they all call it, filling in for other [air traffic] controllers when they're having their tea break' (New Society, 23 Apr. 1981).

spinnifax. E.P.'s orig. version of spinifex: have followed Wilkes and SOD. (P.B.)

spinniken, loosely -kin. A workhouse: c.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.).—2. As the Spinniken, St Giles's workhouse: c.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.) Cf. the Lump, that of Marylebone, and the Pan, that of St Pancras, both in H., 3rd ed.; note, however, that by 1874, these two terms were 'applied to all workhouses by tramps and costers' (H., 5th ed.). Ex ken, a place, on spin-house (see spinning-house).

spinning. Rapid: coll.: 1882, Society, 16 Dec. 'The Cambridgeshire enjoyed a spinning run' (OED); slightly ob. Ex spinning, gyrating.

spinning-house; spin-house. Both ex spin-house, a house of correction for women, on the Continent (ex Dutch spinnhuis, cf. Ger. Spinnhaus): the former, a house of labour and correction, esp. for harlots under university jurisdiction: Cambridge: C.19; perhaps always S.E., but prob. orig. coll.; the later, a workhouse: C.18—mid-19 coll., as in Brand's History of Newcastle (1702), where spelt spinn-house. Cf. spinniken. OED and F. & H.

spinning jenny. A prismatic compass, early model: Royal Artillery: ca. 1915—50. Ex the way in which the card spun.

spinning-out. Loquacious: lower classes' coll.:—1887. Baumann, 'A spinning-out sort of chap'.

spinsrap. A parsnip; parsnips: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Also spinsraps.

spinster. A harlot: coll.: ca. 1620—1720. Fletcher, 1622; Fuller, 1662, 'Many would never be wretched spinsters were they spinsters in deed, nor come to so public and shameful punishment.' Cf. spindles, make or spin crooked, q.v.

spintext, spin-text. A clergyman: late C.17—20: coll. (in earliest examples, a nickname or an innuendo-surname) >, ca. 1830, S.E.; very ob. by 1930. Congreve, 1693, 'Spintext! Oh, the fanatic one-eyed parson!' Because he spins a long sermon from the text; cf. the spider-spinning lubrications of medieval (and a few modern) philosophers.—2. Esp. a prosy one: C.18—20; ob. Vicesimus Knox, 1788, 'The race of formal spintexts, and solemn saygraces is nearly extinct.' spiny. The bird Spinebill; mostly as nickname: Aus. rural: late C.19—20. B., 1943.

Spion Kop. Monkey Island: nautical of first decade, C.20. (Bowen.) Ex the unpleasantness of Spion Kop as a military experience in the Boer War and the island's 'unpleasantness in bad weather'.—2. City Road: London taxi-drivers': early C.20.

spiral swallow. See swallow, n., 4.

Spirites. See Spirites.

Spirit, the. A Melbourne—Sydney train: Aus. coll.: 1962+. Short for the Spirit of Progress. (B.P.) Cf. Roarer, the.

spirit, to kidnap (for export to the American plantations), ca. 1665—1800, may orig.—to judge by B.E. and Grose—have been coll. See Grose, P.

spirit of the troops is excellent!, the. A military c.p. (late 1916—18) 'taken from newspaper blether and used in jocular, and often in bitterly derisive irony' (B. & P.).

Spirites, the. The Chesterfield 'soccer' team: sporting: from ca. 1930. The Chesterfield church has a crooked spire. (The Arsenal F.C. programme, 19 Dec. 1936.)

spiritual. A sacred song; a hymn: coll. (since ca. 1920, S.E.): 1870, "Negro Spirituals", T.W. Higginson, in Army Life. (OED.) Abbr. spiritual song.

spiritual case. 'The lower-deck term, probably unintentional at first [i.e. orig. a sol.], for spherical case shot': RN: ca. 1840—1900. Bowen.

spiritual flesh-broker. A parson: coll.: late C.17—early 19. B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.

spiritual whore. A woman infirm of faith; esp. as a C.16 ecclesiastical c.p., she is a spiritual whore (Tyndale, 1528). Cf. S.E. go lusting or whoring after strange gods.

spirity. Spirited; energetic; vivacious: from ca. 1630: coll. till C.19, then dial. OED.—2. Ghostly: supernatural: joc. coll.—1887 (Baumann).

spirter. See spurter.

spiry. Very distinguished: 1825 (T. Hook: OED); ob. by 1890, † by 1930. Ex height.

spit, n. Gen. in the very or, in C.20, the dead spit of, a speaking likeness (of): the earlier version occurs in Matthew Barker, 'Greenwich Hospital', L.L.G., 3 July 1824 (Moe): coll. >, ca. 1890, S.E.—but still rather familiar. Mayhew, 1851, 'the very spit of the one I had for years; it's a real portrait'. Ex such forms as 'As like an urchin, as if they had been spit out of the mouths of them,' Breton, 1602, and 'He's e'en as like thee as th' had'st spit him,' Cotton. Cf. Fr. c'est son père tout craché.—2. A (distinguished or remarkable or attractive) manner of spitting: coll.: C.20. Henry Wade, Constable Guard Thyself, 1934.—3. A smoke (of a cigarette): low: C.20. 'Some of them had bits of cigarettes, and asked us if we'd like a "spit"' (Brendan Behan, Borstal Boy, 1958). P.B.: prob. shortening of spit and a drag, q.v.—4. As Spit, a Spitfire fighter plane: since 1938 in RAF: since 1940 (Berrey) among civilians. Spitfires and Hurricanes saved Britain in Aug.—Sep. 1940.—5. In the big (less commonly, the long) spit, a vomiting: Aus., esp. among drinkers: since mid-C.20. (Frank Hardy, Billy Borker Yarns Again, 1967, where it is made clear that this is the most used of the numerous Aus. s. terms for a vomiting.)—6. In put four quarters on the spit, to copulate: low: C.19. Cf. make the beast with two backs, and—spit, v. 'To forminate a woman' (F. & H.): v.t.: coll.: C.18—20; ob.—2. To leave (visiting-cards), gen. at So-and-so's: coll.: 1782 (Mme D'Arblay: OED); ob. by 1930.

spit a bone at. To 'point the bone at': Aus.: C.20. B., 1943.

spit alley (or S.A.). 'The alleyway in which the junior officers' cabins are situated' (in a man-of-war): RN: late C.19—20. Bowen.

spit and a drag, a. A smoke on the sly: RN >, by ca. 1920, gen. s.: late C.19—20. (Ibid.) Ex spit and drag, a cigarette: rhyming s., on rag: late C.19—20. (B. & P.) P.B.: is this really rhyming, or simply coincidence? Shreds of tobacco from a badly-rolled cigarette are often spat away, while the smoke is dragged, or drawn (see next) into the lungs.

spit and a draw, a. Var. of prec.: proletarian: prob. since late C.19. Alexander Paterson, Across the Bridges, 1911.

spit and a stride, a. A very short distance: Fletcher, 1921 (Apperson); 1676, Cotton, 'You are now . . . within a spit, and a stride of the peak' (OED); Scott, 1824. Coll. until early C.19, then dial.

Spit and Cough, the. The Athenæum Club: London taxi-drivers': since ca. 1910. (Herbert Hodge. Cab, Sir?, 1939.) Ex the high incidence of asthma and bronchitis among members?

spit and drag. See spit and a drag.

spit and polish. Furbishing; meticulous cleaning: naval and, esp., military: from ca. 1860 or perhaps even earlier, though unrecorded before 1895 (OED): coll. >, ca. 1920, S.E. Cf. elbow-grease. Hence, the Spit-and-Polish Navy is the C.20 coll. (RN) term for the Victorian Navy: Bowen.—2. In WW1, any officer exigent of the spick-and-span was likely to be dubbed '(Old) Spit-and-Polish or Shine' by the (gen. rightly) exasperated soldiery. Cf. clean and polish.

spit and sawdust. A general saloon in a public-house: C.20. Ex the sawdust sprinkled on the floor and the spitting on to the sawdust. (Peter Chamberlain.)

spit-and-scratch game. A hair-pulling fight: lower classes' coll.: C.20. A. Neil Lyons, Arthur's, 1914; Manchon.

spit and shine. See spit and polish, 2.

spit brown. To chew tobacco: nautical coll.: late C.19–20. Bowen.

spit button-sticks. (Gen. as vbl n. spitting . . .) To use forcible language: Regular Army: C.20. (B. & P.) A button-stick was a 'gadget' used in button-polishing.

spit chips. (Usu. spitting . . .) To be extremely thirsty, dry: Aus.: since late C.19. (Wilkes.) Cf. spit sixpences.—2. 'To be in a state of anger and frustration' (Wilkes): Aus.: since mid-C.20.

spit-curl. A curl lying flat on the temple: US (—1859); anglicised ca. 1875 as a coll., chiefly among costers: cf. agg(e)travators.

spit (one's) death. To swear solemnly, as in Pugh (2): 'An' I spit my death an' all, an' I'll stick to it.' Cockney: late C.19—earlier 20. Also Aus. (Rats, 1944). Perhaps on may I die . . .! See also strike (one's) breath.

spit (one's) guts. To tell or confess everything; low s. verging on c.: from not later than 1931. Cf. later synonym. come (one's) cocoon.

spit in the bag and stand up. (Of a bookmaker on the course) to occupy his stand and accept bets without the money to honour them if they are successful: Aus. racing: since ca. 1925. (Lawson Glassop, Lucky Palmer, 1949.) He spits in his bag for luck.

Spit-in-the-Pew (Sunday). See Gob Sunday.

spit in your mouth. See mean.

spit-kid. A spitoon: RN: since ca. 1900. (Musings, 1912, p. 97; Granville.) Also written solid. See kid, n., 7.

spit o' my hand! A Cockney expletive, coll. rather than s., dating from ca. 1880; slightly ob. by 1930. Pugh (2): "'Spit o' my hand! What I might ha' bin worth if it hadn't bin for this cursed stuff—bless it!" The liquor gurgled down his throat.'

spit on the deck and call the cat a bastard! A c.p. of welcome: MN: C.20. Richard Gordon, Doctor at Sea, 1953.

spit or get off the cuspidor. A refined Can. c.p. for shit or get off the pot: since ca. 1940.

spit out. To confess; gen. as spit it out!: coll.: C.20. (Lyell.) Ex S.E. spit out, to utter plainly, bravely, or proudly.

spit sixpences or white broth. To expectorate from a dry, though healthy, mouth: resp. coll. (1772, Graves, 'Beginning to spit six-pences (as his saying is)' and s. (late C.19—early 20).

'Spital stands too nigh St Thomas à Waterings, the. Copious weeping sometimes produces an illness: proverbial c.p.: late C.16–17. This place, near a brook used for watering horses, stood near London, and on the Canterbury road, and, as it was the Surrey execution-ground until the C.17, the name is often employed allusively in C.16—mid-17, as in Jonson, 1930, 'He may perhaps take a degree at Tyburn . . . come to read a lecture/Upon Aquinas at St Thomas à Waterings,/And so go forth a laureat in hemp circle.'

Spitalfield(s) breakfast. 'A tight necktie and a short pipe'; i.e. no breakfast at all: East End:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.). Ex the poor district in East London. Cf. Irishman's dinner and soldier's supper, qq.v., as well as dine with Duke Humphrey, q.v., and the c.p. (—1874; ob.) I'll go out and count the railings, 'the park or area railings, mental instead of maxillary exercise' (H., 5th ed.).

spitcher. To sink (an enemy submarine): RN: from 1916. (OED Sup.) Hence, spitchered, done for, 'sunk'; mortally wounded, etc. (Granville). It derives from Italianate Maltese spizzia, finished, done for, itself from It. spezzare, to break into small pieces.

spite Gabell. To cut off one's nose to spite one's face: Winchester: from ca. 1820. (Mansfield; Wrench.) Ex the inadvisability of trying to get a rise out of him. Dr Henry Gabell (1764–1831) was headmaster of the College from 1810 to 1823.

spitfire. A contraceptive: RN lowerdeck: 1945+. A usu. effective interceptor: see spit, n., 4.

Spitfire kitten. A woman munition-worker. See whistler, 9.

Spitfires. 'Ration cigarettes with R.A.F. roundels on the packet. A fair description'; Forces' in N. Africa: 1940–3. Peter Sanders, Sunday Times mag., 10 Sep. 1967.

Spithead nightingale. A boatswain or his mate: nautical coll.: late C.19—early 20.

Spithead pheasant. A bloater: RN: C.20. (Birmingham Mail, 24 Feb. 1939; Granville.) Cf. Yarmouth capon.—2. A kipper: since ca. 1950. News Chronicle, 4 Nov. 1954.

Spitter. Occ. var. of spit, n., 4: 1941–5. (H. & P.) Cf. Spitty.

Spittoon, the; the Billiard Table. Two courts in Whewell's Court, Trinity College: Cambridge undergraduates': late C.19–20. The former has cup-shaped base with central drain; the latter, six drains about a rectangular grass plot. Between these two courts lies a small garden (about 10 yards by 25) called The Garden of Eden, perhaps because of a large fruit tree growing in it. (With thanks to Mr D.F. Wharton.)—2. As in '[Little Tich, b. 1867] toured the country . . . [playing] in small halls and pubs—"the spittoons", as they were derisively called' (Observer mag., 8 Apr. 1979): theatrical: later C.19.

Spitty. Affectionate diminutive of Spitfire, the famous WW2 fighter aircraft. Cf. Spitter.

spiv. One who lives by his wits—within the law, for preference; esp. by 'the racing game': c.: since ca. 1890; by 1940 low s. Lionel Secombe, wireless-reporting the Food-Neusel fight, 18 Nov. 1936; John Worby, The Other Half, 1937 (the 'locus classicus'); Alan Hoby in The People, 7 Apr. 1946, "'Spivs"—the small town touts and racketeers'; a definition enunciated in June 1947 was 'One who earns his living by not working'. In the Daily Telegraph, 29 and 30 July 1947, Lord Rosebery and 'Peterborough' clearly established that the term had been in use by and among racecourse gangs since the 1890s and had been known to a few police detectives since 1920 or so. Spiv is of the same orig. as spiffing, q.v.: the dialectal spif or spiff, 'neat, smart, dandified; excellent'; compare Scottish and Northern spiffer, 'anything first-rate'. The adj. spif becomes a noun (compare phoney) and spif becomes spiv because the latter is easier to pronounce.—Whence spivvish: 'of or like a spiv': 1946+. See esp. 'Spivs and Phoneys' in Here, There and Everywhere (essays upon language), 1949.

spiv days (singular rare). Rest days: railwaymen's: since ca. 1945. Railway.

spiv-knot. The "Windsor" knotting of the tie: knotted double to emphasize the shoulders and waist of tie-knot. Of Cockney origin' (L.A.): late 1947+. See spiv.

splarm. To smear: Dulwich College: C.20. (Collinson.) App. a blend of Scottish spla(i)rge, to bedaub, + smarmy.

splash, n. Ostentation; a display thereof; a dash; a sensation: coll.: esp. in cut (1806) or make (1824) a splash. (OED.) Cf. cut a dash. Ex noisy diving or swimming.—2. Hence, without article: coll.: late C.19–20; rare. Westminster Gazette, 5 Dec. 1899, 'That last speech... caused enough splash for some time to come' (OED).—3. Face-powder: 1864 (H., 3rd ed.); very ob. by 1930. Cf. slap in the same sense.—4. A small quantity of soda-water (added to whisky, etc.): coll.:—1927 (Collinson).—5. Dash; dashing manners and ways: 1769, George Colman the Elder, Man and Wife, Act I, 'No splash in the world—His conversation is all table-talk.' cf. sense 1.—6. In have a splash, (of men) to urinate: C.20. A blend of synon. splash (one's) boots and have a slash.

splash, v.i. To be actively extravagant with money: coll.: from ca. 1912. Ex splash, n., 1, + splash money about. Whence splasher.—2. V.t., to expend: Aus.:—1916 (C.J. Dennis).—3. (Of men) to masturbate: low: since ca. 1930. (L.A.) splash, adj. Fine, elegant, fashionable, distinguished: c. or low s.: C.19—earlier 20. W.H. Ainsworth, Rookwood, 1834, 'All my togs were so niblike and splash'; Manchon, 1923. Ex splash, n., 1.

splash out. An extension of splash, v., 1: coll.: later C.20. 'He splashed out on a new car.' (P.B.)

splash-up, adj. and adv. (In) splendid (manner); 'tip-top': lower classes:—1887 (Baumann); ob. by 1930. Cf. bang-up.

splasher. A person very extravagant with money: coll.: from ca. 1919.—2. A piece of oilcloth protecting the wall against the splashing from a wash-hand bowl: domestic coll. (now verging on S.E.): late C.19–20. (R.H. Mottram, Bumphrey's, 1934.) Ex the S.E. splasher on vehicles.

Splashers, the. The 62nd Foot Regiment, in late C.19–20 the Wiltshires: military: from ca. 1850; ob. Ex their dashing manner.

splashing, n. Excessive or silly talk: proletarian: ca. 1870–1910. B. & L.

splashing, adj. and adv.; splashy, adj. Fine(ly); splendid(ly): ca. 1885–1920. Baumann, 'A splashing (fine) feed.' Cf. splash, n., 1.

splathers!, hold your. Be silent!: tailors': from ca. 1870; ob. Prob. ex Yorkshire splather, noisy talk (EDD). Whence: splatherer. A loquacious person; a braggart: tailors': ca. 1875–1930.

splatterdash. A bustle; an uproar: late C.19—early 20. ? ex splutter + dash. P.B.: cf. S.E. spatterdashes, gaiters.

splattered, get. To lose heavily: racing, esp. bookies': since ca. 1920. Sunday Telegraph, 7 May 1967.

splendacious, splendidious, splendidous, splendiferous. Very splendid, remarkably fine, magnificent; excellent: resp. 1843, Blackwood's, 'Some splendacious pattern in blue and gold' (OED), which notes forms in -aceous (Thackeray, 1848) and -ations, all slightly ob. and all coll.: C.15–20, being S.E. until C.19 (rare before 1880; now ob.), then coll.; splendidous, S.E. in C.17, is rare in coll. and now extremely ob.; splendiferous—loosely—erous, S.E. in C.15–16 for 'abounding in splendour', was in C.17—early 19, like Splendidious, 'subterranean' in usage, and, like splendacious, it arose again in 1843 (Haliburton's 'Splendiferous white hoss', OED), to be more gen. in US than in Britain. All four are, in mid-C.19–20, joc. in tendency.

splice, n. A wife: ca. 1820–1930. Ex splice, to marry.—2. Marriage; a wedding: 1830 (Galt); 1876, Holland, 'I'm going to pay for the splice' (OED).—3. In sit on (or upon) the splice, to play a strictly defensive bat: cricket s. >, by 1935, coll.: from ca. 1905. (Lewis.) As if to sit on the shoulder of the bat.

splice, v. To join in matrimony (gen. in passive): 1710 (John Shadwell, The Fair Quaker of Deal: Moe). Hence, get spliced, to get married: late C.18–20. (Ainsworth, 1839.) Ex lit. nautical sense.—2. Hence, to coit.: low: C.19–20.—3. At Winchester College (—1897), to throw or fling.

splice the mainbrace. 'Issue a double tot of rum to the ship's company on an occasion for celebration [as in, e.g., "The order was given: 'Splice the mainbrace!']". In sailing ships the mainbrace was most difficult to splice, it being placed in a highly dangerous position, and when the hands had finished the job they received a double tot of rum' (Granville): RN: 1805 (OED). Hence, (with) mainbrace well spliced, thoroughly drunk. Also splice of the main-brace, a drink, orig. of rum, hence of any spirits, as in Dublin University Magazine, 1835, May, p. 549 (Moe).

spliced. Married: see splice, v., 1.

splicer. A sailor: lower-classes' coll.: late C.19–20. (Manchon.) Ex the S.E. sense, one (gen. a sailor) who splices, or specialises in splicing, ropes.

spliff. 'Hand-rolled cigarette' (Home Office): prisons' c.: later C.20. Cf.:—2. (? Hence or ex) 'a marijuana cigarette' (Ibid.): drugs world: id.

split, n. A detective, a police spy, an informer: c.:—1812 (Vaux); still in occ. use for a detective, 1950 (Tempest). Ex split, v., 2. See splits, 3, and cf. split (upon). 'Girls who tell tales are called splits...', quoted in Mallory Wober, English Girls' Boarding Schools, 1971.—2. A drink of two liquors mixed: coll.: 1882, Society, 11 Nov., 'The "nips", the "stims", the "sheries" and Angosturas', the "splits" of young Contango' (OED).—3. A split soda: coll.: 1884 (OED); but a split soda occurs in H., 5th ed., 1874.—4. Hence, a half-size bottle of mineral water: coll. (1896: OED) >, by mid-C.20 at latest, j.—5. A half-glass of spirits: coll.:—1903.—6. In the same semantic group as senses 2–5: a split bun or roll: coll.: 1905; and a split vote, 1894. OED.—7. A harlot's bully: c.:—1909 (Ware). He splits her earnings with her.—8. 'A division of profits' (OED Sup.): low:—1919.—9. A ten-shilling currency note (i.e. half a £1 note): low: ca. 1920–40. Cf.:—10. Change (in money); small change: low: 1893 (P.H. Emerson, Signor Lipponi).—11. A safely match: Aus.: C.20. B., 1959.—12. In (at) full split, at full speed: coll.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1865. 'Rolf Boldrewood', 1890, 'In saddle and off full-split' (OED). Cf.:—13. In (go) like split, (to go) at full speed: coll.: US (ca. 1848), partly anglicised ca. 1870, but never so gen. as 12.—14. In make all split, to cause, make, a commotion: coll.: late C.16–17. Shakespeare.

split, v.i. To copulate: low: C.18–20. P.B.: in later C.20, also v.t., as in 'when [an army vehicle] passes a girl, aged six years old upwards, the usual [soldierly] remark is "Cor, I'd like to split that one"' (M. Yardley, New Statesman, 2 Oct. 1981, p. 15).—2. To turn informer, give evidence to the police: c. (—1795) >, ca. 1850, low s.—3. Hence, to betray confidence, give evidence injurious to others: 1840, Dickens, but prob. a decade earlier. See also split about and split on.—4. Hence, v.t., to disclose, let out: 1850, Thackeray, 'Did I split anything?' (OED); ob. by 1930.—5. V.i., to act vigorously: coll.: adopted, ca. 1870, ex US; ob. by 1930. Prob. ex:—6. V.i., to move, esp. to run, walk gallop, etc.: coll.: 1790, R. Tyler, 'I was glad to take to my heels and split home, right off' (OED); 1888, Adam Lindsay Gordon, Poems, 'We had run him for seven miles or more./As hard as our nags could split.' Also split along and go like split. Cf.:—7. To run away; to escape: adopted, ca. 1960, ex US. Adrian Reid, Hitch-Hiker, 1970. Cf.:—8. Hence, simply, to depart; go away; to leave one person or a group: orig. US hippies' >, by 1970, gen. A. Stuart, The Bikers, 1971; Powis.—9. To speak: Liverpool street arabs': late C.19—early 20. (Arab.) Ex sense 2.—10. V.i., to divide, or share in, profits: low:—1919 (OED Sup.). Cf. n., 8.

split, adj. See wilderness, 1.

split about. To divulge; esp. to the police: 1836 (The Annual Register: OED).

split ace, the. See hot seat.

split along. To move very fast: coll.: C.19—early 20. See split, v., 6.

split-arse, n. (? Usu. pl.) 'Dumplings that had burst open (also vulgarly applied to nuns)' (D. Butcher, Driftermen, 1979, glossary): nautical: C.20.

split-arse, adj. 'He's a pukka split-arse pilot'—i.e. stunt pilot: RAF: since ca. 1915. (Jackson.) Cf. split-arse turn. Col. Archie White, VC, adds, in a letter 1970: 'A cavalry term before the R.A.F. came up. A horse, at its fullest gallop and seen from behind, visibly plays its legs.'—2. Hence, addicted to stunting: RAF since ca. 1920.—3. 'Used by the South Africans (in the Air Force) to indicate very good or very clever, e.g. "split-arse navigator"' (Robert Hinde, 1945).

split-arse, adv. A low var. of (at) full split, full speed:—1923 (Manchon).

split-arse cap. The (former) RFC cap, rather like a Glengarry: Air Force: 1915—ca. 1920. (B. & P.) It has been kept alive by the RAF for the field-service cap as distinct from the peaked dress-service cap. (Jackson.) Cf. cunt cap.

split-arse landing. A daring landing at speed: RAF: since ca. 1925. Jackson.

split-arse mechanic. A harlot: low: C.19. Cf. split-mutton, 2.

split-arse merchant. A merely reckless flyer; a fine 'stunt' flyer: RFC/RAF: from 1915. B. & P.

split-arse pilot. See split-arse, adj.

split-arse turn. A flat turn, without banking; it is caused by using the rudder instead of rudder and ailerons: RFC/RAF: prob. from ca. 1917.

split-arsed one. A female (esp., baby): low: late C.19—20.

split-arsing. 'Stunting low and flying near the roofs of billets or huts': Air Force: from 1915. (B. & P.) See next, and splitassing.

split-arsing about. Elab. of prec.: since ca. 1916.—2. Hence, acting the fool in a dangerous way: all three Services': since ca. 1925. P-G-R.

split asunder. A costermonger: defective s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.).

split beaver. See beaver, 6.

split-cause. A lawyer: coll.:—1785; ob. by 1870, † by 1910. Grose, 1st ed.

split chums. To break friendship: Conway cadets: from before 1891. (John Masefield, The Conway, 1933.) Cf. part brass-rags, q.v., and split with.

Split Crow, the. The Spread Eagle, tavern and sign.: from ca. 1780; ob. Grose, 1st ed., '... Two heads on one neck, gives it somewhat [this] appearance.'

split fair. To tell the truth: mid-C.19—20. See split, v., 2.

split-fig. A grocer: coll.: late C.17—early 19; then dial. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) Cf. nip-cheese.

split-hairing. A euph. for split-arsing. B. & P.

split-mutton. The penis: low: ?C.17—19.—2. Women in gen.; a woman as sex: low: ?C.18—early 20. See mutton; cf. split-arse mechanic.

split my windpipe! 'A foolish kind of a Curse among the Beaux' (B.E.): coll.: late C.17—mid-18. Also split me: C.18—early 19 (Cibber, Thackeray: OED).

split on upon. To inform the police about (a person): c. (—1812) >, ca. 1840, low s. >, ca. 1870, gen. s. Vaux (upon); on app. unrecorded before 1875, OED). See split, v., 2, and cf. split about and split fair.

split out. V.i., to part company, to separate: c.: from ca. 1875; ob. by 1930. Superseded by split, v., 8.

split pea. Tea: rhyming s.:—1857 ('Ducange Anglicus'). Rare; † by 1900.

split pilot. A var. of split-arse merchant: from 1932.

split soda. 'A bottle of soda water divided between two guests. The "baby" soda is for one client': tavern coll.: from ca. 1860. Ware.

split stuff. Women collectively: low Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Physiological; cf. slotted jobs.

split the difference. A punning elab. of split, v., 1: ca. 1960. (L.A., 1974.)

split the grain, enough to. Enough to make one drunk: coll.: from ca. 1880. Pugh (2): 'But... go easy with this... Jest enough to screw you up, y'know, but not enough to split the grain.' split 'un. A bank-note split in two: Aus. low coll.: C.20. Baker.

split-up. A division of booty: c., and low: C.20. Gilt Kid, 1936.

split-up. A lanky person: from ca. 1875. Ex (well) split-up, long-limbed, itself (Baumann) s. from ca. 1870, prob. suggested by splits, q.v.

split upon. See split on.

split with. To break off acquaintance with; to quarrel with: 1835 (G.P.R. James: OED): s. >, ca. 1910, coll. In C.20, occ. absolutely, split, as in 'For good reasons, we don't wish to split.' Cf. split chums.

split yarn, on a. 'Ready for instant anchor' (Peppitt cites D.A. Foster, The Ways of the Navy, 1931): RN: C.20. Granville has simply, of have everything on a split yarn, 'to be ready to carry out an evolution'.—2. Hence, to have a plan worked out: RN: since ca. 1925.

splitacer. A 'stunting' aviator: RAF: from 1918. (OED Sup.) Ex split-arse. Cf. split-arse merchant.

splitassing. A euph. of split-arsing, q.v. B. & P.

splitthers. See razzor.

splits. Split peas or lentils: domestic and grocers' coll.: C.20.—2. Always as the splits, esp. do the s., in dancing or acrobatics, the act of separating one's legs and lowering oneself until, right-angled to the body, they extend flat along the ground: 1851 (Mayhew, ii, 569): coll. >, ca. 1890, S.E. Also, though rare and ob., in the singular, as in Mayhew, iii, 1861.—3. As the splits, the police: grafters': late C.19—20. (Cheepjack, 1934.) Ex split, n., 1.

splitter (of causes). A lawyer; esp. one addicted to hair-splitting distinctions: coll.: later C.17—earlier 18. (Richard Head, Proteus Redivivus, 1675; B.E.) Cf. split-cause.

splodger. A country lout: coll.:—1860. (H., 2nd ed.) Ex splodge, to trudge through mud and/or water.—2. (esp., in address) 'Codger': rhyming s.: 1856 (H. Mayhew, The Great World of London); † by 1920.—3. A body-snatcher (?): ?ca. 1840—80. 'I'm Happy Jack the Splodger./I'm as happy as I can be,/Cos when I digs the bodies up,/The worms crawl over me' (The 'saga' of Happy Jack).

splodgy. Coarse-looking; (of complexion) pimply: proletarian coll.: mid-C.19—20. (B. & L.) Lit., splotchy.

splash, n. Money: low: 1893, Gus Elen, 'Since Jack Jones come into that little bit o' splash'; ob. by 1930. ?ex splash; prob. cognate with splash, adv. (q.v.).—2. An abrupt, resounding fall into water; a 'quantity of water suddenly dashed or dropped': dial. (1895) >, by 1910 at latest, coll. E.M. Stooke (EDD); Collinson. Echoic.

splash, adv. Plump: coll. >, ca. 1920, S.E.: 1891, Anon., Harry Fluëder, 'Such larks when you heard the ball go splash on a man's hat.' Echoic.

splashing it on, adj. or n. Betting heavily; heavy betting: racing, esp. bookies': since ca. 1920. (Sunday Telegraph, 7 May 1967.) Ex heavy (and careless) application of any thick liquid, paint, cosmetics, etc.

splutter. A 'shindy' or 'dust'; a scandal: low:—1923 (Manchon). Ex C.19—20 dial.

splutterbug. 'People are even becoming nostalgic about early diesel engines [locomotives] ("splutterbugs", as the enthusiasts call them, with schoolboy humour' (Peter Godfrey, article on railway preservation, New Society, 19 July 1979). Perhaps modelled on shutterbug. (P.B.)

spo. Stoker Petty Officer; 'One word. Like Poito [q.v.] it was just another way of hanging on to the old ranks. When it was changed to Petty Officer Mechanic (Engineering) they were also known as Pommy' (John Malin, 1979): RN submariners': 1960s.—2. A spot: Charterhouse: C.20. Cf. squo for the form.

Spode's law. 'If something can go wrong, it will'—esp. in scientific research: scientists', pharmaceutical chemists', technologists': since ca. 1930. (Ronald K. Rogers, 21 Nov. 1967.) Cf. the rather earlier scientific dictum about the mythical fourth general law of the physicists, 'the cussedness of the universe tends to a maximum'. P.B.: E.P. may have back-dated this too far: it sounds like a bowdlerisation of Sod's law, q.v. Cf. Murphy's law.

spodiodi. A 'mixture of cheap port and bar whisky' affected by the jazz world (Victoria, BC, Daily Colonist, 16 Apr. 1959, 'Basic Beatnik'): Can. jazz-lovers' and musicians': since ca.

1955. Origin? Apparently arbitrary—perhaps after such a name as asti spumante.

spoffish. Fussy, bustling, officious: 1836, (Dickens); 1935, Ivor Brown. Observer, 11 Aug. Very ob. Perhaps suggested by officious or fussy; obviously, however, derived ex or cognate with spoffle, q.v.; cf. spoffy.

spoffle, v.i. To fuss or bustle: from ca. 1830; very ob. by 1930. Ex East Anglian dial. spuffle, to fuss, bustle; be in a flurry or great haste (Forby's glossary, ca. 1825). EDD. Cf. spoffish, spoffy.

spoffskins. A harlot; esp. a courtesan willing to pretend to (temporary) marriage: low: ca. 1880–1910.

spoffy. The same as, and ex, spoffish, q.v.: 1860 (H., 2nd ed.); ob.—2. Hence, n.

spogh. V.i., 'to show off, make a display': S. African coll.: 1871 (Dugmore, Reminiscences of an Albany Settler). Ex Dutch pochen, to boast. Pettman.

spoil, n. Stolen property: NZ c.:—1932.

spoil, v. In boxing, to damage, injure, seriously: sporting: 1811 (OED); very ob. Egan, 1821, has spoil one's mouth, to damage the face.—2. To prevent (a person) from succeeding, to render (a building, etc.) unsuitable for robbery: c.:—1812 (Vaux); ob. by 1930.—3. Hence, in seashore-nautical s., as in R.C. Leslie, 1884, "Spoil a gent" is used ... in the sense of disgusting him with the sea and so losing a good customer' (OED).

spoil-bread. A baker: coll.: ca. 1860–1930. Cf.:

spoil-broth. A cook: same status and period. Cf. C.20 grub-spoiler.

spoil dandy. A severe blow: pugilistic: ca. 1810–40. T. Moore, Tom Cribb's Memorial, 1819.

spoil-iron. A smith: coll.: later C.18—early 20. (Grose, 1st ed.) Cf.:-

spoil-pudding. A long-winded preacher: ca. 1785–1850. Grose, 2nd ed.

spoil the shape of (someone). See shope, n., 1.

spoil the ship for a ha'porth (or halfpennyworth) of tar, (earlier lose the ship...). To lose or spoil by foolish economy: a C.19–20 coll. perversion of the late C.16–18 proverbial sheep, often—in dial.—pron. ship. 'Tar is used to protect sores or wounds in sheep from flies, and the consequent generation of worms,' Apperson; tar being the cause of the error.

spoiling salt water. A sea-cook's job: nautical coll.: mid-C.19—early 20. Bowen.

spoke. Spoken: in C.19–20, coll. (latterly, low coll.) when neither dial. nor joc. (e.g. 'English as she is spoke').—2. See spoken to.

spoke-box. The mouth: joc. coll.: 1874 (Anon., The Siliad); ob. by 1930.

spoke to. See speak to.

spoken, illiterately spoke, to. Robbed; stolen: see speak to.—2. In a bad way (gen. physically); dying: c.:—1812; ob. Vaux. Lit., warned.

spoke(n) to the crack, hoist, screw, sneak, etc. Robbed or stolen in the manner indicated by the nn., q.v.: c.: C.19. Spokeshay. Shakespeare: joc. Aus.: C.20. By perverted reversal: perhaps on spokeshave. Cf. Waggle-dagger.

spok(e)y. A wheelwright: army: early C.20. (F. & G.) Ex the spokes of a wheel.—2. As Spok(e)y, the 'inevitable' nickname of men surnamed Wheeler or Wheelwright: Services': id. Ibid.

spoin; spons. Money: Aus.: from ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Ex-spondoolic(k)s, -ix; spondulacks; spondulicks (the most gen.), -ics, -ix. Money; cash: US (1857), anglicised ca. 1885: resp.—1903, 1902;—1903; 1863, ca. 1870, and 1857. G.A. Sala, 8 Dec. 1883, derives it, by 'enlarged vulgarisation' (or perversion and elab.), from greenbacks, its orig. signification; 'Pomes' Marshall; Thornton. A more prob. origin, I suggest, is Gr. spondulikos, adj. of spondulos, a species of shell very popular in prehistoric and early historic commerce; cf. the use of cowrie shells as money in ancient Asia and in both ancient and modern Africa.

1130

sponge, v.t. To throw up the sponge on behalf of (a defeated person or animal); gen. to be sponged, to have this happen to 'one': 1851 (Mayhew: OED); ob. by 1930. Despite dates, prob. ex chuck or throw up the sponge, to give in; submit: coll.: resp. from ca. 1875 and 1860 (H., 2nd ed.). 'Rolf Boldrewood', 1889 (chuck); 'Captain Kettle' Hyne, 1899. Ex boxing, where this action signifies defeat.

sponge-bag cap and trousers. An officer's peaked cap, with the grommet removed from the crown, with consequent floppiness; trousers that have become floppy, esp. baggy at the knees: both, army: WW1. V. Purcell, Memoirs of a Malayan Official, 1967, (cap); Leslie S. Beale, 1979 (trousers).

sponged. Struck, assaulted: joc. coll.: since mid-late 1950s. Ex BBC Radio comedy series 'The Goon Show', a recurring line, 'Ooh, mate, I bin sponged!', said in a pained, 'common' voice. Hence, it came to mean 'hit in the pocket; grossly overcharged'. Echoic. (P.B.)

Spongy. An 'inevitable' nickname for men surnamed Baker: late C.19—early 20. Cf. Doughy and Snowy.

spunk. Infatuated. Public School girls': since late 1940s; by 1967, ob. John Winton, We Saw the Sea, 1960, "I had a crush on my games mistress," Mary said. "I was absolutely spunk on her." Less prob. ex spunk+bonkers than ex adj. spanking+bonkers.

spons. See spoin.

spoo, n. A nonsensical hoaxing game: 1889 (OED). The name and the game were invented by Arthur Roberts the comedian (1852–1933).—2. Hence, a card game in which certain cards, occurring together, are called 'spoo'; 1895 (OED).—3. Ex sense 1: humbug; hoaxing: 1897 (OED); an instance of this (—1903).—4. A theatrical var. (ca. 1896–1914) of oof, money. Ware.—5. Confidence-trick swindle: low:—1890; ob. B. & L.—6. Misleading or 'planted' information: army, esp. B. Intelligence: since ca. 1940. (Peter Sanders.)

spoo, v.t. To hoax; humbug: 1895, 'I "spoo" him—to use a latter-day term' (Punch, 28 Dec.: OED). Ex n., 1, q.v.—2. Hence, v.i., to practise hoaxing or humbugging, gen. with present ppl. ('You're not spoofing, are you?'): from ca. 1920.

spoo, adj. Hoaxing; humbugging: 1895, A. Roberts, 'My "spoo French" has often been the subject of amusement' (OED).—2. Hence, bogus, sham: C.20.

spoofer. One who 'spoofs': see spoo, v. From ca. 1910; by 1935, almost coll.

spooferies, the. A sporting club—or, generically, sporting clubs—of an inferior kind: ca. 1889–1912. (Ware.) Ex spoo, n., 1. Cf. the coll. spoofer, cheating (1926: OED Sup.).

spook, n. An artillery signaller; artillerymen's joc. s.: from 1915. (F. & G.) 'Perhaps because signallers occasionally practise at night with lamps' (Leechman).—2. A drug addict: c.: since ca. 1943. (Norman.) Such addicts tend to look ghastly.—3. A Negro, esp. a West Indian: adopted, ca. 1965, ex US. But even in 1977, spade, q.v., was by far the commoner throughout the British Commonwealth. W. & F. offer no date earlier than 1947, neither do they explain its origin. Prob. it comes from the fear shown by many young white children at their first sight of a Negro. The term occurs in, e.g., N.J. Crisp, The Gotland Deal, 1976. Hence the adj. spooky, as in Frank Norman, 1959, in Encounter.—4. A cloak-and-dagger man, spy or political agent; espionage: since (?) ca. 1950, familiarised by the efforts of the American CIA. Whence spook house, a headquarters of a department of military intelligence. John Le Carré, Honourable Schoolboy, 1977.

spook, v. To render (a horse or other quadruped) nervous: Can.: since ca. 1930. 'Don't show him the whip, you'd spook him'—'You'll never catch him now, he's spooked.' To cause to shy or to gallop away, as if at sight of a spook or ghost. Perhaps of US orig. (cf. W. & G.); Dr D. Leechman thinks not. By later C.20 also Brit., as v.i., (of a horse) to shy away from insignificant or unseen things, e.g. a reed shaken by the wind: horsemen's. (Mrs Jane Littmoden, 1980.) spoon, n. A simpleton; a fool: 1799 (OED): s. >, ca. 1850, coll.; ob. Vaux, 1812, 'It is usual to call a very prating shallow fellow a rank spoon.' Ex its openness and shallowness, but imm. ex spooney, n., 1.—2. A sentimental, esp. if silly, fondness: in pl, 1868; in singular, from ca. 1880. Slightly ob. Ex be spoons on or with, q.v.—3. Hence, a sweetheart: 1882 (OED); slightly ob. by 1930.—4. Hence, a flirtatious person; a flirtation: C.20.—5. At spoons, H., 3rd ed. (1864) gives several terms that, used by a certain firm in 1861–2, he thought might > gen. commercial s.; but they didn't.—6. In come the spoon, to make ridiculous, too sentimental, love: ca. 1890–1930.—7. In feed with a spoon, to corrupt by bribing: coll.:—1923 (Manchon).—8. See born with a silver spoon ...; stick (one's) spoon ...; greasy spoon.

spoon, v.i. To make love, esp. if very sentimentally and, in addition, rather silly: 1831 (Lady Granville: OED). Prob. ex spoon, n., 1.—2. Hence, to flirt: coll.: since late C.19. Philip Gaskell cites Trollope, The Way We Live Now, 1875.—3. V.t. To court, to make love to, in a sentimental way: 1877 (Mrs Forrester: OED); ob. Cf. spoon on.—All senses are frequent as vbl nn. in the same status; but derivatives not listed here are not much used and are rather S.E. than 'unconventional'.—4. To make things easy for (a person, esp. for a pupil): Winchester College: since ca. 1880. E.H. Lacon Watson, In the Days of his Youth, 1935, 'You'd never have got your remove last half if Wray hadn't spooned you.' I.e. spoon-feed.

spoon about, v.i. To run after women; play the gallant: C.20. (Ibid.) See spoon, v. 2.

spoon and gravy. Full-dress evening clothes (men's): C.20; ob. (Mr R. Ellis Roberts vouches for its use in 1903.)

spoon in the wall. See stick (one's) spoon ...

spoon on. Same as spoon v., 3: ca. 1880–1930. Ex spoon, v., 1.

spoon-victuals. (Of a batsman) getting under a ball: Cambridge cricketers': 1870s. (Lewis.) An elab. of spoon (in cricket j.).

spooney, spoony, n. A simpleton; a fool: 1795 (Potter); ob. Cf. spoon, n., 1.—2. Hence (—1812), adj. Vaux.—3. Sentimentally in love, foolishly amorous: 1836 (Marryat: OED); in 1828 with (uppon),—'I felt rather spoony upon that vixen' (OED). Ex spoon, v., 1.—4. Hence, one thus in love or thus amorous: 1857 ('C. Bede': OED).—5. An effeminate youth or man: ca. 1825–80. Thackeray, Vanity Fair, 1848, 'Jim says he's remembered at Oxford as Miss Crawley still—the spooney.' spoons. In be spoons on (1863) or with (—1860; † by 1910), to be sentimentally, esp. if silly, in love with (a girl; very rarely the converse). H., 2nd ed. Prob. ex spoon, n., 1.—2. Also (of a couple) it's (a case of) spoons with them, they are sentimentally in love: from ca. 1863; ob. by 1930.—3. In fill the mouth with empty spoons, to go hungry: coll.: late C.17–18. Ray.

spoony. See spooney.—2. Adv., foolishly or sentimentally, esp. in spoony drunk, sentimentally drunk, as in the Lex. Bal., 1811; ob. by 1930.

spoony stuff. 'Weak, sentimental work, below contempt': London theatrical: ca. 1882–1915. Ware.

sporrán. The pubic hair: late C.19–20 low. Ex S.E. sporrán.

spout, n. A 'good sport', either one who subordinates his or her own personality or abilities to the gen. enjoyment; or of women only, one who readily accords the sexual favour: coll.: C.20. Hence, be a sport! = don't be a spoil-sport! Abbr. a good sport, ex spout, a sportsman: cf. sporty. Be a Sport! occurs in, e.g., Punch, 21 May 1913. As a term of address, it has been current in Aus. since before WW1. See old sport.

spout, v. (Thanks mainly to OED, but by no means negligibly to F. & H.) To read (a book, an author) for sport: ca. 1690–1710. T. Brown, 'To divert the time with sporting an author.'—2. To stake (money), invest (it) riskily: ca. 1705–1860: s. >, ca. 1750, coll.—3. Hence, to lay (a bet): ca. 1805–50.—4. Prob. ex senses 2, 3: to treat (a person) with food, etc.; to offer (a person) the hospitality of (wine, etc.): Bill Truck, Mar. 1826; 1828–30, in Lytton, as e.g. 'I doesn't care if I sports you a glass of port.' Cognate, however, is: to provide as in sport a dinner, a lunch, etc.: from ca. 1830.—5. Ex sense 2: v.i., to speculate or bet: ca. 1760–1820. 'Chrysal' Johnston.—6. V.t. to spend (money) extravagantly or very freely or ostentatiously: 1859, H. Kingsley 'I took him for a flash overseer, sporting his salary.'—7. To exhibit, display, in company, in public, gen. showily or ostentatiously: from ca. 1710 (esp. common ca. 1770–1830): s. >, ca. 1830, coll. Steele, 1712; J.H. Newman, 'A man ... must sport an opinion when he really had none to give.'—8. Hence, to display on one's person; esp. to wear: s. (1778) >, ca. 1890, coll. 'Pomes' Marshall, 'She sported her number one gloss on her hair/And her very best blush on her cheek.'—9. To go in for (smoking, riding, billiards, etc., etc.); to maintain (e.g., a house, a carriage): from ca. 1805: s. >, ca. 1900, coll.—10. To shut (a door), esp. to signify 'Engaged': orig. and mainly university. Ex sport oak or timber: see oak, 3. Cf. sport in, q.v.—11. (Perhaps hence by metaphors): to open (a door) violently, to force (it): ca. 1805–20.—12. See vbl phrases here ensuing.

sport a baulk. See baulk.

sport a report. To publish it far and wide: mid-C.19—early 20.

sport a right line, be unable to or cannot. To be drunk: ca. 1770–1800. Oxford University. Because of inability to walk straight.

sport a toe. To dance: 1821 (Pierce Egan, Life in London); app. † by 1870.

sport an arse. To prepare for a birching: Public Schools' (? esp. Winchester): late C.19—earlier 20. New Statesman, 11 Oct. 1974.

Sport and Win (or s- and w-). Jim: rhyming s.:—1859; ob. H., 1st ed. Camilla Raab: but this seems unlikely. Franklyn's suggestion (Rhyming) that it = 'gem' gives an unconvincing rhyme. Poss. gin is meant?

sport in. To shut (one) in by closing the door: 1825, Hone, 'Shutting my room door, as if I was "sporting in"': ob. Cf. oak, 3.

sport ivory or (one's) ivory. To grin: from ca. 1785. Grose, 2nd ed.

sport literature. To write a book: 1853, Mrs Gaskell; ob.—very ob.!

sport oak. See oak, 3.

sport off. To do easily, as if for sport: late C.19–20; ob. Cf. sport, v., 1.

sport silk. To ride a race: the turf (coll.): 1885 (Daily Chronicle, 28 Dec.). Ex the silk jacket worn by jockeys.

sport the broom. C., from ca. 1875; as in Anon's Five Years' Penal Servitude, 1877, 'If a man wishes to see the governor, the doctor, or the chaplain, he is to "sport the broom", lay his little hair broom on the floor at the door, directly the cell is opened in the morning' (OED).

sport timber. The Inns of Court var. of sport oak: from ca. 1785; ob. Grose, 2nd ed.

sported oak or door. Same as sporting door, q.v.: from ca. 1870.

sporter. A wearer (of something showy, notable): coll.: late C.19–20.—2. The Sporter is The Sportsman: Public Schools' of ca. 1900–14. P.G. Wodehouse, A Prefect's Uncle, 1903.

sportiness. Sporty characteristics or tendency: coll.: 1896 (Daily Chronicle, 31 Oct.: OED).

sporting, adj. Like, natural to, a 'sport', q.v.: C.20.—2. See:

sporting action. At Winchester College, 'an affected manner, gesture or gait, or a betrayal of emotion' (F. & H.): from ca. 1870. Cf. sport, v., 7.

sporting chance. A slight or a problematic chance: coll.: from mid-1890s: sporting >, almost imm., gen.; by 1935, virtually S.E. Mary Kingsley, 1897, 'One must diminish dead certainties to the level of sporting chances along here' (OED).

sporting door. A door closed against intruders: university: from ca. 1850; ob. (Bristed, 1852: OED). Also the oak. See sport, v., in corresponding senses.

sportings. Clothes worn at the exeat: Charterhouse:—1900 (Tod's Charterhouse).

Sports Ship, the. The SS Borodine: RN coll.: WW1. (F. & G.) It was supply ship and entertainment ship to the Grand Fleet at Scapa Flow.

sportsman is' at certain Public Schools a synonym for 'chap', 'fellow', 'man': from ca. 1890. Arnold Lunn, Loose Ends, 1919.

sportsman for liquor. 'A fine toper' (Ware): sporting: ca. 1880–1910.

sportsmanlike. Straightforward; honourable: coll.: 1899 (E. Phillpotts: OED).

sportsman's gap. The female pudend: low: C.19–20. (Cf. S.E. sporting-house, a brothel, and sporting-piece, a plaything.) Ex gaps in hedges.

sportsman's prayer-book, the. See prayer-book, 3. sportsman's toast. For this allusive coll., see pointer and stubble.

sporty. Sportsmanlike; sporting; generous: 1889 (OED): s. >, ca. 1920, coll.

Spot's, the. The School Sports meeting: Charterhouse: C.20. For the form cf. spo and squo.

s'pose. Suppose, esp. in s'pose so!: coll.: C.19–20. Baumann. sposh. Excellent: mainly theatrical: ca. 1929+. A.A. Milne, Two People, 1931, 'Sposh... I should adore to.' Perhaps a blend of spiffing + posh. P.B.:? simply (it)'s posh.

spot, n. A drop of liquor: coll.: 1885, D.C. Murray, 'A little spot of rum, William, with a squeeze of lemon in it.' In C.20 Anglo-Irish coll., it has a specific sense: a half-glass of whiskey. Ex spot, a small piece or quantity. Cf. Fr. larne. —2. Hence, a small amount of. Gen. a spot of..., e.g. lunch, hence of rest, work, pleasure, music, etc. C.20, but common only since ca. 1915: s. >, ca. 1930, coll. Dorothy L. Sayers, Have His Carcase, 1932. See also spot off. —3. A cake: low: from ca. 1890; ob. See quot'n at scalded, 2. —4. A person—usu. a man—employed by an omnibus company to watch, secretly, its employees: 1894 (OED): coll. >, ca. 1910, j. Ex spot, to detect. —5. Hence, any detective: low: early C.20. A. Neil Lyons, Clara, 1912; Manchon. —6. In (be) in a spot, occ. later, in a bit of a spot, to be in a very difficult or dangerous position or condition: c., from ca. 1930, > by 1939, s.; esp. in the Services. (Gilt Kid, 1936; Partridge, 1945.) Perhaps ex be put on the spot. —7. A worn patch on the pitch: cricketers' coll.:—C.20. Neville Cardus, Good Days, 1934, concerning the third test match, 'It is the duty of all loyal subjects to talk about "a spot" in loud voices so that the Australians will hear.' —8. A guess: from ca. 1932. Gorell, Red Lilac, 1935, 'My spot is that after baiting his poor victim, he had a fancy for the melodramatic.' Cf. spot, v., 3. —9. £10: Aus. low: since ca. 1930. (B., 1942.) Ex US ten-spot, 10 dollars; and cf. spotter, 7. —10. A spotlight: cinematic, since ca. 1925; TV since ca. 1945. By 1960, coll.—11. (cf.: 9.) Since ca. 1965, 100 dollars Aus. See AUSTRALIAN UNDERWORLD, in Appendix. —12. An allotted space in a programme, church service, agenda, etc., as 'They've given me a 5-minute spot near the end': coll.: later C.20. (P.B.) —13. In on the spot, alert; quite certain: 1887, Henley, 'Palm and be always on the spot': low, if not orig. c. Hence, off the spot: uncertain, not alert (in S.E., inexact, irrelevant). —14. In on the spot, a C.20 US c. sense, anglicised ca. 1930 as s. rather than as c.: in the place (and position) pre-arranged for one's murder. The rapidity of the anglicising, once it started, was largely owing to the popularity of Edgar Wallace's play (On the Spot), an excellent 'thriller', and of the ensuing novel (1931). Merely a special application of the S.E. sense, 'at the very place or locality in question'. See esp. Irwin. Hence to put on the spot, to determine and arrange the murder of: adopted, ex US, ca. 1930. The meaning soon weakened, as in, e.g., 'They've rather put you on the spot, haven't they?' = you've been left in an awkward, embarrassing, but not necessarily dangerous, predicament: coll.: since mid-C.20 at latest (P.B.). —15. In off the spot, silly, imbecile: later C.19—early 20. B. & L.—16. See soft spot; vacant spot.

spot, v. To note (a person) as criminal or suspect: c.: 1718 (OED); 1851, Mayhew, 'At length he became spotted. The police got to know him, and he was apprehended, tried, and convicted.' Perhaps ex † spot, 'to stain with some accusation or reproach'. —2. Hence, to inform against (a person): c.: 1865 (Dickens: OED); rare in C.20. —3. (Prob. ex sense 1:) to guess (a horse) beforehand as the winner in a race: orig. turf >, ca. 1890, gen. coll.: 1857, Morning Chronicle, 22 June, 'Having met with tolerable success in spotting the winners.' —4. Hence, to espy; mark, note; recognise, discover, detect: coll.: 1860 (O.W. Holmes). —5. Whence, prob.: to hit (a mark) in shooting: coll.: 1882 (Bret Harte: OED). Although the earliest record of this, as of the prec. sense, is US, there is perhaps no need to postulate an American origin for either; cf., however, H., 1864, 'Orig. an Americanism, but now gen.' —6. (Ex spotting winners.) To gamble, v.t. and v.i.: low: from ca. 1890; ob. F. & H. —7. To pick out the best of (the land) for one's farm or station: N.Z.:—1898 (Morris). Also, in C.20, Aus. (B., 1959). Cf. the Aus. peacock and pick the eyes out. —8. Hence, to look for (a building) to break into: c.:—1933 (Charles E. Leach, On Top of the Underworld). —9. (Gen. spot at.) To jeer (at); make fun (of): S. African coll.:—1906. Ex Dutch spotten, to mock or jeer. Pettman. —10. To set a box- or other freight-car in the right place for loading or unloading: Can. Railwaymen's since ca. 1905; by 1920, coll. (Leechman.) spot at. See spot, v., 9.

spot below. Six (in game of House): mostly army: C.20. The counter for number 6 has a spot below to distinguish it from 9 upside down.

spot-joint. A booth for the presentation of a form of amusement popular at fairs: grafters': C.20. Cheappjack, 1934.

spot of, 'a little' (see spot, n., 2), was adumbrated so long ago as in Wm Maginn's translation of Memoirs of Vidocq, III, 1829, 'He leads them to a spot of work'—a burglary; spot of bother, trouble: army officers': since ca. 1914; the recent spot of bother, WW1 or WW2.

spot(-)on. An, orig. occ., var. of bang on: RAF: 1940–5. Since late 1940s, the usu. term in Aus. (B.P.). P.B.: in UK it has completely superseded the dated bang on, to mean 'absolutely accurate, precise, exact', as 'she arrived spot on 6 o'clock', or 'just what is required', as 'How was that graph paper I sent you?'—'Spot on, thanks—lovely.'

spots off or out of, knock. See knock spots.

spots, see. See see stars.

spots on burnt (, e.g. two). (E.g. two) poached eggs on toast: low:—1923 (Manchon).

spottam. Butter: RN training ships': late C.19—(?) mid-20. (J.R. West, concerning TS Indefatigable, 1909: Peppitt.) Cf. spats, 3.

spotted, ppl adj. Known to the police: c.:—1791 (Tufts). Ex spot, v., 1.

spotted convey. A c. var.,—1923 (Manchon), of-spotted Dick. A suet pudding made with currants or raisins: 1849 (Soyer, The Modern Housewife: OED): coll. >, ca. 1890, S.E. Ex the raisins that, on the surface, give the pudding a spotty appearance. Cf. the next three entries.

spotted dog. The same: from ca. 1865: coll. that had by 1920 > S.E. Prob. dog puns dough, as Ware suggests.

—2. Among soldiers, a sausage or a saveloy: from ca. 1885; very ob. Ex the legend. Cf. spotted mystery. —3. A current loaf: Aus.: C.20. Ex 1.—4. As the Spotted Dog, the Kuala Lumpur Club (in Malaya/Malaysia): ca. 1905–41, then nostalgically. (C.M.L. Elliott, letter, 1970.) P.B.: the Club was still thus known in the mid-1950s, and the explanation for the name was unpleasantly racist.

spotted donkey; spotted leopard. The same as spotted Dick: resp. schools' (—1887), ob. (Baumann); low urban, from ca. 1880 (Ware).

spotted duff. A coll. var. (from ca. 1870) of spotted Dick. Ware.

spotted mystery. Tinned beef: military: from ca. 1880; ob. An elab. on mystery, a sausage, and on potted (mystery). Cf. spotted dog, 2.

spotter. A var. of spot, n., 3; an informer (see spot, v., 2); a detective whose job it is to unmask beggars: all in Manchon and therefore from before 1923: the first, s.; the second, c.; the third, police coll.—4. He who 'spots' a likely victim for a 'mob' to rob: police s.: C.20. Charles E. Leach.—5. An employee assigned to watch the behaviour of other employees: Can. railroadmen's:—1931. Cf. senses 1–3. Also on Can. trams; by 1959, ob. (Leechman.) Cf. spot, n., 4, q.v.—6. A man on the look-out for military police: army: WW2. (P-G-R.) Ex, e.g., plane-spotter, one on watch for enemy aircraft.—7. As suffix: 'Financial embarrassment... puts me under the necessity of borrowing a five-spotter [5 francs]' (Punch, 30 Apr. 1919): army in France. Cf. spot, n., 9 and 11, qq.v.

spousy. A spouse; gen., husband: joc. coll.: ca. 1795–1820. (OED.) On hubby.

spout, n. A large mouth, esp. if mostly open; lower classes' coll.:—1909 (Ware).—2. A showman's 'palaver' or patter: showmen's: from ca. 1880. (Neil Bell, Crocus, 1936.) Cf. v., 2, and synon. spiel.—3. Penis: low: C.19–20.—4. A cannon: Woolwich Arsenal: earlier C.20. Daily Mail, 16 Aug. 1939.—5. In great spout, in high spirits; noisy: late C.18–mid-19; then dial. (Grose in his Provincial Glossary, 1787.) Perhaps ex spout, to declaim.—6. See up the spout.

spout, v. To pawn: c.:—1811 (Lex. Bal.). From ca. 1850, (low) s.; in C.20, ob. Hughes, 1861, 'The dons are going to spout the college plate.' Ex spout, a pawnbroker's shoot, which, despite F. & H., is S.E.—2. To talk (without any such modification as characterises S.E.): c.:—1933 (Charles E. Leach).

spout Billy. To make a living by reciting Shakespeare in tap-rooms: low coll.:—1823; ob. by 1900, † by 1930. (Bee.) Poor William! Also spout Bill. Cf. swan-singer, q.v.

spout ink. To write books, etc.: coll.: ca. 1880–1930. Cf. sling ink.

spowser. See sprasser.

sprag, n. A fop or gallant: early C.18. See FORS, in Appendix.—2. A goods guard: Eastern Railway employees': ca. 1890–1925. (Railway, 2nd.) Perhaps ex dial. sprag, to put a brake on something.—3. 'A good sized cod' (Piper): trawlermen's: C.20. Butcher, Trawlermen, 1980, glosses it 'Half-grown cod'.

sprag, v. 'To accost truculently' (C.J. Dennis): Aus.:—1916. Prob. same deriv. as n., 2.—2. To deny employment to (a man): trawlermen's coll.: C.20. 'He used to be one of the best of hands but they've spragged him. They said he was the ringleader of a strike we had here' (Piper). Peppitt noted the var. spraggled, in the ITV programme, 'A Life Apart', 13 Feb. 1973.

spraggers. Var. of spaggers.

sprain (one's) ankle. See ankle.

sprang. Tea; any drink: army: early C.20. (F. & G.) A corruption, prob. of Southern dial. sprank, a sprinkling, a slight shower (EDD).

sprarser, -sey, -sie, -zer, -zy; spraser, sprasey; sparsie; spowser; sprowsie, -sy. All variants of a word for (a) sixpence: among grafters, market-traders; the last, nautical: C.20; ob. by 1980. (The 2nd, Muover; 4th, M.T.; 5th, Red Daniells; 6th, 7th, P. Allingham; 8th, P. Tempest; 10th, 11th, George Orwell.) Perhaps ex next, 1, on Suzie.

sprat. A sixpence: low s. (Brandon, 1839) >, c. 1880, gen. s.; ob. by 1935. Cf. prec., and contrast sprat's eye. Prob. ex its smallness and that of the fish.—2. A sweetheart: low: from ca. 1870; ob. Cf. fig. use of bloater, duck, pippin.

Sprat Day. Lord Mayor's Day: Cockneys': since ca. 1840; ob. Mayhew, I, 1851, 'Sprats... are generally introduced about the 9th of November.'

sprat to catch a herring (—1826) or a whale (1869) or a mackerel (C.20). Often, earlier, throw or cast a sprat... (to make) a small sacrifice in the hope of gaining much greater advantage: proverbial coll. Grand Allen, in Tents of Shem, 'He's casting a sprat to catch a whale.'

sprat-weather. A dark winter's day: fishermen's coll.:

—1887; ob. (Baumann; Bowen.) Such weather is suitable for the catching of sprats.

sprats. Personal effects; furniture: low: from ca. 1880; ob. Cf. sticks.—2. See handful of sprats.

sprauncy. As in 'At the darkest end of the wardrobe there was this Flash Suit. A real spraucy whistle' (Red Daniells, Brit. Jnl of Photography, 13 June 1980).

spray that again! Usu. will you, or you can, spray..., a rebuke to someone who sprays saliva when talking: lowish: since ca. 1950. (Jack Slater.) A pun on 'You can say that again!'

spread, n. A saddle: c.: late C.18–mid-19. (Tufts.) Cf. S.E. spread, a coverlet.—2. ? hence, a shawl: low:—1859; ob. H., 1st ed.—3. Butter: c. (—1811) >, ca. 1840, low s.; slightly ob. Lex. Bal.; H., 3rd ed., 'A term with workmen and school-boys.' Because spread, but prob. influenced by bread. Cf. spread, q.v.—4. An umbrella: ca. 1820–50. Egan's Grose.—5. A banquet; an excellent or a copious meal: coll.: from ca. 1820. David Carey, Life in Paris, 1822; 'Pomes' Marshall, 1897.—6. Hence, any meal, as in morning spread, breakfast (Spy, II, 1826); among sporting men, a dinner (H., 5th ed., 1870).—7. An option: Stock Exchange: late C.19—earlier 20. Prob. suggested by straddle.—8. A plasterer: builders': C.20.—9. Jam, marmalade, or anything else that is spread upon bread: perhaps orig. Can. since late C.19; by 1940, coll. and gen., and in later C.20 informal S.E., as in, e.g., 'sandwich spread'. Ex sense 3. (Leechman; P.B.)—10. 'A herbalist who sells a mixture of dried plants. He spreads these herbs out in front of him and lectures on the health-giving value of each'; work the spread, 'to graft as a herbalist': grafters': late C.19–20. Cheapjack, 1934.—11. See do a spread; middle-aged spread.

spread (one's) custard. To vomit: army: later C.20. (P.J. Emrys Jones, 1979.)

spread for (someone). (Of a woman) to dispose her body for sexual intercourse: low: C.20. (L.A., 1978.) Cf. synon. do a spread.

spread it thick or thin. To live expensively; poorly: coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Ex spreading butter, or margarine, thick or thin.

spread (one)self. To make every effort, esp. monetary; to do one's very best, 'damn the expense!': orig. (1832) US, in sense of making a display; anglicised ca. 1890 as a coll.; by 1920, S.E.

spread the royal. (Gen. as vbl n.) To give evidence against confederates: c.:—1935 (David Hume). Ex 'turn King's evidence.'

spread-worker. A herbalist: showmen's: late C.19–20. See spread, n., 10.

spreader. Butter: c.: early C.17. (Rowlands.) Cf. spread, n., 3.—2. A blanket: whalers': C.19. E.J. Wakefield, Adventure in New Zealand, 1845 (recorded by B., 1941).

spreaders. A burglar's large pliers: c.: from ca. 1890. Pugh (2).

spreading broads. 'Playing or cheating at cards. Manipulating the three-card trick' (Powis): c.:—1886 (Underworld).

'Sprecious, Sprecious, S'pacious. A coll. oath: C.17. (Jonson.) Abbr. God's sprecious. OED.

spree. A boisterous frolic; a period of riotous enjoyment: orig. Scots dial. >, by late C.18 (Sessions, Dec. 1798, p. 59) coll. Origin problematic; but W.'s provisional identification, via early dial. var. spray, with spreagh, spreath, foray, cattle-raid, ex Gaelic spréidh, cattle, may well be correct.—2. Hence, a drinking bout, a tipsy carousal: coll.: 1811 (Lex. Bal.). Whence on a spree, enjoying oneself: coll.: 1847 (OED), with which cf. (go) on or upon the spree, have or having a riotous time, esp.—and in C.20 almost solely—on a drinking bout: coll.: 1851, Mayhew, who has the † get on the spree; H., 1st ed., "'Going on the spree", starting out with intent to have a frolic.'—3. Hardly distinguishable from senses 1, 2: 'rough amusement, merrymaking, or sport; prolonged drinking or carousing; indulgence or participation in this' (OED): Scots dial. (—1808) >, ca. 1820, coll. Occ. without article, as in Frank Bullen, 1899, 'A steady course of spree.' OED; EDD.—4. A conceited person: Winchester College: from ca. 1870; ob. by 1930. (Pascoe, Public Schools, 1881.) Ex adj.

spree, v.i. To carouse; have, take part in, a spree: coll.: mid-C.19–20. Mrs Gaskell, 1855 (OED). Ex n., 1, 2. Whence spreeing, vbl n. and, occ., adj.

spree, adj. Befitting a Wykehamist; smart: Winchester: from ca. 1860; ob. Perhaps ex spree-mess, q.v.—2. Conceited: ibid.: from ca. 1870. This sense is applied only to juniors; used of acts, it = 'permissible only to prefects, or those of senior standing' (Wrench). Ex dial.; cognate with S.E. spry and spruce.

spree man, or as one word. A junior permitted to work hard: Winchester College: from ca. 1870. B. & L.

spree-mess. A feast, esp. in the form of a 'spread' at tea-time, raised by subscription or given by departing boys and always held at the end of the half-year: Winchester College: ca. 1840–60. (Mansfield.) Ex spree, n., 1, 2, 3.

spreish. Fond of or frequently sharing in 'sprees': coll.: 1825 (C. Westmacott: OED).—2. Slightly intoxicated: coll.: —1843 (Sessions, Apr.). Ex spree, n., 2.

spress or 'spress. Express; express train: sol.; or rather, low coll.:—1887 (Baumann).

sprey. An occ. spelling of spree; e.g. in Sessions, April 1822.

spridgy – sproggy – spudgy. Aus., esp. juvenile, terms for a sparrow: C.20. (B., 1953.) With the first, cf. the Scottish dial. sprig; with the second, cf. Scottish and N. Country dial. sprog (and sprung); with the third, cf. the Scottish and N. Country dial. spug and Sussex spudger; with all, cf. spudger.

spring. V.i., to offer a higher price: 1851 (Mayhew: OED); ob. by 1890, † by 1930. Whence spring to, q.v.—2. To give; disburse; buy (a certain amount): coll.: 1851, Mayhew, 'It's a feast at a poor country labourer's place when he springs six-penn'orth of fresh herrings'; 1878, J.F. Sullivan, The British Working Man, 'Wot's 'e sprung?' (how much money has he given?). Ex spring, to cause to appear. Contrast rush, to charge extortionately. Both sense 1 and 2 are anticipated by Sessions, 1832 (trial of John Robinson), 'You had better... hear the deal, for I think they will spring a little' (raise, increase, the price).—3. Hence, to afford to buy: late C.19—earlier 20. See spring to.—4. To see: Aus., esp. Sydneyites: since ca. 1945. 'I've never sprung him before' (Edwin Morrisby, 1958).—5. To get a man released from prison, esp. on a technicality: Can.: adopted, ca. 1935, ex US. (Leechman.) In gen. use in UK by 1950, at latest.—6. Hence, to get a man out of prison by plot or even by violence: since ca. 1960.

spring a partridge. To entice a person and then rob or swindle him: c.: late C.17—mid-18. (B.E.) In A New Canting Dict., 1725, collectively as spring partridges. Ex spring partridges, to cause them to rise.

spring a plant. See plant, n., 2.

spring-ankle warehouse. 'Newgate, or any other gaol' (Grose, 1st ed.): c. of ca. 1780–1840: Anglo-Irish. A sprained ankle = disablement = imprisonment.

spring at (one's) elbow, have a. To be a gamester: coll.: latish C.17—mid-18. Ray, 1678. (Apperson.) Cf. the to raise one's elbow of drinking.

spring (one's) cattle. To rush the horses: coachdrivers': C.19. W.O. Tristram, Coaching Days and Coaching Ways, 1888.

spring fleet. N.E. coast collier brigs going into the Baltic trade in the slack coal season: nautical coll.: late C.19—early 20. Bowen.

spring-heeled Jack. A rocket-propelled torpedo: RN: very late C.19—very early 20. (Bowen.) Ex an old term for a highwayman; such were thought to put springs in their boot-heels in order the faster to evade capture (EDD). The term > gen. applied to any man with a bouncing spring to his gait, and is still occ. heard in this latter sense, 1980 (P.B.).

spring like a ha'penny knife, with a. Floppy; with no resilience: lower classes':—1909. Ex 'deadness' of such a knife. Ware.

spring (one's) luff. To display agility in climbing: joc. nautical coll. (ex the S.E. sense): ca. 1865–1935.

spring-sides. Elastic-sided boots: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.

spring the plant. See plant, n., 2.

spring the rattle. (Of a policeman) to give the alarm: policemen's:—1887 (Baumann).

spring to. To be able to pay or give; to afford: coll.: 1901, Anon., Troddles and Us, 'It's seven pound fifteen, and we can spring to that between us.' Ex spring, 1, q.v.—2. Hence, to be able to accomplish: coll.: 1903 (F. & H.).

spring to it! Look lively!: coll.: from 1918 or 1919, esp. among ex-service men. Ex the military order. Cf. wait for it!, q.v., and synon. (and by mid-C.20 commoner) jump to it!

springer. A 'dark' horse so much an outsider that no odds are quoted until just before the race: turf c.:—1932. Ex springing a surprise.—2. A physical-training officer: (lower-deck): since ca. 1920. P-G-R.—3. A planner of a prison escape: since ca. 1960. Cf. the orig. c. spring, to get (someone) released from prison.

springer-up. A tailor selling cheap, ready-made clothes: mid-C.19–20; ob. Mayhew, 1851; H., 1st ed., 'The clothes are said to be "sprung up", or "blown together".'—2. Hence, an employer paying 'famine' wages: lower classes': C.20. Manchon.

Springers, the. The 10th Regiment of Foot (from 1881, the Lincolnshire Regt, made Royal in 1946, and, in 1960, merged into East Anglian Regt); also the 62nd of Foot (later the Wiltshire Regiment): army nicknames: from 1777. Ex a compliment passed by General Burgoyne during the American War of Independence; the Americans 'ran rings round' other, more heavy-footed, red-coat regiments. F. & G.; Carew.

sprinkle. To christen; joc. coll.: mid-C.19–20.

sprio. A sparrow: Sedgeley Park School: ca. 1780–1870. (Frank Roberts in The Cottonian, Autumn 1938.) Thus sparrow > spro >, by the principle of 'ease of pronunciation', sprio. Cf. spug.

sprog, n. A recruit: RAF: since ca. 1930; by ca. 1939, also—via the FAA—used occ. by the Navy. (H. & P.) Origin obscure and debatable (see esp. Partridge, 1945); but perhaps a reversal of 'frog-spawn' (very, very green) or, more prob., the adoption of a recruit's sprog, a confusion of 'sprocket' and 'cog', a sprocket being, like the recruit, a cog in a wheel. Claiborne suggests that the word might just be a distortion of S.E. sprout—2. Hence, an aircraftman: R Aus. AF: WW2. B., 1943.—3. A baby, as in 'Nobby Clarks's gone on leave, his wife's just had a sprog' (Granville); a child, esp. in relation to its parents: RAF; FAA; RN: since late 1930s. Cf. the adj.—4. A new, young prisoner: prisons': later C.20. Clement & La Frenais, A Further Stir of Porridge, 1977.—5. 'According to the Home Office, a graver problem than political flak are the "spurious emissions" (know in the trade as "sprogs"), which interfere with emergency services' (New Society article on pirate radio stations, 19 May 1983, p. 252).

sprog, adj. New ('sprog tunic'); recently promoted ('sprog corporal'); recently created or become ('Two sprog fathers in the room in two days,' Brickhill & Norton, Escape to Danger, 1946). Ex the n.

sproggie. See spridgey.

sprogster. RN var. of sprog, n., 3. D. Bolster, Roll on My Twelve, 1945.

spronger. A multi-pronged underwater fishing spear. (Pepitt cites B. Crapp, Shark Hunters, 1944.) P.B.: cf. sprawn, prawn; or perhaps simply echoic: sprong is sometimes used to represent the sound of spring uncoiling.

sprook; sprooker. See spruik.

sprout wings. To become angelic, extremely upright, chaste, etc.: C.20 joc. coll.

sprowsie, -y. See sprarser.

spruce. A field: c.—1933 (Charles E. Leach, On Top of the Underworld). Perhaps ex spruce growing there.

spruce, v.i. To tell lies or 'tall stories'; v.t., to deceive thus:

military: from 1916. (F. & G.) Either ex spruce up, q.v., or a corruption of spruik, q.v.—2. Hence, sprucer, one who does any, or all, of those things: from 1916. Also sprucing, these, and leg-pulling (P-G-R). Cf.:-

spruce, adj. Make-believe, as a practical joke; 'We worked a spruce arrest on X— one night' (S.F. Hatton, The Yarn of a Yeoman, 1930): coll.: earlier C.20. Cf. prec.

spruce up. To clean and dress oneself to go out or to go on parade: army coll.: since ca. 1895. I.e. make oneself spruce or smart. P.B.: gen. coll. from early C.18: SOD cites quot'n dated 1709.

sprucing, n. See spruce, v., 2.

spruik. To deliver a speech, as a showman': Aus.: C.20. C.J. Dennis. Presumably ex Dutch spreken, to speak.—2. Whence spruiker, a plausible 'spouter': id.: id. Hence, a platform speaker: Aus.:—1926 (Jice Doone).

sprung. Tipsy: low s. >, in C.20, coll.: from ca. 1825; ob. Often as in Judd, 1870, 'Ex Corporal Whiston with his friends sallied from the store well-sprung.' Either ex spring, to moisten (in C.19–20, only in dial.), or, as the OED's earliest quot'n tends to show, ex sprung, split or cracked, masts.

sprung out. 'Feeling ill from lack of narcotics' (Home Office): drugs world: later C.20. Contrast spaced out.

sprung-up, adj. See springer-up.

spud. A potato: dial. >, by 1845 (E.J. Wakefield, Adventure), s. Possibly ex Spuddy, the nickname for a seller of bad potatoes (Mayhew, 1851), but prob. spud is the earlier. Perhaps an Anglo-Irish corruption of potato via murphy, q.v.: cf. Spud, the inevitable nickname of any male Murphy and occ. of anyone with an Irish name (F. & G.). W., however, proposes a s. 'application of spud, weeding instrument', and pertinently compares the etym. of parsnip. Poss. also is the spud adduced in the etym. of.—2. A baby's hand: dial. and nursery: mid-C.19–20; ob. (Halliwell.)? a corruption of pudsy, pudgy, or simply a special application of spud, a stumpy person or thing.—3. A friend, pal. chum: Services': since ca. 1930; † by 1950. (H. & P.; P.B.) Cf. mucking-in spud.—4. A large hole in (usu. the heel of) one's stocking or sock: since late C.19. Ex synon. tater; cf. sense 1. Bill Naughton, One Small Boy, 1966.—5. As the Spud, a fast goods-train carrying potatoes to London: Railwaymen's: C.20 (Daily Telegraph, 15 Aug. 1936.) Cf. the Sparagras and the Flying Pig, and see the Bacca.

spud-adjutant. An orderly corporal: army: early C.20. F. & G.: ex 'his duty in superintending the party carrying rations (potatoes) from the cook-house'. Cf. spud-practice.

spud-barber. A man on cookhouse fatigue, esp. potato-peeling: Services', esp. NZ in WW1; current in RN mid-C.20 (Granville).

spud-basher. 'A man on cookhouse fatigue for potato-peeling' (H. & P.): Services: since ca. 1919.—2. Hence, a lorry carrying potatoes. Cf. HAULERS' SLANG, in Appendix.

spud-bashing. Kitchen fatigues: Services': since ca. 1920. (Daily Mail, 7 Sep. 1940.) Cf. jungle-bashing, square-bashing, etc.

spud-grinder (or solid). The gullet; e.g. in the ferocious threat 'Shut your crunch or I'll shove your choppers [teeth] down your spudgrinder' (Undercurrents, Dec. 1978): low.

spud-hole. A detention cell: military: earlier C.20. B. & P.

spud line or locker, in the. Pregnant: RN lowerdeck: the 1st (since ca. 1946) perhaps ex the 2nd.

spud net. 'String bag carried by Naval husbands on shopping expeditions with their wives ashore. 2. Scrambling net, as used in assault vessels for descending into boats and for climbing back on board' (Granville): RN: WW2+.

spud-oosh (or solid). 'Kind of stew in which rather sodden potatoes predominate' (Granville): RN: C.20. Cf. oos-me-goosh and oosh, q.v. Robert Harling, The Steep Atlantick Stream, 1946: 'Lower-deck "spudoosh", that dismal diet of many-eyed potatoes mashed with corned beef into a mockery of a meal.'

spud-practice. Peeling potatoes: army coll.: earlier C.20.

(F. & G.) Cf. Spud-peelers, men detailed for cookhouse fatigue: id. B. & P.

spud run. The bringing-off, in the duty cutter, of the weekly supply of potatoes: Conway cadets'—1917; ob. John Masefield, The Conway, 1933.

spud-skinner. RN var. of spud-basher. Granville.

spud-walloping. Services' var. of spud-bashing: ca. 1930–45. P-G-R.

spud(d)ler. An indirect cause of trouble: West Country railwaymen's: C.20 (Railway). Ex dial. spuddle, to 'mess about' or to 'make a mess of things'. More precisely, 'one who causes trouble indirectly' (Railway, 2nd).

spuddy. See spud, 1.—2. A seller of baked potatoes: costers': late C.19–20.

spudgy. See spridgy and cf. spug.

spudoosh. See spud-oosh.

spuds. Preparation of potatoes for cooking: Kelham Theological College: 1960s. (Towler & Coxon, Fate of the Anglican Clergy, 1979.) Cf. spud-bashing, etc.

spug. A sparrow: Cotton College: since ca. 1875. Adoption of dial. word. Cf. sprio, spadger, etc. In wider use than given here, as is diminutive spuggie, -y (P.B.).

spun. See spin, v., 1.—2. Exhausted, tired out: 1924 (SOD).—3. Checkmated; at a loss: C.20. Miles Burton, To Catch a Thief, 1934, policeman loquitur, 'We know our way about ... the underworld ... But when it's a case ... of the overworld, as one might say, then we're spun.'

spun from the winch. (Of a story that has been) invented: nautical: C.20. (Bowen.) Punning yarn.

spun in. Crash-landed (plane or pilot): RAF: since ca. 1930. H. & P.; Jackson, 'Failed to recover from a spin.'—2. Hence, applied to one who has committed a technical error: since ca. 1938. Partridge, 1945.

spun-yarn major. A lieutenant-commander: RN: C.20. (Bowen.) Granville points out that the major refers to the Marine officer of equivalent rank; this is prob., therefore, another RN 'dig' at the RM (P.B.).

spun-yarn Sunday. 'Sabbath when there are no Divisions and church is voluntary' (Granville): RN: C.20.

spun-yarn trick. 'An underhand method of achieving a desired end. From the use of spun yarn in effecting repairs' (Granville): RN coll.: C.20. Ex the unfair use of spun yarn in competitive evolutions (Bowen).

spunk, n. Mettle, spirit; pluck: 1773, Goldsmith, is preceded by Bridges, 1772, 'Whether quite sober or dead drunk, I know, my dear, you've too much spunk'; Grose. App. coll. >, ca. 1800, S.E. >, ca. 1850, coll. >, ca. 1890, s.: cf. the quotations and remarks in F. & H., OED, and W., who derives it ex Gaelic spung, tinder: cf. phonetically and contrast semantically punk, q.v.—2. Hence, the seminal fluid: coll.: C.19–20. Cf. earlier synon. mettle, andspunk, v.i. To ejaculate: low coll.: C.20. Ex prec., 2.

spunk-bound. (Of a man) lethargic; slow-witted: low: late C.19–20. Cf.:

spunk-bubble; -dust. Terms of genial abuse between men: mostly Services': C.20. Cf. fuck-dust. (L.A.; P.B.)

spunk-fencer. A match-seller: c. or low s.:—1839 (Brandon). Ex dial. spunk, a match.

spunky. Spirited; plucky: dial. (Burns, 1786) >, ca. 1800, coll. Lamb, 1805, 'Vittoria Corombona, a spunky Italian lady' (OED); 1819, Moore, 'His spunkiest backers were forced to sing small.'

spur, n. In have got a spur in (one's) head, to be (slightly) drunk: orig. and mainly jockeys': ca. 1770–1800. Gentleman's Magazine, 1770 (OED).—2. In get the spun, to be annoyed: c.: from ca. 1880. Cf. synon. get the needle. Ex-spur, v. To annoy: c.: ca. 1875–1925. Cf. S.E. good.

spurge. An effeminate male: Aus. low: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Ex the rather weedy plant thus named.

spurlos versenkt. Disappeared; gone completely: Services' coll.: late 1917+. (F. & G.) In Ger., lit. 'sunk traceless': ex a Ger. official despatch concerning recommended treatment of Argentine ships.

Spurs, the. Tottenham Hotspur Football Club: sporting: late C.19–20.—2. In dish up the spurs, to cause guests to feel that it is time for them to depart: coll.: early C.20. (Manchon.) I.e. spurs to speed them on their way.

spurt. A small quantity: s. (—1859) and dial. >, ca. 1890, dial. only. (H., 1st ed.) Prob. ex spurt, a brief effort, a short run. etc.

spurter. A blood-vessel severed in an operation: medical students':—1933 (Slang, p. 193). It spurts blood.

spy in c. of C.20 is thus mentioned in Edgar Wallace, Angel Esquire, 1908, 'It may mean policeman, detective, school-board official, rent collector, or the gentleman appointed by the gas company to extract pennies from the gas meters.'—2. See black spy.

spying. Vbl n. corresponding to prec., 1.

squab, n. A fat person: early C.18. See men, in Appendix.

squab, v.i. To squeeze by: King Edward's School, Birmingham: late C.19–20. Prob. ex squab, to squeeze flat, influenced by sense of squash.—2. (Gen. as squob.) V.i. and v.t., to treat thus: 'With foot on wall or desk, and back against the victim who is similarly treated on the other side, or pressed against the opposite wall' (F. & H.): Ibid.: id.

squab-job. A job for (young) girls: ca. 1910–15. (Flora Klickman, The Lure of the Pen, 1919.) A squab is a newly-hatched or young bird, esp. a pigeon.

squab up, v.i. and v.t. To push: details as at squab, v.

squabash. A crushing blow; to crush, defeat: resp. 1818 (Prof. Wilson), and 1822: s. >, ca. 1860, coll. >, ca. 1910, S.E.; ob. A blend of squash+bash. Cf. Scottish stramash. W.

squabble. (Of type) to be or get mixed: printers':—1887 (Baumann).

squabbling bleeder. A Squadron Leader: RAF rhyming s.: WW2, then mainly historical. (Franklyn 2nd.) Cf. squadron or squalid bleeder: all perversions rather than rhyming (P.B.).

squad. A squadron: RN:—1887 (Baumann). This is independent of the S.E. use in late C.17.

squad-father. NCO in charge of a squad of recruits or trainees: army: early 1970s. An ephemeral pun attendant on the publicity accorded to The Godfather, a film about the Mafia. (P.B.)

squad-halt! Salt: army rhyming s.: early C.20. F. & G.

squadded, be. To be, on first joining up, put into a squad: army coll. > j.: since ca. 1910. P-G-R.

squaddie, -y. A term 'generally applied mock self-deprecatingly by private soldiers to or about one another' (H.C.L. Fassnidge, in a letter to The Times, 20 Mar. 1981): an early occurrence in print is in George Ingram, Stir, 1933, but it > gen. army usage only with WW2, superseding the much older swaddy, q.v. E.P. suggested that it is an 'occ. perversion' of the latter, but I consider that, though perhaps influenced by swaddy, squaddie stands in its own right for 'a man who has been squadded' (see prec.)—and, like Mr Fassnidge, I was one. Like erk or sprog, it implies anonymity in a crowd; perhaps cf. also the US grunt, an infantryman. (P.B.)

Squadron, the. Headquarters of the Royal Yacht Squadron at Cowes, I.o.W.: RN coll.: C.20.

squadron bleeder. Squadron-Leader: RAF: since ca. 1925. (Jackson.) By an entirely inoffensive pun.

Squadron-Leader Swill. Squadron-Leader 'A' (Administration) on a station: RAF coll.: since ca. 1930. Jackson, 'The disposal of waste food-scraps... for use as pig-swill is one of [his] numerous responsibilities.'

squaff, squoff. Var. of squo. (W/Cdr P. McDouall, 1945.)

squaler. A weapon consisting of an 18-inch cane surmounted with a pear-shaped piece of lead used for killing squirrels and deer in Savernake Forest: Marlborough College: ca. 1843–60. Either for squirrel or because it causes squirrels to squeal. But as squaler (see OED) it is an archaeological technicality. The weapon is very old; by many archaeologists and ethnologists it is known as a rabbit stick. (Dr Leechman.) 'Perhaps the point should be made that it was thrown at the rabbit, not used as a club.'

squalid. A pej., synon. with and prob. suggested by filthy: upper classes': from ca. 1933. Nicholas Blake, Thou Shell of Death, 1936, 'Squalid fellow'.

squalid bleeder. A Squadron Leader: RAF: WW2. 'An inoffensive pun' (R.S.); cf. squabbling bleeder.

squalino. To squeal: ca. 1818–60. (OED.) Ex squall+squeal: fanciful suffix.

squall. A voice: c. of ca. 1720–60. A New Canting Dict., 1725.

square, n. See the adj., which it merely substantivalises.

—2. Here, however, it may be noted that, in the underworld, all just and honest practices and actions are called the square, as opp. to the cross: from ca. 1810. (Lex. Bal.) Cf. fig. straight, and sense 10, below.—3. A square dance: ball-room coll.: ca. 1890–1914. Ware.—4. A 'mortar-board' cap: Cambridge undergraduates': late C.19–20.—5. An old-fashioned person, esp. about dancing and music; later, concerning culture and customs in gen.: younger generations': adopted, ca. 1938, ex US, but in widespread use only since mid-C.20. (E.P.; P.B.)—6. An honest citizen: adopted ex US, in Can. ca. 1955, in Britain, ca. 1958. Cf. Aus. synon. squarehead.—7. Between sol. and coll. it is the late C.19–20 army sense 'parade-ground'—whatever the shape. Hence, in be pushed off the square, to be excused, or dismissed from, recruits' preliminary drill: army: earlier C.20. (F. & G.) On the square, in this context, = engaged in squad-drill: late C.19–20. B. & P.

—8. In to be on the square, to be a Mason: since mid-C.19. Cf. left-handed bricklayers.—9. In on the square, on the tramp: beggars' and vagrants' c.:—1926 (F. Jennings, In London's Shadows).—10. In run on the square, to be honest and trustworthy: Society: later C.19. (B. & L.) An extension of on the s., in its nuance 'regular, customary, esp. if fair to both parties': prob. since late C.18. Moe cites 'English Smugglers', an article in London Magazine, Aug. 1822. Cf. sense 2. Upon the square in this sense occurs in Dryden, Sir Martin Mar-All, 1667, at I; (Moe).

square, v. To settle (a matter) satisfactorily: coll.: 1853, Dickens, 'I have squared it with the lad... and it's all right' (OED). Ex square, to equalise, to balance (accounts).

—2. Hence, to satisfy or win over, esp. by bribery or compensation; to get rid of thus: s. >, ca. 1910, coll.: 1859, Lever, 'The horses he had "nobbled", the jockeys squared, the owners "hossed"', 1879 (T.H. Huxley). Specifically, square his nibs is to give a policeman money (H., 1st ed.).

—3. Hence, to get rid, or dispose, of by murder: 1888 (OED).

—4. See square at, square it, square round, square up, square up to.

square, adj. Only in (up)on the square. (Predicatively.) Free from duplicity; just; straightforward, upright: from ca. 1680: S.E. until ca. 1830, then coll.; by 1860, s. Cf. the adv.

—2. Corresponding to senses 5 and 6 of the n.: old-fashioned; esp., decent and honest; with connotation 'reactionary': since late 1950s. Opp. swinging.—3. In turn square, to reform, and get one's living honestly: from ca. 1850. H., 1st ed.

square, adv. Justly; honestly; straightforwardly: late C.16–20: S.E. until ca. 1840, then coll.; in C.20, s. Mayhew, 1851, '...I wished to do the thing square and proper' (OED).

—2. Solidly, (almost) unanimously: coll.: 1867 (OED); mostly US.—3. Correctly, duly: coll.: 1889, 'Rolf Boldrewood', 'Here they were married, all square and regular, by the Scotch clergyman' (OED).

square affair. One's legitimate sweetheart (girl): Cockney and Aus.: ca. 1890–1914.

square an' all! 'Of a truth; verily' (C.J. Dennis): (low) Aus.: C.20 square at (1827, De Quincey; ob. by 1890, † by 1920); square up to (from ca. 1850). To take up a boxing stance against (a person): coll. till ca. 1880, then S.E. Ex squaring one's shoulders.

square away. To arrange: R Aus. N, hence also army, coll.: since ca. 1940. See quot'n at head off. 'The OED has square in the nautical sense from 1623. Hence I would expect this, along with square off and square one's yardarm [qq.v.], to date from considerably earlier than C.20, when the days of sail were virtually over' (Claiborne, 1976). Peccavi! So, in thinking, should I. Let's say: mid-(or earlyish) C.19–20. P.B.: in C.20 Brit. Eng., gen. (not nautical) coll., it is an extension of square, v., 1 and 2., as well as = to arrange.

square back-down. A palpable shuffling; sporting; from ca. 1870.

square-bashing. Drill, esp. by recruits on the parade ground: C.20 Army and post-1930 RAF. (H. & P., at gravel-bashing.) The recruits, square-bashers, 'bash' their feet down on the square (n., 7); hence square-bashing camp, recruit-training camp: army and RAF: esp. during National Service period, late-1940s–early 1960s (P.B.).

square bit, piece. A sweetheart: military: from not later than 1916. F. & G.; B. & P. Ex:—2. A respectable girl or young woman: low and military: from not later than 1914. (Ibid.) Here, bit and piece = a girl or a woman. Cf. square-pusher, -pushing; square tack, qq.v.

square clobber, square cove, square crib. Here, square = respectable, reputable: C.19–20: coll.—though clobber and crib are not coll. (Vaux.) A var. of square, honest, honourable, etc., applied to the implied activities.

Square Drinks, the. See Diamond Dinks.

square dinkum is an occ. var. of fair dinkum, itself an intensive of dinkum (q.v.), genuine, honest, straightforward: from ca. 1910. (F. & G.) A square dinkum bloke is the highest Aus. praise for any man.

square 'em come round 'em. A ding-dong bout of fisticuffs: naval lowerdeck: late C.18—mid-19. Matthew Barker, L.L.G., 1 Jan. 1825 (Moe).

square-eyed. Reputed to be the effect of watching too much TV: contemptuous, 'Yah, they've all gone square-eyed at home'; also square-eyes, one who indulges in over-much viewing of 'the goggle-box': since mid-C.20. Also Aus. (B.P.; P.B.)

square-face, squareface. Gin; schiedam: 1879 (OED). Mostly S. African. Ex 'the square bottles in which it was retailed in all parts of South Africa' (Pettman). Granville lists it as RN s., ex the bottle-shape.

square-head, squarehead. A Scandinavian or, esp. in WW1 and after, a German: coll.: late C.19–20. Ex shape of head.—2. Earlier, a free immigrant: Aus.: ca. 1870–90.—3. In c., an honest man: mid-C.19—early 20.—4. 'One who has never been in prison, or who lives by the norms of society outside prison' (McNeil): Aus. low: late C.20. Cf.:—5. A timid, or an amateurish, thief with a conscience: Aus. low: since ca. 1920. (B., 1943.)—6. Hence, an unconvicted crook: Aus. c.: since ca. 1945—7. See squarehead, v.

square it. To act, esp. to live, honestly: 1873 (OED): coll. square Jane and no nonsense. A respectable, intensely self-respecting girl: Aus.: since ca. 1925. Baker.

square-mainsail coat. A frock coat: nautical, esp. RN: late C.19–20. Bowen.

square meal. A dog biscuit: joc.: since the 1930s. (Petch, 1974.) Ex shape and a pun on S.E. sense and missis, 3. square missus. Var. of square-pusher, 1. See ARMY SLANG, verse 2, in the Appendix.

square number. An easy billet: RN: C.20. Bowen, 'the "number" refers to the station bill in which every man's job is entered.' Cf. cushy number, the army equivalent.

square-off, n. An apology; a concocted excuse: Aus.: since ca. 1910. (B., 1943.) Ex sense 1 of-square off, v. To placate (a person): Aus.: from ca. 1905.—2. V.i. and t. 'To make things ship-shape' (Granville): RN coll. See Claiborne's comment at square away.—3. To prepare to fight: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1943.) Cf. square at.

square one! Shortened form of (let's go back to square one!), let's start all over again: coll.: later C.20.

square peg in a round hole. One who, for whatever reason, is badly suited to the job or post he or she occupies: coll.: C.20. Hence, occ., round peg in ..., used of one ideally suited to his occupation. P.B.: this was a blind entry, 'see peg in ...,

in the previous ed. of this Dict., E.P. may have had evidence of the phrase's use earlier than my approximation.

square piece. See square bit.

square-pusher. A decent girl: lower classes' (—1902) >, by 1915, almost exclusively military. Lit., a 'square' or respectable 'pusher' or girl. F. & H. (at pusher); B. & P.—2. In pl, civilian boots: military: 1914–18. B. & P., 3rd ed.

square-pushing. An instance, or the habit, of 'walking out' with a girl or young woman: military: from ca. 1885. Ex the military practice of strolling with nursemaids and other maids round the square, or perhaps by back-formation ex the prec. See also pusher. (B. & P.) Frank Richards considers (wrongly, I think) that the phrase originated 'in the care that men took to get their knapsack to look properly square before parading in full order' (Old-Soldier Sahib, 1936).

square round. To make room: Winchester coll.: mid-C.19–20. (Wrench.) Ex dial. sense, 'to sit so as to widen the circle and make room for others' (EDD).

square-rigged. Well-dressed: from ca. 1850 (ob.); coll., orig. and mainly nautical. Ex the lit. S.E. sense. Cf. rig-out, q.v.

square shepherd. An old-fashioned but essentially honest, decent, kindly person, esp. among the beatniks: beatniks': since ca. 1959. (Anderson.) An elab. of square, n., 5; ephemeral.

square tack. A girl; girls in general: Guards': since ca. 1918. (Roger Grinstead, They Dug a Hole, 1946.) Cf. square bit ...

square (the) yards. To settle a score, esp. to take vengeance: from ca. 1835 (ob.): nautical. Dana, 'Many a delay and vexation ... did he get to "square the yards with the bloody quill-driver"' ; Bowen. A later var., early C.20, noted by F. & G., in square yards with yard-arms, to settle accounts; finish, or finish with, a (troublesome) matter: RN. Cf. square (one's) yardarm.

square-toes. See old square-toes, which prob. dates from early in the 19th century; young square-toes occurs in Thackeray's Vanity Fair, 1848.

square up. To pay (a debt): coll.: 1862, Mrs Henry Wood, 'I can square up some of my liabilities here' (OED). Ex square, v., 1.

square up the job; often as n., squaring up ... To conclude an investigation by making an arrest: police coll.: since ca. 1910. Free-Lance Writer, April 1948.

square up to. See square at.

square wheels. 'Wheels with worn running surface' (Railway): railwaymen's: late C.19–20.—2. Often used in adverse comment on a bumpy ride in any vehicle, as 'Cor strewth! Has this heap got square wheels?': since mid-C.20. In the early 1970s the Automobile Association produced 'The square wheel award', a booby-prize for the new car found to have the most and worst faults after sale to its first owner. (P.B.)

square (one's) yardarm. To protect oneself in a manner inspectable by one's seniors: RN wardroom: C.20. Cf.:-

square yards. See square the yards and yard-arm, 3.

squareface. See square-face.

squarehead, n. See square-head.

squarehead, v. To prepare to fight, adopting a suitable stance: Aus.: since ca. 1910. B., 1942.

squareseel. A square-sail: nautical coll.:—1887 (Baumann).

Squareville. 'The fons et origo of all "squares" and conventional people and conduct. "Him! Oh, he's strictly from Squareville!" Can.: adopted in 1960–1 ex US, where orig. it was jazz s. (Leechman.) Also var. squaresville.

squarey. A crook not yet convicted or not yet even interrogated: Aus.: c.: since ca. 1945. (B., 1953.) Cf. square-head, n., 6, q.v.

Squariel. An Ariel 'Square Four [cylinder] motorcycle, in production from 1931: motorcyclists'. (Mike Partridge, 1979.)

squarum. A lapstone: shoemakers': from ca. 1860. (H., 3rd ed.) I.e. a square one.

squash, n. A scrimmage or rough scrum: school football s.: from mid-1850s.—2. A youth-movement gathering, many persons crowded into a small room: Church coll.: since ca. 1930.

squash, v. To silence or snub (a person) crushingly: coll.: from ca. 1900.

squash ballad. A ballad 'prompting war and personal devotion': pacifists': 1896–1910. (Ware.)? ex sentiment.

squashed fly or, gen., flies. A sandwich biscuit with currants; a Garibaldi biscuit: children's: late C.19–20.

squat, n. A seat: London lower classes': 1909 (Ware). Also do a squat. Cf. US hot squat, the electric chair.—2. A premises in which squatters have settled: coll.: since later 1970s. A back-formation ex S.E. squatter and v. squat in this sense.

squat, v. Medical s. of C.20, as in C. Lillingston, His Patients Died, 1936, an agent to a young doctor: 'You may become someone's assistant... or you may squat—put up your plate in a likely district and wait for patients.' Hence squatter, mentioned also by Lillingston. Ex land squatting.

squat loo. A privy that has no seat, and is merely a hole in the floor: in my memory, since early 1920s, when I heard the term and used the convenience in France.

squattage. A squatter's station; his homestead: Aus.: since ca. 1930. (B., 1943.) A blend of squatter + cottage.

squatter. A kind of bronze-wing pigeon: Aus, coll. nickname: from ca. 1870. Morris.

squatter's daughter. Water. Aus. rhyming s.: C.20. (Baker.) Cf. Cockney fisherman's daughter.

squatti. A loose var. of swaddy or squaddi: army: late C.19–early 20.

squattocracy. 'The squatters [pastoralists, pastoral magnates] collectively regarded as a colonial aristocracy, often with derogatory implication' (Wilkes): Aus. coll.: since the 1840s.

squattez-vous! Sit down!; 'Take a pew!': joc., orig. schoolboy mock-French: since ca. 1875; ob. but not †, 1975 (Petch). Kipling, Stalky & Co., 1899, 'Be quick, you ass!... Squattez-vous on the floor, then!' Cf. twiggez-vous.

squawk, n. and v. A complaint; to complain: Can.: adopted, ca. 1935, ex US. P.B.: also Brit., as in 'put up a squawk'. As v., 'When a plane sends signals to ground radar stations, deliberately identifying itself as it flies, it's said in the trade to be "squawking"' (Tom Mangold, Listener, 29 July 1982): air traffic controllers' s. verging on j.: later C.20.

squawk-box. An office intercommunication system: Can.: since ca. 1945. (Leechman.)—2. 'Now applied to an intercom on an office desk, but specifically to the Admiralty desks' (Wilfred Granville, 1963).—3. A walkie-talkie set: police: since early 1960s. John Wainwright's police novels, passim.—4. 'Ship's public-address system... The tannoy' (Granville): RN: prob. WW2+.

squawl. Var. of squall.

squeak, n. A criminal that, apprehended, informs on his colleagues: c.:—1795; ob. by 1850, † by 1880. Cf. squeak, v., 1, and squeal.—2. A piece of information to the police: c.: C.20. (Edgar Wallace.) Esp. put in the squeak, to turn informer: c.:—1935 (David Hume): Ex v., 1.—3. A sergeant: Aus. army: WW2. (B., 1943.) Prob. ex pip-squeak.—4. See get a squeak; put in a squeak; more squeak than wool.

squeak, v. To turn informer: c.: C.18–20; ob. (A New Canting Dict., 1725; Ainsworth.) Cf. squeal. Ex:—2. To confess (v.i.): s.: late C.17–20; ob. In C.19–20, rare except as in sense 1. Dryden, 1690, 'Put a civil question to him upon the rack, and he squeaks, I warrant him.' In construction, squeak on (a person), as in Edgar Wallace, Room 13.

squeak beef. To cry 'Stop thief!': c.: late C.17–early 19. B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.

squeak on. The v.t. form of squeak, v., 2.

squeaker. A pot-boy: ca. 1670–1830. Coles, 1676; Egan's Grose.—2. A child; esp. a bastard: from ca. 1670. (Coles; B.E.; Grose.) Cf. squealer, 2. In Sinks, 1848, 'a cross child'. Hence stifle the squeaker, to get rid of a bastard: late C.17–early 20. (B.E.); and, in C.19–20, to procure an abortion: both senses, low s.; almost c.—3. A youngster:

nautical: mid-C.18–19. Basil Hall, 1831; Bowen, who notes that in the training-ship Conway it designates a mizzen-top cadet (late C.19–20). John Masefield, however, in his history of the Conway (1933), defines it as 'a small, noisy cadet',—not that the definitions are mutually exclusive! Comparable is the late C.19–20 Public School sense, a boy in the lowest form (e.g. in Ian Hay, David and Destiny, 1934).—4. A blab; an informer, esp. to the police: C.19–20. Cf. squeak, n.—5. A foxhound: sporting: 1828 (OED).—6. A pig, esp. if young: coll.: from ca. 1860.—7. A heavy blow: 1877 (OED): s. >, ca. 1890, coll.; ob. Ex effect.—8. An Aus. coll. name 'applied to various birds from their cries': 1848 (J. Gould, The Birds of Australia: Morris).—9. A cicada: S. African coll. (mostly juvenile); also Aus.: resp., from 1890s (Pettman); C.20 (B., 1959). Its 'cry' is hardly a squeak.—10. A tapioca pudding: nautical: late C.19–20. Bowen.—11. In card-playing, either a low-value card that takes a trick or a trump that unnecessarily takes a trick: C.20.—12. As The Squeaker, The Speaker: journalists': 1890s. (Ware.) It was the Radical mouthpiece. squeakers. Organ pipes: c.: late C.18–early 20. Grose, 2nd ed.—2. Boots; shoes: Aus. rural: C.20. D'Arcy Niland, 1958. squeakies, the. The cinema: ca. 1931–5. (E.C. Vivian, 1933.) Cf. talkies.

squeaks in, put the. See put the acid (or squeaks) in.

squeal, n. An informer: Scots c.:—1823 (Egan's Grose). Cf. squealer, 1.—2. Bacon: late C.19–20. 'Hamadryad' in Saturday Review, 21 Apr. 1934, 'The farmer's land, crops, pigs and squeal'.—3. A team of bullocks: Aus. bullock-drivers': C.20. (K.S. Prichard, Working Bullocks, 1926.) Echoic.

squeal, v.i.; v.t. with on. To turn informer: c., orig. (—1864), North Country; but in late C.19–20 mainly US. (H., 3rd ed.) Cf. squeak, v., 1.

squealer. An informer: c.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.). Ex squeal, v.—2. an illegitimate baby: low s.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.). Cf. squeaker, 2.—3. A noisy small boy: Wellington (the English Public School): late C.19–20. Cf. squeaker, 3.—4. A pork sausage: tramps' c.: C.20. (W.A. Gape, Half a Million Tramps, 1936.) Cf. squeal, n., 2.—5. Synon. with squeaker, 5, a foxhound. Basil Hall, 1831.

squealer, v.i. To behave as a noisy lower-form boy: Wellington College: C.20. COD, 1934 Sup.

Squealers, the. The Australian Provost Corps: Aus. soldiers': 1939+. (B., 1942.) Ex squealer, 1. P.B.:? with a glance at pip = policeman.

squeak-pee. Nestlé's tinned milk: Scottish Public Schools', or at least at that of which Ian Miller writes in his notable novel, School Tie, 1935: from ca.1905. Perhaps a reduplication of squish on pee. R.S., 'May I suggest an origin based on squeezing the punctured (not conventionally "opened") tin & thus producing a thin trickle (or jet, depending on the pressure applied) from the hole?'

squeegee. Squeeze (n. and v.); (in C.20, low) coll.: late C.18–20.

squeegee, all. Very much askew: ca. 1860–1910. Perhaps by corruption.

squeegee band. 'An improvised ship's band' (Bowen): RN: since late C.19. (Army and Navy Illustrated, 3 Oct. 1896: Moe; Granville.) Ex the sound made by the squeegee when vigorously used.

squeek, squeaker. B.E.'s spelling of squeak, squeaker, qq.v. squeeze, n. The neck: c.:—1812 (Vaux); ob. by 1930. Also squeezer. Ex squeezing by the gallows-rope.—2. Hence, the rope itself: c.: from ca. 1830; ob.—3. Silk: c.: since—1839 (Brandon); Powis, 1977, attests its currency in later C.20. Also as adj. from ca. 1870. Ex squeezeability into very small space.—4. Hence, a silk tie: c.: 1877 (OED).—5. Work, esp. in a crowd, e.g. stealing at a theatre: c.:—1864; ob. (H., 3rd ed.) Perhaps ex:—6. A crowded assembly or (social) gathering: coll.: 1799, Mrs Barbauld, 'There is a squeeze, a fuss, a drum, a rout, and lastly a hurricane, when the whole house is full from top to bottom' (OED).—7. An escape, esp. if a narrow one: coll.: 1875 (OED); ob. Ex squeeze by or past.—8. A strong commercial demand or money-market-pressure: coll.: 1890 (OED): trade and Stock Exchange.—9. An illegal exaction: Anglo-Chinese coll.: from ca. 1880. (Y. & B.) Hence, 'Ship's stewards' term for a gratuity. Cf. the Cockney slang dropsy' (Granville): MN: C.20.—10–12. Without date or quot'n, F. & G. gives the following three s. senses: a hard bargain (from ca. 1870); hence, a Hobson's choice (ca. 1880–1920); a rise in salary (ca. 1890–1900), this last because of the difficulty of obtaining it.—13. An impression: police coll.: C.20; G.D.H. and M. Cole, Burglars in Bucks, 1930; Richard Keverne, Menace, 1933, 'Parry's "squeeze" of the key to the Bruges warehouse'.—14. A woman's waist: Aus.: since ca. 1925. B., 1943—15. (Ex senses 8 and esp. 11.) 'To threaten a thief with arrest unless he informed on his friends' (John Gosling, 1959): police s.: C.20.—16. Economy, esp. a credit squeeze: since ca. 1958: coll. >, by 1966, S.E.—7. In at (1897) or upon (1892) a squeeze, at a pinch: coll. OED.

squeeze, v. To bring into trouble: 1804 (OED); ob. by 1890, † by 1920.—2. To defecate: domestic coll.: C.20. (P.B.) Cf. squeeze one's head.

squeeze-box. A ship's harmonium: RN:—1909. Ware, 'From the action of the feet'.—2. A concertina: Services', > gen. s.: WW1 and since. H. & P.—3. Hence, a piano-accordion: id.: WW2 and since. Ibid.—4. A gas-respirator: army: 1939. (Daily Mail, 7 Sep. 1940.) Prob. ex fancied resemblance to 2 and 3.

squeeze-crab. A morose or peevish man: low:—1887 (Baumann).

squeeze-'em-close. Copulation: coll.: mid-C.19—early 20.

squeeze(-)gun. An anti-tank gun of small calibre: army: 1941+.—2. A gun with a slightly tapering bore: artillerymen's: ca. 1941–5. P-G-R.

squeeze (one's) head. To defecate: low, mostly services: C.20. Prob. self-deprecatory ref., in 'Well, I must go an squeeze me 'ead', to the abusive 'He's got shit for brains'. (P.B.) squeeze (someone, e.g. the taxpayer) like a lemon. To charge, to tax, very severely; even more intensively, squeeze until the pips squeak, a phrase first used, concerning German reparations, in late 1918, and revived in the mid-1970s (Daily Mirror, 7 Oct. 1976, pips; New Statesman, 26 Nov. 1976, lemon). (P.B.) squeeze off a fish. To fire a torpedo: RN: since ca. 1939. Cf. synon. squirt a moulidy.

squeeze-pigeon or pidgin. Blackmail: mostly RN: since ca. 1910. See squeeze, n., 9 Here, pidgin (wrongly Pigeon) = business, affair.

squeeze the lemon. To urinate: low euph.; as in 'I must go and ...' or 'He's gone to ...': C.19–20. Cf. squeeze (one's) head.

squeeze the teat or tit. See tit, 6.

squeeze up, v.i. To ejaculate: low: C.20. L.A., 1974, prefers 'intromit penis; "to ejaculate" is not, to my belief, physiological'.

squeeze-wax. A surety: C.18—early 19. (Grose, 1st ed.) Ex sealing.—2. An accommodating sort of fellow: c.:—1923 (Manchon).

squeezable. Easy to make speak: lower classes' coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

squeezer. The hangman's noose: c.: from ca. 1830; ob. 'Father Prout' Mahoney.—2. Hence, the neck: c. of ca. 1840–90. Cf. squeeze, n., 1.—3. (Gen. pl.) One of a set of cards with index values shown in the corners: from ca. 1880.

sqelch. A blunder, a faux-pas, a 'putting one's foot in it': Aus.: since late 1950s. (B.P.)

sqelcher. A heavy blow, crushing leading article, etc.: coll.: 1854, 'Cuthbert Bede', 'There's a sqelcher in the breadbasket'; 1876, Besant & Rice (editorial). OED.—2. Fig., e.g., in argument: late C.19—earlier 20.

squib, n. An apprentice 'puff', getting half the salary: of a 'puff' (one who, at a gaming-house, receives money with which, as a decoy, to play): ca. 1730–1830: c. > s. > coll.

—2. A gun: 1839 (G.W.R. Reynolds: OED); almost †.—3. A sweet in the form of a squib: coll.: mid-C.19–20. Mayhew. OED.—4. (Gen. pl.) A head of asparagus: London (mainly costers'): from ca. 1850. (Mayhew.) Ex shape.—5. A paintbrush; gen. pl.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.).—6. In Christ Church (Oxford) s., any member of the University not privileged to belong to 'the House': ca. 1860–70.—7. A professional punter: turf c.:—1932. Ex his often 'pyrotechnic' gains.—8. One who backs out; a faint-heart: Aus.: C.20. (Truth, 6 Apr. 1924: Wilkes.) Hence, in approbation of a brave man, the Aus. C.20 c.p. his mother never raised a squib (B., 1959).—9. A plan that fails: Aus.: since ca. 1910. (B., 1942.) Ex a damp squib.—10. A small, weedy person: Aus.: since ca. 1912. Baker.

squib, v. To be afraid; to be a coward: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1943.) Cf. n., 8, and:—

squib it. To turn coward, to 'chicken out': Aus.: since ca. 1950. Cf. the fig. uses of squib, n. and v., in English dialect, and prec.:

squib on. To betray (someone); to fail (him): Aus.: since ca. 1910. (Sidney J. Baker, letter, Observer, 13 Nov. 1938.) to go out, fail to explode, like a damp squib.

Squibbly. Esquimalt and Royal Naval College: R. Can. N: since ca. 1930. (P-G-R.) 'This distortion of the pronunciation of Esquimalt reminds me of Slackers, which I believe to be a distortion of Halifax, something like Pompey [for Portsmouth]. Two Navy types I have asked (but yesterday) they that they were not aware of any slackness while they were there. See also Uckers' (Leechman, 1967).

squidge-off; squidger. See TIDDLYWINKS, in Appendix.

squiff, n. A drunkard: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Ex squiffy, 1, 2.—2. In on the squiff, on a drinking bout: Aus.: since ca. 1925. B., 1943.

squiff it. To die: Aus.: since ca. 1945. (B.P.) Cf. snuff it.

squiffed. Tippy: late C.19–20; ob. Prob. ex squiffy, q.v.

squiffer. A concertina: rather low: 1911 (George Bernard Shaw: OED Sup.), but prob. dating from ca. 1890, for it was orig. a nautical term (Bowen). Perhaps a perversion of squeezer: cf. dial. squidge for squeege.—2. 'By a process of excusable exaggeration, an organ-bellows, or even the organ itself. By a characteristic confusion of ideas, a person who blows an organ', Ian Hay (in David and Destiny, 1934): Public Schools'.

squiffy. Slightly drunk: from ca. 1873. H., 5th ed.—2. Hence, drunk in any degree: from ca. 1880. Kipling, 1900, 'I never got squiffy but once ... an' it made me horrid sick,' Prob. ex skew-whiff, perhaps on swipey, q.v.—3. Hence, unwell: Aus.: C.20 Baker.—4. Silly; stupid: Aus.: since ca. 1920–5. Crooked; askew: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (Baker.) Prob., as R.S. suggests, a contraction of skew-whiff.—6. Menstruating: schoolgirls': since the 1930s. (G. Kersh, Fowler's End, 1958.) Cf. 3.

squilde. A 'term of street chaff': London proletariat: 1895–96. A blend of a Christian and a surname. (Ware.) P.B.: i.e. Oscar Wilde.

squillagee. An unpopular seaman: nautical: C.20. (Bowen.) Ex nautical squillagee, a small swab; itself a diminutive of squeegee.

squinsy. See hempen squinsy.

squint, n. 'A man who hangs about the market with a paltry order, and who will not deal fairly': Stock Exchange:—1909 (Ware). Cf. Fr. louche.

squint, v. To lack (anything material): tailors': from ca. 1870; ob. Hence squinting, lacking (e.g. food). B & L.

squint-a-pipes. A squinting person: from ca. 1786; † by 1870. Grose, 2nd ed.

squint is better than two finesses, one. A c.p. addressed, in bridge, to one's partner, to warn him that the opponents are trying to see his hand: from ca. 1925, and mostly Anglo-Irish.

squint like a bag of nails. To squint very badly: late C.18—mid-19. Grose, 2nd ed., 'I.e. his eyes are directed as many ways as the points of a bag of nails.'

squinters. The eyes: perhaps orig. Oxford University s., ca. 1760–1860; > later C.19–early 20, boxers' and low s. The poem 'A Familiar Spirit', Gentleman's Magazine, May 1784, p. 367 (Moe); Baumann.

squinting. See squint, v.

squire. A title prefixed to a country gentleman's surname and thus forming, very often, part of his appellation: mid-C.17–20: S.E. until C.19, then coll. (OED.) Cf.:—2. As the squire, 'A Sir Timothy Treat-all' (B.E.): late C.17–early 19. Sometimes amplified to squire of the company, as in Grose, 1st ed., where also is recorded to stand squire, to stand treat.—3. As the squire, a simpleton or a fool: late C.17–mid-18. B.E., who adds: 'A fat Squire, a rich Fool.' Cf., perhaps abbr. of squire of Alsatia.—4. As Squire, a joc. term of address among men: coll.: C.20. P.B.: in later C.20, raffish and rather low, e.g. the false jollity of car-salesmen.

squire of Alsatia. See Alsatia.

squire of the company. See squire, 2.

squire of the gimlet. A tapster: joc. coll.: ca. 1670–1800.

squire of the pad. See pad.

squire of the placket. A pimp: joc. coll.: ca. 1630–1800. (D'Avenant: OED.) With these squire terms, cf. the much larger knight group.

squirish. Of 'One that pretends to Pay all Reckonings, and is not strong enough in the Pocket' (B.E.): late C.17–mid-18. Ex squire, 2.—2. Foolish: id. (Ibid.) Ex squire, 3.

squiril. A flourish in writing: dial. (ca. 1840) >, before 1900, coll. (OED Sup.) Prob. ex squiggle and twirl.

squirm. A small objectionable boy: Public Schools': from ca. 1880; ob. Cf. squirt.

squirms, the; esp. in 'It'll give you the squirms'—horribly embarrass or irritate you: since ca. 1930.

squirrel. A harlot: late C.18–mid-19. Grose, 2nd ed., 'Because she, like that animal, covers her back with her tail. Meretrix corpore corpus alit.'—2. See secret squirrel.

squirreled away. 'Hidden away' (Powis): c.: later C.20 (? earlier in rural Eng.). As a squirrel hides nuts. (P.B.)

squirt, n. A paltry person; a contemptible person, esp. if mean or treacherous: coll.: US (—1848), anglicised ca. 1875; common also in dial. Cf. squit.—2. Hence, at Public Schools, an obnoxious boy: from ca. 1880. Cf. squirm, q.v.—3. A doctor; a dispensing chemist: from late 1850s; ob. by 1940. (H., 1st ed.) Ex squirt, a syringe.—4. Champagne: low: from ca. 1870; ob. Ware, 'Suggested by its uppishness.' Cf. fizz.—5. A water-pistol: mostly boys': from ca. 1900. Collinson.—6. Hence (?), a revolver: Aus. c. (—1926) >, by 1930, low s. (Jice Doone), in NZ c. by not later than 1932. It sprays with bullets.—7. The cheapest (and worst) beer: low: from ca. 1920. Ex its effect: cf. squitters and belly-vengeance, qq.v

—8. A quick burst of machine-gun fire: mostly RAF: since late 1930s. (H. & P.) Cf. 5 and 6.—9. A jet-propelled aircraft: RAF: from May 1944; by 1950, ob. A pun in jet. P-G-R.—10. In do a squeeze and a squirt, (of the male) to coit: low: C.19–early 20. Also squirt one's juice. Cf. squeeze up.

squirt, v.i. To blab? low coll.: C.19. Prob. ex excremental sense.

squirt a mouldy. To fire a torpedo. See mouldy, 2, and cf. synon. squeeze off a fish.

squirter. A synonym of squirt, n., 1 and 2: from ca. 1920.

squish. Marmalade: university (—1874), hence Public Schools'. (H., 5th ed.) Ex squishy, soft and wet, or squish, v.i., to squirt out splashily or gushingly.—2. At Winchester, from ca. 1880, also and mainly, it = weak tea.—3. Nonsense: 1912 (OED Sup.); ob. Ex senses 1, 2—esp. 1. Cf. slush.

squit. In same sense as, and prob. cognate with, squirt, n., 1, q.v.: dial. (—1825), partly colloquialised ca. 1880 (cf. Anstey, 1889, 'He's not half a bad little squirt,' OED) and by 1920, > s. Esp. a small cadet (Conway s.: late C.19–20,—witness John Masefield's history of the Conway, 1933), and used, in gen., esp. of a small man, as in G.D.H. and M. Cole, The Great Southern Mystery, 1931, 'Little squirt of a chap.'

squitters. Diarrhoea: mid-C.17–20: S.E. till C.19, then dial.; in late C.19–20, also schoolboys' s. Cognate with squirt. squivalens. Extras; perquisites: Aus.: ca. 1870–1910. (R.D. Barton, Reminiscences of an Australian Pioneer, 1917.) Perhaps ex equivalents.

squiz, n. 'A brief glance' (C.J. Dennis); a sly glance: (low) Aus. Ex squint + quiz. (Cf. swiz.) P.B.: by 1940, also English schoolboys', esp. 'Let's have a squiz', 'Let me have a look. Cf.:—

squiz, v. To regard; to inspect: Aus.: since ca. 1910 (the n., dating since late C.19: see prec.) B., 1942. Ex the n.—2. Hence, to peep slyly: Aus.: since ca. 1925. Ruth Park, Poor Man's Orange, 1950.

squo. Racquets played with a soft ball: Charterhouse: from ca. 1880. Also in squo-ball and -court. By a slurring of squash, that game. A.H. Tod.—2. (Also squoff.) A Squadron-Officer (WAAF equivalent of S/Ldr): WAAF and RAF: 1940+ (Jackson).

Squo off. To snub (a person): Charterhouse: C.20. (A.H. Tod.) By a pun: see squo, 1.

squob (up). See suab (up).

squop. See TIDDLYWINKS, in Appendix.

squoff. See squo, 2.

sres-wort, sreswort. Trousers: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). See:

sret-sio, sretsio. Oysters: back s.:—1874. H., 5th ed., where, of spinsrap, sret-sio, sres-wort, starps, stools, storrac, stun, and stunlaw, qq.v., it is said that 'all these will take the s, which is now [i.e. there] initial, after them, if desired, and, as may be seen, some take it doubly.'

St. See saint, Saint.

st, 'st. Shall: orig. and properly dial., but occ. illiterate coll.: late C.16–mid-18. Cotton, 1670, 'Hee st give me Kisses half a score' (OED). Gen. written as in we'st=we'll.

stab, 'stab. Establishment, as in on (the) stab, in regular work at a fixed wage, as opp. to occasional piece-work: printers':—1864 (H., 3rd ed.).—2. An attempt, as in 'Let's have a stab at it': Services': since ca. 1930. (H. & P.) Adopted from US: J. Flynt, The World of Graft, 1901, has it. Cf. Fr. > S.E. coup.—3. A medical inoculation: Aus. Services': 1939–45 (and after). B., 1943. Cf. synon. Brit. Jab.

stab, v.i. S. or coll. (? orig. c.), ca. 1670–1780, as in Cotton's Complete Gamester: 'Stabbing... having a smooth box and small in the bottom, you drop in both your dice in such a manner as you would have them sticking therein... the dice lying one upon another; so that, turning up the box, the dice never tumble... by which means you have bottoms according to the tops you put in.'

stab in the thigh. To coit (with a woman): coll.: C.19–early 20.

stab-rag. A (regimental) tailor: army: from ca. 1840. (Punch, 1841; H., 3rd ed.; OED Sup.). Also rag-stabber: mid-C. 19–20. Cf. prick-louse.

stab yourself and pass the bottle! Help yourself and pass the bottle: a theatrical c.p.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.); very ob. by 1930. Ex dagger-and-poison melodrama. Cf. take a dagger...

stabbed with a Bridport dagger. See Bridport dagger.

stable-companion. A member of the same club, clique, etc.: coll.: C.20. Ex lit. sense, a horse from the same stable.

stable Jack. A cavalryman: infantrymen's: early C.20. Ware. stable mate. 'A horse that develops such an affection for his stable companion that he will sicken if separated from him. Sometimes the affection is mutual. It can become a serious and difficult problem' (Leechman, 1967): coll.: late C.19–20.

stable-mind. Devotion to horses: Society:—1909 (Ware); ob. by 1930. By a pun.

stable-my-naggie, at. To coit: C.19–early 20.

stable pea. The horse fancied by the members of its stable: racing: since ca. 1920. (Arthur J. Sarl, 1938.) With a pun on sweet pea.

Stable Yard, the. The Horse Guards, Whitehall: Londoners' and Army: ca. 1810–60. Richard Aldington, Wellington, 1946.

stack. To shuffle (a pack of cards) in a dishonest manner:

C.20. coll. >, by 1930, S.E. Ex US (late C.19).—2. Hence, to take an unfair advantage: from ca. 1905; coll. >, by 1933, S.E.—3. As v.i., to stand down from duty: RAF: later C.20. Phantom.

stack on a blue. To start a brawl or fight: Aus. (mostly soldiers'): since ca. 1920. Rats, 1944. Cf.:-

stack on an act. Var. of bung on an act: Aus.: since ca. 1925. B., 1959.

stack (one's) drapery. To place one's hat and coat on the ground prior to fighting: Aus.: since ca. 1920. B., 1942.

stack-up. A synonym of pile-up, n., 2: racing cyclists': since ca. 1945.

stacked. Esp. well stacked: (of a girl) having large and shapely breasts: Can.: adopted, ca. 1942, ex US. B.P., 1963, commented, 'the shorter form seems to have displaced well-stacked in Aus.' P.B.: both forms have been common in Brit. since the early 1960s: witness many novels; note also Jonathan Thomas, 1976. Claiborne, 1976, in ref. to E.P.'s comparison, in earlier edd. of this Dict., with stacked playing-cards, adds, 'The semantics are merely those of "well built", referring not just to breasts but to other interesting parts of the anatomy. From US—Can. stacked like a brick shithouse, where the reference is not... to shape but rather to excellence of construction.' Cf. synon. well-endowed. —2. Wealthy. Also well-stacked: coll.: C.20. Cf. synon. well-heeled or breached, and stacks, q.v., its prob. orig.

Stackies, the. Nickname of the Royal Ulster Rifles, referring to the black, chimney—like characteristics of a rifle regiment's full dress of black and rifle-green. (Carew.) See quot'n at Fogs, and cf. Sweps.

stacks (of the ready). Plenty of money: coll.: late C.19—20. (F. & H.) In the singular, stack, a quantity, is S.E. (unrecorded before 1894: OED).—2. Hence, stacks=much, as in stacks of fun (cf. bags of, heaps of fun): C.20. OED Sup.

staff. A staff-sergeant, in address or ref.: army: C.20. (F. & G.) Also, loosely, a colour-sergeant or a quartermaster sergeant (P-G-R), but never in address, these latter being equivalent rank appointments (P.B.).—2. See worse end of the staff.—3. As the Staff, or in address, the staff nurse in a ward: hospitals' coll.: since mid-C.20 at latest.

staff-breaker or climber. A woman: low: C.19—20. Ex such literary euphemisms as staff, staff of life, and staff of love. Cf. allusive S.E. lance.

Staff College. See studying for...

staff crawl. An inspection tour of the trenches by a general and his staff: army coll.: 1915—18. F. & G.

staff naked. Gin: low:—1857; † by 1920. ('Ducange Anglicus'.) Perhaps a mere misprint for stark-naked, q.v.

Stafford court, be tried or have a trial in. To be (severely) beaten, greatly ill-used: coll.: early C.17. (Cotgrave.) Cf. the late C.14—early 15 clad in Stafford blue, blue-bruised beating: either coll. or merely joc. S.E. Prob. ex-

Stafford law. 'Club' law; violence: coll.: late C.16—mid-17. Occ., as in 'Water-Poet' Taylor, Stafford's law. Punning staff. Cf. prec.

Staffordshire Knots, the. The 80th Foot—now the South Staffordshire—Regiment. Army: C.19—20. Their badge, adopted in 1793, is a knotted cable; prob. suggested by Stafford(s) knot, a knot resembling that used heraldically in the badge of the Stafford family. F. & G. staffy. A staff officer: RN officers': C.20.

stag, n. An informer: c. (—1725) >, ca. 1820, low s.; virtually †. (A New Canting Dict., 1725; Grose; Ainsworth.) Ex the animal; cf. turn stag, to impeach one's accomplices: c. (—1785) >, ca. 1840, low s. Grose, 1st ed., 'From a herd of deer who are said to turn their horns against any of their number who is hunted.'—2. A professional bailman or alibi-provider: c. of ca. 1820—90. ('Jon Bee'.) Perhaps ironically on 'noble beast'.—3. Any such applicant for shares as intends to sell immediately at a profit or, if no profit quickly accrues, is ready to forfeit the deposit money: commercial: 1846 (Thackeray: OED). Perhaps ex sense 1.—4. Hence, an irregular outside dealer: commercial: 1854 (OED).—5. A shilling: low s.:—1857; ob. ('Ducange Anglicus', 1st ed.; Henley, 1887.) Cf. hog.—6. Sentry-go: orig. army, since late C.19; whence RN, RAF. Usu. on stag, on sentry-duty; H. & P. have 'as a roving picket; on the prow', but by 1950, on stag=simply standing guard, e.g., at the camp gate (P.B.).—7. A half-grown bull: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.—8. 'An imperfectly castrated ram' (B., 1959): Aus. rural: C.20.—9. In in stag, naked: coll.: C.17. (Dekker, 1602.) ?Ex a stag's colour.—10. In go stag, to go to, e.g., a party, without a female companion: Can.: adopted, ca. 1925, ex US. Cf. most of the stag- compounds below.—11. As the stag, nystagmus (a succession of involuntary eyeball-twitchings): miners': late C.19—20. Pit-Talk, 1970, ed. W. Forster, says 'an eye disease once common among miners. Scots: glenny-blink.' stag, v.t. To observe, watch, detect: late C.18—20: c. >, ca. 1850, low s. (Also, from ca. 1820, as v.i. 'Jon Bee'.) Grose, 3rd ed.; H. Kingsley, 1859. Ex stag, n., 1.—2. Hence, v.i., to turn informer (against): c.: from late 1830s. W. Carleton, 1839 (OED). Cf. stag, n., 1, q.v.—3. To be severe towards (a person); to cripple (him) financially; refuse a loan to: from ca. 1810. Daily News, 13 July 1870, 'A man refusing... his line was... "staggered", and when he went for an advance it was resolutely refused' (OED). Ex sense 1.—4. V.i. and v.t., to beg (money); dun (a person): low s., perhaps orig. c.:—1860; ob. H., 2nd ed.—5. V.i., to deal in shares as a 'stag' (see stag, n., 3 and 4): commercial: mid-C.19—20. Often stag it, as in Thackeray, 1845.—6. To cut; mostly in stag off: Can., esp. lumbermen's:—1932 (John Beames). Ex Midlands dial. stag, 'to cut a hedge level at the top' (EDD). 'Loggers and raftmen used to "stag" their trousers, by cutting off a few inches from the bottom, so that they came about half-way down the calves, clear of the top of the boots.—Mathews records it for 1902' (Leechman).—7. To make fun of, to deride, to 'rib': Anglo-Irish: C.20. David Gardner cites the end of a letter from an Irish labourer, read out on RTE Radio, 31 May 1978, 'Please don't read me name on the air. I'd get a desperate staggin' on the building site.'

stag-book. A book containing (gen. only) the names of bogus shareholders: commercial: 1854 (Household Words: OED). See stag, n., 3.

stag-dance. A dance with only men present: US (—1848), partly anglicised ca. 1870. Cf. bull-dance and see stag-party.

stag-mag. A stage-manager; to stage-manage: theatrical: from ca. 1880.

stag-month. The month of a woman's lying in: from ca. 1870; ob. Cf. the C.18 gander-month, q.v.; cf. also-stag-night. A Services' mess-function, e.g. a games evening, to which the ladies are not invited: since mid-C.20, at latest. Cf. next. (P.B.)

stag or shag? Without or with female companion?: Aus. c.p.: since late 1940s. Cf. shag and-stag-party. A party of men: US (1856), anglicised ca. 1870. Cf. stag-dance.

stag-widow. A man whose wife is lying in: from ca. 1870. Cf. stag-month.

stage; always the s, n. The privilege-period of a convict's imprisonment; gained by a certain number of good-conduct (or remission) marks: c.:—1932 (Anon., Dartmoor from Within). I.e. the final stage.

stage, v. To do or accomplish, esp. if unexpectedly or very effectively or effectually: mainly sporting: from ca. 1920. E.g., Crawford was, in the Wimbledon semi-finals, 1934, said to have staged a come-back against Shields after being two, and very nearly three, sets down. Cf. s. use of show.

stage-door Johnny. See Johnny in the stalls.

stage-dooring. Hanging about the scenes, or about doors reserved for actors: theatrical coll.: from ca. 1870. B. & L.

stage fright. A (glass of) light (ale): rhyming s.: later C.20. Powis.

stagger, n. A spy; a look-out: c. (—1859) >, ca. 1880, low s. (H., 1st ed.) Ex siag, v., 1.—2. An attempt: dial. (—1880) >, ca. 1890, s. Esp. in telegraphers' s. (—1895), 'a guess at an illegible word in a telegram' (Funk & Wagnall).—3. In do a stagger, to walk: Oxford University: 1918+. Cf. the v.

stagger. v. To go: among young men-about-town: from ca. 1908. (P.G. Wodehouse; Dorothy L. Sayer's Lord Peter Wimsey novels.) Hence, stagger off (e.g. to bed), to depart. stagger-juice. Strong liquor: Cockney and Aus.: earlier C.20. in the RN, it=Navy rum (Granville). Manchon has staggering juice as gen. low s.

stagger out. To depart: joc. coll.: earlier C.20. (P.G. Wodehouse, Mike, 1909.) Cf. stagger, n., 3, and v.

stagger-through. A preliminary, slap-dash dress rehearsal: show business: later C.20. In 'Kaleidoscope' on BBC Radio, 4, 17 Feb. 1975. (P.B.) staggering Bob. A calf: Can. and Aus.: mid-C.19–20. Ex Irish and N. Country dial.; semantically cf. quaking cheat.

staggering juice. See stagger-juice.

Stagers. St Stephen's House: Oxford undergraduates': since ca. 1930. (Marples, 2.) Probably after Jaggers.—2. As the stagers, a drunken fit: coll.: C.19–20. Ex have the stagers, be unable to walk straight.—3. Hence, get the stagers, to lose one's touch, temporarily lose one's skill; to be making mistakes: sporting; 1933 (Passing Show, 15 July).

staggy. (Of an animal) affected with staggers (1778); (of a person) apt to stagger; unsteady (1837, Dickens): coll. OED. staggering, vbl n.; ppl adj. See stag, v., s (Kingsley, 1849: both), and 7.

staggy. The adj. of stag, n., 7 and 8: Aus. rural: C.20. B., 1959.

Stags, the. Mansfield Town Association Football Club: sporting: C.20.

Staines, be at. To be in pecuniary difficulties: ca. 1810–50. (Vaux.) Also, be at the Bush, in reference to the Bush Inn at Staines.

staining, n. An effusion of blood: hospitals' euph. coll.: C.20. (Dymphna Cusack, Say No to Death, 1951.) Strictly, it is medical coll. for a slight discharge of blood. Cf. under-stain, a later C.20. feminine euph. for menstruation: lower-middle-class coll. (Jilly Cooper, 1980).

stair-steps, -steppers. Children at regular intervals, as one sees by (e.g.) their height: coll.: both in C.R. Cooper, Lions 'n' Tigers, 1925 (OED Sup.).

stairs. In on the stairs!, a tailors' c.p. when a job is called for: from ca. 1860. (B. & L.) Cf. up in Annie's room.—2. In up the stairs, the Assize Court: c.: mid-C.20. (Tempest, 1950.) Cf. steps, 2.—3. See climb the golden stairs.

stairs without a landing, the. A treadmill: c.: ca. 1880–1910. J. Greenwood, 1884, 'He's lodging now at Coldbaths Fields—getting up the stairs without a landing.' Cf. everlasting staircase.

stake, n. A booty acquired by robbery, a 'swag'; if large, a prime or a heavy stake: c. (—1812) >, ca. 1850, low s.; ob. Vaux.—2. Hence, same period, a valuable or desirable acquisition of any kind is a stake. Vaux.—3. A (usu. large) sum of money: Can. coll.: late C.19–20. 'He made a stake in gold-mining.'

stake, v. To give, or to lend for a long while, something to (someone): coll.: late C.19–20, apparently Can. before, ca. 1920, it became English. 'Will you stake me to a dinner?' As Dr Leechman notes, it orig. meant 'to supply someone (e.g., a prospector) with food and equipment on the understanding that a predetermined proportion of any finds shall go to the man doing the staking' (Leechman). Cf. synon. grub-stake.

stake (one's) lot. To gamble all: orig. Glasgow coll.:—1934. stake out. To place, e.g. a building, under surveillance in the hope of obtaining information: adopted, ca. 1955, ex US. Ex the tying of a goat in order to attract a tiger (Claiborne.)

stakes, the -, the [specified] 'line', way of life: coll.: C.20. As in Gilt Kid, 1936, 'Both men looked as if they might be on the Jo Roncing stakes' (q.v. at Joe Ronce). Prob. ex racing j. stakey, adj. Carrying money; solvent: Can.: since ca. 1950, if not earlier. Leechman cites P. St Pierre, Chillicotin Holiday, 1970. Cf. stake, v.

stal; stallie. Stalactite/stalagmite formations: cavers', pot-holders': C.20. (George Bliss, 1980.)

stale, n. A thief's or sharper's accomplice, gen. acting as a decoy: ca. 1520–1650: S.E. >, ca. 1590, c., as in Greene and 'Water-Poet' Taylor. Ex stale, a decoy-bird. An early form of stall.

stale, adj. (Of freight) overdue: railwaymen's: since ca. 1920, but esp. since ca. 1940. (Railway.) Proleptic.

stale bear or bull. A 'bear' having long been short of, a 'bull' having long held, stock: Stock Exchange coll.: from ca. 1890.

stale drunk, adj. Having been drunk at night and having taken too many spirit stimulants the next morning: from ca. 1860. B. & L.

Stalin's barrel organ. A Russian multi-barrelled rocket-launcher copied by the Germans: army: 1942–5. Ex. the deafening noise it made. (Peter Sanders.) The term is still extant, 1978, as Stalin, for the 40-barrelled 122 mm rocket-launcher. (Sunday Times mag. 10 Sep. 1978, article on the guerrilla warfare in Angola.) The original was also known as a Stalin organ on the WW2 Murmansk convoys (Jan de Hartog, The Captain, 1966).

stalk, n. A tie-pin: c.: C.20. F.D. Sharpe, The Flying Squad, 1938.—2. An erection: low: since ca. 1910.—3. ? Hence, 'Male sexual propensity, courage or cheek: "He's got plenty of stalk"' (Powis): low: later C.20.—4. As the stalk, the gallows in Punch and Judy: showmen's: mid-C.19–20.—5. As the stalk: 'The flag is "the stalk" and to "do a stalker" is to carry a passenger without pulling the flag down. "Stalking a job" is doing the same thing' (Herbert Hodge, Cab, Sir?, 1939): taxi-drivers': since ca. 1910; since 1918 the phrases. Powis, however, in 1977 defines stalking as 'The practice by unscrupulous owner cab-drivers... of leaving their meters set "hired" while unhired, so that they can cruise or loiter about "stalking" worth-while hirings'.

stalk a job. See prec., 5.

stalk a judy. To follow (and accost) a woman: low: late C.19–20. Cf.:-

stalk the streets. (Of either sex) to look for sexual satisfaction: late C.19—early 20. Cf. C.17 synon. ramble.

stalker; stalling. See stalk, 5.

stalky. Clever, cunning; cleverly or cunningly contrived: schoolboys': later C.19—earlier 20. Thus in Kipling's school story. (OED Sup.) I.e. good at stalking.

stall, n. A pickpocket's helper, who distracts the victim's attention: c.: from ca. 1590. (Greene, 1591; Dekker.) Also stallsman. Ex stall, a decoy-bird. Cf. stale, q.v.—2. Hence, the practice, or an act, or 'stalling', i.e. thus helping a pick pocket: c.: from ca. 1810. Vaux, 'A violent pressure in a crowd, made by pickpockets.'—3. Hence, a pretext—or its means—for theft or imposition: from ca. 1850: c. >, ca. 1910, low s. Mayhew.—4. Hence, any pretext or excuse; esp. a playing for time: from ca. 1855. (H., 1st ed.) Cf. stall-off, n., and put up a stall, to mislead, to deceive, to hoodwink: lower classes', hence Services' Other Ranks': late C.19—earlier 20. F. & G.—5. See v., 1, and stall up.

stall, v. To screen (a pickpocket or his thieving): c.: from ca. 1590. (Greene, 1592; Head; 'Ducange Anglicus'.) Ex stall, n., 1, q.v. Also stall off, q.v., and cf. stall up. A later C.19 var. was chuck (someone) a stall (J. Greenwood, Daily Telegraph, 30 Dec. 1881, repub. 1884).—2. V.i., to make excuses., allege pretences, play for time: from ca. 1870. Ex stall, n., 3.—3. V.i., to play a role: theatrical: from ca. 1860. (H., 2nd ed.) Perhaps suggested by prec. sense.—4. V.i., to lodge, or to stay the night at, a public house: from ca. 1855; slightly ob. (H., 1st ed.) Prob. ex dial. (in Shakespeare, S.E.) stall, to dwell.—5. V.i., to travel about: c.: ca. 1840–90. ('No. 747'.) Perhaps the imm. origin of sense 4.—6. V.i., to hang about: grafters': late C.19–20. (Cheapjack.) Ex senses 2 and 4.

stall (one's) mug. To depart; esp. hurriedly: c.: mid-C.19–20; ob. Gen. stall your mug!, a sharp order. ('Ducange Anglicus', 1857; H., 1st ed.) Prob. ex stall off, v., 2, q.v.

stall-off, n. An act of 'stalling off'; an evasive trick or story; a pretence, excuse, or prevarication: c.:—1812 (Vaux; Mayhew; OED). Cf.:-

stall off, v. See stall, v., 1: c.: from ca. 1810. Vaux.—2. Hence, to avoid or get rid of evasively or plausibly: c. (—1812) >, ca. 1850, s. Vaux; H. 1st ed.; Sala (OED).—3. Hence, to extricate, free, get off (a person) by trickery or other artifice: c. (—1812) >, ca. 1860, s.; ob. Vaux.—4. Hence, or ex sense 2, to keep the mastery, maintain superiority, over (a competitor, be it horse, as orig., or man): sporting: 1833 (OED). Frequently stall off the challenge of (another horse in the race).

stall-pot. (Gen. pl.) The occupant of a stall-seat: theatrical:—1909 (Ware).

stall to the rogue; occ. to the order of rogues. To instal (a beggar) in rogery, appoint him a member of the underworld: c.: ca. 1565–1840, but archaic after C.17. (Harman, B.E.) By itself, stall is rare; Fletcher, 1622, has 'I... stall thee by the Salmon'—by the beggar's oath—'... To mand on the pad.'

stall up. To hustle, after surrounding, a person being robbed: c.:—1812. Vaux, who specifies the method whereby the victim's arms are forced up and kept in the air. Cf. stall, v., 1, and make a stall, to effect a robbery thus (Ibid.).

stall-whimper. A bastard: c.:—1676; † by 1840. Coles, Grose.

staller. A person constantly, or very good at, making excuses or playing for time: from ca. 1870. Ex stall, n., 3, via v., 2.

staller-up. One who acts as in stall up, q.v.: c.: from ca. 1810. Vaux.—2. Hence, any accomplice of a pickpocket: c.: from ca. 1820.

stallie. See stal.

stalling. The 'ordination' and/or actual 'ordaining' of a beggar: c.:—1688; † by 1850. (Randle Holme.) See stall to the rogue.

stalling-ken. Also, in C.16, staulinge, stauling-; in C.17, stauling-, stuling. A house, office, or room for the reception of stolen goods: c.: ca. 1565–1840, but archaic after ca. 1750. (Harman, B.E., Grose.) Here, stalling simply = placing.

stallion. A piebald horse: circusmen's: from ca. 1860. B. & L.—2. A prostitute's customer: prostitutes' c.: C.20.

stallsman; incorrectly, stalsman. See stall, n., 1: c.:—1839; ob. Brandon, H., 1st ed.

stam, short for estam, is an estaminet: army: WW1.—2. Hence, short for estaminet (i.e. baseless) rumour: 1915–18.

stam flash. To talk the s. of the underworld: c.: late C.17—early 19. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed., who repeats B.E.'s misprinted flesh.) See flash, n., stam, unrecorded except in this phrase and ignored by the OED, is prob. cognate with A.-S. stemn, a voice, via the stefne (steven) of M.E., which has occ. examples in -m- or -mn-; its imm. source is prob. either Ger. stimmen, to make one's voice heard, to sing (cf. the lit. meaning of to cant, particularly significant for our phrase), or the corresponding Dutch v., stemmen.

stammel. 'A brawny, lusty, strapping Wench' (B.E.): late C.16—early 19. (Deloney, 1597; OED; Grose, 1st ed.) Perhaps = 'wearer of a stammel [coarse woollen] petticoat' (OED). The form strammel does not occur before C.18 and is gen. applied to an animal.

stammer. An indictment: c. of ca. 1820–60. (Egan's Grose.) Ex its effect.

stammer and stutter. Butter: theatrical rhyming s.: late C.19–20. Lester.

stamp. 'A particular manner of throwing the dice out of the box, by striking it with violence against the table' (Grose, 2nd ed.): from ca. 1770: dicing coll. >, by 1830, j.; ob.—2. See stamps.

stamp-and-go. A chanty 'sung for a straight pull along the deck': nautical: late C.19–20. Bowen.

stamp-crab. A heavy walker: late C.19—early 20. On beetle-crusher.

stamp-drawers. Stockings: c.: C.17—early 19. See drawers and stamps.

stamp (one's) drum. To punch a hole in one's billy or kettle when it has become too old for further use; gen. as vbl n., stamping...: tramps' c.: late C.19–20. 'Indians in western Canada and Eskimos usually punch a hole in the bottom or otherwise damage any goods left on a grave. Some say this is to release the spirit of the object and render it available for use in the next world, others (more mundane) say it is to prevent their being stolen. This may well have been a circumpolar custom.' (Dr Douglas Leechman, anthropologist and language-lover.)

stamp-in-the-ashes. Some fancy drink: early C.16. Cf. swell-nose.

stampers. Shoes or boots: c.: from ca. 1565; ob. Harman; B.E.; Grose; Egan, 1828, 'My padders, my stampers, my buckets, otherwise my boots.' Cf. stamps, 2.—2. Hence, feet: c.: ca. 1650–90. (Brome, Head.) Cf. stamps, 1.—3. Carriers: c.: from ca. 1670. Coles; B.E.; Sporting Magazine, 1819, 'Coster-mongers, in all their gradations, down to the Stampers' (OED); † by 1860. Hence, in late C.17–18, deuseville stampers, county or country carriers: B.E.

stamping-ground. A field, a park, a by-way, notoriously frequented for amorous dalliance: British Empire: late C.19–20. Ex the stamping and covering by stallions.—2. In C.20, esp. in (one's) old stamping-ground, the place where one has formerly been active or made one's mark, as in 'Well? what's it feel like—to be back in your old stamping-ground after all these years, then?': coll. Perhaps ex 1, but with that sense now lost, and now (1983) quite innocuous. (P.B.)—3. 'Parade ground in Naval barracks' (Granville): RN: C.20. The literal truth!

stamps. Legs: c.: ca. 1565–1840. (Harman, Grose.) Because with them one stamps. Cf. stampers, 2.—2. Hence, shoes: c.:—1812; ob. by 1930. (Vaux.) Cf. stampers, 1.—3. Types, esp. in picking up stamps, composing: printers' s.:—1875 (OED). Cf. stamp, a die.—4. A person of no account, esp. of no relevant status: RN: since ca. 1945. If, for instance, an assistant issues stores to another while the storekeeper himself is present, the storekeeper might well exclaim, 'What am I, stamps?'—usu. 'fucking stamps'.

Stamshaw nanny-goat. See Torpoint chicken.

stana shwaya! Wait a moment!: soldiers' Arabic: late C.19–20. See schwaya.

stand, n. A thief's assistant that keeps watch: c. of ca. 1590–1640. (Greene; 'Water-Poet' Taylor: OED.) Ex standing on watch: cf. standing.—2. An erectio penis: low coll.: C.19–20. See stand always...—3. A mouth-whore: low (? rather, c.): late C.19–20.

stand, v. To make a present of; to pay for: coll.: since early C.19. W.N. Glascock, Sailors and Saints, 1829, I, 85 (Moe).—2. Hence, to pay for the drinks of (a person, or persons): coll.: 1842, Sessions, 6 July.—3. To make stand; set upright, leave standing; set firmly in a specified place, or position: 1837 (Dickens): coll. >, ca. 1870, familiar S.E. E.g. 'stand a child in the corner'.—4. See stand in and stand up; also see pad, patter, rack, racket, velvet.

stand a bar of, cannot. To dislike (someone) intensely: Aus.: since ca. 1920. Dal Stevens, in a story written in 1944.—2. To refuse to tolerate (e.g. an act): Aus.: since ca. 1920. Mary Durack, Keep Him My Country, 1955.

stand a fair (good, etc.) chance. To be likely to do, (with of) to get. From ca. 1790; still of a coll. cast though virtually S.E. since ca. 1880.

'stand always', as the girl said. A c.p., mid-C.19—early 20, with a punning ref. to priapism. Ex the physiological S.E. sense of stand.

stand and freeze. Stand at ease: military joc., rather than rhyming s.: ca. 1895–1935. Franklyn 2nd.

stand at ease! Cheese: Services' rhymings.: late C.19—earlier 20. F. & G.—2. Fleas: rhyming s.: late C.19–20.

stand at the peg. (Of racehorse) to be left at the starting-point: Aus. racing: since ca. 1925. B., 1953.

stand ben. See ben, n., 2.

stand bitch. To preside at tea or perform some other female role: late C.18—early 19. Grose, 1st ed.

stand bluff or buff. To swear it is so; to stand firm; to take the consequences: late C.17–20; bluff, † by 1900; buff, ob. 'Hudibras' Butler; Fielding; Sheridan, 1777 (bluff? earliest record); Scott. See-stand buff. To bear the brunt; endure without flinching. V.t. with to or against. Coll.; from temp. Restoration; ob. by 1850, † by 1890. Cf. buff, v., and S.E. be a buffer, buffer state. Butler, in Hudibras's Epitaph, ca. 1680: 'And for the good old cause stood buff/ Gaint many a bitter kick and cuff'; Fielding; Dyche's Dict.; Scott.

stand-by. An optimistic air passenger in the habit of standing by, in the hope that a reservation will lapse: Can. air-travel coll., verging on j.: since ca. 1954. (Leechman.) P.B.: soon, if not already by 1954, international airlines' j.

stand by your beds! A c.p., mimicking self-importance and pretending to stir occupants of room to (greater) activity: Forces: 1939–45. 'Ex disciplinary order of superior on entering barrack room' (L.A.). P.B.: still current in the early 1970s. L.A. might have quoted the doggerel: 'Stand by your beds!/ Here comes the Air Chief Marshal!/ Four great rings upon his arm/ and still he wants your arse'ole!'

stand (one) down. To cost: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1925. H. Drake Brockman, Hot Gold, 1940, 'Only stand you down eighty quid.' Cf. stand in, v.

stand-easy, n. An impromptu meal, paid for (in part, at least) by the ratings: lowerdeck coll.: latish C.19 until WW2. Goodenough, 1901.

stand for. To endure, tolerate; agree to: adopted, ex US, early 1920s: coll. OED Sup.

stand from under. Thunder: theatrical rhyming s.: late C.19–20. Franklyn, Rhyming.

stand (one's) hand. To meet the bill (esp. for the company's refreshment or entertainment): coll.: from ca. 1880. H. Nisbet, 1892, 'I used to see her... "standing her hand" liberally to all... in the bar' (OED). Cf. stand shot, q.v. Also Aus. (Hume Nisbet, The Bushranger's Sweetheart, 1892).

stand-in. A deputy; one who takes your turn of duty: Services' coll.: since ca. 1925. (H. & P.) Ex stand in for.

stand (one) in. To cost (a person) so much, the sum gen. being stated: C.15–20: S.E. until ca. 1850, then coll.; in C.20, fashionable s. when not dial. Thackeray, 1848, 'It stands me in eight shillings a bottle' (OED).

stand in for. To take (someone's) turn of duty; to stand by for him: Services' coll.: since ca. 1925. (Partridge, 1945.) Ex the theatre.

stand Moses. Ca. 1790–1920: 'A man is said to stand Moses when he has another man's bastard child fathered upon him, and he is obliged by the parish to maintain it' (Grose, 3rd ed.). Contrast dial. say Moses, to make an offer of marriage (EDD).—2. Hence, absolutely (of a man only). To adopt a child: lower classes'; mid-C.19–20. Neil Bell, Crocus, 1936.

stand-off, adj. Stand-offish: Aus.:—1916 (C.J. Dennis).

stand on a fag-paper! C.p. advice to one who cannot reach up to something: mostly Londoners': from ca. 1920.

stand on everything! Hold it!; Await further orders!: RAF: since ca. 1938. H. & P., 'To put the brakes on'. Perhaps a development from 'Tread on everything', applied to the model-T Ford, with its rapid deceleration accomplished best by the driver pressing down all the foot controls.

stand on (one's) hind legs. To show temper: coll.: late C.19—earlier 20.—2. To take an obstinate stand on opinion, preference; above all, not to budge from it; cf. S.E. stand on one's dignity (L.A., 1976): since ca. 1910.

stand on me! Take my word for it: a fringe-of-the-underworld c.p.: since ca. 1930. (Frank Norman, Stand on Me, 1959.) A shortening of the earlier stand on me for that! (Slang, 1933).

stand (or be standing) on one leg. To be caught—caught standing... is the usual form—doing something unofficial in official hours; to be in an awkward position: Services: since ca. 1935. (H. & P.) Cf. caught with one's trousers down, and caught bending.

stand on (one's) own bottom. to be independent: C.17–20; coll. till ca. 1800, then S.E.; cf. the proverbial let every tub stand on its own bottom: C.17–20.

stand on the stones. See standing on the stones.

stand on velvet. See velvet, 3.

stand out like... There are several similes for 'the patently obvious'; among them are:... a shithouse in a fog (low Can.: C.20); ... chapel hatpegs (esp. of eyes: coll.: C.20, prob. earlier); ... cods' ballocks (orig. London low > gen. low: C.20); ... dog's ballocks (gen. coll., a more logical var. of cods: C.20); ... a sore thumb (perhaps orig. Can.: C.20).

stand over (a person). Menacingly to demand money from c., and low; from ca. 1910. See also standover.

stand pad or (derivatively) Paddy. (Of a pedlar) to sell from a stationary position: tramps' c.: resp. C.18–20 and late C.19–20. Ex pad, a road.

stand (one's) peggy. To take one's turn in fetching food and cleaning the fo'c'sle: nautical: C.20. (Norman Springer, The Blood Ship, 1923.) See peggy, 1.

stand ready at the door. To be handy for use: coll.: mid-C.19–20; ob. Ex spade, axe, saddle and bridle, whip, gen. standing there.

stand right under! Clear out!: nautical coll.:—1887 (Baumann). Ex nautical j. stand from under!

stand Sam or sam (or, early C.20, sammy). To pay the reckoning, esp. for drinks or other entertainment: 1823, Moncrieff; 1834, Ainsworth, 'I must insist upon standing Sam upon the present occasion'; Henley. Prob. the sam is cognate with that of upon my sam, and derives either ex salmon, q.v., as I prefer, or ex Samuel, as the OED suggests; H.'s theory of US origin (Uncle Sam) is, I feel sure, untenable. Also stand sammy.—2. In stand sam to, to promise (a person something): C.20. Neil Bell, Andrew Otway, 1931.

stand shot! rarely stand the shot. Same as stand one's hand, q.v.: coll.: from ca. 1820. V.t. with to. Cf. stand sam and S.E. stand treat.

stand the bears. To suffer: coll.: 1703. See VERBS, in Appendix.

stand the huff. See huff, 4.

stand the patter. See patter, n., 4.

stand the racket. To take the blame for one's gang: c. (—1823) >, by 1850, s. >, by 1900, coll. 'Jon Bee'.—2. Hence, to pay the bill, stand the expense: s., since ca. 1830 or 1840 (Sinks, 1848), >, by 1930, coll. See rack, 4, and racket, 3. stand the score. RN var. of stand shot and stand (one's) hand: C.19. W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, II, 1826 (Moe).

stand to. A shortening of next. Powis, 1977.

stand-to-attention. A pension: rhyming s.: since ca. 1919.

stand to, boys! — the jocks are going over. A c.p. joc. directed at 'kilties': 1916–18. (B. & P.) The 'Jocks' were extremely popular with women, Australians, journalists.

stand-up. A dance: low coll.: 1851, Mayhew, 'It was a penny a dance... and each stand-up took a quarter of an hour' (OED).—2. A meal or a snack taken standing: coll. (1884: OED) >, ca. 1910, S.E. Cf. perpendicular.—3. An act of copulation done standing: low coll.: mid-C.19–20. Also a perpendicular or knee-trembler.—4. The n. ex v., 2, q.v.

stand up, v.i. To shelter from the rain: coll. and dial.: 1887, 'Mark Rutherford'; 1908, G.K. Chesterton, 'Hoping... that the snow-shower might be slight, he... stood up under the doorway.' OED.—2. V.t., to keep waiting; to deceive: c.: from ca. 1925. Gilt Kid, 1936, 'He didn't want Maisie to think that he was standing her up.' Hence also v.i., to fail to 'keep a date' (with someone): since ca. 1943; and as n., since ca. 1945.—3. To coit with (a girl), as in 'He stood her up three times in one evening': low: C.20. Orig. of perpendicular conjunction.

stand up drinks. To set out drinks' (B., 1942): Aus. coll.: C.20.

stand up in. To be wearing at that moment: coll.: C.20. 'I can't very well stay the night, I've only the things I stand up in.'

stand-up prayers. Divine Service under makeshift conditions: RN coll.: WW1. F. & G.

stand-up seat, have a. To (be obliged to) stand, e.g. in a train: joc. coll.: C.20.

stand up with. To dance with: coll.: 1812, Jane Austen, 'If you want to dance, Fanny, I will stand up with you'; ob.—2. To act as bridesmaid or groomsman for: mid-C.19–20; ob.: by 1910, † by 1935.

standard NATO. 'One milk and one sugar'—i.e., a teaspoonful of each in one's tea or coffee: Services': since ca. 1970. (Peppitt.)

stander. A criminal's, esp. a thief's, sentinel: early C.17 c. Rowlands, 1610.

standing. A thieves' station: c.: 1548 (Latimer); † by 1590.—2. In take standing, to accept composedly, endure patiently or without fuss: coll.: 1901, Free Lance, 27 Apr., 'Like a philosophical American, he took it standing, merely remarking... 'Ex taking a high jumps without a run up.—3. See all standing.

standing about like a spare prick. Useless, unwanted, idle; esp. with hint of superfluity or of embarrassment: low: C.20. In full, ... s.p. at a wedding. A politer var., to describe someone bewildered and ill-at-ease, is standing around like a lost lemon: C.20. (Miss Rosemary Sutcliffe, OBE.)

standing budge. A thief's or thieves' sentinel: c.: late C.17—early 19. (B.E., 'The Thieves Scout or Perdu'; Grose.) Cf. sneaking budge; see budge.

standing dish. 'Any one who is constantly lurching, dining, or calling at a house': Society coll.: from ca. 1870; slightly ob. (B. & L.) Ex the j. of cookery.

standing ground. 'The bottom of a goldmine shaft which needs no timbering' (B., 1959): Aus. coll.: late C.19–20.

standing on the stones. Omitted from the list of those 'wanted' (for work): dockers': from ca. 1930. Daily Herald, late July 1936.

standing part. 'The original structure of anything that has since been embellished, even down to a much-patched pair of trousers' (Bowen): nautical coll.: late C.19–20. Ex the nautical j. senses.

standing patterer. One of those men 'who take a stand on the curb of a public thoroughfare, and deliver prepared speeches to effect a sale of any articles they have to vend' (esp. broadsides), H., 1st ed.: London s. (from ca. 1850), ob. by 1890, † by 1910; The Metropolitan Streets' Act, 1867, made it very difficult for them. Contrast flying stationer and cf. paper-worker.

standing prick has no conscience, a. A low c.p. (mid-C.19–20) that, from its verity and force, has >, virtually, a proverb. An eminent scholar points out that in Nathaniel Field's Amends for Ladies, 1618, there is this arresting adumbration: 'O man, what art thou when thy cock is up?'

standing room for (a man), make. To receive him sexually: low: late C.19–20. Whence understandings, a woman's conquests; ob.

standing up for fine weather. 'Phrase loosely applicable to anything that is standing up (e.g. a man's hair) that can and should be lying down. The scabrous innuendo goes back to late C.19—early 20' (L.A., 1976).

standing up in a hammock. Orig. synonym with 'trying to do the impossibly difficult': RN lowerdeck: mid-C.19—early 20. Thence, it came to mean 'anything fantastically and impossibly funny. An allusion to the [impossible and] humorous aspect of attempting sexual intercourse in such a [position and] situation': RN: 1940s [later > fairly gen.] (Peppitt). As if it were not difficult and ludicrous enough in a hammock to start with!

standing ware. Var. of stand, n., 2, an erect penis: mid-C.19—early 20.

standover, n. A piece of criminal intimidation: standover man, one who practises this sort of intimidation (for money): low Aus.: since ca. 1920. (Kylie Tennant, Foveaux, 1939.) Ex stand over, q.v.—2. Short for next. Hence work the standover: Aus. c.: since ca. 1920. B., 1942.

standover man. See prec., 1: Aus. c. (since ca. 1920) >, ca. 1930, low s. Baker.

standover merchant. Var. of prec.: Aus. c. (since ca. 1925) >, by 1935, low s. B., 1959.

stands to sense, it. It stands to reason, it's only sensible: coll.: 1859 (George Eliot: OED). Ex † it is to (good) sense on it stands to reason.

stang(e)y. A tailor: low: late C.18—early 20. (Grose, 1st ed. (also twangey); H., 2nd ed.) Cf. prick-louse. Ex the needle: cf. stang, an eel-spear.—2. A person under petticoat government: rural:—1860 (H., 2nd ed.). Ex the custom of riding the stang, where stang = a pole.

[stangs, says Manchon, is c. for 'chains': but is not this an error for slangs? See slangs, 1.]

stap my vitals! A coll. exclamation or asseveration: late C.17–20; ob. Ex Lord Foppington's pron. in Vanbrugh's The Relapse, 1696, of stop. In late C.19–20, occ. affectedly, stap me! OED.

staph. Staphylococcus, a common type of bacteria: medical students':—1933 (Slang, p. 190). Cf. strep.

star, n. A 'starring the glaze'; the star, this practice: c.:—1812; ob. Vaux, 'A person convicted of this offence, is ... done for a star.' Also in Vaux is good on the star, (esp. of a building) easy to open, i.e. burgle: id.; which has var. good on the crack. See star the glaze.

—2. One who 'shines' in society; a very distinguished person: mid-C.19–20: mostly coll.—3. Hence, in late C.19–20, a famous actor or actress, esp. the most prominent one in any given play or film: coll. Ex to star, 2, q.v.—4. 'An article introduced into a sale after the catalogue has been printed: marked in the official copy by a star' (F. & H.): auctioneers': from ca. 1880.—5. In ref. to the badge worn by first offenders: prison s.: 1882 (OED). E.g. star-class prisoners.

—6. Hence, a prisoner of the 'star' class: coll.: 1903 (Lord W. Neville: OED).—7. As the Star, the Star and Garter Inn at Richmond: coll.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.).

star, v. See star the glaze.—2. V.i., to act the leading part in a play: 1824 (OED): coll. >, by 1860, S.E. Also, from 1825, star it: same status.—3. Hence v.t., as in star the provinces, to tour there as the 'star' of a dramatic company: 1850, Thackeray, 'She ... had starred the provinces with great éclat' (OED): coll. till ca. 1870, then S.E.

star and garter, my; gen. my ss. and gg. A coll. expression of astonishment: 1850, R.G. Cumming, 'My stars and garters! what sort of man is this?' (OED). Orig. ex dazzling breast-worn decorations (Dr C.T. Onions, postcard, 9 Apr. 1939). An elab. of my stars!, q.v. at stars.

star-back. An expensive seat: circus s.:—1933 (Edward Seago, Circus Company). I.e. a seat with a back, not a mere plank.

star-ballock naked. A loose var. of stark-ballock naked.

star company. A company with one star, and the rest mere nobodies: theatrical coll.: ca. 1884–1914. Ware.

star-gazer. A penis in erection: C.18—early 20.—2. A hedge whore: from ca. 1780; ob. Grose, 1st ed.—3. A horse that, in trotting, holds its head well up: late C.18—mid-19. Grose, 1st ed.—4. An imaginary sail: nautical: C.19. (W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, 2nd series, 1834, at II, 64 (Moe); Clark Russell.) Prob. suggested by nautical sky-scraper.—5. See philosopher.

star-gazing on (one's) back, go. (Of a woman) to coit low: mid-C.19—earlier 20. Cf. star-gazer, 2, and stare at the ceiling...

Star Hotel. Esp. sleep in, or at, the Star Hotel, or the Inn of Stars, or the Moon and Stars Hotel, ground floor: to sleep in the open: Aus. and NZ: C.20. (Wilkes.) Cf. sleep at Mrs Green's.

star in the East, a. A fly-button showing: Public Schools': since ca. 1915.

star it. See star, v., 2.

star-lay. Robbery by breaking windows: c.: from ca. 1810;

ob. (Lex. Bal., Egan's Grose, Baumann, misprint it as star lag.) Ex star the glaze.

star man. A prisoner on first conviction: c. and police s.:—1933 (Charles E. Leach). Ex the official mark against his name.

Star of the Line, the. The 29th Foot—in late C.19–20, the Worcestershire—Regiment: military: C.19–20; ob. (F. & G.) Ex the 'eight-pointed "Garter Star", worn as a special distinction on the greatcoat straps'.

star of the movies, the. The no. 9 pill: military: 1917; ob. (B. & P.) It caused one to move briskly to the latrine.

star-pitch. A sleep(ing) in the open: tramps' c.: from ca. 1870. Cf. Hedge Square and do a starry (see at starry) and Star Hotel...

star-queller. 'An actor whose imperfect acting mars that of better actors': theatrical: ca. 1880–1910. B. & L.

star the glaze. 'To break and rob a jeweller's show glass' (Grose, 2nd ed.): c.: ca. 1786–1890. See glaze, 1.—2. Hence, to smash any window (or show-case) and steal the contents: c.: C.19–early 20. Ex star, to mark or adorn with a star. Cf. star, n., and star-lay, qq.v.

star turn. The central or most important person: coll.: C.20. (Leonard Merrick, Peggy Harper, 1911.) Ex the music hall.—2. Hence, as in 'He's a star turn'—someone admirably good, esp. at his job and much admired therefor: working-class coll.: since ca. 1930. (Petch, 1969.)

starboard fore-lift, give a person a shake (of one's). The right hand: nautical: mid-C.19–early 20. Bowen.

starboard light. Crème de menthe: since ca. 1920. (Philip Macdonald, The Rynox Mystery, 1930.) Both are green.

starbolians. Earlier var. of starbowlines. Bill Truck, 1822.

starbolic naked. A corruption of stark-ballock naked, utterly naked: low (esp. Aus.): since ca. 1870. Brian Penton, Inheritors, 1936, 'Is it true he makes the miners strip starbolic naked in front of him to show they ain't pinching any of his gold?'

starbowlines. The starboard watch: nautical: mid-C.19–20; ob. (Bowen.) Cf. larbowlines, q.v.

starch out of, take the. (Of a woman) to receive sexually: low: mid-C.19–20. Ex the S.E. sense, to abase or humiliate. Prob. there is an allusion to the semen virile. A valued correspondent writes, 'I suspect a double pun. With the "starch" taken out of him, he is no longer "stiff".'

starched collars. Game birds: poachers': since ca. 1920.

starcher. A stiff white tie: late C.19–early 20. Ex † starcher (starched cravat).

starchy. Drunk: low s.: later C.19–early 20.

stare. Esp. in as like as (one) can (or could) stare, very like in appearance: coll.: 1714, Gay, 'A fine child, as like his dad as he could stare'; Jane Austen. Ob. by 1930. OED.

stare at the ceiling over a man's shoulder. (Of women) to coit: feminine, but joc. rather than euph.: C.20. Cf. stargazing.

stare-cat. An inquisitive neighbour, esp. if a woman: women's adopted, ca. 1902, ex US. In children's coll., mid-C.20, sometimes starey- or stareddy-cat, simply one who stares; perhaps influenced by scaredy-cat.

stare like a dead (1694, Motteux) or a stuck (1720, Gay) pig. To gape and stare in utter astonishment or dismay: coll.: the former, rare and † by 1800; the latter (Smollett, 1749; Joseph Thomas, 1895), actively extant, but considered, in C.20, as slightly vulgar. Apperson, who cites the Cheshire stare like a choked throistle and like a throttled cat or earwig.

starers. Long-handled eye-glasses; a lorgnette: coll. (society > by 1900, gen.): 1894 (Anthony Hope, The Dolly Dialogues).

stares, the. The 'fixed, glassy-eyed look of unwilling divers who realize what they have let themselves in for. They know that they have to go, but delay it to the last' (Granville, 1964): skin-divers': since the late 1940s.

starie chelevok. A Commanding Officer; anyone in authority: Regular Army with Eastern service: C.20. Lit., old man. P.B.: 'Eastern Service' here must refer to contacts with Russia, post-WW1.

1146

staring-quarter. An ox-cheek: late C.18–mid-19. (Grose, 1st ed.) In dial., a 'staring quarter' is a laughing-stock.

stark ballock. Shortening of next. Anthony Burgess, Beard's Roman Women, 1977.

stark-ballock naked. See starbolic naked.

stark-bol(l)ux. Stark-naked: Aus.: since ca. 1890. (Leonard Mann, A Murder in Sydney, 1937.) Ex prec.

stark-naked. (Neat or raw) gin: low: 1820 (J.H. Reynolds: OED); almost †. Cf. strip-me-naked, q.v.—2. Occ. any unadulterated spirit: from late 1850s. H., 2nd ed.—3. Hence, adj.: unadulterated: mid-C.19–20. All senses derive ex the notion of resultant poverty.

stark staring bonkers. Utterly mad: coll.: since mid-C.20. A s. var. of S.E. stark raving mad.

starkers; starko. Stark-naked: from ca. 1910: resp. Oxford University s. and low coll. (Manchon.) I.e. stark+the 'OXFORD -ER(S)', and stark+the lower-class suffix o (as in wido).

starling. See brother starling.—2. A marked man: police: from ca. 1890. Because 'spotted' or starred, marked with an asterisk for future reference.

starn, n. Stern: nautical coll.:—1887 (Baumann). Ex dial.—2. Hence, the buttocks: C.20—and prob. much earlier.

starp. Sprats: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). See sret-sio.

starrer. See angler.

starry, do a. To sleep in the open: tramps' c.: C.20. Cf. star-pitch.

stars. In my stars!, an exclam. like 'Good heavens!', of astonishment: coll.: since early C.17 (John Fletcher, The Prophetess, 1622, at IV, iv: Moe). See also star and garter.—2. See see stars.

stars and bars, the. The Stars and Stripes flag of the United States of America: nautical coll.: since mid-C.19. (Bowen.) Cf. gridiron.

star's nap. To borrow (money from): theatrical rhyming s., on synon. tap: C.20. Franklyn 2nd.

stars out! A Conway cadets' c.p. expressive of incredulity: ca. 1900. John Masefield, The Conway, 1933.

start, n. The brewer's procedure whereby he empties several barrels of liquor into a tub and thence conveys it, through a leather pipe, down to the butts in the cellar: late C.17–mid-18. B.E.—2. A surprising incident or procedure: 1837 (Dickens, queer start). Often rum(my) start: mid-C.19–20: cf. rum go. OED. Ex the start of surprise.—3. A job, employment: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) P.B.: ex prec., says E.P., but may it not be rather 'a start in life' or 'a fresh start'? Cf. also start in, q.v.—4. A prison: c., from ca. 1820, >, by 1860, low s.; ob. by 1930. Ex—5. As the Start, Newgate prison: c.: mid-C.18–19. Also, in late C.18–19, the Old Start, as in Grose, 2nd ed. Perhaps because Newgate represented the beginning of a personal 'epoch'; but cf. Romany stardo, imprisoned—it is therefore ultimately cognate with stir, a prison.—6. Hence, the Start, the Old Bailey: c.: C.19–20. (Mayhew.) Likewise, the Old Start.—7. As the Start, London: tramps' c. >, ca. 1870, low s. 'No. 747', ref. valid for 1845; Mayhew, 1851; H., 5th ed. (status). Also without article: mid-C.19–20 (ob.), as in 'No. 747' and 'Ducange Anglicus'. 'The great starting point for beggars and tramps' (H., 2nd ed.).

start, v.t., as in the Gentleman's Magazine, 1825, "I started him." To start is to apply a smart word to an idle or forgetful person' (OED). In short, to make him jump by startling him. It had, in the Navy of late C.18–mid-19, the more drastic sense, 'to beat with a rope's end', as in W.N. Glascock, The Naval Sketch-Book, I (p. 121), 1825. (Moe.) The corresponding n. is starting, also in Glascock, I, 1825.—2. To start (i.e. begin) to complain or reprimand or abuse or boast or reminisce: coll.: C.19–20. Thus "When I was your age I was up and about at six in the morning." "Now don't you start," said Paula' (Gerald Kersh, Men Are so Ardent, 1935).

start a fowl-roost. See fowl-roost...

start in, v.i.; v.t. with on. To begin work, one's job (on or at): coll.: US (—1892), anglicised ca. 1900. E.g. 'I start in,

Monday.'—2. Hence, to start, to begin: Can. sol. coll.: C.20. 'Now, don't you start in worrying.' 'He's started in drinking again!' (Leechman.)

start off the button. (Of a car) to begin running immediately: motor trade: since ca. 1918. Press the button and off she goes.

start on. To tease, jest at, bully: coll.: late C.19–20.

start something, as, e.g., 'Now you've started something!' To set afoot, deliberately or unwittingly, something that will have important or exciting consequences, coll.: adopted (via the cinema) ca. 1938 from US.—2. To render a girl pregnant: raffish: since ca. 1940. (Petch, 1966.)

start tack or sheet. See tack or sheet.

starter. A question: c.: late C.17–early 18. (B.E.) Because apt to make one start in surprise or dismay. Cf. start, n., 2, and v.—2. A laxative: lower classes:—1923 (Manchon). Its opposite is stopper, an astringent. These two terms, orig. undergraduates', occur in Compton Mackenzie's Gallipoli Memories, 1929, and date back to the 1890s.—3. (Only starter.) One who frequently changes his occupation or his employer: ca. 1810–80. Sessions, Feb. 1823.

starters. An apéritif; a hors d'œuvres; a first course: non-cultured: C.20. Thus, 'Right, then! We'll have soup for starters ...'—2. (Prob.) hence, to begin with, in the first, or most important, place: coll.: since mid-C.20. 'For starters, I want to know why you ...' Cf. fyfys, q.v. (P.B.)

starter's orders. See under starter's ...

starting, vbl n. A reprimand; a beating: nautical and proletarian: C.19. (Bill Truck, Jan. 1822; B. & L.) See start, v., 1.

starvation, adv. Gen. starvation cheap, as in Kipling, 1892 (the adv.'s first appearance in print): coll. Lit., so as to cause starvation; hence, excessively, extremely.

starvation buoys. Buoys used for laying up ships: since ca. 1920. (Peppitt cites D.D. Gladwin, The Canals of Britain, 1973.) So called because quayside mooring is expensive.

starvation corner. That seat at (esp. the dinner-) table, whose occupant is served last: Army officers': from ca. 1885.

starve, do a. To be starving: (mostly lower classes') coll.: from ca. 1910 at the latest. Also Aus. (Kylie Tennant, The Honey Flow, 1956).

Starve'em, Rob'em, and Cheat'em. Stroud, Rochester, and Chatham: naval and military: ca. 1780–1890. (Grose, 1st ed.; H., 3rd ed.) Cf. the London Smash'em and Do-for-em, the old London, Chatham, and Dover Railway.

starve the bards or lizards or mopokes or wombats! C.20 Aus. expletives, the 1st esp. W. Aus. (a bardy is a wood-grub). Wombats may also be speeded. Cf. stone the crows! B., 1942.

starver. Cockney synon. of perisher, q.v.: C.20. 'You bleed'n ol' starver!'—2. A saveloy: Aus.: since ca. 1910. B., 1942.

Starving Fifty or Hungry Half Hundred. 'The R.N.R. officers admitted into the Supplementary List of the R.N. in 1913' (Bowen): RN. Cf. Hungry Hundred, q.v.

starving mush. See instalment mixture.

stash. To stop, desist from: c. (—1811) >, ca. 1840, low s. >, ca. 1870, s. Lex. Bal., 1811. 'The cove tipped the prosecutor fifty quid to stash the business'; Vaux; 1841, Leman Rede, 'Stash your patter—shut up!—an come along.' Prob., as W. suggests, ex stow + squash: cf. Vaux at stash. Perhaps, however, it blends stop + squash: Chignell.—2. Hence, to quit (a place): 1889, 'Rolf Boldrewood', 'The rest of us ... stashed the camp and cleared out' (OED).—3. (Usu. with away.) To hide (something); to put money into a bank account: Can.: adopted, ca. 1925, ex US. 'He's got thousands stashed away!' (Leechman.) Clearly influenced by 'to cache'. Robert Bartrop adds, in a letter to P.B., 1981, that neither he nor Jim Wolveridge has ever heard the word used as in senses 1 and 2, but that it 'has been common among Cockneys [and more widely] for the last 40 years for hoarding, secreting or safe-keeping something. "The old lady keeps her best crockery stashed away in a cupboard"; "let's stash our tools here ready to start work tomorrow".' P.B. suggests a blend of stack, v.t. + cache. E.P. notes later that, 'by the late 1940s the term had > common throughout the Commonwealth'.—4. Hence, merely 'to place': coll.: later C.20. Nicholas Blake, The Sad Variety, 1964, 'Well, Leake stashed the wheel [car] in the car park'; 'He stashed his dib behind his ear'ole' (P.B.) stash away. See prec., 3.

stash it. Specifically, 'to give over a lewd or intemperate course of life' (H.): 1859; ob. by 1930.—2. As imperative, specifically: be quiet! (Ibid.) See stash, 1.

stash the glim. To cease using the light; to extinguish it: c. (—1823) >, ca. 1840, low s.; † by 1890. ('Jon Bee', 1823.) Cf. douse the glim. Ex stash, 1.

stash up. To terminate abruptly, as in the earliest record (H.G. Wells' Tono Bungay, 1909), 'She brought her [piano-]playing to an end by—as schoolboys say—"stashing it up"' (OED). Ex stash, 1. Among dockers, from ca. 1920, to have stashed the game up is to have stopped the job (Daily Herald, late July or early Aug., 1936).

stat. A statutory tenant: landlords' and property speculators': since ca. 1954. See the quot'n at schwarz.

stat dec. A statutory declaration: Aus. spoken, esp. legal and journalistic: since ca. 1940. (B.P.)

state. A dreadful state, esp. of untidiness, confusion, dirtiness: coll.: 1879, F.W. Robinson, 'Just look what a [dirty] state I am in!' (OED); C.20, 'The house is in a state!'—2. Agitation, anxiety, state of excitement: coll.: 1837 (Marryat: OED); W.E. Richards, in The Humorist, 18 Aug. 1934, 'When I reached the station, my wife was in what is known in domestic circles as "a state".' Cf. two-and-eight.—3. See lie in state.

state! Elliptical ex what a state to get into!, > state to get into!: teenagers' (usu.) joc. pej.: early 1980s. (James Williamson, 1982.)

State frighters. Those who foolishly fear any infringement of their own State-rights': Aus.:—1935.

state of chassis. See chassis.

state of elevation, in a. A coll. >, in late C.19, S.E.; very ob. As in Smollett, 1749, 'We drank hard, and went home in a state of elevation, that is half-seas over.'

State of Independence. Var. of states of independency: P. Egan, Life in London, 1821.

State secret, it's a. A c.p., used by someone refusing to disclose information, however trivial: since ca. 1933.

state tea. A 'tea at which every atom of the family plate is exhibited': Society: ca. 1870–1914. Ware, 'Probably suggested by State ball'.

state-the-case man. 'A pressed seaman whose protests were strong enough to bring an Admiralty order that he should be given a chance to state his case': naval coll.: ca. 1770–1840. Bowen.

Stater. A member of the Irish Free State Army: Anglo-Irish coll.: from 1922.

states can be saved without it. A political, hence cultured, c.p. expressive of ironic condemnation: ca. 1880–90. Ware.

states of independency. The 'frontiers of extravagance' (Egan's Grose): Oxford University, ca. 1820–40.

static. Back talk; face-saving objections: since late 1960s. Prob. ex US (DCCL). P.B.: ex radio operators' j. for mere noise, meaningless crackle from loudspeaker or earphones.

station. See movement at the station.

station bicycle. A sexually generous girl employed on a RAF station: RAF: since ca. 1940. Cf. town bike.

station bloke. The police officer in charge of a station: police: since ca. 1920. (Free-Lance Writer, Apr. 1948.) Also station-master.

station-jack. A boiled meat pudding cooked at stock-stations or in the bush: Aus. coll.: 1853 (Morris).

stationery. Free passes: theatrical: from ca. 1880; ob. Ex synon. paper, q.v.—2. Cigarettes: early C.20.

stationmaster. Station Commander: RAF: since ca. 1930. (Berrey; H. & P.) Ex the railway title.—2. See station bloke.

stationmaster's hat. 'The cap with gilt peak worn by commanders and above' (Bowen): RN officers': from ca. 1916. Cf. prec., 1.

stats. Statistics: familiar coll. of anyone using or learning them: since ca. 1945.

staulinge-, stawling(e)-ken. See stalling-ken.

staunch, n. 'A person who is exceedingly keen on games and other house activities, and makes it unpleasant for those who do not wish to participate' (Lambert & Millham, quoted in Sunday Times, 1 Sep. 1968): public and grammar schools' s. P.B.: ironic perversion of S.E. adj.; cf. keeno, and—for the type—the older heartie.

stave-off. A scratch meal: coll.: later C.19–early 20. (Bin-stead.) Claiborne, 'It staves off hunger'.

stay, n. A cuckold: ca. 1810–50. (Lex. Bal.)? because he stays his hand.

stay, v. To lodge or reside regularly or permanently: standard Scots (C.18–20) >, in late C.19, Colonial, esp. S. African, Aus. and NZ (OED).—2. See come to stay.

stay a minute. An estaminet: Army: WW1. (Reginald Pound, The Lost Generation, 1964.) By the vivid process of Hobson-Jobson. Cf. stam.

stay and be hanged! A lower-middle-class c.p. of C.19–early 20: 'Oh, all right!' Ware.

stay home. To stay at home: Can. coll.: since ca. 1920. (Leechman.)

stay out. To stay in, esp. because on the sick list: Eton College:—1857. See esp. Brinsley Richards's and 'Mac's' memoirs of Eton. By antiphrasis.

stay-put, n. One who holds his ground ('stays put'): coll., esp. Aus.: since ca. 1950. (B.P.)

stay put, v.i. Remain in position, firm, lit. and fig.; to continue to be safe, satisfactory, sober, honest, faithful, in training, etc.: coll.: from ca. 1915. Ex US; Bartlett stigmatised it in 1848 as 'a vulgar expression'.—2. To remain, in time of emergency (e.g. invasion), where one lives: 1940+ by 1942, familiar S.E.

stay-tape. A tailor: coll.: ca. 1780–1850. (Grose, 1st ed.) Ex the frequency with which that article figured in tailors' bills. Cf. next.—2. A dry-goods clerk or salesman: trade: mid-C.19–early 20. B. & L.

stay-tape is scorched (, one's). One is in bad health: tailors': late C.19–20. Tailor and Cutter, 29 Nov. 1928.

stay with. To keep up with (a competitor, a rival, in any contest): coll.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1920.—2. To copulate with (a woman): coll., orig. euph.: since ca. 1940.

staying. For a day, a week, etc., as in 'They have staying visitors': non-aristocratic coll.:—1887 (Baumann).

staying at Mrs Greenfield's. Hauliers' var. of Greenfield's, 1, q.v. See also HAULIERS', in Appendix.

staysel. A staysail: nautical coll.:—1887 (Baumann).

'stead for instead is coll. in late C.19–20. OED; Baumann.

steady, n. A steady admirer, wooer, of a girl (rarely, at first, vice versa): copied, ex US, ca. 1907; by 1930, coll. (OED Sup.) In RN lowerdeckese, 'a man's fiancée or "regular" girl friend' (Granville).

steady, adj. In the Guards, son, "Steady" means "Absolutely lousy". If you want to sort of spit in a man's eye, call him Steady' (Gerald Kersh, They Die with Their Boots Clean, 1941). An extension of S.E. nuance 'dependable but slow'.—2. Easy-going; 'decent': non-Guards units of the Army: since ca. 1939. P-G-R.—3. See go steady, and cf. prec.

steady as a crock, as. Applied to someone hardly 'as steady as a rock': since ca. 1940. (Petch, 1966.)

steady, Barker! An extremely popular and widely-adapted c.p. from the Navy version of the BBC radio-comedy series 'Merry-Go-Round', later civilianised as 'Just Fancy', in which the comedian Eric Barker took the leading part: from ca. 1941, and still, 1981, not quite †. For many people it superseded steady, the Buffs! E.P. in Radio Times, 6 Dec. 1946; P.B.; and see esp. Nigel Rees, Very Interesting..., 1980.

steady man. 'One who is so slow as to be practically useless' (H. & P.): Services: since ca. 1930. Sarcastic. Cf. steady, adj. P.B.: † by 1950.

1148

steady, the Buffs! A c.p. of adjuration or of self-admonition: orig. army, since mid-C.19; by C.20 RN and soon gen. of anecdotal origin.

steak. See two-eyed steak.

steak and bull's eyes. Steak-and-kidney pudding: low eating-house: C.20. Frank Jennings, Tramping, 1932.

steak and kid. Steak-and-kidney pudding or pie: mostly eating-house employees' and their imitators': since ca. 1910.

Steak and Kidney. Sydney: Aus. rhyming s.: C.20. B., 1945.

steak and kidney pie. A theatrical (late C.19–20) var. of mince pie, eye. Franklyn, Rhyming.

steal, n. A thieving; a theft; a thing stolen: Scots (—1825) >, ca. 1890, coll.; since ca. 1920, rare except in US. Saturday Review, 26 July 1890, 'This is an audacious steal from "In a Gondola!"' (OED).

steal a manchet or a roll out of the brewer's basket; gen. have stolen... To be tipsy: coll.: ca. 1670–1820. Ray, 1678, manchet; Fuller, 1732, roll.

steal (someone) blind. 'To steal everything he has. A coll. expression common to the U.S. and Canada' (Donald J. Barr, 1976): Can., since ca. 1960; but in Brit., heard occ. since ca. 1930 and fairly gen. since ca. 1950. Not coll., but s. In a way, an illiteracy for rob (him) blind.

steal the show. To gain most of the applause; greatly to outshine other performers: music-hall and variety s.: C.20. New Zealand Free Lance, late June or early July 1934 (reprinted in Everyman, 24 Aug. 1934), in an article entitled 'The Star Turn', represents a British Lion batsman saying to an Australian Kangaroo bowler, 'It seems we've stolen the show, Aussie.'

stealers, the ten. The fingers: first half of C.17. Davenport, 1639 (OED). Ex Shakespeare's pickers and stealers, q.v.

stealy. Liable to be stolen: (? esp. booksellers') coll.: later C.20. See quot'n at walk, v., 4.

steam, n. A trip or excursion by steamer: coll.: 1854 (Kingsley: OED). Ex nautical usage as in a few hours' steam away.—2. A dish cooked by steaming: coll. (orig. military): 1900 (OED); by 1930, > rare Cf. steaming.—3. The phrases get (one's) steam up, to start, and put the steam on, to try or begin to work hard, are S.E. verging on coll. Baumann, 1887.

—4. Cheap, fiery liquor (esp. 'plonk'—Australian brand): Aus., orig. Sydney c.; whence also NZ: from ca. 1930. (B., 1941.) By 1945, no longer low. (B.P.)—5. Hence, any wine: Aus.: since ca. 1945. (Nino Culotta, Cop This Lot, 1960.) McNeil, 1973, however, still defines steam as 'cheap wine'.

—6. In like steam, fast, vigorously; easily; excellently: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1920. Rats, 1944, 'We reefed watches and rings off 'em like steam.' P.B.: not unknown in Brit. Eng.—7. In under (one's) own steam, unaided: coll.: C.20. Prob. ex locomotives not using a shunter. 'I have always thought this, as applied to ships or locomotives and, by extension, any moving or should-be moving object, meant "Damaged but still able to raise enough steam to proceed slowly"' (Leechman, 1967).—8. For keep up the steam see steamer, 1.

steam, v.t. To convey on any steam-propelled vessel: coll.: 1901 (OED).—2. As v.i., to work at high pressure; to hustle oneself: orig. RN, then to army and RAF, for which Jackson glosses the nuance 'to work hard and pertinently': since late 1920s.—3. To go, applied to forms of transport other than steam-driven, as in 'We steamed across the airfield in battle four-ship [a fighting formation of four aircraft] (Phantom); it may also be applied joc. to a person moving in a purposeful, poss. angry, way towards an encounter, as 'the old lady heard the row and came steaming across the road': coll.: prob. since earlyish C.20. (P.B.) steam, adj. Old-fashioned and 'honest', as opp. to 'hi-tech' and new-fangled: a coll. metaphor, transferrable from steam radio, as in 'The honest-to-God steam spy is probably in greater demand now than ever... Within the intelligence community the steam spy won't die out' (John Le Carré, quoted by Hugh McLivney in Observer Mag., 6 Mar. 1983, p. 19). Cf. steam navigation.

steam ahead or away. To put on speed: coll.: 1857, T. Hughes, 'Young Brooke . . . then steams away for the run in' (OED); ahead not before late C.19. Ex the motion of a railway engine or of a steamer.—2. Hence, to progress rapidly, to work vigorously: coll.:—1911 (COD).

steam antics. See antics.

steam boatswain or bo'sun. An artificer engineer in the RN: earlier C.20. 'Taffrail', Carry Ont!, 1916 (bo'sun).

steam builders. Shares in the Dublin & Liverpool Steam Building Company: Stock Exchange:—1895 (A.J. Wilson's glossary).

steam-bus. A steam pinnacle or launch in the RN: C.20. 'Taffrail', 1916.

steam chickens. Carrier-borne aircraft: RN: 1943+. (P-G-R.) 'Ex the British invented steam-propelled launching catapult above R.N. carriers?' (R.S.). P.B.: not necessarily; cf. such fancies as petrol budgie and electrical string.

steam ditty box. A RN, mostly lowerdeck, term cited by Sidney Knock, Clear Lower Decks, 1932, as current—1924; but he doesn't define it. Granville does, as 'Steam pinnacle whose squat lines suggest it'.

steam-engine. A potato-pie: Lancashire s.:—1864; ob. (H., 3rd ed.) Prob. ex the steam it emits when properly served at table.—2. As Steam Engine, 'The nickname given by the soldiers to Stonehenge' (Patrick MacGill, Fear, 1920): Hobson-Jobson: WW1.

steam jonty. A 'regulating chief stoker' (Knock): RN lowerdeck: earlier C.20. Jonty is a var. of jaundy, q.v.

steam-kettle. A steamship: sailing-ships' pej.: mid-C.19—early 20. (Bowen.) An early C.20 var. is steam-pot (Manchon).

steam navigation. Aerial navigation that depends not upon radar and radio, but upon the old-fashioned methods of map-reading and eyesight: airmen's derogatory: ca. 1960. (Brig. P. Mead, Soldiers in the Air, 1967.) Cf. steam radio. (P.B.) Cf.:-

steam Navy, the. 'The Royal Navy during the coal-burning era between the "tar and spun yarn" days of sail and modern oil-burning' (Granville). Perhaps one orig. of steam=old-fashioned (P.B.).

steam on the table, have. To have 'a boiled joint—generally steaming, on Sunday': workmen's: late C.18—20. Ware.

steam-packet. A jacket: rhyming s.:—1857 ('Ducange Anglicus').

steam pig. Anybody—or, come to that, anything—either not defined or not easily definable: railwaymen's: since ca. 1930. Railway.

steam-pot. See steam-kettle.

steam puncher. A steam-driven pinnacle: RN: late C.19—early 20. Granville.

steam radio. Radio (sound only): coined by the BBC in 1958, as Mr Val Gielgud tells me; gen. since ca. 1961. In a sense, radio was outmoded by TV, much as the steam-engine was outmoded by the internal-combustion engine.

steam-roller. A man that is 'sure—but very slow and usually too late': military: 1915; ob. (B. & P.) Ex the Russian steam-roller, a journalistic term applied to the Russian Army in 1914–15.

steam tug. A 'mug', a simpleton or easy dupe: low: rhyming.: C.20. See steamer, 2.

steam-tugs. (Bed-)bugs: from ca. 1890. (P.P., Rhyming Slang, 1932.) Contrast steam-tug.

steamboat course. The direct, easy way; a semi-contemptuous form (or method): cruising yachtsmen's: 1970. . . A steamboat does not need to steer as the wind directs' (Peppitt).

steamboat man. See smoke-stack. Virtually †.

steamboating, n. 'Cutting simultaneously a pile of books which are as yet uncovered': bookbinders'. (—1875) >, by 1890, coll. >, by 1910, j. steamed-up. Tippy: Glasgow:—1934. Because heated.—2. Heated; angry: since ca. 1925; Aus. by late 1920s (B., 1942).—3. Ready for sexual congress: Can.: since ca. 1930.

steamer. A tobacco-pipe. A swell s., a long one. Ca. 1810–50. Lex. Bal., 1811; Bee, 1823, "'Keep up the steam or steamer," to smoke indefatigably.'—2. A 'mug': turf c.:—1932. Ex steam tug, q.v. (See Slang, p. 241.) Also gen. c.: witness Gilt Kid, 1936. Mr Curtis writes, 1937: 'A steamer can, I think, be differentiated from a mug. A steamer wants something back for his money. He is a bookmaker's or a prostitute's client or a "con."—man's victim.' Cf. 'Wherever I look I see steamers [homosexuals prepared to pay boys money] and suckers', quoted by Simon Raven in Encounter, Nov. 1960 (P.B.).—3. A dish of stewed kangaroo, flavoured with salt pork: Aus.: early C.19—early 20.—4. In have a steamer in (one), to be the worse for drink: RN: early C.20. (F. & G.) Ex the stertorous breathing.

steamer ticket. A master mariner's certificate valid only on steamships: nautical coll.: from ca. 1880; ob. (William McFee, Sailors of Fortune, 1930.) See ticket, 1. steamie, -y. A public wash-house with stone sinks, a boiler, a dryer: Scots s. > coll.: ca. 1890–1930. Woman, 20 Dec. 1969 (Petch); Iain Crawford, Scare the Gentle Citizen, 1966.

steaming, n. A steamed pudding: army:—1897. Cf. steam, n., 2.

steaming, adj. 'Used in mild abuse; cf. bleeding. Schoolchildren's invective, "You great steaming nit!" Popularised by radio comedy series "The Goon Show" and still very widespread' (P.B., 1975): since ca. 1955.

steaming, or scam, bag. A small bag, containing toilet and other necessary gear, drawn from the purser's stores by a sailor suddenly dispatched to a troopship where heavy gear is forbidden: RN: since the mid-1940s. Probably scram=scramble; steaming perhaps refers to 'in a steaming hurry'.

steaming covers. 'Spats worn with plain clothes ashore when spats were fashionable. Steaming covers, made of canvas, protect the paint or mast yards from funnel smoke. They were abolished in 1902, though the slang senses remain' (Granville, 1962): RN. Cf.:—2. 'Official bloomers issued as underwear to Wrens' (Ibid.): RN: WW2.

steaming revvy. 'Any working cap, usually handmade: Merchant Navy stokers': 1970s' (Peppitt)—and, I think, earlier. Perhaps ex 'reversible'.

steamy, n. See steamie.

steamy side of life, the. A housewife's or washer-woman's life in scullery or wash-house: joc. domestic: C.20. On seamy side.

Stedman. See promo.

Steel, the. Coldbath Fields prison, London: c. from ca. 1810. (Lex. Bal., 1811; J. Greenwood, Dick Temple, 1888.) Virtually † by 1910. Abbr. Bastille.—2. Hence (gen. the steel) any prison or lock-up: c. >, ca. 1900, low s.: 1845 ('No. 747', p. 413, steel); 1889, Thor Fredur, 'He pitched into the policeman, was lugged off to the steel . . . and got a month'; but adumbrated in Lex. Bal., 1811. Cf. chokey, quod, Limbo, stir.—3. A rare c. sense, viable only ca. 1835–60, is that given by Brandon and 'Ducange Anglicus': the treadmill.

steel-bar driver or flinger. A tailor; esp. a journeyman tailor: resp. ca. 1850–90 ('Ducange Anglicus'); ca. 1780–1890 (Grose, 1st ed.). Prob. steel bar, a needle, is also s. of same period; Grose, Ibid.

steel-chest. A fearless person; a hardened, courageous soldier: Guards': since ca. 1916. Cf. the cliché'd hearts of steel.

steel helmet. An Anderson shelter: esp. Londoners': late 1940+. (Mrs C.H. Langford, 1941.)

steel jockey. A train-jumper: Aus.: since ca. 1925. (B., 1942.) He rides free; steel wheels, etc., of the train.

steel jug. A shrapnel-helmet (first used 12 Aug. 1915): army, but not very gen.: 1916+. B. & P.

steel-nose. Some kind of strong liquor: mid-C.17. Whitlock's Zootomia, 1654 (OED).

steel-pen coat. A dress coat: coll.: 1873 (OED); ob. Ex the resemblance between the split nib and the divided coat-tail. Steelbacks, the. The 48th Foot (in late C.19–20, the 1st Battalion of the Northamptonshire Regiment; the 57th Foot, in late C.19, become the 1st Battalion of the Middlesex Regiment: military: resp. mid-C.18–20 and C.19–20. Either ex the weighty packs they carried or with ref. to steelback, Alicante wine, in some connexion with the Peninsular War; or, best of all, ex adj. phrase steel to the (very) back, very robust, trustworthy, or brave, as in Titus Andronicus, IV, iii. Carew notes, perhaps more accurately, that the nickname could refer to an ability to stand up to the flogging so prevalent in the C.18–earlier 19 army. He adds that the nickname was not gen. applied to the 57th.

Steele Rudds. Potatoes: Aus. rhyming s., on spuds: C.20. (B., 1945.) Steele Rudd's On Our Selection and Our New Selection were famous in the Australia of ca. 1900–14 and, indeed, since.

steeler. A steel helmet: army. Details as for steel jug, q.v. steelie or -ly, n.; mostly in pl steelies. 'Not real marbles, but large ball-bearings' (B.P.): Aus. schoolchildren's: since ca. 1920.—2. A steel guitar: since ca. 1955. Ngaiio Marsh, Death at the Dolphin, 1967.

steely, adj. Heroic, indomitable: RAF aircrews' ironic: later C.20. 'Call it a day and climb out? No way! How can a steely Phantom operator [pilot] call it a day after such a screw up' (Phantom). Prob. shortened version of—steely-eyed. A 'self-derogatory RAF term applied to keenness and professionalism. I heard it a lot while on detachment to the RAF in 1972' (P.B., 1974). Ex journalistic cliché; cf. steel-chest.

steep. Excessive, resp. of price, fine or damages, taxes, and figures; hard to believe, exaggerated, esp. of stories: US (1856), anglicised ca. 1880. Baumann, 'This sounds very steep'; Westminster Gazette, 22 Apr. 1895, 'This is rather a steep statement' (OED). Cf. stiff (price) and tall (story).

steeped. Homosexual in practice or tendency: Society: ca. 1890–1905. (Listener, 10 Mar. 1937.) Ex steeped in the higher philosophy.

steepchaser. 'A "ropey" landing, going across the airstrip in a succession of bounces' (John Bebbington): RAF: since mid-1930s.

steeping, n. 'Putting [one's] fingers together to form a church steeple... apparently "indicates confidence, sometimes with a smug, pontifical, egotistical outlook"' (The Times, 4 Dec. 1975): coll.: C.20. (L.A., 1976.)

steer, n. A piece of information; mostly give a steer: nautical: from ca. 1870. (F. & H.) P.B.: in later C.20 mostly in bum steer, q.v.

steer, v. To pick up (a 'mug'): c.: C.20.

steer a trick. To take a turn at the wheel: nautical: mid-C.19–20.

steer-decorating, since ca. 1945; bull-dogging, ca. 1910–45. A rodeo method of throwing a steer by grasping one horn and the muzzle and twisting the neck: Can.

steer small. To exercise care: nautical coll., prob. since late C.18 >, by 1900, j. (John Davis, The Post-Captain, 1806: Moe.) Ex S.E. sense, 'to steer well and within small compass' (Smyth).

steerage, the. The gun-room: RN: C.20. Bowen.

steerage hammock. A long meat roly-poly (meat-pudding): nautical: late C.19–20. Ibid.

steever. As M.T. shows, this is the predominant market-trading form of steuer, a shilling, q.v. at stiver: late C.19–20. Still (1976) current—for, of course, 5 new pence.

steevin. A rare var. of stephen. Bee, 1823.

Stella. Egyptian beer: Services in N. Africa: WW2+. Ex a well-known brand.

Stella by Starlight. Alliterative nickname for girls named Stella (L. stella, a star): Aus.: since ca. 1925. (B.P.)

Stellenbosch; gen. be Stellenbosched. To relegate (a person) to a position where he can do little or no harm; esp. of an officer: military: 1900 (Kipling in Daily Express, 16 June: OED); † by 1930. Ex Stellenbosch as a base in the S. African War.

stem jack (or J). 'A small Union Flat flown in the bows of a battleship while the anchor is down' (Granville): RN coll.: C.20.

stems. Legs: low: from ca. 1860; ob. (H., 2nd ed.) Despite F. & H., not coll.

stengah. A small drink, at any time of the day, of spirit with soda; e.g. a whisky, stengah or brandy stengah: Anglo-Indian and in Malaya: since later C.19. Ex Malay sa tengah, a half. Also occ. stingah or stinger. (E.P.; P.B.)

steno; steno; stenoggy. A shorthand writer: office coll. for stenographer: adopted ex US, where orig. ca. 1905 (the 2nd). The 2nd var. ca. 1920 (OED Sup.); the 3rd occurs in W.B.M. Ferguson, London Lamb, 1939; the 1st since ca. 1945, and by 1970 the predominant non-standard form of the S.E. word (in, e.g., H.R.F. Keating, Filmi, Filmi, Inspector Ghote, 1976).

step, n. Gen. a good step (Sterne, 1768) or a tidy step (Blackmore, 1894); occ. a goodish step (—1888). A walking distance: dial. and coll.: mid-C.18–20. OED.—2. A step-father or stepmother: coll.: late C.19–20.—3. A step-brother or -sister: coll.: C.20. G. Heyer, Why Shoot a Butler?, 1933.—4. See gradus; mind the (or your) step!

step, v. To depart, make off, run away: coll.: mid-C.19–20, though adumbrated as early as C.15. The var. step it occurs both in Mayhew, vol. III, and in H., 1st ed.—2. Hence, to desert: military: later C.19—early 20.—3. To clean one's own doorstep or others' doorsteps: coll.: 1884 (OED); ob. by 1940. Ex doorstep.

step below. See DIE, in Appendix.

step-ins. Women's knickers that require no fastening: since ca. 1918: feminine coll. >, by 1940, S.E. Cf. pull-ons, q.v.

step it. See step, v., 1.

step off. To die: 1926 (Edgar Wallace: OED Sup.). Cf. step out.

step on it. To hurry: from ca. 1929. (OED Sup.) Ex:

step on the gas. To accelerate: s. > coll.: adopted ex US ca. 1926. Ex motor-driving, gas being gasolene, hence the accelerator pedal.

step out. To die: low: in Brit. Eng. early C.19 (John Davis, The Post-Captain, 1806: Moe) > US; re-adopted late C.19; † by mid-C.20.

step up to. To pay court to (a girl): lower classes' coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

stephen; gen. seven. Money; esp. ready money: c. and low s.: ca. 1810–50. Lex. Bal., 'Stephen's at home; i.e. he has money'; Ainsworth. Perhaps suggested by stever = stiv (vjer).—2. Esp. in Stephen's at home, the money's there or ready.—3. See even Stephen.

stepney. A white-slaver's fancy girl: white-slave c.: C.20. (A. Londres translated, 1928.) Mr John Yeowell, in Daily Telegraph 9 Mar. 1967, suggests that stepney perhaps = Stepney, short for a presumed Stepney Green, rhyming s. on quean, a prostitute. But Julian Franklyn, the authority on Cockney slang, thinks it comes from stepney, a spare wheel carried on a motor-car. The latter seems to be the more probable.

stepper. A treadmill: prison c.: mid-C.19—early 20. (Mayhew.) Cf. synon. cockchafer; everlasting staircase.—2. A doorstep-cleaner, esp. a step-girl: coll.: 1884 (OED). Ex step, v., 3.—3. A trotting horse: mostly Londoners': 1899 (Rook).—4. (? Hence), a smart, good-looking girl: id.: earlier C.20. (A. Neil Lyons, Clara, 1912.) Cf. high-stepper, 1.—5. See—steppers. The feet: 1853 (Household Words). Cf. stampers, 2, and stepper, 1.

stepping it, vbl n. Desertion. See step, v., 2.

stepping-ken. A dance-hall: late C.19–20: orig. c. and mostly US.

steps. Thick slices of bread and butter, overlaying each other on a plate': London lower classes': mid-C.19–20; ob. (Ware.) Cf. doorstep.—2. In up the steps, at the Old Bailey: c.: late C.19–20.—3. Hence, up the steps, committed to Sessions or Assizes: c.: C.20. (F.D. Sharpe, 1938.) Cf. stairs, 2.

stereo. Stale news: printers' coll.: from late 1880s. Ex stereotype.

stereo, adj. Stereoscopic: from ca. 1875: coll.; now verging on S.E. OED.—2. Stereophonic: coll. > j.: since mid-C.20. Hence, as n. = short for 'stereophonic reproduction of sound'; usu. in stereo, as in (of a recording) 'available in stereo or cassette' (P.B.).

sterics, the. Hysteria: a low coll. abbr. of hysterics: 1765 (Foot; OED).

sterks, give (someone) the. To annoy, to infuriate; to render low-spirited: Aus.: since ca. 1920. Prob. sterks = sterics = hysterics. Wilkes notes var. spelling sturks.

sterky. Afraid, frightened: Aus.: since ca. 1939. Jean Devaney, By Tropic Sea and Jungle, 1944, 'He's a bit sterky, too': B., 1953, says that it comes ex stercocoraceous, faecal; perhaps rather ex prec.

sterling. Persons born in Great Britain or Ireland: Aus. coll.: ca. 1825–1910. (Peter Cunningham, 1827.) Gen. in juxtaposition to the complementary currency, q.v.

stern. The buttocks, esp. of persons: late C.16–20; mostly joc., and since ca. 1860 gen. considered a vulgarism. Furnivall, 1869, 'We don't want to... fancy them cherubs without sterns.'—2. In bring (a ship) down by the stern, to over-officer (a ship): nautical coll.: from ca. 1835. (Dana.) Officers slept towards the stern.—3. In bring (one's) stern to an anchor, to sit (down): RN: late C.18–mid-19. L.L.G., 3 July 1824 (Moe).

stern approach. Buggery: educated bawdy: since ca. 1945. Cf.:-

stern-chaser. A sodomite: nautical: mid-C.19–20.—2. A leg: id.:—1923 (Manchon).

stern galley. Buttocks: Conway cadets: from before 1887. John Masefield, The Conway, 1933.

stern over appetite. Head over heels: Aus.: since ca. 1930. Dal Stevens, Jimmy Brockett, 1951, 'I hit him on the chin and he went stern over appetite.' 'Euphemistic for arse over appetite and its numerous variants (arse over tip, base over apex, etc.)' (Claiborne, 1976).

stern-perisher. See bum-freezer, 2, which obviously suggested it.

stern-post. The penis: nautical: mid-C.19–early 20.

Steve. A gen. term of address, esp. in believe me, Steve!: C.20, and mostly Aus. Cf. the generic use of George and Jack. For terms of address, see my essay in Words—2. See come on, Steve!; got me (, Steve)?—whence also I've got you, Steve!

steven. See stephen.

stiver. See stiver.

stew, n. (Great) alarm, anxiety, excitement: 1806 (J. Beresford: OED): coll. >, ca. 1905, S.E. In late C.19–20, esp. be in an awful stew.—2. A state of perspiration or overheating: coll.: from ca. 1890. Ex stew, to remain in a heated room (etc.). Cf.:—3. 'One who studies hard, but unintelligently' (Chambers's C.20th Dict.): mid-C.19–early 20. A contraction of stew-pot, and ex stew, v., 1.—4. A 'fixed' boxing-match or horse-race: Aus. sporting: since ca. 1920. B., 1943.—5. Hence, a case framed against a serviceman: Aus. Forces': WW2. B., 1953.

stew, v.i. To study hard: orig. and mainly school s.: 1866, Every Boy's Annual, 'Cooper was stewing over his books' (OED). See stew, n., 2, 3.

stew bum (or solid). A drunkard: Liverpool street arabs': late C.19—earlier 20. (Arab.) Almost certainly not ex US stew bum: W. & F. explain the US meaning as a hobo living mainly on stew.

stew-pot. A hard-working student: gen. derisory: from ca. 1880. Ex stew, v.; the pun on the kitchen utensil was perhaps suggested by swot.

stew zoo. As in 'just one of many beach communities known as "stew zoos" where stewardesses... colonize' (Victoria, BC, Daily Colonist, 4 Sep. 1977: Leechman): Can. s. stewed. Drunk; tipsy: s.: since early C.18. (Franklyn, 1737.) Cf. corned, pickled, salted (all 4 in Hotten, 5th ed.).—2. See screwed—blued... stewed pruns. A tune: rhyming: late C.19–20.

stewed to the eyeballs (or to the gills). Exceedingly drunk:

C.20. Quite common: R.S. has reminded me that I've often heard it since 1921. An intensification of stewed.

stewkeeper. An army cook: Aus. army: WW2. (B., 1943.) Perhaps orig. a pun on storekeeper.

stewmer. See stumer.

stews. Fellows, chaps, strictly if crowded together or closely associated: Can.: adopted, early in C.20, ex US. From 'students'. Jack Munroe, Mopping Up!, 1918.

stewy (of tea) that has stewed too long: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1920. Margaret Trist, 1944.

stibber-gibber, adj. Given to telling lies: mid-C.16: ?c. (Awdelay, 1561.)? origin. P.B.: at Heathfield, Sussex, earlier C.20, there lived a roadman nicknamed 'Stibber' Gibbs, ex the Sussex pron. of his christian name Stephen. Might stibber-gibber be an old jibe at lying clerks, Stephen and Gilbert as typical names?

stick, n. A sermon: late 1750s—early 1760s.? because wooden.—2. A dull, stupid, awkward, or (in the theatre) incompetent person: C.19–20: S.E. until mid-C.19, then coll. Via wooden. P.B.: since mid-C.20 at latest, not necessarily stupid or awkward, though the dullness, perhaps reinforced by a certain stuffy respectability, remains, as in, 'Oh, I don't know—he (or she) isn't such a bad old stick (or is quite a decent old stick), really.' Prob. sometimes a shortening of stick-in-the-mud.—3. Quasi-adverbially as an intensive of alliterative phrases; esp. in stick, stark, staring (wild, 1839, Hood; mad, 1909. W.J. Locke). OED.—4. A crowbar or jemmy: c.: from ca. 1870. Horsley, Jottings from Jail.—5. A candlestick; a candle: silversmiths': resp. coll. and s.: late C.19–20.—6. A badly printed ink-roller: printers': from ca. 1870.—7. A var. of sticker, 4: 1863 (Lewis).—8. Short for joy-stick, 1: RAF coll.: since ca. 1925. Jackson.—9. Short for sticky-beak, n.: Aus.: since ca. 1930. B., 1942.—10. A ladder: builders' joc.: late C.19–20.—11. A log: Aus. sawmills': late C.19–20. K.S. Prichard, Working Bullocks, 1926; Kylie Tennant, Lost Haven, 1947, 'Great yokes of bullocks... dragging the "sticks" from the forests'. Understatement.—12. A two-up 'kip': Aus.: since ca. 1910. B., 1943.—13. Penis: (?) C.17–20. Cf. the archaic Fr. verge.—14. A column of newsprint: journalistic and compositors': C.20. Dr Leechman writes, 1967: 'When I was setting type by hand (ca. 1910) a stick of type was about thirteen lines, which was all my composing stick would hold. When the stick was full the contents were transferred to a galley. An unimportant news item was quickly disposed of: "Don't give it more than a stick," the editor would say.'—15. A small glass of beer: since ca. 1925. Cf. finger of spirits.—16. Short for stick of bombs, 'the entire load released in one operation so that the bombs hit the ground in a straight line' (Jackson): RAF coll.: since ca. 1939.—17. A ship's spar: nautical, esp. naval: late C.18—mid-19. (Basil Hall, 1831.) Cf.—18. A mast: nautical coll.: C.19–20. (W.N. Glascock, Sailors and Saints, 1829: Moe; also for 17.) Hence, knock away a stick, to hit, with cannon-fire, the masts or yards of an enemy ship: RN officers': earlier C.19. Fredk Marryat, The King's Own, 1834 (Moe).

—19. Hence, a wireless mast: RAF: since ca. 1930. Sgt G. Emanuel, 1945.—20. A 'joint' or 'reefer', i.e. a marijuana cigarette: drugs world: since ca. 1965. John Wyatt, Drugs, 1973.—21. As the stick, a venereal disease: low: from ca. 1880. Perhaps cf. sense 13.—22. Gen. the stick, esp. give (a child) the stick; (in C.20) get the stick, to be caned. A beating with a stick: coll.: 1856 (Charlotte Yonge: OED).—23. Hence, in get the stick, to receive a severe shelling, or to be otherwise 'punished': army, esp. 'Kitchen's Army': WW1. (Petch.) In WW2 a bit of stick = a (heavy) shelling; cf. stonk, and see give stick. P.B.: in later C.20, stick has come to mean, esp. in the phrases to give or get stick, 'to dole out, or to be the victim of, violence, or indeed unpleasantness, cruelty of any sort', as in 'Town foxes... come in for a lot of unnecessary stick' (Susan Thomas, 'The Oxford fox trotters', Guardian, 2 July 1982) = 'are caused unnecessary suffering by human beings'.—24. In on the stick, (of a conductor) using the baton:

musical coll.: C.20.—25. In with a stick in it, (of a drink, esp. tea or coffee) with a dash of brandy: C.19–20. In late C.19–20, only Colonial and US. Cf. Fr. du café avec. Leechman adds, 'To "put a stick" in a soft drink is to add a slug of whisky or other hard liquor. I first met it in about 1910.'—26. In get the stick, to be, as the most smartly turned out man, excused guard-duty and made the guard's orderly: army coll., verging on j.: late C.19–20. (F. & G.) See stick wallah.—27. In have or get the right or the wrong end of the stick, to have the advantage or the disadvantage in a contest or a bargain: coll.: 1890 ('Rolf Boldrewood'); by 1920, virtually S.E. Cf. worse end of the staff.—28. Hence, in C.20, to have got hold of the wrong end of the stick is either to have misunderstood a story or to be ignorant of the facts of a case: still coll.—29. In to keep at the stick's end, to treat with reserve: coll.: 1886 (Stevenson: OED); ob. by 1930. Cf. wouldn't touch him (it) with a barge-pole.—30. As in 'When [he] is off stick his scores zoom up to the 78–79 levels' (Peter Dobereiner, Observer, 13 July 1980); i.e. not playing one's best at golf. Cf. play a good stick, q.v.—31. See board, n., 3; fiddle but not the s.; fire a good s.; frozen on the s.; high up the s.; play a good s.; shoot for the s.; up the s.; sticks; shill.

stick, v. t. (Of the man) to coit with: low: C.19–20.—2. V. t. (Mostly of persons) to continue long, remain persistently, in one place: C.19–20: coll. until late C.19, then S.E. Of a cricketer, as early as 1832 (see sticker, 4).—3. V. t., to abide; to put up with (things), tolerate (persons): 1899, 'He could not "stick" his mother-in-law' (Daily News, 26 Oct.; OED). Also stick it, to continue, without flinching, to do something; the phrase was used by soldiers in the Boer War (1899–1901), as J. Milne, The Epistles of Atkins, 1902, makes clear. In WW1 one often heard "Stick it, lads!" "Appears to be a . . . variation on to stand it' (Ware). See also stick it, Jerry!—4. bring to a stand(still); incapacitate from advance or retirement: coll.: 1829, Scott, in the passive as in gen.; Westminster Gazette, 14 July 1902, 'The climber may easily find himself "stuck" on the face of a precipice' (OED).—5. Hence, to nonplus; puzzle greatly: coll.: 1884, The Literary Era, 'You could not stick me on the hardest of them' (OED).—6. To cheat (a person) out of money or in dealing; impose illicitly upon: 1699; ob. by 1940. Blackwood's Magazine, 1843, 'They think it ungentlemanly to cheat, or, as they call it, "stick" any of their own set.' Sometimes, esp. in the underworld, to desert: mid-C.19–20; esp. stick by a pal. Also, stick with, to saddle (a person) with (anything unpleasant, sham, or worthless), e.g. with an inferior horse: 1900. OED.—7. To settle (a matter); gen. stick a point: ca. 1890–1930. Lit., make it stick: cf. stay put.—8. To persuade to incur expense or loss; 'let in' for: coll.: 1895, J.G. Millais, '[He] publishes his work (at his own expense) and sticks his friends for a copy' (OED).—9. To charge (someone for something): 1904, A.W. Pinero, A Wife without a Smile, 'Rippingill: "They've stuck you pretty considerably?"—Trood: "Frightful." A blend of senses 6 and 8.—10. (Cf. sense 2.) Of a horse: to refuse to start, to jib, to be obstinate: S. African coll.:—1891 (Petman). Cf. sticks, 6, q.v.—11. In as close or full as (ever) it (he, they, etc.) can (or could) stick. This coll. phrase expresses crowding or repletion: 1776, G. Semples, 'Piles . . . driven in as close together as ever they can stick'; 1889, 'Rolf Boldrewood', 'She . . . was . . . as full of fun . . . as she could stick' (OED). Slightly ob. by 1930.—12. See sticked; stuck on; vbl phrases below.

stick a bust. To commit a burglary: c.:—1899 (Ware).

stick (someone) a length. To reprimand, or to punish, severely: army: since ca. 1925. P-G-R.

stick a pin there! Hold hard: coll.: C.18. C. Hitchin, The Regulator, 1718.

stick a tail on (a woman). (Of a man) to coit, as in the wishful-thinking expression of admiration, 'Cor, I could stick a tail on that!', where that = an attractive girl: raffish, M.C.P.: since ca. 1960. ? ex US; an elab. of stick, v., 1. (P.B.) See tail, n., 2.

stick and bangers. A billiard-cue and balls: sporting: late stick and lift, v. i. To live from hand to mouth: low: ca. 1870–1930.

C.19–20. Ware.—2. Whence, in C.20, a man's sexual apparatus. (Ibid.) Cf. stick, n., 13.

stick-and-string man. 'The old type of seaman, generally applied by a junior with a touch of envy' (Bowen): nautical: late C.19–early 20. I.e. mast and sheet.

stick as close . . . See close as shit to a blanket.

stick-at-it. A persevering, conscientious person: coll.: 1909 (H.G. Wells: OED Sup.). P.B.: occ. deriv. stick-at-it-iveness, joc. coll. for perseverance: C.20. Cf. stickability.

stick away, v. t. To hide (an object); v. i., to go into hiding: S. African coll.: late C.19–20. (Hicks, The Cape as I Found it, 1900: Petman.) Cf. S.E. stick (a thing) out of the way.

stick-flams. A pair of gloves: c.: late C.17–19. (B.E., Grose, Baumann.) Perhaps a corruption of stick(-on-the)-fams (lit., stick-on-the-hands).

stick (someone) for (a thing, a price or charge). To charge someone too much; make someone pay so much: C.20. See also stick, v., 9.

stick for drinks. To win the toss to decide who shall pay for them: late C.19–20. An elab. of stick, v., 5, q.v.; cf. Ibid., 8.

stick-hopper. A hurdlers: athletic coll.: late C.19–early 20. See sticks, 5.

stick in, v. i. To work steadily at one's job; to keep it: Glasgow coll.: C.20. (MacArthur & Long.) Cf. get stuck in, to start working hard.

stick in (one's) gizzard. To continue to displease or render indignant: coll.: from ca. 1660. Pepys; Swift, 'Don't let that stick in your gizzard'; in late C.19–20, almost S.E. Ex the lit. sense, to prove indigestible.

stick in promise land for (a prison sentence). To threaten, minatorily assure of: c.: since late 1940s (or a decade earlier). Frank Norman, Encounter, July 1959.

stick in the mud occurs as coll. nickname as early as: Sessions, 7th session, 1733, 'James Baker, alias, Stick-in-the-Mud'.

stick-in-the-ribs. Thick soup (like glue): from ca. 1870: not upper-class.

stick it! A contemptuous exclamation to a person; 'Oh, buzz off!': low: late C.19–20. I.e. up your anus. Also stick it up your jumper! and—a low Aus. var., addressed only to males—stick it up your cunt!: the former, since the late 1930s; the latter, since ca. 1935.—2. See stick, v., 3, and cf. stick it out.

stick it in or on, v. i. To charge extortionately. V. t. stick it into or, occ., on to: s. >, ca. 1880, coll.: 1844, Dickens, 'We stick it into B. . . and make a devilish comfortable little property out of him' (OED). See stick, v., 5, and cf. rush. With . . . into, earlier in W.T. Moncrieff, Tom and Jerry, 1821.—2. To work hard and fast: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Cf. stick in.

stick it into (someone). To ask (someone), esp. if surprisingly or abruptly, for a loan or other favour: Aus.: C.20. Cf. put the bite on.

stick it, Jerry! An army c.p. of WW1. It has nothing to do with Jerry, 'a German (soldier)'; Lew Lake, the Cockney comedian († 5 Nov. 1939), originated a sketch, 'The Bloomsbury Burglars', featuring Nobbler and Jerry; as Nobbler, he would, as they hurled missiles at off-stage policemen, shout to his partner, 'Stick it, Jerry!' (Daily Express, 6 Nov. 1939).

stick it on. To strike (someone): low (? orig. c.): since ca. 1945. (Norman.) Cf. stick one on, the more usual later C.20 synon.

stick it out. To endure and go on enduring: coll.: 1901, 'Lucas Malef', 'It would be ridiculous to fly, so she must stick it out' (OED). A var. of stick it: see stick, v., 3.

stick it up. To cause a charge to be placed against one's name, orig. (1864) in a tavern-score, hence (also in 1864) in gen.—i.e. to obtain credit—as in stick it up to me!, put it on my account! Coll. Both in H., 3rd ed.

stick-jaw. A pudding or, as predominantly in C.20, a sweetmeat that is very difficult to chew: coll.: 1829 (Caroline Southey: OED). Occ. as adj.: late C.19–20: coll.—2. Something extremely boring: lower classes':—1923 (Manchon). Cf. sticking-plaster, q.v.

stick job. A motor vehicle with manually operated (via a lever or stick), as opp. automatic, gears: drivers': since later 1970s. (Mrs Daphne Beale, from a busman, 1981.)

stick like shit... See close as shit to a blanket.

stick man, stickman. The accomplice of a pair of women engaged in robbing drunken men; to him they entrust their booty: c.—1861; slightly ob. by 1930. Powis, 1977, defines the term: 'The confederate of a pickpocket or skilled shoplifter to whom stolen property is handed and whose other task is "accidentally" to impede pursuit of the actual thief if he is detected by the loser.'—2. See stick, n., 26: the man successful at 'getting the stick': army: 1950s, and prob. earlier, ?later. Cf. stick wallah, q.v.—3. A male constantly conspicuous: later C.20. (Observer, TV review, 5 Jan. 1975.) Ex stick, n., 13.

stick (one's) neck out. To ask for trouble: since early 1930s: perhaps orig. army. (P-G-R.) P.B.: to expose oneself to sniper-fire, or to the executioner's axe?

stick on. See stick it in.

stick on the price, to increase it: coll.: mid-C.19–20. H., 1st ed., 'stick on, to overcharge, or defraud.'

stick one on. As in 'He threatened to stick one on me' or 'Go on—stick him one on!': to hit someone, esp. on the chin: low: later C.20. Cf. stick it on. (P.B.)

stick out. V.i., to be conspicuous; esp. too conspicuous: mid-C.17–20: S.E. until mid-C.19, then s. (mainly US). Daily Chronicle, 3 Dec. 1902, "'Of her" is all very well... but when it occurs too often it "sticks out", as Mr Henry James would say' (OED). Esp. it sticks out a mile, it's obvious: used absolutely or with that. For other elaborations, see stand out like...—2. See stick it out.—3. To persist in demanding (e.g. money): coll.: v.i., 1906; v.t. with for, 1902. OED.—4. Hence, (v.t. with that) to persist in thinking: coll.: 1904. R. Hichens, 'Do you stick out that Carey didn't love you?' Also stick (a person) out, to maintain an opinion despite all his arguments: coll.: from ca. 1905. OED.

stick-slinger. One who, gen. in company with harlots, robs or plunders with violence: c.—1856 (Mayhew). Also, late C.19–20, Aus. (B., 1943). Cf. bludger, q.v.

stick (one's) spoon in the wall. To die: coll.: early C.19—early 20. Matthew Todd's Journal, ed. Geoffrey Trease, 1968, but belonging to 1814; H., 5th ed., 1874. Why?

stick to. To remain resolutely faithful to; or, despite all odds, attached to (a person or a party): C.16–20: S.E. until ca. 1860; thereafter, coll.; ca. 1800–60, however, it was familiar S.E. H., 2nd ed., 1860; 'Mrs Alexander', 1885, 'But I should have stuck to him through thick and thin' (OED). P.B.: cf. c.p. 'That's my story and I'm sticking to it' (of a reason, or excuse), or, joc. 'That's your story and you're stuck with it'—2. To retain; hold (something) back: coll.: 7 Feb. 1845, Sessions.

stick to beat a dog with (, it is an easy thing to find). 'It costs little to trouble those that cannot help themselves' (B.E.): coll., almost proverbial: mid-C.17–18.

stick to them, my boys! An exhortation to soldiers going into battle: earlier C.19. (T. Gowing, A Soldier's Experience, 1885, passim.) Cf. stick it, Jerry!, q.v.—a change of emphasis, from 'smite' to 'endure'. (P.B.)

stick-up, n. 'A stand-up collar: from ca. 1855 (ob.): coll. >, by 1890, S.E. 'Ducange Anglicus', 1857.—2. A delay; a quandary: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Ex v., 5.—3. A hold-up robbery: c. > coll.: Can., then Brit., ex US; but ultimately ex v., 3, so prob. orig. Aus.: in Britain, since mid-C.20. See sticking-up.

stick up. See stick up for—to—to be—and stick it up.—2. V.i., to stand firm in an argument: coll.: 1858, Darwin, 'I admired the way you stuck up about deduction and induction' (OED).—3a. (V.t.) In Aus., to stop and rob (a person) on the road: 1846 (J.L. Stokes): coll. >, by 1880, S.E. Ex making the victim stick up his hands. Morris.—3b. Hence, to rob (a bank, etc.): 1888 (Boldredwood): coll. >, by 1890, S.E. Morris.—4. Hence, to demand money from (a person): 1890 (Hornung): Aus. coll. >, by 1910, S.E.—5. To stop: 1863:

Aus. coll. >, by 1890, 'standard'. Morris.—6. To pose or puzzle: 1896: Aus. coll. Morris.—7. To increase (the price or, in games, the score): ca. 1875–1920. C. Sheard, in his song, I'm a Millionaire, ca. 1880, 'Though some stick it up, now I'll pay money down'; F. & H., 1903, 'To stick up tricks (points, runs, goals, &c.)=to score.'—8. In cricket, to cause (a batsman) to play strictly on the defensive: coll.: 1864, Pycroft (Lewis). Cf. stick, v., q.v.—9. See up stick(s).

stick up for. To champion (a person); defend the character or cause of: coll.: since early C.19. Matthew Barker's memoirs, L.L.G., 6 Sep. 1823 (Moe). Cf. stand up for.

stick up goods. To obtain them on credit: Aus.: since ca. 1910. (Baker.) Ex stick-up, v., 4.

stick up to. To oppose; esp. to continue offering resistance to: coll.: from ca. 1840: dial. till ca. 1860, then coll. H., 2nd ed.; Baumann; Contemporary Review, Feb. 1889, 'If there is no one who dare stick up to [the head boy], he soon becomes intolerable' (OED). Cf. stand up to.

stick up to be; occ. stick (one) self up to be. To claim to be: coll.: 1881, Blackmore, 'I never knew any good come of those fellows who stick up to be everything wonderful' (OED).

stick wallah. A man scheming to 'get the stick' (see stick, n., 26), esp. one who habitually aims at this: army: late C.19—early 20. (F. & G.) Cf. stick man, 2, q.v.

stick with it! A farewell exhortation of generalised encouragement: coll.: later C.20. Cf. the US hang in there, baby! (P.B.)—2. See stick, v., 6.

stickability. The ability to preserve and/or endure: coll.: from ca. 1920. (OED Sup.) cf. stick at it, q.v.

sticked(, be). (To be) caned: Wembley County School: from ca. 1925.

stickem. Cement or gum: fair-grounds': C.20. 'He had grafted the tubed stickem for years. (He had sold a special cement in tubes, used for sticking on rubber soles and dozens of other household repairs.)' (W. Buchanan-Taylor, Shake it Again, 1943).

stickier. A commodity hard to sell: coll.: 1824 (Dibdin: OED). Cf. shop-keeper, q.v., and see sticky, adj., 2.—2. Hence (—1887), a servant that a registry office has difficulty in placing. G.R. Sims.—3. A lingering guest: coll.:—1903 (F. & H.).—4. A slow-scoring batsman hard to dislodge: cricket coll.: 1832 (Pierce Egan, in his Book of Sports); 1888, A.G. Steel; 1903, W.J. Ford; 1934, W.J. Lewis's Language of Cricket.—5. 'A pointed question, an apt and startling comment or rejoinder, an embarrassing situation' (F. & H.): coll.: 1849 (Thackeray: OED). Ex stick, v., 5.—6. A sticking knife, fishing gear, gaff: coll.: 1896 (Baring-Gould: OED).—7. A two-, three-, four-sticker is a two (etc.)-masted ship, esp. a schooner on the Canadian and American coast: nautical coll.: late C.19–20. Bowen.—8. A good worker: Glasgow:—1934.—9. A supporter of a mob-'king': Glasgow c.: C.20. MacArthur & Long.—10. A butcher: proletarian coll.: from ca. 1840. (B. & L.) Ex S.E. sticker, a slaughterman.—11. A small, sticky-backed poster: coll.: C.20.—12. Usu. pl stickers, such goods in short supply as are slow in coming from manufacturers or wholesalers: trade: since ca. 1941.—13. (Sticker.) The Navy's nickname for anyone surnamed 'Leach' or 'Leech': C.20. One of the inseparable nicknames.—14. A paperhanger: builders': late C.19–20.—15. An awkward or difficult question asked by a member of the public: Can. librarians': since ca. 1920. (Leechman.) Cf. sense 5, of which this is a specialised nuance.—16. 'A prisoner who must remain in custody while on remand or awaiting appearance at court' (Powis): police coll.: later C.20.

stickier licker. See brown bomber.

stickier-up. One who warmly or resolutely defends (always for something): coll.: 1857 (Borrow, Romany Rye: OED). Ex stick up for.—2. A rural method of cooking meat by roasting it on a spit: Aus. coll., since early C.19, > by 1870 S.E. Hobart Town Almanack, 1830 (Morris).—3. A bushranger: 1879 (J.W. Barry): Aus. coll. >, by 1890, S.E. (Morris.) See stick up, v., 3, and cf. vbl n. sticking-up.

stickie, n. See sticky, n.

stickiness. The n. ex all senses of sticky, adj.; q.v. (Compton Mackenzie, 1933, 'The stickiness of the Treasury.') sticking, or dead stick. A contretemps in which all the actors get muddled: theatrical: from ca. 1860; the former, very ob. B. & L.

sticking-parade. See stuck, be.

sticking-plaster. An extremely boring visit (made by another person on oneself): from ca. 1920. (Manchon.) Ex its adhesiveness. Cf. stick-jaw, 2, q.v.

sticking-up. The action of stopping (person or vehicle) on the road and robbing him or it: 1855 (Melbourne Argus, 18 Jan.): coll. >, by 1890, S.E. Ex Aus. stick up (v.). Cf. sticker-up, 3, and see stick-up, n., 3. stickman. See stick man.

sticks. (Rare in singular.) Pistols: from ca. 1786: c. >, ca. 1840, s.; ob. by 1859 (H., 1st ed.); † by 1914, except in still extant shooting-stick (1890). Grose, 2nd ed. Whence, stow your sticks!, hide your pistols. Ex shape.—2. Household furniture: from ca. 1810: s. until C.20, then coll. (Lex. Bal.; 'Jon Bee'.) Abbr. sticks of furniture. The singular is rare and, in C.20, ob.: 1809, Malkin, every stick, app. the only form (OED). See bricks and mortar, 1; sticks and stones.—3. Legs: mainly nautical s.: earlyish C.19. (W.N. Glascock, Sailors and Saints, 1829: Moe; Marryat, 1830: OED.) Cf. stamps, stems.—4. The stumps: cricket coll. (in C.20, S.E.): from ca. 1840. Lewis.—5. Hurdles: athletic coll.: from mid-1890s. Cf. stick-hopper.—6. A horse that will not move; one that won't pull: S. African coll.:—1891 (Bertram Mitford). Ex Cape Dutch steeks, used in the same way.—7. Hence, likewise S. African coll. (—1913), a person either obstinate or obstructive. Pettman. Cf. stick, n., 3.—8. A drummer: army:—1909 (Ware). Sidney Knock, 1932, ref. 1903–24, defines it as 'Marine drummer'. Granville, 'Paradoxically, the ship's bugler, even though he may not play the drum': RN: C.20.—9. A ship's derricks: London dockers':—1935. Perhaps by the suggestion of rhyme. P.B.: or by an extension of stick=mast.—10. Always the sticks, the outback: adopted, in Aus., ca. 1945, and in Britain, ca. 1950 (for 'the provinces, the countryside'), ex US. "People will think that you come from the sticks" is often heard from parents admonishing their children' (B.P.). Cf. bush, n., 6, and mulga madness. Dr Douglas Leechman, however, recalls that, 'When I was in South Wales, at Llanstefan, it was quite common for the people of the village to gather in the evenings to sing together in "the sticks", by which they meant a patch of trees just below the ruined castle. And that was some seventy years [i.e., late C.19] ago, but I can still hear them.'—11. In go to sticks, to be ruined: coll.: ca. 1842 (Carlyle). Emphatically, go to sticks and staves, as in Susan Ferrier, 1824. Kingsley, 1855, has the var. go to noggin-staves, † by 1920. Lit., be smashed. Cf.:—12. In beat (1820), occ. knock (Thackeray, 1840) all to sticks, utterly to overcome, clearly or completely to surpass: coll. Barham, 'They were beat all to sticks by the lovely Odille' (OED). Cf. S.E. in bits.—13. See cross as two sticks; cut stick; hold the s. to; quick sticks; up sticks.

sticks and stones. One's household goods and possessions: proletarian coll.: mid-C.19–20. B. & L.

sticks and whistles. A parade of warders coming on duty for the day: prison coll.: C.20. They are inspected, to see whether they are carrying their batons and whistles. Norman.

sticksing, vbl n.; agent, sticksmen. '[An 18-year old West Indian girl] talks about the London "sticksing" or "dropstick" scene—West Indian terms for pickpocketing or "dipping"—like a veteran' (Gavin Weightman, New Society, 7 July 1977, where also sticksmen): c.: since ca. 1955.

sticky, n. (Not to be confused with S.E. stické, a game that, fusing racquets and lawn tennis, had a vogue ca. 1903–13.) Lawn tennis in its first decade or perhaps its first three lustres: sporting and social. Ex sphairistiké, the game's original designation: invented, like its object, in 18¼ by Major Wingfield. Saturday Review, 30 June 1934; E.P., Christmas card, 1934.—2. Sealing-wax: from late 1850s. H., 1st ed.—3. Sticking-plaster: lower- and lower-middle-class coll.: late C.19–20. Since late 1940s, usu. cellulose tape (Sellotape, Scotch tape, etc.).—4. A 'sticky', i.e. damp and difficult, pitch: cricketers' coll., esp. Aus.: C.20.—5. A free pass on the buses: London busmen's: since ca. 1930.—6. A sticky-beak, q.v.: Aus.: since ca. 1930. (B.P.) Hence, have a sticky, to have an inquisitive look-round: id.—6. Usu. in pl, the stickies, the official Irish Republican Army: N. Ireland: since late 1960s. Hawke.—7. A sticky bun: coll.: since the 1920s, as in 'tea and stickies', joc. for a formal afternoon refreshment.

sticky, v. To render sticky: coll.: 1865, Mrs Gaskell, 'I was sadly afraid of sticking my gloves' (OED). Not a common word. P.B.: commoner in children's talk: C.20.

sticky, adj. (Of persons) wooden, dull; awkward: 1881 (Mrs Lynn: OED). Ex stick, a dull person.—2. (Of stock) not easy to sell: Stock Exchange: 1901 (The Times, 24 Oct.): (OED): s. >, by 1920, coll. Cf. sticker, 1, q.v.—3. (Of persons) not easy to interview; unpleasant and/or obstinate; difficult to placate: from ca. 1919. Ex:—4. Of situation, incident, work, duty: unpleasant; very difficult: 1915 ('A sticky time in the trenches': OED Sup.); T.S. Eliot, Time and Tide, 5 Jan. 1935, '[St Thomas of Canterbury] came to a sticky end.' This sense derives prob. ex senses 1 and 2+S.E. (? orig.—1898—coll.).—5. sticky, (applied to troops) apt to hesitate in obeying commands (OED, adj., 2, 949, §2, b).—6. Inquisitive: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Cf. n., 6.—7. In play sticky, to hold fast to one's money or goods; esp. of one who has recently done well: since ca. 1920.—8. See:— sticky at or on, be. To be 'potty' on (a member of the opposite sex): lower classes':—1923 (Manchon). Ex stuck on, q.v.

sticky-back. A very small photograph with gummed back: from ca. 1910. A.H. Dawson, Dict. of Slang, 1913. sticky-beak, n. An inquisitive person: Aus.:—1926 (Jice Doone). Ex a bird that, in searching for food, gets its beak sticky. Cf. sticky-fingered.

sticky-beak (or solid), v. To pry; to snoop: Aus.: since ca. 1930. Wilkes quotes Kylie Tennant, 1935. Ex n.

sticky dog. A sticky wicket: cricketers': from ca. 1930. P.G.H. Fender, (London) Evening News, 19 June 1934.

sticky-fingered. Thievish; covetous: proletarian: from ca. 1870. (B. & L.) P.B.: also as in 'I suspect he's a bit of a sticky-fingers' or 'Watch out! There's sticky fingers about.' Cf. sticky palm.

sticky Jack. A field-service green envelope (unopened by one's own unit): military: from 1915. (F. & G.) One gummed it down.

sticky on. See sticky at.

sticky palm, have a. To be a habitual thief; esp., to be constitutionally susceptible to bribes: coll.: late (? mid-) C.19–20. The latter sense, a reminder from Jonathan Thomas, 1976.

sticky toffee. Coffee: later C.20. Ronnie Barker, Fletcher's Book of Rhyming Slang, 1979.

stievel. A fourpenny piece: old c., says Baumann. But this may be a confusion with stiver, q.v.

stiff, n. Paper, a document; esp. a bill of exchange or a promissory note: c.:—1823 (Egan's Grose). In 'No. 747' (a ref. valid for 1845), an announcement-bill—a nuance app. † by 1900. Hence, give (one) the stiff, to give (one) either of these documents; take (one), or do a bit of, stiff, to accept a bill or a promissory note.—2. A forged bank-note: c.: late C.19–20; ob.—3. Ex sense 1, a clandestine letter: c.: late C.19–20. Griffiths, Fast and Loose, 1900.—4. A hawker's licence: London c. or low s.: from ca. 1890.—5. A corpse: US (—1859), anglicised ca. 1880. Medical students carve a stiff (dissection). Abbr. stiff 'un, 1, q.v.—6. ?hence, a horse certain not to run or, if running, not to win: the turf: from ca. 1880. Abbr. stiff 'un, 2. In bookmaker's stiff, 'A horse nobbled at the public cost in the bookmakers' interest' (F. & H.): id.—7. A wastrel; a penniless man: 1899 (Daily Chronicle, 10 Aug.: OED). Perhaps orig. S. African. Because cramped by lack of money. Cf. N. American bindle stiffer, a hobo.—8. Esp. in Aus. (ex US), a term of (often q.v.) contempt, as you stiff!, the big stiff: C.20; ob. by later C.20. Cf.:—9. 'An unlucky man; one always in trouble' (F. & G.): army: earlier C.20. Cf. adj., 5.—10. An unskilled dockhand; working-men's: 1914 (OED Sup.).?because he works stiffly.—11. Money: low: late C.19—earlier 20. ('Ouida', The Massarenes, 1897; P. Gaskell; Belloc, 1930.) Prob. ex sense 1 and 2.—12. A non-tipper: ships' stewards': C.20. Dave Marlowe, 1937—13. A police summons: Aus. low: C.20. (B., 1942.) Cf. sense 1.—14. A newspaper used to push or prod the intended victim: pickpockets': since ca. 1930. Brian Moynahan, Sunday Times, 11 May 1969.—15. A conformist, a 'square', q.v.: teenagers': early 1980s. (James Williamson, 1982.) Cf. wackie, n., 2.

stiff, v. To curse and swear: 1888 (Kipling's short story The Arrest of Lt Golightly).—2. (Of a man) to coit raffish: since (?) 1930s. G.F. Newman, The Gunvor, 1977, where it is used in both the active and the passive.—3. To extort from: since (?) ca. 1950. 'Every time the old man's on the phone, stiff him for all you can get. I'll bet that's what she's telling them' (R. Busby, Garvey's Code, 1978). Cf. stick, v., 6.—4. To kill: c.: Later C.20. (Powis.) See n., 5, and cf. stiffen, v., 1.

stiff, adj. Closely packed: late C.17—20; S.E. until C.19, then coll., but only in stiff with, densely crowded with: 1907, 'There seemed ... more yachts than ever, and the water was "stiff" with masts and rigging' (OED).—2. Certain to win: (esp. Aus.) turf: late C.19—20. Prob. ex stiff 'un, 2, by antiphrasis.—3. Hence (of an event), certain to be won: sporting: 1912, Punch, 21 Aug., 'He ought to have this event absolutely stiff at the next Olympic Games' (OED Sup.).—4. Penniless: Aus.: C.20. Ex stiff, n., 7, q.v.—5.?hence, unlucky: mostly Aus. and NZ: since ca. 1910. Hence stiff! or stiff luck!, 'An ironic expression of sympathy' (McNeil): Aus. coll.—6. Hard, severe towards someone: Aus.: since ca. 1910. B., 1942.—7. (Of liquor) potent: coll.: late (? mid-or earlier) C.18—20. (Blackwood's, July 1823, 'Idyl': Moe.) P.B.: 'I couldn't half do with a stiff whisky!'

stiff, adv. Greatly. Only in bore (one) stiff: coll.: from ca. 1910. (Cf. the US scared stiff.) Lit., to death. P.B.: by 1940, at latest, scared stiff had > Brit. coll.—2. In cut up stiff, q.v. at cut up nasty. Thackeray, ca. 1885.

stiff and stout, the. A penis erectus: low: mid-C.17—early 20. Urquhart.

stiff-arsed. Haughty; supercilious: low coll.: mid-C.19—20. Ex stiff-rumped: cf. stiff-rump, q.v., and stiff in the back.

stiff as a crutch. Destitute: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) An intensive of stiff, adj., 4.

stiff as a poker. (Gen. of posture) very stiff: coll.: 1797 (Colman, Jr.).

stiff blade. See TAVERN TERMS, § 2, in Appendix; cf. the more modern stout fellow.

stiff-box. Obituary list in newspaper: Aus. journalistic: since ca. 1915. (B., 1942.) Ex stiff, n., 5.

stiff-dealer. A dealer in stiff, n., 1, q.v.: c.: from ca. 1820. 'Jon Bee'.

stiff-fencer. A hawkler of writing paper: London low: from ca. 1850. Ex stiff, n., 1.

stiff fox. Certain for, certain to win: Aus. sporting: since ca. 1920. (Baker.) Ex stiff, adj., 3.

stiff in the back. Resolute; firm of character: coll.: late C.19—20. 'Anthony Hope', 1897, 'Are you going to let him off?... You never can be stiff in the back' (OED).

stiff-lifter. A body-snatcher: Yorkshire s. (—1904), not dial. (EDD). Ex stiff, n., 5.

stiff one. See stiff 'un.

stiff or hard? By promissory note or in hard cash?: commercial: from ca. 1860. See stiff, n., 1.

stiff-rump. A person haughty or supercilious; an obstinate one: coll. rather than s.: late C.17—early 19. Recorded, as an adj. in B.E., 1699; as a n., in Addison & Steele, 1709 (OED). Cf. stiff-arsed and stiff in the back.

stiff 'un; occ. stiff one. A corpse: 1823, Egan's Grose (one); 1831, The Annual Register (OED). Also stiffy, q.v. and cf. dead meat.—2. A horse certain not to win: the turf: 1871, 'Hawk's-Eye', 'Safe uns, or stiff uns.' Also stiff, n., 6; cf. dead 'un and stumer, qq.v.—3. A ticket already cancelled, i.e. 'dead': busmen's: C.20.—4. An erection: schoolboys': late C.19—20. Cf. stiff, v., 2.

stiff upper lip, carry or have or keep a. To be firm, resolute; to show no, or only slight, signs of the distress one must be feeling: coll.: resp. 1837, ob.; 1887, very ob.; and 1852. App. orig. US, for the earliest examples of carry and keep are American. P.B.: hence, as adj., stiff-upper-lipped, and occ. stiff-upper-lippery, the code that demands reserve and suppression of the emotions. Sometimes as exhortation, 'Stiff upper lip, eh, old boy!' = Don't break down!

stiffen. To kill: 1888.—2. Hence to prevent (a horse) from doing its best: the turf: 1900 (Westminster Gazette, 19 Dec.). OED both senses.—3. Hence, to buy over (a person): low Aus.:—1916 (C.J. Dennis). Mostly as passive ppl.—4. To swindle (someone): Aus.: since ca. 1920. The usu. passive is get stiffened. B., 1943.

stiffen it!, God. A low oath: late C.19—20. Eden Phillpotts, Sons of the Morning, 1900 (EDD). Lit., render it useless, destroy it; but gen. as a vague and violent expletive. Cf. stiffen, 1, and—stiffen the crows – lizards – snakes! Aus. exclam.: C.20; in later C.20, mostly joc. (Baker.) Cf. starve the lizards!; Speed the wombats!

stiffener. A pick-me-up drink: 1928 (Dorothy L. Sayers: OED Sup.). In Glasgow, it is used of any heavy drink. Now coll. [ca. 1930].—2. A punch or blow that renders one unconscious: mid-C.19—20.—3. A cigarette card: C.20. Originally inserted to stiffen paper packets of cigarettes.—4. A (very) boring person: RAF (mostly officers'): since ca. 1937. Jackson, 'He bores you to death, i.e., stiff.'

stiffy. A corpse: late C.19—20. See stiff, n., 5, and stiff 'un, 1.—2. A horse that is losing: Glasgow sporting:—1934. Cf. stiff 'un, 2.

stifle the squeaker. See squeaker, 2.

stifler. Always the s.; the gallows: c.: 1818, (Scott); ob. Hence, nab the stifler, to be hanged; queer the stifler, to escape hanging.—2. A camouflet: military: 1836: s. >, ca. 1915, coll.—3. A dram of strong spirit: Anglo-Irish: C.19. ('A Real Paddy', Real Life in Ireland, 1822.) It takes one's breath away.

stift. One—usu. a male—who won't work: Bromaries' s.: since ca. 1920. (Robert M. Dawson.) Ex stiff, n., 7 and perhaps 8.

still. A still-born infant: undertakers': from ca. 1860. H., 3rd ed.

Still alive and kissing (occ. all alive ...). An ephemeral c.p. 'applied to a sexy girl' (Petch, 1974). A pun on all alive and kicking, orig. the street cry of a fishmonger.

still all in one piece. 'Used when someone has been in an accident and yet has sustained little, or no great, harm: since ca. 1919' (Petch, 1974).

still and all. Nevertheless: coll.: C.20. K.G.R. Browne, 1934, in The Humorist, 'Still and all ... the average politician does no great harm to anybody.'

still going strong like Johnny Walker. A c.p.: since ca. 1925. (Collinson.) Ex the famous advertisement of a famous whisky. Prof. Randolph Quirk uses it allusively to open ch. 5 of his Style and Communication in the English Language, 1983. Cf. Johnnie, 9.

still he is not happy! A c.p. applied to one whom nothing pleases, nothing satisfies: ca. 1870—75. Ware quotes the Daily Telegraph, 28 July 1894, as attributing it to a phrase often spoken in a Gaiety burlesque of 1870.

still in a bottle of stout, often particularized as ... a bottle of Guinness. (Of a person) unborn: smokeroom wit: since ca. 1945. Ex the body-building virtues of good stout. P.B.:

'Guinness and oysters' is said to be a powerful aid to procreation.

still running – like Charley's Aunt. A c.p., implying the durability of the evergreen and applied esp. to plays and films: C.20. Ex the continuing popularity of that verdant farce.

still sow. 'A close, sly lurking knave' (Florio): coll.: late C.16–mid-17. Ex the proverb, the still sow eats up all the draft (Apperson).—2. See HARLOTS, in Appendix.

stiling. 'First-class pocket-picking' (J. Greenwood, 1884): c.; ob. by 1930. ? a perversion of tilting, or a pun on stiling, the action of stilt-walking.

Stilton, the. 'He evidently imagined that he was "rather the Stilton than otherwise"—"Stilton" or "cheese" being terms by which Gents imply style or fashion' (Albert Smith, The Natural History of the Gent, 1847). Cf. 'The great Vance', still singing in the 1880s: 'The Stilton, sir, the cheese, the O.K. thing to do,/On Sunday afternoon, is to toddle to the Zoo.' See also cheese in this sense, of which Stilton is a humorously grandiloquent var. (P.B.).

stim. A stimulant, gen. of liquor: Society: 1882; ob. by 1910, † by 1930.

stimmt. See PRISONER-OF-WAR SLANG, para. 1, in Appendix.

stimulate, v.i. To drink alcoholic stimulants: C.19–20: S.E. until mid-1830s, then coll. (mostly US); except in US, † by 1930.

sting, n. Penis: lowish: late C.19–20. Cf. prick, 3.—2. Dope, esp. if by hypodermic, administered to a horse; hence give (it) a sting: Aus. sporting: since ca. 1945.—3. Strong drink: Aus.: C.20. (K.S. Pritchard, Coonardoo, 1920.) Ex stingo. By later C.20, cheap wine (McNeil, 1973), or even methylated spirits (1972 quot'n in Wilkes).

sting, v. To rob; to cheat: c.:—1812; † by 1903. Vaux.—2. Hence, to demand or beg something, esp. money, from (a person); to get it thus: late C.19–20. Cf. put the nips in.—3. (Also ex sense 1.) To swindle, often in a very mild way and gen. in the passive voice: late C.19–20. (Lyell.) See also stung for.—4. sting oneself, to get stung, is coll. and surprisingly old: 1663, Tuke, 'I've touch'd a nettle, and have stung my self' (OED).—5. (Gen. in passive.) To snub: Charterhouse: C.20–6. To inoculate with a hypodermic: Services s. (1930) >, by 1940, coll. (H. & P.) P.B.: † by 1950, when job had become the commonest synon.

sting-bum. A niggard: late C.17–early 19. (B.E.; Grose.) The OED gives sting-hum; there is no such term: B.E.'s b is irrefutable.

stingah. See stengah.

stingareeing. 'The sport of catching Stingrays, or Stingarees': NZ coll.: 1872 (Hutton & Hector, The Fishes of New Zealand: Morris).

stinger. Anything that stings or smarts: late C.16–20: S.E. until C.19, then coll., in such senses as a sharp, heavy blow (1823, Bee) or the hand that deals it (1855, Browning)—something distressing, such as a very sharp frost (1853, Surtees)—a trenchant speech or a pungent (or crushing) argument, as in late C.19–20. (OED and F. & H.) Hence, fetch (someone) a stinger, to strike him.—2. A bowsprit: Can. (and US) nautical: C.20. (Bowen.) Perhaps because it is bitterly cold work on it in the winter. P.B.: or because it sticks out in front like a sting?—3. A brakeman: Can. (and US) railroad-men's:—1931.—4. See stengah.

stingo. Strong ale or beer: from ca. 1630; ob. [ca. 1930] except in the trade name, Watney's stingo nips. Randolph, ca. 1635; Ned Ward, 1703; Bridges, 1774; ca. 1840, Barham (stynngo); 1891, Nat Gould, 'Host Barnes had tapped a barrel of double stingo for the occasion' (OED). Ex its 'bite' + Italianate o. Cf. bingo.—2. Hence, as adj. (C.19–20) and, 3, fig. energy, vigour (late C.19–20: coll.).

stingy. (Of, esp. nettles) having a sting: coll.: late C.19–20. (OED) P.B.: SOD gives date 1615, and without comment. ? orig. S.E.

stink, n. A disagreeable exposure; considerable alarm: c.

(—1812) >, ca. 1850, low s. >, ca. 1910, gen. s. Vaux; Mayhew.—2. Hence, a 'row', esp. in make, or kick up, a stink (about something), to yell (in pain: cf. pen and ink, 3) or complain noisily; also, a fight: coll.: since late C.19—3. In big or little stink, a high- or low-powered boat: Conway cadets: earlier C.20. (J. Masefield, The Conway, 1933.) Cf. stink boat.—4. In like stink, a var. of like stinking hell, desperately hard or fast or much: from not later than 1915. Ex stinking hell!, a C.20 asseveration. D.L. Sayers & R. Eustace, The Documents in the Case, 1930, 'Toiling away like stink'.

stink, v.t. To smell the stink of or from: Public Schools': C.20 E.F. Benson, David Blaize, 1916.

stink boat. (Usu. in pl.) A small power-boat: RN: 1970s' (Peppitt). See stink, n., 3.

stink-bomb. A mustard-gas shell: army: 1917+. F. & G.

stink-car. A motor-car: ca. 1900–10. (Sporting Times, 27 Apr. 1901) Prob. ex stinker, 4, on the analogy of stinkard; cf. stink-pot, 3.

stink-finger. In have a bit of... or play at... to grope a woman: low: since mid-C.19. Cf. a handful of sprats.

stink for a nosegay, take a. To err egregiously, be very gullible: coll.: late C.18–mid-19. Malkin, Gil Blas, 1809.

stink-pot. See sense 3 of stinker.—2. An objectionable fellow: late C.19–20.—3. A motor-car: ca. 1898–1914. Maxwell Gray, The Great Refusal, 1906.—4. A small firework: Aus.: C.20. B., 1943.

stink of money. To be 'lousily' or 'filthily' rich: middle and upper classes':—1929 (COD, 2nd ed.).

stinker. A stinkard, or disgusting, contemptible person: C.17–20: a vulgarity. In C.20 Glasgow it is applied esp. to a liar.—2. A black eye: c.:—1823; † by 1910. (Egan's Grose.) Cf. sense 5.—3. Any of the ill-smelling petrels, esp. the giant fulmar: nautical coll.:—1896. Also stink-pot:—1865 (OED).—4. Anything with an offensive smell: a vulgarity: 1898, a motor-car († by 1920; cf. stink-car); 1899, a rank cigar—former in OED; the latter in Rook; a cigarette made of Virginia tobacco (from before 1923: Manchon).—5. A heavy blow: boxing s., from early C.19 (Pierce Egan, Life in London, 1821); in early C.20, Public Schools'. Perhaps a corruption of stinger.

Cf. come a stinker, to come a 'cropper', lit. or fig.:—1923 (Manchon).—6. Hence, a very sharp or an offensive letter, a stinging criticism, a pungent comment or a crushing argument: from ca. 1916, it being orig. military.—7. Anything (very) difficult to do: since later C.19. Claiborne notes, 'used by Kipling in "Regulus" [1908]: "The next passage was what was technically [i.e. slangily] known as a stinker"—hence, presumably in use in Kipling's schooldays, ca. 1880.' Cf. sense 5.—8. A sultry or very hot, humid, day: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Also stinkers.—9. (Usu. in pl.) An RAMC laboratory worker: RAMC: WW1.—10. A police informer: low Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Cf. sense 1.—11. The blue-winged shoveller: Aus.: since ca. 1910. B., 1943.—12. A delayed wagon 'remaining for several days in a marshalling yard' (Railway): railwaymen's: C.20. Cf. stale, adj.—13. As Stinker, Steinkier, Norway: army: 1940–1. By Hobson-Jobson.—14. As the Stinker, a fortune-telling device, often called 'the Mystic Writer's' or 'the Gypsy Queen': grafters': from ca. 1910. Allingham, Cheapjack, 1934, pp. 303–4. stinkeries. A set of cages for a (silver-) fox farm: middle-class rural: from ca. 1920. Evelyn Waugh, A Handful of Dust, 1934.

stinkeroo. A poor show-place (town, etc.), with few customers: Can. carnival s.: since ca. 1920. It 'stinks'. Contrast lulu. stinkibus. Bad liquor; esp. rank, adulterated spirits: C.18. Ned Ward, 1706; Smollett, 1771 (stinkubus). Spurious-Latin suffix on stink; cf. stingo.—2. Hence, 'A cargo of spirits that had lain under water so long as to be spoiled' (John Davidson, Baptist Lake, 1896): smugglers': C.19.

stinking. Disgusting; contemptible: C.13–20: S.E. until C.19, then a vulgarity. Cf. stinker, 1.—2. (Of a blow, criticism, repartee, etc.) sharp: C.20. See stinker, 5, 6.—3. Extremely drunk: Society: from ca. 1929 (Evelyn Waugh, A Handful of Dust, 1934); by 1939, gen. middle-class s. (P-G-R). Also Aus.

(D'Arcy Niland, Call Me When the Cross Turns Over, 1958). Abbr. stinking drunk.—4. Either absolute, as in 'Are they rich?'—'Oh, stinking!', or as stinking with, q.v.

stinking, adv. A late C.19–20 Scots (somewhat uncouth) coll., as in I'd be stinking fond, i.e. foolish, to do it, I should never think of doing it, I'd certainly not do it. OED.

stinking hell!; like stinking hell. See stink, n., 4.

stinking with (esp. money). Possessed of much (e.g. money): coll.: since ca. 1916. Cf. lousy with, q.v.

stinking Yarra! An insult hurled by Sydneysites at Melbourneites: earlier C.20. The retort is our 'arbour! The Yarra is a very muddy river: see DCpp.

stinkino. Gin: C.18. (F. & H.) Perhaps ex stinkibus, q.v.

stinkman. A student in natural science, esp. in chemistry: schools' and universities':—1923 (Manchon). Ex stinks, 2 and 1. More gen. and properly stinksman or stinks man.

stinko, n. Liquor; esp., wine: Aus.: since ca. 1925. D'Arcy Niland, Call Me When the Cross Turns Over, 1958, 'This is a little bottle of stinko to go with it'. Cf. the adj.

stinko, adj. Exceedingly drunk: mostly clerks': from ca. 1928. Ex stinking drunk on blotto. Hence stinko paralytico, as in Evelyn Waugh's Put Out More Flags, 1942, and stinko profundo, as in Terence Rattigan's play While the Sun Shines, 1943. (Peter Sanders.)

Stinkomalee. London University: ca. 1840–70. Ex stink on Trincomalee: Theodore Hook thus alluded to some topicality affecting that town and to the cow-houses and dunghills that stood on the first site of the University.

stinks. Chemistry: universities and schools': 1869 (OED). Ex the smells so desired by youth. "'Stinks" for chemistry is relegated to readers of mediocre school stories' (New Society, 22 Aug. 1963, 'From the Blackboard Jungle').—2. By 1902, also Natural Science: Ibid. Cf. tics.—3. In later C.19–20, a teacher of, lecturer on chemistry: schools'. Anthony Hope, Memories and Notes, 1927, recalls its currency at Marlborough College in 1876.

stinks (O.C.), or O.C. Stinks. A gas officer; a gas instructor: army: from 1916. F. & G.

stinks like a country shit-house. Self-explanatory Aus. phrase: heard by Jack Slater, 1957.

stinksman. See stinkman.

stinkubus. See stinkibus.

stinky. A farrier: army: later C.19—early 20. Ex burning of hair or hooves.—2. A cheap baked-clay marble: Aus. children's: late C.19–20. Baker.

stipe. A stipendiary magistrate: rural: from mid-C.19. H., 2nd ed.—2. A stipendiary racecourse steward: Aus. sporting: C.20. (B., 1942.) By 1930, also Brit. "'Stipe" is short for stipendiary steward or stewards' secretary' (John Lawrence, Sunday Telegraph, 13 Aug. 1961).

stir, n. An illiterate form of stir (in address): Scots: 1784 (Burns); ob. (OED). Cf. the slightly later Scottish stirra, sirrah.—2. A prison: mid-C.19–20: c. >, ca. 1900, low s.; also, since ca. 1920, army s. for detention (H. & P.). Mayhew, 1851, 'I was in Brummagem, and was seven days in the new "stir"; 1901, The Referee, 28 Apr., 'Mr... M'Hugh, M.P. . . ., has gone to stir... for a seditious libel'. Abbr. Romany stariben, steripen (Crofton & Smart): cf. also Welsh gypsy star, to be imprisoned, and stardo, imprisoned, and see Start, the. (Much nonsense has been written about this word.)—3. A crowd: low: late C.19—early 20. Ex stir, bustle, animation: cf. push.—4. Stew: military: late C.19–20. (B. & P.) Ex the cooking-operation; cf. stirabout.—5. In have plenty of stir on, to be wealthy: late C.19—early 20.

stir-happy. Adversely affected by prison-life, whether at the time or afterwards: since ca. 1940 (see Underworld): orig. c., but by 1950 also police s. John Gosling, 1959.

stir it up!, often accompanied by a mime of stirring a huge cauldron. A third party's remark upon, and stimulation, of a quarrel either brewing or already in progress: c.p.: since ca. 1955. (L.A.) P.B.: elliptical for 'That's right! Stir the shit!' stir-shit. A sodomist: low: C.19—earlier 20. (F. & H.) Cf. shit-hunter, turd-burglar.

stir shit out of. To scold bitterly; reprimand severely: NZ: since ca. 1940. 'Wait till I get hold of him! I'll stir shit out of him.'

stir the coals. To cause trouble between two parties: coll., soon > S.E.: C.16–18. Cf.:

stir the shit. As prec., or (usu.) to stir up trouble in a more general way; to act as a shit-stirrer, q.v.: low, ? mostly Forces': since ca. 1950, at latest. (P.B.)

stir the stew. To copulate with (a woman): early C.20. (R.S.)

stir up. 'To visit on the spur of the moment': lower classes':—1909 (Ware).

Stir-Up Sunday. The last Sunday before Advent: dial. (—1825) >, ca. 1860, coll. (H. 2nd ed.) The appropriate collect begins 'Stir up, we beseech Thee, O Lord'; but, as the OED observes, 'the name is jocularly associated with the stirring of the Christmas mince-heat, which it was customary to begin making in that week.'

stirabout. A pottage of maize and oatmeal: prison c.:—1887 (Baumann).—2. Any 'pudding or porridge made by stirring the ingredients—generally oatmeal or wheat-flour—when cooking': lower classes':—1909 (Ware). Ex dial.

stirrup-oil. A beating, esp. with a strap: joc. coll. (—1676) bordering on S.E.: ob. except in the All Fools' Day practical joke. (Lexicographer Coles.) Prob. suggested by stirrup-leather, an instrument of thrashing. Cf. strap-oil.

stirrups, up in the. See up in the stirrups.

stitch, n. A tailor: coll.: late C.17–19. (B.E.) Cf. stitch-louse.

—2. 'Also a term for lying with a woman' (Grose, 1st ed.): late C.18–19.—3. Elliptical for stitch of canvas: nautical, esp. naval, coll.: since ca. 1790; by 1850, S.E. W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, I, 1825, 'Standing out on a wind, with every stitch they could crack' (Moe).—4. An 'inevitable' nickname for a man surnamed Tailor, Taylor, etc.: earlier C.20. (G. Kersh, Clean, Bright, and Slightly Oiled, 1946.) Cf. sense 1.

—5. See in stitches.

stitch, v. 'To overcome, to beat in a fight or contest' (B., 1953): Aus.: since ca. 1930. Probably suggested by sewed-up, 5.

stitch-back. Beer; strong liquor: ca. 1690 (B.E.); E. Ward, History of the London Clubs; † by 1800.

stitch-louse. A tailor: 1838 (Beckett); ob. by 1930. Ex stitch on prick-louse. Cf.:

stitch off. To refrain from, have nothing to do with a thing; in the imperative, it = 'keep off it!': tailors': late C.19–20. Ex tailoring j.

stitch up. (Usu. in the passive, be stitched up.) To fleece; to intimidate into submission by virtual, or real, complete bribery: c. and low s.: since ca. 1950. Gavin Weightman, New Society, 7 July 1977, 'Both Sheila and Gary have many stories of being "stitched up" by the police or being fleeced.'—2. 'To deal effectively with a situation, but usually unscrupulously. "Let's stitch up old Bill" might be "Let's give overwhelming but perjured evidence against that policeman". See also fit up.' (Powis): id.—3. To complete a task satisfactorily, and not necessarily with any suggestion of underhand methods; e.g. 'Once we've got that angle stitched up, we can go on and...': coll.: since ca. 1970. (P.B.) the later C.20 var. of sewn up.

stitched. Topsy: Services: since ca. 1925. H. & P.—2. Beaten, defeated: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) All sewn up.

stitched off the edge. (Of a glass) not full: tailors': from ca. 1860.

stitched up. 'Charge found proved at adjudication' (Home Office): prisoners' c.: later C.20. See stitch up, 1.

stitches, or S-. A sail-maker, esp. on board ship: nautical, gen. as nickname: mid-C.19–20. Cf. stitch, n., 1.—2. In man of stitches, a tailor: coll.: mid-C.19—early 20.

stiver. A small standard of value; esp. in not a stiver, not a penny: coll.: mid-C.18–20. Ex stiver, a small Dutch coin.

Other spellings: stu(y)ver, C.18; stuiver, C.19; ste(e)ver, late C.19–20, when the usual form; Yiddishly, shtibbur. OED;

F. & H.

stiver-cramped. Needy: coll.: ca. 1780–1850. (Grose, 1st ed.)

See stiver.

stiver's worth of copper. A penny: East London: late C.19–20. Ware.

stivvy. A domestic servant: Bootham School: from ca. 1918. (Bootham, 1925.) A corruption of skivvy.

stivvy blug. A boot-boy: Bootham School: ca. 1910–20. Ex prec. Cf.:

stivvy's blag. A boot-boy: id.: from ca. 1920. Ex prec.

stizzle. To hurt; hence, to cane (a boy): Tonbridge School: later C.19–early 20. (Marples.)? a blend of stick + sizzle.

stoat. A virile person, esp. male and mostly in fuck like a stoat, frequently and athletically: low coll.: since ca. 1870. Cf. shag like a rattlesnake, applied to the female.

stoter. See stoter.

stocious. Var. of stotious.

stock, n. A stock of impudence; esp. a good stock: coll.: late C.18–mid-19. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Also absolutely: 'cheek'. —2. As in live stock, q.v.—3. Repertory (n.); esp. in stock: theatrical coll.: C.20. (M. Lincoln, Oh! Definitely, 1933). Ex stock piece. —4. In take stock in, esp. large, etc., stock in, rarely of. To be interested in, have faith in, consider important: coll.: 1878, Anon., 'Taking large stock in Natural Selection' (OED). —5. In take stock of, to scrutinise (gen. a person) with interest, curiosity, suspicion: coll.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.). Ex S.E. sense, to evaluate, assess.

stock, v. To arrange (cards) fraudulently—i.e. to 'stack' them—may orig. (—1864) have been s. (H., 3rd ed.) The OED classifies stocking, such manipulation, as s.: 1887.

stock-bubbling. Stockbroking: money-market s.:—1923 (Manchon). Ex causing stocks and shares to rise and fall.

stock-buzzer. A pickpocket of handkerchiefs: c.:—1861 (Mayhew).

stock-drawers. Stockings: c.: mid-C.17–early 19. (Coles, 1676; B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) See drawers.

stock-in-trade. The privities: coll.: late C.19–20. Punning the lit. sense.

stock-sick is, in sense, a more gen. var. of sheep-sick: B., 1943.

stock-up, n. See fit-up.

stockbanger; stockbanging. A stockman; mustering (e.g. cattle): Aus.: C.20. (Archer Russell, In Wild Australia, 1934.) Cf. cattle banger.

Stockbrokers' Battalion, the. 'The 10th Battalion of the Royal Fusiliers, raised for the War among members and clerks of the Stock Exchange in Aug. 1914' (F. & G.): army: WW1.

Stockbrokers' Belt, the. See Gin and Jaguar Belt. Also stockbroker belt, the.

stockbroker's taxi. A 'showy' motorcar, e.g. the Jaguar: since ca. 1960. New Statesman, 5 Feb. 1965.

Stockbrokers' Tudor. Bogus Tudor architecture: since ca. 1950; by 1960, coll.; 1966, virtually S.E. Cf. North Oxford Gothic, q.v. (Peter Sanders.) As Claiborne points out, the term 'was coined by Osbert Lancaster, in his classic Pillar to Post', pub. 1938, a light-hearted but penetrating review of English architectural styles.

stockdol(l)ager. See sockdologer. H., 2nd ed.

Stockholm tar in his veins. Said of a true seaman. See every thumb a fid.

stocker-bait. 'Money made by the fishing crews over and above their wages (done by selling surplus fish, net cleanings, etc.' (D. Butcher, Driftersmen, 1979, glossary): nautical: C.20. Also known as stockie (Ibid.).

stocking. A store of money: gen. a fat or a long stocking: dial. (—1873) >, ca. 1875, coll. >, ca. 1905, S.E. S.R. Whitehead, 1876, 'She had a "stocking" gathered to meet the wants of an evil day' (OED). Ex a stocking used in preference to a bank.—2. See stock, v.

stocking crib. A hosier's shop: c.: ca. 1810–60. (Vaux.) Ex crib, n., 3. stocking -foot(er). A projectile approaching noiselessly: military:1915–18. (F. & G.) It comes in stocking feet. Cf.:- stocking-soles gun. A cannon with high-velocity shell: army: WW1. Cf. prec.

1188

stocking-tops! A joc. parody of children's 'naughty' words, used, almost as a c.p., among adults, perhaps esp. among National Servicemen: 1950s. As a mock-erotic stimulant, with 'and men's hairy legs!' Cf. knickers! (P.B.)

stockings are of (later, belong to) two parishes his. A c.p. applied to one whose stockings or socks are odd: ca. 1790–1860. Grose, 3rd ed.

stodge, n. Heavy eating; gorging: mostly schools': 1894, Norman Gale, concerning a bowler at cricket, 'Your non-success is due to Stodge.' Ex stodge, 'stiff farinaceous food', and see stodging. OED.—2. Hence, a heavy meal: mostly schools':—1903 (F. & H.).—3. At Charterhouse, the crumb of new bread: later C.19—early 20. B. & L.—4. Hence, any food: c. and RN (gunroom) s.: id. (Bowen.) This sense—also as 'extra food'—existed at Rugby School as early as 1880. As the Stodge, it = the School shop, where one can buy extra food: since ca. 1925. (D.F. Wharton, 1965.) Cf. stodger, 5.—5. Stodgy notions: 1902 (Elinor M. Glyn: OED).

stodge, v.t. To hurt: Tonbridge School:—1903 (F. & H.). Cf. stizzle. —2. V.i., to work steadily (at something, esp. if wearisome, dull, or heavy): coll.: 1889 (SOD). Prob. ex:—3. See stodging. —4. To trudge through slush or mud; to walk heavily: dial. (—1854) >, ca. 1910 coll. OED Sup.

stodged, ppl. adj. Crammed with food: dial. and coll.: from ca. 1870. Cf. stodging.

stodger. A gormandiser: s. or coll.: late C.19–20. Cf. stodge, n., 1.—2. A dull and/or spiritless person: coll.: from not later than 1904. (OED Sup.) Whence stodgery, the behaviour, or an action, characteristic of such a person: coll.: 1920 (Warwick Deeping). —3. A penny bun: Public Schools': late C.19—early 20. A.H. Tod.—4. As the Stodger, HMS Warspite: RN: early C.20. Bowen.—5. As the Stodger, 'The "tuck-shop" at Osborne or Dartmouth, a Britannia survival until WW2 and the change of regime at Dartmouth' (Granville): RN cadets'. stodgery. See prec., 2.

stodging, vbl. n. and ppl. adj. Gormandising: coll.: late C.19–20. Ex stodge, v.t., to gorge (oneself or another) with food; often in passive: dial. (—1854) >, by 1860, coll.; the OED, which considers it to have been always S.E., records stodge as v.i. only in 1911,—but it occurs in Baumann (sich satt essen) in 1887. Cf. stodged.

stogy, a coarse cigar, may, orig. in England (ca. 1890), have been coll. Ex Conestoga, USA. P.B.: Kipling, in Captains Courageous, 1897, mentions 'a Wheeling Stogie'.

stoke; gen. stoke up. V.i., to eat; nourish oneself: coll.: C.20. Ex stoking an engine.

stoked. Thrilled, as in 'He's stoked on [or about] surfing: Aus. teenagers': esp. surfers': since the late 1950s. (Pix, 28 Sep. 1963.) Semantically 'hot and excited'.

stokehold bosun. Warrant Engineer of the Engine-Room: RN: since 1925. Granville.

stokers. 'Smuts and cinders flying from a ship's funnels at high speed': nautical: C.20. Bowen.—2. The men who looked after the smoke-screen arrangements: army: 1916–18. (Petch, 1969.)

stokes. 'Anyone employed in the stoking side of the ship' (H. & P.): RN: C.20.

stoll. To understand (e.g. stoll the patter): N. Country c.: from ca. 1860. (H., 3rd ed.)? a corruption of stall, to place, used fig.—2. V.i., to tittle: low s.: from ca. 1880; ob. Whence stolled, tippy.? origin: perhaps cognate with rare Norfolk stole, to drink, swallow (EDD).

Stolypin's necktie. 'The final halter': political: 1897—ca. 1914. (Ware.) Ex a formerly well-known Russian functionary.

stomach. See butterflies in the stomach; hot a stomach ...; belly thinks ...

stomach on (one's) chest, (have got) a. (To have) something lying heavy on one's stomach: joc. coll.:—1887 (Baumann). stomach-worm gnaws, the. I'm hungry: ca. 1785–1850. Grose, 2nd ed.

stomacher. An apple that produces a stomach-ache: lower classes', esp. children's: C.20.

stomp. To dance: Aus. teenagers', esp. surfies': since ca. 1956. Ex US dial. stomp, to stomp one's feet, walk heavily. Hence stomping, n. and adj., dancing. (Sunday Mirror, 22 Sep. 1963.) Hence also stomp, a dance; whence stomp hall, a dance-hall.—2. To attack savagely, esp. by 'putting the boot in': teenage thugs' and hooligans': copied ex US later 1960s. A. Stuart, The Bikers, 1971, passim; e.g. '[He] has a big opinion of himself; he is just about due for a stomping administered by the whole Chapter [of Hell's Angels], he's full of shit ...'—3. Hence, (also as stomp on or stomp all over), fig., as to suppress; to out-argue; to attack verbally and win: Services': ca. 1970. (P.B.) stomping, n. and adj. See prec.

stomping ground. A 'stamping ground'—one's habitat or district or milieu: Aus. teenagers', esp. surfies': since ca. 1959. Cf. stomp, v., 1.

stonachy; stonaker. See stonnicky.

stone, n. A diamond: S. African s. (1887) >, by 1915, coll. (Ellis, South African Sketches, 1887; Pettman.) Cf.:—2. As the stone, diamonds: late C.19—20: gem-dealer's coll. verging on j. A gem-trade proverb runs, 'When the stone goes well, all goes well.' Carl Olsson, Passing Show, 13 Jan. 1934.—3. A drug-taking, esp. of one of the less harmful drugs: addicts': since ca. 1955. (Alan Diment, The Dolly Dolly Spy, 1963.) Cf. stoned, 2, q.v.—4. See kill two birds with one stone; stones; two stone under weight.

stone is a common Aus. coll. intensive, sometimes adjectival, sometimes adverbial; as in stone cert, a dead-certainty, and its synonym, stone moral, and stone motherless broke, penniless and alone: late C.19—20. (B., 1942—3.) P.B.: prob. ex the S.E. usage in, e.g., stone blind; cf. stone lakes, stone-broke.

stone-ache. Synon. with blue balls; see also stones, 1.

stone and a beating, give a. To beat easily: racing s. (—1885) >, by 1900, sporting coll. Ex racing and athletics j., stone being a stone-weight. (Ware.) In a later ed. E.P. added that it prob. arose a generation earlier: cf. G. Lawrence, Sword and Gown, 1859, 'I could give him 21 lb., and a beating, any day.' (Dr D. Pechtold.)

stone-blinder. A sure winner: horse-racing: since ca. 1910. (Arthur J. Sarl, Gamblers, 1938.) Cf. stone-tinger.

stone-bonker. Var. of prec., and a shortening of stone-wall bonker, since ca. 1945. 'Stone-bonker certainties' occurs in Leslie Frewin's editing, The Boundary Book, 1962. Contrast-stone bonkers. Utterly mad: coll.: since mid-C.20. A blend of stone lakes, or winnick, + stark bonkers. See bonkers.

stone-brig. See stone-doublet.

stone-broke; ston(e)y-broke. (Almost) penniless; ruined: resp. from before 1887 (Baumann) and now rare; 1894, Astley. The link between the two forms is provided by R.C. Lehmann's Harry Fludyer, 1890, 'Pat said he was stoney or broke or something but he gave me a sov.' Cf.:—stone coals and coke. Rhyming s. on prec. (Jim Wolveridge, Ain't it Grand, 1976.) See coals and coke.

stone cold, have (a person). An intensive of cold, adj. Lyell. stone(-)doublet, jug, pitcher, tavern; brig, frigate. A prison; orig. and esp. Newgate: -doublet,—the exemplar,—B.E.; Motteux, 1694; † by 1850; -jug,—in C.19, the commonest, whence jug, q.v.—late C.18—19, Grose, 3rd ed., and Reade, 1856; -pitcher, ca. 1810—60; -tavern, late C.18—mid-19, Grose, 3rd ed.; -brig and -frigate are both nautical (mainly naval), C.19, the latter recorded by Frank C. Bowen. Dial. has stone-house and, in 1799, US has stone jacket.

stone-fence. A drink of whiskey with nothing added: ca. 1870—1910. B. & L., at neat; at stone-fence, however, it is defined as 'brandy and ale'. stone finish, the. The very end: Aus. coll.: C.20. (Kylie Tennant, Lost Haven, 1947.) See note at stone.

stone frigates. 'Naval Barracks or Shore Establishments ... usually named after the old frigates' (P-G-R.): RN coll.: late C.19—20.—2. See stone doublet, etc.

stone-fruit. Children: low C.19—early 20. Ex stones, q.v.; punning lit. sense.

stone-galley. A detention cell within a guard-house: naval lowerdeck: late C.18—mid-19. (L.L.G., 1 Jan. 1825: Moe). Cf. stone doublet..., q.v.

stone-tinger, a A certainty: Aucklandites' (NZ): from ca. 1910; ob. By 1930, however, it was gen.: gilt kid, 1936. Ex a horse that won virtually every hurdle-race for which it was entered.

Stone House, the. Prison: since ca. 1930. (BBC, 22 Sep. 1963.) Ex dial.: see stone doublet, last sentence.

stone in the ear. See stone (up) in...

stone-jug. A fool, an easy dupe: low rhyming s., on mug:—1923 (Manchon); † by 1960 (Franklyn 2nd). Ex:—2. See stone doublet...

stone lakes. Stone-mad: low, esp. among grafters: C.20. (Cheapjack, 1934.) See lakes.

stone me! A mild expletive or exclam.: since ca. 1920. Popularised by the comedian Tony Hancock, in the BBC radio-comedy series 'Hancock's Half-Hour', 1950s. Perhaps a blend of stone the crows + stap me!

stone pitcher. See stone doublet.

stone ship. A war-time ferro-concrete ship (mostly they were tugs and barges): nautical coll.: WW1. (Bowen.) Contrast stone frigates.

stone-tavern. See stone doublet.

stone the crows! An expletive: perhaps orig. Aus. (? since mid-C.19), but also, since ca. 1918, current in England, esp. among Cockneys, as in 'Cor, stone the crows!' Cf. starve the crows!

stone (up) in the ear, take a. To play the whore: late C.17—mid-18. T. Shadwell, The Scourers, 1691, Act II, scene in the park: 'Did you see who went off with your Aunt? is she given to stumble? Will she take a stone in her ear?'; 'Facetious' Tom Brown. Cf. stones, 1, q.v.

stone-wall; stonewall, n. Parliamentary obstruction; a body of Parliamentary obstructionists: 1876: Aus. >, by 1898, NZ political s. (Morris.) Cf. the C.16—17 proverb, it is evil running against a stone wall (Apperson) and the v.—2. See see through a stone wall.

stone-wall; gen. stonewall. To play stolidly on the defensive: cricket s. (1889) >, by 1920, coll. Lit., to block every thing as though one were a stone wall; but imm. ex S.E. stonewall, a cricketer doing this (1867: Lewis).—2. In politics, v.i. and v.t., to obstruct (business) by lengthy speeches and other retarding tactics: Aus. s. (from ca. 1880) >, ca. 1900, fairly gen. Ex the n. Morris.

stone-wall bonker. A 'stone' (=absolute) certainty: 1930s. See stone-bonker.

stone-wall horrors, in the. Suffering from delirium tremens: Anglo-Irish: C.20. Also cast-iron horrors.

stone(-)waller; stone(-)walling, n. and adj. One who stonewalls (in sport, ca. 1890; in politics, ca. 1885); the act or practice of doing this and the corresponding adj. (in cricket, ca. 1895; in politics, 1880).—2. (Only stone-waller.) A certainty: Glasgow sporting:—1934. Cf. stone ginger, stone-wall bonker.

Stone-Wallers, the. 'In 1915 the 2nd Battalion KSLI [King's Shropshire Light Infantry] was christened "The Stonewallers"' by C-in-C Sir John French for its action as part of the 80th Brigade in the Second Battle of Ypres' (Carew).

stone winnick, gone. Muddled; out of one's wits: military: from 1914. (F. & G.) See winnick.

stoned. Very drunk: adopted, ca. 1950, ex US.—2. Drug-exhilarated: (mostly teenage) drug addicts': adopted, ca. 1960, ex US. Peter Fryer, Observer colour sup., 3 Dec. 1967, defines it as 'very high on cannabis'.

stones. Testicles: C.12—20: S.E. until ca. 1850, then—except of a horse—a vulgarism. Cf. stone-fruit; stone (up) in the ear, take a.—2. As the Stones, Caledonian Market, London: pitch-holders': late C.19—20. (Jane Brown, I Had a Pitch on the Stones, 1946.) Ex the cobble-stones that characterized the Market, which closed ca. 1954. Cf.:—3. In on the stones, selling goods laid out on the pavement, not from a stall:

pedlars' and street vendors': since ca. 1910. 'Originally Caledonian market, now anywhere' (Julian Franklyn, 1962).—4. By specialisation, on the stones also = engaged in selling hired paintings from a pavement pitch or series of pitches: pedlars' and street vendors'; since ca. 1925 (prob. much earlier). Michael Fane, Racecourse Swindlers, 1936.—5. In off the stones, with opp. on the stones, outside London; in London: coll.: ca. 1830–80. Bulwer Lytton, 1841 (off the stones); Surtees, 1858, 'They now get upon the stones. Ex the hardness of London streets, with which cf.:—6. In on the stones, on the street, i.e. destitute: coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Cf. standing on the stones, q.v.—7. As the Stones, 'A 20-mile belt of desert between Mechili and Msus entirely covered with boulders; the most uncomfortable "going" in Libya' (Peter Sanders, Sunday Times mag., 10 Sep. 1967): Army in N. Africa: 1940–43.

stonewall. See stone-wall.

stone. See stony.

stone-broke. See stony-broke.

stones. Marbles made of stone: Aus. children's coll.: C.20. (B.P.)

'stonish. To astonish: in C.19–20, gen. coll. and mostly nursery.

stonk, n. A heavy shelling, as in 'giving 'em a stonk' (or 'a bit of stick'): army: 1940+. (L.M. Gander, After These Many Quests, 1949.) Hence also as v., usu. in passive, as be stonked, to be shelled by artillery. Prob. echoic, but cf. the earlier stonker, v., and (? ultimately) stonnicker.

stonkered, be. To be put out of action: military: 1914 or 1915; ob. (F. & G.) Perhaps ex dial. stonk(s), the game of marbles, on scuppered. Cf. also next.—2. Hence, to be outwitted: Aus.: since ca. 1918. B., 1942.—3. Hence, to be in a fix, a dilemma: Aus. and NZ Services' in WW2 (J.H. Fullarton, Troop Target, 1942), > gen throughout Australasia (B.P., 1963). But the v. stonker is also used actively, as in 'He stepped on a bloody mine. Stonkered the poor bastard properly' (Slatter): NZ: since ca. 1917.—4. To be dead drunk. Aus.: since mid-1940s. F.B. Vickers, First Place to the Stranger, 1955.—5. (Perhaps ex prec.) Surfeited: Aus.: later C.20. Barry Humphries, Nice Night's Entertainment, 1981, gloss.

stonnick; stonachy; stonaker; stonieky; stanicky; stonieky. (The 2nd var.) A flogging: naval? late C.18–mid-19. Knock.—2. Hence, 'A rope's end as an instrument for the inculcation of naval smartness' (Bowen): RN training ships': since ca. 1860. Peppitt attests its usage on the TS Mercury in 1946.—3. Hence, a cosh: c.: later C.20. Powis, 1977: the last var.

stony; less correctly, stone. (Almost) penniless, ruined: from ca. 1890. For earliest record, see stone-broke. For semantics, cf. hard-up.

stony blind. Blind-drunk: Aus.: since ca. 1920. Vance Palmer, The Passage, 1930.

stony-(cc. stone-) broke. The usu. C.20 form of stone-broke; cf. also stony. STONYHURST School slang. See Appendix.

stoob(s). Boots: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Cf. sret-sio, q.v. stooge, n. A learner (as in 'Q learner') at a divisional or a corps HQ in the Army: since ca. 1935. (E.P., 'In Mess and Field', New Statesman, 1 Aug. 1942.) Either ex student or perhaps ex US stooge, a comedian's butt or a conjurer's assistant, a 'feed', itself either ex stool pigeon via studious (mispronounced stew-djus) or ex student.—2. Hence, a deputy; a stand-in: since late 1940. H. & P.—3. Hence, 'an over-willing chap' (H. & P.): since early 1941. B.P. notes the post-1945 Aus. nuance, a servile underling.—4. 'A second-rater, one without importance' (Jackson): since late 1941. Ex sense 1.—5. (Ex sense 1.) 'One of our own sentries to warn escape workers whenever ferrets [q.v. at ferret] approached' (Paul Brickhill & Conrad Norton, Escape to Danger, 1946): prisoners-of-war in Germany: 1940–5.—6. The pilot of a taxi-aircraft, picking up other pilots after they had delivered operational aircraft to squadrons; the second pilot on a large aircraft (cf. 2): Air Transport Auxiliary: WW2. Anthony Phelps, I Couldn't Care Less, 1946.—7. 'A select social gathering in a study' (Marples): Lancing College: since mid-1930s. Perversion of study.—8. Hard work: Reading undergraduates':—1940 (Marples, 2). Cf. sense 1.—9. In put in a stooge, to act as a spare man (i.e. standing by to a bomber crew): RAF: 1940+. (Cecil Lewis, Pathfinders, 1943.) Ex 2.

stooge, v. To fly over the same old ground as before; esp. to be on patrol: RAF: since 1938. (H. & P.) Ex n., 1. stooge around. To 'hang about', waiting to land (1940+); hence (also about), 'to idle about on the ground, or in the air' (Jackson): RAF: since 1940. Observer, 4 Oct. 1942, 'We stooged about a bit above our target'. Cf. prec., and stooge, n., 4.—2. Also, with var. stooge about, a synonym of stooge, v.: since 1938 or 1939. Partridge, 1945.—3. As in stooging.

stooge pilot. A pilot engaged on flying-training 'planes carrying untrained navigators and/or gunners: RAF: 1940+. (Robert Hinde, 1945.) See also stooge, n., 6.

stooging. 'General for non-operational flying' (Sgt-Pilot Rhodes, letter, 1942): RAF: WW2.

stook. A pocket-handkerchief: c.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.); 1893, P.H. Emerson (stook). Prob. ex Yiddish: cf. Ger. Stück (OED Sup.). Hence, stook-buzzer or -hauler, a pickpocket specialising therein.—2. A cigarette: Aus. RMC, Duntroon: mid-C.20. (B., 1953).—3. Gen. in stook, and usu. pron. shtook (later C.20), in trouble, in difficulties: orig. London proletarian, since late C.19, > gen. low; by ca. 1920, also Aus. 'From Yiddish, where it means "difficulties" and is pronounced stooch. "He took all the money and left Abe in stooch,"' (Julian Franklyn, 1962.)—4. (? Hence), something illegal: Aus. c.: later C.20. (Ian Grindley, 1977.)

stook-buzzer or -hauler. See prec., 1.

stooked. Esp. of stolen goods or money: hidden: as for stook, s.

stool. See three-legged mare.

stool-pigeon. A cardsharp's decoy: c.: from ca. 1880. Claiborne: ex pigeons tied to wooden frames (stools) to attract wild birds within range of gunners.—2. Hence, an informer: c., orig. US; Anglicised by 1916. Edgar Wallace, passim.—3. Hence, a Secret Service agent: military: 1917+. B. & P. stoolie or -y. A spy upon criminals: c.: from ca. 1920. (John G. Brandon, The One-Minute Murder, 1934.) By 1939 also Aus. c. >, ca. 1946, low. (Ruth Park, The Harp in the South, 1946.) Ex prec., 2. Cf.:-

stoolie job. An informer's or a spy's giving of information to the police: since ca. 1930: c. >, by 1940, low s. From US: see 'stoolie' in Underworld.

stool's foot in water, lay the. To prepare to receive a guest or guests: coll.:? C.18–mid-19. F. & H.

stoom(e). See shtoom.

stoop, n. Always the stoop. The pillory: c. of ca. 1780–1840. (George Parker; Grose, 1st ed., at nab.) Whence nab (nap) the stoop, to be pilloried; stoop-napper, one in the pillory: both c.: same period. Ex the position therein enforced.—2. A petty thief: Aus. c.: since ca. 1920. B., 1942.

stoop, v.i. To become a victim to crook or criminal: c.: late C.16–early 17. Greene.—2. To set (a person) in the pillory: c. of ca. 1810–40. (Vaux.) Ex n., 1.

stoop-napper. See stoop, n., 1.

stooper. A cigarette-end picked off the street: London: since ca. 1930.

stooping match. 'the exhibition of one or more persons in the pillory' (Vaux): c.: 1810–40.

stop, n. A police detective: c.:—1857; app. † by 1903. ('Ducange Anglicus.') Ex action.—2. In on the stop, 'Picking pockets when the party is standing still': c.: mid-C.19–20. (B. & L.) Cf. stop lay, q.v.

stop, v. To receive (a wound); only in stop (a nasty or a Blighty) one, stop a packet: military: from 1915. Ex familiar S.E. stop a bullet. (B. & P.) Cf. cop a packet.—2. In a fistcuffs fight, to knock out; to kill (a quarry): Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.

stop a blast. To be reprimanded by a senior: army: 1916+.

(F. & G.) A natural extension of stop, v., 1. Cf. stop a rocket, q.v. at rocket.

stop a packet. See packet and stop, v., 1.

stop a pot. 'To quaff-ale' (C.J. Dennis): Aus. low: earlier C.20. Cf. stop one.

stop and look at you (them, etc.) An occ. var. of get up and look at you, q.v.: 1926 (J.B. Hobbs: Lewis).

stop (one's) blubber. A New Canting Dict., 1725, 'I've stopt his Blubber... I've done his Business. He'll tell no Tales, & c.': c.: C.18.

stop-gap. The last-born child: lower classes':—1923 (Manchon).

Stop-Hole Abbey. The chief rendezvous of the underworld: c.: late C.17—early 19. (B.E.) It was at some ruinous building in London.

stop it, Horace! From ca. 1930, a.c.p. 'shouted in a squeaky, semi-hisping, high-pitched voice after any refined-looking "delicate" young man: it does not mean Stop anything'. Prob. ex a 'gag' by George Robey.

stop it — I like it! A c.p., mostly in ref. to giggling teenage girls pretending, not too long nor very convincingly, that they dislike their boy friends' caresses: since ca. 1920, if not a decade or two earlier.

stop laughing! Stop complaining! Aus. ironic c.p.: since ca. 1920. B., 1953; Jon Cleary Back of Sunset, 1959.

stop(-)lay, the. Pocket-picking by two confederates, of whom one stops the victim and engages him in conversation and the other robs him: c.: mid-C.19–20. B. & L.

stop me and buy one! A pre-WW2 c.p., directly ex the Wall's Ice Cream slogan: since 1934. P.B.: in later C.20 given new—but twisted—life as graffiti on contraceptive-vending machines: buy me and stop one!

stop me if you have (or you've) heard this one. A c.p. by an imminent 'story-teller': since ca. 1930. See DCpp.

stop my vitals! 'A silly Curse in use among the Beaux' (B.E.): coll.: late C.17–18. Often stop my vitals!, q.v.

stop off, v.t. To desist from, to cease doing or making: NZ: since ca. 1880. 'Stop that row, Tommy... stop it off' (G.B. Lancaster, Sons o' Men, 1904).

stop one. To take a drink of liquor: Aus.: C.20. (K.S. Prichard, Coonardoo, 1929. Archer Russell, Gone Nomad, 1936.) Ex stop a pot.—2. See stop, v., 1.

stop-out, n. A person given to stopping out late at night: coll.: late C.19–20. (B., 1942.) P.B.: or 'all night'; in sergeants' messes, and no doubt elsewhere, such a one is greeted at breakfast with the cry dirty old stop-out!: later C.20.

stop out, v.t. To cover (one's teeth) with black wax to render them invisible to the audience: theatrical coll.: from ca. 1870. Ex etching.—2. To go sick: Charterhouse: C.20. (Peter Sanders.)

stop rocking the boat! Stop hindering or undermining the common purpose, a political party's policy, etc.: c.p.: since 1945. Also as don't rock the boat!; cf. don't make waves!, don't make trouble.

stop the show. To hold up the performance because of the loud, continuous applause for the one acting: theatrical coll.: late C.19–20.

Stop-the-Way Company, the. The Hudson's Bay Company: Can. coll.: ca. 1840–90. (Francis Francis, Newton Dogvane, 1959, but in a passage written in 1852.) At one time, retrograde.

stop thief. Beef: rhyming s. (1859, H.); orig. (—1857), stolen meat, as in 'Ducange Anglicus', but not after 1870 at latest. Contrast hot beef, 2.

stop ticking. To cease being of importance; to die: from ca. 1930. Ex a watch.

stop two gaps with one bush. To accomplish two purposes at one time: C.16–17; coll. till C.17, then S.E. Cf. kill two birds with one stone.

stop up. To sit up instead of going to bed: coll.:—1857 (Mrs Gaskell: OED). Hence, at Charterhouse, to study late: C.20. (Peter Sanders.)

stop where you are. A friar bird: Aus.: C.20. (Baker.) Echoic. stop your (or yer) tickling, Jock! Title of song written by Harry Lauder and F. Folley, in 1904, sung and made famous by the former; it > a rather low c.p. popular in earlier C.20.

stopper, n. Something that brings to a standstill or that terminates: s. (1823, L.L.G., 11 Oct.: Moe) >, in late C.19, coll. W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, I, 1825, 'He claps a stopper on all our proceedings' (Moe), † by 1910, and in put a or the stopper on, to cause to cease (Dickens, 1841): both s. >, ca. 1890, coll. OED.—2. Whence, a brake: motor-racers': from ca. 1925. (Peter Chamberlain.) stopper, v.t. To stop: 1821, Scott, 'Stopper your jaw, Dick will you?' (OED). Cf. stopper, n., 1825 quot'n. Ex lit. nautical sense; cf.:-

stopper with the dog. 'In bringing up a ship in bad weather, they'—seamen—'stopper with the dog' (W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book (II, 31), 1826): RN: ca. 1790–1850. (Moe.)

stopping. See hot stopping.

stopping oyster. See oyster, 5.

stoppo. A 'spello', or rest from work: C.20. (Jim Phelan, Lifer, 1938.)—2. Hence, as exclam., 'Stop!': c.: since late 1930s. (Frank Norman, 1959.) Cf. nark it! and nitto!

stops. See mind your stops!

store. 'A bullock, cow, or sheep bought to be fattened for the market': 1874: Aus. coll. >, by 1900, 'standard'. (Morris.) Also (but S.E.): store-cattle.—2. As the store, a branch store of a co-operative society: coll.: C.20. Cf. co-op, 1.

store-basher. An Equipment assistant: RAF: since ca. 1925. (H. & P.) Cf. basher, 6 and 7, q.v.

store-basher's Bible, the. Air Publication no. 830, vol. I being Equipment Regulations; II, Storage and Packing; III, Scales of R.A.F. Equipment: RAF: since ca. 1930. Jackson; Partridge, 1945.

storey. See upper storey.

storm and strife. Can. var. of trouble and strife, a wife.

storm(-)stick. An umbrella: Aus. joc.: since ca. 1925. B., 1942.

stormen. 'A hot member of society': Society: ca. 1880–1910. (B. & L.) Prob. ex storm.

storrac. Carrots: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.).

story. A lie: coll. euph.: ca. 1697 (Aubrey); Barham. Chiefly in to tell stories and what a story!—2. Whence, a 'story-teller': low coll. and among children; esp. as you story!, you liar!: 1869. OED.—3. In do the story with, to copulate with (a woman): prostitutes' c.: C.18. Select Trials from 1720 to 1724, pub. 1734.—4. Var. spelling of storey, q.v. at upper storey.—5. See tell me the old, old story!

story-teller. A liar: euph. coll.: 1748, Richardson, 'Wicked story-teller' (OED).

stosh. A var. of stash.

stoter; occ. stotor; also stoater and stouter. A sharp, heavy blow: late C.17—early 19: c. >, ca. 1800, low s.: Motteux, 1694, stoater; B.E., stoter; stouter, 1769. Only H. and F. & H. record stotor. OED. Ex:-

stoter, v. To fell heavily; hit hard: c.: 1690 (D'Urfey); B.E., 'Stoter him, or tip him a Stoter, settle him, give him a swinging Blow'; † by 1750. Ex Dutch stooten, to push or knock. OED.

stotious. Late C.19–20 (but very ob. by 1937), as in Robert Lynd, 'It's Good to Speak Slang', News Chronicle, 20 Feb. 1937. 'Slang also appeals to our elementary sense of humour, as when we say of a man who is drunk that he is "well-oiled", "stotious", "blind to the world", or "full up inside with tiddley".' An artificial word: cf. goloptions. P.B.: still current in the Services', early 1960s; pron. stoashers. Could there be a connection with South Country dial. stoached, (of water-logged ground) trodden by cattle, and stoachy, muddy and dirty?

stouch. Occ. var. of stoush.

stoupe. To give up (v.i.): c.: C.18—early 19. (Halliwell.) Ex to stoop.

stoush, n. Fighting, violence; anything from fisticuffs to a great battle: Aus.: C.20. (Wilkes's 1st quot'n is from Henry Fletcher, 1908.) Perhaps cognate with stash; cf. dial. stashie, stushie, an uproar, a quarrel (EDD).—2. In put in the stoush, to fight vigorously, spiritedly, esp. with the fists: Aus.: since ca. 1910. B., 1942.—3. In the Big Stoush, WW I: Aus.: since ca. 1919. B., 1943.

stoush, v. To hit, clout, punch: Aus.: since late C19. Wilkes cites J.A. Barry, 1893—Eric Lambert, 1965. Cf. the n. Also, derivatively, S. African (C.20). esp. as 'to hit, strike'.

stoush merchant. A boxer; one good with his fists; a bully: Aus.: since ca. 1918. Baker.

stoush-up. Var. of stoush, n.: Aus.: since ca. 1910. Cf. Brit. punch-up.

stout, ca. 1670–1770, was s. for strong beer. Swift; Johnson. stout across the narrow. Corpulent: coll.: early C.20. Anon., Troddles, 1901.

stout fellow. A reliable, courageous, and likable fellow: coll.: C.20. (B. & P.) Abbr. stout-hearted fellow. See the quot'n at sound egg, and cf. stout, Eton s. for 'strong and expert' (e.g. a stout bowler): Spy, 1825.

stout as a miller's waistcoat – that takes a thief by the neck every day (, as). A C.18–early 19 c.p., which glosses the proverb many a miller many a thief and that of miller, tailor and weaver in a bag. (Apperson.)

stouter. See stoter.

stouts, Stouts. (Ordinary) shares in Guinness: Stock Exchange: late C.19–20. A.J. Wilson, Stock Exchange Glossary. stove, n. A car-heater: car-dealers': later C.20. Clive Graham-Ranger, Sunday Times mag., 9 Aug. 1981, p.42.

stove, v. 'Incorrect nautical use of incorrect past of stave as present': C.19–20. W.

Stove-Makers, or Stovies, the. 'Metters footballers, Sydney': since ca. 1925. B., 1943.

stove-pipe (hat). A top hat, a 'chimney-pot': mid-C.19–20. (ob.): US >, ca. 1865, English. In late C.19–20, coll. Ex shape.

stove-pipes. Trousers: 1863 (OED); ob. by 1920, † by 1935.

stove up, v.; stove-up, n. To disinfect—the disinfecting of—clothes in a casual ward: tramps' c.: from ca. 1919. Also bake up, v., and bake-up, n. Ex the disinfectant, which resembles a stove.

stow, v.i. To cease talking, to 'shut up': c.:—1567; ob. by 1820, † by 1850. Harman, 'Stow you, holde your peace'; B.E., 'Stow you, have said enough'; Grose, 3rd ed., 'Stow you, be silent'.—2. Hence, v.t., to desist from: c. (—1676) >, ca. 1800, low s. >, ca. 1850, gen. s. Coles, 1676, 'Stow your whids, ... speak warily'; stow (one's) jabber, 1806; stow (one's) mag, 1857; 'Ouida', 1882, "'Stow that, sir," cried Rake, vehemently.' Ob. Prob. ex S.E. stow, 'to place in a receptacle to be stored or kept in reserve' (OED, whence several of the dates). Cf. stash, q.v., and:- stow faking! Stop doing that!; gen. as a warning in the underworld: c.: ca. 1810–1900. (Vaux.) See prec., and cf. stow it!

stow (one's) gib. Esp. stow your gib!, 'Keep quiet. Stop giving impudence' (W.G. Carr, 1939): RN: late C.19—earlier 20. Moe.

stow (one's) hatch. To load one's belly, i.e. to eat adequately: RN lowerdeck: late (? mid-) C.19–20. W.G. Carr, Brass Hats, ..., 1939, concerning WW1. (Moe.)

stow-hole. A hideaway corner or compartment: lowerdeck coll.: C.19. Basil Hall, 3rd series, 1833.

stow it! Be quiet!; stop doing that! (cf. stow faking!): orig. c., since early C.19 (Vaux) >, in C.20, low coll. Also Aus. (B.P., 1965).

stow magging or manging! Be silent!; lit., stop talking!; c. of resp. ca. 1810–80, ca. 1820–80. Vaux; Bee (... magging). See mag, v., and mang. Bee, 1823, has the var. stowmarket!

stow on their edges. To save money: MN: C.20. Bowen. stowaway. A pocket-sized magazine: book world and news-agents': since ca. 1939.

stowmarket! See stow magging!

Strad. A Stradivarius violin: coll.: 1884 (Haweis, Musical Life: OED).

Strada Reale Highlanders. The 75th Foot Regiment, in late C.19–20 the 1st Battalion of the Gordon Highlanders: army: 1812; † by 1910. In 1812, the regt formed the Main Guard of the Governor's residence in the Strada Reale, Valletta.

straddle is the C.20 Stock Exchange s. (from ca. 1920, coll.) for the operation in which, 'when a broker executes an order to buy grain deliverable in a certain specified month, executing at the same time an order to sell the same quantity and description deliverable in another specified month, he shall be at liberty to carry out both transactions for one brokerage,' 1902: quoted by the OED. (F. & H. confuses the English with the US term, of which spread-eagle is a synonym.) Occ. as v.i.

straddle, v.i. 'In Sports and Gaming to play who shall pay the Reckoning' (Dyche & Pardon, 1735); † by 1820.—2. See end of sense 1 in prec..

straddle-legged patents. 'Patent reefing gear' (Bowen): nautical coll.: C.20.

stramash is a mainly dial. var. of stramash, q.v.

strafe, n.; occ. straff. A fierce assault: military: from 1915. Blackwood's, Feb. 1916, 'Intermittent strafes we are used to' (OED). Ex the v.—2. Hence, a severe bombardment: military: from late 1915. Cf. hate, n., q.v.—3. Hence, a severe reprimand: 1916: military >, by 1919, gen. See esp. B. & P.—4. An efficiency campaign: RAF: since ca. 1930. 'The C.O. is going to have a gas-mask strafe.' (Robert Hinde, letter, 1945). P.B.: this may rather have been a coinage of WW2, in which strafe developed a specialised, verging on j. meaning: 'to attack, from the air, targets on the ground, with weapons other than bombs, i.e. with machine-gun, cannon, or rocket fire.' This was the last echo of what had been an extremely popular and useful piece of s.; the j. sense has >, in later C.20, informal S.E. See:- strafe (occ. straff), v. To attack fiercely; to bombard: military: from 1915. TLS, 10 Feb. 1916, 'The Germans are [but after 1916 they were not] called the Gott-strafers, and strafe is becoming a comic English word' (OED). Ex the Ger. salutation and toast, Gott strafe England, 'may God punish England!'.—2. Hence, to punish, to damage: military: from early 1916.—3. Hence, from mid-1916, to swear at, to reprimand severely: military >, by 1918, gen. An early occurrence is in 'Taffrail', Pincher Martin, 1916.—4. Hence also, strafe it!, 'shut up!': id.: 1917–19. F. & G.

straffer; strafing. The agential and the vbl nn. of the prec.—2. (Strafer.) A sister of a ward; esp. in a military hospital: WW1. (Petch.) Ex prec., 3.

stragger. A stranger: Oxford University undergraduates': late C.19—early 20. (OED Sup.) By the 'OXFORD -ER'.

stragglng money. A sailor that overstays his furlough: nautical:—1887 (Baumann). Because he has money left. The origin of the term goes back to ca. 1800. W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, II, 1826, 'The sogers were looking out sharp for their "stragglng money".' (Moe.)

straight, n. A cigarette of Virginia tobacco: from ca. 1920. (Manchon.) Ex straight-cut. Also straighter.—2. 'Ordinary cigarette tobacco' (Home Office)—as opp. marijuana, etc.: drugs world: later C.20. Prob. cf. adj., 7, rather than sense 1.—3. A heterosexual person: homosexuals': later C.20; adopted ex US. Ex adj., 6.—4. In on the straight, behaving reputably or like a good citizen: from late 1890s. Edgar Wallace, 1900, 'O the garden it is lovely—That's when Jerry's on the straight!' (OED). Ex lit. sense, 'along a straight line'. In the straight is rare in this sense.—5. In in the straight, near the end: racing coll. > gen.: 1903, T.P.'s Weekly, 2 Jan., 'Good, I'm in the straight now ... Thank Heaven that's done.' Ex coming up the straight of a racecourse and making the final effort. Cf.:—6. In in the straight, with all correct, as, e.g., after a struggle to balance accounts; a nuance of sense 5, that has, in later C.20, superseded it, the influence being rather from 'everything is now straightened out' than from the racecourse. 'Hooray! At last we're in the straight again!' (P.B.) Cf. adj., 4, and contrast:—7. In out of the straight, dishonest; illicit, illegal: late C.19–20.

straight, adj. (Of an utterance) outspoken; (of a statement) unreserved, certain: coll.:—1887 (Baumann). Hence, straight talk, (a piece of) plain speaking: 1900.—2. Of persons or their conduct: honest, honourable; frank: coll.: 1864 (OED). In C.16—mid-17, this sense was S.E., but 'the present use... is unconnected'.—3. Hence, (of any person) steady, (of a woman) chaste: coll.: 1868, Lindsay Gordon, keep (one) straight, the chief usage.—4. (Of accounts) settled: coll.: C.17—20.—5. (Of spirits) undiluted, neat: Can. coll.: adopted, ca. 1880, ex US; by ca. 1942, also English, 'I'll take miñe straight, thanks.' (Leechman).—6. Not homosexual: British and American homosexuals: C.20.—7. Not using drugs: addicts' and hippies' and their like: since ca. 1960. (Peter Fryer, Observer colour sup., 3 Dec. 1967.) Cf. n., 2.—8. In lay (someone) straight, to operate on him: medical students':—1923 (Manchon).

straight! Honestly!; it's a fact: low coll.: 1890, Albert Chevalier; 1897, 'Pomes' Marshall, "'If that isn't a good 'un,'" the bookie cried, "I'll forfeit a fiver, straight."

straight and level. See get some straight...

straight and narrow, the. The straight and narrow path of virtue or honour: coll.: since ca. 1925. 'Sometimes misapprehended as "the straight and narrow path between right and wrong"' (Leechman).

straight arm. See make a straight arm.

straight as a corkscrew. 'Prone to ethical deviation' (Cdr C. Parsons, RN ret., 1973): since ca. 1920. Emphasis through irony; see-straight as a dog's hind leg. Crooked: joc. coll.: late C.19—20. Cf. Swift's 'Straight! Ay, straight as my leg, and that's crooked at knee' (Apperson). Contrast:

straight as a loon's leg. Absolutely straight: nautical coll.: late C.19—20. Bowen.

straight as a pound of candles. Very straight: coll.: 1748, Smollett, 'My hair hung down... as... straight as a pound of candles'; ob. Cf. the (C.19) Cheshire straight as a yard of pump water, applied to a tall, thin man, and Ray's (C.17—18). straight as the backbone of a herring, which may have been coll. before being proverbial S.E. (Apperson).—2. Hence, very honest: coll.: C.19.

straight as my leg. See straight as a dog's...

straight bake. A roast joint: RN: C.20. (Bowen.) Cf. straight rush.

straight banana. A joke c.p. among greengrocers (re selling) and gardeners (re growing): mostly Cockney's: from ca. 1910.

straight-cut. A respectable girl; a girl in no way connected with the underworld: c.: from ca. 1920. (Gilt Kid, 1936.) An elab. of straight, honest, virtuous. Cf. straight, n., 1, for poss. imm. orig.

straight drinking. 'Drinking without sitting down—bar-drinking': London taverns': ca. 1860—1905. Ware.

straight down the crooked lane and all round the square. A late C.19—early 20 c.p.: 'A humorous way of setting a man on his way' (F. & H.). P.B.: cf. the later nonsense punning we're all square now, but we'll be round again shortly.

straight down the line. An elab. of 'telling someone straight', directly and without frills or prevarication, as 'so I gave it them, straight down the line: either...': coll.: later C.20. (P.B.)

straight face. In keep (one's) face straight or keep a straight face, (to do) this as a restraint from laughing: coll.: 1897, Spectator, 25 Sep., 'An expressive vulgarism... "with a straight face"' (OED). Hence, adj. and adv., straight faced.

straight from the bog. A c.p. applied, in late C.19—20, to a crude Irishman.

straight from the horse's mouth. (Of information, news, etc.) genuine, authentic, correct: sporting s. (since ca. 1830) >, by 1900, coll. Ex Stable Yard, the, q.v. See Aldington's Wellington, 1946, and cf.:-

straight from the nose-bag. Var. of prec.: racing (—1914) >, by 1915, Services' (F. & G.).

straight goer. A dependable—esp. an honest—person:

Aus. coll.: since ca. 1925. Caddie, A Sydney Barmaid, 1953.

straight griff or griffin. See griff, griffin.

straight-hair. A convict: W. Aus.: ca. 1840—70. B., 1942.—2. A West Australian: since ca. 1870. Baker.

straight hooks. A butchers' joke, e.g., on 1 April: from ca. 1860.

straight Jane and no nonsense. 'Said of, or claimed by, a woman of sober taste and scruples and strict principles' (L.A., 1974): later C.19—early 20.

straight-laced. See straight-striper.

straight line (, get on the). (To get on the) right scent or track: c.:—1887 (Baumann).

straight Navy, the. The Royal Navy: since ca. 1920. Prompted by 'the Wavy Navy', q.v.

straight off the turnips. Applied to one who is a country bumpkin or very green: NZ:—1932. P.B.: but Sid Weighell, of the NUR, remembers this as a true Yorkshireism; and its opp. is sharp as a box of monkeys. (BBC Radio 4, 'Talk of the Town, Talk of the Country', 25 Sep. 1983). Cf. straight from the bog;... out of the trees.

straight oil. Var. of dinkum oil, influenced by straight wire: Aus.: since ca. 1920. B., 1942.

straight out of the egg. The manning demands of the [Submarine Service] have been so enormous that the Navy has had to "press" men from general service... some "straight out of the egg": there are now many young sailors whose first seagoing ship was a bomber [= a Polaris missile submarine] (John Winton, 'Living with Polaris', Illustrated London News, Oct. 1976, p. 71).

straight out of the trees. Applied to coloured people, esp. Negroes, by those who resent their presence in UK: later C.20. This sort of insult is not new: cf. straight from the bog or off the turnips. (P.B.) straight prop (man). A genuine builder specialising in house-repair work: since ca. 1963. (Bournemouth Evening Echo, 20 Apr. 1966.) Cf. prop game.

straight racket, on the. Living honestly: c.: from ca. 1885; ob. B. & L.

straight rush. 'Meat and potatoes prepared for cooking which are rushed straight to the galley from the ship's butcher' (Granville): RN and R Can. N: earlier C.20. The Victoria, BC, Daily Colonist, 19 June 1960, adds that it was 'the simplest preparation of a joint of beef, employed when time was short.' Cf. straight bake.

straight screw. A warder that traffics with the prisoners: c.: C.20. George Ingram, Stir, 1933.

straight-set, v.t. To defeat in the minimum number of sets (i.e. in straight sets): lawn-tennis coll.: 1935 (Daily Telegraph, 4 Apr.). Hence, such a match is called a straight-setter: lawn-tennis s.: June, 1935.

straight-striper. A R Aus. N regular: R Aus. N: since ca. 1938. (B., 1943.) P.B.: this presumably applied to an officer: cf. 'straight-laced. RN officer, from his straight stripes of rank. Obsolete, since all officers, active service or reserve, now [1962] wear straight stripes' (Granville). See Wavy Navy.

straight tip (, the). Genuine or valuable ('inside') information, esp. and orig. as to a horse: s. >, by 1900, coll.: from late 1860s, to judge by H., 5th ed. (1874); Punch, 26 Aug. 1871 (OED). Because direct from owner or trainer; influenced by straight = honest.—2. Hence, the horse or the stock so recommended: since ca. 1880: s. >, by 1905, coll.

straight-up, adj. Correct; the truth: low: from ca. 1925. Gilt Kid, 1936, 'Maisie was the only girl he had ever loved. That was straight-up.'—2. As exclam., 'honestly!': since ca. 1905. Cf. synon. straight!, and S.E. straight = honest. Since ca. 1935, occ. elab. to straight up on my eyesight! (Norman).—3. 'Precisely noon or midnight from the position of the hands of a clock. "It's twelve o'clock, straight up!": that is, exactly' (Leechman).—4. To be straight up = up-to-date in one's work: coll.: C.20.

straight up and down the mast. (Of weather) calm: Irish nautical:—1909 (Ware).

straight walk-in. An easy entry; esp. of a girl or woman easily 'made' or obviously wearing very little clothing; among would-be Lotharios, Lovelaces, Romeos, Don Juans: since ca. 1925.

straight wire (, the), n.; also as adj. and adv. The genuine thing; esp., authentic news; 'on the level': Aus. and NZ version of straight-up, adj., 1: later C.19—earlier 20. (Wilkes, whose 1st citation is William Lane, 1892.) E.P. quotes G.B. Lancaster, Sons o' Men, 1904, for NZ: 'Walt, you are a smeller, straight wire'.

straighten. To defeat: Aus.: ca. 1850—1910. 'Rolf Boldrewood', The Miners' Right, 1890.—2. To set right: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1910. (K.S. Prichard, Kiss on the Lips, 1932.) Ex 'put, or set, straight!'.—3. To bribe, try to bribe; applied at first to policemen: c.: since ca. 1920. Edgar Wallace, passim; John Gosling, 1959.—4. To avenge (an affront); to take revenge upon (a rival gang): Teddy-boys': mid-C.20. (Observer, 1 Mar. 1959.) Cf. sense 2, and straightener.

straighten (someone) out. To 'stop someone taking liberties or being overbearing or bumptious, or unconsciously being a nuisance' (L.A.): coll.: C.20. 'Oh, he'll be all right when he's been straightened out—he just needs taking in hand' (P.B.) straighten up, v.i. To become honest or honourable: s. (ca. 1906) >, ca. 1930, coll. Ex lit. sense, to assume an upright posture.

straightener. A fisticuffs fight between two rival gangs: Teddy-boys', esp. in London: since ca. 1955. (Daily Mail, 7 Feb. 1959.) It is fought in order to 'straighten things out' between them. Cf. straighten, 4, and:—2. A discussion or argument tending to become angry or bitter: coll.: since ca. 1950, if not considerably earlier. G.F. Newman, The Guvnor, 1977.

straighter and toppler. One who drinks his beer straight; one who tops it with, e.g., lemonade: army, esp. in India: earlier C.20. (Spike Mays, Fall Out the Officers, 1969.) P.B.: beer diluted thus was still known, in the army in Hong Kong, 1960s, as tops.—2. See straight, n., 1.

Straights (occ. Streights), the. Jonson, 1614; † by 1700: prob. c. Perhaps ex strait, adj., or straits, n. Gifford, 1816, 'These Straights consisted of a nest of obscure courts, alleys, and avenues, running between the bottom of St Martin's Lane, Half Moon, and Chandos Street'; they were 'frequented by bullies, knights of the post, and fencing masters'. Cf. the Bermudas.

strain hard. To tell a great or hearty lie: coll.: late C.17—18. B.E.

strain (one's) greens. '(Of a man) to have sexual intercourse' (L.A., 1974): low: earlier C.20.—2. To urinate: lowish coll.: C.20. (Keith Clarke, 1980.)

strain off. To urinate: lowish coll.: C.20. (L.A.) Ex prec., 2, or-strain (one's) taters. Synon. of prec.: ca. 1880—1930. Ex the colour of the water in which potatoes have been washed or strained.

strained through a silk handkerchief. Esp. 'You must have been ...', applied to a very undersized child: since ca. 1930. (P.B. heard it, addressed to himself, during WW2.)

Straits, the. The Mediterranean: nautical: C.20. (Bowen.) Ex the S.E. sense, the Straits of Gibraltar.—2. In up the Straits, 'into the Mediterranean' (Goodenough, 1901); 'serving on the Mediterranean Station in the Straits of Gibraltar' (Granville, 1962): RN coll.

stram, the. (Harlots') street-walking: c. >, ca. 1900, low s.; ob.: 1887, Henley, 'You judge that clobber for the stram'. ? ex US stram, to walk some distance (1869), influenced by strum, v. (q.v.), or strumpet. P.B.: but see E.P.'s orig. for strammer, and cf. on the batter.

stramash; also straemash, very rare outside of dial. A disturbance; a rough-and-tumble: dial. (—1821) >, ca. 1835, coll. Barham, ca. 1840, former sense; Henry Kingsley, 1855, 'I and three other ... men ... had a noble stramash on Folly Bridge. That is the last fighting I have seen.' Ex Northern and stram(m)el. See stammel and strommel.

Scottish stramash, to break, crush, destroy, itself perhaps ex stour (a disturbance) + smash: W.

strammer. Anything exceptional, esp. in size or intensity, and stramming, huge, great, are dial. >, ca. 1850, coll., but, after ca. 1910, very ob. as coll. Ex dial. stram, to bang or strike: it is therefore one of the numerous 'percussive' intensives.

strands. See tuck strands.

strange. Crazy; silly; stupid: Aus. coll.: late C.19—20. B., 1942.

stranger. A guinea: low:—1785 (Grose). Ex rarity.—2. A sovereign: from ca. 1830: low >, in C.20, tramps' c. F. Jennings, Tramping with Tramps, 1932.—3. (Mostly in pl.) A wandering sheep: NZ and Aus. sheep-farmers' coll.: since ca. 1870. B., 1941 and 1942.—4. See quite a stranger!

strangle. To get something from (someone) for nothing: RN lowerdeck: since ca. 1930. Mostly applied to 'runs ashore'. (Granville.) Cf. jam-strangling ..., q.v.—2. To prevent (a horse) from winning: Aus. racing: since ca. 1935. (Lawson Glassop, Lucky Palmer, 1949.) Strictly, to pull (a horse) back so strongly that it's almost strangled, as one of the 'dodges' employed by jockeys in order to lose a race, as in Dick Francis, Dead Cert, 1962, 'The general opinion among the jockeys was that Sandy had "strangled" a couple [of horses] at one stage, but not during the past few months.' Cf. choke, v., q.v.

strangle-goose. A poulticer: ca. 1780—1900. Grose, 1st ed.; Baumann.

strangler. A neck-tie: c., and low: C.20. Gilt Kid, 1936.

strap, n. A barber: mid-C.19—20; by 1920, virtually t. (H., 3rd ed.) Ex † strap, a strap, + (Hugh) Strap, a barber in Smollett's Roderick Random, 1748.—2. Credit: dial. (—1828) >, ca. 1880, s. Esp. on strap, occ. on the strap. Slightly ob. by 1935. But on the strap was still in use among car-dealers, later C.20, for 'on hire purchase' (Clive Graham-Ranger, Sunday Times mag., 9 Aug. 1981, p. 42). Contrast:—3. In on the strap, penniless: Aus.: since ca. 1910. (B., 1942.) Cf. strapped, 2.

strap, v.i. To lie with a woman, esp. as vbl n. strapping: c.: late C.17—19. (B.E., Grose.) Prob. ex strapping (wench, youth, etc.).—2. To work, esp. if energetically, v.t. with at: from ca. 1810; ob. by 1930. (Lex. Bal.) Also with away (1849), and to (both v.i. and v.t.: mid-C.19—20).—3. V.t., to allow credit for (goods): dial. (—1862) >, ca. 1890, s. Ex strap, n., 2.—4. Hence, strap it (gen. as vbl n.), to get goods on credit: Glasgow: C.20.—5. To obtain an advance on one's weekly pay: workmen's: (? late C.19—) C.20. Ex senses 3 and 4. Roy Lewis, A Distant Banner, 1976.—6. 'To interrogate strongly' (Powis): police and c.: later C.20.

strap'em. See strap-oil.

strap-hang, v.i. From ca. 1910. By back-formation ex: strap(-)hanger. A passenger compelled, or occ. choosing, to hold on to a strap in omnibus, train, etc.: from ca. 1904: s. >, ca. 1930, coll. Punch, 8 Nov. 1905; in 1934, Norah James published a novel entitled Strap-hangers. Cf. the S.E. portmanteau word, strapeze or trapeze.

strap-oil; oil of strap'em (or strappem). Often prec. by a dose of. A thrashing with a strap: C.19—20. Halliwell, 1847, 'It is a common joke on April 1st to send a lad for a pennyworth of strap-oil, which is generally ministered on his own person.' On stirrup-oil, q.v.

strap on. (Of a male) to copulate with: RM: later C.20. "'Cor, I could strap that bint on any time, no problem!'" (Hawke). Cf. strap, v., 1, q.v., though strap on is prob. conjunctive rather than percussive. (P.B.)

strap up. To wash up the saloon table gear. A steward is said to be "on the Crockery Strap-up" (Bowen): nautical: C.20. Prob. because so many articles have then to be firmly secured.—2. To obtain (goods; or drinks at a hotel) on credit: Aus.: since ca. 1919. (B., 1942.) Cf. strap, v., 3, 4, and n. 2.

strapping. See strapping. B.E.'s spelling (? a mere misprint).

strapped, ppl adj. (Of goods, etc., had) on credit: Glasgow: C.20. See strap, v., 3 and 4.—2. Penniless: Eng. and Can.: late C.19–20. (Leechman.) Prob. ex rural strap, to strip (a cow), hence to draw (anything) dry, hence (London) to work to the limit. Cf. strap, n., 3. Claiborne adds, 1976: 'More likely, with one's belt pulled tight against hunger; cf. the coll. tighten one's belt'.

strapper. A very energetic or an unremitting worker: 1851, Mayhew, 'They are all picked men... regular "strappers", and no mistake' (OED). Ex strap, v., 2.—2. A stable lad: Aus. racing: since ca. 1925. Lawson Glassop, Lucky Palmer, 1949.

strapping. Vbl n. ex strap, v., 1 and 5.

strapping it. See strap, v., 4.

straps. Sprats: a modified rhyming (or, perhaps, back) s. that is low urban:—1909 (Ware).

straw, n. In in the straw, (of a woman) in childbirth: old S.E. > C.20 Aus. s., prob. influenced by cows lying in straw about to calve. B., 1942.—2. In (one's) eyes draw straw, Grose's var. of straws, 2; straw is rare. See also one eye draws straw.—3. See pad in the straw.

straw, v.i. To do as in strawer, 1: London: mid-C.19—early 20.

straw-bail. See bail.

straw-basher. A boater, a straw hat for man or boy: 1930. (OED Sup.) Prob. suggested by hard-hitter. P.B.: Mrs Dorothy Birkett tells me that the term was in use among girls in Edinburgh private schools, 1940s, for their boaters.

straw-chipper. A barber: low: ca. 1820–50. (Moncrieff, 1823.) Cf. nob-thatcher.

straw-hat. A Billingsgate fishwife: early C.18. See WOMEN, in Appendix.

Straw House. The Sailors' Home, Dock Street, London: nautical: mid-C.19–20. Bowen, 1929, mentions that 'a century ago seamen were [there] given a sack of straw for their bed.'

straw in her ear, wear a. To seek re-marriage: C.20. Manchon.

Straw Plaiters, the. The Luton Association Football team: sporting: since ca. 1920. Hatmaking is a predominant industry at Luton.

straw-walloper. In hayrick-making, the man that, standing at the head of the elevator, forks the hay, etc., to the stacker: Aus.: since ca. 1910. Baker.

straw-yard. See strawyards.

strawberry. A 'brandy-blossom' or liquor-caused face-pimple: low:—1887 (Baumann).—2. Hence, a red nose: Cockneys': C.20. Cf. beacon, danger light and grog-blossom.—3. A compliment, praise from a superior: Army officers': since ca. 1930. (H. & P.) In contrast to raspberry.—4. A frequent shortening of strawberry tart.

strawberry ripple. 'He spent months in a wheelchair... living in a "strawberry ripple" residential school. ("Ripple, cripple—see?" says Vincent) (Yvonne Roberts, New Society, 5 Aug. 1982, p. 210): rhyming s.: later C.20. A type of ice-cream.

strawberry tart. The heart: rhyming s.: C.20. Mrs Ronald Pearsall, of Landscope, Devon, reports hearing frequently, in late 1978, the expression don't do that—you'll give me a dickey strawberry! [i.e. a bad heart].

Strawboots; Old Strawboots. The 7th Dragoon Guards; also the 7th Hussars: military: resp. from ca. 1830 and from ca. 1760; ob. Also the Straws; as well as the Black Horse and the Virgin Mary's Guard (both—1879), applied only to the Dragoons. 'Tradition says from these regiments having been employed to quell agricultural riots' (F. & H.): this is correct only of the Guards; the Hussars prob. got their name from straw used as foot-protection in the Seven Years War (F. & G.).

strawbs. Strawberries. A var. of straws, by analogy with rasbs. (Mrs C. Raab, 1982.)

strawer. London s. > coll (now, 1930, almost †) of mid-C.19–20, as in Mayhew, 1851, 'The strawer offers to sell any passer by... a straw and to give to the purchaser a paper which he dares not sell... political, libellous, irreligious, or indecent.' Ex straw, v.—2. A straw hat: schools':—1890. Cf. strawyard.

strawing. Putting children on straw in front of seating stand: circus coll.: late C.19–20. C.B. Cochran, Showman Looks On, 1945.—2. See straw, v., and prec., 1.

strawmen. '[The author] makes a great deal of thunder in the dressing room and peoples too much of his stage with strawmen' (Bernard Crick, in a book review, Weekly Guardian, 8 June 1980). Elliptical for S.E. men of straw. (Thanks to Mr J.B. Mindel, Kfar Tabor, Lower Galilee.)

straws. Strawberries: greengrocers' coll.: since ca. 1870. Cf. pots, potatoes, etc. And see strawbs.—2. In draw or gather or pick straws, (of the eyes, not the person) to show signs of sleep: late C.17–20 (ob.): coll. >, by 1850, S.E. Motteux (draw), Swift (draw), Grose (draw straw), Wolcot (pick), J. Wilson (gather). (OED). Both gather and pick are virtually †. Cf. one eye draws straw and t'other serves the thatcher, q.v., applied to someone half asleep.—3. See Strawboots.

strawyard. A (man's) straw hat: coll.: late C.19—early 20. † in RN by 1929 (Bowen).—2. See strawyards.

strawyard bull, like a. A jocular reply (often amplified by full of fuck and half starved) to 'How do you feel or ability are you?': low c.p.: from ca. 1870; ob. by 1930. Cf. later C.20 Aus. fit as a Mallee bull.

strawyarder. A longshoreman acting as a sailor: nautical: mid-C.19–20; slightly ob.—2. Esp. (—1903), a 'scab' on shipboard duty during a strike.

strawyards, the. Night shelters (refuges, homes) for the destitute: the London poor: mid-C.19—early 20. (Mayhew, 1851.) Cf. Straw House and penny hangs, qq.v.

stray. A sausage: R Aus. N: since ca. 1930. (B., 1943.) Ex 'stray dog'.

stray tup on the loose. See tup, n., 2.

streak, n. A very thin person: mostly Aus. and NZ when unqualified: C.20. Cf. streak of piss.—2. A 'locomotive Class A4 (N.E.)' (Railway): railwaymen's: mid-C.20.—3. In like a streak, with exceeding swiftness: late C.19–20. I.e., like a streak of lightning. Also like streaks: C.20. Cf.:-

streak, v.; occ. streak. To go very fast: 1768, 'Helenore' Ross, '[She] forward on did streak'; H., 1st ed. Gen. streak off (like greased lightning: 1843, Carleton); occ. streak away, as in The Field, 25 Sep. 1886. S. >, in late C.19, coll. Prob. ex flashes of lightning. The form to streak it is US.—2. By specialisation, 'To scurry stark-naked through a public place or assembly ostensibly as a form of protest against some grievance' (R.S., 1974), or 'trying to prove a point, or out of sheer exhibitionism' (P.B.); whence streaking, the vbl n. and, streaker, one who does this: s. in 1973; both nn. and v. were, by 1975, coll. and, by 1976, S.E. It was a phenomenon of the early 1970s, with subsequent echoes.

streak away. See prec., 1.

streak down. To slip or slide down; to descend: s. (—1889) >, by 1920, coll. App. mostly S. African. (Pettman.) Cf. streak, v., q.v.

streak of lightning. A glass, gen. of gin, occ. of other potent spirit: mid-C.19–20; very ob. Ex its sudden effect.

streak of misery. A tall, thin, miserable-looking person: coll.: late C.19–20. Cf.:-

streak of piss. (Usu. long streak...) Someone who overestimates his own importance or ability: low; earlier C.20.—2. Applied to any tall, thin person, esp. of a rather droopy or 'wet' nature: perhaps mostly Services': since mid-C.20, if not earlier. (P.B.)

streaker; -ing. See streak, v., 2.

streaks. See streak, n., 3.

streaky. Bad-tempered, irritated; irritable: from late 1850s; ob. (H., 2nd ed.) Perhaps suggested by US streaked, disconcerted, annoyed (1834: Thornton).—2. Changeable; variable: coll.: 1898, Bartram (of courage, weather): 1899, A.C. Benson (of additions to a building): 1903 (of runs at cricket). OED.

stream. A heavy air-raid; strictly the 'stream' of bombers delivering it: RAF coll.: 1940+.—2. As the stream, the fairway; an anchorage; nautical coll.: late C.19–20.

stream-line. A tall, thin man: army: from 1917. (F. & G.) Cf.:-

stream-line(d). Slim and graceful (of persons): from ca. 1932. Ex stream-lined motor-cars, designed to offer small resistance to the atmosphere. (Of clothes) neatly and closely tailored: coll.: since ca. 1940. "Yes," Jeffrey said, "slap-happy", and he laughed, but the colloquialism disturbed him. He was suddenly tired of all the new words—"stream-lined", "blitzed", "three-point programme", "blue-print" (John P. Marquand, So Little Time, 1943, but written in late 1941–2). Cf. the RN stream-line(d)piece, a very attractive girl: ca. 1941–6. P-G-R. streamer. A severe head-cold: coll.: since 1920s. (Petch, 1974, 'Often heard'.) Elliptical for 'a streaming cold'.

Stream's Town; or s.t. The female pudend: low: ca. 1820–90.

streak. See streak, v.

street. As the Street, Wall Street as money-mart: from ca. 1860; coll. >, ca. 1910, S.E.: US, anglicised ca. 1890.—2. As the Street, the money-market held outside the Stock Exchange after 4 p.m.: Stock Exchange coll.: C.20.—3. As the Street, Archer Street, London, W1: musicians' coll.: C.20. Ex the agencies there.—4. As the Street, Wardour Street: film industry coll.: since ca. 1918.—5. As the Street, in Sydney, since ca. 1920 or earlier, Macquarie Street: medical coll. (so many doctors); or Philip Street: legal coll. (so many lawyers); or Palmer Street: raffish coll. (so many prostitutes). B.P.—6. In down or up street, towards or in the lower or the upper end of the street: low coll.: 1876 (Miss Braddon: OED).—7. In not in or not up (one's) street, not one's concern; not one's strong point; not one's method: C.20 (in ob. by ca. 1930): s. >, by 1930, coll. (F. & H.: in only.) Cf. bang or right up (one's) street, that's just the sort of job one likes: since ca. 1920. P-G-R.—8. In (be) not in the same street (as or with), (to be) far behind (lit. or fig.); much inferior to: s. >, ca. 1910, coll.: 1883 (Mrs Kennard, comparing two race-horses). Cf. streets ahead.—9. In not the length of a street, a small interval: s. (1893: OED) that, like sense 8, was orig. sporting.—10. See Easy Street; Grub Street; key of the street; man in the street; live in Queen Street; Queer Street.

street accident. A mongrel dog: joc. coll.: later C.20. (P.B.) street-chanting. The practice of singing in the streets for a living: c.:—1887 (Baumann).

street-ganger. A beggar: c.: late C.19—early 20. Baumann, 1887.

street-knocker, grin like a. To 'grin like a Cheshire cat': coll.: from the 1830s. (Baumann.) Prob. ex its brightness.

street-pitcher. A vendor or a mendicant taking a station (or 'pitch') in the street: from late 1850s; slightly ob. H., 1st ed., who adds the specific sense († by 1890) of the 'orator' advertising various activities (e.g. ballad-singing) and, where relevant, selling illustrative broadsheets or booklets.

Street Walker & Co. See working for...

street-yarn, spin. To walk about idly, gossiping from house to house: coll.: mid-C.19–20; US, anglicised ca. 1870; ob. by 1930.

street-yelp. A c.p. of the streets: lower classes': 1884; ob. Ware.

streets, be in the. A lower-classes' coll. var. (—1887) of walk the streets, to be a prostitute. Baumann.

streets ahead (of) or better (than), be. To be far ahead (of) in a race: from ca. 1895.—2. Hence, to be much superior (to): 1898 (OED). Both s. >, ca. 1920, coll. Also absolutely. Occ. streets better off.

streets behind. The natural opposite of prec.: C.20. (P.B.)

streets paved with coppers. A rueful pun on the mythical London of 'streets paved with gold' and on coppers, coll. for pennies and s. for policemen (A.B. Petch, basically): ca. 1960–75.

streetwise. Imbued with city cunning: coll. verging on informal S.E.: adopted ex US ca. 1980. 'Maybe law-abiding America is getting as streetwise as its criminal class' (Sam Smith, article 'Washington', in Illustrated London News, May 1981: P.B.).

Streights. See Straights.

strel(l). A banjo; hence strell-homey (or homie), a banjoist: Parlyaree: late C.19–20. Compare and contrast stroll homey, q.v. at stroll, 2.

strength of it or this or that or the other, the. The 'real'—i.e. the hidden or ulterior or most important—meaning or significance (of some act or thing specified or implied), as in 'What's the strength of him (or his) coming here?': coll., perhaps first in Aus., where it is much used: C.20. (F. & G.) Cf. C.15—early 17 S.E. strength, the tenor or import (of a document). E.P. later added: app. earliest in NZ: 1871 (C.L. Money, Knocking About in New Zealand). B., 1941, 'Highly popular, throughout both New Zealand and Australia.' Often absolutely, as 'That's about the strength of it.' See strong, n., and cf.:—2. In what's the strength?, What is the news?: Services': WW2. (A.A. Michie & W. Graebner, Lights of Freedom, 1941.) P.B.: poss. ex j. 'signal strength', but most prob. elliptical for strength of it, as in sense 1. strengthy. A gymnast: Christ's Hospital (School): late C.19–20. Marples.

strenuous. Excited; angry: upper classes': from ca. 1930. See the quot'n at crashing bore. Ex the S.E. sense.

strep. Streptococcus, a common type of bacteria: medical students':—1933 (Slang, p. 190). Cf. staph.

streperous. Abbr. obstreperous, q.v. Cf. † S.E. streperous, noisy.

strepto. Streptomycin: medical coll.: since ca. 1940. (Dymphna Cusack, 1951.) Cf. strep.

stretch, n. A yard (length): c.:—1811; † by 1920. Lex. Bal.; Vaux, 'Five ... stretch signifies five ... yards.'—2. A year's imprisonment, esp. with hard labour: c.: from ca. 1810. (Vaux; Haggart, Horsley, Edgar Wallace.) Ex sense 1 + a long stretch. Thus one, two, three (four, etc.) stretch = two (etc.) years' imprisonment, as in Haggart, 1821, and J. Greenwood, 1888. See also quarter stretch. Powis, 1977, glosses, 'Once meant specifically twelve months' imprisonment, now means any long term of imprisonment. "Half a stretch" still means six months' imprisonment; "five stretch" means five years.'—3. Hence, 'Big ship time. "My year's 'hard' in the Fleet was one of the longest stretches I've ever done"' (Granville): RN: C.20.—4. See take a stretch.

stretch, gen. v.i.; occ. in late C.19–20, stretch it. To exaggerate; tell lies: coll.: from ca. 1670. (D'Urfey, Grose.) Cf. strain, q.v.—2. V.i. and t., to outstay (one's furlough): RN coll.: C.20. Ware; Bowen.—3. To outstay an opponent, e.g. at fisticuffs: Anglo-Irish: C.20. Nicholas Blake, The Private Wound, 1968, ref. the year 1939, "You're out of condition," Seumus told him. "If that fella'd persevered, he'd have stretched you." P.B.: E.P. may have misinterpreted this sense: Claiborne, 1976, draws attention to Kipling's 'So I stretched Peg Barney', where it means to knock flat, to 'stretch on the canvas': late C.19—earlier 20.—4. In (the boy) has had his breeches stretched, he has received a thrashing: lower-class coll.: mid-C.19–20. Ware.—5. See mess, n., 4.

stretch leather, v. See leather, n., 2, and cf. leather-strecher. stretch (one's) legs according to the coverlet. To adapt oneself to (esp. one's financial) circumstances: late C.17—18: coll. >, by 1750, S.E. (Bailey, 1736.) Ex the very old proverb, whoso stretcheth his foot beyond the blanket shall stretch it in the straw. Apperson.

stretch off the land. 'A short sleep. A "masts and yards" era survival. When a sailing ship was moving towards the shore nobody was allowed to sleep, but when she was making an off-shore tack, or stretch off the land, those so disposed, if not on watch, could have a short sleep' (Granville): nautical: C.20. Goodenough, 1901, has it as 'an afternoon nap'.

stretch the fox. To exaggerate; to story-tell: late (?mid-) C.18—latish 19. Mathew Barker, L.L.G., 21 Feb. 1824 (Moe). Cf. the stories told by anglers.

stretch the hemp. See hemp, 1.

stretcher. A University-Extension student: university: late C.19–20; ob.—2. A layer-out of corpses: Anglo-Irish coll.: late C.19–20. Ware.—3. A long journey, or stretch of road: coll.: C.20. Manchon.—4. A large membrum virile: low coll.: 1749, John Cleland.—5. In hang over the stretcher, to eat too much; put on weight: low:—1923 (Manchon). Cf. stretchers. stretcher case. A liar: since ca. 1942. Ex lying. Also 'because he is stretching the truth' (Claiborne). Cf. stretch the fox. stretcher-fencer. A vendor of trouser-braces: low: mid-C.19–20. H., 1st ed. Ex:

stretchers. Trouser-braces: low: mid-C.19–20. Cf. prec. —2. Laces: tramps' c.:—1935. Because they, too, stretch. stretching. 'Helping oneself at table without the help of servants': coll.: from ca. 1895. Ware.

stretching-bee, match. A hanging: low: resp. ca. 1820–80 and ca. 1820–1910. 'Jon Bee'; H., 2nd ed.

stretchy. Stretchable, elastic: coll.: 1854 (OED).—2. Hence, too easily stretched, too elastic: coll.: from mid-1880s. —3. Inclined to stretch one's limbs or to stretch and yawn; sleepy: coll.: from ca. 1870. Cf. the C.17 proverb, stretching and yawning leadeth to bed.

'Strewth! God's truth! low coll. when not deliberately joc.: 1892, Kipling. "Strewth! but I socked it them 'ard." It has long been pron., as a var., in a drawl: ster-ruth; it may also be written struth!

strict pusser. A ship noted for very strict—even harsh—discipline: RN: since late C.19. (Knock.) See pusser.

strict Q.T. See Q.T.

strictly for the birds! See that's for the birds!

stride-wide. Ale: c.: ca. 1570–1620. Harrison's Description of England, 1577.

strides. Trousers: theatrical (—1904), and prob. market-traders' as early as this; ex dial. (1895: EDD); Aus. by 1924 (Wilkes), and Can., 1949: 'Recent name for trousers worn by zoot-suiters' (Priestley); by 1930 at latest, common in Brit. underworld and its fringes, e.g. in Borstals and detention centres, strides = 'Civillian trousers (civvies)' (Home Office, 1978). In which one strides; cf. stride in C.19 tailoring j. (OED, 1122, col. 3, §4, c).—2. Hence, women's drawers or knickers: Colonial: from ca. 1919. M.T. has 'the monnisher's flashing her strides', which may indicate that the term has been thus used in Brit. low coll. since early C.20. John Gosling, 1959, records this sense for 1930 at latest.

strife. See in more strife ...

strike, n. A sovereign (coin) or its equivalent: c.: early C.18—early 20. Memoirs of John Hall, 1708; Grose, 2nd ed. —2. A watch: c.:—1909 (Ware). On the lucus a non lucendo principle.—3. Short for strike me dead, 2. Gerald Kersh, They Die with Their Boots Clean, 1941, in nuance 'bread-and-butter'.—4. In make a strike, to be successful; lucky: coll.: from ca. 1860. Ex strike, 'the horizontal course of a stratum' (of gold, etc.).

strike, v.t. and v.i. To steal; to rob: c. of ca. 1565–1750. Harman, Greene, B.E.—2. Hence, v.i., to borrow money: c.: C.17—early 19 (perhapp until late C.19). Mynshul, 1618 (OED); B.E. Esp. as vbl n., striking.—3. Hence, v.t. and v.i., to ask (a person) suddenly and/or pressingly for (a loan, etc.): low: mid-C.18–20; slightly ob. Fielding, 1751, 'Who in the vulgar language, had struck, or taken him in for a guinea' (OED). Cf. sting, 2.—4. V.i., to beg (also strike it): (low) Aus.: from late 1890s; slightly ob. as strike.—5. Semantically ex sense 1: to open, as in strike a jigger, to pick a lock, to break open a door: c.:—1857 ('Ducange Anglicus').—6. As in Baumann's 'How warm you strike in here!', the connotation is of timely and most welcome arrival: lower classes' coll.:—1887. Cf. bash into, q.v.—7. To strike a horse is to feed it immediately before it runs in a race and therefore spoil its chance: Aus. sporting: C.20. B., 1942.—8. To go on strike at the location of: Can. coll.: 1959+. 'Four hundred men struck the King Lumber Company this morning.' (Leechman.) strike! An Aus. ejaculation: since ca. 1925. (Baker.) Short for strike a light! or strike me dead!

strike a blow. To start work: Aus.: since ca. 1945. 'I must go now. It's half past nine—and I haven't struck a blow.' (B.P.) strike a bright. 'To have a piece of good fortune' (B. & L.): proletarian: ca. 1880–1930.—2. To have a bright idea: tailors' and lower classes':—1909 (Ware); ob. by 1930. Cf. brain-storm.

strike a docket. To cause a man to become bankrupt: legal and commercial j. > coll. > S.E.: ca. 1805–60.

strike a hand. (Of a thief) to be successful on a given occasion: c.: late C.16—early 17. (Greene, 1592.) Cf. strike, v., 1.

strike a jigger. See strike, v., 5.

strike a light! A late C.19–20 coll. exclam. Prob. ex the imperative of the lit. S.E. phrase.—2. In the indicative, strike a light is, to commence work: sheet-metal workers': C.20. (Daily Herald, 11 Aug. 1936.) Ex a job of welding.—3. See light, n., 1.

strike all of a heap. See all of a heap.

strike (one's) breath. To 'cross (one's) heart' in assurance of one's truthfulness: Aus. coll.: late C.19–20. Also spit (one's) death. Baker.

strike-fire. Gin: 1725 (G. Smith on distilling: OED).

strike it down. To drink heavily, either on one occasion or in general: RN: since ca. 1920. P-G-R.

strike-me. Bread: C.20. 'I... had a quick bite of strike-me and sweet evening' (bread and cheese). Lester. Short for strike me dead, 2; cf. strike, n., 3.

strike-me-blind. Rice: nautical:—1904; slightly ob. Bowen, 'From the old superstition that its eating affected the eyesight'.

strike me blind! A (gen. proletarian) expletive: coll.: 1704 (Cibber). Also strike me dumb! (1696, Vanbrugh; † by 1890); ... lucky! (1849, Cupples); ... silly! (—1860; very ob.); ... pink!, mid-C.19–20; ... ugly (C.20: Manchon); and strike me!, late C.19–20. (OED.) These imprecations may be constructed with if or but. Cf. strike a light, 2, and the Aus. strike me up a gum-tree! (from ca. 1870: H., 5th ed.), occ. in C.20 varied by strike me up a blue-gum!

strike-me-dead. Small beer: naval: from early 1820s; ob. Cf. strike-fire.—2. Bread: military rhyming s.: from ca. 1899. (F. & G.) As gen. s. in G. Kersh, Night and the City, 1938. See strike, n., 3, and strike me.—3. Head: rhyming s.: C.20. B. & P. strike me handsome! An Aus. exclam. of the politer sort: C.20. B., 1942.

strike me lucky! A mild asseveration ('agreed!'; 'sure!'): coll.: 1849 (Cupples). Wilkes notes that it was an Aus. c.p. of the 1930s, popularised by the Comedian Roy Mene ('Mo'). Cf.:-

strike me pink! - silly! - up a gum-tree! See strike me blind!

strike oil. To have good luck, be successful: orig. US; anglicised ca. 1875; by 1920, coll. Ex the S.E. sense, to discover oil deposits.

strike - or give me the bill! Mind what you're about: coll.: ca. 1660–1750. (Walker, 1672.) Ex injunction to man clumsy with this weapon. Apperson.

strike the gag. To desist from joking or chaffing: low (? c.): ca. 1830–70. (Ainsworth, Jack Sheppard.) Cf. gag, n., 3, a joke, hoax, humbug, etc.

strike with a feather and stab with a rose. To punish playfully: coll.: ca. 1888–1914. Ex a music-hall refrain; cf., however, Webster's 'M. If I take her near you, I'll cut her throat. F. With a fan of feathers,' 1612. Cf. run through the nose with a cushion, q.v.

striking, vbl n. See strike, v., 1 and 2.

strill. A lie with intent to cheat: N. Country c.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.).? Origin.—2. A piano: Parlyaree: late C.19–20. (Lester.) Hence, strill homey or strill polone, a pianist male or female. It app. derives ex Italian strillo, a shrill cry, a piercing note, etc.; cf. Italian strillare, to shriek, to scream.—3. A portable harmonium: esp. among pierrots: late C.19–20. With senses 2 and 3, cf. strel(l); and for sense 3, note esp.

G.J. Mellor, Pom-Poms and Ruffles, 1966, and Knox Crichton's article 'Pierrot Piece', Stage, 13 Aug. 1970.

STRINE. See Appendix.

string, n. A subject argued out; an argument (or logical résumé); a commodious set of syllogisms: Oxford University: C.18. (Amherst, 1721; the OED records it also at 1780.) Rarely in singular. Ex string, a continuous series.—2. A hoax; a discredited story; printers': from ca. 1890. Prob. ex on a string.—3. A surgical ligature; medical students':—1933 (Slang, p. 193).—4. As (the) String, short for String of(f) Beads. Mark McShane, The Passing of Evil, 1961, 'Used to be a good fight town, the old String.'—5. The published material that, each week, a writer 'on space rates' gets paid for. He pastes 'clips' of all his published work in one long 'string' and is paid on this evidence: Can. journalists': C.20. (Leechman).—6. In feel like going to heaven in a string, to feel utterly and confusedly happy: coll.: C. (? 18–)19. Lit., so happy that one would willingly die a martyr; in late C.16–18, go to heaven in a string (applied orig. to Jesuits hanged temp. Elizabeth I) meant, simply, to be hanged, as in Greene and Ned Ward (OED).—7. In on a string, esp. have or have got (one) on a string, to hoax, befool: coll.: from ca. 1810. Bee; 'Pomes' Marshall, 'You can't kid me ... they've been having you on a string.' Ex lead in, or have in or on, a string, to have completely under control. Cf. string on.—8. Hence, have (or keep) on a string, 'to keep a person in suspense for a long time': coll.: late C.19–20. Lyell.—9. See line, 9 and 10; for brother of the string, see brother; by the string.

string, v. To fool, deceive, humbug (someone): 1848 (Sinks). Cf. string on, q.v.

string along. A gentle var. of prec.: esp. in NZ: since ca. 1920. (Arthur Gray, 1969.)—2. To accompany, as v.i. of next: 'We're just going down to Bill's—you want to string along?': coll.: adopted, ex US, mid-C.20. (P.B.) string along with. To go along with; agree with; support: Can. coll.: adopted, ca. 1930, ex US.

string and glitter boys. Men detailed for guard-duty: army: ca. 1905–20.

String of(f) Beads. Leeds: rhyming s.; railwaymen's, ex N. Country: C.20. (Daily Herald, 5 Aug. 1936.) See also string, n., 4.

string of ponies. A 'stable' of prostitutes 'owned' by one man: white-slave traffic: since ca. 1925. (BBC, 22 Sep. 1963.)

string on. To befool, to 'lead up the garden path', as, e.g. 'You can't string him on!': from ca. 1810. (Vaux.) Whence US string, to humbug; but see also string, v.

string up. To keep waiting: low: from ca. 1920. 'He strung me up.' See also stringing up.—2. 'In the back alleys [of London's East End] there was garotting—some of the brides would lumber a seaman while he was drunk and then he would be dropped—"stringing someone up" was the slang phrase for it' (R. Samuel, ed., East End Underworld, 1981).

Stringbag. The Fairey Swordfish torpedo-spotter-reconnaissance biplane: mainly FAA: ca. 1934–45, then nostalgically. Sgt-Pilot F. Rhodes, letter, 1942; H. & P., 1943, note Stringbag the Sailor. A later locus classicus is Cdr. Charles Lamb, DSO, DSC, RN, War in a Stringbag, 1977. The blurb instructively begins: 'Practically obsolete even before [WW2], the robust, inelegant "Stringbags" ... unbelievably were flying against the enemy at the end of it. Their cruising speed was 90 knots, yet they could outmanoeuvre almost every other aircraft'. What a book and what a man! Jackson records that the nickname was applied also to the Swordfish's successor, the Fairey Albacore, of similar appearance: 1943–5.

stringer. A ball difficult to play: cricket (1890); † by 1930. (F. & H.) Perhaps ex string on, q.v.—2. In pl., handcuffs: 1893 (Kipling: OED); ob. by 1930.—3. A reporter paid for what is published: mostly journalists': since ca. 1925. Cf. string, n., 5, q.v.

stringing up. A strong admonition, severe reprimand: 1925, F. Lonsdale (OED Sup.). P.B.: † ex string up, to hang.

strings. Telegraph wires: Can. railroadmen's joc.:—1931.—2. In put the strings on, to hold (a horse) back in a race, to 'rope' him: turf: ca. 1860–1900. Fraser's Magazine, Dec. 1863.

strings to (one's) bow. In have two, or many, strings ... With more resources than one, with an alternative: coll. > S.E.; from ca. 1550. In C.19–20, gen. in ref. to suitors or sweethearts. Ex archery.

stringy, usu. in the pl stringies. A stringy bark eucalypt: Aus. coll.: late C.19–20. B., 1953; Kylie Tennant, The Honey Flow, 1956.

stringy-bark. Aus. (ob. by 1915) as in A.J. Vogan, Black Police, 1890, 'Stringy-bark, a curious combination of fuisil [sic] oil and turpentine, labelled "whisky".' Ex the:—2. Adj. Rough or uncultured; also (and orig.) rustic, belonging to the 'bush': Aus. coll. >, ca. 1900, S.E. (slightly ob.): 1833, New South Wales Magazine, 1 Oct., concerning inferior workmanship, 'I am but, to use a colonial expression, "a stringy-bark carpenter".' Morris.—3. Hence, very tough or hardy (persons); courageous: Aus.: C.20. B., 1943.

strip. To rob (a house or a person); esp. to steal everything in (a house); to swindle (a person) out of his money: late C.17–mid-18: c. B.E., whose phrases are of the 'strip the ken, to gut the house' order, i.e. with direct object and no further construction. Ex strip ... of, to plunder ... of.—2. See strip-ping.

strip a peg. To buy ready-made, or second-hand clothes: 1908 (OED Sup.); slightly ob. by 1930.

strip-bush. 'A fellow who steals clothes put out to dry after washing': either c. or low s.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.); ob. by 1930.

strip-eel. A fishmonger: early C.18. See OCCUPATIONAL NAMES, in Appendix.

strip (someone's) masthead. To thrash: nautical: ca. 1760–1840. Sessions, 1786 (8th session).

strip-me-naked. Gin: from ca. 1750. (Toldervy, 1756; Grose, 3rd ed.) Cf. stark-naked, q.v.

strip off. See tear a strip off.

strip-tease. A gradual, leisurely, teasing removal of clothes by a female in US vaudeville or variety; adopted in Brit. during the 1940s, orig. as s. soon elevated to coll. and, by 1970 at latest, to S.E. Not quite so old as time, yet well established in AD C.1 by Salome, skilled in the seven veils technique and immortalised by Wilde in a drama written in French, 1893, and performed, 1894, with Sarah Bernhardt.

stripe. 'One who is no longer a first offender' (George Ingram): c.:—1933. Cf. striping.—2. A long, esp. if narrow, scar: c.: since ca. 1915. Norman.—3. See stripey, 1.

striper, two and a half. A lieutenant; lieutenant-commander; commander, RN: RN coll.: C.20. (F. & G.) Two-and-a-half striper occurs in 'Taffrail', Carry On!, 1916. Ex the indications of rank. Cf. one-pipper, q.v.—2. Only striper, any naval officer: RN wardroom: C.20. (Granville.) See quot'n at ringer, 7.

stripes. A tiger: joc. coll.: 1909. Earlier, 1885, old stripes. OED.—2. Var. of next.

Stripey, n. A sergeant of Marines: RN, esp. as a nickname: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) Ex his badge of office, stripe being, since early C.19, 'popular usage' (SOD) for an NCO's chevron of rank. Also addressed as Stripes.—2. 'A rating with one or more Good Conduct Badges (a Stripey) awarded for long years of undetected crime' (D. Bolster, Roll on My Twelve, 1945); Granville specifies 'a three-badge able seaman': RN lowerdeck: C.20.—3. 'Marines called lance-corporals "stripeys", but always knew sergeant-majors as "sir"' (McGowan & Hands, Don't Cry for Me, 1983).

stripey or stripy, adj. Streaky; hence, patchy, variable: NZ coll.: late C.19–20. G.B. Lancaster, Sons o' Men, 1904, a snowstorm.

striping, vbl n. Punishment, esp. in the form of an arrest, a conviction: c.: since ca. 1945. (Frank Norman, Encounter, 1959, in the first of the two poems.)? ex stripe, 1. stripped. (Of spirits) unadulterated; neat: mid-C.19–early 20.

stripper. A strip-tease performer: coll.: adopted, late 1940s, ex US.

strippers. 'High cards cut wedge-shape, a little wider than the rest, so as to be easily drawn in a crooked game' (F. & H.): gaming coll.: from mid-1880s. See esp. Maskelyne, Sharps and Flats, 1894. Ex the manner of stacking, with a pun on impoverishment.

stripping, vbl n. 'The process of opening a safe with a... jemmy. This is a long process... it is first necessary to find a crack into which the jemmy can be wedged and with the modern safe this is improbable' (Tempest, 1950): c.: earlier C.20.

stripping law. The (jailers') art and/or practice of fleecing prisoners: c.: late C.16–early 17. (Greene.) Cf. lay, n. strive. To write with care: Christ's Hospital (School): from ca. 1870. Ex L. scribere, to write, via scribe, q.v., on strive, to try very hard.

strobe. A stroboscope (an electronic flash unit): photographers: since ca. 1950. (B.P.)

stroke, n. 'To save detailing an officer to supervise them, one of the men was chosen as leader and made responsible for the general running of the mess. Such leaders are called "strokes", the word being taken from rowing parlance' (L.W. Merrow Smith & J. Harris, Prison Screw, 1962): prison officers: since ca. 1930.—2. In take a stroke, (of the male) to coit: low coll.:—1785 (Grose, 1st ed.).—3. An unfair action, esp. in pull a stroke, q.v.

stroll on! A c.p. comment on what seems very hard to believe: Army and RAF: since ca. 1950. (Willis Hall, The Long and the Short and the Tall, a play, 1959, pp. 20, 29: L.A.) Pretend you haven't noticed! P.B.: by mid-1970s, some use among civilians also. In low use, often intensified, e.g. fucking stroll on! Perhaps ex roll on [demob, Christmas, my twelve, etc.]. As well as mild surprise, it may also express disgusted disbelief.

strolling mort. A pretended-widow beggar roaming the country (often with a 'ruffler'), making laces, tape, etc., and stealing as chance favours her: c. (—1673); † by 1830. (Head; B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) In C.17, often strowling m.

strummel (ca. 1565–1840); also strummel (C.16–19), very common; stramel (C.18) and strammell (C.18–19); strommell (C.17–18) and stromell (C.17); and strumil (C.18, rare). Straw: c. of ca. 1565–1830. (Harman; B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.; Scott.) Perhaps via Anglo-Fr. ex Old Fr. estramer: cf. stramage, rushes strewn on a floor. OED.—2. Hence, hair (prob. orig. of straw-coloured hair): c.:—1725; † by 1850, except in Norfolk (H., 1st ed.). A New Canting Dict., 1725; Vaux; Ainsworth, 'With my strummel faked in the newest twig', done in the newest fashion. Cf. strum, n., 1, and:

strummel- or strummel-faker. A barber: c. of ca. 1810–40. Ex strommel, 2. (Implied in Vaux.)

strummel- or strummel-patch, n. A very contemptuous epithet for a person: late C.16–early 17 c. Jonson, 1599, 'The horson strummel patch' (OED). Ex strommel, 1.

strong, n. Esp. in the strong of (something), the truth; the essential point or the especial importance of, e.g., a message, instruction, news: Aus.: since early C.20. (Baker.) Var. of the strength of..., q.v.

strong, v. To impose a heavy sentence: c.: later C.20. 'The offender might observe [to the judge], "Hang on gov, you're strongin' it a bit." The judge, however, may not agree: "Don't come the acid. Have six moon for being flash" (six months is added to the sentence for being cheeky)' (Sean McConville, The State of the Language, 1980).

strong, adj. (Of a charge or payment) heavy: coll.: 1669 (OED); ob. by 1930, but see prec.—2. See not off.

strong, adv. In (be) going strong, (to be) vigorous or prosperous: coll.: 1898, Punch, 22 Oct., 'And though, just now, we're going strong, /The brandy cannot last for long' (OED). Ex horse-racing.—2. In come out strong, to speak or act vigorously or impressively; to 'launch out': coll.: 1844 (Dickens: OED). Cf.:—3. In pitch it strong, to exaggerate; tell a 'tall' story: coll.:

1841 (Hood: OED).—4. In go it strong, to act recklessly or energetically: coll.: from ca. 1840. 'I thought it was a bit strong you not wearing a coat and tie for the funeral' (John McVicar, in New Statesman, 20 Aug. 1982, p. 25): underworld. Cf. come it strong, q.v., and strong on, 2.

strong-arm, v. To bully; to manhandle: Aus. c.: since late 1920s. (B., 1942.) Adopted from US: see Underworld.—2. Hence, to act as bully to (a prostitute): c.: since ca. 1930. Baker.

strong-arm, adj. Esp. in strong-arm tactics, the use of force, usu. against people: coll.: later C.20. Ex the US v.; see prec. (P.B.) strong as a drink of water. 'Used to describe a weak man, or humorously to deride a man boasting of his strength' (Petch): C.20 contrast:- strong as a horse(,as). (Of a person only) very strong: coll.: from ca. 1700. Ned Ward; Douglas Jerrold, in Mrs Caudle, 'You're not as strong as a horse.' (Apperson.)

strong man. A confidence trickster: Aus. c.: since ca. 1920. (Baker.) He 'comes it strong'.—2. In play the part of the strong man, to be whipped at the cart's tail: low: ca. 1780–1840. Grose, 1st ed., 'I.e. to push the cart and horses too.'

strong on. Laying great stress on: coll.: 1883, 'Strong on the proprieties' (OED).—2. In go strong on, to uphold or advocate energetically and/or emphatically: coll.: 1844, Disraeli, "'We go strong on the Church?" said Mr Taper' (OED).

strong silent man (or type). This cliché has, since the early 1920s, > a virtual c.p. to the sarcastic. (Cf. Collinson.) Ex popular fiction.

stronger house than ever your father built, you'll be sent to a. You'll go to prison (someday): C.17 semi-proverbial coll. Apperson.

strongers. Any powerful cleanser such as spirits of salts: RN officers': C.20. (Bowen.) Ex strong, by the 'OXFORD -ER'.

stronk. Sexual effusions, male and female: low Scots: C.20. 'The Ballad of Kirriemuir' in Martin Page, ed., For Gawsake Don't Take Me, 1976, a collection of WW2 songs, ballads, etc.

strop-a-block. A real slugging match: RN: late C.18–mid-19. L.L.G., 1 Jan. 1825 (Moe).

strop (one's) beak. (Of the male) to coit: low: late C.19–early 20.

Strop Bill, the. S. African coll. (—1913) for 'a bill introduced into the Cape Parliament, which had it passed would have allowed a farmer to punish his servants for misconduct by flogging' (Pettman). By 1930, virtually †.

stropper. (often young, or old, s.) One who is 'stroppy' (see next): coll.: later C.20. P.B.: heard from Aus. servicemen, 1960s.

stroppy. Obstreperous: orig. RN, C.20 (Granville); > by 1970s very widespread and popular (P.B.). Via obstropolous; see obstreperous.—2. Hence, 'to get stroppy' or become very angry: gen.: since ca. 1946. (Gilderdale, 2.) Cf. 'You'll get me stroppy if you start bullying' (Nicholas Blake, The Sad Variety, 1964).

strowling mort. See strolling mort.

struck. Bewitched: dial. and coll.: 1839 (J. Keegan: OED). In composition, struck with. Cf. struck so.

struck comical, be. To be very astonished: low coll.:—1828 ('Jon Bee', A Living Picture of London); ob. by 1930.

struck on. (Low) coll. form of struck with, charmed by (orig. a person—of the opposite—gen. female—sex): from early 1890s. OED.

struck so. Struck motionless in a particular posture or grimace: from ca. 1850: low coll. (Mayhew.) Ex struck, bewitched. OED.

struck with. See struck.

strue. To construe or translate: schools' coll.: late C.19–20.—2. Hence, a 'construe': Shrewsbury School coll.: from ca. 1890. Desmond Coke, The Bending of a Twig, 1906.

struggle. See struggle and strife.

struggle and strain. A train: rhyming s.: late C.19–20. B. & P.

struggle and strife. Wife: rhyming s.: C.20; not very gen. (cf. trouble...). Franklyn, Rhyming. Often shortened to struggle. struggle-for-lifer. A struggler for life: s. or coll.:—1895. Ex biological struggle for life, though imm. ex Daudet's struggle-for-lifer (1889).—2. Hence, one who, thus struggling, is none too scrupulous in seeking success: 1899; ob. OED.

Struggle Valley. A collection of shacks where tramps or beggars live: Aus. tramps' c.: C.20. B., 1942.

struggle with, I (etc.) could. I could do with, I'd gladly take (e.g. a drink): lower classes' coll.:—1887; ob. Baumann.

struggling! 'A frequent answer to "How are you going [or doing]?"': mostly Aus.: since ca. 1925. Either ex 'struggling along' or ex 'Struggling to make ends meet'. (B.P.) struguël. A, to, struggle: sol. when not, as occ. in C.20, joc. (cf. loverly): C.19–20. Ware.

strumil. See strommel.

strum. A wig: late C.17—early 19. B.E.; Egan's grose ('Cambridge'). Ex strommel, q.v. A rum-strum is a long one.—2. A strumpet; a wench (if rum, then handsome): c.: late C.17—early 19. B.E.—3. See stram.

strum, v.i. and v.t. To have intercourse (with a woman): low: from ca. 1780; ob. (Grose, 1st ed.) Semantically, to play a rough tune (on her). Possibly suggested by a pun on strum, n., 2, q.v.

strummel, s.-faker, s.-patch. See strommel, etc.

strung(-)out. Emaciated; weak and wits-wandering, esp. thus affected by drugs: adopted, late 1960s, ex US. Janssen cites Jagger.

strunt. The male member: C.17 (Middleton, in Epigrams and Satyres, 1608.) Ex S.E. and dial. strunt, the fleshy part of an animal's tail.

strut like a crow in a guttex. To be over-proud: coll.: late C.16–19. Fulke; Spurgeon; Apperson.

'Struth! 'An emaciated oath' (C.J. Dennis): low: late C.19–20. (God's truth!) Also 'Streuth, q.v.

stub (or stubb). See stubs.—2. 'The lower part of a rainbow' (Bowen): nautical coll.: mid-C.19–20; ob. An extension of the S.E. sense.

stub. To kick (a football) about: Felsted: late C.19–20. Ex stub one's toe.

stub-faced. Pitted with smallpox: late C.18–19. Grose, 2nd ed., where the phrase the devil run over his face with horse stubs (horseshoe nails) in his shoes.

stubb. See stub, n.

stubbie, -y. 'The key word is "stubbies", slang for both the shorts they [the Australian men] wear... and the bottles from which they drink' (Matthew Engel, Guardian, 18 Dec. 1982): Aus.: later C.20. P.B.: stubbie is used of a bottle in UK also, but of a squat bottle of—milk.

stubble. The female pubic hair: low: C.18–20. Whence, shoot over the stubble (or in the bush), to ejaculate before intromission, and take a turn in the stubble, to coit (both, C.19–20), and pointer and stubble, q.v.

stubble it! stubble your whids! Hold your tongue: c.: resp. late C.17–19 (B.E. and Lytton) and ca. 1810–50 (Lytton). Prob. ex stubble, v.t., to clear of stubble.

Stubborns, the (Old). The 45th Foot Regiment, now the Sherwood Foresters: military nickname: from ca. 1840. (F. & G.) Ex a passage in Napier's Peninsular War, Bk 8, ch. 2, referring to them at the battle of Talavera as a 'stubborn regiment'.

stubs. Nothing: c. of ca. 1810–1900. (Vaux; Baumann.) Ex stub, the end (of, e.g., a cigar).—2. In put (a person) through Stubs, to inquire from a financial agency whether a person's credit is good: commercial coll.: late C.19–20. The firm of Stubs was founded in 1836; since 1893, known as Stubs Ltd.

stubs. Teeth: c.: since ca. 1945. (Robin Cook, The Crust on its Uppers, 1962.) Ex S.E. stub, a butt-end.

stubs in his shoes. See stub-faced.

stuck. Adversely affected; left in an unenviable position; penniless; grossly deceived; utterly mistaken: from ca. 1863.

(H., 3rd ed.) Cf. stuck in, q.v. Intensified to dead stuck: low: from ca. 1870–2. In be stuck, to be confirmed; sticking-parade, Confirmation: Charterhouse: C.20. I.e., fixed in one's Faith.—3. See fly-stuck; get cracking; get stuck in and into. stuck away. In pawn: Glasgow:—1934. Euph. Cf. upstairs (adj.), q.v.

stuck by. Deserted or grossly deceived or imposed on by (esp. one's pal): low: from ca. 1880.

stuck for. Lacking; at a loss how to obtain: from ca. 1870. Esp. stuck for the ready, penniless. Cf. stuck, 1.

stuck in (e.g. one's calculations). Mistaken; also, at a loss concerning: from ca. 1870. Prob. an elab. of stuck, q.v.

stuck in the mud. Cornered, baffled, nonplussed, stalemated: from ca. 1880.

stuck on. Enamoured of (gen. a man of a woman): late C.19–20: rare among upper classes. Ex US sense, captivated with (things).

stuck on (one's) lines. To have forgotten one's speech(es): theatrical coll.: mid-C.19–20. Mayhew, III.

stuck pig. See stare like a stuck pig.

stuck-up. Unjustifiably 'superior'; offensively conceited or pretentious: coll.: 1829 (OED).—2. See stick up, v., 8.

stuck-up marm. See lady marm.

stuckuppishness. The n. of stuck-up: coll.: 1853 (OED).

stud. A virile man: Anglo-Irish, since ca. 1925; since ca. 1955, gen. throughout the Commonwealth. (Brian Moore, The Luck of Brian Coffey, 1960.) Short for S.E. 'stud stallion' or 'stallion at stud'.—2. A mistress, esp. if available whenever required: Aus. rural: since ca. 1920. (Tom Ronan, Vision Splendid, 1954), 'the boss's stud'. Short for S.E. stud mare.—3. As Stud, a Studebaker motorcar: since ca. 1950. (Brian Freeborn, 1976.)

stud book, in the. Of ancient lineage; esp. in Burke or Debrett; upper class: late C.19–20.

studdensail. Studding-sail: nautical coll.: since early C.19. (W.N. Glascock, Naval Sketch-Book, 2nd series, 1834, II, 64: Moe.) Further variants, recorded by Baumann, 1887, are studnsel, stunsail, stunsel; cf. forecastle > focslie.

studding-sails on both sides, (with). With a girl on each arm: nautical: late C.19–20; ob. Bowen.

studify, v.i. To study: illiterate coll.: 1775 (T. Bridges: OED); † by 1850.

studnsel. See studdensail.

study. To take care and thought for the convenience, desires, feelings of (a person); esp., to humour (him): coll.: mid-C.19–20. Dickens, 1852; Mrs Carlyle, 1858, 'With no husband to study, housekeeping is mere play'. Ex study the advantage, convenience, feelings, wishes, of (a person). OED. study up, v.t. To study for a special purpose: coll.: from ca. 1890.

studying for Staff College, be. To sleep in the afternoon, esp. in hot countries: Army officers': since ca. 1920.

stuff, n. Medicine: C.17–20: S.E. until mid-C.18, then coll. Moore, 1819, 'It isn't the stuff, but the patient that's shaken.' Also (ob. by 1890) doctor's stuff, recorded in 1779 (OED). Ex stuff, 'matter of an unspecified kind'.—2. Money, esp. cash: adumbrated by Bridges, 1772; definite in Sheridan, 1775, 'Has she got the stuff, Mr Fag? Is she rich, hey?'; Nat Gould, 1891. Slightly ob. Perhaps ex stuff, household goods, hence personal effects. Manchon, 1923, has hard stuff, money in coin: low.—3. Whisky: coll.: Bill Truck, 1821 ('a cann [sic] of stuff before me'), but usu. the stuff (Croker, 1825) or good stuff (Meredith, 1861). Prob. ex sense 1. Mrs C. Raab, 1982: the usu. later C.20 term is 'a drop of the hard stuff', adopted ex Ireland and used in Irish pubs in London by Irish and English.—4. Stolen goods (stuff or the stuff): c. and low s.: Daily Telegraph, 5, Nov. 1865 (OED).—5. ? hence, 'contraband smuggled into gaol: c.: late C.19–20. Esp. tobacco (—1890).—6. Hence (?), drugs; esp. cocaine (the stuff): c.: earlier C.20. Since mid-C.20, marijuana (Home Office).

—7. Men as fighting material: coll.: Manchester Examiner, 24 Nov. 1883. 'The army of Ibrahim included a good deal of tougher stuff than the ordinary fellah of Egypt' (OED); T.

Gowing, writing early 1880s of the Crimean War, 'We had some of the right sort of stuff with the Fusiliers'; by 1930, virtually S.E.—8. 'Copy'; one's MS.: coll., journalistic and authorial: 1898 (US); certainly anglicised by 1915, at the very latest. OED.—9. Shell-fire; gen. with adj., as heavy stuff, heavy shells or shell-fire: military coll.: from 1914. B. & P.—10. An anaesthetic; give stuff is to anaesthetise at an operation; do stuffs is to take a course in the administration of anaesthetics: medical.—1933 (Slang, p. 193).—11. Often employed as a coll. (mid-C.19–20) to connote vagueness in the speaker's mind or intention, or to imply ignorance of the precise term or name, as, e.g., in Christopher Bush, The Case of the April Fools, 1933, 'Made his escape down the creeper stuff' Cf. the earlier 'Does he suspect? Or is this chance and stuff?', in R.L. Stevenson, The Wrong Box, 1889 (communicated by Derek Pepys Whitely, Esq.).—12. Aircraft collectively, as in 'There's a lot of stuff going across (to, e.g., Germany)': RAF coll.: 1940+. Partridge, 1945, 'And in "Heavy stuff" (heavy bombers)': cf. sense 9.—13. A copulation: low, mostly Aus.: C.20. 'She's had more stuffs than you've had twins'—almost a c.p. The Brit. version would be '... hot dinners'. Ex the v., 4. Hence, woman regarded as sex object: 'I bet she'd make a smashing little stuff' (P.B.).—14. In ... and stuff, and such dull or useless matters: coll.: late C.17–20. J. Lewis, ca. 1697, 'You pretend to give the Duke notions of the mathematics, and stuff'; 1774, Goldsmith, Their Raphaels, Corregios [sic], and stuff'; 1852, Thackeray. Slightly ob. by 1935. (OED.) Cf. sense 11.—15. In good stuff, excellent provisions: coll., not only RN: C.19–20. (Bill Truck, 1825.) Cf. sense 3.—16. See bit of stuff; do (one's) stuff; hot stuff; MOVING-PICTURE SLANG, §6 in Appendix; that's the stuff (to give the troops)!

stuff, v.t.; stuff up. To hoax, humbug, befool (cf. cram in same sense): ?orig. (1844) US, in form stuff up; English by 1859 as stuff, as in H., 1st ed. Slightly ob. Prob. ex stuff (a person) with.—2. Hence, v.i., 'to make believe, to chaff, to tell false stories' (H., 1st ed.); ob. by 1890, † by 1900.—3. V.i., to be or to live in a stuffy atmosphere or place; to be inside when one could be in the open air: late C.19–20. E. Raymond, Child of Norman's End, 1934, 'Here's that boy stuffing indoors again', when he was reading a book.—4. (Of man) to copulate with: low: late (?mid-)C.19–20. E. upholstery. Hence the defiant c.p., go and get stuffed.—5. Hence, to defeat severely: NZ: since ca. 1920. Slatter, 'Wait till we clean up Otago [at Rugby Football]. We'll stuff 'em!' stuff it! Dispose of it as you will; get rid of it, but don't bother me; as in 'Tell them they can stuff it—we don't want it': low coll.: since ca. 1930. I.e. 'stuff it up your arse!', with perhaps a glance at stuff, v., 4. (Petch; P.B.) stuff-jacket. An earlier, ca. 1910–35, var. of stuffed shirt. stuff on the ball, put. To make the ball break: cricketers': ca. 1880–1905. For stuff we now say work and for put we prefer get: S.E.

stuffed. See get stuffed!, via stuff, v., 4. stuffed monkey. 'A very pleasant close almond biscuit': Jews' coll., mostly London: from ca. 1890. Zangwill. (Ware.) Mrs C. Raab, 1982: older staff at long-established Jewish bakeries remember this delicacy but say that it has not been on sale 'for many years'; younger people (under about 50) have never even heard of it. Alas! It was actually an open tart filled with ground almonds and chopped candied-peel. I remember it in N. London in the 1930s–40s.

stuffed rat. In gambling, a loaded die: Aus. c., since ca. 1930; by ca. 1945, low sporting s. Lawson Glassop, Lucky Palmer, 1949.

stuffed shirt. A pompous fool: upper and middle classes': from ca. 1920.

stuffing. Superfluous matter included to fill the required space: journalistic coll. (—1904) >, ca. 1920, S.E. Cf. stuff, n., 11 and 14.—2. In knock or beat or kick or take (etc.) the stuffing out of, to maltreat; to get the better of: (orig. low) coll.:

adopted, ex US, ca. 1900. Beat, 1887; take, 1906 (Lucas Malet: OED).

stuffs. See stuff, n., 10.

stuffy, n. A 'stuffy' person: since ca. 1950. Ex adj., 3.—2. A woman: c.: ca. 1865–1910. Underworld.

stuffy, adj. Angry, irritable; sulky; obstinate, 'difficult': US, anglicised ca. 1895 as a coll., authorised by Kipling, 1898 (get stuffy). Cf. sticky, adj., 3. OED.—2. Hence, secretive: schools':—1923 (Manchon).—3. (Also ex sense 1.) Easily shocked; strait-laced: from ca. 1925. Galsworthy defines it in 1926, in The Silver Spoon.—4. Wealthy: c.: adopted, ca. 1930, ex US. (A. Gardner, Tinker's Kitchen, 1932; Powis, 1977.) Cf. stuff, n., 2, money.—5. Stand-offish: orig. Services', from ca. 1926 (H. & P.) >, in later C.20, gen. coll.

stug. Guts: back s.: late C.19–20. R.H. Mottram, Bumphrey's, 1934.

stugging. The rolling motion of a ship that is stranded: nautical coll.: mid-C.19–20. (Bowen.) Cognate with stog, to walk heavily.

stuggy. Thick-set: Public Schools', from ca. 1870 (B. & L.); also Aus. Ex dial. (EDD).

stuiver. See stiver.

Stuka Valley. The plain around Souk el Khemis (Tunisia), notorious for the attentions of German Stuka dive-bombers: Army in N. Africa: 1942–3. P-G-R.

stuling-ken. See stalling-ken.

stumble at the truckle- (or trundle-) bed. To mistake the chambermaid's bed for one's wife's: semi-proverbial coll.: ca. 1670–1750. Ray, 1678.

stumer; occ., in C.20, stumor; rarely stumour (Manchon). 'A horse against which money may be laid without risk' (H., 5th ed., where spelt stumer); racing s.: from ca. 1873. This sense and this spelling were both ob. by 1904 (F. & H., vol. vii, indirectly) and by 1935 virtually †. In Glasgow sporting s., however, it is still applied to a horse that is losing. The word perhaps derives from Yiddish; but? cf. Swedish stum, dumb or mute.—2. Hence, a forged cheque or a worthless one (an 'R.D.'): 1890, Blackwood's (stumer). OED.—3. Hence, or direct ex sense 1, a counterfeit banknote or a base coin: 1897, 'Pomes' Marshall (see quot'n in next sense).—4. Hence (often as adj.), a sham; anything bogus or worthless: 1897, 'Pomes' Marshall, in a poem entitled 'The Merry Stumer', 'Stumer tricks... stumer stake... stumer note... stumer cheque'; 1902, Sporting Times, 1 Feb. 'He... had given her as security a stumer in the shape of an unfinished history of Corsica'.—5. Hence, a 'dud' shell: military: from 1914. F. & G.—6. A 'dud' person: from not later than 1913. (Manchon.) Perhaps orig. at Harrow School, for it appears in Arnold Lunn's The Harrovians.—7. Hence, a bankrupt; a defaulter; (of a plan or enterprise) a failure: Aus. sporting and gambling: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Cf. Aus. and NZ come a stumer, to crash financially (B., 1941).—8. A fool: Cockney: C.20. Ex Yiddish. Cf.:—9. A deaf-mute: id.: since ca. 1910. Also ex Yiddish (Julian Franklyn).—10. 'A difficult customer; a naughty child' (M.T., where spelt stewmer): market-traders': C.20.—11. In in a stumer, in a 'mess' or hopeless confusion, as 'He's in a "stumer"': Aus. and NZ: C.20. Cf. sense 7.—12. In on a stumer: 'If they don't want a cab when he gets there, he's "been on a stumer"' (Herbert Hodge, 1939): taxi-drivers': since ca. 1920.—13. A blunder, mess, mistake: later C.20. 'He made a bit of a stumer of that.' (Mrs Helen Burt, 1983.) Cf. sense 11.

stumm (and crum). See shtoom.

stump, n. A leg: S.E. except in the pl., when (in C.19–20, at least) coll., esp. in stir one's stumps, to walk or dance briskly: C.17–mid-18, bestir..., as in Jonson and B.E.; mid-C.17–20, stir..., as in Anon., Two Lancashire Lovers, 1640; 1774, Bridges, 'Then cease your canting sobs and groans, And stir your stumps to save your bones'; 1809, Malkin; 1837, Lytton.—2. Money: low s.: ca. 1820–50. (Egan's Grose.) Ex stump, a small piece. Cf. stumpy, q.v.—3. In it's a case of stump (or stumps) with (e.g. us), var. of be stumped (q.v. at stump, v., 2):—1923 (Manchon).—4. In pay on the stump, to disburse readily and/or promptly: coll.: late C.19–20. Cf. stump up.—5. In up a stump, in a difficulty: US (late 1820s), anglicised by 1919. (OED Sup.) I.e. ‘up a tree’.

stump, v. To walk: from late 1850s. (H., 1st ed.) Gen. stump it, which in Lytton, 1841, means to decamp, a sense very ob. and rare. Ex stump, to walk clumsily.—2. To beggar, ruin: dial. (—1828) >, by 1830, s. Esp. in passive, to be penniless, as in Sessions, Nov. 1834, and ‘Pomes’ Marshall, 1897, ‘In the annals of the absolutely stumped’. Ex stump, to truncate, or perhaps (H., 1860) ex cricket.—3. To challenge, esp. to a fight. Can.:—1932 (John Beames). Perhaps ex sense 2.—4. To pay: 1821, W.T. Moncrieff, Tom and Jerry; by 1860, superseded by stump up. Cf. stump the pew.

stump it. See prec., 1.

stump jockey. A wicket-keeper: Aus.: since ca. 1930; by 1960, archaic.

stump-jumper. A Stump Jump plough: Aus. farming coll.: C.20. B., 1942, ‘Whence, “stump-jumping”: work with such a plough.’

stump the pew. To pay: low: ca. 1820–30. Moncrieff, Tom and Jerry, 1823, ‘It’s every thing now o’days to be able to flash the screens—sport the rhino—show the needful—post the pony—nap the rent—stump the pew.’ Prob. pew is an abbr. of pevter, 1. Cf.:-

stump up, v.t. To pay down, disburse: 1821 (Egan, see quot’n at rubbish); 1881, Blackmore. Rare. Ex stump up, to dig up by the roots. Cf. plank down.—2. Hence, v.i., to pay up; to disburse money, ‘fork out’: 1835, Dickens, ‘Why don’t you ask your old governor to stump up?’—3. To exhaust (a horse) by strain: 1875 (Reynardson: OED): coll. >, by 1900, S.E.

stumped, adj. See stump, v., 2.

stumped up. Penniless: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1943.) Cf. stump up, 1.

stumper. Small cricket: Tonbridge School:—1904. At Harrow, stumps: coll. By 1919, it was gen. and S.E. Ex stump-cricket.

See stump, n., 1 and 3; stumper; body, in Appendix.

stumpy. Money: low: 1821 (W.T. Moncrieff, Tom and Jerry); 1835, Dickens; H., 5th ed. Ob. Ex stump, n., 2, which was perhaps suggested by short of blunt (money).—2. A stumpy person; gen. as nickname: coll. and dial.: mid-C.19–20. Ex adj.—3. Whence, ‘a Thames sailing barge without a topmast’: nautical coll.: from ca. 1870. Bowen.—4. See PRISONER-OF-WAR SLANG, §12, in Appendix.

stun, n. Nuts: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Cf. stunlaw.—2. In on the stun, engaged in drinking heavily: Aus.: since ca. 1920. B., 1942.

stun, v. To cheat, swindle, as in stun out of the regulars, to defraud or deprive (a man) of his ‘rightful’ share of booty: c.: late C.19–early 20. Ex lit. sense of stun and perhaps influenced by sting, 1, q.v.

stung, adj. or ppl. ‘(1) drunk; (2) having been induced to lend’ (Wilkes): Aus.: since WW1. Cf. sting, v., 2 and 3, q.v., for second sense, and:-

stung for, be. To be cheated in a mild way, over (usu.) quite small matters; to be overcharged; as in ‘I was stung for six quid for those tickets’, or ‘They tried to sting me for six quid’: coll.: C.20. Cf. sting, v., 2 and 3, q.v.—2. (?) Hence to be at a loss for: Aus.: from ca. 1925. B., 1943.

stunlaw(s). Walnuts: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.).

stunned. Tipsy: NZ, from ca. 1910; Aus. by 1918 (Baker); and, by 1933 at latest, Glaswegians’. Ex effects of liquor. Cf. stun, n., 2.

stunned mullet, like a. ‘Stupid, silly’ (B., 1959): Aus.: since mid-C.20.

stunned on skilly, be. To be sent to prison and compelled to eat skilly: c.:—1859; † by 1900. (H., 1st ed.) Cf. stun, v.

stunner. An exceedingly attractive woman (Albert Smith, The Idler upon Town, 1848: ‘What—the “black-eyed stunner”? Wasn’t she a deux-temps too—first rate!’) or thing (1848, Thackeray, of the performance of a play); a person excellent at doing something (Thackeray, 1855, of a cook) or a thing excellent in quality or remarkable in size (from ca. 1875): coll. (OED and F. & H.) Cf. stunning.

stunners on, put the. To astonish; confound: low:—1859 (H. 1st ed.). Ex stunmer.

stunning. Excellent, first-rate; delightful; extremely attractive or handsome: coll.: Sessions, Nov. 1847; 1849, Dickens (of ale); 1851, Mayhew (of a ring); of a girl, from not later than 1856, F.E. Paget, ‘The most stunning girl I ever set my eyes on’ (OED). Cf. Fr. épatant, exact semantic parallel (L.W. Forster). Ex stun, to astound; cf. stunner and stunners on, qq.v.—2. Hence, clever, knowing: low coll.:—1857; † by 1900. ‘Ducange Anglicus’.

stunning, adv. Exceedingly: coll.: 1845, in ‘The Stunning Meat Pie’, in Labern’s Comic Songs, was the line ‘A stunning great meat pie’. See prec.

stunning Joe Banks. ‘Stunning’ par excellence: low London: ca. 1850–80. Ex stunning, q.v. + Joe Banks, a noted public-house-keeper and ‘fence’ (fl. 1830–50), who, despite the lowliness of his customers, was notoriously fair in his dealings with them. H., 2nd ed.

stunningly. The adv. of stunning, q.v.: coll.: mid-C.19–20.

stunsail, stunsel. See studdensail.

stunt, n. An item in an entertainment: coll.: 1901, Westminster Gazette, 31 Jan., ‘There will be many new “stunts” of a vaudeville nature’ (OED). Ob. Ex US stunt, an athletic performance, any (daring) feat, 1895, itself perhaps ex Ger. Stunde, an hour (OED), or, more prob., ex Dutch stond, a lesson (W.). But note date in:—2. An enterprise undertaken to gain or promote an advantage or a reputation: coll. An early occurrence is in a letter of 17 Feb. 1878, from Samuel (‘Erewhon’) Butler to Miss Savage, ‘It was a stunt for advertising the books.’ (With thanks to R.M. Williams, Esq., letter, 1944.) H.G. Wells in Mr Britling, 1916, ‘It’s the army side of the efficiency stunt’ (W.).—3. Hence, any enterprise, effort, or performance: coll.: 1913 (Rupert Brooke: OED Sup.).—4. Hence, from ca. 1920, a dodge, a (political, commercial or advertising) trick or novel idea: coll. E.G. ‘The economy stunt’; ‘He’s a bit too fond of stunts.’ Manchon.

—5. Ex sense 1 or 2, or both: an attack or advance; a bombing-sortie: military coll.: from late 1915. (OED records it for April 1916.) See one star...

stunt, adj. In first four senses of the n. (q.v.): coll.

stunt, v.i. To do some daring or very showy feat, esp. in aviation: coll.: orig. (1915), military. Ex stunt, n., 1 and 2.—Ex n., 2 (q.v.), to undertake such an enterprise, esp. with a tinge of the sense in n., 4: coll.: from ca. 1921.

stunter. The agent of the prec.: coll., now verging on S.E. stunting, vbl n. See stunt, v. J.S. Phillimore, 1918, ‘Poets are a flying corps... In prose the stunting genius is less indispensable’ (W.).

stupe. A fool: 1762, Bickerstaffe, ‘Was there ever such a poor stupe?’; Blackmore, 1876 (OED). Coll. >, ca. 1900, dial. Revived, or perhaps re-invented, in Aus., ca. 1950 (B.P.). Ex:-

stupid, n. A stupid person: coll.: 1712 (Steele); 1860, George Eliot. Ex adj.—2. Bacon: Westmorland and Warwickshire s. (—1904), not dial. EDD.

stupid, adj. Very drunk: euph., mostly Anglo-Irish, coll.: late C.19–20.

stupid as arse-holes (as). Exceedingly stupid: low: since ca. 1925.

stupo. An Anglo-Irish var. of stupe: C.20. James Joyce, Ulysses, 1922.

sturaban or -bin. A var. of sturiben, q.v. Resp. H., 1st ed., and Baumann.

sturdy beggar. A beggar that rather demands than asks, esp.—or rather, only—if of the 5th (in C.18, the 50th) Order of beggars: c.: C.16–18. (B.E.) An underworld application of the ‘other world’s’ gen. description.

sturiben or -bin occ. sturaban or -bin. A prison: c.: ca.

1855–1925, stir being the usual C.20 word. A corruption of Romany stariben (steripen). See stir.

sturks. See sterks.

stush. Var. of stash, 1 (Baumann).

stute. An institute; a club: mostly proletarian: C.20. By aphesis and conflation of institute: that is, in dropped, stitute is telescoped from two syllables to one.

stuvac (pron. stoo-vac). A study vacation: a holiday from lectures before an examination: Aus. universities', since ca. 1945; then any students', since ca. 1960. Always coll. rather than s. (B.P., 1977.)

stuyver, styver. See stiver.

style. See cramp (one's) style.

stymied, adj. Awkwardly placed; nonplussed: from ca. 1920: sporting coll. >, by 1933, S.E. Ex golf; golf sense ex stymie, a person partially blind (W.). styx; Styx. A urinal: Leys School:—1904 (F. & H.). Ex the gloomy river.

suave. 'Always pron. swave. Adj. of approbation with very wide application: army in Cyprus: late 1950s' (P.B., 1974).

sub, n. A subordinate: coll.: late C.17–20 (slightly ob.), but uncommon before Herbert Spencer's use of it in 1840.—2. A subaltern (officer): coll.: mid-C.18–20. Thackeray, 1862, 'When we were subs together in camp in 1803.' In RN, a sub-lieutenant: wardroom coll.: late C.19–20. Cf. subby, 2 and 3.—3. A subject: coll.: 1838, Beckett, 'No longer was he heard to sing, / Like loyal subs, "God save the King!";' very ob. except in US.—4. A subscriber: coll.: 1838 (Hood: OED). Rare and virtually †.—5. A substitute: cricketers' coll.: 1864. (Lewis.) In C.20, also commercial and Services'.—6. A subscription: coll.:—1904. P.B.: sometimes in pl, as 'Have you paid your mess subs yet?'—7. An advance of money, esp. on wages: coll.: 1855. Ex subsist money (1835: OED).—8. A submarine: orig. RN coll., from 1914, soon > widespread and gen. OED Sup.—9. All: Anglo-Indian:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.). P.B.: esp., in C.20, in the whole sub-cheese, 'everything', an army term ob. by 1960; cheese = Hindustani chiz, thing. See subcheese.—10. A sub-machine-gun (strictly a modified light machine-gun): army coll.: since ca. 1942. Elleston Trevor, The Freebooters, 1967.—11. A sub-editor: journalists': C.20. Patrick Campbell, Come Here Tell I Tell You, 1960, 'I'd a considerable battle with the chief sub to stop him cutting this paragraph out.'—12. Substantive rank: army coll.: since mid-1940s, prob. earlier. Shortening of sub rank, equally common. (P.B.)—13. In do a sub, to borrow money: proletarian: ca. 1865–1935. (B. & L.) Ex 7.

sub, v.i. To pay, or receive, a 'sub' (the seventh sense): coll.: from early 1870s. H., 5th ed.—2. From late 1890s, to pay (a workman) 'sub'. OED.—3. V.i. and v.t., to sub-edit: coll., orig. and mainly journalistic: from ca. 1890.—4. V.i., to act as a substitute (for somebody): coll.: from late 1870s. OED.—5. To subscribe: late C.19–20. A. Lunn, The Harrovians, 1913, 'A few men... subbed together to buy a few books.'—6. See TIDDLYWINKS, in Appendix.

sub, adj. Mentally sub-normal; of low intelligence. Margery Allingham, The China Governess, 1963: 'There was a woman who was slightly "sub", they said. They didn't call her that but they made it perfectly clear' (P.B.).—2. See n., 12.

sub-beau. 'A wou'd-be-fine' (B.E.): coll.: late C.17–mid-18. Also demi-beau.

sub-fusc. The 1931–6 var. of dim (insignificant, lacking character), q.v.: Oxford University. This, however, is a revival, for the term existed in 1864, Fun, 21 May, 'Anon I saw a gentle youth (no 'sub fusc' undergrad). / "Toga virilitis" he had none, no mortar-board he had' (F. & H.). It existed at Harrow School in first decade of C.20: Lunn, The Harrovians, 1913. Lit., sub-fusc, subfusc, subfusk = dusky; sombre (lit. and fig.).—2. Hence, (of dress) modest, of quiet colour: Ibid.: from ca. 1932. D.L. Sayers, Gaudy Night, 1935, 'I notice that we are both decently sub-fusc. Have you seen Trimmer in that frightful frock like a canary lampshade?'

sub-line. A printed form enabling a man to get an advance of wages: Public Works':—1935. See sub, n., 7, and line, n., 6.

sub on (one's) contract. To raise a loan, using contract as a proof of ability to repay: theatrical: late C.19–20. See sub, v., 1.

sub rank. See sub, n., 12.

sub rosa. Secretly, surreptitiously: when used seriously it is S.E. (though, in C.20, a rank cliché); when joc., it at least verges on coll.: mid-C.17–20.

sub-sheriff. See TAVERN TERMS, §4, in Appendix.

subaltern's luncheon. A glass of water and a tightening of one's belt: coll.: late C.19–early 20. A. Griffiths, 1904, 'The traditional "subaltern's luncheon"' (OED).

subby. A sub-warden: Oxford undergraduates': from ca. 1870. Charles Turley, Godfrey Marten, Undergraduate, 1904.—2. A subaltern: army: ca. 1860–1910. R. Blatchford, My Life in the Army, 1910.—3. A sub-lieutenant: RN lowerdeck: C.20. Granville.—4. A sub-contractor: workmen's, esp. bricklayers': since ca. 1950. Sunday Citizen, 29 Jan. 1969.

subcheese or sub-cheese. Everything, all there is, 'the whole shoot': Indian Army: Forces in India: mid-C.19–20; 1939–45. From Hindustani. As in 'We saw a lot of Nips and gave 'em the sub-cheese' or, in a shop, 'Tighai, Mohammed, I'll take the sub-cheese' (All right, M., I'll take the lot). With thanks to John Bebbington, librarian. Here, cheese is probably Hindustani chiz, thing: cf. cheese, n. See sub, n., 9.

subfusc. See sub-fusc.

subject normal! An exclamatory c.p. in allusion to (esp. the resumption of) smutty talk: Forces' (1939) >, ca. 1945, gen.

sublime, when ironical, is coll.: late C.19–20. E.g. 'sublime conceit'.

sublime rascal. A lawyer: ca. 1820–80. H., 3rd ed.

sublime to the gorbliney. See from the sublime...

submarine, n. An after-hours drinking session: Old Scholars' Rugby Clubs': 1970s (Peppitt)—and prob. a decade earlier.—2. See torpedo, n. 2.

submarine, v.; mostly as vbl n. submarining, riding through tall grass: Northern Territory, Australia: since ca. 1942. Ernestine Hill, The Territory, 1951.

submarine dandruff. 'Cork particles shaken off deck-head insulation—a common failing, a real snowstorm if under depth-charge attack: RN: 1950s' (Peppitt).

Submarine Lancers, the. A fictitious unit: WW1 and 2. To an undersized would-be enlistee, the recruiting sergeant might say, 'Try the...'

submariners. 'Officers and men of the submarine service; it rhymes with mariners' (Granville): RN: since ca. 1941.

subs. In pair of subs, a pair of shoes: Glasgow lower classes':—1934. ? Ex submarines.—2. See battle the subs.

subscribe to the Bookies' Benefit; esp., be subscribing... To throw money away by betting recklessly or haphazardly on horses: C.20. (Petch, 1966.) Cf. for the widows and orphans.

subsee. Vegetables: army: late C.19—earlier 20. (B. & P.) Ex Hindustani.

substance. See shadow.

subtle. See TAVERN TERMS, §8, in Appendix.

subtle as a dead pig. Very ignorant or stupid: coll.?' ca. 1670–1720. Walker, 1672; Robertson, Phraseologia Generalis, 1681. Apperson.

suburb. The following phrases may be coll. verging on S.E. or wholly S.E.; they belong to ca. 1590–1680: suburb-garden, a keep's lodging, or a private 'harem'; suburb-humour, blackguardly humour; suburb justice, 'money is right'; suburb-trade, harlotry; suburb (wanton) tricks; suburb wench (occ. drab or sinner), a harlot; suburban roarer, a brothel bully; house in the suburbs, a brothel; and minion of the suburbs, a male keep.

such. E.P. included a number of entries about various misuses of such, 'incorrect' rather than coll. or s., which may be found expanded in his Usage and Abuse.

such, adj. An intensive, the criterion being vague and/or ignored: coll.: mid-C.16–20. Udall, ca. 1553, 'Ye shall not... marry... Ye are such... an ass'; 1900, W. Glyn,

'Where we stayed the night at such an inn!' (OED).—2. In as such, accordingly or consequently; thereupon: (rather illiterate) coll.: 1721. W. Fowler, 1814, '[She] motioned for me to come to her Highness. As such she addressed me in the most pleasant manner possible.' Ex as such, in that capacity. OED.—3. See no such.

such a dawg! A theatrical c.p. (1888–ca. 1914) applied to a tremendous 'masher'. (Ware.) Affected pron. of 'dog'.

such a few; such a many. So (very) few; so (very) many: coll.: from ca. 1840; ob. by 1930. Thackeray, 1841, 'Such a many things in that time' (OED).

such a reason my goose pissed or pissed my goose. A c.p. retort on anyone making an absurd excuse, giving an absurd reason: late C.18–mid-19. (Grose, 3rd ed.) See also when the goose ...

such a thing. See there is such a thing ...

such is life without a wife. A c.p. elab. of the world-old, world-wide truism 'Such is life': C.20. The addition bears little, if indeed any, relation to the facts.

suck, n. Strong drink: c.: late C.17–early 19. (B.E., Grose.) Hence, rum suck, excellent liquor. Ex suck, a small draught or drink.—2. A breast-pocket, says F. & H.; open to doubt.—3. A disappointing or deceptive incident, event, or result: US (1856), anglicised ca. 1890. Gen. suck-in, orig. US; anglicised ca. 1880. Ex suck in, v.—4. A toady: university: from ca. 1860; ob. (H., 2nd ed.) Ex sucker, q.v.—5. See sucks; but also a single sweet, as among Liverpool street arabs, late C.19–20. Arab.—6. The n. ex:— suck, the v. denoting the act of fellation, is more gen. suck off, which is low coll.: C.19–20. Not restricted—any more than suck is—to Lesbians.—2. See suckers.

suck-and-swallow. The puendum muliebrem: low: C.19–20. Cf. sucker, 4.

suck-bottle, -can, -pint, -pot, -spigot. A confirmed drunkard or tippler: coll. verging on S.E.: resp. mid-C.17–mid-18 (Brome), C.19, C.17–19 (Cotgrave), C.19–20 (ob.), and late C.16–17.

suck (one's) brains. See pick (one's) brains.

suck-casa. A public house: low: mid-C.19–20. (H., 1st ed., where it is spelt cassa.) Ex suck, n., 1+ casa, q.v.

suck-egg. A silly person: dial. (—1851) > s. (—1890). B. & L.—2. See teach (one's) grandmother to suck eggs.

suck (one's) face. To drink: low coll.: late C.17–mid-18. B.E. suck (one's) forefinger. To suck it and then, with it, draw a line round one's neck as a form of oath: lower classes' coll.—1923 (Manchon).

suck his hole! A low 'dovetail' or c.p. retort, on receiving 'Yes' to the question, 'Do you know So-and-so?': ca. 1870–1930. Cf. the mid-C.20 c.p. retort to the lead question 'Do you know such-and-such a place?': 'Well, up you from there!'

suck-hole, v. To toady, as in 'He won't suck-hole to anyone'; hence, to cringe: low Can.: C.20.

suck-holer. A toady: NZ low coll.: C.20. Cf. prec.

suck-in, n. See suck, n., 3.—2. V., to deceive; to cheat: dial. (—1842) >, by 1850, s. (orig. US; re-anglicised, as s., in late C.19). Ex suck in, to engulf in a whirlpool.

suck it and see! A derivative c.p. retort current in the 1890s. After going underground, it has been revived, ca. 1945–60, by Aus. children. (B., 1953.) P.B.: despite E.P.'s limit here, by no means † in UK, 1980.

suck-pint, -pot, -spigot. See suck-bottle.

suck the monkey. To draw liquor, esp. rum, from a cask with a straw through a gimlet hole: nautical: 1785 (Grose, 1st ed.); ob. by 1930. Cf. monkey, 3. See also tap the admiral.—2. To drink liquor from a bottle; hence, to tittle: gen. s.: 1797; ob.—3. To drink rum out of coconuts, from which the milk has been drawn off: nautical: 1833 (Marryat); ob. by 1930.

suck the mop. To be the victim of an omnibus 'nursing' exploit: ca. 1870–80. (H., 5th ed.) See nurse, v., in omnibus sense.—2. 'To wait on the cab-rank for a job': cabmen's:

—1889; ob. Ware.—3. In later C.20 coll., to be left sucking the mop is to be left, helpless and hopeless, the victim of any trick; to be left at complete disadvantage. (P.B.)

suck the sugar-stick. See sugar-stick.

suck up to. To insinuate oneself into another's favour; to toady to: schoolboys' s.:—1860 (H., 2nd ed.); Kipling, 1900, 'That little swine Manders ... always suckin' up to King'; Dorothy L. Sayers, 1932.

sucked orange. A very silly fellow: lower classes' coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Cf. suck-egg.

sucked that out of his (or her or ...) fingers, he (etc.) hasn't. He hasn't thought of that by himself—that's not his idea—he has authentic (or mysterious) information: c.p., mostly Cockneys': late C.19–20.

sucker. A parasite or sponger: US (1856); partly anglicised ca. 1890.—2. A greenhorn; a simpleton: coll.: US (1857), partly anglicised ca. 1895. Thornton.—3. Hence, in C.20, among tramps, one who gives money (not always derisive: F. Jennings); and among criminals, a prospective victim (Charles E. Leach).—4. The membrum virile: low: C.19–early 20.—5. A baby: lower classes' coll.: C.19–20. Bee; Manchon.—6. (Gen. pl.) A sweet: dial (—1823) >, by 1870, coll. (EDD). Cf. sucks.—7. A Lesbian; fellatrix: low coll.: C.19–20.—8. A person easily taken in or gulled; often, one who is aware of what is happening, as in 'Come on, let's go in! I always was a sucker for fairs and circuses': coll., the predominant sense since mid-C.20. (P.B.) suckers, adj. 'Without music ... life is incomplete. You know, it is ... suckers' (McCartney, II, 1980, song 'Bogey Music'): cited by Paul Janssen, who comments: 'This seems to be a Brit. var. of US s. "It sucks" (= to be a failure; be of poor quality; be unpleasant: W. & F., 1975).'

suckey. See sucky.

sucking Nelson. A midshipman: nautical coll.: from ca. 1820; ob. Lit., immature N.

sucking the hindtit. (Esp. in pool-rooms; but also gen. sporting.) Well behind or in arrears; low Can.: since ca. 1930.—2. To have a low priority: since the late 1930s. Nicholas Monsarrat, The Cruel Sea, 1951.

suckles is a joc. coll. spelling (? first printed in Galsworthy's Swan Song, 1928) of circles: as in the best suckles.

sucks. Sweetmeats: coll.: 1858 (T. Hughes). Lit., things to suck. Also, collective singular, as in a knob of suck (1865). OED. Cf. suction, 4, and suck, n., 5, q.v.

sucks! An 'expression of derision': Bootham School: C.20. (Bootham, 1925.) Cf. suck in, q.v. Also, and from ca. 1890, at other schools. Often sucks to you. E.F. Benson, David of King's, 1924, has sucks for —!, that's a disappointment for so-and-so! P.B.: sucks to ... may also be directed at others, e.g., 'Well, sucks to them! They can jolly well go without!' suckster; suckstress. A fellator; -atrix: low coll.: C.19–early 20.

sucky. Rather drunk: late C.17–19: c. >, ca. 1750, low s. (B.E. (suckey); Grose; Baumann.) Ex suck, n., 1, q.v.—2. Very painful: Scottish Public Schools': ca. 1915. R.S. cites Bruce Marshall, Prayer for the Living, 1934. P.B.: causing one to suck in one's cheeks?

suction. The drinking of (strong) liquor; drinking: 1817 (Scott: OED).—2. Hence (—1887; nautical, says Baumann), strong drink.—3. The phrases power of suction, capacity for 'booze' (Dickens, 1837); live on suction, to drink hard (—1904).—4. Sweetmeats: Winchester: late C.19–20. (Wrench.) Cf. sucks.

suction raid. Such a bombing attack on enemy concentrations just ahead of the Allied armies as was 'designed to create a vacuum and suck the brown jobs forward' (P-G-R.): RAF: 1943–5.

sudden. Swift; efficient; esp., swift and efficient: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1940. (B., 1953.) 'This use is pure Shakespeare. Julius Caesar, III, i, "Casca, be sudden, for we fear prevention"' (R.S.).—2. Hence, brutally drastic; brutal: Aus.: since ca. 1940. (B., 1959.) See sudden death on.—3. See this is so sudden!

sudden death. A decision by one throw (not, e.g., by two out of three): 1834, (Maginn).—2. Hence, a decision by one game, as in lawn tennis when the set-score is 5-all: C.20: s. >, by 1930, coll. Collinson.—3. A fowl served as a spatchcock: Anglo-Indian: 1848 (Y. & B.).—4. A crumpet or a Sally Lunn: university:—1874; ob. H., 5th ed.—5. Coffee: Cockneys': late C.19—20; ob. E. Pugh, The Cockney at Home, 1914.—6. A kind of plain boiled pudding: proletarian: from ca. 1880. B. & L.—7, 8. "Sudden death" had two meanings. A front living-room that opens [directly] on to the street, and... a quick curtain' (Michael Warwick, The Stage, 3 Oct. 1968): theatrical, esp. among touring-company actors: the former sense, ca. 1880—1930; the latter, since ca. 1870 and not yet (1976) †.

sudden death on. Expert at (something); brutal or unnecessarily or extremely severe towards (someone): Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Ex prec., 1, 2. See sudden, 2, prob. a shortening of this.

suds. Ale; beer: army, early C.20 (F. & G.); by ca. 1930, Aus. (B.P.). Either ex 'bubbles on ale likened to soap-suds' (E.P.) or from:—2. In in the suds, fuddled, slightly drunk: ca. 1765—80. (OED.)? Ex:—3. In in the suds, in a difficulty; perplexed: from ca. 1570: S.E. until C.18, then coll.; in C.19, s. Swift; Grose, 1st ed.—4. In Mrs Suds, a washerwoman: coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

sudser, sudster. A 'soap opera', q.v.: the 2nd, BBC, hence world of entertainment in gen., since early 1970s; the 1st in Time Out, 21 Dec. 1979. Ex 'soap suds'; perhaps cf. (the 2nd) P.G. Wodehouse's custler, a cow. (E.P.; P.B.).

sue for (one's) livery. See TAVERN TERMS, §9, in Appendix.

sued up. See sued up.

suet(ty) Isaac. Suet pudding: c.:—1904; ob. by 1930. Also soapy Isaac. Ex sallowness.

Suez canals. Suez Canal shares: Stock Exchange coll.:—1887 (Baumann).

suff. Enough: NZ: ca. 1880—1920. 'I've 'ad suff o'you, Tommy, I'm goin' 'ome' (G.B. Lancaster, Sons o' Men, 1904). Short for sufficient.

suffer a recovery. 'To recover from a drinking bout' (Baker): Aus. joc.: C.20.

suffer much?, do you. A c.p. of mock pity: late C.19—early 20.

sufferer. A tailor: low: C.19. (W.T. Moncrieff, Tom and Jerry, 1821; H., 1st ed.)? The literal truth.—2. A sovereign (coin): 1848 (Sinks); † by 1900. Cf.:

sufferin'(g). A sovereign (coin): Cockneys': mid-C.19—20. Pugh.

suffering cats! An agonised c.p. directed at bad, or very shrill, singing: from ca. 1870. Ex caterwauling.

suffier. A (seeming) drunkard taking part in versing law (swindling with false gold): c.: late C.16—early 17. (Greene.) Perhaps ex Netherlands High German Suff, 'the drink'. The N.H.G. word could well have been imported in the late 16th century' (L.W. Forster, letter, 1938).

Sufflok bang. An inferior, excessively hard, cheese: nautical coll.: C.19. Brown.

Suffolk punch. See punch, n.

Suffolk stiles. Ditches: coll.: mid-C.17—early 18. (Fuller, 1662.) Cf. Essex stiles.

sug. See shug.

sugar. Money: low: 1862, Cornhill Magazine, Nov., 'We have just touched for a rattling stake of sugar at Brum.' Ex sugar and honey, q.v.—2. A grocer: lower classes':—1909 (Ware). Ex a principal commodity.—3. North(wards): Wood Wharf (West India Dock, London) dockers':—1935. E.g. 'a little more sugar, Tom (or Bill or Jack)!', called by the piler to the driver of the electric gantry. Ex the fact that the North quay of the West India Dock is regarded as 'the natural home for sugar storage.' (Very local, this: but included for the light it throws on the origin of s.)—4. Gen. a sugar, a cube or lump of sugar: coll.: C.20.—5. A term of address to a girl: from ca. 1930. Ex US. Gilt Kid, 1936.—6. Worthless banknotes: C.20.

Ex sense 1.—7. Inevitable nickname for men surnamed Cane, Kane, Cain: C.20.—8. The ski-ing was quite excellent in granulated snow, what is sometimes called Sugar, formed by one day of hot spring sun' (David Walker, Devil's Plunge, 1968); skiers': C.20.—9. (Also sugar lump.) The drug LSD 25, lysergic acid: drugs world: adopted, ca. 1965, ex US. Orig. taken on loaf-sugar. John Wyatt, Drugs, 1973; Home Office (the longer version).—10. In a little bit of sugar (for the bird), a premium, a bonus; an unexpected benefit or acquisition: low: 1897—ca. 1910. Ware.

sugar, v.i. To shirk while pretending to row hard: Cambridge University rowing:—1882 (F. Anstey, Vice Versa, transfers it, 'but although (to use a boating expression) he "sugared" with some adroitness...', to a ball game).—2. To tamper with (food); to fake (accounts); to give a specious appearance of prosperity to: from ca. 1890. (OED Sup.) Prob. suggested by 'cooking' accounts and 'salting' mines.—3. Hence, to dupe (a person): low:—1923 (Manchon). Cf. sugar (one's) milk, q.v.

sugar! A cry of triumph, uttered as one stands upon one leg and shakes the other up and down: ca. 1830—70. (Sinks, 1848.) Victory is sweet.—2. A euph. exclam., used instead of shit or bugger it, and owing something to both: C.20. Cf. sugared!, q.v.

sugar and honey. Money: rhyming s:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Cf. sugar, n.

sugar(-)baby. A member of the Australian militia: Aus. soldiers': 1940+. (B., 1942.) No service overseas: perhaps imm. ex:—2. A child averse from going outside the house while it's raining: domestic: late C.19—20. P.B.: from the taunt You're not made of sugar—you won't melt [in the rain]! sugar bag (or hyphenated or, usu., solid). (A nest of) native honey: water sweetened with it: Aus. rural coll.: late C.19—20. B., 1943.

sugar-basin. The female pudend: low: mid-C.19—early 20. Cf. sugar-stick.—2. A marble mason: builders' and masons' rhyming s.: C.20. (A master-builder, 1963.)

sugar bat. A sugar-cane cutter: Aus. cane-cutters': since ca. 1910. (Jean Devanney, Paradise Flow, 1938.) Perhaps for 'sugar-batterer'.

sugar boat's in; sugar boat's been sunk. RN c. pp., directed at the sweetness, or the non-sweetness of the tea: since ca. 1939. (P-G-R.) Cf. captured a sugar-boat...

sugar candy. Brandy: rhyming s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.); ob. by 1930.—2. As adj., handy: id.: C.20.

sugar daddy. An oldish man spending lavishly on a young woman: US, anglicised, via the 'talkies', ca. 1931. Cf. sugar, n., 1, q.v. E.P. added later: It may descend from C.17 Scotland in the more gen. sense 'dear old man' (father), as in 'Jock says he would fain see his sugar—in a letter by Mary Gray to her husband John Clerk of Penicuik, 18 Feb. 1651. (Communicated by Miss Diana Bullock.) Yet another reminder of how little we know about s. and coll. terms.

sugar (a man's) milk for him. To harm a person under the pretext of doing his work: workmen's:—1923 (Manchon). sugar on, be. To be much in love with (a person); non-aristocratic:—1887; † by 1930. (Baumann.) Punning be sweet on.

sugar-shop. 'A head centre of bribery', electioneering:—1909; ob. (Ware.) Ex sugar, n., 1.

sugar-stick. Penis: low: late C.18—early 20. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Whence suck the sugar-stick, sexually to take a man. Cf. sugar-basin.

Sugar-Stick Brigade, the. The Army Service Corps: army:—1904; † by 1915. P.B.: there may be confusion here with the Barley Sugar Brigade, q.v., for John Aye, Humour in the Army, 1931, applies Sugar-Stick Brigade to the Royal Army Ordnance Corps, so called 'from the peculiar red and white piping of their braid'.

sugar up. To flatter (a person): coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Cf. butter up.

sugared! I'm or I'll be. I'm damned!; it connotes (profound) astonishment or (great) perplexity: from ca. 1890. (Anon., Troddles, 1901.) Euph. for bugged; cf. sugar!

sugarer. A funkier; a shirker, esp. at rowing: C.20. (OED Sup.) See sugar, v., 1.

suicide. Four horses driven in a line: Society and sporting: ca. 1860–1900. H., 3rd ed.—2. In Aus. the word has, to motorists, borne, since ca. 1945, the meaning treated by B.P. in this note, written in June 1963: 'The "cide" of a truck which should not be used for overtaking. In Australia and in Britain, this is the left. "Suicide" and "Passing Side" are often painted on the back of a truck. Also "Undertaker" on the left and "Overtaker" on the right. "Undertaker" is not used in Australia, but it is universally known.... Another motorists' phrase is, "Look out for the driver on your right and the fool on your left".'

suicide blonde. Dyed by her own hand: Aus. joc.: since ca. 1950. (B.P.) The pun is quite known in Brit. too (P.B.)

suicide brigade, the. Those fieldiers who stand very close to the man batting; cricketers': since ca. 1930. (Not, however, to Hammond, Constantine, Bradman, Compton, Nourse.) Cf.: suicide club (or S.C.), the. Machine-gunners, battalion stretcher-bearers, or, esp., bombers: military coll.: late 1915; ob. (F. & G.) Because theirs was dangerous work.—2. In join the suicide club, 'To undertake any dangerous duty' (Bowen): RN coll.: WW1.

suit. 'Game', 'lay'; method, trick; pretence; imposition: c. of ca. 1810–50. Vaux, who also notes upon the suit, in the (specified) manner.—2. A watch and seals: c. of ca. 1830–90. (Ainsworth.) Ex S.E. suit, a complete set.—3. See birthday suit.

suit and cloak. A 'good store of Brandy or any other agreeable Liquor, let down Gutter-lane' (B.E.): c.: late C.17–early 19.

suit (one) as a saddle suits a sow. To suit, become, fit ill; be very incongruous: coll.: C.18–19. Swift, who has become for suit.

suit (one's) book. To be opportune, very suitable: coll. (—1851) >, by 1890, S.E. Prob. ex betting.

suit (one) down to the ground. See ground, 2.

suit of mourning. A pair of black eyes: ca. 1820–80. Egan's Grose.

suitable case for treatment, a. A politely coll. way of indicating 'it's time you were certified [insane]' (cf. certified). Orig. psychiatrists' j., it formed the sub-title of the film Morgan, 1966; a decade later, in Listener, 21 July 1977, Elaine Morgan wrote 'assumed [of virgins] that they must have seen something nasty in the woodshed [see something nasty] and, therefore, constitute a suitable case for treatment.' The sense widened, so that a Radio Times article in the same week could be headed 'Glasgow: a Suitable Case for Treatment'. (P.B.) suite. See suit, 1.

suji-muji. See souji-mouji.

sukey. A kettle: low:—1823 (Bee); ob. by 1930.? origin: cf. Welsh Gipsy šukar, to hum, to whisper.—? hence, 2, a general servant or 'slavery': from ca. 1820; ob. Ex Sukey, a lower-class diminutive of Susan, a name frequent among servants.—3. Hence, sukey-tawdry, a slatternly woman in fine tawdry: ca. 1820–50. Bee.—4. Perhaps hence, a simpleton: mid-C.19–20.

sulky stander. An unfair wrestler: sporting: ca. 1805–60. Blackwood's, Dec. 1823 (Moe).

Sullivanise. To defeat thoroughly: sporting: late 1880s–1890s. Ex John L. Sullivan (1858–1918), that American who dominated the heavy-weights from 1882, when he won fame, until 1892, when Jim Corbett ended his career. In Oct. 1887 he visited England, where he was received by the Prince of Wales and idolised by the crowd. He battered his opponents into unconsciousness, the police often having to interfere.

sulphur. Pungent or lurid talk: 1897 (OED): s. >, by 1920, coll. Slightly ob. Because sulphurous. Cf. sense 2 of-sultry. Indelicate: 1887, Kipling, 'sultry stories' (OED): s. >, by 1920, coll.—2. Hence (of language), lurid: 1891, 'Sultry language' (OED): s. >, by 1910, coll. Cf. sulphur.—3. Uncomfortable, lively, 'hot': 1899, Conan Doyle, 'I shall make it pretty sultry for you' (OED).

sum. An arithmetical problem to solve which one must apply a rule; such a problem solved: coll.: C.19–20. Dickens, 1838, has 'Sums in simple interest' (OED). P.B.: by mid-C.20, if not much earlier, informal S.E.—2. As exclam., = adsum! ('I am present', at any roll-call): Public Schools' coll.: mid-C.19–earlier 20.

sumjao. To warn, correct, coerce: Anglo-Indian coll.: 1826. Ex Hindustani. Y. & B.

summa. An honours degree awarded 'Summa cum laude' (with the highest praise): academic coll.: (? mid-) C.19–20.

summat. Something; joc, use of dial. pron., for humorous effect: C.20. (P.B.)

summer-blink. A gleam of sunlight on a day of bad weather: nautical coll.: C.20. Bowen.

summer-cabbage. An umbrella; a parasol: low; and fast life: ca. 1810–45. (Egan's Grose.) Cf. greens, q.v.—2. A woman, according to F. & H., but is this so? If correct, later C.19.

summer uniform. 'Mackintosh and leggings' (McKenna, glossary, 1970): railwaymen's ironic: mid-C.20.

summerhead. A sun-umbrella: Anglo-Indian coll.: 1797 (OED). Corrupted sombrero.

summons. To summon legally: late C.18–20: S.E. till C.20, then a sol.

sump oil. Hair oil: Aus. esp. Sydney, motor mechanics': since ca. 1940. (B.P.)

sumpsy. An action of assumpsit: legal: from ca. 1860. H., 3rd ed.

sun. Short form of sunflower (Anderson).—2. As Sun, a Short Sunderland flying-boat: RAF: 1939+. Jackson.—3. In have been in the sun; have (got) the sun in (one's) eyes, to be drunk: resp. 1737 (Franklyn) and 1840, Dickens, have; have got not before ca. 1860. Also have been standing too long in the sun (—1874). Cf. sunshine. Ex sun-dazzle or -drowsiness.—4. See taste the sun.

sun-arc. See MOVING-PICTURE SLANG, §3, in Appendix.

sun-bonnet. A type of steel helmet, esp. designed for fireguards and other civilian anti-air-raid services, which came into use 1941. Illus. in Norman Longmate, How We Lived Then, 1971, about civilian life in Brit. during WW2. (P.B.)

sun-dodger. A heliographer: army: 1900, Illustrated Bits, 22 Dec. P.B.: cf. the WW2+ use of suffix -basher, e.g. morse-basher.—2. An extremely lazy tramp: Aus.: since ca. 1910. B., 1942.

sun-dog. A mock sun: nautical coll. verging on S.E.: from ca. 1630.

sun into (a horse's) coat, get the. To allow a horse to rest from formal racing; hence, (of a trainer) to save oneself trouble: racing, from ca. 1880; †. Standard, 25 or 26 June 1889: a forensic speech by Sir Charles Russell.

sun is scorching your eyes out, the. See scorching your eyes out.

sun over the foreyard. Time for drinking in the wardroom. Eight bells in the forenoon watch: mid-day. It is a traditional Naval convention never to drink before the sun clears the foreyard' (Granville): RN: C.20. P.B.: ignorant civilians sometimes substitute yardarm, in mock-navalese: 'Sun's over the yardarm—break open the gin!' for 'let's have a drink'. sunbeam. Crockery and cutlery that, placed on the table, hasn't been used and therefore doesn't need to be washed: domestic, mainly feminine, Aus.: since ca. 1950; s. >, by 1970, coll. (Aus. Pocket Ox. Dict., 1976.) A ray of sunshine in the midst of drudgery.

sunburnt. Having many (orig. and esp., male) children: late C.17–early 19. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) Punning son. —2. 'Clapped': ca. 1720–1890. (A New Canting Dict., 1725.) Punning burnt.

Sunday; morning; midday; evening. Newspaper (and -vendors') coll. for a Sunday paper; one issued in the early morning, at noon, after noon: late C.19–20.—2. See look both or mine or two ways for Sunday.

Sunday, v. To spend Sunday (with a person): Society coll.—1909 (Ware); ob. by 1930.

Sunday-afternoon courting-dress. (Of servant-girls) best clothes: lower classes' coll.:—1887 (Baumann).

Sunday best. See in her Sunday...

Sunday clothes on, the old man has got his. A low c.p. indicating an erectio penis: from ca. 1880. In allusion to starched.

Sunday dog: 'An indolent sheep or cattle dog' (B., 1941): Aus. and NZ rural coll.: C.20. Every day a Sunday.

Sunday face. The buttocks: low: later C.19—early 20.

Sunday flash togs. (Of men) best clothes: low:—1880 (Ware).

Sunday girl. A week-end mistress: ca. 1890–1915.

Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes and togs. Sunday clothes: resp. coll. (C.20) and s. (1894, Baring-Gould: OED). By joc. amplification of Sunday clothes. Cf. Sunday-afternoon courting-dress, q.v.

Sunday Graffiti, the. The Sunday Graphic, a pictorial newspaper: ca. 1945–60. This defunct newspaper was more reputable than its nickname would imply.

Sunday man. 'One who goes abroad on that day only, for fear of arrests' (Grose, 1st ed.): from ca. 1780; ob.: coll. >, ca. 1850, S.E.—2. A prostitute's bully: low: from ca. 1880. Because he walks out with her on that day.

Sunday-mopper. An employee that, to increase his earnings, does others' Sunday work: workmen's:—1923 (Manchon).

Sunday out (, one's). A domestic servant's monthly or alternate Sunday free: from late 1850s: coll. till ca. 1920, then S.E. (Orig. a servants' term.)

Sunday Pic, the. The Sunday Pictorial: journalists' coll.: C.20.

Sunday promenader. See once-a-week man.

Sunday Punch, The. The Church Times: Clerical coll. nickname: ca. 1885–1900. Ex the wittiness of the 'answers to correspondents'.

Sunday saint. One who, having been dissolute all the week, turns respectable and sanctimonious on Sunday: coll.: from ca. 1870. Cf. Scottish Sunday face.

Sunday sidings. 'Sidings compelling Sunday clearance' (Railway, 2nd): railwaymen's coll.: C.20.

Sundayfied. Suitable to Sunday; in Sunday clothes: coll. >, by 1920, S.E.: 1899 (OED).

Sundayish. Rather like, or as on, Sunday: 1797: coll. >, by C.20, S.E. OED.

Sunday. See month of Sundays; when two Sundays...

Sunderland fitter. The Knave of Clubs: joc. N. Country coll.:—1847 (Halliwell).

sundowner. A tramp habitually arriving at a station too late for work but in time to get a night's shelter and a ration: Aus. coll. >, by 1910, S.E.: 1875 (Miss Bird); 1926, Jice Doone, 'The word is now almost obsolete, swaggie being the term almost universally in use.' (See esp. Morris.) Hence sundowning, this practice: Aus. coll.: from ca. 1890. Kinglake.—2. A drink taken at or about sundown: India, Singapore, the E. Indies, Aus.: late C.19–20. (Geoffrey Goror, letter, 1938.) Also S. and E. Africa: late C.19–20. (Mrs C. Raab, 1982.)—3. (Ex sense 1.) A lazy sheepdog or cattle-dog: Aus. C.20. Baker.

sunflower. A girl; a young lady: beatniks': since ca. 1959. (Anderson.) Perhaps 'flowering for the sons'.

sunk. See nunk.

sunk, adj. Ruined; 'finished': mid-C.19–20: coll. >, by 1960, S.E.

Sunlight. See don't worry...

sunny bank. A good fire in winter: coll.: late C.17—early 19. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) Ex the warmth, with pun on banking a fire.

sunny side up. 'An egg fried so that it is done on one side only, the yolk not broken, and not turned over' (Leechman): since ca. 1920: Can. >, by 1942, also Eng.

sunny south. The mouth: rhyming s.: 1887 (Referee, 7 Nov.). Cf. synon. north and south, the more usu. C.20 version.

sun's high lad. A smart fellow: tailors': 1928 (Tailor and Cutter, 29 Nov.). An elab. of bright lad.

Sunset Strip. The number 77 in the game of Bingo: bingo operators' and players': since ca. 1964; by 1968, already ob. (Anthony Burgess, Listener, 2 Mar. 1967.) Topical—ex a TV series, '77 Sunset Strip'; cf. the earlier call, 'All the sevens—crutches!'

sunshade. 'A superstructure on a tank to disguise it as a truck. It was "ditched" before going into action' (Peter Sanders, Sunday Times mag., 10 Sep. 1967): Army in N. Africa: 1940–43. Humorous.

Sunshades, or s. The Sunehales Extension of the Buenos Aires and Rosario Railway Company shares: Stock Exchange: late C.19—early 20.

sunshine. A cheerful form of address to a child, or an ironic one to a gloomy person: coll.: C.20. (P.B.)—2. In to have been in the sunshine, to be drunk: 1857 (George Eliot); as early as 1816 in dial.(EDD). Cf. sun, 2.

sunshine track, on the. On tramp in remote country districts: C.20. Aus. coll. >, by 1930, S.E. B., 1942.

sunspottery. The science of solar spots: astronomers':—1887 (Baumann).

sup. A supplement: coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

sup(e). A var. of super, 1 (H., 1st ed.), 3 (1824, OED), 4 (—1904, F. & H.), 6 (—1904, F. & H., esp. supe and slang, watch and chain), qq.v., and 8 (C.20), e.g. set-room supe [rvisor]: army signals units': later C.20 (P.B.).

super. A supernumerary: 1853 ('Cuthbert Bede': OED): theatrical s. >, ca. 1880, coll.—2. A supernumerary on a ship, i.e. a supercargo: nautical s. (1866) >, ca. 1890, coll.—3.

Ex senses 1 and 2, a supernumerary in gen.: coll.: from ca. 1880.—4. A superintendent of a station: NZ (1853: B., 1941) and Aus. s. (1870, Lindsay Gordon) >, ca. 1900, coll.

Morris.—5. A police superintendent, esp. in address: coll.: mid-C.19–20.—6. (Also souper.) A watch c.: from late 1850s.

Ware derives it from soup-plate, hence souper, hence super.

Hence bang a super, to steal a watch by breaking the ring: c.: late C.19–20. H. Hapgood, 1903 (OED). See also super-screwing—7.

Superphosphate: farmers' and seed-merchants': C.20—8. Super has, increasingly throughout C.20, been used of any superintendent or supervisor: coll.

Cf. 4 and 5; see supe—9. Superannuation pension: Aus. coll.: later C.20. B.P. cites Alex Buzo, Rooted, prod. 1969, pub. 1973: 'Oh, I'm with the public service... it's a pretty soft cop.

The money's good. Plenty of super.' Cf. super-ann.

super, v. To be a 'super', sense 1; often as vbl n., supering (1889, OED).—2. See super list.

super, adj. Superficial (in measurement; gen. after the n.): trade coll.: 1833, T. Hook, 'At so much per foot, super' (OED).—2. Superfine: trade coll.: from ca. 1840. Bischoff, Woolen Manufacture, 1842 (OED).—3. Extremely strong, capable, intelligent: from ca. 1910. (See esp. Fowler.) Ex superman. Cf. wizard, q.v.—4. Hence excellent, 'swell': from ca. 1925. R. Keverne, The Man in the Red Hat, 1930, 'He was staying at the "Beach". Very super.' Since WW2 it has been immensely popular among school children and teenagers—and even [? esp.: P.B.] among 'debs', as in Haden-Guest, 1971: 'Now... that deb slang ("Soopah!") is only heard in the glummet of bedsitters.' P.B.: a mainly middle- and upper-class usage; working classes prefer smashing.

super-ann. Superannuation pension contributions: coll.: later C.20. 'All these things taking bites out of your pay: PAYE, super-ann, union dues...' (P.B.)

super-duper (pron. sooper-doooper). An intensive of super, adj., 4: schoolgirls' and teenagers': 1947 +; by 1957, slightly ob. P.B.: but still extant, 1983.

super-grass. 'In the late 1970s the variant [of grass, n., 6] super-grass has emerged in the media for an informer instrumental in breaking up large and powerful criminal rings' (R.S., 1978).

super list, be on the. To be marked for supersession (Turley); more gen., be supered, to be superseded: at certain Public Schools: from the 1880s. Charles Turley, Godfrey Marten, Schoolboy, 1902, "I have been in Lower Fourth exactly four terms," he went on, "and my people are getting sick, and Sandy says I shall be 'supered' in a term or two."

super-master. Superintendent of the supers: theatrical: from ca. 1860. B. & L.

super-screwing. Watch-stealing: c.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Ex twisting handles off. See super, n., 6.

super-snooper. There are also the periodic purges by the "super-snoopers", as the special [Dept. of Health & Social Services] inspectors are called' (New Society, article on unemployed young people in N.E. England, 2 June 1983).

super-snooper. 'A helicopter with a camera which can take close-up pictures of people's faces from one kilometre away' (Time Out, 25 July 1980): security forces', N. Ireland.

super sorrow. Very sorry, as in 'Oh! super sorrow': several British preparatory schools': ca. 1960–5. See also sorrow!

super-super bastard. A mean, bullying, tyrannical fellow: c., and low s.: from ca. 1910. James Spenser, Limey Breaks In, 1934, 'This warder was another of the variety known amongst prison populations as super-super bastards.'

supercharged, ppl. adj. Drunk: aircraft engineers' and RAF: from late 1920s. Daily Herald, 1 Aug. 1936; Jackson.

supered, be. See super list.

Superfine Review, The the Saturday Review: literary: ca. 1863–1910. Thackeray-coined.

supering. See super, v.

superintendent (or supervisor) of the sidewalk. A pedestrian standing, esp. if habitually standing, on the sidewalk (or pavement or footpath and what-have-you) and gazing up at a new building in the course of construction: Aus.: adopted, ca. 1956, ex US (B.P.) Cf. inspector...

superjam. 'Slackers were likely to be asked to leave—"superjammed", in the Wykehamist vocabulary' (Reginald Pound, A.P. Herbert, 1976, writing of the 1900s): Winchester.

supernacular. (Of liquor) excellent: 1848 (Thackeray: OED): ob. Ex:

supernaculum. A liquor to be drained to the last drop; excellent liquor; excellent anything: from ca. 1640 (see TAVERN TERMS, §2, in Appendix); ob. by early C.20. W. King, 1704, 'Their jests were Supernaculum'; Grose, 1st ed. ('Good liquor'). Ob. by 1930. Ex the adv., q.v. Cf. supernacular. —2. Hence, a draught that utterly empties cup or glass: 1827 (Disraeli: OED).—3. A full glass: mid-C.19—early 20.

supernaculum, adv., occ., C.16, -nagulum, -neg, and, C.17, -naculum, -nagulum. To the last drop: late C.16–20; ob. Nashe, 1592, 'Drinking super nagulum, a devise of drinking new come out of France'; B.E.; Edinburgh Review, 1835. Ob. Ex the practice of placing one's upturned glass on the left thumb-nail, to show that not a drop has been left: a mock-L., translation of the Ger. auf den Nagel (trinken). Cf. Fr. boire rubis sur l'ongle (W.).—2. Often elliptically, as in Cotton, 1664, and fig., as in Jonson, 1598, '[Cupid] plaies super nagulum with my liquor of life.'

supersmagative. First-rate; 'splendid'; excellent: Aus. and NZ: from ca. 1890; ob. Perhaps ex superfine on supernacular, q.v., but prob. fanciful on superlative.

superstitious pie. A minced or a Christmas pie: a Puritan or Precisian nickname: late C.17—mid-18. (B.E.) Because, by Puritans, made some weeks before Christmas.

supouch. An inn-hostess; a landlady: c.: late C.17–18. (B.E., Grose.)? origin, unless ex sup, n. + (to) pouch.

supped all (one's) porridge, have. No longer to suffer with one's teeth: lower classes' coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

supper. In give the old man his supper, (of a woman) to copulate: low: late C.19—earlier 20. Cf.:—2. In warm the old man's supper, (of a woman) to sit, skirts raised, before the fire: id.—3. In set (one) his supper, to perform a feat that another cannot imitate, let alone surpass: coll.:—1891 (J.M. Dixon's dict. of idiomatic Eng.).

supple both ends of it. To abate a priapism: low Scots: late C.18–20.

Supple Twelfth, the. The 12th Lancers: army: from the Peninsular War; ob. by early C.20. and † with the regt's amalgamation with the 9th Royal Lancers in 1960. Ex dashing conduct at Salamanca (Carew).

Supply Chief. A Supply Chief Petty Officer: since ca. 1920: RN coll.: by 1940, virtually j. Granville.

suppo. A suppository, whether anal or vaginal: medical and pharmaceutical coll.: since ca. 1935.

suppose or I suppose. Nose: rhyming s. See I suppose. (Manchon has the abbr.)

suppose or supposing, introductory of a proposal or a suggestion, is coll.: resp. 1779 and late C.19–20. R. Bagot, 1908, 'By the way, supposing you were to drop "uncle-ing" me?' (OED).

Supreme Examples of Allied Confusion. South-East Asia Command (SEAC): coined by the Americans, adopted, 1944, by the RN.

Surat. An adulterated or an inferior article: coll. (mostly Lancashire): 1863 (The Times 8 May); ob. by 1930. Surat cotton is inferior to US.

sure! Certainly!; with pleasure!; agreed!: coll.: early C.18, in England, whence it fled to the US; re-anglicised ca. 1910. Farquhar, in The Beaux' Stratagem, 1707 (cited by G.H. McKnight, English Words, 1923). P.B.: in later C.20. (? earlier), sometimes used ironically, in scornful disagreement.—2. In be sure!; I am (or I'm) sure!; you may be sure!, at end of sentence, these phrases when asseverative are coll.: 1830, N. Wheaton, 'To all my inquiries... I only received for answer—"I don't know, I'm sure"' (OED).—3. In for sure, as certain; for certain; indubitably: late C.16–20: S.E. until late C.19, then coll. Stevenson, 1883, 'Desperate blades, for sure' (OED). Cf. that's for sure!, that's certain: adopted, ca. 1958, throughout the Commonwealth, ex US.—4. In to be sure!, of course!: mid-C.17–20: S.E. until late C.19, then coll. Often used concessively: admitted!; indeed!: coll.: since mid-C.19.—5. In well, I'm sure! or well, to be sure!, I am surprised: coll.: 1840, Thackeray, "'Well, I'm sure!" said Becky; and that was all she said' (OED); well, to be sure!, app. not before late C.19.

sure and... be. (Only in infinitive or imperative.) To be careful to; not to fail to: coll.: from ca. 1890. 'Be sure and look!'

sure as... as. Very sure. Of these phrases, prob. only those are coll. of which the criterion-member or the gen. tone is familiar S.E. or coll. Thus, (as) sure as the Creed or one's creed is S.E., as is (as) sure as fate or death; but (as) sure as a gun (B. & Fletcher, 1622; Steele, 1703; Meredith, 1859) is coll., as are sure as eggs (Bridges, 1772), sure as eggs is eggs (Goldsmith), sure as God made little apples (late C.19–20; orig. dial.), sure as the devil is in London (mid-C.18), or in Ireland (early C.19: 'Jon Bee'), and the following in Ray, 1670, as sure as check, or Exchequer pay (ca. 1570–1620), as sure as a juggler's box (ca. 1650–1740), and as sure as a louse in bosom (late C.17–18), or, late C.17—mid-18, in Pomfret. (Apperson.) Schoolboys' s. of late C.19—early 20 had sure as mud (Eden Philpotts, 1899: OED). Contrast: sure as a mouse tied with a thread, as. Very far from sure: proverbial coll.: ca. 1540–1600. 'Proverbs' Heywood. (Apperson.) sure card. See card, 1.

sure find, a. A person, occ. a thing, sure to be found: coll.: 1838 (Thackeray). OED.

sure-fire. Certain; infallible: coll.; US anglicised ca. 1918. D.L. Sayers, Murder Must Advertise, 1933, 'He thought it was a sure-fire mascot.'

sure I don't know!, I'm. As asseverative tag, it is coll.: mid-C.19–20.

sure pop! Certainly!; 'sure!': children's:—1923 (Manchon).

sure thing! The same as sure!, q.v.: coll., orig. (1896) US; anglicised not later than 1910. OED Sup.

surely, with second syllable stressed, either = 'is it not so?'

or as a vague intensive, is a sol. when not dial. Dickens, 'And so it is, sure-ly' (OED).

surely me. A proletarian var. of to be sure!, sense 1: from ca. 1880. Ware (at cupboardary).

surf. An actor or musician or scene-shifter, who combines night-work at the theatre with some daily work outside: theatrical: from late 1850s. (H., 1st ed.)? pun on serf. —2. Hence, a parasite, toady, sponger: low:—1887 (Baumann); ob. by 1930.

surface, v.i. To wake: Wrens' (? after submariners'): since ca. 1939. Ex a submarine surfacing, P.B.: in later C.20 > widespread coll.; also as 'to get up, and appear', as 'Old Freddie doesn't usually surface till about noon.'

surface raiders. 'Southern Railway electrical multiple units' (Railway, 2nd): since ca. 1946.

surfacing, n. 'Searching for gold on the surface of the ground': Aus. coll.: late C.19–20. B., 1959.

surfie. A surfer, esp. a surfboard rider: 'not heard before 1961', says B.P., who, in mid-1963, adds that it's 'a term rarely used by genuine surfers'.

surgeon's bugbear. Adipose tissue: medical:—1933 (Slang, p. 193). Because, when cut, it bleeds in a way difficult to check.

surly as a butcher's dog, as. Extremely surly: coll.: late C.17–20; ob. (Ray; Spurgeon, 1869.) Because the animal gets so much meat to eat. Apperson, who gives also the Cheshire surly as a cow's husband.

surly boots. A grumpy, morose fellow: coll. verging on S.E.: C.18–20; ob. E.g. Combe, 1812. Cf. boots, 3, andsurly chops. A nautical var. of prec.:—1887 (Baumann).

surprise! surprise! Occ. as a genuine expression of astonishment, or 'Here's a nice surprise for you'; but more often sarcastically and/or in disappointment—the expected worst has happened: coll.: since ca. 1960. See esp. DCpp. (P.B.) See also quot'n at three whippets.

surprised? You could have fucked (politely, kissed) me through my olsskins. An ironic expression of non-surprise: Oxford University undergraduates': from ca. 1930; ob. by 1950. Prob. ex RN. See DCpp.

Surprisers, the. The 46th Foot Regiment, now the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry: military: 'dating from the American War, with special reference to the surprise of the enemy at White Plains in September, 1777' (F. & G.). Also known as the Red Featherers.

Surrey Docks. Pox (syphilis): rhyming s.: later C.20. Ex the large complex of commercial wharves at Rotherhithe in S.E. London. (Hillman, 1974.)

Surro. 'Surry Hills (Sydney) and Surrey Hills (Melbourne)': Aus.: since ca. 1930. B., 1953.

surtout. See wooden surtout.

surveyor of the highway(s). A person reeling drunk: late C.18—mid-19. Grose, 2nd ed.

surveyor of the pavement. A person in the pillory: late C.18—mid-19. Ibid.

surveyor's friend, the. Whitewash: RN: C.20. Bowen. Ex 'the amount used for marking points on shore'.

sus, n. 'The remains of the Praefects' tea, passed on to their valets in college': Winchester College: late C.18–19. (Wrench.) Ex dial. sus(s) or soos, hog wash.—2. (N. and adj.) A being suspected; suspected; (on) suspicion: c.: from ca. 1920. Gilt Kid, 1936, 'What you nick me for? Sus?' Cf. suspect.—3. Hence, arrest 'on suspicion': police and underworld >, by early 1970s, gen. coll. See sus law. —4. Hence, 'a person arrested for "being a suspected person loitering..."' (Powis): police: later C.20—5. See suss, n.

sus, v. See suss.

sus, adj. and adv. Suspicious(ly): c.: since ca. 1925. (Norman.)—2. (Adj.) suspect, esp. by the police: since ca. 1925; by 1960, also s. Robin Cook, 1962.

sus law, the. Later C.20 coll. for the Vagrancy Act, Section 4: 'Every suspected person or reputed thief frequenting or loitering about in any place of public resort ... with intent to commit an arrestable offence ... shall be deemed a rogue and a vagabond.' (P.B.)

sus. per coll. Hanged by the neck: ca. 1780–1850. (Grose, 1st ed.) Ex suspensus per collum (F. & H.; or suspensio ..., W.; or suspendatur ..., OED), the jailor's entry against a hanged man's name.

susancide. Self-murder: half-wits' joc.:—1909 (Ware). Ex Susy, pet form of Susan, and suicide.

susie. A sixpence, whether coin or value: turf c.:—1932. Perhaps Susie: by personification suggested by bob, a shilling. More prob. ex dial. suse, six: cf. the Lancashire suspence, sixpence (EDD).—2. (Or Suzie.) A Suzuki motorcycle, in production since 1936, but popular in UK only since ca. 1960: motorcyclists'. (Dunford).—3. See sister Susie.

suspect, for. For being a suspicious character; on suspicion of crime: c.: from ca. 1920. Gilt Kid, 1936, 'He got nicked for suspect.' Cf. sus, 2.—4.

suspence or suspence, in deadly. Hanged: ca. 1780–1860. Grose, 1st ed.

suspicion. A very small quantity; a minute trace: 1809 (Malkin: OED): coll. >, ca. 1880, S.E. Trollope, 1867, 'He was engaged in brushing a suspicion of dust from his black gaiters.' Ex Fr. soupçon; cf. Fr. larne and spot, n., 1.

suspish (accent on ish, unlike the pron. of, e.g., waspish). A suspicion: C.20. (Frederick Manning, Her Privates We, 1930.) Esp. under suspish, under suspicion (by the police): Aus.: from ca. 1925. Cf. ambish for ambition.

suss, n. See sus. But suss has since WW2, been the prevalent spelling. In New Society, 7 July 1977, Gavin Weightman uses suss thus: 'She is always liable to be arrested for "suss" (suspected person); when he has been arrested, it has mostly been on "suss" [= sus, n., 3]; [three West Indian pickpockets] are all frightened of "suss"'.—2. Knowledge, as in 'The kids up there, they'd never seen anything like it. I mean, they've got a lot of suss and all that, but they all surged to the front of the stage, went mad' (a young Londoner's comment on 'Spandau Ballet's' performance in Birmingham, quoted in New Society, 8 Jan. 1981). Ex suss out.

suss, v. To suspect: c.: from ca. 1920.—2. To put right; to repair, as 'Got a puncture on the M1, but I soon sussed it': later C.20. Loosely ex next, 1. (P.B.) suss out. To puzzle out, work out (an explanation of): mostly teenagers': since 1965 or 1966. The Queen, 28 Sep. 1966, 'Youth susses things out on its own'. Cf. sus, adj. (With thanks to Anthony Burgess).—2. Hence, to ascertain, to spy out (e.g., site of a planned outrage): since latish 1960s. Daily Telegraph, 5 Oct. 1974 (R.S.).

sussed. 'Arrested as a suspected person loitering' (Powis). See sus, n., 3.

Sussex bang. A dare-devil, a hellion: Anglo-Irish: C.19. (Bill Truck, Dec. 1825, p. 710.) But why Sussex?

Sussex half. See Cornish half.

Sussex weed(s). Oaks: Southern (esp. Sussex) coll.: C.20. A.S. Cooke, Off the Beaten Track in Sussex, 1911, 'Among the "Sussex weed"' (Apperson.)

susso. The dole; esp. on the suosso, 'in receipt of unemployment sustenance' (B., 1942): Aus.: since ca. 1925.

sussy. Suspicious: since ca. 1940. L.J. Cunliffe, Having It Away, 1965, 'It seemed a bit sussy to me.'

sut. Satisfactory; fortunate: tailors': from ca. 1870. 'corruption of sat(isfactory)'.—2. As exclam. it = 'good!' or 'serve you right!': late C.19–20. Tailor and Cutter, 28 Nov. 1928.

sutler. 'He that Pockets up, Gloves, Knives, Handkerchiefs, Snuff and Tobacco-boxes, and all the lesser Moveables' (B.E.): c. of late C.17—early 19. Ex military sense.—2. See TAVERN TERMS, §6, in Appendix.

suzie. See susie.

swab, n. A naval officer's epaulette: nautical joc. or pej.: since ca. 1780. The derivative sense 'a naval officer' occurs in Charles Dibdin's 'Jack at the Windlass', Britannic Magazine (1, 25), 1793, 'And there's never a swab but the captain knows the stem from the stern of the ship'; also in W.N. Glascock,

S Naval Sketch-Book, II, 1826 (Moe). Ex the shape of a swab, anything for mopping up. See ship a swab.—2. A spill; a spilling: Bootham School:—1925. See the v.—3. A dining-hall fatigue man: army, esp. Guards': since ca. 1920. He swabs it out. P.B.: earlier, in S. African War, ca. 1900. See ARMY SLANG, verse 2, line 4, in Appendix.—4. A fag: Christ's Hospital (School):? ca. 1840–1960. Perhaps the origin of sense 3.—5. See Swabs; take a swab.

swab, v. To spill; to splash: Bootham School: earlier C.20. (Bootham.) Ex swabbing a deck. Cf.:—swab-betty. 'A woman who washes floors, etc.' (Ibid.): id. Ex prec.

swab (one's) tonsils. To kiss passionately: adopted, ex low US, ca. 1920.

swabber, swobber. (Gen. pl.) In whist, the Ace of Hearts, Knave of Clubs, and the Ace and Deuce (2) of Trumps: late C.17—early 19: coll. >, by 1750, S.E. First recorded in B.E. Prob. ex S.E. sense.—3. See TAVERN TERMS, §7, in Appendix. Swabs (or Swobs), the. 'To soldiers of other regiments the South Wales Borderers were known as "The Swabs", but they were not overkeen on this nickname. Much more to their liking was the nickname "Howard's Greens"' (Carew): army: late C.19—1969, then nostalgically. Ex initials S.W.B. (P.B.) swabtail. A 'rascal': RN lowerdeck joc.: earlier C.20. 'Taf-trail', Sea Spray, 1917.

swack. A deception, whereas swack-up (H., 3rd ed.) is a falsehood: mid-C.19—20.—2. Also v.t., swack up, to deceive. All: Christ's Hospital (School): from ca. 1860. Perhaps cognate with Scottish swack, supple, smart, or swack, a whack.

swad. A soldier: dial. and c. >, mid-C.19, s.: C.18—20; ob. in s. by 1910. (The Memoirs of John Hall, 1708; Grose, 2nd ed.; Smyth, 1867, 'A newly raised soldier'.) In late C.19—early 20, esp. a militiaman. Perhaps ex swad, a bumpkin, a lout. Cf. swadkin and swaddy, qq.v., and:

swad-gill. A soldier: low s. (—1812) and dial.; † in s. by 1860. (Vaux, who spells it swad-gill.) Ex prec. + gill, a fellow.

swadder. A pedlar: c. of ca. 1565–1750. (Harman, B.E.) In C.18, esp. of a pedlar given to robbery with violence (A New Canting Dict., 1725). Perhaps cognate with swad as a term of abuse. Cf. swaddler, 4, q.v.

swaddie. See swaddy, and squaddie.

swaddle. To beat soundly; to cudgel: coll.: ca. 1570–1840. Ca. 1570, Anon., 'Thy bones will I swaddle, so have I blisse'; Dryden; B.E., 'I'll Swaddle your Hide'; Scott. Ex swaddle, to bandage.

swaddler. A Methodist: a coll. (mainly Anglo-Irish) nickname from ca. 1745. C. Wesley, Journal, 10 Sep. 1747, where the anecdotal origin is given (OED); Grose; The Academy, 11 May 1889.—2. Hence, a Methodist preacher, esp. in Ireland: coll.: C.19.—3. Any Protestant: Anglo-Irish coll.: from ca. 1870. H., 5th ed.—4. (Often swadler.) A member of the 10th Order of the underworld: c. of late C.17—early 19. B.E.; Grose, 1st ed., 'who not only rob, but beat, and often murder passengers'. Ex swadder, q.v., on swaddle, q.v.

swaddling, vbl n. See swaddle, v.—2. Methodism; conduct (supposed to be) characteristic of Methodists: coll.: mid-C. See swaddler, n., 1.—3. Adj., Methodist: coll.: mid-C.18–20; 18—early 19, ob. In C.19—20, Protestant in gen.: likewise coll. swaddy; swaddie, swoddy. A soldier: low >, ca. 1860, naval and military s.: C.19–20. Vaux, 1812; Smyth, 1867, 'A discharged soldier', with which cf. Smyth on swadkin, q.v. Ex swad, n., q.v. Among soldiers, in late C.19–20, gen. of a private and esp. as a term address: see chiefly B. & P. Cf. US swatty, and see also squaddie.

swadkin. A soldier: c. (1708, John Hall) >, ca. 1850, dial. and naval s. (—1867); as latter, ob. by 1930. Grose, 2nd ed.; Smyth, 'A newly raised soldier'. Diminutive of swad, q.v. Cf. swad-gill and swaddy.

swadler. See swaddler, 4.

swaffonder. See sixty-niner.

swag, n. A shop: c.:—1676; ob. (Coles, B.E., Grose.)? origin. (Cf. swag-shop, q.v.) Hence, a rum swag is a shop full of rich goods (B.E.): † by 1850—2. Imm. ex swag-shop, q.v.: one who keeps a 'swag-shop'; s. (? low): 1851 (Mayhew)—3. Any quantity of goods, esp. a pedlar's wares or a thief's booty, esp. as recently or prospectively obtained: c. (—1811) >, ca. 1850, low s. >, by 1890, gen. s. in the wider sense, any unlawful gains or acquisition. Lex Bal.; Vaux, who, like the preceding glossarist, notes the nuance, 'wearing-apparel, linen, piece-goods, &c.' as, in a robbery, distinguished from 'plate, jewellery, or more portable articles'—† by 1900; Dickens, 1938, 'It's all arranged about bringing off the swag, is it?' asked the Jew. Sikes nodded'; 'Pomes' Marshall; Edgar Wallace, passim. Perhaps ex dial. swag, a large quantity; prob. ex the swag or bag in which the booty is carried.—4. Imm. ex swag-shop, or the origin of swag-shop and therefore ex swag, 1: trade in small, trivial, or inferior articles: from ca. 1850. Mostly in combination (see, e.g., swag-shop); when by itself, it is gen. attributive, as in Mayhew, 1851, 'The "penny piece" or "swag" trade' (OED).—5. A tramp's (hence, miners' and others'), bundle of personal effects: 1852, Samuel Sidney, The Three Colonies of Australia, 'His leathern overalls, his fancy stick, and his swag done up in a mackintosh'; 1861, McCombie, Australian Sketches; 1902, Pall Mall Gazette, 2 July, 'The unmarried shearer, roaming, swag on back, from station to station'. Coll. >, ca. 1880, S.E. Ex sense 3, which Cunningham notes as established in Aus. before 1827. See esp. Morris. Hence, in go on the swag, to become a tramp: Aus. and NZ coll.: C.20. B., 1941 and 1943.—6. 'Prizes offered at games of skill' (B. Crocker in John o' London's Weekly, 19 Mar. 1937): showmen's: late C.19—20. Ex 3.—7. A state, trend or tendency of the betting: sporting, esp. pugilistic: ca. 1810–50. Boxiana, III, 1821, 'The scene was now changed—the Cockneys are alive: the swag is now for London.' Prob. ex sense 3.—8. A 'packet' of money: Aus.: since ca. 1925. Ex sense 3. Leonard Mann, The Go-Getter, 1942, 'I've got a chance to get a swag on commission.' Cf. synon. use of loot.—9. In a swag of, many; much: NZ: since ca. 1930. 'There's swag of 'em in this joint' (Slatter). A re-emergence of C.19 c.; recorded by Vaux, 1812.—10. Punning acronym on 'Sophisticated Wild Ass Guess'; UN in Middle East: 1982. (J.B. Mindel.) swag, v. To rob, plunder: c.:—1887 (Baumann). Ex n., 3.—2. To hustle or hurry (someone, e.g., into a room): low s.: since ca. 1930. (F. Norman, Encounter, 1959.) Cf. swag away, q.v.

swag, adj. Worthless; gen. it's swag: low: from ca. 1860. Ex swag, n., 4.

swag and plunder. See MOCK-AUCTION SLANG, in Appendix, and cf. swag, 3, and plunder, 2, qq.v.

swag away. To abduct or kidnap (someone): police and underworld: since (?) ca. 1955. James Barnett, Head of the Force, 1978: 'The object is to see if the Commissioner was swagged away by anyone during the demo.' Cf. swag, v., 2, q.v.

swag-barrow. A coster's cart, esp. one carrying small or trashy articles (see swag, 4): low s.: from ca. 1850. Also, swag-barrouman, a coster, or another, carrying on such trade. Both in Mayhew, 1851; ob. by 1930.

swag-chovey. A receiver's shop or store: c.: mid-C.19—20. (B. & L.) Also swag-shop, q.v. Cf.:

swag-chovey bloke. A marine store dealer: c. (—1839) >, ca. 1870, low s.: late C.19—early 20. (Brandon.) See swag, 4; chovey is a shop.

swag in. To cause to enter secretly: c.:—1923. (Manchon).

swag it. To carry one's 'swag' (5): 1861 (McCombie): coll. >, ca. 1890, S.E. Morris.

swag-man, swagman. A man in the 'swag-trade' or keeping a 'swag-shop': from ca. 1850. (Mayhew, 1851.) Gen. swagman.—2. A man travelling with a swag (5): Aus.: 1883 (Keighley): coll. >, ca. 1890, S.E. Gen. swagman. Also swagsman, q.v.

swag-seller. A pedlar; vagrants' c.: late C.19–20. W.A. Gape, Half a Million Tramps, 1936.

swag-shop. A shop specialising in trivial or trashy articles, very cheap: mid-C.19–20: lower-class London. (Mayhew, 1851.) See swag, 1 and 4.—2. See swag-chovey.

swag-straps. See look for (one's) swag-straps, via swag, n., 5.

swag-trade. The trade in swag, 4, q.v.: mid-C.19–20. Mayhew.

swagger. A swagger-cane or -stick: military coll.:—1887 (Baumann). I.e. a stick carried for swagger or show.—2. In Aus., hence in NZ, one who carries a 'swag' (5): 1855 (Melbourne Argus, 19 Jan.: OED): coll. >, ca. 1880, S.E. Cf. swag-man, 2, and swagsman. Morris.

swagger, adj. Smart, fashionable; 'swell'; rather showy or ostentatious: (orig. Society) s. >, ca. 1930, coll.: 1879 (Cambridge Review: OED); 1897, 'Ouida', 'Lord, ma'am, they'll... take the matches away from their bedrooms, but, then, you see, ma'am, them as are swagger can do them things.' Ex S.E. swagger, superior and/or insolent behaviour. (The v. is likewise S.E. Note, however, that from ca. 1920 the n. has had a coll. tinge.)

swagger-cane or -stick. An officer's cane or stick for parade-ground appearance; a private's or non-com.'s walking-out stick or short cane: army coll.: resp. 1889, 1887 (OED). Ex swagger, adj., q.v.; cf., however, swagger, n., 1. By mid-C.20, S.E.

swagger-dress. Walking-out dress: army coll.: C.20. On swagger-cane.

swagger-pole. A var. from ca. 1920, of swagger-cane. Suggested by: swagger-stick. See swagger-cane.

swaggering Bob. An impudent buffoon: theatrical coll.: mid-C.19–20; ob. B. & L.

swaggering, n. Tramping, esp. in the outback: Aus. coll.: late C.19–20. Baker.

swaggery. Proletarian var. of swagger, adj.:—1887 (Baumann); ob. by 1935.

swaggie, y. A man carrying a 'swag' (5) as a habit: Aus. (gen. humorous) coll.: 1892 (E.W. Hornung; Morris); 1902, Henry Lawson (OED). Ex swag-man, 2, q.v.

swagman. See swag-man.

swagsman. The same as swaggie, q.v.: 1879 (J. Brunton Stephens): coll. >, ca. 1890, S.E. Ex swag-man, 2, q.v.—2. In c. (—1859), an accomplice who, after a burglary, carries the plunder. (H., 1st ed.; B. & L.) Ex swag, n., 3, q.v. Also, a 'fence': c.:—1904 (F. & H.).—3. An occ. var. of swag-man, 1, q.v. F. & H.

swailer. A cosh: c.: later C.20. Powis.

swain. Coxswain: RN coll.: late C.19–20. Granville.—2. A theatrical term of contempt: 1912, A. Neil Lyons, Clara, 'They're a silly set o' swain, the General Public' (Manchon); ob. Ex the sense of yokel. Or ex affected pron. of swine.

swak. A superscription, SWAK, q.v. in Appendix, at LOVERS' ACRONYMS, on the envelope of a letter to a sweetheart, i.e. sealed with a kiss. Hence, swaking, censoring mail: RN officers': WW2. P-G-R. swallow, n. Capacity (for food): late C.16–20: S.E. until ca. 1850, then coll.—2. Esp. as a mouthful: from ca. 1820: S.E. until ca. 1890, then coll. These two senses are sometimes indistinguishable, as in the c.p., 'What a swallow!', which may refer to one act of swallowing or to appetite. Ex swallow, the throat or gullet.—3. A quick draw at a cigarette: C.20. Ex 'swallowing' the smoke and exhaling it through the nostrils.—4. In have a spiral swallow, to have a taste for liquor: from ca. 1920 (Manchon); ephemeral. ? ex corkscrew.

swallow, v. To prepare (a part) hastily: theatrical: 1898 (OED). Ex swallow the cackle.—2. To cancel (an appointment or arrangement or plan): low, esp. Londoners': since ca. 1920. Arthur La Bern, Night Darkens the Street, 1947, 'We were all tired, so we decided to swallow it' (a visit to the racecourse).

swallow a gudgeon. To be gulled: coll.: 1579 (Lyly); Dekker swallow a hair or hare. To get exceedingly drunk: coll.: mid-C.17–mid-19. B.E.; Grose, 1st ed., proposes hair, 'which requires washing down', but the phrase was perhaps suggested by the old proverbial to have devoured a hare, to look amiable. See also TAVERN TERMS, §8, in Appendix.

& Webster, 1607; Fuller, 1732; Halliwell. † by 1900. Ex fig. gudgeon. Apperson.

swallow a sailor. 'To get drunk upon rum' (Ware): ports' and harbours':—1909.

swallow a sovereign and shit it in silver. A semi-proverbial c.p. indicative of the acme of convenience: C.19—early 20 vulgarism.

swallow a spider. To go bankrupt: coll.: mid-C.17–18. (Howell, 1659; Ray; Berthelson, 1754.) Gen. he has, you have, etc., swallowed a spider. (Apperson.) P.B.: perhaps a ref. to a money-spider?

swallow a stake. See swallowed a stake; the earlier to have eaten a stake is recorded by Palsgrave in 1530 but, app., was † by 1700.

swallow a tavern-token. To get drunk: coll.: late C.16–18. Jonson, Every Man in His Humour, 'Drunk, sir! you hear not me say so: perhaps he swallowed a tavern token or some such device.' Cf. tavern-fox, and TAVERN TERMS, §8, in Appendix.

swallow (or swallex) and sigh. Collar and tie: theatrical rhyming s.: late C.19–20. Ngaio Marsh, Vintage Murder, 1938.

swallow bobby. 'Some of the first "nobs" in the colony [of New South Wales] used to "swallow bobby" (make false affidavits to an enormous extent)' ('A. Harris', Settlers and Convicts, 1847): Aus.: ca. 1810–90. Cf. swallow the anchor and swelp me bob.

swallow it. 'Only a few weeks ago he told me he "had swallowed it"—got out of crime' (John Gosling, The Ghost Squad, 1959): since ca. 1920: orig. and still mainly c. On the analogy of swallow the anchor, q.v.; cf. also swallow, v., 2. swallow my knife? — you say true, will you. I doubt it!: a c.p. applied esp. to an impossible story: from ca. 1890 (ob.): not aristocratic.

swallow-tail. A dress-coat: coll.: 1835, Frith, 'I should look a regular guy in a swallow-tail' (OED). Ex swallow-tailed coat.

swallow the anchor. To settle down—above all, to loaf—on shore, esp. if one is still active: nautical: late C.19–20. (Ware.) Cf. hang up (one's) boots.—2. To surrender or yield: c.: from ca. 1919. George Ingram, Stir, 1939.

swallow the cackle. To learn a part: theatrical:—1890 (B. & L.)

swallow the dick. To use long words; esp. to use them without knowledge of their meaning: coll.: from ca. 1870. A shortening of swallow the dictionary; esp. in must have swallowed..., applied to one who does this.

swallow the shuttle-bag. To get husky-throated: (? dial. and) coll.: mid-C.19—early 20.

swallow the sours. See sour.

swallow yourself; oh, swallow yourself! See oh, swallow yourself!

swallowed a stake and cannot stoop, he (she) has. A c.p. applied to a very stiff, upright person: from ca. 1660; ob. (L'Estrange, 1667; Fuller, 1732; Apperson.) Cf. at swallow a stake, q.v.

swamp, v. To exchange or barter: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Perversion of swap?—2. To spend (money), esp. on drink: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (Baker.) Perhaps ex the next.—3. The v.i. (with var. swamp it) of swamper, 1 and 2. B., 1959.

swamp down. To swallow, gulp down (a drink): Aus.: since ca. 1910. (Baker.) Cf. swamp, v. and swamped.

swamp (one's) way (with). To travel along (with someone), esp. in the outback: C.20. (Tom Ronan, Only a Short Walk, 1961.) Cf. swamp, v., 1, and swamper, 1.

swamped. Tispy: Services (little in Army): since ca. 1920. (H. & P.) Cf. US tanked.

swamper. A tramp; one who walks to his destination but has a teamster carry his 'swag': Aus. rural: C.20. (B., 1942.) Ex: A bullock-driver's assistant: Aus. bullock-drivers': C.20. (K.S. Prichard, Working Bullocks, 1926, There we also find swamp, v.i., to be such an assistant.)—2. 'A man, often partially incapacitated; who keeps the bunkhouses clean (swamped out) in a logging camp or on a ranch' (Leechman): Can. coll.: C.20.

swamy-house. Var. of sammy-house.

swan. The migratory habits of the swan have provided us with one of the most expressive of all Korean words. The act of "swanning" (going purposefully anywhere without a purpose) is one of the most favoured pastimes of the theatre. If one were to "swan" southward with the purpose of moving on from the enemy, the act would be called "bugging out" (Iddiwah, July 1953): United Nations troops in and during the Korean War. Ex the next two entries.—2. Earlier, as used by the army in France and Germany, 1944–5 and esp. in a good swan, a rapid advance. (Peter Sanders in Sunday Times mag., 10 Sep. 1965.) Ex swan around.—3. In on a or the swan, on an excursion, ostensibly duty, but just as much pleasure, as e.g., 'a tour of inspection of our units in Hong Kong [at the pleasantest time of the year]': Services', perhaps mainly army: since ca. 1950. Ex swan around. (P.B.)

swan, v. To parade, perhaps rather self-consciously, as swans often appear to do: may be used in contempt, tinged with envy, as in 'I was there in my jeans and jersey and they began swanning in in black ties and long dresses like Glyndebourne [Opera House]' (Guardian, Feb. 1979). Influenced by prec., 3. (P.B.)

swan about the blue. To drive about aimlessly, with more than a suspicion that one is lost' (Peter Sanders): army: 1940–3, the blue being the desert; then loosely in, or concerning, regions other than N. Africa.

swan around. (Of tanks) to circle about; (of persons) to wander either in search of a map reference or aimlessly: army: 1940+. Ex the manoeuvres of swans queening it on pond or stream. P-G-R.—2. Hence, to 'tour', deviate from a set route, unauthorised: army: since ca. 1944. (P-G-R.) See swan.

swan-slinger. A Shakespearian actor: theatrical (—1890); ob. Ex the phrase, to sling the Swan of Avon (late C.19–20; ob.). Cf. spout Billy, q.v.

Swan Stream, the. In Punch, 2 Feb. 1861, p. 54. appear extracts from a tailor's handbill couched almost entirely in contemporary slang; the advertiser claims that on his return home from India (a later var. version of the handbill, ca. 1875, has Canada) 'he was stunned to find one of the Manufacturers of Manchester had cut his lucky, and stepped off to the Swan Stream, leaving behind him a valuable stock of Moleskins, etc. . . .' I very tentatively suggest that the Swan Stream might mean Perth, W. Aus., on the Swan River. (P.B.)

Swanee. As in 'Lots of the textile firms round here are going down the Swanee—let's hope ours isn't next'; headed for bankruptcy, 'going down the drain': coll.: later C.20. Also var. up the Swanee. Perhaps influenced by swan. (P.B.)

swank, n. Showy or conceited behaviour or speech; pretence: dial. (—1854) >, ca. 1904, s. Daily Chronicle, 17 Apr. 1905, 'What he said is quite true, barring the whisky—that is all swank' (OED); Ware, 1909, records analogous senses, 'small talk, lying' as printers' s. Dates make it appear that the n. derives ex the v., but, dial. records being notoriously incomplete, the reverse may be true: in either case, swank, as Baumann suggests, derives prob. ex Ger. Schwang as in in S. sein (or gehen), to be in the fashion.—2. Hence, the tricks one plays; one's 'game': Cockneys': from ca. 1890. Rook.—3. Hence, flattery, 'blarney': id. Ibid., 'I... calls 'im a rare toff an' a lot of old swank of that kind.'—4. 'Inevitable' nickname of men surnamed Russell: Services': earlier C.20. Who was the original?

swank, v. To behave showily or conceitedly; to swagger; to pretend (esp. to be better than, or superior to, what one is): dial. (—1809) >, ca. 1870, s., though not gen. till ca. 1901. H., 5th ed., 'Swank, to boast or "gas" unduly'; A. McNeil, 1903,

'To see... your sons swanking about town with Hon. before their names'. By extension in the Services: 'to dress in one's grandest attire; to prepare to meet a girl' (H. & P.): since ca. 1925; † by 1950. Cf. swanks. Powis, 1977, has 'Swank, Pretend: "Let's swank that Tommy here isn't married".' For the most viable etym., see prec.: but one cannot ignore these possibilities:—Perhaps ex swing (the body) via either Scot. swank, agile (OED) or swagger (EDD); or simply a perversion of swagger (W.).—2. To work hard: Public and military schools:—1890 (B. & L.).

swank, adj. Var. of swank(e)y, adj.: since ca. 1917. (James Joyce, Ulysses, 1922.) Common in N. America, which has reinforced its Brit. use; in e.g., 'a swank car', an expensive automobile.

swank-pot. Var. of next: mostly youngsters': since—1923 (Manchon); ob. by 1980.

swanker. One who behaves as in swank, v. 1 and 2: same period and status. Cf. swanking, the vbl n. of swank, v., q.v.

swank(e)y, n. Inferior beer: c.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.; Baumann). Prob. ex Ger. schwank, feeble. A shortening of swankey swipes.—2. A conceited or pretentious person: ca. 1830–80. (Edward Lancaster, The Manager's Daughter (a one-act interlude), ? 1837: Moe.) Ex the adj. while that adj. was still dial.

swank(e)y, adj. Showy; conceited; pretentious; pretentiously grand: dial. >, ca. 1910, s. The OED's earliest record is of 1912. Ex swank, v., 1.

swank(e)y swipes. Table beer: 1848 (Sinks); † by 1920.

swankiness. The rather rare abstract n. ex swank(e)y, adj.: from ca. 1914.

swanking, n. See swanker.—2. Adj. 'Swank(e)y': rare and only of persons: earlier C.20.

swanks. One's best clothes: Services': ca. 1925–45. Cf. swank, v., 1.—2. Sausages: army: 1940+. P-G-R, 'They pretend to be meat and are mostly bread.'

swanner. One 'on a swan': see swan, n., 3; v.; and swan around, 2: army: since late WW2.

swannery, keep a. To make out that all one's geese are swans: coll.:—1785; ob. by 1890, † by 1930. Grose, 1st ed. Swans, the. The Swansea Town Football Club: sporting: C.20.—2. South Melbourne VFL football team: Aus., esp. Melbourne, sporting: since ca. 1920. B., 1943.

swap, swop, n. An exchanging; an exchange: coll. >, ca. 1850, s.: resp. ca. 1625 (Purchas) and 1682 (Flatman). OED. Ex swap, an act of striking (esp. the hands as a sign of a bargain made); or more imm. ex the v.—2. In have or get the swap or swop, to be dismissed from employment:—1890 (B. & L.). Cf. v., 4, and:—3. In get a swop (swop), to fail to effect a sale: drapery and kindred trades': later C.19—earlier 20. Ex swap as synon. With tab, n., 6, q.v.

swap, swop, v.t. To exchange (for something else, or a thing with somebody else): coll. >, ca. 1850, s.: resp. 1594, Lyly, 'Ile not swap my father for all this,' and 1624, Quarles, '... That for his belly swopt his heritage' (OED). A 'low word', says Johnson; 'Irish cant', says Egan (1823). Orig. a horse-dealer's term ex swap (strike) a bargain.—2. Hence, as v.i., to make an exchange: coll. >, ca. 1850, s.: 1778 (Miss Burney); 1885, Jerome K. Jerome, 'I am quite ready to swop' (OED).—3. To dismiss from employment: 1862 (Macmillan's Magazine: OED). Cf. n., 2, and Kent and Sussex dial. Swap-hook, a sickle (P.B.).—4. To change one's clothes: 1904 (D. Sladen: OED). A specialisation of 1 and 2.—5. See:— swap (swop) away or off. To exchange, v.t.: coll. >, ca. 1850, s.: resp. 1589, R. Harvey, 'He swapt away his silver for Copper retaile,' and from ca. 1860; the latter, orig. and mainly US. (OED.) Ex swap, v., 1.—2. swap (or swop) off only. V.t., to cheat: orig. (1830, J.C. Harris) and mainly US; partly anglicised ca. 1910.

swap spit(s). (Of a couple) to kiss passionately: low: C.20. (L.A., 1978.) Cf. swab tonsils.

swapper, swopper. One who exchanges: late C.17–20: coll. >, ca. 1850, s. Ex swap, v., 1.—2. Gen. swapper. Anything very big, a 'whopper' (esp. of a lie): s. and dial.: from ca. 1700. Ex swap, to strike.

swapping. An exchanging, an exchange; barter: coll. >, ca. 1850, s.: 1695 (J. Edwards: OED). Ex swap, v., 1, q.v. Cf. swapper, 1, and swap, n.

swapping, swopping, adj. Very big: coll. >, ca. 1850, s.: mid-C.15–20. Middleton, 1624, 'Swapping sins'. Ex swap, to strike; cf. swapper, 2, and whopping.

swarbout. Occ. var. of sworbote: C.16.

swarry; occ. swarree, swarrey. A soirée or social evening: coll., in C.20. considered somewhat sol.: 1837, Dickens, 'A friendly swarry'; 1848, Thackeray (swarrey: OED).—2. H., 5th ed., 'A boiled leg of mutton and trimmings': is this a mistake founded on the Dickens passage (and repeated by F. & H.), or, as H. says, a resultant therefrom?

swart pak, the. The police: S. African c., mostly among Afrikaans-speakers: C.20. (Cape Times, 3 June 1946: Alan Nash.) Lit., 'The Black Suit(s)'. swartzer. See schwartz(e).

wash-bucket. A slattern: proletarian coll.: from ca. 1870; ob. Ex swash-bucket, a receptacle for scullery refuse (ex swash, pig-wash). In dial. as early as 1746 for 'A farm-house slattern' (EDD).

swassander or -onder. See sixty-niner.

swat. A (smart or heavy) blow: dial. (—1800) >, ca. 1840, s. or coll., but never very gen. (Halliwell.) 'Babe' Ruth, the baseball player, has, since ca. 1920, been known in the US as the Sultan of Swat. Ex next entry.—2,3,4. See swot.

swat, v. To strike smartly: dial. (—1796) >, before 1848 (Bartlett), US; reimported into Eng. before 1904 (witness F. & H.) as a coll. Esp. in swat that fly (1911, W.).—2. See swot.

swatched. Tippy: since ca. 1950. Perhaps cf. Warwickshire dial. swatched, (of a woman) untidily dressed.

swatchel. Punch, in Punch and Judy: showmen's (esp. and orig. P. & J. showmen): mid-C.19–20. Perhaps cognate with swatch, a sample or specimen, ex swatch, a sample piece of cloth; possibly, as the OED Sup. suggests, ex schwätzeln, the frequentative of schwätzen, to tattle. Hence swatchel (occ. schwassle)-box, the Punch and Judy show or, more correctly, the booth; and swatchel-cove, a Punch and Judy man, or, esp., the patterer. Other terms, all from ca. 1850 and to be consulted separately, are:—buffer, the dog Toby (recorded in 1840), and buffer-figure, the dog's master; crocodile, the demon; darkey or D., the Negro; filio, the baby; (the) frame, the street arrangement or 'pitch', etc.; (the) letter cloth, the advertisement; Mozzy, Judy; nobbing-slum, the bag for collected money; peepsies, the pan-pipes; (the) slum, the call; (the) slum-fake, the coffin; the stalk (occ. prop), the gallows; tambour, the drum; vampire, the ghost; vampo or V., the clown.—F. & H. Despite its Italian origin, Punch and Judy vocabulary contains for more c. and/or low s. than Italian words.

swatty. Occ. var. of swaddy: earlier C.20 (esp. RAF).

sway (away on) all top-ropes. See top-ropes.

swaying the main with an old mess-mate (, I've been). The bluejackets' c.p. explanation of a bibulous evening ashore: from ca. 1860. (Bowen.) To sway the main also means 'to swagger; to assert oneself': RN: C.20.

swear, n. A formal oath: mid-C.16–20: S.E. until ca. 1870, then coll. Eden Phillpotts, 1899, 'We swore by a tremendous swear' (OED); ob. by 1930.—2. Hence a profane oath, a 'swear-word'; a fit of swearing: coll.: 1871, C. Gibbon, 'A good swear is a cure for the bile' (OED).—3. A harsh noise made esp. by a cat, occ. by a bird: coll.: 1895 (OED). Ex: swear, v.i. (Of a canine or feline or, occ., a bird) to make a harsh and/or guttural sound: from late C.17: S.E. until C.19, then coll. The OED gives, at 1902, an example of a locomotive 'swearing'.

swear and cuss. A bus: Cockney rhyming: since ca. 1910. Len Orten, Down Donkey Row, 1938.

swear at. (Mostly of colours) to clash with: coll.: 1884, Daily News, 10 Nov., 'Two tints that swear at each other' (OED). Ex Fr. jurar.

swear by. To accept as authoritative, have (very) great confidence in: coll.: 1815 (Jane Austen); 1890, G.A. Henty, 'His fellows swear by him.' Ex swear by, to appeal to (a god). OED—2. In enough to swear by, a very small amount or slight degree: mid-C.18–20: coll. >, in mid-C.19, s. On (just) enough to mention.

swear like a cutter (C.17–20; ob.), or a lord (C.16–17), or a tinker (C.17–20; ob.), or a trooper (1727). To swear profusely: coll. soon > S.E. Apperson.

swear off. To renounce: lower classes' s. (—1887) >, ca. 1900, gen. s. >, ca. 1920, coll. (Baumann)? swear oneself off. P.B.: prob. ex taking an oath never to do it again.

swear through an inch or a two-inch board;... a nine-inch plank; and see quot'n in sense 2. To back up any lie: coll.: resp. 1678, Ray; 1728, Earl of Ailesbury (OED); from ca. 1800, app. Nelson's variation of the other forms, according to Clark Russell in 1883. Dickens, in 1865, has 'That severe exertion which is known in legal circles as swearing your way through a stone wall' (OED). Cf. the Cheshire semi-proverbial 'Oo'd swear the cross off a jackass's back,' oo being 'she'.—2. These phrases are also indicative of vigorous bad language, as in R. Franck, 1658, 'It's thought they would have sworn through a double deal-board, they seem'd so enrag'd' (Apperson).

swear-up. A vigorous altercation, involving (usu.) the use of 'bad language': since early C.20. Cf. punch-up, a physical fight. (P.B.) swear-word. A profane oath or other word: coll.; orig. US, anglicised ca. 1880. Cf. the US cuss-word.

swearing-apartment. The street: taverns':—1909 (Ware). Prob. ex the barmaids' exclamatory question, 'If you want to swear, why don't you go out into the street?'

sweat, n. Hard work; a difficult task; something requiring painstaking trouble: C.14–20: S.E. until C.20, then s., esp. in an awful sweat. OED Sup.—2. A long run taken in training: Public Schools': late C.19–20. E.F. Benson, David Blaize, 1916.—3. In be in a sweat, to be at pains (to do something): lower-class coll.:—1923 (Manchon).—4. See all of a sweat; old sweat.

sweat, v. To lighten (a—gen. gold—coin) by friction or acid: coll. (—1785) >, ca. 1850, S.E. (Grose, 1st ed.) Ex sweat, to cause to perspire.—2. To deprive of: from ca. 1784, as in Anon., Ireland Sixty Years Ago, 1847, '[In] 1784... "sweating" him, i.e. making him give up all his fire-arms'. Cf. S.E. sweating, a ruffianly practice of the Mohocks (q.v.).—3. Esp. to 'fleece', to 'bleed': from ca. 1840 low s. H., 2nd ed.; Smyth, 1867 (see sweat the purser).—4. V.i. and v.t., to squander (riches): from late 1850s. (H., 2nd ed.) Ex sweat, to give off, get rid of, as by sweating.—5. Hence, v.t., to spend (money): from ca. 1860.—6. Hence, to remove some of the contents of: since early C.19. Simpson's Journal, 1820, in Hudson's Bay Record Society, vol. 1, 1938: 'Mr Perring's Keg is always at the service of his friends, and they sweat it unmercifully...' (Leechman).—7. To unsolder (a tin box, etc.) by applying fire or a blowpipe: c.:—1909 (Ware). Cf. senses 1, 6.—8. Perhaps ex sense 1: v.t., to pawn: low s. (orig., prob. Anglo-Irish): from ca. 1800; † by ca. 1880.—9. To force (a person) to do something: Winchester: mid-C.19–20. Wrench.—10. Hence, v.i., to be engaged in compulsory work: Ibid.: late C.19–20. (Wrench.) Cf. the n., 1.

sweat blood. To make unsparing effort on behalf of oneself, a friend, or a cause; to work extremely hard: coll.: since WW2. (L.A., 1974.) cf. sweat (one's) guts out.

sweat-box. A cell for prisoners waiting to go before the magistrate: low s.: from ca. 1875, though unrecorded before 1888 (Churchward's Blackbirding: OED). In C.20 US, sweat-box is the application of third-degree methods. Cf. sweat-room, and confessional.—2. 'A slung or aligning jack requiring much human energy' (Railway): railwaymen's late C.19–20.

sweat cobs. To perspire heavily and freely: lowish coll.: since mid-C.20, prob. earlier. Cobs=dial. lumps. (P.B.) sweat-gallery. (Coll. for) fagging juniors: Winchester: from ca. 1865; ob. Ex sweater, 2.

sweat (one's) guts out. To work extremely hard: (mostly lower-class) coll.: since late C.19. (B. & L.) Cf. flog or slog (one's) guts out, and sweat blood.

sweat it out. To keep on trying hard, esp. in order to 'survive', as in, say, cricket or football: coll.: C.20. Cf. sweat out.

sweat like a bull. To perspire freely: coll. orig. mostly Cockneys': from ca. 1880. Cf. sweat cobs.

sweat machine. A bicycle: Aus., esp. Sydney, motor mechanics': since ca. 1945. (B.P.)

sweat on is short for sweat (or be sweating) on the top line. The symptoms of one who anticipates promotion or posting are called "sweating on" ... he is getting hot and bothered about it' (H. & P.): since ca. 1925. Hence as n., in get or have a sweat-on (P.B.). Cf.:-

sweat on promotion. To make oneself conspicuous with a view to advancement: military: from ca. 1920. Ex:-

sweat on the top line; be sweating... the more gen. form. 'To be in eager anticipation' or 'on the eve of obtaining something much wanted': military: C.20. (F. & G.) Ex the game of House: a player with four or five numbers on the top line anxiously awaits the call of one more number to win.

sweat pads. Pancakes: Can.: since ca. 1945. (Leechman.)

sweat-rag. A pocket-handkerchief: Aus.: C.20. Lawson, 1902 (OED).

sweat-room. Interrogation room at a police station: police s.: mid-C.20. (A. Hunter, Gently in Trees, 1974.) Cf. sweat-box, 1. (P.B.)

sweat the purser. In George Brewer's farce, Bannian Day, 1796, at I, iii, p. 8, and II, iii, p. 25, it seems to mean 'to take an illicit or, at the least, a sly drink at the expense of the ship's purser'. (Moe.) Cf. sweat, v., 6.—2. Hence, to waste Government stores generally: RN: since ca. 1840. Smyth; Bowen.

sweater. An occupation or act causing one to sweat: coll.: 1851, Mayhew, 'The business is a sweater, Sir' (OED).—2. A servant: Winchester: from ca. 1860. Cf. sweat-gallery, q.v.—3. A broker working for very small commissions, thus depriving others of business and himself of adequate profit: Stock Exchange coll.: from ca. 1870.

sweater girl. A girl, a young woman, with a well-developed bust: adopted, ex US, early 1940s; s. > coll. A sweater or other tightly-fitting upper garment exhibits such a female to considerable advantage. The style was very much in vogue in early 1940s for 'pin-ups'—the influence of WW2.

sweating. See bending, 2; also sweat on...

Sweatipore. India: Army officers': from ca. 1920. A pun on paw (hand) and pores of the hand, and also on such names of military stations as Barrackpore. Cf. the Shiny.

sweaty. Hard, difficult, severe: coll., esp. schoolboys': C.20. Arnold Lunn, Loose Ends 1919, "It's a sweaty house for new men." Cluff shook his head sadly. "Yes, it's a hard life for new men." Also of persons, as in Ibid.: 'These Blues [as schoolmasters] are sometimes rather sweaty. They think it lip if you cut your work for a man who's been a Blue.' Lip = impudence. Cf. later hairly, which implies also dangerous.

swede. A farm labourer: urban: C.20. Ex S.E. swede, a kind of turnip. See also swedey, 3.—2. 'A raw recruit—i.e. one just from the country; or an airman with a rural, countrified manner,' Jackson: RAF: since ca. 1930. Short for swede-basher.—3. As Swede, a fairly common nickname for men surnamed Harvey: ca. 1930–45. Why?—4. The head, esp. in set the swede down; crash down the swede, or simply crash the swede, q.v., all = lie down to sleep.

swede-basher. An agricultural labourer; a country bumpkin: Services: since ca. 1925. (H. & P.) He 'bashes about'—walks heavily—among the turnips. Cf. gravel-basher at basher, 6, q.v.—2. Hence, since ca. 1930, the agent in:

swede-bashing. Field training, as opposed to square-bashing swede talk. Rural talk; countrymen's talk: Cockneys': late C.19–20. Cf. swede, 1.

(parade work, drill): since ca. 1930: army and RAF: Partridge, 1945, 'Field training ... often takes recruits into the fields and hedgerows.' In the RN swede-bashing means sleeping: Granville.

Swedeland. Country parts: urban derogatory: since ca. 1950. (L.A., 1967.) Ex swede, 1.

swede(y) or swedy. An employee of the Great Eastern Railway: ca. 1890–1925. (Railway.) It passed through much agricultural country.—2. As the Swed(e)y, it = the old Great Eastern Railway.—3. During 'Operation Countryman', when provincial police were drafted to London to investigate alleged corruption in the Metropolitan force, 1979, '[the former] have been derisively nicknamed the "Swedey"—a pun on "Sweeney", the rhyming slang for Sweeney Todd/ Flying Squad. "Swede" is a long-established arrogant Met. word for people they see as bumbling country coppers, totally at sea in the world of serious 'villainy' (New Statesman, 1 Jan. 1980). See swede, 1, and Sweeney Todd.

swedde. To trick with cajolery: from 1912; ob. by 1935. In Henry Arthur Jones's comedy, Dolly Reforming Herself (pub. in 1913), extravagant featherhead Dolly was played by Marie Lohr; her long-suffering husband accused her of 'swedding' him, and the phrase caught on. Obviously a blend of swindle + wheedle.

Sweeney Todd, the. The Flying Squad: low London rhyming s.: since ca. 1925. (F.D. Sharpe, The Flying Squad, 1938.) Often shortened to the Sweeny, as in John Gosling, The Ghost Squad, 1959. See swede(y), 3, and:- sweenies. Members of the Flying Squad: c., since ca. 1930; hence, since ca. 1940, also police s. (John Dickson Carr, Patrick Butler for the Defence, 1956.) Ex prec.

sweep, n. A sweepstake: coll. (1849) >, ca. 1905, S.E. Kipling (OED).—2. A scamp, a disreputable: from ca. 1845. Albert Smith, Natural History of the Gent, 1847, for its use among bargees and watermen. Ex (chimney-)sweep.—3. Mucus (esp. hardened mucus) that can easily be extracted from the nostrils: domestic and nurses', chiefly Scottish: late C.19–20. Cf. bogey, 13.

sweep, v. To chimney-sweep for: low coll.: 1848, Thackeray, 'The chimney-purifier, who had sweep' the last three families' (OED).

sweep the board. To win all the prizes; obtain every honour: coll.: from ca. 1830. Ex the card-game senses, take all the cards, win all the stakes: S.E.: C.17–20.

sweep under the carpet. To conceal or hide (something), esp. in the hope that it (a project or plan—also, a grave blunder) will be overlooked or forgotten: coll.: since ca. 1955; by ca. 1975, informal S.E. (Petch, 1969.) It is recorded in OED Sup., 1972, first as push under ... , 1936, and then as sweep ... , 1966. Ex idle servants sweeping dust under the carpet instead of into a dustpan, to save time and effort.

sweeper. A train that, following a through train, calls at all stations: Aus. coll. (—1908) >, ca. 1915, S.E.. Because it 'sweeps up' all passengers.—2. A sweepstake: Harrow and Oxford: late C.19–20. (Arnold Lunn, The Harrovians, 1913.) By the 'OXFORD -ER'.—3. 'Inevitable' nickname for a man surnamed White: army: early C.20. (John Aye, Humour in the Army, 1931.) Ironic ex 'chimney-sweep'.

sweeping the snow. See snow-dropping.

Sweeps, the. The Rifle Brigade: military (—1879) and prob. as early, at least, as 1850, for the black flags date from the Brigade's inception in 1800 and sweep = chimney-sweep dates from 1812. (F. & H.; OED.) Cf. Stackies.

sweeps and saints. Stockbrokers and their clientèle: City of London: mid-C.19–early 20. Ware, 'From the First of May (Sweeps' Day) and the First of November (All Saints' Day) being holidays on the Exchange'.

sweep's frill. 'Beard and whiskers worn round the chin, the rest of the face being clean shaven' (F. & H.): 1892, Tit Bits, 19 Mar. Cf. Neugate collar, and:-

sweep's-trot. A loping amble: coll.: 1842 (Lover: OED). P.B.: the easiest way to carry his brushes and handles when balanced on his shoulders.

sweet. Gullible; unsuspecting: c. (—1725) >, in late C.19, low s. A New Canting Dict., 1725.—2. Clever, expert, dexterous: c.:—1725 (Ibid.). Cf. sweet as your hand.—3. In the speaker's opinion, attractive, very pleasant: coll.: 1779. Fanny Burney, 1782. 'The sweetest caps! the most beautiful trimmings' (OED). Cf. nice, q.v., and Fr. mignon.—4. Arranged, settled; gen. It's (or she's) sweet, all right because fixed: Aus.: C.20.—5. Hence, correct; in order: Aus.: since ca. 1910. Lawson Glassop, Lucky Palmer, 1949.—6. Egregious; (pej.) great, thorough: coll.: C.19–20; by ca. 1930, slightly ob. 'The ship was at this time refitting, and... a sweet mess she was in' (F. Marryat, Frank Mildmay, 1829; Moe).

sweet, adv. Without difficulty or trouble: c.: C.20. F.D. Sharpe, The Flying Squad, 1938.

sweet as a nut, adj. and adv. Advantageous(ly); with agreeable or consummate ease: coll.: late C.19–20.

sweet as (or 's) your hand. 'Said of one dexterous at stealing' (Grose, 1st ed.): c. (ob.) of C.18–20. A New Canting Dict., 1725.

sweet B.A. Nothing; low: since ca. 1940. 'You can do sweet B.A. about it' (Norman). Cf. sweet F.A. at Fanny Adams, 2, and esp. the exact semantic parallel, sod all, for B.A. here stands for bugger all. Sweet bugger all prob. goes back to early C.20, and may orig. have been mainly Can. (Robin Leech, 1974). P.B.: I have heard the Canadian prairieland described, without the Mesopotamian distinction of 'a river running through it', as 'miles and miles of sweet bugger all'. See sweet Fanny...

sweet cop. See soft cop.

sweet craft. See craft, 2.

sweet damn all. A mild synon. of sweet B.A.: Lyell.

sweet evening breeze. Cheese: rhyming s.: C.20. (Lester.) Often shortened to sweet(-)evening; cf. quot'n at strike-me.

sweet Fanny (rare) or sweet Fanny Adams or sweet F.A. See F.A. and Fanny Adams.

sweet Jane (or jane). A complaisant girl: Teddy boys': since ca. 1948. (News of the World, 26 Sep. 1954.) Contrast straight Jane.

(Sweet) Lambs, the. The 1st Madras European Regiment, later the Royal Dublin Fusiliers: mid-C.18–mid-19; during the Indian Mutiny, Blue Caps took its place. Perhaps ex Kirke's Lambs. q.v. (F. & G.). P.B.: ?an early example of sweet, 6.

sweet-lips. A glutton; a gourmet: (low) coll.: later C.19–early 20.

sweet-meat. See sweetmeat.

sweet on, be. 'To coakse, wheedle, entice or allure' (B.E.): late C.17–18. The OED considers it S.E.; B.E. classifies it as c.; prob. coll., as, I think, is the mid-C.18–20 sense, to be very fond of, enamoured with (one of the opposite sex).

sweet-pea. Whiskey: Anglo-Irish: ca. 1810–70. ('A Real Paddy', Life in Ireland, 1822.) Ex the colour of the resultant urine.—2. (Or without hyphen). Tea: rhyming s.: C.20. Not at all common. Franklyn 2nd.—3. A 'pee' or urination: probably rhyming s.: mid-C.19–20. Used by and of both sexes; esp. among women, do or pick or plant a sweet-pea, to urinate, esp. in the open air. A pun on pee, but cf. also gather violets, pluck a rose.

sweet-pea ward. See lily pond.

sweet sixteen. The number 16 at House or Tombola. See TOMBOLA, in Appendix.

sweetbread. A bribe; a timely reward of money: coll.: ca. 1670–90. Hacket, 1670, 'A few sweetbreads that I gave him out of my purse'.

sweeten. A beggar, says F. & H.: is this so? [P.B.: ?orig. sweet'un.] If correct, c.: presumably C.18.

sweeten. To decoy, draw in; swindle: c.: late C.17–early 19. B.E., Grose.—2. V.i., see sweetening, 1.—3. V.t., to allay the suspicions of (a victim): C.18: c. or low s. EDD.—4. To bribe; give alms to: late C.18–20: c. >, ca. 1850, dial. and low s. (Haggart, former nuance; Egan's Grose, latter.) Prob. ex sense 1.—5. To contribute to (the pool), increase the stakes in (the pot, at poker): cards: from 1896. Cf. sweetening.—6. V.i., to bid at an auction merely to run up the price: orig. and mainly auctioneers':—1864 (H., 3rd ed.). Cf. sweetener.—7. V.t., to increase (the collateral of a loan) by furnishing additional securities: financial:—1919 (OED).

sweeten and pinch. Occ. v., gen. n., ca. 1670–1720, as in Anon., Four for a Penny, 1678: to get money, by politeness and consideration, from a man about to be arrested. Bum-bailiffs' s.

sweetener. A decoy; a cheat or a swindler: c.: late C.17–early 19. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) Ex sweeten, v., 1.—2. A guinea-dropper: c.: same period. (B.E., Grose.) Ex sweetening, 1.—3. One who, at an auction, bids only to run up the price: auctioneers':—1864 (H., 3rd ed.).—4. A temporary officer (gen. first mate) replacing his predecessor, who is in hiding; nautical, with esp. reference to the Atlantic clipper packets: ca. 1850–1910. Bowen.—5. See:— sweeteners. The lips: c. or low s.: from ca. 1860. Esp. fake the s., to kiss.

sweetening. Guinea-dropping, i.e. the dropping of a coin and consequent swindling of a gullible finder: c.: from ca. 1670; † by 1870. The Country Gentleman's Vade Mecum, 1699.—2. The vbl n.—both the action and the concrete result—of sweeten, v., 5.—3. That of sweeten, n., 6.—4. That of sweeten, v., 4.

sweetest thing, the. Very 'decent': coll.: from ca. 1902. W.L. George, The Making of an Englishman, 1914.

sweetheart. A tame rabbit: (sporting and dealers') coll.: from late 1830s. (Blaine's Encyclopædia of Rural Sports, 1840: OED). Ex winning ways of such rabbits.

sweetheart and bag-pudding. A c.p. applied to a girl got with child: C.17–early 18. Day, Humour out of Breath, 1608; Ray, 1670.

sweetie. A sweetmeat: dial. (—1758), and coll. (from ca. 1820) >, ca. 1890, S.E. W. Havergal, 1824, 'Baby... was satisfied with a bit of sweetie'; Thackeray, in 1860, has 'Bonbons or sweeties'; the pl. is much the more gen. OED.—2. A sweetheart: coll.: from ca. 1920; much earlier in US. Ultimately ex dial. Also, since ca. 1945, in ref., e.g. 'He's been an absolute sweetie to me' (kind, considerate, generous).—3. Ironically, of anyone particularly unpleasant or disgusting: later C.20. (P.B.) sweetie (or -y) pie. In address: dear; 'sweet': since ca. 1930. (Josephine Bell, Trouble at Wrekin Farm, 1942.) Elab. of prec., 2.

sweetmeat; occ. sweet-meat. The male member; a mere girl who is a kept mistress. Both senses are low and date from mid-C.19.

sweetner. See sweetener, 1, 2, of which it is a frequent var.

sweetness and light. Whisky: Aus. joc.: since early C.20. D'Arcy Niland, Call Me..., 1958.

sweets. Amphetamines: drugs world: later C.20. Home Office.

swell, n. A fashionably or smartly dressed person (a heavy being an 'ultra' swell: 1819, OED); ex, though rare before ca. 1820, a (very) distinguished person, a lady or gentleman of the upper classes; as s. for 'gentleman', an early occurrence is in Sessions, Dec. 1786; also in Potter, 1797; >, in late C.19, coll. Bee, 1823, of nob and swell, 'The latter makes a show of his finery;... the nob, relying upon intrinsic worth, or bonâ-fide property, or intellectual ability, is clad in plainness.' (Byron; Thackeray.) Hence, a rank swell, 'A very "flashy" dressed person... who... apes a higher position than he actually occupies' (H., 1st ed.); ob. by 1900, † by 1920. Usu. of men, and prob. ex.—2. In cut a swell or do the swell, to swagger: resp. ca. 1800–40, as in The Spirit of the Public Journals 1800, 'Our young lords and... gentlemen "cutting a swell" as the fashionable phrase is' (OED); and mid-C.19–early 20, as in Baumann. Ex swell, arrogant behaviour.—2. Hence, one who has done something notable or who is expert at something: s. >, in late C.19, coll.: 1816, Moore (OED), but not gen. before ca. 1840; Barham, 'No! no!—The Abbey [Westminster] may do very well/For a feudal nob, or poetical "swell"; the Eton usage.—3. (Gen. pl.) One of those boys who, with special privileges, rule a house: Rugby School-boys': mid-C.19–20.—4. See swells. swell, adj. Stylishly dressed: from ca. 1812. (Egan's Grose.) Prob. ex n., 1.—2. Hence, from ca. 1820, gentlemanly (Byron, 1823) or ladylike; of good social position (Disraeli, 1845).—3. (Of things) stylish, very distinguished: from ca. 1811. Vaux.—4. Hence, excellent, whether of things (e.g. a swell time) or of persons considered as to their ability (e.g. a swell cricketer): not before mid-C.19 and—except in US—slightly ob. All four senses were orig. s. (1–3, indeed, were low s. for a decade or more); they > coll. only in late C.19. swell, v. To take a bath: Winchester: from ca. 1860; ob. Ex swill.—2. See swell it.

swell about. See swell it.

swell fencer. A street vendor of needles: low London: —1859; † by 1920. H., 1st ed.

swell-head. Conceit: coll.: C.20. Prob. ex swelled head, q.v.—2. Hence, a conceited person: coll.: C.20, prob. adopted ex US, where current at least as early as 1866, when it occurs in The Galaxy of 15 Dec., p. 719 (Moe).—3. Hence, a superintendent: Can. railroadmen's:—1931.—4. A drunken man: low: late C.19—early 20.

swell-headed. Conceited: puffed with pride: coll.: 1817, Cobbett, 'The upstart...swell-headed farmer can bluster... about Sinecures' (OED).

swell hung in chains, a. A much-bejewelled person: low: mid-C.19–20; ob. H., 2nd ed.

swell it. To play or ape the fine gentleman: low:—1887; ob. (Baumann.) Ex swell, n., 1. In early C.20, also swell about (Manchon).

swell mob. That class of pickpockets who, to escape detection, dress and behave like respectable people: 1830 (Sessions): c. >, by 1870, low s. Ex swell, adj., 1 and 2.—2. In C.20 c., 'the "kite" men, the confidence artists, and... fashionably dressed young men who lie in wait for gullible strangers' (Edgar Wallace, The Double, 1928).

swell-mobsman. One of the 'swell mob': c. (—1851) >, by 1870, low s. Mayhew; Hotten, 3rd ed., 'Swell mobsmen, who pretend to be Dissenting preachers, and harangue in the open air for their confederates to rob'.—2. See prec., 2.

swell-nose. Strong ale: early C.16. Anon., De Generibus Ebriosorum, 1515.

Swell Street, be (—1812) or live (—1904) in. To be a well-off family man of good social standing: low: from ca. 1810; ob. (Vaux.) By 1864—see H., 3rd ed.—Swell Street had > the West End (London).

swelldom. The world of 'swells' (n., all senses): coll: 1855, Thackeray; ob. by 1930.

swelled head. Excessive conceit, pride, or vanity: coll.: 1891 (Kipling OED).—2. Perhaps only one of Grose's jokes, and at most a piece of military punning s. of late C.18—early 19: 'A disorder to which horses are extremely liable... Generally occasioned by remaining too long in one livery-stable or inn, and often rises to that height that it prevents their coming out of the stable door. The most certain cure is the unguentum aureum... applied to the palm of the master of the inn or stable,' 2nd ed. Cf. oat-stealer, q.v.

swelled-headedness. 'Swelled head', sense 1, q.v.: coll.: 1907, E. Reich, 'The Germans are afflicted with the severest attack of swelled-headedness known to modern history' (OED).

swelled nose. See does your nose..., at nose, n.

swellish. Dandified: 1820 (OED): s. >, in late C.19, coll. Ex swell, n., 1, q.v.—2. Gentlemanly; distinguished: from ca. 1830: idem.

swellishness. The n. of swellish, 2, q.v.: coll.: late C.19–20.

swellism. The style (esp. in dress) or the social habits of a 'swell', in sense 1, rarely in other than the first nuance, q.v.: 1840 (OED): s. >, by ca. 1870, coll.; ob. Cf.:

swellness. The being a 'swell', esp. in sense 2 and never in the first nuance of sense 1: coll.: 1894, T.H. Huxley, 'My swellness is an awful burden' (OED); ob. Cf. swellishness and swellism, qq.v.

swells. Occasions—e.g. Sunday church services—on which surplices are worn: Winchester: from ca. 1860. Ex swell, adj., 3, q.v. swell's lush. Champagne: Aus.: ca. 1830–1900. In, e.g., Sketches of Australian Life and Scenery (by a Resident), 1876. Ex the 2 s. elements, qq.v.

swelp, s'welp. See selp and s'elp me.

swelter, n. Hot, hard work: lower classes:—1887 (Baumann). Cf.:—2. In do a swelter, to perspire profusely: 1884. Ex S.E. swelter, a state of perspiration. OED.

Swensker. A Swede: nautical coll.: mid-C.19–20. Bowen, 'A corruption of Svenske'.

swep. Joc. coll. past tense of sweep, usu. in swep out and applied to a female retiring with a great show of (often, offended) dignity: C.20. Middle-class mockery of servants' slovenly pron., at conclusion of narrative, e.g., 'an' with that [remark], she swep' out'. Used to good effect in column 'Dear Mary...', Guardian, 11 Oct. 1982: '[a retort], said Jane grandly and swep off. Swep in again sharpish, though, when she got a whiff of food.' (Mrs C. Raab; P.B.) swerve, n. and v. (To stop at a) coitus interruptus: Aus. motorists': since ca. 1950. An evasive action to avoid a child.

swi (or swy). Two-up, the gambling game: Aus. and NZ low or c.: since ca. 1920, perhaps earlier. Hence swi(-up) school; swy-game. Ex Ger. zwei=two. E.P. (NZ); B., 1942; Wilkes.—2. A florin, i.e. two shillings: low Aus.: late C.19–20.—3. Hence, a sentence, or a term, of two years' imprisonment: Aus. c.: since ca. 1925. (B., 1942.) See swy at AUSTRALIAN UNDERWORLD, in Appendix.

swift, n. A fast-working compositor: printers':—1841 (Savage's Dict. of Printing).—2. See swiftie, 2.

swift, adj. Apt to take (sexual) liberties with, or to accept them from, the opposite sex: coll.: late C.19–20. Suggested by fast. Cf. speedy.—2. In a bit swift: 'Unfair advantage was taken: "Guv'nor, now that was a bit swift"' (Powis, who lists also very swift, 'grossly unfair'): c.: later C.20. Cf.:

swift 'un, a. 'An arrest for "being a suspected person loitering [see also sun law] with undertones of unfair advantage being taken"' (Powis): c. and underground: later C.20. Cf. prec., 2, and:

swiftie, n. An illegal trick: Aus.: since early C.20. Caddie, A Sydney Barmaid, 1953, "'You didn't work a swiftie on them, did you?" I asked suspiciously.' Perhaps a semantic blend of swift, fast, and fast one. It is 'most commonly heard in the phrase to pull a swiftie' (B.P., 1963).—2. As Swiftie, 'Derivative nickname for slow-moving rating' (Granville): RN coll.: late C.19–20. Cf. Curly and Tiny.

swiftly flowing. Going: Aus. rhyming s.: late C.19–20. B., 1945, cites the Sydney Bulletin, 18 Jan. 1902.

swig, n.; in C.16, also swygy. Liquor: coll.: mid-C.16–20; very ob.—has been so since early C.19. Udall, 1548 (OED). Etym. unknown: W. proposes Scandinavian svik, a tap.—2. Hence, a 'pull' (a copious draught): coll. >, in late C.18, s.: from ca. 1620. Middleton & Rowley, 'But one swig more, sweet madam'; Ned Ward; Marryat; Whiteing. Also, in C.17, swigge. Hence, play at swig, to indulge in drink: coll.: late C.17–18.—3. At Oxford University (orig. and esp. Jesus College), toast and (spiced) ale, or the bowl in which it is served: from ca. 1825. Hence, Swig Day, the day (? St David's) it is ritually served.

swig, v.; in C.18, occ. swygy. V.i. To drink deeply, eagerly, or much (esp., strong liquor): mid-C.17–20: coll. >, in early C.19, s. Ex n., 1.—2. V.t., with either the liquor or its container as object: coll. >, in early C.19, s.: resp. 1780, 'Slang Pastoral' Tomlinson, 'To swig porter all day' (OED), and 1682, in Wit and Drollery, 'I... swigg'd my horn'd barrel,' this latter nuance being ob.

Swig Day. See swig, n. 3.

swigged. Tippy: mid-C.19–20: rather proletarian.

swigging, vbl n. (1723) and ppl adj. (1702). See swig, v., 1. OED.

swigman: in C.16, also swygmán. 'One of the 13th Rank of the Canting Crew, carrying small Haberdashery-Wares about, pretending to sell them to colour their Roguery' (B.E.); Awdelay, 1561, says that he 'goeth with a Peddlers pack'. C. of ca. 1560–1800. Prob. ex swagman, despite the fact that swag, a bulgy bag, is recorded only in early C.14.

swilge. Weak, black, instant coffee, with just enough sugar to render it tasteless: Westfield College, Univ. of London: early 1960s. A blend of swig or swill + bilge; also dim., swiggle. (Mrs Barbara Huston, 1980.)

swiling, n. Sealing: Newfoundland nautical coll.: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) By corruption.

swill, n. A bath: Shrewsbury School coll.: mid-C.19–20. Desmond Coke, The Bending of a Twig, 1906.—2. As 'Swill, a coll. euph. for '(by) God's will': C.17. Marston (OED).—3. Soup: RN lowerdeck: late C.19–20. W.G. Carr, Brass-Hats ..., 1939 (Moe).—4. See six o'clock swill.

swill, v.i. 'To wash at a conduit by throwing water over the body': Winchester College coll.: C.19–20. (Wrench.) Cf. the Shrewsbury n. and get swilled, to take a bath (details as for swill, n., 1) swillery. A non-temperance hotel: Aus.: since ca. 1945. (B., 1953.) Cf. S.E. swill, to drink deeply and heavily, as swine: since C.16 (SOD).

swim, n. swimming. i.e. a dizzy, feeling: dial. and coll.: 1829 (Ebenezer Elliott: OED).—2. A plan or enterprise, esp. a tortuous or a shady one: 1860, Sala (OED); slightly ob. by 1930.—3. In in the swim; and out of the swim (1869: rare in C.20): whereas in the swim with, in league with, has always, it seems, been S.E., in the swim, lucky, very fortunate, is coll. and ob. (1930): in 1869, Macmillan's Magazine (the earliest record, by the way) explained that it derives ex swim, a section of river much frequented by fish. By 1864, in a good swim = in luck, doing a good business (H., 3rd ed.); by 1874, in the swim = in the inner circle, movement or fashion; popular: a sense that, from coll., >, ca. 1900, S.E.—3. In in the swim, a long time out of the hands of the police: c.:—1860 (H., 2nd ed.).—4. In give (one's) dog a swim, to have the excuse of doing something or, esp., a reason for something to do: S. African and Aus. coll. An Eng. approximation is take one's dog for a walk.—5. In go for a swim, to be capsized, or otherwise bereft of one's canoe: wild-water racers': later C.20. The documentary film Travelin' Light, 1980.

swim, v. In make (someone) swim for it, to cheat (a pal) out of his share of the booty: c.: late C.19—earlier 20.—2. See how we apples swim.

swim in golden grease, lard, oil. To receive many bribes: C.17 coll. Jonson.

swim like a brick. See brick.

swimmer, n. A counterfeit (old) coin: c.: late C.17—early 19. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) Why?—2. A guard-ship: c.:—1811; † by 1860. (Lex. Bal.; Vaux.) Cf. S.E. swimmer, an angler's float.—3. A half-push stroke: cricketers':—1909 (Lewis).—4. A swimming-suit: coll.: 1929 (OED Sup.).—5. A doughboy, a dumpling: lowerdeck ironical: late C.19–20. Knock.—6. In swimmer, var. of be swimmered, in next. Lex. Bal., 1811.

swimmer, v. To cause (a man) to serve in the Navy instead of sending him to prison: c.:—1812; † by 1860. (Vaux.) Gen. be swimmered. Ex swimmer, n., 2.

swimming market. A (very) good market: Stock Exchange coll.: from ca. 1860. (B. & L.) Opp. sick market, q.v.

swindge, swindging. See swinge, swingeing.

swindle, n. A lottery; a speculation, a toss for drinks: 1870 (Legal Reports); ob. Ex lit. S.E. sense.—2. Something other than it appears to be, a 'fraud': coll.: 1866 (OED). Cf. sense 1.—3. Any transaction in which money passes: from ca. 1870, as in what's the swindle?, what's to pay?, which may orig. have been US, in why don't you pay him his swindle?, his price, and in let's have a swindle!, let's toss for it; all three phrases are ob., the third only slightly so (1930).—4. 'A cunning contrivance, a wangle' (Jackson): RAF: since ca. 1930. Ex sense 2. Esp. in tea swindle, 'arrangement by section for co-operative purchase of tea and refreshments' (Sgt G. Emanuel). P.B.: tea or coffee swindle >, later C.20, widespread, esp. office, etc., coll.

swindle, v.i. To practise fraud: 1782 ed. of Bailey's Dict.: s. >, ca. 1820, S.E. A back-formation ex swindler, q.v.—2. Hence, v.t., esp. with out of: C.19–20: s. >, ca. 1820, S.E. Sydney Smith, 1803 (OED).

swindle sheet. An expense sheet: perhaps orig. RN humorous, since early C.20; by late 1940s gen. and, by 1970, coll. E.P.; COD, 1976.

swindler. A practiser of fraud or imposition for gain; a cheat: ca. 1762: c. >, ca. 1790, s. >, ca. 1820, S.E. E.g. in Foote, 1776; Grose, 1st ed., but 'dictionaried' first in the 1782 ed. of Bailey. Ex Ger. Schwindler, a cheat; cf. schwindeln, to be extravagant or giddy. In England picked up from and applied orig. to German Jews in London; much used, too, by soldiers during the Seven Years War. See esp. F. & H., OED, and W. swindling, n. and adj. ex swindle, v., 1, date from late C.18; by 1820, S.E.

swine. In go the complete (or entire) swine, a London coll. var. of go the whole hog:—1887 (Baumann); ob. by 1930.—2. See sing like a bird called a swine.

swine mixture. 'At Bishop Stortford College, between the wars, there was something called "swine mixture", composed of sardines mashed with cocoa and a minute tin of Nestlé's milk' (R.S.) swine-up. A quarrel: lower classes': ca. 1800–1915. Ware, 'Suspected to be of American origin'. Ex pigs' bad temper. swing, n. As the swing, the gallows: c. or low s.:?late C.18—mid-19.—2. A sexual orgy: Anglo-American: since ca. 1955. (Hollander.) Cf. swing party, a party at which this is the central activity (Landy, 1971) See swing, v., 9.

swing, v.i. To be hanged: s. >, in C.18, c. > s. >, in late C.19, coll.: 1542, Udall, swing in a halter; swing by itself, app. not before C.18; Dickens in Boz, 'If I'm caught, I shall swing' Thus in I'll swing for you if you don't (agree, do it, etc.), it > a c.p. threat: proletarian: ca. 1820–90 (H., 3rd ed.).—2. Hence, v.t., to put to death by hanging: from ca. 1815; ob. and, at all times, rare.—3. To control (a market, a price, etc.): commercial coll.: late C.19–20; slightly ob. Cf. swing it, 1.—4. To play 'swing' music: musicians': from 1936. E.g. 'Hear our Orchestra. They will swing for you', in an advertisement, seen in a MS. novel on 1 July 1937.—5. To postpone, put off, defer: RN: since late C.19. Granville, 'Confronted with a pile of paper work, one occasionally "swings it till Monday".' R/Adm. P.W. Brock, 1973, notes Granville's phrase as 'the motto of the Torpedo School, HMS Vernon, [where it] really meant "switch on and chance it"' (DCpp.): late C.19—early 20. See also swing it.—6. To boast about: army: since ca. 1930. Esp. in swinging one's service. (P–G–R.) Cf. swing that lamp!—7. (Cf. sense 4.) 'To get the feel of, to comprehend the truth or beauty of anything worth digging; to impart the same truth or beauty to others' (Victoria, BC, Daily Colonist, 16 Apr. 1959, 'Basic Beatnik': Can. jazz-lovers' and musicians': adopted, 1956 or 1957, ex US. In The American Dialect Society, Nov. 1958, Norman D. Hinton ('Language of Jazz Musicians') defines swing as 'to play well in all senses, technically and otherwise, but especially to have the basic feel for jazz rhythms'.—8. Hence, mostly as in 'These times are more swinging'—livelier: since ca. 1961. P.B.: whence the term the swinging sixties, applied, in later, gloomier, recession times of 'the sombre seventies' and onwards, nostalgically to the 1960s.—9. V.i.; swinger; swinging. vbl n. To indulge in group sexual activities: since ca. 1965; one who does this—since ca. 1966; the practice, since ca. 1965. In a way, they were orig. euph.; and always they have tended to be applied to married couples (or those who might just as well be) interchanging partners, 'wife-swapping'. All three terms are Anglo-American, and not indisputably US before Brit. See, e.g., DCCU and 6000 Words (Merriam, 1976), with W. & F. usefully intervening; both Chambers, 1972, and COD, 1976, confine themselves to the gen. senses.

SWING A BAG

swing a bag (whence the n. bag-swinger). Of a prostitute: to walk the streets: Aus. c.: since ca. 1925. B., 1953.

swing a free leg; (be) swinging a... To be free, i.e. unmarried: mostly N. Country: C.20. 'Oh, are you married? I thought you were swinging a free leg' (overheard in Liverpool, 1966). A leg, whether male or female, to swing over in sexual intercourse.

swing at (someone), take a. To punch (him): mostly children's and teenagers', exp. in Aus.: since ca. 1925. (B.P.) Since mid-C.20, if not earlier, gen. coll. in Brit.; also occ. as v., 'He swung at me'. (P.B.)

swing coconuts at (one). To 'shoot a line', q.v.: services': later C.20. (Mrs Barbara Huston, 1982.)

swing Douglas or Kelly. To use the axe: Aus. coll.:—1935. Ex two well-known makes of axe.

swing it. To wangle successfully, get something by trickery; to shirk or malinge, esp. if successfully: from late 1890s. Prob. ex swing, v., 3.; cf. swing it across...—2. To allow a matter to take its course: RN: late C.19–20. (Knock.) See swing, v., 5.

swing it across the desert. To scheme one's way into hospital; hence, to malinge: Egyptian Expeditionary Force: 1915–18. (F. & G.) Cf. prec., 1, and:- swing it down the line. To get a (good) job away from the front line: military: 1915–18. F. & G.

swing it on. To deceive slyly; to impose on; do (one) a bad turn: C.20.: at first, perhaps mostly Aus. Prob. ex swing, v., 3, though imm. ex swing it, q.v.—2. To malinge successfully with, as in swing it on a sore foot: military: from 1915. B. & P. (at swinging the lead).

swing it till Monday. See swing, v., 5.

swing Kelly. See swing Douglas swing o' the door. 'Publand... first round is known as "one", second as "the other half", third as "same again", fourth as "a final", fifth as "one for the road", sixth as "a binder", and seventh as "swing o' the door"' (Sunday Dispatch, 3 July 1938).

swing on the ear; usu. as vbl n., swinging... , requesting a loan: army: earlier C.20.

swing (a matter, business) over (one's) head or shoulders. To manage easily; find well within one's powers: commercial: from ca. 1890. Cf. S.E. swing, scope.

swing round the buoy. To hold on to a soft job: RN: since ca. 1920. Ex RN coll. sense 'to ride at anchor'. P-G-R.

swing-tail. A hog; low: ca. 1786–1860. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Contrast swish-tail.

swing (one's) tapes. See tapes, via swing, v., 6.

swing that lamp, Jack! 'A shooter of lines is told to do this. A hint that he is being rather "bad form"' (Granville): RN c.p.: since 1945. G. expands, 1962: 'or treading on delicate ground. When a column of ratings is marching in the dark, a red lamp is carried by one of the men at the rear of the line to warn overtaking traffic. When such traffic is heard approaching he swings the lamp to indicate danger' Also the for that: P.B., 1974, adds 'Still current, and spread to army and RAF. Now usu. without "Jack", and addressed by one listener to the rest of the company, "Oh Lor', swing the lamp! Old George is starting one of his worries [q.v.]", as George tells of his military experiences. Another c.p. used in this context is "Grab your steel helmets!"—less often "tin hats" these days.'

swing the billy. To put the kettle on the fire in order to make a pot of tea: Aus.: since ca. 1920. D'Arcy Niland, Call Me... , 1958.

swing the dolphin. To indulge in masturbation: low: earlier C.20. (T.E. Lawrence, The Mint, about RAF life in the early 1920s.) Here, dolphin clearly = penis; cf., e.g., gallop (one's) maggot.

1188

swing the gate. 'From the New Zealand shearing sheds came those effective expressions to drag the chain and swing the gate,... applied to the slowest and the fastest shearer in the shed respectively' (B., 1941): NZ and Aus.: C.19–20.

swing the hambone. 'To use a sextant': RN: 1970s' (Peppitt)—also earlier; Granville, 1962, lists hambone, sextant. Ex shape.

swing the hammer. To malinge: army: earlier C.20. (F. & G.) A var. of:- swing the lead. To loaf; malinge, evade duty: C.20: orig. and mainly army. By folk-etymology corruption ex next, known to be nautical, the issue being confused by the sailors' technical phrase for taking the soundings, heave (never swing) the lead. Actually, this duty, assumed by soldiers to be easy and to admit of loafing, is both arduous and skilful, for its performer is 'bang under the [chief] officer's eye—and usually the captain's and pilot's as well, and in a tight spot of navigation at that' (Mr H.G. Dixey, letter, 1934). Whence lead-swinger, q.v. A C.20 Glasgow var. is sling the lead.—2. Hence, loosely, to 'tell the tale' (q.v.); to boast: from ca. 1919.

swing the leg. To loaf; malinge: nautical: from ca. 1860. (Corrupted by the army to swing the lead: see prec.) Ex a dog running on three legs, sometimes to rest the fourth, sometimes to elicit sympathy (Mr H.G. Dixey, in a letter to the author). Cf. leg-swinger, -swinging, swinging a leg, and swing a free leg.

swing the monkey. To strike 'with knotted handkerchiefs a man who swings to a rope made fast aloft' (Clark Russell): nautical coll.: from ca. 1880.

swinge; in C.16, occ. swynge; in C.16–18, swindge. To copulate with (a woman): ca. 1620–1750. Fletcher, 1622; Dryden, 1668, 'And that baggage, Beatrix, how I would swinge her if I had her here.' Ex swinge, to castigate.—2. See all senses of:-

swinge off. To toss off (a drink): ca. 1525–1660. Also s. up (Skelton, 1529). ? cf. punish, q.v.—2. To infect with (severe) gonorrhoea: late C.17–18. Gen. passive, be swinged off, as in B.E. Perhaps suggested by clap, q.v.—3. Occ. as var. of swinge, q.v.: late C.17–early 18. Miège.

swingeing, swinging (pron. swindjng); in C.17–19, occ. swindng. Very effective, great, large, esp. of a lie: coll. >, by 1700, s.: late C.16–20, but rare since mid-C.19. Greene, Motteux, Grose (2nd ed.), Dickens. P.B.: revived in later C.20, esp. since ca. 1970, and journalistic/political, applied to taxes, fines, financial 'cuts'; >, by 1980, almost informal S.E.—2. Hence, adv.: hugely: 1690 (Dryden: OED); 1872, C.D. Warner, 'A... swingeing cold night'. Cf. S.E. strapping, adj. and adv.

swinge(e)ingly. Very forcibly; hugely: coll. > by 1700, s.: 1672, Dryden, 'I have sinned swingeingly, against my vow.' Archaic. Ex swinge(e)ing, q.v.

swinger. (N.B.: the first 3, and perhaps the 4th, senses are pron. swindjer.) A rogue, a scoundrel: Scottish c. (? > low s.) of C.16–mid-18. (Dunbar; A Nicol, 1739.) Prob. ex Flemish. OED—2. Something very effective or large (of a blow, not before 1830s): from 1590s, but rare since ca. 1850: coll. >, by 1700, s. Ex swinge, to beat. Cf. whopper.—3. Hence, esp. a bold or rank lie: ca. 1670–1820. Eachard, 1670, 'Rap out... half a dozen swingers.'—4. A box on the ears: Charterhouse coll.:—1890 (B. & L.)—5. A lame leg: low: ca. 1830–75. Sinks, 1848.—6. Short for lead-swinger, a malingere: Brit. army, from ca. 1916; thence, by 1918, to Aus. (B., 1942).—7. An unscheduled extra bus: London busmen's: from ca. 1925. It has been 'swung' on them.—8. 'An additional train coach' (Railway): railwaymen's coll.: C.20. At the end of the train, and esp. on a curve, it tends to swing. Cf. tail-wag.—9. A fine and delightful person: Aus.: since ca. 1925. Jean Devanney, Paradise Flow, 1938.—10. One 'who is modern in his or her thinking' (B.P.): Aus., and some Brit. use: since late 1960s. Ex swing, v., 8, but cf.:—11. One 'who engages in group sexual activities' (B.P.): since ca. 1972. Ex swing, v., 9.—12. See:- swingers. Testicles: low: C.19–20.—2. Self-supporting breasts that swing as the owner walks: Aus.: since ca. 1930.—3. Hence, any female breasts: Aus.: since ca. 1940.

swinging, vbl n. Corresponds to all senses of swing, v. Also, the 'swapping' of marital partners in sexual activity: since late 1960s. Jonathan Thomas, 1976.—2. A hanging: from late C.16: s. >, in late C.19, coll. Percivall, 1591, 'Swinging in a halter'; R.L. Stevenson (OED). Ex swing, v., 1.

swinging, adj. Lively and alert and progressive, with a connotation of success: since ca. 1963. Anthony Lejeune, Daily Telegraph colour sup., 10 Mar. 1967, 'The words "swinging" and "square" are like "progressive" and "reactionary", vague value judgements disguised as descriptions.' Perhaps ex swinging along—of, e.g., pedestrians. 'Swingin'!' (accompanied by a thumbs up gesture) was a 'trademark' of the entertainer Norman Vaughan, who used 'dodgy' as its opposite: from ca. 1961. Nigel Rees, Very Interesting ... But Stupid!, 1980: 'Norman recalls: "'Swingin'!' and 'Dodgy!' came originally from my association with jazz musicians ... when I got the big break at the Palladium they were the first catchphrases that the papers and then the public seized upon.'"—2. See swingeing.

swinging ball game, the. The 'cobbler'—see last sense of cobbler: grafters' coll.: C.20. Cheapjack, 1934.

swinging the copper. 'The rubbing of a copper coin on the back of the hand or on the arm to make it fester' (Petch, 1966); Tommies': WW1. On the far better known swinging the lead.

swinging the stick; or, the bludgeon business. A robbery committed with brutal violence and a life-preserver or bludgeon: c.:—1861 (Mayhew).

swingingly. Adv. of swinging, but see also swingeingly.

swingly, adj. A pej.: later C.20. (Sunday Express mag., 1 Nov. 1981, p. 42.) Cf. cowing.

swinjer. See swinger, 1.

swink. See WINCHESTER, §5, in Appendix.

swinny. Drunk: low: late C.19–20. Ex dial. swinny, giddy, dizzy.

swipe, n.; occ. swype. A heavy blow; in golf and cricket, a stroke made with the full swing of the arms: C.19–20: coll. (? orig. dial) >, ca. 1920, familiar S.E. Perhaps ex sweep; perhaps sibilated wipe, a blow (H.).—2. Hence, one who does this: coll.: 1825, Westmacott, 'A hard swipe, an active field, and a stout bowler' (OED); † by 1900.—3. A term of reproach or scornful condemnation: from ca. 1920. OED Sup.: 'Cf. swipes [bad beer].—4. A kind of jersey used for games: Marlborough College: C.20.—5. An objectionable person: Aus. and NZ: since ca. 1920. Jean Devanney, By Tropic Sea and Jungle, 1944; Ruth Park, The Witch's Thorn, 1952.

swipe, v.i. and t. 'To drink hastily and copiously; ... at one gulp': low s. (—1823) and dial. (—1829) >, ca. 1860, coll. >, ca. 1890, s.; in C.20, also of food. (Egan's Grose.) Often swipe off.? ex sweep off.—2. The sporting v.i. (1857) is coll. >, ca. 1890, S.E. T. Hughes, 1857, 'The first ball of the over, Jack steps out and meets, swiping with all his force.' The v.t. not before ca. 1851. F. & H. and Lewis.—3. At Harrow: to birch (v.t.: from) ca. 1880. A sense-blend of swish, to birch, and swipe, v., 2.—4. To appropriate illicitly; steal; loot: US (—1890), anglicised ca. 1900, when used by Kipling; fairly gen. in WW1, and in Eng. always mostly a military term. P.B.: by mid-C.20 > gen. s.

swiper. A heavy drinker: 1836 (F. Mahony: OED): coll. >, by 1890, s. Ex swipe, v., 1, q.v.—2. The cricketing sense dates from the early 1850s (e.g. in F. Gale, 1853): coll. >, in late C.19, S.E. Ex swipe, v., 2. Lewis.

swipes; occ. swypes. Small beer: from ca. 1786: coll. >, in late C.19, s. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Cf. swipe, v., 1, which it inconveniently precedes by thirty years or more.—2. Hence, any beer: from late C.18, to judge by an English song quoted in The Port Folio, 9 Nov. 1805 (Moe).—3. In purser's swipes, small beer: nautical: ca. 1786–1870. Grose, 2nd ed.—4. A potman: ca. 1810–50.

swipecy, n. A brewer's drayman: low London: mid-C.19. A Leech cartoon in Punch, 30 Mar. 1861, shows a butcher's boy calling to a drayman whose cart is blocking the road, 'Now then, Swipecy! Are you going to stop there till you get fine, afore you draw yourself off?' Exswipecy, adj. (Not very) tipsy: coll.:—1821 (Pierce Egan, Life in London); never gen. and, by 1900, ob. Ex prec., 1, cf. squiffy. swiping is the vbl n. of swipecy, v., 2; also blind swiping: coll.: 1879 (W.G. Grace: Lewis).—2. A birching, esp. by a monitor: Shrewsbury School: from ca. 1880. (Desmond Coke, The Bending of a Twig, 1906.) Cf. swipecy, v., 3.

swipington or swippington. A drunkard: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) A confirmed consumer of swipes, q.v.; cf. Lushington, q.v.

swips. See COLSTON'S, in Appendix.

swish, v. To beat, to cane: Public Schools': C.20. Hence, swishing, a caning.—2. See swished, and swish-tail, v.

swish, adj. Smart; fashionable: C.20 s. > coll. Ex dial. swish, the same: cognate with dial. swash, gaudy or showy. Also Aus. (Kylie Tennant, Foveaux, 1939).—2. (? Hence) effeminate: since the late 1930s and mostly theatrical. 'A male making "pansy" gestures is "swish"' (Richard Merry).

swish! Oh, is that all!?: ironic:—1923 (Manchon).

swish-tail, n. A pheasant, 'so called by the persons who sell game for the poachers' (Grose, 3rd ed.): ca. 1790–1870.—2. A schoolmaster: late C.19–early 20. On bum-brusher.

swish-tail, v. 'To check speed by a yaw before landing' (New Statesman and Nation, 20 Feb. 1937): ca. 1920–40.

swished, ppl adj. Married: low (? orig. c.): ca. 1810–80.

(Vaux; H., 1st ed.) Cf. switched.

swishing hitter. See rum customer.

Swiss. A pheasant: Oxford: ca. 1815–60. (Spy, 1825.)? Cf.

swish-tail, n., 1.

Swiss admiral. A pretended Naval officer: RN coll.: from ca. 1870; ob. Ex the Fr. amiral suisse, a naval officer employed ashore: cf. the allusive S.E. Swiss navy.

switch, n. A chimneysweep's brush: chimneysweeps' coll.: C.19. George Elson, 1900.—2. In at the switch, 'Stealing property from a shop and subsequently exchanging it for cash at the same shop' (Powis): c.: later C.20.

switch, v. To copulate with (a woman): 1772, Bridges, 'Paris ... longs to switch the gypsy'; ob. Cf. swinge, v., 1, q.v.: many old vv. of coition are sadistic.

switch off! Stop talking!, 'shut up!': C.20: s. >, by 1930, coll. (Manchon.) Ex disconnecting a 'phone and/or turning off an electric light.

switched, ppl adj. Married: low:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.). Prob. suggested by swished, q.v. Presumably cognate with switch, v., q.v.—2. 'Known in the [watchmaking] trade as a "switched" watch—with trashy works put into a case bought up for the purpose' (Newspaper cutting of 25 Mar. 1944): C.20.

switched on. In the fashion; well-informed; 'with it': since ca. 1960. Ex electric lighting.—2. 'Aroused by music or by sexual overtures. Can be used in female company' (Powis): coll.: later C.20.

switchel, n. Cold tea: Newfoundland coll.: late C.19–20. (L.E.F. English, Historic Newfoundland, 1955.) Ex US switchel, molasses and water.

switchel, v. To have sexual intercourse: Restoration period. Cf. switch, q.v.

switching. A marriage: low: ca. 1840–1900. (Mary Carpenter, Juvenile Delinquents, 1853.) Ex switch, v.

swive, v.t. and i. To copulate (with a woman); hence swiver, swiving, and the Queen of Swiveland (Venus). Excellent S.E. that, dating from late C.14, >, early in C.17, a vulgarism; † since ca. 1800, except as a literary archaism and in several diall.

swivel-eye. A squinting eye: coll.: 1864 (H., 3rd ed.); 1865, Dickens; ob. Ex:

swivel-eyed. Squint-eyed: coll.: 1757 (Smollett, The Reprisal, II, xv; Moe).

swivel-headed. Applied to a man constantly looking around at passing girls: Services': 1950s–60s. (P.B.)

swivelly. Drunk: late C.19–20; very ob., Ex swivel on squiffy, q.v.

swiver. See swive.

Swiveland, Queen of. Ibid.

swiz; occ. swizz. A 'fraud'; great disappointment: late C.19–20 schoolboys'. Prob. an abbr. of swizzle, recorded in the same sense by A.H. Dawson in 1913; the longer form being perverted swindle.—2. Abbr. swizzle, n., 1: mostly Cockneys': from ca. 1875; ob. B. & L.—3. (Also adj.) Something fine or excellent: Aus.: since ca. 1925. (B., 1942.) A corruption of swish, adj.

swizzle, n. Intoxicating drink, whether a specific cocktail or strong liquor in gen.: s. >, ca. 1850, coll.: from not later than 1791, for it appears in the 3rd ed. of Grose, where, moreover, it is said that at Ticonderoga, in N. America, the 17th (English) Regiment had, ca. 1760, a society named the Swizzle Club; 1813, Colonel Hawker, 'The boys ... finished the evening with some ... grub, swizzle, and singing' (OED). Slightly ob. ? a corruption of swig (W.) or cognate with the US switchel, which, however, is recorded later and may be ex swizzle; perhaps swizzle derives ex swig on guzzle or even on dial. twizzle, v.t., turn round quickly.—2. See swiz.

swizzle, v.i. To tittle: s. and dial (—1847) >, ca. 1880, coll.; ob. (Halliwell.) Ex swizzle, n., 1.—2. V.t., to stir (drink) with a swizzle-stick: 1859 (Trollope: OED): s. >, ca. 1880, coll. Prob. ex sense 1 but strongly influenced by twizzle (see end of swizzle, n., 1). Whence the next entry.—3. V.i. corresponding to n., 2; whence swizzler, a swindler, as in Neil Bell, Crocus, 1936.

swizzle-stick. A stick for stirring drink to a froth: coll.: 1885 (OED).

swizzled. Tipsy: from ca. 1850. Ex swizzle, v., 1, q.v.

swizzler. See swizzle, v., 3.

swizzy. A s. var. of swizzle, n., 1, and v., 1.

swob! 'Swelp me bob!' (q.v.): low:—1923 (Manchon). Cf. swop me bob!

swobbers. See swabber.

swod-gill. See swad-gill.

swoddy. See swaddy. Thus spelt, rare in C.20.

swoffer, swaffer. A pupil either good at his work or, at the least, hard-working; a 'swotter': Public Schools': C.20. P. Van Greenaway, A Man Called Scavener, 1978.

swog. See MISCELLANEA, in Appendix.

Swolks! See 'Swounds!'

swollen head, have a. To be tipsy: coll.: late C.19—early 20.—2. To be conceited: coll.: C.20. (P.B.) Cf. swelled head.

swoman. A station warrant officer (S.W.O.): RAF: since ca. 1925; slightly ob. since ca. 1955. P.B.: usu. the swoman (there is only one per station); pron. to rhyme with, and prob. orig. a pun on, snowman.

swop. See swap. So too for derivatives.

swop me bob or Bob! A perversion of s'elp (via swelp, q.v.) me bob!: 1890 (P.H. Emerson: EDD). See also at s'elp and cf. swob! A var. (—1923) is swop me Dick(ey): Manchon.

swopper; -ing. See swapper; -ing.

sworbote (or S) I, God. A coll. corruption of God's forbotel!: ca. 1580–1620. OED.

sword. A bayonet: army (Other Ranks') coll.: late C.19–20. (Patrick MacGill, The Amateur Army, 1915.) But note that in the Rifle regiments, sword is the correct term.—2. See slung sword.

sword and medals. A ceremonial occasion: RN officers' coll.: C.20. Hence, adj., as in 'This will be a sword-and-medals "do"'. Granville.

sword-racket. Enlisting in various regiments and deserting after getting the bounty: c. of ca. 1810–50. Lex. Bal.

sword swallowing. 'The practice of eating with one's knife' (Baker): Aus. joc.: C.20.

sworder. A swordsman: coll.: early C.19. Bill Truck, Sep. 1823.—2. A ship engaged in catching sword-fish: nautical coll.: late C.19—early 20. Bowen.

1190

sworn at Highgate. Sharp, clever: coll. (From ca. 1840, mainly dial.): mid-C.18–19. Colman, 1769, 'I have been sworn at Highgate, Mrs. Lettice, and never take the maid instead of the mistress'; Hone's Every Day Book (ii, 79–87); (Apperson.) Ex a C.18 custom prevalent at Highgate public houses—see Grose, P.

swosh. Nonsense; drivel: 1924, Galsworthy, The White Monkey, 'And anyway sentiment was swosh'. It lived only ca. 1923–5. A blend of swindle + bosh (or perhaps tosh).

swot, swat, n. Mathematics: ca. 1845–95: military. Also, a mathematician. (Rarely swat.) Perhaps ex a RMA professor's pron. of sweat (v.).—2. Hence, (hard) study: Public Schools' (—1881) and universities'. Perhaps imm. ex v.—3. One who studies hard: 1866 (OED). Ex second nuance of sense 1.—4. In in a swot, in a rage: Shrewsbury School: late C.19–20. Corruption of sweat.

swot; occ. swat, v.i. To study hard: from ca. 1859: army >, ca. 1870, gen. at the universities (H., 2nd and 5th edd.). Ex swot, n., 1. Hence swot (swat) up, to work hard at, esp. for an examination; to 'mug up': rare before C.20.

swotter. A 'swot' (sense 3): mostly schools:—1919 (OED Sup.).

swottie. A soldier: R Aus. N: earlier C.20. (B., 1943.) Like swatty, a slovening of swaddy, q.v.

'Swounds! A coll. euph. for God's wounds!: 1589 (Nashe); † by 1650. Cf. the very rare perversion of 'Swounds: Swolks!, recorded by Swift in his Polite Conversation. OED.

swret-sio. The earliest form (—1859) of sret-sio, oyster, q.v. H., 1st ed.

swy. See swi.

swyg. See swig, n.

swygman. See swigman.

swynge. See swinge.

swype. See swipe.

swypes. See swipes.

sycher and zoucher. A contemptible person: c., and low: from ca. 1780; ob. B. & L.: "'Sich" is provincial for a bad man.'

Sydney-bird, -duck, or -sider. A convict: Aus.: ca. 1850–90. (In C.20, a Sydneysider is merely a native or inhabitant of Sydney.) Ex the convict settlement.

Sydney blanket. Var. of Wagga blanket. B., 1943.

Sydney duck. Any one of the numerous—many of them disreputable—Australians that rushed to California in 1849 ff.: mid-C.19–20; in C.20, mostly historical. Orig. an Americanism, it was adopted, ca. 1860, in Aus. (B., 1942.) They sailed from Sydney; duck is ironic. (See esp. Name into Word.) See Sydney-bird.

Sydney harbour. A barber: Aus. rhyming s.: late C.19–20. B., 1943.

Sydney or the bush, e.g. it's (either). A final choice or decision: Aus. (esp. NSW) c.p.: late C.19–20. Edward Shann, An Economic History of Australia, 1930, "'Sydney or the bush!" cries the Australian when he gambles against odds.'

syebuck. A sixpence: low: ca. 1780–1850. G. Parker, 1781. Ex sice, 6; the buck may be a mystifying suffix suggested by hog, a shilling.

syi-slinger. An actor that mouths his words: theatrical:—1913 (A.H. Dawson, Dict. of Slang); ob. by 1930.

sympathy. A man's intimate caressing of a woman: C.20. Ex that indelicate definition of sympathy which arose from Byron's 'A fellow-feeling ...'

Synagogue, the. A shed in the N.E. corner of Covent Garden: from 1890. Covent Garden is almost wholly run by Jews. Ware.—2. See pork chop.

sync (pron. sink), n. and v. Synchronization; to synchronize: film-lad: since ca. 1931. Cameron McCabe, The Face on the Cutting Room Floor, 1937, 'To get them synced' and 'Put them both in sync'. But, since ca. 1940, used in all technical fields. (B.P.) Also synch, in out of synch, unco-ordinated in time [P.B.: or merely unco-ordinated].

synch. See prec.

syntax. A schoolmaster: coll. of 1780–1860. (Grose, 1st ed.) Cf. William Combe's Tour of Dr Syntax, 1813. Ex grammar. Cf. gerund-grinder, q.v.

synthetic. 'Often applied to news which is suspect, or to a person who seems to pretend to be something more than he really is' (H. & P.); Services: since ca. 1935. In the RAF it is often applied to the theory as opposed to the practice of flying. For the semantics, cf. ersatz girl. Cf. pseud, a later version.

syph; incorrectly siph. Syphilis: coll.: late C.19–20. Contrast clap, q.v.

sypho. Aus. var. of prec.: since ca. 1920. B., 1953.

syrup. Money: dispensing chemists':—1909 (Ware). Cf. brads.—2. A wig: rhyming s., on syrup of figs: later C.20. 'A common criminal expression, as wigs are not infrequently used as disguises and are often worn by prostitutes. (Term originates from the name of a commercial laxative)' (Powis); Red Daniells, 1980, assigns the term to show-business. Cf. Irish.

T. See marked ...

T.A. Tel Aviv: coll.: since ca. 1939. (Ian Jeffries, Thirteen Days, 1958.)

T.A.B.U.; S.A.B.U.; N.A.B.U. A typical army balls-up; a self-adjusting balls-up; a non-adjustable balls-up; army: mostly officers' and esp. in N. Africa: 1940-5. (J.F. Fullarton, Troop Target, 1943.) The acronyms soon came to be written, and pron., 'solid': tabu, sabu, nabu, with the u pron. co. The Press, 1945 onwards, used euph. box-up for balls-up, but the terms hardly survived WW2, whereas snafu goes marching on. t. and o., T. and O. Odds of two to one: sporting: later C.19 early 20. Ware.—2. Taken and offered: racing coll.: C.20.

T.A.R.F.U. That state of confusion in which 'things are really fucked up (politely: fouled up)': as for T.A.B.U., yielding tarfu.

t.b.; loosely t.-b. (or T.-b.). Tuberculosis: coll. (orig. medical): C.20.—2. t.b. or T.B. Top boy: London school' coll.: —1887 (Baumann).—3. 'Two beauts' (large and shapely breasts, of course): Aus. joc.: since ca. 1920.

T-bird. A two-seater training aircraft: RAF: 1970s. (P.B., 1977.) Obviously bird is a plane. Contrast US T-bird, a Thunderbird.

T.C.C.F.U. Typical Coastal Command fuck-up. ca. 1941-4. In the RAF, permissible only to Coastal Command personnel: used by any other Command, 'Them's fightin' words, partner.'

T.C.I.C. 'Mission brief[ing], and this is the opportunity for all the squadron "wheels" to stand up and put in their little bit of TCIC' (Phantom, where it is glossed "'Thank Christ I'm covered"—not to be confused with TGIF [q.v.]): RAF: 1970s. See wheel, n. 4.

T.G. Represents 'Thank God!', and is applied to cutlery and crockery left unused at table and therefore not needing to be washed up; hence, T.G.s, the articles themselves: domestic: since ca. 1940. (David Short, 1978.) Perhaps suggested by t.G.i.F. Cf. synon. sunbeam.—2. See temporary gentleman.

t.G.I.F., or T.G.I.F. A c.p. among non-resident teachers in secondary schools: C.20. 'Thank God it's Friday!' P.B.: by ca. 1970, perhaps earlier, much more gen. and widespread; e.g. Peppitt notes its RN use as adj., in 'have, or give, a T.G.I.F. party'. Used wherever people work a nine-to-five, five-day week. Cf. poets, q.v.

T.L.C. Tender Loving Care; as in, e.g. 'She should be OK with a bit of TLC': the 'caring' professions: since ca. 1965. (Mrs Camilla Raab, 1980.) By the early 1980s could be used, joc., by a turkey-farmer with ref. to care of his stock (P.B.).

T.M. A 'tailor-made'—i.e., ready-made—cigarette: Aus.: since ca. 1935.

T.S.R. arse. See hard-arse.

t.t.; occ. tee-tee. Teetotal; a teetotaller: late C.19-20.

T.T.F.N. One of the most famous of all the 'Itma' c.pp, it stands for ta-ta for now!, and was immensely popular early 1940s-early 50s. Still remembered, and used, 1980s. See ITMA, in Appendix.

TV behind. Esp. in you're getting (a) ..., a c.p. addressed to a broad-beamed woman: from ca. 1956. The implication is 'too much time spent sitting watching TV'.

t.w.k. Too well known: army in India: mid-C.19-early 20. Ware.

tal; rarely taal! Thanks!: coll., orig. and mainly nursery: 1772, Mrs Delany, 'You would not say "ta" to me for my congratulation' (OED). Ex a young child's difficulty with th and nks. Cf.:-

ta muchly! Thank you very much!: a deliberately sol. elab. of tal, usu. for humorous effect: C.20. Cf. ta very much!, another exaggerated form of tal: 'non-U' coll. (P.B., 1980; Petch, 1969.)

ta-tal Good-bye!; au revoir! coll., orig. and chiefly nursery: 1837, Dickens, "'Tar, tar, Sammy," replied his father' (OED). Perhaps suggested by Fr. au 'voir. P.B.: since mid-C.20, ?earlier, often pron. tal-ah, rather than in the Dickensian style. Cf. tatty-byel, q.v.—2. Hence (?), and also as tata, a hat: theatrical:—1923 (Manchon).

ta-tas, go; go for a ta-ta. (Of a child) to go for a walk: (proletarian) nursery coll.: late C.19-20. Ex prec. P.B.: also, since earlier C.20, go tats.

taal! See tal!

tab, n. As the Tab, The Metropolitan Tabernacle in Newington Causeway: London: late C.19-20. Baumann.—2. A Cantab or Cambridge University man: coll.: from ca. 1910. (SOD.) But see Tab-socking.—3. (Gen. pl.) An ear: tailors', from ca. 1870; by early C.20, gen. low London s. (John G. Brandon, The Dragnet, 1936). Cf. tabhole.—4. An old maid; loosely, any oldish woman: theatrical:—1909 (Ware). Abbr. tabby, 1.—5. A staff officer: army: later WW1+. (F. & G.) Ex his red tabs. Cf. brass hat, which is much more usual.—6. A customer that, after giving an infinity of trouble, buys precisely nothing: drapers' and hosiers':—1935. Perhaps ex tab, v. Cf. swap, n., 3.—7. A cigarette: Northern: from ca. 1920. Also among grafters: witness Cheapjack. Alan Hunter, Gently Does It, 1955, has 'tab-end of a Woodbine'.—8. A sweetheart (female); one's girl; one's woman: Aus.: earlier C.20. (B., 1942.) Abbr. tabby, 4.—9. Tab, a drug compressed flat or flattish: medical and pharmaceutical coll.: since early C.20.—10. See drive tab; keep tab(s) on; pick up the tab; Tab Guards.

tab, v.i. (Of a customer) to give much trouble: drapery and kindred trades':—1935. Perhaps cf. tab, n., 4; perhaps ex keep (a) tab. Whence tabber, a customer hard to please.—2. To walk, hence tabbing, walking, and as in 'that night he set out on a "tab" for Goose Green': Parachute Regt in the Falkland Is. campaign, 1982. (Robert Fox, Listener, 8 July, pp. 2, 3.) Ex tabs, 2.

Tab Guards, the. 'In the Household Cavalry the Foot Guards are known as the "Tab Guards", because in the Household Cavalry a man's feet are his "tabs"' (Carew).

tab-nabs. 'Little delicacies, tab-nabs... little hot cakes of cheese and potato or some sort of savoury tart' (Steven Piper, The North Ships, 1974): nautical, MN and trawlermen's: C.20. Peppitt defines them as 'Sweet biscuits or small cakes to go with a cup of tea'.

Tab-socking, n. A boxing contest against Cambridge University ('the Cantabs'): Oxford University boxers': ca. 1895-1914.

tab (up) on. See keep tab(s) on.

tabber. See tab, v.

tabby; occ. tabbie. An old maid: coll. (in C.20, S.E.): 1761, G. Colman, 'I am not sorry for the coming in of these old tabbies, and am much obliged to her ladyship for leaving us to such an agreeable tête-à-tête'; Grose, 1st ed., 'Either from Tabitha, a formal antiquated name; or else from a tabby cat, old maids being often compared to cats'; Rogers.—2. Hence, a spiteful tattler: coll.: from ca. 1840. In C.20, S.E. Cf. cat.—3. Loosely, any woman; mostly in tabby-party, a gathering of women: coll.—1874 (H., 5th ed.).—4. In C.20, esp. in Aus., often 'girl', sweetheart. See also tab, n., 8.

tabby meeting. The May meeting of the evangelical party at Exeter Hall, London: London: ca. 1890–1905. (Ware.) Ex its old-maidishness.

tabby party. See tabby, 3.

tabhole. Ear: an extension of tab, n., 3, with which cf. dial. tab- or waste-end cut from cloth. L.A. cites Phillip Callow, Going to the Moon, 1968.

table. As the table, the pitch: cricketers': since ca. 1920. Ex the frequent description of Aus. and S. African pitches being 'as hard and smooth as a billiard table'.—2. In on the table, adj. and adv., on the operating table: medical coll.: mid-C.19–20. Christianna Brand, Green for Danger, 1945.—3. In under the table, adj. and adv., applied to 'something given as a bribe' (F.D. Sharpe, The Flying Squad, 1938): low: C.20. Cf. the commercial under the counter of 1941–8.

table-cloth, the. A white cloud topping Table Mountain: S. African, esp. Cape Town, coll. >, ca. 1880, S.E.: from mid-1830s. In Addresses to the British and South African Association, 1905, we read that 'South-easters are of three kinds—(1) "Table-cloth" [also as n.: 1898] ... (2) "Blind" ... (3) "Black" south-easters': all these are coll. Pettman.

table-end man. A husband whose desires are so urgent that he cannot wait to go upstairs: domestic: late C.19–20. P.B.: cf. the old (? mainly Welsh) story: Doctor to elderly female patient: 'Tell me, Madam, have you ever been bed-ridden before?'—'Yes, indeed—and table-ended as well!' (With thanks to P.J. Emrys Jones.)

table-part. A role 'played only from the waist upwards, and therefore behind a table' (Ware): theatrical coll.: C.19–20. Cf. later C.20 talking heads.

table (one's) shiners (all as one). To pay—put on the table—one's good money, coinage (as usual): mostly RN, esp. lowerdeck: ca. 1805–80. Bill Truck, Dec. 1825.

tablets. See keep taking ...

tabloid sports. A 'miniature' sports meeting: army officers' joc. coll.: ca. 1930–70. P-G-R: P.B.

tabs. As The Tabs, the 15th Light Dragoons (eventually, 1933, the 15th/19th The King's Royal Hussars): 'As they were raised [in 1759] during a strike of journeymen tailors, many of whom joined the regiment, they were known as "The Tabs"' (Carew). Perhaps ex dial. tab- or waste-end cut from cloth.—2. Feet. See tab Guards.—3. See keep tab(s) on; tab, n., 3.

tabu. See T.A.B.U.

tace is Latin for a candle! Be quiet; it'd be better for you to stop talking!: coll.: 1688, Shadwell, 'I took him up with my old repartee; Peace, said I, Tace is Latin for a candle'; Swift; Fielding; Grose, 2nd ed.; Scott; then in dial., occ. cat for candle. The pun is double: L. tace=be silent!; a candle is snuffed or otherwise extinguished. Cf. brandy is Latin for a goose, q.v. (Apperson.)

tach. A hat: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Via tah aspirated.

tache. See keep (one's) tache on; tash.

tacho (pron. takko). A tachometer; tachograph: coll.: since ca. 1955. (B.P., 1977.) Cf. speedo.

tachs. A fad: Tonbridge School: from ca. 1880; † by 1920. Ex tache, a trait, now dial.; cf. the Somersetshire tetch, habit or gait.

tack. Foodstuff, esp. in soft tack, bread, and hard tack, ship's biscuit: orig. (ca. 1830), nautical (Marryat, soft tack, 1833: OED). Cf. tackle, victuals, which is rather later. Prob. sailor's pun on either tackle, cordage, or tack, a ship's (change of) direction, or ex dial. tack, cattle-pasture let on hire. The OED considers it S.E.; more prob., I think, nautical s. >, ca. 1860, coll. and then perhaps, in C.20, S.E. Cf. tommy, q.v.—2.

Hence, food (esp. cooked food) in gen.: coll.: late C.19–20. Lyell, 'What a filthy looking restaurant! What ever [sic] sort of tack do they give you in this place?!'—3. A feast in one's study: Sherborne School: from ca. 1870.—4. Gear (harness, etc.): hunting: late C.19–20. (Joanna Cannan, Murder Included 1950.) Ex S.E. tackle.—5. In on the tack, teetotal: Services': late C.19–20. (F. & G.) Ex sense 1. P.B.: or, of a man who has renounced drink, 'On the other tack', going in another direction? Hence tack-wallah; and cf. tact.—6. In will not start tack or sheet, resolute; with mind firmly made up: nautical coll.: early C.19–20. W.N. Glascock, Sailors and Saints (I, 15), 1829 (Moe); Bowen.

tack-on. The act of adding something; the thing added: coll.: 1905 (OED).

tack together. To marry: joc. coll.: 1754 (Foote); ob. by 1930.

tack wallah. A teetotaler: army: late C.19—early 20 (B. & P.) Ex tack, 5.

tacked, have or have got (a person). From ca. 1870, but † by 1920: 'When a man has another vanquished, or for certain reasons bound to his service, he is said to have "got him tacked"' (H., 5th ed.). Cf. taped, q.v.

tackety boots. Boots steel-tipped and -heeled: RN: since ca. 1960. (Peppitt.) Reinforced as if with large tacks, perhaps influenced by attack. P.B.: or merely echoic, of their clatter on board ship? Also railwaymen's: McKenna, 2, p. 119, has 'Bungarees, a uniform glazed cap, and a tackety pair of boots, the essential apparel for cleaning engines.' Contrast:-

tackies. Rubber-soled sand-shoes: S., Central and E. African coll.:—1913 (Pettman). Prob. ex the marks left on, e.g., moist soil by the corrugations.

tackiness. N. ex tacky. 'The pictures [in a book about late 1970s Teddy-boys] reveal a world where tackiness and style lock together' (Time Out, 23 Nov. 1979).

tacking, n. 'Obtaining end by roundabout means': lower classes':—1909 (Ware). Ex nautical j., perhaps with a glance at tact.

tackle, n. A mistress: c.: 1688 (Shadwell); B.E.: Grose. † by 1830. Prob., like the next, ex tackle, instruments, equipment.—2. Clothes: c. >, ca. 1840, nautical s.: late C.17–19. B.E., 'Rumtackle ... very fine Cloth[e]s'; Grose, 1st ed.; H., 1st ed. Cf. rigging.—3. Orig. (Grose, 2nd ed.) a man's tackle, = the male genitals: late C.18–20; ob.—4. Victuals: s.: 1857, T. Hughes, 'Rare tackle that, sir, of a cold morning' (OED); slightly ob. In dial., it dates from mid-C.18: witness EDD. Prob. suggested by tack, q.v.—5. A watch-chain, a red t. being a gold chain: c.: from late 1870s. Ex tackle, cordage, and frequently in combination with toy, a watch.

tackle, v. To lay hold of; encounter, attack, physically: coll.: orig. (—1828), US, Anglicised by 1840 at latest. Perhaps ex tackle, to harness a horse, influenced by attack.—2. Hence, to enter into a discussion, etc., with (a person), approach (a person on some subject): coll.: 1840 (Dickens: OED); 1862, Thackeray, 'Tackle the lady, and speak your mind to her as best you can.'—3. Hence, to attempt to handle (a task, situation), or to understand or master (a subject); attack (a problem): coll.: 1847 (FitzGerald: OED).—4. Hence, v.i., with to (1867, Trollope), to set to; or with, to grapple with (from late C.19 and mainly dial.): OED and EDD.—5. V.t., ex senses 1 and 3: to fall upon (food), begin to eat, try to eat: coll.: 1889, Jerome K. Jerome, 'We tackled the cold beef for lunch' (OED).

tackline. A hyphen, as in a hyphenated name: RN signalmen's: since the 1930s. A tackline 'joins' a set of flags.

tacks. An artist's paraphernalia: artists':—1909 (Ware). Ex tackle, equipment.

tacky. Vulgar, unrefined; gen. adj. of contempt: coll.: adopted, ex US, early 1970s. Time Out, 9 May 1980, '[The film] is as subtle as a two-bob hairpiece and just as tacky'. See also quot'ns at feisty and naff, adj., 1. Whence tackiness, tackily.

tact. In go on the tact, to 'go on the water-wagon', refrain from drinking alcohol: army: late C.19—early 20. (Richards.) Suggested by 'teetotal' perhaps; but imm., by corruption, ex tack, 5.—2. In and that, Bill, is tact (sol., tack!), an earlier C.20 c.p. based on the chestnut of the plumber explaining to his assistant that 'tact is when you find her ladyship in the bath and you get away quickly saying "Beg pardon, my lord."' Occ. and that is what they call tack.

taddler. A sausage: low.—1923 (Manchon). Perhaps tiddler corrupted or perverted.

tagger. Penis: N. Country, esp. Yorkshire: late C.19—20. Perhaps ex tagpole, or, as L.A. has proposed, 1976, cf. dial. tagge, to join: if so, it might stand for (at)tach. But, ex also teach-gir, q.v.

Tagpole. A party-hack: political: middle 1880s; ob. (Collinson.) Gen. in the phrase Tagpoles and Tapers. Coined by Disraeli.

taepo. See taipo.

taf; taffy. Fat, adj.; fatty, n.: back s., 'near' back s.: from late 1850s. (H., 1st ed.) The latter, † by 1930.

taff. A potato: Christ's Hospital (School): from ca. 1860. ? ex tatie or tatur.—2. As Taff, the C.19 abbr., and C.20 usu. form, of Taffy. (Bowen.) In, e.g.:-

Taffs, the. The Welsh Guards, raised Feb. 1915: army. Occ. the Taff Guards (cf. the Jock Guards); see also Daffy Taffs. Also the Taffies; all ex:-

Taffy. A Welshman: a coll. nickname dating from ca. 1680 though adumbrated in Harrison's England, where a Welshman is called a 'David'. Popularised by the old nursery-rhyme, 'Taffy was a Welshman, Taffy was a thief' (see interestingly the v. welsh). Also an 'inevitable' nickname of anyone with a Welsh name or accent: lower classes: mid-C.19—20. Ex a (supposed) Welsh pron. of Davy. Cf. Paddy and Sawney.—2. See taf.

taffy horse. 'A chestnut with a much lighter (often silver) mane and tail' (B., 1942): Aus. sporting and rural: C.20. Ex the colour of toffee (dial. taffy).

Taffy's Day. St David's Day (1 March): late C.17—20. (B.E.) See Taffy.

tag. A lower servant, so called because he assists another (cf. S.E. tag after, to follow servilely): servants' s. (—1857) > coll. Cf. corresponding pug. OED.—2. An offside kick: Winchester: from ca. 1840. Mansfield.—3. An actor: from ca. 1860; virtually † by 1900, † by 1910. Ex tags of speeches. Cf.:—4. The last line of a play, whether in prose or in verse: theatrical coll.: late C.19—20. It is, Alfred Atkins tells me, considered unlucky to speak it at rehearsals.—5. Synon. with tail, n., 8: later C.20.—6. See der Tag.

tag along. To go along; to go: C.20. (James Spenser, Limey Breaks In, 1934.) Perhaps ex tag (oneself) on to a person and go along with him. Cf.:

tag around with. To frequent; follow about: C.20. D.L. Sayers, 1933, 'He used to tag around with that de Momerie crowd.'

tag on. To comprehend, or merely to hear what is said; to 'twig' what is going on: coll.: later C.20. Often neg., 'I didn't tag on quite soon enough'. (L.A.; P.B.)

taggie, -y, n. A girl or woman; occ. women in gen.; sometimes 'a bit of taggy': Services; perhaps mostly R.N.: mid-C.20. (P.B.)

Taig. A Roman Catholic. (Powis.) Var. of Teague, 2, q.v.

taihoa! Wait a bit!: NZ coll.: from ca. 1840. Direct ex Maori. Morris.

tail. The posteriors; fundament: C.14—20: S.E. until ca. 1750, then (dial. and) coll.; in late C.19—20, low coll.—2. The penis; more gen., the female pudend: mid-C.14—20: S.E. until C.18, then coll.; in C.19—20, low coll. See stick a tail on. Ex this sense, and the next, comes Powis's 1977 definition: 'Tail. Sexual intercourse in a general sense: "He loves tail"', with which cf. give (a girl) tail, to copulate with (her): raffish: since ca. 1965. Jonathan Thomas, 1976.—3. Hence, a harlot: ca. 1780—1850; but extant in Glasgow. Grose, 1st ed., 'Mother, how many tails have you in your cab? how many girls have you in your nanny house?' Other derivatives—prob. not coll. before late C.17 or early 18, all ob. except those marked †, and all drawn from F. & H.—are these:—Penis, † tail-pike, -pin, -pipe, -tackle, -trimmer, and † tenant-in-tail, which also = a whore; pudend, tail-gap, -gate, -hole. Also tail-feathers, pubic hair; † tail-fence, the hymen; † tail-flowers, the menses; † tail-fruit, children; tail-juice (or -water), urine or semen; tail-trading, harlotry; tail-wagging or -work, intercourse; cf. † make settlement in tail, go tail-tickling or -twitching, play at up-tails all, and, of women only, turn up one's tail, get shot in the tail; hot or † light or warm in the tail, (of a woman) wanton; but † hot-tailed or with tail on fire = venereally infected. These terms are not results of F. & H.'s imagination: most of them will be found in one or other of the following authors: Langland, Chaucer, Shakespeare, Rochester, Motteux, Ned Ward, Tom Brown, C.18 Stevens and Grose.—4. 'The train or tail-like portion of a woman's dress': late C.13—20: S.E. until C.18, then coll. Bridges, 1774, 'Brimstones with their sweeping tails' (OED).—5. A sword: c.: late C.17—early 19. B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.—6. A political following in the House of Commons: Parliamentary: late C.19—20.—7. A rear gunner in an aircraft: RAF: since ca. 1938. (P-G-R.) Cf. tail-end Charlie.—8. A person who 'tails', follows, another: police, espionage, etc.: since mid-C.20. Ex the v., 2. 'However hard he tried, he couldn't shake his "tail" off'. (P.B.)—9. In be [gen. shall or will] on (someone's) tail, to look for, to pursue, a person with a view to punishing or severely scolding him: C.20. Cf.:—10. In get (one) on the tail, get on the tail of (someone), to attack an opponent in or from the rear: RFC/RAF coll.: from ca. 1915. F. & G.—11. In she goes as if she cracked nuts with her tail, a semi-proverbial c.p. applied to a frisky woman: C.19—early 20. Cf. senses 1 and 2.—12. In tail over top or top over tail, head over heels: coll.: C.14—early 20; S.E. until mid-C.18, then coll. Ex sense 1; cf. base over apex.—13. In get on (one's) own tail, to grow angry—but also, to grow afraid: Aus.: since ca. 1918. (B., 1942.) Perhaps cf. sense 10, and certainly:—14. In (one's) tail (is) out, one is angry: proletarian: later C.19—early 20. B. & L.—15. See as hasty as a sheep ...; cow's tail; kiss my tail!; settlement in tail.

tail, v.i., to coit: C.18—20.—2. V.t., to follow, as a detective a criminal: coll.: late C.19—20. Perhaps ex Aus. sense, tail (drive or tend) sheep or cattle, for an early occurrence is in C.L. Money, Knocking about in New Zealand, 1871 (B., 1941). P.B.: perhaps simply ex 'to stay behind'; cf. the old reproof 'You're all behind—like the cow's tail'.—3. See tail it.

tail arse Charlie. A confusion between arse-end Charlie and tail-end Charlie. Granville, 'Junior ship in a squadron or the last in the line.'

tail-block. A watch: nautical:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.). Ex lit. nautical sense.

tail-board. The back-flap of a (gen. female) child's breeches: low: from ca. 1870. Ex the movable tail-board of a barrow, cart van, etc.

tail-buzzer. A pickpocket: c.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.); ob. by 1930. Ex tail, the breech, + buz, to steal. Orig., it would seem, of a thief specialising in removing articles from hip-pockets. Cf.:

tail-buzzing. That kind of pickpocketry: c.: from ca. 1845. 'No 747'.

tail-drawer. A sword-stealer, esp. from gentlemen's sides: c.: late C.17—early 19. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed. at tail drawers.) Ex tail, n., 5.

tail-end Charlie. The rear gunner on a bomber: RAF: since ca. 1938. (Weekly Telegraph, 25 Jan. 1941; H. & P.) A fellow at the rear.—2. Hence, the rear plane in a formation: since ca. 1939. Jackson. Cf. arse-end Charlie.—3. (Ex senses 1 and 2.) A goods guard: railwaymen's: since ca. 1945. Railway, 2nd.—4. Hence, loosely, one who brings up the rear of anything, e.g. a group of rambles, or a sponsored walk, where a 'shepherd' is needed: coll.: since WW2. (P.B.) tail-feathers; -fence; -flowers; -fruit; -gap. See tail, n., 3.

tail-gate. See tail, n., 3, and tailgate.

tail-hole. See tail, n., 3.

tail in the water, with. Thriving, prosperous: coll.: ca. 1850–1910. F. & H.

tail it, occ. merely tail. To die: c. and low s.: since ca. 1920. 'The old dear "tailed" meant the old lady died' (Bournemouth Evening Echo, 20 Apr. 1966).

tail-juice. See tail, n., 3.

Tail Light Alley. A street frequented by amorous couples using parked cars at night: low Aus.: since late 1940s. With a pun on tail, n., 2.

tail (strictly, the tail) of my shirt looks like a french polisher's apron – all brown. 'A typical would-be wicked pleasantry at the expense of a comrade': RN: since ca. 1930. The imputation is one of sycophancy.

tail of the cart, the. (Plenty of) manure: farmers' coll.: late C.19–20. (Daily Express, 15 Oct. 1945.) Shovelled out freely, the cart-tail being down.

tail off. To run or go off; to retire, withdraw: coll.: 1841, F.E. Paget, 'Mrs Spatterdash ... tailed off at last to a dissenting chapel', OED, which cites from Rider Haggard (1885) the occ. var. tail out of it. Ware, 'From the tails of birds and animals being last seen as they retreat'. Cf. high-tail, q.v.

tail on fire. See tail, n., 3.

tail out of it. See tail off.

tail-piece. Three months' imprisonment: c.: ca. 1850–1910. James Greenwood, 1869.

tail-pike; -pin; -pipe. See tail, n., 3.

tail-pulling. 'The publication of books of little or no merit, the whole cost of which is paid by the author' (F. & H.): publishers': from late 1890s; ob by 1930. In contradistinction to the honourable publication of books of considerable merit and—to say the least of it—inconsiderable saleability. The former is practised only by sharks and amateurs, the latter by all.

tail-tackle. See tail, n., 3.

tail-tea. 'The afternoon tea following royal drawing-rooms, at which ladies who had been to court that afternoon, appeared in their trains': Society: 1880–1901. (Ware.) See tail, n., 4.

tail-trading; -trimming. See tail, n., 3.

tail-twisting. The act of twisting the British lion's tail: political: 1889 (OED). Whence the rare tail-twist, v.i., and tail-twister.

tail up. A C.20. c. var. of tail, v., 2. (Edgar Wallace.) In C.20 Aus., however, it is not c. but rural coll., as in 'Sent out to "tail up" some horses that had strayed' (Archer Russell, A Tramp Royal in Australia, 1934).

tail-wag. The motion of the rearmost coach or truck of a train: railwaymen's coll.: late C.19–20. Railway.

tail-wagger. A dog: joc. coll.: C.20. 'The "Tail-Waggers' Club" was started for publicity purposes by a manufacturer of "canine condition-powders" in, I think, the 1920s' (R.S., 1967).—2. 'A "dog" [see dog, n., 10 and 11] with added connotations of obsequiousness' (McNeil): Aus. c.: later C.20. (B.P.)

tail-wagging; -water. See tail, n., 3.

tail will catch the chin-cough, (e.g.) his. A c.p. applied to one sitting on the ground esp. if it is wet: ca. 1670–1800. Ray, 1678.

tail-work. See tail, n., 3.

tailer. An exclam. on falling, or sitting, unexpectedly on one's behind: late C.16–early 17. (Shakespeare, Midsummer Night, II, i.) Ex tail, n., 1, whence also:—2. Such a fall: C.19–early 20.

tailgate. To follow on the heels of: c.: later C.20. (Clement & La Frenais, A Further Stir of Porridge, 1977.) An elab. of tail, v., 2.

tailie; headie. A player consistently backing tails or heads: Aus. two-up-players': since ca. 1920. Lawson Glassop, Lucky Palmer, 1949.

tailor, n. A dressed-up 'gent': watermen's and bargees' pej.:

1840s. 'The "Coalies" and "Bargees" ... call them tailors, and make unpleasant allusion to goose and board ... [the gents] retort ... "Who eat the puppy pie under Marlow bridge?"' (Albert Smith, Natural History of the Gent, 1847: P.B.).—2. In the fag-end of a tailor, a butcher: coll.: late C.16–17.—3. 'Term of abuse addressed to an unhandy seaman and used by mates in the Merchant Navy' (Granville): C.20.—4. See tailors.

tailor, v.t. To shoot at (a bird) so as to miss or, gen., to damage: sporting: 1889 (Blackwood's Magazine: OED). Ex tailor's slashes.—2. V.i., to have dealings or run up bills with tailors: coll.: 1861 (T. Hughes: OED); very ob. and never common.

tailor-made, n. and adj. (A) machine-made (cigarette), as opp. a roll-up: RN: since ca. 1910. (Weekly Telegraph, 13, Sep., 1941.) Fairly gen. by ca. 1920; current in Aus. and NZ since ca. 1925. Jean Devanney, Bushman Burke, 1930. Cf. tailors. tailoring, do a bit of. To 'sew up', q.v.: ca. 1860–1930.

tailors. (Very rare in sing.) Machine-rolled cigarettes, 'Tailor-mades', q.v.: Aus.: since ca. 1920. B., 1942.

tailor's goose. For phrases including it, see goose, n., 1.

tailor's ragout. 'Bread sop't in the oil & vinegar in which cucumbers have been sliced' (Grose, 3rd ed., at scratch platter): ca. 1790–1850. See cucumber.

tailor's Tarzan. A man whose bulk is manifestly emphasised by sartorial devices, e.g. padded shoulders: coll.:—1947. Ex the 'beefcake' Tarzans of the films.

tailor's wound. A bayonet wound in the back: joc. military coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Such a wound being likened to the prick from a tailor's needle.

tails. A tail-coat, as opp. a jacket: coll.: 1888. See also charity tails.—2. Esp. a dress-suit, esp. and properly the coat only: C.20 coll.—3. Batmen completing a party of horsemen of high rank: NZ soldiers': WWI. Opp. the heads, those in authority: ex the game of two-up. P.B.: but cf. tail, v., 2.

tails of the cat. A nautical coll. var. (—1887; ob.) of cat-o'-nine-tails. Baumann.

tails up, in good spirits, often in the imperative; tails down, the reverse. C.20 coll. (esp. military) on the verge of S.E. Ex the behaviour of dogs. F. & G.

tainted money. Money belonging to a third party; or at least neither to the speaker nor to his 'audience': joc.: since ca. 1930. 'Taint yours and 'taint mine.

taipan. (Occ. spelt, and usu. pron., typan.) A boss; in later C.20 usu. refers to the heads of the great Far Eastern commercial houses: China Coast Europeans': since earlier C.19. Pidgin, directly ex Cantonese, lit. 'big board', pron. dye barn, the boss of, e.g., a shop. (P.B.)

taipo; occ. taepo. A vicious horse; as name for a dog: NZ coll.: mid-C.19–20. Perhaps ex Maori: but see Morris.—2. Among Maoris, a s. term for a theodolite, 'because it is the "land-stealing devil"' (Morris). Ex taepo, Maori for a goblin.

Tait. A moderate clergyman: Church coll.: ca. 1870–80. Dr Tait, Archbishop of Canterbury (d. 1882), tried in vain to reconcile all parties in the Church of England. Ware.

taj. 'Ripping'; luscious: boys': ca. 1900–12. (Ware.) Ex Taj Mahal.

take, n. A cheater at cards; esp. a professional card-sharp: Aus.: since ca. 1930. B., 1953.—2. Esp. a confidence trickster: Aus. c.: since ca. 1935. Ibid.—3. A gross deception; a swindle: Aus.: since ca. 1935. (B.P.) Ex the v., 5.—4. Money received, esp. on one occasion, at, e.g., a theatre, cinema: coll.: adopted, ca. 1960, ex US. (DCCU.) By 1975, informal S.E. P.B.: but, e.g., 'the day's take' of a shop, stall, etc., prob. goes back, in commercial coll., several decades.—5. A theft. Cf. 3, and see AUSTRALIAN UNDERWORLD, in Appendix.—6. See MOVING-PICTURE SLANG, §6, in Appendix.

take, v.i. To be taken: coll. and dial.: 1674, † took with child; 1822, took ill, the gen. form; occ. as in 1890, took studios, joc. Ex be taken ill, etc. OED.—2. V.t., followed by to do: to require (a person or thing of a stated ability, capacity, or nature) to do something: coll.: 1890: The Field, 8 Mar., 'Any ignoramus can construct a straight line, but it takes an engineer to make a curve' (OED).—3. V.i. To be a good (well) or bad (badly) subject for photographing; coll. (orig. photographers'): 1889, B. Howard, 'The photographers... say a woman "takes" better standing' (OED).—4. V.i., to hurt: Charterhouse: late C.19–20. Ex a disease or an injection taking, i.e. taking effect.—5. To swindle (someone): c.: since ca. 1920. Gerald Kersh, Clean, Bright, and Slightly Oiled, 1946.—6. An Army, esp. a Guards, usage perhaps best exemplified by these examples from Roger Grinstead, Some Talk of Alexander, 1943: 'It'll take you instead of me'—you, not I, will be on duty: 'It takes you for a casual day'—you'll be on this duty for a day, in addition to your usual work; 'Soon be taking us to storm the shores of France'—we'll soon be due to invade France. P.B.: by ca. 1954, at latest, widespread in the Army; I first heard it in Malaya then, among the 15/19 King's Royal Hussars, in such contexts as 'Is it my crash?' (Is it my turn to offer my cigarettes around?)—'It just about takes you!' (Yes, indeed; we thought you were never going to ask!)—7. To accept; to endure: see take it below.—8. To overtake: mostly motorists': since ca. 1950.

take! All right; all correct; certainly!: Can.: C.20. (B. & P.) Perhaps a perversion of jake; but cf. take eight! P.B.:? ex cinematography.

take a bend out of. To reduce the high spirits of; to quieten (beasts) by wearying: Aus.: C.20. (K.S. Prichard, Working Bullocks, 1926.) Cf. take a stretch...

take a brush. To fight a bout: pugilistic and naval: early C.19. Fredk Marryat, Frank Mildmay, 1829, 'I became a scientific pugilist, and now and then took a brush with an oldster' (Moe).

take a Burford bait. To get drunk: C.19 coll. ex C.18–20 dial. Orig., to take a drink: coll.: ca. 1630–1780. 'Water-Poet' Taylor, 1636; Fuller, 1662; 1790, Grose in his Provincial Glossary. Apperson.

take a carrot! A low and insulting c.p.:—1874 (H., 5th ed.); ob. by 1930. Orig. said to women only and of a scabrous implication: contrast have a banana!, the C.20 innocent phrase that soon came, in certain circles, to be used obscenely. Cf. the ob. French Et tu sœur, aime-t-elle les radis?

take a chance. To risk it, esp. if the chance is a poor one: C.19–20; coll. in C.19, S.E.—though not yet dignified—in C.20. Cf. take (one's) chance.

take a cook. See cook, n.

take a course with (someone). To hamper him, follow him closely: coll.: mid-C.17–early 19. (B.E.) Ex coursing.

take a dagger and drown yourself! A theatrical c.p. retort: ca. 1860–1910. Ex old coll. phrase = to say one thing and do another, as in Ray, 1678. Cf. stab yourself..., q.v.

take a dim view of. To disapprove; think silly, inefficient, objectionable: Services: since ca. 1937. Communicated, in Apr. 1942, by Grenfell Finn-Smith. Cf. dim, 2, and take a poor view, qq. v.

take a dive. To lose a boxing match—for a (considerable) bribe: sporting world: since ca. 1920. On to the canvas.

take a figure. To appeal to the ballot instead of to tossing: printers': from ca. 1860. B. & L.

take a figure out of the air. To estimate without details of calculation... more from feeling and experience than from detailed calculation' (L.A., 1976): coll.: later C.20. Also pluck a figure..., giving the impression that the figure so chosen is random.

take a flier. To copulate without undressing or going to bed: low: from ca. 1780; ob. Grose, 1st ed.—2. To fall heavily: coll.:—1931 (Lyell). Ex the lit. S.E. sense, to take a flying leap.

take-a-fright. Night: rhyming s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.); ob. by 1930.

take a hair of the (same) dog. See hair.

take a handful. Open the throttle on a motorcycle: motorcyclists': later C.20. (Dunford.) Operated by a twist-grip.

take a holiday. To jump bail: since ca. 1950—if not a decade earlier. (Petch, 1974.)

take a lend (or loan) of (someone). See lend of.

take a lunar. To glance, look, keenly; properly, upwards: late C.19–20. Gaisworthy, The Silver Spoon, 1926, "'Taking a lunar" at flying grouse.' Ex take a lunar observation.

take a (or the) milke out of. To insult or annoy (a person) with a direct or an indirect verbal attack: Cockneys': since mid-C.20. Var. of take the mickey.

take a peg lower. See take down a peg.

take a pew; ... pick. See pew; pick.

take a piece out of. To reprimand or reprove (someone): Aus.: since ca. 1925. (B., 1942.) Cf. tear a strip off.

take a piss out of. A rare var. of take the piss: E.P. may have heard the often slovened response, 'ere—you takin' de piss?' (P.B.).

take a poor view is slightly milder than... dim...: Services: since ca. 1938. Communicated by Grenfell Finn-Smith, Apr. 1942; H. & P.

take a powder. To disappear without paying the rent: Can. s.: adopted, ca. 1940, ex US. In the sense simply of 'to depart', it has had some use in UK, mid-C.20: again, US influence at work. Ex the 'moving' powers of a laxative powder. Cf. do a fade. P.B.: also explained as ex women 'going to powder their noses', euph. for a visit to the toilet.

take a pull on (one)self, often shortened to take a pull. To take oneself in hand, to pull oneself together: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1860. Brian Penton, Inheritors, 1936, 'Steady now... Take a pull or you'll cruel our pitch.'

take a punt at. To 'have a go' at, to attempt, something: Aus.: since the late 1940s. (John O'Grady, Aussie English, 1965.) Cf. punt, v., 2.

take a red face. To feel ashamed, blush with shame: Scots coll.: C.19–20. Miss K.M.E. Murray, Caught in the Web of Words, 1977.

take a red-hot potato! A c.p. (ca. 1840–60) 'by way of silencing a person... a word of contempt' (Sinks, 1848). A very hot potato in one's mouth is a sharp deterrent from loquacity.

take a reef in (one's) top-sail. To quieten down; to steady up: RN lowerdeck: late C.19–early 20. W.G. Carr, Brass Hats..., 1939 (Moe).

take a run at yourself! Go to the deuce!: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Cf. take a running jump...

take a running fuck at a rolling doughnut. See running fuck.

take a running jump at the moon! 'An instruction to depart': mostly Can.: since ca. 1950. 'There are substitutes for jump' (Leechman)—very rude ones, at that! See also go and take...

take a screw at. To glance or look at: mostly Aus., but also low: C.20. B., 1942.

take a sheet off a hedge. To steal openly: coll.: C.17 (? also 18).

take a sight. (Gen. as vbl n.) As skipper, to engage a hand without knowing him: nautical (Can.): C.20. Bowen.—2. See grinder, 4.

take a snout. To take offence: low Aus.: C.20. D'Arcy Niland, The Big City, 1959.

take a stagger. A more gen. form (—1935) of do a stagger, q.v.

take a stretch out of, (esp. a horse). To exercise: Aus. coll.: late C.19–20. (K.S. Prichard, Coonardoo, 1929.) To cause to stretch its limbs. Cf. take a bend...

take a swab! Hold an investigation!—of any sort: Aus.: since ca. 1950. 'Ex swab taken to detect drugs in the saliva of racehorses' (B.P.).

take a toss. To 'fall for' a person: coll.: C.20.—2. As in Cecil Barr, It's Hard to Sin, 1935, 'In her set, the word adultery was not often mentioned. One went in off the deep end about somebody; one took a toss, one even dropped a brick; one slid off the rails.' Ex hunting.

take a trip. To give up a job; tradesmen's;—1909. Ware: 'Followed by movement searching for a new situation'.

take a tumble. 'To comprehend suddenly' (C.J. Dennis): Aus.: late C.19—early 20. Cf. tumble, v., 2, and:—2. In take a tumble to (one)self, to take oneself to task; to perceive one's own faults: low:—1904.—3. (? Hence), also ... to (one)self, to go steady, be cautious: from ca. 1905; † by 1950.

take a turn in the barrel or at the bung-hole. To sodomise: RN lowerdeck, hence other Services', low: C.20. Masked sodomy. P.B.: in later C.20 surviving mainly in the facetious cry; 'whose turn in the barrel?'

take a whirl at. See birl, latter part.

take a wrong sow by the ear. See sow.

take an earth-bath. See earth-bath.

take advantage. '(Of a man) seduce a woman, in the convention that women are innocent while men are "carnal"' (L.A., 1974): euph. or joc.: C.20 (prob. earlier).

take an oath. To take a drink: late C.19—early 20. Cf. taking it easy.

take and ... (Gen. imperative.) To go and (do something): lower-class coll.: C.20. (Manchon.) Ex dial.

take and give. To live, esp. as man and wife: rhyming s.: C.19. Ware.

take apart. To defeat in physical combat; to reprimand severely: low coll.: since mid-C.20. 'Never tangle with the fuzz—they'll fuckin' take you apart!' (P.B.)

take beef. To run away: c.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Cf. cry beef, q.v.

take (one's) Bradlaugh. To take one's oath: 1883—ca.85. Charles Bradlaugh was 'intimately associated with the Affirmation Bill' (Ware).

take care of. To arrest; police coll.:—1909 (Ware).—2. To eliminate by murdering; prob. orig. c.; also in espionage, where less a euph. than a sardonic meiosis: C.20.

take care of dowb. To look after 'no. 1': political, ca. 1855—60. (Ware.) The story goes that some high-placed person wished to look after an officer called Dowbiggin and sent to Lord Raglan in the Crimea the message "Take care of Dowbiggin". Communications broke down in the middle of the transmission of the message, so all that arrived was "Take care of Dowb..." and the receiver surmised that Dowb was some part of the Russian force or position. When the true meaning came out "Take care of Dowb" became current as a euphemism for jockeying of one sort or other' (the late Prof. A.W. Stewart, communication in 1938).

take (one's) chances. At first, C.14—19, S.E., to risk it; from ca. 1800, to seize one's opportunity: coll. till ca. 1860, then S.E.

take (one's) change out of. To take the equivalent of a thing; be revenged upon a person. Coll.: from ca. 1825. (John Wilson, 1829; Whyte-Melville, 1854; Henry Kingsley, on several occasions.) Often exclamatory, to the accompaniment of a blow, a neat retort, a crisply decisive act: take your change out of that! Also take the change out of that! Cf. pick the bones out of that!

take charge. (Of a thing; machine, project, etc.) for it to get out of control: coll.: 1890. OED Sup.

take check. To be offended: coll. verging on S.E.: ca. 1660—1780. (OED.) Ex dogs at fault.

take coach. See take horse.

take colour with. Ostensibly to ally oneself with: from ca. 1700: coll. > S.E. > †. take corner-pieces off. See take off corner-pieces.

take (one's) Daniel. To depart or decamp: low: ca. 1860—1900. (Sessions, 9 Jan. 1872.) See sling (one's) Daniel.

take-down, n. A gross deception; a swindle, trivial or grave: coll.: C.20. Ex v., 2, q.v.—2. Hence, a thief, a cheat: Aus.: from ca. 1910. Jice Doone.—3. The person 'taken down': Aus.: since ca. 1920. B., 1942.—4. A swindler: Aus.: since ca. 1925. B., 1943.

take-down, v.t. To deceive grossly; to swindle: coll. (orig. Aus.): 1895, Melbourne Argus, 5 Dec., '[The defendant] accused him of having taken him down, stigmatised him as a thief and a robber.'—2. In Aus. sporting s., 'to induce a man to bet, knowing that he must lose ... To advise a man to bet, and then to "arrange" with an accomplice (a jockey, e.g.) for the bet to be lost ... To prove superior to a man in a game of skill' (Morris): from ca. 1895. From ca. 1920, coll.

take down a peg. To reduce a person's own high opinion of himself; to puncture his sense of his own importance; to force a brash or bumptious person to conform: coll.: since mid-C.17. 'Look, I've just about had enough of this new bloke: it's high time he was taken down a peg or two.' Earlier take a peg lower.

take eight! You've won!: a military c.p. of early C.20. (F. & G.) Ex points obtained at some game or other. In Suffolk, since ca. 1945, addressed to someone breaking wind (Dcpp). Why?

take evasive action. To avoid a difficulty or a danger; to depart tactfully, or prudently escape: 1941, in Michie & Graebner, Lights of Freedom, Mary Welsh Monks: 'Fighter pilots' combat reports include "I took evasive action", and the W.A.A.F.s adopted it in describing their adventures on dates. It is heard in powder rooms everywhere now.' Since 1943 applied also to evasion of debt-payment and to non-performance of unpleasant tasks.

take (a person's) eye. To be appreciated by (a person): tailors' coll.: C.20. The Tailor and Cutter, 29 Nov. 1928.

take felt. To be retired or superseded from the Service: Fighting Services: since ca. 1941. H. & P.—2. To be demobilised: mostly RAF: 1945+. Often as vbl n.: taking felt. P.B.: i.e., to exchange one's Service cap for a civilian felt hat; perhaps orig. a pun on the legal take silk.

take-five (or ten)! Take five (or ten) minutes off: radio studios' coll.: since ca. 1945. 'The omission of minutes for short periods of time is becoming quite common' (B.P.) in Aus., as in 'I'll be back in about ten': coll.: since ca. 1945.

take (a person) fox. To impose on to the extent of (getting); to 'sting' for: low: C.20. Gilt Kid, 1936, 'Good kid that Molly even if she had taken him for a oncer' (£1).

take (one) for a ride. To take a person in a motor-car and then, at a convenient spot, shoot him dead: US (C.20), anglicised ca. 1930, often loosely (i.e. in order to trash). (Gordon Fellowes, They Took Me for a Ride, 1934.) Cf. the old US ride (one) on a rail, to expel forcibly (Thornton).—2. To dupe, to 'con'; to swindle: c. > coll.: since mid-C.20. (P.B.)

take gas. To get caught in the curl of a wave—its curved crest as it breaks—and lose one's board: Aus. (teenage) surfers': since ca. 1961. Pix, 28 Sep. 1963.

take gruel. To die: lower classes':—1909 (Ware). Ex gruel as staple food in long illness among the poor.

take gruel together, we or they. We or they live together as man and wife: 1884 (The Referee, 14 Dec.); † by 1890. (Ware.) Ex a euph. in a police-court case late in 1884.

take (one's) hair down. See unpin (one's) back hair.

take his name and number, with sergeant occ. added. This had a vogue as a popular catch-phrase after the First World War' (Petch, 1966): ca. 1919—25. Another version was take his name, Sergeant-major (, take his name). I.e., put the soldier 'on orders', charge him with a military offence, e.g., 'idle on parade' (P.B.).

take (one's) hook. To weigh anchor: nautical: late C.19—earlier 20. Cf. hook, n., 7; see also sling (one's) hook.—2. Hence, to decamp; run away: Aus. and NZ: C.20. E.P.; B., 1942.

take horse; take coach. 'She us'd much of the canting Language, saying, Take Coach, take Horse, and mill the Gruntling, by which she was meant, Cut a throat, take a Purse, and steal a Pig' (Captain Alex. Smith, Jonathan Wild, 1726, p. 179): c.: C.18.

take-in, n. A (gross) deception, a swindle: 1778 (Fanny Burney); H., 1st ed., 'Sometimes termed "a dead take in"' (†). Ex the v.—2. Hence, a person that, intentionally or not, deceives one: coll.: 1818, Blackwood's, 'There are ... at least twenty take-ins ... for one true heiress' (OED).—3. Hence, occ. as adj. = deceptive: late C.19–20.—4. A man that takes a woman in to dinner: coll.: 1898 (OED Sup.).

take in, v. To deceive, impose on, swindle: coll.: 1725 (A New Canting Dict.); 1897, 'Pomes' Marshall, 'He was "dicky"', She was tricky—/Took him in, and cleared him out. On draw in.—2. To believe or accept as 'gospel': coll.: 1864, 'The Undergraduates took it all in and cheered' (OED). See take in like ...

take in a cargo. To get drunk: ca. 1815–70. Pierce Egan, Life in London.

take in (one's) coals or winter coals. To catch a venereal infection: nautical: C.19. Contrast take on board.

take in (a statement, a story, etc.) like a dustbin. To believe it all: N. Country Grammar Schools': since ca. 1950. (New Society, 22 Aug. 1963.) An elab. of take in, v., 2.

take in the slack of (one's) pants. 'To turn over a new leaf' (W.G. Carr, ref. to WW1); in the shortened take in the slack, to get a grip of oneself, to 'get organised', mid-C.20: RN lowerdeck. Heart.

take in your washing! A nautical c.p. 'order to a careless boat's crew to bring fenders, rope's ends. etc., inboard': late C.19–20. (Bowen.) See also take your washing in!

take it. To accept, endure, punishment courageously or cheerfully: boxing: since ca. 1933. Adopted from US.—2. Hence, since 1939: to endure trial and adversity without whining or cowardice.—3. Occ. allusive for take the biscuit or cake.

take it away! (Usu. in imperative.) To drive off (one's car, the truck, one's aircraft, etc.): RAF coll.: since ca. 1919. Gerald Emanuel, 1945.—2. As an instruction, joc. from compere, etc., to a band-leader: 'Start the music!': entertainment world: mid-C.20. (P.B.)

take it green. (Of a boat) to take water: oarsmen's: C.20. Daily Telegraph, 4 Apr. 1938, 'The Oxford boat took it "green" and was half full of water.' Surface water is green. P.B.: a borrowing from older nautical, deep-sea term, applied to a ship ploughing through high seas; also ship it green.

take it in the neck and punch the breeze. Of hoboos sitting on a bar of a truck that supports the (railway) carriage, 'If you sit ... facing ahead, that's called "punching the breeze". If you sit ... looking back, it's called "taking it in the neck"' (Frederick Niven, Wild Honey, 1927): Can. hoboos': late C.19–20.

take it off your back! Don't worry about it!: RN lowerdeck: C.20. Granville, 'borrowed from dock lumpers' (stevedores working at a fish dock).

take it on. (Of an aircraft) to climb rapidly: RAF: since ca. 1930. H. & P.

take it on the chin. To take misfortune, distress or disappointment, as unflinchingly as possible, to 'take it like a man': coll.: since ca. 1930. Ex boxing.

take it on (one's) toes. To run away; escape: c.: later C.20. (Time Out, 27 June 1980.) Cf. synon. have it on (one's) dancers.

take it out, v.i. 'To undergo imprisonment in lieu of a fine' (C.J. Dennis): low (?c.) Aus.: C.20.

take it out in trade. To have sexual intercourse with the girl one entertains: Can.: since ca. 1946. Joc.

take it out of that! Fight away!: London: ca. 1820–60. Bee, 'Accompanied by showing the elbow, and patting it'.

take (one's) last drink. See last drink.

take (something) lying down. To submit tamely: coll.: C.20. Either ex boxing or ex cowed dogs.—2. Esp., a feminine coll. for submitting to sexual intercourse—not necessarily passively: since the late 1940s; commoner in the 1950s than in the 1960s.

take man. The man who, in a gang, actually commits the theft. See AUSTRALIAN UNDERWORLD, in Appendix.

take me to your leader! 'A world-wide c.p. used by the little green men' (q.v.): since ca. 1960. Ex cartoons depicting visitants from outer space. (B.P.)

take more water with it! A c.p., attributing clumsiness or incompetence or tipsiness: C.20. Esp. and orig., a joc. c.p., addressed to a sober person happening to stumble or to sway: late C.19–20.

take (one's) name in vain. To mention a person's name: coll.: C.18–20. Swift, 'Who's that takes my name in vain?' take-off, n. A mimic; a mimicking, caricature, burlesque: coll.: from ca. 1850. Ex:

take off, v. To mimic, parody; mock: coll.: 1750 (Chesterfield: OED); 1766, Brooke, 'He ... perfectly counterfeited or took off, as they call it, the real Christian.'—3. To 'get going', to start, to depart, as in 'Let's take off!' or 'He took off at a rate of knots': s. > coll.: since late 1940s. In Aus., a forcible order to depart, 'take off!' (B.P.). Ex aircraft taking off; cf.:-

take-off any minute now!, he'll. He's very angry—likely to 'hit the ceiling'; but more often, 'He's in a flap' (exceedingly excited): RAF c.p.: 1938+. (L.A.)

take off corner-pieces or take corner-pieces off To beat or manhandle (esp. one's wife): low urban:—1909 (Ware).

take-on, n. A fight, esp. with fists; a contest: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Ex v., 3.

take on, v. To show emotion; grieve, distress oneself greatly: C.15–20: S.E. until early C.19, then coll. and dial. Whyte-Melville, 1868, 'There's Missis walking about the drawing-room, taking-on awful': that it had, ca. 1820, > a domestic servants' word appears from Scott, 1828, 'Her sister hurt her own cause by taking on, as the maidservants call it, too vehemently.'—2. To become popular, 'catch on': 1897 ('Ouida': OED).—3. V.t., to engage (a person, or army) in a fight, a battle: coll.: C.20. C.J. Dennis.—4. To 'welsh' (a person): turf: later C.19–early 20. See also knocker, 8.—5. As v.i., to re-engage, in the Services, for a further period, esp. for a pension; e.g. 'Are you going to take on again after you've done your twelve [years]?' orig. RN, thence to army and RAF: since ca. 1925. Granville.—5. See sort out; take on with.

take on board. To comprehend, as in 'At last he took on board that I was speaking seriously': since ca. 1970. (R.S., 1974.) Orig. nautical—to accept as passenger or cargo?

take on the fly. To be engaged from persons as they pass in the street: c.: mid-C.19. See fly, n., 12.

take on with. To take up with (a woman): proletarian coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Ex dial.

take one. To be open to bribery, to accept bribes: c., and police s.: C.20. G.F. Newman, Sir, You Bastard, 1970.

take out. To kill: Services', police: since ca. 1970. (Hawke; A. Hunter, Gently Instrumental, 1977.) Copied from one of the many disgustingly clinical euphemisms invented by the US military to whitewash the Vietnam War. (P.B.)

take (e.g. energy) out of (a person) is S.E., but take it out of (him) is coll. when = to tire or exhaust him (1887) and when = to exact satisfaction from, have revenge on him (1851, Mayhew). Baumann; F. & H.; OED.

take out of winding. See winding.

take (one's) rouse. See TAVERN TERMS, §2, in Appendix.

take (one) self in hand. (Of a man) to masturbate: nautical > gen.:—1953. A low pun.

take sights. To have a look, to glance; v.t. with of: low: C.20. Cheappjack, 1934.

take (one's) snake for a gallop. To urinate: RAF joc.: ca. 1925–45. Cf. synon. water one's nag.

take tea with. To associate (oneself) with (person or persons): Aus.: since ca. 1880. ('Boldrewood', 1888.) Cf. 'She's not my cup of tea.'—2. To 'act with covert impertinence towards someone (usually someone in authority), or to take advantage of someone; to outwit a clever person (not used in respect of "mugs")' (Powis): c.: later C.20.—3. To engage with, encounter, in a hostile way: 1896. Kipling, 'And some share our tucker with tigers, / And some with the gentle Masai (Dear boys!), / Take tea with the giddy Masai.' Cf. tea-party, q.v.

take (one's) teeth to. To begin eating (something) heartily: coll.: late C.19—earlier 20.

take that fire-poker out of your spine and the (or those) lazy-tongs out of your fish-hooks (hands)! A nautical c.p. of adjuration to rid oneself of laziness: late C.19–20.

take the air. To fly: RFC/RAF joc. coll.: from 1916. (F. & G.) See air, n., 5.

take the aspro. Aus. var. of take the biscuit: 1934+. Suggested by Aspro slogan.

take the benefit is tradesman's coll. for 'take the benefit of the Act for the relief of insolvent debtors': ca. 1810–90. The London Guide, 1818.

take the bent stick. Descriptive of a woman who, getting past the marrying age and having missed her chance with the man she wanted, decides to marry the elderly and faithful admirer who has been hanging around so long' (Alan Smith, 1939): earlier C.20.

take the biscuit. To carry off the honours; be the best; (theatrical) 'fill the bill'; also, in C.20, be impudent, a piece of impudence, as, after some particularly flagrant act of effrontery, 'Well, if that doesn't just about take the biscuit...!' It is prob. much older than take the bun († by 1950) and even take the cake, for its orig. seems to be late Medieval and early modern Latin. Wilfred J.W. Blunt, in Sebastiano (p. 88), records that the innkeeper's daughter at Bourgoin, a famous beauty, was present, in 1610, as a delegate at an International Innkeepers' Congress held at Rothenburg-am-Tauber. Against her name, the Secretary wrote, Ista capit biscottum. That one takes the biscuit. (Col. W.G. Simpson, letter, 1956.) Medieval L. possesses biscottum or biscottum, a biscuit.

take the bun. Var. of prec., from early 1890s.

take the burnt chops. To work as a musterer of sheep: NZ rural: C.20. B., 1941.

take the cake. Var. of take the biscuit, q.v.: coll.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1880. 'The allusion is not to a cake walk', as Thornton suggests, for cake-walk is later; perhaps 'a jocular allusion to Gr. πυρρῆσις, prize of victory, orig. cake of roasted wheat and honey awarded to person of greatest vigilance in night-watch' (W.). P.B.: why not simply cake=a glorified biscuit or cookie?—anything for variety on a stale cliché; cf. take the Huntley...

take the can back. To be reprimanded; see carry the can (back): nautical and military: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) Perhaps ex illicit usage of its contents.—2. To be held responsible for a mishap: Services', railwaymen's: from ca. 1919. Daily Herald, 11 Aug. 1936.—3. To be imposed on: road-transport workers': from ca. 1925. (Ibid.) Cf. carry the can, q.v.

take the change out of See take change...

take the cherry. See cherry, 6.

take the count. To die: low: late C.19—early 20. Ex boxing.

take the dairy off. To take the best of—or off—something: C.20. Ex the late C.19–20 coll. sense 'take the cream off the milk'.

take the (or a) day off to carry bricks. To take a working holiday: NZ: later C.20. (Mrs Margaret Davies, 1974.)

take the drop. To accept a bribe: C.20: c. >, by 1930, taxi-drivers', as in Herbert Hodge, Cab, Sir?, 1939. See drop, n., 8.

take the gas out of. To 'take down a peg', q.v.; to deflate: later C.19—earlier 20. Ex gas, n., 1, bombast.

take the gloss off. (Gen. as c.p., it takes...) It lessens the profit or the value; tailors': mid-C.19—early 20. B. & L.

take the heat off. To relieve the pressure on someone, as in 'The aim is that the escorts take the heat off the bombers by engaging the CAP [combat air patrol] fighters' (Phantom): coll.: later C.20. Opp. the earlier put the heat on, to menace, threaten.

take the Huntley and Palmer. Var. of take the biscuit: joc. coll.: late C.19—early 20. (W. Pett Ridge, in his clever Minor Dialogues, 1895; McKnight, English Words, 1923.) Huntley & Palmer being the notable makers of biscuits. Cf. take the cake, last sentence.

take the kettle. Var. of take the biscuit: lower classes': early C.20. Ware.

take the knock on. See knocker, 8.

take the marbles out of your mouth! Speak more distinctly: a non-cultured c.p.: late C.19–20.

take the mick(e)y; ...Mike. Variants, via rhyming s., on Mickey, or Mike Bliss, of take the piss, and used in exactly the same way: since ca. 1950 (Mickey); Mike perhaps a little earlier. Mickey is by far the commoner in gen. use; the phrase may be elab., as in 'Are you by any chance extracting the Michael?' (P.B.)

take the number off the door. A c.p. of ca. 1895–1915, applied to a house where the wife is a shrew. Ware, 'The removal of the number would make the cottage less discoverable.'

take the pen. To sign for a voyage as a seaman: MN: C.20. 'I have never enjoyed this ceremony of "taking the pen"' for I do not see the need of special laws to float by' (Piper, 1974).

take the piss out of. To pull someone's leg: low: C.20.—2. More commonly, to jeer at, deride: id. Ex the idea of deflation, as a bladder, of conceit (Franklyn, Rhyming.) Variants: take a piss out of, q.v.; and, among the literary, pass (someone) the catheter. Also absolutely, as in the victim's 'Are you trying to take the piss? Because if you are...!', and in Brendan Behan, Borstal Boy, 1958. "'Don't mind me, Kid," said Tubby. "I just can't help taking the piss."' See also take the mick(e)y, and cf. pull (someone's) pisser.

take the (King's or Queen's) shilling. To enlist in the Army: C.18–20: coll. >, by 1830, S.E. Also, though not in C.20, take the shilling.

take the shine out of (someone). To put (someone) in the shade; to excel: s.: C.19. 'A few of the leading West-end men... "taking the shine out" of the ruck of dancers in first-rate style, and completely winding up all the aspiring Gents who try to outdo them' (Albert Smith, Natural History of the Ballet-Girl, 1847).

take the stripes out. To remove, with acid, the crossing on a cheque: c.:—1933 (Charles E. Leach).

take the tiles off. See enough to take...

take the weight off (one's) feet, mostly in the imperative. To sit down; properly, to put one's feet up: joc.: since ca. 1945.

take the wind out of (one's) sails. To nonplus; surprise, gen. unpleasantly: mid-C.19–20: coll. (orig. nautical) >, ca. 1905, S.E.

take to (one's) land-tacks. To go ashore for a spree: nautical: late C.19—early 20. Bowen.

take (one) to the cleaners. To swindle (someone) thoroughly, esp. in a 'con game' or at gambling: adopted, ca. 1945, ex US. (W. & F.) A late Brit. example, cited by R.S.: Observer, 7 Dec. 1975. Ex the lit. S.E. sense.

take to the hills. 'To remove oneself from the danger zone' (Granville, 1969): adopted, ca. 1930, ex American films, notably 'Westerns'. P.B.: sometimes uttered as a joc. exhortation in the face of trivial peril.

take too much. To drink too much liquor; drink liquor very often indeed: coll. verging on S.E.: late C.19–20. Perhaps orig. euph.

take too much on (one's) plate. To act presumptuously; to 'bite off more than one can chew'; to overload oneself with work or responsibilities—even girl/boy friends: since ca. 1939. Cf., e.g., 'he's got enough on his plate already, as it is.'

take-up. A point at which a passenger gets in: coachmen's and cabmen's coll.:—1887 (Baumann); ob. by 1930.

take up (one's) bed. To leave the shop for good: tailors': mid-C.19—early 20. (B. & L.) Ex the Biblical 'Take up thy bed, and walk.'

take up savings. 'To go without, or not to do, a thing' (Taffrail, The Sub, 1917): RN:—1901 (Goodenough). Ex savings, money drawn instead of 'certain items in the daily ration supplied by the Government'. Granville specifies grog.

take water. To leave (esp. from a bar, a hotel) penniless after a 'spree': Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.

take (or pull) your finger out! A c.p. frequently addressed 'to a person who is slow or lazy' (Sgt-Pilot F. Rhodes, letter, 1942: take: RAF: since ca. 1930. Adopted by the army ca. 1942. (Observer, 4 Oct. 1942: pull; Partridge, 1945, pull.) The semantics: 'Stop scratching your backside and get on with the job!' (cf. Aus. with thumb in bum and mind in neutral); P.B.: adds: among the very low-minded, the finger is thought of as being involved in the girl-friend's private parts. Not always imperative, as in 'I wish they'd bloody well hurry up and get their fingers out', which is tautologous. WW2 officers' variants were dedigitate! and remove the digit!, and an intense and allusive form was current in the RAF, WW2—ca. 1950: He's got his finger wedged, with var. He's got his finger concreted in. The whole may be reduced to an anguished cry of fingers! And see finger trouble.

take your pipe! Take it easy; have a rest: N. Country miners' and workers' c.p.: C.20.

take your washing in, Ma; here come(s) the (name of unit). A military c.p. addressed, on the line of march, by one unit to another: late C.19–20. (B. & P.) Cf. the civilian... here come the gipsies!, which was perhaps the orig. (Mrs Camilla Raab, 1977).

taken bad. Taken ill: (low) coll.: 1840. (Sessions, Apr. 1851.) Often, ungrammatically, took bad. or poorly or sick. Cf.:-

taken short, be. To be pressed with the need of evacuation of faeces': coll.:—1890 (Funk's Standard Dict.). Ex S.E. sense, 'to be taken by surprise'.—2. Hence, in such conditions to soil one's underclothes: coll.: C.20. Both senses have var. caught short.

taken to see the cups. Up before the superintendent: police: since ca. 1930. (Free-Lance Writer, April 1948.) The cups that, won by the division, are displayed in the superintendent's room.

taker is a contemporaneous var. of taker-up, q.v. (Greene, 1591.) In Barnard's law, q.v.

taker-in. The agent of take in, v., 1: coll.:—1887 (Baumann).

taker-up. He who, in a gang of four swindlers, breaks the ice with, and 'butters up', the prospective victim: c. of ca. 1590–1620. Greene, 1591.

takes it, that or it or this story, incident, etc. A coll. var., esp. in London, of that takes the biscuit, bun, kettle, cake, etc. W. Pett Ridge, Minor Dialogues, 1895.

talking. Attractive, charming, captivating: C.17–20: S.E. until early C.19, then coll. Cf. taky.

talking any (occ. with object expressed), not to be. To be disinclined for: ca. 1900–10. Daily News, 10 Mar. 1900. 'In the language of the hour, "nobody was taking any".' Perhaps orig. of liquor. Now, and long, not having any.

taking felt. See take felt.

taking it easy. Tippy: ca. 1880–1914. Perhaps ex take one's ease in one's inn, to enjoy oneself as if at home.

taking money (or toffee) from a child, (as) easy as. See easy as taking...

taky. 'Taking', q.v.: coll.: mid-C.19—early 20. 1854, Wilkie Collins, 'Those two difficult and delicate operations in art technically described as "putting in taky touches, and bringing out bits of effect"' (OED, correcting F. & H.).

talc. In (he) on the talc, to be informed of strategy or tactics: army officers': 1941+. Maps were protected with a talc covering. R.S. explains: 'Military maps were (and are) not so much "protected" with a talc covering as given a convenient (talc) overlay on which dispositions, situations, movements, etc., can be quickly marked with coloured chinograph pencils, and just as quickly erased and amended at need. This saves time and makes for clarity—much more important than merely economising maps.' Ex put in the picture.

tale. Showmen's patter: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Cf. tell the tale, esp. sense 4, and tell that for a tale!, qq.v.—2. In pitch a tale, to spin a yarn: coll.: late C.19—earlier 20. A var. of tell the tale.—3. See cop the tale.

tale of a tub (with the bottom out). 'A sleeveless frivolous Tale' (B.E.): coll.: late C.17—mid-18. Cf. the title of Swift's masterpiece.

Tale of Two Cities. Breasts (the two female): rhyming s., on titties: C.20. Often spoonerised as Sale of Two Titties. (Franklyn, Rhyming.) Cf. the, in later C.20 much commoner, synon. Bristols.

tale-pitcher. A 'romancer': coll.: from ca. 1890. Ex tale, 2. talent, the. Backers of horses as opp. the bookmakers: sporting coll. >, ca. 1910, j.: from the early 1880s. Clever because they make a horse a favourite. In Aus., however, it = the bookmakers' ring, bookmakers collectively: C.20. B., 1942.—2. The underworld in general: Aus. low: since ca. 1910. Baker. (See Underworld.)—3. The girls, as in 'Let's look into the Pally and see what the talent's like': raffish: since ca. 1930. P.B.: this is, in Brit. and esp. (naturally) in the Services, the predominant sense. Often the local talent, the available girls.

Taliano. An Italian: mostly lower classes', esp. London: C.20. Ex It. Italiano. Muvver spells it phonetically, Taliarnier. talk, v. To talk about, discuss: late C.14–20: S.E. until ca. 1850, then coll.—2. (Of a horse) to roar: stable s. (—1864) > coll. H., 3rd ed.—3. In now you're talking!, now (at last) you're saying something arresting, important, amusing: coll.: from ca. 1880. OED Sup.—4. See make talk.

talk a bird's, dog's (etc.) hind leg off. See talk the hind leg off.

talk about laugh! I, we, etc., really did laugh heartily: low coll.: prob. since later C.19. (See DCpp.) Talk about...!, may be used to give emphasis to anything, as in 'Talk about lazy! Why, he wouldn't even...!': elliptical for 'you may talk about other instances, but this one beats them all.' (P.B.)

talk BBC. To talk politely, to speak in a clear, precise and cultured manner: coll.: since ca. 1930. Berkeley Gray, Mr Ball of Fire, 1946.

talk big or tall. To talk braggingly or turgidly: resp. coll., 1699 (L'Estrange: OED); and s. (—1888), orig. US. Coulson Kernahan, 1900, 'Public men who talk tall about the sacredness of labour'. Cf. tall, 1 and 2.

talk bullock. To use much—and picturesque—bad language: NZ coll.: 1846 (Charles R. Thatcher: B., 1941). Both bullock-drivers and their beasts have much to put up with.

talk by a bow. To quarrel: London lower classes': ca. 1860–82. Ware.

talk church. To talk 'shop', to speak of nothing but one's work: coll.: mid-C.19—early 20.

talk crisp. To say disagreeable things: coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

talk funny. To speak oddly or strangely: Aus.: since ca. 1920. Applied, e.g., to any speech, even English, other than their own. P.B.: but the intensely parochial attitude implied is by no means confined to Aus.: the phrase has been and is very gen. in Brit., prob. throughout C.20, if not earlier.

talk green-room. To gossip about the theatre: 1839, Lever in Harry Lorrequer: coll. until ca. 1880, then S.E. (OED.) Cf. S.E. talk shop.

talk horse. To talk big or boastingly: coll.: 1891 (Kipling). Ex talk horse, i.e. of the turf. OED.

talk into the big white telephone. To vomit, esp. drunkenly: 'Heard recently from a Loughborough University student' (P.J. Emrys Jones, 1978). Poss. a nonce-usage, or ephemeral parochialism, but it has a certain coarse poetry (P.B.).

talk it out. See talker, 2.

talk it under. To get rid of some problem, generally political, by plausible argument' (Petch, 1969): coll.: since ca. 1960. A confusion of 'talk (someone) down' and 'sweep under the carpet'? P.B.: or to drown in a meaningless sea of words?

talk last commission. To tend to talk glowingly of one's preceding ship: RN officers': C.20. Granville.

talk like the back of a cigarette card. To speak pseudo-learnedly or with an unusual syntax: coll., lower classes': 1930s.

talk Miss Nancy. To talk very politely: since ca. 1910. (Wm. Riley, Netherleigh, 1916.) With the implication that such politeness is effeminate.

talk nine words at once. To speak fast or thickly: C.17: coll. (Cotgrave.) Cf. talk nineteen to the dozen, q.v.

talk of the devil! Usu. as an ungracious, though not necessarily unfriendly, greeting: C.20 shortening of the coll. proverb, current since C.17, talk of the devil and you'll see his horns or tail, applied to a person who, being spoken of, unexpectedly appears.

talk off the top of (one's) head. To speak extempore, with truth of statement not guaranteed, references unchecked: coll.: later C.20. Cf. off the cuff. (P.B.)

talk proper. To speak Standard Received English: coll.; usu. joc. as a deliberate sol.: C.20. Var. speak proper; cf. talk funny. (P.B.)

talk the hind leg off a bird (Apperson), cow, dog, donkey (Baumann), horse (mainly dial.), jackass, etc.; or talk a bird's (etc.) hind leg off. To wheedle, to charm; to talk excessively, often with implication of successful persuasion: coll.: Cobbett, 1808 ('horse's hind leg'); Beckett, 1838, 'By George, you'd talk a dog's hind leg off.' In C.20, often talk the leg off a brass pan (dial.) or saucapan (not brass s.). B.P. adds the C.20 Aus. var. talk the leg off an iron pot.

talk through (one's) braces. Aus. var., since ca. 1920 (Baker) of:- talk through (one's) fly-buttons. To talk cock, to argue from a base of fancy ideas or false claims.—2. To talk randy' (L.A., 1969).

talk through (one's) hat. To talk nonsense: coll., orig. (—1888) US, where at first it meant to bluster; anglicised ca. 1900.

talk through (the back of one's) neck. To talk extravagantly, catachrestically: 1904 (OED Sup.).—2. Hence, to talk nonsense: from ca. 1920. Both senses had, by 1930, > coll. Occ. talk out of the back... talk to. To rebuke, scold: coll.: 1878 (W.S. Gilbert: OED). Ex lit. sense.—2. To discuss as being likely to reach (a certain figure or price): Stock Exchange coll.: from ca. 1920. 'Securities', Time and Tide, 22 Sep. 1934, 'Local loans are up to the new high level (post-war) of 93 $\frac{11}{16}$ and are being talked to 100.'

talk turkey. To talk business; to talk sense: Can. (ex US) coll.: since ca. 1890; adopted, as coll., in England ca. 1930. Gerald Kersh, Night and the City, 1938. 'Just for the moment, let's talk turkey.' Also, since ca. 1935, Aus. (B., 1942). The substantial and succulent part of a (Christmas) dinner.

talk turpentine. To discuss painting: coll.: 1891 (Kipling: OED); ob. Ex painters' use of oil of turpentine (catachrestically: spirit of turpentine: mid-C.17–20) in mixing colours. Cf. talk green-room.

talk wet. To speak sentimentally, foolishly; talk 'soft': from ca. 1910. ('Taffrail'). See wet, adj., 7.

talkee-talkie. Serious conversation or discussion on or of Service matters; a conference: RN: C.20. Ex pidgin English. (P-G-R.) Cf. talkies, and:- talkee-talkie house, the. Parliament: London joc.:—1887 (Baumann). Cf. talky-talk.

talker. A horse that 'roars': stable s.: from ca. 1870. Ex talk, v., 2.—2. From ca. 1860, as in Howson & Warner, Harrow School, 1898, 'Then followed solos from those who could sing, and those who could not—it made no difference. The latter class were called talkers, and every boy was encouraged to stand up and talk it out.'

talkies. An audience, with a VIP, a conversation among VIPs, at a state function, mostly in India—until the end of 'the Raj'. Charles Allen, ed., Plain Tales from the Raj, 1977.—2. (Occ., but rare, in sing.) A moving picture with words: 1928 (SOD): coll. >, by 1935, S.E. On movie, q.v.

talking. See talk, 3.

talking head. A person appearing on TV, who merely talks to the audience, or at an audience through discussion with others in the studio, in an attempt to inform rather than to entertain; therefore, perhaps, boring to those conditioned to simply being amused by TV: media world: since late 1970s. Hence, it may be loosely applied to, e.g., political party spokesmen. "'Talking heads" seem to be a pervasive and popular form of television ...' (G. Dyer, Screen Education, summer 1978). Cf. table-part, q.v. (P.B.)

talking to the butcher, not the block, be. See speaking to the butcher.

talking-Tommy (or -tommy). A comb-and-paper, serving as a musical instrument: secondary schools': C.20. Michael Poole, Revolution at Redways, 1935.

talky. See talkies, 2.

talky-talk. Idle or pointless or trivial talk: coll.: C.20 (OED Sup.) Cf. talkee-talkie house, q.v.

tall (Of talk) grandiloquent, high-flown: coll.: 1670, Eachard, 'Tall words and lofty notions' (OED).—2. Hence, extravagant; exaggerated: US (1844, Kendall): anglicised, esp. as tall talk (Baumann) or tall story, in the eighties; by 1920, coll.—3. (Very) large or big or (of speed) great or (of time) long: US (ca. 1840); anglicised ca. 1860. "'Very tall" scoring' (in cricket), 1864 (Lewis); H., 5th ed.; 'Pomes' Marshall, 1897, 'Her cheek was fairly "tall"'. Ex sense 1 or, more prob. (despite contradictoriness of earliest records), ex sense 2.—4. ?hence, excellent; first-rate: orig.—ca. 1840—and mainly US. Baumann, 1887, 'We had a tall time (of it)—wir hatten lustige Tage.' (Often hardly distinguishable from prec. sense.)—5. See talk big.

tall-men, tallmen. Dice so loaded as to turn up 4, 5 or 6: c. of late C.16—early 17. (Kyd, 1592: OED). Cf. highmen.

tall order. See order.

tall poppy. A very important person, such as a senior Public Servant (English: Civil Servant): Aus.: since early 1930s. Ex a savage threat made in the early 1930s by, and during the régime of, Mr J. Lang: taxation that would have 'cut off the heads of the tall poppies'. (B.P.)

tall 'un. A 'pint of coffee, half a pint being a short 'un': urban lower classes': late C.19–20. Ware.

tall-water man. A blue-water (or deep-sea) seaman: nautical coll.: C.20. Bowen.

tallahwah. 'Decent, straightforward and honourable. Complimentary adj. (West Indian)' (Powis, 1977).

tallie. A tall story: Aus.: since ca. 1930. B., 1953.

tallow. Semen: low: C.19—early 20. Contrast piss (one's) tallow, q.v.

tallow-breeched. With fat behind: C.18—mid-19. Cf.:-

tallow-gutted. Pot-bellied: low coll.: C.18—mid-19.

tallowpot. A locomotive fireman: Can. railroadmen's: —1931. Ex his can of grease.

tally, n. A name: nautical: C.20. (Musings, 1912. p. 97.) Ex tally, a mark, label, or tab.—2. Hence, cap tally, name of ship on cap ribbon: RN coll.: C.20. Cf. tally-band.—3. In live tally (rarely on), to live in concubinage: chiefly mining districts: —1864 (H., 3rd ed.). Ex tally, a corresponding half or part of anything. Whence tally-wife or -woman (resp. Ibid. and from late 1880s) and tally-husband or -man (from 1870s), partners living thus. These terms, like live t., mostly Northern. Cf. synon. live over the broom or brush.—4. See tallie.

tally, v. t. To reckon (that ...): coll.: 1860 (OED); ob. Ex tally, to count.

tally-band. WRNS term for cap ribbon (or tally, n., 2); later C.20. 'The use of this term by the girls used to make the sailors fall about [with laughter]' (Miss Margaret Wood, 1977).

tally-ho, adj. and adv. In concubinage: low: late C.19–20. Ex live tally, q.v. at tally, n., 3.

tally-ho! Enemy sighted, the hunt is up: RAF Fighter Command: 1939–45. It became official. Ex fox-hunting. In the fact, 'this was one of the prescribed code-words in signal procedure ... already in official use when war was declared' (R.S.).

tally-husband, -man, -wife, -woman. See tally, n., 3.

tallywag; occ. tarriwag. The penis: late C.18–20; ob., except in Derbyshire and Cheshire dial. But the term survives, at least until mid-C.20, as tallywhacker; also tallywock (Alex Bowlby, The Recollections of Rifleman Bowlby, 1944: L.A.)

—2. (Usu. tallywags or tarriwags) the testicles: resp. late C.18–20 (Grose, 1st ed.) and C.17–20 ('Water-Poet' Taylor; Grose; Beckett, 1838).?origin, unless ex tally, the corresponding half, + (to) wag, v.i., an etym. that fits sense 1, since this sense derives ex sense 2.

tallywagger. An untidy thread or ripped lining showing beneath hemline of dress, coat, trousers, etc.; ripped wool at edge of worn rug or carpet; an end of wool, string, etc., trailing from a ball or hank. Earlier C.20. ?Anglo-Irish (used by my mother and known widely in my generation of the family). Probably no connection with prec. (Mrs C. Raab.)

taloia. There's a lot of it about: friends' or even doctor's diagnosis of unspecific minor sickness: mostly middle-class coll.: mid-C.20. (Mrs C. Raab.)

talosk. Weather: Shelta: C.18–20. B. & L.

tam; tammy. A tam-o'-shanter: from mid-1890s: coll. >, by 1900, S.E.

tamarboo. A hackney coachman: ca. 1840–60. (Sinks, 1848.) Ex a song thus entitled.

tamarinds. Money: dispensing chemists':—1909 (Ware). For semantics, cf. syrrup. q.v.

tamaroo. Noisy: Anglo-Irish:—1909 (Ware). Cf. Erse tormácaí, noisy.

tamasha. Anything entertaining or exciting; an entertainment, a display: ca. 1840–1940. (N.W. Bancroft, From Recruit to Staff Sergeant, 1885; F. & G.) Ex Hindustani.

Tambaroora; in full, Tambaroora muster. A round-up of money to buy drinks: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Formerly Tambaroora, a township 30 miles NW of Bathurst, was a rich goldfield.

tambour. The drum in a Punch and Judy show: showmen's: mid-C.19–20.

tame cat. 'A woman's fetch-and-carry': coll.: from ca. 1870; ob. Ex S.E. sense.

tame-cheater. A cheater at cards: c.: C.19–early 20. B. & L.

tame jolly. See jolly, n., 2.

tame lions in the Army, they. A Regular Army c.p.: late C.19–20. (Frank Richards, Old Soldiers Never Die, 1933.) In ref. to military discipline.

tammy. See tam.

tampax. Filter-tipped cigarette(s): Services' and low: since ca. 1955. Ex the trade-name of a well-known brand of women's sanitary tampons. (P.B.)

tampi. Marijuana: prisoners' c. (and, 'presumably, drugs world): later C.20. Home Office.

tamtart. A girl: c.: 1845 ('No. 747'). A perversion of jam tart or poss. its orig.

tan; tan (one's) hide. To beat severely; to thrash: resp. s., mid-C.19–20 (H., 1859); and coll., mid-C.17–20. Mrs Henry Wood, 1862, 'The master couldn't tan him for not doing it.' Ex hide, human skin, + tan, to treat it. In C.20, of a quite mild beating: preparatory schools'.—2. Hence, to overwork (a means of livelihood): grafters': C.20. Cheapjack, 1934.

tan-track. Rectum: proletarian: late C.19–20.

tan-yard, the. See tanyard, the.

tandem. 'A two-wheeled chaise, buggy, or noddy, drawn by two horses, one before the other' (Grose, 1st ed.): s. >, ca. 1820. coll. >, ca. 1850, S.E. Prob. university wit, ex tandem, at length, so frequent in L. classical authors (esp. Cicero).

—2. A pair of carriage horses thus harnessed: 1795, W. Felton (tandum, an erroneous form: OED): s. >, ca. 1820, coll. >, ca. 1850, S.E.—3. Ex sense 1, influenced by sense 2, as adv.: one behind the other: 1795 (OED): same evolution of status.—4. As adj., long: Cambridge University: ca. 1870–90. Ware, 'Used in speaking of a tall man'.

Tangerines or Tangierines, the. The 2nd Foot Regiment >, in late C.19, the Queen's (Royal West Surrey).—2. The 4th Foot > the King's Own (Royal Lancaster Regt). Both, military: ?C.17–early 20. These regts were raised to defend Tangiers, part of the dowry of Charles II's wife.—3. See Tangier.

tangi, n. and v. Tangi, a Maori word for 'a tribal gathering at a funeral; a dirge': 'Now very commonly adopted here [NZ] by the upper classes, especially as an equivalent of the outmoded "beano". E.g., Harold and I were on the tangi (or were tangi-ing) last night; or there is a big tangi on tonight' (Niall Alexander, letter, 1939); and earlier in Jean Devanney's novels.—2. In holding a tangi, faced with a problem or a set-back: NZ: C.20. (B., 1941.) Cf. 1.

Tangier. 'A room in Newgate, where debtors were confined, hence called Tangerines' (Grose, 3rd ed.): c. or low s. of ca. 1785–1840.

tangle-foot. Whisky: US (—1860), partly anglicised ca. 1900. Ex effect. P.B.: some later use, mostly joc., for other strong drinks, e.g., W. Country cider. In Aus., beer or bad liquor (B., 1942).

tangle, or get tangled, in the soup. To become lost in a fog: RAF: since 1939. Berrey (the former). Cf. soup, 11, and pea-souper, qq.v.

tangle-monger. One 'who fogs and implies everything': Society: ca. 1870–1905. Ware.

tangle with. To become involved in a fight with; to get into trouble with: coll.: since mid-C.20. Also as in 'Oh, he got tangled with the police over something fairly trivial.' (P.B.)

tank, n. A wet canteen: army: late C.19–early 20. (F. & G.) In later C.20, also police: 'The Tank was the ground-floor bar, used by the police and civilian personnel who worked in the building' (G.F. Newman, The Guvnor, 1977). Cf. on the tank, engaged in beer-drinking, often with implications of 'heavy drinking': id.: since ca. 1890. (The Regiment, 1900, vol. 8, p. 288.) The early use, almost simultaneous in Britain and US, could have risen from joint service—e.g. in the Peking expedition of 1900, with Americans adopting it from Britons. Cf. the Aus. var., since ca. 1920, on a tank (Baker), and v. tank up. Also cognate is:—2. A pint of beer: Aus.: C.20. (Baker.) Short for tankard.—3. An old, battered whore: Cockneys': from 1918 or 1919. Ex the appearance of tanks derelict on sodden plains. See Jodrell Bank.—4. A safe: NZ c.:—1932

—5. A locomotive tender: Can. railroadmen's:—1931.—6. A hammock: R Aus. N: WW2 (? and before). B., 1943.—7. In do one's tank, to become extremely annoyed: 'Services', 'prisons', etc.: since mid-1940s. (Daily Telegraph, 4 June 1958, 'Bacon Bonces...') Cf. do one's crunch, nut, etc.

tank, v. To cane: King Edward's School, Birmingham: from ca. 1870. Ex dial. tank, a blow.—2. As v.i., to drink, a shortening of tank up; usu. as a continuous activity, e.g., 'He went tanking steadily on all through the evening': mostly Services': since mid-C.20. (P.B.)

tank-busting. Shooting up tanks, whether from the air or with field anti-tank guns: RAF and army coll.: 1940+.

tank-slapper. Speed wobble on a motorcycle: 'It causes the handlebars to flail against the fuel tank sides, often cutting the rider's thumbs' (Dunford): motorcyclists': since mid-C.20.

tank up. To drink much liquor: adopted, ex US, ca. 1916, esp. in army. (OED Sup.; F. & G.) Cf. tank, v., 2, and tanked.

tankard. See teard of the tankard.

tanked. Tipsy: from early 1917. Prob. ex tank, n., 3; perhaps suggested by canned, q.v., though the term may have orig. among soldiers with the floundering of the tanks in the mud of Flanders and Picardy in late 1916–early 1917. 'On September 15th, the first tanks, or "large armoured cars" as they were called in the Communiqué, went into action on the front of the Fourth Army attacking between Comblès ravine and Martinpuich' (Churchill's war memoirs, quoted in B. Cooper, The Ironclads of Cambrai, 1967). Elsewhere in the book is a photo of a tank, captioned 'The first official photograph of a tank going into action, at the Battle of Flers-Courcellette on September 15th, 1916'. It occurs in Ward Muir's Observations of an Orderly, 1917, in the form tanked to the wide. P.B.: if the dating of tank, n., 1, is correct, the term prob. derives from that. E.P. notes tanked up as being 'adopted, 1963, ex US', but I heard it in the army before then, and it is prob. merely an elab., or a natural extension of tank up. All these terms suggest the idea of a cistern filling up, rather than any ref. to armoured fighting vehicles.

tanker. A steamer fitted for carrying tanks of oil: 1900: coll. >, by 1930, S.E. (OED Sup.)—2. A heavy drinker: Can.: C.20. See prec.

tanker wanker. 'Someone who flies in air-to-air refuellers' (S/Ldr G.D. Wilson, 1979): RAF: later 1970s. The airborne tanker would naturally attract the rhyming wanker, 2. (P.B.)

tankey; tankie. See tanky.

tanKing. A severe physical, hence occ. fig. mental, assault; usu. a proper or real or right tanKing: army: since ca. 1950, at latest. Cf. tank, v., 1. (P.B.)

tanKman. A safe-breaker: Aus. c.: since ca. 1935. (Ian Grindley, 1977.) Ex tank, n, 4.

Tanks. As the Tanks, coll. term for the Royal Tank Regiment, formed in 1917 and already operating in the latter half of that year.—2. Shares in Tanganyika Concessions, Ltd: Stock Exchange: mid-C.20.

tanky. The foreman of the hold, 'which looks like a tank' (Ware): RN:—1909. Superseded by:—2. The navigator's assistant: RN: from ca. 1912. (Bowen.) Because responsible for the fresh water. Cf.:—3. A seaman that helps the storekeeper (Jack Dusty) to handle his stores equipment: RN: since ca. 1950. (P-G-R.) 'Now used almost exclusively for the seaman rating who helps the Supply Dept with daily issues and the rum. The rating responsible for the fresh-water supply is always from the engine-room branch, and is alluded to as the fresh-water tanky' (Granville, letter, 1962).

—4. A member of the Royal Armoured Corps, esp. a man of the Royal Tank Regiment: army: WW2 and since. Cf. Tanks, 1. (P.B.)

tanned, ppl adj. Beaten (severely), thrashed: perhaps as early as 1860. Ex tan.

tanner. A sixpence: low (—1811) >, ca. 1870, gen. s. (Lex. Bal.; Dickens, 1844.) Etym. problematic: H., 1st ed., suggests gipsy tanou, young, hence little; in 2nd ed., L. tener. But see the note at simon, 1.—2. Whence tannercab, a sixpenny cab (1908, OED) and tannergam, a telegram (when, early in 1896, the minimum cost was reduced from 1s. to 6d.); both terms † by 1920, the telegram-rate having been raised to ninepence during WW1 and to one shilling in 1920. The return, in 1936, of the sixpenny telegram has not revived the term.

tanner and skin. Money: tanners': ca. 1855–1900. H., Introduction.

tanner organs. Scallops: trawlermen's: C.20. D. Butcher, Trawlermen, 1980, glossary.

tannercab; tannergam. See tanner, 2.

Tanners, the. The Leatherhead Football Club in the Isthmian League: sporting: since ca. 1960 (? much earlier). A pun on leather.

Tannhäuser. Penis: cultured s. of ca. 1861–90. Wagner's opera Tannhäuser was enlarged with new Venusberg music in 1860–1.

tanning. A thrashing: mid-C.19–20. Ex tan. Cf. tanned.

tanny. A mid-C.19 var. of teeny. H., 1st ed.

tantadlin, tantaublin. See tantoblin.

tantarum. See tantrum.

Tantivy. A post-Restoration true-blue Tory or High Churchman: ca. 1680–1740, but esp. ca. 1681–89. G. Hickes, The Spirit of Popery, 1680–1; B.E., 'Or Latitudinarians a lower sort of Flyers, like Batts, between Church-men and Dissenters'; Swift, 1730. Ex a caricature representing High Church clerics 'riding tantivy' to Rome, and partly; a satire on the hunting parson and squire. OED, F. & H.—2. (tantivy.) Incorrect as imitative of the sound of a horn: C.18–20. Ex tantivy as imitation of galloping feet. OED.—3. Likewise as imitative of flourish of a horn: from ca. 1780. Grose, 1st ed.

Tantivy-Boy, t.-b. Same as Tantivy (1), q.v.: ca. 1690–1710. Motteux; B.E.

tantoblin; tantadlin (tart). A lump of excrement: s. and dial.: resp. 1654, Gayton: 1785, Grose (t. tart). † by ca. 1840. Ex tantablin, etc., a tart or round pasty: extant in dial. In C.17. occ. tantaublin.

tantrems. 'Pranks, capers, or frolicking' (H., 1st ed.): coll. or s.: ca. 1850–1910. Ex tantrums, q.v., + the dial. senses of the same + the occ. dial. spelling tantrim. (H. thought tantrem distinct from.)

tantrum; occ., though in C.20 very ob., tantarum; in H., 1st ed., tantrem. (Gen. in pl.) A display of petulance; a fit of anger: coll.: 1748, Foote, 'I am glad here's a husband coming that will take you down in your tantrums'; Grose, 1st ed.; Reade. Possibly, as H., 2nd ed. (though actually of tantrems), suggests, ex the tarantula (1693, OED), properly tarantella (not till 1782?), a rapid, whirling Italian dance; but perhaps rather ex the cognate tarantism, that hysterical malady which expresses, or tends to express, itself in dancing frenziedly, for tarantism, recorded ca. 1640, might easily be corrupted to tant(a)rums, the singular not appearing before C.19. Less prob. ex trantran, a tantara, for it does not occur in C.18. Much, much less prob. ex:—2. (Frequent in sing.) The penis: 1675 (Cotton in The Scoffer Scoff); app. † by 1800. Possibly cognate with N. Country tantril (a vagrant, a gipsy), recorded as early as 1684 (EDD); cf. the later dial. tantrum-bolus, a noisy child,—which, however, is presumably ex tantrum, 1.—3. See tantrems.

tanyard, the. The poor-house: Caithness s., not dial.: ca. 1850–80. Pej. EDD, 'Very common for some years after the Poor Law Act, 1845. The paupers had the greatest aversion to indoor relief and called the Poorhouse by this name.'

tanyok. A halfpenny: Shelta: C.18–20. B. & L.

taoc, toac; tog (not properly back s.) A coat: back s. (—1859). H., 1st ed., has also toac-tisaw, a waistcoat; F. & H., 1904, adds taoc-ittep, a petticoat. The correct form, taoc, app. appears first in H., 3rd ed., 1864; and H., 1874, notes that "Cool the delo taoc" means, "Look at the old coat", but is really intended to apply to the wearer as well.'

tap, n. A tap-house or -room: s. (—1725) >, early in C.19, coll. A New Canting Dict., 1725; T. Hughes, 1857.—2. 'Liquor drawn from a particular tap': from ca. 1620, though not certainly recorded before 1832; fig., however, used in 1623, 'A Gentleman of the first Tappe' (cf. of the first water). OED, both senses.—3. A wound: army: WW1. F. & G.—4. Sunstroke: army: earlier C.20. Cf. doolally tap, which was occ. shortened, late C.19—early 20, to the tap.—5. In do the tap, to win at cards: army: late C.19—early 20 (F. & G.) Prob. ex:—6. In get the tap, to obtain the mastery: sailors': from ca. 1870.—7. In not to do a tap, a frequent post-1910 shortening of not do a tap of work: see tap of work.—8. In on tap, 'Available at a moment's notice (H. & P.): C.20; much used by the Fighting Services in 1939–45. 'All modern conveniences, including h. and c.' or as Claiborne adds, 1976, 'Perhaps rather from beer, a hardly less essential convenience.'—9. In on the tap, begging for money: c.:—1933 (Charles E. Leach). Cf. tap for, q.v.

tap, v.i. To spend, pay up, freely: ca. 1712–20. (Addison; Steele.) Semantics, 'to "turn on the tap" of gifts' (OED).—2. V.t., to broach, in these s. senses: tap a guinea, to change it (Grose, 2nd ed.), † by 1890; tap a house, to burgle it (late C.19–20, ob.); tap a girl, to deflower her (Grose, 2nd ed.),—in C.19–20, often tap a Judy; tap one's claret (1823, 'Jon Bee'); to make one's nose bleed, tap by itself occurring in Dickens, 1840 (OED) but ob. by 1900, † by 1930; tap the admiral, q.v.—3. To arrest; also tap (one) on the shoulder (implied in Grose, 1st ed., 'a tap on the shoulder, an arrest': coll.; resp. † by 1890, and ob.—4. See tap for.

tap (one's) claret. See prec., 2. From ca. 1770 (Grose, 1st ed.) See also claret, n. and v.

tap (a person) for. To ask (him) for (money): C.20. Suggested by sting, 2; ex tap, to hit,—therefore contrast tap, v., 1, q.v. Among ships' stewards, used absolutely (i.e. tap, v.i.), it has the nuance 'to suggest or imply that one would not refuse a tip' (Dave Marlow, Coming, Sir!, 1937).

tap in. 'R.A.F. slang in France [1939–40] for "have a good time" (Noel Monks, Squadrons Up, 1940). Perhaps 'to tap on the door, go right in, and make oneself at home'. P.B.: or ex tap in to conversation on telephone or radio.

tap-lash. A publican: coll.: ca. 1648–1750. Ex t.-l., inferior beer.

tap of work. Esp. not do a..., to do no work: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1890. Ex carpentry. See also tap, n., 7.

tap on the shoulder. See tap, v., 3.

tap run dry? or tap-water run out? A showmen's c.p. addressed to a quack doctor unoccupied or idling while his fellows are working: from ca. 1880. (Neil Bell, Crocus, 1936.) The implication being that most of his medicine consists of water.

tap the admiral. To draw liquor, esp. from a cask with a straw through a gimlet hole; nautical. In the phrase he'd tap..., he'd do anything for a drink: RN: late C.19–20. Bowen, 'From the old naval myth that when Lord Nelson's body was being brought home seamen contrived to get at the rum in which it was preserved'. Cf. tap, v., 2, q.v., and synon. suck the monkey. Andrew Haggard, in a letter, 1947, adds 'it was not unknown for seamen to tap the alcohol used in certain compasses, to the great danger of the ship, of course.'

tap the boards. To be brought before the Officer Commanding: army: ca. 1925–50. Ex smart steps on the barrack-room floor. (P-G-R.) P.B.:? and influenced by the variety stage, e.g. tap-dancing.

tap the sling! Get away with you: Rifle Regiments' c.p.: C.20. Ex the salute given by the men when ordered to dismiss with the rifle at the shoulder.

Tap-Tub, the. The Morning Advertiser: ca. 1820–80: book world. Bee, 1823, 'because that print catcheth the drippings of yesterday's news, and disheth it up anew'; H., 1864, 'So called by vulgar people [because it] is the principal organ of the London brewers and publicans. Sometimes termed The Gin and Gospel Gazette'.

tap up. Synon with date, v., 2, and chat up, v., 3: RN, and hence army and RAF: since mid-C.20. P.B.: the Army was using the term by 1900. See ARMY SLANG, verse 2, in Appendix. Cf.:—2. To approach (someone) in order to solicit his help, as 'Nip round [to] the QM's stores and tap him up for a couple of sheets': army: id. A blend of chat up, v., 2, and tap for. (P.B.) tape. Strong liquor: c. (—1725) >, ca. 1840, (low) s. A New Canting Dict.—2. Occ. gin: from ca. 1820; H., 1859, having 'tape, gin—term with female servants', and Egan's Grose quoting from Randall's Scrap Book. Gen., however, white tape (1725) is gin, as occ is †Holland tape (1755) and rarely †blue t. (1785, Grose); red tape (1725) is brandy; loosely (as in Grose, 1st ed.), red, white, blue t., any spirituous liquor. For semantics, cf. ribbon, q.v.—3. Sending messages by 'tic-tac men' (q.v.): turf: ca. 1885–1910. MS. note in B.M. copy of H., 5th ed.

tape off. To set in order, put in place, prepare: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Ex taped.—2. To reprimand: Aus.: since ca. 1925. (Baker.) To measure rightly: reduce to the correct size.

tape-worm. An official collecting prices of stock for transmission on the tape: Stock Exchange: not before 1884. Punning the parasite. Cf. ticker, an account.—2. A speculator constantly watching the price-tape: id.: from not later than 1923. Manchon.—3. A staff-officer: army officers': from 1914. (Blaker.) Pej. ex red tape and prob. suggested, in part, by the red tabs (see red tab) indicating 'the nature of the beast'.—4. An airman expecting—or, at the least, hoping and working for—promotion: RAF: since ca. 1935. Cf. tapes.—5. 'The Chief Officer; sometimes a Principal Officer (because of the amount of braid sewn on coat and trousers)' (Tempest): prisons': mid–C.20.

taped, be; gen. have or have got (one) taped. In these phrases, taped = sized-up; detected; so seen-through as to be rendered incapable of harm, mischief, etc.: orig. (1916), military >, 1920, gen. (B. & P.; Lyell.) Ex tape, to measure (something) with a tape—on tacked, have one, q.v.—with esp. ref. to the Engineer-laid tapes along which the Infantry lay waiting for the signal to attack when there was no trench or sunken road convenient as a jumping-off place.—2. Hence, from ca. 1920, tap often = arranged, or settled, as in Ronald Knox The Body in the Silo, 1933, 'Let's get the whole thing taped.' Also taped up (G.D.H. & M. Cole, 1927).

taper, n. A 'super after profitable office' (Ware): political: Daily Telegraph, 27 Apr. 1897. Ex red tape. Cf. Tadpole, q.v. taper, v.t To give over gradually; v.i., to run short: from late 1850s. H., 1st ed. Ex:

taper, adj. (Of supplies, money) decreasing: 1851 (Mayhew: OED); ob. Lit., (becoming) slender (cf. slender chance). Cf. also the later thin (time, etc.). H., 1st ed., at mopusses, has run taper, to run short (esp. of money). Cf.:-

taper off, v.i. To leave off gradually; esp. to lessen gradually the amount and/or strength of one's drink: coll.: from ca. 1870; ob. by 1930, it has, since ca. 1945, been revived; by the late 1950s, indeed, it had > S.E. and is now used esp. of drink or of drugs.

tapes. Rank-stripes: army and RAF coll.: C.20. (H. & P.) Hence, get one's tapes, to be promoted to corporal; get one's third tape, to be promoted from corporal to sergeant; swing one's tapes, 'to overdo one's N.C.O. authority' (L.A.)—2. In on the tapes, ready to begin: Services' coll.: from 1916. (F. & G.) For semantics see taped. P.B.: but poss. also influenced by horse-racing.

tapioca. As in 'A day spent in a warm studio with a perfumed houri or two is bound to... send you home with a touch of the tapioca, I shouldn't wonder' (Red Daniells, in Brit Jnl Photography, 4 Jan. 1980): low.

tapis, on the. Possible; rumoured: early C.19—early 20; coll. verging on S.E. The Night Watch (I, 147, and II, 228), 1828 (Moe); Ware. See also tappy.

tapped. Eccentric; slightly mad: military: earlier C.20. (B. & P.) Cf. cracked and S.E. touched. See also doollally tap(ped). tapper (C.19); shoulder-tapper (ca. 1780–1910). A bailiff; a policeman. (Grose, 1st ed.; F. & H.) Prob. on much earlier shoulder-clapper, q.v. Ex tap, v., 3.—2. One who broaches casks of wine or spirits and drinks therefrom with a straw: low coll.:—1923 (Manchon). See tap the admiral.—3. A beggar: Glasgow (—1934); tramps' c. (—1936: W.A. Gape, Half a Million Tramps). Ex tap for: cf.:—4. A habitual borrower: low coll.: earlier C.20. Cf. 'although he associated with the rest of the gang, [he] never took part in stealing or pickpocketing... He was a "tapper", that is he expected the gang to give him money like most of the street bookies did' (R. Samuel, ed., East End Underworld, 1981).—5. A laister (one who affixes soles to uppers): shoemakers' coll.: from ca. 1880. Ex the noise made in the process.—6. A hard-hitting batsman: cricketers': C.20. Sir Home Gordon, The Background of Cricket, 1939.—7. 'A man who gives you false or useless information in return for a small loan' (John Gosling, 1959): police s.: since ca. 1930.—8. A 'carriage and wagon examiner' (Railway, 2nd): railwaymen's coll.: C.20. P.B.: short for wheel-tapper.

tappers. Overtime, as in, e.g., 'five hours' tappers': Post Office employees': C.20. (L.A., 1967.) tapping, n. Asking for, or implying readiness to accept, a tip: ships' stewards': C.20. See tap for, and cf. earlier C.20 Glasgow meaning of straightforward begging.

tappy, on the. Under consideration: mid-C.19—early 20: low coll. Ex Fr. tapis, carpet, imm., however, ex the S.E. (up on the tapis). See also tapis.

taps. The ears: ? mid-C.18—mid-19. Because they tap conversation. (F. & H.) P.B.: but cf. synon. tabs.—2. 'The controls and gadgets of a modern aircraft' (H. & P.): RAF: since ca. 1936. In open the taps, the sense is 'to open the throttle': since ca. 1940, usu. hit the taps. The term 'probably originated in the old Bristol Fighter, where there were a multitude of taps in the petrol system that had to be manipulated to keep the feed system clear of air'—a certain RAF officer, telling me (1949) of a collective opinion formed, appropriately in an RAF bar, by a number of officers discussing the entry taps in Granville, Roberts and Partridge's Forces' Slang.

tar. A sailor: coll.: 1676, Wycherley, 'Dear tar, thy humble servant'; Dibdin, Tom Bowling, 1790; Macaulay, 1849. Abbr. tarpaulin, q.v. Cf. tarry-brecks.—2. Molasses: Aus. nautical: later C.19. G.E. Morrison, 1882, quoted in C. Pearl, Morrison of Peking, 1967. (P.B.)—3. See lose a sheep...; beat the tar... tar and maggots. Rice-pudding with treacle: girls' schools': late C.19–20. Berta Ruck, 1935.

tar-box. A heavy shell, with esp. ref. to its burst (see the more gen. coal-box): army: 1915–18. F. & G.

tar-brush. A tarboosh: among wanderers, esp. in India:—1886. Ex Hindustani ex Persian sarposh, lit. head-cover. Y. & B.—2. A touch (occ. dash) of the tar-brush, a trace of black blood, is S.E. in C.20, but it was prob. s. at its origin (ca. 1850) and coll. from ca. 1880 until the end of the century. See also touch of the tar-brush, 1.

tar out. To punish, 'serve out': coll.: ca. 1860–1910. (H., 3rd ed.) Cf. S.E. tar on, but perhaps suggested by tar and feather. Cf. beat the tar out of.

tar-sprayer. See Bescot...

tar-tar. A rare var. of ta-ta.

tara. See tarrer.

taradiddle. See tarradiddle.

taradiddler. A fibber: 1880 (OED): s. >, by 1900, coll.; ob. by 1930. See tarradiddle.

Taranaki gate. 'One made from several strands of barbed wire, strengthened with two or three saplings set in vertically' (Harold Griffiths, 1970): NZ rural: C.20. Cf.:-

Taranaki top-dressing. Cattle dung: NZ (mostly South Island): C.20. (Niall Alexander, letter, 1939; B., 1941.) Taranaki, in the middle and western North Island, is famous for its dairy cattle. 'Among the sheep-farming communities, Taranaki is usually referred to as a land of cows and cow cookies up to their knees in mud and cow dung' (N. Alexander, 1939).

tararabit (accent on 2nd syllable, ra). Au revoir!: low coll.: later C.20, esp. 1970s. Liverpoolian elab. of ta-ta, slowned to tarrah: I suspect the comedian Ken Dodd as the agent of its popularity and spread.

tarantula. Incorrect for, but perhaps orig. form, tarantella. ardy. Late with, at, in doing; e.g. 'I was tardy task', I was late with my work: Winchester College: mid-C.19–20. Also tarde. At Eton, tardy box, a box for registering the names of boys that are late: late mid-C.19–20. Marples.

tare an' ouns! An Anglo-Irish oath: C.19–20. (Ware.) Corruption of tears and wounds (of Christ).

tare and tret. 'City bon-ton for—a Rowland for an Oliver' (Bee): ca. 1820–50. Ex t. and t., 'the two ordinary deductions in calculating the net weight of goods to be sold by retail' (OED).

tarfu. See T.A.R.F.U.

target, the. The fire or conflagration: London Fire Brigade: late C.19–20. The water-jets are aimed at it.

target for to night, (one's). One's girl friend: RAF (esp. aircrews'): 1939+. Jackson.

taring. See tearing: C.17—early 18.

tarmac. In on the t., 'Detailed for flying duty' (F. & G.): RFC/RAF: from 1915. Ex 'the tarmac... laid down in front of a hangar'.—2. Hence, tarmac=any landing-ground: RAF:—1935. Less gen. than synon. deck.

tarnal. 'Confounded': dial. >, early in C.19, low coll.; mostly US. Ex eternal.

tarnation, n., damnation; adj., adv., 'confounded(ly)': late C.18–20: rather illiterate coll. and mostly US. Ex damnation (cf. darnation), the adj. and adv. being influenced by tarnal.

tarp or Tarp. An ecclesiastical (Anglican) c.p., of ca. 1920 onwards, 'used of those ministrants who take the Ablutions immediately after the Communion instead of after the Blessing' (R. Ellis Roberts, letter, 1933). I.e. 'take Ablutions in right place'.—2. Tarpaulin: late C.19–20.—3. That sort of malaria—or was it trench fever?—which afflicted soldiers serving in Salonica during WWI. (Petch.) ?A Hobson-Jobson for a Greek dial. term.

tarpaulin; occ., though not after ca. 1850, tarpawlin. A sailor: coll.: 1647, Cleveland; Bailey, 1725; Stevenson, 1893 (OED); Frank C. Bowen, 1930, 'A practical seaman, particularly applied when appointments went by favour rather than by merit.' In C.20, only archaic; ob., indeed, by 1870. Tar much used by sailors. Cf. tar and tarry-brecks; also Jack tar. tarpaulin man. See kiddy blade.

tarpaulin muster. A forecask collection of money, esp. to buy liquor: nautical coll.: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) The money is thrown on to a tarpaulin.

tar(r)adiddle. A lie, esp. a petty one: from ca. 1790: s. >, in mid-C.19 coll.; by 1930, slightly ob. (Grose, 3rd ed., tara.) On diddle, the tar(r)a being problematic: cf. tarryways (at tallywag) and tara!, an exclam. used by Dryden. Hence:—tar(r)adiddle, v.i. To tell fibs: coll.:—1916 (OED).—2. V.t., to hoax, impose on, bewilder, by telling lies: s. >, by late C.19, coll.; by 1930, ob.: 1828, The Examiner, 'His enemies... squibbed... and taradiddled him to death' (OED). Cf. the ob. dial. taradiddled, puzzled, bewildered.

tarradiddler. See taradiddler.

tarrer or tara. The Regimental Sergeant-Major: army: esp. common in early 1950s; ob. by ca. 1960. Prob. ex N. County pron. t'RSM. Spelling is arbitrary; I have never seen it written. (P.B.)

tarriwag. See tallywag.

tarry-brecks, -jacket, -John. A sailor: coll. joc. nicknames: resp. orig. (1785, Forbes), Scot.; 1822, Scott (OED); 1888, Stevenson (ib.): second and third, † by 1930; first, ob. by 1920. According to Bowen, 'a naval ranker officer' in C.17. Cf. tar and tarpaulin, qq.v.

tarry rope. 'A woman or girl who frequents the Sydney waterfront to consort with sailors' (B., 1942): Aus. nautical and Sydney low: C.20.

tarryin. A rope. Shelta: C.18–20. B. & L.

tars, T. Shares in the Tharsis Copper Mining Company: Stock Exchange:—1895 (A.J. Wilson's Glossary).

tart. A girl or woman (but if old, always old tart): from early 1860s. Orig. endearingly and of chaste and unchaste alike; but by 1904 (F. & H.) only of fast or immoral women,—a tendency noted as early as 1884 (Ware); by 1920—except in Aus. (where, from before 1898, it = a sweetheart and where it is still applied also to any girl)—only of prostitutes. H., 3rd ed. (1864), Tart, a term of approval applied by the London lower orders to a young woman for whom some affection is felt; Morning Post, 25 Jan. 1887; Baumann, 1887, 'My tart—mein Schätzchen'; in late 1880s, the occ. diminutive tartlet (B. & L.); 'Pomes' Marshall, 1896; above all, F. & H.; B. & P. Ex the idea of sweetness in a woman and a jan-tart: cf. sweetness as a term of address; and dish, 2 and 3. Robert Roberts, A Ragged Schooling, 1976, wrote: 'For eligible [respectable and marriageable] girls "tart" (with no immoral connotation) and "pusher" were words in common use [among Lancashire factory youths, ca. 1910–20]'. P.B.; also West Midlands, until at least early 1950s, for girl-friend.—2. The young favourite of one of the older boys; not necessarily a catamite: Scottish Public Schools': C.20. (Ian Miller, School Tie, 1935.) Whence tarting, this practice.

tart up, v.i. and t. To dress up smartly; in later C.20, with the implication of tastelessness or tawdriness. See tarted-up.

tartan. See tear the tartan.

tartan banner. Six pence: army rhyming s., on tanner: WWI+. Franklyn, Rhyming.

tartar, T. (Properly Tatar. 'The r was inserted in mediaeval times to suggest that the Asiatic hordes who occasioned such anxiety to Europe came from hell (Tartarus), and were the locusts of Revelation ix', Century Dict.) A thief, strolling vagabond, sharper: c.: 1598, Shakespeare, 'Here's a Bohe-mian Tartar'; B.E.; † by 1780. Abbr. Tartarian, q.v.—2. An adept: from ca. 1780; ob. Grose, 1st ed., 'He is quite a tartar at cricket, or billiards.' Ex to catch a Tartar, 'Said, among the Canting Varlets, when a Rogue attacks one that he thinks a Passenger, but proves to be of [the 59th order of rogues], who, in his Turn, having overcame the Assailant, robs, plunders, and binds him' (A New Canting Dict., 1725): c.: C.18. Cf. hot stuff.—3. A naval martinet: C.19. (Basil Hall, 1831.) P.B.: a specialisation of the S.E. fig. use of tartar as a rough, intractable, difficult person.

Tartarian. A strolling vagrant; a thief; a sharper or swindler: c.: though prob. from 1590s, not recorded before 1608, The Merry Devil of Edmonton, † by 1690. (Nares.) Ex Tartarian, a native of Central Asia, the home of a warlike race.

tarted(-)up. Dressed like a tart, 1; very smartly (and brightly) dressed: since early 1920s. Christopher Buckley, Rain Before Seven, 1947.—2. The term has, since ca. 1960, been applied, usu. in a derogatory way, to things, e.g., a public house or a private residence, meretriciously dressed up or presented. (In part, from Claiborne.) Hence, since ca. 1970, untarted, restored to original simplicity and lack of pretentiousness (L.A.); or, of course, never tarted-up in the first place. (P.B.) Cf. tarty.

tarting. See tart, 2. tartlet. See tart, 1. (After ca. 1910, rare and 'literary'.)

tart's delight. A certain frilly, fussy, looped-up way of hanging lace net curtains at windows: middle-class contemptuous: later C.20. (P.B.)

tarty. Of or like a prostitute (tart, 1): coll.: since ca. 1920. Angus Wilson, The Wrong Set, 1949.—2. (Of a girl) sexy: coll.: since ca. 1930. Marghanita Laski, Love on the Super-Tax, 1944.

Tarzan. See Robin Hood.

Tas. Tasmania: Aus. coll.: C.20. Aus. Pocket Oxford Dict.

tash. Moustache: Services: since ca. 1920. (H. & P.) Also tache.

tashi shingomai. To read the newspaper: Shelta: C.18–20. B. & L.

tassel. An undergraduate: university s. of ca. 1828–40. Because his cap has a tassel. Cf. tuft, q.v.—2. See pencil and tassel.

tassels. 'Greasy locks of wool left on legs or brisket' (Straight Furrow, 21 Feb. 1968): NZ sheep-shearers': C.20.

Tassie, -y (pron. Tazzy). Tasmania: Aus. coll.: from ca. 1890 (prob. earlier).—2. Hence, a Tasmanian: id. Alex MacDonald, In the Land of Pearl and Gold, 1907.—3. As tassie, an intaglio, antique dealers': C.20. Jonathan Gash, The Judas Pair, 1977.

taste, n. ('A taste of') Taking a small amount of a drug and only just feeling it' (Home Office): drugs world: later C.20.

taste, a, adv. A little; slightly: coll.: 1894, Hall Caine, 'Nancy will tidy the room a taste' (OED). Cf. a bit used adverbially. In Anglo-Irish, it dates from the 1820s (EDD).

taste of the creature. See creature.

taste the sun. To enjoy the sunlight: Cockneys': ca. 1877–1900. (Ware.) Cf. see the breeze.

taster. 'A portion of ice-cream served in a [taster or] shallow glass': coll.: from ca. 1890. Ware.

tastey; properly tasty. Appetising: from ca. 1615: S.E. until mid-C. 19, then coll. Buckle, ca. 1862, 'A tasty pie'.—2. Hence, pleasant, attractive: from mid-1790s: S.E. until mid-C.19, then coll.; ob. except where it merges with senses 1 and 4.—3. Elegant: from ca. 1760: S.E. until ca. 1870, then coll.; rare in C.20.—4. Hence, of the best: late C.19–20; coll. verging on s. 'Pomes' Marshall, 'He's fond of something tasty... me and him was spliced last Monday week.' P.B.: after a period of dormancy, the term re-emerged as an adj. of approbation, esp. 'smart-looking' (cf. 3): Mr. P. Sampson, 1980, quoting his teenage son, ref. a motorcycle.—5. (Ex sense 1.) Sexually alluring, 'spicy': from 1890s: s. rather than coll.; slightly ob. Whiteing, 1899, 'Nice and tastey, observes my friend... as he points to a leg that seems to fear nothing on earth... not even Lord Campbell's Act.' See next.—6. See Tasty Blues.

tasty bit of pastry. A girl with a shapely body eminently beddable: since late 1940s. Often simply tasty pastry. (L.A., 1976.) Cf. prec., esp. sense 5, and tart, 1.

Tasty Blues, the. The Life Guards' nickname for the Royal Horse Guards (the Blues), who retaliated with Ticky Tins: both tasty and ticky meant the same, 'insectridden, dirty, verminous, scruffy, unhygienic, unwashed and unshaved, coated with verdigris' (Carew): earlier C.20. A case of 'pot and kettle'—and quite unjustified.

tasty-looking. Appetising: coll.: from mid-1860s. Ex tasty, 1, q.v.

Taswegian. A Tasmanian seaman: R Aus. N: since ca. 1930. (B., 1943.) Also someone born in Tasmania: Aus. joc. Aus. Pocket Oxford Dict. A blend of Tasmanian and e.g. Glaswegian.

tat. n. See tats.—2. A rag; esp. an old rag: c.: 1839, Brandon; 1851, Mayhew. Hence, milky tats, white rags or linen (Brandon). Ex tatter.—3. Abbr. tattoo, a pony (esp. for polo): Anglo-Indian coll. (1840) >, by 1910, S.E. (Y. & B.) Also tatt.—4. Mediocre (or worse) art or craft, e.g., painting or pottery: upper- and middle-class: since the 1920s. Ex sense 2. (E.P.; P.B.) Cf.:—5. 'Ecclesiastical paraphernalia, objets religieux, fondness of [sic] same' (Towler & Coxon, Fate of the Anglican Clergy, 1979): theological colleges': 1960s. Hence, adj. tatty. (P.B.) See also tatt.

tat, v. To gather rags, be a rag-gatherer: c.: 1851 (Mayhew). Prob. ex tat, n., 2. Cf. tot, n., 5, q.v.—2. V.t., to thrash, flog: low s.:—1812; † by 1890. (Vaux.) Ex dial. tat, to pat or tap.

tat-box. A dice-box: c.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Ex tats, q.v. Cf.: tat-monger; tatogey. A sharper using loaded dice: c.: resp. late C.17–20, ob. (Shadwell, 1688, and Grose, 1st ed.); late C.19–20 (F. & H.) Ex tats; see also tatogey.

tat-shop. A gambling-den: c.:—1823 (Egan's Grose). See tats.

tata. A silly person: since ca. 1920. An adult of the kind that would use such baby-talk as 'go (for) a ta-ta' or walk. (Frank Shaw).—2. See ta-ta, 2, and ta-tas.

Tatar. See tartar.

tatch. Var. of both tach and tatogey.

Tate and Lyle. The Royal Arms badge worn on lower sleeve by a warrant Officer, first class: army: since (?) ca. 1950. Ex the Royal Arms indicating 'By appointment' on the packets of Tate & Lyle sugar products, esp. the golden syrup tins. Cf. synon. fighting cats or dogs. (P.B.)

tater, 'tatur. A potato: dial. and low coll.: C.19–20. Cf. tatie, tatto.—2. A hole in a sock or stocking, esp. in the heel: late C.19–20. Cf. synon. sense of spud.—3. In on for a tater, fascinated; esp. of a man by a barmaid: lower classes':—1909 (Ware). I.e. ready for a tête-à-tête.—4. S'elp my tater! is the earliest form (H., 2nd ed., 1860) of s'welp my taters!: see s'elp...—5. In settle (a person's) tater, to thrash him: proletarian:—1923 (Manchon). See taters, 2.

tater-and-point. A meal of potatoes: low coll.: mid-C.19–20. See point.

tater-pillin'. Var. of potato-pillin, a shilling. Franklyn 2nd.

tater skying. A game in which one throws potatoes up in the air and returns them, with a toss from the top of one's head, to one's opponent: proletarian coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

tater-trap. The mouth: low: since early C.19. (J.H. Lewis, The Art of Writing, 7th ed., 1816: Moe.) Cf. spud-grinder and cake-hole.

tatered. 'Fed up with having no luck or with unproductive patrols': RAF: 1939+. H. & P.; Partridge, 1945, 'A potato, though—like the patrol—exceedingly useful, can become monotonous.'

taters. Shortening of taters or taties or potatoes in the mould, rhyming s. for cold, adj.: much more frequent than the full version in later C.20.—2. In settle (one's), taters, to settle one's hash: low s. (and Shropshire dial.): late C.19—early 20. On settle one's hash. Cf. tater, 5, q.v.—3. See sack of taters; strain (one's) taters; taters, 4.

tatie, 'tato. A potato: dial. and low coll.: C.19–20. Cf. tater, q.v.

taties in the mould. Cold (adj.): rhyming s.: late C.19–20. John o' London's Weekly, 9 June 1934.

tatie oggy. A Cornish pasty: RN: C.20. (Weekly Telegraph, Nov. 1942.) Prob. the orig., or perhaps merely a rationalised var., of tiddly or tiddy oggy.

tatler. See tattler.

'tato. See tatie.

tatogey. See tat-monger.

tatol. A tutor in Commoners: Winchester College: from ca. 1870. It looks like a corrupted-ending blend of 'tutor' and 'Commoners', perhaps punning (a) tattle.

tats, tatts. Dice; esp. false dice: c.: 1688 (Shadwell); Grose, 1st ed.; Henley, 1887, 'Rattle the tats, or mark the spot.' Perhaps ex tat, to touch lightly: cf. tat, v., 2. Still extant in later C.20 (Powis, 1977).—2. (? Hence, ex ivory) teeth: low: late C.19—earlier 20. In Aus., specifically 'false teeth' (? as also in Eng.: cf. sense 1). Ross Campbell, reviewing the Aus. ed. of Collins Dictionary of the English Language, (Sydney Bulletin, 16 Oct. 1979), and noting omissions, writes, 'supercilious Lord Muck does not get a guernsey. Neither does... tatts (false teeth).'
—3. A walk, an outing: see ta-tas.—4. See tat, n., 2; Tatts.

tats and all! Same as bender!, q.v.: c.: ca. 1810–50. (Vaux.) Ex prec., 1; cf. some hopes!

tats-man; tatsman. A dicer, esp. if sharpening: c.: 1825 (Westmacott: OED). Ex tats, 1.

tatt, n. Odds and ends of (dress or furnishing) material: mostly theatrical: since ca. 1920. 'She turned out a whole mass of old tatt... to see what there was in the way of material. She found that old pair [of gloves] over there and a lot of old embroidery, silks and gold wire and some fake jewellery that was near enough for the props' (Ngaio Marsh, Death at the Dolphin, 1967). Cf. tat, n., 4, 5, qq.v.—2. See tat, n., 3; and for tatt-box, -monger-shop, see tat-box, etc.

Tattenham Corner. The narrow water-way entrance into the Firth of Forth from May Island to Inchkeith, where German submarines constantly lurked, always passed by the British Fleet at full speed': a Grand Fleet nickname: 1915; now only historical. (F. & G.) The allusion is to the famous corner at Epsom racecourse.

tatter. A rag-gatherer: c.: from ca. 1860. Ex tat, v., 1. Also tatterer; from the early 1890s. See tot, n., 5.

tatter, v.i. To collect rags; be a rag-gatherer: c.: from ca. 1860. ? ex tat, n., 2.—2. As a var. of totter, it is incorrect—and rare.—3. V.t., in tatter a kip, to wreck a brothel: 1766 (Goldsmith); † by 1830.

tatterdemal(l)ion. 'A tatter'd Beggar, sometimes half Naked, with Design to move Charity, having better Cloaths at Home' (A New Canting Dict., 1725): c.: C.18. Ex lit. S.E. sense.

tatterer. See tatter, n.

tatters in the mould. Var. of taties in the mould. Len Orten, 1938.

tattics. Tactics: the RN's traditional lowerdeck pron.: mid-C.19–20. (P-G-R.) Cf. taykle.

tattie. A potato: dial. and low coll., mostly Scots: C.19–20. Cf. tatie.

tattie (or -y) -bye! A form of farewell 'inherited... from Ken Dodd's dad' (N. Rees, Very Interesting..., 1980) and popularised by the Liverpool Comedian: in widespread use by mid-1970s. Presumably a conflation of ta-ta and bye-bye: Cf. tararabit, itself sometimes shortened to i'ra. (P.B.)

tattle. An occ. C.18—mid-19 var., as in A New Canting Dict., 1725, of tattler.

tattle-basket. A chatterbox: see MEN, in Appendix, and cf. tattle-water. A synon. of scandal water, tea, q.v. at scandal-broth: later C.19. B. & L.

tattler; occ. tater. 'An Alarm, or Striking Watch, or (indeed) any' (B.E.): c.: 1688 (Shadwell); ob. by 1935. The origin is explained by B.E.'s definition. Hence, flash a tattler, to wear a watch (late C.18–20), and speak to a tattler (1878) or nim a t.

(—1859), to steal one.—2. Hence, a dog that barks: c.: C.19—early 20. B. & L.

tatto. A potato: dial. and low coll., mostly Scots: C.19–20. Cf. tattie.

tattogey. A player operating with loaded dice: c.: C.19. (B. & L.) Ex tattogey, a dice-cloth. See tat-monger, and tog, 1.

Tatts. Tattersall's horse-market in London: coll: mid-C.19–20, but, since ca. 1940, a mere nostalgic memory. Not only among riders to hounds and the country gentry, but among all Londoners.—2. Tattersall's lottery, Melbourne: Aus. coll.: C.20. "'Take a ticket in Tatts": to chance. "Fair as Tatts": absolutely fair' (B., 1942). 'In Sydney, Tatts is more likely to refer to Tattersall's Club, where the "big-time punters" settle their debts on settling day' (B.P.).—3. See tats.

tatty. 'Fussy, especially as applied to clothes and decoration': C.20. Raymond Mortimer, Listener, 10 Mar. 1937.

—2. Inferior; cheap: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Ex tat, n., 2.—3. (Of persons) hopeless, or helpless, at something or other: certain Public Schools': since ca. 1925.—4. Of things, e.g. goods in a shop: trifling, insignificant: since ca. 1945.

—5. Hence, since late 1940s, unkempt, dishevelled; of things, dilapidated, obviously neglected, as of a building, a vehicle, a garment. (P.B.)—6. See tat, n., 5; tog, n., 1.

tatty-bye! See tattie-bye!

Taunton turkey and Digby chicken. A herring: mid-C.19–20. B. & L.

taut. A favourite RN adj. (cf. next). 'In "a taut drop of skin" or shapely female, the "taut" as applied to development of breasts and buttocks is a classic'—as I'm assured by a notably well-informed Naval correspondent.

taut hand. A strict disciplinarian: RN coll.: prob. going back to late C.18. Matthew Barker, L.L.G., 1 Jan. 1825 (Moe).—2. A first-class working rating who gives no, or very little, trouble: RN: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) Ex 1; opp. bird, 7, or later, skate.

taut ship. 'One run by a taut-handed captain' (Granville): RN: C.20. See prec., 1. tavarish. A comrade: 1919–20. N. Russia Expeditionary Force coll. (F. & G.) Direct ex Russian.

Tavern, the. New Inn Hall: Oxford University: 1853, 'Cuthbert Bede'; exceedingly ob., for the Hall did not survive the century of its foundation. By pun and ex its buttery open throughout the day.

tavern-bitch has bit him in the head, the. He is drunk: C.17. Middleton, 1608 (Apperson). Prob. the first form of:

tavern-fox, hunt a. To get drunk: coll.: 1630 ('Water Poet' Taylor); † by 1700. On swallow a tavern-token, q.v., but ex prec. Cf. TAVERN TERMS, in Appendix.

taw. In I'll be one, or a marble, (up) on your taw, a threat (= 'I will pay you out!') derived ex the game of marbles, taw being the large and gen. superior marble with which one shoots: coll.: resp. from late 1780s and early 1800s; † by 1890, except among schoolboys. Grose, 2nd ed.: Vaux; H., 5th ed.

tax-collector. A highwayman: a ca. 1860–90 var. of collector, q.v.

tax-fencer. A disreputable shopkeeper: low London: 1878; ob. (Ware.) Ex avoidance of taxes.

tax-gatherer. See gather the taxes.

taxes, the. The tax-collector: coll.: 1874 (W.S. Gilbert: OED). taxi, n.; occ. taxy, rare after 1909. Abbr. taxi-meter: 1907 (OED): coll. and ob.—2. Abbr. taxi-cab: 1907 (Ibid.): coll. >, ca. 1933, S.E. (Late in 1934, the latter sense was received into standard Fr.)—3. An aircraft that can carry a small number of passengers: RAF: since ca. 1940. (Jackson.) P.B.: cf. taxiplane, recorded by SOD for 1920, as a light aircraft for hire.

taxi, v. To go by taxi-cab: coll.: from ca. 1915. Ex taxi, n., 2. P.B.: soon ob., superseded by S.E. use of taxi, applied to aircraft on the ground.

taxi-cabs. Body-lice: low rhyming s., on crabs; fringe of underworld: since ca. 1910. (Frank Norman, Stand on Me, 1959.) Cf. synon. Sandy McNabs.

taxi († taxy)-driver. A driver of a taxi-cab: coll. (1907) >, ca.

1934, S.E. (OED.) Ex taxi, n., 2.—2. An aircraft pilot: RFC joc.: from 1915. (F. & G.) Cf.—3. A staff pilot at a navigation school: RAF: since ca. 1940. H. & P.—4. 'A rating "not dressed as seaman": not however, the petty officers. Men of the Supply and Secretariat branch, also engine-room artificers and sick-berth attendants... wear suits of civilian cut, with black buttons and a peaked-cap, like a taxi-driver's, with a red badge' (Granville): RN: C.20.

taxi-duty, on. (Of the destroyers of the Dover Patrol) 'employed ferrying politicians, etc., across to France': RN: 1916–18. Bowen.

taxi-man. A driver of a taxi-cab: coll. (1909) >, ca. 1934, S.E. OED.

taxi-rank. To masturbate: rhyming s., on wank: homosexuals': current ca. 1970. Cf. synon. Barclay's Bank.

taxidermist, go and see a. An RAF var. (1943–5) of the civilian low c.p. 'go and get stuffed'. Partridge, 1945. Since WW2 > gen. coll.

taxy. See taxi, n., 1.

taykle. RN traditional pron. of S.E. tackle: C.19 (? earlier)—20. (P-G-R.) Cf. tactics.

tayle-drawer. Grose's spelling of tail-d-, q.v.

tez. A beard: Cockneys': C.20. Whence the c.p. tez been a fine day, shouted by children at a passing 'beaver'.—2. An immature moustache; youthful down, wherever growing; mostly Cockneys': since ca. 1920. (L.A.) Ex tache.

tazz. To go, as in 'the girl had... tazzed off' (Gladys Mitchell, The Longer Bodies, 1930)=gone away: (?)mainly feminine: C.20. I have also heard, late 1970s, the var. tazzie, 'Let's just tazzie over to your place'. (P.B.)

Tazzie or -y. See Tassy.

tea, n. A spirituous liquor: from ca. 1690. Sometimes defined: cold tea, brandy (1693); Scotch tea, whiskey (1887). Ex the colour. OED.—2. Urine: 1716 (Gay); implied by Grose, 1st ed., in tea-voider; † by 1860.—3. Marijuana: drug addicts': adopted, ca. 1945, ex US. (See esp. Underworld.) Cf. tea-head, q.v.—4. In go for (one's) tea, to die: c.: later C.20. Powis.—5. In be (someone's) tea, to be attractive to; esp., to be suitable to and for: 'smart young things': 1920s. (Evelyn Waugh, Black Mischief, 1932.) Prob. elliptical for be (one's) cup of tea, q.v.—6. See take tea with; tea's wet.

tea, v.t. To supply with, or entertain at, tea: coll.: 1812, (Sir R. Wilson).—2. Hence, to drink tea, have one's tea: coll.: 1823 (OED); Dickens, 1839, 'father don't tea with us.'

tea and a wad. See wads, 2.

tea and cocoa. See coffee and cocoa.

tea-and-sugar burglar. 'A swagman who begs or "borrows" tea and sugar; a minor predator' (Wilkes): Aus. s.: since late C.19. Cf. Brit. police gas-meter bandit for a 'minor predator'.

Tea and sugar, the. A supply train for the builders of the Transcontinental Railway: Aus.: since ca. 1920 (?).

tea-and-tattle. An afternoon tea; a minor social gathering: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1925. B., 1942.

tea-and-toast struggle. A Wesleyan tea-meeting: lower classes' coll.:—1909 (Ware). On tea-fight.

tea and turn out. A proletarian c.p. of ca. 1870–1905 applied to absence of supper. Ware.

tea-blow. A taxi-cab rank where refreshments can be obtained: taxi-drivers': from ca. 1926. Ex blow, n., 8.

Tea(-)bread (or solid). See Tea Cake, 2.

tea-boardy. (Of a picture) inferior: studio s.: from ca. 1870; ob. (B. & L.) Ex 'old-fashioned lacquered tea-trays with landscapes on them'. Cf. chocolate-box in this sense, and derogatory cheese-label, applied to garish postage stamps (P.B.).

tea-boat. 'A tea-making firm on the lower deck. Anyone who decides to brew a pot of tea is said to run the tea-boat' (Granville): RN: C.20. Bowen.

tea-bottle. An old maid: lower middle classes':—1909 (Ware). Ex fondness for tea.

tea-cake(s). 'A child's seat or fundament' (EDD): Yorkshire s., not dial.:—1904.—2. As Tea Cake, a Services' nickname for a man named Smith: earlier C.20. John Aye, Humour in the Army, 1931, has var. Teabread.

Tea-Chest, the. HMS Thetis: RN: early C.20 (Bowen.) Ex attempted substitution of tea for rum.

tea-chop. A Chinese tea lighter (boat): nautical coll.: ca. 1860–1900. Bowen.—2. Pl, the Chinese watermen loading the tea clippers: id. Ibid.

tea-cosy mob, the. Young unemployed West Indians roaming the streets around the Bullring: Birmingham shopkeepers': mid-1970s. Ex tam-o'-shanters, their 'badge'. BBC 4 'In Britain Now', 7 Apr. 1976. (P.B.)

tea-cup and saucer. A very respectable, middle-class play: theatrical: ca. 1865–95. Baumann.

tea-fight. A tea-party: 1849 (Albert Smith: OED): s. >, ca. 1880, coll. Occ. tea-scramble (C.20: Manchon) and tea-shine, q.v.

Tea for two and a bloater. A motor-car: derisive rhyming s.: since ca. 1905; by 1959, ob. Franklyn, Rhyming.

tea gardens. 'Somers Town goods yard' (Railway, 2nd): London railwaymen's: since ca. 1920 (?).—2. 'The cells or place of punishment' (Daily Telegraph, 4 June 1958): Borstal: since ca. 1920. Ironic.

tea-gobbers. 'A slang name for tea-tasters' (H.A. Giles, Glossary... on Subjects Connected with the Far East, 3rd ed., 1900): China Coast.

tea grout. A boy scout: rhyming s.: C.20. Cf. Brussels Sprout.

tea-head (or solid). 'User of cannabis' (Home Office): drugs world: later C.20. Ex tea, n., 3; cf. acid-head, piss-head, etc.

tea in China. See not for all the tea...

tea is wet. See tea's wet.

tea-kettle. One of the early steamships: ca. 1840–70. Contemptuous, esp. among sailing-ships' officers and crews. (Petch, 1969.) Cf.—2. An old, leaky locomotive: Can. railroadmen's:—1931.

tea-kettle groom. A groom who has to work also in the kitchen, etc.: low:—1887 (Baumann).

tea-kettle purger. A total abstainer: London lower classes':—1909 (Ware). Punning teetotaller. Cf. tea-pot.

tea-leaf. A thief: rhyming s., since late C.19, >, by 1930, low s.; in C.20, also Aus. Rook, 1899, defines the vbl n. tea-leafing as 'the picking up of unconsidered trifles', i.e. theft.—2. The Chief Officer: prisons' rhyming s.: mid-C.20. Tempest.

tea-man, teaman. A prisoner entitled to a pint of tea, instead of gruel, every evening: c.: from ca. 1870; ob. by 1930.

tea-party. See Boston tea-party, q.v.—2. Hence, a lively proceeding: 1903 (OED).

tea-party ribbons. The multi-coloured ribbons on some (usually non-combatant) officers' breasts': Army officers': from 1916. B. & P. (Cf. C.E. Montague's 'Honours Easy' in Fiery Particles.)

tea-pot, n. Same as tea-kettle purger, q.v.: same period and status. Ware.—2. A tea-party: universities': ca. 1880–1900.

Ware.—3. A Negro: ca. 1830–60. Sinks, 1848.—4. (Usu. written teapot.) A male baby: Aus. domestic: since ca. 1930. A married woman loq., 'We want one with a spout next time'—cited by B.P., who comments thus, 'A male baby is called a "teapot" in such a conversation and a female baby is called a "jug"' (1963).—5. (Usu. prec. by old, sometimes by regular; occ. r.o.t.) An inveterate tea-drinker: domestic: (lower- and) middle-class: latish C.19–20. I have no printed records—and I don't remember it earlier than ca. 1904. Cf. tea-bottle.—6. See tea-pot lid; smash the tea-pot.

tea-pot, v. Short for tea-pot lid, v.: C.20. New Statesman, 29 Nov. 1941.

tea-pot, adj. A spooned stroke: cricketers': ca. 1885–1910. B. & L.

tea-pot lid, n. A Jew: Cockney: C.20. Rhyming Yid, often shortened to tea-pot.—2. A child: C.20. Rhyming kid. Cf. next, 1.—3. £1: rhyming s., on quid. Rhyming Cockney Slang, ed. Jack Jones, 1971.

tea-pot lid, v. To 'kid' (pretend): rhyming s.: late C.19–20.

(John o' London's Weekly, 9 June 1934.) Hence vbl n. tea-pot lidding.

tea-pot sneaking, n. Theft of tea-pots and plate: c. from ca. 1860. B. & L.

tea-pot soak. One who does this: c.: from ca. 1860. (Ibid.) ? an error for tea-pot sneak.

Tea-Room Party. A group of forty-eight Radicals in Parliament: 1866. (Coll. rather than s.) They met in the tea-room. Ware.

tea-scramble. See tea-fight and-tea-shine. A 'tea fight' (q.v.): coll.: 1838 (Mrs Carlyle: OED); † by 1890.

tea-spoon. £5,000: commercial: the 1860s and 1870s. H., 3rd to 5th edd.

tea squall. A tea party: earlier C.19. Leechman cites British Columbia Historical Quarterly, Apr. 1937, which records it for 28 Apr. 1820.

tea swindle. See swindle, n., 4.

tea trolley. Shell-hoist from magazine to gun in HM ships: RN: since ca. 1916.

tea, two, and a bloater. A motor-car: rhyming: C.20. See, tea for two ...

tea-voider. A chamber-pot: ca. 1780–1890. (Grose, 1st ed.) See tea, n., 2.

tea-wad. A cup of tea and bun(s): military:—1935. See wad, a bun.

tea-wag(g)on. An East Indiaman: nautical coll. of ca. 1835–90. (Dana.) Because these ships carried tea as a large part of their cargo.

tea with. See take tea with.

teach, n. A teacher, a coach: adopted, ca. 1944, ex US servicemen. (Norman.) Claiborne, 1976, 'In US, almost invariably in vocative, "Hey, teach!"' P.B.: but still, 1980, felt to be more US than Brit.

teach a pig to play on the flute. To attempt the impossible; do something absurd: coll.: C.19. Ray, ed. of 1813, cited by Apperson. Cf. teach iron ...

teach (one's) grandmother (or granny) how to (or simply to) suck eggs. To give advice to one's senior; esp. to instruct an expert in his own expertise: from ca. 1600. (Cotgrave, Swift, Fielding.) Occ., from ca. 1790, abbr. to teach one's grandmother or granny. Earlier forms are teach one's (gran)dame to spin, C.16–17, to gripe ducks, Cotgrave, 1611, or a goose, Howell, 1659, and to sop sour milk, Ray, 1670; ca. 1620–1750, grannam (or -um) was often substituted (see grannam); from ca. 1750, granny. A coll. phrase so gen. as almost to > S.E. (Apperson.) A further early var. was ... roast eggs.

teach-guy. A late, rare form of teach-guy (see teach-gens).

teach-in, and all the other -in terms, are not s. but jargon.

teach iron to swim. To perform the impossible: coll. verging on familiar S.E.: C.16–early 20. Cf. teach a pig ...

teacher. See please teacher!; also once a policeman always a p.—where teacher may take the place of policeman.

teacup. See tea-cup.

tear, tearing. One who takes tea; the taking of tea, or the corresponding adj.: coll.: resp. 1892, 1874, 1852 (Surtees): OED. Ex tea, v., 2. Often written tea-er, tea-ing, or tea'er, tea'ing.

Teague; in C.17, occ. Teg, in C.18 Teigue. An Irishman: coll. nickname: 1661, Merry Drollery (Teg); Swift, 1733; 1900, Stanley Weyman (OED); extremely ob., and since ca. 1870 nearly archaic. An English 'transcription' of the Irish name Tadhg, pron. (approx.) tayg. Cf. Paddy, Sawney, Taffy, qq.v.—2. In Ulster, a Roman Catholic: coll.:—1904 (EDD). In later C.20 more widespread as low coll. or s.: witness Powis, 1977, where spelt Taig.

Teagueland; Teaguelander. Ireland; an Irishman: coll.: late C.17–19. (B.E., Grose.) Ex Teague, 1. Cf. Patlander.

teach. Eight; eightpence: back s.: 1851 (Mayhew, I). Cf.: teach-gens. Eight shillings: back s.—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Also teach-guy (ib.), by perversion of gens, and theg-gens (id.). Contrast:

teach-gir (pronounced tadger). Right: back s.:—1874 (H., 5th ed.); Ware spells it teatchgir. Hence tadging, tip-top, excellent, 'splendid': late C.19–early 20. F. & H.

teaing. See tear.

teaks. Pieces of bread, served at table: Cheltenham College: C.20. ex their dryness or hardness?

team. The pupils of a coach or a private tutor: Oxford and Cambridge: ca. 1860–1910. B. & L.—2. A gang: Teddy-boys': since ca. 1947. The district where it lives is a manor (Clancy Signal, Observer, 1 Mar. 1959).

teaman. See tea-man.

teapot. See tea-pot.

tear (pron. tare). A boisterous jollification: US (1869, Bret Harte); partly anglicised ca. 1890, but by 1930 very ob. in Britain (E.P.); in a later ed. of this Dict. E.P. noted Anglo-Irish on the tear, culled from Liam O' Flaherty, The Informer, 1925, as 'having a wildly enjoyable time, wining and wenching'. Cf. S.E. full tear.—2. (Pron. teer.) Gonorrhoea: RN: late C.19–20. Cf. dripper.—3. See shed a tear.

tear, v.i. To move violently; rush (about): coll.: 1599 (Massinger: OED); Dickens, 1843, 'And now two smaller Cratchits ... came tearing in.' Perhaps ex tearing through obstacles, as the OED suggests.

tear a strip off (someone); as v.i., usu. tear off a strip. To reprimand: RAF: since ca. 1938. Hector Bolitho in The English Digest, Feb. 1941, 'Hope that they won't have a strip torn off them'; Jackson, 1943, 'If you tear off a strip of cloth quickly and decisively, the noise caused thereby will not be unlike what has been referred to colloquially... as a raspberry'; Partridge, 1945, "'The Stationmaster' tore him off a strip for dressing in so slovenly a way." Off his self-satisfaction'; 1945, Granville records it as an RN phrase—which it had, via the FAA, > as early as 1941.—2. In the RN, to tear off a strip denotes sexual intercourse: WW2+. cf. tear off a piece.

tear and ages (1841, Lever) or wounds, occ. 'oun's (1842, Lover). Anglo-Irish coll. interjections of astonishment. Cf. dial. tear, a passion; ages may = aches. OED.

tear-arse, n. Cheese: low: C.20. Costive.—2. One who works devilish hard, who 'tears into' his work: proletarian: since—1923 (Manchon).—3. An excitable man: tailors': 1928 (Tailor and Cutter, 29 Nov.). P.B.: later, also Services', for one who 'goes tear-arsing about'.—4. Treacle; golden syrup: Aus. rural: since ca. 1920. (B., 1953.) Ex aperient effect.

tear-arse, v. (usu. with about). To rush about; behave in a violent way, recklessly: Services' coll.: C.20. For tear-arsing as adj., see flyer, 6. Cf. tear the arse, q.v. (P.B.)

tear (one's) arse off. To work furiously: low: C.20. Manchon.

tear Christ's body; tear (the name of) God. To blaspheme: coll. >, by 1550, S.E.: C.14–mid-17.

tear 'em up. To delight the audience: music-halls': from ca. 1920. M. Lincoln, Oh! Definitely, 1933, 'A number... that simply "tore 'em up".' Jon Pertwee as a Plymouth postman in the BBC radio comedy series 'Waterlogged Spa', late 1940s, popularised the c.p. 'what does it matter what you do so long as you tear 'em up?' tear into. To attack vigorously, whether with fists or with words: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.

tear it. See torn it.

tear-jerker. A very sentimental book or story or film: adopted, ca 1954, ex US.

tear off a piece. To coit with a woman: Aus., Can., US: late C.19–20. (Baker.) cf. tear a strip off, 2.

tear-over. See rip, n., 5.

tear-pump. Esp. work the ..., to weep: late C.19–early 20. Cf. synon. turn on the waterworks; see also pump, n.

tear (one's) seat. To attempt too much: tailors': from ca. 1870. Cf. tear-arse, n., 2, and:- tear the arse, v.i.; v.t., ... out of it (or things). To overdo anything; to exaggerate: Services', ? esp. army: since early 1950s. Cf. synon. kick the bottom out of it; and Tim Carew, Korea: the Commonwealth at War, 1967, 'being done out of R and R [rest and recuperation] leave was bad enough, but to be put on the peg [charged] because a couple of Chinks died was "tearing it a bit". See also torn it.

tear the end off. To finish; to finish with: coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

tear the name of God. See tear Christ's body.

tear the tartan. (Gen. as vbl n.) To speak in Gaelic: Glasgow:—1934 (Alastair Baxter).

tear-up. A stir, a commotion: coll.: mid-C.19–20. Baumann.—2. Deliberate destruction (often nerve-caused) of clothes and/or furniture: prison c.: from ca. 1870. B. & L.

tear up for arse-paper. To reprimand severely: NZ army: WW1. (B. & P.) Cf. WW2 tear a strip off.

tearaway. A would-be rough, esp. in ladies' tearaway, a man specialising in snatching hand bags from women: low, verging on c.: late C.19–20. (Norman).—2. 'Bobby Twist, a tearaway (or strongarm man), now dead' (John Gosling, 1959): C.20: orig. c., but by 1930 also police s. and by ca. 1960 fairly gen. s.—3. Anyone who, esp. with a criminal record, tends to violence: since ca. 1960.

tearing. Violent; passionate; roistering; rollicking: coll.: 1654, Gayton, 'Some tearing Tragedy full of Fights and Skirmishes'; 1869, J.R. Green, 'I am in such tearing spirits at the prospect of freedom'; ob.—Hence, 2, grand; 'splendid', 'ripping': late C.17–20; rare since mid-C.19. OED.—3. (Of work) exhausting: coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Cf. Aus. ball-tearing, adj.

tearing up pound notes in a gale. Engaging in something very expensive, e.g. modern grand prix motor-racing: later 1970s. Pearson Phillips, in Telegraph Sunday mag., 19 Aug. 1979.

tears of the tankard. Liquor-drippings on a waistcoat: coll.: ca. 1670–1830. Ray, 1678; B.E., and Grose at tears. (Apperson.)

teary. Tearful: late C.14–20; S.E. until mid-C.19, then coll.

tea's wet, the tea is ready; wet the tea, to make the tea: RN: coll.: since ca. 1910. (J.P.W. Mallalieu, Very Ordinary Seaman, 1944.) Cf. the army's brew up.

tease, teaze, n., rare in C.20. One given to teasing; one playfully irritating another: coll.: 1852, Dickens, 'What a tease you are' (OED). Ex the S.E. v.—2. In nab or nap the tease (but gen. tease or teize), to be flogged; esp. to be whipped privately in gaol: c.: ca. 1780–1840. (Grose, 1st ed.) Prob. ex tease, the act of teasing. Cf. sense 5 of teaser.

tease, teaze; occ. teize, v. To whip, flog: c.: ca. 1810–80. (Vaux.) Ex n., 2.

teased out. Exhausted: RAF (esp. aircrews) since ca. 1938. (H. & P.) Ex S.E. teased (out): 'with fibres pulled asunder'.

teaser, teazer, very rare in C.20. Something causing annoyance; a 'poser': coll.: 1759 (Franklin: OED); of a difficult ball in cricket, 1856 (Lewis).—2. Hence, in boxing s. (1812, OED; ob.), an opponent hard to beat.—3. 'An old horse belonging to a breeding-stud—"though devoid of fun himself, he is the cause of it in others"' (Bee): turf: ca. 1820–70. P.B.: still current in the 1960s, (?) by which time > j. Witness Nicholas Wollaston, Winter in England, 1965, the chapter on Newmarket. Cf. its identical use in:—4. 'A castrated or partly castrated ram, which is placed in a ewe flock to identify ewes on heat' (B., 1950): Aus. rural coll.: late C.19–20.—5. A flogging or whipping: c. or low s.: from ca. 1830. Ex tease, v., q.v. Cf. teasing.—6. A sixpence: mid-C.19. (Sinks, 1848.) Perhaps a var. of tizzy, q.v.—7. A preliminary advertisement (specifying neither article nor advertiser, or, loosely, specifying only the one or the other), prior to an advertising campaign: advertising (esp. publicity) coll.: from ca. 1920.

teasing. A flogging: c. of ca. 1820–80. Ex tease, v.; cf. teaser, fourth sense.

teasy. (Of persons) teasing; (of things) irritating: coll.: from ca. 1907. Rare. (OED). Ex dial.

teatchgix. See teach-gir.

teatotal. Incorrect for teetotal: from the 1830s.

teaze. See tease, n., v., and phrase; teazer, see teaser.

teazle. The female pudend: low: C.19—early 20. Ex teasel, a plant.

tec, tec, n. A detective: 1879 (Sessions, June); The Echo, 4 Dec. 1886.—2. See tech.

tec, tec, v.t. To watch as a detective does: C.20; rare. Ex n. tech. A technician: coll. abbr.: since ca. 1950. E.g. the RAF ranks Senior and Junior Tech[nician]. Cf. Mech = mechanic(al). (P.B.)—2. (Often the Tech for one's local one) a technical college or institution: from ca. 1910, s.; by ca. 1930 verging on coll. (OED Sup.) Earlier sometimes written tec. Cf. uni(versity), poly(technic).

technicolor spit or yawn. Vomit; a vomiting: the 1st, RN, 1970s (Peppitt), prob. ex the 2nd: Aus. joc.: since ca. 1965; by very early 1970s, fairly well known in UK, thanks to the Aus. Barry Humphries's satirical cartoon-strip running, 1971 or 1972, in Private Eye (Derek Parker, 1977).

teck. Occ. var. of tec, n., 1, and teek.

teckery. Detection of crime: coll.: earlier C.20.

Ted; usu. in pl. A German soldier: army in Italy: 1943–5. Ex It. Tedesco (pl. Tedeschi), 'a German'—2. A Teddy-boy: orig., among Teddy-boys: since ca. 1954. Gilderdale, 2.

Ted, adj. Characteristic of a Teddy-boy: mostly teenagers': since ca. 1956. Anderson.

Ted Frazer. A cut-throat razor: rhyming s.: later C.20. Powis.

Ted Heath. A thief: rhyming s.: ca. 1970. (Haden-Guest, 1972.) Fairly ephemeral—it failed to oust tea-leaf. Ex the Conservative Prime Minister.

Teddies. 'One of the names for the U.S. troops on first landing in France; disliked by the Americans equally with "Sammies" [which, however, survived], and soon dropped': military: 1917—early 1918. (F. & G.) Ex 'Teddy' Roosevelt (d. 1919).

Teddy. The law that no member of a train-crew shall work more than 16 hours at a stretch: Can. railroadmen's:—1931. Ex the given-name of its introducer.—2. A combination flying suit used by airship crews: aeronautical engineers' and airship crews': 1920s and 1930s. (Nevil Shute, Slide Rule, 1954.) P.B.: prob. a shortening of teddy bear, 1.—3. (Usu. teddy.) A woman's garment, consisting of camisole and (loose) panties in one: Can., ex US.: ca. 1920–40. Named after 'Teddy' Roosevelt.—4. Familiar shortening of teddy-bear: mostly domestic. C.20.

teddy bear. A shaggy goatskin or fur coat 'issued for winter wear in the trenches in 1915' (F. & G.): army. Ex the toy, which was named after Theodore ('Teddy') Roosevelt who, from one of his big-game hunting expeditions, returned with some baby bears for the Bronx Zoo. Hence, in 1939–45, an RAF term for the fleece-lined jacket issued to aircrews. Cf. prec., 2.—2. A koala—the little native bear: Aus.: since ca. 1919. B., 1942.—3. A flashily dressed man: Aus. c.: since ca. 1930. (B., 1953.) Rhyming on lair. Wilkes quotes Frank Huelin, Keep Moving, 1973: 'Teddy-bears, Lairs: Brash, vain young hoboes.' Wilkes also notes its specialised use, among cricketers, for 'a show-off ... given to antics on the field': Aus.: since early 1960s.

Teddy-boy. A youth imitating a garb (stovepipe trousers and short jacket) supposed to characterize Edward VII's reign (1901–10): since ca. 1949; by 1960, coll.; by 1965, virtually S.E. Teddy Hall. St Edmund Hall, Oxford: Oxford University:—1874 (H., 5th ed.).

Teddy my godson. An address to a simpleton: Anglo-Irish coll.: from ca. 1780; ob. Grose, 1st ed.

Teddy's hat. The crown in the game of Crown and Anchor: military: 1902; ob. F. & G., 'With reference to King Edward VII'.

tedhi. See thedi.

tee-heeing. 'This currying favour with superiors—tee-heeing, as we call it' (Roger Grinstead, They Dug a Hole, 1946): Guards': C.20. 'Ex the sound of sycophantic sniggering' (R.S.).

tee-tee. See t.t.

tee up; mostly as in 'It's (all) teed up' or fully arranged and virtually assured: army officers': since ca. 1935. Ex golfing. Compare lay on and organise.—2. Tee up... adopted in the R.A.F. to denote "Time to get ready" for a flight or for a parade' (H. & P.): since 1940.—3. Among Aus. soldiers (since 1940): to make arrangements (B., 1943). Hence, since ca. 1946, gen. s. (Culotta.)

teejay. A new boy: Winchester College: from ca. 1870; ob. Abbr. protégé. Also teje, 1st syllable as Eng. tee, 2nd as in Fr. Wrench.—2. Hence, as v.

teek; tique. Mathematics; arithmetic: Harrow: from ca. 1880; ob. Ex a French master's pron. of the relevant syllable.

teek-hi! All right!: army, esp. men with service in India: earlier C.20. In Malaya, in the 1950s, men of the Gurkha Regiments were still sometimes greeted by 'Ram ram, Johnnie! Teek-hi!' Ex Hindustani thik, precise, exact (Y. & B.). Also written tickeye, and, ca. 1930–50, often shortened to tig. I have altered E.P.'s orig. entry: P.B. Cf. ticketty-boo.

teeming and lading, n. 'Using cash received today to make up cash embezzled yesterday' (Alfred T. Chenhalls): accountants': C.20. Lit., unloading and loading.

teen-ager. A person aged from thirteen to nineteen, especially 15–17: coll., adopted in 1945 from US, but not at all gen. until the latter half of 1947. Since ca. 1955, has usu. been written as one word—and, since ca. 1960, has been regarded as S.E. See also:—

teenage. In I was a teenage (this or that): this pattern never became particularised; so it never qualified as a c.p. P.B., 1977, called it an 'all-purpose, nonsense [patterned saying], evolved from the "teenage cult" of the 1950s [and congealing into] a film title, I was a Teenage Werewolf. Still in people's memories: I saw a cartoon, recently, of two worms; one is saying to the other, "I was a teenage wereworm."

teeny-weensy. Var. of next: (? mostly) Aus.: since ca. 1930. (B.P., 1969.)

teeny; teeny-tiny; teeny-weeny. Tiny: resp., dial. (—1847) >, ca. 1860, coll.; coll., 1867, ob. by 1930; coll., 1894 (Baring-Gould). Ex child's pron. OED. A mid-C.19 var. of teeny-weeny was tinny-tiny (Punch, 24 Apr. 1852, p. 166).

teeny(-)bopper. A teenage hellion, esp. as member of a gang: Can: since ca. 1965. Daily Colonist, Victoria, BC, 28 Mar. 1967, 'The hippies... along with the younger "teeny-boppers", met in Stanley Park.' (Leechman.) A bopper is one who bops, i.e. punches or otherwise uses violence, ex the echoic bop, to strike. (See Underworld, 3rd ed., at bop.) P.B.: but is E.P. correct here? Certainly the bopper in sense 2 is ex bop, a development of the bebop style of jazz popular in the 1940s. I surmise that Dr Leechman was citing a Can. use of:—2. 'A teenager, esp. a teenage girl, who follows enthusiastically the latest trends in pop music, clothes, etc.' (Chambers's C.20th Dict., 1977 ed.): adopted, ex US, ca. 1966, as s. >, by 1980, coll. and slightly ob. An early occurrence is in Observer, 3 Dec. 1967, article by Peter Fryer. A blend of ideas: teeny + teen-ager: see the 2 prec. entries. (P.B.) teeny-tiny-weeny. See teeny, and cf.:

Teeny-Weeny Airlines. Liaison flights of the Army Air Corps, using light 'taxiplanes': army, since ca. 1960; also, of small civilian air companies. By a joc. ironic pun of the large US Trans World Airlines, usu. abbr. TWA. (P.B., 1975.)

teesy-weesy. Very small: mostly feminine: since ca. 1930. (Angus Wilson, Hemlock and After, 1952.) Ex teeny-weeny, influenced by such locutions as palsy-walsy.

teeth. A ship's guns: nautical: 1806 (John Davis, The Post-Captain: Moe).? Ex show one's teeth.—2. The dental department of a hospital: medical coll.:—1933 (Slang, p. 193).—3. See back teeth; draw teeth; fed up to the (back) teeth; go to grass. See tooth for some other phrases.

teeth well afloat. In have (one's or) the..., to be tipsy: since ca. 1870.

teething troubles. Such noises given out by a wireless set as indicate derangement: from 1935. Daily Telegraph, 16 or 17 Oct. 1936.—2. Applied to initial troubles with any new invention or device, as in 'Once we've got over the teething troubles, got the bugs ironed out a bit, she'll be fine': coll.: C.20. (P.B.)

teethward. See clerk to the teethward.

Teetotal Hotel (the or Her Majesty's). A prison: c.: later C.19—early 20. B. & L. teetotically. Teetotally: non-aristocratic joc.: 1890s. (Ware.) A perversion, silly enough; but with a less foolish glance at theoretically.

teetottler. A teetotaler: joc.: ca. 1885–1900. Baumann.

teg. A tooth, esp. a baby tooth; 'Ah, is he losing his little milk-tegs then!': domestic coll.: C.20. Perhaps an ellision of toothy-peg. (P.B.)—2. See Teague.

Teigue. See Teague.

teize. See tease, n. and v.

teje. See teejay.

tekelite. A defaulting debtor: ca. 1830–50; c. of the Debtors' Prison in Whitecross Street, London.? ex 'Tekel: weighed in the balances, and found wanting', Daniel v. 27. OED.—2. In the Tekelites, the Whigs: 1683—ca. 1700. 'First given currency by Sir Roger L'Estrange' (Dawson). Ex Count Emeric Thokoly or Tokoly (1657–1705), spelt Tekeli (or -ly) or Teckeli (-ly) in England, where this great patriot, leader of insurrections against the Germanising Habsburgs, 'was certainly the most talked-about, most praised and most abused Hungarian in 17th Century England' (Ladislas Orságh, formerly Professor of English in the University of Debrecen).

tekram. A market: back s.: from 1860s. Ware.

tel. A telegraphist rating: RN: since ca. 1925. (Granville.) Cf. telist, telt, and pots, 3.

tele. See telly.

telegram from arsehole: 'shit expected'. A var. of it's a poor (or a sore) arse that never rejoices: raffish: since ca. 1910.

telegraph, n. See college telegraph.—2. Elliptical for bush telegraph: B., 1943.

telegraph, v. To tattle to: Eton: 1825. Spy, 'I have never telegraphed the big wigs in my life': Oxford: ca. 1815–60.

telescope. To silence (a person): Aus.: ca. 1890–1910. R.S.: 'Ex "shutting-up" a folding telescope after use.'

telist; telt. A telegraphist: telegraphists' coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Ex these two words written as official abbr.

tell, v. To say, esp. in such locutions as 'Tell him good night' and 'Tell her good-bye': Can. (and US) coll.: mid-C.19–20. (Leechman.)—2. See don't tell me!; hear tell.

tell-a-cram. A telegram: joc.:—1923 (Manchon). Lit., tell-a-lie.

tell a picture. To tell the story a film consists of: mostly Anglo-Irish coll.: since ca. 1930. Brendan Behan, Borstal Boy, 1958.

tell all. To tell everything; esp. in the imperative: Aus. c.p.: since ca. 1945. (B.P.) P.B.: in Brit., often do tell all!: mostly arch feminine curiosity.

tell (someone) his birthright dates from ca. 1910 and has prob. prompted the next. (L.A., 1976.)

tell (someone) his fortune. To threaten with reprisal; to let (him) know what a bastard he is?: esp. Forces': since ca. 1945. (L.A., 1967.) Cf.:

tell (someone) his own. To tell him frankly of his faults or mistakes: coll.: C.16–20; ob. Horman, 1519 (OED). Cf. give a piece of one's mind, and the two prec.

tell it like it is! 'Tell it truthfully, naturally, fully!': US c.p., adopted in UK and Aus., early 1970s.

tell it not in Gath! 'Fancy my (or your) doing such a thing!'; 'Fancy my (or your) doing that!': coll.: mid-C.19—earlier 20. Ex 2 Samuel I, 20.

tell me about me (or myself). (Often prec. by now.) A c.p.: mainly joc. courting expression, inverting the gambit 'Now, tell me all about yourself!': late 1940s.

tell me another! An expression of disbelief in what has just been said: c.p.: C.20. (W.L. George, 1914.) Cf. now pull the other one!, and contrast you can say that again!

tell me news! Often prec. by that's ancient history. A c.p.

retort to an old story or a stale jest: C.18–20; ob. (Swift.) Cf. Queen Anne's dead, and tell me (or us) something new!, a late C.19–20 var. of the same (Lyell). Superiority of prior knowledge may also be rubbed in by now tell me something I don't know!

tell me the old, old story! A c.p. (often, too, a chant sung in unison), in retort on rumours of good times or on specious promises: military: 1915; ob. But it was in use in Sydney at least as early as 1905: often whistled. B. & P., 'The first line of a Non-conformist hymn'. E.P. later added: though very popular among Nonconformists, it appears also in no. 681 in the C. of E. Hymnary. Often heard at political meetings. See DCpp.

tell mother! Tell me!: a C.20 c.p. Somerset Maugham, The Casuarina Tree, 1926, "What is it, old man?" she said gently [to her husband]. "Tell mother."

tell off. To scold, blame, rebuke severely: coll., prob. orig. Services, and since late C.19; by 1919, > gen. 'Taffrail', The Sub, 1917.—2. Hence, to sentence (an incriminated person): c.: since ca. 1920. George Ingram, Stir, 1933.

tell-tale. An indicator light (or lamp): Aus. motorists': since ca. 1950. The Open Road, 1 July 1963.

tell that for a tale! A c.p. indicative of incredulity: since ca. 1870. The later shape is often blow (or something more vulgar) that...!, or sometimes simply that for a tale!

tell that to the marines! I don't believe it, whoever else does!: c.p.: 1806 (John Davis, The Post-Captain: Moe). Byron, 1823, has that will do for the marines (but the sailors won't believe it). Orig. nautical: cf. the opinion held by sailors implicit in marine, q.v. A C.19 elab. was tell that to the Horse Marines, a non-existent body.

tell that to the morons! A hecklers' c.p. punning var. on prec.: ca. 1950+.

tell the tale. To tell a begging-story; to make love: C.20.—2. To tell an incredible or a woeful tale; from ca. 1910. (Esp. among soldiers).—3. Hence, to explain away (gen. one's own) military offences and delinquencies: military: from ca. 1914. B. & P.—4. To be a confidence trickster: mostly Aus.: since ca. 1910. Hence the verbal noun telling the tale, as in Vince Kelly, The Shadow, 1955.

tell the world! I'll. I say so openly or emphatically: US; anglicised in 1930 or 1931 as a coll.

tell (one) where he gets off. To rebuke; to scold: see get off, 8.

tell you what, I'll. In C.19–20, often I tell you what; in mid–C.19–20, occ. tell you what (Baumann). I'll tell you something; this is how it is: coll. Shakespeare, Tennyson; Violet Hunt, 'I tell you what, Janet, we must have a man down who doesn't shoot—to amuse us!' (OED). See I'll tell you... in DCpp.

tell your mother ninepence! (oh). An expression of unwillingness to reply helpfully to a question requiring some thought: mostly lower-middle and lower class: from ca. 1912. See DCpp.

teller. A well-delivered blow: boxing s.: 1814, (Sporting Magazine: OED); 1834, Ainsworth, 'Ven luckily for Jem a teller/Vos planted right upon his smeller.' Ob. Lit., something that tells, makes a mark.

teller of the tale. He who 'tells the tale' (see tell the tale, 1): mostly low: C.20.

telling. In I'm telling you!: there's no argument necessary or possible: coll.: C.20. Prob. abbr. 'I'm not arguing; I'm telling you.' Contrast don't tell me!, and cf. you're telling me!, I agree with you wholeheartedly.—2. For that would (or that'd) be telling see tellings.

telling-off. A scolding; a reprimand: coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Ex tell off, 1.

tellings, that's. A c.p. reply to a question that one should, or does, not wish to answer: from ca. 1835; slightly ob. Marryat, 1837, "Where is this... and when?" "That's tellings," replied the man' (OED). A playful coll. or perhaps, orig., a sol. for 'That's telling' = that would be telling, phrases that are themselves—at first, though not now—somewhat trivially coll. Often, in Aus., shortened to tellings! or tellin's!, as in Edward Dyson, The Gold Stealers, 1901: late C.19–mid-20. Telly, The The Daily Telegraph: newsagents' and newsboys' coll.: late C.19–20. Among Sydneysites, The (Sydney) D.T.: since ca. 1920. B., 1942.—2. Television; at first usu. the telly, since ca. 1947; in later C.20 often as in 'I saw it on telly' and 'We haven't got a telly, remember!': at first non-cultured, but soon > gen., coll. Properly but rarely tele, as in Angus Wilson, Anglo-Saxon Attitudes, 1956, 'I seen him on the Tele.' Cf. goggle-box, idiot's lantern, and the mainly US flickering blue parent. (E.P., P.B.) tellywag. A telegram: Public Schools': early C.20. (E.F. Benson, David Blaize, 1916.) In dial. as early as 1867 (EDD).

telt. See telist.

temp. Temperature: doctors' and nurses' coll.: late C.19–20. Winston Graham, The Walking Stick, 1967.—2. A temporary employee, esp. a typist or secretary: office girls' and employment agencies': since ca. 1950, but very common since ca. 1960. Contrast perm, n., 4.

temperament. See throw temperament.

temperance. A rating that does not draw his tot of rum: RN coll.: C.20. (Granville.) But among C.20. RN officers, it indicates 'a man who doesn't drink ashore but regularly takes his tot, the equivalent of three large rums ashore, in the middle of the forenoon' (Surgeon-Lieut H. Osmond, 1948).

temperature, have a. To be feverish: coll.: from late 1890s. E.F. Benson, 1904, 'He has... had a temperature for nearly a week' (OED), Abbr. have a temperature higher than normal.

tempest. A confused or crowded throng or, esp., assembly: Society coll. soon > S.E.: ca. 1745–80. Smollett, 1746, in a note on drum, says: 'There are also drum-major, rout, tempest, and hurricane, differing only in degrees of multitude and uproar.'

temple. From ca. 1860 at Winchester College, as in Pascoe, 1881: 'On the last night of term there is a bonfire in Ball Court, and all the temples or miniature architectural excavations in "Mead's" wall are lighted up with candle-ends.' Temple of Bacchus. 'Merry-making after getting a liceat' (Egan's Grose): Oxford University: ca. 1820–50.

temple of low men, the female pudend, is a late C.19–20. joc. pun on the literary 'temple of Hymen'.

temple-pickling. The ducking, under a pump, of bailiffs, detectives, pickpockets, and other unwelcome persons: London c. or low s.: late C.17–18. (B.E.; Grose.) Lit., a pickling within the limits of the Temple.

temporary gentleman. An officer for the duration of the War [i.e. WWI] or until demobilised: Regular Army pej. coll.: 1916; ob. Manchon, who notes the occ. abbr. t.g. (or T.G.). The term caused much justifiable resentment.

ten, n. See keep a ten.

ten, v. To play lawn tennis: 1906 (P.G. Wodehouse, Love among the Chickens); Collinson.

ten, adj. First-class, very good, as in 'The disco was pretty ten': teenagers': ca. 1977. Ex school marks, ten out of ten; only this top rating is ever used. (D. & R. McPheely, 1977.)

ten A matches. Non-safety matches: RN: late C.19–20. 'The only matches allowed in H.M. Ships are "safeties" and in the old days anyone found with any other kind was given "Ten A" (now number eleven) punishment' (Granville).

Ten-a-penny. "'Ten-a-penny" was a soldiers' nickname for the Pom-pom [q.v.]. "The —y Doorknocker" it was christened in the Highland Brigade' (Julian Ralph, War's Brighter Side, 1901); S. African War, 1899–1902.

ten-bob squat. A (seat in a) stall: theatrical:—1909 (Ware).

ten bones. (One person's) fingers and thumbs, esp. in a coll. oath: C.15–19.

ten commandments. The ten fingers and thumbs, esp. of a wife: mid-C.15–early 20. Heywood, ca. 1540, 'Thy wives ten commandments may serch thy five wyttes'; Dekker & Webster, 1607; Scott; H., 3rd ed., 'A virago's finger, or nails. Often heard in a female street disturbance.' (Apperson.)

ten(-)foot. 'Middle space between four rows of tracks' (Railway, 2nd): railwaymen's coll.: C.20.

ten o'clock girls. Prostitutes: Londoners': since ca. 1930. (Sewell Stokes, Court Circular, 1950.) At that hour, a.m., they have to surrender to their bail in the Magistrates' Court.

ten-ogg. A ten-shilling note: market-traders': prob. since ca. 1920, but since 1971 merely nostalgic. (M.T.) See ogg.

ten-one (or 10-1). Broken: teenagers': early 1980s. Ex Citizens' Band radio j. (James Williamson, 1982.)

ten penn'orth or pennyworth. The punishment designated '10A': RN: C.19. Hence, in C.20, of the modern substitute. (Bowen.) Cf. ten A matches.—2. A sentence of 10 years: c.: C.20. George Ingram, Stir, 1933.

ten stone eight. A '10' and an '8' in one's hand: Aus. poker-players': since ca. 1920. B., 1953.

ten-stroke. A complete victory: billiard-players':—1909 (Ware). Ten being the highest stroke.

ten-to-four-gentleman or toff. A (superior) Civil servant: joc.: coll.:—1887 (Baumann).

ten to two. See what's the time?—2. A Jew: rhyming s.: C.20. Less usual than four-by-two. The Leader, Jan. 1939.

ten toes. See Bayard of ten toes.

ten-ton Tessie. 'The R.A.F.'s latest and biggest bomb... yesterday... was used for the first time by specially equipped Lancasters... The new... bomb—the R.A.F. calls it "Ten-ton Tessie"—weighs 22,000 lb' (Daily Herald, 15 Mar. 1945). The 4,000, 8,000, 12,000 pounders received the name block-buster. It was named after 'Ten Ton' Tessie O'Shea, the famous variety artist.

ten up! A stockbrokers' c.p., directed at a broker whose credit is shaky: from ca. 1870. (B. & L.) Ex enforced deposit of 10 per cent.

ten (gen. 10) wedding. A wedding at which (? and after) the wife = 1, the husband = 0: proletarian:—1909 (Ware); ob. by 1930.

tēna koe? How do you do?: coll., North Island of NZ: late C.19–20. Ex Maori (lit., 'that is you'). Morris. Cf. taihoa, q.v.

tenant at will. 'One whose wife usually fetches him from the alehouse' (Grose, 2nd ed.): ca. 1786–1840. Orig., a legal pun. For tenant in other, earlier, drinking terms, see TAVERN TERMS, §9, in Appendix.

tenant for life. A married man, because he is hers for life: ca. 1810–1900. Lex. Bal.

tenant-in-tail. See settlement in tail.

tence; esp. in false tences, false pretences: C.20. Jim Phelan, In the Can, 1939.

tench. A penitentiary: c.: mid-C.19—early 20. F. & H. record it as used specifically (the Tench) of the Hobart Town Penitentiary (1859) and of the Clerkenwell House of Detention (not in C.20). Abbr. 'tentiary', q.v. (Morris). Cf. steel and stir, qq.v.—2. The female pudend: low s.: mid-C.19—early 20. ? ex sense 1, or a pun on the fish.

tender (one's) homage. See TAVERN TERMS, §9, in Appendix.

tender Parnel or Parnel, a mistress, a well-educated and delicate creature, is on the borderland between coll. and S.E., which latter it probably is, as also is as tender as Parnel(l), who broke her finger in a posset drink, with variants. The former in B.E., and long before; the latter in Ray and Grose (1st ed.). Cf. the S.E. tender as a parson's leman.

tenderfoot. A greenhorn; any raw, inexperienced person: US coll. (recorded ca. 1880, but implied in 1861: Thornton) >, ca. 1890. Colonial coll. >, ca. 1905, S.E. Ex the tender feet characteristic of one unused to hardship.—2. Hence, a tramp always looking for conveyance along the road: tramps' c.:—1932 (F. Jennings, Tramping with Tramps).

tenement to let. A 'house to let', q.v.: ca. 1790–1850. Grose, 3rd ed.

tenip. A pint: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). With e harmoniously intrusive.

tenner. A £10 note: coll.: 1848 (Sessions, Mar.). Cf. fiveer.—2. (A sentence of) ten years' imprisonment: c. (1866, OED) >, ca. 1890, s. >, ca. 1910, coll.

tennis. Lawn tennis: catachresis >, ca. 1920, S.E., but to be deprecated on the score of ambiguity. St James's Gazette, Aug. 1888, 'It is melancholy to see a word which had held its own for centuries gradually losing its connotation. Such a word is "tennis", by which nine persons out of ten to-day would understand the game of recent invention' (OED). Invented in 1874 as sphairistiké, the game assumed its present form in 1877. See sticky, and:— tennis – anyone? A c.p., by way of opening a conversation or, with a girl, a flirtation: ? mostly Can.: since ca. 1956. But, in Brit., it 'goes back to at least the 1920s, being the hallmark of that so familiar species of English "social comedy" where there are French windows upstage centre' (R.S., 1967). Variants are who's for tennis? and anyone for tennis? See esp. DCpp. for treatment at some length.

tennisy. Added to, fond of, lawn tennis: coll.: 1890 (OED).

tenny. Detention: stationers' Company School at Hornsey: C.20. Words, esp. nicknames, in -y are very noticeable there, it seems.

temperce. See up a tree for temperce.

temperce to the shilling (only). Weak in the head: s. (—1860) >, ca. 1900, coll. (H., 2nd ed.) Cf. S.E. tenpenny, cheap, hence inferior. In Huntingtower, 1922, John Buchan uses the var. about temperce in the shilling only. Cf., e.g., eighteen bob in the pound, and the many other phrases for 'not all there'. Outmoded by the decimalisation of currency, 1971.

tens. Dressed up to the tens was an occ. var. (—1923, Manchon) of... to the nines.

tent. An umbrella: Anglo-Irish:—1904 (EDD).—2. See tenting.

tent(-)peg. An egg: late C.19–20: orig. and still tramps', by ca. 1925 also Cockney. Jim Phelan, 1949; Julian Franklyn, 1961.

Tenterden steeple is the cause of Goodwin Sands. This proverb, which = 'any reason is better than none', is occ. used of a very weak or silly reason: C.16—mid-19: rather S.E. than coll. Apperson.

Tenth don't dance, the. A military, gibing c.p. directed at the 10th Hussars. It originated in 1823, when the officers, at a ball in Dublin and after much experience of London and Brighton society, declined to be introduced to the ladies, on the plea that 'the Tenth don't dance'. (F. & G.) P.B.: In Kipling's short story, 'The Brushwood Boy', 1895, the hero says: 'I'm like the Tenth... I don't dance.'

'tentiary. A penitentiary: low coll.: mid-C.19–20. Morris at tench.

tenting. 'This is the word now in use among circus people to describe their mode of doing business in the country' (All the Year Round, 16 Nov. 1861): coll. >, by 1880, S.E. Thomas Frost, Circus Life, 1875, simply defines tent and the synon. pitch as 'to go on tour.'

tenuc. The female pudend: back s.: from ca. 1860. (F. & H.) 'Eased' tnuc. L.A., 1974, recalls its early–mid-C.20 use as a 'schoolboys' term of contempt'. Cf. see you next Tuesday.

tenure in tail. See settlement in tail.

teotties. See chots.

term of endearment among sailors, it's a. A 'palliative c.p. for use of swear-word buggers. Unfair to the Navy, but sailors have had worse than that to bear; soldiers, airmen, and the French laugh it off too; dirty buggers is, however, meant to have a sting' (L.A., 1967): C.20.

term-trotter. One who keeps the terms merely for form's sake: Oxford University: ca. 1780–1820 (Vicesimus Knox, 1782: OED.) Cf. trotter, 2, q.v.

termite. A political (esp. Labour) saboteur: Aus. political since ca. 1925. (B., 1943.) Cf. white ant, q.v.

terms (with), on, often prec. by get. (To get) on an equal footing (with): sporting: 1887, Sir R. Roberts (OED). Ex lit. sense, on friendly terms.—2. Hence, in cricket: (of a side) having made a score comparable with their opponents': 1897 (OED).

terps. An interpreter: army: WW1+. (F. & G.) Suggested by turps.

terra firma. (A) landed estate: joc. coll.: late C.17—early 19. B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.—2. See good old England.

terræ filius. A Master of Arts acting as the orator making a satirical and humorous speech at the Encænna: Oxford University (improperly at Dublin): ca. 1650–1750; perhaps orig. s., but certainly soon j. Ex t. f., a son of the earth, hence a man of unknown origin. (OED.)

terri. Coal: Shelta: C.18–20. (B. & L.) But cf. terry, 1, q.v. terrible as a mere intensive is coll.; gen. = very large or great; excessive. From ca. 1840. Dickens, 1844, 'She's a terrible one to laugh' (OED). Cf. awful, filthy, foul, frightful, terrific, tremendous. Cf.:-

terrible, adv. Greatly; very: late C.15–20: S.E. until C.20, when gen. considered sol. 'She took on (something) terrible,' she was greatly distressed. Cf.:-

terribly. A frequent intensive (=excessively, extremely, very, very greatly): mid-C.19–20: coll. (Trollope, Jowett.) Ex terribly, very severely or painfully. (OED). Cf. awfully.

Terrier, terrier. A member of the Territorial Army: coll.: 1908 (OED). Punningly. Cf.:-

Terries, the. The Territorial Army: NZ: since ca. 1930. (Slatter.) Cf. prec., and see Terry, 2.

terrific; terrifically. Excessive, or very severe or great; extremely, excessively, frighteningly: coll.: in 1809, J.W. Croker describes the extent of business as 'terrific', and in 1859 Darwin admits that the corrections in his Origin of Species are 'terrifically heavy'. OED.—2. Hence, 'great'; very: Society: from ca. 1920. Dennis Mackail, passim.

terror. A 'holy terror': coll.: 1889 (OED Sup.). used extensively in R. Samuel, East End Underworld, 1981, as late C.19—earlier 20 term for a dangerous, armed criminal.—2. As the Terror: 'In 1888,.... a very wet year in England, [Charles T.B. Turner] became known as "The Terror", and his fellow-bowler, J.J. Ferris, was called "The Fiend"'. In that season Turner took 314 wickets and Ferris 220, and they created almost a panic among English batsmen' (Observer, 2 Jan. 1944).

terry. A heating-iron: Shelta: C.18–20. (B. & L.) But cf. terri, q.v.—2. An early var., ca. 1907–(?) 10, of Terrier. (OED.) See also Terries.

terse. Abrupt in manner: Society coll.: from ca. 1928. (Maurice Lincoln, Oh! Definitely, 1933.) Suggested by 'terse style' and 'short-tempered'.

test. A test match; properly one of a series (gen. three or five) of such representative matches: from 1908: coll. >, by 1913, S.E. Orig. of cricket matches, both the full term and the abbr. were by 1924 applied to football matches—and in 1932 to lawn-tennis matches—between two countries; international is also used in much the same way—often very loosely. Also as adj.: of a player in such a match. In 1905, Mr 'Plum' Warner wrote: 'Until the year 1894 no one had ever heard of a "Test" match (Westminster Gazette, 19 Aug.: W.) test-tube wallahs. See whiz.

tester. A sixpence: definitely in 1613 (OED), but prob. earlier by some twenty years: s. >, by 1700, coll.; by 1850, ob., by 1890 †, except as an archaism. (Farquhar, Swift, Grose (1st ed.), Lamb, H.) Ex tester, a debased teston and teston, orig. worth a shilling but by 1577, at latest, only sixpence. See three slips for a tester, and testy, n.

testicles to you! A 'polite' var. of balls to you!: from ca. 1920. Cf.:-

testicular elevation. Cultured pun on balls-up, n.: later C.20.

testiculating, adj. and vbl n. 'Defined to me in 1972 as "waving one's arms about and talking a lot of balls"' (P.B., 1974). Blending testicles and gesticulate. Cf. my adjectival neologism (Iatish 1975): totitesticular, 'all balls' or 'utter nonsense' and 'notably virile'.

testugger. A 'testamur' or certificate: Oxford undergraduates:—1899. (Ware.) By the 'OXFORD -ER'.

testy. A c. form of tester (sixpence): C.19. See cat on testy dog. This form virtually proves the tester origin of tizzy, q.v.

1214

Tetbury portion. A cunt and a 'clap' (q.v.): ca. 1780–1850. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Cf. Rochester portion, Whitechapel p., and Tipperary fortune, qq.v.

tetchy as a cat with a wet tail. Bad-tempered; extremely 'touchy' or sensitive: coll., esp. Essex: late C.19–20. (The Times, Sep. 1977. Thanks to E.W.P.) Cf. mad as a wet hen. tether (one's) nag. To coit: low Scots: C.19–20. Cf. nag, n., 2. tetra, additional, fine 'splendid'; go beyond the tetra, to beat the record: Felsted School: ca. 1870–1920. (Farmer, Public Schools' Word-Book, 1900.) Perversion of extra? or ex Grek tetra, combining-form of tessara, 'four' (cf. four-square?) tevis. A shilling: costers' s. and tramps' c.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). P.B.: I reject E.P.'s contorted derivation ex back s. of shill, and suggest instead malformation of stiver.

tewt. Tactical exercises without troops: Army officers': from ca. 1934; by 1942, j. Also toot.

Texas mickey. 'A 130-ounce bottle of rye (a northern speciality known as a "Texas mickey")' (Maclean's, Toronto, 7 May 1976: Leechman): Can.: since ca. 1930.

texts. 'Various passages learnt by heart before breakfast by the Schoolroom forms': Bootham School coll. verging on j.: late C.19–20. Bootham, 1925.

Thames butter. Very bad butter: London's poorer classes': ca. 1870–5. (Ware.) Ex a journalist's attack on a Frenchman that was making 'butter' out of Thames mud-worms.

Thames on fire, set the. Earliest in Foote, ca. 1770, as set fire to the Thames; in Wolcot, 1788, we find burn the Thames: both these forms were † by 1850. The present form arose ca. 1786, being first recorded in Grose, 2nd ed. Gen. in negative: to do nothing wonderful; never to make one's mark: coll. >, by 1860 at latest, S.E. A similar phrase has been applied to the Liffey and the Spree, and W. quotes Nigrinus, ca. 1580. 'Er hat den Rhein und das Meer angezündet', he has set fire to the Rhine and the sea. The proposed derivation ex temse, a sieve, is unauthenticated; in any case, it is prima facie improbable. See esp. Apperson, OED, Skeat.

than that. See more than that.

thank God for the U.S. cavalry! Since ca. 1945, an occ. var. of the cavalry are coming! Usu. either amusedly joc. or mildly ironic, and always referring to the cavalry's almost inevitable appearance just in the nick of time—at least, in Westerns (whether books or, esp., films) of the bad old days. (Petch, 1969.)

thank God we have an army! A fleeting ironical c.p. of the Army when it heard the first official news of the Battle of Jutland (31 May 1916). The Army 'getting its own back on':-

thank God we've got a navy! An army and RAF c.p. muttered when things are going wrong: C.20; esp. in WW1, but still current, 1980. F. & G., 'Said to have originated in a soldier's sarcastic comment when... watching a party of the old Volunteers marching by one Saturday night'. I suspect, however, that it is a very old c.p.; Evan John in his arresting Charles I (published in 1933) suggests that it was orig. by Sir John Norris, temp. Charles I. See DCpp.

thank the mummies! Thank the Lord!: lower classes': ca. 1870–1914. (Ware.) Ex mercy.

thank you and good night! 'What a silly suggestion! Shut up, if that's the best you can offer!' or 'This latest misfortune puts a finish to everything': coll.: later C.20. R.S., 1975, suggests an origin from the period when the BBC's 'The Week's Good Cause' was broadcast on a Sunday evening, always ending thus; 'and as the majority of listeners' withers remained unwrung, is tantamount to [the next] among the cynical.'

thank you for nothing! I owe you no thanks for that, and indeed I scorn the offer: c.p.: C.20. Also thanks for nothing!

thank you for those few kind words! A semi-ironic c.p.: since ca. 1910, at latest. (Slang, 1933, p. 133.) See DCpp.

thank you Karl! A c.p. rejoinder to any verbal infelicity: popularised, esp. among teenagers of the mid-1970s, by the surrealist TV comedy series 'Monty Python's Flying Circus'. From a recurring skit involving Karl Marx as a loser in a quiz-game. (D. & R. McPheely, 1977.)

thank you teacher! A C.20 c.p. connoting either irony or derision towards someone condescendingly permitting something or explaining pompously. Cf. Please, teacher!

thankee! occ. thanky (Baumann). Thank you!: illiterate coll. verging on sol.: from ca. 1820. Dickens, 1848, 'Thankee, my Lady' (OED). Corruption of thank ye! Cf. thanks!

thanker. A 'thank-you' letter: girls' Public Schools': since ca. 1950; by late 1950s, rather more gen. Dorothy Halliday, Dolly and the Cookie Bird, 1970, 'Anyone who knew Janey would be apt to meet Daddy, and perhaps get a thanker or something from him that would do.'

thankful for small murphies (, esp. be ...!). A pun on S.E. mercies and s. murphies, q.v., potatoes: since 1930s, but in 1976-7 used esp. in ref. to the exorbitant price of potatoes. (Petch, 1974, and again in 1977.)

thanking you! (pron. 'refined' thenkin' yew). A c.p., dating since ca. 1955 and triggered by a Cyril Fletcher 'gag': he thus acknowledged applause for one of his doggerel 'odd odes', and then said, 'Odd odd number two (three, etc.) comin' up!' Not to be confused with Arthur Askey's Ay thank you.

thanks! (I) thank you: coll.: late C.16-20. Ex my thanks to you, etc. Likewise many or best thanks, rare before C.19, though Shakespeare has great thanks. (OED.) Mrs C. Raab: in Aus., it combines economically 'please' and 'thank you', for a small request, as in 'I'll have a choc malted, thanks', from 1950s at least: gen. coll., used by all age-groups.—2. See nicely, thanks; no, thanks!

thanks a million. Thank you very much: coll.: since ca. 1950. Cf. Fr. mille fois merci.

thanks be! (May) thanks be given to God: coll.: late C.19-20. Also in Cornish dial.

thanks, but 'no thanks!' A declining of an offer, as 'I told them thanks but no thanks—I didn't want it: coll.: late 1970s. Red Daniells, Brit. Jnl of Photography, 1 June 1979.

thanks for saving my life or thanks! you've saved my life. A joc. c.p. addressed to one who has just 'stood a drink': since ca. 1919.

thanks for the buggy ride! 'A c.p. expressing thanks for some small service; often ironical' (Leechman): Can.: C.20; by 1960, ob. P.B.: some use in Brit. also.

thanky! See thankee!

thar she blows! See there she blows!

thary, v.i. and v.t. To speak (to): tramps' c.; from ca. 1845; ob. 'No. 747', 'I grannied some of what you were a-tharyin' to your cousin.' App. ex Romany. Cf. rockier, rok(k)er, q.v.

that, pronoun, in 'anticipatory commendation by way of persuasion or encouragement (esp. to a child)' (OED): which, illustrating by 'Come along, that's a good boy!', implies that it is a coll. of late C.19-20, ex the that of commendation for something already done, as in Shakespeare's 'That's my good son' (Romeo and Juliet).—2. Representing a statement already made and gen. coming first in its own clause, as in 'That I will, I shall do that all right!': coll.: mid-C.14-20. Shakespeare, "'Was there a wise woman with thee?" "Ay, that there was"' (OED).—3. The omission of the relative that (cf. which, who) is an 'elemental' of coll. speech and is recorded as early as C.13; but it occurs frequently also in S.E. and often justifiably—indeed, advisably—on the score of euphony. No one would classify as coll., or object to, Tennyson's 'To put in words the grief I feel' (OED), but one might well condemn as slovenly, and prob. no one would describe as other than coll., such a sentence as 'This is the book you'll find the passage I spoke to you about in.'—4. The same applies to the conjunctive that. The omission occ. leads to ambiguity: this is prob. why the French never omit que.—5. In and that, 'Elliptical for "and things like that" ... almost equivalent to etc.': Claiborne, 1976, cites Mrs Bridges in 'Upstairs, Downstairs', but it goes back to before C.20: I seem to remember that it occurs in novels, stories, comedies of earlyish C.19; and it is coll., not s. Cf. all that, q.v.—6. See at that.

that, adj. 'Mildly derogatory "prefix" to a (usually proper) noun, as "You going out with that Harry again?"' (Claiborne, 1976): coll.: since when?—mid-C.19, or much earlier?

that, adv. So; so very: mid-C.15-20: S.E. until late C.19, then dial. and coll.; in these days, it is considered rather sol. 'Boldrewood', 1888, 'He was that weak as he could hardly walk' (OED). In C.20 coll., even more elliptical, as in 'Oh, it's not all that urgent' (Usage and Abuse), or Leechman's 1967 examples, 'I never knew he was that stupid', or 'He's got money but he's not that rich'—all of which require some emphasis on that.

that adds up; that figures. That makes sense: c.p.p.: the former, a British version, since ca. 1950, of the latter, itself adopted, ca. 1945, ex US.

that ain't hay (, and). That's a great deal of money: Can., adopted ex US ca. 1945; occ. use in Brit.; ob. by ca. 1975. 'I sold my house for forty thousand dollars—and that's not hay' (Leechman).

that and this. A urination; to urinate: racing rhyming s., on piss: C.20. (Franklyn 2nd.) Contrast this and that.

that cock won't fight. That won't do! That's a feeble story! Tell that to the marines! From the 1820s †: coll. Scott, St Ronan's Well, 1823 (EDD). Ex the cockpit.

that devil nobody. See nobody ...

that is ... See that's ...

that is all there is to it. See to, prep. 3.

that just shows to go. A joc., mostly Aus., deliberate Spoonerism for the very gen. that just goes to show, itself verging on c.p. status: since ca. 1930. (B.P.) Also Brit., and with var. It just ... (P.B.).

that kind of money, as in 'I don't earn'—or 'have'—'that kind of money', I'm not well off: coll.: since the late 1940s.

that makes the cheese more binding! That's the stuff: Can. c.p.: ca. 1945-55.

that makes two of us. A c.p., dating from ca. 1940 and addressed to someone who says that he doesn't understand what he has just heard or read.

that man. See it's that man again!

that moan's soon made. That grief is easily assuaged: Scots coll.:—1885 (Ware).

that must have been a butcher's horse by his carrying a calf so well. A c.p. jest at the expense of an awkward rider. So Grose, 2nd ed.; Ray, in English Proverbs, 2nd ed., 1678, gives it in a slightly different form. Coll.: C.17-19.

that remains to be seen — as the monkey said when he shat in the sugar-bowl. A facetious Can. elab.: since ca. 1930. See also as the monkey said. P.B.: also Brit.

that shook him (or me, etc.). See shook, 3.

that there. Esp. a bit of ..., sexual intercourse: proletarian euph.: C.20.—2. That, as in Richardson, 1742, 'On leaving ... Mrs B.'s ... house, because of that there affair' (OED): dial. and illit. coll. Occ., C.19-20, that 'ere, or even that there 'ere; the latter may be pronominal, and used joc. Cf. this here, q.v.

that thing is wild. That aircraft is much faster than I thought: RAF: 1939+. H. & P.

that way, adj. Homosexual: since ca. 1920; by 1966 slightly ob. Compton Mackenzie, Thin Ice, 1956, 'She didn't want to believe the stories about Henry Fortesque being that way as he was obviously épris with his pretty sister-in-law.' Short for euph. that way inclined.

that will ... See that'll ...

that won't pay the old woman her ninepence. A Bow Street Police Court c.p. (—1909; ob.) in condemnation of an evasive act. Ware.

thataway. As in 'He's gone thataway', in that direction, often very vaguely indicated: since ca. 1955. Adopted ex US, where orig. dial.—very common in 'Western' films.

thatch. A head of hair, esp. if thick: coll.: from ca. 1630 (OED). Hence, in be well thatched, to have a good head of hair: joc. coll. verging on s.:—1874 (H., 5th ed.). Cf. Thatcho hair-tonic punningly named by G.R. Sims ex the Romany for 'genuine'.

thatch-gallows. A worthless fellow: coll.: ca. 1785–1850. Grose, 2nd ed.

thatch – thistle – thunder and thump. 'Words to the Irish, like the Shibboleth of the Hebrews' (Grose, 2nd ed.): Anglo-Irish of mid-C.18–mid-19. A cross between an (and esp. an) incantation and a c.p.

Thatched Head. An Irishman: pej. coll. nickname: C.17. Beaumont & Fletcher.

thatched house under the hill, the. The female pudend: low coll. or s.: ca. 1770–1850. Used as a title by Stevens in 1772.

that'll be the day! (The day often emphasised by bloody, fucking, etc.) 'It is not very likely to occur or be done' (E.P.); 'Expressing mild doubt following some claim or boast' (B., 1941); c.p.: since late 1918. Prob. satirical on der Tag. Cf. that'll be the frosty Friday!—2. 'Conscripted Service man's anticipation of the day of his demobilisation' (L.A., 1976): since late 1940s; by 1970, merely historical.

that'll stop him laughing in church! That will take the smile off his face; that'll fix him: c.p.: since c.a. 1930. (Peter Sanders.) Cf. the (? mainly Public School) boys' that will teach him to fart in chapel or that'll stop their farting in chapel, that'll stop them from taking liberties: C.20. (L.A., 1967.)

that's; in C.17, occ. thats. That is: coll.: C.17–20. Dekker, Lantherne and Candle-light, 1608–9, 'They call a prison, a Quier ken, that's to say, an ill house.'

that's a bit under. A c.p. directed at a risqué joke or remark: office- and shop-girls': since ca. 1950. 'Not infrequently the "under" is dropped in favour of a dipping action with the elbow' (Gilderdale).

that's a cough-lozenge for him! He's punished: a proletarian c.p. of ca. 1850–90. Ex an advertisement for cough-lozenges. Ware.

that's a rhyme if you take it in time is the c.p. directed at one who accidentally makes a rhyme; one replies, yes, I'm a poet and I didn't know it. or You're a poet and don't know it; reply Yes, that's a rhyme ... Mostly lower-middle class: from ca. 1870.

that's about it (or right). That's exactly right: Aus. joc. coll.: since ca. 1920. (B.P.) Also Brit. (P.B.).

that's about the size of it. 'That describes the state of affairs fairly well' (Berrey): coll.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1915. Sometimes, as a low pun, and à propos of nothing—merely for something to say—uttered with a descriptive gesture representational of an erect penis.

that's all was, ca. 1830–80, a much-used coll. intensive, as, e.g., in 'When I'm in the army, won't I hate the French, that's all.' P.B.: in C.20, occ. used for emphasis, with only, as 'Only stopped us half-a-crown barrack damages—that's all!', i.e. it's a hell of a lot, and quite unwarranted; or 'Only got all five shots in the bull, that's all!' = didn't I do well!

that's all I (or we or you or they) need (occ. needed). Ironic for 'That's the last thing I need or needed'; 'That's the last straw': c.p.: since ca. 1958.

that's all I wanted to know! A c.p. of confirmation of, and resentment against, disagreeable facts: since ca. 1936. (L.A.)

that's chummy or ducky or just dandy or lovely! An ironic c.p. = 'That's the last straw!': Aus.: since ca. 1946, except just dandy, adopted, ca. 1944, ex US servicemen. 'The petrol tank is empty.'—'That's chummy' or ... (B.P.) The 2nd and 4th are common in England.

that's fighting talk! A joc. c.p., retorting upon a pretended affront: C.20. Occ. them's fightin' words (, pardner!), in a mock-American accent.

that's for sure! That's true; certainly!: coll.: adopted, ca. 1945, ex US; by 1960, thoroughly naturalised.

that's for (or strictly for) the birds. I don't believe that; lit. 'that's a load of horse-shit' (cf. bullshit): adopted, ca. 1955, ex US.—2. It's of no consequence: Brit. var. in meaning from orig. US: later C.20. Also it's for ... See also DCpp.

'that's gone', as the girl said to the soldier in the park. A c.p. of ca. 1890–1910. (Binstead.) Well, after all, there can be only one first time, for everything.

that's him with the hat on! A humorous c.p. ref. to a person that is being pointed out and is standing near pigs, scarecrows, monkeys, what-have-you: orig. farmers?: C.20. that's how the coolde ... See that's the way the cookie crumbles.

that's just too bad! A c.p., 'implying that an appeal to consideration or restraint, has failed' (L.A.): adopted, ca. 1937, ex US.

that's my boy! An occ. var. of attaboy!, and also borrowed ex US: since mid-C.20. John Osborne, Look Back in Anger, Act I, 1956.

that's my story and I'm sticking to it. That's my excuse (or explanation) and I'm standing by it; the phrase has given rise to variations, e.g., that's my story and I'm stuck all round it (Royal Engineers, later 1930s+), or, viewed objectively, and perhaps more common in later C.20, that's your story and you're stuck with it.

that's not hay. See that ain't hay.

that's one for you! That settles you: c.p.: C.20.

that's right! Yes!: low coll.: late C.19–20. Ex S.E. formula of approval. P.B.: it was an irritating vogue-phrase 1980–1.

that's the snuffler! Excellent! well done!: c.p., ? mostly RN: C.19; † by ca. 1890—if not much earlier. Wm N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, 2nd series, 1834, I, 17.

that's the stuff to give the troops! That's the idea; that's what we want: coll.: orig. (1916) military >, by 1919, gen. coll. Since 1917, often that's the stuff to give 'em!; since ca. 1920, often that's the stuff!, which may have been the orig. (for it is recorded in US in 1896: OED Sup.), the others mere elaborations. Among soldiers, since ca. 1917, occ. that's the give to stuff 'em! (B. & P.) See DCpp.

that's the ticket! That's right; well done!; that's just what was needed: c.p.: since early C.19. W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, 2nd series, 1834, 'That's you, Ned—you has it—that's the ticket, bo.' See DCpp., and ticket for soup!

that's the way it goes! A c.p. of humorous resignation; of either rueful or defiant acceptance; of rather cold comfort, as 'Well, old son, that's the way it goes! If they'd wanted you ...': since mid- or latish C.19.

that's the way the cookie crumbles. The best-known and most widespread of a series of variants of the prec., arising in US early 1950s and soon spreading throughout the English-speaking world. Others were that's the way the ball bounces; ... the mop flops: late 1950s–early 60s. Patrick Campbell, Come Here Till I Tell You, 1960, p. 157, of the cookie version, 'It's a new American expression from the advertising boys on Madison Avenue. A philosophic comment on disaster. You can also say, "That's how the grapefruit squirts".' (P.B.) that's torn it! That has spoiled it; that has ruined everything: orig., ca. 1905, low, but soon > gen. Prob. ex torn dress rather than from any sexual innuendo. See DCpp., and cf. the Northern proverbial the swine's run through it, of anything—orig. and esp. a marriage—ruined by bad luck, and tear one's seat, q.v.

that's up against your shirt! That's a point against you!: lower classes' c.p. of ca. 1900–14. (Ware.) Perhaps ex stains on a white shirt.

that's up to you! A c.p. that caps a convincing argument: low: C.20. Often accompanied by a coarse gesture.

that's what I say. A much overdone conversational tag that verges on being a c.p.: late C.19–20.

that's where you spoil yourself! A non-aristocratic c.p. directed at a smart person overreaching himself: 1880–1. Ware.

that's your best bet. That's the best way to do it, to go, etc.: coll.: since ca. 1930. Ex horse-racing. Also that'd be your ...

that's your (frequently yer) lot! That's all you're getting: c.p.: Services', WW2; by 1950, gen. See aye aye, that's ...

that's your sort! A c.p. indicative of approval, usu. of a specific action or method, only occ. of some object: ca. 1785–1930. (Holcroft, the playwright, 1792; H., 2nd ed.) App. an early version of that's the ticket! See esp. DCpp. for fuller treatment.

that's your story... See that's my story...

the is coll. when it is used for my, as in, esp. and earliest, the wife, rarely the husband, often the mater and the pater or governor (1853), rarely the mother and almost never the father; only occ. of other relatives. Not recorded before 1838 (OED), but perhaps arising a score of years earlier. (OED for dates.)—2. In Oxford s., as in the Broad, Broad Street, and the Turl, Turl Street: late C.19–20.

theatre. A police court: c.:—1857 ('Ducange Anglicus'); † by 1935. P.B.: ex the spectacle it provides—or simply ironic? Cf. Irish theatre, q.v.

Theatre Royal. See amen Theatre...

Theatre Ship, the. The SS Gourko, RN coll.: 1915–18. (F. & G.) Ex dramatic performances given thereon; cf. Sports Ship, q.v.

theatrical. (Gen. pl.) An actor or actress: stage coll.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). I.e. theatrical person or people.

thedi or teddy; tedhi. Fire: Shelta: C.18–20. (B. & L.) Cf. terri and terry, qq.v.

thee and me. Occ. used, in later C.20, for humorous effect—the influence of rhyme: e.g., one of only two people left to carry out some plan may say to the other, 'Well! That only leaves thee and me...!' A deliberate use of dial. (P.B.)

theg. Eight, as in theg gen, eight shillings, and theg yarneps, eight pence:—1859 (H., 1st ed.): a malformation of eight, rather than back s. See also teach.

theirs. The enemy's: military coll.: C.20; by WW2, also civilian, esp. of aircraft, 'That's one of theirs—I can tell by the engine-noise'.

them, adj. Those: late C.16–20: S.E. until C.18, then dial. and coll.; in C.19–20, sol. The OED gives two excellent examples: 'It was a rare rise we got out of them chaps', Thackeray, 1840, and 'Them ribbons of yours cost a trifle, Kitty', Lover, 1842. Cf. they, q.v.—2. (As pronoun.) They; those (in the nominative, before who): late C.15–20: S.E. >, ca. 1700, dial. and (low) coll.: in C.19–20, sol. E.g. 'Them as does this ain't no good.' Cf. they, 2, q.v.—3. (Pronoun in the objective.) Those: S.E. >, in early C.19, (low) coll.; in C.20, sol. E.g. 'I don't like them who say one thing and do another.'—4. Their: sol.: C.19–20, Baumann.—5. After as and than and after is, are, were, etc., them is a very frequent coll. (mid-C.17–20), but, except exclamatorily, is grammatically incorrect. The OED quotes 'It was not them we wanted', 1845—which as compared with the absolute 'It was not them' (e.g. at the theatre) has some justification since them represents they whom.

them's my sentiments! (Occ. with exactly added.) A joc. c.p. of warm-hearted agreement or approval: late C.19–20. (John Galsworthy, Swan Song, 1928.) Actually a quot'n from Thackeray, Vanity Fair, 1848.

them's the jockeys for me! A Can. c.p., applied since ca. 1950 to anything delicious or desirable. (Leechman.) Of anecdotal origin. See DCpp.

then comes a pig to be killed! A c.p. expressive of disbelief: lower-middle and lower classes': ca. 1900–14. Ware, 'Based upon the lines of Mrs Bond who would call to her poultry—"Come, chicks, come! Come to Mrs Bond and be killed."' then some. See and then some.

then the band began to play (or played), both often prec. by and. Then the fat was in the fire—then the trouble began: the longer version, ca. 1880–1914; the shorter, C.20. A later derivation is and the band played on, "Things went on as usual"—or even more vague in meaning. Quite old' (Leechman, re. Can. usage). Then the band played could also mean 'and so that was the end of it'. See DCpp.

then (or and then) you woke up? A c.p., implying disbelief in a tall story: late C.19–20.

theolog. A student of Theology: Durham undergraduates': C.20. Marples, 2. theory. See Sparks Theory.

there. In to be there, 'To be on the qui vive; alive; knowing; in one's element' (F. & H.): coll.:—1890. Ex all there, q.v.—2. In have (a person) there, to 'pose' or 'stump' him: coll.: late C.19–20.—3. See get there; that there.

there and back. A c.p. reply to an impertinent or unwelcome inquiry 'where are you going (to)?': late C.19–20. P.B.: in C.20 usu. with the elab. ... to see how far it is.

there are two people I don't like – and you're both of them. A self-explanatory c.p. from the early 1930s. (Frank Shaw, 1969.)

there first. A thirst: rhyming s.: late C.19–20. B. & P. there he goes with his eye out! A proletarian vogue c.p. of the later 1830s. See DCpp. for full quot'n from MacKay, and E.P.'s suggestion of its Nelsonian origin.

there is such a thing as ...! Look out for —!; a coll. threat: late C.19–20. Ex the hint that since this thing exists, it must be considered. (OED.) P.B.: also as a would-be-gentle reproof, e.g., there is such a thing as manners, you know!

there is the door the carpenter made! usu. with there emphasised. You may go: lower middle-class c.p. of ca. 1760–90. Sessions, 1767, trial of Rebecca Pearce.

there she blows! A cheeky c.p. in ref. to a fat woman bathing: C.20. Ex the whaler's cry. By extension, a c.p. exclam. on sighting something looked for, e.g. a town in the distance, a train nearing the station, an aircraft, etc. Often there is pron. thar in this phrase.

there was a cow climbed up a tree! You're a liar!: c.p.: C.20, esp. popular in WW1 army. F. & G.; B. & P. there you ain't! A proletarian, esp. Cockney, c.p. imputing or declaring failure: ca. 1880–1910. B. & L.

there you are! A coll. var. of the there you go! of surprise, disgust, or approval: app. not before C.20; app. unrecorded before 1907.—2. A bar (for drinking): rhyming s.: C.20. Franklyn, Rhyming.

there you are then! A rather foolish, stop-gap c.p. of C.20/ gen. in greeting.—2. (Often prec. by well or so.) Used to cap an argument: coll.: C.20. 'Well, there you are then—you've just said ... So that proves you can't ...' (P.B.)

there you go! A term of approbation, gen. of a specific action, method, etc.; a phrase of agreement: coll.: borrowed back, ex US, late 1970s, esp. popular 1980–1—but see there you are! Robin Leech recalls the phrase as Can. coll. since ca. 1940 at latest. I have heard, as thanks for correct amount in change, 'There you go, lovely!' Cf. That's your sort! (P.B.)

thereoa. Other: back s.: C.20. Frank Norman, 1959—see quot'n at ouya.

there'll be blood for breakfast (, let alone tea.) A cautionary c.p., esp. from NCOs: Forces' (—1939) >, by 1943, gen.

there'll be pie in the sky when you die. See pie in the sky...

there's a war on. A c.p. of 1939–45: c'est la guerre of 1914–18. During WW1, however, servicemen used the c.p. they don't know there's a war on of 'civvies' leading a safe and comfortable life—and, semi-joc. of Base wallahs. (Petch, 1966.) In WW2 also don't you know there's... (P.B.). Elsewhere in the 1st ed. E.P. noted: occ. prec. by remember, a military c.p. = 'hurry up!' or palliating a refusal: WW1.

there's always something! A c.p., implying 'to bother or disappoint you': since the late 1940s. P.B.: cf. Aus. wouldn't it!

there's been a fire. A c.p. addressed to someone wearing a new suit: Londoners: late C.19–20. Implying salvage.

there's gold in them thar hills! A c.p. doubtful of extravagant hope: adopted, ca. 1935, ex US 'Western' films, where, however, it was not usu. used ironically. See DCpp.

there's (h)air! There's a girl with a lot of hair! London streets' c.p. of ca. 1900–12. (Ware.) But also there's 'air—like wire, which is self-explanatory (Collinson).

there's life in the old dog (or old girl) yet. He or she is still very much alive, still capable of a love affair: late (? mid-) C.19–20.

(there's) no – about it! A coll. c.p., from ca. 1920, thus: 'You must do it!'—'There's no must about it!' Michael Arlen, The Green Hat (cited by Collinson).

there's no answer to that! 'Eric Morecambe's catch-phrase, meaning that the innuendo which can be read into the question makes an answer superfluous' (David Bartlett, 1975): since early 1970s > a useful and gen. face-saver. See DCpp.

there's no doubt about you! A c.p., expressive of admiration: Aus.: since ca. 1925. B., 1942.

there's no future in it! See future ...

there's nothing like it. A c.p., often used with little—or no—relevance: C.20.

there's nothing spoiling. There is no urgency; 'I can't find the time to do it or attend to it': c.p., orig. domestic: C.20. (Petch, 1969.)

there's nowt so queer as folk. There's nothing so odd as people; it's a queer old world!: since mid-C.19; orig. and still a Yorkshire saying, verging on the proverbial; but since ca. 1890 much used, in this form, in other parts of England.

there's one born every minute (, they say). A c.p. implying that one (self or other) has been duped: C.20. By 1947, verging on the proverbial. 'Ex a saying attributed to P.T. Barnum [1810–91], the circus magnate, "There's a sucker born every minute"' (Leechman).

there's shit not far behind. Low c.p. evoked by a loud fart: late C.19–20.

thermos. An Italian bomb shaped like a thermos flask; hence Thermos Bottle Flats, an area where these bombs were dropped in large numbers: army in N. Africa: WW2. P-G-R. these and those. Nose; toes: Aus. rhyming s.: C.20.

they. Them: mid-C.17–20: S.E. until mid-C.18, then (dial. and) coll.; in C.19–20, a sol. Cf. them, 2, q.v.—2. 'Those', adj., as in 'I don't like they things': late C.13–20: S.E. until C.17, then (dial. and) coll.; in C.19–20, sol. Cf. them, 1.

they can make you do anything in the Air Force except have a baby! A 'c.p. tribute to authority and discipline' (Atkinson): since ca. 1925. Adopted from the Army's c.p. (1916+); the Army naturally says Army, not Air Force, and often it adds, and they'd have a bloody good try to do that! R/Adm. P.W. Brock, 1968, adds the C.20 RN (and prob. orig.) version: even the Admiralty can't boil you in the coppers or put you in the family way.

they don't know there's a war on. See there's war on.

they don't yell, they don't tell, and they're very (very) grateful. A 'young men's c.p. tribute to love of good, mature women, and their supposed amorous response' (L.A., 1967): since ca. 1920.

they got me!; occ. they've ... 'A trivial c.p., uttered when one hears a peal of thunder or a loud explosion' (B.P.): mostly Aus.: since late 1940s. Ex the cry of the fatally injured or wounded—in stories and films. Frank Shaw, 1969, adds that 'they got me, pal is the earliest and widest-spread version, for it is a mock-heroic c.p., burlesquing the gangster films of the 1930s. Speaker staggers, clutching chest, at noise like gunfire.'

they laughed when I sat down at the piano, but when I started to play! 'That old advertisement has crept into the language as a standard cliché' (Monica Dickens, Woman's Own, 22 May 1965): not a cliché but a c.p.: since ca. 1920. P.B.: sometimes telescoped to they laughed when I sat down to play!

they say, where they is indefinite and may refer to one person. It is said: coll. verging on S.E.: C.17–20. P.B.: for emphasis, sometimes they do say; depending on tone of voice, this form may also indicate considerable doubt or suspicion concerning the thing said.

they're all in the box – just pick the right one. See sort 'em out ...

they're eating nothing. They'll sell later: tradesmen's c.p.: C.20.

they're off, Mr Cutts is a C.20 NZ shape (B., 1941) of: they're off, said the monkey. The race has started; or, applied to something that has come loose: c.p.: late C.19–20. Often enlarged thus: ... when he backed into the lawn-mower they've opened another tin. Depreciatory army comment, ca. 1915–18, 'frequently heard ... among the men ... with reference to some newly arrived draft, or officer' (F. & G.). Among soldiers at the front line, where so much of the mainly monotonous and unappetising food came out of tins. thick, n. A synonym of stiff, n., 1, by which it was prob. suggested: c. of ca. 1820–50. Egan's Grose.—2. A blockhead; a foolish person: coll., mostly schools'; ob. T. Hughes, 1857, 'What a thick I was to come!' Ex thick, stupid. Also Anglo-Irish: late C.19–20. (Brian Moore, The Luck of Ginger Coffey, 1960.) This thick may be for 'thick-headed person'.—3. Cocoa (mostly London) street s.: later C.19–early 20. Ex consistency of cocoa as usually made. Cf.:—4. Coffee: c.:—1923 (Manchon).—5. Porter, which is said to be 'a decoction of brewers' aprons': lowish: later C.19—earlier 20.—6. A thick is a letter-card [E.P. used hundreds of them: P.B.], a thin a postcard: Post Office staffs': C.20. I first heard the term in 1947.—7. In in the thick, in, esp. caught in, a thick fog: RAF (operational 'types'): ca. 1930–50. Cf. shit in this sense.—8. See piece of thick.

(with a consequent loss of potency). See also as the monkey said.

thick, adj. In close association; familiar; intimate: coll.: ca. 1756, Bishop Law, "'Yes," said he, "we begin ... without my seeking," to be pretty thick' (OED): Barham; G. Eliot. And see the thick as ..., 1. Ex thick, close, as undergrowth.—2. Excessive in some unpleasant way; intolerable, unmanageable; unjust: from early 1880s, the OED recording it in 1884. "'It's a bit thick", he said indignantly, "when a man of my position is passed over for a beginner ..."' (Horace Wyndham, 1907: OED): this being the predominant C.20 sense. Perhaps ex S.E. lay it on thick, to exaggerate, to flatter fulsomely.—3. Hence, indelicate; esp. in a bit thick, rather indecent: ca. 1890–1950. F. & H., 1904.—4. Hence (?), noisy and/or bibulous, esp. the latter: from ca. 1891. W. Pett Ridge, Minor Dialogues, 1895, "'I was out at a smoker last night." "Thick?" "Thick isn't the word"—5. Dull; slovenly; slack: Services': since ca. 1935. (H. & P.) The sense 'dull, thick-headed, obtuse, stupid' is recorded without comment by SOD, which notes its use in 2 Henry IV, II, iv, where Falstaff says 'He a good wit! hang him, baboon! his wit is as thick as Tewksbury mustard', and adds 'now dial.'. Prob. always coll., it has >, in later C.20, esp. common in this sense. See thick as ..., 2, and contrast dead thick, q.v.

thick, adv. Heavily, as in 'betted particularly thick upon him' (Blackwood's, 1823: Moe): late C.18—mid-19.—2. Densely: coll.: late C.19–20. 'The syrup runs thick' (OED).—3. In got 'em thick, very drunk: late C.19—early 20. 'Pomes' Marshall, 1897, 'I've got 'em thick, he said ... And ... went upstairs to bed.' The 'em is generic: cf. got 'em, q.v.

thick and thin. Unshakable devotion to a party or a principle: political: 1884, Pall Mall Gazette, 14 Feb. 'The hidebound partisans of thick and thin' (OED).—2. Hence, gen. hyphenated, as adj. in same sense: 1886 (J. Payn: OED): political and journalistic. Both n. and adj. little used after ca. 1901; by 1935, virtually †. Ex stick to (somebody, -thing) through thick and thin.

thick as ..., as. Similes—all coll.—elaborating thick, adj., 1: as inkle-weavers, late C.17–19, as in B.E., Cowper, Scott—ex their working so close together [inkle= a kind of linen tape: SOD]; as peas in a shell or pod, late C.18–19; as two Jews on a pay-day: Cockneys'—1887 (Baumann); as glue, C.19–20; as thieves, C.19–20, as in Theodore Hook, 1833, and Dr L.P. Jacks, 1913, ex the confidential and secret manner of thieves conferring; as three in a bed, C.19–20, as in Scott, 1820, but since ca. 1870 only in dial.—ex the close-packed discomfort. (OED and Apperson.) Dial. has many synonyms, e.g. thick as Darby and Joan, Dick and Laddy, Harry and Mary, herrings in a barrel, two dogs' heads, and (also a C.19–20 coll.) thick as thick: see esp. EDD.—2. The increasing use of thick, adj., 6, q.v., in C.20 has produced many variations on Falstaff's simile; a few are: as two short planks: orig. Services', since ca. 1950, > more widespread, and since ca. 1970 giving rise to elliptical planky; as champ ('= mashed potatoes, butter and scallions, or parsley if you're middle-class': J.B. Smith, Bath, 1979): Northern Irish: C.20; as a docker's sandwich, for which Peppitt cites the Morecambe & Wise Show, BBC TV, 11 Nov. 1973 (E.P.'s comment: either devised or popularised by those genuinely witty fellows); the Army, mid-C.20, had as a Gurkha's Foreskin and as the brigade of Gurkhas in parallel, in affectionate disrespect for a truly courageous body of fighting men; the occ. as a brush is prob. a var. of N. Country > gen. as daft as a brush. (P.B.) thick boot. A term of abuse: N. Country grammar schools': since late 1940s. New Society, 22 Aug. 1963.

thick dick (or D-). A stupid person: teenagers': early 1980s. (Joanna Williamson, 1982.) Opp. smart Alec. Cf. dipstick, above.

thick ear. (Gen. give one a t. e.) An ear swollen as the result of a blow: low coll.: late C.19–20. (Ware.) Often in threats, e.g., 'Are you coming quietly or do you want a thick ear?' thick in the clear. Confused of mind, wits wandering: app. ca. 1820–70. (D.B. Gardner cites Henry Cockton, Valentine Vox, 1840, ch. 28.) Cf. thick, adj., 6.

thick-legs. (Rare in sing.) Navvies: later C.19–early 20. D.W. Barrett, Navvies, 1880.

thick on the ground. Abundant: the natural, subsequent opp. of thin on the ground. (P.B.)

thick one; gen. thick 'un. A sovereign; a crown piece: both, c. (—1859) >, almost imm., (low) s.; the latter sense, † by 1920. (H., 1st ed.; 'House Scraps' Aitken; B.L. Farjeon.) Hence, smash a t. u., to change it.—2. (Always thick 'un.) A slice of bread and butter: Cockney: late C.19–20. A. Neil Lyons, Arthur's, 1908.—3. In do (one) a thick 'un, to play a dirty trick upon: mostly Londoners': since ca. 1920. Maurice Procter, Man in Ambush, 1958.

thick starch double blue. A 'rustling holiday dress for summer': middle classes': ca. 1905–14. (Ware.) Ex its over-laudered state.

thick 'un. See thick one.

Thicker. See Thicksides.

thickening for something. Visibly pregnant: since late 1950s. A pun on S.E. sickening for something. (Petch, 1966.)

thickers. Strong mess-deck tea: RN lowerdeck: since ca. 1925: (P-G-R.) The 'OXFORD/RN-ER(S)' on, e.g. thick, n., 3 and 4.

thickest part of his thigh. See humdudgeon.

thickie, -y; thicko. Variants of thick, n., 2: resp. since early C.20, mid-C.20. The latter in David Craig, Faith, Hope, and Death, 1976.

Thicksides. Thucydides: Universities' and Public Schools': earlier C.19—earlier 20. (T. Hughes, Tom Brown at Oxford, 1861; P.G. Wodehouse, Tales of St Austin's, 1903.) Hence Thicker, by the 'OXFORD-ER': from ca. 1890, at e.g. Harrow, for thucydides as a text.

thief A horse failing to run to form: racing: 1896 (OED). It steals hopes—and bets—placed on it.—2. In you are a thief and a murderer, you have killed a baboon and stole his face, a c.p. of vulgar abuse: later C.18. Grose, 1st ed.—3. See safe as a thief in a mill.

thief's cat. A cat-o'-nine-tails with knots: nautical: late C.18—late 19. (Bill Truck, 1824.) Because it was used as a punishment for theft. Smyth, 1867, has thieves' cat.

thieve, n. A theft: since ca. 1945. L.J. Cunliffe, Having It Away, 1965, 'There was no other way into the drum. (Which... is what we call a place we've got in line for a thieve.)' thieved, be. To be arrested: c.: from ca. 1925. Gilt Kid, 1936.

Thieves. See Murdering Thieves.

thieves' cat. See thief's cat.

Thieves' Kitchen, the. The Law Courts: London satirical: 1882—ca.90. Ware.—2. The City Athenæum Club: City of London joc.:—1923 (Manchon) 'cercle des financiers de la Cité'.—3. The London Stock Exchange: taxi-drivers': since ca. 1920. Weekly Telegraph, 6 Apr. 1946.

[thieves' Latin, as a term, is S.E. It is often used—orig. by Scott, in 1821—as a synonym for cant as used in this dictionary: the 'secret' language of criminals and tramps. Cf. St Giles' Greek.]

thieving hooks. Fingers: low:—1823 (L.L.G., 20 Dec.: Moe). 1647. thieving irons. Scissors: C.19. (F. & H.)? because used for cutting purses.—2. Var. of prec., fingers: late C.19–20. (Leechman.)

thilly. A make-weight: Shelta: C.18–20. B. & L.

thimble. A watch: c.:—1811 (Lex. Bal.). See thimble-twister.—2. In knight of the thimble, a tailor: joc. coll.: 1812 (OED). See knight.

Thimble and Bodkin Army. The Parliamentary Army in the Civil War: a coll. nickname at the time; recorded by OED for 1647. Ex the smallness of Roundhead gifts to the cause as compared with Royalists' munificence.

thimble and thumb. Rum: rhyming s.: C.20. Weekly Telegraph, 6 Apr. 1946.

thimble-crib. A watchmaker's shop: c.: ca. 1810–60 (Vaux.) Ex crib, n., 3.

thimble in a bottle. See pin's head.

thimble-rig. A sharpening trick with three thimbles and a pea: s. (1825, Hone) >, ca. 1850, coll. >, before 1890, S.E.—2. Hence, from ca. 1830, thimble-rigger, such a sharper. See rig, n.

thimble-twister. A watch-thief (H., 1859); the vbl n. is thimble-twisting ('No. 747', 1845): c. Also thimble and slang, a watch and chain:—1901. See thimble, 1.

thimbled. Owning or wearing a watch: c.—1812 (Vaux). See thimble.—2. Arrested; laid by the heels: c. of ca. 1820–40. (Bee.)? by a pun on thimble=a watch=the watch=the police.

thin, n.; plural, thin. A thin slice of bread and butter: Cockneys': ca. 1845–1910. Mayhew, I, 1851.—2. See thick, n., 6.

thin, v. To deceive, dupe, 'catch out', swindle: from ca. 1922. Manchon. Cf.:

thin, adj. Disappointing; unpleasant: distressing. Gen. (have) a thin time, to go through hardship, spend a disappointing holiday, have a thoroughly disagreeable or distasteful experience. From ca. 1922. Mainly ex S.E. thin, feeble (as in thin story), slight, almost worthless, but partly proleptic ('enough to make one thin'). Cf. slender, taper, and contrast thick, adj., 4, q.v.

thin as a rasher of wind. See rasher of wind.

thin edge of nothing. A coll. c.p. (—1931) applied 'when people are very crowded and there is hardly room to sit' (Lyell). Esp. sit on the thin edge of nothing.

thin-gut. A very thin person; a starveling: C.17–20: S.E. until C.19, then (low) coll.; so ob. as to be virtually †.

thin miner. 'A hewer working in thin seams of coal' (Evening News, 28 Sep. 1955): miners' coll. (late C.19–20) >, by 1945, official jargon.

thin(-)oil engine. A 'diesel locomotive, particularly during transitory period, when a driver may have had to perform duties on either steam or diesel locomotives' (Railway, 2nd): coll.: since late 1950s.

thin on the ground. Sparse; sparsely: coll., middle and upper classes': C.20. (But I cannot remember hearing it before ca. 1930.) Of agricultural (or forestry) origin—cf. the S.E. sense, 'not dense, not bushy'? Or, less likely, of sport (shooting). As applied to human beings, it was, Professor Simeon Potter believes, used first by the Higher Command, in WW1, of the disposition of troops; Mr Oliver Stonor thinks it not later than WW1 and possibly of a fox's scent 'thin on the ground'; my friends Alan Steele and 'Peter' (J.A.) Cochrane knew it at the beginning of WW2 and believe that it was current in WW1 ('At the beginning of W.W.II all Service slang tended to be based on that of W.W.I'): and Colonel Archie White, a very distinguished VC of WW1, confirms their opinion by telling me, 1967, that the phrase was 'applied in the 1914 war to troops or dispositions in general'—and adds, 'But most officers in that war had a country background, and had already learned the phrase from sowing of seeds, planting of young trees, etc.' 'We are very thin on the ground' occurs in a signal from 'A.P. Wavell to Chiefs of Staff' dated 7 Mar. 1942, quoted in John Connell, Wavell: Supreme Commander, 1969. [The then Major-Gen. A.P. Wavell gave 'extensive' help to E.P. by contributing items for the 2nd ed. of this Dict., 1937.] Dr Ivor Brown thinks it is of hunting or shooting origin; my final guess is that ultimately the phrase comes from the sowing of seed.

thin Red Line, the. The 93rd Regt of Foot (from 1881, the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders): army: since they won the soubriquet by withstanding the entire Russian cavalry at Balaclava, 1855. In The Age of Elegance, 1950, Arthur Bryant quotes the 'thin red line of old bricks' (staunch fellows), à propos the second Battle of the Nile, in Dec. 1812. (His exact source unclear.) Kipling was generalising in his bitter verses, 'Tommy': 'O it's "Thin red line of 'eroes" when the drums begin to roll. We aren't no thin red 'eroes, nor we aren't no blackguards too...' thin 'un. A half-sovereign: from ca. 1860; almost † 1930. See thick 'un at thick one, 1.

thing. Penis; pudend: when not used euph. but carelessly (cf. affair) or lightly, it is low coll.: since C.17.—2. In e.g. Mrs Thing, in ref. to someone whose name has slipped the memory: coll.: C.20. Heard in the street, 3 May 1935.—3. A fad; a moral, or an intellectual, kink; an obsession: since ca. 1935. Ngao Marsh, Died in the Wool, 1945, 'She hated bits on the carpet. She had a "thing" about them and always picked them up.' Prob. short for thingummy, used for 'obsession' or 'complex', words too learned for the commonality of everyday speech.—4. 'In the 1960s [and later] an activity or interest... "Stamp collecting is his thing", without any implication that it is carried to excess' (R.S., 1969).—5. As the thing, that which is suitable, fitting, fashionable; the correct thing; (of a person) fit, in good form or condition: coll.: 1762, Goldsmith, 'It is at once rich, tasty, and quite the thing'; 1775, Mme D'Arblay, 'Mr Bruce was quite the thing; he addressed himself with great gallantry to us all alternately' (OED); 1781, Johnson (of a procedure), 'To use the vulgar phrase, not the thing'; 1864, Meredith (of health), 'You're not quite the thing to-day, sir' (OED)—in C.20, gen. feel the thing or not quite the thing.—6. Hence, also as the thing, the requisite, special, or notable point: coll.: 1850 (Thackeray: OED); M. Arnold, 1873. '[A state church] is in itself... unimportant. The thing is to re-cast religion.'—7. See any old thing; good thing; do (one's) thing; old thing; know a thing or two, at KNOW, in Appendix; things.

thing-a-merry. See thingumajig.

thingamobob. See thingumbob.

thingamy. See thingummy.

thing'em. See thingum.

thing'em bob. See thingumbob.

thing-o-me(-my). See thingummy.

thingo (pron. thing-o). An Aus. equivalent—with Aus. suffix -o—of thingummy.

things. Personal effects carried with one at a given time; impedimenta: coll.: C.17–20; e.g. in 1662, J. Davies, 'We... went to the Custom House to have our things search'd' (OED). Ex things, possessions, goods.—2. Clothes: coll.: from ca. 1630, as in Sheridan, 1775, 'I suppose you don't mean to detain my apparel—I may have my things, I presume?'—3. Hence, esp. such garments, etc., as, in addition to her indoor dress, a woman dons for going out in: coll.: 1833, T. Hook, 'Take off your things—and we will order... tea' (OED).—4. Implements or utensils; equipment: if the kind is specified, then coll.: C.18–20. 'The kitchen things' is recorded by OED at 1738. Cf. sense 1.—5. Sometimes as the things, base coin: c.:—1839 (Brandon); † by 1939.—6. In... and things, and other such things; et cetera: coll.: 1596, Shakespeare, 'Ruffs and cuffs, and fardingales, and things'; 1920, Denis Mackail What Next?, 'We've had such tremendous fun and things.' Cf. and all that.—7. See no great things; for do things to see make go all unnecessary; for think (no) small things of see small...

things are looking up! A c.p., directed at someone with a new suit or a new car: since ca. 1925.

things is crook in Muswellbrook and things is weak in Werris Creek. Aus. card-players' c.pp.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1953.) Wilkes records other versions: things are crook in Tallarook;... are weak at Julia Creek.

things (will) happen (even) in the best-regulated families, these (occ. such). An apologetic or an explanatory c.p., applied to a family quarrel or misfortune: domestic: late C.19–20.

things you see when you haven't got your gun!, the. A c.p. occasioned by the sight of an oddly-dressed or strange-looking person: prob. later C.19–20; ob. by 1970.

thingstable. 'Mr Thingstable, Mr Constable, a ludicrous affectation of delicacy in avoiding the... first syllable in the title of that officer, which in sound has some similarity to an indecent monosyllable' (Grose, 1st ed.); † by 1830. Cf. rooster for cock.

thingum; in C.19, occ. thing'em. 'Thingummy' (q.v.): coll.: 1681, Flatman, 'The Thingum in the Old Bailey' (OED): from mid-C.19, only in dial. Cf. thing + um, a meaningless suffix. Prob. earlier than:

thingum thangum. 'Thingummy' (q.v.): coll.: 1680 (Otway); † by 1800 Reduplicated thingum.

thingumajig (occ. thingermajig, thingummijib (or -jig), thingymyjig, etc.), often hyphenated thingum-a-jig; thingumary, occ. thingummarie, also thing-a-merry. A 'thingummy' (q.v.): coll.: -jig, 1876, 'Lewis Carroll'; -ary (etc.), 1819, and ob. by 1930; the rare thing-a-merry, occurring in 1827, is † by 1890. Elaborations of thingum, q.v. OED. Cf.:

thingumbob; occ. thingamobob, thing'em bob, thing(-)em(-)bob, thingumbob, thingummybob. A 'thingummy' (q.v.): coll.: resp. 1751, Smollett—cf. Grose, 1st ed., 'A vulgar address or nomination to any person whose name is unknown'; 1870; C.19–20; 1778, Miss Burney; 1832, Lytton; mid-C.19–20 and due to a confusion with thingummy. Ex thingum, q.v. + a senseless suffix. (OED; F. & H.) Cf. thingummy.—2. In pl: see senses 3, 4, of thingummy.

thingumitum. An occ. C.20 var. (Manchon) cf:

thingummy; often thingam(m); rarely thing-o-me or -o'-me or -o-my; fairly often thingummie or -ummy. A thing or occ, a person one does not wish to, or cannot, specify, or the name of which one has forgotten: coll.: resp. 1819; 1803; 1796, thing-o'-me, perhaps a nonce-use, as prob. also is thing-o-me in late 1790s; thing-o-my, rare, is of early C.19: -ummie, from ca. 1820; -ummy, H., 1864. Thackeray, 1862, 'What a bloated aristocrat Thingamy has become.' Ex thingum, q.v., + diminutive y (or ie) or, less prob., ex thing + of me (= mine). OED; F. & H.; W. Cf. thingumajig and thingumbob.—2. The penis or the pudend: euph. coll.: C.19–20.—3. In pl, the testicles: thingumbobs in Grose, 1st ed.; thingummies (etc.) not till C.19; thingumajigs not before ca. 1880, nor thingumaries before ca. 1820.—4. (Also in pl.) Trousers: lower classes:—1909 (Ware).

thingummybob. See thingumbob.

thingummy-tight. Yet another var. of thingummy: C.20.

thingy. Penis: C.20. Ex thingummy, 2.—2. Var. of thingummy, 1; also of thing, 2, e.g. 'Mrs Thingy down at the shop': mainly feminine usage: later 1970s. (P.B., 1978.)

think, n. An act or period of thinking: dial. (from ca. 1830) >, ca. 1840, coll. Ex v.—2. An opinion: coll.: 1835, Lady Granville, 'My own private think is that he will...'. (OED).

think, v. In think (one) self, to be conceited: Aus.: since ca. 1930. Margaret Trist, Now That We're Laughing, 1944, 'Thinks herself, that girl.' Elliptical for 'Think well of (one)self'.—2. In only think! and you can't think!, phrases exclamatory and/or intensive of that which follows: 1782, Mme D'Arblay, 'You can't think how I'm encumbered...!'; 1864, Mrs Carlyle, 'Only think! I get...' (OED). See also you can't think, which deals with the phrase's use at the end of a sentence.—3. In what or who do you think...?, phrases, esp. if parenthetical, ushering in a surprising statement: coll: 1616, Jonson, 'Mongst these..., who do you think there was? Old Banks...' (OED).—4. See I don't think!; for think no small things, and variants, see small...

think about breakfast. To be absorbed in thought: coll.: late C.19—early 20. E.C. Bentley, Trent's Last Case, 1913, 'He was thinking about breakfast. In his case the colloquialism must be taken literally: he really was thinking about breakfast.' think and thank. Thank you!: thanks, gratitude: Yiddish:—1909. Ware, 'Translated from the first words of the ordinary Hebrew morning prayer'.

think-box. The head: Aus.: ca. 1890—1910. (Sydney Bulletin, 18 Jan. 1902; Baker.) Also thinking-box, as in Alex. Macdonald, In the Land of Pearl and Gold, 1907.

think cheese of. See cheese, n. 4.

think-in. A poetry session or a discussion group: among the more intelligent jazz 'fans' and drug addicts and hippies: since ca. 1965. (Peter Fryer, Observer, 3 Dec. 1967.) Cf. love-in, q.v.

think (or do you think) I've just been dug up? Do you think me a fool?: c.p.: since ca. 1915.

think nothing of it! 'It's a trifle—let's not exaggerate!'; an attempt to fill that gap in English, the lack of a gracious answer to 'Thank you!': coll.: since 1940s. See DCpp. (P.B.) think pale ale... See small...

think-piece. A serious article: journalists': since ca. 1946. It causes one to think, not merely to proliferate at the mouth. 'Also an article that the writer was able to "think up" out of his head without doing any research or "leg work"' (Douglas Leechman, 1960).

think pumpkins of (one) self. To think well of oneself: coll.: late C.19—early 20. (Ouida, The Massarenes, 1897.) Cf. think (no) small potatoes of oneself, and variants, q.v. at small...

think (one's) shit doesn't stink. E.g. he (she) thinks... they think their... phrase applied to any conceited, would-be superior person(s): low: since later C19. Often prec. by the sort of bloke who... and completed by but it does, same as any other bugger's. Can. has the elliptical (e.g. his shit doesn't stink. Cf. Lady Nevershit.

think small beer... See small...

think-tank. Gen., as in 'What useful idea ever came out of a think-tank?' (Hugh Trevor-Roper, 20 May 1980, in valedictory lecture on the occasion of resigning the Oxford Chair of History: TLS); specifically, the Central Policy Review Staff: coll., adopted ex US, mid-1970s, very soon > journalistic S.E., as in a Guardian, 18 Feb. 1981, headline: 'Ministers refuse Think Tank's advice on random B[reathalyser]-tests'. A gathering of highly-intelligent people who, by pooling their ideas, may or may not come up with the best idea. Influenced by alliteration. (P.B.) See next, and c.f.:—2. In have bubbles in (one's) think-tank, to be crazy: motorists': ca. 1908—15.

Think-Tankers. The 'brains' in prec., 1: Simon Winchester, overseas issue of Guardian, 4 Sep. 1977, 'a short wave radio [on which] if the Think Tankers leave it alone, we can listen to the [BBC] World Service' (J.B. Mindel, Kfar Tabor).

think the sun shines out of (someone's, or one's own) arse(-hole) or backside. To hold in very high regard, to be very conceited: low: since late C.19. See lights of Piccadilly...

think to do (something). Think of doing: coll.: C.20. Gen. in past, as 'Did he think to close the door, I wonder.' (OED; Fowler.) Ex † Scottish.

think up. To invent, or to compose, by taking thought; esp. by racking one's brains, to hit upon, to devise: US coll. (1885) anglicised ca. 1900. E.g. 'Things look bad; I must think up some stunt.' Possibly, to bring up to the surface of one's mind by hard thinking.

thinker. An actor playing a 'thinking part', q.v.: theatrical coll.: 1886 (OED).

thinking to my. In my opinion: from late 1870s: S.E. until ca. 1920, then coll. On the very much older in my thinking.

thinking cap. In put on (or don) one's thinking (earlier, considering) cap, to think, take time to think: coll.: since mid-C.17.

thinking part. A role in which one says very little or nothing: theatrical coll.: 1898 (Daily News, 12 Mar.: OED). Because in such a part, an actor has plenty of time for thought.

thinks he holds it, he. He's a vain conceited fellow: from ca. 1870: a sporting c.p. > gen. ca. 1875; ob. (Ware.) Presumably it is the prize.

third. See second.

thirsty. Causing thirst: late C.16—20: S.E. until C.19, then coll.

Thirsty Island. Thursday Island, N.W. of Cape York Peninsula, Aus.: late C.19—20. It used to do a great trade in the sale of liquor to pearl-fishers.

thirteen clean shirts. Three months' imprisonment: prison c.: late C.19—20; ob. I.e. at the rate of one shirt a week.

thirteen to the dozen, talk. An occ. C.20 var. (Manchon) of talk nineteen to the dozen, to gabble.

thirteenth. A shilling: since ca. 1920. 'Twelve pence' > a baker's dozen. P.B.: † by 1950, if not earlier.

thirteenth juryman. 'A judge who, in addressing a jury, shows leaning or prejudice': legal:—1895 (Ware).

thirty, but in form 30. The end: Can. journalists' and freelance writers': since ca. 1910. † believe this to be one of the few remaining traces of a telegraphers' code (Philips?) in which numbers stood for words or sentences, thus economizing space and time' (Leechman: May 1959). Cf. twenty-three. In a note written a year later, Dr Leechman says, 'Two years ago, in the interior [of British Columbia], I dug up another remnant of this code: "73s"—which meant kind regards.' P.B.: 73, kind regards, and 88, 'love and kisses', continue to be used by radio operators, civilian, Service, and 'ham', and have now, ca. 1980, been adopted by the 'breakers' (operators) on CB, or Citizens' Band, radio.

thirty days. Three '10' cards: Aus. poker-players': since ca. 1920. B., 1953.

thirty-first of May. A simpleton: a dupe: Aus. c.: since ca. 1925. (B., 1953.) Rhyming on gay, n., 1.

this. The present; now in office: coll.: 1785, Boswell, 'This Mr Waller was a plain country gentleman' (OED Sup.).—2. This... now fashionable or recently invented (or introduced): coll.: C.20. The OED instances, in 1916, 'What do you think of this wireless telegraphy?'

this and that. (Mostly in pl. thises and thats.) Spats: Cockney rhyming s.: early C.20.—2. A hat: Aus. rhyming s.: C.20. A.A. Martin, letter, 1937; B., 1942.—3. To bat (in cricket): rhyming s.: since ca. 1946. Franklyn 2nd.

this child. I; myself; I myself: orig. (—1842), US, at first esp. among Negroes; partly anglicised, mostly in the Colonies, late in C.19. (Thornton.) Collinson, 1927, records the c.p. not for this child, but this, and the term, were virtually † by 1950.

this here. In A Burlesque Translation of Homer, 1770, Thomas Bridges writes, 'The inside of your this here church', which somewhat exaggerated sentence he glosses thus, 'An elegant style much used by the cockneys, viz. That there wall, this here post, etc., etc.' See here, 1, and that there, 2.

this I must see (or hear)! Partly ironic, partly deprecatory c.p. of amused intention: since ca. 1955. Cf. now I've seen everything. Ex a Yiddish construction: see esp. DCpp.

this is all right! Everything is wrong!: non-aristocratic c.p. of ca. 1896—1905. (Ware.) The direct opp. of this is a bit of all right, which carries warm approval of anything welcome and good.

this is better than a thump on the back. See better than...

this is it! This is the end (lit. or fig.): army c.p. of ca. 1940—5. Adopted ex American films. P-G-R.—2. (Often prec. by well.) A phrase indicating agreement, replacing simple 'Yes!', as 'well, this is it! I mean, you know, honestly, let's face it, the thing is this... etc.': coll.: since ca. 1974; replaced, ca. 1980, by that's right!

this is all right! Everything is wrong!: non-aristocratic c.p. of ca. 1896—1905. (Ware.) The direct opp. of this is a bit of all right, which carries warm approval of anything welcome and good.

this is better than a thump on the back. See better than...

this is it! This is the end (lit. or fig.): army c.p. of ca. 1940—5. Adopted ex American films. P-G-R.—2. (Often prec. by well.) A phrase indicating agreement, replacing simple 'Yes!', as 'well, this is it! I mean, you know, honestly, let's face it, the thing is this... etc.': coll.: since ca. 1974; replaced, ca. 1980, by that's right!

this is me and you! This is between me and you, a secret: prison C.: C.20. Jim Phelan, Lifer, 1938.

this is mine! Uttered when an approaching shell or bomb seems to indicate one's imminent death: Forces' c.p.: 1940+. Cf. this is it!, 1.

this is my day out. A c.p. used by one 'standing treat' in a public house: since ca. 1930.

this is so sudden! A joc. c.p. applied to an unexpected statement or offer: from ca. 1910. Ex the reputedly usual reply of a girl to a proposal of marriage. (Collinson.) See DCpp.

this is the end! Not literally the end: merely intolerable or outrageous: C.20. See DCpp.

this is the life. A c.p. dating from several years before, but popularised by soldiers in, WW1. Mencken alludes to it in his admirable American Language. Also, it's a great life!

this is the weather we signed on for! An MN c.p., applied, in C.20, to agreeably warm, fine weather.

this is where I, or we, came in. We've come full cycle: a c.p. that, dating from ca. 1946, is taken from the experience of cinema-haunters, when programmes ran continuously, and it was possible to enter the cinema at any point during the performance. Often used to mean: 'Let's go!' See DCpp.

this is where you want it, accompanied by a tap on one's own forehead. You need brains: c.p.: late C.19–20. The same gesture accompanies the C.20 c.p. he's got it up there, he's intelligent.

this should not be possible or this should be impossible. RN wardrobe c.p. used when the impossible has regrettably occurred: since ca. 1920. A quot'n from the Gunnery Manual. See DCpp.

this training really toughens you – you get muscles in your shit. Can. army c.p.: WW2.

this will give you the cock-stand. A male c.p. addressed to someone offered a drink or a special dish: since ca. 1910; ob. by 1950. Cf. this'll put lead in your pencil.

this won't buy baby – or the baby – a frock (or a new dress, etc.)! But this is no good; I'm wasting my time, or being idle: c.p.: C.20. Leonard Merrick, Peggy Harper, 1911 ('This won't buy baby a frock').

thises and thats. See this and that.

thistle-down. Children apt to wander, esp. on moor or heath: Anglo-Irish coll.:—1909 (Ware). Cf. the Devonshire dial. thistle-seed, gipsies.

thistle-whipper. A hare-hunter: hunting: 1801 (OED). Contemptuous.

thoke, n. A rest, esp. in or on one's bed; an idling: Winchester Coll.:—1891 (Wrench). Prob. ex thoky, q.v., not as at Winchester but as in dial.

thoke, v. To lie late in bed; to idle: Winchester Coll.:—1891. Ex n.

thoke on or upon. To look forward to: Ibid.; id. Elab. of prec. thoker. 'A piece of bread soaked in water and toasted or baked in the ashes': Winchester Coll.: mid-C.19–20. (Wrench.) Ex toasted + soaked.

thokester. An idler: Ibid.; id. Ex thoke, v., q.v.

thoky. Idle: Winchester Coll.:—1891. Ex dial. thoky, earlier thokish, sluggish, lazy.

Thomas; John Thomas; man Thomas. The penis: the first 2, C.19–20; the 3rd, C.17–mid-19, recorded in Grose, 1st ed., but implied in Fletcher's Monsieur Thomas in 1619. Cf. Dick, and see also John Thomas, 1.

Thomas Tilling. A shilling; rhyming s.: early C.20. (Michael Harrison, All the Trees were Green, 1936.) 'T.T. was famous for his service of horses and horse-drawn vehicles... He also ran buses, coaches, and the like' (Franklyn, Rhyming).

Thomasina Atkins. A 'Waac' (q.v.): journalistic coll.: 1917; † by 1920. F. & G.

Thomond's cocks, all on one side – like Lord. Applied ironically to a group of persons nominally in agreement, actually likely to quarrel: late C.18—early 19. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Lord Thomond's cock-tender shut in one room a number of birds due to fight, the next day, against another 'team'; result, internecine warfare.

thomyok or tomyok. A magistrate: Shelta: C.18–20. B. & L. thongs. 'Flip-flop' flat slippers: Aus. coll.: since mid-1950s. (Mrs C. Raab.)

thora. A thoracoplasty: medical coll.: since ca. 1930. Dymphna Cusack, Say No to Death, 1951.

thornback. An old maid: late C.17—early 19. (B.E.; Facetious Tom Brown; Grose, 1st ed.) A pun on maid, the female young of the thornback (ray, skate).

Thorny. A Thornycroft motor-truck: coll., mostly Aus.: from ca. 1920. Ion L. Idriess, Lasseter's Last Ride, 1931.

thorny wire. A quick-tempered person: Anglo-Irish: C.20. thorough churchman. 'A person who goes in at one door of a church, and out at the other without stopping' (Grose, 1st ed.): ca. 1780–1850. A pun on † thorough, through.

thorough cough. A simultaneous cough and crepitation: late C.17—mid-19. B.E. thorough-go-nimble. Diarrhoea: 1694 (Motteux); Grose; since mid-C.19. Ob., except in dial.—2. Hence, inferior beer: ca. 1820–60. Scott, 1822 (OED).

thorough good-natured wench. 'One who being asked to sit down, will lie down' (Grose, 1st ed.): ca. 1780–1880.

thorough passage. 'In at one Ear, and out at t'other' (B.E.): late C.17—mid-19. Cf. thorough churchman and thorough-go-nimble, qq.v.

those, one of. See one of those.

thou (with th light, unvoiced, as in thin). A thousand; esp. £1,000: coll.: 1869 (OED). Ware dates it from 1860. Cf. sov.—2. A thousandth of an inch: technical coll.: since ca. 1930. (B.P.) As in 'accurate to within a couple of thou' (P.B.)

Thou shalt not be (or get) found out. 'This is known as the Eleventh Commandment. Another ten can be found in The Latest Decalogue by Arthur Hugh Clough [1819–61]' (B.P.): C.20. Cf.:-

Thou shalt not blab! An underworld 'comandment': late C.19–20.

though. (As adv., gen. at end of phrase.) For all that; nevertheless; however, yet: C.19–20: S.E. until mid-C.19, then coll. Browning, 1872; Anstey, 1885, 'I've lost [the note]. She told me what was inside though.' (OED.) Cf. the enclitic use of however and even the very awkward but.

thought, n. In you know what thought did!, a c.p. retort to 'but I thought...' or 'I think': late C.19–20. If the other asks What?, one adds Ran away with another man's wife. A softening of the late C.18—mid-19 form recorded in Grose, 2nd ed.: 'What did thought do? Lay in bed and besh*t himself, and thought he was up; reproof to anyone who excuses himself for any breach of positive orders, by pleading that he thought to the contrary.' Cf. the curious thing proverb (no. 1) in Apperson, p. 625. Julian Franklyn notes, 1968, 'The pert Cockney boy's response is, "No, 'e never! 'E only thought e' did!'" thoughtful. See three and sixpenny thoughtful.

thousand fathoms deep, a, n. and adj. Sleep; asleep: RN lowerdeck: C.20. (Peppitt.)

thousand-miler. A black twill shirt: nautical: C.20. (Bowen.) Prob. because often worn for a thousand miles without being changed. Cf.:—2. A starched blue shirt with an attachable starched blue collar, worn by railroadmen in Canada: railroadmen's:—1931. Ex the much earlier US synon. thousand-mile shirt, of which Robert Claiborne writes, 1976: 'The orig. reference, I believe, was to emigrants who wore one shirt the thousand miles (give or take) from the Plains to the Pacific.' thousand pities; or, towns and cities. A woman's breasts: rhyming s., on bubs and titties: late C.19—early 20. Cf. Bristols. thousand strokes and a rolling suck (, a). A nautical c.p. applied to a leaky ship: from ca. 1870. (Bowen.) Her pumps require many strokes and suck—an indication that she is dry—only when the ship rolls.

thrash, n. A party, with drinks, supper, dancing: 'Services', perhaps orig. RN: since late 1930s. John Winton, HMS 'Leviathan', 1967; P.B.—2. A 'slog' or bout of hard-hitting, whether by one batsman or more: cricketers': since ca. 1960. Brian Close, England's captain at that time, in an interview reported in the Daily Express of 14 Aug. 1967.—3. See thresh. thrash (one's) jacket or the life out of (one). To thrash; to thrash severely: coll.: resp. 1687 (T. Brown), in C.20 almost †; from ca. 1870. OED.

thread, v. (Of the man) to coit with: Anglo-Irish: C.20. (Brendan Behan, Borstal Boy, 1958.) Cf.:- thread the needle. Synon. with prec.: C.19—early 20 in England; current mid-C.20 in Anglo-Irish (Ibid.) Cf. the joc. Aus. low synon. thread the eye of the golden doughnut.

threat or a promise? (, is that a). The traditionally licentious soldiery's stock retort to fuck you!—and the other Services' too, of course, prob. since S. African War; certainly since WW1. See DCpp. at is that a promise?

three. A Rugby three-quarter: sporting coll.: C.20. (OED record: 1905).—2. A third-term cadet in the training ship Britannia: late C.19—early 20. Bowen.—3. Three years' service: services coll., among regulars: late C.19—20. P-G-R.—4. See cube of three!

three acres and a cow. A satirical c.p. (1887—ca.89) directed at baseless or excessive optimism. (Ware.) An ironic ref. to the slogan coined by Joseph Chamberlain's henchman, Jesse Collings, who proposed that every smallholder should possess them; he became known as Three Acres and a Cow Collings. The slogan perhaps derived from a song popular so long ago as the 1880s. (A. McQueen.) Collinson notes that it was revived ca. 1906. P.B.: cf. other such pie-in-the-sky slogans as a land fit for heroes; you're never had it so good; the pond in your pocket.

Three and Eights, the. A nickname of the 13th/18th Royal Hussars (Queen Mary's Own): they were known thus in the Army in Malaya, mid-1950s. Cf. the Five and Nines. (P.B.) three and sixpenny thoughtful. A 'feminine theory novel': Society: ca. 1890—8. (Ware.) Satirical of, e.g., Mrs Craigie and Mrs Humphry Ward. Ex the usual price, 3 (shillings) and 6(pence) (17½p).

three bags full (or bagsful). Much: coll.: late C.19—earlier 20.—2. See yes-sir-no-sir...

three balls. See uncle Three Balls.

Three-Be (or, By)-Two. A Jew: low: C.20. A var. of four-by-two, 2.

three bears. See now tell me the one about...

three blue beans in a (or one) blue bladder. Noisy and empty talk: late C.16—18. Concerning the orig., R.S. suggested, 1969: 'In place of the bauble (grotesque head on a stick), court jesters sometimes carried a bladder on a stick for striking victims noisily but harmlessly. It sometimes contained a dried bean to make it rattle. Three beans would produce a louder empty noise. Broad beans... saved for sowing turn blue before the planting season comes round.' three Bs, the. Brief, bright, brotherly: ecclesiastical:—1909 (Ware). In reaction against the somnolence of so many services in Victorian days.—2. Bullshit baffles brains, q.v.: RAF: ca. 1935—50.—3. Beer, bum (=sodomy) and bacca (=tobacco): nautical: C.20—4. A. c.p., embodying what every good bushwhacker ought to do with his rubbish, Burn, bash and bury: Aus.: since ca. 1920. Cf. the very much longer-established c.p. used by bushwhackers: the bigger the fire, the bigger the fool, applied esp. to the fire made for the purpose of boiling a billy. (B.P.) three-card monte. 'The three-card trick' (Powis): c.: C.20. three cheers and a tiger. Three cheers and a very hearty additional cheer: adopted, ca. 1918, from US. A tiger is ferocious.

three cold Irish. See Fenian.

three-cornered. (Of a horse) awkwardly shaped: coll.: 1861 (Whyte-Melville: OED). The term passed into Aus. rural use: B., 1959, notes three-cornered horse, 'A scraggy, weedy, outlaw horse.'

three-cornered constituency. A house where one person's 'vote' gives victory to either wife or husband: Society: ca.

1870—1914. (Ware.) Ex boroughs in which one voted for two of the three members returned.

three-cornered horse. See three-cornered.

three-cornered pinch. A cocked hat, either a seaman's or resembling one: military: ca. 1800—50. John L. Gardner, The Military Sketch-Book, 1827. (Moe.) Cf.:-

three-cornered scraper. A cocked hat: nautical: C.19. Saturday Evening Post, 16 Mar. 1822, p. 1, col. 5; H., 3rd ed., 1864.

three-cornered tree. See three-legged mare.

three-cross double (or treble). A glass of beer, a half-glass of rum, and a gill of red wine: Glasgow public houses':—1934. Cf. roll-up, q.v.

three Cs, the. The Central Criminal Court: prison c.: from ca. 1880. B. & L.

three dark-blue lights was a 1916—18 military c.p.: thus would peace be announced; i.e. never, since such a light would be virtually invisible against a night sky. B. & P.

three-decker. A pulpit in three tiers: coll. nickname; 1874 (OED); ob.—2. 'A sea pie or potato pie with three layers of meat and crust or potato': nautical coll.: late C.19—20. Bowen.—3. A three-volume novel: book-world coll.: ca. 1840—1900, then historical.

three decks and no bottom. An ocean liner: sailing-ship men's c.p.: late C.19—20. Bowen.

three draws and a spit. (Occ. hyphenated.) A cigarette: low: late C.19—early 20. Cf. spit and a draw, q.v.

three-er. Something counting for three, esp. in cricket: coll.: from early 1890s. OED Sup.

three-figure man. One whose arrest comports a reward of £100: policemen's: mid-C.19—20; by 1940, ob. John Lang, The Forger's Wife, 1855.

three folks. See much wit as...

three Fs, the. Fuck, fun, and a foot-race: low: ca. 1882—1914. Punning the three demands of the Irish Land League, Free Sale, Fixity of Tenure and Fair Rent.

three-handed. Three(adj.): c.:—1933 (Charles E. Leach).

three ha'porth of Gawdelpus. A street arab: London:—1909 (Ware). I.e. three-halfpence-worth of God help us—but, even by 1908, it had risen to two-pence: see Gawdelpus, 2. In Aus., three-pence: see three pennorth...

three hearty British cheers! Ironical or 'grudging praise for a minor accomplishment. "I passed that exam after three goes at it."—"Three hearty British cheers!"' (B.P.): Brit. and Aus. c.p.: from ca. 1930.

three is an awkward number. A c.p. (1885—6) paraphrasing two are company; three, not. Ex Lord Durham's nullity-of-marriage lawsuit (1885). Ware.

three-island ship. 'A steamer with fore-castle, bridge deck and poop': nautical coll.: C.20. Bowen.

three-kidney man. A pimp in whose service there are three women: white-slavers' c.: C.20. Londres.

three-legged mare, or stool. The gallows; in C.17—18, esp. that at Tyburn: resp. 1685, T. Brown, and Grose, 1st ed.—† by 1850; and late C.17—mid-19, as in B.E. Also three-cornered tree, 1654, but † by 1800; mare with the three legs, Ainsworth, 1834, and rare; (the) three trees, late C.16—mid-17, as in Breton. Also (the) triple tree, (the) Tyburn tree, qq.v. 'Formerly consisting of three posts, over which were laid three transverse beams' (Grose, 1785).—2. comb one's head with a three-legged (or a joint-) stool. Gen. as threat, I'll comb your head, etc.: coll.: late C.16—18, then in dial. Shakespeare (noddle).

three Ls. Look-out—lead—latitude: nautical coll.: from ca. 1860. (Smyth; Bowen.) Dr Halley added a fourth, longitude; while Thomas Wood, D. Mus., son of MN skipper, defines them 'Log, Lead, and Look-out' (True Thomas, 1936).

three-man breeze. A stiff breeze: sailing-ships': late C.19—20. (Bowen.) A pun on catamaran, from whose crew such a breeze sent several men 'out on to the weather outrigger'.

three months' bumps. (A course of) three months' flying training: RAF: since ca. 1938. (Jackson.) Cf. circuit and bumps, q.v.

three more and up goes the donkey! See up goes the donkey!

three most useless things in the world, the. Cynically defined as 'The Pope's balls, a nun's cunt—and a vote of thanks': raffish: since ca. 1950 at latest: ? much earlier. (P.B.)

three nines agreement. A lease for 999 years: house-agents' coll.:—1927 (Collinson).

three-o; two-o. Third officer; second officer: nautical: C.20. Ex the abbr. 3 o and 2 o. In WW2 the terms were applied esp. to a third and second officer in the WRNS: RN (P-G-R).

three of (e.g., whisky). Three 'fingers' of, e.g. whisky: public-house coll.: late C.19–20.

three of the best. Three condoms: Aus.: since ca. 1925. 'Gis [Give us] three of the best, mate.' In Aus., condoms are usu. sold in packets of three. Cf. three screws.

three on the hook, three on the book. Half-a-week's work: dockers': since ca. 1925. The book refers to the dole; the hook is a tool of the stevedore's trade.

Three Ones, the. Trafalgar Square: Londoners' since ca. 1860; ob. by 1920, but not yet t. The ref. is to Nelson's Column, Nelson having one eye, one arm and one anus.—2. (In lower case.) See Lord Nelson.

three-op packet. A passenger ship carrying three operators: 'nautical' wireless operators': from ca. 1925. Bowen.

three-or-four-point drinker. 'A man who calls for 6d. gin with bitters, limejuice and soda' (B., 1942): since ca. 1925; by end of 1945, ob.

three-out. A glass holding the third of a quart: coll.: from ca. 1836. Dickens in Sketches by Boz.

three-out brush. A drinking-glass shaped like an inverted cone and therefore rather like a painter's brush esp. when dry: taverns':—1909 (Ware).

three outs. See drink the three outs; gentleman of...

three parts seven-eighths. Topsy: nautical: C.20. (Bowen.) Prob. ex three sheets in the wind. In F. & G. it is ... five-eighths.

three pennorth. Three years' penal servitude: c.: C.20. (F.D. Sharpe, The Flying Squad, 1938.) And see penn'orth.

three pennorth of God help us. A weakling; a spiritless, unprepossessing fellow: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) See three ha'porth...

three-piece bamboo. A three-masted ship: pidgin and nautical: from ca. 1870; slightly ob. by 1930. Bowen.

three-piece suite. The male genitals: joc., perhaps mainly boxers': later C.20. Claire Luckham, Trafford Tanzi, prod. 1982. (The Misses M. & V. Manoukian.)

three-pipper. A captain: army: C.20. Ex the three stars indicating his rank. P-G-R.

three planks. A coffin: lower classes' coll.:—1909 (Ware).

three-pointer. A perfect, a three-point landing, i.e. with the two wheels and the tail-skid (or wheel) simultaneously touching down: from early 1930s. RAF coll. >, by 1944, j. Whence three-pointer on the deck, a heavy fall, noted by Daily Herald, 1 Aug. 1936, as aircraft engineers' s. Cf.:-

three-pricker. Var. of prec.: RAF: early 1930s.

three-quarter man. See six-quarter man.

three-quarters of a peck, often abbr. three-quarters and by experts written $\frac{3}{4}$. The neck: rhyming s.:—1857 ('Ducange Anglicus').

three-ringer. A Commander, RN, or Wing Commander, RAF: see ringer, 7, and cf. three-pipper.

three-rounder. A petty criminal; a small operator: since ca. 1950: c. >, by 1965, low s. (Douglas Warner, Death of a Snout, 1961.) Ex the three-round bouts of junior and novice boxing.

three screws. 'An aluminium box containing three condoms. Three Screws was the brand name' (Leachman): Can.: since ca. 1920. A pun on s. screw, a copulation. Cf. three of the best.

three sheets, short for three sheets in the wind: Sessions, Nov. 1857, 'He said, "A man will do anything when he is tight, or three sheets"—he had been drinking.' See sheet in the wind.

three sixty-five; gen. written '365'. Eggs-and-bacon: commercial travellers': late C.19–20. Because eaten for breakfast every day of the year. On slates in commercial hotels may be seen the legend '7 (or 7½) 365', which means 'Call me at 7 (or 7.30); eggs-and-bacon for breakfast.'

three skips of a louse; not three skips of a louse. (Of) no value; not at all: coll.: 1633, Jonson, 'I care not I, sir, not three skips of a louse'; † by 1850. Hence, for three, etc.: very easily, or with very little provocation, as in Murphy, 1769, 'I'd cudgel him back, breast and belly for three skips of a louse!'; † by 1850. Cf. for tuppence (s.v. tuppence).

three slips for a tester (, give). (To give) the slip: coll.: ca. 1625–1700. F. Grove, 1627; Anon., ca. 1685, 'How a Lass gave her Love Three Slips for a Tester [part of a ballad title], and married another three weeks before Easter.' Lit., (to give) three counterfeit twopennies for a sixpence. Apperson, as also for the prec.

three Ss, the. 'A shit, a shave, and a shampoo': Services': since ca. 1920. See shit – shave..., and contrast mind (one's) three Ss.

three steps and overboard. See fisherman's walk.

three-stride business. The taking of only three strides between hurdles, this being the 'crack' style: athletics coll.: late C.19–20.

three-striper. See striper.

Three Tens, the. See Treble Xs.

three-thick. A kind of beer: army: late C.19–early 20. See ARMY SLANG, chorus 1, in Appendix.

three to one (and sure to lose), play. (Of a man) to coit: low: late C.18–20, ob. (Grose, 2nd ed., though for and.) Physiological arithmetic.

three-tone. (Of a car) 'Badly repaired after an accident' (Clive Graham-Ranger, Sunday Times mag., 9 Aug. 1981, P.42): car-dealers'. Worse still: four-tone. Punning the advertisers' 'two-tone', of a car painted in two colours.

three trees. See three-legged mare.

three (in late C.19–20, often two) turns round the long-boat and a pull at the scuttle characterises, among sailors (—1867; ob.) the activities of an artful dodger, 'all jaw, and no good in him' (Smyth). Bowen makes the two turns phrase mean also: 'Under sail, killing time.' Cf. Tom Cox's traverse, q.v.

three-up. A gambling game played with three coins: only if three heads or three tails fall is the toss operative: coll. >, ca. 1900, S.E.: 1851 (Mayhew: OED); H.; 1st ed. Cf. two-up school.

three vowels. An I.O.U.: ca. 1820–1920. Scott, 1822 (OED). Cf. vowel, q.v.

three weeks. A c.p., connoting a sexual experience either lasting or culminating at or near the end of that period: ca. 1907–14. A testimony to the vast popularity of Elinor Glyn's novel, Three Weeks, 1907.

three-wheeler. A tricycle: sporting coll.—1887 (Baumann). Cf. tri.

three whippets, the. Explained as 'Whip it in, whip it out, and wipe it': N. Country low, and Services': C.20. John Wainwright, Coppers Don't Cry, 1975, p.16: a Northern policeman's veiled threat to his 'nark', 'You're also tailing [sleeping with] one of the waitresses at The Golden Slipper. Surprise! Surprise! You thought nobody knew. Wednesdays and Fridays... Right! Just a quick job... whip it in, whip it out and wipe it.' It, of course = the penis. P.B.: L.A., 1974, recalls its Service use in WW2, and I, since then.

Three Xs, the. See Treble Xs.

three-year-old. A stone weighing 3 lb and used as a weapon: Anglo-Irish: C.19. Peter Cunningham, Two Years, 1827.

three'd up. Three inmates in a cell' (Home Office): prisons': C.20. Angus Hall, On the Run, 1974.

threes. 'Second landing above ground floor' (Home office): prisons': C.20.

threepence. See smart as threepence.

threepence more... See up goes the donkey.

threepenny bit or upright. A coffin with a whore, price 3d.: low: mid-C.19–20; late C.18–20. Grose, 2nd ed., applies it to the 'retailer of love'.

threepenny bits, the. Diarrhoea: C.20. Rhyming s., on the shits. Often shortened to the threepennies.—2. Hence, irritation, disgust, as in 'He gives me the threepennies': since ca.

1920.—3. The female breasts: rhyming s., on tits: late C.19–20.

threepenny dodger; t. Johnnie. A threepenny piece: Cockneys': earlier C.20. The former ex its elusiveness: the ref. is to the silver coin.

threepenny masher. A young man 'of limited means and more or less superficial gentlemanly externals': non-aristocratic: ca. 1883–90. Ware.

threepenny shot. A beef-steak pudding, globe-shaped: artists':—1909 (Ware).

threepenny upright. See threepenny bit.

threepenny (pronounced thrupenny) vomit. Fish and chips: low Glasgow:—1934.

threp, thrip; threp(p)s, throps. Threepence; a threepenny bit: in C.17–18, c., but in C.19–20, (low) s.: resp. late C.19–20; id.; late C.17–mid-19; from late 1850s. B.E., threpps; H., 1st ed., throps; thrip existed in US as early as 1834 (Thornton) for a coin intermediate between a nickel and a dime. Ex popular pron. of threepence; the s arises ex the 'suffix' -ence. Cf. thrumbuskins, q.v.

thresh or thresh-up. A fight: Aus.: since ca. 1930. (Dymphna Cusack, Say No to Death, 1951.) Cf. punch- or thump-up.—2. See thrash.

threshing-machine. See fight like a ...

thrifty. A threepenny piece, esp. the 12-sided one minted 1937–52, which bore a representation of the plant thrift on the reverse. Not a common term. (E.P.; P.B.) thrill, n. A 'thriller', q.v., whether fiction or non-fiction: ca. 1886–1905. Ex its effect.—2. An orgasm; esp., give (one) a thrill: euph. coll.: since ca. 1910.

thrilled. Pleased; content; quite satisfied: Society coll.: from ca. 1915. E.g. Denis Mackail, passim. Cf. thrilling. Hence, thrilled to bits as intensive, utterly delighted: since late 1940s; perhaps ob. by 1970: both thrilled and ... to bits > much more widespread than just 'Society' (P.B.).

thriller. A sensational play (1889) or esp., novel (1896): s. >, by 1920, coll.; by 1935, virtually S.E. (OED.) Cf. awful, dreadful, as nn., and shocker.

thriller merchant. A writer of 'thrillers': publishers' and authors': since ca. 1919. (E.R. Lorac, Death of an Author, 1935.) Ex prec. and merchant, 1.

thrilling. Pleasing; pleasant; suitable, apt: Society coll.: from ca. 1915. Cf. thrilled, q.v.

thrip. See threp.

thrips. Incorrectly treated as a pl, with erroneous singular thrip. A genus of the family Thripidae, or an insect belonging thereto. Late C.18–20. OED; CSIRO, The Insects of Australia, 1970.

throat. In have a t., to have a sore throat: coll.: late C.19–20. Cf. heart or temperature.—2. As the throat, 'frenulum or G-string; underside of neck of penis; play it on the throat, of coition' (L.A., 1974): low or raffish: C.20.—3. In have a game by the throat, 'to be in full control, in a position of advantage' (Wilkes): Aus.: since 1940s. Sometimes have it by ...—4. See belly thinks ... and cut one another's throats.

throat a mile long and a palate at every inch of it, wish for a. Applied to a 'healthy' thirst: mid-C.19–20; slightly ob. 'A modern echo of Rabelais' (F. & H.): see Motteux's Rabelais, V, xlii. Cf. the C.20 what wouldn't I give for a thirst like that! and I wouldn't sell my thirst for a fortune or a thousand (quid), etc. throat-seizing, n. RN s. of ca. 1800–90, as in W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, 2nd series, 1834, I, 15, 'As sure as the bell strikes four in the middle watch, he's always, always a throat-seizing ready for the man at the weather-wheel'—glossed as 'a glass of grog'. (Moe.)

throb. Such a person as, usu. of the opposite sex, mightily appeals to someone: schoolgirls': since ca. 1945. Short for heart-throb. Charles Franklin, Escape to Death, 1951.

thrombosis. A traffic apprentice: railwaymen's: since ca. 1945. Railway, 2nd, records the witty professional definition, 'a bloody clot wandering round the system'.

throne, the. Lavatory-seat; esp. be on the t., as in 'Sometimes he's on the throne for half an hour, reading the paper' (L.A., 1974): grandiosely joc.: since ca. 1920. P.B.: it used to occur as a double entendre in the BBC's famous radio-comedy series, 'The Goon Show', of the 1950s.

Throstles, the. The West Bromwich Football Club ('soccer'): sporting: C.20. Perhaps because their ground is in Hawthorn Road; thrushes like hawthorn hedges. See ASSOCIATION ..., in Appendix.

throatler. A punch on the throat: pugilistic: ca. 1810–60. (Boxiana, II, 1818.) Ex S.E. throatle, joc. for 'throat'. 'Also, perhaps, because it half chokes him' (Robert Claiborne).

through, be. To be acquitted: c. of ca. 1810–50. Vaux, be through it, through the piece. Ex lit. S.E. sense.—2. To have finished (a job, etc.): Can. (and US) coll.: since ca. 1910. (Leechman.)—3. See go through ...

through a side door, have come. To be illegitimate: coll.: from ca. 1860. B. & L.

through a woman, go. To coit with her: low coll.: C.19–20. Often, more vulgarly, go through a woman like a dose of salts: C.20.

through like a dose of salts, go. See prec. and dose of salts. through-pnt out of a mess, take the. To disentangle a 'mess': naval ratings' coll.: C.19. (W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, 2nd series, 1834, I, 215.) Moe.

through-shot, adj. Spendthrift: coll.: late C.19–20; ob. ? ex going through one's money much as a shot goes through paper.

through the card; ... Chapter House; ... gate; ... motions; ... roof. See go through the ...

through the lights. (Of a punch) that is an uppercut: low, and boxing:—1935.

through the mill, go or pass. To go through the bankruptcy court: coll. or s.: ca. 1840–1940. Ex the S.E. phrase = to have (a severe) experience, which in mid-C.19–early 20 nautical coll. was elab. to I've been through the mill, ground and bolted, I'm too experienced for that! (B. & L.). Hence, prob., the mostly RN phrase out of the mill, out of trouble: late C.19–20. 'Taffrail', The Sub, 1917.—2. To go to prison: c.:—1889 (Daily News, 4 July).

through the piece. See through, be.

throw, n. A vomit: see v., 8.—2. In (so much) a throw, such and such a price or charge at a time (each time), as in 'two bob a throw': NZ: since ca. 1956. Harold Griffiths, letter, 1962, 'From the old side-shows of the fair'. P.B.: coll. Brit. since before 1956; ? rather, C.20.

throw, v. 'He threw me with a stone' = he threw a stone at me. This S. African midlands coll., of late C.19–20, like throw wet (q.v.), shows Dutch influence; Pettman aligns Ger. Er warf mir ein Loch in den Kopf, he threw a stone at me and cut my head open.—2. To throw away, i.e. lose deliberately, a game, a set in order to obtain service or to conserve energy: lawn tennis coll.: from 1933, or early 1934. Lowe's Annual, 1935.—3. To bring as wages: lower-class Glaswegians': C.20. MacArthur & Long, 'His job "threw him" forty-eight shillings for the week of forty-eight hours.'—4. To castrate (an animal): Aus.: late C.19–20. (B., 1942.) Ex its being thrown to the ground for the operation to be performed.—5. To fail to extract the full meaning or emotional content out of one's lines as one might: theatrical coll.: since ca. 1945. Ex 'to throw away'. Cf. sense 2.—6. Hence, to deliberately fail in this; theatrical: since ca. 1950.—7. To disconcert; to upset: since ca. 1961. 'Your unexpected arrival threw him.'—8. To vomit: low coll.: short for, e.g., throw a map, sixers, etc. Cf. big spit.—9. May be substituted in many of the phrases at chuck, qq.v.

throw a crab. A v.i. form of crab, v., 1, to criticise adversely, to 'pull to pieces': c.: ca. 1810–40. Vaux.

throw a fit. To become very angry or agitated: C.20: s. >, ca. 1930, coll. Sometimes intensified to throw forty fits.

throw a leg over. See leg over, 2.

throw a levant. To make off: mid-C.19–early 20. Ex levant, to abscond.

throw a map. To vomit: Aus. joc.: since ca. 1925. B., 1943.
throw a party. To give a party: adopted, ex US, ca. 1925. Prob. ex such US phrases as throw (have) a fit: cf. chuck a dummy. Beatnik variants, noted by Anderson in the late 1950s, and soon ob., were throw a rave, occ. a shake or a percolator.

throw a seven. To die: Aus.: late C.19—early 20. (Dr J.W. Sutherland, letter, 1940.) A die has no "7". Robert Claiborne, however, says, 'More likely, I think, from craps, where to throw a seven (when one is trying to make a point) is to lose—to "crap out", itself occ. used in U.S. as synonym for "die" (more commonly, to depart, to withdraw).' B., 1942, notes the variants ... six, sixer, willy. Also chuck ...—2. To faint: Aus.: Wilkes cites A.W. Upfield, A Royal Abduction, 1932.

throw a six. See prec., 1.

throw a willy. See prec., 1, and willy.

throw a wobbly. See wobbly.

throw at a dog, not a (this, that, or the other) to. Gen. prec. by have. No—at all: coll.: from ca. 1540, for it is implied in Heywood, 1546; 1600, Day, 'I have not a horse to cast at a dog'; Swift, ca. 1706, 'Here's miss, has not a word to throw at a dog'; 1884, Stevenson & Henley. Slightly ob. by 1930. Apperson.

throw-away. A leaflet, esp. if of only one sheet: coll.: since ca. 1930. It is usu. thrown away as soon as read—if not before. Cf. dodger, 10.—2. Short for throw-away line, remark, etc., an aside, often extempore, memorably witty or unemphatically trenchant, which may pass unnoticed at time of utterance, only to be recalled later, as 'Do you remember that marvellous throwaway of his at Celia's party ...', or 'So he said, almost as throw-away ...': coll.: since mid-C.20. (P.B.) Contrast throw-off, n., and v., 2.

throw back. To revert to an ancestral type or character not present in recent generations': coll. >, ca. 1920, S.E.: 1879. Also fig., as indeed is the earliest recorded example. (The n. has always been considered S.E.) OED.

throw-down. A defeat: 1903 (OED). Ex throw-down, a fall in wrestling.

throw-down, v. To be too much for, to floor: 1891, anon., Harry Fludyer, 'These blessed exams. are getting awfully close now; but I think I shall floor mine, and Dick's sure to throw his examiners down.' Also of the 'exam.' itself and the papers constituting it. Perhaps ex throwing down a wicket at cricket.

throw down (, or up, one's) cards. To abandon a project, a career, etc.: coll.: since late C.17.

throw for a loop. See thrown for ...

throw forty fits. See throw a fit.

throw-in. Synonymous with chuck-in: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.

throw (someone) into fits. To alarm or startle greatly: coll.: since ca. 1855. Cf. throw a fit.

throw it in. To give up, to desist: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1910. 'They might be ready to throw it in' (A.M. Harris, The Tall Man, 1958). Short for boxing throw in the towel.

throw it up against— or at— or to (someone) or in (his) face. To reproach: orig. (ca. 1870), low; by 1920, fairly gen. (Universal Review, 15 Oct. 1890: OED.) Ex vomiting.

throw it up the road. To come off one's motorcycle accidentally: motorcyclists': later C.20. (Dunford.) It is the machine.

throw me in the dirt. A shirt: rhyming s.:—1857; † by 1900. ('Ducange Anglicus.') The modern form is Dicky dirt: much C.20 rhyming s. retains something—actual word or semantic essence—of the discarded form: daisy recruits and German flutes, both = 'boots', afford a particularly interesting example.

throw (one's) money about like a man with no arms. To be tight-fisted, mean with one's money: joc.: since ca. 1950. Sometimes ... with no hands. (L.A.) throw mud at the clock. To despair much or utterly: lower classes':—1909. Ware, 'Means defy time and die'.

throw-off. A depreciative remark or allusion: C.20. (Manchon.) Ex sense 2 of:

throw off. To boast of booties of the past: c. of ca. 1810–60. Vaux, who notes also:—2. 'To talk in a sarcastical strain, so as to convey offensive allusions under the mask of pleasantry, or innocent freedom': c. (—1812) >, by 1860, s. in sense, to be depreciative (at a person).—3. To deduct (so much) from (a stated sum): lower classes':—1923 (Manchon). Perhaps suggested by cast accounts.—4. To vomit: coll.: C.20.

throw-off practice. 'Gunnery practice where an actual ship is used as the target': RN coll.: C.20. Bowen.

throw one up. To salute in a neat, efficient, regulation manner: Services': since ca. 1925. H. & P.

throw over the bridge. (Gen. ppl adj., thrown ...) To swindle as in bridge, v., Vaux.

throw sixers. To vomit heartily: Aus.: C.20. (Capt. G.D. Mitchell, Winter on the Somme, n.d.) Wilkes cites Tom Ronan, Once There Was a Bagman, 1966, for chucking sevens: Aus. Cf. throw a seven.

throw snot about. To weep: low: 1678 (Ray); ob. by 1930. See snot.

throw temperament. (Mostly throwing ...) To lose one's temper: theatrical: from ca. 1930. (The Times, 15 Feb. 1937.) On throw a party.

throw the baby out with the bath-water. To overdo something, carry it too far, e.g. a political measure or a commercial practice or a sociological activity, often as a warning to theorists 'Don't throw ...': since ca. 1946. 'Cf. the Ger. proverbial Das Kind mit dem Bad ausgiessen' (R.S.).

throw the book at (someone). Of the police, a magistrate, a judge: to sentence to the full penalty of the law: adopted, ca. 1944, ex US. 'The book of rules' or 'the law book'.

throw the feet. To hustle; to beg: tramps' c. and low s., orig. (—1900) US. Ex a horse throwing his feet, lifting them well.

throw the hammer. To obtain money under false pretences: low military:—1909 (Ware). Of erotic orig.

throw up. To abandon hope completely: from ca. 1929. A.A. Milne, Two People, 1931, 'When it became definitely mottled, there was really nothing for a girl to do but to "throw up".' Perhaps ex throw up the sponge.—2. (Of the male) to experience the sexual orgasm: low: C.19–20.—3. To vomit: coll.: late C.19–20. 'I wanted to throw up' whether lit. or fig. used. Cf. throw up (one's) accounts.

throw up a maiden. To bowl a maiden over: cricketers': from ca. 1880. B. & L.

throw up (one's) accounts. To vomit: ca. 1760–1930. (C. Johnston, 1763: OED.) A var. of cast up (one's) accounts.

throw up the sponge. To admit defeat: coll.: since ca. 1860. (H., 2nd ed.) Ex boxing, where this action signifies defeat. Cf. the slightly later chuck up ..., and throw in the towel, which is prob. to be classed as sporting j.

throw (one's) weight about. To boast, swagger, unduly stress one's authority: orig. Services': since ca. 1910. (F. & G.) Prob. ex boxing or circus. Also chuck ...

throw wet. To dash water upon: Cape Midlands (S. Africa) coll.: C.20. 'A literal rendering of the Dutch nat gooien' (Pettman). Cf. throw, q.v.

throw with. see throw.

throwing temperament. See throw temperament.

throwing up buckets; gen. prec. by simply. very vexed: exceedingly disappointed: Aus.: ca. 1875–1910. (B. & L.) Suggested by sick, 3.

thrown for a loop. Startled; shocked: RAF: 1939+. 'That posting to the Med. threw me for a loop.' Ex aerobatics. 'Much earlier, I think, in U.S. I suspect from cowboy roping, but also influenced by "thrown for a loss" (U.S. football) (Claiborne, 1966).

thrum, n. See thrumbuskins.

thrum, v.t. To thrash (a person): C.17—mid-19. (Dekker.) The vbl n. (a beating,) is recorded in 1823. Ex strumming a musical instrument. OED.—2. To coit with (a woman): C.17—early 19. Florio, 1610; Brydges, 1762.

thrumbuskins, thrummpop; thrum(m)s. Threepence: c.: thrum(m)s, late C.17–19; the other two forms (Vaux, 1812) are elaborations and rare. B.E. has thrumms, Grose thrumms; H. (all edd.) the latter. A corruption of threepence: cf. thrups (at threp). Dial. has thrum, a commission of 3d. per stone on flax (EDD). Thrum survived in Aus. for 'threepence', 'threepenny piece', into the C.20 (B., 1942). Cf.:-

thrummer. A threepenny bit: c. or low s.:—1859; † by 1910, except among grafters: witness cheapjack, 1934; M.T., 1979; but † with decimalisation in 1971. Ex prec.

thrum(m)s. See thrumbuskins.

thrupenny. See threepenny.

thrups. See threp.

thruster. One who in the field, thrusts himself forward or rides very close to the hounds: hunting s. >, ca. 1920, coll.: from 1885. Ex usual sense. (OED.) Also thrusting, n. and adj.—2. Hence, among motorists, one who thrusts his car—thrusting one's car—ahead of others: coll.: since ca. 1910.

thud, n. A figurative fall: Aus.: since ca. 1930. Gavin Casey, Downhill is Easier, 1945, 'You're heading for a thud with the yellow stuff, too.'

thud, v. To strike (a person) resoundingly: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1919. (Ruth Park, 1950.) Echoic.

thud and blunder. See skiet-skop-en-donder. Also in Brit. joc., this happy spoonerism for that type of entertainment, whether film, novel or play (P.B.).

thumb, n. For travel on the thumb, see hitch-hike.—2. See easy as kiss...

thumb, v. To drain (a glass) upon a thumb-nail (see supernaculum): coll.:? C.18—mid-19. F. & H. gives this term without quot'n; the OED has it not.—2. To possess (a woman): C.18–19. In C.20, only in well-thumbed (girl), 'a fourdered whore' (F. & H.). Ex thumb, to handle, paw, perhaps influenced by humble and tumble. P.B.: cf. well-thumbed applied to a book.—3. To ask (someone) for a 'lift' or free ride: coll.: 1940+. Ex thumb a lift from (someone). P.B.: still current, 1983: 'They thumbed their way to Paris and back'.

thumb crusher. Motorcycle speed wobble. See tank slapper.

thumb in bum and mind in neutral (, with). A c.p. applied to an attitude of vacant-minded uninterest, or, more kindly, to a person who knows how to relax and let his mind lie fallow: orig. Aus., from ca. 1960 (? earlier); by ca. 1965, adopted by Brit. Services. (P.B.)

thumber. A sandwich; a slice of bread and meat eaten between finger and thumb: low (mostly London): late C.19—early 20.

thumb; occ. thummie, -y. A little thumb; a pet-name for the thumb: coll.: from ca. 1810. (W. Tennant, 1811: OED). Rare in C.20.

thumby. 'Soiled by thumb-marks': coll.: from late 1890s. OED Sup.—2. Clumsy: coll.: 1909 (OED Sup.). Ex all thumbs.

thumbs up!, occ. prec. by put your. Be cheerful: C.20. Ex the gesture that spared the life of gladiators at Rome. Cf. tails up!—2. In give the thumbs up, to make this gesture, as a sign of agreement, that all is going well, etc.: coll.: since mid-C.20 (? earlier). (P.B.)

thump, n. An occ. late C.19–20 var. of thumper, 2. Man-chon.—2. In have a thump, to have one's chest finger-tapped; to be examined by the sanatorium doctor: TB patients': since ca. 1920.—3. See thatch thistle...

thump! 'I don't think'; it's—as is—very improbable: an ejaculation of dissent modifying the preceding statement: military in WWI. See esp. Ernest Raymond's fine war novel, The Jestin Army, 1930. Hence, among the lower and lower middle classes, as in Ernest Raymond, Mary Leith, 1931, 'Call me a business man! Am I? Thump! I'm going in for gardening.'

thump, v. To defeat; to lick, thrash (severely): coll.: 1594, Shakespeare; 1827, Scott, 'We have thumped the Turks very well.' Ex thump, to strike violently. (OED.) Cf. thrum, v.,

1.—2. To coit with (a woman): s. or coll.: C.17–20; ob. in C.19–20. Shakespeare in Winter's Tale, 'Delicate burthens of dildos and fadings, "jump her and thump her"'. Cf. thrum, v., 2, knock, and Kluge's proposed etym. of fuck.

thump on the back with a stone. See see better than a ... thump seven kinds (occ. shades of shit out of, (some-one). (Sometimes knock...) To 'lay into someone with the intention of really hurting him' (P.B., 1974): army, > gen. low: since ca. 1950.

thump-up. A var. of, but much less common than, punch-up, a fight: since ca. 1960. (P.B.)

thumped-in. (A landing that is) badly effected, necessitating the use of the engine: RAF: from 1932.

thumper. Anything unusually big: coll.: 1660 (Tatham, punningly of a dragon's tail). Cf. whacker, whopper, the semantics being that it 'strikes' one.—2. Hence, esp. a notable lie: 1677 (W. Hughes); Swift; J.R. Green, 1863. F. & H., and esp. OED.

thumpers. Dominoes (game): showmen's s.: mid-C.19–20. Ex noise made in falling.

thumping. Unusually large, heavy, or, of a lie, outrageous: coll.: 1576, Fleming, 'He useth great and thumping words'; Grose, 2nd ed., 'A thumping boy'; of a lie, app. not before C.19, though applied to commendation as early as 1671. (OED.) Cf. thumper, q.v.

thumpkin. A hay-filled barn: c.: late C.19–20. ? etym. Cf. skipper. P.B.: perhaps a kin or ken (= house) where one can thump down to sleep; cf. later crash=sleep.

thunder; by thunder!; (what, where, who, etc.) in thunder!; thunder and lightning!; thunder and turf! Imprecatively, exclamatorily, intensively used as s. (thunder and turf) or coll. (the rest): resp. C.18–20 (Steele); C.19–20; mid-C.19–20; late C.19–20, ob.; and ca. 1840–70 (Barham, Lover). Cf. the German imprecations and US thunderation!

thunder and lightning. See shrub.—2. Gin and bitters: C.19—early 20. Ex the effect. Also shrub and whiskey: Anglo-Irish: C.19. 'A Real Paddy', 1822.—3. Treacle and clotted cream; bread thus spread: s. and dial.:—1880 (Miss Braddon: EDD). The OED notes that senses 1 approximates to the dial. sense (brandy-sauce ignited); W. implies that sense 2 arises ex the colours, black (of thunder and treacle), yellow (of lightning and cream)—cf. pepper and salt.

thunder-box. A commode: esp. in India, or among those with service in India: since later C.19; slightly ob. by mid-C.20. Note, however, that it has, since ca. 1925, been common among submariners (P-G-R.). Cf.:-

thunder-mug. A chamber-pot: low: C.18—mid-19. Ex noise therein caused.

thunder-pump. See shite-poke, near end.

Thunderbirds. See quot'n at trog.

Thunderbomb, the; or HMS Thunderbomb. An imaginary ship of fabulous size: nautical coll.: ca. 1828, Buckstone in Billy Taylor, 'Straightway made her first lieutenant/Of the gallant Thunderbomb'; † by 1915. Cf. Swiss Navy, q.v.

Thunderer, The. The Times newspaper: journalistic s. (1840, Carlyle) >, ca. 1880, coll. Anon., The Siliad, 1874, 'If a small cloud in the East appear,/Then speaks The Thunderer,' and all men hear'; many critical notices in Jan. 1935 (notably in TLS, 3 Jan.). Ex its Olympian utterance and pronouncements + Jove (Iuppiter tonans) and his thunderbolts. Legend (see Pebody's English Journalism) has it that it was the writing (1830–40) of Edward Sterling ('Vetus') which gave The Times this name—orig. applied to Sterling himself.

thundering. Very forcible or violent: coll.: adumbrated in Hall, 1597, 'Graced with huff-cap terms and thundering threats'; 1618, T. Adams, 'He goes a thundering pace'; 1632, Lithgow, 'A thundering rage' (OED). Ex the noise made thereby or in that manner.—2. Hence, as an intensive: very large or great; excessive: 1678, Cotton, 'A thundering meal'; of a lie, app. not before mid-C.18.—3. Hence, as adv.: from not later than 1743 in Hervey's Memoirs, 'A thundering long sermon'; 1852, Dickens, 'A thundering bad son' (OED). S. >, by 1900, coll. Cf.:

thunderingly. Excessively: 1885, C. Gibbon, 'It's thunderingly annoying' (OED), but prob. much earlier, for Thornton records it, for US, in 1839: s. >, by 1900, coll. Ex lit. S.E. sense, but not very gen. Ex thundering, 2.

thunderstorm, like a dying duck (or pig) in a. See dying duck.

think. A facetious past participle of 'to think': Can.: since ca. 1935. 'Who'd have thought it?' (Leechman.)

thusly. Thus: US (1889) >, by 1893, Eng.: coll.; mostly joc. (OED.) Cf.:-

thusness. The state or condition of being thus: jocular coll.: US (1867, Artemus Ward) > anglicised ca. 1883. SOD. —2. Esp. why this thusness?, a pleonastic 'why?': 1888, Fergus Hume, 'Why all this thusness?' (OED—which records the simpler form in the same year). Slightly ob. [by 1930]—thank Heaven!

huzzy-muzzy. Enthusiasm: London lower classes': ca. 1890–1912. (Ware.) Ex enthusiasm on muzzy.

ti-ib! Good; all right!: army in the Middle East, WW1, and before. (F. & G.) Arabic tay-ib.

ti-toki. A mixed drink of beer, lemonade and raspberry: NZ: C.20. Ex Maori.

ti-tree oneself; be ti-treed. To take shelter from artillery fire: NZ soldiers': WW1. Ex Maori custom of retreating to the bush at time of the Maori War. See prec.

tib. A bit: back s.:—1851 (Mayhew, 1). Hence tib fo occabot, a little tobacco.—2. A goose: c.: late C.18—early 19. Abbr. next.—3. See St Tib's (or Tibb's) Eve.

tib of(f) the buttery. A goose: c.: ca.1620–1830. (Fletcher, B.E., Grose.) Broome, 1641, 'Here's grunter and bleater with tib of the butt'ry./And Margery Prater, all dress'd without slutt'ry.'

tib and fib. Tibia and fibula: medical coll.: late C.19–20. C. Brand, Green for Danger, 1945.

tib out, v.i. To break bounds: schools', mainly Public and esp. Charterhouse: 1840 (J.T. Hewlett: OED); 1855, Thackeray. Also tibble: late C.19–20. Etym. obscure: perhaps ex tip (oneself) out, to get out by giving a tip.

Tib's. See St Tib's...

Tibb's. See St Tib's...

tibby, n. A cat: late C.18—mid-19. (Grose, 3rd ed.) Ex tabby + dial. tib(by)-cat, a female cat.—2. The head: low: ca. 1810–1910. ('Jon Bee', 1823; Sinks, 1848.) Esp. in phrases signifying 'to take unawares', as in Vance, ca. 1866, 'For to get me on the hop, or on my tibby drop, /You must wake up very early in the mornin'.' a corruption of Fr. tête mispronounced.—3. A 'tabloid' newspaper: Aus.: since ca. 1930. (B., 1943.) P.B.:? tabby thinned by Aus. pron.

tibby, adj. Very eccentric; mad: Charterhouse School: C.20. Cf. tib out.

tibby drop. Hop: rhyming s.: late C.19–20. P.B.: cf. tibby, n., 2, q.v.

Tic. A member of the Tics or Authentics' Cricket Club: Oxford: C.20. Marples, 2.

tic-tac, tick-tack. Gen. t.-t. man (1899), occ. t.-t. telegraphy (1905): OED. N. and adj. (characteristic of, concerned with) the system of 'telegraphy'—actually, signalling with the arms—used by bookmakers communicating a change in the odds or some significant information to outside bookmakers: sporting. Occ. as v., to signal thus: 1907 (OED Sup.); likewise coll. >, by 1935, S.E. Ex the onomatopœia representing an alternating ticking (as of a clock), perhaps influenced by tape, n., 2. Hence, tick-tacker. P.B.: but Franklyn, Rhyming, considers it to be a slurring of tin-tack(s), the var. of brass tacks, rhyming s. for 'facts', adopted by Cockneys after brass tacks moved up the social register. Thus the 'tick-tacker' is signalling the facts. As plausible as E.P.'s etymology, anyway!—2. See:- tic-toc or -tac. A signaller: military: 1914+. (F. & G.) In the -tac form, ex tic-tac, 1; it was suggested by 'the sound of the telegraphic instrument'.

ticca. See ticker, 3.

tice. A ball 'something between a half-volley and a Yorker'; cricketers': from ca. 1840; ob. (Lewis.) I.e. an enticer.

'tice, v. To entice, decoy; gen. in passive: lower-class coll.: C.19–20. (Mayhew, 1861.) Also in dial.

Tich. A nickname given to any small man: C.20. E.g. 'Tich' Freeman, Kent's googly bowler. Ex 'Little Tich', stage-name of the comedian Harry Relph, 1867–1928. It has also, since ca. 1925, been a nickname conferred by females upon a female.—2. Inseparable nickname of men surnamed Little: C.20.—3. In no Tich!, no talk about the Tichborne case!: Society: 1870s. Ware (at pas de Lafarge). See:-

Tichborne's Own. The 6th Dragoon Guards: military: from ca. 1872; ob. Sir Roger Tichborne, of the famous trial (1871–4), served therein in 1849. Also the Wagga-Wagga Guards, q.v.

tichy, titchy. Little, small: mostly children's: C.20. Ex Tich, 1. (P.B.)

tick, n. An objectionable or meanly contemptible person, though rarely of a female: C.17–20: S.E. until mid-C.19 or so;? 'submerged' for years; in C.20, s. (Lyell.) E.g. 'That awful little tick!' Ex the insect parasite.—2. Credit, trust; reputed solvency: coll. >, in C.19, s.: 1668, Sedley, 'I confess my tick is not good, and I never desire to game for more than I have about me'; 1901, Sporting Times, 17 Aug., 'During my late Oxford days, I got put up to at least twenty different ways of getting tick.' Ex (upon tick, esp. run on tick, to buy on credit; run up a debt or into debt: 1642 (OED): coll. >, ca. 1800, s. A var. is go on tick (1672, Wycherley) or go tick (1861, Hughes): OED. Thus (upon tick, on credit—though, despite the dates, this prob. preceded run on tick, for we find (upon tick) ticket (on note of hand) a generation or so earlier: ticket being abbr. to tick.—3. Hence, a score or reckoning, a debit account: coll. >, ca. 1800, s.; in C.20, ob.: 1681, Pridaux (Dean of Norwich), 'The Mermaid Tavern [at Oxford] is lately broke, and our Christ Church men bear the blame of it, our ticks, as the noise of the town will have it, amounting to 1500l.'; Thackeray, 1862.—4. A watch: c. of ca. 1780–1800. (Parker, 1789.) Cf. ticker, 2, q.v. Ex the sound.—5. A second, moment; properly and etym., the time elapsing between two ticks of the clock: coll.: adumbrated by Browning in 1879, but not gen. before the late 1890s. Esp. in a tick or (1904, Jerome K. Jerome) in two ticks, and to the tick, with meticulous punctuality (1907, Phyllis Dare of theatrical fame). OED. P.B.: also in half a tick; just a tick; wait a tick!—6. Esp. in have a tick on, to be monotonously or constantly complaining: army: since ca. 1920. Ex v., 6. P-G-R.—7. A professional shadower: espionage: since (?) ca. 1945. Adam Hall, The Mandarin Cypher, 1975, 'The opposition-in-place in whatever city are very watchful and you can pick up ticks just by stopping to do up your shoe-lace.'—8. See buy on the never tick; full as a tick.

tick, v.i. To buy, deal, on credit: coll. >, ca. 1800, s. (in C.20, ob.): 1648, Winyard (OED). Ex n., 1, q.v.—2. Hence, to run into debt: 1742 (Fielding: OED); ob.—3. V.t., to have (an amount) entered against one: coll. >, ca. 1800, s.; ob.: 1674 (S. Vincent: OED); ca. 1703, T. Brown, 'Pretty nymphs... forced to tick half a sice a-piece for their watering.'—4. V.i., to grant credit; supply goods, etc., on credit: coll. >, ca. 1800, s.; in C.20, rare: 1712, Arbuthnot, 'The money went to the lawyers; counsel won't tick.'—5. Hence (v.t.), to grant credit to (a person): 1842, 'Nimrod' Apperley, 'He never refused a tandem, and he ticked me for a terrier at once' (OED); ob. by 1930.—6. V.i., to grumble: military: from 1916 or 1917. (F. & G.) Prob. ex tick off, 2. P.B.: or from an unexploded bomb ticking menacingly? Cf. tick like fuck.—7. To salute (a master): Rugby: since mid-1920s. Marples.—8. See tick off; tick over; tick up; what makes (someone) tick.

tick being no go. No credit given: low:—1857 ('Ducange Anglicus'). See tick, n., 2.

tick down. See mark-off.

tick-jammer. The man that presses wool into bales: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) I.e. sheep-ticks.

tick like fuck. To grumble like the very devil: army: since ca. 1940. Cf. tick, v., 6. The degrees of disgruntledness among troops of the 8th Army were, brassed off, browned off, cheesed off, and ticking like fuck (a correspondent, 1965). P.B.: a gentler version, in 1950s–60s, was tick like a meter, usu. 'they were ticking like meters.'

tick-off, n. A fortune-teller; gen. in work the tick-off, to practise fortune-telling; grafters': late C.19–20. Cheapjack, 1934, 'Dates from the time when grafters working this line sold cards on which were printed various... statements.' —2. See mark-off.

tick off, v. To identify: coll.: C.20. Ex tick off a person's name on a list. —2. Hence, from ca. 1916 (orig. military), to reproach, upbraid, blame; esp. to reprimand. 'I ticked him off good and proper.' Partly influenced by tell off, q.v.

Tick-Offs' Gaff, the. Hull Fair: grafters': late C.19–20. (Cheapjack, 1934.) Fortune-tellers have always flourished there. See tick-off, n.

tick over, v.i. To come; to act, function: from ca. 1930. F. Keston Clarke, in The Humourist, 28 July 1934, of water-divining, 'How shall I know when the influence is ticking over?' Ex motoring j. —2. Hence, in be ticking over (often with nicely added), to be feeling, moving, progressing, satisfactorily: since ca. 1939. (Claiborne, 1977.)

tick-tack. Sexual intercourse: coll.: mid-C.16–20. (Weaver, Lusty Juventus, ca. 1550.) Ex the onomatopoeia. —2. In done in a tick-tack, quickly done: low coll.:—1887 (Baumann). —3. In give the tick-tack, to give the agreed word, or notice or warning: Glasgow c.: C.20. (MacArthur & Long.) Ex tic-tac and give the tip or word.

tick-tacker, one practising such telegraphy as that mentioned in the tic-tac entry: 1912 (OED).

tick-tock. A clock: children's coll.: C.19–20. —2. As n. or adj., as in 'Real tick-tock he was—proper little action-man [q.v.]:' army s. implying a brainless, well-drilled automatism: mid-1960s—mid-70s. (P.B.)

tick up, v.t. To put to account: late C.19–20. Ex tick, v., 3.—2. V.i., to run into debt: late C.19—early 20. Elab. of tick, v., 2.—3. Of, e.g., a taxi-meter, 'It had already ticked up a couple of quid, and we'd only just started!'; of any mechanical device for marking increase: coll.: C.20. (P.B.)

ticker. A fraudulent debtor by profession: c. of mid-C.18. Recorded in title of anon., The Thief-Catcher, 1753 (OED). Ex tick, v., 1 and 2.—2. A watch: c. (1800, the Oracle) >, before 1864 (see H., 3rd ed.), 'street', i.e. low, s. >, by 1890, gen. s. Ex the noise: cf. Fr. tocante and tick, n., 4. Rarely and (I consider) improperly, a clock: the OED records an instance in 1910.—3. 'Any person or thing engaged by the job, or on contract': Anglo-Indian coll.:—1886. Properly ticca (ex Hindustani). Y. & B.—4. The heart: low (in US, c.): late C.19–20. Because it keeps the body's time.—5. An account; an invoice or a statement: from ca. 1910: esp. among publishers. Ex S.E. ticker, a stock-indicator.—6. A taxi-meter: taxi-drivers': since ca. 1910. Cf. clock, n., 4.—7. One who is constantly, esp. if monotonously, complaining: army: since ca. 1920. (P-G-R.) Cf. tick, v., 6.—8. A telephone: army: ca. 1930–45. Ibid.

ticker is diving (, the or one's). A c.p. ref. to a heart attack: since ca. 1930, at which point in US–UK economic-financial history, there may have been a wry-smiling pun on ticker, 4, and ticker-tape machine, as Robert Claiborne has suggested to me, 1976.

ticket, n. A certificate: nautical s. (late 1890s) >, ca. 1920, coll. Chiefly captain's or mate's ticket. Ex ticket, a licence. Also, since ca. 1919, an RAF or civil pilot's certificate (Jackson). —2. A trade union contribution card: industrial coll.: since ca. 1910.—3. (Usu. pl.) A playing card: card-, esp. bridge-, players': since ca. 1935.—4. 'Warrant to arrest or search' (Powis): police and underworld: later C.20.—5. As the ticket, the requisite, needed, correct, or fashionable thing to do. Esp. that's the ticket: 1838 (Haliburton: OED); 1854, Thackeray, 'Very handsome and... finely dressed—only somehow she's not—she's not the ticket, you see.' (See also very cheese, the.) Perhaps ex the winning ticket. P.B.: but cf. 'And we may observe that the Gents usually speak of their get-up as the ticket—the term possibly being used in allusion to the badge which distinguished their various articles of dress when exposed for sale' (Albert Smith, Natural History of the Gent, 1847), and the later C.19 what's the ticket? what's the price?—6. The plan or procedure; the job, on (or in) hand: 1842, Marryat, 'What's the ticket, youngster—are you to go abroad with me?'—7. In be (one's) ticket, to appeal to one, be of his kind: from ca. 1920. (Evelyn Waugh, A Handful of Dust, 1934.) Often abbr. to tea (properly t),—see Evelyn Waugh, Ibid.—but cf. cup of tea, q.v.—8. In be on the straight ticket, to live respectably: lower classes':—1923 (Manchon). Perhaps ex:—9. In on ticket, on ticket-of-leave (from prison): police coll.: C.20. Francis Carlin, Reminiscences of an Ex-Detective, 1927.—10. In have the run of the ticket, to buy on credit, run up debts: late C.19. An elab. of tick, n., 2, 3.—11. In take a ticket, to receive a 'ticket': Winchester College: since ca. 1870. E.H. Lacon Watson, In the Days of His Youth, 1935, 'A ticket... was a species of plenary indulgence, granted on the rarest of occasions by a prefect to whom an inferior had rendered some invaluable and unasked service. It meant, practically, immunity from any punishment for the next offence that came to the said prefect's notice.'—12. In, e.g., 'He's just not the ticket', he is either physically not completely fit, or more usu., somewhat mentally deficient: coll.: C.20. Cf. the Thackeray quo't'n at sense 5. (P.B.)—13. See meal ticket; that's the ticket!; work (one's) ticket, which includes get a (or one's) ticket.

ticket, v. To sentence (someone) to imprisonment: low: ca. 1880–1920. Fergus Hume, Hagar of the Pawn Shop, 1898.

ticket for soup, that's the. You've got it—be off!: c.p. of ca. 1859–1910. Cf. ticket, n., 5, which it elaborates. H., 2nd ed., '[From] the card given to beggars for immediate relief at soup kitchens'.

ticket man. A distributor of tickets for a meal and/or a bed: tramps' c.:—1933. Cf. slice, 2, q.v. for 'authority'. Cf. ticketer, q.v.

ticket of leave. A holiday; an outing: lower classes': ca. 1870–1900. (Ware.) Ex S.E. sense.

ticket-of(f)-leaver. A gen. term of abuse: coll.: ca. 1855–1900. Surtees, Ask Mamma, 1858.

ticket(-snapper). A ticket collector: railwaymen's: C.20. Railway.

ticketer. One who hands out, or checks, cards in a casual ward: tramps' and beggars' c.:—1887 (Baumann).

tickets on (one)self, have. To be vain or conceited: Aus.: C.20. (B.P.) Ex lotteries, raffles, sweepstakes, etc.; 'fancied to win'.

ticketty-boo; tickety-boo; tiggerty-boo. Correct; arranged; safe; satisfactory: Services', perhaps orig. RAF: since early 1920s. The 3rd is perhaps the oldest form: Jackson derives it ex 'the Hindustani teega'; this has prob. been influenced by ticket, n., 5, as in just the ticket, absolutely correct; Partridge, 1945, 'For the second element, cf. peek-a-boo, [a sketchy salute]'. Also Civil Service since ca. 1945. All forms are occ. written solid. 'A Guards officer was in charge of all the correspondents [for the funeral of King George VI, 1952].... his voice half-strangled with grief, he just said, 'I'm quite sure that everything must be ticketty-boo on the day of the race'' (Miss Audrey Russell, MVO, in Sunday Telegraph mag., 26 Aug. 1979). Another suggested etym. is ex Hindi tikai babu, 'it's all right, sir'. Cf. teek-hi, q.v., with its variants tickeye and tig. E.P.; P.B.

tickey, tickie; tickey-nap. See ticky; ticky nap.

ticking, vbl n. The taking of goods on credit: mid-C.18–20. See tick, v., 1, 2.

ticking, adj. Disgruntled in the ultimate degree: army in N. Africa: 1940–3. (Peter Sanders, Sunday Times mag., 10 Sep. 1967.) Cf. tick like fuck. —2. Ppl. adj. of tick, v., 1, 2, etc.: 1673, Wycherley (sense 1). OED.

ticking-off, vbl n. A reprimand: coll.: see tick off, v., 2.

tickle, n. A robbery; esp. a burglary: c. since ca. 1920. (Sharpe of the Flying Squad, 1938.) A joc. meiosis. Cf. v., 2, and:—2. 'Successful crime or a worthwhile arrest, especially if unexpected. Sometimes, a medium-sized betting success: "A nice little tickle!"' (Powis): police and underworld: later C.20.

tickle, v. To puzzle (a person): coll.: later C.19—early 20. (H., 5th ed., 1874.) Ex dial.: cf. tickler, 1.—2. To steal from, to rob, as in tickle a peter, to rob the till: NZ c.,—1932; Aus. (Baker, letter, 1946). Perhaps ex to tickle trout, but cf. prec.—3. Prob. hence, to ask (someone) for a loan: Aus.: since ca. 1925. B., 1942.

tickle (someone's) ears. To flatter him: coll.: earlier C.20. (Lyell.) Contrast guardee, 2.

tickle (a, or the) peter. See tickle, v., 2, and peter, n. 9.

tickle-pitcher. 'A Toss-pot, or Pot-companion' (B.E.): coll.: late C.17—early 19.—2. 'A lewd Man or Woman' (A New Canting Dict., 1725): low C.18. A pun on the fig. sense of pitcher.

tickle (someone's) sneezer. To punch, even to break, his nose: pugilistic: ca. 1810—50. Anon., Every Night Book, 1827.

tickle-tail. A wanton; the penis: ? S.E. or low coll.: C.17—20; ob.—2. A schoolmaster; his rod: coll.:—1785; ob. (Grose, 1st ed.) Cf. tickle-toby.—3. For tickle-tail function, see HARLOTS, in Appendix.

tickle-text. A parson: from ca. 1780; very ob. by 1930. Grose, 1st ed.

tickle the tintinabulum. Ring the bell (for the servant): joc.—pedantic domestic: 1920s. (Brian W. Aldiss, 1978.)

tickle-Thomas. The female pudend: low: C.19—early 20. Cf. Thomas, q.v.

tickle-toby. A rod or birch: coll.: 1830 (Bentham: OED).—2. A wanton; the penis: ? C.17—19. (F. & H.) Cf. tickle-pitcher, 2, and tickle-tail.

tickle (one's) turnip. See turnip, 4.

tickle your fancy. A male homosexual: rhyming s., on Nancy: C.20. Franklyn 2nd.

tickle your tail, Fl. A joc. coll. threat of punishment: late C.19—20. Ex S.E. tickle, ironic for 'to chastise'.

tickled. Amused, as 'She was very tickled when I told her': coll.: C.20. Ex the physical effect. (P.B.) Cf.:

tickled pink. Immensely pleased: late C.19—20. 'I'll be tickled pink to accept the offer.' To the point of blushing with pleasure.

tickler. A thing (occ. person) hard to understand or deal with, a puzzler or 'teaser' (q.v.): dial. (—1825) >, ca. 1840, coll.; ob.—2. A strong drink: low: late C.19—20. Manchon.—3. The penis: low: C.19—20.—4. 'Anything worn on the penis to increase friction during coitus' (B.P., 1974): low coll.: C.20.—5. As Tickler(s), jam: Services': from late 1915. Ex Tickler's jam, the usual brand.—6. Hence, a hand-grenade made from a jam-tin: army: 1915+.—7. A cigarette 'made from the monthly issue of naval tobacco' (Bowen): RN: since ca. 1910. 'It is tinned by the firm of Tickler's [see 5] ... To roll a tickler is to make a cigarette from Navy tobacco' (Granville). The effect on the throat may also be relevant.—8. Hence, a cigarette-smoker: RN: from ca. 1912. Bowen.—9. A short-service rating enlisted under Lord Selborne's scheme: 1903—18, then nostalgically. Peppitt cites Frederick Jane, History of the Royal Navy, 1915. Likewise ex the jam, introduced into the Navy at about the time of the scheme (1903). Cf. Selborne's Light Horse. In 'Taffrail', Pincher Martin, 1916, it appears simply as a derogatory term for an ordinary seaman: lowerdeck, and ob. by 1940.—10. A short poker used to save an ornamental one: domestic: from ca. 1870. B. & L.—11. A whip: proletarian: from ca. 1860. Ibid.—12. See Kruger's tickler.

ticklers. See prec., 5—8.—2. Tinned tobacco, whether for pipe or for cigarette: RN: since ca. 1920.

Tickler's Artillery. Hand-grenades (see prec., 6); those who used them: army: 1915+. B. & P. tickling. See stop your ...!; guardee, 2.

tickrum. A licence: c.: ca. 1670—1830. (Coles; Grose, 1st ed.) A corruption of ticket.

ticks. Debts, obligations: sporting:—1887 (Baumann); ob. by 1930. Ex tick, n., 2.

ticky, tickey, or tickle; occ. tiki, tikki, tikkie. A threepenny piece: S. African coll.: from ca. 1850. Etym. obscure: perhaps ex an African's attempt at ticket (OED) or at threepenny; perhaps—though much less likely—suggested by Romany tikeno, tikno, small, little; prob., however, as Pettman ably shows, ex Portuguese, hence Malayan, pataca († Fr. patac). The name holds good for the S. African equivalent 2½-cent coin that has superseded the threepenny bit.

ticky, adj. Verminous: army coll.: C.20. (F. & G.) Ex Lancashire dial. (EDD). Cf.:

ticky nap. A game of nap(oleon) with a 'ticky' stake for each trick: late C.19—20: S. African. (Pettman.) See ticky, n.

Ticky Tins, the. Royal Horse Guards' nickname for the Life Guards. See quo'n at Tasty Blues.

Tics. Peripatetics (a team within the School): Charterhouse: C.20. By abbr.

tid. A drunkard: Aus. low: since ca. 1925. (B., 1942.) Ex tiddly, drunk.—2. The D-Day, 6 June 1944, invasion fleet 'included the most powerful tugs in the world and also the "tids" (short for tiddlers)—prefabricated little fellows mass-produced in Yorkshire' (Ministry of Information, News Clip, 15 Nov. 1944). Also short for tiddler, 5 (Granville).—3. 'Must be in a good tid, the W.O. No belowing, no binding' (John Macadam, The Reluctant Erk): RAF: since ca. 1935. Meaning 'temper, mood', tid may derive ex tide, 'time'.—4. (A) Chinese: army in Hong Kong, esp. Middlesex Regt: mid-C.20. Abbr. rhyming Tiddlywink, 4. See also choguey. (P.B.)—5. (Also tidd.) A children's abbr., late C.19—20, of tiddler, 1. Collinson.

tidapathy. Indifference: among Britons in Malaya: since ca. 1925. 'Tid'apa: it does not matter. Tidapathy' (Denis Godfrey, A Tale That Is Told, 1949). A punning blend: cf. scapathy.

tiddery. See tiddly.

tiddipol. 'A overdressed fat young woman in humble life' (Halliwell): provincial: C.19. Cf.:

tiddivate, tidivate. See tidivate.

tiddle, v.i. To fidget, potter: S.E. until ca. 1830, then dial. and coll.: 1748 (Richardson); slightly ob. by 1930.—2. V.t., to advance slowly or by small movements (e.g. a ball, wheelbarrow); tiddle a girl, to master her very gradually: coll.: mid-C.19—20. Perhaps ex dial. tiddle, to tickle, possibly influenced by diddle; much more prob. by a development of sense ex S.E. (in C.19—20, dial. and coll.) tiddle, to pamper, to fondle excessively.—3. To urinate: children's and joc.: C.20. Cf. synon. widdle.

tiddle-a-wink. See tiddlywink.

tiddlebat. See titlebat.

tiddled. Tipsy: from ca. 1920. Cf. tiddly, drunk, and tiddle, 3.

tiddled off. Annoyed, cross, 'fed up'; euph. for pissed off (cf. tiddle, 3): Paul Pickering, quoting RAF NCO's disgruntled wife, in New Society, 4 Aug. 1977. (P.B.)

tiddler. A stickleback, or minnow: children's coll.: 1885 (OED). Ex tittlebat, tiddlebat, a popular form. In Aus., any small fish (B.P.). P.B.: hence, anything small, e.g. child, small animal, 'He's only a tiddler'.—2. A feather (-brush) for tickling: C.20. Notably used on Mafeking night, whence dates the name. Ex tiddle, to tickle.—3. 'Thingamy', 'thingummy bob': lower classes': 1912, A. Neil Lyons, 'Clara, steady on with that tiddler!' (Manchon).—4. A É1 note: Aus.: from ca. 1920. (Baker.) Cf. fiddly did, a quid.—5. A midget submarine: RN: 1942. Ex sense 1; often abbr. tid (Granville). Cf. tid, 2, q.v.—6. An easy, short putt: golfers': since ca. 1920. Dominic Devine, The Sleeping Tiger, 1968.—7. A small motorcycle: motorcyclists: later C.20. (Dunford.) Cf. sense 1.

tiddler's bait. Late: rhyming s.: C.20. Franklyn, Rhyming.

tiddley. See tiddly and titley.

tiddlewinks, tiddlewink. See tiddlywink(s).

tiddies. A rating's best clothes: RN: C.20. See tiddly, adj.,

3.—2. In run tiddlies, to run over unsafe ice: provincial: mid-C.19–20.

tiddling. A vbl n. ex tiddler, 1, q.v.: nursery coll.: C.20.

tiddly, n. A threepenny bit: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (Baker.) Ex its smallness; cf. tiddler, 1; but see tiddler, 4.—2. A 'tailor-made' cigarette: RN: WW2.—3. See titley; tiddlywink, 2.

tiddly, adj. Drunk: low >, by earlier C.20, gen: since late C.19. Ex titley, n. P.B.: but see also tiddlywink, 2.—2. Little: dial. and nursery coll.: C.19–20.—3. Naval adjective meaning the acme of smartness and efficiency, hence tiddley ship, one that is pusser [q.v.] to the *n*th degree... from tidy, influenced by titivate' (Granville): since late C.19. Bowen. Cf.:-

tiddly bull. 'Ceremony; Service etiquette; preparation to receive some exalted person on board' (Granville): RN: since ca. 1930. Ex prec., 4, and bullshit.

Tiddly Chats. 'Chatham Depot and Naval barracks, known as HMS Pembroke... This historic establishment closed down in 1961' (Granville): RN: C.20. 'Taffrair'.

Tidd(ey) Dike (Railway), the. The Midland and South-Western Railway: railwaymen's: ca. 1890–1925. Railway.

tiddly oggy. Occ. var. of tiddy oggy. H. & P.

tiddly push! A nonsense-word meaning au revoir: ca. 1920–40. (Petch, 1974.) Cf. synon. tinkety tonk, toodle-oo (or pip).—2. Usu. old tiddly-push, male equivalent of 'Mrs Thing', a 'shorthand' for someone whose name momentarily escapes one: coll.: C.20. (P.B.) Cf.:—3. In and tiddly (or tiddlerly) push, and the rest of it; and so on: a c.p. (—1923) 'used to replace any statement... considered... too long or too involved to be expressed in full' (Kastner & Marks, at the Fr. equivalent, et patati et patata). Manchon.

Tiddly Quid, the. HMS Royal Sovereign: RN: earlier C.20. (Bowen; P-G-R.) A pun on quid = a sovereign. See also quid, 6, and tiddly, adj., 3.

tiddly suit. 'Best shore-going uniform' (Granville): RN: C.20. Cf. tiddlies; tiddly, adj., 3.

tiddlywink, n.; also tid(d)leywink, tiddle-a-wink. An unlicensed house (pawnbroker's, beer-shop, brothel, etc.): 1844 (J.T. Hewlett; OED). Perhaps ex titley, q.v. + wink (cf. on the sty). Also kiddlywink.—2. A drink: rhyming s.: since later C.19. (D.W. Barrett, Navvies, 1880.) Jack Jones, ed., Rhyming Cockney Slang, 1971, 'Come for a little tiddly'. Franklyn, Rhyming, remarks, 'It is applied more frequently to "shorts" (short drinks, wines and spirits), than to beer', and suggests that it may be the orig. of tiddly, drunk.—3. A sickly, very thin child: lower classes':—1923 (Manchon). Ex the adj.—4. A Chinese: rhyming s., on Chink: C.20. See tid, 4.—5. See tiddlywinks.

tiddlywink, v.i. To spend imprudently or with unsanctioned excess: Aus.: 1888, 'Boldrewood', 'He's going too fast... I wonder what old Morgan would say to all this here tiddley-winkin', with steam engine, and wire fences'; ob. Ex the n.; rare except in the form of the vbl.n.

tiddlywink, adj. Slim, puny: from ca. 1863; ob. by 1930. (H., 3rd ed.) Not because tiddlywinks is considered a feeble, futile game, for it is recorded later, but ex tiddlywink, n., 1. Occ. tillywink.

tiddlywinker. A cheat; a trifler: resp. 1893 (OED), ca. 1895. Ultimately ex tiddlywink, n., 1, but imm., though nuance 2 is perhaps influenced by tiddlywinks, ex-tiddlywinking, adj. Pottering; trifling: 1869 (OED). Ex tiddlywink, n., 1. tiddlywinks. Knick-knacks of food: 1893 (J.A. Barry: OED). Perhaps influenced by tiddly, adj., 2.—2. Twins: since 1960 at latest. Petch cites ITV, 24 Nov. 1974. Cf. kiddie winks, and tiddlywink, 3.—3. In play tiddlywinks, to copulate: euph. or trivial: C.20—4. For terms used in the game, see TIDDLYWINKS, in Appendix.

tiddy. Small, tiny: dial. (—1781) >, by 1860, coll., esp. nursery coll. (OED Sup.) Perhaps ex a confusion of tiny + little.—2. (Of clothes) pretty; pretty-pretty: Society: ca.

1930–9. (Margery Allingham, The Fashion in Shrouds, 1938.) Ex tiddyvate = titivated.

tiddy iddy. A reduplication of prec., 1: 1868 (W.S. Gilbert: OED Sup.).

tiddy oggie or oggy. A Cornish pastie made of meat and potatoes: RN: C.20. Often simply oggie, as in the naval chorus: 'Carry me back to the West Country, where the oggies grow on trees: cor, bugger!, Janner.' Perhaps orig. tatie oggy, as that var. suggests; or ex tidbit (= titbit); oggie seems to be a fanciful arbitrariness, it does not appear in EDD. (E.P.; P.B.) Cf. formation of timmyoggy, q.v.

tiddyvate, tidivate. See titivate.

tiddlywink. See tiddlywink.

tidemark. The dirty mark so many children leave when they wash their neck: joc.: late C.19–20. Hence, I see the tide is high this morning: domestic c.p.: C.20.

tidgen. Night: back s.: C.20. Esp. on tidgen, on night-work: 'Working from 5 p.m. until midnight' (London Evening News, 13 Nov. 1936); 'Night work done by tugmen and lightermen on the river [Thames]' (Granville). Cf. midties.

tidy. Fairly meritorious or satisfactory; (of a person) decent, nice: coll.: 1844, Dickens, 'For a coastguardsman... rather a tidy question' (OED). Ex † S.E. tidy, excellent, worthy.—2. (In amount, degree) considerable: coll.: Bill Truck, Sep. 1823, 'a pretty tidy handling [at fisticuffs]'. Hence, a tidy few, a good many, a tidy penny, very fair earnings, etc. Cf. sense 1, and the adv.

tidy, v.t., often with up. To make orderly, clean, etc.: from ca. 1820: in serious contexts, familiar S.E.; in trivial, coll. Ex tidy, in good condition, clean.—2. Hence, v.i.: coll.: 1853, Dickens, 'I have tidied over and over again, but it's useless.'—3. Also ex sense 1: tidy away or up, to stow away, clear up, for tidiness' sake: coll.: 1867 (OED).—4. See tidy (someone) up, in AUSTRALIAN UNDERWORLD, in Appendix.

tidy, adv. Pretty well; a good deal; finely, comfortably: dial. and low coll.: 1824 (OED); 1899, Whiteing, "'Was you knoeked about much...?" "Pretty tidy."

tie. See tye.—2. The need of constant attendance (e.g. on invalids or children); restraint, or deficiency, of freedom: coll. and dial.: C.20.—3. Thigh: London tailors':—1909 (Ware). Only as applied to a leg of mutton.

tie a noose. To get married. See VERBS, in Appendix.

tie'em down. To set hand-brakes: Can. railroadmen's coll.: C.20.

tie (one's) hair or wool. To puzzle (a person): tailors': later C.19.

tie in with. To link up with (plans, or disposition of forces): army coll.: since ca. 1930. P-G-R.

tie it up. See tie up, v., 1.

tie-mate. A particular friend: naval coll.: mid-C.18—early 19. Bowen.

tie-o(h). See tyo(h).

tie one on. To get (very) drunk: adopted, ex US, later C.20. 'You have your problem drinker who ties one on in the evenings and at weekends' (Now!, 16 Apr. 1981). Cf. synon. hang one on, q.v.

tie-up, n. A knock-out blow, a 'settler': boxing: 1818 (OED). Ex lit. sense (cf. cricket j.).—2. (?) Hence, a conclusion; a finale: 1823 (Blackwood's, Dec.: Moe).—3. An obstruction, stoppage, closure: from late 1880s: coll. >, by 1920, S.E.

tie up, v. To forswear: c.: mid-C.19—early 20. E.g. tie up priggish, to live honestly. Ex the parallel s. sense, to desist, to desist from—a sense recorded by OED for 1760 (Foote).—3. To knock out; boxing: from ca. 1810. (Vaux.) Cf. tied-up, 1.—4. To join in marriage: coll. >, ca. 1910, s.: 1894 (Astley: OED).—5. To get (a woman) with child: low: C.19—early 20.

tie up a dog. To obtain credit for drinks at a hotel: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Cf. dog, n., 13, a drinking debt, and the occ. early C.20 var. chain up a pup.

tie up your stockings! No heel-taps!: Oxford University: late C.19—early C.20. Ware.

tie with St Mary's knot. To hamstring: Scots coll.: 1784 (The Political Museum: F. & H.).

tie (one's) wool. See tie (one's) hair.

tied to the sour-apple tree. Married to a bad-tempered husband: semi-proverbial coll.: late C.17–18. Ray; Bailey. (Apperson.) Via crab-apple.

tied up. Finished, settled: orig., boxing, since early C.19. Cf. tie up, n., 1, and v., 3. H., 1st ed.—2. Costive: from ca. 1870.—3. Hanged; low:—1923 (Manchon).—4. Thoroughly prepared; in perfect order: Services': since ca. 1925. Ex sense 1. Cf. buttoned up; sewn up.—5. Married. See tie up, v., 4, and cf. prec.

tied with the tongue that cannot be untied with the teeth, a knot. See knot tied with the tongue.

tiago. Vertigo: sol. or low coll.: C.17. Massinger, 1634. OED.

tier-ranger. Thief, ranging over tiers of moored vessels [and] picking up loose gear from their decks: MN: early C.19' (Peppitt).

tiers, mountains; tiersman, one living in the mountains: Tasmanian: late C.19–20. B., 1942.

'ties, be in (one's). To have reached the age of twenty: coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Abbr. twenties. (By the way, in his sixties and in the Sixties, etc., are S.E.—not, as is sometimes stated, coll.)

tiff. Liquor, esp. if thin or inferior: from ca. 1630; ob. by 1870, † by 1930: coll. >, ca. 1750, s. Corbet, ca. 1635 (OED); Fielding; Scott. Perhaps of echoic origin.—2. Hence, a small draught (rarely of other than diluted liquor, esp. punch): coll. (—1727) >, ca. 1750, s. Bailey; Scott.—3. A slight outburst of temper or ill-humour: coll.—1727 (Bailey); Thackeray, 1840, 'Numerous tiffs and quarrels'. Etym. problematic, but possibly ex (the effects implied by) sense 1; cf., however, echoic huff and sniff.—4. Hence, a slight quarrel, a briefly peevish disagreement: coll.: 1754 (Richardson).—5. Ex sense 1: a gust of laughter, etc.: coll.: 1858 (Carlyle: OED). Rare, and ob. by 1930.

tiff, v.i., occ. t. (The rare form tift occurs only in sense 3.) To lie (with a woman): c.: late C.17—early 19. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) Cf. the rare or 'nonce' tiffity-taffety girls, harlots (late C.16), and the C.15 (? later) tiff, to be idly employed.—2. V.t., to drink, esp. slowly or in sips: ca. 1769–1850. Combe, 1811, 'He tiff'd his punch, and went to rest.' Ex tiff, n., 2, q.v.—3. V.i., to have a tiff, be peevish or pettish: coll.:—1727 (Bailey); 1777, Sheridan, 'We tifted a little before going to church, and fairly quarrelled before the bells had done ringing'; ob. by 1930. Ex tiff, n., 4.—4. To have, eat, lunch: Anglo-Indian coll. (1803, Elphinstone: Y. & B.) >, ca. 1850, S.E. But much the earliest record I have seen is this, dated 23 Sep. 1712, from Bencoleen in Sumatra: 'At 12 I tiff, that is eat... some good relishing bit, and drink a good draught' (The Letter Books of Joseph Collett, ed. H.H. Dodwell, 1933). Abbr. of the v. implicit in tiffin.

tiffed. Annoyed; angry: coll.: mid-C.18–20. (Sessions, 31 May 1856.) See tiff, v., 3, and cf. miffed.

tiffic(k)s. Odds and ends of iron (e.g. screws): nautical:—1923 (Manchon.) Origin? (? error.) P.B.: has it perhaps some connection with artificers? See tiffy, n.

tiffin. A lunch, esp. if light: Anglo-Indian coll. (1800: OED) >, ca. 1830. S.E. Ex tiffing, q.v. Esp. Y. & B.—2. Hence, in NZ: a snack and a drink (gen. tea) at 10.30 or 11 a.m., as a rest from work: late C.19–20: rare coll.

tiffing. 'Eating, or drinking out of meal times' (Grose, 1st ed.): ca. 1780–1830. Ex tiff, v., 2, q.v.

tiffish. APT to take offence; peevish: coll.—1855. Rare. Ex tiff, n., 3. OED.

tiffle up. To dress up: early C.18. See VERBS, in Appendix.

tiffy, n. An engine-room artificer: nautical: from late 1890s. F.T. Bullen, 1899 (OED).—2. Hence, any artificer or fitter: mechanics': C.20. Blaker.—3. Hence, 'a carpenter's term of contempt for a botching incompetent fellow-carpenter—i.e., one fit only to work with metals, Heard ca. 1967' (R.S.).—4. An artificer of the Royal Army Ordnance Corps; applied loosely to a gun fitter of the Royal Artillery: army: since ca. 1910. H. & P.—5. As Tiffy, a Hawker Typhoon fighter aircraft: RAF: 1943+.

1232

tiffy, adj. In a tiff: coll.: 1810 (OED). Ex tiff, n., 3.—2. Hence, apt to take offence: coll.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.).—3. Hence, faddy: ca. 1880–1930.

tiffy bloke. An engine-room artificer: RN: C.20. (H. & P.) An elab. of tiffy, n., 1.

tift. See tiff, v., 3.

tig. All right. See teek-hi.

tiger. A smart-liveried boy-groom: 1817 (OED); Lytton, 'Vulgo Tiger'; ob. by 1880, † by 1930. Ex livery.—2. Hence, any boy acting as outdoor servant: from ca. 1840; id. In Julia Byrne's Red, White and Blue, 1862, the term is applied to a soldier servant. Cf.:—3. 'The steward who acts as personal servant to the captain of a liner': nautical: C.20. (Bowen.) Ex sense, 1.—4. A vulgarly overdressed person: 1827 (Scott: OED); 1849, Thackeray. Ob. by 1860, † by 1890. Ex a tiger's bright colours. Cf. sense 1.—5. Hence, a parasite, rake, swell-mobsman: ca. 1837–60.—6. Streaky bacon: navvies': from ca. 1890. Ex the streaks.—7. A convict that tears to pieces another convict's yellowish suit: c.: from late 1890s. Ex the 'ferocity' of the act+the colour of the suit.—8. Tough-crusted bread: schoolboys': ca. 1870–1905. (Ware.) Ex its powers of resistance.—9. A formidable opponent, esp. at lawn tennis: coll.:—1934 (COD, 3rd ed., Sup.). Opp. rabbit.—10. A diesel locomotive: railwaymen's: later C.20. 'Ex its roar of power' (Granville, letter, 1967).—11. A wife: Cockney s.: C.20. (Red Daniells, 1980.) See quot'n at six-and-eight.—12. In on the tiger, on a heavy drinking-bout: Aus.: since ca. 1910. B., 1942.—13. 'A toiler in a shearing shed' (Wilkes): Aus.: since late C.19. A specialisation of its sense as 'a demon' for work [food, 'punishment', etc.], someone with an insatiable appetite for it' (Ibid.). Cf. tigering, q.v.—14. See hot tiger; three cheers and a tiger; turn you inside out...

Tiger Bay. A certain well-known sailors' quarter in London, before 1887; Mayhew delimits it as Brunswick Street (East End); Cockneys': ca. 1820–90. (Baumann.) Ex their wild goings-on. Also ex the fact that 'Tiger Bay... is full of brothels and thieves' lodging houses' (Mayhew, 1861).—2. A certain town on the W. Coast of Africa: nautical: from ca. 1880. Ex the native prostitutes.—3. Cardiff also has one: ? since ca. 1870.

tiger-box. See PRISONER-OF-WAR SLANG, §1, in Appendix.

tiger country. 'Rough, thickly wooded terrain feared by airmen; any primitive area' (Wilkes): Aus.: WW2 and since.

tiger-hunter. A mat-mender, the trade gen. being learnt in gaol: c.:—1932 ('Stuart Wood', Shades of the Prison House). Prob. ex rugs of tiger-skin.

tiger in the tank, a. Since mid-1965, this seems to be well on the way to becoming a c.p., thanks to the oil companies', hence also the petrol stations', slogan, 'put a tiger in your tank' (by using [the brand-named petrol]). But † by 1973, 'perhaps killed by the mocking non-commercial a weasel in your diesel—and by the rising cost of oil fuels' (R.S., 1973). See tiger tank. The advertising campaign using the slogan ran ca. 1964–8 (P.B.).

tiger piss. Lowerdeck name for beer sold on a certain foreign station. (From the picture of a tiger on the bottle): RN: since ca. 1930. Granville. Cf. panther's piss. P.B.: Tiger beer is brewed in Singapore; cf. Anthony Burgess's use of the brewers' slogan as the title of his novel set in Malaya, Time for a Tiger, 1956.

tiger tank. 'Wank. Usually in the sense of "not worth a..." rather than masturbation' (Red Daniells, 1980): rhyming s.: 1970s. Ex tiger in the tank, q.v.; a change from the usu. rhyming s. use of the names of various banks in this context. (P.B.)

tigering, vbl n. 'Working hard under adverse conditions; roughing it' (Wilkes): Aus.: since later C.19. See tiger, n., 13.

tigerish. Flashy; loudly dressed: ca. 1830–70. Lytton, 1853, 'Nothing could be more... to use a slang word, tigrish, than his whole air.' Ex tiger, 4. (The n., tigerism, may perhaps be considered s. or coll.: in sense of tiger, 1, mainly in 1840s; of tiger, 4 and 5, rarely after 1830s. OED.)

Tigers, the. The 17th Regiment of Foot, > 1881–1964, The Leicestershire Regt, also, the 67th Foot, now the Hampshire, Regiment: military: from the late 1820s. Ex the Royal Tiger badges granted in, resp., 1825 and 1827. F. & G.—2. The Leicester Rugby Football Club: sporting: C.20. News Chronicle, 25 Feb. 1935.—3. Hull City Football Club ('soccer'): id.: id. Ex their colours.—4. 'In N.S.W., the Balmain Rugby League team (from black and gold colours, and club emblem)' (Wilkes): Aus. sporting. Hence Tigertoun = Balmain.—5. Richmond VFL footballers: Aus., esp. Melbourne, coll.: C.20.

tigers' milk. Whisky: army officers': from ca. 1890. Cf. the giant-killer, both in Blaker, 1930.—2. Gin: 1850 (OED); † by 1890.—3. As in George R. Gleig, The Subaltern's Log-Book, 1828, "Will you take a glass of tiger's milk" (a pet name for brandy and water), I asked.' Moe.

Tigerschmitt. A De Havilland Tiger Moth training biplane: R Aus.AF joc.: WW2. (B., 1943.) The Messerschmitt 109 was the German Air Force's equivalent of the British Spitfire fighter.

tiggy. A detective: Cockneys': late C.19—early 20. (E. Pugh, The Spoilers, 1906.) P.B.: ex teccy, or from 'play tig', the chasing, catching game? See quot'n at put on (one's) ear. tight. Hard, severe, difficult: coll.: 1764 (Foote: OED); ob. except in tight squeeze (Haliburton, 1855; after US tight spot), place (mentioned in 1856 as an Americanism), and corner (1891). OED, F. & H., Thornton. Cf. tight fit, q.v.—2. (Of a contest) close; (of a bargain) hard: US coll. (ca.1820) anglicised ca. 1860.—3. (Of a person) close-fisted, mean: coll.:—1828. Orig. mostly US, but in C.20 Brit., as in two London phrases sent to P.B. by John Smith, of Bath: 'He's so tight you couldn't get a tram ticket between the cheeks of his arse', and 'He's so tight his arse squeaks'; Canada contributes 'tight as a bull's arse in fly-time'; Spike Mays's use of the last, with 'August' for 'fly-time', in Fall Out the Officers, 1969, shows that this too was known in UK, in Services' as well as rural use. For other similes, see below.—4. (Of money) hard to come by; (of the money market) with little money circulating: 1846, Daily News, 21 Jan. 'In Paris money is "tight" also, and discounts difficult' (OED).—5. Topsy: 1843 in US (OED Sup.); 1853, Dickens's article in Household Words, 24 Sep. (see Slang); H., 1st ed.; Kipling. Cf. screwed, (lit. screwed tight, hence) drunk.—6. Cramped; over-worked; meticulous: artists': from ca. 1890. Occ., in C.20, as adv. (OED). Cf. tired.—7. (Of balls) in contact, (pockets) with small openings: billiards:—1909 (Sup. to The Century Dict.).—8. Able and willing: naval, mostly lowerdeck: late C.18–19. (Bill Truck, Oct. 1822.) Cf. taut, q.v.—9. 'Used by florists and professional growers for flowers just showing colour or starting to open' (Petch, 1969): since when? My guess would be: late C.19–20. P.B.:? j.—10. See blow, v., 3; hold tight!; junior; sit tight.

tight-arsed. (Of women) chaste: low coll.: late C.19–20.—2. Stingy, money-mean: low: C.20. 'Tight-arsed with his purse strings' (Thorn Keyes, All Night Stand, 1966). See tight, 3.

tight as a bull's arse. See tight, 3.

tight as a drum. Extremely drunk: C.20. (A.S.M. Hutchinson, Once Aboard the Lugger, 1908.) An elab. on tight, 5. For drunk as a drum, see wheelbarrow.—2. 'Said of a boy's belly or "tummy" after eating his fill of cakes as a birthday or Christmas indulgence' (L.A., 1976): since ca. 1930.

tight as a fart. Exceedingly tipsy: low: since ca. 1925.

tight as, or tighter than, a fish's arsehole. Exceedingly mean: low; C.20: with and that's watertight sometimes added: low Aus.: C.20. P.B.: the corollary is also Brit., since 1950 at latest. Other creatures thus watertight are crabs and ducks: Peppitt records the former as MN: In Colin Evans's brilliant novel of National Service in the RN, The Heart of Standing, 1962, occurs the elliptical tight as a fish's.

tight as a gnat's arse. Cockney var. of prec. (Muvver): later C.20. Cf. gnat's, q.v.

tight as a mouse's ear' ole. Very tight, applied to a vagina: raffish M.C.P.: mid-C.20. (P.B.)

tight as a tick. Extremely drunk: low and Forces': C.20. Cf. full as a tick. 'Presumably from the appearance of a tick gorged with blood' (Philip Gaskell). See also tighter than a tick.

tight boots. See sit in tight boots.

tight cravat. The hangman's noose: coll.: late C.18—mid-19.

tight cunts and easy boots! A male toast, current ca. 1880–1914.

tight fit, a Coll. when used of things other than clothes: late C.19–20.

tight section. 'Water made rough and hard to ride by rips or cross-currents' (Sun-Herald, 22 Sep. 1963): Aus. surfers' coll.: since ca. 1955.

tight ship. See run a tight ship.

tight-wad. A person mean with money: adopted, ca. 1934, from US. (Gerald Kersh, Night and the City, 1938.) I.e. he keeps his hand closed tight upon his wad of notes.

tighten, v.i. To tight-lace: non-U coll.: 1896 (OED); ob. by 1935.

tighten (one's) galabieh. To tighten one's belt: Egyptian-service military coll.: from ca. 1920. The n. is direct ex Arabic.—2. Hence, from ca. 1925, to make the best of a bad job.

tight(e)ner. A hearty meal; occ. a large amount (of liquor): low coll.: 1851 (Mayhew). Hence, do a or the tightener; the latter in J.E. Ritchie's Night Side of London, 1857.

tighter than a crab's arsehole. Var. of tight as a fish's ...

tighter than a tick. Excessively mean; also close-mouthed: Can.: later C.20. 'You can't get secrets from him, he's tighter than a tick' (Leech, 1981). Cf. tight as a tick, q.v.

tighter than a witch's cunt. 'Very tight, as in hard to get off; usu. in ref. to jar lids, nuts or bolts, etc. For Protestant use, say "nun's cunt"' (Leech, 1981): Can.: later C.20.

tighties. Women's drawers that fit very tight: feminine coll.: from ca. 1933. See quotn at neathie-set.

tightified. (Rendered) tight; close-fitting: (low) coll.: C.20. (Compton Mackenzie, 1933.)

tightner. See tightener.

tightness. Tipsiness: from some time in 1853–64. See tight, 5.

tigrass. A vulgarly overded woman: 1830s. On tiger, 4, q.v.

tigrish. See tigerish.

tigser, n. 'A slang juvenile epithet used when a person is in quick motion ... "Go it, tigser": West Yorkshire s. (—1904), not dial. Prob. ex dial. tig, 'to run hither and thither when tormented by flies, &c.'

tike, gen. tyke; T. A Yorkshireman: coll. nickname: C.18–20. (E. Ward, 1703: Matthews.) Ex Yorkshire tyke, q.v. In Yorkshire, tyke very gen. for a dog.—2. A Roman Catholic: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) A pun—or a rhyme—on Mike, but cf. Teague and variants.—3. For Northern tyke see Yorkshire tyke.

tike (tyke)-lurking. Dog-stealing: c.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.) Also buffer-lurking.

tiker, tyker. A man who takes charge of dogs: from ca. 1860. B. & L.

Tikes. See Tykes.

Tik(k)(e). See ticky.

tilbury. (A) sixpence: ca. 1780–1850. Grose, 3rd ed., 'From its formerly being the fare for crossing over from Gravesend to Tilbury fort.' Cf. tizzy.

Tilbury Docks. Socks: rhyming s.: late C.19–20. (Franklyn, Rhyming.) Cf. almond rocks.

tilda. A tramp's swag: Aus.: early C.20. (Baker.) Short for Matilda.

Tilden's hearthrugs. Of W.T. ('Big Bill') Tilden on his first visit to the Wimbledon lawn-tennis courts—1920, when he won the singles—F.R. Burrow, in The Centre Court, 1937, writes: 'He wore some of the most remarkable sweaters that had ever been seen at Wimbledon. Their length and texture—"Tilden's hearthrugs", as they were commonly called—created quite a sensation.

tile. A hat: 1821 (D. Haggart, Life). Esp. ca. 1850–1900, a dress-hat; extant, 1930s, as tile-hat, esp. in Glasgow, where it is also called a lum-hat (lit. chimney-pot hat). Ex tile as part of roof; cf. pentile, 2; tiled; and be well thatched, to have a good head of hair.—2. In (have) a tile loose, (to be) slightly crazy: since mid-1840s. Cf. shingle short.

tile-frisking. Stealing hats from lobbies and halls: c.: ca. 1823–1910. B. & L.

tile-hat. See tile, 1.

tiled, adj. Hatted: 1792 (The Annual Register: OED). Cf. tile, 1, q.v.—2. To be tiled is to be snug, comfortable: ca. 1815–50. (Charles Dibdin, Life in London, 1882.) With a tiled roof over one's head.—3. Detained by the police; locked up; fast life: ca. 1815–60. Spy, 1825, 'Safely tiled in.'

tiled down. Under cover; esp., out of the way, hidden: c.: 1845 in 'No. 747'; app. † by 1900. Lit., under the tiles.

tiler. A shoplifter: c. of ca. 1650–80. ? ex L. tollere.

tiles, (be or go) on the. (To be or go) on the loose; esp. a-drinking or on sexual adventure: low (—1857) >, ca. 1910, gen. ('Ducange Anglicus'; Baumann.) Ex the procedure of cats.

till. The female pudend: low: C.19–20. Suggested by money(-box), q.v.

till all is blue. To the utmost, the limit; for an indefinite time: perhaps orig. US (1806); ob. by 1930. Adml Smyth refers to a ship reaching deep, i.e. blue, water.—2. In drinking: till one becomes drunk: early C.19. (Bill Truck, 1826; John L. Gardner, The Military Sketch-Book, II, 1831: Moe.) Till all look or seem blue is a C.17 (?–18) var. Cf. till the ground looks blue at TAVERN TERMS, §2, in Appendix.

till-boy. An assistant tampering with the cash in his master's till: c.:—1864. (H., 3rd ed.) Perhaps on:

till-sneak. A thief specialising in shop-tills: c.: from ca. 1860.
till the cows come home. An indefinite time; for ever: coll.: mid-C.19–20. Ex US (1824: Thornton); orig. (1610), English, as till the cow come home (OED). P.B.: in C.20 it often implies some impatience, as 'We shall be here till the cows come home, at this rate—why can't the waiter buck up?' Cf. (I'll be yours) till hell freezes over, as a c.p. of affectionate regard to end a letter: late C.19—earlier 20.

tilladum. 'A slang word for to "weave"... Hence tilladumoite, ... a handloom weaver' (EDD): Lancashire: from ca. 1860. The former occurs in James Staton, Rays fro' th' Loominary, 1866; the latter in Staton's Bobby Shuttle un his woiife Sayroh, 1873.

tiller. Steering wheel of a motorcar: Aus. motorists': since ca. 1930. (B.P.) 'Most likely a metaphor from boots—but some [early] autos did have tillers rather than steering wheels' (Claiborne, 1976).

tiller soup. That rough treatment with a tiller by (the threat of) which a coxswain encourages his boat's crew: nautical: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) Cf. belaying-pin soup.

till(e)y, easy as. Very easy: ? C.18–19. Lit., easy as saying: till(e)y-vally; tully-vally, etc. Nonsense! trivial coll. of ca. 1525–1890. (Skelton, Scott.) Vaguely onomatopæic in origin: cf. tush!

tillikum. A friend: Can. West Coast: since ca. 1930. Chinook; lit., 'people, friends'. (Leechman.)

tilly or, by personification, Tilly. A utility van or truck: army: since ca. 1939. H. & P., 'See also ute or doodle-bug'. I.e. utility.

Tilly Bates. An illiteracy for tiddler's bait: C.20. Franklyn, Rhyming.

tillywink(s). An illiteracy for tiddly wink, 3, and tiddlywinks. tilter. A sword or rapier: 1688 (Shadwell); † by 1840. Ex tilt, to take part in a tourney or jousting.

timber. Wooden gates, fences, hurdles, etc.: hunting: 1791 ('G. Gambado': OED).—2. A wooden leg; hence, any leg: prob. from late C.18: it occurs in Charles Dibdin's song—

'The Five Engagements'—quoted in The Port Folio of 21 Sep. 1805 (Moe). See also bowl for timber.—3. The stocks: from ca. 1850. Douglas Jerrold the First. Cf. timber-stairs, q.v.—4. A wicket, the wickets: cricket coll.: 1861 (Lewis). Cf. timber-yard, q.v.—5. In small timber, Lucifer matches: (mostly London) street s.: from ca. 1859. Cf. timber-merchant, q.v.—6. As Timber, an 'inevitable' nickname for a man surnamed Wood(s): earlier C.20. (F. & G.) An Indian army var. is Lackery.—7. In on the timber, cleaning floors: army: 5. African War, ca. 1900. See ARMY SLANG, verse 2, in Appendix.—8. See sport timber, and:

timber! (with stress on the 2nd syllable, which is prolonged). An exclam. uttered when something is about to fall: Aus.: since ca. 1920, 'Ex tree-fellers' use of the word when tree is about to fall' (B.P.). The word has long been 'in daily use in North American lumber camps' (Leechman), and the Aus. usage may well have derived from that of Canada and the US. P.B.: some use also in UK, since mid-C.20 at latest.

timber-jumper. A horse good at leaping gates and fences: hunting: 1847, Thackeray, 'I never put my leg over such a timber-jumper' (OED). A later C.19–20 var. is timber-topper, for which Petch cites Siegfried Sassoon, Memoirs of a Fox-Hunting Man, 1928. See timber, 1.

timber-merchant. A street match-seller: (London) streets' (—1859) now verging on c. (H., 1st ed.) Ware, 1909, records timber (gen. pl), a lucifer match, as low s. timber-stairs. The pillory: mid-C. 18—early (? mid-) C.19. In Herd's collection of songs (OED). Cf. timber, 3, q.v. Cf. also the tree synonymy.

timber-toe. A wooden leg: from ca. 1780; ob. by 1930. Implied in Grose, 1st ed., where timber-toe is a person with a wooden leg, a sense reappearing in Hood. The var. timber-toes is C.19–20, and, from ca. 1870 in the East End of London, it also = a person wearing clogs, as in H., 5th ed.

timber-toed. Having a wooden leg or legs: from ca. 1810. See prec. P.B.: note that in Cheshire it = pigeon-toed: C.20 (Mrs Gwynneth Reed, 1980).

timber toes. See timber toe.

timber-topper. Var. of timber-jumper, q.v.: 1883 (OED).

Timber-Town, HMS. The camp at Groningen (Holland); Royal Naval Division coll.: dating from the fall of Antwerp in WW1. (F. & G. mentions that many RND men were interned there.)

timber-truck. A synon. of bone-shaker, an early bicycle: ca. 1870–90. With thanks to Mr Derek Roberts, 1972, while he was the Hon. Secretary of the Fellowship of Cycling Old-Timers. He added that "'Bone-shaker" was used semi-affectionately'.

timber-tuned. Heavy-fingered; wooden in movement: late C.19—early 20. A generalisation of musicians' use with ref. to persons with heavy, wooden touch on musical instrument: from ca. 1870. B. & L.

timber-yard. One's wickets; more precisely, the place where one's wickets stand: cricket: 1853, Cuthbert Bede, 'Verdant found that before he could get his hand in, the ball was got into his wicket... and... there was a row in his timber-yard'; virtually †. Cf. timber, 4.

timbered up to (one's) weight, not. Not in one's style: coll.: mid-C.19—early 20.

timbers. The wickets: cricketers' coll.:—1877 (Lewis). Esp. in shiver one's timbers, to scatter the wickets and stumps. Cf. timber, 3, and timber-yard; contrast bowl for timber, q.v.—2. Worked wood in gen., e.g. escritoires, cabinets, elaborate tables: artistic: ca. 1880–1914. Ware.—3. In my timbers!; dash my t.!; shiver my t.!: Nautical s. exclamations: resp. 1789, Dibdin, 'My timbers! what lingo he'd coil and belay' (OED); mid-C.19–20, rare and hardly nautical; and 1834 (Dublin University Magazine, July, p. 63: Moe); Marryat, 1835.

time. In do time, to serve a term in prison: 1865 (OED): c. >, by 1890, s. H., 5th ed., 'Sometimes stir-time (imprisonment in the House of Correction) is distinguished from the more extended system of punishment... called "pinnel (penal) time"; Nat Gould, 1898, 'If it had not been for me you would have been doing time before this.' Hence timer, a convict, in such combinations as first, second, third timer, a prisoner serving for a first, etc., stretch: c.:—1887 (Baumann).—2. Used for 'by the time that', time is coll. and rather illiterate; it occurs mostly in Cockney speech: ? mid-C.19–20. Rook, 1899, 'An' time I'd got a 'ansom an' put 'im inside, the job was worked.'—3. Suffix, e.g., 'I'll see you twelve o'clock time' = at about 12 o'clock: coll.: C.20. (L.A.)—4. In in no time; in less than no time, very soon, immediately; (very) quickly: coll.: resp. 1829 (W.N. Glascock, Sailors and Saints, II, 13; Moe); 1822 (Blackwood's, Oct.: Moe), which prob. means that in no time should be dated from early C.19.—5. In on time, punctual(ly): coll.: adopted ex US ca. 1890; by 1930, S.E.—6. In have no time for, 'To regard with impatient disfavour' (C.J. Dennis); perhaps orig. Aus: coll.: since late C.19. I.e. 'have no time to spare for'. Cf. the S.E. have no use for.—7. In (it's) time I (you, we) wasn't (weren't) here, I (etc.) ought to have departed already: (usu. joc.) coll.: since mid-C.20 (? earlier). (P.B.)—8. See hot time; knock out of time; mark time on; short time.

time and tide wait for no man—neither do Beecham's Pills. A joc. c.p.: C.20; little used since ca. 1940. A ref. to a famous laxative.

time, gentlemen, please—haven't any of you got a home? 'Heard in pubs when the drinkers are reluctant to go' (A correspondent) c.p.: since ca. 1925.

time of day. 'The time as shown by the clock' is S.E., but the derivative 'a point or stage in any course or period' is coll.: 1687 (T. Brown); 1699, Collier, 'The favour of a prince was not...reputable at that time of day' (OED).—2. Hence, give one, or pass, the time of day, to greet a person, to exchange greetings: resp. C.17–20, mid-C.19–20: S.E. until late C.19, then coll. and dial.; give one... is ob. as a coll. Whiteing, G.R. Sims.—3. The prevailing state of affairs; the present state of the case: coll.: 1667 (Poole); slightly ob. by 1930. (OED.) Ex sense 1.—4. Hence, 'What's what'; the right or most fashionable way of doing something; the latest dodge: from early C.19. The London Guide, 1818; Boxiana, II, 1821; 'Jon Bee', 1823, 'In the island (Wight) every good joke is "the time o' day"'; more clearly in Dickens, 1838, 'Pop that shawl away in my castor...; that's the time of day.' Esp. in fly to the time of day, 'fly', alert, 'knowing' (1828, Maginn; ob.); put one up to the time of day, to initiate a person (1834, Ainsworth); know the time of day (adumbrated in Bunyan, 1682, but not at all gen. before ca. 1895), to know 'what's what'—'Ouida', 1897, "'She knows the time o' day,'" said the other' (OED); that's your time of day!, well done! (1860, H., 2nd ed.).—5. (give one) the time of day, (to administer) a knock-out blow: boxing: late C.19—earlier 20.—6. In, (e.g. he) wouldn't give you the time of day, a phrase applied to one notoriously mean: coll.: C.20. (P.B.) time out. Time set aside for a specific purpose, for something that one wants to do, (usu.) outside one's normal routine: adopted, ex US, early 1970s, by advertising copywriters, as in, e.g., 'Give yourself a treat—take time out to...'; >, by late 1970s, gen. coll., superseding the older Brit. time off. The out is redundant. (P.B.) timer. See time, 1.

times. Used in price quotation to mean shillings: e.g. in a Whitechapel tailor's humorous handbill of 1875 were advertised 'Rare Fancy Cords, cut awfully loud, 9 times.'—2. In as times go, as things are at present: coll.: 1712 (Steele: OED).—3. See behind the times.

Times Lit., The. The Times Literary Supplement: book-world coll.: from 1901.

time you had (or got) a watch! 'Sharp reply to "What time is it?"' (Frank Shaw, 1968): C.20.

timesing. See share-bys.

Timmie. The gymnasium: certain schools': late C.19–20. Geoffrey Dennis, Bloody Mary's, 1934.

timmyoggy. A term for almost any time- or labour-saving device: RN: ca. 1850–95. (Bowen.) Ex dial. timmyoggy, 'a notched square piece of wood; used to support the lower end of the "vargood" or long spar serving as a bowline, itself ex dial. timmy, the stick or bat used in the game of rounders: EDD. Cf. gadget, q.v.

timothy. A brew, or a jorum, of liquor: Scot.: 1855 (Strang; OED). Ex the proper name (of a brewer or a noted publican).—2. The penis, esp. a child's: either dial. or provincial s.:—1847 (Halliwell). The personification of penis (Dick, man or John Thomas) and of pudend (Fanny) would make an interesting but unpublished essay [comment written in the 1930s].—3. A brothel: Aus. c.: since ca. 1930. B., 1953.

Timothy's. A branch of the Timothy White chain of stores in southern England: coll.: ca. 1910–1970s.

timp. A timpano or orchestral kettledrum; usually the pl timps, the timpani: musicians': C.20. Cf. tymp, q.v.

tin, n. Money, cash; orig. of small silver coins, so apt to wear thinly smooth and thus assume a tinny appearance: prob. from early C.19, but not recorded before 1836, in Smith's The Individual; 'Pomes' Marshall. Cf. brass.—2. As the tin it = tin-mining country: Aus. coll.: C.20. Jean Devaney, By Tropic Sea and Jungle, 1944.—3. See they've opened another tin!; tins.

tin, v. To dismiss or supersede (gen. an officer): army: 1916+. (B. & P.) Perhaps ex put the tin hat on.

tin, adj. Light, short weight; hence, unconvincing (statement or story): pidgin: from ca. 1868. (B. & L.) I.e. thin.

tin-arse; -back; -bum. A lucky person: Aus. s.: resp. C.20; since late C.19; since mid-C.20 (to judge from the quot'ns in my source, Wilkes, who suggests 'from being impervious to kicks in the backside. Apparently unrelated to tin = money'). Hence tin-arsed = lucky. Cf. tinny, 2, q.v.

tin(-)basher. A metalworker or coppersmith metalworker: RAF: since ca. 1930. Jackson, 1943; Brickhill & Norton, Escape to Danger, 1946.

tin beard. A crêpe-hair beard that, unpainted at edges, has a metallic look: actors': late C.19–20. Granville.

Tin Bellies, the. The 1st and 2nd Life Guards: military: from 1821. (F. & G.) Ex the cuirass. Cf. Ticky Tins.

tin-bitser. See Rolls-can-hardly.

tin bread. Biscuit: military: from 1914. (B. & P.) Ex the container and the hardness of Army biscuits.

tin-bum. See tin-arse.

tin can. A destroyer, esp. one of the fifty obsolete American destroyers that came to Britain in 1940: RN.

Tin-Can Alley. The London street that specialises in second-hand cars: since ca. 1955. A pun on Tin Pan Alley.

tin can (on wheels). An old, esp. if noisy, car: Aus., mostly teenagers': since mid-1950s. P.B.: also Brit.; cf. banger; bomber.

tin-chapel, adj. Nonconformist, esp. Methodist: depreciatory coll.: late C.19–20.

tin dog. Tinned meat: Aus.: since ca. 1905. B., 1942.

Tin Duck. HMS Iron Duke: RN: WW1. Bowen.

tin ear. An eavesdropper: Aus.: C.20. Baker.—2. A fool; a simpleton: Aus.: since ca. 1920. Baker.

Tin-Ear Alley. See Cauliflower Alley. Perhaps suggested by America's Tin Pan Alley.

tin ears, have. To be unmusical: since ca. 1945. Cf. cloth ears.

tin fish, n. A torpedo: RN: it arose just before WW1 (W.G. Carr, Brass Hats..., 1939; Moe). Adopted by the RAF ca. 1937 (Jackson). Cf. synon. mouldy, and petrol budgie, a helicopter.

tin-fish or tinfish, v. To torpedo: RN: 1939+. (Robert Harling, The Steep Atlantick Stream, 1946.) Ex the n.

tin-fish man. A torpedo rating: RN: since ca. 1917. Granville.

tin gloves A criss-cross of blisters methodically made by a bully on the back of a victim's hand: Winchester: ca. 1840–60. Mansfield.

tin hare. The mechanical quadruped used in dog-racing: coll.: since late 1920s.

tin hat. A helmet: theatrical: C.20. Cf. tin beard.—2. A soldier's steel helmet: from late 1915. In WW2, also civilians', in the home defence services.—3. A staff officer: army: 1917+. Much rarer than brass hat.—4. In put a or the tin hat on (it, or something), to finish, in a manner regarded as objectionable by the speaker: from ca. 1900. J. Milne, writing of letters home from 'the Other Ranks' in the S. African War, in The Epistles of Atkins, 1902, 'The phrases a "drawing-room general" and "Hyde Park soldiering" are borrowed rather than invented. But you have Atkins the creator when you stumble upon the expression, "They have put the tin hat on it all".' See the v.—5. In have on (one's) tin hat or be tin-hatted, to be tipsy: RN lowerdeck: ca. 1880–1920. Good-enough, 1901. Cf. the adj.

tin-hat, v. To show contempt for; to talk down to and at: Aus.: since ca. 1919. (B., 1942.) E.P. recorded a second sense of put a or the tin hat on (see n., 4), as Glasgow s. for "talk big":—1934.

tin-hat, adj. Drunk: Anglo-Port Said:—1909 (Ware). Often tin hats (F. & G.) See n., 5.

tin-kettle, -kettling. 'The beating of dishes, [pots, pans, etc.] to celebrate a wedding or similar event' (Wilkes): Aus. coll.: since later C.19.

tin lid. A child: rhyming s., on kid: C.20. Cf. synon. God forbid.

tin Lizzie. HMS Queen Elizabeth: RN: 1914; ob. Bowen.—2. A Ford motor-car: from ca. 1915. Occ. Lizzie.—3. Hence, any (cheap) motor-car: from ca. 1920.

tin man. See come the tin man; tinman.

tin off. 'The stuff [viz. honey] we sold was "tinned off" into four-gallon tins from a tap at the base of the tank' (Kylie Tennant, The Honey Flow, 1956): Aus. coll.: since ca. 1920.

tin-opener. A bayonet: army: from the S. African War, 1899–1901. (F. & G.) Ex its chief use.—2. A steel-cutting tool used in safe-breaking: Aus.: C.20. Vince Kelly, The Shadow, 1955.—3. A tank-destroying aircraft: army: 1944–5. P-G-R.

Tin Pan Alley. The Charing Cross Road district, where song publishers flourish: since ca. 1935. 'Probably [I would say 'undoubtedly': P.B.] adopted from US., where it refers to the centre of popular music publishing, recording, etc., near Times Square, New York City. W. & F. date its U.S. use from ca. 1925. The reference was to the alleged sound of the compositions in question' (Robert Claiborne, 1976).

tin pirate. A German submarine: RN: 1916+. (F. & G.) Cf. tin fish.

tin plate. A companion: rhyming s., on mate: C.20. An occ. var. of china plate.

tin-pot, n. An ironclad (battleship): RN: later C.19—early 20.

tin-pot, adj. (Of a place, a town, etc.) Small; insignificant: NZ coll.: C.20. (Slatter.) Ex the S.E. sense, 'cheap, inferior'.

tin-potter. A malingerer: nautical:—1867 (Smyth); ob. by 1930. Ex prec.

tin pound. 'In 1983 we shall have two new coins—a £1 piece made out of a yellow alloy, already nicknamed "the tin pound", and a seven-sided 20p piece' (Now!, 6 Feb. 1981). It will be interesting to see if the term 'stays the course'. (P.B.)

tin-scratcher, scratching. Tin-miner, -mining, Aus.: C.20. (Ion L. Idriess, Men of the Jungle, 1932.) Ex 'to scratch for tin'.

tin soldier. 'A voyeur-type male, usually of middle- or upper-class background, who voluntarily acts as a prostitute's "slave" or companion for no apparent reward (prostitutes' slang)' (Powis): later C.20.—2. See come the tin man.

tin-tab. The carpenter's shop: Dulwich College: late C.19–20. Cf.:

tin tabernacle. An iron-built or tin-roofed church: 1898 (William Le Queux, Scribes and Pharisees, V, 54): s. >, by 1930, coll. Cf. dolly-shop and similar amenities.

tin tack. A sack: rhyming s.: from ca. 1870. (P.P., Rhyming Slang, 1932.) Hence, as the tin tack, 'the sack' = dismissal; get the tin tack, to lose one's job: C.20. (John Gardner, Madrigal, 1967.) Franklyn, Rhyming, classes it 'not of frequent occurrence—"the sack" seems to be sufficiently slangy in itself.'—2. See:-

tin tacks. Esp. come (or get) down to t.t., an occ. coll. var. of ... brass tacks: both are rhyming s. on Cockney pron. of facts. Dating from ca. 1925, says E.P., citing the OED Sup., but see Franklyn's etym. at tic-tac, 1.

Tin Tacks and Onions. Mount Tintwa Inyoni: Boer War military. (J. Milne, The Epistles of Atkins, 1902). By Hobson-Jobson.

tin tank. A bank: from ca. 1880. (P.P., Rhyming Slang, 1932.) Superseded by, e.g., J. Arthur (Rank).

tin termites. Rust: motorists', engineers', etc., joc.: since late 1960s. 'Fraid the dreaded tin termites have got into me little old Min [Austin Mini]' (heard 1972: P.B.).

tin tit. A steel helmet: RAF: mid-1930s. (R.S.) Short for: tin tiffa (or -fer or -for). A steel helmet: nautical, esp. RN: since mid-1930s. (H. & P.) Var. of tin hat; see tiffa.

tin town. A hutment of corrugated iron: army coll.: since 1915. (B. & P.) P.B.: esp., in mid-C.20, the huge army camp at Bulford, Wiltshire. Cf. canvas town, timber town.

tin trousers. Naval officers' full-dress trousers: R. Aus. N.: since ca. 1914. Cf. lightning-conductors.

tin-type. See not on your tin-type!

'tina or tina. Concertina: mostly Cockneys': from ca. 1870. Pugh.

tincture. A light drug in liquid form: joc. euph.: since ca. 1960; ob. by 1975. Groupie, 1968.—2. (?) Hence, by late 1970s, a drink of liquor: raffish joc.: since late 1970s. 'He'd be sparko after his usual lunchtime tincture' (Gordon Burn, Sunday Times colour sup., 8 June 1980). But this may be a revival (? inspired by the magazine Private Eye), and sense 1 the derivative. (P.B.)

ting-ting-bang. 'The equivalent of the Army's "One-One-Two" to illustrate swiftness and precision of action. It represents the ringing of a fire-buzzer followed by the discharge of a gun, e.g., "I ordered 'out boom' and ting-ting-bang, there it was.'" (David Bolster, Roll on My Twelve, 1945): RN: WW2. Cf. ching ching ching.

tingalairy. A hand-worked auger: railwaymen's: C.20. (Railway.) Ex the West Yorkshire dial. tingerlary, a street organ. Echoic. Cf. wimbler, q.v.

tinge. A commission allowed to assistants on the sale of outmoded stock: drapers':—1860 (H., 2nd ed.). Cf. suspicion, q.v.

tingle. A 'tinkle' on the telephone: Aus.: since ca. 1945. By assimilation of 'tinkle' to 'ring'. (B.P.)

tinhorn gambler. A petty gambler: Can. since ca. 1912, Aus. since ca. 1920, NZ since ca. 1922. Adopted from US: for US, see Underworld; for Can., see Michael Mason, The Arctic Forests, 1924.

tinies. Very small children: coll.: since ca. 1920. Ex tiny tots.

tinik. 'A tinker; a disreputable vagabond': Scots coll.: mid-C.19–20. (EDD.) By abbr.

tinik-tinky. See tinky.

tinkard. A begging tinker: c. of ca. 1560–1620. Awdelay.

tinker, n. A child, esp. in exasperated address by adult: 'You little tinker!': domestic coll.: since late C.19, perhaps much earlier. Ex the reputed mischief and mischievousness of tinkers, S.E. for itinerant repairers of pots and pans. E.P. recalls its use in NZ, ca. 1904, and Aus., ca. 1910; P.B. was thus admonished by his grandmothers in the early 1940s.

Claiborne cites 'an Aus. thriller, ca. 1965, but the speaker was middle-aged and rural: "I've known him since we was tinkers"'. Author and title, alas, unrecollected, but it is clear in my memory since it helped supply an etymology for the New England expression, "tinker mackerel", small mackerel, 6 to 8 inches long.—2. In swill like a tinker, to tipple unstintedly: coll.: late C.17—early 19. Motteux.—3. Penis: Can. schoolchildren's: since mid-C.20. (D.J. Barr, 1968.)

tinker. To batter: boxing: 1826, Sporting Magazine, 'Tom completely tinkered his opponent's upper-crust' (OED); †. Ex tinker, v.t., mend tinker-wise.

tinker's. Tinker's curse: Aus. coll.: C.20. Ruth Park, 1950, 'Nobody caring a tinker's.'

tinker's budget or news. Stale news: coll. and dial.: mid-C.19–20.

tinker's curse (or cuss) or damn. See curse, n., 3.

tinker's mufti. A dress half military, half civilian: military coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Tinkers frequently wear very odd garments.

tinkety-tonk! 'A farewell current among "bright young people" ... P.G. Wodehouse, passim, A.G. Macdonell, England, Their England, 1933' (R.S.): ca. 1920–35. Artificial echoic. Cf. toodle-oo or -pip, and tickety-boo.

tinkle, n. A telephone-call; mostly give (someone) a tinkle, to phone them: trivial coll.: since ca. 1910. Also, since ca. 1925, NZ (Slatter).—2. Money; raffish: mid-C.20. Nicholas Wollaston, Winter in England, 1965, 'She married a bit of tinkle'. Echoic, perhaps suggested by tin. (P.B.)—3. One of the 'inevitable' nicknames for men surnamed Bell: C.20. (Petch.) Cf. Ding-Dong and Dinger.—4. A urination: trivial, domestic: since ca. 1930. Ex-tinkle, v. To urinate: children's, hence also nannies' and parents': since ca. 1920 (? much earlier). Ex the sound of urine falling into a light metal chamberpot. Dr Leechman compares the similarly echoic Ger. pinkeln, to pee.

tinkler. A bell: (low) coll.: 1838, Dickens, 'Jerk the tinkler'.—2. A spoon: nautical, esp. RN: C.20. Ex the RN lowerdeck jingle, 'Tinkle, tinkle, little spoon; knife and fork will follow soon', uttered as a cutlery is accidentally tipped over the ship's side with the dishwasher. (Peppitt, 1977.)

tinkling-box. A piano: S. Lancashire s. (—1904), not dial. EDD.

tinkly. A spoon: RN lowerdeck: since ca. 1920. (Peppitt.)

tinky. A S. African juvenile coll. var. (—1899) of tink-tinky, itself orig. (the 1890s) coll. for the bird properly known as iting-ting. Ex its cry, tink, tink, tink. (Pettman.)

tinman. A rich man, esp. a millionaire: sporting: from ca. 1880; ob. (Ware.) Ex tin; cf. tinny, adj., 1.—2. See come the tin man.

tinned. Tippy: since ca. 1940. (Neil Bell, Alpha and Omega, 1946.) A pun on canned.

tinned air. Artificial ventilation: nautical: from ca. 1910. Bowen.

tinned dog. Bully beef: Aus.: since late C.19. Wilkes.

tinner. Afternoon tea and dinner combined: C.20. P.B.: not common, and prob. † by mid-C.20. Cf. later C.20 brunch: breakfast+lunch.

tinnie. 'We call beer cans tinnies now that everybody's caught on to "tubes"' (New Society, 5 Aug. 1982, p. 208): drinking-places'.

tinny, tinney (Bee), n. A fire: c.: C.19. (Vaux.) Hence tinny-hunter (Ibid.), a thief working after fires.—2. A can of beer: Aus.: mid-1960s. (With thanks to Miss Joan Pigram, 1979: P.B.) Cf. tinnie, q.v.

tinny, adj. Rich: 1871 (Punch, 14 Oct.: OED). Ex tin.—2. Lucky: Aus. and NZ: C.20. Ex tin-ar-se, q.v.—3. Cheap: Aus.: since ca. 1925. Made of tin, not of iron, or steel.—4. Mean, 'close-fisted': Aus.: since ca. 1935. (B.P.)

tinny-tiny. See teeny.

Tinpots, the. See Grabbies.

Tins, the. A shortening of Tin Bellies, q.v.: army: C.20. (F. & G.) See also Ticky Tins.—2. In on the tins, on the scoring-board: cricketers' coll.: C.20. (OED Sup.). Ex the tin plates on which the numbers are painted.

Tinsides. The Martinsyde aeroplane: WW1. (Granville.)

tinted folk. People with 'coloured' or black skins. Aus. joc. coll.: popularised by Barry Humphries' monologues: since ca. 1950s. (Mrs C. Raab.)

tinter. See barrel tinter.

Tiny is an inevitable nickname of very big or tall men: lower classes': late C.19–20. Contrast Tich, q.v., and see Tiny Tim, 1.

tiny dodge. Begging in the company of neatly dressed children (often borrowed for the purpose) and thus exciting sympathy: c.: from ca. 1860. B. & L.

Tiny Tim. Elab. of Tiny, q.v. (C.E. Montague, Fiery Particles, 1923.) Ironic, ex Dickens's famous character in Christmas Carol.—2. A very large German gun or its shell: army: WW1. Cf. Sleepy Lizzie, Asiatic Annie, Whistling Dick, etc.

tip, n. 'The tip... money concerned in any dealings or contract...; synonymous with the dues' (Vaux): c. of ca. 1810–50. Cf. v., 8, 9. It occurs in Boxiana, III, 1821, in nuance 'entrance money'. Hence, that's the tip!, that's the right thing: from ca. 1860. (H., 3rd ed.) See sense 10.—2. Special information conveyed by an expert, private knowledge, esp. as to investment in the money market and to racing; a hint for an examination: from ca. 1840: s. >, by 1900, coll. Quarterly Review, 1886, 'It should be the first duty of consuls to keep the Foreign Office promptly supplied with every commercial tip that can be of use to British trade.'—3. Hence, something 'tipped' to win, to prosper; esp. a horse: 1873 (Besant & Rice: OED).—4. Hence, a special device, a 'wrinkle': from the 1880s: s. >, by 1910, coll.—5. Hence, at Felsted School, from late 1880s, a false report; hence, Ibid., from early 1890s, a foolish mistake in translating. The Felstedian, 3 Feb. 1890, 'Some one ventured to suggest that it was all a beastly tip.'—6. As Tip, a native, esp. if male, of Tipperary: NZ: 1860s. Ruth Parker, One-a-Pecker..., 1958.—7. A draught of liquor: c. (—1700) soon > s.; † by 1840. (B.E., Swift.) Prob. abbr. tipple.—8. Drink in gen.: c. (—1700) soon > s.; † by 1830. (B.E.) Certainly ex tipple, q.v.—9. In have a tip on, to be (very) slightly drunk: ca. 1905–20. Arnold Bennett, Clayhanger (Book IV, ch. 4), 1910: D.B. Gardner. Cf. v., 1.—10. In take the tip, c. of C.19–20, as in Vaux, 1812, '... To receive a bribe in any shape; and they say of a person who is known to be corruptible, that he will stand the tip.' Ex tip, a gratuity: a sense that the OED (rightly, I believe) classifies as S.E.—11. See booze the jib; miss (one's) tip; sling the tip; straight tip.—12. Applied to a place, esp. a room, that is very untidy, as 'Your bedroom is an absolute tip! If you don't do something ...' (any mother to teenage offspring): mainly domestic: later C.20. I.e., it looks like the municipal rubbish-dump. (P.B.)

tip, v. To render unsteady, esp. to intoxicate, mostly in the passive: C.17—early 18. Camden, 1605 (OED.) Ex tip, to tilt or incline.—2. (Often tip off.) To drink off: late C.17–20: c. until mid-C.18, then s.; from mid-C.19, only in dial. (B.E.) Ex tip the glass or bowl in order to drain it.—3. To die: rare except in C.19–20 dial. and in tip off (late C.17–20: c., as in B.E., > s. by 1730; in C.19–20, dial.), tip over the perch (1737, Ozell) or tip the perch (C.19–20, in the same sense.) (The perch phrases are ob. in C.20.) Partly OED.—4. To give; pass: C.17–20: c. >, by 1730, s. Rowlands, 1610, 'Tip me that Cheate, Give me that thing.' Esp. of money, as in Rowlands, 1610; Head; B.E.; Grose. Perhaps ex tip, to touch lightly; the Romany tipper, to give, is a derivative.—5. Hence, to lend (esp. money): c.: late C.17–20. B.E.—6. Hence (of a person in the presence of others), to assume the character of: from ca. 1740; ob. For its most frequent use, see tip the traveller.—7. Often almost synon. with 'do' or 'make' (cf. fake, q.v.): late C.17–20: c. >, early in C.18 though not in certain phrases; (low) s. See, e.g., tip a nod, 1, stave, yarn, and tip the grampus.—8. To earn: C.17–18: c. >, by 1730, (low) s. Rowlands, 1610; Bridges, ca. 1770, 'This job will tip you one pound one.' Ex tip, to give, and cognate with:—9. To give a 'tip' or present of money to,—whether to an inferior in recognition of a service or to a child or school-boy or -girl: s. >, early in C.19, coll.: 1706–7, Farquhar, 'Then I, Sir, tips me'—ethic dative—'the verger with half a crown.' Ex sense 4.—10. Hence, v.i., in same sense: 1727, Gay, 'Did he tip handsomely?': s. >, early in C.19, coll.—11. To indicate by a secret wink: 1749, Fielding, 'I will tip you the proper person ... as you do not know the town' (OED). Ex tip the wink, q.v.—12. To give private information, a friendly hint, about: from early 1880s: s. >, by 1910, coll. Esp. to indicate a horse as a probable winner, a stock as a profitable investment. Ex tip, n., 2, q.v.; perhaps cognate with prec. sense of the v.—13. Hence, to supply (a person) with 'inside' information: from ca. 1890: s. >, by 1910, coll.—14. Hence, v.i., to impart such information: s. (—1904) >, by 1910, coll.

tip a copper. To sky a coin: c. or low s.: mid-C.19–20.

tip a (gen., one's) daddle, a (gen., one's) fin, the fives, the gripes in a tangle. To shake hands; with to expressed or implied, to shake hands with or extend one's hand to be shaken: c. or low s.: resp. late C.18–20 (Grose, 1st ed.), mainly nautical (—1860: H., 2nd ed.), late C.18–20, late C.18–early 20. See daddle; the third and fourth occur in anon., Ireland Sixty Years Ago, 1847; tip the gripes (grips) in a tangle is Anglo-Irish and rare.

tip a mish. 'To put on a shirt' (F. & H.): c.: C.18–19. The definition is suspect, for the normal sense is to give, lend, it.

tip a moral. To give 'the straight tip': racing: late C.19–20. See straight tip, and moral, a 'moral' certainty.

tip a nod (to). To recognise (a person): low: mid-C.19–20.—2. The same as tip the wink, q.v.: 1861 (Dickens: OED).

tip a pike. To walk; to depart; esp. escape, give the slip to: c.: C.18–mid-19. Song, 1712, 'Tho' he tips them a pike, they oft nap him again.' Cf. pike off and pike on the been.

tip (someone) a queer chant. To give him a false address: c.: ca. 1810–90. Vaux, who defines chant as a person's name or address.

tip a rise. To befool: low: from ca. 1880. See rise.

tip-a-runner. The game of tip and run: coll.: 1805; ob. Lewis.

tip a settler, a sock. To land (a person) a knock-out blow, a heavy blow: low: resp. 1819 (Moore) and late C.17–20 (B.E.: c. > low s.).

tip a stave. To sing a song: nautical, ?esp. naval: late C.18–late 19. W.N. Glascock, The Naval Sketch-Book, I, 120, and II, 34, 1825–6 (Moe); R.L. Stevenson, Treasure Island, 1881.

tip a twist. See twist, n., 8.

tip a yarn. To relate a story: low: from ca. 1870.

tip all nine. To knock down all the skittles at once: from ca. 1780. (Grose, 1st ed.) Perhaps ex tip, to touch; cf. tip, v., 1.

tip and run, n. and v. 'Used during the Great War of German naval dashes at seaside resorts' (W.). Ex the tip (hit lightly) and run of cricket. P.B.: during WW2 applied more to German air raiders, usu. crossing the Channel or North Sea singly or in small numbers: coll., on j.; also as adj., tip and run raid(ers): a var. of S.E. hit-and-run.

tip-book. A literal translation; any other book likely to be especially useful in an examination: schools': 1845 (OED). See tip, n., 4.

tip (one's) boom off. To depart hastily: nautical: mid-C.19–early 20. (H., 2nd ed.) Cf. shove off.

tip lark, the. A (racehorse) tipping business: the racing world: late C.19–20. Margaret Lane, Edgar Wallace, 1938.

tip (one's) legs a gallop. To make off; decamp hastily: c.:—1823 (Egan's Grose).

tip-merry. Slightly drunk: C.17. Ex tip, n., 8.

tip-off, n. A police informer: Aus. police: since ca. 1915. Vince Kelly, The Shadow, 1955, 'Information supplied by underworld informers... variously known as "shells, tip-offs, stool-pigeons, phizgigs"'. Immediately ex tip-off, a piece of information, itself current since ca. 1905 and derived from tip off, v., 4. P.B.: this latter has >, in later C.20, informal S.E., e.g., in BBC news broadcasts, frequently, 'Police (or customs, etc.) acting on a tip-off...'

tip off, v. See tip, v., 2. B.E.—2. To die: late C.17–20: c. until ca. 1720, then (low) s.; in C.19–20, dial. (B.E.) Cf. tip, v., 3, q.v.—3. Whence, to kill: low:—1928 (OED Sup.).—4. A var. of tip v., 12: from ca. 1910.

tip off the blarney. To speak fair words; to 'con': late C.18–latish 19. Blackwood's, July 1823, 'Idyl' (Moe).

tip over the perch. See tip, v., 3. (Cf. C.19–20 dial. tip over, to swoon.)

tip (one's) rags a gallop. To move; depart, esp. if hastily: low: C.19. W.T. Moncrieff, Tom and Jerry, 1821; Hazlewood & Williams, Leave It to Me, 1870. Also tip the..., q.v.

tip-slinger. A racecourse tipster: C.20. Hence, by back-formation, tip-sling, v., whence tip-slinging. vbl n.: since ca. 1930. Jice Doone; B., 1953.

Tip Street, be in. To be at the time, generous with one's money: low: ca. 1815–50. Pierce Egan, Life in London, 1821, 'Jerry is in Tip Street upon this occasion, and the Mollishers are all nutty upon him, putting it about, one to the other, that he is a well-breeched Swell'. Mollisher = woman.

tip the cole. Hand over money: c. then low: ca. 1660–1830. A C.18–20 var. is post the cole (coal) or the coin.

tip the double. To give the slip: low: 1838, Wright, Mornings at Bow Street, 'in plain words he tipped them the double, he was vanished.'

tip the finger. Var. of tip the little finger: Aus.: since ca. 1920. B., 1942.

tip the grampus. To duck a man (for sleeping on watch): nautical: from ca. 1860; ob. Also blow the grampus. Contrast:

tip the lion. To press a man's nose against his face and then either, as in Steele, 1712 (OED), bore out his eyes with one's fingers, or, as in Grose (1st ed.) and gen., 'at the same time to extend his mouth with the fingers, thereby giving him a sort of lionlike appearance'; † by 1850.

tip the little finger. To drink: Aus.: late C.19–early 20.

tip the long 'un. 'To foraminate a woman' (F. & H.): late C.19–20 low.

tip the nines. (Of a sailing-ship carrying too much sail in dirty weather) to be 'driven right under' (Bowen): nautical: late C.19–early 20.

tip (one) the queer. See queer, n., 9.

tip the quids. To spend money: c.: late C.17–19. B.E., Grose.—2. To lend money: c.: mid-C.18–mid-19. (Grose, 1st ed.) See quids, 1.

tip the rags (occ. legs) a gallop or the double. To decamp: low: resp. C.19–20 and mid-C.19–20 (H., 1st ed.). Cf. tip the double.

tip the sligo. See sligo.

tip the traveller. To exaggerate, to romance, as a traveller is apt to do: 1742 (Fielding: OED); Smollett; Grose. App. ob. by 1860 and † by 1930. Var. of play the traveller. Cf. the C.16–18 proverb, a traveller may lie by authority (Apperson).—2. Hence (var.: put the traveller, C.19: Manchon), with upon, to impose upon; befool: implied in 1762 in Smollett; † in C.20.—3. Grose, 1st ed., has top the traveller, but this is prob. a misprint.

tip the velvet. 'To tongue a woman' (B.E.): late C.17–20: c. >, by 1800, low s. (Grose, 1st ed.) See velvet, 1.—2. To scold: low: ca. 1820–50. Bee.

tip the (occ. C.18–19, a) wink. To warn, signal to, with a wink: 1676 (Etherege: OED); Dryden; Pope; Grose. S. >, by 1850, coll. Cf. tip the nod.

tip them out. (Of railway officials) to clear a train of public passengers: railwaymen's, esp. underground railway guards': since mid-1940s. Daily Telegraph, 14 May 1960, 'London Day by Day'.

tip-top, n. The very top; fig., the acme: coll.: 1702 (S. Parker: OED). Ex top strengthened by tip, extremity, or, as OED suggests, reduplicated top.—2. Hence, occ. as collective singular, the 'swells': coll.: mid-C.18–mid-19. Thackeray, 1849, 'We go here to the best houses, the tip-tops' (OED).

tip-top, adj. At the very top; excellent; 'splendid': coll.: before 1721, Vanbrugh, 'In tip-top spirits'; G. Eliot. Ex the n., 1.

tip-top, adv. Excellently; 'splendidly', 'toppingly': from ca. 1880. Ex prec.

tip-topper. A 'swell': 1837, Thackeray (OED); ob. Other forms (tip-topping, etc.) are too little used to qualify as unconventional: they're merely eccentric.

tip-toppedest. See tippest-toppest.

tip up. To hand over, 'fork out', esp. money: low:—1859 (H., 1st ed.).—2. To hold out: low and nautical:—1887. Esp. as in Baumann, tip up your fist (or fin), reach or give (me) your hand!, shake hands! Cf. tip a daddle, q.v.

tipper. One who gives a gratuity: 1877 (OED): coll. >, by 1900, S.E.—2. A tipster: mostly racing: from ca. 1890. Cf. tip, n., 2.

Tipperary. Tippy: s.: later C.18. Probably from being likely to tip, or fall down' (Gentleman's Magazine, 1770 p. 559: P.B.).

Tipperary fortune. Breasts, pudend, and anus: Anglo-Irish:—1785; ob. Grose, 1st ed., 'Two town lands, stream's town, and ballinocack, said of Irish women without fortune.' Cf. at wind-mill; see Rochester, Tetbury, Whitechapel portion; also Whitechapel fortune.

Tipperary lawyer. A cudgel: Anglo-Irish: mid-C.19–20. Cf. Plymouth cloak.

tippery. Payment: proletarian: ca. 1830–1910. (B. & L.) Ex tip, n., 1 and v., 4.

tippest-toppest. Absolutely 'tip-top': joc.—1887; ob. Baumann (also tip-toppedest).

tippest hempen t. (Marlowe); St Johnstone's t. (Scott); Tyburn t. (Latimer, 1549). A hangman's rope: mid-C.15—early 19: joc. coll. verging on S.E. OED.—2. 'A man ready to part with his money in treating others' (Renton Nicholson, An Autobiography, 1860, p. 172): raffish, and fringe of the underworld: ca. 1820–80. A pun on tip it, give it.

tipping, n. See tip, v.—2. Adj. Excellent, 'topping': dial. (—1887) > school s. before 1904. Prob. ex topping on ripping.

tipple. Liquor: late C.16–20: coll. >, by 1700, s. Ex the v. Occ. of non-intoxicants: mid-C.19–20.—2. A drinking-bout: ? C.18–20. F. & H. tipple, v.t. To disarrange (beds): Bootham School: C.20. (Bootham, 1925.) Perhaps a perversion of S.E. tip up.

tippling-ken. A tavern: low: C.18. Ned Ward, A Vade Mecum for Maltworms, 1715. (His tippling-office, however, is prob. a nonce-word. W. Matthews, in Notes and Queries, 15 June 1935.)

tippy. Unsteady: coll.: 1906 (OED). Lit., apt to tipple over.—2. Hence, drunk: from ca. 1910. Miles Burton, Murder at the Moorings, 1932.

tippy. Extremely fashionable; 'swell': 1810 (OED) ob. by 1900, † by 1935, except in Glasgow. Cf. the US tippy (occ. tippe), an exquisite of 1804–5 (Thornton). Ex.—2. As the tippy, the height of fashion; the fashionable thing to do: ca. 1794–1812. Ex tip, the very top. (OED.) Either sense 1 or 2, the context being 'neutral', appears in The New Vocal Enchantress (a song book), 1791, and the London Chronicle, 29 June–1 July 1784 (?), has: 'The beaver hat is now quite the tippy among the fair' Cf. the quot'ns at twaddy and twig.—3. Extremely ingenious; very neat, smart, effective: 1863, M. Dods, 'A tippy little bit of criticism'; ob. Perhaps ex tip, n., 1.—4. Unsteady: coll.: from mid-1880s, Lit., likely to tip over. Cf. tippy, q.v. Century Dict.—5. Generous with tips (of money): servants' and subordinate staffs': C.20. John G. Brandon, Th' Big City, 1931.

tipster. One who gives 'tips', orig. in racing (1862) and by 1884 in gen.: coll. >, by 1900, S.E. See tip, n., 2. (OED.) Cf. tip-slinger.

tipote on the bow caps. Hitting the sea-bottom. Rarely used' (John Malin, 1979): RN, esp. HM submarine Astute: mid-1960s.

tipop. See tip-top.

tique. See teek.

tire out, tire to death. To tire to exhaustion: coll.: resp. mid-C.16–20, 1740. OED.

tired. (Of a picture, or rather of the painting thereof) overworked: artists': C.20. Virtually synon. with the longer-established tight (sense 6). Also hard. (J. Hodgson Lobley, R.B.A.)—2. In be born tired, to dislike work; occ. as 'an excuse for assumed apathy or genuine disinclination' (F. & H.): from late 1890s. Whiteing, 1899. Occ. be tired.—3. See you make me tired; done-tired.

Tired Tim. See Wearly Willie.

tiresome. Troublesome, annoying, unpleasant: coll.: 1798, Charlotte Smith, 'The tiresome custom you have got of never being ready' (OED).

tirly-whirly. The female pudend: Scots: late C.18–20; ob. (Burns.) Reduplicated whirly. Lit., 'a whirled figure, ornament, or pattern': cf. lit. senses of tirly.

tirret, tirrit. A fit of temper, occ. fear; an 'upset': coll., orig. illiterate for terror, perhaps influenced by dial. frit, frightened: late C.16–20. Shakespeare.

Tiser, The. The Morning Advertiser: journalistic:—1860 (H., 2nd ed., 'Tizer'); anon., The Siliad, 1874, 'The Victualler's anger, and the 'Tiser's rage'; † by 1920.

tish. A partition; esp. a cubicle: Public Schools', universities': since late 1880s. Cf. cubie, 1.

tishy. Drunk: ca. 1910–40. (Eric Horne, What the Butler Winked At, 1923.) A drunken pron. of tippy.

tisiket. A bastard, lit. and fig.: ca. 1940–50. Ex the popular song words, 'A tisiket, a tasket, A little yellow basket', where basket euphemises bastard. Franklyn, Rhyming.

tissey. An occ. var., † by 1900, of tizzy.

tissied up. Dressed up; smartly dressed: Aus.: since ca. 1925. (S. H. Courtier, A Corpse Won't Sing, 1964.) Perhaps a blend of titivated + sissified. P.B.: but see tizz up.

tissue. A racing list: racing men's and racecourse workers': C.20. (Jack Henry, Famous Cases, 1942.) Ex the flimsy paper used therefor.

tisty-tosty. Twistigrab (a game): early C.20. (Lewis, at googly.) Ex dial. tisty-tosty, a cowslip-ball, hence adj. 'round like a ball' (EDD).

tiswas. See all of a tiswas, and cf. tizz, n., 2.

tit. A girl or young woman (in mid-C.19–20, often, in low s., of a harlot): from end of C.16: S.E. until C.18, then coll. until C.19, then s.; from late C.19, low s. and possibly influenced by titter, q.v. Grose, 1st ed.; T. Creevey, 1837, '[Lady Tavistock] thinks the Queen a resolute little tit' (OED). Ex tit, a (small) horse: cf. filly, q.v.—2. The female pudend: low: C.18—early 20. Abbr. tit-bit, titmouse, in same sense (C.17–18); the former occ. = the penis, as in Urquhart, 1653.—3. A sol. spelling and pron. of teat: prob. from C.17 or even earlier. P.B.: so can it still be called 'a sol.'? I think not: it is rather 'Standard Low Eng.'—4. Hence, a female breast: low, esp. Aus., coll.: late C.19–20. 'In Australia, tit always = breast, not nipple' (B.P.) P.B.: in later C.20, unless firmly specified, B.P.'s comment is true also of low coll. in UK, so that tit, in this sense, has come to mean 'woman in general', as in 'I fancy a bit of tit tonight', referring not to sense 1 but to this, and 'Lovely bit of tit, she was' = she was a fine and shapely girl, without necessarily emphasising appreciation of her bust.—4. It does, however, = 'nipple' in its RAF sense, a gun-button: since ca. 1930. (H. & P.) Esp. in squeeze the tit (in firing a machine-gun).—5. Hence, any finger-pressed 'button' (of, e.g., an electric bell): RAF: since ca. 1938. (Jackson.) Whence, loosely and in gen. coll. by 1955, any button-like or knobby protuberance that vaguely resembles a nipple.—6. A student at Durham University: Durham townsmen's: late C.19–20. Also 'Varsity tit'. Ex tit applied to persons, perhaps as in:—7. In look a(n absolute) tit, to look very foolish, or 'sloppy' and stupid: low: late C.19–20. By itself, tit means a foolish, ineffectual man. Cf. social tit, q.v., and the later synon. twit.—8. A horse: c.: 1834 (Ainsworth); Charles E. Leach. Earlier in dial.—9. In tell tale tit (Your tongue shall be slit . . .), a sneak to authority: children's: since C.18. See esp. I. & P. Opie, The Lore and Language of Schoolchildren, 1959.—10. See get on (one's) tit; titty, 8.

tit about or around. To act ineffectually and trivially or irritatingly; to play about at doing something, instead of really tackling it; to potter uselessly or time-wastingly: low: resp. since ca. 1930; C.20. Cf. prec., 7, and arse about.

tit-bit. See tit, 2.

Tit-Bits. The RFC weekly communiqué: Air Force: 1915–18. (F. & G.) Punning the popular weekly.

tit-fer (gen. titfer); tit-for-tat. A hat: the short form being an obvious abbr. (C.20) of the second, which is rhyming s. of late C.19–20. F. & G.; B. & P.—2. (tit-for-tat.) 'Too bloody right' (= of course!): Services': WW1. B. & P.—3. (Usu. pl. tit for tats.) Female breasts: Aus. low: C.20. (Rats, 1944.) An elab. of tit, 4.

tit-hammock. A brassière: sailors': since ca. 1920. By 1950, fairly gen. low s. Cf. titbag.

tit in a tight crack, have (one's). To find oneself in an awkward and uncomfortable position, whether physical or emotional: low Can.: since ca. 1920. Cf. 'hell!' said the Duchess.

tit in a trance. Usu. in (standing there) like a ..., dreamy; abstracted: low, (mostly Londoners): C.20. (L.A.) John Smith, Bath, supplies, 1981, the variants like a tom tit on a blather o' lard or on a side o' beef, which show that the tit in question is prob. the bird, rather than tit, 7. But cf. Tom Tit on a round of beef, q.v.

tit(s)-man. A male more interested in a woman's breasts than in, e.g., her legs: low: since ca. 1910. Cf. arse-man.

tit-show. A vaudeville act in which uncovered female breasts are to be seen: raffish coll.: since ca. 1930.

tit ticklers. Metal studs decorating the back of a young male motorcyclist's riding jacket: motorcyclists': since ca. 1965. (Dunford.) Cf. peach perch, q.v.

tit up. To toss up (coins), in order to reach a decision: from late 1880s. F. Anstey, The Travelling companions, 1892, ch. 11, 'We'll each go, and—er—tit up, as you call it, which goes first.' Prob. the orig. form of tittup, v., q.v.

tit willow. A pillow: from ca. 1870. P.P., Rhyming Slang, 1932.

titbag. A brassière: low: since ca. 1945. Cf. tit-hammock.

titch. A flogging: Christ's Hospital (School): mid-C.19–20. ?ex tight breeches by blending, or ex dial. titch, touch. —2. Hence, occ. as a v. F. & H.

titory. See titory.

titfa. A frequent var. of tit-fer, itself often spelt tifer.

tith. Tigh: coll. and dial.: ca. 1615–30. Rare except in dramatist Fletcher. OED.

Titire-Tu. See Tityre-Tu.

titivate, tittivate; occ. tiddivate, tidi-, tiddyvate. To put finishing or additional touches to (one's toilet, oneself): coll.: resp. 1805, 1836, 1824, 1833, 1823. E.g. Dickens in Boz, 'Regular as clockwork—breakfast at nine—dress and tittivate a little', this quot'n illustrating and affording the earliest example of the v.i. used as v. reflexive. Perhaps ex tidy with a quasi-Latin ending on cultivate: OED. 'Or fanciful elaboration of synonymous dial. tiff, Fr. attifer, "to decke, ... adorne" (Cotgrave) (W.) Also with t off or up.—2. Hence, v.t., to treat gently: lower classes:—1923 (Manchon).

titivated, -ating, -ation, -ator. Obvious derivatives ex titivato: C.19–20. Coll.

title-page. The face: ca. 1830–70. (Sinks, 1848.) Cf. synon. frontispiece.—2. Hence, a type-face: printers': since ca. 1860. B. & L.

titless wonder. 'A flat-chested woman' (Cdr C. Parsons, 1973): RN officers': since ca. 1930. Cf. the equally factual chinless wonder.

titley; gen., and in C.20 almost always, tiddly, occ. tiddley. Intoxicating liquor: low:—1859 (H., 1st ed., titley). Prob. ex tiddlywink (q.v.), a public house.—2. Hence, a drink: low; from ca. 1870. (Baumann.) In C.20, gen. a little drink (Manchon).

titley; tiddly. Drunk: low: app. unrecorded before C.20, though on the tidd(ley), intoxicated or in a fair way of becoming intoxicated, appears in Punch in 1895 (OED Sup.). If thus late, then ex the n., but if earlier than tiddlywink (q.v.), then perhaps a corruption (? orig. dial.) of tipsy.

titley (or tiddley) and binder. A drink of beer and a piece of bread-and-cheese (cf. binder, 1): public-house phrase: C.20. Desmond Ryan, St Eustace and the Albatross, 1935.

titmouse. See tit, n., 2. Ex titmouse, fig. = a small thing.

titoki. A shandygaff: NZ: C.20. (B., 1941.) By perversion of sense of a genuine Maori word.

titotular bosh. Absolute nonsense: orig. and mainly music-halls': 1897–8. (Ware.) Punning teetotal.

tit. See fine a fellow ...; get on (one's) tit; useless as tits ... tits like a young heifer. As in 'She's got tits on her like a young heifer': raffish, M.C.P.: C.20. (T.C.H. Raper, 1973.) Of rural orig.

tits-man. See tit man.

tits off! Go away!: low: since ca. 1955. Cf. piss off!, sod off! (P.B.)

tits-up. 'Unserviceable, out of action (used of aeroplanes, cars, plans, people: tits-up on the runway)' (Strong & Hart-Davis, Fighter Pilot, 1981): RAF: later C.20. Formed on comparable balls-up, balled-up. (P.B.)

titter. A girl or young woman: criminals' and tramps' c. (—1812) >, by 1900, low s. Vaux; H., 1st to 3rd ed.; Henley, 1887, 'You flymy titters full of flam.' either ex titter, a giggle, or ex Scots titty, a sister, or again, ex dial. titty, a breast: the third possibility is perhaps the likeliest, for titty, sister, is mainly a child's word, unless we consider that dial. titty, a girl, has been influenced by titty, a breast.

titory. Gin: C.18. Perhaps ex titter, to giggle: (Bailey.) Occ. titory, tityre.

Titory-tu. See Tityre-tu.

titie. See titty.

tittivate. See tityrate.

titte. To whisper; to gossip: late C.14–20: S.E. until late C.18, then coll. and dial.; in C.20, mainly dial. Prob. ehoic.

titte-tat. A tittle-tattle; a tale-bearer: Aus. juvenile: since ca. 1930. (B.P.) Cf. tell tale tit, at tit, 9.

tittlebat. A somewhat illiterate, mainly London, coll. form of stickleback: C.19–20. (EDD and W.) Also tiddlebat, tittleback. (Slovenliness generates many such popular corruptions.)

tittup; occ. titup. As n., eligible only in the tit(t)up, the thing: that's the t., that's the thing; the correct t., the correct thing; low: late C.19–early 20. Ex tit(t)up, a horse's canter, itself ehoic.

tittup, v.i. To toss for drinks: nautical: C.20. (SOD.) Ex tittup, to canter. Cf.:-

tit(t)uppy. Unsteady, shaky: coll.: 1798 (Jane Austen). Rarely of persons, and in C.20 mainly dial. Ex tit(t)up, horse's canter.

titty; occ. tittle. A sister; a girl or young woman: Scots coll. (mostly among children as 'sister'): from ca. 1720. (Ramsay, Burns, Scott.) Perhaps ex child's pron. of sister. (OED.) Cf. titter, q.v.—2. A or the breast, esp. the human mother's: nursery coll., and dial.: from ca. 1740. (In dial., occ. tetty.) Hence, a drop of titty, a drink from the breast: nursery: C.19–20.—3. A diminutive of teat (cf. tit, 3, q.v.): coll.: C.19–20.—4. Hence, a dummy teat: coll.:—1927 (Collinson).—5. A kitten, a cat; also in address: nursery coll., and dial.: C.19–20. Clare, 1821 (OED). Ex child's pron. of kitty.—6, 7. Synon. with tit, 4, and 5, q.v. P-G-R.—8. In hard or tough titty!, bad luck! sometimes genuine consolation, but often ironic, as 'Well, that's your tough titty!': low: C.20. Also, just as common, hard or tough tit. (P.B.) titty and billy (or -ie and -ie). Sister and brother: Scots coll.: C.19–20. Ex titty, 1, q.v.—2. Hence, be titty-billy (or -ie), to be intimate: Scots coll.:—1825 (Jamieson).

titty-bag; -bottle. Resp., a small linen bag containing bread sprinkled with sweetened milk, given by some nurses to their charges; a bottle (of milk) with teat attached: children's: C.20. Manchon.

tityre. See titory.

titup. See tittup.

Tityre-tu; also Titire-Tu, Tytere (or -ire)-tu, Titory tu, tittry. A member of a band of rich and leisured roughs of ca. 1620–60: a coll. nickname > S.E. The OED records the name in 1623 (J. Chamberlain); 'Water-Poet' Taylor; Herrick. Ex the opening words of Virgil's First Eclogue.

tius. A suit (of clothes): back s.:—1909. Ware restricts it to East London.

Tiv, the. The Tivoli Music Hall, London: late C.19–early 20.

tiv(v)y. The female pudend: low: C.19–early 20. ?Ex dial. tiv(ey), activity.

tiz up. See tizz up.

Tizer. See Tiser.

tizwas. See all of a tiswas.

tizz. A shortened form of tizzy, 2: since ca. 1930. Phoebe Fenwick Gaye, Treen and the Wild Horses, 1959.

tizz (or tiz) up. To dress up, esp. flashily; to furbish or smarten (some object): Aus.: since ca. 1938. (B., 1953.) Apparently ex tizzy, adj. See also tissied up, and cf. synon. tart up.

tizzy, n.; occ. tizezy, tissey. A sixpence: resp. 1804, 1809, and († in C.20) 1829. Moncrieff, 1823, 'Hand us over three browns out of that 'ere tizzy.' (OED; F. & H.) Prob. a corruption of tester, q.v., via tilbury, q.v. See also testy. Cf. swiz for swindle (W.).—2. A 'state'; esp. get into a tizzy, to get 'all worked up': C.20. Perhaps ex S.E. hysteria. Cf. all of a tiswas.

tizzy, adj. Ostentatiously or flashily dressed: Aus.: since ca. 1935. (B., 1953.) A thinning and a disguising of S.E. tidy. Or perhaps rather ex S.E. tidy + s. jazzy; or, more prob., ex tivated (see tivate).—2. Hence, flashy, ostentatious, showy but cheaply made, as, e.g., an inferior Espresso machine: Aus.: since ca. 1945. (B.P.)

tizzy-poole. A fives ball: Winchester: from ca. 1870. Because it used to cost 6d. and be sold by a head porter named Poole. Cf. the Harrow tizzy-tick, 'an order on a tradesman to the extent of 6d. a day' (F. & H.): mid-C.19–20.

tizzy-snatcher. An assistant-paymaster: RN: C.20. 'Taffrail' notes it in 'The Language of the Navy', a chapter in his Carry On!, 1916. Granville, 1962, however, glosses it 'Naval paymaster'. Ex tizzy, n., 1, and the C.19 RN sense, 'a purser'.

tjapan. A uniformed policeman: S. African (esp., non-European) underworld: late C.19–20. App. ex Malayan, as Cape Times of 22 May 1946 states.

tlas. See sap the tlas.

to, preposition. At (as in to home); in (a place, as in 'He lives to London'): S.E. until mid-C.18, then dial. and (mostly US) coll.—in England, it is, as a coll., illiterate, as indeed it is throughout the Empire, except Canada.—2. (After to be and in all to bits or pieces) in, into: coll.: C.18–20. Vanbrugh, ca. 1720, 'The glasses are all to bits' (OED).—3. The very pregnant use of to (in speech, gen. emphasised) as in 'There's more to the Bible than there is to The Sheik,' 'There's something to Shakespeare' is a C.20 coll. (? earlier than 1915) prob. derived ex to it, as in that's all there is to it, there is nothing to add, do, or say: coll. (orig. US), anglicised ca. 1910. In these cognates, (is to) = (is) notable, good, significant (in it, etc.). Possibly the pregnancy of this to originated in the to stated or implied in the ethic dative.—4. Used at the end of phrase of clause and = 'to do', etc., it is rare before C.19, but a very frequent coll. in late C.19–20. 'I went because I had to.' OED.

to, adv. Expressing contact as in shut a door to: M.E.—C.20: S.E. until mid-C.19, then coll. OED.—2. 'Expressing attachment, application, or addition': C.15–20: S.E. until C.19, then coll. 'We ordered the horses to', 1883 (OED); C.W. Thurlow Craig, 1935, 'We threw the coat to', i.e. on to the body.

to-and-fro'ing. A constant moving-about; work that necessitates much getting-about: coll.: since ca. 1945. P.B.: just as common is to'ing-and-fro'ing, as in 'There was a great deal of to'ing-and-fro'ing before everybody got settled down.'

to-and-from. A concertina: since ca. 1910. Ex the movements of the player's arms.—2. An English serviceman: Aus. prisoners of war in the Far East: 1942–5. Rhyming on pom, 2. B., 1953.

to coin a phrase. An ironic c.p., mildly apologetic for the immediately preceding or ensuing triteness (often a cliché): since ca. 1935, but gen. only since ca. 1949. See DCpp.

to hell with you, Jack, I'm all right! A euph. var. of fuck you Jack!

to rights. See rights.

to the nines, to the ruffian. To an extreme or superlative degree: for to the nines, see nines; to the ruffian is c. of ca. 1810–50: Vaux.

toac. See taoc.

toad. 'A piece of hot toast put into their beer by college men [i.e. boys]' (Wrench): Winchester: C.19.—2. A German hand-grenade, shaped rather like one: army coll.: 1915+. F. & G.—3. One who has done wrong yet is none the less popular: Marlborough College: since the late 1920s.—4. A mechanical derailer: Can. railroadmen's:—1931. Ex its shape.—5. See full of money...; side-pockets; sit like a toad...

toad-in-the-hole. A sandwich-board: mostly London:—1864; † by 1920. (H., 3rd ed.) Ex the meat dish so named.—2. Hence, occ., the man carrying it: late C.19—early 20. Manchon.

toast, n. A toper; (old toast) a lively old fellow fond of his liquor: ca. 1668–1800, but ob. by 1730. (L'Estrange, B.E., Grose.) Ex such phrases as ale and toast.—2. See have on toast, which includes, by implication, get on toast.

toast, v. To blush: Shrewsbury: since mid-1930s. Marples. toast-rack. A term applied, since ca. 1910, to the horse-trams at Douglas, Isle of Man. (Peter Chamberlain.)—2. 'One of the old-style footboard trams still used in Sydney' (B., 1943): Aus.: since ca. 1920. 'Discontinued by 1960' (Wilkes)—but the term continues nostalgically.

toast your blooming eye-brows! Go to blazes!: lower classes' c.p. of ca. 1895–1915. Ware.

toasting-fork, -iron. A sword: joc. coll.: 1596, Shakespeare, and Grose, 1st ed., have t.-iron, which is ob. by 1880, † by 1914; t.-fork dates from ca. 1860 and occurs in Tom Brown at Oxford, 1861. Cf. cheese-toaster (and the † S.E. toaster), likewise derived ex its most gen. use.

toasty. Warmly tinted: artists': from mid-1890s. Lit., (burnt) brown.

tobacco. See make dead men chew...

tobacco-box. A Friar bird: Aus. c.20. (B., 1942.)? Ex colour.

tobacco chart. Gen. pl, 'the ... inaccurate charts that could formerly be bought from any ship chandler at a low price': nautical: ca. 1840–90. (Bowen.) Perhaps as sold at the price of an ounce of tobacco, or because they were tobacco-stained.

tobacco-pipe curls. Corkscrew curls worn by costers and gipsies: (esp. London) lower classes':—1887 (Baumann). Ex the curve of such a pipe.

tobacco road. Cadgers taking payment in tobacco for odd favours, from trawlermen going off to sea: trawlermen's coll.: later C.20. (Piper, 1974.) Prob. suggested by Erskine Caldwell's 1932 novel of the same name, later dramatised and running for over 3,000 performances on Broadway. (P.B.)

tobaccy. Tobacco: lower classes' coll.: from the 1870s if not earlier. W.S. Gilbert, HMS Pinafore, 'I've snuff and tobaccy and excellent jacky.' Slang, p. 101.

tobby. A deck boy: nautical: late C.19–20: (Bowen.)? ex toby, n., 5: because always at hand.

tober. A road: tramps' c. and Romany, the former in 1845 in 'No. 747'. See toby, 3.—2. Hence, a circus-field: Parlyaree (?) and circus s.:—1933 (E. Seago, Circus Company).—3. Among grafters, it is a fair-ground or market; hence, one's pitch thereon or therein: C.20. Cheapjack, 1934.—4. Hence, 'rent for stallholder's or caravan site' (M.T.): market-traders': since 1930s. Cf. toby, n., 4.

tober-mush. A market-inspector: market-traders' (e.g. Petticoat Lane): C.20. Ex prec., 3, 4 + mush, n., 11: cf. coring mush and rye mush.—2. Fair-ground official; collective for such officials: grafters': C.20. News of the World, 28 Aug. 1938. Cf.: tober omee (or omey or homee or homey). A toll-collector: grafters': late C.19–20. Cheapjack, 1934. Cf. prec.

tobur. Rare var. of tober.

toby, n. The buttocks: from ca. 1675. Esp. in tickle one's toby, to beat him on the buttocks. Ex the proper name.—2. Hence, the female pudend, as in Cotton, ca. 1678. Ob. by 1930.—3. Always as the toby, the highway: c.:—1811. Also the high toby. (Lex. Bal., Lytton, Ainsworth, Hindley); ob., the gen. C.20 term being drum. Ex Shelta tobar, a road (see tober, 1), itself perhaps a 'deliberate perversion of Irish bothar, a road' (W.).—4. Hence, also as the toby, fig., robbery on the highway: 1812 (Vaux). High (or main) toby, highway robbery by a mounted person; that of footpads being the low toby: c.: ca. 1810–50. (Ibid.) This leads to ply or ride the toby, to practise highway robbery: id; and high spice toby or high toby spice, the highway viewed as a locality for robbery: c.:—1812 (Byron: h.t.s.); Hindley, 1876 (h.s.f.). See also high pad, and further phrases below.—5. Ex 3, a pitch: showmen's: from ca. 1890. Standard, 29 Jan. 1893, 'We have to be out in the road early... to secure our "Toby".' Cf. tober, 3.—6. the dog in a Punch and Judy show: 1840: coll. very soon > S.E.: see swatchel. The dog in [The Book of] Tobit... is probably the eponym of "Dog Toby" of "Punch and Judy" (Sir Paul Harvey).—7. A lady's collar: Society coll.: ca. 1882–1918. Ex 'the wide frill worn round the neck by Mr Punch's dog' (Ware).—8. A steel helmet: army: 1915+. F. & G.—9. A tramp: c.: C.20. (George Orwell, Down and Out, 1933.) Ex 3 and 4.—10. A (young) child, often in address, as 'You little (or young) toby!': domestic: late C.19—earlier 20. One of my grandmother's epithets for me, late 1930s–40s. Cf. synon. use of tinker or Turk. I was never sure whether it was ex 4 or ex 6. (P.B.)—11. A weak-witted, clumsy-handed, but very willing, obliging fellow: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.—12. A dissolute girl or young woman: Aus. low: from ca. 1920. B.—13. A man servant: Haileybury: since ca. 1920. (Marples.) Common-propertying of a familiar male given name.—13. In have a toby on, to be well disposed towards: Aus.: since ca. 1925. Alan Marshall, These Are My People, 1944, p. 155: 'I'm not much chop on pies, but I'm a toby on puddin's.' Opp. have a grape on.

toby, v.t. To rob (a person) on the highway; hence, done for a toby, convicted for highway robbery: c. of ca. 1810–50. Vaux (v. and phrase).

toby concern or lay. The practice of highway robbery: c.: 1811 (lay); † by 1880. 'Ducange Anglicus' and H. 1st ed., have toby consarn.

toby gill; high toby gloak; toby man. A highwayman: c.: from ca. 1810; † by 1880. (Vaux, 1812, has all three.) Romany: tober kov, cove. Cf.:-

toby man, high- and low. A highwayman and a footpad: c.: ca. 1810–80. (Lex, Bal., 1811.) Ex toby, n., 4, and cf. toby gill, etc.

toby spice. See toby, n., 4.

toc emma. A trench mortar: army: from 1915. Ex signalese for t m. See PHONETIC ALPHABET, in Appendix.—2. Hence, a travelling medical board: Aus.: from 1916. Such a board 'shot' soldiers into the trenches.

toco, toko. Chastisement; from ca. 1820; ob. by 1930. Bee, 1823, 'If... Blackee gets a whip about his back, why he has caught toco.' Hence, to give (a person) toco, to thrash him, as in Hughes, 1857, 'Administer toco to the wretched fags'. Perhaps ex (the dative or ablative of) Gr. τόκος, interest, as the OED suggests; or ex Hindustani tokna, to censure, via the imperative toco, as Y. & B. pertinently remarks; or, as I diffidently propose, ex some Negro or Polynesian word: cf. Maori toko, a rod (Edward Tregear's Dict., 1891). See also toko, and cf.:-

toco for yam, get or nep. To be punished; among sailors from ca. 1860, to get paid out. Bee records this (the get), prob. the orig., form in 1823. On the analogy of a stone for a loaf of bread, and, presumably at first a treatment meted out to slaves. Boxiana, IV, 1824, 'Cabbage napt toco (a severe punch), and was sent down.' This has a var. catch toko (or toco): The Night Watch (II, 121), 1828—cf. the quot'n at blood-sucker. Cf. take toko, 'To take four dozen lashes in the old Navy without crying out' (Bowen): ca. 1840–90.—2. By 1874, toco for yam had come to mean 'a Roland for an Oliver' (H., 5th ed.); ob. by 1930.

Tod is the 'inevitable' nickname of any man surnamed Sloan (after the famous jockey) or Hunter (cf. the surname Toohunter): Services: late C.19–20. F. & G.—2. (Also toddy.) A foppishly or gaily dressed person (rarely female): West Yorkshire s.; not dial.:—1904 (EDD). I.e. dial tod, a fox.—3. Esp. in on (one's) tod, alone: rhyming s., a shortening of Tod Sloan: since late C.19. (Cheepjack, 1934.) Cf. synon. Jack Jones and Pat Malone, than which Franklyn suggests it is less common—but P.B. disagrees.

Tod Sloan. See Tod, 3.

today. See not today, baker!

today... - tomorrow the world! 'Who knows what heights (e.g. success) may reach?'; applied to any project: coll.: since late 1960s. Prob. ex show business, of young 'talent' impressing 'today the home town, tomorrow...' Ex US; see quot'n at let it spread! (P.B.)

toddle, to go, walk, depart, is, by the OED, considered S.E.; but its C.20. use, esp. in the upper and upper-middle classes (see, e.g., Dorothy L. Sayers's Lord Peter Wimsey novels), seems to me to be coll. Cf.:-

toddler. A walker—one who, on a given occasion, walks: coll.: ca. 1810–60. Boxiana, III, 1821.—2. See:- toddlers. Legs: ca. 1835–80. (Sinks, 1848.) Cf. prec.—2. See mums-and-toddlers.

toddy, -ie. In address to a child of 1–3 years: coll.:? mid-C.19–20. Such a child toddles rather than walks; cf. dial. toddy, little, and familiar S.E. toddles, a toddling child.—2. See tod, n., 2.

toddy-blossom. A 'grog-blossom', q.v.: C.19—early 20. Ex toddy, the beverage.

toddy-stick. A muddler: low: mid-C.19–20. On stick used pej.

todge. To smash (to a pulp): provincial: C.19–20. Ex dial. todge, stodge.

toe, n. In to have or hold by the toe, to hold securely: coll.: mid-C.16—mid-17. (Chronicle Hall and Bishop Hall: OED.) Cf. short hairs, q.v.—2. In turn on the toe, to turn (a person) off the ladder in hanging: late C.16—early 17. Nashe, 1594 (OED).—3. As the Toe, the tuck-shop erected in 1908 at Sherborne School. Alec Waugh, The Loom of Youth, 1917.—4. See kiss the Pope's toe.

toe, v.t. To kick: low: from ca. 1860: coll. >, ca. 1910, S.E.

toe a line. To form a rank or line: naval coll.: mid-C.18–19, and perhaps rather earlier and rather later. It occurs in W.N. Glascock, The Naval Sketch-Book (I, 237), 1825, thus: 'The brigades of seamen embodied to act with our troops in America, as well as in the north coast of Spain, contrived to "ship a bagnet" [handle a bayonet] on a pinch, and to "toe" (for that was the phrase) "a tolerable line".' (Moe.) Cf. toe the line, q.v.

toe-biter. 'If there is a long wait, without a job, the cabmen on the rank are "having a binder"—or, in cold weather, a "toe-biter". Some of them may decide to "run away"; that is, drive off without a job' (Herbert Hodge, Cab, Sir?, 1939); taxi-drivers': since ca. 1910.

toe-buster. An infantryman: cavalrymen's: ca. 1880–1905. (L.A.) Cf. the Fr. 1914–18 pousse-caillou.

toe-face. An objectionable or dirty fellow: low:—1923 (Manchon). Cf. toe-rag.

toe-fit-ti(e). To tie a string to (a boy's) toe and haul him out of bed: Public Schools', esp. Winchester and Felsted: ca. 1870–1900. The Felstedian, Nov. 1881, "' To fit-ti'", in reference to verbs of the third conjugation transferred from the similarity of sound to the schoolboy's toe.'

toe-fug. A footpath: Tonbridge: later C.19—early 20. Marples.

toe-nail poisoning. Ptomaine poisoning: joc.: from 1934.

toe-path. An infantry regiment: cavalrymen's: ca. 1890–1914. (Ware.) Punning low-path.—2. A running-board on a train: Can. railroadmen's:—1931.

toe-pitch. To stand on the quarterdeck in response to the 'defaulters' bugle': RN lowerdeck: later C.19–20. (Good-enough, 1901.) Granville glosses: 'The muster at the defaulters' table in the forenoon watch. The men come up to the pitch by toeing the line.'

toe-rag. J.F. Morlock, Experiences of a Convict, 1965, p. 83, writing of 1864, 'Stockings being unknown, some luxurious men wrapped round their feet a piece of old shirting, called, in language more expressive than elegant, a "toe-rag"' (Wilkes). In pl., those windings of cotton-wool about the ball of the foot and the toes which, to displace socks, prevent blistering: tramps' c.: C.20. F. Jennings, Tramping with Tramps, 1932.—2. Hence, a beggar: provincial s.:—1909 (Ware).—3. 'A London docker who works bulk grain ex-ship': nautical: C.20. Bowen.—4. A term of contempt for a person; a 'dog's-body': Aus.: since ca. 1905. (B., 1942.) Cf. toe-ragger, q.v. But current in Brit. Army, WW1; in Glasgow University and schools in 1927, and prob. for some years earlier. It occurs as a Cockney usage in Gerald Kersh, Fowler's End, 1958. The term 'enjoyed' a revival in schools in the mid-1970s, perhaps influenced by some TV show.—5. A £1 note: Aus.: earlier C.20. B., 1943.—6. 'In the Merchant Navy (at any rate up to the 1920s) dried Newfoundland cod—a singularly unappetising Friday dish aboard ship. (On the authority of a retired sea-captain friend)' (R.S., 1969).—7. A dirty thing; rubbish, as in 'I'm not fencing that toe-rag'=I'm not selling that rubbish: market-traders': C.20. M.T.—8. See shake (one's) toe-rag.

toe-ragger, rigger. A term of opprobrium: Aus. and NZ resp., as in the (Sydney) Truth, 12 Jan. 1896: "'A toe-ragger" is Maori... The nastiest term of contempt was tua rika rika, or slave. The old whalers on the Maoriland coast in their anger called each other toe-riggers, and to-day the word in the form of toe-ragger has spread throughout the whole of the South Seas' (Morris). P.B.: influenced perhaps by toe-rag, 1, helping the process of Hobson-Jobson.—2. (? Hence,) 'A short-sentence prisoner in a jail' (B., 1959): Aus. c.: since ca. 1910. toe-rags. See toe-rag, 1, second quot'n.—2. As the Toe-Rags, the Tuareg (Saharan tribesmen): army: since ca. 1942. (Peter Sanders.) By the process of Hobson-Jobson.

toe the line. To appear in an identification parade: c.: from ca. 1910.—2. To conform: coll.: C.20. 'If you join the Army you'll have to toe the line.' Ex infantry drill. P.B.: since mid-C.20, in very gen. use, and with specified application, as in 'these place-seeking MPs are all the same—no independence, just toeing the party line all through.'

toe's length, the. Almost no distance: coll.: ca. 1820–1920. OED.

toes. In on old toes, aged; in old age: coll.: C.15. (OED.) Cf. old bones.—2. In step or tread on (someone's) toes or the toes of, to vex; give umbrage to: coll.: mid-C.19–20. (Robert Browning, 1868: OED.) Ex lit, sense.—3. See claw (one's) toes; cool (one's) toes; turn (one's) toes up.

toes up. (Lying) dead: 1851 (Mayhew: OED); ob. by ca. 1935. toey, n. A 'swell': Aus., esp. NSW: late C.19–early 20.

toey, adj. (Of a horse) speedy: Aus.: C.20. B., 1953.—2. But also: restive, unsettled: since ca. 1925. At first of horses, then also of persons. Ibid.

toff, n. A 'swell'; a 'nob' (well-to-do person): proletarian: from 1850s; slightly ob. by 1930. Ca. 1868, there was a music-hall song entitled 'The Shoreditch Toff', by Arthur Lloyd; Whiteing, 1899. Ex tuft, via toft, q.v. A socially interesting comment and a coll. var. are afforded by the quot'n at doll, n., 1.—2. Hence, a man of fortitude and courage: late C.19–early 20. Daily Telegraph, 16 Sep. 1902, 'He held out his wrists to be handcuffed, and exclaimed, "Now I'll die like a toff"'.—3. A 'brick', a person behaving handsomely: 1898 (OED); slightly ob.—4. In Aus. c., a dependable fellow-prisoner, or even a warder who's as good as his (good) word: since ca. 1945. (Ian Grindley, 1977.) toff, v. Esp. be toffed up, to be dressed like a 'toff': low: 1928 (OED Sup.).

toff bundle-carrier. A gentleman accompanying a prosperous serio-comic from hall to hall on her evening 'rounds': theatrical: ca. 1870–1900. (Ware.) Ex toff, 1.

toff-omee. The superlative of toff, 1: c.:—1909 (Ware).

toff-shoving. 'Pushing about well-dressed men in a crowd': London roughs': ca. 1882–1900. Ware.

toffed up. See toff, v.

toffee. Tobacco: c.:—1932 ('Stuart Wood'). Ex its colour.—2. (A stick of) gelignite: since mid-1940s. (BBC, 'Z Cars', episode broadcast 11 Mar. 1964.) Gelignite looks rather like soft toffee.—3. 'Nonsense or flattery: "You don't believe that load of toffee, do you?"', or "He's full of the old toffee!"' (Powis): since mid-C.20. L.A., 1967, supplies 'Don't give me that toffee', from RAF, Malta, 1960, and glosses 'wrapped-up glib explanation'.—4. In not for toffee, not at all; by no manner of means; not in any circumstances: uncultured: late C.19–20. 'Taffrail', The Sub, 1917; Hugh Walpole, Vanessa, 1933; 'That fellow X. can't bat for toffee', of a Test cricketer in 1934. Mrs C. Raab, 1979: 'Also not for toffee-nuts: London schoolchildren's: since 1930s; not yet quite t.'—5. See easy as taking toffee from a child.

toffee-apple. A trench-mortar stick-bomb: army coll.: 1915–18. F. & G., 'From... the apples dipped in toffee [and] sold under the name at English country fairs'.—2. A Very light, or a tracer bullet, fired as a guide to motor transport moving in the dark: 8th Army: 1942–3.—3. A cask of either asphalt or pitch: railwaymen's: since ca. 1945. (Railway, 2nd.) Ironic. Toffee Men, the. Everton Football Club ('soccer'): sporting: C.20. Ex Everton toffee. In later C.20, usu. the Toffees: 'Used in Pardon the Expression [on] TV, 20 June 1968' (Petch).

toffee-nosed. Supercilious; too proud; conceited; snobbish: lower classes': C.20. (F. & G.) It was very popular, as was its var. toffee-nose (H. & P.), with the RAF and WAAF in WW2. With a pun on toffy.

toffee ration. Marital sexual intercourse: RN: since mid-1940s.

toffee-scramble. A toffee-making: schoolboys' coll.: C.20. Anon., Troddles, 1901.

toffer. A fashionable whore: low: ca. 1860–1914. H., 2nd ed. Cf.:

tofficky. Showy; vulgarly dressy: low: ca. 1860–1910. (H., 2nd ed.) Ex toff, 1.

toffish; toffy. Stylish; 'swell': resp. from ca. 1873, when toffishness occurs in Greenwood's Strange Company; 1901, Jerome K. Jerome (OED); toffy, ob., ex tofficky.

Toffs, the. The Corinthian Casuals AFC; founded 1883, they 'were affectionately known as the toffs' (Martin Linton, Guardian, 8 Sep. 1982.)

toft. A var., prob. the imm. source of toff, 1, q.v.: ca. 1850–1910. (Mayhew, 1851; H., 1st ed.) If not toff debased—and the dates seem to preclude this—then tuft corrupted.

tog. A coat: early C.18–20: c. >, ca. 1820, low s. Tuft, 1798, 'Long tog, a coat'; Andrewes, 1809, 'Tatty tog, a gaming cloth'; Vaux, 1812, 'Tog, a coat' and 'Upper tog, an overcoat'. (OED.) Ex toge, q.v., or less prob., tog(e)man(s), a cloak.—2. Perhaps hence, a week's wages on piece-work: tailors': C.20.—3. See taoc; toge; togs.

tog, v. First as past ppl. togged, dressed, 1793, to tog being recorded not before 1812. Vaux, 'To tog is to... put on clothes; to tog a person... to supply them with apparel.' Cf. 'Wait till I've togged my "round-the-houses"' (Augustus Mayhew, Paved With Gold, 1857). Low s. verging on c. Ex toge.

tog-bound. Having no good clothes: lower classes':—1909 (Ware).

tog-fencer. A tailor: London proletariat: ca. 1870–1915 Ware. tog it; t. out; t. up. V.i., to dress smartly: proletarian: resp. 1844, 1869, 1903. OED.—2. As v.t., tog out occurs in 1820 in London Magazine (I, 25), 'He was always togged out to the nines', and tog up in 1894 (OED).

tog-maker. A low-class tailor: proletarian: late C.19–20. Prob. ex togs.

tog up. See tog it.

toga play. An Ancient-Classics drama: theatrical coll.:—1909; ob. (Ware.) Ex the ancient Roman male garment.

togamans. See togemans.

toge. A coat: c.: late C.17–18. (B.E.) Ex togemans on S.E. toge (= toga).

togeman(s), togman. A cloak; a (loose) coat; rarely, a gown (B.E.): c. of ca. 1565–1840, but ob. by 1800 if not indeed by 1750. Harman, 1567, all three forms; togeman, very rare after 1700, togman app. not later than 1700; Grose, 1st ed., togmans, 2nd ed., togemans; Bee, the rare togamans. Ex Roman toga, perhaps in its Fr. form (toge), + the c. suffix-MANS. q.v. in Appendix. Cf. tog, toge, togs, toggy.

together, adj. Having one's life, one's career, emotions, under control; knowing what one wants and how to get it; adopted, ex US, mid-1960s. 'And... sensible Davey, together Davey, making sure he's not left in lurch without a career' (Groupie, 1968). Of US usage, W. & F., 1975, notes 'Often in phrases "get it all together" and "have it all together".'

togey, togie(s), togy. A knotted rope's end or lanyard 'carried about hidden by elder boys to beat their fags with' (Ware): Public Schools' and Dartmouth: later C.19–early 20. (Bowen.) Prob. ex toco.

tagged, tagged out or up; tagged up to the nines. See resp. tog, v., and tog it.

togger. Perhaps only in upper togger, an overcoat: low s. of ca. 1820–50. Egan, 1823, 'And with his upper togger gay./Prepared to toddle swift away.' Ex tog, n., 1, q.v.—2. A boat in the Torpids: Oxford University: from mid-1890s. Ex Torpid, via the 'OXFORD-ER', on Cambridge slogger. (Occ. as adj.: F. & H., 1904.)—3. In pl, gen. T, the Torpids, i.e. the races themselves, the competition as a whole: Ibid.: C.20.—4. At Harrow (also Torpid), a boy not yet two years in the School: from ca. 1896. F. & H.

toggerly. Clothes: s. (1812, Vaux) >, ca. 1890, coll. Moncrieff, 1823, 'This toggerly will never fit—you must have a new rig-out.'—2. Hence esp., official or vocational dress: from ca. 1825; slightly ob. by 1930. Marryat, 1837, has long toggerly, landsmen's clothes: cf. togs.—3. Hence, (a horse's) harness: from late 1850s; slightly ob. H., 1st ed.—4. Hence, loosely, one's 'gear' or belongings: from late 1850s; ob. H., 1st ed.

toggy. A cloak; a coat: c.: early C.18–early 20. Dr D. Leechman quotes James Isham's Observations on Hudson's Bay 1743, and Notes, published by the Champlain Society in 1949: 'a Beaver Coate or tockey which Reaches to the Calf of the Leg.' Ex tog, n., or perhaps imm. ex † toggy, tuggy, an overcoat for the arctic regions.

togies. See togey.

togman. See togeman(s). The togmans of Grose, 1st ed., is a confusion, as also, prob., is Baumann's togomans.

togs. Clothes: c. (—1809) >, ca. 1825, low s. >, ca. 1860, gen. s.; in C.20, usu. joc. coll. (G. Andrewes's Dict.; Dickens; Blackmore.) Ex tog, n., 1, q.v.—2. In phrases,—chiefly in full togs, in full naval dress: C.19 (Basil Hall, 1831); short togs, short clothing: RN (? also gen. nautical): C.19. (W.N. Glascock, The Naval Sketch-Book, 2nd series, 1834, at II, 179; Moe.) Cf. long togs, landsmen's clothes: nautical s. >, ca. 1890, coll.: 1830, Marryat, 'I retained a suit of "long togs", as we call them' (OED); Dana. Prob. on long clothes. Sunday togs, one's best clothes: London and nautical s. (—1859) >, by 1904, gen. H., 1st ed.; Smyth; F. & H.—2. In mid-C.20 Aus. togs = esp., a bathing suit. B., 1942.

togy. See togey.

toheno; occ. tohereno. Very nice: late C.19–20: costers'. Lit., hot one reversed.

toil like a tar on a horse or on horseback. To work clumsily: latish C.18–19. J. Nyren, The Cricketers of My Time, 1833.

to'ing and fro'ing. See to-and-fro'ing.

Tojo. A var. of Private Tojo: P-G-R.

toke, n. (Dry) bread: low s. (—1859) verging, orig., on c. (H., 1st ed.) Perhaps tuck (food) or (hard and soft) tack corrupted.—2. Hence, food in gen.: low s. and c.: from ca. 1875. Anon., Five Years' Penal Servitude, 1877, 'What in prison slang is called his toke or chuck.'—3. A loaf of bread, esp. a small loaf of bread served in prison: (mostly prison) c.: late C.19–20. ('Stuart Wood', 1932; 'James Spenser', 1934.) 'An old word' (Tempest, 1950).—4. (Prob. ex I.) A piece, portion; lump: rare and low: from early 1870s; ob. by 1930. H., 5th ed.

toke, v. To idle, 'loaf': Leys School: late C.19–20. Ex thoke, v.: q.v.

token, the. Venereal disease, esp. in tip one (gen. male) the token, to infect venereally: low: from ca. 1780; very ob. (Grose, 1st ed.) Ex token, a blotch or discoloration indicative of disease, esp. the plague. (the tokens, the plague, is S.E.)—2. See Tom-fool's token.

toko. Praise; excessive praise; flattery, esp. if excessive: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Perhaps ironically ex toco, q.v.

tokon. A rare var. of toco:—1923 (Manchon). Cf.:

tokus. Same as prec. (H.D. Miles, Dick Turpin, 1841.) This form either shows the influence of or, more probably, comes straight from Yiddish tokus, the backside.

tol. A sword: c. of late C.17–18. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) Abbr. Toledo, a sword there made. Hence, rum tol, a gold- or silver-hilted sword; queer tol, a brass- or steel-hilted one, i.e. an ordinary one.—2. A share; a lot (of...): back s.:—1851 (Mayhew, I).

tol-lol. Intoxicated: Yorkshire and Nottinghamshire: from ca. 1890. EDD.—2. See:

tol-lol(l); tol-lollish. Pretty good: resp. from middle 1790s and late 1850s; ob. Mrs A.M. Bennett, 1797; H., 2nd ed., has both; W.S. Gilbert, 'Lord Nelson, too, was pretty well—/That is, tol-lol-ish!' F. & H.; OED. By the reduplication of the first syllable of tolerable.—2. As adv., tolerably: from late 1850s. H., 2nd ed.—3. (The 2nd.) 'Overbearing and/or foppish' (B., 1942): Aus.: late C.19–20.

told, be To obtain one's colours in a school team: Tonbridge: late C.19–20.

told out. Exhausted: coll.: 1861, Whyte-Melville, of a horse. Lit., counted out. OED.

tole. A street-corner fight: Teddy-boys': 1954+. Perhaps ex dial. toll, a clump (of, e.g., trees). See quot'n at lamp, v., 4. tolerable. In fair health: coll.: 1847, C. Brontë, 'We're tolerable, sir, I thank you.'—2. As adv. (= tolerably): from ca. 1670: S.E. until late C.18, then coll. and dial.

tolerably. (Predicatively, of health.) Pretty well: coll.: 1778, (Mme D'Arblay: OED).

toley. Excrement: esp., a turd: Scottish: C.20. (? earlier). (Alan Sharpe, A Green Tree in Gedde, 1967.) Prob. ex the Sc. dial. toalie or tolie, 'a small round bannock or cake' (EDD).

toll-loll-loll-kiss-me-dear. A Middlesex finch: bird-fanciers': mid-C.19–20. (B. & L.) Ex the bird's note. P.B.: cf. the yellowhammer's 'little-bit-of-bread-and-no-cheese'.

tol(l)iban rig. 'A species of cheat carried on by a woman, assuming the character of a deaf and dumb conjurer' (Grose, 2nd ed.): c.: ca. 1786–1850. Ex rig, a trick, + toloben (q.v.), tol(l)iban, the tongue.

tollolish. See tol-loll, This var. in Henry Cockton.

tolly, n. A candle: Public Schools': mid-C.19–early 20. (Cf. tolly up, q.v.) Ex tallow. Hence, the Tolly, a tapering spire at the back of the Close of Rugby School: Rugby: late C.19–20. B. & L.; Athenæum, 16 June 1900.—2. A flat instrument (e.g. a ruler) used in caning: Stonyhurst: late C.19–20. ? ex sense 1, or ex L. tollere. Esp. get the tolly (Manchon).—3. A marble (as used in the game of marbles); children's: late C.19–20. (Manchester Evening News, 27 Mar. 1939.) Cf. sense 2.—4. A cup or mug; a tin hip-bath: Marlborough College: since ca. 1870.

tolly, gen. tolly up. To work by candle-light after the extinction of the other lights: Harrow School:—1889 (B. & L.) Ex prec., 1.

tolly-shop. A prefect's room (where caning is done): Stonyhurst: late C.19–20. Ex tolly, n., 2. Cf. tolly-ticket, a good-conduct card: Ibid.: id. Because it ensured against caning, except for a particularly serious offence.

tolly up. See tolly, v.

tolly(-)whacker. A roll of paper that, in the form of a club, is used by boys in rough play: Cockneys': from ca. 1920. Ex tolly, a candle.

tolo. 'A dance at which the girls pay the admission fee rather than the men' (Leechman): Can.: since ca. 1955. Perhaps ex S.E. toll, a tax; perhaps, however, cf. the Newfoundland tole, to entice with bait.

toloben. The tongue: c.: late C.18–20. Hence, toloben rig, fortune-telling. Cf. tolliban rig. Also occ. spelt tollibon or tullibon. (I am, however, unconvinced about toloben being the tongue: it is vouched for only by F. & H., and I think that there may be a confusion with Romany tullopen or tulipen (Smart & Crofton), or tulipen (Sampson), fat, lard, grease, a sense that, if extended to 'paint' for the face, might well explain toloben-rig, fortune-telling, and possibly also tolliban-rig as above.)

tolsery. A penny: c.: ? C.18–19. Thus B. & L.: but the term is suspect.

Tom, the big bell at Christ Church, Oxford, is S.E., but after Tom, after hours, is a Christ Church coll.:—1874 (H., 5th ed.).—2. Var. of Thomas, the penis: mid-C.19–20.—3. As old tom, gin: c. or low s.:—1823 (Bee). Occ., merely tom or Tom, as in Baumann, 1887.—4. 'Inevitable' nickname for any man surnamed King: Services': late C.19—early 20. Ex Tom King, the famous C.18 highwayman.—5. (Either tom or Tom.) A girl: Aus.: C.20. (C.J. Dennis.) See tom-tart.—6. 'A masculine woman of the town' (harlot): low London: mid-C.19–20.—7. A woman 'who does not care for the society of others than those of her own sex': Society: ca. 1880–1914. Ware.—8. A tomato: C.20: a trade abbr. >, by 1925, a lower-class coll.—9. (Cf. sense 4.) On the music-halls it is a frequent nickname for men surnamed Collins: C.20. Ex 'the frequency of Tom Collins on the old "vaudeville bills" (Douglas Buchanan). Cf. Jumper and Lottie, qq.v.—10. Any prostitute: police: C.20. (Free-Lance Writer, Apr. 1948.) Cf. senses 5 and 6, v., 2, and toms patrol.—11. Jewellery. Short for tomfoolery, q.v. Short also for Tom Mix, 2; Tom Tit; Tom Thumb, qq.v. See also Toms.

tom, v. (Of men) to coit with: N. Country: late C.19–20. Ex a tomcat's sexual activities. Cf. synon. roger.—2. To be a prostitute: since ca. 1935. 'They were perfectly willing to go "tomming" on the streets to earn a few quid, but I never could' (Zoe Progl, Woman of the Underworld, 1964).

Tom-a-Styles or -Stiles. Anybody, esp. in law, with John-a-Nokes, q.v., as his opponent: ca. 1770–1830: coll. >, by 1800, S.E. G.A. Stevens, 1772, 'From John o' Nokes to Tom o' Stiles, /What is it all but fooling?'; Grose, 1st ed. (Tom-a-Styles). Occ. John-a-Stiles. See Words!

Tom and Dick. Var. of Tom, Harry and Dick, sick: Jack Jones, ed., Rhyming Cockney Slang. P.B.: this version trips more easily off the tongue. Powis instances 'Where's Roy?'—'He's Tom and Dick.'

Tom and funny. Money: rhyming s.:—1909 (Ware); † by mid-C.20 (Franklyn). Cf. synon. bees and honey.

Tom-and-Jerry days. The Regency (1810–20); also, the reign of George IV: coll.: ca. 1825–60. Ex Tom and Jerry in Pierce Egan's Life in London, 1821, with a continuation in 1828. The v., Tom-and-Jerry, to behave riotously (1828), is rather S.E. than coll., but Tom-and-Jerry (—1864) or T.-and-J. shop (1835: Sessions, Feb.), a low drinking-shop, is coll.; † by 1910. The latter elaborates jerry-shop, a low beer-house, recorded in 1834. H., 3rd and 5th edd.; F. & H.; OED. Cf.:

Tom-and-Jerry gang. A noisy, riotous gang of fellows: ca. 1810–40. In J.H. Lewis, The Art of Writing, 7th ed., 1816, it is applied to the House of Commons. (Moe.) Cf. prec.

Tom and Tib. See Tom Dick, and Harry.

Tom Astoner. A dashing or devil-may-care fellow: nautical: from ca. 1860; ob. (Smyth.) Ex to astonish or perhaps abbr. astonisher; Ned Ward, however, has, in 1706, Tom Estenor, which may pun a surname (OED).

Tom Beet. Feet: rhyming s., mostly itinerant entertainers': C.20. (Lester, 1937.) Much less common than plates (of meat).

Tom Bray's bilk. 'Laying out ace and deuce at cribbage' (Vaux, 1812): ca. 1810–60: prob. orig. c. > (low) gaming s. ? ex noted sharper.

Tom Brown. 'Twelve in hand, in crib' (Vaux): ca. 1810–60: ? c. > s.—2. For Tom Browns, see Billy Browns.

tom-cat. A door-mat: rhyming s.: C.20. Franklyn 2nd.

tom-cattng, n. and adj. Roaming about in search of sexual gratification: C.20. Acting like a tom-cat on the prowl; cf. tom, v. (Reminder from L.A., 1976.)

Tom Collins. A mythical person that figures in at least two Australian folk-tales: since ca. 1880. (B., 1942.) It's hardly s., nor even coll.—2. See Collins, 2.

Tom Cony. A simpleton or very silly fellow: coll.: late C.17—early 19. B.E., who spells it Conney; Grose, 1st ed.

Tom Coxe's (or Cox's) traverse. 'Up one hatchway and down another' (Smyth, 1867), of a seaman dodging work: nautical: C.19. (John Davis, The Post-Captain, 1806: Moe.) See also three turns.

Tom Cox. A shirker; one who talks much, little does: RN: mid-C.19–20. Cf.:-

Tom, Dick and Harry. The common run of men (and women): coll. soon > S.E.: T., D., and H., app. not before ca. 1815, but Lindsay, in 1566, has Jack and Tom, Tom and Tib is frequent in C.17, Jack, Tom, Will, and Dick in 1604 (James I loquitur), Tom, Jack and Dick in 'Water-Poet' Taylor, 1622, Tom and Dick occurs in C.18, Tom, Dick, and Francis in Shakespeare (1596), Dick, Tom, and Jack in 1660 (A. Brome), Jack, Tom, and Harry ca. 1693 (T. Brown), and Tom, Jack, and Harry in 1865. F. & H.; OED; Apperson (above all), and my Words! Cf. Tom Tiler.

Tom-doodle; rarely -a-doodle. A simpleton: popular coll.: C.18–20; ob. Ned Ward, 1707, 'That ... Tom-doodle of a son ... talks of nothing but his mother.'

Tom Double. A double-dealer, a shuffler: coll.: C.18—mid-19.

Tom Drum's entertainment. The (very) rough reception of a guest: coll.: ca. 1570–1640. (Holinshed.) Also John (Shakespeare), Jack ('Water-Poet' Taylor). Possibly ex an actual person's name; more prob., a pun on drum.

Tom Essence. See FOPS, in Appendix.

Tom farthing (or F.). A fool: coll. (1689, Shadwell) >, early in C.18, S.E.; ob. by 1910, † by 1930. (F. & H.) Pej. farthing. Cf. Tom-doodle.

Tom Fool. See more know Tom ...

Tom foolery. See tomfoolery.

Tom Fool's token. Money: late C.17—mid-18. B.E.

Tom, Harry and Dick. Sick: rhyming s., esp. busmen's: since ca. 1940. (London Evening News, 27 Apr. 1954.) See also Tom and Dick.

Tom Long. A person long a-coming or 'tiresomely' so in telling a tale: coll. (? > S.E.): from ca. 1630; ob., except in dial., which in C.19–20 it mainly is. W. Foster, 1631, 'Surely this is Tom Long the carrier, who will never do his errand' (OED), but this is prec. by 'Proverbs' Heywood, 1546, 'I will send it him by John Long the carrier', i.e. at some vague date, and by Cotgrave, 1611, 'To stay'—in C.18–20, gen. wait—'for John Long the Carrier; to tarry long for that which comes but slowly.' In his Phraseologia Generalis, 1681, W. Robertson has Tom Long the carrier; in late C.17, B.E. has come by T.L. the c., 'of what is very late, or long a coming', and Grose, 1st ed., much the same phrase. Apperson.

Tom Mix. The number 6: darts- and tombola-players' rhyming s.: from ca. 1932. (London Evening News, 2 July 1937.) From the name of a famous 'Westerns' film-actor.—2. A difficult situation: rhyming s., on fix, n., 1: since ca. 1935. Franklyn 2nd.—3. 'An injection of a narcotic' (Home Office): drugs world; rhyming on fix, n., 2: later C.20. Often shortened to Tom.

Tom Mix in 'Cement' is a c.p. reply (ca. 1938–52) to 'What's on at the pictures?' A pun on mixin' cement.

Tom-noddy. A stupid, a foolish, person: coll. (—1828) >, by 1860, S.E.

Tom o' Bedlam. A madman, esp. if discharged from Bedlam and allowed to beg: c. and s.: C.17—early 19. (B.E., Grose.) Cf. Abram-man.

Tom Owen's stop. 'The left-hand open, scrawling over the antagonist's face, service with the right' (Bee): pugilistic: ca. 1820-40. Ex a boxer.

Tom Pat. A parson or hedge-priest: c.: late C.17-early 18. Street Robberies Considered. A rum Tom Pat is a clerk in holy orders, i.e. a genuine cleric. App. Pat=patrico, q.v.—2. A shoe: c.: C.19-20; ob. (In Romany, a foot.)

Tom Pepper. A liar: nautical s.: from early C.19 >, by 1890, coll. (Alfred Burton, Johnny Newcome, 1818: Moe; Smyth.) In sailors' folk-lore, 'Tom Pepper was the seaman who was kicked out of Hell for lying' (Bowen). In C.20, also shortened to Tom (Peppitt).

Tom Pudding or Tompudding. A 'compartment boat', worked in 'trains' with other such boats: canal-men's: C.20. L.T.C. Rolt, Narrow Boat, 1944.

Tom Quad. The big quadrangle at Christ Church, Oxford: Oxford University coll.: late C.19-20. Ex Tom, the great bell at Christ Church.

Tom Right. Night: rhyming s.:—1857 ('Ducange Anglicus'); ob. by 1930.

tom-rot. A var. of tommy-rot:—1887 (Baumann); † by 1920.

Tom Sawyer. A lawyer: rhyming s.: late C.19-20.

Tom Tailor. A tailor in gen.: coll. >, by 1890, S.E.: 1820 (Scott: OED).

tom-tart. 'A girl or woman. Not derogatory, but not used by women of themselves: obsolescent' (Wilkes): Aus.; prob. rhyming s., on sweetheart: since later C.19. Wilkes quotes The Sydney Slang Dictionary, ca. 1882. In C.20, shortened to Tom.

Tom Tell-Troth (Truth). An honest man: coll. resp. C.17 and C.18-20 (ob.). Tom True-Tongue, C.14, is the generator; Tom Truth, mainly C.16 (e.g. Latimer), the imm. generator. OED; F. & H.; Apperson.

Tom Thacker. Tobacco: rhyming s. (on bacca): late C.19-early 20. (B. & P.) Cf. synon. noser-my-nacker.

tom them up. Builders' s., 'roughly similar to putting up scaffolding' (Culotta): Aus.: since ca. 1910.

Tom Thumb. Rum: rhyming s.: late C.19-early 20. F. & G.—2. The human posterior, the buttocks; id., on bum: since ca. 1920.

Tom Tiler or Tyler. Any ordinary man: coll.: ca. 1580-1640. (Stonyhurst, 1582.) Cf. Tom, Dick and Harry.—2. Hence, a henpecked husband: id.: early C.17.

tom-tit. To defecate; defecation: rhyming s., on shit: since late C.19 (B. & P.); since mid-C.20 usu. the n., as 'I must have (or go for) a tom-tit' (R. Llewellyn, None But the Lonely Heart, 1943; Powis, 1977). Cf. synon. pony and trap, (to) crap. See also tom-tits.

Tom Tit on a round of beef. A children's c.p., shouted after someone wearing a cap, or a hat, too small; also 'used of anything small on anything big, e.g. of a lonely cottage on a hill' (Peter Ibbotson, letter, 1963): C.20. Contrast tit in a trance, day-dreaming, q.v.

tom(-)tits, n. Also used fig., as in 'You give me the tom-tits' = 'the shits'; you disgust me, or irritate me beyond endurance. But get the tom-tits = to 'become demoralized with fear' (Culotta). Wilkes quotes T. Keneally, The Place at Whitton, 1964: 'this silence business. It gives me the toms.'

tom-tom. An accordion: RN lowerdeck: C.20. Knock.

Tom Topper(s) or Tug. A ferryman; any river hand: low London: from ca. 1860; ob. H., 3rd ed. ('Topper ... From a popular song, entitled "Overboard he vent"'), for both; Tug presumably from that vessel, though perhaps imm. ex 'the small stage-play', H., 5th ed.

Tom Tripe. A pipe: rhyming s.:—1859; † by 1900. (H., 1st ed.) The C.20 term is cherry ripe, q.v. Cf. Tommy tripe, q.v.

Tom Tug. A fool: rhyming s. (—1874) on mug. H., 5th ed.—2. See Tom Topper.—3. A bed-bug: rhyming s.:—1909 (Ware). Contrast sense 1.

Tom Turdman. A nightman: low: from ca. 1690. B.E., 1699; Grose, 1st ed. Cf.:-

Tom Turd's field(s) or Tom Turd's hole. 'A place where the Nightmen lay their Soil' (Sessions, 1733, 11th session): low: C.18.

1246

Tom Tyler. See Tom Tiler.

Tomago, go to. Go to hell: Newcastle, Aus.: since ca. 1945. 'Tomago is a small town near Newcastle. Pronounced tommy-go' (Edwin Morrisby, 1958). Cf. hell and tommy and Jericho.

tomahawk, n. A policeman's baton: urban, esp. Cockneys',—1909 (Ware); ob. by 1935.

tomahawk, v. 'To cut sheep while shearing; to shear roughly' (Wilkes): Aus. rural: mid-C.19-mid-20. Hence tomahawker, a shearer who does this.

Tomasso di Rotto or tomasso di rotto. Tommy-rot: middle-class youths': ca. 1905-14. Ware, 'Italian shape', i.e. an Italianising of Tommy Rot.

tomato. A girl: Aus.: adopted, 1943, ex US servicemen. (Ruth Park, 1950.) Luscious. Claiborne adds, 1976, 'Also smooth and well-rounded'.

tomato-can tramp. A tramp that, to sleep, will curl up anywhere: tramps' c.:—1932 (Frank Jennings). Prob. derives ex the utensil being carried as a cooking-tin (Leechman).

tombola. For the calls used in this game, whether known as house, housey-housey, or bingo, see TOMBOLA, in Appendix.

tomboy. Female genitals: C.17. Taylor ('the Water-Poet'), 'Playing the tomboy with her tomboy.'

tombstone. A pawn-ticket: low:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.).—2. A projecting tooth, esp. if discoloured: since ca. 1880.—3. Mess menu: RN: C.20. Musings, 1912, p. 50.—4. A trade-union vote, recorded for a dead man: Aus.: since ca. 1910. B., 1943.

tombstone-style. An advertisement (rarely of other matter) so 'displayed', i.e. composed, that it resembles a monumental inscription: printers' coll.: from ca. 1880.

tomcat. See tom-cat.

tomfoolery. Jewellery: rhyming s.: late C.19-20. (Michael Harrison, Reported Safe Arrival, 1943.) Since ca. 1940, and esp. in the underworld, it has often been shortened to Tom. John Gosling, The Ghost Squad, 1958.

tomjohn (or T-). A tonjon (a sort of sedan-chair): Anglo-Indian: C.19. (Y. & B.) By Hobson-Jobson.

tommy, (or T-), as applied to goods (mainly food) supplied to workmen in lieu of wages, is S.E.; so too, according to the OED, it is as the soldier' and, from ca. 1860, the lower classes' word for (orig. brown) bread. The latter I hold to be s. in C.18-early 19, coll. in mid-C.19-20, as are soft (or, 1811, white) tommy, bread as opp. to biscuit (Grose, 2nd ed.), and brown Tommy (Lex. Bal., prob. much earlier); as used by workmen for food or provisions in gen., from ca. 1860 (H., 3rd ed.), it is a coll. that in WW1 was the prevailing sense among soldiers (B. & P.). Perhaps by a pun: brown George (q.v.) suggesting brown Tommy, with alternative Tommy Brown, whence Tommy, whence tommy. See esp. Grose, P. But note that in Bedford (and elsewhere) tommy=loaves of bread distributed by charity on St Thomas's Day (21 December), for hundreds of years: this, which prob. explains the orig. of a puzzling word, I owe to Mr R.A. Parrott of Bedford. In Aus., 'bread baked with currants and sugar' (B., 1942).

—2. A sham shirt-front: Dublin University:—1860; ob. (H., 2nd ed.; F. & H.). Prob. on equivalent dickey ex Gr. τομή, a section.—3. (Gen. in pl.) a tomato: low: from ca. 1870. Cf. tom, n., 8.—4. Tommy. 'Tommy Atkins', a private British (specifically, non-Colonial) soldier: 1893 (Kipling: OED): coll. >, by 1915. S.E. Tommy Atkins occurs in Sala in 1883; coll. >, by 1895, S.E. Ex Thomas Atkins, a specimen name for signature on attestation-forms and in pay-books since early C.19. See Words! for further details.—5. A prostitute's bully: low:—1923 (Manchon).—6. A frequent term of address to a young boy whose name is unknown to the speaker: coll.:—1887 (Baumann). Cf. George and Jack addressed to a man in these circumstances.—7. Penis: rather low: C.19-early 20. Cf. tom, n., 2.—8. A feminine euph. for menstruation: late C.19-20. By personification.—9. Solder: silversmiths' and jewellers':—1877 (G.E. Gee, The Practical Goldworker: OED). Esp. soft Tommy. (or t-) as distinct from hard Tommy, hard (or blowpipe) solder.—10. Short for tommy-rot, q.v.: since ca. 1905. J.C. Snaith, The Sailor, 1916.—11. A bookmaker: Aus.: since ca. 1925. B., 1943.—12. Hence, his ledger: since ca. 1930. B., 1953.—13. A 'small shunting disc ground signal' (Railway): railwaymen's: since ca. 1920. Cf. Tommy Dodd, 5.—14. A Curtiss Tomahawk fighter (US P-40), in use with RAF mid-WW2: mostly RAF.—15. A 'Tommy gun' (Thompson sub-machine gun): Aus.: adopted, ca. 1940, ex US. H. Drake Brockman, The Fatal Days, 1947: concerning early 1942.—16. In that's the Tommy!, that's right: c.:—1887 (Baumann). Prob. ex sense 1.—17. Either alone, or as hell and tommy (or T), an elab. of hell in intensives or asseverations: from ca. 1885. In P. MacDonald, R.I.P., 1933, we find a var.: 'Where the devil and Tommy did I put that corkscrew?' Cf. hell and spots, q.v. The tommy is perhaps ex tommy-rot; the capital T, on my eye and Betty Martin:? cf. yo, Tommy!, q.v.—18. See Tommy Dodd, 3.

tommy, v. To depart; to make off, decamp: Aus. low: C.20. Baker.—2. See Tommy Tripe.

tommy and exes. Bread (see tommy, 1), beer and 'bacca: workmen's:—1909 (Ware). Here exes = extras.

Tommy Atkins. See tommy, 4.

tommy-axe. A tomahawk: Aus. coll.: late C.19–20. Not certainly a corruption (by Hobson-Jobson) of tomahawk; perhaps on tommy as applied to a small tool or instrument, e.g. a spade—with which cf., in military j., tommy bar, 'a bent-wire spanner used to unscrew the bases of Mills bombs'.

Tommy-boys. A WW1 Aus. Army extension of Tommy, n., 4.

Tommy Cornstalk. An Aus. soldier: 1899–1902 (during the Boer War): coll. (Baker.) See Tommy, n., 4, and Cornstalk.

Tommy Dodd. In tossing coins, either the winner or the loser, by agreement; the mode of tossing: from ca. 1863; ob.: rather proletarian. (H., 3rd ed.) Ca. 1863 there was a music-hall song, 'Heads or tails are sure to win, Tommy Dodd, Tommy Dodd.' Rhyming on odd.—2. God: rhyming s.: late C.19–20.—3. A sodomite: since ca. 1870. Rhyming on sod. Since ca. 1890, often abbr. to Tommy.—4. A small glass of beer: NZ and Aus.: late C.19–20. B., 1941, 1942.—5. A calling, or a call, on a warning signal: railwaymen's: since ca. 1930. (Railway, 2nd.) Rhyming s. on nod. Cf. tommy, n., 13, q.v.

Tommy get out and let your father in. Gin (the drink): navvies' rhyming s.: ca. 1860–1900. (D.W. Barrett, Navvies, 1880.) Franklyn 2nd observes that this 'long and cumbersome phrase' was prob. never very popular.

Tommy make room for your uncle! A c.p. addressed to the younger man (men) in a group: from ca. 1883. (Ware.) Ex a popular song. Almost † by 1970.

Tommy of all trades. The ordinary infantry Tommy who, apart from doing the "dirty work" in the trenches, had to turn his hand to almost anything when out "resting" or convalescing from wounds or illness' (Petch, 1966): army joc.: WW1.

Tommy O'Rann. Food: rhyming s., on scan:—1859 (H., 1st ed.).

Tommy Pipes. Nickname for a boatswain—'because he pipes or whistles all hands' (Ware): RN: ca. 1850–1910.

Tommy Rabbit (or r). A pomegranate: rhyming s.:—1909 (Ware).

Tommy Roller. A collar: rhyming s.: since ca. 1880. C. Bent, Criminal Life, 1891.

Tommy Rollocks. Testicles: since ca. 1870. Often abbr. to rollocks. Rhyming ballocks.

tommy-rot. (See also tom-rot.) Nonsense; as exclamation, 'boosh!': s. >, ca. 1900, coll.: 1884, George Moore, 'Bill ... said it was all "Tommy rot"' (OED). Perhaps ex tommy, goods supplied instead of wages; though Manchon's theory that it is a euph. (via the Tommies' former scarlet uniform) for bloody is not ridiculous. Cf. tommy in Hell and Tommy (or h. and t.), q.v. at tommy, n., 17.—2. Occ. as v.i., to fool about; v.t., to humbug: rare: late C.19–20.

Tommy-Shop, the. The Royal Victualling Yard: RN:—1923 (Manchon). An extension of S.E. tommy-shop.

Tommy Tanna (or Tanner). Nickname for a Kanaka working on a Queensland plantation: Aus.: ca. 1880–1920. B., 1943.

Tommy tit. 'A smart lively little fellow' (Grose, 1st ed.): coll.: mid-C.18–19.

Tommy-toes. (Little) toes: London children's:—1887 (Baumann).—2. (Or as one word.) Tomatoes: London joc.: C.20. Also as tommy-ay-toes.

Tommy Tripe. To observe, examine, watch: rhyming s., on pipe, v.:—1874 (H., 5th ed.). Occ. abbr. Tommy or tommy, as in 'Tommy his plates (of meat)', look at his feet!

Tommy Tucker. Supper: from ca. 1860. (P.P., Rhyming Slang, 1932.) Suggested by the nursery rhyme, 'Little Tommy Tucker sang for his supper.'

Tommy Waac. (Gen. pl.) A 'Waac' (q.v.): 1917. (F. & G.) Cf. Thomasina Atkins.

tommyzotic. Nonsensical: literary coll. >, by 1920, S.E.: from mid-1890s; ob. Whence, like-wise ex tommy-rot (q.v.) on erotic: tommyzotics, obscenity, esp. foolish obscenity: coll. (—1904) >, by 1920, S.E.; ob. by 1930.

tomorrow. In on for t., (of a clock) very fast: coll., almost a c.p.: C.20.—2. See like there was no tomorrow.

Toms, the. The privates in the Parachute Regiments: army: 1950s. Lieut. A.J.M. Cavanagh, Airborne to Suez, 1965. (P.B.)

Toms Patrol, the. The Vice Squad: police: since late 1940s. (G.F. Newman, Sir, You Bastard, 1970.) See tom, n., 10.

tom yok. See thomyok.

ton. (Rare in sing.) Much; plenty: coll.: from early 1890s. E.g. Barrie, 1911, "'I say! Do you kill many [pirates]?" "Tons." (OED). The sing. occurs, as an Aus. coll., in Gavin Casey, The Wits Are Out, 1947, 'There was a ton to think of.'—2. Gen. the ton, the fashion; fashionable Society: from late 1760s: coll. (mostly Society) until ca. 1840, then S.E.; ca. 1815–25, it verged (witness 'Jon Bee') on s. Ex Fr. ton.—3. £100; half a ton, £50; gamblers' c.: since ca. 1940. Alan Hoby, People, 7 Apr. 1946.—4. A speed of 100 m.p.h.: motorcyclists': since ca. 1948. See also ton up.—5. A score of 100 runs: cricketers', ex cricket reporters': since ca. 1955.

ton for ton and man for man. The fair division of prizes between two ships sailing in company: naval c.p. verging on j.: C.19. Bowen.

ton of bricks. Usu. in be (or come) down on (someone) like a ton of bricks, to reprimand very severely; to punish heavily; to be extremely and adversely critical of, as 'he soon spotted my mistake, and was down on it like ...': coll.: C.20. (P.B.) ton-up, n. and adj. 100 m.p.h., as in doing the ton-up (an elab. of ton, 4), and in ton-up boys, those who have achieved this speed on motorcycle; hence, young 'tearaway' motorcyclists in general: since ca. 1955; less common, but still current, in 1983. (P.B.)

tone, t'one; tother, t'other. (Whether pronouns or adj.) The one; the other: S.E. until C.18, then coll. and dial.; in C.20, t'one as coll. is slightly illiterate. Often in juxtaposition, t'one ... t'other. N.B., tother day in † S.E. = the next day, occ. the preceding day; as = a few days in, it arose in C.16 and was S.E. until C.18; then coll. and dial.

toney. See tony, n. and adj.

tonge. Penis: low (esp. in RAF of ca. 1930–50): C.20. Origin?

tongs. Forceps: dental and medical: from ca. 1870.

—2. 'Hand shears (from the shape)' (Wilkes): Aus. rural coll.: C.20.—3. See jingling johnnies; pair of tons.

tongue, n. In have a t., to be sarcastic and/or ironic: non-aristocratic coll.: from ca. 1880. Charles Turley, Godfrey Marten, Schoolboy, 1902, "'He had a tongue", as servants say, and could be sarcastic.' Ex have a sharp tongue.—2. In give (a lick with) the rough side of (one's) tongue, to scold, abuse: coll.: 1820 (Scott: OED); ob. by 1930. Cf. dial. give a person the length of one's tongue (EDD). A more violent version is call (someone) everything (one) can lay (one's) tongue to: coll. and dial.: late C.19–20.—3. In lose (one's) tongue, to fall very, be long, silent: coll.: 1870 (Dickens: OED).—4. In put (one's) tongue in tongue, v.t. To talk (a person) down: low:—1860 (H., 2nd ed.); ob. by 1930. Ex the ob. S.E. sense, to attack with words, to reproach.

(another's) purse, to silence him: ca. 1540–1620. 'Proverbs' Heywood.—5. See old as my tongue...

tongue enough for two sets of teeth (, with; to have). Applied to an exceedingly talkative person: ca. 1786–1870. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Cf. tongue-pad, tongue too long for one's teeth, and tongued, qq.v.

tongue is hinged in the middle and (e.g. she) talks with both ends (, e.g. her). (She) is extremely talkative: coll.: C.20. tongue is well hung, his (etc.). He is fluent, ready, glib of speech: coll.: C.18. (Swift; Berthelson's Dict., 1754; Apperson.) Cf. tongue-pad, q.v. Perhaps also coll. are the C.18 semi-proverbial your tongue is made of very loose leather ('Proverbs' Fuller, 1732) and the semi-proverbial C.16–17 her (your, etc.) tongue runs on pattens ('Proverbs' Heywood; Davies of Hereford), both recorded by Apperson, who notes the analogous his (etc.) tongue runs on wheels (mid-C.15–20; in mid-C.19–20, dial.) enshrined by Swift.

tongue job. Cunnilingus, whether gen. or particular: since ca. 1960. Hollander.

tongue of the trumpet, the. The best or most important thing or person: Scots coll.: from ca. 1870. In a Jew's harp, the tongue is the steel spring by which the sound is made.

tongue-pad, n. A talkative person, esp. if smooth and insinuating: late C.17–20; s. until late C.19, then dial. B.E.; Grose, in 1st ed., adds: 'A scold', a sense † by 1850. On foot-pad. See ROGUES, in Appendix, for early C.18 specialisation as 'a confidence trickster'.

tongue-pad. To scold, v.t.; v.i., to chatter: resp. mid-C.17–20, C.19–20; both dial. in C.20. (J. Stevens, 1707; Scott, the v.i. in 1825.) Whence tongue-padder = tongue-pad, n., and vbl n., t.-padding. OED.

tongue-padder. A lawyer: see CONSTABLES, in Appendix; and prec.

tongue-pie, get or give. To be scolded; to scold: lower classes: 1—1923 (Manchon). Cf. rag-sauce.

tongue runs nineteen to the dozen. See nineteen to the dozen.

tongue runs on pattens or wheels. See tongue is well hung. tongue too long for (one's) teeth or mouth. Either have a... or, more gen., as in Reade, 1859, 'Hum! Eve, wasn't your tongue a little too long for your teeth just now?' To be indiscreet or too ready to talk: mid-C.19–20; ob. Prob. ex tongue enough..., q.v.; cf. the C.17 proverb, the tongue walks where the teeth speed not.

tongued. Talkative: low:—1860 (H., 2nd ed.); ob. by 1930. Cf. tongue enough...

tonguer. 'A native or white living in New Zealand who assisted a whaling crew to cut up whales and who also acted... [as] an interpreter. These men earned their name not from the... interpreting, but from the fact that they were given whale's carcass and tongue to dispose of as they wished' (B., 1945); NZ and whalers': C.19 tonic. A halfpenny: ca. 1820–50. (Pierce Egan, Life in London, 1821.)? origin; cf., however, tanner.—2. A drink, esp. if taken as an appetiser: late C.19–20. (Sessions, 12 Dec. 1893.) Cf. medicine.

tonight's the night! A c.p. indicating the imminence of something important: since ca. 1913, when Miss Iris Hoye starred in a musical comedy of this name.—2. Hence, it 'often refers to coition in Australia' (B.P.): since ca. 1919. P.B.: and, of course, not only in Aus.

tonk, n. 'A man with unmasculine characteristics; a male homosexual, esp. in the passive role: derogatory' (Wilkes): Aus.: since ca. 1960. A specialisation of the B., 1941, definitions, 'a simpleton or fool; a dude or fop; a general term of contempt,' which E.P. dated from early 1920s, suggesting that 'dude or fop' was the orig. nuance, and that it might be a perversion of tony (person).—2. A term of abuse: N. Country grammar schools': from ca. 1945.—3. A hit, at cricket: have a tonk: ex v., 1. BBC 3 cricket commentary, 15 Aug. 1981. Cf.: tonk, v. At cricket, to hit a ball into the air: Charterhouse and Durham (schools): late C.19–20. Cf. tonkabout, the corresponding n. Ex the mainly Midland dial. tank, n., a blow; v., to strike.—2. Hence, gen. in passive, to defeat utterly: from ca. 1920. Galsworthy, The Silver Spoon, 1926, 'He seems to enjoy the prospect of getting tonked.'—3. To punish, e.g. to cane: Aus.: since ca. 1920. Baker. To get tonked is the usu. passive (B., 1943).

tonkabout. The hitting of catches at cricket-practice: Charterhouse:—1900 (A.H. Tod). Ex prec., 1. Cf. Rugby football puntabout.

tonky, adj. Fashionable: NZ: since ca. 1935. Slatter, 'She's probably been to a tonky school.' Perhaps a blend of tony + swanky.

tons. See ton, 1.

tons of soil. 'Sons of Toil. Strictly a Spoonerism. At the turn of the century [ca. 1900], "Goin' dahn da tons o' soil" meant the local working men's club, such establishments being open to "Fellow Workers and Sons of Toil"' (David Hillman, 1974).

tonsil-snatcher. A ship's surgeon: RN: C.20. Granville.

tonsil-varnish. 'Messdeck tea' (Granville): RN: C.20.

tonsorials. See touch of the tonsorials.

tony; in C.18, occ. toney, n. A fool, a simpleton: mid-C.17–early 19. Gayton, 1654 (OED); but it must be a few years earlier, for the rare v., tony, to befool or swindle, is recorded ca. 1652. (B.E.; Grose.) Ex Ant(h)ony.—2. As Tony, abbr. of Antonio, a Portuguese (soldier): army coll.: 1916+. F. & G. tony; loosely, toney. Adj., stylish, 'swell'; high-toned: coll., orig. (—1886), US >, in 1890s, Aus. and NZ. (H. Lawson, 1901: OED.) Ex high tone, or possibly ex ob. ton-ish, tonish (itself ex ton, fashion).

tonygle, in Harman, merely = to niggle. See niggle, in sexual sense.

too. Very; extremely: C.14–20; S.E. until early C.19, then coll.—esp. as an emotional intensive among non-proletarian women. The OED has, at 1868, 'How too delightful your expeditions must have been.' Cf. only too, used coll. as a mere intensive: since late C.19.

too-a-roo! Good-bye!: Aus.: ca. 1919–39. (Colin MacInnes, June in Her Spring, 1952.) Cf. tooraloo, q.v.

too all-but. A London society c.p. of 1881–2. Ware, 'Resulting out of Punch's trouvaille "too-too".'

too bad. Familiar S.E. when used as genuine commiseration, either alone or as 'that's too bad!'; but coll. when used ironically, with derisive lack of sympathy: C.20.? Orig. US. (P.B.).—2. In not too bad, really quite good: coll.: C.20. Cf. not bad; not half.

too (bloody) Irish! Of course!: lower classes': C.20. (B. & P.) Also too bloody right! The late Gerald Bullett, in letter, 1950, proposed that too bloody Irish merely extends too Irish and that too Irish is short for too Irish stew, rhyming s. (? late C.19–20) for 'too true'. He was probably right.

Too Damn Goods, the. The 2nd Dragoon Guards: army: late C.19—earlier 20. A pun on 2D.G.

too damn tooting. Certainly: since ca. 1935. Perhaps ex Tooting Common, with a pun on common, usual, general. In Can., you're damn', or darn', tooting, you're absolutely right: since ca. 1908. (Leechman.) P.B.: the N. American phrase is the prob. orig. of the Brit.; ob. by ca. 1950, except occ. humorous.

too funny for words. Extremely funny: coll.: late C.19–20. Prob. suggested by too funny for anything, which was orig. (the late 1860s) US (Thornton).

too late! too late! A C.20 military c.p., always in high falsetto and with derisive inflection. Ex the story of the unfortunate who lost his manhood in a shark-infested sea after he had called for help. Also help! sharks! The first word is spoken in a normal voice, 'sharks' in falsetto.

too many chiefs and not enough (or too few) Indians. Too many in authority (implied: issuing different, and often contradictory, orders) but too few underlings to carry out instructions: c.p.: C.20.

too many cloths in the wind. Tipsy: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) On three sheets in the wind.

too many (gen. too much) for. Sufficient to overcome or quell; too able or strong, i.e. more than a match, for: coll.: many is perhaps of US origin, for it occurs in The Port Folio, 14 Feb. 1801, p. 52 (Moe); much, 1832; 1861, Dickens, 'Mr Jagers was altogether too many for the Jury, and they gave in' (OED). Catachrestic is too many applied to things, as in A. Neill Lyons, Arthur's, 1914, 'This job is one too many for me' (Manchon).

too mean to give you the time of day. Excessively mean: coll.: since ca. 1920.

too mean to part with (his) shit. Excessively miserly or close-fisted: low: late C.19–20. Cf. mean he...

too much, adj.; always in predicate, as 'The tubes are too much' (excellent or wonderful): Aus. teenagers', esp. surfers': since late 1950s. (B.P.) But also, by 1960, Eng., as in 'Isn't she too much?' (good at something or other)—as Anthony Lejeune noted in the Daily Telegraph colour sup., 10 Mar. 1967. Cf.:—2. In this is too much!, a c.p. retort or comment: from mid-1860s. F. & H. suggests that it echoes Artemus Ward among the Shakers (ca. 1862).

too much of a good thing. Excessive; intolerable: coll.: 1809, Sydney Smith, 'This (to use a very colloquial phrase) is surely too much of a good thing' (OED). An elab. of too much, but perhaps prompted by the literal sense, as in Shakespeare's As You Like It, IV, i, 'Why then, can one desire too much of a good thing?' (Apperson.) Cf. prec.

too much of this will get you that! See keep it out!

too much on (one's) plate (i. esp. have). (To have) too much to do: since mid-C.20. Fairly gen. throughout UK and the Commonwealth. More than one can eat. P.B.: an East Midlands var. is too much on (one's) wheel.

too much with us. Excessively boring; an intolerable nuisance: Society c.p.: 1897–9. (Ware.) Ex the Wordsworthian the world is too much with us.

too numerous to mention. Angriily drunk: London: 1882—ca. 90. (Ware.) Prob. uttering curses too, etc.

too old and too cold. Traditional domestic excuse by husbands for not being more "demanding" (B.P.): c.p.: C.20. Perhaps ex not so old, q.v.

too right! Certainly!; 'rather!': coll., perhaps mainly Aus.: since ca. 1910. (Jice Doone.) See also too bloody Irish!

too short for Richard – too long for Dick. 'Yorkshire' expression for N.B.G. [no bloody good]; said to have reference to Richard II, the Hunchback' (Earl, at that time Sir Archibald, Wavell, letter, 1939); but it was 'Richard III who was known as Crookback. Richard II was Tumble-Down Dick' (R.S., 1967): verging on the proverbial.

too slow to catch cold. Said of a person mentally or physically sluggish: coll.: C.20. Olive Dent, A V.A.D. in France, 1917 (Mrs B. Huston). Cf.:-

too slow to go to funeral. N. Country var. of prec.: C.20. Petch, 1971.

too thick to drink, too thin to plough. A c.p. referring to the Yarra River (flowing through Melbourne): common in New South Wales ca. 1900–40; then ob.: by 1963, almost f. (B.P.)

too-too (see too all-but) was in 1881 a Society c.p. Cf. the derivative too utterly too (1883) and too utterly utter (late C.19–20; ob.): also Society c.p.p.

too true! (Usu. too bloody, etc., true!) A c.p. of emphatic agreement or endorsement or corroboration: late C.19–20. Cf. too right and too bloody Irish.

toodle em buck. Teetotum; to gamble with for cherry stones: Victorian (Aus.) State School children: ca. 1880–1910. (Guy Innes, 1944.)—2. The game of Crown and Anchor: Can.: C.20. B. & P.

toodle-oo! See toodle-oo!

toofer. An expensive cigar: ?mainly Cockney: ca. 1910–20.

(Green Envelopes, 1929, p. 50.) A mere guess: two for a crown, i.e. a half crown each. P.B.: or ex too fucking dear? See also toofer.

took. Taken by surprise: joc. use of a common sol.: RAF: later C.20. 'We had been "took"; took good too' (Phantom).

took his (occ. her) arse in his (her) hands and left. Indicates an affronted and would-be indignant departure: lower classes' c.p.: C.20. (L.A., 1976.)

tool, n. The penis: mid-C.16–20; S.E. until C.18, then coll.; in C.19–20, s. unless the context definitely renders it archaic S.E. OED.—2. A whip: ca. 1820–90. Ex tool, to drive.—3. 'A small boy employed to creep through windows, etc., to effect entry': c.: ca. 1840–1910. 1845 in 'No. 747'; H., 3rd ed.; F. & H. Cf. tool, v., 4.—4. In C.20 c., it is that pickpocket who performs the actual theft. (London Evening News, 9 Dec. 1936.) Opp. stall, n., 1. q.v.—5. A run: Charterhouse: late C.19–20. ex v., 3.—6. A brush: studio s.: from ca. 1860. B. & L.—7. A one-inch paintbrush: builders' and house-painters': late C.19–20. (A master builder, 5 Dec. 1953.)—8. A weapon: prison c.: since ca. 1942. (Norman.) P.B.: but at entry tools, E.P. had already noted in the 1st ed. of this Dict.: 'Pistols: poss. c.: mid-C.19—early 20.'—9. In dull or poor tool, an inferior workman: late C.17–20; in late C.19–20, dial. (B.E.; H., 1st ed.) Cf. a poor (occ. bad) workman blames his tools. Hence, (poor tool) a shiftless person: C.18–20; latterly dial.—10. See tools.—11. 'A jemmy' (Powis): c.: C.20. Cf. sense 3, and tools, 3.

tool, v.t. To drive: 1812 (Sporting Magazine: OED); 1849, Lytton, 'He could tool a coach'; 1899, Whiteing. Ex instrument for effect. P.B.: applied in C.20 to motor-vehicles, boats, aircraft.—2. Hence, as in Jessop, 1881, 'The high-stepping mare that tools him along through the village street. Rare.—3. (Ex sense 1.) V.i., to drive, to go or travel, esp. along: 1839 (OED). See also tool along.—4. Gen. v.i., to pick pockets: c.:—1859; slightly ob. (H., 1st ed.) Prob. ex tool, n., 3, q.v.—5. To murder (v.i.): society: ca. 1845–1900. Ex a metaphor by De Quincey. Ware.—6. (Of men) to copulate: upper classes': very approx. ca. 1750–1890. Byron used it in a letter. Cf. n., 1, and the mid-C.19–20 low synon: grind (one's) tool.—7. To cut, to slash, a person with a razor: c.: since ca. 1945. (Frank Norman, Encounter. 1959.) Cf. n., 8.—8. See n., 5.

tool about or around. To do nothing in particular: upper classes': from ca. 1910. Francis Iles, Before the Fact, 1932, "'What are you doing with yourself?" "Me, eh? Oh, tooling round, you know. Nothing much." Ex coaching, perhaps on fool around. Cf.:-

tool along. To fly without a fixed objective: RAF: since ca. 1925. (H. & P.) See tool, v., 3.—2. Hence, to walk aimlessly: RAF: since ca. 1938. (Partridge, 1945.) Cf. prec.

tool around. See tool about.

tool check. A venereal inspection: RAF mechanics': since ca. 1930. Cf. tool, n., 1, which it puns.

tool off. To depart: OED cites Punch, 17 Dec. 1881; ob. by 1935. Ex tool, v., 3.

tool up. (Of a man) to prepare for copulation: low: since ca. 1920. See tool, n., 1, and v., 6. See also:-

tooled up, ppl adj. Equipped with weapons: c.: since ca. 1946. (Observer, 1 Mar. 1959.) Since ca. 1970, or poss. earlier, also police usage. Publicised in such BBC programmes as 'The Sweeney', later 1970s (Mrs Ronald Pearsall). Esp. be, or get, tooled up, as in 'You're to be tooled up, men: these particular villains are dangerous and they carry firearms.'—2. 'In possession of house-breaking implements' (Powis): c.: later C.20. Cf. tool, n., 11.

tooler. A burglar, a pickpocket: c.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). See tool, n., 3, and v., 4.—2. Hence, moll-tooler, a female thief or pickpocket.

Tooleries, the. Toole's Theatre: theatrical: 1885—ca.87. (Ware.) Ex Toole on Colinderies and Fisheries, qq.v., with a pun on the Tuileries of Paris.

Tooley Street tailor. A conceited bumptious fellow: mostly London: ca. 1870–80. H., 5th ed., "The "three tailors of Tooley Street" are said to have immortalised themselves by preparing a petition for Parliament—and some say, presenting it—with only their own signatures thereto, which commenced, "We, the people of England." How do such yarns arise?"

tools. The hands: c.: mid-C.19—early 20.—2. 'Knives, forks and spoons' (Bowen): nautical, late C.19–20; since ca. 1935, also RAF. Cf. synon. eating, or fighting, irons.—3. In fined for the tools, convicted for possessing a burglar's tools: c. of ca. 1820–1910. (Egan's Grose.) Cf. tool, v., 4, and toby, v.t. (analogous done...).

tooniopperty or tuniopperty. Opportunity: centre s: early C.20. Mancho.

tooraloo! Goodbye for now!; I'll be seeing you: a mainly Anglo-Irish var. of tootle-oo, q.v.: since ca. 1910. James Joyce, Ulysses, 1922, "Tooraloo," Lenehan said, "see you later." Cf. too-a-roo!, q.v. P.B.: both prob. ex pron. rather than genuine var.

toosh. A sovereign, coin or value: c. (esp. tramps'): from before 1935. Ex tusheroon.

toot, n. Money: RN: earlier C.20. (F. & G.) Prob. short for whistle and hoot, rhyming on toot. cf. synon. hoot.—2. A chap, a fellow: Can.:—1932 (Beames). 'Pace Beames, I've never heard this and doubt its authenticity. It doesn't ring true' (Leechman).—3. A var. of twet. H. & P.—4. A complaint; a 'moan': Services': since ca. 1930. H. & P.—5. A water-closet: Aus., orig. feminine: since ca. 1950. Ex toilet. (B.P.) Rhymes with hoot; contrast:—6. (Rhyming with foot.) excrement; occ. 'a lump of toot', but usu. as in the toot, fig. 'in the shit' = in (deep) trouble: low coll.: since (?) mid-C.20. Also tooty; cf. synon. tootoot(s). (P.B.)—7. In have a toot, to have a drink: since ca. 1930; ob by 1950. Prompted by 'to wet one's whistle'. Cf. the v.—8. In at (occ. on) the toot, immediately; at high speed: army: from 1915. Ex Fr. tout de suite (pron. toot sweet). B. & P. Cf. tooter the..., q.v.

toot, v. To drink heavily (at one session): RN: since ca. 1939. Granville, 'Exercise toot is the Wardroom description of a mild "pubcrawl"; on the other hand, Operation toot is a monumental drinking party'. Cf. n., 7.

toot-sweeter. A high-velocity shell: army: 1915+. (F. & G.) See toot, n., 8.

tooter. One who "drinks between drinks", a seasoned performer' (Granville): RN: since ca. 1930. Ex toot, v.

tooter the sweeter, the. The sooner the better: army c.p.: WW1. See toot, n., 8.

tooth. In old or up in the tooth, (esp. of old maids) aged: from ca. 1860. H., 2nd ed., 'Stable term for aged horses which have lost the distinguishing mark in their teeth.' Cf. synon. long in the tooth.—2. See aching tooth; cut (one's) eye tooth; good on the fang; high in tooth; teeth.

tooth-brush. A tooth-brush moustache, so named because, at most one and often only a half-inch laterally, and short and bristly vertically, it closely resembles the hairy part of a small tooth-brush: coll.: from 1915.

tooth-carpenter. A dentist: low: ca. 1880–1920. Cf. tongs, q.v.

tooth-drawer, like a. Thin: coll.: mid C.17–18. (Ray.) Prob. ex, not tooth-drawer, a dentist, but † tooth-drawer, his instrument.

tooth-music. (The sound of) mastication: from ca. 1786; ob. Grose, 2nd ed.

toothache. A priapism: low: late C.19–20. Orig. Irish toothache.—2. A knife has the toothache if the blade is loose: schoolboys', mostly Colonial: id.

toothachy. Having, characteristic of, toothache, coll.: 1838 (Lady Granville: OED).

toother. A punch on the mouth: boxing: ca. 1890–1935.

toothful. A drink: joc. coll.: from ca. 1920. (E.F. Benson, David of King's, 1924.) Cf. Scot. toothful, to tipple.

toothpaste. See use her...

toothpick. 'A large stick. An ironical expression' (Lex. Bal.):

London: ca. 1810–50. In Sinks, 1848, it is an Irish watchman's shillelagh.—2. A very narrow fishing-boat with pointed prow: mainly nautical: 1897 (Kipling: OED). Ex shape.—3. A sword: prob. since late C.18: Services'; ob. by early C.20 in army, but surviving in RN wardrooms till mid-C.20 (P-G-R). Moe cites W. Maginn, Whitehall, 1827, p. 255. cf. cheese-toaster, toasting-fork, and:—4. A bayonet: Services': from 1914. F. & G.—5. See crutch and toothpick brigade.

Toothy. A ship's dental surgeon: RN wardrooms': since ca. 1920. (Granville) Cf.:-

toothy-peg. A tooth: nursery coll.: 1828, Hood, 'Turn we to little Miss Kilmansegg,/Cutting her first little toothy-peg.' By itself, toothy, a child's tooth, is less common: lit., a little tooth.

tooting. See too damn tooting; MISCELLANEA, in Appendix; and:-

Tooting Bec. Food; a meal, esp. supper, rhyming s. (on peck, q.v.): since ca. 1880. (Birmingham Evening Despatch, 19 July 1937.) Often abbr. to Tooting.

tootle, n. Twaddle; trashy verbiage: university: 1880s. Ex tootle, an act of tooting on a horn; cf., however, dial. tootle, silly gossip (EDD). Cf. v., 2.

tootle, v. To go; esp. tootle off, to depart: dial. (C.19–20) form of toddle >, in late 1890s, US and reintroduced, as s. or coll., ca. 1920. (P.G. Wodehouse, passim.) Prob. on toddle.—2. To write twaddle: university and journalistic: ca. 1883–94. (OED.) Ex n.

tootle-oo!; loosely, tootle-oo! Good-bye!: from ca. 1905, according to Collinson; the OED Sup. records it at 1907. Ob. Perhaps ex tootle, v., 1, q.v., or maybe, as Mr F.W. Thomas has most ingeniously suggested, a Cockney corruption of the French equivalent of '(I'll) see you soon': à tout à l'heure. See also pip-pip!, which carries, in DCpp., a theory from R.S. 1975, that it may have been 'based on early bulb-blown motor horns, when the road hogs' deep tootle-oo was answered by the perky pip-pip of the smaller car.'

tootoot(s). 'Excrement' (Powis): domestic and joc.: later C.20. See toot, n., 6.

tootsie, tootsy; tootsie (or -y-wootsie). A child's, a woman's small, foot: playful or affectionate coll.: resp. 1854 (Thackeray: OED); ca. 1890. The form tootsicum is a facetious 'literary' elab. On foot, but ex toddle: W. Also tooty; all rhyme with foot.—2. (And in voc., toots, rhyming hoots.) A young woman; a girl-friend, sweetheart: coll.: adopted, ex US, prob. from Al Jolson's famous chorus 'Toots, toots, tootsie, Goodbye...', composed 1924, and immortalised by him in the first commercially shown 'talkie', The Jazz Singer, 1927. By 1965, ob. (A. Hunter, Gently Down the Stream, 1957.) Perhaps an extension of sense 1. (P.B.) tooty, n. See toot, n., 6, and prec., 1.

tooty, adj. Supercilious, 'superior': (mostly upper-) middle class: since ca. 1960. Peter O'Donnell, Dragon's Claw, 1978, 'Clarissa's smile became frosty... Her voice held the lofty admonition of the Head Prefect. "But if you don't mind my saying so, you're not exactly in a position to get tooty about anything." Perhaps an altered blend of hoity-toity and snooty.

top, n. A cheating trick whereby one of the dice remained at the top of the box: gaming c.: ca. 1705–50. Tatler, no. 68, 1709 (OED).—2. A dying speech: c.: ca. 1830–80. (H., 1st ed.) Also known as a croak. Ex top, v., 3.—3. Abbr. top gear in motoring; gen. on top, very rarely—and by 1930, †—on the top: 1906, on the top; 1909, on top. (OED.) P.B.: since mid-C.20, ? earlier, usu. in top.—4. (Gen. pl.) Counterfoil of a divided warrant: accountants' coll., verging on j.: C.20.—5. In on top, 'The odds on the horse at the top of the bookie's board' (Weekend, 11 Oct. 1967): racing coll.: C.20.—6. In on the top, above trench-level in the front-line area: army coll.: WW1. See also go over the top.—7. In off (one's) top, insane: mostly Aus: C.20. (C.J. Dennis, 1916.) Cf. Late C.19—early 20 s. a little bit off the top, slightly crazy.—8. See little bit off the t.; go over the t.; old top; over the top. top, v.i. To cheat, esp. at cards: c. >, by 1750, low s.:

ca. 1660–1820. (Etherege, B.E., Grose.) V.t. with on, upon. —2. ? hence, v.i. and v.t. (the latter, gen. top upon), to insult: late C.17–early 19; c. >, by 1750, low s. B.E., Grose.—3. (Likewise ex sense 1.) To impose or foist (a thing) on: ca. 1670–1750. OED.—4. To behead, to hang: c. C.18–20, in C.20, mostly in the passive. Implied in topping cheat, t. cove, and topman or topsmen, though not separately recorded before 1811 (Lex. Bal.).—5. (Gen. v.i.) To break in, through sky-light or roof trap-door: c.:—1933 (Charles E. Leach).

top a clout (a handkerchief) or other article is to draw a corner or an end to the top of the pocket in readiness for removal at a favourable moment: c.:—1812 (Vaux); ob. by 1930.

top ballocks. Female breasts: military: late C.19–20. E.g. 'a smashing pair of top ballocks' is a fine bust. Cf. fore-butlocks. P.B.: ob., if not quite † by 1950.

top brass, (and collective n., the top brass). High-ranking officers in the Fighting Services; hence in civilian uniformed organisations, and even, joc., the Church: orig. US; Can., 1939; and soon afterwards, Brit. without the, used as adj. cf. brass, n., 5. (P.B.)

top brick off the chimney. Term used to describe the acme of generosity, with implication that foolish spoiling, or detriment to the donor may result, as in 'his parents'd give that boy the ...', or 'she's that soft-hearted, she'd give you ...': heard by me only in early 1980s, but prob. in use much earlier. (P.B.)

top butlocks. Female breasts: low: late C.19–early 20. Cf. top ballocks.

Top Cat. Thames Conservancy—and latterly any personal body with T.C. as initials, after 1960s cartoon character: 1970s' (Peppitt, 1976). P.B.: e.g., Town Clerk. The cartoons were US, made by Hanna & Barbera for TV: 'Top Cat' was leader of a gang of alley cats, and addressed by his gang as 'TC'.

top deck, the. The head: Aus. nautical (C.20) >, by 1925, gen. B., 1942.

top-diver. 'A Lover of Women. An Old Top-diver, one that has Lov'd Old-hat in his time' (B.E.): low: late C.17–early 19. Grose.

top drawer, out of the. (Mostly in negative.) Well-bred; gentlemanly, ladylike: coll., by 1935 verging on S.E.: C.20. Gen. come out of... H.A. Vachell, 1905 (OED).

top drawing-room. An attic or garret: London lower-classes' joc.:—1909 (Ware).

top-dressing. The hair: joc. coll.: from ca. 1870. (James Brunton Stephens, 1874.) An elab. of top (as in the barber's 'You're getting a little bald on the top, sir'), with a pun on t. -d., a fertilising manure.—2. 'An introduction to a report: usually written by an experienced hand and set in larger type' (F. & H.): journalistic: from ca. 1870. (H., 5th ed.) Cf. fig. use of window-dressing.

Top End, the. The northern part of the Northern Territory; Top Ender, a resident there: Aus. coll.: C.20. Baker.

top-fencer; -seller. A seller of last dying speeches: ca. 1830–70: resp. c. and (low) s. Ex top, n. 2.

top (, occ. top up, one's) fruit, punnet, etc. To place the best fruit at the top of one's basket, punnet, etc.; garden-produce market: from mid-1880s. (OED). Cf. toppers, which prob. suggested it.

top-gob. A pot-boy: c.:—1857 ('Ducange Anglicus'); ob. by 1930. Complete back s. would be top-yob.

top-hat. A tall or high hat (esp. as for formal occasions): coll., from early C.19 (Saturday Evening Post, 16 Mar. 1822, p.1, col. 5; Moe); in C.20, S.E. Cf. topper, n., 2.—2. In that's (or this has) put the top-hat on it, that's the finishing touch; that's the end: c.p. (mostly Liverpool): C.20. Cf. that's put the tin hat (or lid) on it.—3. See ARMY SLANG, verse 2, in Appendix.

top-hat party. Ratings enlisted for the War only: RN: 1915–18. (Bowen.) Cf. duration, q.v.

top-heavy. Drunk: coll.: from ca. 1675; ob. Ray, 1678; B.E.;

Bailey, 1736; Grose; Hone, 1825. (Apt to topple.) Apperson. top-hole, adj. Excellent; 'splendid', 'topping': 1908. E.V. Lucas, 'A top-hole idea,' but adumbrated by Conan Doyle, 1899, as up to the top-hole, though this may be considered a var. († by 1930, and, indeed, ob. by 1915). OED. On top-notch. [In the 7th ed., E.P. added:] by 1945, decidedly ob.; by 1965, virtually extinct, except among those aged over 60. 'If somebody trying to take on the trappings of an Englishman were to use expressions such as wizard prang, top-hole and ripping, he would be a subject of ridicule' (Wallace Keyburn's article 'This I don't like', Sunday Times colour sup., 8 July 1962).

top hush. 'Top Secret': Service officers', esp. RAF: WW2. P-G-R.

top-joint (pron. jint). A pint (of beer): rhyming s.:—1857 ('Ducange Anglicus'); ob. by 1930. Cf. top o' reeb, the back s. var.

top-kick. A high-ranking officer: Aus. Services': WW2. (Kylie Tennant, The Joyful Condemned, 1953.) P.B.: ex US Army usage, where, since WW1, it has = a first sergeant.—2. Hence (as also in US), the head man, the leader, of a gang or criminal team: later C.20. (Adam Hall, The Kobra Manifesto, 1976, p. 171.) In US, more gen. = anyone in authority (W. & F.) Both senses are prob. an extension of the earlier side-kick, q.v., now promoted above one.

top kiker. Breast pocket of coat or jacket: pickpockets': since (?) mid-C.20. Raymond Palmer, 'Unlucky Dips', Sunday Times, 25 Aug. 1974.

top-knot, topknot. The head: C.19. (Sessions, Apr. 1822; EDD.) Cf. top-piece.

top laddies. Senior officers of the RN; senior civil servants: wardrooms': since late 1930s. (Granville, letter, 1967.)

top lights. Eyes, esp. in blast or damn your...: nautical: from ca. 1790 (Grose, 3rd ed.); ob. by 1930.

top line. In be on the top line, to be ready and eager: lowerdeck: ca. 1905–30. ('Taffrail', Pincher Martin, 1916.) See also sweat on the top line, which is perhaps relevant. The phrase be on... has had a more gen. use than E.P. allows, and is still extant, 1983 (P.B.).

top-lofty, toplofty; toploftical. Haughty; 'high and mighty'; highfalutin: coll.: resp. mid-C.19–20 and 1823; both slightly ob. by 1930. OED.

top mag. A fast-talking criminal. See AUSTRALIAN UNDERWORLD, in Appendix.

top man. See floor man.—2. Auctioneer for a rigged auction: mock-auction world: since ca. 1945. Sunday Chronicle, 28 June 1953.

top o' reeb. A pot of beer: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.).

top of Rome. (A) home: rhyming s.:—1857 ('Ducange Anglicus'); ob. by 1930.

top of the bill. First-rate; the best of all: coll.: C.20. (1934, "'She's wonderful," I breathed. "Marvellous. Top of the bill, in fact.") Ex theatrical and music-hall advertisements, 'stars' being at the top. Cf. S.E. top-liner.

top of the bleeding bungalow;... of the box, house, shop. See TOMBOLA, in Appendix.

top of the morning (to you), the. A cheery greeting: orig. and mainly Anglo-Irish: coll. verging on S.E.: 1815 (Scott: OED).

top of the shop. 'No. 99 in the game of "Crown and Anchor"' (F. & G.): Services': early C.20.—2. See TOMBOLA, in Appendix.

top of the world, (be or sit) on. (To be) prospering, prosperous; esp. to be it and show it, to be very confident and high-spirited: adopted, ex US, ca. 1930. Cf. sit pretty.

top-off. n. An informer to the police: Aus. c.: C.20. (B., 1942.) By 1948, low s. (Park, 1950.)

top off or up, v. To finish off or up; to conclude: coll.: both from ca. 1835, Newman in 1836 having up, Dana up (printed 1840, known earlier). OED.—2. To put the finishing touch to: coll.: from ca. 1870. Both senses derive ex top (or top up), to put the top on, to crown.—3. (Only top off.) 'To knock down; to assault' (C.J. Dennis): Aus. c. > low s.:—1916.—4. (Only top off.)? Hence, to act as an informer to the police or other authority: id.: since earlier C.20. Baker.

top-off merchant. A low Aus. var. of top-off, n. Rats.

top over tail. See tail, n., 12.

top people, the. Tic-tac men signalling from high in the stands: racing: since ca. 1920. Sunday Telegraph, 7 May 1967, anon. article on bookies' s. top-piece. The head: from 1830s: coll. and dial. Cf. top-knot. EDD.

top ropes. In sway away on all top ropes, to live extravagantly or riotously: nautical coll.: ca. 1810–1900. In Aus., ca. 1850–80, carry on top ropes ('Rolf Boldrewood', The Miner's Right, 1890).—2. Hence, in sway all top ropes, to give oneself airs: nautical: late C.19–early 20. Bowen.

top-sail. See top-sail.

top-sawyer. A collar: tailors': from ca. 1870; ob. by 1930.—2. The sense, 'the best man; one in a superior position', may orig. (—1823) have been s. > coll. >, by 1860, S.E. (Egan's Grose.) Ex the timber trade, where he 'who works the upper handle of a pitsaw' gets a much higher wage than those beneath him. OED.—3. Hence, the favourite (horse): turf coll.:—1923 (Manchon).—4. In play top-sawyer, to coit: mid-C.19–early 20.

top-seller. See top-fencer.

top set. Female breasts: since mid-C.20. (Petch, 1969.) A pun on dentists' j.

top-shuffle. 'To shuffle the lower half of a pack over the upper half without disturbing it' (F. & H.): gaming s. (—1904) > j.

top step. "'He's standing on the top step.'" Said of a man standing trial; this means that there is every prospect of his being given the maximum sentence' (Tempest, 1950): c.: mid-C.20.

top ten, in the. 'In use in "Pop" circles [in the "pop" song chart of the week]—ineligible thus, of course—but is used in other ways, as when somebody is becoming successful in any line of business' (Petch, 1969): since ca. 1966.

top the glim. To snip the top off a burning wick: nautical: C.19. Basil Hall, 1831.

top the officer. To arrogate superiority' (Smyth): nautical: earlier C.19. John Davis, The Post-Captain, 1806 (Moe).

top traverse, off (one's). 'Off one's head. Acting crazily' (F. & G.): army: 1916+. By elab. of top, head.

top 'uns. Breasts: low: C.20. (Norman.) Cf. top ballocks or buttocks.

top up. To bring a liquid to the necessary level; hence, to fill a drinking-glass or a fuel tank: coll. (? orig. army): since ca. 1930. P-G-R.—2. See top (one's) fruit; top off, v., 1, 2.

top upon. See top, v., 1 and 2.

top-yob. A pot-boy: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.); ob. by 1930. Cf. top-gob.

top your boom! Go away!: a nautical c.p. addressed to a man, esp. 'when he has forced his company where he was not invited.' (Bowen): early C.19–early 20. W.N. Glascock, Sailors and Saints (I, 145, and II, 123), 1829 (Moe). See also boom, n., 2.

topcoat warmer, a. Warmer by a topcoat, i.e. much warmer: coll.: since ca. 1930.

toper. A street; a highway: c., mostly tramps':—1923 (Manchon). A corruption of tober (see toby, n.).

topes. Latrine: Imperial Service College: early C.20. (Marples.) Ex topos.

topknot. See top-knot.

toploftical; toplofty. See top-lofty.

topman. A hangman: C.17. (In C.19, topsmen, q.v.) Cf. top, v., 4.

topnobber. Someone first-class or even pre-eminent: Anglo-Irish: C.20. James Joyce, Ulysses, 1922.

topo. A topographical map: Aus.: since ca. 1940. B., 1953.

topos. Latrine(s): university undergraduates':—1884; ob. by 1930 (E.P.), but extant in theological colleges, 1960s (Towler & Coxon, The Fate of the Anglican Clergy, 1979). It may have come from Rugby School (Marples). At Rugby School, always in the pl. topoi, except in topos bumf, toilet paper—a term current since ca. 1920. Ex Gr. τόπος, a place.

topped. Hanged. See top, v., 4.

topped up. 'Any container full "to the brim" and, by extension, drunkenness' (Powis). See top up.

topper, n. A thing or person excellent or exceptionally good in his or its kind: coll.: 1709, The British Apollo, of a bowl of punch compared with other drinks (OED). Slightly ob. Lit., at the top.—2. A top-hat: s. (1820) >, by 1860, coll. 'Pomes Marshall, 1897, 'A most successful raid/On a swell's discarded topper.'—3. A (violent) blow on the head (or 'top'): 1823 (Bee); 1834, Ainsworth; ob.—4. A cigar- or cigarette-end; a dottle: mostly London and mostly low:—1874 (H., 5th ed.); Cassell's Encyclopædic Dict., 1888.—5. A tall, thin person: low: late C.19–early 20. F. & H.—6. As Topper, the 'inevitable' nickname of any man surnamed Brown: Services': earlier C.20. (F. & G.) Orig. prob. anecdotal.—7. A public hangman: c.: C.20. Edgar Wallace, in Big Foot, 1927, speaks of 'Mr Topper Wells—public executioner of England' Ex top, v., 4.—8. A sovereign (coin): tramps' and beggars' c.:—1926 (Frank Jennings, in London's Shadows). Prob. ex sense 1.—9. An unamusing so-called 'funny story': since ca. 1950. (See, e.g., Romany Bain's column in the Evening Standard, 20 July 1963.) It 'tops the lot'.—10. See straighter; toppers.

topper, v. To punch: pugilistic: ca. 1810–55. George Godfrey, History of George Godfrey, 1828, has the boxing phrase (current ca. 1815–45), topper one's smellers, to land a blow on one's opponent's nose.—2. (?) Hence, to knock on the head; to kill thus: late 1860s–late 1930s. (E. Farmer, 1869: OED.) Ex n., 3.

topper-hunter. A scavenger (and seller) of 'toppers' (topper, 4). H., 5th ed., 1874.

toppers. Large, fine fruit (esp. if strawberries) luring one from their display-point at basket- or punnet-top: 1839 (Mogridge: OED). Because they are at the top. Cf. top (one's) fruit, q.v.—2. As T, Top Schools: at Shrewsbury: late C.19–20. (Desmond Coke, The Bending of a Twig, 1906.) By the 'OXFORD -ER(S)'. topping, n. A hanging: late C.19–20. Cf. topper, n., 7, ex top, v., 4.—2. A lower-class coll. var. of prec., 1:—1923 (Manchon). An extension of the S.E. sense, a top layer.

topping, adj. In c., only in topping cheat and cove and follow, qq.v.—2. Excellent in number, quantity, or quality; 'tip-top': from ca. 1750. Richard Cumberland, The Brothers, 1770, at I.i., Philip: "Squire Belfield's principal tenant, and as topping a farmer as any in the whole county of Cornwall." Coll. >, ca. 1890, s. P.B.: ob. by 1950, and thereafter merely joc.; Nigel Dempster, 'The Ins and Outs of our Social Minefield', Telegraph Sunday mag., 11 Mar. 1979, notes that it was then 'out', implying some revival in Society use in the 1970s. Ex topping, eminent.—3. Hence, as an adv.: mid-C.19–20.

topping cheat; t-c. A gallows (gen. the t.c.): c.: mid C.17–early 19. (Coles, 1676; B.E.; Grose.) Ex cheat, chete, a thing; and cf. top, v., 4, and:

topping cove or follow. A hangman: resp. c., mid-C.17–mid-19 (Coles, B.E. and Grose); (low) s., late C.18–mid-19 (B.E.). The latter puns the lit. sense, a preëminent person. Cf. topping cheat and topsmen, qq.v.

topping man, as opp. topping fellow (in lit. sense), is a rich man: prob. the s. of a London social class or convivial set: ca. 1788–1800. Grose, 3rd ed.

toppy. Tipsy: coll.: ca. 1880–1915. (OED.) Cf. top-heavy, q.v.—2. Stylish; (too) showy: from ca. 1890: coll. >, by 1920, low coll. (by 1930, ob.) and dial. (OED.) Perhaps suggested by topping, 2. q.v.

tops, n. Important persons: persons in the news: journalistic: since ca. 1925. Ex top-liners.—2. As the tops, as in 'He's the tops'—admirable, the best possible; most likeable: coll.: adopted, ca. 1943, from US.—3. See straighter, 1; top, n., 4.

tops, adj. First-class: army: 1944+. (P-G-R.) Adapted ex n., 2.

tops and bottoms. 'In his pockets were bundles of "tops and bottoms"—rolls of "notes" with genuine fivers on top and bottom and sheets of toilet paper or telephone directory pages, their edges trimmed to look like notes, in between' (John Gosling, 1959): C.20; by ca. 1930, also police s.—2. In play at tops and bottoms, q.v.

topsail. See pay (one's) debts with the topsail.

topsey frizy. Topsy: Gentleman's Magazine. 1770, p. 559. (P.B.)

topside. Fig., on top; in control: coll.: from late 1890s. (OED) P.B.: prob. an adaptation of pidgin usage.—2. Hence, in their air; airborne; flying: RAF: since ca. 1918. Jackson.

topsider. A lazy dog: Aus.: since ca. 1910. B., 1942. Prob. ex prec., 1.

topsides. Those at the head of a specialist corps or of a branch of the Service: army: C.20. E.P., 'In Mess and Field', New Statesman, 1 Aug. 1942.

topsman. A hangman: from early 1820s: c. >, by 1860, low s. Ex top, v.h the topsail.

topsey frizy. Topsy: Gentleman's Magazine. 1770, p. 559. (P.B.)

topside. Fig., on top; in control: coll.: from late 1890s. (OED) P.B.: prob. an adaptation of pidgin usage Tommy, 6.—2. 'All Turners are "Topsy" in the Navy' (Granville): C.20.

topsy-boosy. Drunk: low: from ca. 1890; ob. by 1930. Reduplicated boosy. Cf. toppy, 1, and topsey...

topwize lizard. See lizard.

tora-loorals. Feminine bust, esp. if somewhat exposed: theatrical:—1909; ob. (Ware.) Perhaps ex dairies via dial. tooral-ooral (merry with drink), itself ex truly rural used as a test for drunkenness (EDD).

Torbay goose. 'Bullock's liver. Torbay was slaughter house for the blockade fleet in the [English] Channel': RN: late C.18—early 19. Peppitt, citing 'Jack Nastyface'; Nautical Economy, 1836.

torche-cul. Toilet-paper: coll.: late C.17—mid-19. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) Direct ex the Fr. Cf. bum-fodder, the English equivalent.

tore out. A small boat (up to about 15 tons T.M.) converted from cargo-boat to yacht: Essex coast s. rather than Essex dial.: C.20. I.e. torn out 'because the internals have been torn out' (J.A. Boycott, Dec. 1938).

tormentor. (In a theatre) the first wing; a door therein: theatrical s. > coll.: mid-C.19—20, though not recorded before 1886 (OED). Because often a nuisance.—2. An instrument (cf. tickler, q.v.) devised to annoy at fairs: coll.: from ca. 1890.—3. A flatterer: low: late C.19—20. Suggested by back-scratcher.—4. see tormentors.

tormentor of catgut. A fiddler: coll.:—1785; very ob. by 1930. (Grose, 1st ed.) Because the violin strings are made of catgut. Also catgut-scraper. Cf.:-

tormentor of sheepskin. A drummer: in Lex. Bal., 1812; Baumann, 1887; but it prob. goes back to late C.18, to judge by the synonym occurring in 'Police of London', reprinted by The Port Folio of 16 May 1807 (p. 312), where a drummer is referred to as 'this tormentor of parchment' (Moe).

tormentors. Riding-spurs: 1875 (Whyte-Melville: OED). Cf. persuaders.—2. A cook's big forks: nautical: 'Bill Truck', Sep. 1823; Baumann. Rather rare in sing., though it does so occur in C.J.R. Cook, The Quarter Deck, 1844 (Moe).

tom it. See that's torn it!

tom off a strip. See tear a strip off.

tom thumb. An inferior form of Tom Thumb. Franklyn, Rhyming.

torp. A torpedo: C.20. (Berrey, 1940.) Cf. torps.

torpedo, n. The penis: Services: WW2. Ex shape—and an unofficial, anecdotal poster. (R.S.)—2. Also submarine, 'a dagga, i.e. a marijuana cigarette'; a submarine is properly a large one (Cape Times, 23 May 1946), torpedo a large, a medium or a small (C.P. Wittstock, letter, 1946): S. African underworld.

torpedo, v. To steal: R Aus. N: WW2. B., 1953.

torpedo beard. A pointed Vandyk beard, neatly trimmed: RN torpedo officers': ca. 1895—1918. D. Arnold Foster, The Ways of the Navy, 1931 (Peppitt).

Torpedo Jack. A torpedo lieutenant: RN coll.: C.20. ('Taffrail', Carry On!, 1916.) Cf. torps.

Torpid. See togger, 4.

Torpoint chicken; also Stamshaw nanny-goat. A very quick-tempered messmate: RN: C.20. Torpoint is that township which lies across from Devonport. Stamshaw is in the Portsmouth area. The chickens of the former were noted for their 'testiness', and the nanny-goats on Stamshaw Common, noted 'butters', usually attacked on sight. Granville.

torps. A torpedo officer; often as vocative: RN: C.20. ('Taffrail'; Bowen.) Cf. chips and sparks.

torrac. A carrot: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Whence the indelicate c.p. retort (—1904), ekat a torrac; cf. have a banana!

torrid. Rather tipsy: ca. 1780—1840. See mops and brooms. Amorous drunk?

torture-truck. A hospital trolley (bearing lancets, fomentations, etc.); military: 1915+. B. & P.

Tory. (Despite F. & H., all senses are S.E. except these two:—) One of those who, in 1679—80, opposed the exclusion of James from the English crown: a nickname in use among the Exclusioners; rare after C.17. Cf. Tantivy and see esp. Roger North's Examen, II, v, § 9. (F. & H.; OED.) Ex Tory, a rapparee or outlaw and itself ex an Irish word = 'a pursuer'. Cf. whig, q.v.—2. Hence, a Conservative: coll.: from ca. 1830, when Conservative superseded Tory as the official and formal name for a member of the traditionalist party. (The same holds of Tory used as an adj.)

Tory Rory. A London nickname given, ca. 1780—1845, to 'those who wore their hats fiercely cocked' (Ware).

Tory wet. See wet, adj., 8.

tosh, n. The penis: schoolboys': from 1870s. (W.)? ex tusk; more prob. ex dial. tosh, 'a tusk; a projecting or unseemly tooth' (EDD).—2. A hat: modified back s.: ca. 1875—1900. The correct tah > ta-h, ta-aitch, tosh.—3. (Also tosh-can or -pan.) A foot-pan, a bath: Public Schools':—1881 (Pascoe, Life in Our Public Schools). Perhaps a perversion of wash; possibly cognate is Romany tov, to wash. Cf. tosh, v.—4. Nonsense: 1892, Oxford University Magazine, 26 Oct., 'Frightful tosh'. Perhaps bosh (q.v.) perverted; cf., however, dial. toshy, 'over-dressed; tawdry' (EDD). Often as an exclam.—5. Hence, very easy bowling: cricketers': 1898 (Ware).—6. A pocket: c.: C.19—20; ob. Ware, 'Prob. a corruption of French poche'.—7. A mackintosh: a synonym of mac(k): C.20; rare. A.H. Dawson.—8. Sewage-refuse, esp. articles made of copper: sewage-hunters': since ca. 1830. (Mayhew, II, 1851.) Cf. tosher, q.v. Cognate with—perhaps ex—E. Anglian toshy, muddy, sticky.—9. A term of address, to male friend or stranger, as in 'Wotcher, Tosh!': proletarian; common in army, WW2, and much affected by spivs in the imm. post-war years: from late 1930s; ob. by 1960. Perhaps related to Scot. dial. tosh, neat, smart, whence the n. = a smart fellow. Cf. mush, 11 and 13, qq.v.; used in exactly the same way as 13. (E.P.; P.B.)—10. As Tosh, Sandhurst nickname for a man with a wooden leg: from ca. 1850. (Major A.F. Mockler-Ferryman, Annals of Sandhurst, 1900.) Perhaps ex the noisiness of the tosh-can.—11. As the Tosh, it—the school swimming-bath: Rugby School: C.20. (D.F. Wharton, 1965.) Ex sense 3.—12. See tush.

tosh, v.t. To splash, throw water over: Public Schools': 1883, J.P. Groves (OED). Ex tosh, n., 3, q.v. See also tosh-room.—2. Hence, v.i., to bath: Ibid.: C.20.

tosh and waddle. Utter nonsense: Aus. rhyming s., on twaddle: since ca. 1950. (B.P.) Cf. tosh, n., 4.

tosh-can; -pan. See tosh, n. 3.—tosh-pond, the bathing-pond: Royal Military Academy, Sandhurst: from 1880s. Ex tosh, n., 3. Cf.:-

tosh-room. A bathroom: Sandhurst: from ca. 1860. (Mockler-Ferryman.) See tosh, n., 3, and v.

tosh-soap. Cheese: Public Schools', esp. Charterhouse: late C.19—early 20. (B. & L.; F. & H.) Ex tosh, n., 3.

tosh up. To fake an effect by 'tarding up' something: car dealers': later C.20. See quot'n at pudden, 3.

tosher. One who, in the Thames, steals copper from ships' bottoms: c.—1859 (H., 1st ed.). See tosh, n., 8. Hence toshing, such theft: c.—1867 (Smyth).—2. 'A non-collegiate student at a university having residential colleges': undergraduates': later C.19—early 20. Ex unattached, by the 'OXFORD-ER'.—3. A painter/decorator: coll., ?mainly south-east England: C.20. (John Malin, 1979.)? Echoic.

tosheroon. See tusheroon.

toshing. See tosher, 1.

toshy. Rubbishy: 1902, Belloc, 'Toshy novels' (OED). Ex tosh, n., 4.

toss, n. See argue the toss; take a toss.

toss, v. To throw away, esp. as useless or worthless: Aus.: since ca. 1930. 'Do you want to keep this?'—'No, you can toss it' (B.P.).—2. Hence, as v.i., to give up, throw in: Aus. coll.: later C.20. (McNeil.) A shortening of toss in the alley, ... towel.—3. In toss a party, to 'throw' (give) one: Aus.: since ca. 1950. (B.P.)

Toss an' Joss. The T. and J. Harrison Steamship Company: HMS Conway: C.20. (Granville, 1962.) Joss rhymes with Toss; Toss = Thos, Thomas.

toss (one's) cookies. To vomit: Can.: ca. 1920–55. (Leechman.)

toss in the alley or the towel. To give up, to 'throw in the towel': Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942, alley; C.J. Dennis, 1916, towel.) Alley prob. ex the game of marbles; towel from boxing j. Cf. synon. sky the rag, and see alley, 7.

toss it up airy. To 'show off', put on 'side': lower classes: —1923 (Manchon).

toss-off. An act of masturbation: low coll.:—1785 (Grose, 1st ed.). Presumably ex:

toss-off, v.i. and v. reflexive. (Gen. of the male.) To masturbate: low coll.: from ca. 1780.

toss-prick. A coarsely humorous vocative: C.20.

toss the balls up. To put forward several options: commercial coll.: late 1970s. (Mrs C. Raab: 'heard 1979'.)

toss-up. An even chance: coll.: 1809, Malkin, 'It is a toss up who fails and who succeeds: the wit of to-day is the blockhead of to-morrow.' Ex toss-up, the 'skying' of a coin.

tossaroon. See tusheroon.

tossed. Drunk: C.19–20. Ex tossed, disordered, disturbed, but perhaps influenced by Scots tosie, -y, slightly intoxicated, occ. in form tosy-mosy.

tosser. A penny used in pitch-and-toss: Glasgow:—1934.—2. Also, any coin, esp. a sovereign: from ca. 1910. M. Harrison, Spring in Tartarus, 1935.

tospot. 'Used as a jocular affectionate term of address [to men] in Australia' (B.P.): Aus. coll.: late C.19–20. Ex the † S.E. toss-pot, a heavy and habitual toper. Cf. soaks.

tossy. Proud, haughty, supercilious: proletarian coll.:—1923 (Manchon). An extension of the rare S.E. sense, pert or contemptuous.

toasted. Drunk: late C.19—early 20. Elab. of dial. toasted (i.e. corrupt intoxicated).

tot, n. The sum-total of an addition, an addition sum: coll.: from 1870s. Perhaps imm. ex tot-up, n., q.v.; ultimately ex total, less prob. ex L. totum, the whole. Cf. long tots, q.v.—2. A very young or small child: dial. and coll.: 1725 (Ramsay). Cf. Danish immelt-tot, Tom Thumb (OED). Gen. tiny or wee tot.—3. ?hence, a (very) small drinking-vessel, esp. a child's mug or a tin mug: dial. (—1828) >, by 1840, coll. OED.—4. (Perhaps ex sense 2; prob. ex sense 3.) A very small quantity, esp. of liquor: dial. (—1828) >, by 1850, coll., as in Whyte-Melville, 1868, 'He... often found himself pining for... the camp-fires, the fragrant fumes... and the tot of rum.' Hence, in C.20 RN lowerdeck usage, tot = the rum itself (Knock).—5. A bone; hence, anything worth taking from a dustbin or a refuse-heap; but esp. a rag, as in Gilt Kid, 1936: dust-heap pickers', hence rag-and-bone men': from early 1870s. (H., 5th ed.) Perhaps on tat, a rag, = the suggestion coming from the juxtaposition in rag-and-bone. Hence totpicker (—1874) or -raker (—1904) or -hunter (—1909), and totter (—1891), such a scavenger, esp. if illicit, and totting (—1874), such scavenging: H., F. & H., Ware, OED.—6. See tote, n.

tot, v.t. To add (orig. together) to ascertain the total of: coll.: ca. 1760 (H. Brooke); slightly ob. by 1930. Ex total or tot as abbr. total (or totum): cf. tot, n., 1.—2. Hence, tot up, to ascertain (esp. expeditiously) the total of: from mid-1830s. OED.—3. Hence, vbl n. totting-up, totting: coll.: resp. ca. 1820, 1860.—4. Hence, v.i., to amount; often constructed with to. Coll.: 1882, Besant, 'I... wondered how much it would tot up to' (OED).—5. To drink drams: mid-C.19–20. Ex tot, n., 4.

tot-book. A book containing (long) addition sums to be worked out: coll.: late C.19–20. Cf. long tots. Ex tot., n., 1.

tot-hunter, -picker or -raker. See tot, n., 5.

Tot-hunting. 'Scouring the streets in search of pretty girls': low:—1909 (Ware). Cf. Tottie, 2, q.v.

tot-sack. A bag; esp. a sand-bag containing rations for a number of men: military: WW1. (F. & G.) Prob. ex tot, n., 4, rather than ex sense 5.

tot-up. An adding-up: coll.: 1871 (OED).—2. V.: see tot, v., 2, 4.

total loss, a. 'He's a total loss', i.e. useless: RAF: since ca. 1939. Ex aircraft thus classified. Cf. synon. dead loss.

total wreck. A cheque: Aus. rhyming s.: C.20. Baker.

totalled, be. 'To be killed outright, as in a road smash. (Observer TV review, 27 Apr. 1975)' (R.S.): copied ex US s. Barnhart quotes an advertisement in Scientific American, Apr. 1968, 'An accident serious enough to "total" a car generally "totals" the occupants as well, and defines total, v.t. 'to wreck beyond repair; destroy totally.' Cf. total loss. Prob. ultimately ex insurance-brokers' j. (P.B.)

tote, n.; occ. tot. A hard drinker: ca. 1870, a music-hall song entitled 'Hasn't Got over It Yet', 'As well we'd another old chum./By all of his mates called the Tote./So named on account of the rum/He constantly put down his throat.' Perhaps punning tote, total, and tot, n., 4; perhaps ex:—2. (Occ. tot.) A total abstainer: low coll.: prob. from late 1860s, but not irrefutably recorded before 1887 (OED). The music-hall song 'Toper and Tote', ca. 1889, has: 'You'll always find the sober Tote/With a few pounds at command.' F. & H.—3. A totalisator: from ca. 1890: Aus. coll. >, ca. 1901, gen. Brit. coll. Kinglake, 1891 (OED). Cf. tote-shop.—4. A woman's large bag, used for carrying groceries or baby's napkins, etc.: Aus. coll. rather than s.: since ca. 1930. (B.P.) Ex v., 2.

tote, v.t. A var. of tout, v., 2: c.:—1887 (Baumann). Cf. toter.—2. To carry: US (ca. 1676) >, ca. 1910, partly anglicised as a coll. (Thornton.) The origin of this obscure word is not impossibly tole, toll, v.t., 'to pull, drag, draw physically', recorded by OED for C.15–17; the earliest example of tote may be a scribal error (for it occurs in an official document) and there exist no, or very few, other examples before mid-C.18. But W., prob. rightly, suggests the Old Fr. tauter (as defined in Cotgrave).

tot, v.t. To add up: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B.P.) Ex total.

totem pole. 'An item of airfield lighting equipment, so called from its shape' (Jackson): RAF: since ca. 1925. By 1943, j.

totex. A C.17 var.—of touter, a spy: c.: 1633, Jonson.

tother, 'tother. In one with tother, copulation: ?C.18—early 20.: rather coll. than s.—2. In (usu. can't) tell tother from which, to distinguish between two persons or things: coll.: late C.19–20. (Baumann, 1887.) A joc. manipulation of tell one from the other.—3. See tone.

tother school. One's former school; any school not a Public School: Winchester: mid-C.19–20. Cf. totherun, q.v.—2. As adj., unbecoming because alien to Winchester: id.: from ca. 1860. Cf. non-licet. Wrench.

tother-sider, or as one word. A convict: coll. of Victoria, Australia: ca. 1860–1905. With ref. to Sydney, where stood the earliest penal settlement: also Sydney (‘-bird or’-sider). The rivalry between Melbourne and Sydney, esp., has long taken the form of an exchange of our ‘Arbour!’ and stinking Yarra!—2. One from the other side of Aus., esp. a Westralian: late C.19–20: Aus. coll. >, by 1925, S.E.—3. A person from the Eastern States: West Aus. Also, a Tasmanian: Victoria. B., 1942.

totherun. A preparatory school; a private school: Charter-house: late C.19–20. I.e. the other one (one’s former school). Cf. tother school, q.v.

toto. A hippopotamus: pet-name coll.:—1916 (OED Sup.). A manipulated abbr.—2. A louse: military: 1916–18. (F. & G.). Adopted, not very gen., ex Fr. military s., where it shared the honours with gau (see the glossaries of Dauzat and Déchelette).

tots. Old clothes: street-markets’: since ca. 1870. See tot, n., 5.—2. See going tots; long tots; Old Tots.

totsie. Var. of tottie, a girl. Graham Greene, Brighton Rock, 1938, passim.

totter. See tot, n., 5.

totter-arse. A seasaw: provincial: from ca. 1870. Ex dial. t.-a, a person walking unsteadily (EDD).

totterman, whence the elab. totterman’s mate. Habitual drinker, even unto the stage of tottering: ‘very common in the same sense as piss-head’ (Cdr C. Parsons RN ret., 1973): mostly RN: (? late C.19–)C.20. P.B.: cf. also tot, v., 5.

Tottie; occ. Totty. A Hottentot: coll.: 1849 (E.E. Napier: OED).—2. The ‘inevitable’ (or inseparable) nickname of men surnamed Bell: military: C.20. (F. & G.) Origin prob. anecdotal; cf. Dinger and Tinkle.—3. tottie, rarely totty. A high-class whore: from ca. 1880. Ex Dot, Dorothy, or ex tottie, -y, a little child: perhaps influenced by titty, q.v.—4. Hence, a girl, a young woman, esp. if of a compliant nature, but not a whore: RN: C.20. ‘That mad pussier. Gone native. Shacking up with a Japanese tottie somewhere’ (John Winton, We Saw the Sea, 1960).

Tottie all-colours. a brightly dressed young woman (of the streets): low London:—1909 (Ware.) Cf.:-

Tottie (or -y) fie. A smart young woman given to ‘throwing her weight about’; a prostitute or near-prostitute with such tendencies: Londoners’, esp. Cockneys’: C.20. The fie is of exclamatory origin (‘Oh my!’); see Tottie, 3. Hence, Totty Fay (pronounced Fye), alternatively Tottie Harpbake, a female assuming a haughty air: derisive Cockney: since ca. 1890. (L.A.) Cf.:-

Tottie one-lung. ‘An asthmatic, or consumptive young person who, for good or bad, thinks herself somebody’: low urban:—1909 (Ware). See Tottie, 3.

totties. Potatoes: army: late C.19–20. Perversion of taties; cf. synon. chotties.

totting. In go totting, to collect (rags and) bones: low:—1887 (Baumann). See tot, n., 5.—2. See tot, v., 3; also for totting-up.

Tottle. Aristotle: schools’:—1923 (Manchon). Cf. Thicker, Thucydides.

Totty. See Tottie.

touch, n. Anything that will, at a stated price, interest customers at (about) that price: from ca. 1710: coll. >, in mid-C.19, s. Swift, 1712, ‘I desire you to print in such a form, as in the booksellers’ phrase will make a sixpenny touch’; Sir Erasmus Philipps, in his Diary, 22 Sep. 1720, ‘At night went to the ball at the Angel. A guinea touch’; H., 3rd ed. (1864), ‘Sometimes said of a woman to imply her worthlessness, as, “only a half-crown touch”’. Lit., something that will touch, appeal to.—2. At Eton (—1864), a present of money, a ‘tip’. (H., 3rd ed.) Cf. sense 5.—3. A theft, esp. by pocket-picking: low s. bordering on c.: 1888 (‘Rolf Boldrewood’: OED). In C.20 c., an illicit haul, esp. of cattle.—4. Hence, the obtaining of money from a person, e.g. by a loan: from ca. 1890.—5. Hence, the sum of money obtained at one time, esp.

by cadging or theft: low: C.20.—6. ‘Manner; mode; fashion’ (C.J. Dennis): Aus. coll.: C.20. Cf. sense 1.—7. Cognate is the English low s. sense (—1923), ‘Sort of thing’, as in ‘Don’t come that touch on (or with) me!’ Manchon.—8. ‘In these rounds or . . . “walks”, we have our “touches”—regular places of call where we pick up letters and, in certain cases, leave them’, from ‘You’re in My Bag!’ by a Postman, Passing Show, 24 Dec. 1932.—9. A simpleton; a dupe: Aus. (orig. c.): since ca. 1910. (B., 1953.) Prob. a shortening of soft touch, q.v., a person easily imposed upon for money loan or gift. Cf. sense 4.—10. ‘A pick-up or girl got acquainted with casually’ (Petch, 1969): slightly raffish: since ca. 1955.—11. In get a touch. ‘To come into personal contact with a live rail’ (Railway, 2nd): railwaymen’s: since ca. 1950. A pun on sense 5.—12. See rum touch; touch of the . . ., give (one) a touch.

touch, v. To receive (money), draw (it): mid-C.17–20: S.E. until C.19, then coll.; in C.20, s. Cf. Fr. toucher de l’argent.—2. ? hence, to steal: c.: late C.18–20. Holman, 1796, ‘I could not go abroad without her, so I touch’d father’s cash.’ In C.20 c., often v.i., ‘to make a haul or bring off a coup’ (Charles E. Leach). Cf. sense 4.—3. To approach (a person) for money, to get from (a person) the money one asks (for): coll.: 1760. C. Johnston, 1760, ‘I am quite broke up; his grace has touched me for five hundred’ (OED). In late C.19–20, for things other than money.—4. To rob (a person): for, of the article concerned: c.: mid-C.19–20.—5. Hence, in Aus. c. or low s. (—1904), to act unfairly towards, to cheat, to swindle. F. & H.—6. The sense ‘to arrest’, ca. 1780–1850, may, as the OED has it, be S.E.; or it may, as Grose, 1st ed. implies, be coll. or s.—7. To rival, compare with, equal (in ability): coll.: 1838, Dickens, ‘Wasn’t he always top-sawyer among you all? Is there any one of you that could touch him, or come near him?’ Ex touch, to reach, get as far as.

touch and goes. [The] aircraft were . . . trainers . . . [and] in the late ‘fifties and early ‘sixties, could be seen carrying out touch and goes (or circuits and bumps) as part of the training procedure for fledgling pilots’ (A.P. Jarram, Brush Aircraft Production at Loughborough, 1978). I.e. practising landing and taking-off. Mrs Barbara Huston adds, ‘also used of aircraft demonstrations, which include landing and immediate take-off, at flying shows’. Later C.20.

touch bone and whistle. ‘Any one having broken wind backwards, according to the vulgar law, may be pinched by any of the company till he has touched bone (i.e. his teeth) and whistled’ (Grose, 2nd ed.). Often in the imperative. From late 1780s to mid-C.19.

touch-bottom. A forced landing, esp. a crash-landing: RAF: since ca. 1925. (H. & P.) Also a v. (unhyphenated), ‘to crash-land’: since ca. 1925. (Jackson.) By meiosis.

touch bun. See touch the bun for luck.

touch-crib. A brothel: c. or low s.: C.19—early 20. Ex euph. S.E. touch.

touch down, v.i. To land: RAF coll. (by 1944, j.): since ca. 1918. (Jackson.) Ex Rugby football.

touch for. See touch, v., 3, 4.—2. To get, incur, catch (gen. something unpleasant): from ca. 1910.

touch ground. Of an argument, to make sense; to be relevant to a plan, as in, e.g., ‘See which of these ideas touches ground with you’: coll.: later C.20. D. Clark, Roast Eggs, 1981.

touch-hole. The pudend: low coll.: C.17—early 20. Punning a fire-arm’s vent. Cf. Smell like a badger’s touch-hole.

touch ivory. To play at dice:—1864 (Sala); ob. by 1930. OED.

touch lucky. To have a stroke of luck: coll.: late C.19–20. Collinson; F. & G.

touch me. A shilling: from ca. 1880; ob. by 1930. Abbr. touch me on the nob, a ‘bob’, rhyming s. of ca. 1870–90. F. & H., 1904, has touch-my-nob, a bastard or composite form. The touch-me forms are recorded in a MS. note in the B.M. copy of H., 5th ed.

touch of Caruso. ‘A turn or two astern on the engines’:

nautical (officers'): from ca. 1910; ob. by 1930. Ironic ex the great singer.

touch of 'em. See give (one) a touch of 'em ['the shits'], to annoy intensely.

touch of the ... , a. Lit. 'characteristic of', but > an almost meaningless qualifier, of manifold use, as in, e.g., 'A touch of the fruitcakes' = slightly nutty [crazy], ex nutty as a fruitcake; 'A touch of the Harvey Smiths' = contemptuously giving the vulgar two-finger signal, as H.S. did to the judges (see Harvey Smith); 'A touch of the GTs' (headline of a motoring article in Guardian, 30 Apr. 1970), to describe a car with sporting lines: adapted from lit. S.E. early 1970s, but with the difference that the thing qualified is always pluralised: gen. coll. (P.B.) touch of the seconds, a. See seconds.

touch of the tar-brush, a. A pej. c.p. applied to 'the naval officer who is primarily an efficient seaman': mid-C.19–20. (Bowen.) Ex the constant use of tar on a ship.—2. See tar-brush, 2.

touch of the tonsorial, a. 'Haircut' (Powis): joc. elab.: later C.20. See touch of the ...

touch off. To procure (goods): lowerdeck: late C.18—mid-19. ('Bill Truck', Sep. 1823.) Cf.:

touch off (someone) for. A var., mostly Colonial, of touch, v., 3: late C.19–20. A. Cecil Alport, The Lighter Side of the War, 1934, 'I touched him off for a fiver.'

touch out, v.i. 'To evade a duty by trickery' (F. & G.): army: 1915+. Cf. touch, v., 5.—2. (V.t. with for.) Whence, to be lucky: army: from 1916. B. & P.

touch pot – touch penny. A semi-proverbial c.p. = No credit given: from ca. 1650, ob. by 1880, † by 1935. (Gayton, 1654; Graves, 1772; Scott, 1822.) Cf. Swift's 'He touch'd the pence when others touch'd the pot', 1720. Apperson.

touch (the) bun (for luck). To touch one's sweetheart's pudenda, to bring luck on a voyage. Grose, 2nd ed., 1788, records this as 'a practice observed a among sailors going on a Cruize'—and the years must have proved it efficacious (or could it be merely an excuse ... ?), for Pepitt says it is an RN (lowerdeck) custom still in C.20, citing E. Maple, Superstitions and the Superstitious, 1966. (P.B.)

touch-trap. The penis: low coll. opp. touch-hole, q.v.

touch up. To caress intimately in order to inflame (A person to the sexual act): coll.: C.18–20.—2. To coit with (a woman): late C.18—mid-19. Grose, 1st ed.—3. Reflexively, to masturbate: C.19–20. All senses ex touch up, to stimulate.—4. To flog lightly: RN: late C.18—mid-19. ('Bill Truck', Oct. 1822.) Cf. touching-up.—5. To borrow money from (someone): Feb. 1787, Sessions; by 1820, virtually suspended by touch, v., 3.

touch with a pair tongs, not to. (Gen. I, etc., would not.) To touch on no account: coll.: from 1630s. Clarke, 1639; Fuller, 1732; 1876, Blackmore. (Apperson. Cf. ... with a barge-pole.)

touch with death. Narrowly to escape death: military coll.: from 1915. (F. & G.) I.e. to touch death.

touch wood! A precautionary c.p., uttered in order to avert bad luck or a reversal of the good fortune or success of which one has just boasted, as in 'I've been lucky, so far—touch wood!': C.20. Ex the proverbial Touch wood, it's sure to come good and the folklorish 'to touch wood', superstitiously to do so. P.B.: sometimes accompanied by a humorous tapping of one's own head.

touchables, the. The corruptible; those open to bribes: since ca. 1939. Punning on India's untouchables.

touché, (slightly) insane, is, despite gen. opinion, S.E. It abbr. touché in the head, ex S.E. touch, to affect mentally, to taint.—2. (Of vegetables, fruit) beginning to go bad; defective: greengrocers' coll.:—1887 (Baumann).

toucher. A(n instance of) close contact, a tight fit: dial. (—1828) >, by 1840, coll. Thus to a toucher, exactly. EDD.—2. Hence, as near or nigh as a toucher, almost, very nearly: 1840 (J.T. Hewlett: OED); H., 1st ed. Slightly ob. by 1930 Orig. a coaching term, ex touching without disaster (H., 5th ed.).

touching. Bribery; the obtaining of money, esp. by theft or begging: resp. C.18–19 (C. D'Anvers, 1726); late C.19–20 (Arthur Morrison, 1896). OED. Ex touch, v., 2, 3.

touching-up. A caning: Public Schools': late C.19–20. (P.G. Wodehouse, Tales of St Austin's, 1903.)—2, 3, 4. Vbl n. of touch up, q.v.

touchy. 'Descriptive of a style in which points, broken lines, or touches are employed, as distinguished from firm unbroken line work' (F. & H.): artistic s. (ca. 1820) >, ca. 1850, coll. >, ca. 1910, S.E.—2. Adv., rather: Christ's Hospital (School): from ca. 1840. E.g. touchy a lux, rather a good thing. Ex touch, a small amount of, a 'suspicion'.

tough, v.t. To support, bear, face up to (esp. a difficulty, a hardship): Can.: from ca. 1905. (John Beames, An Army without Banners, 1930.) Prob. ex US tough it, to rough it.

tough, adj. Morally callous and/or commercially unscrupulous: also n. From ca. 1910: coll. Ex two US senses: tough, criminal, vicious, and tough, a rough, esp. a street bully.—2. Unfortunate; severe: from ca. 1928. P.G. Wodehouse, 1929, "'Tough!' 'You bet it's tough. A girl can't help her appearance'" (OED sup.). Ex US tough luck.—3. In make it tough, to raise difficulties; take excessive pains: coll.: late C.19—early 20.—4. In a bit tough, rather unreasonable or too severe or too expensive: Aus. coll.: late C.19–20. B., 1942.

tough as fencing wire. Extremely hardy or fit: Aus. coll.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Other Aus. similes are tough as ironbark or as seasoned mulga: C.20. B., 1959.

tough as a jockey's tail-end – as old Nick – as shoe-leather. Anglo-Irish phrases (the first, s.; the other two, coll.) applied to a person who is a 'hard case': resp. C.20, late C.19–20, and mid-C.19–20.

tough as an old lanyard knot. Exceedingly tough (whether meat or seaman): nautical coll.: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) P.B.: cf. gen. coll. tough as old boots, applied esp. to meat.

tough as tacker. Exceedingly tough: lower classes' coll.:—1909 (Ware). Perhaps S.W. dial. tacker, something insuperable.

tough gut, or tough-gut. A tough, i.e. hardy, fellow: Can. men's:—1932 (John Beames).

tough shit! Low var. of next: adopted, ex US, prob. during WW2. See DCpp.

tough titty! Hard luck!; or, as in the unsympathetic 'Well, that's your tough tit(ty)!': low coll., also Aus. and Can.: since mid-1940s. See hard titty.

tough 'un. A 'thumping' lie; an execrable pun: low:—1887 (Baumann).—2. See tough, adj., 1.

tough yarn. 'A long story' (Egan's Grose): c.: from earlyish C.19. (J. Burrows, Life in St George's Fields, 1821.) † by 1890, by when it = 'a tall story': nautical (Bowen).

toughie, n. A tough: since ca. 1945. (Nicholas Blake, The Whisper in the Gloom, 1954.) 'officials up to and including the permanent secretary, a Whitehall toughie' (New Society, 12 Aug. 1982, p. 248). Ex tough, n., at adj., 1.—2. Something very difficult to do, e.g. an examination, or in relationships, as in '[for a woman] producing a condom and asking for its use can be a toughie' (Time Out, 1 Feb. 1980): coll.: later C.20.

toughie, adj. Behaving as a toughie, n., 1: 'part of the Anglo-American toughie response to Afghanistan' (New Society, 14 Feb. 1980).

Toughs. See Old Toughs, the.

toupee. The female pubic hair: mid-C.18–19. By ribald jest on lit. sense.—2. A merkin: mid-C.18—mid-19. Both, occ., lady's low toupee.

tour; also toure, tower, towre. To watch closely; spy on: c. of ca. 1565–1650. (Harman, 1567.) Prob. unconnected with S.E. twire (v.i. only), to peer, peep. Possibly—as Grose (1st ed., at outing) suggests—cognate with later c. tout, v.i. and t. (q.v.); more prob. with tower, to fly up, as a hawk does, in order to (have the advantage of and then) swoop down on the prey.

tour of miseries. The day's work when one is feeling down in the mouth' (H. & P.): Services' (esp. Army): since ca. 1930. Ex military j. tour (as in tour in the trenches, tour of duty).

tour of the Grand Dukes, the. A tour of the fashionable demi-monde of Paris: ca. 1870–1914.

tourist ('officer' understood, orig. expressed). 'Army and RAF. One who, by virtue of a special skill (e.g., language) is seconded for employment in a specialist trade or branch for one tour of duty, to the annoyance and possible detriment to promotion of those whose permanent job it is, before returning to, e.g., the "real" Army' (P.B., 1974): sarcastic: since late 1940s.

touristy. Full of tourists: coll.: later C.20. 'It used to be such a nice quiet place, and now it's awfully touristy, full of shops flogging cheap nasties and so on' (P.B.).

touse. A whisker worn bushy: proletarian: from ca. 1860; ob. B. & L.

tout, n. (Also toute; towte, C.15–16.) The posteriors or rump: C.14–20: S.E. until C.15, then †; revived by 'Thousand Nights' Payne as literary s.—2. A thieves' 'look-out man': c.: 1718, C. Hitching (toute, a C.18 var.); ob. except as a spy (C.20: c.). Ex tout, v., 1.—3. Hence, 'a look out house, or eminence' (Grose, 1st ed.): c. of ca. 1780–1850.—4. As a solicitor of custom for tradesmen, etc., and 5, as a racing touter, tout is mid-C.19–20: both may orig. have been s. or coll., but the former was S.E. by 1880, the later by 1910, at latest.—6. A watching or spying: c.:—1812 (Vaux); ob. by 1930. 'A strong tout, is strict observation, or eye, upon any proceedings, or persons.' Esp. in keep tout (—1812) or, occ., keep the tout (1834, Ainsworth: OED), to keep watch, esp. in an illicit activity. Ex sense 3.—7. An informer, to the police, etc.: N. Ireland: 1970s. (Hawke.) Ex sense 3.

tout, v.i. To be on the look-out, to watch very carefully: c. of mid-C.17—mid-19, and in C.19 only in literary revival. (Coles, B.E., Grose.) Ex C.15–17 S.E. tout, to peep or peer. Cf. tour, q.v.—2. V.t., to watch, spy on: mid-C.17–20: c. until C.19, then low s. until mid-C.19, then s. with esp. ref. to a racing tout's activities. Coles, B.E., Vaux.—3. The racing sense (from ca. 1812) may orig. have been s., but is gen. considered as S.E.; the same applies to tout, v.i., to seek busily for trade (from ca. 1730). OED.

tout droit. See bit of.—toute. See tout, n.

touter. A thieves' look-out man: c. or low s.: 1844 (Dickens: OED); ob. A rare var. of tout, n., 2, q.v.

touting (or tooting)-ken. A tavern, a beer-shop; a tavern-bar: c.:—1676; † by 1850. (Coles, B.E., Grose.) Ex toot, tout, to drink copiously. OED.

touzery or towzery gang, the. Mock-auction swindlers: London low: ca. 1870–1930. (H., 5th ed.) 'They hire sale-rooms, usually in the suburbs, and advertise their ventures as... "Important Sales of Bankrupts' Stock", etc.' (F. & H.). Perhaps ex touse(-ze), horse-play, a 'row' or touse(-ze), to abuse or maltreat.

tow, n. (At hare and hounds) a long run-in: Shrewsbury School:—1881 (Pascoe). Ex slow motion of towing a ship.—2. Money: low: from ca. 1880; ob. Perhaps because, like tow, it 'burns' so quickly.

tow, v. See tow out.

tow-line. See line, n., 10.

tow on (one's) distaff, have. To have trouble in store, ex the sense of having work awaiting one, in hand: ca. 1400–1800. Coll. >, by 1600, S.E.

tow out. To decoy; to distract the attention of (a person) and thus assist a confederate in robbery: c. of ca. 1810–50. Vaux.

tow-path. 'The runway or stretch of ground over which a glider is towed off by an engined aircraft or tug' (Jackson): RAF: 1941+. Cf. tug.

Tow-Pows, the. 'Grenadiers' (H., 3rd ed.) P.B.: perhaps, as E.P. suggests, 'ultimately ex the busbies [sic] they wear'; more prob., a misprint for Tow-Row, q.v.

tow-rag. The female breast: West Yorkshire s., not dial.:—1905 (EDD).—2. See alt. spelling, toe-rag.

Tow-Row, n. A grenadier: army: ca. 1780–1860. (Grose, 1st ed.) Prob. ex adj. not necessarily a member of the Grenadier Guards, who were given this title only in 1815 (P.B.).—2. A noise: dial. > (low) coll.: from ca. 1870. Reduplicated row, a disturbance. Cf.:

tow-row, adj. Drunk (? and disorderly): C.18. (Steele, 1709.) On row, disturbance.

tow-row! As exclam. it meant, among London crossing-sweepers of ca. 1840–80. 'Be careful, a policeman is coming!' (Augustus Mayhew, Paved With Gold, 1858).

tow-street. To be in Tow Street is to be 'decoyed or persuaded' (P. Egan, London, 1821): c.: † by 1890.

towards you. See I looks towards you!

towel (rare); oaken towel. (Rsp. rub one down with an oaken towel, to cudgel or beat him.) A stick or cudgel: resp. 1756 (Toldervy) and 1739. Ob. Ex towel, v.—2. In lead (rarely leaden) towel, a bullet: 1812, J. & H. Smith, 'Make Nunksy surrender his dibs/Rub his pate with a pair of lead towels'; ob. by 1900, virtually † by 1930.—3. See sky the towel; soap and towel.

towel, v. To cudgel; to thrash: J. Dunton, 1705 (OED). For semantics, note the gen. ridiculed dry-rub etym. of drub.

towel up. To beat or defeat, fig. rather than lit. as in prec.: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942; A. Buzo, Rooted, prod. 1969, pub. 1973.

towelling. A drubbing or thrashing: 1851, Mayhew, 'I got a towelling, but it did not do me much good.' Ex towel, v.; cf. also the n.

tower, n. Clipped money: c.: C.18—early 19. (A New Canting Dict., 1725; Grose, 1st ed.) Ex, and gen. in, they have been round the Tower with it, 'that Piece of Money has been Clipt' (B.E.): a late C.17—early 19 c.p. of the underworld. App. Tower Hill and, in fact, the whole neighbourhood of the Tower of London were rough, for cf. Tower-Hill play.

tower, towre, v. See tour.

Tower Bridge, the. The huge pit-head mine structure at Loos': late 1915–18. (F. & G.) Ex a fancied resemblance to the Tower Bridge in London.

Tower Hill, preach on. To be hanged: C.16. (Skelton in Magnificence.) Tower Hill was long the place of execution in London. Cf. Tyburn phrases.

Tower-Hill play. 'A slap on the Face and a kick on the Breech' (B.E.): c.: late C.17–18. (Grose, 1st ed.) Cf. tower, n., q.v., and:

Tower-Hill vinegar. The headsman's block: C.16–17. Ex Tower Hill, preach on.

Tower-rook. A guide to the Tower of London: early C.18.? Ex the famous ravens. See OCCUPATIONAL NAMES, in Appendix.

towering, adj. A superlative, as in 'Oh, there's no towering hurry—tomorrow will do': early 1980s. Perhaps here an echo of 'tearing', and influenced by the film title The Towering Inferno, 1974. (P.B.)

town. As in go to, or leave, town (or T-), London: coll.: since C.18.—2. A halfpenny:—1909 (Ware). E.P. suggests rhyming s., on brown, but this seems unlikely, since r.s. seldom, if ever, uses monosyllabic rhyme (P.B.).—3. See on the town; out of town; paint the town red.

town-bike. A loose woman: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (Dal Stevens, Jimmy Brockett, 1951; D'Arcy Niland, The Shiralee, 1955.) So often and generally ridden. P.B.: the term is well known also in Britain; cf. synon. camp bike, garrison bike.

town-bull, a wench, is rather S.E. than coll. or s., but perhaps as lawless as a town-bull (a notable wench: late C.17—early 19) and roar like a town-bull, to bellow (late C.18—mid-19) are coll. (B.E.; Grose.) Cf. Ray, 1678; where not restricted to either women or chastity, then the town-bull is a bachelor, i.e. 'as soon as such an one', Apperson: a c.p. † by 1850.—2. A harlot's bully: low:—1923 (Manchon).

town-lout. A scholar living at home in the town; Rugby School: from ca. 1860; ob. (H., 3rd ed.) Cf. town(ey), 1.

town shift. A sharper: a scoundrel living by his wits.: Londoners' c.: ca. 1660–1730. Because he so often changed his lodgings, says Richard Head, Proteus Redivivus, 1675. See also ROGUES, in Appendix.

town-stallion. See DUPES, in Appendix, and cf. town-bull.

town tabby. 'A dowager of quality' (Sinks): ca. 1830–80. town-trap. See CONSTABLES, in Appendix. townier. A s. var. of S.E. townee: ca. 1885–1915. F. & H. townie, town(e)y. Alien to the school: Christ's Hospital (School): from ca. 1860. Contrast housey, peculiar to the Hospital.—2. A fellow-townsmen (or woman): in US, 1834; in England, 1865 (OED). N.W. Bancroft, in From Recruit to Staff Sergeant, 1885, may have been remembering the usage of his youth when he wrote, of 21 Dec. 1845, 'The time passed pleasantly enough for we were engaged in looking up ... "townies" (fellow townsmen), in the force that had joined us': Indian Army. The term has continued in use in the Services ever since; see P-G-R for RN use. (P.B.) Cf. Fr. mon pays(e).—3. A town-bred person, esp. a Londoner: coll.: 1828 (Peter Cunningham: OED).—4. 'Anyone not connected with the circus' (Victoria, BC, Islander, 19 Dec. 1971): Can. circus s.: adopted, 1930s, ex US. (Leechman.) townies. Clothes more suitable to town wear than are the school's blue garments: Christ's Hospital (School): from ca.
 1860. Cf. prec. 1.
Towns. A vocative, cf. wings; not necessarily a fellowtownsman (see townie, 2): RN: later C.20. Heart, 1962. towns and cities. Female breasts: rhyming s., on titties: earlier C.20. Cf. synon. thousand pities, and Bristols which superseded both.
twore. See four and tower.
towzery gang. See touzery gang.
tox. To intoxicate, gen. in ppl adj., toxod, toxing: 1630s.
 Heywood. OED. toxy. Intoxicated: from ca. 1905; very ob. by 1930. (A.H.
 Dawson, Dict. of Slang, 1913.) Ex Scottish.
toy. A watch: c.—1877 (Horsley, Jottings from Jail); ob. by 1935. Hence, toy-getter, -getting, a watch-snatcher (Arthur Morrison, 1896: OED), watch-stealing; toy and tackle, a watch and chain (see tackle, n.); a red toy is a gold watch (see red, c. adj.), while a white toy is a silver one.—2. A trainer aircraft: RAF: since ca. 1930. (Jackson.) For the 'new boys' to play with.
toy-box. The engine-room: RN (not very gen.): C.20. Bowen. toy-time. Evening preparation: Winchester: from ca. 1860. Ex: toys. A bureau, esp. in the form of desk and bookcase combined: Winchester: from ca. 1860. Ironically ex toy, a trinket or knick-knack.—2. 'The mechanical parts of a 'plane so beloved by the armourers and flight mechanics who care for the machine' (H. & P.): RAF: since ca. 1920.
 —3. Equipment, vehicles, etc.; to a Gunner his guns: army:
 since ca. 1925.
tra-la-la! Good-bye!: c.p.—slightly contemptuous and not too polite—of ca. 1880–90. Ware, 'The phrase took its rise with a comic singer named Henri Clarke, whose speciality was imitating Parisians.' This being so, Clarke almost certainly knew the Fr. s. sense of tra-la-la (the posterior): cf., therefore, kiss my arse.—2. (Gen. pl.) One of 'the wealthiest and most extravagant class of dissipated men': mostly proletarian: ca. 1889–1900. B. & L. trac. Cockney var. of track, 1. It would seem to be also a c. term for threepence, esp. a threepenny piece: late C.19—early 20. Pugh.
traces. See kick over the traces. trachy. Tracheotomy: medical students':—1933 (Slang, p.
 190). track, n. (Also trag.) A quart: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.)
 Thus: traug > traq > trag or trak > track.—2. 'Any outback road' (B., 1942): since ca. 1870: Aus. coll. >, by 1920, S.E.
 —3. 'A warder who will carry contraband messages or goods out of or into jail for a prisoner' (B., 1959): Aus. c.: since ca.
 1930. A way in or out.—4. In (go) on the track, (to go) tramping the back country in search of work: Aus. coll.: since late C.19.
 Wilkes.—5. In go down the track, to go down south on leave:
 Aus. servicemen's: 1940–5. (B., 1943.) From Darwin.—6. In up the track and quickie up the t., q.v. at HAULIERS, in Appendix.—7. See inside track.

track mitts. Leather mittens: (racing) cyclists': since ca. 1930. track record. Someone's personal record, assessed on the relevant facts: 'primarily business usage' (Sir Edward Play-fair, 1977): adopted, ca. 1970, ex US. P.B.: it can apply also to a firm: e.g., an advertisement in The Times, 29 Sep. 1978, 'Hutchison Whampoa has a proven track record of successful business dealings in the People's Republic of China...'. By 1980, commercial, hence political, j. track square. See track with.
track up the dancers. To go, esp. if quickly, upstairs:
 c.:—1671 (Head); † by 1850. (B.E.; Grose.) Ex † S.E. track, to go.
track with. 'To associate with, to cohabit with' (Wilkes): Aus., rather derogatory; 'To pursue an amorous enterprise with honourable intentions' (W.H. Downing, Digger Dialects, 1919) is track square with (a girl), hence to deal fairly with a person: since early C.20. C.J. Dennis, 1915. tracks. Needle marks: drugs world: ca. 1955–65: adopted, yet never very common in UK, ex US. Paul Janssen cites Dr Eugene E. Landy, The Underground Dictionary, 1971. tractor. 'A 'plane with frontal propeller' (B. & P.): airmen's coll. soon. > j.: from 1915 (? earlier); ob. by 1920, † by 1930.
 Opp. pusher.—2. A car: pe:j.: since ca. 1950. (New Statesman, 5 Feb. 1965.) Cf. synon. use of lorry. trad, n. Traditional or 'hot' jazz music: mostly teenagers': since ca. 1959, but not common until 1961. (Sunday Telegraph, 3 Dec. 1961.) See also JAZZ, in Appendix. trad, adj. Traditional; may be applied to almost anything:
 coll.: since ca. 1960. Ex prec. Cf.: trad rags. Traditional dress of a people' (Granville, letter, 1962). A pun on glad rags, q.v. trade, n. An act of trading; an exchange; in politics, a private arrangement: US s. (1829: Thornton) anglicised ca. 1890 as coll. >, by 1920, S.E.—2. As the trade, prostitution: late C.18–19. See trader.—3. Booksellers' and publishers': book-world coll.: from ca. 1815. Lockhart, Life of Scott, 1837, 'Gentlemen of the trade, emphatically so called.'—4. As the trade, the Submarine Service: RN coll.: WW1 (W.G. Carr, Brasshats, 1939: Moe), and WW2 (P-G-R).—5. In homosexual circles, it is the normal word for sexual commerce, as in 'Did you have any trade last night?': C.20. See also rough trade. trade, v. To exchange, 'swap': US coll., anglicised ca. 1885.
 Baumann.
trade-in. A car 'traded in' as part of the purchase money for a new car. A motor-trade coll., esp. in Aus.: since ca. 1930.
 (Gavin Casey, The Wits Are Out, 1947.) P.B.: by mid-C.20,
 gen. motor-trade j.; also as adj., e.g. 'Did you get a good trade-in price on your old one?' trade-mark. A scratch on the face; esp. in draw, leave, or put one's trade-mark on one or one's face or down one's face, to claw the face. Chiefly of women: (low) coll.: from early 1870s.
 Anon. music-hall song, 'Father, Take A Run!', ca. 1875. trader. A harlot: ca. 1680–1820. Radcliffe, 1682, she-trader, a var. Also trading dame, as in Cotton, 1678. Cf. the trade at trade, n., 2.
Trades Union, the. The 1st Dragoon Guards: military: ca.
 1830–1914. At one time many of the officers were—horrible dictu!—sons of tradesmen (cf. the snobbery and arrogance of temporary gentlemen in WW1). F. & G., however, derive it 'from the K.D.G.'s being constantly employed in suppressing Trade Union disturbances in Lancashire and the Midlands between 1825–34'. tradesman. A 'modish' London chimney-sweep: chimney-sweepers': late C.18–19.—2. See regular tradesman.
Tradesmen's Entrance, the. That entrance and narrow passage to the Grand Fleet anchorage at Scapa Flow which was used by destroyers and smaller craft: RN: WW2. (Granville.) trading dame. See trader. trading justices. Such low fellows as, 'smuggled into the commission of the peace', live 'by fomenting disputes, granting warrants and otherwise retailing justice' (Grose, 3rd ed.): coll.: ca. 1785–1840.

trady. Belonging to, characteristic of, trade: coll.: 1899 (OED).

traffic. A whore: c. of late C.16–early 17. Greene, 1591 (traffique). Ex the large amount of business she plies.—2. Wireless messages sent or received: wireless operators' (esp. at sea) coll.: from ca. 1926. (Bowen.) P.B.: soon, and anyway by WW2, > j. traffic cop. A policeman controlling the traffic: adopted ex US, ca. 1935 in Can., ca. 1945 elsewhere; by 1945 in Can. by 1955 elsewhere, virtually coll.

traffique. See traffic, 1.

Traffy. The Trafalgar (ship): RN:—1909 (Ware).

trag. A teralgon (a fish): Aus. fishermen's coll.: since ca. 1920. (B.P.)—2. See track, n., 1.

tragedy Jack. A heavy tragedian: pej. theatrical: from ca. 1875; ob. by 1930.

tragic. No good; opp. of magic, q.v.: teenagers': ca. 1979. E.g., in the East Midlands, if Nottingham Forest Football team win, the chant is 'Nottingham Forest are magic'; if they lose, '... are tragic' (Rev. David Paterson.)

trail, n. A befooling; rare coll.: 1847 (C. Brontë: see next entry); ob. by 1930.

trail, v. To quiz or befool: coll.: from ca. 1845. C. Brontë, 1847. 'She was (what is vernacularly termed) trailing Mrs Dent; that is, playing on the ignorance; her trail might be clever, but... decidedly not good-natured'; Coulson Kernahan, 1900. 'To see the Ishmaelites "trail" a sufferer from "swelled head" is to undergo inoculation against that fell malady.' Ex trail, to draw (a person) out or on.

trail boss. A stationmaster: railwaymen's: since ca. 1935. (Railway, 2nd.) Joc., ex 'Western' films.

trailer. One who rides a horse away and sells him afar off: c.: late C.16–early 17. Greene, 1592.—2. A prowling cab-driver: London coll.: ca. 1870–1905. EDD.

traily. Slowly; weak, languid: dial. (—1851) >, by 1860, coll. OED.

train, n. In going like a train, 'Moving very fast; in a great hurry' (H. Griffiths, 1970): NZ: C.20. Cf. train-up.

train, v. To consort: coll.: ca. 1880–1930. Cf. tag about (with) and the C.17 S.E. train, to walk in a notable's retinue.—2. (Also train it.) To travel by train: coll.:—1887 (Baumann: train it); Pall Mall Gazette, 2 Apr. 1888 (OED).

train(-)detainer. A train-dispatcher: Can. railroadmen's joc.:—1931.

train(-)driver. 'The leader of a large formation (of aircraft)' (H. & P.): RAF since ca. 1938.

train lines. 'East and west course of steamships in the English Channel' (Granville): nautical: C.20.

train(-)smash. 'Fried tomatoes' (Granville; Weekly Telegraph, 13 Sep. 1941); 'tinned tomatoes' (Peppitt, 1976; Malin, 1979): RN lowerdeck. Ex the colour of flowing gore, the aspect of mangled limbs. Thus do brave men deride their own secret dreads.

train-up, v.i. To hurry: proletarian: mid-C.19–20. B. & L.

trains!, go and play!; also... with yourself! Also run away and play trains! A derivative c.p. of dismissal: C.20. Cf. run away and play marbles!, q.v.

traipse. See trapes.

traitors at table, there are. A c.p. applied to a loaf of bread turned the wrong side upwards: mid-C.17–19. Ray, 1678, 'Are there traitors at the table that the loaf is turned wrong side upwards?'

traitors' gate. 'The portcullis on H.M. Customs officers' caps: MN: 1940s' (Peppitt).

tram, n. A tramway car: coll. (1879) >, ca. 1905, S.E. (OED).—2. See fish-horn.

tram, v. To travel by mining-district tramroad: coll.: 1826 (EDD).—2. Hence, by tram-car: likewise coll.: from ca. 1880—see tram, n. Also tram it (1904, E. Nesbit: OED). Cf. train, v., 2.

tram-driver. A Coastal Command pilot on patrols: RAF: 1940–5. Contrast train-driver.

tram-fare. Twopence: London streets': 1882—ca. 95. Ware.

tram-handle. 'Applied to the handle which adjusted the variable gear on Zenith motorcycles... also used for any similarly shaped control handle needing movement in the horizontal plane' (Mike Partridge, 1980): motorcyclists': early C.20. Ex resemblance to a tram-driver's control-handle.

tram-lined. (Of trousers) having a double crease: joc. coll.: since ca. 1925.

tram-lines. The 4½-ft-wide area on each side of a (doubles) lawn-tennis court: sporting: from ca. 1929. Esp. down the tram-lines, i.e. more or less straight along this strip of the court.—2. Convoy or patrol routes: RN: WW2. (Granville.) Cf. RAF milk round for a regular route.—3. Parallel brush-marks: builders' and house-painters': since ca. 1910. (A master builder, 5 Dec. 1953.)

tram-walloper. One who pickpockets on tramcars: c.: from ca. 1910. Yorkshire Post, latish May, 1937.

trammy or -ie. A tram conductor or driver: Aus. coll.: C.20. B., 1943; Margaret Trist, 1946.

tramp, n. A journey on foot; a long, tiring, or arduous walk or march; a 'hike': coll.: 1786 (Burns); 1898, J. Hutchinson, 'Exhausted by a long tramp in hot weather'. (OED.) Ex tramp, to walk, to walk steadily.—2. A girl or woman willing to copulate with almost any man: adopted, ca. 1955, ex US.—3. A trampolinist: since late 1940s. Weekend, 8 Nov. 1969.—4. A master: Imperial Service College: earlier C.20.

tramp, v. To go on a walking excursion, a 'hike': coll.: mid-C.19–20. Also tramp it.—2. To proceed as a tramp: coll.:—1891 (The Century Dict.).—3. To drive out of or into some stated condition by tramping, vigorous walking: coll.: 1853, Kane, 'Tramping the cold out of my joints' (OED).—4. To make a voyage by tramp steamer: coll.: 1899 (OED).—5. Hence, v.t., to run (such a steamer): coll.: 1899, likewise in Cutcliffe Hyne (ibid.).—6. To run over (e.g. an animal); to smash (e.g. a gate): S. African coll. (—1913) >, by 1930, 'standard'. Influenced by 'the Cape Dutch trap, to ride or drive over', Pettman.—7. To dismiss someone from employment: Aus. (Wilkes: 'rare'). See tramped.

tramp-major. A tramp that, in exchange for his keep at a casual ward, helps the porter: tramps' c.: late C.19–20. (From ca. 1930, he has been deprecated by the authorities.)

tramped, adj. (in predicate only). Dismissed from employment: Aus. Labour: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) I.e. rendered a tramp.

tramping the ties. Trespassing on the railways: Can.: late C.19–20. (OED Sup.). The ties are the sleepers of a railway track.

trampler. A lawyer or attorney: c. of ca. 1605–50. (Middleton.) Perhaps because he tramples on others; prob. ex † trample, to act as an intermediary.

trams. Legs: underworld (and 'fringe') rhyming s.: C.20. On gams, pl of gam, 2. Franklyn 2nd.

tranklements or trolleybobs. Entrails; intestines: proletarian: mid-C.19–20. (B. & L.) See also tripes and ...

tranko. 'The elongated barrel which a performer manages with his feet, and keeps up in the air while lying on his back': circusmen's s. verging on j.: mid-C.19–20. (Leechman.) 'Perhaps ex Sp. tranco, a long stride, whence a tranco, hurriedly... suggestive of the footwork involved. The circus is an international, hence polyglot, institution' (R.S., 1974).

trannie, -y. A transistor radio set: since ca. 1965.—2. A male transvestite: raffish: later C.20.

trans. A translation: secondary schools': late C.19–20. Michael Poole, Redways, 1935.—2. As the Trans, the train running between Adelaide and Perth, trans or across the Nullarbor Plain: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1925. B., 1953.

transfer. To steal: Society: ca. 1895–1915. (Ware.) On convey. Cf.:

translate the truth. To lie evasively: Society c.p. : 1899. (Ware.) Ex a phrase used, by a Parisian newspaper, of Delcassé, the French cabinet-minister, in connexion with the Muscat incident.

translated. Intoxicated; very drunk: Society: 1880s. Ware derives it ex Shakespeare's 'Bless thee, Bottom, thou art translated.'

translators. A pair of re-made boots and shoes: (low) London: mid-C.19–20; ob. (Mayhew, 1851.) Ex translator, a cobbler, esp. of old shoes.

transmogrify; occ. transmografy, -aphy, -riphy; -migrafy; -mugrify. To change, alter; esp. to metamorphose utterly or strangely: coll., humorous >, ca. 1700, rather low: resp., —1700, but implied in 1661; 1656, 1688, 1671;—1725; 1786. Always v.t. and orig. of persons only. S. Holland, 1656; B.E. (-mogrify); A New Canting Dict., 1725 (-mogrify, -migrafy); Burns (-mugrify); Barham; Mary Howitt, ca. 1888. In C.20, ob. The Dict. of 1725 asserts that transmigrafy is the correct form: if so, transmigrate prob. supplies, via illiterate corruption, the etymology.—2. The derivatives transmogrification, transmogrifier, are much less frequent: resp., K.W., 1661, 'To the botchers for transmogrification', and 1676. OED (chiefly); F. & H.

transnear. To come up with (a person): c.: late C.17—early 19. (B.E., where it is misprinted tansnear; Grose, 1st ed.) Perhaps on C.17 S.E. transpear, the word prob.=to cross (e.g. a street) in order to approach.

transpire. To happen: catachrestic: US (—1804), anglicised ca. 1810; recorded by Webster, 1828. Rife in journalism. Properly, transpire=to 'leak out'. See esp. OED, W., and Fowler.—2. (Of time) to elapse: likewise catachrestic, but rare: ca. 1820–40. OED.

transport tale. A false rumour; a 'tall' story: infantrymen's pej. coll.: from 1915. (F. & G.) Cf. latrine rumour.

trap, n. Tricky; a deceitful trick; fraud. Esp. in understand trap, to be wide-awake or, esp., alert to one's own interest. (Anon., 1679, Counterfeits, III, i, 'You're deceiv'd in old Gomez, he understands trap'; 1821, Scott: Apperson); smell trap, to suspect danger, as of a thief 'spotting' a detective (J. Greenwood, 1869); and be up to trap (in dial. before 1828—see Apperson; but recorded as coll. in 1819 by OED; H., 1860). Low s.; very ob. except in the third phrase. Cf. the trap is down!, the trick, or attempt to 'do', e.g., me, has failed; it's no go!: a c.p. of ca. 1870–1910. A blend of this sense with an allusion to the fallen door of a trap for birds, etc. Ex lit. S.E. influenced by trapan, trepan, a trick or stratagem.—2. A sheriff's officer, policeman (in Aus., ca. 1860–90, a mounted one), detective: c. or low s.: 1703 (Ned Ward); 1838, Dickens; 1895, Marriott-Watson. Slightly ob., except in S. Africa, where it has, since the early 1880s, been esp. used both of an exciseman and of an IDB detective (Pettman). Ex trap, to catch.—3. A smallish, sprung carriage; in Brit., esp. a gig, but in Aus. and NZ a four-wheeled carriage: from ca. 1805: coll. >, by 1900, S.E. Perhaps ex rattle trap.—4. The mouth: low: from ca. 1780 as potato-trap, q.v., the simple form being of mid-C.19–20. (OED Sup.) P.B.: in later C.20 usu. only in shut your trap!, stop talking!—5. A mould used in coining counterfeit: c.:—1929 (OED Sup.).—6. (Prob. ex sense 1.) A go-between employed by a pickpocket and a whore working together: c.: C.18. C. Hitching, in The Regulator, 1718, describes the procedure.—7. A guard-room: army: late C.19—early 20. See GUARD-ROOM, in Appendix.—8. See traps.

trap, v.i. To obtain a fare: taxicabmen's: from ca. 1925. "Did you trap off the Museum?" "Yes, I puts on there and I traps in ten minutes." "This put on, v.i., is also cabmen's (same date): i.e. I put my car on the rank at ('the Museum' being the rank in front of the British Museum). Perhaps cf. net a load of rabbits, q.v.—2. (Of both sexes, and by them.) To meet a desirable person, as in, e.g., with ref. to previous night's dance, 'Did you trap last night?': WRNS: later C.20. (Miss Margaret Wood, 1978.)

trap for young players (, it's a). 'A hazard for the unwary' (Wilkes, who gives var. amateur for young); applied, e.g., to marriage, mortgage, etc.: mostly Aus.: since ca. 1955. (B.P.) trap-stick. The penis: ca. 1670–1900. (Cotton; 'Burlesque' Bridges.) Ex the lit. sense.—2. In pl, the legs; esp. thin legs:

early C.18—mid-19. (Addison's Spectator, no. 599, pub. 1714.) Grose, 1st ed., 'From the sticks with which boys play at trap ball'.

trapan, trepan, in these senses is rare and not earlier than ca. 1680. 'He that draws in or wheedles a Cull, and Bites'—swindles—'him' (B.E.): c. of ca. 1640–1830. Prob. ex (to) trap, with a c. disguise-suffix (cf. -MANS, in Appendix).—2. Hence, a deceitful or fraudulent trick or stratagem: (orig. low) s.: ca. 1660–1830.

trapan, trepan, v. To ensnare, beguile, inveigle, swindle: c. or low s. (—1656) >, by 1750, (low) s.; ob. (Blount, B.E., Grose.) Ex trapan, n., 1.

trapes; occ. trapse; often traipse. A slovenly or slatternly female: coll. and (in late C.19–20, nothing but) dial.: ca. 1673, Cotton, 'I had not car'd/If Pallas here had been prefer'd;/ But to bestow it on that Trapes,/It mads me'; the other two forms, C.19–20, though trapse is almost f. Ex trapes, v., 1, q.v.—2. (Same origin.) A going or wandering in listless or slovenly fashion; a wearisome or disagreeable tramp: coll. and dial.: 1862, Mrs Henry Wood, 'It's such a toil and a trapes up them two pair of stairs.'

trapes; traipse. (In C.18–20, occ. trapse. Dial. has many variants, varying from traaps to trapus and traipass.) To walk untidily, listlessly, aimlessly; gad about: coll.: 1593, Bilson implies it in 'This trapesing to and fro' (OED); 1710–11, 2 Mar., Swift, 'I was traipsing to-day with your Mr Sterne' (Ibid.). Perhaps cognate with † trape (to walk idly to and fro), which prob. derives ex medieval Dutch trappen, to tread (OED).—2. Hence, to trail, or hang, along or down: coll.: from ca. 1770; from late C.19, only in dial.—3. (Ex sense 1.) V.t., to tramp over, tread or tramp (e.g. the fields): 1885 (Hall Caine: OED).

trapesing, traipsing. N.: see trapes, v., 1.—2. Adj., 1760, Foote, trappings: idem.

traphish. Slovenly; slatternly: coll.: C.18. Rowe, 1705 (OED). Ex trapes, n., 1, q.v.

trapper. A horse used in a 'trap' (q.v., sense 3): coll.: from early 1880s. 'Cf. vanner, busser, cabber, etc., on the model of "hunter"' (F. & H.).

trappers, the. 'The Examining teams, described less respectfully by the units as "The Trappers"', made a fairly detailed assessment of the Army Air Corps's flying and technical efficiency' (Brig. P. Mead, Soldiers in the Air, 1967): AAC: 1960s.

trappiness. The n. of trappy, q.v.: coll.: 1885 (The Field, 26 Dec.).

trapping. Blackmail: c.: late C.17—mid-18. (Anon., A Country Gentleman's Vade Mecum.) A special development from trap, to ensnare. Cf. trapan, n., 2.

trappy. Treacherous; tricky difficult; i.e. lit. or fig. containing a trap or traps: coll.: 1882, Daily Telegraph, 13 Nov., 'The fences might have been increased in size, however, without being made trappy'; in cricket, of the ball: 1887 (Lewis).

traps. Personal effects; belongings; baggage: coll.: 1813 (OED). Abbr. trappings.—2. Hence, in Aus., a 'swag' (q.v.): from late 1850s. H., 2nd ed.—3. (Also ex 1.) In cleaning-traps, one's cleaning-materials (polish, buttonstick, brushes, etc.): Army, esp. Artillery: C.20.—4. Short for mess-traps, q.v. In W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, 2nd series, 1834, I, 56. (Moe.)

trapse. See trapes.

trash, n. (Contemptuously: cf. dross, filthy lucre.) Money: ca. 1590–1830. (Greene, ca. 1591; 1809, Malkin.) As the OED remarks, Shakespeare's 'Who steals my purse, steals trash' was prob. an operative factor.

trash, v. To frighten: market-traders': C.20. (M.T.) Directly ex Romany.

trashier. A thriller (film, novel, etc.): ex prec. Ibid.

trashing. 'The young call looting [from shops] "trashing", and the word suggests what is happening. The status of goods changes from something with a price to trash' (New Society, 9 July 1981): adopted ex US (W. & F., 1975 Sup., defined but undated).

trat. A pretty girl; an attractive harlot: proletarian: ca. 1880–1905. (B. & L.) Either a perversion or an anagram of tart.

trav. Travelling money: Felsted School: late C.19–20.

travel. To admit of, to bear, transportation: coll.: Dec. 1852, Beck's Florist, 'Not... good plants for exhibition, as they travel badly' (OED). By 1910 at latest, S.E.—2. To go, move, fast: coll.: 1884, of a dog, 'How he travels' (EDD); 1904, F. & H., 'The motor travelled along, and no mistake.'—3. To take stage properties and important accessories on tour: theatrical coll.: late C.19–20. 'Theatrical people, on the road, may or may not "travel" all their "props" and accessories' (Leachman).

travel in the market. Applied to the way or extent in or to which a horse is betted on or against: turf: ca. 1870–1910. B. & L.

travel on (one's) basket. To travel free in the guard's van: theatrical, esp. among provincial repertory companies: ca. 1870–1930. The basket contained one's personal belongings. (Michael Warwick, The Stage, 3 Oct. 1968.) Usu. as vbl n., travelling...; cf.:-

travel on (one's) props. To leave luggage with the railway company as security against the travelling facilities granted, money lacking for the fares and freight, by the company: theatrical: late C.19–20. Cf. prec., and travel, 3.

travel on the (or one's) thumb. To hitch-hike: s.: ca. 1925–40. E.P. noted that it was a 'more English phrase [than hitch-hike, which has, however, predominated]'. Mostly as vbl n., travelling... (P.B.) travel out of the record. To wander from the point: coll.: from mid-1850s; ob. (Dickens, Little Dorrit.) Cf. off the map.

travel the road. To take to highway robbery: euph. coll.: C.18–mid-19. (Farquhar, in The Beau's Stratagem, 1707.) Cf. sense 1 of:

traveller. A highwayman: coll.: C.18–mid-19. Cf. prec.—2. A tramp: from ca. 1760: coll. till late C.19, then dial.; ca. 1840–80, common among tramps (H., 1st ed.), and often = an itinerant hawk. Goldsmith (OED); Mayhew.—3. Esp. in Aus.: 1869, 'Peripatetic Philosopher' Clarke: coll. >, by 1900, S.E.; ob.—4. Also traveller at His or Her Majesty's Expense. A convict sent abroad: ca. 1830–1910. H., 2nd ed., the longer form.—5. 'A thief who changes his quarry from town to town' (F. & H.): c.: from ca. 1830; ob. (Brandon.) Cf. senses 1, 2.—6. A gipsy: low: ca. 1865, in 'No. 747'. By later C.20, S.E.—7. A sermon delivered, by the one preacher, on different occasions and in various places: coll.: orig. (ca. 1890) and mainly ecclesiastical, esp. among theological students. OED.—8. A walking ganger, a man in charge of a section of the job on which are working gangs of navvies under the charge of ordinary gangers, or gangs of bricklayers, etc.: Public Works coll.:—1935.—9. A loafer: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Ex 2, 3.—10. For tip the traveller, occ. put the... (Manchon), see tip the...

traveller's tale or talent. Exaggeration; romancing: ca. 1820–50. Ex prec., 10.

travelling by rail. So tipsy that one has to hang onto things. Jack Slater heard it in Sydney, 1960s; but it dates from ca. 1930. P.B.: e.g., a comic postcard signed 'Comicus', reproduced in Sauce, a miscellany ed. by Ronnie Barker, 1978, shows a drunk clutching the street railings. The caption is 'I'm coming home by rail.'

travelling circus. A group of machine-gunners moving from point to point; a staff tour of inspection of the trenches: army: 1915–18. (F. & G.) Cf. circus, q.v.

travel(l)ing grunt; travelling man. A road foreman of engines; a travelling engineer or a travelling fireman: Can. (and US) railroadmen's:—1931.

travelling piquet. a coll. name, ca. 1785–1840, for 'a mode of amusing themselves, practised by two persons riding in a carriage, each reckoning towards his game'—app. 100 points—the persons or animals that pass by on the side next them, according to the following estimation', which ranges from 'a man or woman walking; 1' to 'a parson riding a grey horse, with blue furniture; game.' Grose, 3rd ed.

travelling scholarship. Rustication: joc. coll., Oxford and Cambridge University: from early 1790s to mid-C.19. Gentleman's Magazine, 1794, p. 1085, 'Soho, Jack! almost presented with a travelling scholarship? very high being sent to grass, hey?' It has the var. t. fellowship, belonging to approximately the same period. On 1 May 1802 (p. 136), The Port Folio quotes from The Rusticated Cantab, an unidentified British source. (Moe.)

travelling the bees. Migratory bee-keeping; hence, travel the bees, to be a migratory bee-keeper; Aus. coll.: since ca. 1945. Kylie Tennant's novel, The Honey Flow, 1956, forms the 'locus classicus' of the subject.

Travelling Tinkers, the. The 30th Regiment of Foot, from 1881 The East Lancashire Regt: army nickname:—1909 (Ware).

traverse. See Tom Cox's traverse.

traverse the cart. To delay departure; be loath to depart: pedantic: ca. 1845–70. Thackeray.—2. See walk the cart. traviata. See come the traviata.

tray, troy. Three, whether as number or set: c. >, ca. 1910, low s.: from mid-1890s. Ex tray, troy, the 3 at dice or cards.—2. Hence, a shortening of tray-bit, q.v., a threepenny piece: low: 1907 (OED), but prob. several years earlier. Frank Norman, Encounter, 1959, notes its (rare) use for £3. Cf.:—3. In tray soddy mits threepence halfpenny: Parlyare and low London: late C.19–20. Here, soddy=It. Soldi (see saltee) and mits=It. mezzo, a half (see madza).—4. In pl (trays), infantrymen: army: WW1. (F. & G.) Ex their usefulness for carrying things. Cf. something to hang things on and Christmas tree.—5. See tree-moon.

tray-bit. See prec., 2, a threepenny piece.—2. Hence, a term of contempt for an insignificant person: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.—3. (Usu. in pl.) A female breast: Aus. c.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1963.) Rhyming on tit.—4. (Always in pl.) 'The shits'=diarrhoea: Aus. rhyming s.: C.20. Wilkes.

tray bon for the troops. (Very) good; of a girl, attractive: military: 1915. (B. & P.) Ex Fr. très bon; see also troops.

tray beans. See trez beans.

tray jake. See jake, adj.

tray of moons. See tree-moon.

trays. See tray, 4.

tree-moon. Occ. var. of tree-moon.

treacle, n. Thick, inferior port: from ca. 1780. Ex thick sediment.—2. Love-making, as in treacle moon, a honeymoon: coll.: 1815 (Byron); ob. Ex sweetness.—3. As the treacle, a hanger-on; one who is neither a constant nor an accepted member of a gang: Teddy boys': since ca. 1950. Observer, 1 Mar. 1959.

treacle, v. To flatter (esp. a superior): Services': since ca. 1930. H. & P., 'To administer soothing syrup'.

treacle-factory. A training-ship: RN: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) Ex the heavy 'incidence' of molasses.

treacle-man. A 'beautiful male decoy... pretended young man of the housemaid and the real forerunner of the burglar': c.: from ca. 1880. Ex treacle, 2.—2. Hence, a 'commercial' touting sewing-machines, etc., to women: commercial travellers': late C.19–20. Ware.—3. He who makes the smartest sales: drapers' assistants':—1909 (Ware).

treacle-stick, the. '(Used contemptuously for) Social Security (formerly National Assistance). "Slinks and slags on the Treacle-Stick". The term is now in common use amongst Boston market-traders. The late Charles Ashton [the compiler's father-in-law] claimed to have invented it. He would explain that once "they" were on the Treacle-Stick, "they" stuck' (M.T., 1979).

treacle toffee. Welsh coal: railwaymen's: C.20. Railway, 2nd. Treacle Town. Bristol: (low) coll.: from ca. 1870. Ex the sugar-refineries.—2. Macclesfield: coll. and, esp. Cheshire, dial.: from ca. 1880. Ex a hogshead of treacle bursting and, for a time, filling the gutters (F. & H.): but Dr Bridge, Cheshire Proverbs, 1917, doubts this.

treaclemoon. Honeymoon: joc. (ugh!): C.20. P.B.: but see treacle, n., 2:

tread. See chuck a tread.

tread on the gas. See step on the gas.

tread the shoe awry. To fall from virtue: C.16—early 20: coll.; then, from C.18, S.E.. Cf. in S.E. make or take a false step.

treader. (Gen. pl.) A shoe: low: from ca. 1880; ob. by 1930.

treadle, treddle. A whore: low: ca.1630—1890. (Ford, 1638; Halliwell.) By a pun on the lever so named + tread (copulate with).

treadler. A bicycle: earlier C.20. Short for synon. treading-machine. (P.B.) treason-monger. A dynamiter: political: 1885—86. Ware.

treasure. (Of a person) a 'gem' or 'jewel': coll.: 1810 (Lady Granville: OED). A certain lady calls all her maid-servants, irrespective of quality, 'treasures'.

treasury, the. The weekly payment: theatrical:—1874 (H., 5th ed., Introduction, p. 60).

treat. Something very enjoyable or gratifying; the pleasure therefrom or the delight therein: coll.: it occurs in The Port Folio—an American magazine, quoting a British source—of 21 Feb. 1801 (p. 64), and therefore presumably goes back to late C.18. Rarely of a person (1825, Lady Granville: OED). Esp. a fair treat.—2. Anything, anybody, objectionable or a great nuisance: low ironic coll.: from 1890s. F. & H.—3. As a treat, adv.: most gratifyingly; very well indeed: low coll.: 1899, Daily News, 8 May, 'This air makes yer liver work a treat' (OED). Often ironically or vaguely it = extremely: C.20, low coll. Of food or drink, often 'It goes down a treat'.—4. In do (one) a treat, to suit admirably: low coll.:—1904. F. & H., "'It does me a treat" = "That's O.K.; real jam and no error." All senses: ultimately ex treat, entertainment offered by another person, but senses 2—4 derive imm. ex 1.—5. See give the boys a treat.

treat (a person) like shit. To treat humiliatingly, contemptuously: low coll.: C.20. (F. Leech.) treat with ignore. To overrule (someone): Aus., since 1930s but esp. army, WW2. (B., 1943.) A var. of S.E. treat with contempt, disdain, etc., in which sense it has had some later, more gen. use.

Treble One Tremblers, the. No. 111 (Fighter) Squadron, RAF: later C.20. Paul Tilsley, Listener, 13 July 1978.

treble-seam. A three-seamed leather cricket ball: cricket s. (1897, The Globe, 1 July) >, ca. 1920, coll.; slightly ob. OED.

Treble Xs, the. The 30th Foot Regiment; after 1881, the (1st Battalion of the) East Lancashire Regt: military: mid-C.19—20; ob. Ex XXX in Roman numerals. Also The Three Tens and the Triple Xs.

trecoil. Treacle: Bootham School:—1925 (Bootham).

treddle. See treadle.

tree, n. In up a tree, cornered; done for; in a serious difficulty; penniless: coll.: US (1825), anglicised ca. 1840. Thackeray in 1839 having 'Up a tree, as the Americans say.' Ex a hunted animal taking refuge in a tree. Also up the tree (Baumann), up a tree for tenpence, up a gum-tree.—2. See bark up the wrong tree; lame as a tree; treewins; tree-moon.

tree, v. To put in a difficulty; drive to the end of one's resources: orig. (1818. Thornton) US, anglicised in the 1850s as a coll. >, by 1880, S.E. Henry Kingsley, 1859, 'It's no use...you are treed' (OED). Ex treeing an animal. Cf. prec., 1.

tree frog. A Meteorological Officer in the German Zeppelin Service: RFC—RAF: 1915—18. V.M. Yeates, Winged Victory, 1934.

tree-hopping. An occ. var. of hedge-hopping, q.v.: RFC—RAF: 1915—18, then historical. Ibid.

tree-moon. Three months' imprisonment: c.: mid-C.19—20. 'No. 747' (= year 1845). Also trej (or tray) of moons, often in C.20, abbr. to tray or trej. Unabbr. in Barry Pain, The Memoirs of Constance Dix, 1905.

Tree of Knowledge. The tree under which books, etc., are piled in the interval between morning school and [lunch] (F. & H.): Charterhouse: from ca. 1860; ob. by 1900, + by 1920. Punning the lit. sense.

tree-rat. A native prostitute: army, Other Ranks, in India: late C.19—1947. Charles Allen, ed., Plain Tales from the Raj, 1977.

treer. 'A boy who avoids organised sports, but plays a private game with one or two friends. [Presumably because played at the trees by the side of the ground]' (F. & H.): Durham School: ca. 1850—90.

trees. Creases in carbon-paper: typists': since ca. 1910. Kate Stevens, Typewriting Self-Taught, 1942.

treewins. Threepence: c.: late C.17—early 20. (B.E.) Cf. treswins, q.v. Ex win, n.

trek. To depart: from ca. 1890: coll., orig. and mainly S. African. Ex trek, to journey by ox-wagon, hence to migrate,—itself ex Dutch.

trekkie, -y. A devotee of the American science-fiction space serial 'Star Trek': fans'. New Statesman, 23 July 1982, p. 28.

tremble, (all) in a or all of a; (up) on the tremble. Trembling, esp. with emotion: coll.: resp. 1719, ca. 1760 (Henry Brooke); 1800 (Lamb). OED.

tremblers. Stairs: Anglo-Irish: C.19. 'A Real Paddy', Real Life in Ireland, 1822.—2. See Treble One...

trembly. Tremulous; quivering: coll.: 1848, Dickens, 'So trembly and shaky' (OED).

tremendous. As a mere hyperbole or intensive (= astounding; immense): coll.: 1812, Southey, 'A tremendous change has been going on' (OED). Cf. awful, terrible.—2. Extraordinary as regards some quality stated in the context: from ca. 1830. George Eliot, 1866, 'A tremendous fellow at the classics' (OED).

tremendously. Very greatly, extremely, excessively: coll.: mid-C.19—20. Ex tremendous, 1, q.v. D. Mackail, Greenery Street, 1925, 'So frightfully and tremendously proud.'

trench-mortar. A bed-pan: military: from 1915. B. & P.

Trenchard brat. An RAF apprentice: 1920+; by 1940, ob. Jackson, 'After Marshal of the Air the Viscount Trenchard who, in 1920, introduced the apprenticeship system into the Service.'

trendiness. The natural abstract n. ex trendy, adj.: coll.: since late 1960s. For the idea it expresses, not the word itself, cf. the quot'n at kinky, adj., 5. (P.B.) trendy, n. One who is 'trendy': since 1967. Joan Fleming, Kill or Cure, 1968, 'the Chelsea Set... there are trendies and personae non gratae amongst them'.

trendy, adj. Following the social or intellectual or artistic or literary or musical or sartorial or other trend; up-to-the-minute smart or fashionable: since 1966; by end of 1967, already verging on coll. New Statesman, 24 Mar. 1967.

trapan. See trapan.

treswins. Threepence: c.: early C.18—(?) early 20. (A New Canting Dictionary, 1725.) Cf. treewins, q.v.

Trew John. Occ. var. of Trojan.

trej. See tray.

treyn(e), treyning-cheat. See trine, v., 2, and trining cheat. trez (occ. tray) beans. Very well (adv.), very good or pleasant: military: 1916; ob. (B. & P.) Ex Fr. très bien. Cf. Fray Bentos, q.v.

trezzie. A threepenny piece: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Ex trej: see tray, 2. Wilkes spells it trizzie.

tri. A tricycle: coll.: C.20. Cf. three-wheeler, q.v., and-tri-car. A motor-car with only one wheel at rear: coll.: since ca. 1930.

Triangle Dinks, the. See Diamond Dinks.

triangles; gen. the triangles. Delirium tremens: low:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.); very ob. by 1930. A perversion of tremens, prob. on the trembles and perhaps also with an allusion to the percussive musical instrument; H., however, suggests that it is because, during 'd.t.s', one sees everything 'out of the square'. Cf. heeby-jeebies, jim-jams, jitters, and willies.

triantelope; occ. triantulope. A tarantula: an Aus. coll. and popular corruption of that word: 1846 (C.P. Hodgson, Reminiscences of Australia). On antelope.

trib. A prison: c.: late C.17–early 19. Abbr. tribulation, as remarked by B.E., who implies a more gen. sense in ‘He is in Trib, ... he is layd by the Heels, or in a great deal of trouble.’ Grose, 1st ed.

trible, adj. and—usu. in pl—n. Treble: Aus. juvenile: since ca. 1930. (B., 1953.) Cf. fourble.

tribulation. ‘The condition of being held in pawn’; ca. 1660–1780. Dryden (OED).

trichi, -y; occ. tritchie, -y. A Trichinopoli cigar: 1877 (Sir Richard Burton). Y. & B.

trick, n. A watch: c. of late C.18–mid-19. (Tufts, 1798.) Ex trick, a small, esp. if cheap, toy or ornament, a trinket.—2. A person, esp. a child, that is alert and amusing: Aus. and NZ coll.: late C.19–20.—3. A tour of duty; a turn at the wheel or other controls: RN (late C.19–20), Can. railroadmen’s (—1931), and others. Ex card-games.—4. A customer: prostitutes: adopted, ca. 1944, ex US (where current since WW1); by 1960, also gen. low, s. (Cf. sense 3.) Hence, be on a trick, to be ‘entertaining’ a customer. Powis, 1977, ‘Prostitutes’ term for one transaction with a client: “I’ve done six tricks so far today.”—5. In do the trick, to effect one’s purpose, do what is necessary or desirable: coll. (—1812) >, by 1870 or so, S.E. Vaux; Egan’s Grose.—6. Hence, in do the trick (absolutely), to get a woman with child: low coll.: from ca. 1830.—7. See can’t take a trick; for my next trick.

trick and a half. ‘A master-stroke of roguery’ (F. & H.): coll.: C.19. A development ex a trick worth two of that (not coll. but S.E.).

trick cyclist. A psychiatrist: army: 1943+. By Hobson-Jobson. (Lewis Hastings, Dragons Are Extra, 1947.) ‘At least as early as 1938 in civilian slang. Also used as a verb in the Forces towards the end of the war [of 1939–45]. “He got himself trick-cycled out of the Army” either legitimately or fraudulently: Peter Sanders.

trick up. To baffle; to get the better of: Aus.: since ca. 1920. Jean Devaney, By Tropic Sea and Jungle, 1944.

trickar; properly tricker. A device for opening a window: c.: late C.16–early 17. (Greene, 1592.)? cf. jigger.

trickett. A long drink of beer: New South Wales: ca. 1895–1910. Ex Trickett, that champion sculler who knew that ‘beer’s best for an A1 nation.’ Morris.

trickle, n. Sweat: Scottish Public Schools’: C.20. Ian Miller, School Tie, 1935, has it also as a v.i. Whence trickle-bags. The sense ‘to perspire’ has been current at Harrow School since before 1913: witness Lunn.

trickle, v. To go: joc. coll.: 1920 (P.G. Wodehouse: OED Sup.); ob. Cf. filter.—2. See prec.

trickle-bags. A coward: see trickle, n.

tricks. In be in (one’s) tricks, to be in a bad temper: market-traders’: since ca. 1920. (M.T.) Perhaps orig. in ref. to tantrums.—2. In been playing tricks, pregnant: euph. coll.: C.19—earlier 20. Cf. trick, 6.—3. See bag of tricks; how’s tricks?

tricks and mortar. A c.p. applied to jerry-building: since ca. 1930. A pun on bricks.

tricksy. See trixy.

trickum legis. A quirk or quibble in the law: joc.: ca. 1790–1850. (Grose, 3rd ed.) Lit., a trick of the law, -um pointing the jest at Law Latin.

tricky. Unexpectedly difficult, needing careful handling or cautious action; catchy, risky: coll.: 1887, Saintsbury, ‘One of the tricky things called echo sonnets’ (OED). By 1935, virtually S.E.

tricycle. ‘An aircraft with a tricycle type under carriage’ (Jackson): RAF coll.: since ca. 1930. That definition requires modification: ‘A plane with a nose wheel instead of a tail wheel—all aircraft have three wheels’ (R. Hinde, letter, 1945).

tried it once, but I (or he) didn’t like it, prec. by I or he. ‘When used in the first person, it means that one is turning down an offer through preference rather than ignorance; when used in the third, it refers to a married person with an only child’ (B.P.): Aus c.p.: since ca. 1920.

trier, tryer (try-er). A player that perseveres in the attempt to win: cricket s.(1891) >, ca. 1905, gen. sporting coll. The Century Dict.—2. An unsuccessful thief: c.: C.20.

trifa. See tripha.

triff, adj. A superlative: teenagers’: early 1980s. A contraction of ‘terrific’. (Joanna Williamson, 1982.) Cf. synon brill. ex ‘brilliant’.

triffing. See tiffing.

trig, n. A piece of stick or paper left in the front door; if still there the next day, it practically shows that the house is unoccupied. The act is, to trig the jigger (door): c.—1812 (Vaux). Ex trig, brake, a sprag.—2. A hurried walk, a tramp: from ca. 1880: dial. and coll. Cf. v., 1, q.v.—3. Trigonometry: coll., esp. schools’ and universities’: from not later than 1908 and prob. from mid-C.19.—4. A surveyor’s pole or mark or station: Aus.: C.20. ‘A flagpole ... without a flag. “One of the border trigs”, called Tuck from his camel ... “Government surveyors built ‘em up years ago when they ran the border line”’ (Archer Russell, In Wild Australia, 1934). Prob. ex trigonometrical survey or point.

trig, v. Grose, 2nd ed., ‘To trig it, to play truant’: from late 1780s; slightly ob. Ex (S.E. > dial.) trig, to walk quickly: whence also trig, n., 2, q.v.—2. See trig, n., 1.—3. V.i. To pull the trigger of a camera in taking a snapshot: from ca. 1925. Collinson.

trig-hall. Open house; Liberty Hall: late C.18–20: dial. and (low) coll., the latter † by 1900. (Grose’s Provincial Glossary; F. & H.) Ex N. Country dial. trig, to stuff, to cram, to fill up (esp. the stomach). EDD.

trigger-happy. Likely to use a firearm on the slightest excuse, or on none: adopted, early 1940s, ex US. A fairly late example occurs in Capt. D.M.J. Clark, Suez Touchdown [the Suez crisis of 1956], 1964 (P.B.).

trigging. In lay (a man) t., to knock him down: ca. 1785–1850. (Grose, 3rd ed.) Perhaps ex the v. trig of ninepins; or ex trig, v., 1, q.v.

trigonometry; gen. commit t. Trigamy: joc.: C.20.—2. Occ. bigamy (cf. eternal triangle).

trigry-mate; gen. trigrymate. ‘An idle She-Companion’ (B.E.): late C.17–20: s. >, early in C.19, dial. (Grose, 1st ed.) Ex trig, to walk briskly. (The form trigimate is dial.)—2. Hence, an intimate friend: C.19–20: coll. > dial. Halliwell.

trike. A tricycle; to ride a tricycle: (low) coll.: 1885 (OED Sup.); 1901, Pall Mall Gazette, 15 May, ‘The commercial “trike” is, perhaps, the least supportable of the various tyrannies on wheels which it is the perambulating Londoner’s lot to endure.’ On bike, q.v.; cf. Fr. and English tri. Hence, triker, the rider of one, and triking, such cycling: coll.: from late 1880s. B. & L.

trilby. A ‘woman’s exquisite foot’: Society: 1894–ca. 1896. (Ware.) Ex Du Maurier’s Trilby.—2. A trilby hat: coll.: 1897 (Daily News, 6 Feb.: OED Sup.). Same source. P.B.: by mid-C.20 at latest, S.E.

Trilbys, -ies. Pig’s feet or trotters: W. Yorkshire s., not dial. (ironic on prec., 1):—1905 (EDD). Cf. Aus. use for human feet, as in Ion M. Idriess, The Yellow Joss, 1934, ‘Stony broke, tucker-bags busted, no smokes, corns on me trilbys, an’ a thirst tha’d swallow a brewery. What a life!’ trill. The anus: ? late C.17–mid-19. (Halliwell.)? ex crepitation: cf. ars musica.

trim, n. A back trouser pocket: pickpockets’ c.: since ca. 1930. Raymond Palmer, article ‘Unlucky Dips’, Sunday Times, 25 Aug. 1974.

trim, v. To cheat; to fleece: C.17–20. Dekker; implied by B.E. in ‘Trimming, c. Cheating People of their Money’; Edgar Wallace, 1928 (OED Sup.); c. >, by 1720, s. Prob. ex trim, to thrash; cf.:

trim (one's) jacket. To thrash a person: coll.: 1748 (Smollett: OED). An elab. of S.E. trim, to thrash, with perhaps an allusion to trim, to decorate (a hat) or dress (hair: cf. dress down, q.v.).

trim the buff. (Absolutely.) To deflower, or merely to coit with, a woman: 1772, Bridges, 'And he ... has liberty to take and trim/The buff of that bewitching brim,' i.e. harlot; ob. Ex buff, the human skin; and cf. trim one's jacket.

trim-tram. In Lord Hervey and His Friends, ed. by the Earl of Ilchester and pub. in 1950, there occurs, in a letter dated 23 Oct. 1731, this passage: 'There was a most magnificent entertainment, and everything that depended on his servants was in perfection. Whether it was trim tram, I know not, but can give a shrewd guess', the sense being either 'an absurdity' or 'absurd': upper-class? ca. 1700-70. A reduplication on trim. P.B.: or could it be a clipping of trinkum-trankum, q.v.?

trim your lamps, I'll. A threat to give someone a good hiding: c.p.: since ca. 1940. Perhaps the original sense was, 'I'll black your eyes': cf. lamp, v.

trim your language! Cease swearing!: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) I.e. render it less shaggy—less rough.

trimmer. A person who, a thing which, trims or thrashes, lit. or fig.: e.g. a stiff letter, article, review; a strict disciplinarian; a redoubtable competitor, fighter, runner (human or animal); a severe fight, blow, run, etc.: an especially well-delivered ball at cricket: coll.: 1776, Foote, of a severe leading article; 1804, Nelson, of a letter—as, in 1816, Scott; 1827, Sporting Magazine, of a hound; 1832, P. Egan, 'At last a trimmer Dick sent down.'—cf. 1882, 'Clean bowled by a trimmer' (F. & H.); OED; Lewis. Cf. the adj. in trimming.—2. Hence, anything excellent: (?mostly) Aus.: C.20. 'You little trimmer!' = 'You little beaut!': an Aus. usage. (B.P.)—3. See educated trimmer.

trimming, n. See trim, v.—2. Adj. Excellent, 'rattling': coll.: 1778, the Earl of Carlisle, 'Such trimming gales as would make ... a landsman ... stare'; 1825, Sporting Magazine, of a run with hounds; slightly ob. Cf. prec. OED.

trimmingly. To a notable extent; excellently: coll.: 1789, A.C. Bowers, 'I had the gout trimmingly' (OED); ob. Ex trimming, adj., q.v.; cf. trimmer.

trimmings. Masked alcohol: tradesmen's: 1897 (Daily Telegraph, 18 Jan.: Ware).

Trinco. Trincomalee, a seaport of Sri Lanka: coll.: late C.19-20 nautical; 1942-5 Services' (F. Spencer Chapman, The Jungle Is Neutral, 1949).

trincum; gen. trinkum; occ. trinkrum. A trinket: from mid-1660s: S.E. until C.19, then coll. (very ob.) and dial.: resp. C.18-20, C.17-20, late C.19-20. (Scott, 1819: OED) Merely trinket with 'Latin' -um for -et.—2. For reduplicated forms, see trinkum-trankum.

Trindog. An undergraduate of Trinity College, Oxford: Oxford undergraduates': ca. 1890-1914. 'The expression "a hearty Trindog" was in vogue c. 1908' (Marples, 2): originated by Balliol?

Trine. Tyburn: c. of mid-C.17-18. Coles, 1676. Ex sense 2 of: trine. To go: c. of C.17-mid-19. Fletcher 1622; Scott. A survival from S.E. trine, to go, to march (C.14-16), itself of Scandinavian origin. OED.—2. V.i. and t., to hang: c. of ca. 1560-1840, but, like sense 1, ob. as early, prob., as mid-C.18. (Harman, B.E., Grose.) Also tryne, C.16-17, and treyn(e), C.17. Perhaps, as the OED observes, ex a shortening of trine to the cheats, to go to the gallows, to be hanged.

tringham tringham, tringum-trangum. See trinkum-trankum.

tringing, treyning, tryning. An execution by hanging; see trine, v., 2.

Trinity. Trinity College: Oxford and Cambridge coll.: mid-C.18-20.

trinity (or Trinity) kiss. 'A triple kiss—generally given by daughters and very young sons, when going to bed, to father and mother': Society: ca. 1870-80. Ware.

trinkerman. A Thames Estuary fisherman: nautical: mid-C.19-20. B. & L.

trinket. A baby's or small boy's penis: feminine: since ca. 1850, if not many years earlier. Obviously it could be euph., but I think that, orig., it was upper-, rather than middle-, class s.

trinkety; incorrectly trinketty. Of little importance or value: (rare) coll.: 1817 (Scott: OED).

trinkum. See trincum.

trinkum-trankum; also tringham tringham, tringum-trangum. A trinket (C.18-20); a whim or fancy (late C.17-early 19): s. >, early in C.19, mainly dial. B.E., tringum-trangum, 'a Whim, or Maggot'; 1702, Steele, tringham tringham, as adj.; 1718, Motteux, trinkum-trankum. Reduplicated trinkum (see at trincum). Mostly OED. Cf. trim-tram, q.v.

trip, n. A harlot; a thief's woman: c.: from mid-1870s; slightly ob. (Horsley, Jottings from Jail, 1877.) Esp. as in 'Trips: Women who decoy and rob drunken persons' (F.D. Sharpe, The Flying Squad, 1938). Cf. tripper-up, 2.—2. Hence, an affectionate term of address: lower classes':—1923 (Manchon). Cf. Fr. cocotte.—3. As Trip, Tripos: Cambridge University coll.: from ca. 1920. OED Sup.—4. An experience of drug-taking: drug addicts': since ca. 1966. Daily Colonist (Victoria, BC), 29 Mar. 1967. 'A Vancouver youth who had a nightmare ride on an L.S.D. "trip", said Tuesday he never wants to make the journey again.' (Leechman.) By early 1967, also British (Peter Fryer, Observer colour sup., 3 Dec. 1967). Esp. in take a trip: late 1960s.—5. Hence, any (profound) experience, as in 'It was more of a psychological trip than a physical one' (Hollander): adopted, ca. 1970, ex US (DCCU; W. & F.). Cf. ego trip, q.v.—6. 'Single (cubic: sugar) measure of LSD' (Home Office): drugs world. Ex sense 4.—7. A triplicate of a form, as 'One for them, one for you, and we file the trips': offices', etc., coll., verging on j.: C.20. (P.B.) trip, v. 'To take a trip' as in n., 4 and 5: 1970s. Jagger. trip up the Rhine, a. Sexual intercourse: Forces: 1945+. Cf. the barmaids' a bike ride to Brighton: C.20.

tripe. Utter nonsense; very inferior writing, singing, acting, etc. etc.: from ca. 1890: coll. verging on S.E. Crockett, 1895, 'A song ... worth a shopful of such "tripe"' (OED). Ex the tripe as typical of inferior food, etc.—2. Filth, dirt: army, esp. in the Guards regts: C.20. Gerald Kersh, They Die with Their Boots Clean, 1941.—3. Tissues for microscopic examination: medical students':—1933 (Slang, p. 193.) Also meat.—4. Occ. var. of tripe-hound, 1. F. & G.—5. Very easy bowling: cricketers' coll.: since ca. 1920. Ex sense 1.—6. In in tripe, in trouble: army: ca. 1920-50. Gerald Kersh, The Nine Lives of Bill Nelson, 1942, 'He was in tripe ... and about forty hours pushed [late]'. Ex sense 2.—7. In bag of tripe, a term of opprobrium for a person: low coll. or perhaps rather a vulgarity: C.19-20. Cobbett, 1822 (OED). Suggested by tripes, q.v. Cf.:—8. In blooming six feet, or six blooming feet, of tripe, a tall, solid policeman: low urban: later C.19-early 20.

Ware. Cf.:—9. As Mr Double Tripe, a (very) fat man: low: ca. 1780-1850. Grose, 1st ed.—10. In up to tripe, q.v.

tripe-hound. A naval nickname for 'the Sopwith triplane used for a short time by the R.N.A.S.': WW1. (Bowen.) The tripe puns 'tri-plane', whereas hound is a ref. to the fact that it behaved like a bitch. Imm. etc.—2. A foul, an objectionable fellow: lower classes': C.20. Manchon.—3. A reporter: orig. and mainly newspapermen's: from ca. 1924. In Dorothy L. Sayers's contribution to Six against the Yard, 1936.—4. A sheepdog: NZ and Aus. farmers': C.20. (B., 1941, 1942.) P.B.: in UK, may be applied affectionately—or unkindly—to any dog.

tripe medal. A C.20 var. of putty medal. Cf. tripe, 2 and 6.

Tripe Shop, the. Broadcasting House, London: taxi-drivers': since ca. 1930. Weekly Telegraph, 6 Apr. 1946.

tripe-writer. A typewriter: joc. perversion: C.20. Whence triping = typing. (P.B.)

triper is an East London corruption (—1909) of *triph*a, q.v. Ware.

tripes; tripe. (Very rare, after C.18, in the sing.) The intestines; the paunch containing them: mid-C.15–20: S.E. until mid-C.18, then coll.; in mid-C.19–20, low coll. Grose, 1st ed. (tripe; tripes implied); Hood, 1834, 'I'm as marfiful as any on 'em—and I'll stick my knife in his tripes as says otherwise.'

tripes and trillibubs or trullibubs. A jeering nickname for a fat man: ca. 1780–1880. (Grose, 1st ed.) Lit., the entrails (of an animal). Cf. tripe, 7, 9; see also prec., and tranklements. trifha or trifa, ritually unclean (opp. kosher), is Hebrew; it can be considered as s. only when it is loosely applied by Gentiles to things other than food.

triple tree. A gallows: c. of ca. 1630–1750, then only archaically. (Randolph, ca. 1634; Brome, 1641; T. Brown, ca. 1700.) Ex the three parts.

Triple Xs, the. See Treble Xs, the.

Tripoli (or -y). In come from Tripoly, to vault, tumble; perform spiritedly: s.—1847; † by 1890. (Halliwell.) Ex performances of Moorish dancers. P.B.: or is it a pun on trip = tumble?

Tripoli gallop, the. The advance towards Tripoli (N. Africa)—an advance that happened twice before the 8th Army captured it: army: 1942–3. P-G-R. tripos. The intestines; the paunch: c.:—1887 (Baumann). On tripes (see tripe).

tripes pup. An 'undergrad' Cantab doing Honours: Cambridge undergraduates'—1887 (Ware); ob. by 1930.

tripper. An excursionist: coll.: 1813, 'Trippers to the seaside for a week'. Also cheap tripper, one who goes on a cheap trip: coll.: 1872. OED.—2. A 'dancer', as used of a boxer or a wrestler: sporting coll.: prob. late C.18—mid-19. Blackwood's, Dec. 1823 (Moe).

tripper-up. One who trips and then robs a person: c.: from mid-1880s. Daily Chronicle, 18 Nov. 1887.—2. a woman preying on drunken men: c.: C.20. J. Sweeney, Scotland Yard, 1904 (OED).

tripping-up. The criminal practices in tripper-up, 1 and 2, qq.v.

trippist. A 'tripper' (1, q.v.): coll.: 1792 (OED); rare in C.20; virtually † by 1930.

trippy. Going on a 'trip' (n., 4, q.v.), indulging in a bout, an experience, of drug-taking: since late 1960s. Jagger.—2. Exciting; pleasurable: since early 1970s. Both senses app. ex US.

trips. Triplets: mostly lower-middle class: since ca. 1910. (Rose Macaulay, I Would Be Private, 1937.) Cf. quads and quins.

triss. An objectionable fellow: esp. a pathic: Aus. c.: since ca. 1930. (Kylie Tennant, The Joyful Condemned, 1953.) Origin? A 'siss' or 'sissie': rhyming s.; by 1950, no longer low.—2. A var. of trizzie or trezzie, q.v.: Aus.: since ca. 1925. (B.P.)

Tristram's knot, Sir. A halter; esp. in tie Sir Tristram's knot, to hang: coll.: ?C.17–19. F. & H.

tritchie, -y, or T. See trichi.

tritrace. See Troll.

triumph. See ride triumph.

trixy. A quirk, a personal oddity: ca. 1910–40. Warwick Deeping, Sorrell and Son, 1925, 'But why should I feel flattered because certain physical trixies of mine happen to pique you?' A diminutive of S.E. trick, perhaps influenced by S.E. pixy.

trizzer. A lavatory: Aus. low: since ca. 1922. (B., 1942.) The charge for a wash and brush-up is a: trizzie. A threepenny piece: See trezzie, and triss, 2.

Troc, the. The Trocadero: 'formerly Music Hall, now [1904] Restaurant' (F. & H.): orig. and mostly London: from late 1880s. Cf. the Cri, the Pav, qq.v.

troffy. See trophy, 2.

trog, n. A cadet: Royal Naval College, Dartmouth, and gen. RN s.: since ca. 1950. John Winton, We Joined the Navy, 1959 (p. 65); a midshipman, a newly appointed officer, John Winton, We Saw the Sea, 1960, 'Now I must ... introduce the rest of the trogs to the captain.'—2. 'An army recruit in basic training—he was "the lowest form of animal life"; I heard the term in the Intelligence Corps Depot, early 1950s, but it was widely understood throughout the army at the time. The abbr. trg [= training], which appeared so frequently on orders, may have suggested troglydote' (P.B., 1974).—3. 'We are "Troggs"—sort of "Mods" who go potholing. We were having a "do" at the "Thunderbirds"—they're a sort of "Rockers": thus a youth of 20, as reported in The Times of 8 June 1965. Obviously ex S.E. troglydote, a cave-dweller, it dates since ca. 1961.—4. A 'stuffy', old-fashioned person (a very cubical 'square'): since ca. 1950. (R.T. Bickers, The Hellions, 1965.) Ex the Troglydotes or cave-dwellers of the Ancient World.—5. 'It is the considered view of this observer that much of the chaos on our weekend roads is caused by the proliferation of Trogs. A Trog, by our family tradition, is a driver who is dedicated to the principle that all road journeys should be made to last the longest possible time' (Charles Gardner, 'Spot the Trogs', a witty article in the Daily Telegraph mag., mid-1972). Cf. sense 4, and Conker, 3, q.v.

trog, v. To walk; depart (trog off, or 'Well, I'll be trogging along, then'): army, (?orig. esp. Intelligence Corps), since ca. 1950; current at RMA Sandhurst, 1970, where trog along = to march heavily laden. Trog for walk, as in 'he was just trogging along, minding his own business', had, by late 1970s, > gen. Perhaps a blend of trudge + slog or jog, or ex the n., 1 and 2. (P.B.)

trog boots. 'Especially heavy, cleated, rubber-soled boots used in bad-weather conditions by certain tradesmen and outdoor workers' (Sgt R. Farley, 1967): RAF: since ca. 1960. Cf. n., 2, and v., trog.

Trojan. A roysterer, boon companion, a dissolute: C.17–mid-18. (Kemp, 1600; adumbrated in Shakespeare, 1588.) Ex the fame of Troy.—2. Hence, a good fellow: coll.: from ca. 1660, though adumbrated in Kemp (as in 1); ob. Butler, 1663, 'True Trojans'; Scott, 1827, 'Trusty as a Trojan', true and trusty being the usual epithets: cf. trusty trout, q.v. OED.—3. A brave, plucky, or energetic person (rarely of a woman); gen. in like a Trojan, very pluckily or, in C.20 always, energetically: coll.: 1838 (in Fraser's Magazine; 1841, in book form), Thackeray, 'He bore ... [the amputation] ... like a Trojan': 1855, Dickens, 'He went on lying like a Trojan about the pony' (Apperson). Cf. like a trooper (at trooper).—4. A professional gambler: buckish: ca. 1805–40. (J.J. Stockwell, The Greeks, 1817.) Prob. ironic ex sense 2.

troll occurs in four phrases in Awdelay, 1561, as c. of ca. 1550–80:—troll and troll by, one who, esteemed by none, esteems nobody,—perhaps ex C.14–17 troll, to saunter or ramble; troll hazard of trace, one who follows his master 'as far as he may see him',—cf. trace = track(s), n.; f.h. of tritrace, 'he that goeth gaping after his master', in reference to trey-trace, of obscure origin but connected, allusively, with try-[to]-trace; and troll with, one who, a servant, is not to be known from his master.—2. To look for 'trade': prostitutes', since ca. 1930; hence also male homosexuals' (current ca. 1970).—3. Hence, to wander, saunter, rather aimlessly, as in 'just trolling around looking in shop-windows and that': gen. coll.: since mid-1970s. Cf. 'All [fighter aircraft] will be trolling up and down on various CAPs [combat air patrols]' (Phantom): RAF: 1970s. Sense 2, and thus 3, ex S.E. trawl. (P.B.) trolley, v. RN shortening, 1950s, of next. (John Malin, 1980.) But cf. trolleys.

trolley and truck. Coition; to coit: low rhyming s.: since ca. 1910. Franklyn, Rhyming.

trolley-ogging. Watching sexual intercourse: RN: 1950s. (John Malin, 1980.) See prec.

trolleys. Underpants: since ca. 1950, poss. orig. RN, but by 1970s gen. (John Malin, 1980.) Used also in girls' schools, witness Mallory Wober, English Girls' Boarding Schools, 1971. Prob. a shortening of trolly wags, q.v., but cf. shreddies, and the just possibly relevant definition of a tom-cat as 'a ball-bearing mouse-trap'. (P.B.) trolling, n. Streetwalking by a prostitute: prostitutes': since ca. 1930. I.e. trawling. See troll, 2.

trollop. A woman, respectable, or otherwise: Oxford University and underworld coll.: from ca. 1923. Obviously an ironically humorous misuse of the S.E. sense: cf. wench.

trollybobs. See tranklements; tripes and...

trollywags. Trousers: low: later C.19–early-20. ? on bags, q.v. See also trolleys.

trombone, the. The telephone: defective rhyming s.: since ca. 1930. Douglas Warner, Death of a Snout, 1961.

tromboning, n. and adj. (The) being on half- or part-time work: N. Country, esp. Yorkshire: since ca. 1931. By a musical pun. Cf. laking and playing. (John Hillerby, 1950.)—2. In go tromboning, to coit: low: from late 1880s. By anatomical analogy. Cf. flute.

tronk. An idiot, a foolish person; also tronk-head: East Midlands' teenagers': later 1970s. (D. & R. McPheely, 1977.)

tronker. A long-distance lorry-driver: hauliers': since late 1950s. (Daily Telegraph, 4 Feb. 1964.) Perhaps, as Peter Sanders has suggested, ex trunk-route driver; prob., I'd add, influenced by French tronc.

troop, n. A Royal Marine: RN lowerdeck: C.19. (Basil Hall, 2nd series, 1832.) Short for S.E. trooper, soldier.

troop, v. To march, walk, pass, in order: late C.16–20: S.E. until mid-C.20, then coll., though only just coll., as the OED makes quite clear.—2. To convey in a troop-ship: coll.: since ca. 1940. (Jane Gordon, Married to Charles, 1950.) P.B.: but the trooping season, the term for the time of year when new drafts were conveyed by troop-ship to India, and the time-expired men brought home dates back to late C.19.—3. To cause (a defaulter) to be brought before a superior officer: coll., 'Services', esp. RN: since ca. 1930. John Winton, We Saw the Sea, 1960.

troop away, off, etc. To depart: coll.: 1700, T. Brown, 'I thought 'twas time to troop off to an eating-house' (OED).

trooper. A half-crown: c.: late C.17–early 19. (B.E.; Grose.) ? a 'brave' coin, or because it frequently formed part of a trooper's pay.—2. A prostitute: ca. 1830–90. Sinks, 1848.—3. In like a trooper, much; hard; vigorously: coll.: 1727, swear like a trooper, the most frequent use; the OED records eat like a trooper in 1812, lie... in 1854; but in C.20, anything but swear is ob. Cf. Trojan, 3, q.v., and see also swear like a cutter.—4. See die the death...

troopie groupie. War correspondent, or other civilian, become enthusiastically military-minded. (Patrick Bishop, reporting the recent Falkland Is. campaign, in Observer, 11 July 1982.) Cf. groupie, q.v.

troops, the. We, us; I, me: military: from 1914. Esp. in that's the stuff to give the troops, that is what I (we) want or enjoy.—2. 'The Ship's Company' (H. & P.): RN: C.20. 'Not quite correct, the truth being that this is the Wardroom's term for the lowerdeck' (Granville).

trophy. A convert: Salvation Army j. >, by 1920, coll. Manchon.—2. A dull-witted recruit: military: from ca. 1910. (F. & G.) Ex sergeant-major's irony. Also troffy (B. & P.). tropical. (Of language) blasphemous; obscene: from ca. 1920. Ex tropical, very hot.

troppo. 'Term used by men serving during World War II in the Pacific area = one who has had long service in tropical areas and, by inference, ought to be repatriated' (W. Colgan): NZ and Aus.: since ca. 1941. (B., 1942, troppo; Dymphna Cusack, 1951, half-troppo, partly, or as if, crazy.) Ex 'tropical', with Aus. suffix -o.—2. Hence, go troppo, to go crazy: since ca. 1942; by late 1940s, common throughout the Pacific: cf. 'He had the look of men Hurst had seen in the tropics, when they were going "troppo"—off their heads' in Elleston Trevor's The Shoot, 1966.

trozk. A quart: back s.:—1874 (H., 5th ed.). Var. of track.
tros, tross, n. Sort: back s. (—1859 in form trosseno: H., 1st ed.). Thus trosseno, lit. 'one sort', is used for a 'bad sort' (of day, coin, etc.), as also is dabtros, the more precise form of 'bad sort'. See also sling (one's) tross. Mayhew, I, 1851, has trosseno.

tross, v. (Mostly as vbl. n., trossing.) Walking: Post Office employees', esp. telegraph messenger boys': C.20. (L.A., 1967.)? A perversion of stroll or trot.

trossy. Dirty; slatternly; slovenly: lower classes': late C.19–20. (F. & G.) Perhaps ex tros.—2. Hence, shoddy, inferior, spurious: id.

trot, n. A child learning to run: coll.: 1854, Thackeray, 'Ethel romped with the... rosy little trots.' (Cf. toddles.) Hence, in late C.19–20, trottie, a toddling child.—2. Hence, a small and/or young animal: coll.: from 1890s.—3. A walk; e.g. do a trot: from ca. 1875: London lower-classes' coll. >, ca. 1910, gen. Ware.—4. 'A sequence of chance events, esp. betokening good or ill fortune' (Wilkes): Aus. and NZ, mostly sporting: since late C.19. Orig. ex a succession of heads thrown at two-up, 'a good trot'; hence do a trot, to have a successful run (Vance Palmer, Let the Birds Fly, 1955), with its opp., a bad, lean, rough or tough trot, of gen. application. I.e. trot = run.—5. A fellow, chap: mostly University: from ca. 1919. Nicholas Blake, Thou Shell of Death, 1936, Oxford don speaking: 'He's quite a decent old trot, but definitely in the Beta class.' Perhaps ironically ex + S.E. trot, a whore.—6. A woman: NZ: since ca. 1925. Cf. 5, and see quot'n at mock, 2.—7. A lavatory: RAF: since ca. 1950. See trots, 3.

—8. Synon. with twat, q.v., the female pudend: low: C.18–20. Cf. senses 5 and 6.—9. (? Hence), nonsense, a 'flannelling' tale, as in 'Don't give me that load of old trot!': low coll.: C.20. Perhaps a tale 'trotted out', to be tried on the gullible. (P.B.)—10. As Trot, a Trotskyite extremist: political pej.: since mid-C.20. (Observer, 23 Nov. 1975: R.S.) London University students, late 1970s, would attend political meetings to play 'Spot the Trot' (P.B.)—11. In on the trot, gadding about: Society coll.: ca. 1880. Edward Burke, Bachelor's Buttons, 1912.—12. In on the trot, in succession: 'Services' in WW2; > gen. use. cf. sense 4, and the familiar S.E. running.—13. See trots.

trot, v. 'To steal in broad daylight': c.: from ca. 1860. F. & H.—2. To walk with short, quick steps in a small area: coll.: 1863, Mrs Cowden Clarke, 'She... will keep her husband trotting' (OED).—3. To lead someone 'up the garden path': printers': C.20. G.E. Rowles, The 'Line' Is on, 1948.—4. See trot out—round—up.

trot(-)boat. 'A duty boat plying between ship and shore': RN: C.20. (Granville.) A trot is a line of buoys and the trot-boat serves ships moored on the trot.

trot-boat queen. 'Wren member of a trot-boat's crew' (Granville): RN: 1941+. Ex prec.

trot fob. The moving of submarines in the 'trot' alongside their parent ship to make way for a submarine that is to be victualled or ammunitioned: submariners': since ca. 1930. P-G-R.

trot it out! Lit., show it: see next, sense 1.—2. Hence, speak! confess!: from ca. 1890. Cf. spit it out! and cough it up!

trot out. To bring out (a person, hence an opinion, etc.) for inspection and/or approval; hence, to exhibit: coll.: 1838 (Lytton: OED); 1888, Christie Murray, 'They would sit for hours solemnly trotting out for one another's admiration their commonplaces.' Ex the leading out of a horse to show his paces.—2. Hence, to spend, as in trot out the pieces: (low) coll.: mid-C.19–20.—3. Cf. trot out a song, to sing one: from ca. 1870. This trot is generic for do and it occurs in such phrases as trot out a speech. Equivalent also is trot it out! (q.v.), where the connexion with sense 1 is obvious.—4. To walk out with (a woman), lover-wise: 1888, 'John Strange Winter' (OED). Esp. trot out a judy: low s. See judy. Cf. the analogous trout round.—5. In trot out (or feed) one's pussy, to receive a man sexually: low: mid-C19–20. See pussy.

trot round or to. To escort or conduct round or to a place: from the middle 1890s. 'Seton Merriman', 1898. 'Perhaps you'll trot us round the works' (OED). Prob. a development from trot out, 4, q.v.

trot the udyju Pope o' Rome. To side-track or dismiss one's wife or other woman: low urban (mostly London): late C.19–20. In transposed s., udyju is judy (woman, girl), while Pope o' Rome is rhyming s. for home. Ware.

trot-town. A loafer, an idler: London coll.:—1887; ob. Baumann.

trot up. To bid against (a person), run up (a price): auctioneers' s. (—1864) >, ca. 1910, coll. (H., 3rd ed.) Cf. S.E. trot, to draw a person out, or on, in conversation in order to make him a butt.

trots. (Very rare in sing.) Feet: low London:—1909 (Ware). Ex trotters.—2. (Rare in sing.) Policeman: lower classes: mid-C.19–20; slightly ob. Because so much 'on the go' or trot. Ware.—3. As the trois, diarrhoea: Can., since ca. 1910; Aus., since ca. 1912 (I heard it in Gallipoli in 1915); and (P.B.) in later C.20, if not earlier, Brit.—4. A horse-trotting meeting: Aus. coll.: C.20. 'Betting on the Harold Park trots' (B.P.). trotter. A tailor's assistant who touts for orders. Oxford and Cambridge:—1860. (H., 2nd ed.)—2. One who goes, without residence, to Dublin for a degree: Dublin University: from ca. 1880.—3. A day-student: Durham University: from ca. 1890. OED.—4. 'A deserter from HM Armed Forces' (Powis): police and underworld: later C.20.—5. See trotters. trotter-boxes, gen. -cases. Boots; shoes: low: mid-C.19–20; 1820, Hood (OED), and Dickens in 1838—boxes is vouched for by F. & H.; both are ob. by 1930. Also trotting-cases: from late 1850s. H., 1st ed.

trotters. The human feet: joc. coll. verging on S.E.: late C.17–20. B.E. has shake your trotters!, be gone!; C.19–20 variants are move your trotters!, and, nautical, box your trotters, but the earliest remains gen.—2. As The Trotters, the Bolton Wanderers Association Football team: sporting: C.20.—3. See Beilby's ball.

trottie. See trot, n., 1, and trotty.

trotting-cases. See trotter-boxes.

trotty; occ. trottie. (Adj.) Of small and dainty make or build: coll.: 1891 ('Lucas Male' OED Sup.). Ex trot, n., 1.

troub (pron. trub). A coll. shortening of trouble, as in, e.g., 'he found himself in dead [= great] troub': since mid-C.20. (P.B.)—2. A tram conductor: Aus.: since ca. 1925. (B., 1943.) Ex trouble or perhaps troublesome.

trouble, n. Imprisonment; arrest. Mostly in (be) in trouble, (be) in gaol: coll. in C.16, s. in C.19–20: recorded ca. 1560 (in Cavendish's Walsey), but app. then rare until C.19. Cf. get into trouble, to be fined, arrested, imprisoned, transported: from ca. 1820. Prob. euph.—2. As, certainly, is trouble, unmarried pregnancy: coll.: 1891 (Hardy: OED)—3. Short for trouble and strife.

trouble, v. To trouble oneself; to worry: coll.: 1880 (Justin McCarthy); W.C. Smith, 1884, 'Do not trouble to bring back the boat' (OED). Ex trouble oneself, to take the trouble.

trouble and strife. A wife: rhyming s.: late C.19–20. Cf. the C.16 proverb, he that hath a wife hath strife.

trouble(-)box. Fuse in mine or bomb: RN: 1939+.

trouble-shooter. A public relations man: coll.: since late 1950s. A sense-adaptation of an American term; a word so useful that, by 1966, it has > S.E.

troubled with corns (, that horse is). Founded: c.p. C.19—early 20.

troubled with the slows. (Of swimmer or boat) defeated: aquatics:—1909 (Ware).

troubles! In my (or his, etc.) troubles!, an Aus. equivalent of 'I (or he) should worry!'; 'A dismissive expression... "what do I care!"' (Wilkes): late C.19—earlier 20.

trough. A school dinner: N. Country grammar schools: since late 1940s. New Society, 22 Aug. 1963.—2. 'In a students' hostel it would have been called the common-room. In building workers' lodging it was known as the "trough"' (Edmund Ward, The Hanged Man, 1976): since ca. 1945.

trouncer. A drink of strong liquor: (low) London: ca. 1820–70. Sessions, Feb. 1838.—2. Somebody extremely expert or capable; something excellent or astounding: Aus. coll.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Ex S.E. trounce, to thrash.

trouser, trouser. A jack of all trades: East London: from ca. 1895. (Ware.) Ex the 'comprehensiveness' of trousers.

trouser, v. To put (money) into one's trouser-pocket, hence to pocket (it): from ca. 1890.—2. Hence, to earn: cabmen's:—1892. (Labour Commission Glossary: OED). Cf. put down south, which trouser, 1, may have suggested.

trouser-brown. Cider: West Country s.: later C.20. (Bob Patten, 1979.) Ex effect. Cf. cripple-cock.

trouser-snake. Penis: RN joc.: mid-C.20. (John Malin, 1979.) Cf. synon. one-eyed t.-s.

trousered; trousers. Trousers. The stream-line covering in which the undercarriage legs of some 'planes are enclosed; such planes being trousered. (Cf. spats)' (H. & P.): RAF: since ca. 1930.

trousers. See prec.; not in these boots!; all mouth...

trousers full of pockets. No money: proletarian: C.20. (John Malin, 1979.)

trout. Orig. and gen., trusty (ca. 1661) or true (1682) trout, a good fellow (cf. Trojan, 2), a trusted servant or a confidential friend; Shadwell has your humble trout, your humble servant. S. of ca. 1660–1830; extant, however, in old trout, q.v. (B.E.; Grose; OED.) Contrast (poor and queer) fish. Perhaps suggested by the alliteration of true Trojan (later, trusty Trojan).—2. In (be) all about trout, alert or watchful: c.: mid-C.20. (Robin Cook, 1962.) Prob. mere play on rhyme.—3. See salmon and trout.

trouting, n. Catching trout: anglers' coll.: 1898 (People, 3 Apr.: Ware.)

trowser. See trouser, n.

troy school. A gambling school, ? esp. in two-up: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1880. Jean Devanney, By Tropic Sea and Jungle, 1944, 'Tully'—in N. Queensland—'was full of gambling joints, poker schools, troy schools—all the trimmings'. Origin obscure: perhaps cf. S.W. English dial. troy fair and troy town, confusion, litter.

truck, n. A hat: nautical: C.19. (L.L.G., 6 Dec. 1823: Moe.) H., 3rd., 1864, 'From the cap on the extremity of a mast'; whence also, at least prob., is truck-gutted. Contrast trucks. truck, v.; frequent as vbl n., trucking. Of obscure meaning; I hazard the guess that it signifies; by legerdemain, to keep buying things with more or less the same coins; or, to steal certain more useful or valuable articles while getting change for the purchase of lesser articles. C. of mid-C.19–20; † by 1910. 'No. 747'.

truck-gutted. Pot-bellied: nautical:—1860 (H., 2nd ed.); ob. by 1935. See truck, n., and trucks.

truckie (-ky). A railroad truck: Aus., mostly juvenile: since ca. 1920. (Dick.)—2. A truck (lorry) driver: Aus.: since ca. 1950. Bernard Hesling, The Dinkumization and Depommification, 1963.—3. See—Truckies, the. The Royal Corps of Transport (formed 1965): army nickname. New Society, 24 Apr. 1980.—2. The RAF Transport Command aircrews: RAF joc.: later 1970s. (S/Ldr G.D. Wilson, 1979.) Both senses ex prec., 2. Cf. driver = pilot. trucking. See truck, v., and keep on trucking!

truckle-bed. See stumble at the truckle...

trucks. Trousers: low:—1859 (H., 1st ed.); ob. by 1935. Prob. ex truck, (collective for) small, miscellaneous articles of little value and/or lowly use. contrast truck, n.

trudge. A trudgen stroke (ex John Trudgen, British swimmer, † 1902): since ca. 1905. John Garden, All on a Summer's Day, 1949.

Trudjon. An occ. var. of Trojan:—1887 (Baumann).

True. A member of the Whig Party: coll. nickname: late C.17. Cf. true blue, q.v.—2. See it just isn't true.

true as that the candle ate the cat or as (that) the cat crew and the cock rocked the cradle. I.e. untrue, false: a semi-proverbial coll. or c.p.: mid-C.16–18: 1666, Torriano, the former; 1732, Fuller, the latter. Apperson, who also quotes that's as true as [that] I am his uncle (Ray, 1670).

True Blue. Faithful(ness): C.17–20, coll. Foreshadowed ca. 1500. In C.17, of Scottish Whigs; in C.19–20, of strong Tories (also as n.: 'He or she is a true blue').—2. Of a 'solid' drinker. See TAVERN TERMS, end of §2 (blew), in Appendix.

true dinkum. A var. of square dinkum: Aus.: earlier C.20. (B., 1942.) Sometimes shortened to true dink: from ca. 1920.

true for you! An Anglo-Irish c.p. of assent to another's statement: from early 1830s. (OED Sup.). Direct ex Irish.

true inwardness. Reality; quintessence: literary j. verging on s.: ca. 1890–1930. Ware.

true marmalade, the. See marmalade, 2.

true, O King! I agree: C.20; ob. by 1980. Ex historical novels. (Mrs Gwynneth Reed, 1980.)

true till death. Breath: theatrical rhyming s.: late C.19–20. Franklyn, Rhyming.

true trojan. See TAVERN TERMS, §2, in Appendix; and cf. Trojan, 2.

truepenny, n. and adj. An honest fellow; true, genuine: coll.: both from ca. 1590; in C.19–20, ob., except in the earlier old truepenny (C.16–20), a hearty old fellow, a staunch friend, an honest man: dial. in C.19–20. Ex a true or genuine coin of that denomination.

truff, n. A purse: c.: C.18. (C. Hitching, The Regulator, 1718.) Perhaps by a pun on † S.E. truff, a truffle.

truff, v. To steal: N. Country c.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.). Ex C.18 (?—mid-19) Scots truff, to obtain deceitfully, pilfer, steal.

trugging-house, -ken, -place. A brothel: the first and third are c. or low s of ca. 1590–1620.—Greene has both; the second, c. of (?) C.17—only F. & H. records it. Ex trug, a whore, esp. a dirty one. Cf. trugmoldies, q.v. at HARLOTS, in Appendix.

truly. See youers truly.

trump, n. A very good fellow, a 'brick': coll.: 1819 (OED); in Barham as a term of address (my t.), a usage † in C.20. Adumbrated by T. Brydges in 1762, 'I... Shall make him know I'm king of trumps.' Egan's Grose, 'One who displays courage on every suit'.—2. A breaking of wind: mid-C.19—early 20. Ex the v.—3. A commanding officer: Aus. Army: 1939+. (B., 1942.) Prob. shortened trump of the dump.—4. See tongue of the trump.

trump, v. To break wind: low coll.: C.18—early 20. (D'Urfey.) Hence the vbl n., trumping, and trumper, the agential n; the latter is rare. OED.

trump of the dump. Anyone in authority: NZ: WW1. Ex card games; a natural rhyme on dump=place. Cf. trump, n., 3.

trumpery insanity. Temporary insanity: a c.p. directed at the frequency of this verdict in cases of suicide: ca. 1880–1900. Baumann.

trumpet. A telephone: c.: later C.20. Powis.—2. In on the trumpet, objectionable; disliked: Aus. Army: 1939+. (B., 1942.)? Ex one who 'blows his own trumpet'.—3. See who blew your trumpet?

trumpet-cleaning. (Esp. gone t.-c.) Dead; army: late C.19—early 20. (F. & G.) Perhaps ex a martial vision of a job in the heavenly orchestra.

trumpeter as an endearment='dear boy'. (Low) coll. of ca. 1870–1900. Baumann.—2. In he would make a good trumpeter, for he smells strong, a c.p. applied to one with fetid, for he smells strong being occ. omitted: ca. 1785–1850. Grose, 2nd ed., where the second member is for he has a strong breath. Ex the pun, strong breath: good lungs.—3. See Spanish trumpeter; TAVERN TERMS, §7, last item, in Appendix; trumpeters. trumpeter is dead, his (her, etc.). A c.p. applied to a person boasting or to a confirmed braggart: from ca. 1725; ob. Franklin, 1729; Grose, 2nd ed., in the orig. form, his... dead, he is therefore forced to sound his own trumpet, which supplies the 'etymology'; but cf. also Spanish trumpeter, a braying ass.

trumpeters. Convicts' 'irons which connected the ordinary leg-chains with a Brazil riveter round each leg immediately below the knees' (Price Warung, Tales of the Early Days, 1894, in ref. to Norfolk Island ca. 1840); app. s. rather than c. They proclaimed the convict's presence if he so much as stirred.

trumpy. Trumpet-like; blaring: coll.: 1822 (The Examiner: OED).

trumps. In turn up (occ., in C.20, come up) trumps, to turn out well, prove a success: coll.: 1862 (W.W. Collins: OED). Ex games of cards. Cf. trump, 1. P.B.: in C.20, often applied to a person, particularly one who, almost unexpectedly, does a favour and does it well, as 'You'd never think it of her, but when the time came, the old girl turned up trumps—really did us proud!' Cf. turn up a trump.

trumpy. Dear in price: since ca. 1960. (London Evening Standard, 17 Oct. 1969.) 'That trumps everything!'

trun. To run: Oxford University s.: ca. 1760–1810. See quot'n at pro, 1. Short for S.E. trundle.

trunch. 'All those slags who support the system got some trunch as well' (Time Out, 29 Feb. 1980: an article on Wormwood Scrubs)='those despicable people... were also bludgeoned with trunches'. Foreshadowed in Max Beer-bohm's parody of Kipling, a cruel police story published in A Christmas Garland, 1912; the tale is prefaced, à la Kipling, by a verse which ends 'Then yer've got ter give 'im 'Ell./An' it's trunch, trunch, trunchon does the trick.' (P.B.) truncheon. Stomach: West Yorkshire s. (—1905), not dial. EDD, 'He filled his truncheon.'

trundle, the ob. coll. n. (1869: Lewis) of:

trundle, v.t. and i. To bowl: cricket coll.: 1849; cf. trundler, bowler, 1871, and trundling, n., bowling, 1861. Lewis, 'Orig. the ball was trundled along the ground.' Cf. wheel 'em up and contrast trundling bowler.—2. See let 'em trundle!

trundle for a goose's eye, making a. See weaving leather aprons.

trundler. See trundle, v.—2. In pl., peas: c.: ca. 1670–1830. (Coles, 1676; B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) Presumably because they roll along the ground. Cf.:

trundling. See trundle, v.—2. trundling bowler: one who, bowling fast, makes the ball bound three or four times: cricketers' coll.: 1851; † by 1890. Lewis.

trundling-cheat. A wheeled vehicle, esp. cart or coach: 1630 (Jonson); † by 1700. Ex trundle, v.i., to roll along, † cheat, chete, q.v.

trunk, n. A nose: late: C.17–20. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) Esp. in phrases, e.g., how fares your old trunk? a c.p. jeer at a big-nosed man: ca. 1690–1850. (Ibid.) In allusion to an elephant's trunk. Also in shove a trunk, 'to introduce oneself unasked into any place or company' (Grose, 1st ed.): low: ca. 1780–1890.—2. A trunk call: coll., among telephonists and constant telephone-users: since ca. 1920.—3. See trunks.

trunk, v.t. To coit: RN lowerdeck: 1950s. (John Malin, 1980.)? Ex hyperbolic equation: penis=elephant's trunk (P.B.). trunkmaker-like. With more noise than work: ca. 1780–1840. Grose, 1st ed.

trunkmaker's daughter. See St Paul's.

trunks (or T-). Shares in the Grand Trunk of Canada: Stock Exchange coll.:—1895 (A.J. Wilson's glossary).—See live in (one's) trunks.

Trunky, -ie, -ey. Nickname for anyone with a prominent nose: RN: C.20. (Granville.) Ex trunk, n., 1; cf. conkey.

trunnions. 'Hair over the ears which curls over a sailor's cap' (Granville): RN: since ca. 1920. Ex the lit. nautical S.E. sense.

trust, v. Occurs in a number of phrases, mostly negative and indicating deep mistrust: I wouldn't trust (e.g. him) as far as I could throw him (with the occ. emphatic and I wouldn't even bother to pick him up): since ca. 1870; Dr Leechman, 1967, notes a 'recently encountered' Can. var., ... as far as I could throw an arvil in a swamp. The self-explanatory I wouldn't trust (e.g. him) with a kid's money-box is C.20, as is I wouldn't trust him with our cat, applied to a man with an unsavoury sexual record. The earlier C.19 he may be trusted alone, while positive, is rather sarcastic, the implication being that he may be so trusted to go anywhere without danger to himself; in, e.g., Pierce Egan, Life in London, 1821. Reade, 1853, has trust him as far as I could fling a bull by the tail, and ... as far as I could throw... sometimes has var... blow.

trust you! An ironic and pej. ellipsis of 'Trust you to do that!', e.g. to bungle something; to act in an unhelpful way; or, even, 'to come up smelling of violets': c.p.: since late trusted alone. See trust, at end.

C.19. Also, of course, with other pronouns or names: 'Trust her!', 'Trust old Smudger!', etc.

trusty. An overcoat: Anglo-Irish coll.: 1804 (Maria Edgeworth). I.e. trustworthy garment.

trusty Trojan. See Trojan, 2.

trusty trout. See trout, 1.

trut. A threepenny-piece: Aus.: since ca. 1930. (B., 1943.) Origin? Perhaps from broad pronunciation of "trupenny bit" (B.P.); with I suggest, the p of 'trupenny' influenced by the t of 'bit'—in short, by assimilation.

truth chamber. See confessional.

try. An attempt; an effort: coll. verging on S.E.: from ca. 1830.

try, v.i., with across, after, in, etc.; also v.t. To search (a place) to find (e.g. game): coll.: v.i., 1810, Sporting Magazine, 'He bid the other defendants try across the Six Acres'; v.t., late C.19–20. OED.

try a fresh needle! 'Shut up!': Charterhouse: from ca. 1910. Ex gramophones: cf. switch off!

try a piece of sandpaper! A piece of C.20 c.p. advice to youth with down on his cheeks, or would-be moustache. Cf. get the cat to lick it off!

try and (do something). To try to do something: 1686, J. Sergeant, 'They try and express their love to God by thankfulness.' (OED): coll. now verging on S.E. (see Fowler).

try back! A c.p. addressed to a person boasting: ca. 1820–60. Bee.

try for white. Applied to those who, of mixed race and near-white appearance, try to register as Europeans: S. African coll.: since ca. 1920. (Prof. A.C. Partridge, 1968.) P.B.: ? ex the billiard table.

try it on. To make an attempt (to outwit, to impose on a person): from ca. 1810 both in this s. sense and in c., where it = to live by theft. (Vaux.) Both as v.i., the more gen., and as v.t. (Thackeray, 1849, 'No jokes...; no trying it on me' OED). Hence, coves that or who try it on, professional thieves: c.: from ca. 1812.—2. See next two entries.

try it on a, gen. the, dog. To experiment at the risk or expense of another, esp. a subordinate or a wife: from ca. 1895: theatrical s. (as in Daily Telegraph, 4 Feb. 1897) >, ca. 1905, gen. coll. (Ware.) Ex matinée dog (q.v.), though ultimately ex experimenting with meat on a dog or with poisons on animals. In the film industry, it = to put a picture (not yet publicly shown) into a programme unannounced in order that its effect on the audience may be noted by the producers, who afterwards may make any alterations they think advantageous: coll.: from ca. 1920. Prob. ex the theatrical sense (C.20), to take a new play to the provinces before London production: likewise coll.

try it on with. The usual v.t. form of try it on in s. sense: from ca. 1820. Esp. try it on with a woman, to attempt her chastity: 1823 ('Jon Bee').

try-on. An attempt, orig. and gen. to 'best' someone; e.g. an extortionate charge, a begging letter: from ca. 1820. (Bee, 1823; H., 5th ed.) Ex try it on, q.v.—2. Whence up to the try-on: see up to the cackle.

try one on a wind. To take a chance: RN coll.: C.19. In W.N. Glascock, The Naval Sketch-Book, 2nd series, 1834, II, 67. (Moe.) Semantically, cf. fly a kite, 6.

try-out. A selective trial: coll.: US (—1900), anglicised ca. 1910.

try some horse-muck in your shoes! Workingmen's advice to undersized boys: c.p.: late C.19–20. As manure to make them grow.

try the raw prawn act (on someone). Var. of come the raw prawn, q.v. via raw prawn.

try this for size! A c.p. used in horseplay and accompanying a playful punch: var., how's that for centre? (perhaps originally army, ex markmanship): both, since ca. 1935. The former probably derives ex drapery salesmen's jargon.—2. Hence, but try this for size only, also—since ca. 1945—in contexts far removed from horseplay.

tryer. See trier.

trying to open an oyster with a bus-ticket (usu. like). (Like) trying to perform the excessively difficult or the impossible: orig. and mainly RN: since ca. (?) 1930. (Peppitt.) P.B.: cf. the equally graphic like a man with diarrhoea trying to pick a lavatory lock with a bus-ticket or a blade of grass, for frantic haste with inadequate tools, which I heard in the Army, 1960s.

tryne. See trine.

tsotsies. 'Non-white criminal [adolescents]' (Prof. A.C. Partridge, 1968): S. African: C.20.

tu. Tuition: Public Schools': late C.19–20. Marples.

tu quoque. The female pudend: late C.18—early 19. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Possibly suggested by pu(dendum) and twat; or a disguising of the latter.

tub. A pulpit: from ca. 1640 (OED records it in 1643): coll. >, ca. 1850, S.E.; ob. Whence the coll. (verging on s.) terms, tub-drubber (ca. 1703, T. Brown; very ob.), -man (ca. 1640–70), -pounder (rare; ca. 1820–1910), -preacher (1643; very rare in C.19–20), and, the commonest, -thumper (from ca. 1660; Grose, 1785, 'a Presbyterian parson'); also tubster (coll.: ca. 1680–1720). Likewise, tub-thumping (app., not before ca. 1850: H., 1st ed.), etc. Ex the tub from within which popular, and esp. Nonconformist, clergymen used, in the open air, to preach, but also, and in several instances, independently ex the humorous likening of a pulpit to a tub. F. & H.; OED.—2. A bath; the practice of having a bath, esp. on rising: coll.: 1849 (OED); 1886, The Field, 20 Feb., 'A good tub and a hearty breakfast prepared us for the work of the day.' Ex tub, a bath-tub.—3. A seatless carriage, also called a stand-up, on the early English railway trains: (low) coll.: ca. 1840–70. (H.S. Brown, Autobiography, 1886: OED.) This sense derives ex that of 'a covered carriage of the sort called a chariot': s.: ca. 1815–40. New York Literary Gazette of Nov. 12, 1805 (p. 145) app. quotes a British source in this passage: "'By Jove," languidly drew out Lord Tubureux, "what!—the steady fellow's off at last [i.e., dead]. I wonder who gets his horses and his yellow tub (an impertinent term of contempt for his chariot); he had one decentish black horse, ha! ha! ha! (laughing.) Well, I'm glad that old sober sides is done up." (Moe.)—4. 'A chest in Hall into which disparis (q.v.) not taken by the boys were put' (F. & H.); ca. 1840–70. Perhaps rather j. than s. or coll., as prob. also are tub-mess and prefect of tub: see Farmer's Public School Word-Book.—5. A (very) fat person: low coll.: from mid-1890s. Cf. tubby, q.v.—6. A cask or keg of spirit, holding about four gallons: smugglers' s. (—1835) >, by 1860, coll.; ob. (OED.) Ex tub, a varying measure of capacity.—7. An omnibus: c.,—1933 (Charles E. Leach); >, by 1950 at latest, busmen's. See barrow, 2.—8. A cathode-ray tube: RAF technicians': WW2. Sgt. G. Emanuel, 1945, 'From "tube"'.—9. A brake: railwaymen's: since ca. 1920. Railway, 2nd.—10. For the Tub. See Academy. The allusion is to the tub of Diogenes.—11. See in the tub; tubs, 2.

tub, v.t. To wash, bathe, in a tub: coll.: 1610 (Jonson).—2. Hence v.i., to bath in a tub, esp. on rising: coll.: 1867 (OED).—3. To train (oarsmen) in a 'tub', i.e. a fool-proof practice boat: rowing s., orig. and esp. at the two older universities: 1883; the v.i., to practise rowing in a 'tub', dates from 1882. (Dates, OED.) Whence tubbing, vbl n. to both v.t. and v.i. (from 1883) and get tubbed, to be thus coached.—4. (Of a tug) to make (a ship—esp. a big ship) fast to a buoy: nautical coll.: late C.19–20. Bowen.

tub-drubber, -man. See tub, n., 1.

tub-men. Landsmen employed during the second, or secret, period of smuggling to receive the contraband from the luggers and carry it inland' (Bowen): ca. 1830–80: s. >, by 1860, coll. See tub, n., 6.

tub-mess. See tub, n., 4.

tub-pair. A practice boat for two oarsmen: (orig. Oxford and Cambridge college) rowing s. >, ca. 1920, coll.: 1870 (OED). See tub, v., 3 and 4.

tub-pounder, -preacher, -thumper, -thumping. See tub, n., 1.

tubber; usu. in pl. A difficult question asked in a viva voce examination: RN: C.20. (Granville.) It comes like a cold douche. P.B.: by the 'OXFORD -ER(S)'. tubbichon. A non-cultured corruption of Fr. tire-bouchon, the lone corkscrew ringlet of back hair worn in front of the left shoulder (a fashion introduced by the Empress Eugénie): 1860s. (Ware.) Cf. zardner, q.v.

tubbing. See tub, v., 3, 4.—2. Imprisonment: c.: late C.19–20; ob. Why?

tubby. Fat (person): as adj. (1835), S.E.; as nickname (mid-C.19–20), coll.—2. The latrine-attendant: Christ's Hospital: from ca. 1870. Ex one so nicknamed.—3. As Tubby, the 'inevitable' nickname of men surnamed Cooper, even if not fat, the reference being to barrels: C.20. (Peter Sanders.) The nickname was also sometimes, in earlier C.20, given to men surnamed Martin; see NICKNAMES, in Appendix.

tube, n. The tunnel in which runs an underground electric train: coll.: from ca. 1895.—2. Hence (often the Tube), abbr. tube-railway: coll.: 1900.—3. Hence, The Twopenny Tube, the Central London Railway (opened in): 1900: coll. (The inclusive fee (cf. the Paris Métro) was abolished not later than 1915.) OED.—4. A cigarette: Cambridge undergraduates': ca. 1925–40. Hence, 1940+, among Leeds undergraduates. Marples, 2.—5. A submarine: RN: since ca. 1918. Ex its torpedo tubes.—6. Penis: Anglo-Irish feminine: late C.19–20. James Joyce, Ulysses, 1922.—7. A drinking glass, orig. and strictly a tall, narrowish one: Aus.: since ca. 1950, ? rather earlier. Aus. POD, 1976.—8. 'A can of beer; given currency by the Barry Mackenzie [cartoon]-strip in the 1960s' (Wilkes); hence the drink itself: Wilkes quotes George Johnston, A Cartload of Clay, 1971, p. 137, "'A beer'd be just the shot,'" said the Ocker. "Never bin known to say no to a tube."—9. 'A hollow piped wave' (Pix, 28 Sep. 1963): Aus. surfers': from ca. 1961. Hence, ride in a tube; shoot the tube: the 2nd phrase occurs in Pix's definition of shooting the tube as 'crouching on the nose of the board, shooting through the hollow portion of the curl'; the 1st phrase, in the Sun-Herald, 22 Sep. 1963, 'Riding "in a tube" is the ultimate aim of all surfers—shooting along the tube formed by a perfect wave as its crest curls over.' Also known as a tunnel.—10. 'Officer who listens to information given by "squealers"; a "screw" who listens to a "bubble" (or rumour). "To put the bubble in the tube" is to give information to those in authority, in the knowledge that it will get someone into trouble' (P. Tempest, 1950; he adds 'of medium usage'): prison c. See also put the bubble in.

tube, v. (Also tube it.) To travel by 'tube' (n., 2): coll.: 1902 (OED).—2. (And hence agent tuber, and tubing, n.) To toady; a toady; toadying: University of Alberta: ca. 1925–40. P.B.: ? a ref. to the rectum; cf. arse-lick.—3. See quot'n at bag, v., 8.

tube-train. 'A shell passing high overhead and making a heavy rumbling sound' (F. & G.): army: WW1.

tuber. A race-horse with a tube inserted in the air-passage: turf: 1922 (OED Sup.).—2. See tube, v., 2.

Tubes. Shares in Tube Investments, Ltd: Stock Exchange: since ca. 1950. (Sanders.)

tubs. A butter-man: low:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.); ob. by 1930. Ex butter in tubs.—2. Tubular tyres: cyclists' and motorcyclists': later 1930s.

tubster. See tub, n., 1.

tuck, n. A hearty meal, esp. (orig. and mainly in schools) of delicacies: 1844 (J.T. Hewlett). Also, in C.19 more gen., tuck-out, 1823; occ. in C.19, very often in C.20, tuck-in, 1859 (H., 1st ed.) Cf. tucker, q.v. (F. & H. and OED.) ? ex tuck, a fold or pleat: tuck-out, the earliest form, suggests a meal that removes a tuck or a crease from one's waistcoat or trousers-top; but prob. imm. ex the v., 2 and 3, qq.v.—2. Hence, food; esp. delicacies (e.g. pastry, jam): orig. and mainly school s.: 1857, Hughes, 'The Slogger looks rather sodden, as if he ... ate too much tuck.'—3. Appetite: dial. and provincial s.: from the 1830s. Halliwell.—4. The head: 1888, The London Guide; † by 1900.—5. See in tucks.

tuck, v. To hang (a person): c. of late C.17–19. (B.E.) But gen. tuck up: from mid-1730s: c. rapidly > (low) s.; in C.20, ob. Richardson, 1740, 'The hangman asked the poor creature's pardon, and ... then calmly tuck'd up the criminal.' Ex tuck, to put away in a safe place.—2. To eat, occ. to drink: v.t., 1784, Bage, 'We will ... tuck up a bottle or two of claret'; hence, v.i., eat a lot or greedily, 1810; tucking-in, tuck into occurring in 1838 in Dickens. (Mostly OED.) The simple v. is less frequent than the prepositional combinations. Etym.: prob. as in sense 1.—3. Ex 2, v.i. sense: to distend (another or oneself) with food: 1824, 'Comfortably tuck'd out' (OED); † by 1900. Rare, esp. in simple form.—4. Prob. ex sense 1: to hang (a bell) high in the stock: 1860 (OED): bell-makers' and bell-ringers', perhaps coll. rather than s. Abbr. tuck high (in the stock). Gen. tuck up.

tuck'em fair. An execution: c. (—1700) >, in mid-C.18, low s. (B.E.; Grose.) Parker, 1789, 'We went off at the fall of the leaf at Tuck'em Fair.' Ex tuck, v., 1. Also Tuck-up Fair, q.v. tuck-hunter. An assiduous feast-seeker: 1840 (A. Bunn). Ex tuck(-out), n., 1.

tuck-in, tuck in. See tuck, n., 1; v., 2.

tuck in your tuppenny! Among boys playing leap-frog: Tuck in your head!: late C.19–20. Rhyming s.: tuppenny (loaf of bread).

tuck its ears in! 'Catchphrase shouted at a shipmate when he is suspected of carrying rabbits [q.v.] ashore' (Granville): RN: mid-C.20.

tuck-man. A moneyed partner: commercial: ca. 1880–1920. Ex tuck, n., 2.

tuck on (a price). To charge exorbitantly: non-aristocratic: later C.19—earlier 20. B. & L.

tuck-out, tuck out. See tuck, n., 1; v., 2.

tuck-parcel. A hamper from home: Charterhouse: ca. 1860–1920; ob. by 1904 (F. & H.). See tuck, n., 2, and cf.:

tuck-shop. A (mainly school) pastry-cook's shop: from mid-1850s. Hughes, 1857, 'Come ... down to Sally Harrewell's ... our school-house tuck-shop.' Ex tuck, n., 2.

tuck strands. 'Curry favour, usually as a verbal noun, tucking strands, ingratiating oneself with Authority; for the technical sense of tucking strands of rope over and under other strands so that all of them fit snugly' (Granville): RN: C.20.

tuck up. See tuck, v., 1.—2. See tuck, v., 2.—3. See tuck, v., 4.

tuck-up fair (or T. -up F.). The gallows: c.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.); ob. by 1930. See tuck 'em fair.

tucked away. Dead and buried: Aus. coll.: C.20. C.J. Dennis.

tucked-up. (Of dog or horse) thin-flanked from hunger or fatigue: from early 1840s: dial. and s. Ex tuck, a pleat.—2. Hence, exhausted: dial. >, by 1890, s. Kipling, 1891 (OED). Cf. US tuckered out (see Bartlett or Thornton).—3. Cramped, hindered, for lack of space or time: coll.: 1887 (OED). Ex sense 1.

tucker, n. Rations, orig. of gold-diggers: Aus., hence from ca. 1860 NZ: 1858, Morning Chronicle, 31 Aug., 'Diggers, who have great difficulty in making their tucker at digging'; slightly ob.—2. Hence, by ca. 1870, food, as in Garnet Walsh, 1874: Aus. >, by 1875 or so, NZ.—3. Hence, earn (1883) or make one's tucker, to earn either merely or at least enough to pay for one's board and lodging: orig. Aus., then NZ. Like 1 and 2, it is in C.20 fairly gen. Colonial. Ex tuck, n., 2, or v., 2. Cf. grub and scoff, qq.v.

tucker, v. To eat one's tucker, to eat a meal: Aus.: late C.19–20. G.B. Lancaster, Jim of the Ranges, 1910, 'If I don't turn up before dinner time you come an' tucker, an' then go back.' Ex tucker, n., 2.—2. To provide with food: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (Kylie Tennant, The Honey Flow, 1956.) Likewise ex tucker, n., 2.

tuckerbox. 'A dog [see dog, n., 11], a reference to the Jack Moses poem of which the chorus is: "The dog sat on the tuckerbox, Nine miles from Gundagai"' (McNeil): Aus. c. or low s.: early 1970s. (Mrs C. Raab: except in ultra-polite circles, an h was inserted into sat whenever I heard the song.)

tuckertin. A metal pannier box on a motorcycle: motorcyclists': since mid-C.20. (Dunford.) An anglicisation of Aus. coll. tucker-bag or -box.

Tuckies (or Tukkies). 'Students of the old Transvaal University College, now the University of Pretoria: since 1910' (Prob. A.C. Partridge, 1968): S. African. Ex initials.

tucking-in, vbl. n. See tuck, v., 2.

tudgy yam. Spun-yarn: RNC, Dartmouth: since ca. 1930. 'After a Seamanship Instructor of that name' (P-G-R.).

Tudorbethan (or t-), adj. Applied to a house possessing either no particular, or every, style: architecturally a 'mess': cultured coll.: since ca. 1950. R.G.G. Price, A History of Punch, 1957.

tuffler. A cigarette: market-traders': C.20. (M.T.): P.B.: perhaps, as this term was recorded at Boston, ex the Lincolnshire dial. v. tuffle, to bind flax (EDD).

tuft. A tiled undergraduate: 1755, in tuft-hunter, one who, at Oxford or Cambridge, toadies to the young noblemen; t.-h. > gen. and S.E. in mid-C.19; tuft is very ob. Ex the tuft or gold tassel worn on their caps by aristocratic students. Whence tuft-hunting: from 1780s; by 1850, S.E.—2. Female pubic hair: low coll.: later C.20. Clive James, Observer, 10 Feb. 1980, '[The Degas drawings] are all brothel scenes and show plenty of tuft.'

tug, n. A Colleger: Eton: since early C.19. Spy, 1825, has forms tug mutton, tug, mutton. P.B.: Andrew Sinclair, himself an Old Etonian, writes, in The World of the Public School, 1977, 'Collagers were called tugs—probably derived from the tug-meat or bad mutton which used to be their invariable diet.' This seems more likely than the etym. suggested by F. & H., 'from the toga worn by Collagers to distinguish them from the rest of the school.' Cf.:—2. At Winchester, as 'In Wykehamist parlance, he was a "tug", a clever chap' (Reginald Pound, A.P. Herbert, 1976, writing of the 1900s). Perhaps ex the dial. sense, where tug is to work hard, and (a) tug, arduous labour (EDD), or poss. connected with sense 1. (P.B.) But see tug, adj., 1.—3. An uncouth person; esp. if dirty and/or none too scrupulous: late C.19—early 20. Perhaps ex tug, adj.—4. An engined aircraft that tows glider-borne troops: since ca. 1941 or 1942: RAF coll. >, by July 1944, j. H. & P.—5. As Tug, the inevitable nickname of all men surnamed Wilson: Services': late C.19—earlier 20. 'Taffrail'; Granville, 'according to Naval tradition, [the name] commemorates Admiral of the Fleet, Sir Arthur K. Wilson, VC, whose original nickname was Chug.'—6. (Gen. pl.) A tug-of-war match: Harrovian coll.: late C.19—20. Arnold Lunn, 1913.—7. In have a tug, (of males) to masturbate: (low) Aus.: C.20. Alex Buzo, Norm and Ahmed, prod. 1968.—8. See AUSTRALIAN..., in Appendix.

tug, v. To eat (greedily): proletarian:—1923 (Manchon). Ex tugging with one's teeth.—2. See AUSTRALIAN..., in Appendix.

tug, adj. Stale, vapid; common, ordinary: Winchester: from ca. 1880. The origin is mysterious, unless perchance it is cognate with the dial. terms mentioned in tug, n., 1.—2. Whence tug-clothes, one's everyday clothes; tug-jaw, dull talk; and tugs, stale news.

Tug-Button Tuesday. See Pay-Off Wednesday.

tug-clothes and tug-jaw. See tug, adj., 2.

tug-mutton. A whoremonger: C.17. 'Water-Poet' Taylor. Ex mutton, q.v.—2. A glutton: provincial s.:—1847; ob. (Halliwell.) The rhyming is prob. accidental. Cf. tug, v., 1.—3. See tug, n., 1.

tug pilot. 'The pilot of the aeroplane towing a glider' (P-G-R): RAF coll.: ca. 1942–5. See tug, n., 4.

tugger. A participant in a tug-of-war: 1909 (OED): coll. >, by 1935, virtually S.E. Ex tug, v.i., to pull.

tuggery. College at Eton; esp. in try for tuggery, to try to pass on to the foundation at Eton as a King's Scholar: Eton:—1883 (Brinsley Richards, Seven Years at Eton). Ex tug, n., 1.—2. A var. of toggery.

tuggies. Clothes: market-traders': C.20. (M.T.) Ultimately ex togs, toggery, q.v. P.B.: ? blended with the idea of their being tugged on. See also tuggy.

tugging, n. Dealing cards from the bottom of the pack: Aus. card-players': since ca. 1920. B., 1953.

tuggy. A fireplace cloth: chimneysweeps': C.19. (G. Elson, The Last of the Climbing Boys, 1900.) Cf. toggy.

tugs. See tug, adj., 2 and n., 4.

tui. Tuition: Winchester: late C.19–20. Wrench. On remi.

tulip. A bishop's mitre, or the figure of one: from late 1870s; by 1930, coll. Ex the shape. OED.—2. In my tulip (H., 1st ed.), my fine fellow, it occurs mostly in go it, my tulip!, a London street c.p. of the 1840s–50s. F. & H.: 'An echo of the tulipomania of 1842'. See also my tulip, and tulips. Note, however, that tulip has since C.17 been used of a showy person; cf. e.g., Boxiana, IV, 1824, 'A small number of Swells, Tulips, and Downey-coves'; Ibid., 'Togged like a swelled tulip'. Punch, 14 Apr. 1860, has 'Motto for a "kiss".—go it, my two lips', with which cf. tulip-sauce.—3. A bomb dropped by Zeppelin: 1916–18. Ironic: 'planted'.

tulip-sauce. Kissing; a kiss: cheaply joc.: ca. 1900. Punning two lips.

tulips of the goes. 'Highest order of fashionables' (Sinks): ca. 1835–55. See tulip, 2.

tullibon. See toloben.

tum (1868, W.S. Gilbert); tum-tum (—1904). Variants of tummy, q.v.: coll., esp. nursery. (OED Sup.; F. & H.)

tum-hat. See tile.

tum-jack. The stomach: lower-middle-class: C.20. Edmund Crispin, Frequent Hearses, 1950, 'Upsets the old tum-jack to mix [drinks]'.

tum-tum. A dog-cart: Anglo-Indian: from ca. 1860; ob.—2. See tum.

tumbies. Ablutions: Oxford University: 1853 ('Cuthbert Bede'); ob. Ex tubbing (tub, v., 1).

tumble, n. A failure: c.: from ca. 1910. Gilt Kid, 1936.—2. Short for tumble down the sink, drink: from early C.20. Lester, 1937; F.D. Sharpe, 1938.—3. A rough sea: Aus. nautical: since ca. 1915. (Sydney Parkman, Captain Bowker, 1946.) Proleptic.—4. In give it a tumble, 'Try it; experiment with it' (Powis): coll.: later C.20. Var. of give it a whirl.—5. See do a spread; take a tumble.

tumble, v.i. To move stumbingly or hastily rush, roll along: late C.16–20; S.E. until C.19, then coll. Lever, 1843, 'Tumble into bed, and go to sleep as fast as you can' (OED). See also tumble in (v.) and tumble up.—2. To understand, perceive, something not obvious, something hidden; v.t. with to: low: from ca. 1845. Sessions, 1848; Mayhew, 1851, of long or highfalutin words, 'We can't tumble to that barrikin.' Either, as W. suggests, ex understumble, to understand, or perhaps, as the OED implies, ex tumble on, chance on (a thing).

—3. (Always tumble to.) Hence, to assent to, agree with, form a liking for: from early 1860s. Mayhew. Rather rare, and, after WW1, slightly ob.—4. (Of values, prices, stocks.) To fall rapidly in value: 1886 (OED): commercial s. >, ca. 1920, coll. Ex lit. sense ('fall to the ground').—5. Abbr. (C.20) of tumble down the sink, q.v. J. Phillips's Dict. of Rhyming Slang, 1931.—6. To confuse; to upset the balance: Aus. coll.: later C.20. McNeil.

tumble-a-bed. A chambermaid: a harlot: coll. (? C.18)—C.19. Ex v. phrase.

tumble along. See tumble, v., 1.

tumble-down. Grog: Aus.: ca. 1815–70. (Peter Cunningham, Two Years, 1827.) Proleptic.—2. Hence, alcoholic liquor: Aus.: since ca. 1870; ob. (B., 1942.) Cf. tumble down the sink.

Tumble-Down Dick. See Queen Dick, 3. Because Protector for less than a year. Dawson.

tumble down the sink. A drink; to drink: rhyming s.; late C.19–20. (B. & P.) See tumble, n., 2, and v., 5; cf. tumble-down.

tumble-in. An act of copulation; to copulate: low: C.19–20.—2. Also, to go to bed: coll.: from ca. 1840. Ex tumble into bed: see quot'n at tumble, v., 1.

tumble in the hay, n. A sexual serendipity; joie-de-vivre expressed in copulation: C.20. Orig. rural.

tumble to, v.i. To set-to vigorously: coll.: mid-C.19–20; slightly ob. See tumble, 1.—2. V.t., to understand: see tumble, v., 2.—3. See tumble, v., 3; take a tumble.

tumble to pieces. To be brought to bed with child and to be safely delivered of it: low: from ca. 1870. H., 5th ed.

tumble up. To rise in the morning: coll.: from ca. 1840. Prob. ex:—2. To come up on deck: nautical coll.: from late C.18. (W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, I, 8, 1825: Moe.) Ex tumble, v., 1. tumbler. A decoy for swindlers or card-sharpers: c.: C.17–early 19. (Jonson, 1601: OED) B.E.; Grose.) Prob. ex tumbler (dog), a lurcher.—2. A cart: c.: ca. 1670–1830. (Head, B.E., Grose.) Esp. in shove the tumbler, q.v. Ex a cart's lumbering motion + tumbriil.—3. One of a class or band of London street ruffians that set women on their heads: C.18: prob. s. > coll. >, by 1800, archaic S.E. Steele, 1712.—4. A worthless horse: the turf:—1890. Because it tumbles about; cf. screw, racing n.—5. A printing machine: printers': from ca. 1880; ob. B. & L. Ex 'the peculiar rocking motion [of the cylinder]'. tumbling down to grass, n. and adj. Breaking up, failing, going to the bad: non-aristocratic: 1884–ca.90. Ware 'From the fact of land going out of cultivation, 1875–85' (shades of 'Peter Porcupine').

tumlet. A tumbler (glass): domestic Anglo-Indian 'pidgin':—1886 (Y. & B.).

tummy. Stomach: coll.: 1868 (W.S. Gilbert: OED Sup.). Prob., orig., a children's corruption of stomach. Cf. tum and tum-tum.—2. Hence, tummy-tickling, copulation, and tummy-ache: the former s.; the latter, coll.—3. 'A chronic though perhaps slight abdominal pain' (Slang, p. 193): medical:—1933.

tumour. A term of abuse, ca. 1930–4, at several Public Schools. Ian Hay, Housemaster, 1936, 'Smear is the very latest word here. Last year it was tumour.'

tump. Rubbish; nonsense: from ca. 1930. D.L. Murray, The English Family Robinson, 1933, 'Did you ever read such tump as our parish magazine?' Perhaps ex tush + dump.

tun. A tippler: low: mid-C.19–early 20. Abbr. Lushington, q.v.; but also punning tun, a large cask.

Tunbridge Wells Fargos. 'Southern Railway old type Pullman trains' (McKenna, Glossary, 1970): railwaymen's joc.: mid-C.20. A pun on T.W. and the famous US carriers Wells Fargo.

tund; tunder; tunding. To beat (a boy) with a stick, as punishment (1871); he who does this (1876); such a beating (1872): Winchester School: from ca. 1870. Punch, ca. 1890, Confession by a Wykehamist, 'I like to be tunded twice a day,/And swished three times a week.' (Dates: OED.) Ex L. tundere, to beat.

tune; gen. tune up. To beat, thrash: from ca. 1780; C.19–20. Both slightly ob. Grose, 2nd ed., 'His father tuned him delightfully: perhaps from fetching a tune out of the person beaten, or... the disagreeable sounds on instruments when tuning.' It is, however, very much alive in S. Africa c. and low s.: 3 June 1946, Cape Times (article by Alan Nash), 'To hit back: Tune him, label him full of dents.'

tune-and-toe show. A musical song-and-dance entertainment, e.g. My Fair Lady; as in 'public money has for a long time now been subsidising tune-and-toe shows' (Guardian, 29 Jan. 1979).

tune (one's) pipes. (To begin) to weep or cry: Scots coll. and dial.: late C.18–20 (Jamieson; OED; EDD). Ex pipe, voice, and pipes, lungs.

tune the (old) cow died of, the. A grotesque or unpleasant noise: joc. coll.: 1836 (Marryat). Ex an old ballad. Apperson adduces Fuller's that is the old tune upon the bag-pipe, 1732.—2. Hence, advice or a homily instead of alms: from ca. 1880; ob. (F. & H.) In Aus., of has >, in later C.20, on (B.P., 1975).

tuney; gen. tuny. Melodious: coll.: 1885 (OED). Hence, tuniness: coll.: C.20. Both often pej.

tunioperty. See toonioperty.

Tunisgrad. The position the Germans ultimately found themselves in in Tunisia. (Tunisia + Stalingrad.): thus Peter Sanders, 1967, concerning the war in N. Africa: 1943.

tunk. To dip (e.g. bread) in a liquid (esp. gravy or tea or coffee): coll.: adopted, ca. 1944, from US servicemen. The US coll. tunk comes ex the synon. Pennsylvania Ger. dunken (past p., gedunk) a deviation from Ger. tunken. See also the more usu. dunk. Cf.:-

tunker. A street preacher: ca. 1850–1910. A corruption of Dunker, a German baptist.

tunnel, n. Synon. of tube, n., 9: since ca. 1961. Pix, 28 Sep. 1963.

tunnel, v.i.; go tunnelling. To catch partridges at night: poachers' c.: mid-C.19–20. 'No. 747'.

tunnel-grunters. Potatoes: low: late C.19–early 20. ? because so filling.

tunnel motor. '0–6–0 Pannier tank fitted with condensing apparatus for working over the Inner Circle and Metropolitan lines' (Railway, 2nd): London railwaymen's: since ca. 1950.

Tunnels, the. The Opéra-Comique Theatre: theatrical: 1885–ca. 1890. Ware, 'From the several subterranean passages leading to this underground theatre'. (It was 'swept away by Strand improvements'.)

tunny. See turnee.

tuny. See tuney.

tup, n. A young bullock: Smithfield and drovers' term, says H., 3rd ed.: an error that had disappeared by the 5th ed.—2. But a stray tup on the loose, a man questing for a woman, is s.:—1890 (B. & L.).—3. In venison out of Tup Park, mutton: s.: late C.17–mid-18. B.E.

tup, v. 'Butt, strike with the head' (M.T.): market-traders': C.20. Perhaps ex tup, the head of a steam-hammer.

tup, adj. Arrested; in gaol: low London, esp. in the Woolwich district:—1909 (Ware). I.e. 'locked up'.

tup-three. 'Drill instructors' pronunciation of two-three, the pause between the stages of a movement' (P-G-R.): army: since ca. 1880 (?).

tuppence. Twopence: C.17–20: S.E. until C.19, then coll. So the adj. tuppenny (with which cf. twopenny, q.v.).—2. Hence, in for tuppence, very easily: coll.: late C.19–20. R.H. Mottram, Bumphrey's, 1934, 'I'm all heavy with that stuff. I could go to sleep for tuppence.' Lit., very cheaply.

tuppence-ha'penny. A squadron-leader: RAF: ca. 1920–50. A pun on 'two-and-a-half ringer', ex his badge of rank.

tuppence on the can. Slightly drunk: lower classes': C.20. (Ernest Raymond, The Jesting Army, 1930.) Ex public-house j. tuppenny, n. See twopenny.

tuppenny-ha'penny. Inferior; insignificant: urban coll.:—1909 (Ware). The S.E. form (twopenny-halfpenny) is much earlier.

Tupper. 'A commonplace honest bore': Society coll.: ca. 1842–90. (Ware.) Ex the Proverbial Philosophy (1838–42; revised and augmented up till 1867) of Martin Tupper (1810–89).

tuppy. (Of an animal) worn out; almost worthless: Aus.: 1910 (A.H. Davis, On Our Selection). Origin?: possibly ex tuppenny.

Turbot. A Talbot car: Cambridge undergraduates': ca. 1925–40. Pun.

turd. A lump of excrement: C.11–20: S.E., but in mid-C.18–20 a vulgarity. Cuthbert Shaw, in his vigorous literary satire The Race, 1766, spells it t—d. Ex A.-S. tord, from a Germanic radical: cf. L. tordere. Hence C.19–20 low chuck a turd, to evacuate.—2. A term of contempt, as in 'You are a turd': S. African coll.: since ca. 1925. Cf. shit, 2, q.v. P.B.: also Brit., prob. for as long, if not longer.—3. In he will never shit a seaman's turd, he will never make a good seaman: nautical: late C.18–19. Grose, 3rd ed.—4. In not worth a turd, utterly worthless: C.13–20; in C.18–20, a vulgarism. Cf. the list at not worth a ..., q.v.

turd-burglar. An active male homosexual: army, low, Other Ranks': since mid-C.20 at latest. (P.B.)

turd for you!, a. 'Go to hell and stay there' (F. & H.): low: mid-C.19–20. Cf. the low turd in your teeth (Jonson, 1614; anticipated by Harman, 1567), and the late C.16 insult goodman Turd. See turd.

turd-walloper. A night-soil man: low: C.20.—2. Hence, a man on sanitary fatigue: military: from ca. 1910. B. & P. turds for dinner, there were four; gen. amplified thus: stir t., hold t., tread t., and must-t. 'To wit, a hog's face, feet, and chitterlings, with mustard' (Grose, 3rd ed.): a low late C.18—early 19 rebus-c.p.

turf, n. The cricket pitch, the field being long grass: Winchester School: from ca. 1860.—2. (Always with o or the.) The cricket field: Felsted School: from 1870s. The Felstedian, Nov. 1881, 'There are (or were) six cricket pitches on turf.'—3. Prostitution: low: ca.1870–1905. Ware, 'From loose women being on parade'. Cf. on the turf, adj. and adv. applied, from ca. 1860, to a harlot: low (H., 2nd ed.); and turfer, a harlot: low: ca. 1875–1910.—4. A kick; to kick: Charterhouse: late C.19–20.—5. One's own home territory: police s., and c.: later C.20. 'What are you doing at seven o'clock in the morning so far from your turf?' (Clement & La Frenais, Going Straight, 1978). Cf. patch, manor, bailiwick.

turf, v. To send (a boy) to bed at bed-time: Derby School: from ca. 1880. Cf. turf out, q.v.—2. To chastise: Marlborough School: from ca. 1880.—3. As exclam. or imperative, used by senior to junior schoolfellow: 'You have been turfed off from doing that, because I, your senior, say so and want it!': Public and Grammar Schools' s.: later C.20. Lambert & Millham, quoted in Sunday Times, 'Atticus', 1 Sep. 1968. Cf. n., 4.—4. (Also turf up.) To throw up—abandon—a job: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Cf. pack it up and turn it in.—5. See-turf it. To sleep on the ground with a tent-like canvas covering: 1883 (James Greenwood, Odd People); ob. by 1919, virtually † by 1940.

turf it! Stow it!; Be quiet!: Aus.: since ca. 1930. (B.P.) Cf. turf, v., 3, and-turf off. To remove, either by orders or bodily, someone from somewhere; e.g. 'The RSM turfed him off the square very smartly—his feet didn't touch!', or '... off his bed [where he had been lying on top of it]': coll.: C.20. (P.B.) Cf.:-

turf out. To kick out; to expel: from ca. 1912. (Manchon.) Ex turf, n., 4, and v.—2. Hence, to throw away or out, to discard: coll.: since ca. 1920. 'I've turfed out all that old rubbish from your cupboard.' Also Aus. (B., 1953).

turfer. See turf, n., 3.

Turk. 'An ill-natured surly boorish fellow' (P.W. Joyce, English ... in Ireland, 1910); Anglo-Irish: late C.19–20. Cf. Toby, 12, q.v.—2. A turkey: Aus.: C. 20. (B., 1942.) Cf. similarly shortened donk and monk.—3. See Cape Turk; Turks.

turk, v. (Properly T-.) Of the male, to copulate with, orig. esp. if brutally: C.20—but prob. going back a generation or two longer. Cf. Cape Turk, q.v. I suspect influence from synon. firk, itself prob. orig. euph. A printed ref. occurs in Bill Naughton, One Small Boy, 1966 (L.A.). Powis, 1977, writes, of turking: 'Low expression for sexual intercourse, not used in mixed company.'

turkey. A Royal Marine; orig. esp. RM Light Infantryman: RN: since ca. 1870. 'Taffrail'; Granville, 'because of his one-time red tunic.' Cf. Jolly.—2. A tramp's swag: Aus.; in Can., a lumberman's bag: C.20. B., 1943; John Beames.—3. 'A disaster or resounding failure' (Powis): orig. US theatrical, since ca. 1944 (W. & F.), > gen.; adopted in UK later C.20. Felton & Fowler, Most Unusual, 1975.—4. See Church of Turkey; head over turkey; talk turkey; cold turkey.

turkey-buyer. A 'toff' (sense 1), a banker, an important person: Leadenhall Market: late C.19—early 20. Ware, turkey-merchant. A driver of turkeys: late C.17—mid-18. (B.E.) A pun on Turkey merchant, one trading with Turkey (and/or the Levant).—2. Hence, a poulticer: mid-C.18—mid-19, though it survived till ca. 1880 (see H., 1st–5th edd.). Grose, 1st ed.—3. Ex senses 1, 2: a chicken-thief: c.: 1837 (Disraeli, Venetia); ob.—4. A dealer in contraband silk: c.:—1839 (Brandon). Cf. origin of sense 1.—5. An 'extensive financier in scrip—a City plunger': London-financial: from ca. 1875; ob. Ware.

'Because it requires more than twopence to buy gobblers'. turkey-cock. See red as a turkey ...

turkey off. To decamp: Aus. and NZ: C.20. B.; E.P.

turkeys. See driving turkeys ...

Turkish. Turkish tobacco: 1898.—2. Turkish delight: 1901 (Fergus Hume: OED). Both coll.

Turkish medal. A button undone or showing on one's fly: Eastern Front military: WW1. (B. & P.) After Abyssinian medal.

Turkish Shore, the. Lambeth, Southwark, and Rotherhithe: low London: late C.17—early 19. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) Ex the barbarous treatment likely to be had there: cf. S.E. Turkish treatment, sharp dealing, and young Turk.

Turks. The Irish: Teddy-boys': mid-C.20. (Observer, 1 Mar. 1959.) Cf. Turk, n., 1, q.v.

Turl, the. Turl Street, Oxford: Oxford undergraduates': late C.19–20. Cf. the Broad.

turn, n. A hanging from the gallows: rare coll.: C.17–18. (Shakespeare in Measure for Measure, IV, ii, 62; 'Hudibras' Butler.) Abbr. turn-off. Not c., as F. & H. states; the OED considers it S.E.—2. A momentary nervous shock of fear or other emotion: coll. (nowadays rather proletarian,—not that it's the worse for that!): 1846, Dickens, 'What a hard-hearted monster you must be, John, not to have said so, at once, and saved me such a turn.' Ex turn, an attack of illness or faintness.—3. An act of copulation: low: C.19–20. (Cf. C.17 S.E. turn-up, a whore.) 'Hence,' says F. & H., 'to take a turn (or to turn a woman up)=to copulate: see ride: also to take a turn among the cabbages, up one's petticoats (or among one's frills), in Abraham's bosom, in Love Lane, Bushey Park, Cock Alley, Cupid's Alley, Cupid's corner, Hair Court, on Mount Pleasant, among the parsley, through the stubble, or a turn on one's back (of women)'; the Cupid phrases may be literary euphemisms; Bushey Park and Mount Pleasant are confined to London. P.B.: cf. the C.20 simple do a turn, (of girls) to coit, esp. without fuss: s. >, by 1940, coll. M.C.P. loq.: 'Yes, nice kid—does she do a turn?'—4. A party, whether formal or informal: Aus.: since mid-C.20, prob. earlier. Alex Buzo, Rooted, prod. 1969: 'BENTLEY: How do you think the turn went?—GARY: It was a beauty. Best house-warming party I've been to.' Buzo also records it in his glossary to Three Plays, 1973. See turn it on, 1, for poss. orig.

turn, v. In many prepositional compounds: see below.

turn a horse inside out. To school (a bucking horse) by 'slinging up one of [his] legs, and lunging him about severely in heavy ground': Aus. coll.: ca. 1850–80. (The Rev. J.D. Mereweather, 1859.) Morris at buck-jumping.

turn an honest penny. To be a pimp, a harlot's bully: low:—1923 (Manchon). Ironic.

turn cat in the pan. See cat in the pan.

turn Charlie or Charley. See charley, adj.

turn (one's) coat. To desert one's cause or party for another: mid-C.16–19: coll. >, by 1800, S.E. Hence turn-coat, a traitor.

turn copper. To inform the police: c.: C.20. (David Hume.) Cf. copper, v., and come copper. Cf.:-

turn cur. To turn informer or King's (or Queen's) evidence: c.: mid-C.19—early 20. (Baumann.) Cf.:-

turn dog. To inform to the police: Aus.: mid-C.19–20, but ob. by 1930. (Edward Dyson, The Gold Stealers, 1901.) P.B.: but dog is extant as 'informer': see dog, n., 11, and tuckerbox. Cf. prec., perhaps the orig.

turn down. To toss off (a drink): coll.: from ca. 1760; very ob. (Henry Brooke.) Lit., turn it down one's throat.—2. To reject (an application); curtly say no to (a request, suggestion, invitation); refuse to accept (a suitor for one's hand): US (from ca. 1890), anglicised, esp. in the Dominions, ca. 1900. P.B.: by 1980, coll., verging on informal S.E.

turn-in, n. A night's rest: coll.: from ca. 1830 (OED). Earlier naval use, in Bill Truck, 1826, for a sleep, esp. between watches. Ex:-

turn in, v. To go to bed: 1695 (Congreve): coll., nautical till mid-C.19, then gen. A nautical example occurs in Dublin University Magazine, Mar. 1834, p. 244 (Moe). Ex turning into one's hammock. Cf. turn out, v.—2. V.t. To abandon, to desist from doing: C.20. ? ex turn (i.e. hand) in one's resignation, where turn in may represent yet a third sense: coll. and dating from late C.19. Cf. turn up, v., 1, q.v., and next.—3. To bring (someone) before the Officer Commanding: army: since ca. 1930. Ex underworld. P-G-R.

turn it in. To die: Services': since 1914. (F. & G.) Ex prec., 2.—2. In imperative, it = turn it up (see turn up, v., 1) = Shut up!: C.20. See prec., 2.

turn it on. To provide, to pay for, drinks, esp., to give a party: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.—2. To fight—to begin to fight—with one's fists: Aus.: since ca. 1920. Baker.—3. (Of a woman) to agree to coit: Aus. low: since ca. 1920. (Baker.) Cf. do a turn at turn, n., 3.—4. To enliven, as in 'I think the game is strong enough to stand a disappointing world championship. And, anyway, you know something will happen... Somebody's going to go out there and turn it on' (quot'n in article by Gordon Burn on World Snooker, in Listener, 28 Apr. 1983, p.8).

turn it up. See turn up, v., and:- turn it up at that! All right, you may knock off now and call it a day: RN c.p.: since ca. 1925. (P-G-R.) Granville, 'Often shortened to "Turn it up", the phrase comes from the turning up of a rope when belaying. "Turn it up at that" would mean that, technically, the rope could be made fast at that point.'

turn milky. See milky, adj., 2, and cf. turn Charlie.

turn-off, n. Opp. of turn-on, 3; as in 'Nor will [young] students be impressed by smartness. Nylon shirts and string vests are the biggest turn-offs' (Simon Thirsk, Guardian, 27 Apr. 1979): adopted, early 1970s, ex US. Ex:-

turn off, v. To disgust; esp. in ppl adj., turned off: adopted, ca. 1960, ex US. (DCCU; Hollander; W. & F.) Prompted by turn on, to exhilarate.

turn-on, n. A 'gag' or joke, a bogus jazz conversation intended to shock 'square' tourists: Can. jazz musicians' and lovers': since ca. 1956. Victoria, BC, Daily Colonist, 16 Apr. 1959, 'Basic Beatnik'.—2. An exhilarating or exciting or inspiring person or thing: adopted, ca. 1970, ex US. Hollander.—3. An exciting or exhilarating or inspiring experience: id. (W. & F.) By specialisation, 'a single particular drug occasion' (Home Office, which lists also turning on for this nuance). Cf. v., 2 and 3.

turn on, v. To put (a person) to do something: coll.: since early 1890s.—2. To inspire (someone): Can. jazz musicians' and lovers': since ca. 1955. (Victoria, BC, Daily Colonist, 16 Apr. 1959, 'Basic Beatnik'.) Esp., to excite, to thrill—a nuance that, ca. 1956, > popular among English teenagers, and thence, gen. Also as v.i., as in 'More and more teen-agers are turning on with alcohol' (Maclean's, 17 May 1976: Leechman): Can. and Brit. Prob. suggested by turning on a light (P.B.). Nigel Dempster, 'The Ins and Outs of our Social Minefield', Telegraph Sunday Mag., 11 Mar. 1979, lists turn on as 'out' [= old-fashioned]—presumably he meant this sense.—3. A specialisation of sense 2 as v.i. is 'to smoke a Marijuana cigarette' (Home Office): drugs world: 1970s. Cf.:—4. To introduce to drugs; to supply with a drug; drug addicts' and hippies': since ca. 1961. Peter Fryer, in Observer colour sup., 3 Dec. 1967.

turn on a cabbage-leaf. (Of a horse) to respond promptly to guidance: Aus. coll.: C.20. (Baker.) P.B.: cf. the Brit. version, as in, e.g. 'London taxis'll turn on a sixpence'.

turn on the main. To weep: 1837 (Dickens: OED); 'Cuthbert Bede', in Verdant Green, 'You've no idea how she turned on the main and did the briny.' Cf. turn on the water-tap(s) or waterworks, q.v. at water works, 2.

turn-out, n. An interval: theatrical coll.: 1851, Mayhew, 'The 'Delphi was better than it is. I've taken 3s. at the first turn-out!'—2. A fight with fists: Sessions, Dec. 1816, p. 43—and still extant, mid-C.20.—3. A suit of clothes, as in 'a smart turn-out': late C.19–20. Perhaps orig. RN lowerdeck (Knock). P.B.: the phrase 'a smart turn-out' may also be applied to, e.g., a vehicle, horse-drawn or mechanical: 'There will be a prize for the smartest turn-out'; by later C.20 coll., and verging on informal S.E. in, e.g., Service orders, 'A high standard of turn-out is expected.'

turn out, v.i. To rise from bed: coll.: 1805 (W. Irving: OED); R.H. Dana, 1840, 'No man can be a sailor... unless he has lived in the fo'castle with them, turned in and out with them.' Prob. suggested by turn in, 1, q.v.—2. To become a bushranger: Aus. coll.: ca. 1830–1900. B., 1942.—3. V.t., as in turn out one's hand, to show it, esp. at cards: coll.—1904 (F. & H.). Ex turn out, to empty (e.g. one's pockets).

turn out no bottle. See bottle, n., 6.

turn over, n. 'A book to dip into rather than read': journalistic coll.: 1885 (Saturday Review, 26 Dec.) but Ware dates it from 1880.—2. 'A transference of votes from one party to another': political: 1895 (OED).—3. (Also as v.) A search of one's cell or belongings: prisons': since ca. 1920. (Jim Phelan, 1940; Norman.) Cf. turned over, 3, q.v.—4. Robbery from an accomplice one has just done a 'job' with: c.: since ca. 1945. Frank Norman, Encounter, 1959.

turn over, v. To raid (a building): Aus. police: C.20. (Vince Kelly, The Shadow, 1955.) Cf. prec., 3.—2. To cross-question, examine severely: c.:—1930 (OED Sup.).—3. To set upon and beat up: teenage gangsters': since ca. 1950. Observer, 15 July 1962, reporting a fight between the 'Mussies' (Muswell Hill) and the Finchley Mob.—4. See turned over. (mus) (oneself) round. To get used to one's job; to learn one's trade or profession: coll.: C.19. (Wm Maginn, Tales of Military Life, 1829, III, 126: Moe.) Claiborne adds, 1976, 'As a dog does before settling down in a new resting place.'

turn-round pudding. Porridge or a 'slop' pudding much stirred: lower-classes' coll.:—1909 (Ware). Cf. stir-about pudding.

turn stag. See stag, n., 1.

turn the corner. (Gen. as vbl. n. turning...) To round the Grand Banks on the trans-Atlantic passage: nautical coll.: C.20. Bowen.

turn the hands on (someone's) dial. To disfigure that person's face: low: ca. 1830–1910. Punning dial, face and clock.

turn the tap on. 'To be ready with tears': lower-class urban: 1883 (Daily Telegraph, 8 Feb.: Ware). Cf. turn on the main or waterworks.

turn (one's) toes up. To die: 1860, Reade, 'Several arablesties turned their toes up.' But the longer turn up (one's) toes to the daisies had already been used by Barham, 1842. See daisies.

turn-up, n. A contest, a match, e.g. at boxing or wrestling: early and mid-C.19. Blackwood's, July 1823, 'Idyl' (Moe).—2. A sudden departure: low: mid-C.19—early 20. (H., 1st ed.) Prob. ex v., 2.—3. 'An unexpected slice of luck' (H., 5th ed.): racing coll. >, in C.20, S.E.: from ca. 1870. Ex turn up lucky.—4. An acquittal: c.: from ca. 1820. Ex v., 3. Ware.—5. A (slight) quarrel, a 'tiff': Society: ca. 1890–1920. (E.F. Benson, The Osbornes, 1910.) Perhaps ex sense 1.—6. Short for turn-up for the book. Clement & La Frenais, A Further Stir of Porridge, 1977.

turn up, v.t. To renounce, abandon (person or thing), cease dealing with (a tradesman), 'throw up' (a job): from ca. 1620: S.E. until C.19, then s. Vaux; Holten, 1859, 'I intend turning it up, i.e. leaving my present abode or altering my course of life.' Frequently turn it up! = 'oh!, stop that', 'stop doing that' or 'talking'.—2. Whence, v.i., to quit, to abscond, to run away: low:—1859. H., 1st ed., "'Ned has turned up," i.e. run away.' Esp., to throw up one's job. (Gen. in passive.)—3. To acquit, discharge or release (an accused or imprisoned person): low s. or, more prob. (at first, anyway), c.: from ca. 1810. (Vaux.) Ex S.E. turn up, to turn (esp. a horse) loose. Still current in Aus. c., later C.20 (McNeil).—4. To stop and search; to arrest (a criminal): c.: from ca. 1850. (H., 3rd ed.) Cf. turned over, 3. Perhaps ironic ex sense 3.—5. To chastise: Marlborough School: from ca. 1880. Ex lit. sense, the punishment being on the posteriors.—6. To hand out a share of stolen goods: c.: mid-C.19—early 20. 'No. 747'.—7. See crabs, 5.

turn up a trump. To have a piece of monetary luck: coll.:—1812 (Vaux). Cf. turn-up, n., 3, and trumps.

turn-up for the book, a. 'Ex racing parlance: a surprise result'; hence, more widely, 'an unexpected happening' (Granville, letter, 1969): in gen. s., since late 1940s. Cf. turn-up, n., 3. The notebook in which bets are recorded. As an underworld c.p. what a turn-up for the book! was in use by 1932 (Arthur Gardner, Tinker's Kitchen). The simple phrase is usu. (Well, there's a real (or a right) turn-up...; and for the book may sometimes, in later C.20, be omitted (P.B.).

turn up sweet. As in to turn up a flat sweet, to leave a 'pigeon' in good humour after 'plucking' him: c.: from ca. 1810. Vaux.

turn up the wick. To open the throttle: RAF: since ca. 1920. Cf. go through the gate. Partridge, 1945, 'It's an easy transition from getting a better light to getting a better speed.' Since 1945, esp. of a jet engine. P.B.: 'Oh, the wick blew out' is an occ. joc. ref. to jet-engine failure, among e.g. airline passengers stranded by such a mishap: later C.20. Also joc. coll. applied to motor vehicles: 'Mark Hebden', Dark Side of the Island, 1973, 'Things do [fall off] when you turn the wick up', with ref. to an old car.

turn up (one's) toes. See turn (one's) toes up.

turn you inside out like a tiger, I'll. A threat to a naughty child, 'If you don't behave, I'll...': C.20. (Peter Reynolds.) Presumably from the striped effect that would result.

turnabout. Sodomy: Aus. low coll.: C.20. McNeil.

turned. Converted to an honest life: (prison) c.: from ca. 1870.

turned off. Married: Society: ca. 1880–1914. Maxwell Gray, The Great Refusal, 1906.—2. See turn off, v.

turned-on, adj. Having taken an exhilarating drug, esp. marijuana; hence, aware, 'with it': drug addicts', beatniks', hippies': since early 1960s (Peter Fryer, Observer colour sup., 3 Dec. 1967); also common among teenagers, and by 1970, gen. Cf.—2. Hence, 'Aroused by music or by sexual overtures. Can be used in female company' (Powis): 1970s. Cf. bring on; switched on.

turned over, be. To be transferred from one ship to another: naval coll.: late C.18—mid-(? late) 19. W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book (I, 124), 1825 (Moe).—2. To be acquitted for lack of evidence: c.: from ca. 1820. Cf. turn up, v., 3, q.v.—3. Whence, to be remanded: c.: from ca. 1830.—4. 'To be stopped by the police and searched' (F. & H.): c.: from ca. 1850. H., 1st ed.; Horsley, Jottings from Jail, 1877, 'What catch would it be if you was to turn me over?' Exactly a century later, Powis has: 'A house search or a search in the street of a person or vehicle: "My motor was turned over by the Law today".' See turn-over, n., 3, and cf. turn up, v., 4. turnee or tunny. An English supercargo: Anglo-Indian: mid-C.19–20. B. & L., 'Sea-Hindu, and prob. a corruption of attorney.'

turner out. A coiner of base money: c.—1859 (H., 1st ed.) Ex turn out, to produce, to manufacture.

turning-tree. A gallows: either c. (F. & H.), s., or even coll.: ca. 1540–1660. Hall, in his chronicle of Henry VIII, ca. 1548, 'She and her husband... were apprehended, arraigned, and hanged at the foresaid turnyng tree.' Cf. later S.E. turn off, to hang.

turnip. A watch: (? s. >) coll.: from early C.19. In W.N. Glascock, Sailors and Saints, 1829, glossed as simply 'a watch' (Moe); but by 1840, it meant an old-fashioned, thick, silver watch (E. Fitzgerald: OED). Ex its resemblance to a small turnip. In Anglo-Irish, it means—since ca. 1920, at least—a five-shilling Ingersoll. Also called a frying-pan; cf. warming-pan, 2. Cf. also turnip-tops.—2. An affectionate term of address, gen. old turnip: coll.: early C.20. (Manchon.) Cf. old bean, old fruit.—3. In (one's) head to a turnip, a fanciful bet: late C.17–19. (Motteux's Rabelais, V, ii.) Cf. (all) Lombard Street to a China orange.—4. In tickle (one's) turnip, to thrash on the buttocks: late C.16—mid-17. There is a pun on turn-up. (OED.) Cf. turnips, 1.

turnip-bashing. A var. of swede-bashing, q.v.: RAF: 1940+ (Partridge, 1945.) In the King's Royal Rifle Corps, however, turnip-bashing is ordinary drill and turnip-bashers is the name for County regiments, both because they are regarded as country bumpkins and because they bang their rifles on the ground, whereas the KRRC put theirs down quietly. (Peter Chamberlain, letter, 1942.)

turnip-pate, -pated. White- or very fair-haired: coll.: late C.17–18 (B.E.); late C.18–20 (Grose, 1st ed.); ob. Ex colour. turnip-tops, cut. To steal a watch with its chain and adjuncts: c.:—1887 (Baumann). Ex turnip, 1.

turnips. In give turnips; get or (k)nap i.: to abandon (a person), heartlessly or unscrupulously; to be thus abandoned: c. (—1812) >, ca. 1830, low s.; extremely ob. Vaux (give and nap). Punning turn-up in its lit. sense: cf. turnip, 4, q.v.—2. Whence to get turnips, to be jilted: from ca. 1830. On Suffolk dial., give, or get, cold turnips, to jilt, be jilted.—3. See straight off the turnips.

turnpike-man. 'A parson, because the clergy collect their tolls at our entrance into and exit from the world' (Grose, 1st ed.): ca. 1780–1850.

turnpike-sailor. A beggar pretending to be a distressed sailor: tramps' c.: ca. 1835–1900. Brandon, 1839; Mayhew, 1851; H., 5th ed., 'A sarcastic reference to the scene of their chief voyages'.—2. Hence, 'any lubberly seaman': nautical: from ca. 1890; ob. Bowen.

turnups is a var. (Ware) for turnips, 2.

Turpentine, the. The Serpentine: Cockney rhyming s.: C.20. Often—cf. turps—reduced to the Turps. Franklyn, Rhyming.—2. See talk turpentine.

turpin. A kettle: Yorkshire s.:—1847 (Halliwell; EDD). ? ex Dick Turpin.

turps. Turpentine: from ca. 1820: coll., workmen's and painters' >, ca. 1880, gen. (e.g. photographers' and housewives'). By abbr.; -s, collective. (OED.) Contrast terps.—2. Beer: Aus.: since ca. 1935. (B.P.)—3. 'Any alcoholic drink. Whence, be on the turps and get on the turps' (B., 1959): Aus.: since late 1930s.

turret down, esp. get... See hull down.

turret rat. 'A sweeper in a ship's turret' (Bowen); Turret sweeper in a tramp steamer (Granville): nautical: C.20.

turtle. Turtle-soup: restaurant and hotel staffs' coll.:—1887 (Baumann).—2. A girl, a young woman, esp. regarded sexually; a (young) prostitute: Aus. low: C.20. (B., 1942.) Ex the billing-and-cooing of turtle-doves. But more prob. ex the tortoise-like creature: 'A turtle on its back is not unlike a girl in the same position, and they are both in a vulnerable state', as a shrewd observer has remarked.

turtle dove. 'Love. A term of endearment as in, "me ole turtle dove!" and probably inspired by the opening lines of the still popular song "Lily of Laguna" [written and composed by Leslie Stuart, i.e. Thomas A. Barrett; pub. 1898]' (David Hillman, 1974): rhyming s. (Mrs C. Raab: 'O fare thee well, my little turtle dove' is the first line of a well-known Eng. folksong—the term is prob. very old).—2. See—turtle doves. (A pair of) gloves: rhyming s.—1857 ('Ducange Anglicus'). Also turtles. P.H. Emerson, in Signor Lippo Lippi, 1893, 'A long-sleeve cadi on his napper, and a pair of turtles on his martins finished him.' Powis, 1977, notes 'commoner than may be expected, used to refer to housebreakers' and safe-cutters' gloves.'

turtle-frolic. A feast of turtle: coll.: 1787 (OED). Ob.; never gen.

turtle-soup. Sheep's-head broth: workmen's:—1909 (Ware). Cf. City sherry.

turtles. See turtle doves.

tush or tosh. A half-crown: mostly showmen's: C.20. (Night and Day, 22 July 1937.) Ex tosheroon and tusheroon. —2. Money: Cockneys': late C.19–20. J.W. Horsley, I Remember, 1912.

tusheroon. A crown piece (5s.): low London:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Also called a bull or a cart-wheel, ex its size. But H. errs. I believe: he should mean half-a-crown, for tusheroon and its C.20 var. tossaroon (2s. 6d.) are manifest corruptions of Lingua Franca madza caroon.

tushery. Deliberate archaism or 'Wardour Street English': since late 1940s. (P.B.; 1975.) Ex archaic S.E. tush!, nonsense, Cf. the use of archaic pshaul! tuskin. 'A country carter or ploughman' (Grose, 1st ed.): either c. or provincial s.: ca. 1780–1840. Cognate with, possibly ex, dial. tush, the broad part of a ploughshare, and tush, v.t., to drag or trail (EDD).

tussies. See pussies.

tussle. To argue (v.i.): coll. (—1859) >, somewhere about 1890, S.E. (H., 1st ed.) Ex tussle, to struggle.

tussocker. A sundowner (q.v.): NZ: from mid-1880s; slightly ob. (V. Pyke, 1889, in Wild Will Enderby: Morris). Prob. because he loitered in the tussocks, till dusk (perhaps also operative).

tut-mouthed. See EPITHETS, in Appendix.

Tutbury Jinnie. 'Passenger train between Tutbury and Burton on Trent' (Railway, 2nd): railwaymen's: since ca. 1930 (?).

tute (loosely written tut). A tutorial: universities': C.20. Marples, 2.

tutoring. 'Trench-instruction to new troops' (B. & P.): 1915–18: army coll. verging on j.

tuts. Articles; possessions; 'bits and bobs'; as in 'Get your tuts together': market-traders': C.20. (M.T.) Perhaps a var. of synon. duds.

Tuttle; Tuttle Nask. The bridewell in Tuttle Fields (London): resp. C.19, late C.17–19. See nask, a prison. ('Closed in 1878', F. & H.)

tux. A tuxedo or dinner-jacket: Aus.: adopted, ca. 1945, ex US. (B.P.) For tuxedo, see esp. my Name into Word, 1949.

tuz I. 'Bags!', 'Fainits!', qq.v.: Felsted School: mid-C.19–20. Perhaps ex (to) touse, for cf. dial. tuzel, tuzzle, to touse (EDD).

fuzzy-muzzy; occ. tuzzi-muzzi (or as one word). The female pudend: from ca. 1710: (low) s. >, early in C.19, dial. (Ned Ward, 1711; Bailey; Grose, 2nd ed.; Halliwell.) Ex t.-m., a posy, nose-gay, or garland. OED; F. & H.

twachel, -il, -yile; twachel. The pudend: mid-C.17–early 19. App. a diminutive of twat, q.v., influenced by twachylle = twitchel, a passage.

twack. 'To examine goods and buy nothing' (L.E.F. English, Historic Newfoundland, 1955): Newfoundland coll.: C.19–20. Ex East Anglian dial. twack, 'to turn quickly; to change one's mind' (EDD).

twaddle, n. (S. of ca. 1783–5 for) 'perplexity, confusion, or anything else' (Grose, 2nd ed.); earliest in Grose, 1st ed., in the Preface. Ex twaddle, prosy or gabbling nonsense,—itself recorded only in 1782 (OED) and prob. ex twattle, idle talk. Cf. bore, n., which it for a while succeeded.—2. 'A diminutive person': ca. 1820–80. F. & H., the sole authority.? cognate with dial. tuaddle, to walk feebly.

twaddle, v.i. To trifle: coll.: ca. 1770–1840. 'I have been twaddling enough to cut several slips from the most sacred laurus' (Earl of Mornington, letter of 15 Feb. 1791; in the Fortescue Manuscripts). Prob. ex the n.

twaddy is a slang term fashionable in the 1780s: ? 'characterized by twaddle'. In The New Vocal Enchantress, 1791, occurs on p. 32, a 'Song' beginning thus:

Hey for buckish words, for phrases we've a passion, Immensely great and little once, were all the fashion:
Hum'd, and then humbugg'd, twaddy, tippy, proz,
All have had their day, but now must yield to quoz.

twait. See twat.

twam or twammy. The female pudend: low: C.20. Perhaps a blend of 'twat' + 'quim', qq.v. cf. synon. twim.

twang, n. Opium: Aus. c.: since late C.19. Wilkes.

twang, v. To coit with (a woman): c.: C.17–18. Baumann. twanged. See twanging, 2.

twanger. Anything very fine or (e.g. a lie) large: dial. and s.: from ca. 1870; very ob. as s. For semantics, cf. twanging entries.

twang(e)y. A tailor: N. Country: ca. 1780–1850. (Grose, 1st ed.)? a musical pun, or a phonetic relative of stang (e)y, q.v. twanging. Excellent: coll.: 1609 (Jonson: OED); † by 1700. Cf. twanger and:—2. In go off twanging, to go well: C.17 coll., as is as good as ever twanged, as good as may be: resp. Massinger and Ray. The latter phrase, with complementary the worst that ever twanged, arose, however, ca. 1540. Cf. go off with a bang of a great success.

twank. The quarry of a homosexual prostitute (male); a man willing and ready to become any dominant man's 'partner': 1920s; prob. also 1930s. J.R. Ackerley, My Father and Myself, 1968; he also says that it has, since 1930, been common among Guardsmen. P.B.:? ex Widow Twankey, a pantomime 'dame' part played 'in drag'.

twankey. Gin: from late 1890s: tea-trade. Ex twankey, green tea. OED.

twat; in C.18, occ. twait. (In C.20 also pron. twot.) The female pudend: mid-C.17–20: perhaps always a vulgarism; certainly one in C.18–20; very far from being †. R. Fletcher, 1656; Tom Brown, ca. 1704 (OED); Bailey; Browning, in 'Pippa Passes', by a hairraising misapprehension—the literary world's worst 'brick'. Origin obscure, but cf. twachylle = twitchel, a passage, and dial. twatch, to mend a gap in a hedge.—2. Pej. term for a fool: low: since late C.19. Abusive: 'You stupid twat!'; cf. synon. use of cunt, pratt; and the Liverpool street arabs' use of the word, contemptuously, for an idler, a loafer (Arab). P.B.: I have heard twat defined, joc., as 'the back-end of a tram'.

twat-faker. A prostitute's bully: c.:—1923 (Manchon).

twat(-)hooks. Fingers; hence, loosely, hands: low: since ca. 1950. (Heard on BBC, 18 Jan. 1973.) Cf. synon. cunt-hooks.

twat-masher. Low s. var. of twat-faker (Ibid.).

twat-rug. 'The female pubic hair' (F. & H.): low:—1904.

twat-scourer. A surgeon; a doctor: low s. (not a vulgarism, this): C.18. Bailey, 1727 (t.-scowerer). See twat, 1.

twatchel. See twachel.

twattle; twatting, ppl adj. To sound; sounding: a vulgarism: C.17–18. (Florio, 1611, the adj.; Cotton, 1664, the v.) Ex twattle, to talk idly, to babble.—2. Whence twatting strings, a vulgarism for the sphincter ani: mid-C.17–18. Implied in Cotton (as above). OED.

twreak, tweake, C.17 only. A whore: C.17–18. Middleton, 1617. Ex twreak, a twitch, or the v.—2. A whoremonger: ? C.18–early 19. Halliwell.—3. An adept at sport: Shrewsbury School: from ca. 1885. Desmond Coke, The Bending of a Twig, 1906.—4. See demon twreak.

twreak, v. 'To hit with a missile from a catapult': 1898, Kipling 'Corkran... "tweaked" a frisky heifer on the nose' (OED). Ex next, 1.—2. 'An expression often used to describe opening the throttle-twistgrip [of a motorcycle]... to decelerate is "to tweak it off"' (Dunford): motorcyclists': later C.20. Cf. demon twreak, q.v.

tweaker; occ. tweeker. A catapult: from early 1880s. Ex S.E. (to) tweak, to snatch and pull sharply.—2. (Also tweeker.) A leg-break spinner: cricketers': from ca. 1932. The Times, 6 July 1937, 'R.C.M. Kimpton came on with his "tweakers" at the Nursery end'.

twee. Dainty; chic; pleasing: coll.: 1905 (SOD); ob. Ex tweet, affected or childish sweet: coll.: late C.19–20.—2. '(Of men) pernickety over standard of neatness; concerned over niceties; suspected of disdain for run of the mill standards' (L.A., 1974): coll.: since mid-C.20—3. Hence, applied to artistic effort, the term has developed, since WW2, an undertone of slight contempt, for finickiness, or over-daintiness, as in TLS, 14 Feb. 1975, 'Commentary', on Laurence Housman's illustrations: 'They are neatly and coolly executed, though there are a few lapses into the twee' (P.B.).

tweedle. 'A Brummagam ring of good appearance used for fraudulent purposes' (F. & H.): c.: late C.19–20.—2. Hence, a trick involving dummy diamonds: c.: C.20. "'A bloke's tried to pull a tweedle on me with a load of jargoons'" (John Gosling, The Ghost Squad, 1959). Also as the tweedle, the selling of 'dud' diamonds (F.D. Sharpe, The Flying Squad, 1938.) There is prob. no connection with S.E. tweedle; tweedle is a var. of twiddle, cognate with twist, and there is perhaps a humorous side-glance at weedle. Cf. jargon.

tweedledum sir. (Gen. pl.) A musical composer made baronet or knight: Society: ca. 1860–90. Ware. Cf. gallipot baronet.

tweedler, agent, and tweedling, activity, can be applied to 'the tweedle', 2. Usu., however, a tweedler is a very minor, petty sort of 'con man'. John Gosling, 1959, 'The tweedler will flog you sawdust cigarettes or dummy diamond rings'—a nuance dating, like sense 1 (of which, clearly, it forms a mere extension), from early C.20. The terms "conning" and "tweedling" cover virtually everything in the crime known as obtaining money by false pretences.' They derive, ultimately, ex tweedle, 1. Cf.—2. 'A stolen vehicle disguised for "honest" sale to a respectable dupe' (Powis): c.: later C.20.

tweedly. High-pitched and fidgety, esp. of violin music: coll.: C.20. (P.B.)

tweaker. See tweaker.

tween(e)y, tweenie. A between-maid: coll.: from 1880s. For semantics, cf. twixter.

tweez. See twire.

tweet. See twee.

tweezie, -y (mostly in pl.) A twinge: (?) late C.19—earlier 20. Kipling, in a letter to Rider Haggard, 25 Mar. 1925, writes of 'tweezies in the trash-bag', i.e. stomach pains (quoted in Rudyard Kipling to Rider Haggard..., ed. Morton Cohen, 1965: P.B.).

twelve. A shilling: c.:—1839 (Brandon); ob. by early C.20. Cf. twelver, q.v.—2. In after twelve, adv. and advl n., from noon to 2 p.m.: Eton coll. (—1861) > j.—3. See seven, 2. twelve apostles; or T-A. The last twelve on the degree list: Cambridge University: late C.18–19. H. suggests ex post alios, after the others. Variants, the chosen twelve or simply the apostles.—2. The twelve NCOs selected in 1860 by Major Hammersley, the first military Superintendent of Gymnasia, to become the founding members of the Army Gymnastic Staff (since 1940 the Army Physical Training Corps). 'Today these twelve originals are affectionately referred to as "The Apostles"' (Carew).

twelve godfathers. A jury: c. (—1864) > low s.; ob. H., 3rd ed., 'Because they give a name to the crime... Consequently it is a vulgar taunt to say, "You will be christened by twelve godfathers some day before long."' twelve o'clock! It's time to be moving: artisans' c.p.: ca. 1890–1914. (Ware.) Ex noon, break-off time.

twelve-pound actor. A healthy child born in 'the profession': theatrical:—1909 (Ware).

twelver. A shilling: c. >, in C.19, low s.: late C.17–19. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.; H., 2nd ed.) Ex the twelve pence.

twencent. Up-to-date, very modern: society: 1900–1; it died of inanition. Ex 'twentieth century'. (L.M. de la Motte Tischbrook's letter in John o'London, 21 Oct. 1933.)—H.A. Vachell, Quinney's, 1914, has tuwen-center, a modernist.

twenty-eight. The Yellow-Collared Parakeet: Aus.: C.20. B., 1943.

twenty-firster. A coming-of-age; a celebration thereof: university, orig. (—1912) Oxford. OED Sup.

twenty-in-the-pounder. One who, on liquidation, pays 20 shillings in the £: non-aristocratic coll.:—1909 (Ware).

twenty-one. In do (one's) t..., to serve the full 21 years of service in the British Army: army coll.: since later C.19.

(Petch.) Also on for twenty-one (or any other recognised length of service); full service was extended to 22 years after WW2. (P.B.) Cf. pontoon, 2.

twenty-seven. Three '9' cards: Aus. poker-players': since ca. 1920. B., 1953.

twenty-spot(ter). A £20 bank-note: since ca. 1965. (Spectator, 19 June 1976.) Cf. spot, n., 9.

twenty-three, but written 23. To depart; esp. in imperative, 'Get out!': Can. journalists': since ca. 1910. Perhaps ex a telegrapher's code: see thirty. (Leechman.) This is the much-used shorter form of twenty-three, skidoo (or skid-doo), which is dated by W. & F., 1960, as of ca. 1900–1910, said to be of male use, orig. among students and youthful sophisticates, and described as 'perhaps the first truly national fad expression', still very widely known in 1960 and, oddly and ironically, associated by post-1950 writers with the 1920s and regarded as entirely characteristic of that crazy decade. They quote it also as 23 skid(d)oo and class it as an expression of surprise or pleasure, but 'also used of... rejection or refusal, sometimes as "Go away!" "Beat it!" or "I don't care!"'. OED Sup. cites its use, as skiddoo, by Neil Munro in The Daft Days, 1907, and notes its currency in Canada in 1910. See extensive treatment in DCpp.

twenty-two and twenty-two. Football: Winchester School coll.: ca. 1880–1910. This was the variety played with 22 a side.

twenty-two carat. Utterly trustworthy: since ca. 1930: c. >, by ca. 1950, also s. Robin Cook, The Crust on its Uppers, 1962.

twerp. An unpleasant or objectionable or foolish or 'soft' person (rarely female): from ca. 1910. (F. & G.; Percy Brown, Blind Alleys, 1934.) P.B.: very common, mid-C.20, but ob. by ca. 1970.

twi. (Very) old age; senility: since ca. 1960. Petch cites Ben Travers, Turkey Time, a BBC farce, 3 Oct. 1973. Prob. an abbr. of the cliché the twilight of one's years.

twibby. Ingenious: London schools': ca. 1875–95. (Prof. Arnold Wall, letter, 1939.) Arbitrary formation: twiggezz-vous?—2. Funny, amusing; id. (Prof. A. Wall.) Heath-Robinsonishly funny?

twibill. A street ruffian: c.: C.17. (F. & H.) Ex twibill, a two-edged axe, perhaps suggested by the obvious pun, 'doubly sharp'. (Perhaps an error.) twice, v. To cheat (somebody): low: C.20. David Hume, Five Acres, 1940.

twice-laid. A hash-up of fish and potatoes: low (—1864); ob., except as nautical s. H., 3rd ed.; Bowen defines it as 'any sea dish that is cooked for the second time' and derives it ex 'the old name for rope made of the best yarns of an old rope'.

twice removed from Wigan. A disparaging c.p., applied to Lancashire (hence, loosely, also Yorkshire) people living permanently in the South of England: since ca. 1920. P.B.: cf. the tenuous family relationship 'a cousin twice removed'.

twicer. A printer working, or professing to work, at both press and case: printers' pej.: from ca. 1880. Jacobii, 1888.—2. One who goes to church twice on Sunday: late C.19–20. (The OED's quot'n of 1679 is either a nonce-use or connoted rarity.)—3. Something doubly, hence very, forceful or valuable: low: 1857, Mayhew, 'He expressed his delight... "Here's a start! a reg'lar twicer!"; ob. OED.—4. One who asks for two helpings; hence, one who persistently tries to get more than his due: Aus.: C.20; esp. in WW1.—5. A cheat, a liar, a twister, a crook: Aus.; in Brit. mostly commercial, and for the first two: C.20. (G.B. Lancaster, 1910.) P.B.: prob. ex double-cross.—6. (?Hence), a sycophant: Aus.: since ca. 1918. (Baker.) Or ex 'two-faced'.—7. A widow or widower remarrying: lower classes': C.20. F. & G.—8. A two-year prison sentence: police and c.: later C.20. Alan Hunter, Gently in Trees, 1974. (P.B.)—9. See:— twicers. Twins: lower classes': mid-C.19–20. Ware.

Twickenham. A torpedo: RN: early C.20. (Bowen.) Messrs Thornycroft once had, near Twickenham, a yard for building small naval aircraft. R.S., 1973, asks, 'Might there be a pun on tweak, v.: tweaking 'em? The Navy seems to know its Kipling.

Twickers. Twickenham Rugby Football ground: sporting: since ca. 1920. Twickenham + the 'OXFORD -ER(S)'. L.A. notes an ITV interview of 5 Nov. 1969 in which it was stated that 'the people who call it "Twickers" don't play Rugby, but just call it Headquarters'—but E.P. felt that this was 'too sweeping'.

twiddle-diddles. Human testicles: low: from ca. 1786; ob. (Grose, 2nd ed.) A reduplication of twiddle (v.) with a pun on diddle (v.).

twiddle-poop. An effeminate-looking fellow: late C.18—mid-19. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Cf. prec., and see poop.

twiddler. A paperback book: RN: since early 1940. (Observer, 18 Aug. 1940.) One can twiddle them about in one's hands.

twig, n. Style, fashion, method: low s.:—1806, when The Port Folio of 6 Sep. (p. 143) quotes a Charles Dibdin song containing the lines: 'The wig's the thing, the wig, the wig, / Be of the ton a natty sprig, / The thing, the tippy and the twig' (Moe). Esp. in twig, handsome or stylish; cleverly (Vaux, 1812). Often in good or prime twig (both: Vaux). Hence out of twig, disguised, esp. in put (oneself or another) out of twig; out of knowledge: low s.:—1812 (Vaux). ? etym. Perhaps ex v.i. twig, to do anything vigorously.—2. Hence, condition; fettle, spirits: low s.: 1820, Randall's Diary, 'In search of lark, or some delicious gig, / The mind delights on, when 'tis in prime twig'; ca. 1840–70, very gen. in the boxing world. Both sets of senses were ob. by 1860, † by 1900.—3. The headmaster: Marlborough: ca. 1850–90. Ex twig, the rod or birch.—4. A drink of strong liquor: Liverpool street arabs': late C.19–20. (Arab.) Origin obscure.—5. Mostly in pl twigs, matches: Borstal boys': since ca. 1945. (Daily Telegraph, 4 June 1958, 'Bacon Bonces, Joes & Maggies'.) Ex the rough, 'twiggy' quality of inferior safety matches.—6. See hop the twig; measure a twig.

twig, v. To disengage; to sunder: c.: ca. 1720–1840. A New Canting Dict., 1725, has twig the darbies, to knock off the irons or handcuffs. Prob. cognate with tweak.—2. To watch; inspect: 1764, Foote, 'Now, twig him; now, mind him; mark how he hawls his muscles about'; slightly ob. by 1930. Possibly suggested by twig, to beat, to reprove, but more prob., as W. suggests, cognate with dial. twick, to pinch (esp. in s. sense, to arrest), to nip (cf. S.E. tweak).—3. Hence, to see, recognise, perceive: 1796, Holman, 'He twigs me. He knows Dicky here.'—4. Hence to understand: 1815, 'Zeluca' Moore, 'You twig me—eh?' (OED).—5. Hence, v.i., to comprehend: 1833 (Michael Scott: OED); 1853, Reade, 'If he is an old hand he will twig.' Still extant in low coll., later C.20. Powis: 'the manager twigged what we was up to as soon as we was in the shop.' Cf. twiggez-vous.—6. To drink strong liquor: see n., 4. (Ibid.) twig and berries. A child's penis and testicles: lower-class euph.: C.20. Cf. pencil and tassel.

twig the fore (or the main). 'To look over the fore-mast (or main) to see that all the sails are furled and the yards properly squared': nautical: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) Ex twig, v., 2.

twigger. An unchaste, even a lascivious person; esp. a whore or near-whore: ca. 1590–1720. (Marlowe & Nashe in Dido, 1594: OED; Motteux, 1694.) Prob. ex twigger, (of a ewe) a prolific breeder, itself ex twig, to act vigorously.—2. Hence, a wencher: C.17, and much less gen. F. & H.

twiggez-vous? Do you understand?: prob. from 1870s; Kipling, in Stalky & Co., 1899, written about his schooldays, 1878–82, has "'Twiggez-vous?" "Nous twiggons!" (But nous twiggons, we understand, did not 'catch on'.) An early example of Français, or 'fractured French'; it was popularised in a song by Marie Lloyd, 1892, according to Leslie Verries, MRCs, 1949. On twig, v., 4. Ob. by ca. 1920; † by 1940. Pre-WW1 variants were twiggy?; twiggy-vous? (Collinson).

Twiggy. 'A nickname sometimes given to a stout girl or woman.' Of course, Twiggy the model was very slim' (Petch, 1976): ironic: early 1970s. It is the professional name of Lesley Hornby.

twigs. See hop the twigs.

twilight. Toilet: universities' and Public Schools': ca. 1840–90. B. & L.

twilight zone. 'The period whilst awaiting promotion from fireman to driver' (McKenna, Glossary, 1970): railwaymen's: mid-C.20.

twilights. Summer-weight knickers worn by the WAAF: among WAAF and RAF: 1940 + . (Jackson.) Ex their pale-blue colour. Cf. blackouts and passion-killers, qq.v.

twillies. Sympathy between twins: medical: since ca. 1920. Ex twinly feelings? The German for 'twins' is Zwillinge (from zwei, two), so prob. imm. ex Yiddish (R.S.).

twillip. A foolish, weak man; a 'twerp', an objectionable and/or insignificant person: since ca. 1919, among London youths (L.A., 1974); thence Guards Regts (Gerald Kersh, They Died with their Boots Clean, 1941) and RAF, WW2 (L.A.); ob. by 1950. Perhaps a derisive perversion of twerp, influenced by:—

twim. Female pudend: low: C.20. A blend of twat and quim. Cf. synon. twam.

Twin Roses, the. An occ. nickname of the York and Lancaster Regiment (disbanded 1968 rather than face amalgamation). Carew. Ex Wars of the Roses.

twin-set. A two-bottle aqualung: skin divers': since ca. 1950. Ex the terminology of women's clothing.

twine. To give false change: c.: late C.19–20. Ex (S.E. > dial.) twine, to twist, wring, with a pun on wring.—2. To grumble: c. and low: from ca. 1925. Cf. synon. bind.

twinges round the hinges through binges. 'Refers to "the screws" [rheumatism]—and one cause [thereof]' (Petch, 1974): c.p.: since ca. 1950.

twink. A moment: proletarian: C.20. J.J. Connington, A Minor Operation, 1937, 'I just pressed the electric light switch for a twink—to make sure—an' the current was off.' Abbr. twinkle or twinkling. P.B.: often as two twinks, as in 'Just hang on a mo—I shan't be two twinks.'

twinkler. A light: c.: late C.19–20. Cf. twinkler, a star. twinkling. In the twinkling of a bed-post or -staff. Immediately: resp. from early C.19 (Glascock, Sketch-Book, II, 1826)—early 20; and ca. 1670–1850 (Shadwell, 1676). Prob. ex its well-known use as a ready and handy weapon (OED).

twire. A glance; esp. a leer: 1676, Etherege, 'Amorous tweers', tweer only in C.17; 1719, D'Urfey (OED); † by 1750. Ex v.i. twire, to peer, look round cautiously, peer. Cf. tour(e), tower, tourer.

twirl. A skeleton key: c.: from ca. 1877. (Horsley, Jottings from Jail.) Because a burglar twirls it as he uses it. Also, in C.20, twirler.—2. A warder: prisoners' c.:—1933 (George Ingram, Stir). Ex his bunch of keys.—3. In on the twirl, adj. and adv., a-thieving professionally: c.: C.20. (Gilt Kid, 1936.) Ex sense 1. twirler. A sharper with a round-about at a fair: c.: from ca. 1870. B. & L.—2. A skeleton key: c.: C.20 var. of twirl, 1. Now!, 10 Apr. 1981.

twirlies. 'Busmen particularly loathe the daily hassle with the "twirlies" at around 9.30 am as senior citizens ask conductors whether they are "too early" to use their free passes' (New Society, 13 Nov. 1980: P.B.).—2. See twirly. twirling. The dishonest substitution of a winning betting slip for a losing one: bookmakers': since ca. 1925. Bourne-mouth Echo, 18 Aug. 1960.

twirly. A cigarette: R Aus. N: since ca. 1920. (B., 1943.) One twirls it in one's fingers.—2. See twirlies.

twirp. Var. spelling of twerp. Cf.:—twirt. (Also twirp or twerp.) A cheeky small boy: Shrewsbury: since mid-1930s. (Marples.) Cf. twillip.

twiss. A chamber-pot: ca. 1777–1830: Anglo-Irish. Richard Twiss (1747–1821) published in 1776 his Tour in Ireland in 1775, which, understandably, was very unpopular in Ireland:

whereupon there were manufactured some of these utensils with his portrait at the bottom, which bore the rhyme, 'Let everyone—/On lying Dick Twiss.' (Earlier in the century, Sacheverell had been similarly execrated.)

twist, n. A drink of (gen.) two beverages mixed: late C.17–20; ob. In B.E., tea and coffee; by 1725, also brandy and eggs; by 1785, brandy, beer and eggs (Grose); by 1823, gin-twist, gin and hot water, with sugar and either lemon or orange juice ('Jon Bee'); in 1857, 'Ducange Anglicus' defines twist as brandy and gin; but from ca. 1860, by far the commonest is gin-twist. Ex one thing twisted in with another.—2. An appetite, esp. a hearty one: from early 1780s; slightly ob. by 1930. (Grose, 1st ed.) Ex twist, v., 1, q.v.—3. 'A stick spirally marked by a creeper having grown round it: also twister' (F. & H.): Winchester School coll.: from ca. 1860. Perhaps ex a twist of tobacco.—4. The twist is 'sharp practice, in gen. or in particular': c.: C.20. (F.D. Sharpe, The Flying Squad, 1938.) Cf. twist, v., 3, and twister, 5. As 'a twist it' = esp. 'A swindle', as in 'I thought the betting slip a twist'—a bookmaker's remark quoted by Bournemouth Echo, 18 Aug. 1960.—5. A habitual criminal: Aus. c.: since ca. 1910. B., 1942.—6. A girl: low Can.: adopted, ca. 1940, from US—as also were bim, broad, frail. All four US terms originated in the underworld. In 1966, Robert Claiborne commented, from USA, 'This is rhyming slang: "twist-and-twirl"—one of the few bits of r.s. that ever became fairly gen. in U.S.: cf. E.E. Cummings, "To be a feller's twist-and-twirl". Now ob. here.'—7. As the twist, the forcing of the arm up behind the back when a person is being arrested: coll.: since ca. 1860. S.R. Crockett, The Stickit Minister, 1893.—8. A tale: naval: prob. since late C.18. W.N. Glascock has, in Sketch-Book, I (20 and 112), 1825, spin a twist, and in Sailors and Saints (I, 178), 1829, tip a twist (Moe). Baumann, 1887, has spin ..., as does Bowen, 1929, by which time the phrase was ob.—9. In at the twist, adj. and adv., (by) double-crossing: c.:—1933 (Charles E. Leach, On Top of the Underworld).—10. See round the twist; knickers in a twist.

twist, v.i. and t. To eat; esp. to eat heartily: from ca. 1690; ob. B.E. (v.i.); Motteux, 1694 (v.t.): OED. Also twist down, v.t., to eat heartily: from ca. 1780 (Grose, 1st ed.). Perhaps ex twisting pieces of loaves, cakes, etc. Cf. twist, n., 2.—2. In passive, to be hanged: from ca. 1720; very ob. (A New Canting Dict., 1725.) Ex twisting as one swings on the rope.—3. To swindle, to cheat: Aus., from not later than 1914; and by mid-C.20 at latest, also Brit. coll. Perhaps by back-formation ex twister, 5.—4. In passive, to be convicted of a crime: Aus. low (?c.): C.20. (B., 1942.) Cf. sense 2.

twist (someone's) arm. To persuade; strictly, to persuade forcibly, hence with lengthy argument: since the late 1950s. L.A. adds, 1976, 'also to use threat (of revealing disreputable fact, etc.) in order to ensure compliance.' P.B.: often used joc., esp. in, e.g., 'Have another drink?', which may be answered eagerly by a fellow-topper, 'Well, if you twist me arm perhaps I could manage to force one down!'

twist joint. Any cheap dance-hall for twist (a form of dance) sessions: since ca. 1961; by late 1965, already slightly ob. P.B.: by 1980 so ob. that the term might be understood as synonym. with clip-joint, a place where one might be twisted, as in twist, v., 3.

twist (one's) sleeve-lining. To change one's opinions or attitude: tailors': late C.19–20.

twist the book (on). To turn the tables (on a person): c.: from early 1920s. (Edgar Wallace.) Cf. twister, twister. A very hearty eater: 1694 (Motteux: OED); from mid-C.19, only in dial. Ex twist, v., 1.—2. Anything that puzzles or staggers one, a gross exaggeration, a lie: from ca. 1800. (W.N. Glascock, Naval Sketch-Book, 2nd series, 1834, I, 235: Moe.)? ex.—3. A slanting blow that tends to turn, or twist, an opponent around: sporting coll.: late C.18–19. Blackwood's, July 1823, 'Idyl' (Moe). Cf.:—4. A sound thrashing; a grave anxiety, a 'turn', as in 'It gave me a twister': low:—1887 (Baumann).—5. A 'shady' fellow, a swindler, a crook; a shuffler, a prevaricator; a person of no decided opinions: low: from not later than 1912 in Aus., not later than 1914 in England. P.B.: SOD records this fig. use from 1834.—6. One who cannot be tricked or swindled: c.: from ca. 1920. See esp. Edgar Wallace, The Twister, 1928. Ironic ex sense 5, or direct ex twist the book, q.v.—7. A whirlwind: Aus., esp. Western: C.20. (C.M.L. Elliott, 1970.) P.B.: but known also elsewhere in the world, in places afflicted by tornadoes, williwaws, dust-devils, and the like.—8. A key. Cf. twirler; and see CANADIAN ... and JIVE, in Appendix.

twistical. Rather twisted; fig., tortuous, devious: coll.: 1815 (D. Humphreys: OED); ob. except in US. Ex twist on, e.g., comical.

twisting. A scolding; a thrashing: 1833 (Marryat: OED); ob.—2. A grief; (a cause of) anxiety: coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

twisty. Odd, strange, esp. in 'a twisty look': low: C.20. (Jim Phelan, Fetters for Twenty, 1957.) Semantically cf. twist, a strange turn of mood or bent of character.

twit, n. A contemptible—or a very insignificant—person: since ca. 1925. (Eric Linklater, Magnus Merriman, 1934.) A blend of twerp and twat.—2. A simpleton, a fool: Aus.: late 1920s. (B., 1942.) Very prob. orig. in Brit.; by 1973 somewhat ob. in Aus. 'In slang, I think the basic meaning is one who is twitted or [here's the crux] deserves to be twitted' (J.L. Mainprice, letter, 1972). The v. is S.E. for 'to reproach, to taunt.'—3. A term of abuse: N. country grammar schools': since late 1940s. (New Society, 22 Aug. 1963.) Ex sense 1. P.B.: in later C.20 much more gen.

twitich, n. A bout of nerves, esp. if noticeable by others: RAF: since the late 1930s. (R.T. Bickers, The Hellions, 1965.) Cf. twitichety, twitters and 'Have you ever used that old service slang and said that someone has a "bit of a twitich on"? You don't mean it literally, of course. You're merely implying that the person concerned is in a highly emotional state and somewhat "het up" about something' (Woman's Own, 16 Jan. 1965). Synon. adj. in post-WW2 RAF: twitiched-up and twitichy.—2. Also twitichable, twiticher, twitiching: See BIRD-WATCHERS, in Appendix.

twitichers. Tight boots: Lancashire coll.:—1904 (EDD). Ex the dial. sense, 'pinchers'.

twitichet(ty). Nervous, fidgety: low coll.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Ex twitichy.

twitex, n. In have a (bit of a) twitex on, to be rather tipsy: mostly RN: mid-C.20. Prob. ex drunken twitiching, as of birds, but cf. 2. (P.B.)—2. Short for ring-twitex. See twittering ringpiece.

twittering, n. Paying court to other sex: University of Alberta: ca. 1925–40.—2. (N. and adj.) Menstruating: school-girls': since ca. 1930. Gerald Kersh, Fowler's End, 1958 (Claiborne).

twittering ringpiece; also ring-twitex and ring-twitich. A state of extreme nervousness: RAF: since ca. 1939. Ex a physiological symptom.

twitters, the. Nervousness: Scottish Public Schools': C.20. Ian Miller, School Tie, 1935, 'I played my best game in the match v. the Academy, in spite of a bad attack of the twitters before going on to the field.'

twittoc. Two: c.:—1785 (Grose, 1st ed.); † by 1860. By perversion of two.

twitex. 'Either a lady-like young man, or a man-like young woman': low London:—1909 (Ware); ob. by 1935. Cf. tween(e)y. Ex betwixt and between.

twizzit. Mild reproof for a fool, 'You silly twizzit!'; 'a bit of an ass': C.20. Cf. twerp, twit, etc. (P.B.)

twizzle, v.i. To spin (rapidly): dial. (—1825) >, ca. 1880, coll. Prob. ex dial. twistle, v.t., to whirl. OED.—2. Hence, v.t., to rotate; to shape by twisting: dial. (—1854) >, ca. 1885, coll. 'My friends ... began twizzling up cigarettes' (C. Keene, 1887: OED).

two. Two pennyworth (of spirits): 1894 (G.A. Henty: OED); ob. by 1930.

two, adj. Only as in two fools, exceedingly foolish, is it coll. Donne's 'I am two fools, I know,/For loving, and for saying so/In whining poetry' is not an example,—for he means that he is two different kinds of fool or a fool on two different counts,—but it is relevant, for it supplies the semantic link. (Lit., doubly foolish.)

two-acre back or chest. A massive woman wearing much heavy jewellery: jewellers': late C.19–20.

two-and-a-half bloke. A lieutenant-commander: RN: since ca. 1930. (H. & P.) A var. of two-and-a-half-striper. Cf.: two-and-a-half ringer. See ringer, 7.

two-and-a-half striper. See striper...

Two and a Hook, the. The 29th Foot (now the Worcestershire) Regiment: army C.19. F. & G., 'Suggested by the numerical figures'.

two and a kick. See kick, n., 2.

two-and-eight. (Often in a...) A fluster, a confusion, emotional state, attack of nerves: rhyming s., on state, 2; arose during WW1 (Franklyn, Rhyming). Franklyn forecast that it would not supersede synon. Harry Tate, but time has proved him wrong (P.B.).

two-and-from. A concertina: mostly Army: late C.19–20; ob. by 1940. Ole Luk-oie, The Green Curve, 1909.

two annas. See at least two annas.

two-backed beast, the; do (or make) the... Two persons in coitu; to coit: low coll.: C.17–18. Othello, I, i, 117; Urquhart's Rabelais, 1653.

two bastards on bikes. See two ladies...

two-bit. Insignificant: Can., since ca. 1930; Aus. and Brit. since ca. 1945, but not common: ex US two bits, two-bit, 25 cents (Claiborne). However, by 1929, at latest, its US meaning was 'cheap' or 'inferior' (W. & F.). P.B.: some Brit. use, aping US, in two-bit chiseller, a 'small-time' cheat. Cf. two bob.

two blocks. "I'm two blocks"—'I'm at the end of my patience'. When the two blocks of a purchase are brought up against each other, no further movement is possible' (D. Bolster, Roll On My Twelvetoe, 1945): RN lowerdeck: C.20. See blocks, and cf. mouldy.

two-bob. A blonde: Aus. army: WW2. B., 1943.—2. 'The sum of money most often used in derogatory expressions like "not worth two bob", "silly as a two bob watch"' (Wilkes): Aus.: since ca. 1940, or earlier. Cf.:

two-bob hop. A cheap evening's dancing: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B.P.) Cf. twopenny hop, the earlier Brit. version.

two bob lair is a particularly cheap lair, q.v. Rats.

two brothers alive and one married (i.e. as good as dead!). A music-halls' c.p. of 1897–8. Ware.

two buckle horses. Tuberculosis: stables' joc.: early C.20. Ware.

two-by-four. A whore: rhyming s.: since ca. 1870.

two-by-three. 'A species of canteen cake' (F. & G.): army: WW1. Ex its size, 2×3 in. (×ca. 1 in.).

two cents' worth, my, his, etc. My opinion, for what it's worth: Can. c.p.; adopted, ca. 1945, ex US. P.B.: cf. coll. Brit. synon. two pennyworth. Esp. put in my...

two chances. See Buckley's chance.

two crows for a banker. 'Code whistles exchanged between engine and second [or] banking engine when ready to move' (Railway): railwaymen's: since ca. 1920.

two d's, on the. On twopence a day: army: ca. 1870–1910. Ex d., a pre-1971 penny.

two-dog night. A very cold night: Aus.: later C.20. 'Evidently Aborigines used to describe the cold by counting how many dogs they had to sleep with in order to keep warm' (Alex Glasgow, Guardian, 1 Oct. 1982).

two dots and a dash. Fried eggs and a rasher of bacon: army: WW1. Ex morse.

two draws and a spit. Smoking half a cigarette; hence, any short smoke at convenient intervals: mostly in factories and workshops: from ca. 1915. Cf. spit and a draw, q.v.

two-ender. A florin: Cockneys': C.20 (Evening News, 20 Jan. 1936). Also grafters': witness Cheapjack, 1934.

1280

two ends and the bight of (a thing). The whole of (something): nautical coll.: late C.19–20. Bowen. Cf.: two ends and the middle of a bad lot. (Of a person) utterly objectionable: middle classes':—1909 (Ware); ob. by 1930. Perhaps ex prec.

two-er. See two-er.

two-eyed steak. A (Yarmouth) bloater: low: 1864 (OED). Cf. Glasgow magistrate. The OED has the rare var. (now †), t.-e. beef-steak.

two eyes of blue! Too true!: rhyming s.: since ca. 1925. Franklyn 2nd.

two eyes upon ten fingers. See two upon ten.

two faces under one hood. Double-dealing, n.: coll.: C.15–18. (B.E.) In early C.19, often hat for hood ('Jon Bee'). An ab. of S.E. two-faced.

two fat ladies or Waafs. The number 88 in tombola: see TOMBOLA, in Appendix.

two feet one backyard. A joc. middle-class c.p. applied to very large feet: C.20. Punning 'Three feet (make) one yard.'

two-fer. A cigarette: mostly RN: since ca. 1950. 'For two for a penny'—the penny 'that one once put into a slot machine' (L.A., 1967).

two-fisted. Clumsy: coll. and dial.: from earlier C.19. (W.N. Glascock, Sailors and Saints, 1829, I, 179; Moe.) Cf. synon, two-handed, 2, and ham-fisted.—2. 'Expert at fisticuffs' (H., 1864) is a coll. var. of two-handed, ambidextrous.

two five two. Esp. be put on a..., to be 'crimed': army coll. verging on j.: from ca. 1912. (F. & G.) The charge-sheet was officially known as Form 252.

Two Fives, the. The 55th Regiment of Foot (from 1881, the 2nd Battalion, the Border Regt): army: C.19–early 20. (F. & G.) Cf. Two Fours, and Two Sevens, q.v.

two fools. See two, adj.

two-foot rule. A fool: rhyming s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.); ob. by 1960 (Franklyn).

two, four, six, eight, bog in, don't wait! A secular grace before meals: Aus.: since ca. 1920; perhaps much earlier. (B.P.) Cf. bog in.

two-four-six-eight! whom do we appreciate? A chanted equivalent of 'For he's a jolly good fellow!', but may be applied also to, e.g., the name of a team; the object of the 'appreciation' is shouted after the question, as in 'Two-four-six-eight! Who(m) do we appreciate? Ee-goals! [Eagles = the Bedford Town Association Football Club]: since 1940s (? earlier); prob. adopted ex US. (P.B.)

Two Fours, the. The 44th Foot Regiment (from 1881, the 1st Battalion of the Essex Regt): army: C.19–20; ob. (F. & G.) See Two Sevens.

two Fs, the. A fringe (on the forehead) and a follower (or followers) worn by maidservants: middle classes': ca. 1880–95. Ware.

two-handed. (Seldom of things.) Big; strapping: coll.: later C.17–early 20. T. Betterton, The Revenge (I,i), 1680 (Moe); Lamb, 1830 (OED). Prob. ex t.-h., requiring or entailing the use of both hands.—2. Awkward, clumsy: ca. 1860–1920. H., 3rd ed., 'A singular reversing of meaning'. Perhaps on two-fisted, q.v.

two-handed put. See play at two...

two-hander. A stage play with only two characters: theatrical and literary: since ca. 1960 or a little earlier. The Times Saturday Review, 9 Oct. 1976.

two ha'pennies to rub together, have not. To be very poor; occ., to lack any spare money whatsoever: coll.: C.20. 'He hasn't...' (Petch, 1966.) P.B.: cf. earlier C.20. (e.g. he hasn't got a ha'penny to jingle on a tombstone.)

two hearts in a pond. Two bullocks' hearts in a two-sectioned dish: lower classes':—1909 (Ware).

two i.c. (A spoken abbr.) A second in command or charge: Services', esp. army: since ca. 1945 (? earlier). Ex the written abbr. 2 i/c. (P.B.; B.P.)

two inches beyond upright. A proletarian c.p. applied, ca. 1900–14, to a hypocritical liar. Ware, 'Perversion of description of upright-standing man, who throws his head backwards beyond upright'. Leechman notes that in Can., since ca. 1955, the phrase refers to 'falling over backwards' in an excess of rectitude.

two Labour gains. Two yellow lights at a colour signal' (Railway, 2nd): since 1945 or 1946. Cf. one Labour gain.

two ladies on bikes. The figure of Britannia on the obverse of the two pennies: two-up players', esp. NZ: C.20. I.e. when both turned up tails; the 'heads' betters call them the two bastards on bikes.

two-legged calf. A gawky youth; a youthful country bumpkin as a wooer: rural: late C.19–20.

two-legged tree. The gallows: low: C.19.

two-legged tympany or tympany with two heels, a baby, is rare except in have a t-l.i., to be got with child, and be cured of a tympany with two heels, to be brought to child-bed: coll.: ca. 1579–1850. Tarlton, 1590; Ray. (OED); F. & H.) Ex tympany, a tumour.

two little ducks. The number 22 in game of House: late C.19–20. (Michael Harrison, 1943.) Fancifully ex appearance of figure. See TOMBOLA, in Appendix.

two-nick. A female baby: printers': from ca. 1870. Anatomical wit.

two-o. See three-o.

two of eels, (standing there) like. 'Abstracted, indecisive, at a loss' (Atkinson): C.20.

two of fat and one of lean. The marking on the ships' funnels of the Harrison Line: nautical: C.20.

two of that. Something much better, esp. as in Hugh Walpole, Vanessa, 1933, '[Mr Childers] had forestalled the Conservatives, . . . but Gladstone knew two of that': coll.: late C.19–20. Abbr. a trick worth two of that.

two old ladies. The number 88 in TOMBOLA, q.v. in Appendix.

two-one. A second class, upper division, grading in the bachelors' degree examinations, as 'She was hoping for a first [q.v.], but she got only a two-one. Still that's not bad': universities' and polytechnics': C.20. Similarly two-two, second class, lower division. (P.B.)

two ones. At two-up, a 'head' and a 'tail' when two coins are used: Aus. coll.: late C.19–20. B., 1942.

two-peg. A florin: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.

two-ponce-ha'penny. See tuppence ha'penny.

two penn'orth of rope, have. See twopenny-rope.

two pennorth of tripe, like. (Of something) contemptible or worthless: C.20.

two-pip artist, merchant, or wallah. A first lieutenant: army: from ca. 1915. (B. & P.) Lit. a fellow with two stars. A second lieutenant is a one-pipper.

two-pipe scatter-gun. A double-barrelled shot-gun: Can.: from ca. 1870. Sir Clive Philipps-Wolley, The Trottings of a Tenderfoot, 1884.

two-pipper. A first lieutenant: army: since ca. 1910. P-G-R.

two poll one. Swindled by two confederates: c.:—1812; † by 1850. (Vaux.) Perhaps poll=upon.

two-pot screamer. One who very easily becomes drunk: Aus.: since ca. 1950. Jack Slater, 'heard in the Northern Territory in 1957–62'.

two pun ten. See two upon ten.

Two Red Feathers, the. A var. of the Red Feathers, q.v. F. & G.

two-ringer. See ringer, 7.

Two Sevens, Sixes, Tens, Twos, the. Resp., the 77th Foot Regiment, from 1881 the 2nd Battalion of the Duke of Cambridge's Own Middlesex Regiment; the 66th Foot, from 1881 the 2nd Battalion of the (Princess Charlotte of Wales's) Royal Berkshire Regiment; the 20th Foot, from 1881 the Lancashire Fusiliers; and the 22nd Foot, from 1881 the Cheshire Regiment: military: C.19–20; very ob. Nicknames on numbers are common in the Army: cf. Two Fours, Two Fives, and the vocabulary of the game of House. F. & G.

two-shakes of a dead lamb's or donkey's or a monkey's tail, in. See shake.

two shirts and a rag, have. To be comfortably off: coll.: ca. 1670–1800. Ray.

two shoes (or T.-S); gen. little t.-s. (Gen. in address to a little girl: nursery coll.: C.19–20, though I find no earlier record than 1858, George Eliot in Mr Gilfil's Love Story, 'He delighted to tell the young shavers and two-shoes'. Ex the heroine of The History of Little Goody Two-Shoes, 1766.

two-six, do a. To do something very speedily and promptly, e.g. in bombing-up: RAF, esp. armourers: since ca. 1930. R.M. Davison, letter, 1942, "'To do a two-six out of camp" (to leave camp immediately or very quickly)—"a two-six into a shelter".' Cf. a one-two, two quick, successive punches in boxing. But two-six, or two, six, also occurs alone, to urge speed or a spurt of energy, as in 'a spot of two, six'. P.B.: also, and perhaps orig., RN; esp. in exhortation, e.g. at rope-hauling: 'Two-Six. . . Heave!'

Two Sixes, the. See Two Sevens.

two slips for a tester. See three slips for a tester, give.

two-sticker. A two-master: nautical coll.: 1884 (OED). Ex stick, mast.

two stone under weight or wanting. Castrated: punning coll.: 1785, Grose (under weight, the wanting form not before C.19); ob. by 1930.

two-stripe punishment. Promotion to corporal: army: WW1. It was 'not considered to be any catch, being in the main a "toe-rag" [or dog's body] for the sergeants' (Petch, 1967).

two-striper. See striper. . .

two Sundays come together. See when two. . .

two-ten. Abbr. of two upon ten. George Seton, A Budget of Anecdotes, 1886.

Two Tens, the. See Two Sevens.

two thieves beating a rogue. 'A man beating his hands against his sides to warm himself in cold weather; also called Beating the Booby, and Cuffing Jonas' (Grose, 2nd ed.): coll.: ca. 1780–1850.

two-thirder. A printer's apprentice that has served two-thirds of his time; hence, loosely, someone fairly well-advanced in the trade: printers' coll.: C.20.

two-thirty. Dirty: rhyming s.: late C.19–20. Franklyn, Rhyming, 'It refers to grime, not to behaviour'.

two-three-five-nine; written 2359. See PRISONER-OF-WAR SLANG, 15, in Appendix.

two ticks, in. Very quickly; in just a moment: coll.: C.20. Cf. in two twinks (at twink) and in two twos. (P.B.)

two-time, to double-cross (someone); two-timer, a double-crosser, or merely one who doesn't 'play the game': adopted, in 1939, from US. Claiborne, 1976, adds, 'the U.S. nuance is mainly sexual', the deceived 'thinking he (she) is "the one and only".'

two tin fucks. See not care a. . .

Two-to-One, Mr. A pawnbroker: low:—1823; † by 1890. ('Jon Bee'.) Cf. next two entries.

two to one against you. Very much against your getting your pledge back: lower classes' c.p. of ca. 1890–1915. (Ware.) Ex the pawnbroker's sign: two balls over one. Cf.:

two-to-one shop. A pawnbroker's: ca. 1780–1840. Grose, 1st ed., 'Alluding to the [arrangement of the] three blue balls, [in] the sign of that trade, or perhaps from its being two to one that the goods pledged are never redeemed.' Cf. prec. two entries.

two-tone. 'Groups are. . . now called two-tone because they put black and white musicians together to play ska' (Ian Walker, New Society, 26 June 1980). Contrast three-tone.

two-topmaster. A 'fishing schooner or coaster with both masts fitted with top-masts. As a rule the main top-mast only is carried' (cf. bald-headed): Can. (and US) nautical coll.: late C.19–20. Bowen.

two turns round the long-boat. . . See three turns. . .

two-two. See two-one.

two twos. In in two twos, in a moment; immediately: s. (1838, Haliburton: OED >, ca. 1890, coll. Lit., in the time taken to say two twice.—2. For the Two Twos, see Two Sevens.

—3. See two white...

two-up school. A gambling den or group: (low) Aus.: late C.19–20. (C.J. Dennis.) See school; two-up, itself s., ex tossing up two coins or ex the 'heads' and 'tails' of one coin. See also two-up, in Appendix.

two upon ten, or two pun ten, or two ten. Abbr. two eyes upon ten fingers, this is a trade c.p. dating from early 1860s or late 1850s. H., 3rd ed., 'When a supposed thief is present, one shopman asks the other if that two pun' (pound) ten matter was ever settled... If it is not convenient to speak, a piece of paper is handed to the same assistant bearing the to him very significant amount of £2: 10: 0.' Cf. John Orderly and Sharp (Mr), qq.v.

two-upper. A two-up player: Aus. coll.: C.20. B., 1943.

two ups, in. Aus. var. of in two twos, straightaway: C.20. B., 1942.

two-water rum. The real "grog". Two parts water to one rum' (Granville): RN coll.: mid-C.19–20. Cf.:-

two-water tittle. A strong grog: naval: C.19. Wm N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, 2nd series, 1834, I, 74, 'The ship's company has already dined and the potent "two-water-tittle" was drained to the last drop.' (Moe.) Cf. prec.

two white, two red, and after you with the blacking-brush!; hence, after you (, miss,) with the two twos and the two bs! A London streets' c.p. directed at the excessive use of cosmetics: 1860s. (Ware.) I.e. two dabs of red, two of white, and a brush to make up the eyebrows.

two with you! A c.p. 'suggesting a twopenny drink': taverns': ca. 1885–1914. Ware.

two-year-old, like a. In a very lively manner; vigorous(ly): coll.: C.20. (Punch, 19 June 1912: Dr D. Pechtold.) Ex race-horses.

two'd up. 'Two inmates in a cell' (Home Office): prisons': later C.20. Also three'd up, etc.

twoer. Anything comprised by, or reckoned as, two: coll.: 1889, a hit for two runs at cricket (OED); a florin, as in Rook, 1899; a hansom cab (ca. 1895–1910). The cab was a two-wheeler.—2. A clay marble with two coloured rings painted on: London schoolchildren's: from ca. 1880. Cf. one-er, 5.—3. £200: c. and fringe of underworld: since late 1940s, if not a decade or two earlier, (G.F. Newman, 1970.)

twofer. A harlot: low: late C.19–20. Why?—2. 'Yacht with sails and an auxiliary engine' (Granville): nautical: C.20.—3. 'Combined bathroom and toilet in a liner' (Ibid.): id.—4. See tofer.

twoops. (A) twopenny ale: ca. 1752–60. The OED records it at 1729. Ex two + p(enny) + s, the collective suffix as in turps. twopence more... See up goes the donkey!

two penn'orth of rope. See twopenny-rope.

twopenny, tuppenny. The head: low:—1859 (H., 1st ed.); ob. by 1930. Rhyming s.; G. Orwell, 1933, explaining it thus: 'Head—loaf of bread—twopenny loaf—twopenny.' Cf. loaf, q.v.—2. Hence, tuck in your twopenny (or tuppenny), at leap-frog, is used fig., stop!, or stop, that!, as in the song 'The Lord Mayor's Coachman', ca. 1888.—3. Bottom, buttocks, so that tuck in your t. means not only your head (as in 2) but also, e.g. in drill, your rear—'Don't slouch!' L.A., however, thinks that this sense is imperfect rhyming s.: bun-bun.—4. (twopenny.) A professional pawner,—one who acts as intermediary between pawnbroker and client: low London: ca. 1870–1915. 'The usual fee being twopence' (F. & H.).—5. A term of affectionate address: lower classes':—1923 (Manchon).

twopenny burster. A twopenny loaf of bread: 1821 (W.T. Moncrieff, Tom and Jerry).

two penny damn or dump or fuck. See not care a...—2. As The Twopenny Damn, the St James's Gazette: literary: ca. 1880–1910. 'On account of its strong language concerning Mr Gladstone and the "latter-day Radicals"' (F. & H.).

twopenny hangover. A place where tramps may sleep, sitting in a row on a bench with—stretched before them—a rope on which they may lean: tramps' c.:—1933 (George Orwell, Down and Out in Paris and London). See also twopenny rope and penny hang.

twopenny hop. A cheap dance: coll.: from ca. 1850; ob. by 1904 (witness F. & H.), but not absolutely † by 1935. (Mayhew, 1851; H., 1st ed.) See hop.

twopenny (or tuppenny) Jack. A stickleback: midway between dial. and s.: date obscure—perhaps mid-C.18–19. (Robert Chambers, A Book of Days, 1862–4.) The twopenny implies smallness; Jack, a personification.

twopenny-rope. 'A [low] lodging-house: one in which the charge is (or was) twopence: sacking stretched on ropes served as a shakedown. To have twopenn'orth of rope = to "doss down" in such place: Fr. coucher a la corde' (F. & H., 1904): from early C.19. (C. Dickens, The Pickwick Papers, 1836–7, ch. 16.) See also twopenny hangover.

Twopenny Tube. See tube, n., 3.

twopenny upright. A C.19 var. of threepenny upright (see threepenny bit).

Twopenny Ward. Ca. 1600–40, part of one of the London prisons was thus named. Jonson, 1605, Eastward Ho, V, i, 'He lies in the twopenny ward.' Perhaps twopenny here, as it certainly did from 1560 (OED), = 'worthless'; or perhaps the initiation-fee was twopence.

two's, the. The second floor: prison c. (and prison officers' s.): C.20. Robin Cook, The Crust on its Uppers, 1962.

two's up. 'Let me have it next, please', as in 'Good book, this!'—'Is it? Two's up, then!' or 'Two's up on your blanco brush, mucker': Services', very widely used: since ca. 1950 or a little earlier. (P.B.)—2. Hence, 'Sharing—usually but-ends' (Home Office): Borstals' and detention centres': later C.20.

twot. A var. spelling, but the gen. pron., of twat.

twug. Harrow form of twigged (past ppl. passive), caught. Ex twig, v., 3.

Twyford. See my name is Twyford.

ty. Typhoid fever: Aus.: C.20. K.S. Prichard, Coonardoo, 1929.

Tyburn. The Tyburn phrases are on the borderline between coll. and S.E.: the status of all such allusive topographical terms cannot be determined arbitrarily. The following are the chief.—Tyburn blossom, a young thief, who will prob. ripen into a gallows-bird (ca. 1785–1840: Grose, 2nd ed.); T. check, a halter (ca. 1520–80: Skelton); T. collar, 'the fringe of beard worn under the chirt', H., 2nd ed., 1860 (ca. 1860–80. Synonymous with Newgate frill or fringe. Cf. T. top); T. collop (? : C.16); T. face, a hangdog look (Congreve, 1695); T. fair (fig, show, stretch), a hanging (mid-C.16—early 19); T. tippet, a halter (mid-C.16—mid-19: Latimer; Egan); T. top or fore-top, 'a wig with the foretop combed over the eyes in a knowing style', Grose, 2nd ed. († by 1850), with variant Tyburn-topped wig (1774, Foote); T. Tree, the great Tyburn gallows (1727, Gay; † by 1850). Also preach at T. cross, to be hanged (1576, Gascoigne), with such variants as dance the T. jig (1698, Farquhar) or a T. hornpipe on nothing (late C.18—mid-19)—cf. dance the Paddington frisk—fetch a T. stretch (Tusser, 1573), dangle in a T. string (1882, J. Walker: 'literary'), put on a T. piccadill ('Water-Poet' Taylor) or wear T. tiffany (1612, Rowlands). Tyburn gallows, the place of execution for Middlesex from late C.12 till 1783, stood where the present Bayswater and Edgware Roads join with Oxford Street; from 1783 until 1903, the death penalty was exacted at Newgate Prison. F. & H.; OED. Cf.:

Tyburnia. 'A name given', ca. 1850, to the district lying between Edgware Road and Westbourne and Gloucester Terraces and Craven Hill, and bounded on the south by the Bayswater Road, and subsequently including (H., 3rd ed.) the Portman and Grosvenor Square districts: facetiously divided by Londoners'—on Arabia Felix and Arabia Deserta—'into "Tyburnia Felix", "Tyburnia Deserta", and "Tyburnia Snobbica": it soon fell into disuse' (F. & H.): it was still current in 1874 (witness H., 5th ed.), but † by 1880. See prec. tye, n., in late C.19–20, always, and often thus much earlier, tie. A necktie: according to H., 1st ed. (1859), it was, ca. 1820, s. (? rather coll.); but the evidence of the OED rather belies this 'ranking'.

tye, v. Var. spelling of tie in tie up, 1.

tyke(r). See tike(r).

Tykes, occ. Tikes. Aus. Catholics' s. name for themselves: late C.19–20. (B.P.) P.B.:? a var. of Taig or Teague.

tyler. See tiler and Adam Tiler.

tymp; occ. timp. A tympanist, whether a drummer or a player of the tympan: musical: late C.19–20.

tympany. See two-legged tympany.

typ. Typical: uncultured and trivial: since ca. 1930. Margery Allingham, More Work..., 1948.

type has since WW1, been increasingly used very loosely for 'kind', 'category', 'character', 'nature'.—2. 'An officer whether of the R.A.F. or another service' (H. & P., early 1943): RAF since ca. 1920. Jackson (late 1943), however, does not confine it to officers: 'Type. Classification of person. Thus, "He's a poor type, a ropey type, a dim type, a brown type." In the R.A.F. the word is universal in this sense, and derives from its common use in connection with aircraft. Used since the Great War' (1914–18). This 'etymology' is correct; I think, however, that there has been some influence by the French-slang use of type for 'chap, fellow'.—3. A typewriting machine: makers', dealers', repairers': since ca. 1920.

type-lifter or -slinger. An expert compositor: printers': from ca. 1870.—2. Occ., a slovenly workman: id.:—1904 (F. & H.). Cf. typo.

typed. (Of actors, theatrical or cinematic) kept in one type of role: theatrical and cinematic: since ca. 1937.

typewrite. To fire a Bren, or other, machine-gun in bursts: army: WW2. (P-G-R.) Cf. typewriters.

typewriter. A fighter, boxer: rhyming s.: from ca. 1920. J. Phillips, Dict. of Rhyming Slang, 1931.

typewriters. Machine-guns in action: army: WW1 and WW2. (Reginald Pound, The Lost Generation, 1964.) Ex the crisp tapping [P.B.: E.P. heard them when he was on the Somme].

typhoid. A case of typhoid, a typhoid-patient: medical coll.: 1890 (OED).

typo. A compositor: printers': orig. (1816), US; anglicised ca. 1860; slightly ob., comp. being, in C.20, much more gen. (Thornton; Mayhew, 1861.) Either abbr. typographer or imm. adopted from France.—2. A typographer, esp. if expert: printers':—1887 (Baumann).—3. Adj., typographic: 1891 (OED); comparatively rare.—4. 'Astonishingly ugly and menacing insect' (Jean Devaney, Dawn Beloved, 1928). The taipo: NZ coll.: late C.19–20. Strictly, typo is ineligible, for it is merely a folk-etymological spelling.

typogremlin. A 'gremlin' blamed for printer's errors: printers': 1942+. See GREMLINS, in Appendix.

tzing-tzing. Excellent; 'A1': low: ca. 1880–1900.? ex chin-chin!, q.v.

U.B.Dd! You be damned!: euph. coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

U bet! A written jocularly for you bet! The Referee, 14 Oct. 1883.

U-boat. 'Any round shouldered man. A [WW1] adj. derived from the rounded conning tower of a German submarine (Unterseeboot)' (Granville): RN.

U.F.O. A hippy club: drug addicts' and hippies': ephemeral pun, mid-1960s, on unlimited freak-out (see freak-out, n.) and the more durable unidentified flying object (a 'flying saucer'). Peter Fryer, Observer colour sup., 3 Dec. 1967.—2. Another ephemeral pun on UFO, ca. 1979, was U.F.O.S. = the 'Unacceptable face of Socialism', coined during the widespread industrial [in]action early in that year. It refers back to an earlier 1970s phrase 'the unacceptable face of capitalism'. (P.B.) u-jeep. Two-man submarine; a play on U-boat. What the jeep is to a lorry, so is the two-man boat to the orthodox submarine' (Granville): RN: later WW2.

U.P.; gen. it's all U.P. (It is) all 'up', finished, remediless: 1821 (Boxiana III). Bee, 1823, "'Tis all up" and "'tis U.P. with him," is said of a poor fellow who may not have a leg to stand upon': Dickens, 1838, 'T's all U.P. there, . . . if she lasts a couple of hours, I shall be surprised' (OED). The spelt pron. of up; perhaps suggested by:-

U.P.K. spells (May) goslings. 'An expression used by boys at play to the losing party' (Gentleman's Magazine, 1791, I, 327). Here, U.P.K. is up pick, 'up with your pin or peg, the mark of the goal' (Brand, 1813). At some time before 1854, the phrase had > U.P. spells goslings, indicative of completion or attainment, also of imminent death; from ca. 1840, only in dial. Evans, Leicestershire Words, 1881, says: 'Meaning, as I always understood, "it is all up with him, and the goslings will soon feed on his grave."' Apperson.

u/s or U/S or u.s. or U.S. (Of persons) unhelpful, helpless, useless: (of things) unavailable: RAF coll.: since ca. 1935. Jackson, 'I'm in dock. I'm afraid I shall be u/s for some time'; Partridge, 1945, 'From the official abbreviation, u/s (or U/S), "unserviceable"—esp. as applied to aircraft or aircraft parts; Brickhill & Norton, Escape to Danger, 1946. P.B.: from ca. 1950 at latest, also army.

U.T.C.A.A. Uncle Tom Cobley and all [of Widdicombe Fair fame], i.e. everybody; 'all the world and his dog': Services': WW2 and after. Ex its use by signalling for 'inform all parties concerned'. (Capt. E.W. Bishop.)

U-turn. Esp. do a . . ., or there will be no . . .: 'political coll., from mid-1970s, for a sudden reversal of policy. Ex motorists' j.' (R.S., 1975). It has been Australianised as do a uey or youee or u-ie, etc. (Mrs C. Raab, 1979). B.P., 1976, prefers yewie. See Uie.

uck. To remove firmly, to heave, to hoist: RN lowerdeck: late C.19–20. For huck, a var. of dial. hoick, itself perhaps for hoist. This could—via hack off, remove (the 'men')—account for uckers.

uck out. To clean (a ship or part thereof) thoroughly, esp. of dirt: RN lowerdeck: late C.19–20. Perhaps ex prec., but prob. aphetic for muck out, to rid of muck.

uckers. The game of ludo, played large-scale on ship's deck: RN: C.20. (Granville.) Ex uck = + 'OXFORD/RN -ER(S)': 'one of the objects is to remove one's opponent's pieces from the board by landing [one's own piece, by throw of dice] in the same square' (Ibid.). The game has its own c.p., 'Uckers, you fuckers—take six!'

uckeye. All right, esp. as exclam.: army: late C.19—early 20. F. & G., 'A perversion of the Hindustani word uchcha'—but surely, as Julian Franklyn observes, 'also connected with Scottish "och aye!" and perhaps with "O.K."'

Uds! Alone or in combination (e.g. Uds niggers!), a trivial coll. oath common in late C.16–17. A perversion of Ods. OED. udyju. See trot the udyju Pope o' Rome.

uff. Var. of oof, money. Sessions, 30 July 1885.

Ug. Uttoxeter: Cotton College: late C.19–20. Article by Frank Roberts in The Cottonian, autumn 1938.

Ugger, the. The Union: Oxford undergraduates':—1899 (Ware) (See HARROW, in Appendix).

uglies, the. Delirium tremens: low: ca. 1870–1930. Perhaps on horrors.

ugly, n. A bonnet-shade: Society: 1850s. Ware.—2. As a term of address; also Mr Ugly: mid-C.19–20. Ex (an) ugly (person).—3. In come the ugly, to threaten: from ca. 1860. Cf. ugly customer.

ugly, adj. Thick: lower-class coffee-houses': ca. 1860–1930. Ware.—2. For cut up ugly, see cut up rough; for strike-me ugly!, see strike me blind!

ugly as sin. Extremely ugly: coll.: 1821 (Scott); 1891. Stevenson. Apperson, who cites the prob. prototype, ugly as the devil, 1726, Defoe. Cf. 'His wife was as ugly as sin, and twice as nasty' (The Night Watch, 1828, II, 88: Moe).

ugly customer. A vigorous boxer, not too scrupulous, but very difficult to knock out: pugilistic coll.: since ca. 1810. Boxiana, III, 1821. [E.P. considered the term's use for 'a threatening, difficult, or vicious, person' to be S.E.: P.B.] ugly man; uglyman. He who, in garrotting, actually perpetrates the outrage: c.:—1904 (F. & H.). Suggested by the synon. nasty man, q.v.

ugly pills. 'Anyone who manifests a surly disposition is apt to be accused of having taken ugly pills' (Leechman): Can.: since late 1950s.—2. Hence, perhaps by a misapprehension of the N. American meaning, used in the Brit. Army as a—usu. joc.—gratuitously offensive remark, as in 'Been at the ugly pills again then, have you?' = 'I don't like your face!': late 1950s—early 60s. (P.B.) ugly rush. Forcing a Bill to prevent inquiry: Parliamentary:—1909 (Ware).

ugmer. See hugmer.

ugsome. Thoroughly unpleasant: coll.: later C.20. (HRH Prince Philip, quoted in The Times, 17 July 1982, p. 8.) So nasty that it causes one to exclaim 'Ugh!'

Uhlan. A tramp: tailors': ca. 1870–1910. Ex Franco-Prussian War.

ule. A u-turn. 'If the law isn't up my arse I'll hang a Uie' (Barry Humphries, Nice Night's Entertainment, 1981, gloss.).

uke. Ukelele: C.20: musicians' >, ca. 1930, gen.—2. As Uke, a Ukrainian immigrant settled in Halifax, Yorkshire: local coll.: later C.20. David White, 'The Ukes of Halifax', New Society, 12 June 1980.

ukelele. A type J. 39 locomotive: railwaymen's, esp. North Eastern: C.20. Railway.

Ukers (pron. yuikers). The United Kingdom: sometimes among servicemen overseas: later C.20. By the 'OXFORD -ER(S)' on U.K. (P.B.)

ullage(s). Dregs in glass or cask: from ca. 1870. (H., 5th ed.) Lit., the wastage in a cask of liquor.—2. Whence (ullage) a useless thing or incompetent person: RN: late C.19–20. (F. & G.) 'The stubborn [recruit ratings] either become animal, like that ullage up top, or turn back like an ingrown toe-nail and make a mess of themselves' (Heart, 1962).

ulster. See wooden ulster.

ultramarine. 'Blue' in its s. senses: ca. 1890–1914.

ultray. Very: Parlyaree: ca. 1850–1910. Mayhew assigns it specifically to Punch and Judy showmen; F. & H.

ulu. Malay for 'upstream', hence applied to jungle, it was adopted by the post-WW2 Army serving in Malaya; thence it >, in other parts of the world, a wilderness of any sort, paradoxically even that of Arabia Deserta or the strife-torn streets of central Belfast. Often in the phrase 'out in the ulu'. (P.B.)

ulation. 'First night condemnation by all the gallery and the back of the pit': journalistic: ca. 1875–90. Ware.

um, 'um. Them: C.17–20: S.E. until ca. 1720, then coll.—increasingly low and increasingly rare—and dial. Cf. 'em, q.v. See what-d'ye-call-'em.—2. The: 'pidgin': C.19–20. See W. at pidgin.

umbiginga. Umbrella: domestic coll., by joc. perversion: C.20. (Mrs G. Reed, 1980.)

umble-cum-stumble. To understand (thoroughly): lower classes:—1909 (Ware). Ex under comestumble, q.v.

umbrella. A parachute: Services', esp. RAF: since ca. 1934 (? earlier: cf. broolly, 2, q.v.). Partridge, 1945.—2. Very long or thick hair: joc.:—1887 (Baumann); ob. by 1930. 'He has a regular umbrella'.—3. See measured for a new umbrella.

Umbrella Brigade. 'Ironic police term for the Special Branch' (Powis): later C.20.

umbrella club, the. 'If a Maltese girl marries but has no children in the first two years, the priest visits her to fix it. Whilst performing the necessary servicing, the priest hangs his umbrella on the bedroom door, so that neither husband nor other visitors intrude, RN [scurrious], 1950s' (Peppitt). umbrella man. A parachutist: RAF since ca. 1935, army since ca. 1942. (Jackson.) See umbrella.

umbrella regulations. 'The National Security Regulations—"they cover everything". (War slang.)' (B., 1943): Aus.: WW2.

umbrella treatment, the. 'A particularly nasty and now almost legendary way of treating venereal disease': army: since ca. 1945 (prob. much earlier). (P.B.) umgeni, umgenis. See SWAHILI, in Appendix.

ump. An umpire: sporting, esp. cricketers': from ca. 1919. 'Ah, here comes the umps', heard in the Oval Pavilion on 19 June 1937.

umpie. Umpire: Aus.: C.20. Vance Palmer, Let the Birds Fly, 1955.

um-pire. See how's that, umpire?

um(p)teen, umpty, nn.; um(p)teenth, umptieth, adj. An undefined number; of an undefined number: C.J. Dennis, (and heard by editor in) 1916: WW1 army, to disguise the number of a brigade, division, etc.; orig. signallers' s., says F. & G. Whereas umpty, umptieth, are ob. and were never very gen., umpteenth is still common, though rather in the sense of '(of) a considerable number', as in for the umpteenth time, a change of sense implicit from the beginning. Ex um, a noncommittal sound aptly replacing an unstated number, + -teen; the later umpty, -ieth, ex the same um + -ty as in twenty, thirty, etc. Possibly um represents any.

umpty (iddy). Esp. feel ..., (to feel) indisposed, off colour; the shorter form also = 'unsuccessful': Services'; the full, from 1915 (F. & G.); umpty alone, since ca. 1916 (Gerald Kersh, Night and the City, 1938). Prob. ex umpty iddy as the reverse form of signallers' iddy umpty, q.v.: 'all backwards', hence 'queer, ill' (Leechman). P.B.: but perhaps influenced also by humpy, adj., q.v.

umpty-poo. Just a little more: army: 1915–18. (F. & G.) Ex Fr. un petit peu.—2. As in Terence Rattigan, Who is Sylvia?, 1950, Act I (set in 1917):

DAAPHNE... (In a confidential manner): I say, old bean, where's the oojah?

MARK: the oojah?

DAAPHNE: The om-tiddy-om-pom.

MARK: Still looks baffled.

DAAPHNE: The umpti-poo.

MARK (Light breaking): Oh, the umpti-poo. How foolish of me. It's through the door here, and then on the right.

All three words, euph. for a w.c., prob. arose among civilians in WW1, who would have heard these strange, almost nonsensical words from soldiers home on leave; oojah short for ooja-ka-piv, q.v.; om-tiddy-om-pommers were machine-gunners, ex the 'tune' of a burst fired with rhythm; and umpti-poo ex sense 1. (E.P. supplied the quot'n, I the suggested etym.; he had dated umpti-poo in this sense from 'ca. 1910', which, for want of other evidence, seems unlikely. P.B.) umpty show. An inferior play, or inferior acting of a play: theatrical: since ca. 1917. (Ngao Marsh, Vintage Murder, 1938.) Ex umpty iddy.

umrses (or U-). The 'boss': tailors': C.20. (Tailor and Cutter, 29 Nov. 1928.) Cf. himrses, q.v.

un, 'un. One: coll. form preserving what was orig. the correct pron.: C.19–20. W.; B. & P.; OED Sup.; Manchon.—2. And: slovenly coll.: C.19–20.

unan. Unanimous: (mostly) upper classes': C.20. John G. Brandon, West End, 1933.

unappropriated blessing. An old maid: cultured joc. coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

unattached. (Of a member of the legislation) whose vote can never be counted on by any party: Parliamentary coll.: mid-C.19–20. Ware.

Unbleached Australians. Aborigines: Aus. joc.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Contrast Smoked Welshmen.

unbeknowns, -nst, adj. and adv. Unknown; without saying anything: resp., rare, mainly dial., mid-C.19–20; and coll. (in C.20, low coll.) and dial., mid-C.19–20. T.H. Huxley, 1854, 'I hate doing anything of the kind "unbeknownst" to people' (OED). Ex unbeknown on the slightly earlier dial. unknownst.

unbetty. To unlock: c.:—1812 (Vaux). Ex betty, a picklock.

unlock. See BIRD-WATCHERS', in Appendix.

unboiled lobster. A uniformed policeman. See lobster, n., 2.

unbounded assortment of gratuitous untruths. 'Extensive systematic lying': a Parliamentary c.p. of late 1885–mid-86. Ware, 'From speech (11 Nov. 1885) of Mr Gladstone's at Edinburgh'.

unbridle. 'When he saw the thief he was to "unbridle" (take off his hat). Then it was up to us' (John Gosling, 1959): c.: since ca. 1925.

unbutton. 'Decode a signal. 2. Cast off a ship in the convoy' (Granville): RN: WW2. Cf. uncork.

unbuttoned. Upset; unprepared: army: WW2. (P-G-R.) Ex come unbuttoned, q.v.

unc. A steward in the MN: nautical: C.20. (Bournemouth Echo, 21 Oct. 1943.)? Ex:—2. Uncle, esp. in address: domestic coll.: C.20. Cf. earlier nunky, a pet form of (my) nuncle (SOD). P.B.: from mid-1930s it was used in address, and in ref., to a favorite uncle in our family; we spelt it Unk.

uncertainty. A girl baby: printers': from ca. 1870. Opp. certainty, a boy baby. Cf. also the complementary one-nick and two-nick.

uncle; gen. my, his, etc., uncle. A pawnbroker: 1756 (Toldervy: OED); Grose, 1st ed.; Hood; Dickens. Hence, uncle's, a pawnbroker's shop: Grose, 1st ed. (mine uncle's). Prob. ex the legend of rich or present-giving uncles.—2. One's—esp. one's Hollywood—film agent: cinematic world: since ca. 1925.—3. A theatrical backer: since ca. 1925. Sydney Moseley, God Help America!, 1952.—4. Short for Uncle Ned: C.20. Lester.—5. In he has gone to visit his uncle, a c.p. applied to 'one who leaves his wife soon after marriage' (Grose, 1st ed.); † by 1900. Cf.:—6. In go and see uncle, an earlier C.20 euph. for 'to visit the privy'.—7. In your uncle, I;

U myself; non-aristocratic: late C.19—early 20. In C.20, very often just uncle, and, in 1930s, esp. in keep your eye on, or watch your uncle, a c.p. uttered by leader in banter, leg-pull, etc. Cf. your's truly.—8. In come the uncle over, a var. of 'come the Dutch uncle [q.v.]'.—9. See if my aunt...; Tommy, make room...

Uncle Anthony. See helping Uncle...

Uncle Ben. Rare for '10' in game of House: rhyming: C.20. (Michael Harrison, 1943.) See also TOMBOLA, in Appendix.

Uncle Bert. A shirt: (not very common) rhyming s.: C.20. Franklyn 2nd.

Uncle Bill. The police: since ca. 1935: c. >, by ca. 1955, low s.

(Robin Cook, 1962.) Cf. Old Bill in this sense, and—

Uncle Bob. A policeman: since ca. 1945. (L.J. Cunliffe, Having it Away, 1965.) Prompted by the synon. bobby.

Uncle Charlie. (In) heavy marching-order: army: WW1. (F. & G.) See Charley, 6, 7.—2. A German long-distance gun firing from Le Havre in June–July 1944: invasion forces'. (Humphrey Jordan, Landfall Then Departure, 1946.) A 'Dutch' uncle.

Uncle Dick. Sick: rhyming s.: late C.19–20.—2. Penis: rhyming s. (on prick): C.20. Both are recorded by Franklyn in his Rhyming Slang.

Uncle Fred. Bread: C.20. (P.P., Rhyming Slang, 1932.) Franklyn, Rhyming, comments, 'This is used chiefly by, and to, children.'

Uncle Ned. Bed: rhyming s.: late C.19–20. (F. & G.) 'It refers to the article of furniture itself, and to the act of going there' (Franklyn).—2. The head: id.: C.20. Rare.

Uncle Sam. The US government or people: 'usually supposed to date back to the war of 1812' (F. & H.), this coll. nickname has, in C.20, > S.E. Perhaps facetiously ex the letters U.S. Thornton; Albert Matthews; F. & H.

uncle Three Balls. Var. of uncle, 1: lower classes':—1887 (Baumann).

Uncle Tim's Cabin. The Vice-Regal Lodge of the Irish Free State during Tim Healy's governorship: Anglo-Irish: 1922–8. Timothy Healy: 1855–1931. Mrs H.B. Stowe's famous anti-slavery novel, Uncle Tom's Cabin, appeared serially in 1851–2, and in book form in 1852.

Uncle Tom. A Negroes', a West Indians', pej. for such a man of their own race as is deferential towards white people: adopted in the British Commonwealth, ca. 1965, ex US, where the sense and the feeling are, among Negroes, somewhat stronger. See prec. for etym. Also as v., to act thus; and the abstract Uncle Tomism. Cf. coconut in this sense, brown outside, white within.

Uncle Willie. Silly: from ca. 1870. P.P., Rhyming Slang, 1932.—2. Chilly: rhyming s.: since ca. 1920. Franklyn 2nd.

uncle's, mine or my. See uncle.—2. A privy or w.c.: ca. 1780–1850, aunt (q.v.) succeeding. Cf. the Fr. chez ma tante (used also in sense 1), and see uncle, 6.

uncing. See go uncing.

uncomfy. Uncomfortable. It occurs in print in, e.g., a letter written by Kipling in 1907, quoted in Lord Birkenhead, Rudyard Kipling, 1978. Cf. comfy, q.v. (P.B.)

uncommon. Uncommonly, very much: (C.20, low) coll. and dial.: from ca. 1780.

unconscious. A day-dreamer; a dreamy person: from ca. 1926. Cf. romance, q.v.—2. See hello, unconscious!

uncool. Excitable; tending to show one's feelings more than is prudent or advisable: adopted, ex US, mid-1960s. (Groupie, 1968.) Opp. of cool, adj.

uncork; cork! 'Decode'; 'Code'—as orders: RN: since ca. 1920. (Occ. used in other grammatical moods.) Granville. Cf. synon. unbutton.

unction. See blue unction.

under, n. Sexual intercourse: c.: C.20. (Gilt Kid, 1936; A. Hunter, Gently Floating, 1963.) Often as a bit of under. Cf. under-petticoating and undercut, of which this is perhaps a shortening.

under. Under (the influence of) a narcotic: medical coll., now verging on S.E. R. Blaker, Night-Shift, 1934.—2. In down under, q.v.

under a cloud. As=out of favour, or in difficulties other than monetary, S.E.; as=in disgrace, coll. in C.16–17, then S.E.

under-arm. Pornographic, 'blue': low: C.20. Jeff Nuttall, King Twist, 1979, 'One of the first things Randle asked him was did he make any... under-arm films.' Cf. under the arm.

under below! 'Get out of the way—jump—a word of warning' (W.G. Carr, Brass Hats..., 1939): RN: since late C.19. (Moe.)

under board. Deceptively: coll.: C.17–18. Opp. above board.

under book. Lower-priced (car) than as shown in Glass's Guide to Secondhand Car Prices: car-dealers' coll.: since ca. 1950.

under-cart. The undercarriage of an aircraft: RAF: from 1932.

under control. See everything...

under-dubber or -dubman. A warder other than the chief warder: c.: C.19. (Lex. Bal.) See dubber, dubman, and undub.

under (one's) girdle. In subjection; under one's control: ca. 1540–1880: coll. until C.18, then S.E.

under-grounder. A bowled ball that does not rise: cricket coll.: 1873; ob. Lewis.

under hatches. See under the hatches.

under (someone's) neck, get or go. 'To forestall an action contemplated by another, usurp someone else's prerogative' (Wilkes, whose 1st quot'n is from T.A.G. Hungerford, Riverslake, 1953): Aus. (? racing) s. > coll.

under one, do all. To do it all at one 'go': low:—1887 (Baumann).

under or over. 'Under the grass', dead, or 'over the grass', alive, but divorced or being divorced: Society, esp. Anglo-American: ca. 1860–1914. Ware. (Applied to widows in reference to their husbands.)

under (one's) own steam. See steam, n., 7.

under-petticoating, go. To go whoring or copulating: low: ca. 1870–1920.

under-pinners. The legs: coll.: from late 1850s; ob. Cf. understandings.

under sailing orders. Dying: nautical coll.: mid-C.19–20. (Bowen.) Cf. under the hatches, 2, q.v.

under-shell. A waistcoat, as upper-shell is a coat: c.: C.19.

under starter's orders, be. To be, or to have been, arrested: since ca. 1945: orig. and still mainly c.; by ca. 1950, also police s. (John Gosling, The Ghost Squad, 1959.) Ex horse-racing.

under the arm. (Of a job) additional: tailors':—1903 (F. & H.).—2. No good: tramps' c.,—1935; by 1940, low s. (Norman). Implication: it stinks. Cf. synon. under the crutch.

under the arm-pits. Esp. work under..., to avoid being hanged, to commit only petty larcenies: c.: C.19. Vaux, 1812.

under the belt. In the stomach: coll.: 1815, Scott.

under the cat's foot. (Esp. to live..., to be) hen-pecked: coll.: C.17–19. Ray, 1678; Grose; Spurgeon. (Apperson.)

under the cosh, to have (someone). To have him at one's mercy: prisoners': since ca. 1945. Norman.

under the crutch. See under the arm, 2.

under the daisies. Dead: ca. 1860–1940. Ex turn up (one's) toes to the daisies; in WW1 and after, gen. pushing up the daisies.

under the hammer. For sale: auctioneers': since early C.19, but adumbrated a century earlier. (The Port Folio, 1 Nov. 1806, reporting, p. 266, col. 2, a British source: Moe.) Also at the hammer; † by 1930. In C.20, under... has > coll. and, before 1920, S.E. Cf. L. sub hasta (W.).—2. (of a train) 'accepted at caution' (Railway): railwaymen's: C.20.

under the hatches. In (gen. serious) trouble of any kind: coll.: mid-C.16–20; ob. by 1890, † by 1925. Cf. tight under hatches, henpecked: lower classes':—1923 (Manchon).—2. Dead: nautical: late C.18—early 20. (Dibdin in Tom Bowling.) In C.17, often (be)stow under hatches, to silence (as in Marston), distress; bestowed under hatches=the shorter phrase, C.17—early 18; be under (the) hatches dates from early C.17 and occurs in Locke. Ex the lit. nautical sense, below deck.

under the influence. Tipsy: coll.: C.20. Abbr. under the influence of alcohol, which is sometimes joc. spoonerised to under the influence of incohol.—2. Under an anaesthetic: since ca. 1925.

under the lamp. Underhand; illicit: nautical: C.20. With ref. to an arrangement for payment. Cf. under the rose (at rose, 4), and:-

under the lap. Confidentially: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Cf.:—2. 'clandestinely, e.g. a book printed with a false place of publication' (Mrs C. Raab, 1977): Aus.: since late 1940s.

under the rose. See rose, 4.

under the screw, be. To be in prison: c.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.); ob. by 1930.

under the sea. 'In sail, lying in a heavy gale and making bad weather of it': nautical coll.: late C.19—20. Bowen.

under the weather. Tipsy: (mostly) nautical, and Aus.: since mid-C.19; by 1920, coll. (B., 1942.) Ex S.E. (orig. US: SOD) sense, rather unwell, not altogether fit; whence Can. (and US) coll. nuance, 'menstruating': C.20.

under the wing. See hit under...

undercart. See under-cart.

undercome(-con- or -cum-)stumble; understumble. To understand: illiterate or joc. perverse coll.: resp. (low) coll. and dial., mid-C.19—20, ex dial. undercumstand; ca. 1550, anon., Misogonus, 'You unde[r]stumble me well, sir, you have a good wit,' with stumble substituted for stand. Cf. tumble, v., 2, q.v., and umble-cum-stumble, q.v. Also in the late C.19—mid-20 c.p., I undercumstumble the laws of crackology, used to mock one who affects jaw-breaking words (L.A., 1976). With a pun on cracked (in the head).

undercut. See snappy undercut.—2. Female pudend: low: C.20.

underdone. (Of complexion) pale or pasty: ca. 1890—1915. (Ware.) It partly superseded doughy, q.v.

underfug. An under-vest: C.20. Hugh de Sélincourt, The Cricket Match, 1924.

undergrad. An undergraduate: coll.: 1827 (OED); after ca. 1914, rarely used by university men or women.—2. Hence, a horse in training for steeplechasing or hunting: the turf: late C.19—early 20.

undergraduate. A girl 'undergrad': s. >, by 1930, coll.: 1919, Observer, 23 Nov., 'The audience was chiefly composed of undergraduates and undergraduettes' (W.). underground, the. 'The subculture rebelling against the straight society [the squares] or the Establishment' (Burton H. Wolfe, The Hippies, 1968; cf. Landy's title, 1971): since ca. 1965: coll. >, by 1970, S.E. Prompted by the always S.E. the underworld. Hence undergrounders (Jagger, 1974) and adj., e.g. the underground press: since late 1960s.

underground fruit. Potatoes; hence, other vegetables: RN lowerdeck: since ca. 1925.

underground hog. A chief engineer: Can. railroadmen's:—1931.

underground mutton. 'Rabbit, as edible meat' (Wilkes): Aus.: since early 1940s.

undergrounder. See under-grounder; underground.

underneath. Female legs: Welsh coll.: late C.19—20. Caradoc Evans, Taffy, 1923.

underpants like St Paul's. Underpants very tight in the crutch: Aus.: since late 1940s. (B.P.) Why, precisely? P.B.: perhaps cf. the raffish English comment on tight trousers or underpants, they're like the Edgware Road, explained by 'that's got no ball-room either'.

underput. A mistress; a compliant woman: late C.16—mid-17. Middleton, Michaelmas Term, 1607, at III, i.

undershoot. To fail to land at the intended spot: RAF coll., soon > j.: since 1932.

understandings. Boots, shoes: from ca. 1820: coll. >, by 1874, s.; ob. by 1930. H., 5th ed., 'Men who wear exceptionally large or thick boots, are said to possess good understandings.'—2. Hence, legs; occ.: 1828 (OED). Cf. the pun in Twelfth Night, III, i, 80. In The Port Folio, 30 May 1801 (p. 165), we find the var. understanding used for 'a pair of legs'.—3. See standing room.

understumble. See undercomestumble.

undertake, v.i. To be a funeral-undertaker: coll.:—1891 (Century Dict.).

undertaker's job. A horse running dead (not intended to win): Aus. sporting: since ca. 1930. Powis, 1977, 'Specifically, a horse or greyhound not intended to win; generally, any hopeless proposition.' Was the Brit. adopted ex Aus., or vice versa?

undertaker's squad, the. Stretcher-bearers: army: WW1. F. & G.

Undertakers, the. Two Melbourne bookmakers (ca. 1885—1905), 'because of their fondness for laying against stiff uns... horses that are certain not to win', the pun being on stiff 'un, 1. (B. & L.) Cf.:-

underweight. A girl under 21 sent out as prospective harlot to the Argentine: white-slave traffickers' c.: C.20. Londres.

undesertworthy. (Of a soldier) utterly useless: Army in N. Africa: 1940—3. Ex vehicles and equipment classified desert-worthy or undesertworthy, fit or unfit for use in the desert—j. dating from 1938 or 1939. (Peter Sanders.)

undies. Women's, hence occ. children's, underclothes: (orig. euph.) coll.: 1918, 'Women's under-wear or "undies" as they are coyly called' (Chambers's Journal, Dec.: OED); 1934, Books of To-Day (Nov.), 'I like my daily paper, /But one thing gets me cur'd, /And that's the morning caper/Of London's "undie"-world,'—with which cf. the quotations at briefs and neathieset. Perhaps on nightie or, more prob., frillies, q.v.; cf. the ob. S.E. unders, in same sense.

undigested Ananias. A triumphant liar: ca. 1895—1914. Ware quotes Daily Telegraph, 24 June 1896.

undress a sheep. To shear it: Aus. joc.:—1953 (Baker).

undub. To unlock, unfasten: c. of ca. 1810—50. Vaux. See dub up.

undy. The rare singular of undies: 1928 (A.P. Herbert: OED Sup.).

unearthly hour, time. A preposterously early hour or time: coll.: 1865 (OED).

unexploded portion of the day's ration. A pun on the unexpired portion..., given to a soldier in the form of haversack rations when he goes on a journey, posting, to hospital, etc.: army: 1950s—60s. Ex the ammunition remaining unfired, after a day on the ranges. (P.B.) unflappable. Imperturbable: coll.: since ca. 1944. Ex flap, n., 7.

unfledged. (Of persons) naked: joc. coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Extended from 'featherless'.

unfortunate and vicious, adj. In distress; already prostitute: white-slavers' terms for the two classes among whom they enlist their recruits: from ca. 1899. Londres.

Unfortunate Gentlemen. The Horse Guards, 'who thus named themselves in Germany' (Grose, 1st ed., where a topical origin is alleged): military: ca. 1780—1840.

unfrocked. One, usu. an officer, who is unpopular with his branch of the Service: RN: since ca. 1948. (Granville, letter, 1962.)—2. 'Also of F.A.A. embryo pilots who fail their basic flying course' (Granville, Ibid.): id.: since ca. 1950. Ex ecclesiastical j. ungodly. Outrageous; (of noise) dreadful: coll.: 1887 (Stevenson: OED). Cf. infernal, unholy.

ungrateful man. A parson: ca. 1780—1830. (Grose, 1st ed.) Because he 'at least once a week abuses his best benefactor, i.e. the devil'.

unguentum aureum. A bribe; a tip: ca. 1780—1840. (Grose, 1st ed.) Lit., golden ointment: it cures surliness, reluctance, tardiness, and negligence.

ungummed. Disrated or reduced in rank; dismissed; superseded: Services', esp. army: WW1. (F. & G.) Ex Fr. dégoûmé. See unstuck.

unh unh. Sex appeal: since ca. 1940. Echoic of amorous utterance: cf. oomph and yumph.

unhealthy. (Of area) exposed to gun-fire; unsafe: orig. army in WW1 (W.; B. & P.); since > gen.

unhintables. See unmentionables.

unholy. Awful; outrageous: coll.: 1865, (Dickens: OED). Whence, prob., ungodly, q.v.

unhook. To borrow (something) without asking the owner's permission: RN: since ca. 1920. (Granville.) One merely takes it off the hook and strolls away.

unhorse. 'To deprive an owner of his car by means of long-drawn-out repairs' (B.P.): Aus. motor trade: since ca. 1950.

uni; gen. the Uni. A, one's own, university: Aus. coll.: later C.20. P.B.: in later C.20, also Brit.—2. Uniform, e.g. Cadet Corps uniform: Public Schools (but see FELSTED, in Appendix): mid-C.20. (P.B.)

unicorn. A carriage (or coach) drawn by three horses, two wheelers abreast and a leader: s. (—1785) >, by 1820, coll. >, by 1850, S.E.; ob. by 1930. (Grose, 1st ed.) Ex the unicorn's single horn compared with the leader out in front.—2. Hence, a horse-team thus arranged: from ca. 1860: coll. >, almost imm., S.E.—3. Hence, two men and a woman (or vice versa) criminally leagued: c.: from ca. 1870; ob. by 1930.

Union, the. The workhouse: lower classes' coll.:—1887 (Baumann). See also Bishopsgate.

Union Jack. The Union Flag: coll. (C.19–20) >, ca. 1930, S.E. (W., in 1921, could still describe it as 'incorrect'.)

Union Jack on the (or, one's) behind. 'Welts on backside from a beating': RN training ships': late C.19—early 20. Peppitt cites J.R. West, TS Indefatigable, 1909.

Unions. Shares in the Union Pacific Railroad: Stock Exchange coll.:—1895 (A.J. Wilson, Stock Exchange Glossary).

United Kingdom of Sans Souci and Six Sous. 'Riddance of cares, and, ultimately, of sixpences' (Egan's Grose): Oxford University: ca. 1820–40.

Univ. University College, Oxford: Oxford University coll.: mid-C.19–20.—2. University College, London: London undergraduates': C.20. Marples, 2. universal staircase. The treadmill: c.: ca. 1850–1910. (Mayhew.) Also everlasting staircase.

universal subject, the. (The subject of) smutty talk: Can. coll., verging on S.E.: since ca. 1930. Cf. subject normal. By ca. 1935, fairly gen. coll.; by 1960, S.E. everywhere.

university of hard knocks, the. Experience: coll., esp. among those who haven't been to one: since ca. 1910. Cf. the sententious cliché, the University of Life.

unkinned. Unkind: Society: 1884—early 85. (Ware.) Ex Wilson Barrett's substitution, in Hamlet, of unkin'd for unkind.

unkermesoo (or -zoo). Stupid: tailors': C.20. A fanciful word.

unload, v.i. and t. To drop (bombs) on the enemy: RFC/RAF joc. coll.: WW1. (F. & G.) And since.—2. See pewter, v.

unlocked. See garden, 4.

unlucky for some. The number 13 in tombola; hence, as a tag when 13 is mentioned, in gen. coll.: C.20. See TOMBOLA, in Appendix.

unmentionables. Trousers: coll., perhaps orig. US:—1829 (W.N. Glascock, Sailors and Saints, I, 12 and 132: Moe). The chronology of these semi-euphemisms (all ob. in C.20) is: inexpressibles, prob. 1790 or 1791; indescribables, 1794; unexpressibles and unspcakables (both, 1810; rare); ineffables, 1823; unmentionables, 1820s; unexplicables, 1836; unwhisperables, 1837; innominables, ca. 1840; indispensables, 1841; unutterables, 1843; unhintables (—1904). Calverley satirised the group when, in his Carmen Sæculare, he described the garment as crurum non enarrabile tegmen, 'that leg-covering which cannot be told' (W.). See also inexpressibles.

unmonkeyable. (Of a person or thing) that one cannot play tricks with: coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

unnecessary. See all unnecessary...

unpalled. Single-handed: c.: ca. 1810–90. (Vaux.) Lit., without a 'pal', q.v. (But only of one who has been deprived of his pals.)

unparliamentary. Obscene: coll.: from ca. 1870. (H., 5th ed.) Other nuances, S.E.

unpaved. Rough; inflamed with drink: low: ca. 1870–1910. F. & H.

unpin (one's) back hair; take or let (one's back) hair down. See let (one's) hair down.

unpleasantness. See the late unpleasantness.

unprovoke, n. and v. Unprovoked assault; to commit one upon (esp. a warder): prison: since ca. 1920. Jim Phelan, Letters from the Big House, 1943.

unquote! Quotation ends here: US journalistic coll. >, by 1951, Can. and, by 1955, English. 'Now I quote: "Five thousand pounds each." Unquote', with the emphasis upon un-. (Leechman.) P.B.: in later C.20 > more gen. Used to give emphasis to reported speech, and not always logically placed, as in '... and that's all she had to say. Unquote!' Cf. end of story; period.

unrag. To undress: Yorkshire and Gloucestershire s. (—1905), not dial. (EDD.) Ex unrig, q.v., on rags, clothes.

unrelieved holocaust. A Society c.p. of 1883 applied to even a minor accident. (Ware.) Ex the phrase used by a writer in The Times to describe the destruction, in 1882, of the Ring Theatre in Vienna and of a circus at Berditscheff in Russia, both accompanied by a heavy loss of life.

unrig, to undress, is a coll. verging on, prob. achieving the status of, S.E.: late C.16–20; in late C.19–20, dial. except where joc.

unrove his life-line, he (has). He is dead, he died: nautical coll.:—1883 (Clark Russell).

uns. See we-uns and you-uns.

unshingling, n. Removing a man's hat and running away with it (and keeping it): Aus.: ca. 1840–90. (Marcus Clarke, Stories of Australia in the Early Days, 1897.) Cf. tile, 'a hat'.

unship (e.g. a grin). To remove: RN: since ca. 1910. (Granville.) Cf. ship, v., 6.

unshop. To dismiss (a workman): lower classes':—1923 (Manchon).

unslour. To unlock, unfasten, unbutton: c.: ca. 1810–50. (Vaux.) See slour and cf. unbety and undub.

unspcakables. Men's trousers: coll.: ca. 1810–50. John L. Gardner, Military Sketch-Book (II, 71), 1827. (Moe.) Cf. the collective entry at unmentionables.

unspit. To vomit: low:—1887 (Baumann). Cf. unswallow.

unstick, v.i. To leave the ground as one begins a flight: airmen's: since 1916. F. & G.—2. To extricate (a vehicle) from the desert sand: army coll. (N. Africa): ca. 1940–3; hence in other, although analogous, contexts. P-G-R.—3. See-unstuck, come. The vbl form of ungummed (q.v.) or unstuck. B. & P.—2. Hence, to go amiss; to fail: from ca. 1919. Dorothy L. Sayers, The Five Red Herrings, 1931, 'The plan came rather unstuck at this point.'

unswallow. To vomit: euph.: 'current in the 30's, but (mercifully) not heard since' (Peter Sanders). Cf. unspit.

unsweetened. Gin; properly, unsweetened gin: low: from ca. 1860; ob. by 1930.

untarted. See tarted-up, 2.

untidy as a Javanese brothel, as. Extremely untidy: Aus.: brought back, ca. 1942, by Servicemen. (B.P.)

unthimble; unthimbled. To rob of one's watch; thus robbed: ca. c.: 1810–80. (Vaux.) See thimble.

untogether, adj. The negative of together, it denotes 'all mixed up', not integrated: from ca. 1970; ob. by 1980. Jagger.

untouchables, the. 'The "Charity begins at home" types that are too mean to give anything even though they are well provided for' (Petch, 1974): later C.20. A pun on touch, v., 3, and the Indian caste.

untwisted, adj. Ruined, undone: coll.: late C.17—early 19. B.E.; Grose, 2nd ed.

unutterables; unwhisperables. See unmentionables.

unwind, v.i. 'To relax after the cares of the day, or after some tensing experience' (L.A., 1974): orig. coll. >, by 1975, informal S.E.

unzymotic. Synon. with fab (or fabulous), i.e. an adj. of high approximation: ephemeral teenage vogue-word of early 1960s. (Mrs Verily Anderson, 1965.) Cf. zymotic, its opp.

up, n. (Mostly in pl. ups.) A stimulating drug, esp. amphetamine: adopted, latish 1960s, ex US (noted by 6000 Words). Ex the Am. adj. up, drug-exhilarated (since very early 1960s). Paul Janssen cites Apple.

up, v. To rise abruptly, approach, begin suddenly or boldly (to do something): coll. and dial.: from ca. 1830. Lover, 1831, 'The bishop ups and he tells him that ...' This up and ... from occurs in Sessions, 1830.—2. To copulate with (a woman): low: mid-C.19–20. Sessions, 8 Apr. 1874, 'The prisoner said, "I have up'd your old woman many a time, and I will up her again".' See up, prep., and upped.—3. See up with ...

up, adj. Occurring; amiss: as in 'What's up?', 'What's the matter?', or, when up is emphasised, 'What's wrong? Mid-C.19–20: coll. rather than s. Albert Smith, 1849 (OED); Jeaffreson, 1863, 'I'll finish my cigar in the betting room and hear what's up.' Prob. ex up to (as in 'What are you up to now, you young rascal?'). A C.20 var. is (it's all) up the country (with a person): Manchon.—2. Up to specifications; esp. not up, not up to specifications; hence, no good: Aus.: since ca. 1925. B., 1942.—3. In the Services, up (as in chai—or char—up!) = the tea, etc., is made (or cooked) and ready to be served; or; others than cooks speaking, '(More) tea, etc., is wanted': coll.: mid-C.19–20.—4. Up to date, conversant, well-informed, expert: undergraduate coll.: C.20.

up, adv. At or in school or college; on the school or college roll; in the capacity of pupil or student: coll.: from mid-1840s. Gen. implies residence, but often as in 'X was up in your time—1925–8.' Prob. abbr. up there.—2. On horseback; riding: 1856 (H. Dixon: OED); 'Sydney Howard Up in the Derby' was a cinema title in 1933–4.

up, preposition. In coition with (a woman): low: 'In his "Lives" (late C.17), Aubrey [1626–97] describes Sir Walter Raleigh getting up one of the Maids of Honour (of Queen Elizabeth I), who died in 1603' (R.S.); still low coll. later C.20.

up-a-daisa, up-a-dais(e)y. See ups-a-daisy.

up a shade, Adal An exclamatory appeal for more room ('Move up a bit there!'): RAF, esp. in Malta: since ca. 1950.—2. Hence applied also to a noisy collision between two persons.

up a tree. See tree, 1. A proletarian intensive (mid-C.19–20; ob.) is up a tree for tenpence, penniless (Ware).

up against. Confronted by (a difficulty): coll.: US (1896, George Ade: OED Sup.) >, by 1914, anglicised. Esp. in the phrase up against it, in serious difficulties: 1910, Chambers's Journal, April, 'In Canadian phraseology, we were "up against it" with a vengeance!' (OED). See also Fowler. Cf.: up against a (or the) wall. Sentenced to death: military: from 1916. (F. & G.) It was there usually, that such a soldier was shot.

up against you!, that's. What do you say to that?: coll.: late C.19–20.

up Alice's. 'An evasive answer to, e.g., "Where are you going tonight?"—esp. in C.20 barrack rooms, where used also as a reply to "Where's Harry (or Jack, etc.)?" or "Where's my button-stick?"' (L.A., 1976). Cf. up in Annie's room.

up and ... See up, v., 1.

up-and-a-downer, an. Var. of up-and-downer.

up and do 'em. To begin spinning the pennies: two-up players' coll.: C.20. See also two-up, in Appendix.

up and down. A rough-and-tumble fight: Cockney: C.20. (Sessions, 9 June 1902; George Ingram, Cockney Cavalcade, 1935.) Ex up-and-downer.

up-and-down job. An engineer's, a trimmer's job 'in a reciprocating-engine, as opposed to a turbine, steamer': nautical coll.: from 1904. Bowen.

up and down like a fiddler's elbow. Very restless: mostly lower-middle class: late C.19–20. Contrast the N. Country dial. phrase, like a fiddler's elbow, crooked.

up and down like a shit-house-seat. A Can. Army c.p. referring to a gambler's luck: WW2.

up and down like a tinker's elbow. Applied esp. to something that has worked loose: orig. dial. > gen. coll.: C.19—earlier 20. (Apperson.) Cf. ... fiddler's elbow.

up and down like a whore's drawers (on Boat Race night). A MN c.p.: since ca. 1920. (Peppitt.) But orig., I think, Oxford and Cambridge undergraduates'.

up and down like a yo-yo. Applied mostly to a person bobbing up and down; hence also to, e.g., statistics: since ca. 1930. (B.P.)—2. Of a person alternating rapidly between optimism and despair: gen. coll.: since ca. 1950.—3. In the Services, applied by, and of, NCOs rising and falling, falling and rising, in rank: since ca. 1955. (P.B.)

up and down like Tower Bridge. A London c.p. punning reply to the friendly query 'How're you getting on?' or 'How goes it, then?': prob. since late C.19. (Muvver.) I.e., changeable.

up-and-down man. A coal-whipper: Londoners': since ca. 1840; by 1940, ob. H. Mayhew, London Characters, enlarged ed., 1874.

up and down – mind the dresser. A c.p. used when dancing in a farmer's house: Anglo-Irish: C.20.

up-and-down place. 'A shop where a cutter-out is expected to fill in his time sewing' (F. & H.); tailors': from ca. 1870; ob. Ex up-and-down, fluctuating, changeable.

up-and-downer. A violent quarrel: lower classes': late C.19–20. (P. MacDonald, Rope to Spare, 1932.) Since mid-1930s, much in RN use for 'a fierce argument' (Granville). Cf. upper-and-downer.—2. An unimaginative, usu. medium-paced bowler of 'straight up-and-down stuff' (without break or swerve or spin): cricketers': since ca. 1925. Cliff Cary, Cricket Controversy, 1948.

up and up, on the. Dependable: 'straight' in the crooks' sense: c.: from ca. 1919. Ex US. P.B.: by mid-C.20. > gen. s. for 'genuine', esp. of information.

up at second school, be. 'To go to any one for work at 10 or 11 o'clock' (F. & H.); Harrow School (—1904): coll. > j.

up-foot. (To get or rise) to one's feet: low: coll.:—1887. Baumann, 'I] up-foot and told him.'

up for grabs. (Suddenly) available and ready for the seizing: for sale: journalistic and coll.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1965. (P.B.)

up for office. On a charge; due to appear before the Officer Commanding: Services', esp. army, coll.: earlier C.20. P-G-R.

up front. 'Straightforward and honest. "He's up front" is a great compliment' (Powis): later C.20. Cf. out front. Also written solid; see quof'n at closet.

up goes McGinty's goat! The excitement starts: c.p.: C.20. W.G. Carr, Brass Hats ..., 1939, ref. to the RN in WW1. Perhaps Anglo-Irish; prob. via, or ex, US.

up goes the donkey!, a penny (or twopence or threepence) more and. A (low) London c.p. expressing derision: coll.:—1841; ob. by 1930. Ex a street acrobat's stock finish to a turn.

up guards and attap! See PRISONER-OF-WAR SLANG, §14, in Appendix.

up-hander. A soldier surrendering: army coll.: 1916–18. (Manchon.) Ex the gesture of surrender.

up homers, as in 'He's up homers', applied to a rating welcome at home of a family in the port where he happens to be stationed: RN: C.20. Peppitt, dating the phrase from ca. 1939, notes that it applies esp. to a girl-friend's home.

up in. Well informed on, clever at, practised in: coll.: 1838 (Dickens): 1885, Anstey, 'I did think Potter was better up in his work' (OED).

up in Annie's room. A Services' c.p. reply to a query concerning someone's whereabouts: Services', slightly pre-WW1. The original implication being that he was 'a bit of a lad'. Cf. up Alice's, and hanging on the old barbed wire.—2. A call for double-one: darts-players': since ca. 1930. With a pun on a double room, or a room being used as one.

up in (one's) hat. Tipsy: low: ca. 1880–1910.

up in the files. Prosperous: theatrical: C.20 (W.L. George, The Making of an Englishman, 1914.) Ex the files of theatrical j.: the space over the proscenium.

up in the stirrups. Having plenty of money: low:—1812; ob. Vaux, 'In swell-street'—see swell street. Ex riding.

up jib or the stacks or (the) stick(s). To be off; pack up and go: from ca. 1860; ob. The first is nautical, the others non-aristocratic. H. Kingsley, 1865, 'I made them up stick and take me home.' Cf. next, but see also up stick(s). up killick. To run away: nautical: late C.19–20. ('Taffrail', Pincher Martin, 1916.) Ex nautical j. up killick, to weigh anchor.

up King Street. Bankrupt; hence, in grave financial difficulties: Sydney-siders': C.20. B., 1943.

up on one. On a charge or accusation: police coll.: C.20. G.F. Newman, Sir, You Bastard, 1974.

up on (one)self, be. To be conceited: mostly Cockney: late C.19—earlier 20.

up or down. Heaven or hell: lower and lower-middle classes' euph. coll.: mid-C.19–20. Ware.

Up School. Upper School ('the great schoolroom', Ware): Westminster School coll.: mid-C.19–20.—2. up-school, detention, may be coll. rather than j.: see WESTMINSTER, in Appendix.

up she comes and the colour's red! An exclam. at a favourable turn of events, esp. if the opposition suddenly collapses or the obstacle is unexpectedly removed: c.p.: since ca. 1945. Ex gambling?

up Shit Creek with a broken paddle is the usual form, since ca. 1950, of:- up Shit Creek — or up the creek — without a paddle. In trouble; esp., off the course, lost: C.20. Orig. RN; by ca. 1920, RAF; by 1945, also civilian and, thereupon, increasingly gen. Sgt-Pilot, F. Rhodes, 1942, records the euph. form, as also H. & P., 1943. Also, occ., in Shit Creek or in the creek (Sgt G. Emanuel, 1945); it had, by ca. 1955, acquired the allusive var. up the well-known creek (P.B.). By 1950, if not earlier, also Aus.; Alex Buzo uses it in Norm and Ahmed, prod. 1968, and in the glossary to Three Plays, 1973, defines it as 'in a desperate or impossible situation'. Partridge, 1945, records a (prob.) rare WW2 nuance, 'on a merry night-out'. P.B.: perhaps orig. influenced by the Scouts' injunction to 'Paddle your own canoe!'; but the creek suggests a US orig., and W. & F., 1965, has 'from homosexual usage, meaning that one has encountered difficulties or has been discovered while engaged in anal intercourse'.

up-stage. Haughty, supercilious; conceited: theatrical coll. (from ca. 1920) >, by 1933, gen. S.E. (OED Sup.) Ex play up-stage, a foremost role. The v., when not theatrical j. but used fig. for 'to overshadow, to usurp attention', is S.E. (SOD, 1977).

up-stairs. See upstairs.

up stick(s). To set up a boat's mast: nautical s.: stick, 1845, rare in C.20; sticks, from not later than 1888 (Clark Russell). Occ. fig. Ex stick, a mast.—2. As up stick or up the stick (even, occ., up stickers), pregnant: Public Schools': mid-C.20. Cf. up the pole, 8.—3. See up jib.

up-tails all. See uptails...

up the chute. Worthless; (persons and plans, acts, etc.) stupid; wrong: Aus.: since ca. 1920. B., 1942.

up the country. See up, adj., 1.

up the creek. See up Shit Creek.

up the cuff of (someone). In that person's good graces: tailors': late C.19–20.

up the dirt road. A low Can. ref. to sodomy:—1950.

up the duff. (Of a woman) pregnant: low Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Prob. suggested by pudden club; cf. up stick, 2.

up the Gulf. 'Serving in the Persian Gulf' (Granville): RN coll., since ca. 1915—but more and more widely understood and gen. as the C.20 progressed, and the Gulf's importance with it. Cf. up the Straits.

up the line; esp. go... (To go) on leave: RN: C.20. 'The phrase originated in Naval depots and referred to the railway line leading from the port to London or home' (Granville). —2. Hence, as in "'He went up the line on his tod,'"—"Deserted?"—"Yes. They caught him three weeks later in Blackpool. Clewed up in a dosshouse, he was, stone broke"' (Heart, 1962): RN: mid-C.20.

up the mad house, adv. and adj. 'Working trains into London' (Railway, 2nd): Southern Region railwaymen's: since late 1940s.

up the pole. In good repute; hence, strait-laced: military: ca. 1890–1910. Perhaps up the pole = high up.—2. (Gen. up a pole: Manchon.) In difficulties; e.g. over-matched, in the wrong: low: from ca. 1890. 'Pomes' Marshall, 'But, one cruel day, behind two slops he chanced to take a stroll,/And... he heard himself alluded to as being up the pole.' Perhaps ex pole, the part of the mast above the rigging. Cf. up a gumtree.—3. Hence, half-witted; mad: low: C.20.

—4. (Rather) drunk: 1896 (Ware, who lists also get on the pole, to verge on drunkenness:—1909).—5. Annoyed, irritated: nautical: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) This pole is presumably the mast.—6. In Aus., 'distracted through anger, fear, etc.; also, disappeared, vanished' (C.J. Dennis): late C.19–20.

—7. Hence, 'Wrong, worthless, stupid' (B., 1942): Aus.: since ca. 1918.—8. Pregnant: low, esp. Cockneys': from ca. 1908. Perhaps ex 3; cf. up stick(s), 2. ? or phallic symbolism.

—9. In go up the pole, to behave circumspectly: C.20. Ex 1.

up the road. 'Committed for trial before a judge and jury' (Powis): police and c.: later C.20. Also up the steps.

up the rock. In detention: Services', at Gibraltar: late C.19–20. (H. & P.) See Rock.

up the spout. In pawn: coll.:—1812 (Vaux); current well into C.20. See spout, v.—2. Hence, imprisoned; in hospital:

low:—1823 (Bee); ob. by 1930.—3. Hence, in a bad way (1853); bankrupt (—1854), this being mainly dial. OED.

—4. Pregnant with child: low: late C.19–20. Often in form, to have been put up the spout.—5. (Of a bullet) in the rifle-barrel and ready to be fired: military: from 1914. (B. & P.) P.B.: in later C.20, often one up the spout.

up the steps. See steps, 2, 3.

up the stick. (Very) eccentric; crazy, mad: workers':—1935. Ex synon. up the pole. P.B.: perhaps orig. suggested by monkey up a stick.—2. Pregnant: low, esp. Cockneys' and N. Country: from ca. 1920. Cf. up stick(s), 2, q.v.

up the Straits. On the Mediterranean Station: RN coll.: late C.19–20. Granville, 'Through the Straits of Gibraltar'. Cf. up the Gulf.

up the tree. See tree, n., 1.

up the wall, adv.; hence, also, an adj. (in the predicate). Orig. of persons, 'out of one's wits' (not congenitally, but driven so by others or by circumstances); hence, awry; (of supposed facts, calculations, premisses) fallacious; crazy: since ca. 1944, but gen. only since ca. 1950. 'It's'—'He's'—'enough to drive'—or 'send'—'you up the wall.' Adopted, I suspect, from the slang of American drug addicts and transmitted by US servicemen. But cf. run up the wall, q.v.

up the way. (Of women) pregnant: Aus. low: C.20. Also up the wop. (B., 1942.) Cf. S.E. in the family way.

up the weather. See weather.

up there. See want it.

up there, Cazaly! A c.p. of encouragement: Aus., but mostly Melbourneites': ca. 1930–50. 'Cazaly was a noted South Melbourne footballer, whose speciality was high marking' (B., 1943).

up to. Knowledgeable about: since early C.19: in C.20 coll., or informal S.E. An early example is in Bill Truck, Sep. 1823. 'Don't you fret! I'm up to all her little tricks and carryings-on.' See up to a thing; snuff, n., 4.—2. Before, as in Trollope, 1862, 'She told me so, up to my face' (OED); coll.; ob. ? ex looking up to.—3. Obligatory (up)on; (one's) duty; the thing one should, in decency, do: coll.: US (1896, George Ade the inimitable: OED Sup.), anglicised ca. 1910. East London Dispatch (S. Africa), 10 Nov. 1911; C. J. Dennis, 1916; Hugh Walpole, 1933. Orig. in poker, as Greenough & Kittredge remark.—4. See upta...

up to a thing or two, be. To 'know a thing or two': coll.: 1816 (OED Sup.).

up to date. Coll. as = (brought) up to the relevant standard of the time (—1890); almost S.E.

up to Dick, dictionary. See Dick, dictionary.

up to here. To an unspecified but considerable degree, as in 'I've had it—I'm choked off—up to here', which may be accompanied by a gesture indicating one's throat, top of head, etc.; or simply as in 'You're in trouble up to here' (Alan Hunter, Gently Coloured, 1969): coll.: later C.20. (P.B.)

up to much, not. (Rather) incapable; (of things) inferior: (dial., from ca. 1860; hence) coll.: 1884, Sala, 'The shoes were not, to use a vulgarism, "up to much"' (OED). P.B.: the negative aspect may be implied, as in, 'Would you say he was up to much?'—expecting the answer 'no'.

up to mud. Worthless: mostly Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Cf. clear as mud. A var. of putty, 6, q.v.

up to slum, snuff. See slum, n., 4, and snuff, n., 4.

up to the (or one's) cackle, gossip, or try-on. Alert, shrewd, experienced: low: resp. C.19, late C.18—mid-19 (G. Parker, 1781), mid-C.19—early 20. See also the nn. and cf. snuff, n., 4.

up to the hammer. First-rate; excellent: from early 1880s: s. >, ca. 1900, coll.; ob. Lit., up to the standard. (OED.) Cf. just the hammer, exactly what was needed.

up to the knocker or the nines. See knocker, 13, and nines. A rare var. is up to the door.

up to trap. Shrewd; alert; see trap, n., in sense of sagacity. It occurs in David Moir's Mansie Wauch, 1828 (EDD).

up to tripe. Worthless; thoroughly objectionable: lower classes': earlier C.20. (F. & G.) Ex tripe, 1. Cf. up to mud.

up top. 'Flying at high altitude' (Jackson): RAF coll.: since ca. 1925.—2. High ranked; among the high-ranked officers: adv. and adj.: RN coll.: C.20. P-G-R.

up topsides. 'On the upper-deck; aloft' (Granville): RN coll.: C.20. P.B.: perhaps a relic of China Stations' pidgin.

up with. To raise (esp. one's arm); to lift or pick up: coll.: 1760, Henry Brooke, 'She ups with her brawny arm.' Cf. up, v.

up with petticoats – down with drawers! A joc. c.p. invitation to 'fun and games': ca. 1880–1940. See DCpp.

up you! The orig. form of the up you... entries: C.19–20 (and prob. much earlier). This expression of rudest contempt forms the verbal equivalent of the world-wide extended-middle-finger gesture, indicating also derision and defiance. P.B.: but cf. also up, v., 2, which would make it = simply a brutal 'fuck you!' A mid-C.20 Services' 'catch' was to say to some innocent, 'Do you know (such-and-such a place)?', and, on the affirmative, to mention some prominent landmark; then, taking the listener along in imagination, 'Well, go a hundred yards down the left-hand side—and up you from there!'

up you go with the best of luck! 'The M.O.'s valediction when sending you up the line after hospital' (B. & P.): c.p.: WW1. P.B.: an early example occurs in Olive Dent, A V.A.D. in France, 1917. Telling of how an up-patient is helping her make the beds in a camp hospital, she writes, 'he helped the young soldier sit up so that he could adjust the mattress, saying as he did so, "Up you go... and the best of luck!"—he could not help completing the tag.'

up you for the rent! Aus. elab. of up you!: since ca. 1930. B., 1959.

up your arse! See up your pipe! and cf.:

up your ass, with a hard-wire brush (or crooked stick or red-hot poker!) A low Can. c.p., uttered 'just for something to say; fellow doesn't mean anything uncomfortable when he says it' (Can. correspondent, who adds the post-1945 var. ...with a charged condenser): C.20; common among Canadian soldiers of WW2. Cf. up your pipe!, the Brit. version.

up your gonga or jacksie, -y! Variants of up your pipe!

up your jumper! A c.p. of either defiance or derision: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (Jon Cleary, Just Let Me Be, 1950.) P.B.: either elliptical for (oompah, oompah) stick it up your jumper! or euph. for:

up your pipe! A var. of the classic vulgar derivative retort up your arse! = 'Get away with you!', 'Of course I won't do it!', etc.: orig. Services', mostly army: since ca. 1930. Cf. synon. up your gonga or jacksie, -y! Often simply:

up yours! Abbr. up your arse, etc. late C.19–20. Still current c. 1967, often as semi-joc. expression of greeting or for lack of something to say. Cf. fuffas and up your ass.

uphills. Dice so loaded as to turn up high numbers: gaming c. (—1700) >, s.; † by 1840. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) Opp. low men, q.v.

uplift. An auxiliary spring: Aus. motorists': since ca. 1950. A ref. to brassières. (B.P.) upness for inspection. Ready and prepared for inspection: army: mid-C.20. Brig. P. Mead, Soldiers in the Air, 1967.

upon. See the cross, one's say-so, my sivy, the square, the suit.

upward twizzle or, by deliberate alteration, ozzletwizzle. An upward—strictly, a vertical—climbing roll in flying: RAF: since ca. 1950 at latest.

upped, ppl adj. Raped: lower: C.20. (W.L. Gibson Cowan, Loud Report, 1937.) Cf. up, v., 2.

upper-and-downer. A wrestling-match: lower classes': —1909 (Ware). Cf. up-and-downer, q.v.

upper apartment. The head: ca. 1810–50. (J.H. Lewis, The Art of Writing, 7th ed., 1816: Moe.)

upper-ben or benjamin. A great-coat: c. >, ca. 1840, low s.: late C.18–20; ob. (Grose, 2nd ed., u. benjamin; H., 1st ed., id.) App. upper ben (Vaux) is C.19–20. The term benjy, stated by H., 3rd ed., and by F. & H. to be a synonym, is also applied to a waistcoat (H., 1st ed.). A great-coat was orig. termed a joseph, 'but, because of the preponderance of tailors named Benjamin, altered in deference to them' (H., 5th ed.). Vaux, 1812, has also upper tog:—2. In pl. trousers: low: ca. 1850–80. 'Ducange Anglicus'.

upper-crust. The head (not, as F. & H. says, the skin): boxing: from ca. 1810; ob. by 1930. (Boxiana, II, 1821.) Ex u.-c., the top crust of a loaf of bread.—2. Hence, a hat: ca. 1850–1910.—3. The higher circles of society; the aristocracy: coll.: orig. (mid-1830s), US; anglicised ca. 1890, but in England already ob. by 1920, and virtually † by 1930. It was used in Aus. as early as 1857 (S.J. Baker, letter, 1946). Cf. upper ten, q.v., and the title of Robin Cook's novel, 1962, The Crust on its Uppers. Perhaps ex Mr Upper Crust, glossed by Bee, 1823, 'He who lords it over others'.

upper deck. (Female) bosom; breasts: mostly Aus.: C.20. (Rats.) Cf. synon. upper works, 2, and flightdeck.

upper garret. See upper storey.

upper hand. In gain or get or have the u.h., to gain or have an advantage (v.t. with of): coll. (—1886); in C.20, S.E.: ? always S.E. Stevenson, in Kidnapped.

upper lip, stiff. See stiff upper lip.

upper loft. See upper storey.

upper Roger. A young king: Anglo-Indian: mid-C.18—early 20. (Y. & B.) A corruption of Sanskrit yuva-rajā, young king or heir apparent.

upper shell. A coat: c.: C.19. Cf. under-shell, q.v.

upper sixpenny. A playing field at the College: Eton: mid-(?early) C.19–20.

upper storey or works. The head; the brain: resp. 1788, Grose, ob., and from ca. 1770, both Smollett and Foote using it in 1771–4. Occ., ca. 1859–1910, upper loft (H., 2nd ed.). All of architectural origin, loft prob. being suggested by bats in the belfry: cf. unfurnished in the upper storey (or the garret), empty-headed, a nit-wit,—a phrase given by Grose, 2nd ed., as his upper storey or garrets [is,] are unfurnished; wrong in his upper storey, however, indicates lunacy (H., 5th ed.). Upper garret occurs in Sessions, Jan. 1790; an occ. var. is the pl. upper storeys, as in Keats's letters. T. Watters, China Review, Sep.—Oct. 1876, p.79, has gone in the upper storey, crazy, mad (Moe).

Upper Tartary. The Stock Exchange; Lower Tartary, non-members operating outside the Exchange: Stock Exchange: ca. 1810–50. (Spy, II, 1926.) The members are Tartars and tartars and hellish smart.

upper ten, the. The upper classes; the aristocrats: coll.: orig. US and in the form the upper ten thousand (1844); in Eng. the longer form (ob. in C.20) is recorded in 1861, the shorter a year earlier. 'Usually referred to N.P. Willis—an American journalist well known in England—and orig. applied to the wealthy classes of New York as approximating that number' (F. & H.). Cf. upper crust, q.v.—2. Hence upper-tendom, the world of the upper classes: orig. (1855) and mainly US; likewise coll.—Also, 3, upper-ten set, servants employed by 'the upper ten': these servants':—1909 (Ware).

upper-ten push. 'Aristocratic' prisoners in gaol: Aus. (prison s. rather than c.): C.20. (B., 1942.) See push, n., 3.

upper works. See upper storey.—2. Female breasts: low: from ca. 1870. Cf. upper deck.

upper yardman. 'Active service rating who is a candidate for commissioned rank. In Nelson's time the upper yardmen were the pick of the lower deck who could be relied upon to perform the most difficult jobs aloft' (Granville): RN: C.20.

uppers. Loafers aboard a warship: R Aus. N: WW2. B., 1943.—2. Amphetamines (rare in sing.): drugs world: adopted, ca. 1960, ex US. (John Wyatt, Drugs, 1973.) Cf. downer, 7, q.v.—3. As the uppers, the upper classes: coll., mostly lower-middle class: since ca. 1920.—4. In (down) on (one's) uppers, in (very) reduced, in poor, circumstances; occ., having a run of bad luck: US (—1891) coll., anglicised ca. 1900. Orig. on one's uppers; down being, app., unrecorded before 1904 (F. & H.). Ex shoes so worn that one walks on the uppers.—5. Seeuppers and downers. 'In casual use for the teeth, otherwise "choppers"' (Petch, 1969): since mid-C.20. They move up and down.

uppush. Having, at the time, plenty of money: ca. 1678–1720. (B.E.) The earliest sense of the word, which is otherwise, despite Swift's condemnation of the 'cock-a-hoop' sense, S.E. upputy. Above oneself; conceitedly recalcitrant or arrogant: coll.: C.20; adopted ex US. Claiborne, 1976, cites Mark Twain, Huckleberry Finn, 1884, and notes 'esp. of Negroes'.—2. Hence, socially grand: beatniks': since ca. 1959. Anderson, 'He was carrying such weight at that upputy shake. He was so bored by that grand reception...'

uppy. (Of a stroke) uppush: cricketers' coll.: 1851; † by 1900. Lewis.

upright, n. A drink of beer strengthened with gin: 1796 (Sporting Magazine: OED); ob.—2. The sexual act performed standing, a 'perpendicular': late C.18–20. See threepenny bit, and upright grand.

upright, adj. Highest: c.:—1688 (Randle Holme); † by 1820. Ex upright man.—2. See go upright.

upright grand. Perpendicular copulation: Aus. urban: since ca. 1925. (B., 1942.) Prob. an elab. on upright, n., 2, with a pun on playing the piano, upright or grand (P.B.).

upright man. The leader of a band of criminals or beggars: c.: mid-C.16—early 19. Awdelay, 1561; Middleton; B.E., 'Having sole right to the first night's Lodging with the Dells' (q.v.); Grose, 1st ed., 'The vilest stoutest rogue in the pack is generally chosen to this post.' Perhaps because he carries a short truncheon. See esp. Grose, P. upright sneak. A thief preying on potboys, whom he robs of the pots as they are engaged in collecting them: c.: late C.18–20; ob. Grose, 1st ed.

uproar. An opera: ca. 1760–1830. G.A. Stevens, 1762, has it in the form opperore; Grose, 1st ed., uproar. Cf. roaratorio, an oratorio.—2. See balls in an uproar.

ups-a-daisy!; upsi- or ups(e)y-daisy!; up-a-daisa, -daisy, -daisey, -dazy. A cry of encouragement to a child to rise, or as it is being raised, from a fall, or to overcome an obstacle, or when it is being 'baby-jumped': C.18–20: S.E. until mid-C.19, then coll. and dial. Resp., mid-C.19–20; id.; and mid-C.19–20, mid-C.18–20, id., and C.18. An elaboration on up, perhaps influenced (via lackadaisy) by lack-a-day! (OED.) Also oops-a-d., and even, occ., w(h)oops... P.B.: a C.20 parody, by those who object to 'nursery talk', is ups-a-bloody-buttermilk!

Ups and Downs, the. The 69th Foot Regiment, from ca. 1881 the 2nd Battalion of the Welsh Regiment: military: C.19–20; ob. Ex the fact that the number can be read upside down. (F. & G.) See also Agamemnon. Frank Richards, however, in Old-Soldier Sahib, 1936, explains the nickname more satisfactorily when he refers to 'the 2nd Welsh Regiment, who started as a mixed battalion of old crocks and young recruits, then fought for some time as marines, and at the finish, after nearly two hundred years of service, were officially converted into Welshmen'.

upsee (occ. upse, upsey, upzee, but properly upsy) Fre(e)ze, i.e. Friese; hence upsy Dutch; hence upsy English. After the Frisian, Dutch, English fashion, orig. and esp. of modes of drinking: late C.16–17: perhaps orig. coll., but gen. considered S.E. Ex Dutch op zijn, on his, hence in his (sc. fashion). OED; F. & H.

upset the apple-cart. See apple-cart.

upsidaisy. See ups-a-daisy.

upshot. A riotous escapade, drunken frolic: ca. 1810–40. Lex. Bal. (preface).

upside down in cloud. 'Abbreviated version of "There we were, upside down in cloud, fuck-all on the clock, and still climbing"—commonly used to check line-shooters' (W/Cdr R.P. McDouall, 1945): RAF operational: since ca. 1940. The clock=altimeter. P.B.: by 1950, if not earlier, the complete version had been intensified to ... and still climbing hard.

upside of. See next, 2.

upside with (a person), be. To be even or quits with; to be (more than) a match for: (orig. Scots; from mid-C.19, also English) dial. and coll.: from the 1740s. OED; EDD.—2. Hence, on a level with: coll.: from ca. 1880. Var., be upsidies of, to be alongside of: 1894 (OED).

upstairs, n. A special brand of spirits: London public house: late C.19–20. Because usually kept on a shelf. The brand, etc., varies with the house. F. & H., 'A drop of upstairs'. upstairs, adj. In pawn: Glasgow:—1934. Euph. Cf. stuck away.

upstairs, adv. Up in, up into, the air: airmen's coll.: from ca. 1918. (OED Sup.) Hence, in come or go upstairs, to ascend, to gain height. An RAF S/Ldr, "Nasty Messerschmitts." And the answer came back, "Okay, pals, keep them busy. I'm coming upstairs!", Allan A. Michie & Walter Graebner, Their Finest Hour, Nov. 1940. In contrast, downstairs is in the air but near the ground or, at the least, at a low altitude, as in Ibid., 'We were fighting upstairs and downstairs between 1,000 and 1,500 feet.'—2. See kick upstairs.

upstairs out of the world, go. To be hanged: joc. coll.: late C.17–18. Congreve, 1695, 'By your looks you should go,' etc.

upsy-daisy. See ups-a-daisy.

upta or upter. Inferior; worthless, no good; contemptible: Aus.:—1919 (W.H. Downer, Digger Dialects: Wilkes, who glosses 'No good at all [abbr. of "up to putty" or "up to shit"]').

uptails (up-tails) all, play at. To coit: ca. 1640–1750: coll. rather than s. (Herrick.) Ex the name of a song and its lively tune.

upter. See upta.

uptight. Tense; nervous: adopted, ca. 1967, ex US, orig. as hippy s., but very soon > gen. coll. (Burton H. Wolfe, The Hippies, 1968.) Paul Janssen remarks of two quot'ns from Jagger, 1974, that in the first, p. 175, the sense is as above, but that, in the second, p. 209, it has shifted to 'shy; introverted'. Ex wound up tight. Other nuances following from these are 'embarrassed', 'angry', 'anxious'.

uptucker. A hangman: c.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.). Ex tuck, v., 1. upya or upyer. Mere spelling perversions, to denote vulgarity, of up you!, or a shortening of up your ...!

uranium. See feel like an ounce ...

urge, n. As in 'powered by the 180-horsepower engine—and that's some urge': used by the commentator at an aerobic display, 1976. (P.B.) urges, v. 'To hint (for something)': Aus. coll.: C.20. B., 1942.

urxer. A racecourse tipster: Aus.:—1926 (Jice Doone). Amplified in Anthony Kimmins's Aus. racing novel, Lugs O'Leary, 1960, thus: "'An urxer," explained Lugs patiently, "is a man who looks around for suckers like you—and tips each one a different horse. Someone's got to win.'" Wilkes's earliest quot'n is from Truth, 6 Apr. 1924, and he adds the important comment, 'a race tipster who seeks a bonus from the winnings of others.' Cf.:—2. A confidence-trickster's accomplice: Aus. c.: since ca. 1920. B., 1942.—3. Tout for a brothel: Aus. c.: since ca. 1925. Rats, 1944.—4. A chap, a fellow: Aus. ('not particularly pejorative': B.P.): since ca. 1940. 'What are you urgers up to?' Ex senses 1 and perhaps 2 and 3.—5. A sponger: Aus.: C.20. (Tom Ronan, Only a Short Walk. 1961.) He urges you to stand him a drink. Prob. the earliest sense.

Uriahites. The 3rd Battle Squadron of the Grand Fleet: RN officers': 1914+. (Bowen). The ref. is to that Uriah whom David, with malice aforethought, set 'in the forefront of the battle' (F. & G.).

Urial of the Planets, the. Ireland: literary coll.: late C.17–mid-19. B.E., 'Because of its frequent and great Rains, as Heidelberg and Cologne in Germany, have the same Name on the same Account'. Cf. England's umbrella, q.v.

urjee. A (humble) petition: Anglo-Indian coll.:—1886 (Y. & B.). Corruption of urj(ee).

urky-purky (or perky)! An Aus. children's exclam. of disgust; also used attributively, as in 'I don't want to eat that urky-purky porridge': since ca. 1930. (B.P.) A defective reduplication of dirty—or, at the least, prompted by dirty. P.B.: yurkies also occurs in Brit. domestic coll.; cf. yuk!

urn. In carry the urn, RN joc. var. of carry the can, q.v.: WW2. P-G-R.

us. We: a frequent sol. in mod. English. Cf. we uns, q.v.—2. In the predicate, after some part of the v. to be, it is, however, merely coll. and dial.; if any emphasis is laid, it is almost S.E.: C.19 (prob. earlier)—20. "'Who's there?" "It's us"' is coll., but "'It wasn't you", "It was us, we tell you"' borders on S.E.—3. Me; to me: dial. and (low) coll.: recorded in 1828, but prob. considerably older.

usby. See wosby.

use, n. Esp. in have no use for (person or thing), to consider (him, it) superfluous or tedious or objectionable: coll.: orig. (1887), US; Anglicised ca. 1900. Cf. have no time for, q.v.

use, v. To enjoy—if only one could get it, as in 'I could use a beer right now!': since ca. 1935, perhaps 10 or 20 years earlier. Arthur Gray, 1969, dates NZ usage as current since ca. 1950. Meiosis.

use at (a place). To frequent: c.: from mid-1870s. Horsley, Jottings from Jail, 1877, 'I got in company with some of the wildest people in London. They used to use at a pub. in Shoreditch.' Ex dial. use about, round.

use frightening powder. The defending solicitor produced a recording machine at the lower court—a move which we call "using frightening powder" (John Gosling, 1959): police s.: since ca. 1935.

use her shif for toothpaste. I could ..., or, intensively, I (or he)'d crawl three miles over broken glass just to ..., a consciously low and scatological, joc. c.p. declaration of infatuation: since ca. 1950.

use knacker-lacquer and add lustre to your cluster! An army c.p. of the 1960s, parodying advertisements for hair- or nail-lacquer; here cluster = genitals. (P.B.)

use (one's) loaf. To think (esp., hard or clearly); to be ingenious, exercise ingenuity; to use one's commonsense, with, if necessary, a certain amount of cunning as well.: C.20; esp. Services' in WW2, and gen. since. Often in imperative or exhortation, 'Oh, come on! Use your loaf!' See loaf of bread, 2, rhyming s. = head.

use to (do something). To be accustomed to do it, in the habit of doing it: M.E.—C.20: S.E. until mid-C.19, then coll.; in C.20, almost a sol. (N.B., the past tense, used to, is, however, still S.E.) E.g. 'I didn't use to do that,' 'He hadn't used to do it', are now illiterate coll. See used to was.

use up. See used up, near end.

used-beer department. The latrine in a drinking establishment: Can.: since ca. 1925.

used to was. Used to be: joc. c.p.: since ca. 1910; by 1960, ob. "'Losing y'r dash, Fin," grinned Ryan. "Not the family man yer user was"' (H. Drake Brockman, Sydney of the Bush, 1948; earlier in her play, Men Without Wives, 1938.) Earlier yet in Somerset Maugham, Cakes and Ale, 1930, 'I'm not so young as I used to was.'

used up. Killed: military: mid-C.18—mid-19. Grose, 1st ed., 'Originating from a message sent by the late General [John] Guise, on the expedition'—ca. 1740—'At Carthage, when he desired the commander-in-chief, to order him some more grenadiers, for those he had were all used up'; actually, of the 1,200 attacking the castle of St Lazar, a half were, within a couple of hours, killed or wounded.—2. Hence, broken-hearted; utterly exhausted (1840); bankrupt: mid-C.19—20: the second nuance being coll. bordering on S.E.; the other two, s.; all three nuances are ob. H., 1st ed.; Calverley, 1871, 'But what is coffee but a noxious berry/Born to keep used-up Londoners awake?' The OED records use up, to tire out, as a coll. at 1850: app. ex used up, utterly exhausted.

useful, n. An odd-job man, a handyman; a general factotum in a business, pub, etc.: Aus. coll.: since late C.19. Often, earlier, as general useful. E.P.; Wilkes.

useful, adj. Very good or capable; (extremely) effective or effectual: from ca. 1929. E.g. 'He's a pretty useful boxer.'

useless as a third tit, as. Utterly useless; superfluous: army: C.20. Cf.:-

useless as monkey's grease (, as). Useless: C.18 coll. ('Proverbial' Fuller.) Monkeys are thin. Cf.:-

useless as tits on a ... Can. low expression for 'utterly useless', completed by, e.g., ... a canary (since ca. 1945); ... a boar (later C.20: Leech, 1981); ... a bull or a whore (since late C.19). Cf. you're as much use as tits on a canary, a 'c.p. hurled at inefficient player in baseball, or other field sport' (Leechman).

user. Specifically, a 'taker of narcotics' (Home Office): drugs world coll. or j.: later C.20.

Ushant-eyed. 'A man with a fixed eye. Ushant lights were once one fixed and the other revolving' (Bowen): nautical coll.: early C.20.

Ushant Team, the. The Channel Fleet blockading Brest during the Napoleonic Wars: naval coll. of that period. Bowen.

usher. A naval instructor: RN: C.20. (P-G-R.) Joc. use of C.19 S.E. term for 'assistant schoolmaster'; cf. schoolie.

usher! Yes!: c.: from 1870s; ob. by 1930. (Horsley, Jottings from Jail, 1877.) Prob. ex Yiddish user (it is so), as F. & H. proposes; poss. suggested by yessir!

usher of the hall, the. The odd kitchen-man: Society: ca. 1880–1910. Ware.

using the wee riddle. (Vbl n.) Pilfering: Clydeside nautical: late C.19–20. Bowen, who gives an anecdotal explanation.

usual. In his, her, my, etc., his (etc.) usual state of health: coll.: from mid-1880s. Annie S. Swan, 1887, 'Aunt Susan is in her usual' (EDD).—2. See as per usual.

usual speech not required. Underworld c.p. tantamount to 'No bill!' in ref. to the verdicts 'Guilty' or 'Not guilty': later C.19—early 20. Clarkson & Hall, Police!, 1889.

ute. A utility truck (a light van): army: since ca. 1936. (H. & P.) Also, since ca. 1945, common in Aus., as in 'Till You Come to a Green Ute' in Eleanor Dark's Lantana Lane, 1959.

util. Only in util actor, that actor who can take almost any part: theatrical:—1909 (Ware). But cf.:-

utility. (Gen. pl.) A minor part for a beginner: theatrical: from ca. 1870; ob. B. & L.

utter, v. To speak; to make any vocal sound (e.g. of pain or pleasure): mostly Society: since early C.20. Claiborne cites Kipling, My Son's Wife, 1910. Ngaio Marsh, Death in a White

Tie, 1938, 'If you stare like a fish and never utter.' Short for utter a word or a sound. Cf. the almost-c.p., is it my turn to utter?, is it my turn to speak now?

utter in affected use is S.E. except when it occurs in such a phrase as s. the blooming utter, the utmost (Henley, 1887); even utterly utter, which the OED records at 1882, is S.E., but quite too utterly utter (F. & H., 1904) is coll.

wdb. Unexploded fire bomb: Fire Services': WW2: (Julian Franklyn.) Cf. incy.

uzby. See wosby.

V

V. See make v.; vee.

V. and A. Anything worth stealing: RAF: since ca. 1945. Ex stores marked 'V. and A.'—valuable and attractive, e.g. watches and cameras.—2. Always the V. and A., the Victoria and Albert Museum: since late C.19.—3. As the V. & A., the Royal yacht the Victoria and Albert: RN coll.: early C.20. F. & G.

V.C. Plucky: London: 1880s. (Ware.) I.e., deserving the Victoria Cross.

V.C. mixture. Rum: Services', esp. army: WW1. (F. & G.) Because of the Dutch courage thereby imparted.

V.D. and scar. The Volunteer Reserve Decoration (VRD) and bar: RN: later C.20 (Peppitt). P.B.: but this is also an imaginary decoration, used to parody those who carry many 'letters after their name', as in, 'Sir Somebody Something, D.S.O. [q.v.], BSA two and three-quarter [a type of motorcycle], VD and scar'; among Servicemen since mid-C.20 at latest.

V.I.P. Lit. 'very important person' (popularised during the latter half of WW2), has, since the late 1940s, often been used ironically, esp. of a self-important person.

V.R. Ve (i.e. we) are: a London, esp. Cockneys', c.p. at the time of Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee (June, 1897). Punning V.R., Victoria Regina. Cf. Jubileev it, q.v.—2. In 'evasive reference to the prison van, which, in the reign of Victoria, bore these initials on each side': lower classes': ca. 1850–1901. (Ware.) Also vagabonds removed: Ibid.: id.

V-sign. See make V.

vac. A vacation: university and, though less, school coll.: C.18–20. Often with capital initial. White, West End, 1900, 'Fork out... I'll pay you back in the Vac.'—2. A vacuum cleaner: Aus. domestic, since ca. 1948 (B.P.); by ca. 1950, common among women in Britain.—3. (Or spelt vacc.) Vaccination: medical world: late C.19–20.—4. See vac.

vacant spot. Gen. in have a..., to be half-witted: late C.19—earlier 20. Cf. shingle short, tile loose.

vacation. An imprisonment; a prison: tramps' c.:—1932 (Frank Jennings, Tramping with Tramps).

vack (rare after 1940); vackie, better vacky. A person, esp. a child, evacuated overseas or from city to country: since Sep. (ca. the 10th) 1939. Daily Telegraph, 4 Oct. 1939 (vack and vacky); Berrey, 9 Nov. 1940 (the longer form). Ex evacuee. —2. (Only vack.) An old woman: Aus. low: since ca. 1925. (B., 1942.) A corruption of 'vagabond'?—3. See vac.

vacuum cleaner. A sports car: Londoners': since ca. 1947. Used for picking up bits of fluff: an ephemeral pun; see pick up and fluff.

vag, n. A vagabond: since ca. 1690. Edward ('Ned') Ward, The Wooden World Dissected, 1707 (p. 2), 'Its the New-Bridewell of the Nation, where all the incorrigible Vaiges are sent, to wear out Ropes.' (Admittedly the quot'n constitutes a probability, not a certainty.) P.B.: Vaiges more prob. = vagrants: cf.—2. In on the vag, 'Under the provisions of the Vagrancy Act' (C.J. Dennis): Aus. and to some extent, English (and US): late C.19–20. Cf.— vag, v. To charge (someone) under the Vagrancy Act: Can. (late C.19–20) and Aus. (C. 20). (B., 1942.) Adopted from US: see Underworld, and cf. prec., 2.

vagabonds removed. See V.R., 2.

vain. See take (one's) name in vain.

vainglorious man. See piss more...

vakeel. A barrister: Anglo-Indian col.: mid-C.19–20. (H., 3rd ed., 1864.) Properly a representative. Ex Urdu wakil, Arabic wakil. Y. & B.

Valiant as an Essex lion. Timid: C.18—early 19. Essex lion, q.v., = calf.

valise. A bed-roll: army officers' coll.: C.20. P-G-R. valley. See cascade.

vallie. The tranquilliser drug Valium: Aus.: later C.20. Barry Humphries, Nice Night's Entertainment, 1981, gloss.

valoose. See feloosh.

Valpo. Valparaiso: nautical and S. American coll.: late C.19–20.

valve. The female pudend: low: C.19–20. Perhaps by confusion with vulva. 'Also, perhaps, because a valve is opened with a cock' (correspondent, 1966).

vamos, vamos, vamoos, vamoose, vamoosh, vamoose, vamoos, varmoose. To depart, decamp, disappear: US coll. (ca. 1840), anglicised as s.: 1844, Selby, in London by Night, 'Vamoose—scarper—fly!' The forms vamos (C.20), vamoos (H., 1st ed.) and varmoose (1862) are rare, while vamoosh (Baumann) or vamosh (Manchon) is illiterate, and vamoose or vampoose is incorrect—but rare after the 1850s. Ex Sp. vamos, let us go.—2. As v.t., to disappear from, the word has not caught on in England.

Vamoses. Portuguese soldiers: British Army in Spain, 1808–14. (Bernard Capes, A Castle in Spain, 1903.) Cf. prec.

vamp, n. A robbery: c.: mid-C.19—early 20. Perhaps ex vamp, v., 1, q.v.—2. See vamps.—3. A woman that makes it her habit or business to captivate men by an unscrupulous display of her sexual charm: coll.: 1918 (OED Sup.). Abbr. vampire.

vamp, v. To pawn: late C.17–19: c. >, by 1780, low s. B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.; H., 3rd–5th edd. Ex vamp, to renovate.—2. (V.t. and i.) To attract (men) by one's female charms; to attempt so to attract (them): coll.: 1927 (OED Sup.). Ex vamp, n., 3, q.v.—3. To eat: military: WW1. (F. & G.) Possibly ex the S.E. musical sense influenced by horses' champing.

vamper. A thief; esp. one of a gang frequenting public houses and picking quarrels 'with the wearers of rings and watches, in hopes of getting up a fight, and so enabling their "pals" to steal the articles' (H., 3rd ed., 1864). Cf. vamp, n., 1.—2. (Gen. in pl.) A stocking: c.: late C.17—early 19. B.E.; Grose, 1st ed. 'Perhaps an error for vampeis or vampeys' (OED). Cf. vamps q.v.

vamping, n. and adj. of vamp, v., 2, q.v.

vampire. The ghost in Punch and Judy: showmen's: mid-C.19–20. See swatchel. Cf. vampo.—2. A person insufferably boring or wearisome: from ca. 1860; very ob. Ex lit. sense. (Occ. vampyre.)—3. One who, in a hospital, draws off, for testing, a little of a patient's blood: Forces': 1940+. Ex the activities of the traditional vampire. (L.A.) Cf.:—4. (Usu. pl, the Vampires.) Joc., usu. affectionate and admiring, nickname for the collecting teams of the National Blood Transfusion Service: later C.20. Cf. 3. (P.B.) vampire's bagmeal. Cold tinned veal: RN lowerdeck: mid-C.20. Heart, 1962.

vampo. The clown (see vampire, 1): id.:? ex Lingua Franca. See swatchel.

vampo(ø)se. See vamos.

vamps. Refooted stockings: London:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Ex lit. S.E. sense.

van. (Ad)vantage: lawn tennis: C.20.—2. See Madam Van. van blank (or blonk). White wine: Services' coll.: WW1. (F. & G.) Also van blank anglee, whisky (Ibid.). Cf. van rooge, red wine: id. Written versions of coarse Eng. pron. of Fr. vin blanc (anglais), and vin rouge. And see plonk.

Van der Merwe story. A 'pointless or naïve humorous joke at the expense of a mythical, foolish, Afrikaans-speaking person, typified by the commonest name in South Africa, van der Merwe: since 1965' (A.C. Partridge, 1968): S. African. P.B.: but, as the Rev. Kenneth Cracknell pointed out to me, after a visit to S. Africa, 1981, the jokes are not necessarily foolish or pointless; unlike in 'Irish' or 'Polish' jokes, the eponymous hero sometimes makes his own point—he is not always the loser; e.g.: Van der M. applied for a job as a tree-feller. Asked for references, he replied that he had worked in the Kalahari Desert. 'But', said his interviewers, 'it is a wilderness, a waste land. There are not trees there at all!' 'So...!', says Van der M.

Van-Dooze, the. Nickname of the Royal Vingt-Deuxième Regiment of the Canadian Army: army: C.20. (P.B.)

van-dragger. 'One who steals parcels from vans' (David Hume): c.: C.20.

van John. A s. corruption of vingt-et-un: orig. and mainly university: 1853, 'Cuthbert Bede', "'Van John" was the favourite game'; ob. by 1930 (E.P.); but Granville records it as RN wardrobe usage.

Van Neck, Miss or Mrs. 'A large-breasted woman' (Grose, 2nd ed.): low: late C.18—early 19. Because she is well to the fore.

van rooge. See van blank.

vanboy. A conductor: busmen's: since ca. 1930.

vandemonianism. Rowdyism: Aus. coll.: ca. 1860–90. (Morris.) Ex Vandemonian, an inhabitant of Van Diemen's Land (Tasmania), esp. as applied to a convict resident there in early C.19; suggested partly by demon.

vandook. A corruption of bundook, q.v., a rifle: army: late C.19—early 20. F. & G.

vandyke (or V). A privy: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) With a pun on dike, dyke, q.v., and an allusion to the great painter Vandyke.—2. In be no Vandyke, to be plain-looking: C.20. Applied esp. to men, in ref. to the handsome fellows in Vandyke's portraits. P.B.: to which a coll. retort might justifiably be 'well, you're no ruddy oil-painting, yourself!' Vanity Fair. A chair: rhyming s.: since ca. 1870. Franklyn 2nd.

vantage. Profitable work: printers' coll.: late C.17–18. (Moxon.) Cf. fat, printers' n.

vap. A rather rare schoolboys' term dating from ca. 1905 and now ob. As in Arnold Lunn, Loose Ends, 1919: 'He distrusted the female sex because they seemed to indulge in an undue amount of "vap"—as he called it—chat which said one thing and meant another. Maurice hated "vap".' I.e. vapouring.

vardi, -ie. See vardy.—2. Like vardy, it is a var. of vardo, v. Lester defines it as 'to see; know'; the context usually determines which of those two meanings it bears, as in 'Vardy his jillpots standing by the cain', glossed as 'See that chap standing by the table.'—3. See next, 2.

vardo, n. A wagon; vardo-gill, a waggoner: c.:—1812 (Vaux); † by 1900. Ex Romany vardo (or wardo), a cart. (Sampson's verdo.)—2. Hence, a caravan, esp. a gipsy caravan: market-traders': since ca. 1880. Cheapjack, 1934; M.T. (Where also var. vardy).

vardo, v.t. To see, look at, observe: Parlyaree and low London:—1859. H., 1st ed., 'Vardo the cassey [gen. casa, carsey, case], look at the house'; H., 5th ed. (1874), 'This is by low Cockneys gen. pronounced vardy.' Cf. dekko, q.v.; perhaps ex Romany varter, v.t., to watch; note, too, that since in Romany v and w are nearly always interchangeable, there may be a connexion with ward (esp. in watch and ward). See also vardi, 2.

vardy, n. 'A verdict; an opinion: C.18–20 coll. and (in C.20, nothing but) dial. Swift has vardi, an occ. C.18 form,—and vardie occurs in C.18–20; Grose, 2nd ed.; H., 3rd ed. Ex † verdit, verdict. (OED.) M.T., 1978, gives senses 'opinion; verdict' as both current among market traders, and adds "'oar", as in "He would have to put his vardy in."' vardy, v. To swear upon oath: showmen's: since ca. 1860. P.H. Emerson, Signor Lippo, 1893.—2. See vardo, v. varicose. A varicose vein; (collectively with pl v.) one's varicose veins: coll.: C.20.

various veins. Varicose veins: coll. when the sol. is used humorously: C.20. (Ruth Park, 1950.) Other versions are very coarse or very close veins.

varment, varmint. 'A sporting amateur with the knowledge or skill of a professional': mainly sporting: ca. 1811–40. Byron, 1823, 'A thorough varmint, and a real swell,/Full flash, all fancy' (OED). Perhaps ex dial. varment, a fox.—2. Hence, spruce, natty, dashing: ca. 1811–80; extant in dial., though ob. even there. Lex. Bal.—3. Hence, varment (more gen. varmint) man, a 'swell': Oxford and Cambridge University: ca. 1823–40. Anon., Alma Mater, 1827.—4. Vermin: low:—1823; ob. Egan's Grose.

varment, varmint. adj. See n., 2 and 3.—2. Knowing, cunning; clever: dial. (—1829) soon > s.; in C.20, only dial. Trelawny, 1831 (OED). Ex varment, a fox.

varmentish; varmentey. The adj. and n. of varment, n., 1 and esp. 3: ca. 1811–30. Sporting Magazine, 1819, 'Nothing under four horses would look "varmentish"' (OED).

varmint-man. See varment, n., 3.—2. One who writes themes for idle undergraduates: university: ca. 1840–1900. Perhaps ex sense 1.

varnish. Bad champagne: Society: ca. 1860–1905. Ware.—2. Sauce: coffee-stall frequenters' C.20. Cf. synon. disinfectant.

varnish (one's) cane. (Of the male) to coit: Can. low: C.20. varnished wagons. Passenger-train cars: Can. railroadmen's:—1931.

varnisher. A coiner of counterfeit sovereigns. c.:—1864; ob. (H., 3rd ed.) Because this finishing touch often gave an effect of varnish.

varsal, 'varsal. Universal, whole; mostly in the varsal world: illiterate coll. (1696, Farquhar; OED) >, in C.19, dial.—2. Hence, single: ca. 1760–1820, then dial.; rare and ob. Scott.—3. Hence, adv.: extremely: 1814, 'A varsal rich woman' (OED): rare coll. and dial.; ob. Cf. versal, q.v.

Varsity, v-; 'V-, 'v-. University: orig. university coll. >, by early C.20, gen. coll. An early occurrence is in Observer, 9 Mar. 1706. Dorothy L. Sayers, in The Passing Show, 25 Mar. 1933, 'Nobody says "undergrads" except townees and journalists and people outside the university... Stick to "University"... "Varsity" has somehow a flavour of the 'nineties.' Cf. uni.—2. University College, Oxford: Oxford Univ. coll.: ca. 1850–1910.—3. As adj.: 1863 (OED Sup.); 1864, Tennyson. Whether as n. or adj., the term, in its wider sense, has not always been approved at the two older English universities. Ca. 1640–1700, Versity: likewise coll. W.; OED.

Varsity tit. See tit, 6.

vaseline. Butter: Royal Military Academy: late C.19–20. Cf. grease.

'vast heaving! 'Who do you think you're kidding? Stop pulling my leg!' (Granville): RN: C.20.

vast of, a. A great amount (e.g. of trouble) or number: dial. (1794: EDD) > also, by 1900, proletarian coll. Manchon. vastly. As a mere synonym of 'very' it is a coll. of C.18—early 19. H.C.K. Wyld, Spectator, 22 Apr. 1938.

vatch. (To) to have: back s., esp. butchers': late C.19–20.

Vatican roulette. The so-called 'safe period' which immediately precedes menstruation and is regarded as a means of birth control: Catholics': 1960 (the date of a famous encyclical) and after. On the analogy of the dicing-with-death Russian roulette.

vaudevillian. A vaudeville 'villain': joc. coll.: since ca. 1930.
Vaughan, the. The School library: Harrow coll.: late C.19–20. Ex Dr Vaughan (1816–97), the famous headmaster of Harrow.

vaulting-school. A coll. or s. (? orig. c.) var. of v.-house, a brothel: ca. 1605–1830. H. Parrot, 1606 (OED); B.E.; Grose.—2. Hence, 'an Academy where Vaulting, and other Manly Exercises are Taught' (B.E.): c. or s.: late C.17–early 19. Grose.

Vaux. A Vauxhall car: since ca. 1930. Elleston Trevor, A Place for the Wicked, 1968.

've. Have: coll. (he've, e.g., is sol.): C.19–20. Rather rare in the infinitive, as in A. Fielding, Death of John Tait, 1932, 'My road sense seems to've deserted me for the time being.' It may occur even at the beginning of a sentence, as in "'ve you done much?' (Neil Bell, Alpha and Omega, 1946), where 've you is pronounced view.

veal will be cheap – calves fall! A jeering c.p. addressed to a spindle-legged person: from ca. 1670; ob. (Ray, 1678.) Cf. mutton dressed as lamb.

Vee Dub. A VW, i.e. Volkswagen car or bus: motorists' coll.: since ca. 1960. (B.P., 1977.) See next.

Vee Wee. A Volkswagen vehicle: motorists': later C.20. Camilla Raab cites the name of a London Volkswagen spare parts firm, Vee Wee Ltd. Cf. Peewee as nickname for people whose initials are P.W., e.g. the jazz player Peewee Hunt.

veegle. A car: Aus. joc.: since ca. 1950. (B.P.) Ex childish pron. of S.E. vehicle; cf. the ve'cle or vekle, recorded in James Grant, Lights and Shadows of London Life, I, 1840.

veg. Vegetable(s): eating-houses' coll.: mid-C.19–20. E.g. 'Meat and two veg'. Ex abbr. P.B.: variant plurals are veggies (Jill Tweedie, Guardian, 18 Jan. 1979) and vegets: both gen. domestic coll.—2. 'A sea-mine. (Bomber command.) Short for vegetable in the same sense; vegetable was suggested by the fact that the mines were sown in areas known by such code-names as Onions and Nectarine' (P-G-R.): mostly RAF: WW2.—3. Both n. and adj., vegetarian: since ca. 1920.

vegetable breakfast. A hanging: low joc.: late C.19–early 20. The meal consists of an artichoke (punning heartly choke) and 'caper sauce' (q.v.).

vegetarian. A spinster averse from 'exchanging flesh': since ca. 1925.

vegets. See veg, 1, and cf.:-

vegy, adj. Vegetable: domestics': late C.19–20. H.A. Vachell, Quinney's, 1914.

Vein-Openers, the. The 29th Foot Regiment, from ca. 1881 the 1st Battalion of the Worcestershire Regiment: army: late C.18–early C.20. F. & G., 'The first to draw blood' in the American War (1770).

velvet. The tongue; 'especially the tongue of a magsman' (H., 5th ed.): in gen., late C.17–20, c. >, by 1800, low s. (B.E., Grose); in particular sense, from ca. 1870, low s. Ex its texture. See tip the velvet.—2. Elliptical for black velvet, any dark-skinned woman: in Australia, a lubra, a gin: C.20. Tom Ronan, Vision Splendid, 1954, 'It was a case of black velvet or no material, and the pioneers took to the velvet.'—3. In on velvet, in an easy or advantageous position: 1769 (Burke: OED); S.E. rapidly > sporting coll., Grose, 1st ed., having 'to be upon velvet, to have the best of a bet or match'; esp. as = sure to win. Cf. stand on velvet, which H., 5th ed., 1874, glosses: 'Men who have succeeded in their speculations, especially on the turf, are said to stand on velvet.'—4. In play on velvet, to gamble with winnings: gaming s. (in C.20, coll.): from ca. 1880. Cf. 3.—5. See little gentleman in black velvet.

Venetian cramps. 'Peculiar and ritualistic variation of "cramps" (used in various bedroom ceremonies)': Bootham School: from before 1900. Bootham.

vengeance. See whip-belly.

venerable monosyllable. The female pudend: ca. 1785–1840. (Grose, 2nd ed.) See monosyllable.

venison. See tup, n., 3.

vent. A ventriloquist; ventriloquism; ventriloquial; esp. in vent act: music halls', variety, light entertainment world: C.20. Simon Brett, Cast, in Order of Disappearance, 1975.

ventilating. That form of bullying at Sandhurst ca. 1830–55, by which 'the unfortunate was tied up to one of the ventilators... and then javelined with forks' (A. Mockler-Ferryman, Annals of Sandhurst). Perhaps rather coll. than s. Cf. Adamizing, bed-launching, shovelling.

ventilator. 'A play, player, or management that empties a theatre' (F. & H.); theatrical: later C.19–early 20. (B. & L.) Neat wit on the lit. sense.

venture-girl. A poor young lady seeking a husband in India: Anglo-Indian: ca. 1830–70. Ware.

venture it as Johnson did his wife, and she did well, – !fl. A semi-proverbial c.p. implying that it sometimes pays to take a risk: ca. 1670–1800. Ray, 1678; Fuller, 1732. Apperson.

Vera Lynn. A (drink of) gin: rhyming s.: since ca. 1940. (Weekly Telegraph, 6 Apr. 1946.) Often shortened to Vera, as in Robin Cook, The Crust on its Uppers, 1962. Ex the singer immensely popular during WW2—and after.

Veranda(h), the. The gallery of the old Victoria Theatre: London: late C.19. Ware.—2. An open exchange that, for mining shares, took place on the pavement: Melbourne: ca. 1855–1900. (B., 1943.) Wilkes's quotations show that it often occurred in the phrase under the verandah (or V-).

verb-grinder. A (pedantic) schoolmaster: coll.: 1809 (Malin); ob. by 1930. On gerund-grinder, q.v.

verbals. 'Oral statements of admission made at the time of arrest by criminals, and very frequently denied in court. It is often said that police invent them. However, they are usually not denied until legal aid is granted to the criminals' (Powis); cf. 'If you are a City of London mover, you get a fair investigation and a fair trial... but if you are the type of criminal I was [i.e. violent and dangerous]... verballing and fitting up [q.v.] is something you expect' (John McVicar, Listener, 8 Mar. 1979): police coll., verging on j.; also Aus.: later C.20.

verge. A gold watch: c.: late C.19–earlier 20. (F. & H.) Ex a verge (watch).—2. See TAVERN TERMS, §9 (end), in Appendix.

vergin' on the ridiculous. A low c.p. evoked by any mention of 'virgin', as, e.g., 'Well, she's a nice enough girl—and they do say she's still a virgin.'—'Ooh, aye, vergin'...!: raffish: since ca. 1950, perhaps earlier. (P.B.) Cf. Virgin for short... verites; V. At Charterhouse, a boardinghouse: mid-C.19–20; ob. 'A corruption of Oliverites, after Dr Oliver Walford, 1838–55' (F. & H.). But it ceased to be s. when, early in C.20, it > official. (Peter Sanders.)

vermillion. To besmear with blood: sporting: 1817 (OED); virtually † by 1930.

verneuk; verneuker; verneukerie. To swindle, cheat, deceive; one who does this; such behaviour: S. African coll.: resp. 1871, 1905, 1901. Direct ex Cape Dutch. Pettman.

Vernon's private navy. A flotilla of five East Coast herring drifters—Lord Cavan, Silver Dawn, Fisher Boy, Jacketa, and Fidget: RN: 1939+. They were wooden ships, and so were used in the anti-magnetic-mine operations of 1939. They also did excellent work bringing off troops from Dunkirk, and again on the return to Normandy, 1944. (Granville.) P.B.: cf. the equally diverse names in Kipling's poem 'Mine Sweepers', of similar craft in WW1, 'Sweepers—Unity, Claribel, Assyrian, Stormcock, and Golden Gain.'

versal, versal. Universal, whole; gen. with world: illiterate coll.: late C.16–19. Shakespeare; Sheridan.—2. Hence, single: id.: 1709, Mrs. Manley, 'No versal thing' (OED). Cf. varsal, q.v.

verse; verser. See:-

versing law. Swindling with counterfeit gold: c. of ca. 1590–1620. (Greene.) Ex:—verse, v.i. and v.t., to practise fraud or imposition (on): id. Ibid. Cf.:—verser. A member of a band of swindlers: c.: ca. 1550–1620. ? ex verse, to overthrow, upset.

Versity. See varsity.

vert, 'vert. A pervert or convert to another religion (esp.

Roman Catholicism): coll.: 1864 (Union Review, May). W., however, thinks that it may have originated, ca. 1846, with Dean Stanley.—2. Occ. as v.i.: coll.: 1888.

vertical. A plant living on the side of a perpendicular rock-face: gardening s. (—1902) >, ca. 1910, coll. OED.

vertical breeze, draught or gust. See wind vertical.

vertical care-grinder. A treadmill: c. (—1859); † (H., 1st ed.) Known also as the everlasting, horizontal, or universal staircase.

verticals. 'Navigating officer: "Waiter... why have you cleared my place away? I told you not to! This ship gives me the verticals. [Various other complaints follow.]"' (Musings, p. 14): RN wardroom: early C.20. (P.B.)

very at end of phrase or sentence is coll.:—1887. Baumann, 'And when it is faded, it looks ugly, very.'

very à la. Derogatory of an attempt at high fashion that falls short of the hoped-for effect: middle-class female: mid-C.20. Not quite à la mode. (P.B.)

very cheese, the. Correct; requisite: Glasgow: C.20. Ex the cheese.

very close; very coarse. See various veins.

very dead. Applied to a soldier, or to a quadruped, left unburied on the battlefield: a WW1 c.p. Not so tautological as it sounds, the connotation being the squalor and the stink. Later > gen. coll.

very fashionable. Characteristic of the patronage shown by rich men: Society: 1870s. (Ware.) Ex familiar + millionaire.

very francoy. Very pronounced; vulgar: Society: ca. 1870–1905. (Ware.) Ex très français, very French.

very grave. 'When finances are low you will often hear, in reply to a question, the words, "Very grave", or "The position is critical"... merely a polite way of letting the world know that you are broke' (H. & P.): Service officers': since June 1940. Ex the Allied military position in May–June 1940.

very how! Very well: c.p. reply to 'How are you?', 'How are you doing?', etc.: orig. (ca. 1955) and still (1977) mostly Aus. (Mrs C. Raab.) See also not very how.

very interesting! (Pron. with a mock German accent, approx. vairee in'terestink, and sometimes completed... but stupid!) The full c.p. orig. in the US TV comedy series 'Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In', shown by BBC late 1960s. Nigel Rees chose it as the title (?epitome) of his comprehensive collection of showbiz c.p.p., pub. 1980. See DCpp.

very like a whale (in a tea-cup). A c.p. applied to a very improbable, esp. a preposterous, statement: mid-C.19–early 20. (H., 1st ed., 1859; 2nd ed., 1860, the full version, which seems to have lasted only about a decade.) Ex Shakespeare, Hamlet, III, ii, 392–406.

very nice too! (, usu. and). A c.p. of appreciation or congratulation: since early C.20. See DCpp.

Very Little Water Society, the. 'A most informal and fluid group of North American anthropologists, who take their liquor "on the rocks". A play on the name of a real secret society of the Iroquois tribe, the "Little Water Society". Since ca. 1950' (Leechman): Can.

very 'oh my! Smug: Glasgow:—1934.

very tasty – very succulent! Aus. c.p.: ca. 1948–57. Popularised by the Aus. comedian known as 'Mo'. (B., 1953.) An elab. of:-

very tasty – very sweet! As an erotic c.p. it dates from (prob.) late C.19; but as a c.p. of gen. application—and quite innocent—it was popularised by the variety comedy duo Nan Kenway and Douglas Young, via the BBC, during WW2; ob. by 1965.

very ticket, the. Correct; 'just the thing needed': Glasgow: C.20. Ex the ticket. Cf. the very cheese.

very, very. A ca. 1919–39 coll. equivalent of too too, q.v. 'That's very very' usu. connotes blame, esp. for indecency. Short for, e.g., 'very very naughty'.

very well. An intensification of well, adj., q.v. (Ware.) P.B.: it survives, almost as informal S.E., later C.20, esp. in protests and arguments, as 'Yes, that's all very well, but...'

vessel. The nose: sporting: ca. 1813–30. Sporting Magazine, LXI (1813), 'There d—n your eyes, I've tapped your vessel' (OED). Cf. tap one's claret.

vest. See lose (one's) vest.

vestal. 'Ironical for an incontinent person' (The London Guide, 1818): app. ca. 1810–50. Short for vestal virgin.

Vestas; vestas. Railway Investment Company deferred stock: Stock Exchange:—1895 (A.J. Wilson, Stock Exchange Glossary).

vet, n. A veterinary surgeon: coll.: 1864 (H. Marryat: OED).—2. Hence, as the vet, the medical officer: army: since 1914. (F. & G.)—3. A prison doctor: perhaps mostly S. African: C.20. (Angus Hall, On the Run, 1974.) Cf. 2.—4. A veteran: coll.: later C.20. Prob. adopted ex US. Time Out, 9 May 1980.

vet, v. To cause (an animal) to be examined by a vet (q.v.): coll.: from ca. 1890. Ex vet, n. 1.—2. Hence to examine, occ. to treat, (a person) medically: coll.: 1898 (Mrs Croker: OED).—3. Hence, to revise (a manuscript): a book-world coll., orig. and mainly publishers': from ca. 1910.—4. Also, to sound, or ask questions of (a person), in order to discover his abilities or opinions: coll.: from ca. 1920. Richard Keverne, The Hovering Plot, 1928, 'I brought you here so that I might "vet" you. I do things like that—and then trust my instinct.' P.B.: by ca. 1950, perhaps earlier, security services' j. for 'to make enquiries about a person's character and suitability for employment in "delicate posts"' [esp., behind his or her back].

vex. (So much the) worse, as in vex for you: Christ's Hospital (School): from ca. 1860. Perhaps ex L. pejus (pronounced—one may presume—peddjus), but more prob. simply an abbr. of vexing or vexation.

vibes. Emotional 'vibrations' from a person's aura and general character; the atmosphere generated by any event; mood; and nuances intimately related to all three senses: adopted ca. 1960 ex US, although not very frequent until ca. 1965. (Burton H. Wolfe, The Hippies, 1968.) Ex next, and orig. from same milieu, but by 1977 Powis could quote 'She gave me the old vibes, all right'; by 1980, slightly ob.

vibrations. 'Atmosphere; reactions, with sexual overtones' (Peter Fryer, Observer colour sup., 3 Dec. 1967): jazz devotees', drug addicts', beatniks' and hippies': since ca. 1965. Quickly shortened to prec.

vic, vic. Victoria (the State): Aus. coll.: since ca. 1870. 'Tom Collins', Such Is Life, 1903.—2. The Victoria Theatre: Londoners':—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Cf. the Old Vic.—3. 'The old Victoria Hall, Melbourne' (B., 1943):? ca. 1880–1920.—4. Victoria Station: Londoners':—1887 (Baumann).

—5. The Vickers Victoria; the Vickers Valencia; troop-carrying aircraft: RAF: 1930s. Jackson.—6. A V-shaped formation of aircraft: RAF: since ca. 1940. (P-G-R.) Ex signallers' phonetic for letter V; see relevant section of the Appendix.—7. As exclam. = Cave!: Felsted School: from ca. 1870. Hence, Keep vic, to watch against official intrusion. Perhaps from L. vicinus, near, or even L. vigil or the imperative of vigilare, to watch.—8. See Vicky.

Vic and Alb, the. The Victoria and Albert Museum in South Kensington, London: arty: C.20. (Ngaio Marsh, Death at the Dolphin, 1967.) P.B.: more gen. known as the V. and A.

Vic C., the. The Victoria Cross: soldiers' coll.: late C.19—early 20. Gilbert Frankau, 1920.

Vic Eddy. 'The night signal given on the headlights (if working) or horn by a truck "swanning" round a "laager" but unable to find it. The reply was anything recognisable as friendly' (Peter Sanders, Sunday Times mag., 10 Sep. 1967): Army in N. Africa: 1940–3. Ex the Morse letters V and E. P.B.: but the official phonetic for E was easy: see PHONETIC ALPHABET, in Appendix.

Vicar of Bray. A tray; a 'tray' (the number 3): theatrical rhyming s.: late C.19–20. Franklyn, Rhyming.

vicarage, the. The chaplain's cabin: RN: since ca. 1930. Ex the vicar, the chaplain. Granville.

vicar of St Fools, the. (Implying) a fool: a semi-proverbial coll.: mid-C.16–17. Heywood, 1562; Nashe, 1589; Howell, 1659, and Ray, 1670, omit the Saint (Apperson.) Sc. Church; by punning 'topography'.

vice-admiral. See TAVERN TERMS, §7, in Appendix.

vice (or Vice), the. The Vice-Chancellor, -President, etc.: coll.:—1887 (Baumann).

Vice-Chancellor's court. 'Creditor's last shift' (Egan's Grose): Oxford University: ca. 1820–50.

Vice-Chuggins, the. The Vice-Chancellor: Oxford undergraduates': late C.19–20. (Charles Turley, Godfrey Marten, Undergraduate, 1904.) Cf. Wuggins, Worcester.

vicious. See unfortunate.

vicking. Services signallers' term for sending out a series of Vs in Morse code, for receiving stations to tune in on: coll. > j.: WW2 and since. (P.B.)

Vicky. A shortening of Victoria (cf. Vic, 1–5); used in later C.19 for Queen Victoria († 1901), and then remsicentily; in later C.20 in, e.g. Vicky Park (Leicester), Vicky Barracks (Hong Kong), etc. (P.B.)

vicky-verky. Vice versa: Merseyside: late C.19–20. But perhaps sol. or dial. rather than s. or coll. P.B.: since early C.20 a fairly widespread joc. usage.

Vics, the. A var. of the Queen Vics, q.v. F. & G. victim. A person very much in love: Society: ca. 1885–1914. B. & L.

Victor Trumper. A 'bumper' or cigarette-butt: Aus. rhyming s.: since ca. 1905. (B., 1945.) Ex an Australian cricketer (Frankly, Rhyming).

Victoria Monk. Semen: rhyming s., on synon. spunk: late C.19–20. Ex a character famous in pornographic fiction. Strictly, that character was Maria Monk and this, the original and still the commoner rhyming-s. form, became confused, in the popular mind, by the fame of Victoria Monks (with an -s), a very well-known music-hall singer, perhaps best remembered for her rendering of 'Won't you come home, Bill Bailey?'

victual. A 'feed' (not a school meal); to eat, feed: Bootham School: C.20. (Bootham, 1925.) Ex S.E. victuals.

victualled up, be. 'To have a good time ashore as guest of friends or relatives' (Granville): RN: since ca. 1920.

victualler; victualing-house. A pander; a house of accommodation: late C.16–17: resp., Shakespeare, 2 Henry IV, Act II, sc. iv; and Webster, A Cure for a Cuckold. Because a tavern-keepers' trade often cloaked intrigue and bawdry. Cf. bagnio, q.v.

victualling department or office. The stomach: boxing > gen. s.: since 1878 (OED) and 1751, Smollett; both are ob. By a pun on that Government office which victuals the RN. Cf. bread-basket and dumpling-depot.

vidiot. A constant, mindless looker-in at TV: Aus.: since ca. 1960. A blend of video+idiot. (B.P.)

view. 'R.A.F. types do not "have an opinion", but instead "take a view". Thus, "He took a poor view when Bert snaffled his popsie"' (Jackson): RAF coll. since ca. 1925; later, gen. coll. Ex the aerial view they get of things.

view the land. To examine in advance the scene of a crime: c.:—1887 (Baumann).

viewy. Designed, or likely, to catch the eye; attractive: 1851 (Mayhew); ob. Hence, viewiness, display: theatrical:—1923 (Manchon).

vig. Vigilance: Anti-aircraft: WW2. Allan Michie & Walter Graebner, Lights of Freedom, 1941, "'Special vig," says John. "That means keep a special vigilance," he explains to me.'

vigilance. 'A crude periscope consisting of a mirror affixed to the top of a stick' (B. & P.): army: WW1.

vile, ville, vyle. A city, a town: c.: in combination from 1560s; by itself, app. not before C.19. Romevill(e), -vyle, Rum, London: mid-C.16–20; deuce-a-vile, deuseaville, daisyville, the country: mid-C.17–20. By itself, 'No. 747' (valid for 1845); H., 1st ed., 1859, 'Pronounced phial, or vial.' Ex Fr. ville. See also -ville.

vile, adj. As a mere intensive (cf. foul) = 'unpleasant', 'objectionable': coll.: C.20.

vile child. A mild Etonian pej. of ca. 1875–90. B. & L.

vill; V. Felsted village: Felsted School: mid-C.19–20. Prob. independent of poetic S.E. vill, a village, and of vile, n. —2. As the Vill, Pentonville Prison: c.: C.20. Norman.

Villa (, the). Aston Villa Association Football Club: sporting coll.: C.20.—2. See Casey's Court.

village (or V.), the. London: sporting coll.: from ca. 1820; slightly ob. by 1930. Westmacott, 1825 (OED); H., 3rd ed., which adds: 'Also a Cambridge term for a disreputable suburb of that town, generally styled "the village"'; the ref. holds for the 1860s–70s.—2. Manley, NSW: Sydney-siders': C.20. B., 1943.

village blacksmith. A performer or actor not quite a failure, his engagements never lasting longer than a week: music-halls' and theatrical:—1909; ob. (Ware.) Ex Longfellow's poem, 'Week in, week out, from morn till night...'

village butler. A petty thief; esp. an old thief 'that would rather steal a dishclout than discontinue the practice of thieving' (Potter, 1795): c. of ca. 1790–1850. F. & H. misprints it as v.-bustler.

Village of Hate, the. Burgsteinfurt, a town in N.W. Germany: 1945–6. Ex the silent resentment shown by the inhabitants towards the occupying troops. P-G-R. villain. A criminal; anyone with a criminal record: police coll.: since ca. 1935. Claiborne cites Margery Allingham, Coroner's Pidgin, 1945.—2. See I'm as mild a villain...

-ville. Adopted, ca. 1960, ex US. 'Beat—and, indeed, gen. American—jargon has crept in, including the habit of adding "ville" on the end of an adjective: "Cor, man, this prep [see prep, 1] is dead cinchyville"—i.e. dead easy, a 'cinch' (New Society, 22 Aug. 1963, 'From the blackboard jungle', a short article on N. Country grammar school slang). The earliest example I've seen of the comic, often slangy, use of -ville occurs on the title page of T.C. Haliburton, The Clockmaker; the Sayings and Doings of Sam Slick of Slicksville, 1837. Very common in US since mid-1950s, it has exercised only a slight influence in Brit. Robert Claiborne adds, 1976, 'The -ville suffix in U.S. is now obsolescent, being replaced by city, as in fat city, great prosperity, and fruitcake city, an insane situation or person.'—2. See vile.

vim. Force; energy: US (adv., 1850, †; n., early 1870s), anglicised ca. 1890: coll. >, ca. 1910, S.E. Either ehoic or ex L. vis (accusative vim), energy, strength. Cf. pep, q.v.

vin. Wine: Aus. army: WW1. Ex Fr. vin blanc, which the NZ soldiers turned into vin blink: id. The British Army preferred ving blong (Frank Richards, Old Soldiers Never Die, 1933).

vincent. A dupe in a betting game: c.: ca. 1590–1830; though prob. ob. in C.18–19. (Greene; Grose.) Etym. obscure: ? ironic ex L. vincens, (being) victorious. Whence:

vincent's (or V.) law. The art and practice of cheating at a betting game, esp. bowls or cards: c.: same period and history as prec. (Greene; Grose, 1st ed.) Here, law = lay = line of criminal activity.

vinegar. A cloak: c.: late C.17—early 19. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) Perhaps because it is worn in sharp weather. Cf. the semantics presumably operative in:—2. 'The person, who with a whip in his hand, and a hat held before his eyes'—cf. the man that, in a public conveyance, pretends to sleep while women are strap-hanging—'keeps the ring clear at boxing matches and cudgel playings' (Grose, 1st ed.): sporting: ca. 1720–1840. A New Canting Dict., 1725.—3. See vinegar with a fork.

vinegar-pisser. A niggard; miser: coll.: C.18.—2. ? (in C.17) a sour fellow: cf. anon.'s 2nd Return from Parnassus, 1602, 'They are pestilent fellows, they speake nothing but bodkins, and pisse vinegar' (OED).

vinegar with a fork, eat (or have eaten)—or, properly, have been drinking... as in Baumann. To be sharp-tongued or snappish: proverbial coll.: mid-C.19—early 20. Cf. been at the knife-box this morning, directed at a person of sharp wit and cutting humour: id.

ving blong. See vin.

Viney bones. Rubber bands: motorcyclists. 'Originated with the famous [motorcycle] trials rider Hugh Viney of the '30s, who used to cut up old inner tubes and supply his mates with bands to fix their riding numbers' (Dunford, 1979).

vingty. Ving-et-un: gamblers' coll.: C.20. (F.J. Whaley, Trouble in College, 1936.) Cf. synon. van John.

Vinnie. A Vincent motorcycle, in production 1928–56: motorcyclists'. (Dunford.)

vino. Italian wine: army: 1942+. It. vino 'any wine'.

vintage. Year of birth: US (—1883) >, by 1890, English. (Ware.) Ex vintage(-year) of wines.

violent evasive action; the v. being take... To avoid an undesirable task or a boring person: RAF: 1940+. P-G-R.—2. Hence, coitus interruptus: Aus.: since c. 1943. (B.P.) violently. Showily, 'loudly' (e.g. dressed): coll.: 1782 (Mme D'Arblay); ob. OED.

violet; garden-violet. An onion; gen. in pl as =spring onions eaten as a salad. The usu. term among RN lowerdeck (Granville).—2. In pl, sage-and-onion stuffing: like 1, proletarian-ironic: later C.19–early 20.—3. See Brits's violets; come up spelling of violets.

vip. A very close-fisted, cheese-paring person: Aus.: since ca. 1925. (B., 1942.) A thinning of vipe (short for viper)?

viper. A marijuana-smoker: c.: adopted, ca. 1943, ex US. (Norman.—see Underworld.) Hence:—

viper's drag. Marijuana: drugs world: mid-C.20. A pun on prec., drag, 'a smoke', and the jazz-tune/dance the viper's drag. (P.B.) vir-gin. See man-trap.

virgin. n. A cigarette made of Virginia tobacco: smokers': —1923 (Manchon).—2. A mixture of vermouth and gin: toppers': id. (Ibid.).—3. A term of reproach among chorus-girls: from ca. 1920.—4. As the Virgin, the Petty Officers Mess: RN: C.20. Screened off, at meal-times, from the vulgar gaze of the lowerdeck.

virgin. adj. Excellent; very attractive; indeed, a general superlative: Oxford undergraduates': late 1930s. Ex the idea of purity.

virgin bride. A ride: Aus. rhyming s.: since ca. 1890. B., 1945, citing Sydney Bulletin, 18 Jan. 1902.

Virgin for short – but not for long. Raffish c.p. applied punningly to girls named Virginia: C.20.

Virgin Mary's (Body-)guard, the. The 7th Dragoon Guards: army: mid-C.18–early 20. 'They served under Maria Theresa of Austria, temp. George II' (F. & H.). See also Strawboots.

Virgin of the Limp, the. See Lady of the Limp.

virgin pullet. 'A young woman... who though often trod has never laid' (Bee, 1823): low: ca. 1820–70. Ex pullet.

virginity curtain. The canvas screen secured to the underside of a warship's accommodation gangway to conceal from prying eyes in the boat below the legs of those who go up and down the gangway' (John Laffin, Jack Tar, 1969): since ca. 1920.

virgins; V. Virginia New Funded Stock: Stock Exchange: late C.19–20; ob.

virgins' bus, the. The last bus running from Piccadilly Corner westward: lower classes': ca. 1870–1900. (Ware.) Its chief patronesses were prostitutes.

virgin's dream, the. A (sausage-shaped) observation-balloon: Services': 1915–18. Phallic symbolism, like the synon. maiden's prayer.

virtue. 'Smoking, drinking, whoring. When a man confesses to abstention from tobacco and intoxicating liquors he is perversely said to have no virtues' (F. & H.): non-aristocratic: ca. 1880–1915.

virtue rewarded. A c.p. in ref. to occupants of prison-vans (bearing V.R. on their sides): lower classes': ca. 1870–1901. (Ware.) Cf. V.R., 2, and vagabonds removed.

vis. Visibility: esp. among skin-divers: since ca. 1950. (Granville.) vis aids. (pron. viz.) Visual aids to teaching: teachers' and instructors' coll.: since early 1950s, but not gen. until ca. 1965. (P.B.; E.P.'s dating.)

visk. Angry; cross: Christ's Hospital (School): from ca. 1890. Abbr. vicious in this sense. It superseded passy (abbr. passionate), q.v.

visit Lady Perriam. To go to the underground lavatory: Balliol College, Oxford: C.20. Lord Bacon's sister, Lady Perriam, presented a new building to Balliol; on its site now stands this convenience. Christopher Hobhouse, Oxford, 1939.

visitation. An over-long visit or protracted social call: coll.: 1819 (OED). Ex the length of ecclesiastical visitations.

visiting cards. See leave visiting cards.

vital statistics. A woman's bust, waist, hip measurements (e.g. 36, 23, 35 inches): since ca. 1945: joc. coll. >, by 1965, S.E. P.B.: a pun on the orig. S.E. sense, statistics of births, deaths, etc.

Vits, the. A Licensed Victuallers' (Protective) Association: C.20. In, e.g., Essex Chronicle, 17 Mar. 1939, where a caption reads, 'Rochford "Vits"'. vitals. 'An accountant officer, R.N., borne for victualling duties': RN: C.20. Bowen.

vitty. Fitty, i.e. fitting, suitable; neat: late C.16–20: S.E. until C.18, then s. († by 1900) and dial. OED.

viva. n. A viva-voce examination: university coll.: from ca. 1890. Whence:

viva, v.t. and, rarely (C.20), v.i. To subject, be subjected to, a 'viva': id.: 1893 (OED). Ex prec.

vive la difference! 'A c.p. used when someone has just said that there is hardly any difference between men and women' (B.P.): since ca. 1935. Ex the French toast.

Vlam. Vlamertinghe, in Flanders: army coll.: WW1. (F. & G.) Cf. Pop, Poperinghe.

vocab. A vocabulary; a glossary or dictionary: Charterhouse (—1904) >, by 1920, gen. Public School coll. P.B.: and, of course, language students anywhere. In the Services', ? mostly army, applied esp. to the standard 'Vocabulary of Stores', the quartermaster's list of every piece of equipment in existence.—2. In watch your vocab!, mind your language! Aus., orig. undergraduates': since ca. 1930. (B.P.)

voedodo. Money, cash; booty: c.: from ca. 1930. (Gilt Kid, 1936.) This has the appearance of being a rhyming fantasy on dough, money, possibly suggested or influenced by Romany vongar, money. See also DCpp.

voetsak! (To a dog) go away!: S African coll.:—1877. Prob. ex Dutch voort seg ekl, away, I say! (Pettman.) Mrs C. Raab: and used, joc., low, between young S. African friends. Sometimes footsack!

voil. A rare form (Egan's Grose, 1823) of vile, n.

voker. To speak: tramps' c. and low s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). This is a debased form of rocker, q.v., of which it is prob. a mere misapprehension. Powis, 1977, lists 'Voker?: Do you understand?', which seems to show a sense-shift.

vol. n. Volume (of a book): book-world coll.: late C.19–20. Ex the abbr., as in 'Gibbon, vol. 2'.

vol. adj. Voluntary: Harrow School:—1904 (F. & H.)

Volks. A Volkswagen motor-vehicle: coll. abbr.: since ca. 1945. Cf. Vee Dub. (P.B.)

voluntary. An involuntary and inartistic fall from one's mount: hunting s.: from ca. 1890.

volunteer knee-drill. 'Abject adulation': Society and middle classes':—1909; † by 1920. Ware, 'Outcome of volunteer movement'.

vomiting viper, the. Penis: a consciously 'amusing' expression; cf. the one-eyed guardsman, milkman, trouser-snake, etc.: mid-C.20. (P.B.)

Vosse's. A bell rung at 7 a.m.: Marlborough College: C.20. Ex the name of that porter who first rang it.

vote. To propose, suggest: coll.: 1814 (Scott: OED). Only with that... Mrs C. Raab: or that understood. 'I vote we take part in the sponsored walk'.

vote for Boyle. 'Catch-phrase after the fall of Tunis [1943].

Hal Boyle, of the Associated Press, drove into Tunis chanting "Vote for Boyle, son of the soil; Honest Hal, the Arabs' pal". The Arabs, with their usual facility for picking up a phrase without knowing the meaning, puzzled the troops by greeting them with this cry, which they in turn adopted' (P-G-R.): army: 1943-4.

vote for the alderman. To indulge in drink: ca. 1810-50. Cf. Lushington, q.v.

vote khaki. To plump for the Liberal Unionists: 1900-1. Ware.

vouch. An assertion or formal statement: C.17-20: S.E. until C.19, then coll.; ob. OED.

voucher. One of those who 'put off False Money for Sham-coyners' (B.E.): c. of ca. 1670-1720. (Head.) He 'vouches for' the counterfeit.—2. (Gen. in pl.) A receipt clerk: bank-clerks' coll.: C.20. Cf. ledger.—3. See force the voucher, to abscond with money.

voulez-vous squattez-vous? Will you sit down?: theatre gods': from ca. 1820. 'Started by Grimaldi', says Ware. Cf. twiggez-vous.

vowel. To pay (a winner; indeed, any creditor) with an

I.O.U.: C.18-19. Steele, 'I am vowelled by the Count, and cursedly out of humour' (OED). Ex either spoken formula, or written statement of, 'I.O.U.' Cf. three vowels, q.v.

vowel-mauler. An indistinct speaker: not upper classes': ca. 1880-1910.

voyage. See Hobbe's voyage.

voyage of discovery. 'Going out stealing' ('Ducange Anglicus', 1857): c.: † by 1920.

vrow-case. A brothel: c.: (prob.) late C.17-mid-19. F. & H., who app. deduce it, justifiably (I think), from B.E.'s case-fro, 'a Whore that Plies in a Bawdy-house'. Ex Dutch vrouw, a woman, + casa, case, a house, shop, etc.

vulgus. A Latin or, occ., Greek verse exercise: C.19-20: OED considers it S.E.: W., Public School s., 'for earlier vulgars' (C.16), 'sentences in [the] vulgar tongue [i.e. English] for translation into Latin'. See esp. R.G.K. Wrench, Winchester Word-Book, 2nd ed., 1901.

vulture, v. To borrow without permission from someone else's collection of, e.g., books: coll., among, e.g., librarians: later C.20. The predators' work. (P.B.)

W

W. 'a W, A warrant to arrest or search' (Powis): c. and police coll.: later C.20. Frank Norman, 1959.—2. As the w., a w.c.: late C.19—earlier 20: coll.,? orig. euph. F. Brett Young, Jim Redlake, 1930.

W.C. A C.W. candidate: RN: C.20. Granville, 'The C.W. Branch, Admiralty, deals with the awarding of "commissions and warrants"'.
W.F.s. Wild cattle: Tasmania: ca. 1840–80. Fenton, Bush Life in Tasmania Fifty Years Ago, 1891, 'The brand on Mr William Field's wild cattle'.

w.h. A whore: euph. coll.:—1887 (Baumann).
W.H.B., the. The 'Wandering Hand Brigade', those who are apt to take liberties with women: late C.19–20.

W.M.P. We accept the invitation: RN coll. verging on j.: late C.19–20. I.e., with much pleasure.

W.O.S.ers. Overseas British authors: authors': since ca. 1919. (The Writer, May 1939.) Ex 'the wide open spaces' + the agential -er.

w.p. Abbr. warming-pan, 3, q.v.:—1860 (H., 2nd ed.); ob. by early C.20.

w.p.b., v. To put into the waste-paper basket (w.p.b.), itself coll.: 1884: coll.: from ca. 1930.

W. Two; W.2. 'Satirical description of the Emperor William II... on his telegram to... Kruger on [1 Jan.] 1896': only in that year.—2. Hence, of any military-looking man stalking town': 1896–7. Ware.

Waac. A member of the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps: coll.: 1917 (The Times, 19 Nov.: OED Sup.). Cf. Wraf and Wren, qq.v. Also spelt Wack: which is perhaps s.

Waaf. A member of the Woman's Auxiliary Air Force: since 1939: coll. >, by mid-1943, j. Ex the initials, W.A.A.F. Pronounced Waff, which is, however, to be regarded as an incorrect spelling.

waaf-basher. A male fornicator: RAF: 1941 +. See basher, 8.

Waafery. 'The part of the camp frequented, or the billets occupied, by members of the W.A.A.F.' (H. & P.): RAF: since 1939. See Waaf.

waafise. 'To substitute airwomen for airmen. I believe the term originated in Balloon Command, which was waafised in a big way' (Jackson): RAF coll. (by 1943, j.): 1941 +. See Waaf.

waas or wass. To run; to hurry; to exercise oneself vigorously: Uppingham: since ca. 1912. (Marples.) Echoic.

wabblers. See foot-wabblers and wobblers.

wack. A mainly dial. form of whack, q.v.—Wack is also a var. form of waac, q.v. Cf.:-

Wack-Eyes, the. The Women's Auxiliary Corps (India): 1942–5. Berkeley Mather, The Mensahib, 1977.

wacker, n. and adj. See whacker, n. and adj.

wacko! A var. of—and inferior to—whacko!

wackie, -y, n. A typical member male of the working classes ('wears flat hat, muffler, carries lunchbox'): teenagers; early 1980s. (James Williamson, 1982.) Perhaps cf. whacker, 3.—2. ?Hence, a conformist, a 'square'; someone with 'old-fashioned' standards: id. (Ibid.)—3. See wacky.

wacky. Unusual, out of the way, little known; esp. wacky news: adopted from US by journalists ca. 1942. I.e. not ordinary 'straight' news.—2. Also, in gen. use, since 1944, for 'incorrect, unreliable' (news) and 'eccentric' (persons). For both senses see also whacky.—3. See wackie.

Waco, Big and Little. The first two aircraft of the Long Range Desert Group: RAF in N. Africa: 1942–3. Ex Western Aircraft Corporation of Ohio.

wad. A gunner: RN: mid-C.19–20. Ware, 'A survival from the days of muzzle-loading cannon.' As term of address or nickname, Wads, as in Goodenough, 1901.—2. A roll of banknotes: c. > low s.: C.20. (Charles E. Leach.) Hence, a fortune: id.—3. Straw: proletarian: C.19. (B. & L.) Abbr. wadding.—4. A drink of liquor: since ca. 1910. (Humfrey Jordan, Roundabout, 1935.) It comfortingly fills a void.—5. A (large) quantity of anything: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Cf. sense 2 and wadge—6. A bun. See wads, and:- wad-scoffer. A bun-eater; esp., a teetotaler: Services': from ca. 1904. (F. & G.) Also wad-shifter: army: from ca. 1910. (Frank Richards.) Both † by 1950 (P.B.). See wads.

wad that would choke a wombat, a. Alliterative var. of a roll that would choke a bullock, a large roll of banknotes: Aus.:—1959 (Baker). Cf. roll, n., 6, and wad, 2.

waddle; orig. and gen. waddle out; often extended to waddle out lame duck or w.o. of the Alley. To become a defaulter on the Exchange: Stock Exchange: 1771, Garrick, 'The gaming fools are doves, the knives are rooks, Change-Alley bankrupts waddle out lame ducks!'; Grose, 1st ed.; 1860, Peacock (waddle off, rare); † by 1900. See lame duck.

waddurang. An old woman: Aus.: mid-C.19–20. (B., 1942.) Ex Aboriginal.

waddy, n. 'A wooden club, often improvised' (Wilkes): Aus. coll.: since late C.19. Ex Aboriginal. Morris, 1898, has 'a walking stick', but Wilkes's quotations, 1930–73, make it clear that it = an offensive weapon. Cf.:-

waddy, v. To strike (someone) with stick or club: Aus. coll.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Ex prec.

wade. A ford: coll.: C.19–20. Ex wade, an act of wading.

wadge, wodge. A lumpy mass or bulgy bundle: dial. (—1860) >, ca. 1880, coll. Ex wad on wedge. OED.—2. Hence, late C.19–20, adj. wodgy.

wadi-bashing. Service flying over Middle Eastern deserts: RAF: later C.20. (Phantom.) Ex Arabic al-wadi, a usu. dry water course in ravine or valley. Cf. jungle-bashing.

wadmarel (C.19: nautical), wadmus (C.18). Corruptions of wadmal (a woollen cloth). OED; Bowen.

wads (less usu. in sing.). Buns; occ., small cakes sold at a canteen: Services': C.20. (F. & G.) Ex shape; also ex 'What doesn't fatten, fills', Hence char and wads (army) or tea and a wad (RAF), a snack, esp. that at the mid-morning break: earlier C.20.—2. See wad, 1.

Waff. The West Africa Frontier Force: army coll.: WW1. Cf. Piffer.—2. See Waaf.

Waffery. See waafery.

waffle, n. Nonsense; gossip(ing); incessant or copious talk: printers':—1888 (Jacobi). Ex dial. waffle, a small dog's yelp or yap. Cf. waffles, woffle, and:-

waffle, v. To talk incessantly; printers': from ca. 1890. Ex waffle, to yelp.—2. To talk nonsense: from ca. 1890: Durham School >, by 1910 or so. gen. Perhaps ex sense 1; cf., however, the n.—3. (Of an aircraft) to be out of control (usu. as vbl n. or participial adj. waffling, 'spinning, losing height'); to fly in a damaged condition and/or uncertainty: RAF: since ca. 1930. (H. & P.) W/Cdr R.P. McDouall, 1945, 'Waffling precedes spinning'.—4. Hence (?), to dither: Services' (mostly officers': since ca. 1930. (H. & P.) But cf. 2.—5. 'To cruise along unconcernedly and indecisively' (Jackson): RAF: since ca. 1925. Cf. 3 and 4; also stooge in this sense, and waffles.—6. See waffle.

waffles. A loafer; a sauntering idler: low?: late C.19—early 20. (F. & H.) Cf. prec., 5.

Waficans. West African stocks and shares: Stock Exchange: C.20. Westminster Gazette, 7 Feb. 1901, anathematizes it as 'language murdered to the disgust of the purist'. Prob. on the analogy of Westrilian.

waft; wafy. General madness or wildness, lack of tact and/or gumption; the corresponding adj.: Oundle: since late 1920s. (Marples.) Perhaps suggested by excessive breeziness. wafy, adj. 'Of poor quality' (M.T.): market-traders': since late C.19. Prob. ex Romany wafedo, bad.

wag, the. The humorous tail-piece that appears at the end of a newspaper gossip-column: orig., and still mainly, journalistic: C.20.—2. In hop, or play, the wag, to play truant:—1861 (Mayhew). Hindley, 1876, has the elab. play the Charley-wag. Ex wag, v., 1, q.v.—perhaps with a pun on lit. sense of play the wag, to be amusingly mischievous, to indulge constantly in jokes. In C.20, often, wag it (Manchon), which is also Aus. (A. Buzo, Rooted, prod. 1969, pub. 1973).

wag, v. To play truant; often wag it: since mid-C.19. (Dickens, 1848: OED.) Cf. prec., 2. Ex:—2. To go, to depart: late C.16—20: S.E. until C.19, then coll.—3. (Gen. in negative.) To stir (e.g. a limb): late C.16—20: S.E. until mid-C.19, then coll. F. Harrison, 'I...declined to ask him...to wag a finger to get me there' (OED). Cf.:—4. V.i., to move one's limbs: C.13—20: S.E. until mid-C.19, then coll.; ob. Whyte-Melville, 1860 (OED).

wag (one's) bottom. To be a harlot: mostly Cockney: late C.19—20. Cf. wag-tail, q.v., and contrast-wag (one's) bum. (Of men) to coit: mostly Services': C.20. See prec.

wag (one's) knickers at everybody. 'To be extremely sociable and "out-going"'. A BBC panel-game, 29 Oct. 1975' (R.S.). Cf.:-

wag-tail. A whore: perhaps orig. s., but soon > coll.: since early C.17. Moe cites Middleton, Michaelmas Term, 1607, III, i. SOD gives it also as ref. to a profligate young man.

wages. Illegal or illicit or shady or disreputable income: as, e.g., thief's, race-gang's, whore's: c., and low (mostly Londoners'): from ca. 1925.—2. There is occasional use of this among Retired Pensioners, who, when they go to a post office to draw their pension, may say "I am going to draw my wages" (Petch, 1966): coll.: since late 1940s.

wages of gin is breath, the. Punning the Biblical (Romans 6: 23) 'The wages of sin is death': since ca. 1965. (C. Parsons, 1977.) Cf. work is the curse of the drinking classes.

Wagga blanket. A rough bed-covering, used by tramps and made from sack or bag: Aus.: late C.19—20. (B., 1942.) Derivative of the NSW town of Wagga Wagga, small and genuinely rural. Wilkes records also Wagga rug and, in later C.20, simply wagga.

Wagga grip. 'A leather strap or binding through the pommel D's of a saddle. Also called jug handle and monkey' (B., 1959): Aus.: C.20. Cf. prec.

Wagga-Wagga Guards, the. See Tichborne's Own. Wagga Wagga in NSW was frequently mentioned at the trial. F. & G. wagger. A truant: schools': from ca. 1870. (E. Pugh, A Street in Suburbia, 1895.) See wag, n., 2, and v., 1.—2. Short for next, Rugby and other Public Schools': C.20. (D.F. Wharton, 1965.)

wagger-pagger-bagger. A waste-paper-basket: Oxford University: from ca. 1905. Cf. the Pragger-Wagger. Collinson; Slang.

waggermy! O(h) agony!: lower Society: 1880s. (Ware.) The pun is specifically on Wagner, much ridiculed in that decade.

waggle. To wield (a bat, stick, oar): joc. coll.: C.20. Ex lit. sense.—2. To overcome: low (—1904); ob. except in US. (F. & H.) Cf. 1.

Waggle-dagger; Waggle-spear. Shakespeare: schoolchildren's: C.20. Punning Shakespeare; cf. the surname Wagstaff. (Mrs C. Raab; E.P.)

waggley; gen. waggly. Unsteady; 'having frequent irregular curves': coll.: 1894, E. Banks, 'Even in [the path's] most waggly parts' (OED). Lit., waggling.

waggon. 'In the old guardships, the place where the supernumeraries slung their hammocks': nautical?: ca. 1840—90. Bowen.—2. A bunk (bed): ships' stewards':—1935.—3. An omnibus: busmen's: from ca. 1928. Daily Herald, 5 Aug. 1936.—4. A battleship: RN: 1940+. (Granville.) Short for battle waggon.—5. A cigarette: S. African c. (C.20) >, by 1945, also low s. (C.P. Wittstock, letter, 1946).—6. For on the waggon, see water-waggon.

waggon-hunter. A brothel-keeper's tout visiting the inns at which the stage-coaches stopped: c.: 1760—1840. OED.

waggon-lay. 'Waiting in the street to rob waggons going out or coming into town, both commonly happening in the dark' (Grose, 3rd ed.): c.: late C.18—mid-19.

wagon. See waggon.

wagons roll! (the roll may be drawn out). Here we go! Let's (all) get going!: c.p.: later C.20. Ex 'Western' films. (P.B.)

wags. Signallers: R Aus. AF: WW2. (B., 1943.) Ex flag-wagging, signalling, Morse or semaphore, by flag (P.B.).

wahiné, a woman: NZ coll.: late C.19—20. Direct ex Maori. Cf. lubra.—2. Hence, esp. a girl surfer: Aus. surfers': since ca. 1962. The word is also Hawaiian.

wahwah (or hyphenated). Esp. a bit... of a car, or a car's starter, that is rather sluggish: car-dealers': since ca. 1950. (Woman's Own, 28 Feb. 1968.) Echoic.—2. 'Sloane Ranger [q.v.] men speak Wahwah, their expression for their particular hooray tone of voice' (Peter York, Style Wars, 1980, article pub. 1977): upper-middle-class coll.: later 1970s. Also echoic: cf. mid-C.19 Punch cartoons of similar men interspersing their utterances with 'Haw-haw!' (P.B.)

Wailing Winnie. Synon. with and echoically comparable to Mona, an air-raid-warning siren: civilians': WW2. E.P., 'Air Warfare and its Slang', New Statesman, 19 Sep. 1942.—2. 'The broadcast system aboard ships' (H. & P): nautical: WW2.

waipiro. Intoxicating liquor: NZ coll.: late C.19—20. Straight from Maori.

waist tog. A waistcoat: Cockney: ca. 1840—1910. (Mayhew, I, 1851.) See tog.

waistcoat. See fetid waistcoat; wesket.

waistcoat piece. 'Breast and neck of mutton—from its resemblance to... half the front of a waistcoat not made up': tailors':—1909 (Ware).

waistern. 'Equally applicable to sweepers, swab-wringers, menials and drudges' (Bill Truck, 1821; Smyth): naval: ca. 1790—1860.

wait. To postpone (a meal) for an expected person: coll.: 1836 (Dickens, Pickwick).—2. To wait at; only in wait table, to wait at table: servants' coll.:—1887 (Baumann).—3. See wait you have it now...

wait about or around, v.i. To 'hang about': coll.: resp. 1879, Miss Braddon: 1895, orig. and mostly US. (OED.) P.B.: but cf. the last two lines of C.F. Alexander's (1818—95) famous carol 'Once in Royal David's City': 'when like stars his children crowned,/All in white shall wait around.'

wait and see! A c.p. dating from Mar.—Apr. 1910, when Asquith used it in ref. to the date to be assigned for the reintroduction of Lloyd George's rejected budget. See esp. my anthology, A Covey of Partridge. Mr Vernon Rendall later corrected me thus: 'I am familiar with it in earlier literature and have an impression that it was a catchword in the legal chambers of Sir Henry (subsequently Lord) James, one of whose "devils" Asquith was' in the earlier 1880s; it was, however, in 1910 that wait and see > a gen. c.p. Asquith was himself, from 1910, often called Old Wait-and-See.—2. Hence, a French match: army: WW1. They so often failed to light.

wait for it! Don't be in too much of a hurry: military coll.: C.20. Ex the order given in fixing bayonets. Often repeated, with emphasis; sometimes used by comedians, with the sense 'Wait for the point of my joke before you laugh.' See DCpp. Cf.:-

wait for your round! I.e. of applause or laughter: a theatrical c.p. directed at an actor coming in too quickly and thus 'killing' applause due to a fellow actor: later C.19—early 20. (Michael Warwick, Stage, 3 Oct. 1968.) See DCpp.

wait one! Just wait for one moment (or minute) while I, e.g., deal with something else: Services' coll.: since ca. 1950. Ex voice signals procedure. Cf. just hold one! (P.B.)

wait till the clouds roll by! A c.p. inductive of optimism: 1884; by 1915, a proverb. Ware, 'From an American ballad'.

waiter. A horse that, started in a race, is not meant to win: Aus. turf: C.20. B., 1942.—2. See:

waiters. As full waiters—men's full evening dress, so half waiters—dinner-jacket (a tuxedo): Society: since ca. 1930. Ex restaurant waiters' garb.

wake, v.i. To 'wake up' to a trick, a racket, etc.: Aus. since ca. 1925. Lawson Glassop, Lucky Palmer, 1949, "'Lay off some of the others [=horses]," whispered Max. "I tell you, somebody'll wake."' wake-up. A wide-awake person: Aus.: coll.: from ca. 1910. W.S. Howard, You're Telling Me!, 1934, 'Well, I'm a wake-up; they don't get nothing out of me!' P.B.: Wilkes's quotations make it clear that the full phrase is a wake-up to (a trick, dodges, etc.)

wake up, England! Slogan coined by King George V in 1911, and popularised in 1912 by Claude Grahame-White, the aviation pioneer, in his campaign to alert the country to the potential of air power. By later C.20 it had > merely a c.p., usu, directed at oneself, a rebuke for not immediately grasping the obvious. A var. is wake up [name]—England needs you! (P.B.)

wake your ideas up! Pull yourself together: Services coll.: since ca. 1930. I.e. wake up! P.B.: sometimes indirect, as in the criticism, 'He wants to wake his ideas up a bit', of a man 'dozy' or unco-operative.

waker (or W-). A sleeping train running between Paddington and Penzance: (mostly West Country) railwaymen's: since ca. 1910; by 1960, ob. (Railway, 2nd).

wakey, wakey! Wake up: R.A.F. NCOs': since the early 1920s. (Sgt Gerald Emanuel, letter 1945.) Ex nursery coll. (Perhaps I should add that these NCOs use it without tenderness and with a strongly emphasised irony, yet often with an innocuous sense of good clean fun.) Since ca. 1945, it has been very widely used, esp. fig.—that is, where the person(s) addressed merely seem(s) asleep or is extremely slow in getting something done or in moving along, often quite gently, as 'Oh, come on—wakey wakey! An elaborated version (I myself never heard it in the army, 1940—1, nor in the RAF, 1942—5) is wakey, wakey, rise and shine, which clearly combines wakey, wakey and rise and shine [q.v.]—don't you know it's morning time?

wakey-wakey watch, the. The watch from 4 to 8 a.m.: RN lowerdeck: C.20.

waler; orig. W. A (cavalry) horse imported from New South Wales into India: 1849 (OED): Anglo-Indian coll. >, ca. 1905, S.E. An advertisement in Madras Mail, 25 June 1873: 'For sale. A brown waler gelding'.—2. Hence, a horse imported into India from any part of Aus.: from early 1880s. Y. & B., 1886; Melburnian, 28 Aug. 1896.—3. As Waler, an inhabitant of NSW: Aus. coll.: C.20. B., 1942.—4. Var. of whaler, q.v.

Wales, the. The Bank of New South Wales: Aus. coll.: late C.19—20. (B.P.)

walk, n. A postman's route or 'beat': Can. coll.: late C.19—20; since ca. 1940, virtually q. (Leechman.)

walk, v. To depart of necessity; to die: mid-C.19—20; resp. coll. and s. Trollope, 1858 (latter sense). Ex walk, to go away. OED.—2, v.t. To win easily: Public Schools' coll.: from ca. 1895 (P.G. Wodehouse, A Prefect's Uncle, 1903.) Abbr. walk around. Since ca. 1930, usu. walk it.—3. To be a prostitute on the streets: white-slavers' c.: C.20. Londres, 1928.—4. To disappear: mostly Army, as when a part of one's kit has disappeared: since ca. 1910. P.B.: since ca. 1950, at latest, gen., and usu. implying theft, as in 'large expensive coffeetable books also "walk"', and Hilary Lee at Hammick's Covent Garden Bookshop finds occult and humour very 'stealy' sections' (Bookseller, 18 Apr. 1981).—5. In go for a walk, to go to the separate cells ('separates'): c.: from ca. 1920. George Ingram, Stir, 1933.—6. In on the walk, (of bank clerks and/or messengers) taking money round to other banks and to business-houses: commercial: C.20.—7. See cock, n., 3; ghost walks; she walks like...; chalks, 1.

walk a chalk (, able to). Sober; coll.; orig. army: from ca. 1820. Scots, line for chalk. See also walk the chalk, and chalks, 1.

walk around, gen. round. To beat easily: coll., US (Haliburton, 1853) anglicised ca. 1890. Cf. the synon. run rings round. walk by owl-light. To fear arrest: coll.: ca. 1650—1700. Howell (Apperson).

walk chalks. See chalks, 1.

walk down (one's) throat. To scold, abuse: late C.19—20. Ex synon. jump down...; cf. walk into, 2.

walk (a girl) home. To accompany her back to her home: coll.: since ca. 1943. Ex US: Robert Claiborne reminds me, 1976, about the popular song 'Walking My Baby Back Home', composed by Fred Ahlert & Harry Richmond in 1930.

walk into. To attack vigorously: coll.: 1794 (Lord Hood: OED).—2. Hence, to scold or reprove strongly: coll.: from 1850s.—3. To eat, drink, much or heartily of: 1837 (Dickens: OED); id., 1840, 'Little Jacob, walking... into a home-made plum cake, at a most surprising pace'.—4. To 'make a hole in' one's money: 1859 (Henry Kingsley: OED).—5. See: walk into (one's) affections. To win a person's love or affection effortlessly and immediately: coll.: 1858 (OED).—2. Joc. for walk into, 1 and 2, q.v.: 1859 (H., 1st ed.); also for walk into, 3 (Baumann, 1887).—3. Hence ironically, to get into a person's debt: from ca. 1860; ob. H., 3rd ed.

walk it. To walk (as opp. to riding): coll.: 1668 (Pepys: OED).—2. (Of racehorse or dog) to win easily: turf: C.20. Hence, also of a person. Ex walk, v., 2, q.v.

walk, knave, walk! A coll. c.p. taught to parrots: mid-C.16—17. 'Proverbs' Heywood, 1546; Lyly; 'Hudibras' Butler; Roxburgh, Ballads, ca. 1685. (Apperson.) walk Matilda. See waltzing Matilda.

walk out, v.i. and n. (To have) an affair: Society: from ca. 1930. (Evelyn Waugh, A Handful of Dust, 1934.) Ex dial. v.t. walk out, to take one's fiancée out.

walk out with the bat. To achieve victory: Society: ca. 1880—1900. Ex a cricketer 'carrying' his bat. (Ware.)

walk penniles in Mark Lane. To have been cheated and to be very conscious of the fact: proverbial coll.: late C.16—early 17. Greene. (Apperson.)

walk round. To prepare oneself to attack or be attacked: lower classes':—1909 (Ware). Ex dogs' circling.—2. See walk around.

walk Spanish. To desert ship: nautical: later C.19—early 20. See chalks, 1.

walk the barber. To lead a girl astray: c.:—1851 (Mayhew, I; H., 1st ed.). Anatomical.

walk the black dog on (one). A punishment inflicted on a prisoner by his fellows if he refuses to pay his footing: c.: late C.18—mid-19. Grose.

walk the carpet. To be reprimanded: coll.: from ca. 1820. (John Galt.) Ex 'servants... summoned into the "parlour" for a wigging' (W.).

walk the cart. To walk over the course: racing: since ca. 1870. In 'Ducange Anglicus', 1857, the form is traverse the cart. walk the chalk. To walk along a chalk line as a test of sobriety' ('Jon Bee'): army,—1823, >, by 1850, gen. whence able to walk a chalk, sober.—2. Hence, by 1845 at latest, to keep oneself up to the moral mark. Cf. chalks, 1.

walk the hospitals. To study medicine: medical coll.: from ca. 1870. For a pertinent comment, see the leading article in TLS, 9 Oct. 1936.

walk the pegs. In cheating at cribbage, to move one's own pegs forward or one's opponent's back: low s. >, ca. 1870, s., >, ca. 1900, coll. > 1920, S.E.: 1803 (OED). Lit., to make walk.

walk the piazzas. (Of prostitutes) to look for men: ca. 1820–70. ('Jon Bee'.) Ex the piazzas—wrongly so called—of Covent Garden.—2. Hence, ca. 1870–1910, to walk the streets: likewise of prostitutes.

walk the plank. An early var. of walk the chalk: RN: since ca. 1810 or earlier. W.N. Glascock, Sailors and Saints, 1829, at I, 176, and II, 120. (Moe.)—2. To move up and down one's surfboard: Aus. surfers': since ca. 1961. (B.P.) With a pun on the pirates' practice of making their victims walk the plank.

walk up against the wall. See wall.

walk-up fuck; also simply walk-up. 'She's... All you have to do is walk up and ask': low Aus.: C.20.

walk up Ladder Lane and down Hemp Street. To be hanged at the yard arm: nautical: C.19. Cf. note at hemp, hempen.

walkabout. A mid-C.19–20 term as in a book-review in The Times of 8 Sep. 1936: 'Under the title "Walkabout"—the pidgin word for "journey" in the Western Pacific—Lord Moyne has written a book on his latest expedition in his yacht Rosaura to little-known lands between the Pacific and Indian Oceans.'—2. A walking tour, a riding (and walking) tour: Aus. coll.: C.20. Archer Russell, A Tramp-Royal in Australia, 1934.—3. An outback road: Aus. coll. C.20. B., 1942.—4. The term was adopted, as do a, or go, walkabout, by Brit. politicians and journalists, for any informal tour on foot by an important person 'to meet the people': late 1970s. E.g., as a picture-caption, 'Queen goes walkabout in city centre'. (P.B.) walked off, be. To be led to prison: proletarian:—1923 (Manchon).

walked out, the lamp (has). The lamp has gone out, went out: joc.:—1887 (Baumann); ob. by 1930.

Walker! orig. and properly Hook(e)y Walker!, q.v. 'Signifying that the story is not true, or that the thing will not occur' (Lex. Bal., 1811); Walker is recorded by Vaux in the following year, Manchon, 1923, has that's a walker!—2. Hence, be off!, get away with you!: late C.19—earlier 20. Whence my (or his, etc.) name's Walker, I'm (he's) off: id.—3. As n., in, e.g., 'That is all (Hooky) Walker': late C.19–20. Ex sense 1, which derives perhaps ex 'some hook-nosed person named Walker' (OED).

walker. A postman: ca. 1860–1910. (H., 3rd ed.) Ex an old song entitled 'Walker the Twopenny Postman'.—2. A coll. abbr. of shop-walker:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.).—3. See prec., 3, and:—

Walker's bus. See go by Walker's bus.

walkers. The feet: C.19. (Pierce Egan, 1832: OED.)? ex t walkers, legs.

walkie(s). (Going out for) a walk with a very small child or, esp., with a dog: nursery, and childish address to animals: C.20. Although in use for many decades previously, the exclam. walkies! achieved sudden c.p. status ca. 1980, e.g. as a jeer from rude boys to people exercising their dogs, from the popularity of Mrs Barbara Woodhouse's dog-training classes broadcast on TV. Cf. outy! (P.B.)

walkie-talkie. 'A wireless set, carried by one man, with both receiving and transmitting equipment' (P-G-R): army: 1940–5; then civilian (e.g. police); by 1950, coll.

walking, go. To go rotten: C.20. Mostly Londoners'. Ex the prospective maggots.

walking cornet. An ensign of foot: army:—1785 (Grose, 1st ed.); † by 1890.

walking disaster area, a. A person particularly inept and accident-prone: since late 1960s. Prob. ex the US use in, e.g., '(Such-and-such a place) has been declared a disaster area following last night's tornado.' (P.B.)

walking distiller. See distiller.

walking dry. A frequent var. of dry walk.

walking-go. A walking-contest: coll.: C.19—early 20. OED.

walking mort. A tramp's woman: c.: early C.19. On strolling mort.

walking Moses! See Moses!

walking-orders, -papers, -ticket. A (notice of) dismissal: US (1830s); partly anglicised, esp. in the Colonies, in C.20. Joc. walking poulticer. One who hawks from door to door the fowls he steals: c. of ca. 1785–1840. Grose, 2nd ed.

walking speaking-trumpet. A midshipman engaged in passing orders: joc. RN coll.: C.20. Bowen.

walking stationer. 'A hawk of pamphlets, &c.' (Grose, 2nd ed., 1788): (? orig. c. >) low s.; ob by 1870, † by 1900.

walking-stick. A rifle: Anglo-Irish: 1914; ob. by 1930. Orig. either euph. or secretive.

walkist. A walker: sporting, esp. athletics, coll.:—1887 (Baumann); ob. by 1930.

walktalk. 'A conversational stroll' (B., 1942): Aus. coll.: since ca. 1910.

wall. In crawl or walk up the or (in Lex. Bal., 1811) walk up against the wall, 'To be scored up at a public house' (Grose, 1st ed.): public house (—1785); † by 1850. Ex the mounting bill written up, in chalk, on the wall. Cf.:—2. In up against the wall, in serious difficulties: Services', since 1916 (F. & G.), > in later C.20, gen. coll. See also up against a wall.

—3. In drive or send up the wall, to send crazy, to drive to distraction: coll.: since late 1940s. Cf. round the bend; up the pole. Ex the pains of enforced drug-withdrawal.—4. In near the wall, ill: Oxford University: ca. 1820–50. (Spy, 1825.) Ex Dr Wall, a celebrated surgeon.—5. See look on the wall...; see as far into a brick...; stick (one's) spoon in...; hit the wall.

wall-eyed. Inferior, careless (work); irregular (action): from the 1840s; ob by 1890, virtually † by 1930. (Halliwell, 1847.) The C.20 equivalent for 'inferior' is cock-eyed. Ex wall-eyed, squinting. P.B.: but, since mid-C.20. at latest, cock-eyed = askew, lit, or fig.

wall fruit. 'Kissing against a wall' (Sinks): ca. 1830–80. Cf. pineapple, 4, q.v.

wall-prop, be a; make wallpaper. C.20. variants (Manchon) of (be a) wallflower, q.v.

wall-stretcher. See crooked straight-edge.

wall-to-wall. Abundant, 'thick on the ground'; all over the place: copied, ex US, esp. on Citizens' Band radio, since late 1970s. E.g., wall-to-wall bears = police much in evidence. Ex carpets so laid. (P.B.)

Walla-Walla. See further behind than...

wallabies; W. Australians: coll.: from ca. 1908. Mostly in sporting circles and esp. of teams of Australians (Rugby Union) OED Sup.; Wilkes.

wallaby. 'An outback track' (B., 1959): Aus.: C.20. Perhaps immediately ex on the wallaby, itself abbr. on the wallaby-track, on tramp. The full phrase from mid-C.19, the abbr.—1887 (All the Year Round, 20 July, p. 66: Wilkes): orig. s. >, by ca. 1910, coll. In the 'bush', often the only perceptible track (Morris).—2. Hence, on the wallaby, on an urban drinking-bout: Aus.: ca. 1890–1910.—3. Thence, penniless: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.

wallaby-tracker. A tramp: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1943.) Ex prec., 1.

wallah, in Anglo-Indian (hence in Army) compounds—e.g. competition wallah—is simply a chap, a fellow: late C.18–20. Only in certain (mostly, joc.) compounds (e.g. amen-wallah, base-wallah) is it eligible; these will be found in their alphabetical place. Ex Hindustani -wala, connected with. See esp. Y. & B. Col. Archie White, VC, points out, in a letter, 1970, that the particle -wala = inhabitant, as in Delhi wala, an inhabitant of Delhi; and with an infinitive it = occupation, as in likhne wala, a writer. Not, as the soldiers believed, a man: 'One of the words the soldier never got right'.

walled. (Of a picture) accepted by the Royal Academy: artists': 1882; ob. Ware.

waller. A loose spelling of wallah.

wallet. See main drain...

wallflower. A second-hand coat, exposed for sale: low

London: 1804 (OED); ob. For semantics, cf. next sense.—2. Orig. and gen., a lady keeping her seat by the wall because of her inability to attract partners: coll.: 1820, Praed, 'The maiden wallflowers of the room/Admire the freshness of his bloom.'—3. Hence, any person going to a ball but not dancing, whatever the reason: coll.: from 1890s. Free Lance, 22 Nov. 1902, 'And male wall-flowers sitting out at dances/Will reckon up their matrimonial chances.'—4. 'Escapee. One who talks of nothing else but (a) escaping, (b) "how nice it will be when he gets outside". Usually applied to the (a) class, who are convinced that one day they will make the perfect getaway' (Tempest, 1950): prisons': mid-C.20.

wallop, n.; occ. wallup. A clumsily ponderous, noisily brusque or violent movement of the body; a lurching: coll. and dial.: 1820 (Scott: OED). Hence, go (down) wallop, to fall noisily and heavily: id.: since mid-C.19. Also go down with a wallop. Ex the v., 1.—2. A resounding, esp. if severe, blow: coll.:—1823 ('Jon Bee'). Cf. v., 3.—3. Hence, the strength to deliver such a blow: boxing: from ca. 1910. Varsity, 24 Feb. 1914, '[He] has a prodigious "wallop", but no great amount of skill.'—4. Liquor, usu. (and in the Services, always) beer: low s. > coll.: since ca. 1930. H. & P.; Gilt Kid, 1936, 'He could not stand his wallop as well as he had been able to.' Ex its potency.—5. Strictly, the proprietary Walpamur; 'but now [1953] often used for any washable distemper; builders' and house-painters' and -decorators' (A master builder).—6. In get (or give) the wallop, to be dismissed—to dismiss—from a job: Aus.: since ca. 1920. B., 1942.

wallop, occ. wallup, v.i. To move with noisy and ponderous clumsiness; to lurch, flounder, or plunge: dial. (early C.18) >, ca. 1815, coll. (Scott, 1820: cf. n., 1). Ex wallop, to gallop; the word is echoic. OED.—2. V.i., to dangle, to flap or flop about: recorded by OED in 1822, but prob. in fairly gen. coll. use as early as 1780: see wallop in a tow or tether.—3. V.t., to belabour, thrash: dial. (—1825) >, in 1830s, coll.—4. Hence, fig., to get the better of: coll.: from ca. 1860. Meredith, 1865 (OED).

wallop (or wallup) in a tether or tow. To be hanged: Scots coll.: from ca. 1780; slightly ob. by 1930. Burns, 1785 (OED). Cf. wallop, v., 2, q.v.

walloper. One who belabours or drubs; that with which he does it—e.g. stick or cudgel: coll.: from ca. 1820. (EDD.) Ex wallop, v., 3, q.v.—2. A hotel; drinking-den: c.: from ca. 1930. (Gilt Kid, 1936.) Ex wallop, n., 4. Cf. boozier in this sense.—3. A dancer: itinerant entertainers': late C.19–20. (Lester.) Perhaps influenced by It. galoppo, a lively dance, and galoppare, to gallop, and galoppatore, a galloper. P.B.: or is it simply that he wallops the stage with his feet?—4. A policeman: Aus. c., since ca. 1945; soon > low s. (B., 1945.) Prob. of sadistic origin; cf. synon. paddler, 2, q.v.—5. See donkey-walloper.

walloping, n. and adj., to wallop, v. (q.v.): coll. Cf. walloper.—2. Also as adv., though it may be merely a reinforcing adj., as in Hyne, 1903, 'I came upon a walloping great stone.'

Walls have ices. A c.p. retort to 'Walls have ears': since ca. 1930. I.e. Wall's have ices, with ref. to a well-known London firm of ice-cream manufacturers.

Wallsy. A Wall's ice-cream man: coll.: from ca. 1925. Gilt Kid, 1936.

wallop. See wallop, n. and v.

wally (pron. wolly); shock-a-lolly. Cockney terms (quite distinct one from the other) for cucumber pickled in brine, the second term being rare: from ca. 1880.—2. Alternative spelling of wolly, n. and v., of which it is perhaps the orig.

walnut. See shoulder walnut.

walnut-shell. A very light carriage: 1810 (OED); ob. Cf. cockle-shell (boat).

Walrus. Walrus, near Arras: army: WW1. (Blaker.) By Hobson-Jobson.—2. A large, bushy moustache; hence, its wearer: the former coll. (elliptical for 'walrus moustache'); the latter, s.: since ca. 1917; virtually extinct by 1960.

Walter Joyce. Voice: rhyming s.: since ca. 1880. (G.R. Sims used it in a Dagonet Ballad published in The Referee of 7 Nov. 1887.) Franklyn 2nd.

Waltham's calf. See wise as Waltham's...

waltz; esp. waltz hither and thither, (a)round or about. To move in light or sprightly or nimble fashion; to buzz round or fuss about: from ca. 1870: resp. coll. and s. (The OED's example of 1862 is S.E.)—2. In do a or the waltz, to slide or skid: Cockneys': late C.19–20. E.g. 'I was doing the waltz all the way'; 'In going along Russell Street, I done a waltz.' waltz into. To attack, 'walk into' (a person): coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

waltzing Matilda. 'Carrying the swag, an expression given currency by A.B. Paterson's poem with this title, composed in 1895 and published in Saltbush Bill J.P.' (Wilkes): Aus. joc., an elab. on the orig. walk Matilda. Wilkes quotes Henry Lawson, 'Some Popular Australian Mistakes', Prose, ii, 1893, p. 24: 'No bushman thinks of "going on the wallaby" or "walking Matilda" or "padding the hoof"; he goes on the track—when forced to it.'—2. See shrimp, 2.

wamble; C.18–20, womble, n. A rolling, or a feeling of uneasiness or nausea, in the stomach: C.17–20: S.E. until mid-C.18, then coll. and dial. As coll., ob. except in the wombles, a sensation of nausea. Ex wamble, to feel nausea.—2. Hence, milk fever: coll. and dial.: C.18–20; ob.—3. A rolling or staggering movement or gait, esp. in (up)on the wamble, staggering, wobbly or wobbling: coll. (ob.) and dial.: from ca. 1820. Ex wamble, v.i., to roll about as one walks. Cf.:

wamble, v. To drift or wander, to stagger, as applied to ships: lowerdeck: late C.18–mid-19. (Bill Truck, Dec. 1825.) Cf. prec., 3.

wamble (or, C.18, womble)-cropped or -stomached. Sick at the stomach: resp. mid-C.16–20, but in C.19–20 only US and until mid-C.18, S.E.; C.16–?, so prob. not late enough to be eligible. See wamble, 1; cf.:

wamblety (or womblety)-cropped. Suffering, in the stomach, the ill effects of a debauch: late C.17–early 19. (B.E.; Grose.) A var. of the prec. In US, fig., uncomfortable.

wampo. Intoxicating liquor: RAF: from ca. 1930. (Jackson.) Prob. ex Scot. wampish, 'to wave one's arms about'.

wampo coupons. Pound notes, regarded as fair exchange for liquor: RAF: ca. 1930–50. Cf. prec.

Wan. A member of the Women's Royal Australian Naval Service: Aus. Services': WW2.

wan-horse chaise. A one-horsed chaise: a Hyde Park Corner joke, ca. 1820–30. Bee, 1823.

Wanch, the (pron. wonch), n. Wan Chai, in its aspect as the red light district of Hong Kong: Services': later C.20. Cf. next two entries. (P.B.)

wanch, v. To go to Wan Chai (see prec.) as a prospective or actual customer; to go drinking in the bars there: army: 1960s. A pun on 'to wench'. (P.B.)

Wanchai burberry. A Chinese oiled-paper umbrella: RN: mid-C.20. Wan Chai is the waterside district of Hong Kong Island in which the China Fleet Club is situated. (John Malin; P.B.)

wander. To lead astray; fig., to confuse, bewilder: coll.: from mid-1890s. OED.

wander! Go away!: ca. 1880–1905. Ware, who classifies it as street s.

wandering Willie. An 'escaped' barrage balloon: RAF: ca. 1938–45.

wang, n. Penis: low: C.20. Prob. ex whang, n. and v.—2. Hence, a cigarette: S. African schools': C.20. Ex shape.

wangle, n. A 'wangling'; some favour illicitly obtained: from 1915: orig. military. Ex the v.—2. Hence (—1935), a swindle.

wangle, v.t. To arrange to suit oneself; contrive or obtain with sly cunning, insidiously or illicitly; to manipulate, to 'fake': printers' s. (—1888) >, before or by 1911, fairly gen.; in WW1, a very common soldiers' word; since WW1, very gen. indeed. (Jacobi, 1888; esp. B. & P.) Esp. wangle a job, wangling leave (of absence).—2. Hence as v.i.: 1920 (OED Sup.).—3. To persuade (one) to do something: 1926 (ibid.). Possibly ex dial. wangle, to shake, as W. suggests; perhaps (OED) ex waggle; in either case, perhaps influenced by wanky, q.v.

wangler. One who 'wangles' (see prec.): from ca. 1910. Edgar Wallace, Private Selby, 1912, 'A wangler is... a nicker, a shirker, a grouser—any bloomin' thing that talks a lot an' don't do much work' (W.).—2. Hence, from ca. 1915, a schemer (cf. wangle, n.).

wangling. The n. ex wangle, v. (q.v.): from ca. 1915. Cf. wangler.

wank, n. An act of masturbation: low: C.20. I remember a fellow recruit, a man from Birmingham, exclaiming, in a very 'Brummy' accent, 1952, 'Ooh! A letter from me tart! I'm off to the lats for a wank!' Prob. ex the v., rather than vice versa. (P.B.) In, e.g. a load of old wank, nonsense: Services', ? esp. army. late 1960s—early 70s. As in 'that's just a load...!'; cf. the exclam. wank! wank! (pron. almost as if quacked), greeting any announcement or declaration considered to be rubbish: id. (P.B.).—3. See spare wank, with which cf. wank, 1.

wank, v. (Until early 1970s, usu. spelt whank.) To masturbate: low: since late C.19. Also wank off.

wank-pit. A bed: RAF: since ca. 1920. Ex prec. Also wanking-pit.

wank-stain. An idiot; stupid person: teenagers' term of mild abuse: mid-1970s. (D. & R. McPheeley.)

wanker. A masturbator: low: since late C.19.—2. 'The great working-class swear-word of today: over the last 8 to 10 years, I would say. It equals "cunt" in its weight as an insult, and revives that word's original implication of effeminacy and unworthiness' (Robert Barltrop, letter to P.B., 1981). In Gavin Weightman's article, 'God lets me pickpocket', New Society, 7 July 1977, a youth interviewed describes a police squad on the look-out for pickpockets as 'a bunch of wankers'; and Roger Woddis's Cockney-style sonnet 'Tom Brahn's Skooldays', Punch, 6 July 1977, has 'Wile werds of lernid lenf an thundrin sahd/Amazed the gazin wankers sittin rahnd.' Comparable is the generalisation, and gradual weakening, of such words as bugger and fucker. Strong & Hart-Davis, in Fighter Pilot, 1981, define its RAF use as '(fig.) universal derogatory term for someone not trusted or thought little of'. (P.B.).—3. Var. of wank-pit: RAF: since ca. 1925.—4. A bloater: Felsted School: 1892, The Felstedian, Oct.; Ibid., June 1897, 'He sniffs, 'eugh, wankers again.' Ex stinker (via stuancker).

wanker's colic. An undiagnosed visceral pain: RAF: since early 1920s. Cf.:-

wanker's doom. Debility: orig. RAF, since ca. 1925; by 1945 > fairly common and gen. low s.; also prison s., as in Tempest, 1950: 'A man suspected of excessive masturbation is said to be suffering from "whanker's doom".' Claiborne, 1976, 'Ex the myth of ensuing insanity'.

wanking-pit. Army var. of wank-pit: since early 1920s.

wanking-spanner. An imaginary tool like a 'sky-hook': low: C.20. Ex wank, v.—2. The hand: low: since ca. 1920.—3. Hence, the badge of the Royal Armoured Corps, 1941–55; its main feature was a mailed fist: army: mid-C.20. (P.B.)

wanks. Strong liquor: RAF: ca. 1930–45. (Partridge, 1945.) P.B.: perhaps because stronger than piss (=weak beer)?

wanky; wonky (by mid-C.20 the usu. form). Spurious, inferior, wrong, damaged or injured: printers',—1890 (B. & L.), >, by 1914, gen. 'A wanky tanner = a snide [q.v.] sixpence' (F. & H.). Prob. ex dial. wankle, unsteady, precarious; delicate in health; sickly. In East Anglian dial., wanky is 'feeble': EDD.—2. Hence, nervous, jumpy: RFC/RAF: from 1915. F. & G.—3. Pornographic; i.e. conducive to masturbation (see wank, v., 1): ? esp. Oxford undergraduates: later C.20. It is used, in J.I.M. Stewart, A Memorial Service, 1976, of a picture. wannegan. A store: Can.: C.20. (John Beames.) Ex a Red Indian word.

Wanstead Flats. Spats: Londoner's rhyming s.: since ca. 1920.

want, v. In it's up there (with a tap on one's forehead) you want it; or that's where you want it!, you should use your brains!: lower-class and Services' c.p.: from ca. 1908. B. & P. want an apron. To be out of work: workmen's:—1909 (Ware); ob. by 1930. 'The apron off.'

want doing, it will; it wants or wanted doing. It will, does, or did need doing: mid-C.16–20: S.E. until late C.19, then coll. 'Seton Merriman', 1898, 'Roden is a scoundrel... and wants thumping.' (OED).

want in; want out. To wish to enter; to wish to go out: from ca. 1840: coll. of Scotland, N. Ireland, and US. Abbr. want to go in or out. (OED.) P.B.: by 1960s, at latest, to 'want out' had come to mean a desire for a complete change of circumstances: 'I'm sick and tired of this [my present situation]! I want out!' Poss. a return of the usage from N. America: see: want in, down, off, out, up, etc. 'There is an extraordinary locution used here which omits "to get". "I want down" means "I want to get down". Cf. also "I want out, I want in, I want out of here, I want on (a tram), I want off"—and countless others.' Thus Dr Douglas Leechman, 1959, concerning a Can. usage that was, ca. 1954, adopted ex US. Prob. a development of prec.

want jam on it. To desire something over and above what is reasonable, as in 'Huh! Bloody HQ are always the same—they want effing jam on it!': a natural extension of the Services' c.p. what do you want (then)—jam on it?, in response to a grumble about poor commons: C.20. (P.B.)

want (something) like a baby wants its titty. 'To want with insistent call to satisfy, e.g., a deep inner need of heart or soul, even if, to an outsider, superficial' (L.A., who, 1976, notes that the expression goes 'close to the heart language of poetry'); prob. since later C.19.

want to bet on it? (or do you want...? or you want...?), with bet emphasised. Are you so sure of what you are saying (that you will bet on it)? c.p.: since ca. 1945. See DCpp.

want to buy a battleship? See do you want...

want to know all the ins and outs of a duck's bum or a cat's arse. To be extremely inquisitive; esp. of one desirous of arriving at the underlying explanation: low: late C.19–20.

want to make something of it? A threatening retort to criticism or insult: c.p.: since ca. 1925. (L.A.) Implying readiness for fisticuffs.

want to piss like a dressmaker. 'A Cockney figure of speech for urgent need, perhaps originating in sweated-labour days' (L.A.): late C.19–20. P.B.: cf. the more rural want to pee like a rabbit.

want-to-was(s)er, n. and adj. (An athlete or a boxer) hopeful but past his prime: Can., rare: early C.20. John Beames; Leechman.

wanted. A wanted person (whether advertised for in the Situations Vacant, or sought by the police): coll.: 1793, W. Roberts, 'I design to publish a list of Wanted, solely for the use of your Paper' (OED). In the police sense, the adj. app. arises ca. 1810—Vaux has it; the comparatively rare n., 1903 (OED).

wants his liver scraping! Applied, as a c.p., to a superior in an evil temper: military: from 1914. B. & P.

wap. To copulate (gen. v.i.): c.: C.17—early 19. (Rowlands, 1610; B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) Ex wap (down), to throw (down) violently: cf. knock, to coit with (a woman). Whence, wappened, deflowered, wanton. Cf. wap-apace.—2. See whop, v.

wap-apace, -mort. A woman experienced in copulation: c.: late C.17—early 19. (B.E., Grose.) See wap and cf. the c.p. lie she won't wap for a win, let her trine for a make, 'If she won't Lie with a Man for a Penny, let her Hang for a Half-penny' (B.E.): same period.

wap-John. A gentleman's coachman: sporting: ca. 1825–50 OED.

wapper. See whopper.

wapping. See whopping.

wapping-dell, -mort. A whore: c.: C.17–18. Resp. Rowlands, Dekker. See wap.

waps(e), wops(e). A wasp: sol. and dial.: C.18–20. Esp. in pl, owing to the difficulty of pronouncing wasps. P.B.: in C.20 often used joc.

wappy. Idealistic; sentimental; 'soppy': since ca. 1950. Alan Sillitoe, The Loneliness of the Long-Distance Runner, 1959 (p. 18), 'Just like the governor of this Borstal who spouts to us about Borstal and all that wappy stuff.' Perhaps, as Robert Claiborne suggests, a blend of wet + soppy.

war. See it's a great war!; it's winning the war!; there's a war on!

war and strife. Rare var. of trouble and strife, q.v., rhyming s. for wife. B. & P.

War Babies; War Babies' Brigade. A Junior Training Battalion: military: 1917–18. (Ian Miller, School Tie, 1935.) Cf.:

war-baby. An illegitimate born during WW1: from late 1916; ob. by 1930, but revived in WW2. Ex the S.E. sense, a child that is born, during a war, while its father is on active service.—2. A young soldier, esp. if a subaltern: army: 1917–18. (F. & G.) Cf. prec.

War Box, the. The War Office (> the Ministry of Defence): army: since ca. 1919. Cf. War House.

war-caperer. A privateer: naval coll.: (?) C.18—early 19. (Bowen.) 'Perhaps an elaboration of caper, a privateer (1657); ex Dutch kaper, a privateer, and kapen, to take, to plunder' (R.S.).

war-cry. A mixture of stout and mild ale: taverns': 1882-ca. 86. Ware derives it from the War Cry, the periodical of the Salvation Army, which 'spoke stoutly and ever [?] used mild terms'.

war-hat or -pot. A spiked helmet: army:—1904; ob. by 1915, † by 1918.

War House, the. The War Office: General Staff's and Generals': ca. 1899–1919. B. & P.

war-paint. One's best or official clothes, with jewels decorations, etc.: coll.: 1859, H. Kingsley, 'Old Lady E—in her war-paint and feathers' (OED). Ex lit. sense.—2. Hence, make-up: theatrical: late C.19–20.

war-pot. See war-hat.

warb. A simpleton or a fool: Aus.: since ca. 1905. B., 1943.—2. An odd-job youth in a circus; a badly paid manual worker: Aus.: since ca. 1910. B., 1942.—3. 'A dirty or untidy person' (B., 1959): Aus.: since ca. 1920.—4. A 'derelict, drunkard, "no-hoper"' (Ian Grindley, 1977): Aus. c.: since ca. 1960. With all senses, cf.:

warby. Unwell; (of things) insecure: Aus.: since ca. 1905. B., 1942.—2. Unattractive; inferior: Aus.: since ca. 1910. B., 1953.—3. Silly, daft: Aus.: C.20. Kylie Tennant, The Battlers, 1941, 'Of all the warby ideas...' Ex scottish warback, or † warbie, 'a maggot': cf. rotten, q.v., and prec.

warbler. A singer that, for pay, liquor, or other benefit, goes to, and sings at meetings: low: ca. 1820–1920.

warbling on the topmost bough, be left. To be left with one's stocks and shares and unable to sell them: joc. Stock Exchange:—1923 (Manchon).

warco. A war correspondent: mostly journalistic: 1939+.

ward-room joints as lower-deck hash. 'Officers' conversation or information which finds its way forward': RN: C.20. (Bowen.) P.B.: this refers to food, not to marijuana: Granville substitutes stew for hash: since ca. 1930.

ward-room officers have stomachs, and flag-officers palates – midshipmen have guts. RN c.p.: mid-C.19—early 20. (Bowen.) Cf., e.g. horses sweat, men perspire and ladies glow.

wardo. Occ. var. of vardo, n.

ware hawk! See hawk, n., 2.

ware skins, quoth Grubber, when he flung the louse into the fire. A semi-proverbial c.p. of ca. 1670–1770. Ray, 1678; Fuller, 1732 (Grub for Grubber, shins for skins). Apperson. warehouse, n. A fashionable pawn-shop: Society:—1904 (F. & H.); ob. by 1930.

warehouse, v. To pawn (an article): id. (Ibid.) Perhaps ex:—2. To put in prison: 1881 (Punch, 12 Feb.: OED). Cf. jug, v.

warm, n. An act of warming, a becoming warm: mid-C.18–20: S.E. until mid-C.19, then coll. Esp. in get or have a warm, give a warm.

warm, v. To thrash: s. (—1811) and dial. (—1824) >, by 1850, coll. (Lex. Bal.; 'Cuthbert Bede', 1853.) Also warm one's jacket: cf. dust one's jacket.—2. Hence, to berate, 'call over the coals': coll.: from ca. 1870. (H., 5th ed.) Cf. the semi c.p. I'll warm yer, a vague Cockney threat.

warm, adj. Rich: from ca. 1570: S.E. until late C.18, then coll. (Grose, 1st ed.) Ex warm, comfortably established or settled (OED).—2. Of an account or bill: exorbitant: coll.: from ca. 1890; ob. Cf. hot.

warm and runny, be or feel or get (all). To 'become excited over a musician's improvisation, esp. rhythm: early 1970s' (L.A.). A 'pop' fans' hyperbole that implies either wetting oneself or even experiencing an orgasm.

warm as a mouse in a churn. Very snug: proverbial coll.: ca. 1670–1720. Ray.

warm as they make them. Sexually loose: coll.:—1909 (Ware). Cf. hot stuff and:

warm bit. Such a woman: low: 1880; slightly ob. by 1930. Ware.

warm corner. 'A nook where birds are found in plenty' (Ware, who by birds means harlots): sporting and Society:—1909. Punning S.E. sense.

warm flannel. Mixed spirits served hot: public house:—1823; † by 1900. Cf. hot flannel.

warm (one's or the) husband's supper. See husband's supper.

warm in winter and cool in summer. Aus. c.p. applied to women as physical contacts: since ca. 1940. (B.P.) Perhaps, as Norman Franklin suggests, ex the Aertex (garments) slogan of the 1930s.

warm member or 'un. A whore; a whoremonger: low: mid-C.19–20; ob. Ex warm, amorous, prone to sexual desire and practice.—2. (Only w. m. A very energetic, pushful person: ca. 1895, 'Keep it Dark' (a music-hall song), 'Dr Kenealy, that popular bloke, / That extremely warm member, the member for Stoke.'

warm shop or show. A brothel: low:—1923: (Manchon). Cf. hot stuff in its sexual sense.

warm-sided. (A ship, a fort) mounting heavy batteries: RN coll.:—1904 (F. & H.). Because such a ship can supply a warm reception.

warm sun, out of God's blessing into the. See out of.

warm the bell. To put the clock on or relieve the watch early: RN: C.20. ('Taffrail', The Ship, 1917; Granville.) Bowen has 'Having one's relief turned out early'. Cf. earlier synon. eat sand, q.v.

warm the wax of (one's) ear. To box a person's ear: low: ca. 1860–1915. (H., 3rd ed.) An elab. of warm one's jacket (see warm, v.).

warm with, adj. and n. (Spirits) warmed with hot water and sweetened with sugar: coll.: 1840, T.A. Trollope (OED), the n.; 1836, Dickens, the adj. Contrast cold without.

warmed-up corpse, feel like a. To feel half-dead: low:—1923 (Manchon).

warmer. A smart person: Glasgow:—1934. Cf. hot, expert.

warming-pan. A female bed-fellow: from the Restoration; ob. Esp. a Scotch warming-pan: See Scotch w.-p. D'Avenant, B.E., Grose.—2. A large, old-fashioned watch, properly of gold (a silver one being a frying-pan): late C.17–19. (B.E.; H., 3rd–5th ed.) Ex size: cf. turnip.—3. A locum tenens, esp. among the clergy: from mid-1840s; slightly ob. by 1930. The abbr. W.P. is rare for any person other than 'a clergyman holding a living under a bond of resignation' (F. & H.); clerical:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.). Now only historical, the practice having been made illegal.

warming the whole of (one's) body. A punning c.p. (on hole) applied to someone standing with back to a coal, gas, etc., fire: C.20, perhaps earlier. (P.B.)

warorks! In hunting, it = 'Ware oxer'—look out for the stiff fence. See oxer.

warp. The criminal confederate who watches: c.: late C.16—early 17. (Greene.)? watch corrupted.

warrab. a barrow: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.).

warrant officers' champagne. Rum and ginger-ale mixed: RN joc. coll.: C.20. Bowen.

warrant you, I or Ill. I'll be bound: coll.: late C.18–20.

warren. A brothel; a boarding-school: c. > low s.: late C.17—early 19. (B.E., Grose.) Joc.; Cf. cunny-warren, q.v.—2. 'He that is Security for Goods taken up, on Credit, by Extravagant young Gentlemen' (B.E.): c.: C.17–18. (Dekker, B.E., Grose.) By sense-perversion—or perhaps merely, as the OED holds, by misapprehension, of warren, a var. of warrant.

warrigal. Any untamed creature, e.g. horse, native; hence, an outlaw: Aus.: mid-C.19—earlier 20. Also as adj., wild. Ex Aboriginal for 'dog'. Wilkes.

warriors bold, n. and adj. (A) cold: rhyming s.: C.20. (Franklyn 2nd.) Cf. synon. soldiers bold, and taters.

wars. In have been in the wars, to show signs of injury, marks of ill or hard usage: coll.: 1850 (Scoresby: OED). Ex a veteran soldier's scars.—2. As exclam. or expletive, it occurs several times in the RN wardroom dialogues of Middle-Watch Musings, ca. 1912. Perhaps euph., for bloody wars! (P.B.)

wart. A youthful subaltern: 1894 ('J.S. Winter: OED): s. >, by 1930, coll.—2. A midshipman or naval officer cadet: RN: C.20. 'Taffrail', Pincher Martin, 1916: 'then came the six junior "snotties" ... collectively ... the Warts, Crabs, or Dogs' Bodies, and had to do what everybody else chose to tell them.'—3. An objectionable fellow: upper classes': from ca. 1919. Ex senses 1 and 2. Perhaps abbr. wart-hog.—4. The single star of a 2nd lieutenant: army: from 1914. F. & G.—5. An anti-shipping mine: RN: WW1. 'Bartimeus', The Long Trick, 1917 (R.S.).

Warthog. A Warthurg motor vehicle (manufactured in the German Democratic Republic): coll. joc.: later C.20. (P.B.)

Warwicks. (At cards) sixes: army: late C.19—early 20. (F. & G.) Either rhyming, or from the Warwickshire Regt being orig. the 6th of Foot.—2. In bloke or chap or fellow out o' the Warwicks, a joc. ref. to someone whose name the speaker has momentarily forgotten, as in 'You know 'im—whatsisname—old oojamaflop. You know, bloke out the Warwicks': army: 1940s–50s. (P.J. Emrys Jones, 1980.) Perhaps orig. a ref. to F.M. Viscount Montgomery of Alamein, who was commissioned into the Royal Warwickshire Fusiliers in 1908, and who was the Regt's last colonel. (P.B.)

Warwick Farms. Arms: Aus. rhyming s.: C.20. (B., 1945.) An adaptation of Chalk Farm(s), q.v.

Warwickshire Lads, the. The 6th Regiment of Foot (from 1881 the Royal Warwickshire Regt): army: late C.18—early 20. (F. & G.) Partly ex the song, 'Ye Warwickshire Lads and Lasses'.

was-bird. A 'has-been': C.20. Cf. never-waser.—2. Hence, an elderly man eager to enlist: WW1. (F. & G.) P.B.: both senses prob. a pun on Eng. dial. wos-bird, = 'whose's brood, orig. 'an illegitimate child', hence a gen. pej. like bastard (EDD).

Wasbees (or Wasbies), The. The Women's Auxiliary Service, Burma: 1942–6. (Disbanded in July 1946.)

waser or wasser. A girl: Cockneys: early C.20. Fr. oiseau, a bird: cf. bird, 8 wash, n. An act of 'washing': printers':—1841. Cf. v., 2. OED.—2. A fictitious sale of securities (by simple transference, therefore to the brokers' profit): Stock Exchange:—1891 (The Century Dict.). Cf. v., 3.—3. School tea or coffee: Durham School:—1904. Because of its weakness.—4. Nonsense; drivelling sentiment: from ca. 1905. Perhaps orig. Harrovian: witness Arnold Lunn, 1913; Georgette Heyer, Why Shoot a Butler, 1933, 'The Public School spirit, and Playing for the Side, and all that wash'. Prob. abbr. eye- or hog-wash on bilge and slush.—5. Garage s., from ca. 1920, as in Richard Blaker, Night-Shift, 1934, 'Hales went ... through the workshop to the "wash", where finished jobs were left, ready for collection or delivery'.—6. In C.20 c., the wash is the theft of money in public lavatories while the owner is washing. See wash-up, 2. Hence, as in Powis, 1977, at the wash, stealing as a pickpocket from public washrooms.—7. As the wash, 'Shebeen proprietors' term for the mash of cheap grain and sugar (for example) cooked before distillation into illegal drinking spirit alcohol' (Powis): later C.20.—8. See come out in the wash.

wash, v. To bear testing or investigation; prove to be genuine: coll.: 1849, C. Brontë, 'That willn't wash, Miss' (OED). 'As good fabrics and fast dyes stand the operation of washing' (F. & H.).—2. To punish, to 'rag' (a fellow workman for falsehood or misconduct) by banging type-cases on his desk, or (among tailors) by swearing and cursing loudly: printers' s. (—1841) >, by 1900, gen. craftsmen's. (Savage's Dict. of Printing.) Presumably ex the notion of purification. Among tailors, there is, in C.20, a secondary nuance, gen. as vbl n. washing, a reprimand by the 'boss' (as in Tailor and Cutter, 29 Nov. 1928).—3. To do or practise 'wash' as in n., 2: Stock Exchange: as v.t., app. unrecorded before 1895, but as v.i. implied in the vbl.n. as in: 1870, Medbery, Men and Mysteries of Wall Street, 'Brokers had become fearful of forced quotations. Washing had become a constant trick before the panic, and bids were now closely scrutinised.' Perhaps ex one hand washes the other (OED); perhaps ex take in one another's washing. Cf. wash about.

wash a Negro. To attempt the impossible: coll.: C.17. Middleton & Dekker; Barrow, in Sermons, ca. 1677, 'Therefore was he put ... to wash Negroes ... to reform a most perverse and stubborn generation.' OED.

wash about, v.i. (Of stocks and shares) to be in (rapid) circulation: Stock Exchange coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

wash and brush-up tuppence. A c.p. uttered by the host when one was about to wash one's hands in a friend's house: ca. 1885–1915.

wash-boards. White facings on the early uniforms: RN: early C.19—early 20. John Davis, The Post Captain, 1806 (Moe); Bowen.

wash-deck, adj. Mediocre, as in 'wash-deck musician': RN: C.20. (Granville.)? Ex, or hence:—

wash-deck boatswain. 'A non-specialist warrant officer' (Bowen): RN: C.20.

wash (one's) face in an ale clout. To get drunk: joc. coll.: C.16–17. 'Proverbs' Heywood.

wash (one's, or the) head without soap. To scold a person: coll.: late C.16—early 17. Barnaby Rich, 1581 (Apperson).

wash-house ghost. Toasted bread: army: early C.20. (B. & P.) P.B.:? rhyming s., on toast.

wash (one's, or the) ivories. To drink: low: 1823 (Moncrieff). On the † wash one's brain, head, etc., to drink wine. Cf. sluice one's ivories (Punch, 1882), sluice one's bolt, q.v., and:—

wash (one's) mouth out. See wash out (one's) mouth.

wash (one's, or the) neck. To drink: low: early C.19—early 20. ('Jon Bee'; F. & H.) Manchon, 1923, lists put it down (one's) neck; cf. the US shot in the neck, drunk.

wash-out, n. A failure (thing or person); a disappointment or 'sell'; a cancellation: used in the Boer War (J. Milne, The Epistles of Atkins, 1902). Perhaps ex w.-o., a gap or hole caused by violent erosion, but much more prob. ex.—2. In shooting, a shot right off the target: military: app. from ca. 1850, if not earlier. Ex painting out of shots on the old iron targets by the application of paint or, gen., some kind of wash. See also the v.—3. Hence, a signal of cancellation, made by waving flags in a downward arc, completing a semicircle; at night, a lamp is swung in a wide, low semicircle: Can. railroadmen's coll.:—1931.

wash out, v. 'Cancel. The term dates from the period when slates were used by signalmen for taking messages, a cancelled message being washed out with a damp sponge'

(Granville): RN, since C.19; >, by 1919, gen. coll. cf. n., 2. Anthony Phelps, I Couldn't Care Less, 1946, (of WW2 flying) 'If there was no chance of [the weather] becoming flyable we were usually washed out for the day' (P.B.).—2. See washed out.

wash out (one's) mouth. Usu. either get your mouth washed out or go and wash out your mouth (or why don't you wash out your mouth?—or wash your mouth out?), a virtual c.p. addressed to a dirty-tongued, foul-mouthed person: since ca. 1910.

wash-pot. A hat: universities': ca. 1880–1910. (F. & H.) Ex the shape.

wash the cobwebs out of (one's) throat. To rid oneself of thirst (esp. for strong liquor): RN lowerdeck: late C.18—early 20. (Moe cites L.L.G., 3 July 1824, article on Greenwich Hospital.) Cf. cobweb in the throat.

wash the milk off (one's) liver. To rid oneself of cowardice: coll.: C.17—mid-18. Cotgrave.

wash-up. A scrubbing and sterilising of the hands before an operation: medical coll.:—1933 (Slang, p. 193).—2. 'Wash Up (the): Stealing from clothing hung up in wash-houses. A thief engaged in this sort of crime would be... "at the wash" or "at the wash-up"' (F.D. Sharpe, The Flying Squad, 1938): c.: since ca. 1910.—3. A postexercise analytical discussion attended by officers during Fleet exercises: RN: since ca. 1950. (Granville, 1965.) Soon also other Services' (P.B.).

washed-out. Wounded (severely): army (not very gen.): WW1. (G.H. McKnight, English Words, 1923.) Cf. wash-out, n. and v.

washer. A face-flannel: coll.: C.20.

washer-dona. A washerwoman: low London: later C.19—early 20. (Ware.) See dona. Also water-dona (Ibid.).

washers. Playing to an almost empty tent: circus- and show-men's: from ca. 1920. (John o' London's Weekly, 19 Mar. 1937: B. Crocker.) Perhaps ex wash-out. P.B.: more prob. ex (playing for) washers, derisory for coins in small change; cf. shirt-buttons.

washerwoman. 'A type of cicada' (B., 1959): Aus., mostly rural: C.20.

washical. What do you call it?: illiterate: ca. 1550–1600 (Still, Gammer Gurton's Needle.) Perhaps ex what shall I call it?

washing, n. Ex wash, v., 2, 3: resp. 1825, 1870 (both earlier than v.).

washing the tiles, vbl n. Pouring out the Mah Jong tiles: Mah-Jong-players': from late 1923; ob. by 1933. Agatha Christie, The Murder of Roger Ackroyd, 1926.

washman. A beggar with sham sores: c. of ca. 1550–80. (Awdelay, 1561.) Prob. because the sores will wash out.

washup. See wushup.

wasp. A venereally diseased harlot: ca. 1785–1850. Grose, 2nd ed., 'Who like a wasp carries a sting in her tail.'—2. A traffic warden: since ca. 1960. 'From the yellow pipings on the uniform's hat and sleeves' (Petch, citing an article in the Christchurch (Hampshire) Times, 14 Oct. 1966).—3. Acronym from White Anglo-Saxon Protestant, hence an important and influential person: adopted, ex US, ca. 1975. DCCU.

wass. To urinate: Felstead School: C.20. Ex Essex dial. P.B.: but also Lancashire usage (where pron. wazz); also fig., as of rain, 'It's wazzin' it down'. (Ian Pearsall, 1980.) Perhaps cf. Lakeland dial. wass, sour or acid (EDD).

wasser. See waser.

waste, n. In cut to waste, 'To apportion (time) wastefully': sporting: 1863; very ob. Ex tailoring sense, 'to cut (cloth) in a wasteful manner' (OED).—2. In house of waste, 'A tavern or alehouse where idle people waste both their time and money' (Grose, 1st ed.): literary coll.: ca. 1780–1850. Cf. waste-butt.

waste, v.t. To knock out (someone): coll.: early C.20. (Punch, 26 July 1916.) With thanks to Mrs Barbara Huston, who points out that, in the late 1970s, the term is frequently heard in imported American TV 'entertainment', for 'to kill'. Barnhart records it as s. from the Vietnam War. (P.B.)

waste-butt. A publican: coll.:—1823; † by 1890. Egan's waste of ready. Esp. gambling: Oxford University: ca. 1820–50. (Egan's Grose.) I.e. the ready, cash.

Grose.—2. An eating-house; joc. c. of ca. 1880–1915. Baumann.

wasted, adj. Drunk, tipsy; teenagers': early 1980s. (James Williamson, 1982.) Cf. waste, v.t., to kill.

Wat; occ. wat. A hare: late C.15–20: coll. till C.19, then dial. A familiar use of the proper name: cf. Ned for a donkey.

watch, his (her, my, etc.). Himself, etc.: c.: ca. 1530–1690. (Copland, ca. 1530; Harman; Dekker.) Cf. his nibs, watch and seals, and perhaps dial (face), for semantics.—2. Paddy's watch. See Paddywhack.

watch, v. To guard against; refrain from: lowerclass: C.20. W.A. Gape, Half a Million Tramps, 1936, 'They're jealous because we won't use their lousy "kips"'. I'll watch getting lousy and paying eightpence for it too.' Cf. watch it!

watch and seals. A sheep's head and pluck: low: C.19. (H., 2nd ed.) Lex. Bal., 1811, has elab. watch, chain and seals.

watch(-)basher. See clock basher.

watch-dropper. One who uses a cheap watch in a version of the ring-dropping game: Aus.: late C.19–20. B., 1942.

watch how the cat jumps. See see how...

watch how you go! Look after yourself—take care: a c.p. of parting: gen. only since ca. 1950, but common in the Services since ca. 1935. Whence, at first loosely and then usu., the weaker mind how...

watch it! Be careful, you're running a risk; often uttered in threatening, resentful tone, implying 'Look out—mind what you're saying or I shall use violence on you', or as a dismissive, after a scolding, 'Just watch it, that's all!': coll.: since 1920s.—2. In I'd watch it! certainly not!; I certainly won't!; low c.p.:—1923 (Manchon).

watch my smoke! Just watch me!; you won't see me for dust!; a nautical coll. that is virtually a c.p.: late C.19–20. Ex the smoke of a departing steamer.

watch on - stop on. Watch-and-watch or a double turn of duty (eight hours instead of four): RN coll.: late C.19–20. P-G-R.

watch out, v.i. To be on one's guard; to look out: US coll. (1880s), anglicised ca. 1905; by 1930, S.E.—2. The n., as in keep a watch-out, dates from ca. 1910 and, though still coll., is not very gen.

watch (one's) six o'clock. See six o'clock.

watch the dickie-bird! Photographers' c.p. used when photographing children, so that they will be gazing at the camera lens with a bright, expectant look' (B.P.): late C.19–20. (I clearly remember it being successfully directed at my brothers and myself in the year 1901.) Cf. say 'cheese!

watch (one's) waters. To keep a strict watch on any one's actions' (Grose, 3rd ed.): coll.: late C.18—early 19. Ex urinospection.

watch-works. See CANADIAN, in Appendix.

watch your pockets, lads! A humorous c.p., directed at someone who has just arrived: workmen's and Tommies': C.20.

watch your uncle! See uncle, 7.

watcher. 'A person set to watch a dress-lodger' (q.v.): low: from 1860s. Greenwood, The Seven Curses of London, 1869.—2. One spying for bribery: electioneering coll.:—1909 (Ware).—3. As the Watcher: see Chad.

watcher! What cheer!: mostly Cockney: C.18–20; at first illiterate, then—by (say) 1900—coll. As Dr Leechman reminds me, we read, in Hakluyt's Voyages (XII, p. 206), the date being 1578, 'They hailed one another according to the manner of the sea, and demanded what cheare? and either party answered the other, that all was well.'

watchie or -y. A watchman: coll.: ca. 1810–40. W.T. Moncrieff, Tom and Jerry, 1821 (-y).

watchkeepers' union, the. Junior Officers of the Watch: RN: since ca. 1920.

watchmaker. Gen. pl. 'The idle and dissolute, who live in Calmet's-buildings, Oxford-street': c.:—1839; † by 1880. Brandon. Cf.:

watchmaker (in a crowd). A thief that specialises in stealing watches: c.: mid-C.19–20. H., 1st ed., watchmaker; 5th ed., vw. in a crowd. Prob. ex prec.

water, n. Boating, aquatics: Westminster School coll.:—1881 (Pascoe, Our Public Schools).—2. Additional nominal capital created by 'watering' (see water, v., 2): US coll. (1883) anglicised ca. 1885; by 1900, S.E. St James's Gazette, 14 June 1888.—3. In on the water, 'The machinery is on the water'—will arrive soon: Aus. coll.: C.20. (B.P.) Arriving by ship.—4. In make a hole in the water, to commit suicide by drowning: 1853 (Dickens: OED).—5. See hot water; malt's above the water; over the water; shot between wind...; water hen.

water, v. To entertain freely, to 'treat': ca. 1740–60. (OED.) Water costing nothing.—2. To increase (the nominal capital of a company) by the creation of shares that, though they rank for interest, carry no corresponding capital: US coll. (1870) anglicised ca. 1880; by 1900, S.E. Occ. water up (1899). F. & H.; OED. I.e. weaken by dilution.—3. To paint in water-colours: artistic: since ca. 1920. Ngaio Marsh, Death at the Bar, 1940.—4. To spray (e.g. a road, a restricted locality) with shells or machine-gun bullets: army: since ca. 1910.

water-barrel. See water-butt.

water bewitched. Very thin beer: coll.:—1678; ob. by 1930. (Ray.) Unholy influence at work.—2. Hence, weak tea: coll.: C.18–20. Swift; Grose; Dana.—3. Occ. of both (1699, T. Brown); † by 1800. OED.—4. Occ. of punch (1785), occ. of coffee: dial. (—1825) and (as for broth) coll. In all four senses, occ. water damaged: C. 19–20 coll.; ob.

water bill. See going to pay...

water-bobby. A river policeman: lower classes':—1887 (Baumann).

water(-)boiler. A fireman: railwaymen's: C.20. Railway, 2nd.

water bonse. A cry-baby: Cockney's: late C.19–20; ob. J.W. Horsley, I Remember, 1912.

water-bottle. A total abstainer: lower class urban:—1909 (Ware). Cf. water-waggon, q.v.

water-box, -course, -gap, -gate. The female pudend: low: C.19–20. Cf. water-engine, waterworks.

water-bruiser, (gen. rare old). A tough (and old, hard-working) share-man: nautical:—1909. (Ware).

water-butt, occ. -barrel. The stomach: lower classes': late C.19–20.

water-can. See Jupiter Pluvius.

water carnival, the. 'Cleaning down a warship after coaling' (Bowen): RN: early C.20; superseded by:—2. 'The weekly orgy of hosing, scrubbing and general "chamfering-up" which takes place on Saturday in order that the ship may be "tiddley" for Captain's inspection and Sunday Divisions' (Granville): RN: since ca. 1920.

water-cart, n. 'A 15-cwt truck, fitted with a tank for bringing water from the waterpoint to the unit' (P-G-R): army coll.: ca. 1940–5.—2. In on the water-cart, an occ. var. of on the water-wagon, abstaining from strong liquor.

water-cart, v.i. To weep: 1921 (W. de Morgan: OED Sup.); ob. by 1930. Ex S.E. n.

water-colours, wife in. See wife.

water-course. See water-box.

water-dog. A Norfolk dumping: ca. 1860–1930. H., 3rd ed.

water-dona. See washer-dona.

water-engine. 'The urinary organs, male or female' (F. & H.): low: late C.19–20. Cf. synonym., and more common, water-works.

water-fag. That boy who, from 7 until 7,40, calls out the time at regular intervals and at 7.40 opens the dormitory windows: Marlborough College: mid-C.19–20.

water-funk. A person shy of water: school's: 1899 (Kipling); now coll.

water-gap, -gate. See water-box.

Water-Gunners, the. The Royal Marines: army: ca. 1870–1914. H., 5th ed.

water hen. Ten: rhyming s., esp. in horse-racing world:

C.20. (Charles Drummond, The Odds on Death, 1969.) Often shortened to water.

water horse. 'Salt fish just washed from a vat' (L. E. F. English, Historic Newfoundland, 1955): Newfoundland: C.20.—2. To water (one's) horse is a var. of water (one's) nag, q.v.

water in (one's) shoes. A source of discomfort or annoyance: C.18 coll. North, ca. 1740, 'They caressed his lordship ... and talked about a time to dine with him; all which (as they say) was "water in his shoes".' Abbr. as welcome as water in one's shoes, very unwelcome: mid-C.17–20: coll. till late C.19, then dial. only. Apperson.

water jerry. At a harvesting, he who looks after the water-tank: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.

water-lily. A flat punt: Oxford undergraduates': ca. 1840–90. Marples, 2.

water-logged. Dead drunk: coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

water-mill. The female pudend: low:—1811 (Lex. Bal.).

water of life. Gin: from early 1820s; ob. by 1930. (Egan's Grose; H., 2nd ed.) App. on Fr. eau-de-vie, brandy.

water (one's) nag. (Of a male) to urinate: C.19–20. See nag, n., 2. Variants are water (one's) horse (C.20: Eng. and NZ) or the horses (C.20: Aus.: B., 1942) or (one's) pony (late C.19–20: Anglo-Irish); see also water the dragon.

water-pad. 'One that Robbs Ships in [esp.] the Thames' (B.E.): c.: late C.17–early 19. (Grose.) The S.E. (nautical) var. is water-rat (Clark Russell). See pad, n., 3, and cf. water-sneak, q.v.

water-plant. An umbrella: fast life: ca. 1810–45. P. Egan, Finish, 1828.—2. In water (one's) plants, to weep: joc. coll.: ca. 1540–1880; in C.19, dial. only. (Udall; Lyly; Swift.) On S.E. water one's eyes, to weep. (Apperson.) Cf. water works, 2.

water-rat. See water-pad, and contrast use quoted at black beetle.

water-scriger. 'A doctor who prescribes from inspecting the water of his patients' (Grose, 3rd ed.): late C.18–early 19. A scriger is presumably scrier (or scryer), one who (de)scries. Cf. † S.E. water-caster.

water-sneak, the. 'Robbing ships ... on a ... river or canal, ... generally in the night': c. of ca. 1810–90. Vaux.—2. Hence, water-sneakman, such a thief: c.:—1823 (Egon's Grose); † by 1900. Cf. water-pad, q.v.

water-spoiler. A cook: nautical: late C.19–20. ('Taifrail', Sea Spray..., 1917.) Cf. synonym. grub-spoiler.

water the dragon. To urinate: low: C.18–early 20. Perhaps suggested by dragon-water, a popular C.17 medicine. Cf. water (one's) nag, q.v.

water up. See water, v., 2.

water-waggon, on the. Teetotal for the time being: US (—1904), anglicised by 1908. From ca. 1915, often on the waggon.

water-works. See waterworks.

water wren. 'A Wren member of a boat's crew' (Granville): RN: 1940+.

waterbag. A teetotaler; a temperance fanatic: Aus.: since ca. 1920. B., 1942.

waterborne. See inland navy.

Waterbury watch. Scotch: C.20. P. P., Rhyming Slang, 1932.

Wateries, the. The Naval Exhibition at South Kensington: coll.: ca. 1886–1910. Cf. the Colinderies and the Fisheries, qq.v.

watering-hole. Often (one's) favourite..., a pub or club to which one habitually resorts for liquid refreshment: drinkers' joc.: later C.20. (P.B.) waterloo (or W.). A halfpenny: London: ca. 1830–75. (Ware.) Ex the former toll (a halfpenny) paid to cross Waterloo Bridge.

Waterloo day. Pay-day: army: later C.19. Cf. Balaclava day.

Waterloo Lambs, the. The 27th Regiment of Foot, The Inniskillings: army soubriquet: ca. 1815–1880. 'They call the 27th the Waterloo Lambs, and nice lambs they are at present' (Sgt T. Gowing, in a letter to his parents, 26 May 1858). Ironic on their ferocity in that battle. (P.B.)

waterman. A blue silk handkerchief: c. or low:—1839 (Brandon); † by 1939. Because worn (light or dark) by friends of Cambridge and Oxford at the time of the boat-race. Also waterman.—2. An artist in water-colours: 1888 (OED): s. >, by 1920, coll.—3. One possessing (expert) knowledge of boating: coll.: 1912 (OED).

waterproof sailors. 'Generic for officers and men of the submarine branch' (Granville): RN: C.20.

water's man, watersman. See waterman, 1.

water's wet, the. A joc. c.p., addressed to someone trying the temperature of the water with his toes: late C.19—20.

waters. Paintings in water-colour: coll.: 1909 (Daily Chronicle, 4 June: OED).—2. See watch (one's) waters.

waterworks. The urinary organs: orig. low > coll. euph.: since mid-C.19.—2. In turn on the waterworks, to weep: coll.: since mid-C.19. Ex joc. S.E. waterworks, tears. Cf. watery-headed, and:—3. Rain: 1931, Dorothy L. Sayers, The Five Red Herrings, 1931, 'You'd think they turned on the water-works yesterday on purpose to spoil my sketching-party.'

watery-headed. 'Apt to shed tears' (Grose, 1st ed.): ca. 1780—1890.

Watson. See obvious, my dear Watson!

wattle, n. 'A dirty or untidy person. Truncated from wattle and daub, rhyming s., based on warb' (B., 1959): Aus.: since ca. 1950. Cf. warb, 3. wattle, v.i. To drink (an intoxicant): C.20. Ex 'What'll you have?' A certain Oxford college has its Watling Club.

Waussie. A female member of any of the Aus. fighting Services: Aus.: 1940—5. (B., 1943.) A blend of women + Aussie.

wave a flag of defiance. To be drunk: low: ca. 1870—1915.

wavelength. Way of thinking about, looking at, or tackling things, as in 'Yes, driving's very dodgy in Hong Kong—the Chinese drive on quite a different wavelength', or 'I just can't work with him, he's not on my wavelength at all': coll.: since late 1960s. (P.B.) waves. See make waves, stir up trouble.

Wavies, the. RNVR personnel: mostly RN: since ca. 1918. Ex Wavy Navy, q.v. Granville. Cf.:

Wavy Bill. A RNVR officer in a ship for training: RN: earlier C.20. (Bowen.) See Wavy Navy.

wavy in the syls. 'Imperfect in one's lines': theatrical:—1904; ob. (F. & H.) Lit., unsteady in one's syllables (cf. syl-singer, q.v.).

Wavy Navy, the. The Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve: C.20. Bowen, 'Seldom heard afloat'. Granville, 'When the first uniform was issued to the Reserve, the three white tapes on the jean collar were wavy to distinguish them from the Active Service rating. To-day, only R.N.V.R. officers have wavy lace on their sleeves.'

wavy ringer or striper. An officer of the RNVR (see prec.): RN, resp. lowerdeck and wardroom: C.20. Granville.

wavy rule, make. To be rolling-drunk: printers': from ca. 1880. Ex the rule or line that waves thus: ~~~~~.

wax, n. A rage; esp. be in a wax: 1854, 'Cuthbert Bede', 'I used to rush out in a fearful state of wax' (OED). ?ex waxy, q.v., or, as W. suggests, 'evolved ex archaic to wax wroth'. Cf. wax-pot.—2. An impression in wax: coll.: since ca. 1870. Sessions, Aug. 1879.—3. See close as wax; cock of wax; lad of wax; nose of wax.

wax, v. To have one's eye on; to spy out: c.: from ca. 1890. Rook, 1899, cracksman loquitur: 'There's a 'ouse I've 'ad waxed for about a week.'—2. See waxed.

wax-borer. A long-winded bore: Aus.: since ca. 1935. (B., 1953.) The wax is that of the auditor's ears.

wax-pot. A person apt to be 'waxy' (see waxiness): coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Ex wax, 1, on fuss-pot.

wax (something) up. To 'mess' up: low Cockney: 1899, Rook, "'Didn't I never tell you", he said, "how we waxed things up for that butcher...?"

waxed. To be (well) waxed, to be (well) known: tailors': from ca. 1870. F. & H., 'So-and-so has been well waxed, i.e. We know all about him'.—2. Hence, in have (a person) waxed, a Cockney and Services' var. of have someone cold: early C.20. (E. Pugh, 1906; F. & G.) Hence, in later C.20 RAF s., beaten, as in 'if you were vanquished [in aerial mock-combat], to secretly choke over it while sitting with a fixed grin—"Waxed again!"' (Phantom).

waxer. A little drink: MN: C.20. Perhaps from 'a drop of wax'.

Waxies. Wellingborough men: railwaymen's: C.20. (Railway, 2nd.) P.B.: cf. Waxy, 1: Wellingborough is a footwear-manufacturing town.

waxiness; waxy. Angriness, proneness to rage; angry: resp. (—)1904 and 1853, Dickens. Although waxy is recorded earlier than wax, the latter may have arisen the earlier; yet, semantically, the transition from lit. waxy to fig. waxy is not difficult: cf. sticky, adj.

Waxy, w-. A nickname for a cobbler: ob. by early C.20. (Mayhew, 1851: OED.) Ex his frequent use of wax.—2 A saddler: army: early C.20. F. & G.—3. (?)Hence, an equipment-repairer: army: 1939 +.—4. Short for next (P.H. Emerson, 1893):-

waxy-homey. An actor that blacks up with burnt cork; a 'nigger-minstrel': theatrical; partly Parlyaree (homey = a man): prob. since ca. 1880. Lester.

way. In horse-racing, a double—a bet on two races: Aus. sporting: since ca. 1930. (B., 1953.) Perhaps ex 'two-way bet' as opposed to 'each-way bet'—2. In be up her way, to be in coitu with a woman: low: late C.19—20. Always in an innuendo: punning neighbourhood.—3. In in a way, in a state of vexation, anxiety, distress: dial. and coll.: mid-C.19—20. (OED.) Contrast:—4. In in a kind, or sort, of way, a modifying tag: coll.: since mid-C.19.—5. In in the (e.g. fish) way, engaged in (e.g. the fish-trade): lower classes' coll.: late C.19—earlier 20. (Manchon.) 'He's in the grocery way.' Now, by 1930, way is gen. replaced by line.—6. In this, or that, way, crooked; criminal, engaged in crime: c.: from ca. 1910.

Cf.:—7. In (gen. a little, or rather) that way, 'Approximating to that condition': coll.: mid-C.17—20. Dickens, 1837, "I'm afraid you're wet." "Yes, I am a little that way" (OED).

Cf.:—8. In (gen. all or quite or very much) the other way, diverging from a stated condition: coll.: mid-C.19—20. Trollope, 1858, 'They are patterns of excellence. I am all the other way' (OED).—9. In by way of (being, doing, etc.), in the habit of, giving oneself out as, having a reputation for, or making an attempt (esp. if persistent or habitual) at (being or doing something): coll.: 1824, Miss Ferrier, 'The Colonel was by way of introducing him into the fashionable circles'; 1891, Saturday Review, 18 July concerning by way of being, 'And this with an implied disclaimer of precise knowledge or warranty on the speaker's part' (OED). In C.20, the phrase is often used almost as if = as it were, 'in a sort of way'; and, in post-War days, is (or are, etc.) by way of being is, only too often, a careless or an affected synonym of is or are (etc.).—10. In on the way out, (of a person) due for retirement or, esp., for dismissal: coll.: since ca. 1935. Hence, (of things) wearing out, coming to end of useful 'life': coll.: since ca. 1939.—11. See all the way down; out of the way; pretty Fanny's way; that's the way...; up the way.

'way. Away: coll. (US, 1866,) anglicised late in C.19. Esp. in 'way back, as in next, and in 'way out.

'way back when AMOs were chiselled on slabs of rock. RAF c.p. boast of long service; '(It was) a long time ago': since ca. 1935. AMOs = Air Ministry Orders. Cf. when I joined...; q.v.

way-bit. See Yorkshire way-bit.

way of all flesh (, gone the). Dead: lower- and lower-middle-classes' coll.:—1909 (Ware). Contrast with the S.E. sense—as in 'Erewhon' Butler's novel.

way of life, the. Prostitution: low London:—1818 (The London Guide); ob. by 1930.

way-out, n. (Or wayout.) One who is 'way-out' (see next): 1960s. In the Sunday Telegraph, 6 July 1969, front-page article about 'The Rolling Stones' pop-group, 'There were Kings Road [Chelsea] trendies, hippies and wayouts.'

way out; way out with the birds. Living in a world of fantasy; hence, extremely eccentric: resp. jazz-lovers' (esp. teenagers') and beatniks': since ca. 1954 and, the latter, since ca. 1959. The beatnik phrase is recorded in Rachel & Verily Anderson's Guide to The Beatniks; for the jazz phrase, cf. the entry at JAZZ, in Appendix. By early 1960s, gen. usage in Can.; since ca. 1965, in Britain; then, almost immediately, in Aus., NZ, S. Africa. P.B.: way out = away out, and occurs in other phrases, e.g. way out in the sticks, in the provinces. way it goes; way the cookie crumbles, and related phrases. See that's the way...

way to London, that's the—or is that the? A c.p. question disguising a nose-wiping with back of hand or on sleeve: mostly children's, and occ. an adult jocularly without a wiping, but always 'non-U': C.20.

ways, as in 'a long ways': Can. coll.: adopted, late C.19, ex US.—2. See look both ways for Sunday; no two ways about it.

wazz, wozz, v.i. and v.t. To accompany (another messenger) unofficially on delivery: Post Office telegraph messengers'—1935. Perhaps ex wangle: cf. swiz ex swindle. —2. See wass.

wazz, adj. See wazzler.

Wazza or Wazzler. See battles of the Wazza.

wazzler. Marines called anything good "wazzler" or just "wazz", a term which caught on with some Paras [see para, 3] by the time they landed' (McGowan & Hands, Don't Cry for Me, 1983): Falkland Is. campaign, 1982. P.B.: ?an affected pron. of synon. wiz, ex wizard.

wazzums; or w., then. Were you [e.g. hurt], then?: joc.: C.20. Ex baby talk. Cf. diddums.

we aim to please. A modest disclaimer of praise for helpful service: c.p.: since 1930s. Ex advertisements, etc. The 'we' is humorously royal, as in similar phrases like that's what we're here (or paid) for. A twist is given in the injunction displayed in some men's urinals, esp. public-house toilets, later C.20: 'We aim to please—you aim, too, please!' (DCpp.; P.B.)

we ain't got (or don't or may not get) much money – but we do see life! (Often shortened to we do see life!, with which cf. this is the life!) A vaguely optimistic c.p. of the C.20. Cf. also never a dull moment!

we are... See we're...

we are all of us born and none of us buried. 'I'll get my own back, my revenge, in the long run!': c.p.: earlier C.20. See DCpp.

we didn't come here to talk, as the man (or the sailor) said to the girl in the park. An Aus. c.p.: since ca. 1940. 'Let's get on with it!'

we don't get much money... See we ain't...

we don't half get 'em (, cor or Gawd, etc.)! We do see, or have to deal with, some very odd people; sometimes as a comment on particularly stupid behaviour: c.p.: C.20. Earlier we do get them!; cf. we've got a right one here!

we had one but the wheel came off. See had one but...

we lie anywhere. A members' pun on the initials WLA, the Women's Land Army: WW2. (Mrs P.M.C. Pearsall, 1980.) we must press on regardless. A c.p. form of press on regardless.

we shan't take salt. 'Our box-office return will be very small': theatrical: late C.19—early 20.

we uns. We: low coll.: late C.19—20. Orig. US; cf. you uns. we want eight and we won't wait! A c.p. of 1909 when eight dreadnoughts were demanded for the RN.

we want make-and-mends not recommends. RN lowerdeck c.p.: C.20. Spare time now is more use than possible eventual promotion.

we was (often pron. wuz) robbed! A joc. c.p. used when one has been tricked: adopted ex US, where it was coined, according to John Lardner, by the boxing manager Joe Jacobs in 1935. (See extensive treatment in DCpp., at I should have stood in bed!) In Aus. usage, occ. rooked for robbed.

wea-bit. See Yorkshire way-bit.

weak. Tea: coffee-stalls' and low coffee-houses': from ca. 1860. B. & L.

weak brother, sister. An unreliable person: religious s.: mid-C.19—20.

weak eyes – big tits. A c.p. expressing a piece of fallacious folklore: Aus.: since ca. 1920. 'Also worded in other ways' (B.P.).

weak in the arm (, it's). A public-house c.p. applied to a 'half-pint drawn in a pint pot' (Ware): early C.20.

weaken. See great life if you don't weaken!

weakheart. 'West Indian slang for police. Meant to be offensive' (Powis): later C.20.

weakie (or -ky). A weak person; esp., a coward: Aus., mostly juvenile: since ca. 1920. (Dick.)

weanie, -y. See weeny. (Influenced by dial. weanie, a very young child.)

weapon. Penis; esp. among workmen: late C.19—20. It has the best of precedents: see my Shakespeare's Bawdy.

wear, To tolerate, put up with; usu. (? always) in the negative or implied negative, as 'Do you think they'll wear it?', or 'The old man'll never wear this oriel!': Services', prob. orig. army: C.20. F. & G.—2. 'The verb to wear is used in extraordinary senses in the U.S. and Canada. Women wear perfume, cripples wear a cane, and sandwich men wear placards' (Leechman, 1959). This coll. usage—by 1955, Standard in US; by 1960, virtually Standard in Can.—originated in the US and began to affect Can. during the 1930s. Note, however, that 'wear a cane' derives from the idea implicit in 'wear a sword'. In 1967, Dr Leechman, adds: 'I caught an even better one some years ago. Margaret Mead, the anthropologist, spoke of a woman "wearing a baby on her back".'

wear a forker. To be a cuckold, to 'wear the horns': C.17. OED cites Marston, 1606.

wear a head. To be intelligent; to possess much sense: ca. 1815–60. (Boxiana, III, 1821.) P.B.: cf. the coll. '(e.g. She)'s got a head on her, all right!' = she's intelligent.

wear a revolver-pocket. To carry a revolver: low: ca. 1880–1914. Ware.

wear a straw in her ear. See straw in her ear.

wear-arse. A one-horse chaise: ca. 1785–1830. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Ex jolting.

wear (someone's) balls for a necktie. To inflict a most drastic punishment or revenge. "You pull that trick again and I'll wear your balls for a necktie." (Leechman.) Mostly Can.: since ca. 1920. P.B.: an updated version of the old threat 'I'll have your guts for garters!'

wear (one's) hair out against the head of the bed. A joc. explanation of 'thinness on top': C.20. Implication of abundant sexual intercourse.

wear Hector's cloak. See Hector's cloak.

wear it. To be under 'the stigma of having turned a nose' (Egan's Grose): c. of ca. 1820–50. Ex:

wear it upon. To inform against, try to best (a person): c.: ca. 1810–50. (Vaux.) It is the nose: for semantics, cf. nose, a spy.

wear more than one hat. See hat, 10.

wear the bands. To be hungry: low s.: ca. 1810–40. Vaux. wear the breeches. (Of women) to usurp a husband's authority, be 'boss'. From ca. 1550, though the idea is clearly indicated in C.15. Coll. until ca. 1700, when it > S.E. Nashe, 1591, 'Diverse great storms are this yere to be feared, especially in houses where the wives wear the breeches.'

wear the broad arrow. To be a convict: c.:—1909 (Ware). wear the gaiters. To be a convict: c.: C.20. F.D. Sharpe, The Flying Squad, 1938, 'Convicts wear breeches and cloth gaiters, while short-term prisoners wear trousers.'

wear the green coat. To act the innocent: see green coat...

wear the head large. To have a headache from alcoholic excess: lower-middle-class joc.:—1909 (Ware).

wear the kilit. To be a pathic: euph.: C.20.

wear the King's coat. To serve as a soldier: from ca. 1750; coll. till C.19, when S.E.; in C.20, archaic. Cf. wear the King's uniform.

wear the leek. To be Welsh: lower and lower-middle classes':—1909: coll. rather than s. Ware.

wear two (or more) hats. See hat, 10.

weary. Drunk: proletarian: early C.18—early 20. (Franklin, 1737.) Cf. dial. weary, sickly, feeble. (Curiously enough, the Old High Ger. wuorag, drunk, is cognate with A.-S. werig. W.)

weary Willie. A long-range shell passing high overhead and, app., slowly: army: 1915—18. (F. & G.) Ex-

Weary Willie and Tired Tim. Two tramps, esp. if they resemble the famous cartoons: since ca. 1902. Created by artist Tom Browne (1870—1910).—2. Hence, lazy, loafing males: coll.: since ca. 1935.

weasel. A tip: railway porters': since ca. 1945. (Radio Times, 21 Jan. 1965.) Perhaps ex 'to weasel (something) out of somebody'.—2. See bit by a barn weasel; weasel and stoat. weasel(l)ing, adj. and n. 'Extracting tips' (Railway, 2nd): since ca. 1945. Cf. prec. P.B.: but E.P. overlooked an entry in the 1st ed. of DSLUE, at weazling: Manchon, 1923, defines it as 'The act of depriving a comrade of his tip': low.

weasel and stoat. 'Coat. It's a bit parky—I'll put on me weasel' (Rhyming Cockney Slang, ed. Jack Jones, 1971; Powis). Cf. synonym. I'm afloat, which it appears to have superseded. (P.B.) weasel in the diesel, a. See tiger in the tank.

weasel-pee. Any weak, insipid drink, but esp. tea: ?mostly Yorkshire derogatory: C.20. (Mrs Corrie Pearsall, 1957.)

weather, n. In go up the weather, which has opp. go down the wind. To prosper; to fare ill, be unfortunate: coll.: resp. early C.17 and C.17—20; in mid-C.19—20, dial. only. (Breton, both; Pepys; Berthelton, 1754; Scott, 1827.) Also, go down the weather, to become bankrupt: C.17. OED and Apperson.—2. See under the weather.

weather, v. To outwit or fool or trick: nautical, esp. naval, coll.: late (?mid-) C.18—late 19. (Matthew Barker, L.L.G., 1 Jan. 1825: Moe.) Ex weathering a storm; cf. weather out of, q.v.

weather breaker. 'The term in the [TV broadcasting] trade for entertainers who keep the viewers indoors even when the sun is shining' (Alan Rodd, Observer colour sup., 31 May 1981).

weather-breeder. A fine, bright day presaging a wet one, or other foul weather: nautical and dial.: C.19—20. Baumann; EDD.

weather-lorist. A meteorologist: joc.:—1923 (Manchon).

weather Moses. To (try to) keep alive by getting a favourable deal with the pawnbrokers: naval ratings': C.19. (W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, 2nd series, 1834, II, 34: Moe.) Cf.:

weather out of. To rob (someone) of (something); esp., by sly, unfair means: naval (?also gen. nautical) coll.: C.19. W.N. Glascock, Naval Sketch-Book, 2nd series, 1834, I, 225, 'Tom took his stand on the folksel, an' the right honourable Mister Varmint Vaux in front of the prop, levellin' at his shipmate's life after tryin' all his soft, sinnuvating [=insinuating] ways to weather him out of his wife' (Moe.)

weather-peeper. (One's) best eye; a good lookout: nautical:—1909 (Ware). Cf. S.E. keep one's weather-eye open.

weather-scupper. 'It is an old joke at sea', writes Clark Russell, in 1883, 'to advise a greenhorn to get a handspike and hold it down hard in the weather-scuppers to steady the ship's wild motions.' Coll.; slightly ob. by 1930.

Weatherall, -ell. See General Weatherall...

weaver. See weaving leather...

weaver's beef (of Colchester). Sprats: coll., mainly Essex: mid-C.17—mid-19. Fuller, 1662; J.G. Nall, 1866. (Apperson.) EDD lists weaver's bullock as an East London var. of—1880. Cf. two-eyed steak, a bloater.

weaving. 'A notorious card-sharpping trick, done by keeping certain cards on the knee, or between the knee and the underside of the table, and using them when required by changing them for the cards held in the hand' (H., 3rd ed.):

1803 (OED); prob. c. > gaming s.—2. In get weaving, to hurry, act with urgency, as 'Come on, we must get weaving!'; often in the imperative: orig. RAF, ex j. for an aerial manoeuvre in which aircraft 'weave' in and out of each other's paths; > s. during WW2; by 1945 common also among other Servicemen and civilians; like much other war-time s., it soon > dated. (E.P.; Jackson; R.S.) Cf. synonym. get cracking.

weaving leather aprons. An evasive c.p. reply to an inquiry as to what one has been doing lately: low:—1864. H., 3rd ed., 'See newspaper reports of the trial for the gold robberies on the South-Western Railway.' (Similarly, to an inquiry as to one's vocation, I'm a doll's-eye weaver: low:—1874. H., 5th ed.) Equivalent c.p. replies are making a trundle for a goose's eye or a whim-wham to bride a goose: dial. and coll.: since—1864 (H., 3rd ed.). P.B.: see esp. John B. Smith's comprehensive article 'Whim-Whams for a Goose's Bridle: a List of Put-offs and Related Forms in English and German', which contains these and many more, Lore and Language (Sheffield), vol. 3, no. 3, Part A, July 1980.

weazling. See weaselling.

web. A foot: Liverpool: late C.19—20. Cf. the S.E. web-foot and s. webs.

web-foot. (Pl web-feet.) A dweller in the Fens: coll. nickname: from ca. 1760; very ob. by 1930. (OED.) Cf.:—2. 'Any rating whose port Division is Devonport' (Granville): RN: C.20.

webbing. Web equipment, i.e. belt, shoulder-straps, haversacks, holsters, etc., made out of tough woven material: army coll. > j.: C.20. P-G-R; P.B.

webs. (A sailor's) feet: RN: C.20. (F. & G.) Cf. web-foot.

wedding. The 'emptying of a necessary house' (Grose, 1st ed., 1785); † by 1850.—2. See Irish wedding.

Wedding Cake, the. The Victoria Memorial (in front of Buckingham Palace) (Herbert Hodge, 1939): London taxi-drivers': since ca. 1910. Shape and ornament.—2. Hence, the Vittorio Emanuele monument in Rome: since ca. 1944.

wedding kit. Genitals: mostly Army and RAF: since ca. 1918. Cf. family jewels.

wedge, n. Silver, whether money or plate, but mostly the latter; hence, occ., money in general: c.:—1725 (A New Canting Dict.); Grose, 2nd ed., 'Wedge. Silver plate, because melted by the receivers of stolen goods into wedges.' (H., 1st—5th edd.) P.B.: the term is still extant as c., 1977: Powis has 'A large number of banknotes folded together', which may be a survival, or may be ex shape. Cf. flash the wedge, q.v.—2. A Jew: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Strictly, wej.—3. A sandwich: RN: since (?) late 1930s. (Granville, letter, 1967; John Winton, HMS Leviathan, 1967.) Cf. the army and RAF wad.—4. As the wedge, the last student in the classical tripos list: Cambridge University:—1852: coll. > j. Also the wooden wedge. On † wooden spoon, the last man in the mathematical tripos, + T.H. Wedgwood, who, last in the classical tripos in 1824, was to be a famous etymologist. OED, F. & H.—5. See wedges.

wedge, v. To hit (someone) hard: N. Country miners': C.20. Ex driving-in a wedge.

wedge-bobb. The same as wedge-lobb, q.v. 'Ducange Anglicus': but w.-bobb I suspect to be a misprint.

wedge-feeder. A silver spoon: c.:—1812 (Vaux). See wedge, 1. Cf.:

wedge-hunter. A thief specialising in silver plate and watches: c.: mid-C.19—20. (F. & H.) See wedge, 1.

wedge-lobb. A silver snuff-box: c.:—1812 (Vaux). See wedge, 1. Cf.:

wedge-yack. A silver watch: c.: mid-C.19—earlier C.20. Cf. wedge, n., 1.

wedges. Cards cut narrower at one end than at the other, for the purpose of cheating: card-sharppers' c.: from ca. 1880. J.N. Maskelyne, Sharps and Flats, 1894.

wedgies. Wedge-heeled shoes: since ca. 1945. (John Boswell, Lost Girl, 1959.) Cf. flatties.

wee, n. A 'wee-wee': Aus. nursery coll. and adult joc.: since

ca. 1920. It's the Australian practice to use only the first element of reduplications' (B.P.). P.B.: but this abbr. of wee-wee has been used in Eng. as an alternative to pee, since the 1930s at latest.

wee Danny. A glass of Aitkin's ale: Falkirk: since ca. 1930. Ex Mr Dan Robertson, JP, for many years the head brewer of Messrs James Aitkin, The Falkirk Brewery.

Wee Free Kirk, the. The Free Church of Scotland minority after the majority, in 1900, joined with the U.P. Church to constitute the United Free Church. Hence, from 1904, Wee Frees and, from 1905, Wee Kirkers, the members of that minority. Coll. nicknames. OED.

wee Georgie. See any wee Georgie.

wee-jee, weejee. A chimney-pot: ca. 1864–90. (H., 3rd ed.) Etym. obscure; the word may be a perversion of weezee, a gag, though this origin fits only sense 3, which is perhaps the earliest.—2. Hence, a (chimney-pot) hat: late C.19–early 20: lower classes', as are senses 1 and 3.—3. Anything extremely good of its kind; esp. a clever invention: from ca. 1860; ob. H., 3rd ed.—4. Hence, a hand pump: N.E. Coast colliers': late C.19–20 (Bowen.) P.B.: this sense may be simply echoic: cf. squeezee.

wee-poh. Among 'children of Welsh descent in Canada, ca. 1912, the penis' (Leechman): C.20; by ca. 1950, ob. Cf. wee-wee.

wee small hours. An intensification of the S.E. small hours, the period immediately after midnight: coll.: C.20. Olive Dent, A V.A.D. in France, 1917.

wee-wee. A urination; esp. do a wee-wee: nursery coll.: late C.19–20. Perhaps ex water on pee.—2. Also, in C.20, as v.i.—3. A man, or a boy, hypocritically pious: midshipmen's: latish C.19–early 20. Goodenough, 1901.—4. See Wi-Wi. wee-wee party. Teetotalers: RN lowerdeck: ca. 1905–20. Knock.

weed, n. A cigar, a cheroot: coll.: 1847 (Albert Smith: OED). Ex weed, tobacco.—2. A hatband: low:—1864; † by 1920. Perhaps ex the vague resemblance of its shape to that of a large cigar.—3. A leggy, ill-compacted, and otherwise inferior horse: 1845 (OED); Lever, 1859. Perhaps ex weedy, 1, q.v.—4. Hence, a thin, delicate, weak and soon-tiring person: 1869 (A.L. Smith: OED).—5. Tobacco, cigarette, snout, burn smoke and herbal cannabis' (Home Office) prison c.: later C.20. Cf. 1. Weed = 'marijuana' is an adoption ex US.—6. In at the weed, thieving, as in 'He's been at the weed again': market-traders' (M.T.) and c.: C.20. Cf. next.—7. In have a weed on, to have a 'grouse'; to be grumbling: RN: since ca. 1920. Granville.—8. See bitter weed; weeds.

weed, v. To pilfer or steal part of, or a small amount from: c.: since early C.19. (Lex. Bal.; Vaux.) Hence, weed a lob, steal small sums from a till; weed a swag, to abstract part of the spoils unknown to one's pals and before the division of that spoil; both in Vaux. Ex weed, to remove the weeds from. Still current in 1977: Powis has 'Weeding: Stealing, especially from an employer, or at the scene of a crime already committed.' Cf. n. 6, and weeding dues.

weed head (or one word). 'Cannabis user' (Home Office): drugs world: later C.20. Cf. acid head, pot head, etc.

weeding dues are concerned. An underworld c.p. (ca. 1810–80) used when a process of 'weeding' (see weed, v.) has been applied. Vaux.

weeds. Trees, and vegetation generally: RAF aircrews': later C.20. 'I need to smoke away into the distance down in the "weeds" at zero feet or thereabouts' (Phantom).

weedy. (Of horses, dogs) lank, leggy, loose-limbed, weak and spiritless: coll.: 1800 (Sporting Magazine); 1854, Surtees, 'He rode a weedy chestnut' (OED). Lit., like a weed.—2. Hence (of persons), lanky and anaemic; weakly: coll.: 1852 (Surtees: OED).

weedy chizz. Injustice: several Brit. preparatory schools': mid-C.20.

weegie. See widgie.

weejee. See wee-jee.

weejie. A var. of widgie; the form preferred by B., 1953. week. In knock (occ. hit, skid) into (the middle of) next week, to hit violently; fatally; into insensibility: boxers' s. (1821, Moncrieff) >, by 1900, gen. coll. (OED.) Cf. knock into a cocked hat.—2. In when two Sundays come in a week; also (in) the week of four Fridays, never: coll.: C.19–20; mid-C.18–early 19. H. Brooke, 1760 (OED).—3. See inside of a week; parson's week; rather keep you...

Week-End Air Force, the. The Auxiliary Air Force: RAF coll.: since 1925 (year of its inception). (Jackson.) Only at week-ends could most of these selfless fellows do their flying.

week-ender. A week-end mistress: from 1880s: coll. Ex lit. sense.—2. A week-end holiday: likewise low coll.: from ca. 1895. 'OXFORD -ER'.—3. Hence, a week-end cottage or shack: Aus. coll.: C.20. B., 1942.

weekers. A week-end: since ca. 1925. By the 'OXFORD -ER'. (Peter Sanders.)

weekly-accompts. The small square white patches on the front, to right and left, of a middy's collar: ca. 1800–70. (John Davis, The Post-Captain, 1806; Bowen.) Later, the mark of the beast.

week's end. See attack of the...

week's Navy, a. 'Seven tots of rum bottled by the drawer in order to barter for a special favour: "I'll give you a week's Navy if you'll swap weekend leave with me"' (Granville): RN lowerdeck: ca. 1890–1950. (Knock.) Abbr. Navy rum.

weelikes. Sausages: Glasgow:—1934.

weenie, -y; weany (rare) and weny (C.18 dial. only). Tiny: dial. (—1790) >, by 1830, coll. Ex wee on teeny. P.B.: in C.20 often in compound, as tiny-weeny or teeny-weeny.—2. Hence, with one understood, and usu. expressed, the juvenile penis; a small boy's: schoolchildren's: C.20. (R.S., 1975.) Cf. the domestic little man: late C.19–20.—3. (Rarely other than weenie!) A telegraph clerks' warning that an inspector is coming: late C.19–early 20. (B. & L.)? ex warning.

weeno. Wine: Can. carnival s.: C.20. I.e. a blend of 'wine' + It. 'vino' (pron. 'veeno'). 'In Australia, this is undergraduate jocularly': B.P., who, prob. rightly, thinks the Aus. use of weeno originates in the L. in vino veritas pron. in weeno veritas.

weeny-bopper. In the Universe, 10 Nov. 1972, 'Justin' writes, 'The word Weeny-bopper... means [one of those] girls between 8 and 12 who assemble in screaming multitudes to greet visiting pop groups' (Petch), heyday, 1971–5; prob. ex US.

weep and wail. A begging tale: rhyming s., often shortened to weep: since ca. 1870; by 1959, ob. Franklyn, Rhyming.

weep Irish. To shed crocodile tears; feign sorrow: coll.: late C.16–18. (Fuller, 1650; Mrs Kentlivre.) Ex the copious lamentations of the Irish at a centenary. Apperson.

weeper. (Gen. pl.) A long and flowing side-whisker, such as was 'sported' by Lord Dundreary in the play Our American Cousin: coll.: from ca. 1860; ob. Ex Dundreary weepers (1859), later Piccadilly weepers. E.A. Sothern played the leading part; in 1858, the piece was hardly a success; in 1859–60, it was the rage.—2. (Gen. pl.) An eye: late C.19–20. Cf. peeper.—3. A sentimental problem-novel: journalists': from ca. 1925. (Neil Bell, Winding Road, 1934.) Cf.:- weeple, -y, n. A sentimental film; occ. of play or novel: coll.: since ca. 1930. Cf. prec., 3.

Weeping Cross (or weeping cross), return (home) or, more gen., come home by. To fail badly; be grievously disappointed: from early 1560s; ob. Bullein (1564), Gosson, Lyly, playwright Heywood, Grose, Spurgeon, William Morris (1884). Ex a place-name employed allusively. Nares, F. & H., OED, Apperson.

weeping willow. A pillow: rhyming s.:—1880 (D.W. Barrett, Navvies); ob. by 1960 (Franklyn).

Weetabix Junction. Burton Latimer, in Northamptonshire: railwaymen's: since ca. 1950. (Railway, 2nd.) The breakfast cereal so named is produced near by (P.B.). weevil bo'sun. The same as jam bo'sun. Granville.

weeze. See wheeze, n., 5; weezy, see wheezy, adj.

weff. A vocalisation of the Services' j. initials w.e.f. = with effect from (a certain time or date): Services' coll.: since ca. 1950. 'We've got to move.'—'Weff when?'—'Weff now, he says.' (P.B.) weigh. See weight, 2.

weigh in. To start; in imperative, go ahead!: sporting; late C.19–20. (P.G. Wodehouse, The Pothunters, 1902.) Cf.:

weigh in with. To produce (something additional), introduce (something extra or unexpected): coll.: 1885, Daily News, Nov., 'The journal "weighs in" with a prismatic Christmas number' (Ware). Ex a jockey weighing in, being weighed after a race.—2. Hence, weigh in, v.i. to appear (on the scene): sporting coll.: from ca. 1920.—3. To 'stump up' or 'fork out': low:—1923 (Manchon).

weigh into (someone). To attack; to punch vigorously: Aus. sporting: since ca. 1910. (B., 1942.) Ex the boxers' weighing-in before a fight.

weigh off. To sentence (someone) to imprisonment: c.: since ca. 1920. (Daily Express, 25 Mar. 1938.) Cf. weighed off, and next entry.—2. (Of the prison governor) to reprimand (a prisoner) and sentence (him) to the solitary cell: prisons': since ca. 1930. The process, from the receiving end, is known as getting weighed off. (Both in Norman.)—3. To get one's own back on, to take revenge on, someone, as in 'You do want to weigh off Brodie for the stroke he pulled' (G.F. Newman, The Gunnor, 1977): c.—whence police s.: since the 1930s.

weigh out. To give in full (one's share): c.: late C.19–20. Ware cites People, 6 Jan. 1895, and derives the term from 'the distribution of stolen plate melted down to avoid identification'.

weigh up. To appraise: coll.: 1894 (OED). Cf. weigh, to consider, and esp. the C.20 phrase weigh up the pros and cons (of a matter).

weighed off, be or get. 'To be brought up before an officer and punished' (F. & G.): Services': since ca. 1910. Occ. shortened to get weighed (W/Cdr R.P. McDouall, 1945). Cf. weigh off, q.v.—2. To be received into prison: prison c.: since ca. 1925. Norman.

weighing the thumb. n. 'Cheating in weight by sticking down the scale with the thumb' (Ware): low:—1896.

weight. In (a bit) above one's weight, (a little) beyond one's class, too expensive, fashionable, highbrow, or difficult: coll., orig. (ca. 1910) racing. Ex a horse's handicap of weight.—2. In let him alone till he weighs his weight, a police c.p. to the effect that a criminal is not yet worth arresting, for his offences are so small that no reward attaches to them, whereas a capital crime will produce a big reward: ca. 1810–40. Vaux, who notes that weigh forty (of a criminal) is to carry a £40 reward for capture.—3. In have you got the weight?, do you understand?: RN c.p.: since ca. 1930, Granville.—4. 'A "weight" is half a kilo, it used to be a pound, but dope has gone metric' (Laurie Taylor, in New Society, 16 Dec. 1982, p.458): drugs world.—5. See fancy (one's) weight; give a weight; load off ...; throw (includes chuck, one's) weight about.

weird (frequently, by the way, misspelt wierd). Odd; unusual; wonderful: from the middle 1920s, and mostly upper classes'.

weirdo, n. and adj. A later C.20 var., Brit., Aus., and US, of-weirdy. A very odd person; an eccentric: since ca. 1947 'The Chelsea set' of 1959 was—at least, then—described as 'the weirdies'. It appears as weerdie, 'an odd, uncanny person' in Scots dial., 1894 (EDD Sup.). Also, in later C.20, adj., as 'He's a right weirdy character.'—2. Hence, a beatnik: journalists' and teenagers': since ca. 1959. Anderson.—3. (Also weirdie.) 'One who affects weird dress, such as a beatnik; often found in company with beardies' (Leechman, 1967): mostly Can.: since ca. 1950. Note that, in this sense, it is predominantly male.—4. A homosexual, usu. male: since ca. 1960. (Petch, 1969.)

Weiss-squad. 'a group of censorious Afrikaans "verkrampes" [reactionaries] who wish to purify modern Afrikaans literature of the "Sestiger" [liberal, progressive] element'—the Sestigers being writers, mostly novelists, active since 1960. Named after their chairman, Dr P.F.D. Weiss. A play of words on vice-squad (A.C. Partridge, 1968). Sestigers = men of the 1960s, ex zestig, 60. Also there's a pun on Ger. weiss, white, and weissen, to whiten, hence 'to clean up'.

Welch, welcher, welching. For these three terms see Welsh, welcome, and See and welcome.

welcome as water in one's shoes. See water in ... Cf. S.E. welcome as snow in harvest and contrast welcome as the eighteen trumpeters, very welcome indeed: coll.: ca. 1610–40. Apperson.

welcome aboard! A c.p. greeting to a newcomer to an institution, establishment: later C.20. Perhaps a copying of US, but prob. also indigenous, and ex RN rather than airlines' practice; but cf. the entry in DCpp. (P.B.)

well, n. In put (one) in the well or in the garden, to defraud (an accomplice) of part of the booty forming his share: c.:—1812 (Vaux); ob. by 1930. A person down a well is at a disadvantage. Also put one in a hole. Cf. next, 3.—2. Hence, to inconvenience or get the better of: mid-C.19—early 20.

well, v. To pocket: low:—1860 (H., 2nd ed.). H., 5th ed., 'Any one of fair income and miserly habits is said to "well it"'. Lit., to put as into a well: cf. put down South. But imm. ex, 2, c. well, to put (money) in the bank: 1845, in 'No. 747'. Ex:—3. An earlier C.19 c., later C.19—early 20 low s., shortening of prec. Lex. Bal.

well, adj. Satisfactory, very good, capital: Society coll.: ca. 1860–1900. Ware.

well away, be. To be rather drunk: coll.: C.20. Lyell.—2. To prosper, be doing splendidly: coll.: from ca. 1912. 'He's well away with that girl.' Orig. sporting: ex a horse that has, from the start, got well away.

well-bottled. Tipsy: Services (mostly officers') since ca. 1920. H. & P.

well-breeched. Rich: ca. 1810–60. See quot'n at Tip Street ...

well-bushed. (Mostly of women) 'with plentiful pubic hair'; (of men) 'endowed with robust-looking sex' (L.A., 1976): raffish: C.20.

well-cemented. Well-off, rich: Aus.: since ca. 1945. (B., 1953.) Prob. suggested by the US coll. well-fixed.

well down in the pickle. (Of a ship) heavily loaded: sailing ships' coll.: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) The pickle is 'the briny'.

well-endowed. (Of a woman) having well-developed breasts: coll., often joc.: since ca. 1925.—2. (Of a man) equipped with ample genitals: since late 1920s. Nicholas Montsarrat, The Cruel Sea, 1951 (R.S.). By 1977, > informal S.E.; prob. rather playfully joc. (and cultured) than merely euph. Cf. synon. well-furnished, hung.

well firmed. 'Perfect in the "business" and words': theatrical: from ca. 1870. B. & L.

well fucked and far from home. See Barney's bull.

well-furnished. (Of a man—well, mostly) to be largely genital'd: since ca. 1935: s. >, by 1970, coll. Cf. synon. well-endowed and well-hung.

well-gone. Much in love, infatuated: NZ, from ca. 1913; Aus. by ca. 1920: coll. E.P.; B., 1942.—2. Severely wounded: NZ army: WWI.

well-heeled. Rich, either temporarily or permanently: Can.: adopted, ca. 1910, ex US. (Leechman.) P.B.: by mid-C.20, at latest, Brit. coll. cf. well-breeched.

well ho! Well played!; well done!: prolétarian coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

well-hung. (Of a man) large of genitals: low and raffish coll.: since C.18. 'Well-hung Men are the greatest blockheads and the most stupid of Mankind' (trans., ca. 1740, of an Italian work pub'd in 1687). Cf. the earthy intensification hung like a jack donkey.

well! I like that! See I like that!

well-in. An Aus. var. of well-off, well to do: 1891 ('Rolf Boldrewood'); coll. >, by 1910, S.E.—2. Hence, engaged in profitable business: Aus. coll.: C.20. B., 1943.—3. (Of a person) popular: coll.: C.20.

well, Joe, what do you know? A derisive c.p. addressed to anyone named Joe: common in the Forces, ca. 1939–46. Ex well, what...

well-loaded. Synon. with well-hung; perhaps since ca. 1920. L.A., 1974.—2. Rich: since ca. 1930. Loaded with money.

well put-on. (Of a male person) well turned-out; well-dressed: lower-class Glasgow coll.: from ca. 1890. MacArthur & Long, 'Perhaps there may be some association of ideas between slumland's passion for smoothed and glistening crops [of hair] and its general term for a smart appearance.' Also in comparative and superlative.

well-sinking. Making money: Anglo-Indian: late C.18–20; ob. (Ware.) Ex excavating for treasure.

well-sprung. Tippy: ca. 1910–40. Ward Muir, Observations of an Orderly, 1917.

well, this is it! A c.p. > cliché, indicating agreement; a drawn-out 'Yes!', as in 'They're nothing but a load of idle layabouts, if you ask me [usually, nobody had]!'—'Well, this is it! I mean, you know, honestly, let's face it...!' (exchange between any two pub bores); ca. 1973–80. Superseded by that's right! (P.B.)

well-to-do s, the. Those who are well-to-do: coll.: C.20. The equivalent S.E. is the well-to-do. well to live, be. To be rather drunk: coll.: ca. 1610–1700; then dial. (Ray, 1678.) Ex well to live (in the world), prosperous.

well under. Drunk: Aus.: from ca. 1916. Prob. an abbr. of well under water. P.B.: more likely ex under the influence.

'well, well,' quoth she, 'many wells, many buckets.' A proverb-c.p. of C.16 (Heywood, 1546) that may have suggested the C.20 catch, "'Have you heard the story of the three wells?' "No; what is it?" "Well, well, well!"

well, what do you know! A c.p. expressive of incredulous surprise: NZ (and elsewhere): since ca. 1918. B., 1941, 1942.

well, you said you could do it! A c.p. reply to a 'grouse': army officers': WW1. Since then, > gen. and widespread (Franklyn, 1969).

wellie, -y, n. (Usu. in pl.) Wellington boot(s) (in the modern, i.e. rubber or plastic, form): domestic: C.20. In the 1970s used in phrases where previously boot occurred, e.g., 'The wellies' on the other foot now'; 'he's getting too big for his wellies': perhaps started by 'The Great Northern Welly Boot Show', put on by Billy Connolly at the Edinburgh Festival, early 1970s. Hence, give it some welly, really 'belt it out', put all one's effort into something; cf. '[The motorcycle] goes like hell and it likes plenty of Wellie though I haven't had it flat out yet' (letter to Which Bike?, Sep. 1980)—but with this quot'n cf. clog down, q.v. (P.B.) wellie, v. To smash or defeat: RM, in the Falkland Is.: 1982. (Robert Fox, Listener, 1 July 1982, p. 16.) Ex put the boot in. Cf. synon. Paratroopers' banjo and SAS mallet.

wellie-whanging. A popular street-party, fête or gala sport, the competitive hurling of a rubber boot to the greatest distance: joc. coll.: later 1970s. (P.B.)

welligogs. Elab. of wellie(s): domestic coll., ? mostly Midlands: later C.20. (P.B.)

Wells Fargo. 'Old Pullman coaching stock named after the Television Western Programme' (Railway, 2nd): railwaymen's: since ca. 1960; by 1966, slightly ob. Ex the Wells Fargo coaching company of the U.S. P.B.: I have heard this punningly elab. to Tunbridge Wells Fargo.

welly. Almost: C.17–20: coll. till C.18, then dial. Ex well nigh. OED.

Welly B. Wellington Barracks: army, mostly Guards': late C.19–20. (Andrew Sinclair, The Breaking of Bumbo, 1959.) Cf. wellie.

Welsh, welsher, welshing; in C.19, often -ch-. To swindle (one) out of the money he has laid as a bet (orig. and properly at a race-course); he who does this; the doing; racing s. >, ca. 1880, coll. >, ca. 1900, S.E.: resp. 1857, 1860, 1857 (OED). Perhaps ex the old nursery-rhyme, Taffy was a Welshman, Taffy was a thief: W.; my Words!—2. See TAVERN TERMS, §3c, in Appendix.

Welsh bait. A foodless, drinkless rest given a horse at the top of a hill: coll.: C.17–early 20. T. Powell, 1603 (OED). Ex bait, food. For pej. Welsh, see Words! at 'Offensive Nationality'.

Welsh Camp. The late C.17–early 18 nickname for a field between Lamb's Conduit and Gray's Inn Lane, where, late in C.17, 'the Mob got together in great numbers, doing great mischief' (B.E.).

Welsh comb. The thumb and four fingers: coll. or s.: ca. 1785–1840. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Contrast Jew's harp.

Welsh cricket. A louse: late C.16–early 17. Greene.—2. A tailor? C.17. (F. & H.) Prob. via prick-louse (a tailor), q.v.

Welsh ejection. By unroofing the tenant's house: ca. 1810–50. Lex. Bal.

Welsh fiddle. The itch: late C.17–early 19. (B.E., Grose.) Also Scotch fiddle, q.v. Cf. the synon. dial. Welshman's hug (EDD).

Welsh goat. A Welshman: nickname: mid-C.18–mid-19. Lord Hailes, 1770.

Welsh mile. See long and narrow...

Welsh Navy. Holt's Blue Funnel Line: nautical: C.20. (Bowen.) Ex its numerous executive officers from Wales.

Welsh parsley. Hemp; a halter: coll. or s.: ca. 1620–50. Fletcher. OED.

Welsh rabbit. This dish, incorrectly spelt W. rarebit (Grose, 1785), is recorded by that eccentric poet John Byrom (OED) in 1725: orig. coll., it had, by 1820, > S.E. Even in C.18 (see Grose) the Welsh were reputed to be fervid cheese-fanciers. For semantics, cf. Bombay duck, q.v.

Welsh rarebit. See prec.

welsher. See Welsh.

Welshie. Nickname for a Welsh person: coll.: C.19–20. Ex adj. Taff(y) is more usu.

Welshman's hose, turn (something) like a; make a W.h. of; make like a W.h. To suit the meaning of (a word, etc.) to one's purpose: coll.: ca. 1520–1600. Skelton.

Welshman's prick. See short and thick...

welt, n. Only in B.E.'s 'rum-boozing-Welts, bunches of Grapes': late C.17–18 c. The phrase, lit., = excellent drinking bunches (or, perhaps, grape-bunches).—2. A blow: coll.: late C.19–20. (C.J. Dennis.) Ex the S.E. welt, to flog.—3. A self-awarded period of loafing or absence: Liverpool labourers': C.20. See work a welt.—4. A large penis: Forces': C.20. Sadistic?

welt, v. To punch or strike (someone): Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Ex n., 2.

welter. Anything unusually big or heavy of its kind: dial. (—1865) >, by ca. 1890, coll. Kipling, Stalky & Co., 1899, 'He gave us eight cuts apiece—welters—for—takin' unheard-of liberties with a new master.' Ex welt, to thrash.—2. (?) Hence, in make a welter of it, to go to extremes or to excess: Aus.: since early C.20. Jon Cleary, The Sundowners, 1952; D'Arcy Niland, Call Me..., 1958, has make it a welter. Or perhaps ex, e.g., in a welter of excitement.

Welwyn. Nickname for a slow or lazy fellow: RAF: 1941+. Cf. take your finger out. The relevant finger is well in.

wem. A wireless and electrical mechanic (as a 'trade'): RAF: since ca. 1934. (Sgt Gerald Emanuel, 1945.) Ex the abbr. W.E.M. or W/E/M.

wench, from Old English wencel, a child, is facetious and university-witted where once it was serious but used only in addressing an inferior (as in Shakespeare's The Tempest, 'Well demanded, wench') and where, orig., it meant simply a girl: the facetious usage is coll., whereas the other two are S.E. A similar degradation of words is seen in damsel and the Fr. mattresse, amie, and fille. P.B.: of the S.E. v., SOD, 1977, has

'obs. exc. arch.', but it is joc. coll. among the raffish, since mid-C.20 or earlier.

went to night school and he (or she) can't spell in the daytime, he or she. A c.p. applied to a bad speller: not solely Aus.: C.20. (B.P.)

Wentworth Falls; Wentworth's Balls. Testicles: Aus. rhyming s., not widely used: since 1920. Wentworth Falls is a resort, near Katoomba, in the Blue Mountains of NSW. (B.P.)

Wenty. The Sydney suburb of Wentworthville: Sydney-siders' coll.: since ca. 1930. (B.P.)

we're only here for the beer. See only here...

we're winning. We are getting on well: c.p.: 1942+. Also as 'an evasive stock answer to "How're we getting on?" or "How goes it?"' (L.A.). P.B.: cf. the friendly, informal greeting, 'Are you winning?' = How are you getting on? were you born in a barn (then)? (Usu. prec. by an indignant noise, Hey, Oy, etc.) A c.p. addressed to one who leaves a door open: since mid-C.19, or perhaps much earlier. Sometimes field for barn, occ. tent. Of the same order as was your father a glazier? (q.v. at glazier); in short, semi-proverbial.

wesket, weskid. A waistcoat: coll. bordering on sol.: C.19 (?earlier)—20.

Wessy. A London North-Western employee: railwaymen's: (prob.) late C.19–1923, then nostalgic. (Railway.) McKenna, 2, p. 158, adds that the term was also applied to the company itself. Cf. Lanky.

west. In (that) gets (e.g. me) west, (that) puzzles (me); (I) can't understand it: earlier C.20. G. Mitchell, Longer Bodies, 1930.

west, go. See go west.

west-central or West Central. A water-closet: London: —1860 (H., 2nd ed.); ob. by 1930. Ex W.C., the London postal district, and w.-c., a water-closet.

West Country. According to Adm. Brock: 'Its Naval use stemmed from the fact that nearly all H.M. ships used to be manned by ratings drawn from one Port Division:—Devonport, "West Country"; Portsmouth—no colloquial variant [but see Pompey]; Chatham—occasionally "East Country" ... Portsmouth and Chatham thought of West Countrymen as being rather simple, noisy, easy-going, greedy, mechanically inept, "full of ignorance and brute force"... "West Country" as a seaman's adjectival phrase implied an unsatisfactory makeshift.' Hence, West Country argument, a fight; West Country compliment, 'The gift of something not wanted by the donor'. Kipling, 'Mrs Bathurst', reprinted in Traffics and Discoveries, 1904: 'Some pride of the West Country had sugared up [euph. for 'buggered up', ruined] a gyroscope.' (R/Adm. P.W. Brock, CB, DSO, 1969.) Cf. Westo.

West Ham reserves. Nerves: Londoners' rhyming s.: C.20. 'That sod gets on me West Hams.' Cf. Queen's Park Ranger. Powis instances 'Mum's got the West Hams'.

West(-)Ingee, the. The West Indies: naval lowerdeck coll.: late C.18—mid 19; hence, West-Ingee man, a West-Indiaman (ship). In W.N. Glascock, Naval Sketch-Book (I, 115; II, 135), 1825–6. (Moe.)

Western. An American cowboy film or novel: coll.: since ca. 1910; by 1940, S.E. The action takes place in the south-west of the US.—2. As the Western, the Atlantic Ocean: nautical coll.: late C.19–20. (W.A. Gape, Half a Million Tramps, 1936.) See next.—3. See all quiet on the Western Front; spaghetti Western.

Western Ocean relief. 'An overdue relief at the end of a watch': nautical: C.20. (Bowen.) In sailors' j., the Western Ocean = the Atlantic.

Westerns. Shares in the Great Western Railway: Stock Exchange coll.:—1895 (A.J. Wilson's glossary).

Westminster Abbey; often merely Westminster. Shabby: rhyming: since ca. 1880.

Westminster brougham. See Whitechapel brougham.

Westminster wedding. 'A Whore and a Rogue Married together' (B.E.); low London: late C.17—early 19. Prob. ex the late C.16—early 19 proverb, Who goes to Westminster for a wife, to Paul's for a man, or to Smithfield for a horse, may meet with a whore, a knave and a jade (Apperson).

Westminster Palace of Varieties. The Admiralty: sea-going RN officers': C.20. Bowen.

Westo. A Devon or Cornish ship or seaman: nautical coll.: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) Ex West Country.

Weston!, — my oath, Miss. See my oath, Miss Weston!

Westphalia. The backside: trade: ca. 1890–1930. Ex Westphalia hams.

Westralia; Westralian. Western Australia; Western Australian: Aus. coll.: late C.19–20. B., 1942.

westward for smelts. See smelt, 2.

wet, n.; occ. whet (Ned Ward). Liquor: late C.19–20. Ex heavy wet, q.v., or next sense.—2. A drink: coll.: 1703 (Steele); 1879, Brunles Patterson, Life in the Ranks, 'Many are the... devices... to obtain a wet or reviver, first thing in the morning'. In RN, a sip, esp. of rum (Granville), and in later C.20 coll., always alcoholic, as 'Fancy coming round for a couple of wets?' (P.B.).— Cf. heavy wet, malt liquor: 1821, Egan, 'Tossing of the heavy wet and spirits' (OED); and twopenny wet, a drink costing twopence: C.19—early 20. See also wets roster.—3. A dull, stupid, futile, 'soft', or incompetent person: coll. pej.; perhaps orig., late C.19, Public Schools'—hence Service officers (for RN,—1914: Knock); by ca. 1950, gen. Cf. the adj., 7–9.—4. As the wet, the rainy season, esp. in NW. Aus. but also in N. Queensland: coll.: late C.19–20. Ion M. Idriess, Man of the Jungle, 1932 (N. Queensland); B., 1942; Jean Devanney, 1944 (N. Queensland); Jon Cleary, Justin Bayard, 1955, 'You know our work starts when the Wet finishes.' Contrast the dry. And see adj., 8.

wet, v.i. To drink a glass of liquor: coll.: ca. 1780–1910. OED Sup.

wet, adj. Showing the influence, or characteristic, of drink; connected with liquor: coll.: 1592, Nashe; 1805, wet bargain; 1848, Thackeray, 'A wet night', a frequent phrase. OED; F. & H., where also wet goods, liquor, and wet hand or wet 'un, a toper—both of late C.19–20.—2. Hence, having drunk liquor; somewhat intoxicated: coll.: 1704, Prior; 1834, Coleridge, 'Some men are like musical glasses—to produce their finest tones, you must keep them wet' (OED). Perhaps ex:—3. Prone to drink too much: coll.: from 1690s. (B.E., Grose.) Cf. wet, n., 2.—4. (Of a Quaker) not very strict: 1700 (T. Brown). Hence, of other denominations: likewise coll.: from ca. 1830; ob. Perhaps suggested by Grose's (2nd ed.) wet parson, a parson given to liquor: indeed, this sense links with sense 3, for B.E. has 'Wet-Quaker, a Drunkard of that Sect'.—5. 'Of women when secreting leech-water': low coll.: mid-C.18 (? earlier)—20. 'Burlesque Homer' Bridges, addressing cheap or inferior harlots, 'Or else in midnight cellars ply/For twopence wet and twopence dry'. Cf. wet bottom.—6. 'Soft', silly, dull, stupid, 'dud': C.20. (Musings, 1912, p. 62; Taffrail, 1916.) Unheard by me before 1928, except in talk wet, q.v.; but see the n., 3.—7. (Excessively) sentimental: since ca. 1930. Partly ex 6, and partly ex the idea of 'tearfully sentimental'.—8. P.B.: in politics, unrealistic, visionary—often, additionally, ineffectual: since ca. 1950 [E.P.'s estimate, ca. 1975—contrast the quo'n]. A natural development ex 6, aided by 7. In his article 'The Tory Wets Stand and Wait', New Society, 17 Apr. 1980, p. 102, Robert Taylor writes, 'Mrs Thatcher has coined the word "wet" to denounce those Conservatives who fail to share her assertive and abrasive convictions.' The term Tory Wets was much bandied about in 1980–2.—9. P.B.: in get wet, to become incensed, irritated, annoyed: Aus.: since late C.19. Wilkes quotes Sydney Bulletin, 17 Dec. 1898, Red Page: 'To get narked is to lose your temper; also expressed by getting dead wet. See also wetty.—10. In all wet, all wrong; esp. 'You're all wet': NZ,—1934, and also, by 1935, Aus. But the predominating Aus. sense is 'very foolish, or very stupid' (B., 1942), with which cf. sense 6.—11. In (e.g. coffee) is wet, i.e. is something to drink, 'a drink, anyway!': coll. c.p.:—1923 (Manchon). Cf.

wet 'n' warm, tea or coffee or cocoa, used in the same way and from well before 1900. (Alexander McQueen.) wet a line. To go fishing: anglers' coll.:—1909 (Ware).

wet a stripe. To celebrate a messmate's promotion: RN wardroom: C.20. (Granville.) But Naval wet one's commission is a coll. that goes back to ca. 1700; it occurs, e.g., in Shadwell's The Fair Quaker of Deal, 1710. (Moe.) Cf. wet the baby's head, and see wet (one's) warrant.

wet all her self, to have. Of a Grand Banks fishing schooner 'when she has filled up with fish, used all the salt... brought out, and turns for home': fishermen's coll.: late C.19–20. Bowen.

wet an (or the) eye. To drink: ca. 1830–1930. T. Gowing, A Soldier's Experience, 1885: 'handing me a bottle to whet my eye with.' See also wet the other eye.

wet arse and no fish, a. (To have been on) a fruitless quest or errand: coll.: late C.19–20. 'Presumably from fishing in small boats, in which one can expect a wet arse in any kind of chop' (Robert Claiborne, of Cape Cod, 1976).

wet as a scrubber. 'An incalculably stupid rating' (Granville): RN: since ca. 1930. I.e. as a scrubbing-brush. In the R Aus. N, since the 1930s, such a rating would have been, would be, described as (as) wet as piss. P.B.: perhaps influenced by synon. daft as a brush.

wet as a shag. See shag, n., 7.

wet-bed. One who, esp. while asleep, wets his bed: coll.: C.20. James Spenser, Limy Breaks In, 1934.

wet behind the ears. Ignorant, untrained, inexperienced; youthful: C.20: orig. Services' (B. & P.); by 1930 > gen. Cf. the Fr. avoir-encore du lait derrière les oreilles.

wet blanket. A spoil-sport; one who casts a damper on the proceedings, by pessimism or general melancholy: coll.:—1830. In C.20, almost S.E. (R.S.)

wet bob, bobbing. At Eton College, one who concentrates on boating, swimming; those sports: from ca 1835; coll. by 1875, S.E. by 1900. Opp. dry bob, 2.

wet bottom, get a; do a wet 'un; do, have or perform a bottom-wetter. (Of women) to have sexual intercourse: low coll., s., s.: C.19–20. Cf. wet dream.

wet deck. A Can. synon. of battered bun, 2: late C.19–20. 'Probably orig. nautical—perhaps reflecting busy times in a seamen's bordello' (Claiborne, 1976).

wet dream. An amorous dream accompanied by sexual emission: coll.: C.19–20—and prob. from at least a century earlier.—2. Hence, a dull, stupid person: Public Schools': late C.19–20. 'He's a frightful wet; he's an absolute wet dream: he's so wet that he positively drips: oh him, he drips!' (Clifton, 1914, and I should think all schools since the beginning of time): thus a valued correspondent. J.B. Smith, of Bath, in 1979 recalled the elab. like a wet dream in technicolor, 'Said of someone ineffectual and generally "wet"... [also] scathingly, of a person who tended to boast of his sexual prowess': army and RAF National Servicemen's: 1950s.

wet fish, better than a slap in the belly with a. See better than a slap...

wet foot. Naïve and innocent person' (Powis): c.: later C.20. ? A blend of wet, adj., 6, and tenderfoot.

wet goose. A poor simple fellow: rural: mid-C.19–20. Cf. wet, adj., 6.

wet hand. A drunkard: coll.:—1904 (F. & H.; Manchon). See wet, adj., 1.

wet ha'porth. A person entirely insignificant or physically weedy: N. Country: late C.19–20. Cf. London soppy ha'porth.

wet head. A law-enforcement officer, esp. a prison guard: Can. c.: since ca. 1960. (A. Schroeder, Shaking It Rough, 1976: Leechman.) Merely derogatory: cf. the US sense, 'A simpleton'.

wet list. Officers listed for sea appointments, as opp. to 'the dry list', listed for shore service only: RN: C.20. (Granville, 1967.)

wet (one's) mouth. See whistle, n., 1.

wet (one's, or the) neck. To be a drunkard (Egan's Grose); or, merely to take a drink of liquor (Boxiana, IV, 1824): low: 1820–50.

wet Nelly. 'A dough cake, the size of a small plate, baked in the oven and served with syrup: Liverpool: earlier C.20' (L.A.).

wet one, a. A loose fart: proletarian: late C.19–20.

wet Quaker. 'A man who pretends to be religious, and is a dram drinker on the sly' (H., 2nd ed.): ca. 1860–1910. Ex wet, adj., 3, 4, qq.v.

wet ship. 'A ship whose wardroom has a great drinking reputation' (Granville): RN: C.20.

wet shirt. A wetting: RN: C.20. (Granville.) Cf. Saltash luck.

wet smack. A dull, ineffectual person, usu. male: low London: since ca. 1950. John Glogau, Unlawful Justice, 1962.

wet-suit. A plastic suit for protection against cold: Aus. surfers' coll.: since ca. 1961. (B.P.) P.B.: soon >, if not always, j.

wet the baby's head. To celebrate a child's birth: since ca. 1870. (B., 1942.) P.B.: a Nottinghamshire var. is wash... (E.L. Guilford, Transactions of the Thoroton Soc. of Notts., 1948). Cf.:-

wet the deal. To drink to the conclusion of a bargain(ing): coll.: from ca. 1860. Hindley, in A Cheap Jack, 'We will wet the deal'.

wet the neck. See wet (one's) neck.

wet the other (1745) or fo'other (1840) eye. To take one glass of liquor after another: s. >, by 1850, coll.; ob. OED for dates. See also wet an eye.

wet-thee-through. Gin: low: ca. 1820–60. Egan's Grose.

wet trance, in a. Bemused; abstracted: low: late C.19–20. Ex wet dream, q.v.

wet triangle, the. The North Sea: political coll.: from ca. 1905; ob. Collinson.

wet 'un. See wet, adj., 1, and wet bottom.—2. A diseased beast: slaughterers':—1864 (H., 3rd ed.). Cf. wet, adj., 6, and wet goose, qq.v.—2. (Gen. pl.) A tear (lacrima): low: from ca. 1870; ob. Ware.

wet (one's) warrant. To celebrate one's promotion to the rank of warrant officer: RN coll.: C.19. (W.N. Glascock, Sailors and Saints, 1829, II, 15: Moe.) Cf.

wet a stripe, q.v., for the prototype of this sense of wet; in C.20 army, wet (one's) stripes is used of NCOs celebrating promotion. RAF equivalents are, e.g., wet (one's) props (Leading Aircraftman), tapes (Corporal), thyr'd (tape), Sergeant: since ca. 1925 (Sgt. G. Emanuel, 1945). Such promotion customarily requires that one 'push the boat out', buy drinks all round, in one's new mess.

wet (one's) whistle. See whistle, 1.

wet week. In look like a (hence, feel like a) wet week, to look, to feel, miserable or wretched: coll.: C.20. Obviously because a wet week tends to cause people to look miserable.

Wetherall (or -ell). See General Wetherall...

wet (one's) whistle. See whistle, 1.

wetness. A foolish, hence dangerous, sentimentality: since ca. 1930. (Sir Edward Playfair cites The Times, 29 Sep. 1977.) Ex wet, adj., 6–8.

wets roster. The list of those whose turn it is to make the wets' (Hawke): RN; RM: later C.20. I.e. the drinks, not necessarily alcoholic: see wet, n., 2.

wetter. A wetting, soaking, by rain: coll.: 1884 (not 1885), D. Sladen (OED).—2. A 'wet dream' (q.v.): orig. Public Schools' >, by early C.20, gen low (Manchon) by the 'OXFORD -ER'.

wetty, have a. To be, or to become, angry or over-excited or worked-up: Aus.: since ca. 1945, or perhaps a decade earlier. A. Buzo, Norm and Ahmed, prod. 1968: 'NORM: Eh, Ahmed, don't have a wetty. No offence meant.' Ex excitement causing urination. P.B.: see wet, adj., 9.

Wewi. See Wi-Wi.

Weymouth splashers. 'Paddle-steamers running pleasure-trips from Weymouth to adjacent ports' (Granville): coll.: since ca. 1925.

whack, n.; in C.19, occ. wack. A heavy, smart, resounding blow: from 1730s: dial. >, ca. 1830, coll. (Barham, Mayhew.)

Prob. echoic. OED.—2. Hence, its sound: coll.: mid-C.19–20. Thackeray (OED).—3. A (full) share: c.:—1785 >, by 1800, s. >, by 1880, coll. (Grose, 1st ed.) Esp. in take (1830), get or have one's whack, and in go whacks (—1874). ?ex the sound of the physical division of booty. See also whack-up.—4. Hence, fig.: mid-C.19–20. Walch, 1890, 'My word! he did more than his whack.'—5. 'Food, sustenance:—"He gets 2s. 6d. a day and his whack"' (P.W. Joyce, English... in Ireland, 1910): Anglo-Irish: late C.19–20. Perhaps ex— and certainly cf.—sense 3.—6. A pickpocket: Anglo-Irish c.: C.19. 'A Real Paddy', Life in London, 1822. Cf. strike, v., 1.—7. Anxiety; dilemma: from ca. 1925; ob. by 1950. David Frome, That's Your Man, Inspector, 1934, 'I was in a frightful whack... I thought I was blotto.'—8. Hence, a rage; a bad state of nerves: from ca. 1925. David Frome, The Body in the Turl, 1935.—9. In have or take a whack at, to attempt; to attack: coll.: adopted ex US,—1904 (F. & H.). Perhaps ex tree-felling.—10. In out of whack, not working properly; 'off colour': C.20. 'His mind's out of whack'; 'Our wireless is out of whack'.

whack, v. To strike with sharp, resounding vigour: coll. and dial.: 1721 (Ramsay: OED). Also as v.i., esp. in whack away (mid-C.19–20), as in Daily Telegraph, 21 Feb. 1886, 'The Flannigans and the Murphys paid no heed to him, but whacked away at each other with increasing vigour.' Prob. echoic; cf. whack, n., 1.—2. Hence, to defeat in a contest or rivalry: coll.: from 1870s.—3. To bring, get, place, put, etc., esp. in a vigorous or violent manner: from C.17 'teens: dial. >, in late C.19, coll., as in Kipling, 1897, 'They whacked up a match' (OED). Prob. ex sense 1.—4. To share or divide: c. (—1812) >, by 1860, s. >, by 1910, coll. Vaux, who spells it wack; J. Greenwood, 1888, A Converted Burglar, 'The sound, old-fashioned principle of "sharing the danger and whacking the swag"'. Also whack up. Ex whack, n., 3, q.v.—5. To sell illicitly: army: ca. 1910–40. Prob. suggested by the synon. flog.—6. See compounds below.

whack! An interj. politely = 'You lie!': printers: from ca. 1870. Ex whacker. Cf. thump!

whack, adv. With a 'whack' (n., 1, q.v.): coll.: 1812 (H. and J. Smith: OED). Cf. n., 9.

whack down. To put (e.g. money) down; to write (e.g. names) down, to note: coll.: C.20. Cf. v., 3.

whack it out, v.i. To defend or support successfully: proletarian:—1923 (Manchon).

whack it up, v.i. To coit: low: mid-C.19–20; ?ob. Cf. whack, v., 1, 3, 4.—2. V.t. To deal severely with (a prisoner): c.:—1933 (G. Ingram, Strir).

whack out. To distribute (e.g. rations) equitably: military: C.20. (B. & P.) Cf. whack, n., 3, and v., 4.

whack (one's) own donkey. To be occupied, or preoccupied, with one's own affairs: lower classes' coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

whack the illy. See illywhacker.

whack-up, n. A division of accounts: coll.: 1885 (OED). Elab. whack, n., 3. Cf. whack out.

whack up, v. To increase the speed of (e.g. a ship): since late C.19. R. Kipling, 'Their Lawful Occasions', 1903, pub'd in Traffics and Discoveries, 1904: 'Moorshead suggested "whacking her up" to 15 knots'. Ex whack, v., 3.—2. See whack it up; whack, v., 4. whacked; whacked to the wide (sc. world). Utterly exhausted: late C.19–20. Ex whack, v., 1.

whacker, n. Anything unusually large; esp. a 'thumping' lie (cf. whopper, q.v.): coll. and dial.:—1825. Sporting Times, in 1828, describes certain fences as whackers, as T. Hughes does caught fish in 1861. Ex whack, v., 1. OED.—2. As Whacker, 'inevitable' nickname of men surnamed Payne: esp. RN: C.20. (Granville). P.B.: ?ex the pain caused by a whack, n., 1; ex a notable liar (see sense 1); or ex a notable Liverpoolian:—3. (Also spelt Wacker.) A Merseyside term of address to a man: C.20. 'Most of the stokers we passed [at Scapa Flow, in Jan. 1944] seemed to be from Liverpool, for cries of "Hey, Whacker!" (a local expression) greeted Tommy Handley on all sides' (Francis Worsley, Itma, 1948, p.38). P.B.: often abbr. to Wack, and perhaps ex dial. v. (cf. whack, v., 4) wack, to share out, divide (EDD); hence, one who does this, a friend: cf. the Services' mucker, one who 'mucks in' with another. Contrast:—4. A fellow, esp. a poor sort of fellow: Aus.: since ca. 1946. W. Dick, A Bunch of Rattbags, 1965.

whacker, adj. (Also spelt wacker.) Fine; excellent; wonderful: Aus., esp. Melbourne, children's: since ca. 1946. (Dick.) Prob. a var. of whacko, q.v.

whacking. A thrashing: coll.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Ex whack, v., 1.—2. Hence, a defeat in a contest: coll.: late C.19–20.—3. A division or sharing: from ca. 1850: (low) s. >, by 1900, coll. (Mayhew.) Ex whack, v., 4.

whacking, adj. Unusually big, large, fine, or strong: coll.:—1806 (John Davis, The Post-Captain: Moe). Often whacking great, occ. w. big, w. good (e.g. time). Cf. socking, thumping, etc., C.20 synon. Ex whack, v., 1; cf. whacker, 1.

whacko! Splendid! Good!: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Hence, since ca. 1930, an ordinary adj., as in 'a whacko time'. (Cusack). Sarah Campion, 1940. By 1945, at latest, also English—popularised by Mr Jimmy Edwards.

whacko-the-diddle-o. (Of a girl) extremely attractive: Aus. (esp. Sydney) youths': since ca. 1938. (Ruth Park, Poor Man's Orange, 1950.) An elab. of whacko!, perhaps aided by the refrain of an Irish or dial. song.—2. Indeed, 'an elaboration of whacko in all its senses' (B.P.): Aus.: since ca. 1940.

whacks. See whack, n., 3.

whacky, n. A person acting ridiculously or fooling about: tailors': later C.19—early 20. (B. & L.; F. & H.) Ex Yorkshire dial. whacky, a dolt; cf. wacky, adj., q.v.

whale. A codfish: Cheltenham College: late C.19–20. Because a large fish.—2. A sardine: Royal Military Academy: from ca. 1870. Because so small.—3. (Always in pl.) Anchovies on toast: rather proletarian: from ca. 1880. Cf. sense 2.—4. In go ahead like a whale, to forge ahead; act, speak, write vigorously: coll.: from 1890s. (F. & H.) Ex the majesty of a whale's movements.—5. See old whale; very like a whale; whale on.

whale and whitewash. Fish and sauce: tramps' c.:—1932 (F. Jennings, Tramping with Tramps).

whale-belly. A type of coal car (= truck): Can. railroadmen's:—1931. Cavernous.

whale into. To attack, punch, vigorously and spiritedly: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Also some Brit. use (P.B.). 'The obsolescent US sense of whale is "beat" (v.)—hence, perhaps, corruption of S.E. wale' (Claiborne, 1976)—to mark the, or someone's, flesh with wales or weals.

whale of a ... a. No end of a ...: coll.: US (—1913), partly anglicised ca. 1918. Ex the whale's huge size. P.B.: by mid-C.20 at latest, familiar coll., esp. in a whale of a party and ... a time.

whale on ... a. Greatly liking, having a great capacity for, expert at: coll.: 1893, Justin McCarthy, 'He was not... a whale on geography' (OED); ob. For semantics, cf. prec. Also, occ., whale at and for.

whaler. A sundowner: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1880. (In 1883, spelt waler: see Wilkes.) Sydney Morning Herald, 8 Aug. 1893, 'The nomad, the whaler, it is who will find the new order hostile to his vested interest of doing nothing.' (He didn't.) Ex his cruising about. (Morris.) He who travels up and down the banks of the Murrumbidgee River is a Murrumbidgee whaler, which some authorities consider to be the ironic orig. P.B.: cf. the old nursery rhyme: 'Simple Simon went a-fishing,/For to catch a whale;/But all the water he had got/Was in his mother's pail.'

Whaler's delight. Synon. with Murrumbidgee jam. B., 1943.

whales. See whale, 3.

Whaley. The Whale Island Gunnery School (Portsmouth): RN: C.20. Bowen.

wham, bang, thank you madam! A c.p. applied to the rapidity of a rabbit's breeding activities: since mid-1940s: orig. Forces'. Slight adaptation of US wham bam (thank you, ma'am) for rapid, unemotional copulation. (W. & F.) P.B.: in later C.20, used in US, form and with US sense, which W. & F. date 'since before ca. 1895'.

whang, n. A 'whanging' sound or blow: dial. (—1824) and, from ca. 1860, coll. Ex v., 1.—2. A piece, portion, share: Aus. low: since ca. 1918. (B., 1942.) Echoic: cf. whack, n., 3.—3. A drive around in a vehicle, as in 'I'm off for a whang in the car (or on my bike)': Leicestershire teenagers: later 1970s. (D. & R. McPheely.)—4. See wang.

whang, v.t. To strike heavily and resoundingly: coll.: C.19–20. Ex dial. (C.17–20). Echoic.—2. V.i. (of, e.g., a drum), to sound (as) under a blow: coll.: 1875 (Kinglake: OED).—3. To throw violently; to fling: dial. > low coll.: C.20. 'He whanged a stone at me'. Also 'to push; to pull': both in E.L. Guilford, in Transactions of the Thoroton Soc. of Nottinghamshire, 1948 (P.B.).

whangam, whangdoodle. An imaginary animal: rather nonce-words than coll. [E.P.'s entry in early edd. of this Dict.] P.B.: in later C.20 whangdoodle is an occ. joc. euph. for penis.

Whanger; Cod-Whanger. A Newfoundland fish-curer: nautical:—1867 (Smyth). Orig., Newfoundland s.; dating from ca. 1810 or earlier—it occurs in W.N. Glascock, Naval Sketch-Book (I, 160, 164), 1825. (Moe.)

w Hank. For all senses, tenses, and compounds, see wank, the predominant later C.20 spelling.

whap, whapper (Grose, 1st ed.). See whop, whopper.

wharf-rat. A thief prowling about wharves: mid-C.19–20. Perhaps orig. US.

wharfie, -y. A docker, stevedore: Aus.: C.20. Wilkes's first citation is 1912. Ex 'wharf-labourer'.

what. At what, as in 'what time do you start?': coll.,—1887 (Baumann) >, by mid-C.20 at latest, familiar S.E. cf.:—2. As question, what?: what is it?; what did you say?: coll.: recorded by the OED for 1837, Dickens, "'What's your name?" "Cold punch," murmured Mr Pickwick... "What?" demanded Captain Boldwig'; but prob. a half, even a full century earlier. Arising naturally ex what connoting 'ellipsis, esp. of the remainder of the question', as in "'I'm so frightened!" "What at, dear?—what at?"', Dickens, 1837 (OED). Cognate with:—3. As exclam., what! (perhaps better ?!); occ. eh what!, a questioning interjection or expletive, gen.

at the end of a phrase or sentence, it seems to go back to C.16, to judge by Ben Jonson, Every Man out of His Humour, 1599: 'CARLO: He shall ne'er ha' the pox.—PUNTAARVOLO: What, the French pox?—CARLO: The French pox! Our pox: 'sblood we have 'hem in as good form as they, man, what?' A century later, it occurs often in John Crowne's The English Friar; or, The Town Sparks, 1690. Mme D'Arblay, 1785: '[George III] said, "What? what?"—meaning... "it is not possible. Do you think it is?—what?"'; not very gen. before mid-C.19; 1914, Neil Lyons, 'It's a bit too literary for me. What?... You had it at school, I dare say. What?' (OED). [E.P., writing in the mid-1930, added his own comment:] This enclitic [i.e. almost, or completely, meaningless; cf. sort of or you know in later C.20 conversation] what is an infallible characteristic and hall-mark of the upper-middle and upper class (males much more than females) and it is confined to Great Britain; the lower and lower-middle classes, and all Colonial and most Americans, find it very odd, affected and, at first, a little disconcerting (esp. in the explosive form common among, e.g., Army officers) in its app. senselessness; actually, it is a modifier (often deliberate) of abruptness, insolence, or audacity. P.B.: perhaps orig. short for 'What do you say (or think) about it?' Much less common now, 1983, than it appears to have been when this Dict. first appeared (though by no means †) it was perhaps hastened towards obsolescence by being widely caricatured in the BBC radio-comedy series 'The Goon Show' of the 1950s.—4. Abbr. what cheer!: Cockneys': from ca. 1880. H.W. Nevin-son, Neighbours of Ours, 1895.—5. E.P. listed, and commented upon, other uses of what, that he labelled 'solecisms', i.e. deviations from C.20 S.E. These were: what = 'who, that', and esp. all what, as in, e.g. all what I done; = 'the', as in Baumann, 'What one I 'ave I'll keep' (where E.P.'s interpretation ought perhaps to have been 'that which'): but what = 'but that' or 'except what'; than what, where the what is redundant, as it is in as what = 'as'. All these consider to be dial., or better to be treated in a work on socio-linguistics. See E.P.'s Usage and Abuse. (P.B.)—6. In or what?, used as a final, yet wholly indefinite, 'alternative in a disjunctive question': mid-C.19–20; mostly, and in conversation nearly always, coll. Edward FitzGerald, in a letter, 1842, 'Have you supposed me dead or what?' (OED). P.B.: in later C.20, frequently or whatever, when substituted for 'and the rest'.—7. See tell you what!

what a face! See put on a face.

what a funny little place to have one! A c.p. dating from ca. 1890; by 1960, ob. The ref. is to, e.g. a mole or a pimple; often with suggestive undertones.

what a game (it is)! A humorously resigned c.p., referring to life's little ironies and not so little vicissitudes: since ca. 1910.

what a gay day! C.p. of the comedian Larry Grayson, mid-1970s; soon extended by teenagers, for use as a conversation-starter or gap-filler, by the addition of — not quite that gay!, pron. with an affected lisp and lilt, or wave of limp wrist: cf. gay, adj., 4. (P.B.)

what a hope! See what hopes!

what a life! A c.p. expressive of (usu.) humorous disgust: since late C.19. Sometimes extended by the addition of without a wife. See DCpp.

what a load of rubbish! A c.p. chant used, e.g., by spectators at a football match to show their disapproval of the players performance; adaptable of course to other situations: mid-1970s. (P.B.)

what a long tail...! See what a tail...!

what a morgue! What a dead-and-alive, or what a dull, place!: c.p.: ca. 1945–70. Cf. the more common, and more English version, since ca. 1919, what a dump! Cf. dump, n.

what a shocking bad hat! What an unpleasant or vulgar fellow!: c.p., orig. Cockney from ca. 1838 >, fairly soon, gen.; ob. by 1940. See esp. DCpp. for extensive treatment and explanation.

what a shower! See shower.

what a tail our cat's got! A lower classes' c.p. directed at a girl (or woman) 'flaunting in a new dress', the rear skirt of which she swings haughtily: mid-C.19–20; ob. Ware (tail—obviously a misprint). Sometimes elab. what a long tail...!, perhaps esp. in Can., and directed at someone boasting (Leachman).

what about it? If you're ready go ahead or let's get going: since ca. 1914. In Carrying On, 1917, Ian Hay numbers it among the 'current catch-phrases'. P.B.: cf. the difference in sense from its use in the Cockney dialogue that goes: 'What about it?'—'What about that?'—'What about what you just said about me?'—'Well, what about it?'—'Wurl... [q.v.]' what about a (small) spot?; what is it?; what'll you have? See DRINKS, in Appendix.

what all. See and I don't know what all.

what an O. Smith! What a grim laugh!: non-aristocratic: ca. 1835–50. Ware. Lit., 'what an "O. Smith"!' ex the cavernous laugh of one O. Smith, a popular actor of villains' parts.

what are you? Implication: 'You're a fool (or worse)!' : coll.: later C.20. Elliptical for the drill instructor's howl at a dumsy recruit 'You're an 'orrible little man—what are you?', to which the luckless recruit had to reply 'I'm a horrible little man, Sergeant.' (P.B.)

what are you going to make of it? 'A c.p. inviting the hearer to fight' (B.P.): Aus.: since late 1930s. P.B.: cf. the belligerent challenge, prob. adopted ex US 'tough-guy' film characters, 'want to (or, more often, wanna) make something of it?' what-call; what-call-ye-him. A var. (resp. early C.17, late what can I (occ. we) do you for? Joc. perversion of ... do for you?: since early 1920s. Based on s. do, to cheat or cheat out of.

C.15–early 17: OED) of the him part of what-d’ye-call-’em (etc.).

what cheer! In C.20 often rendered watcher or watcher, and thought of as mainly Cockney, it is a greeting going back to early C.18, if not earlier. James Isham uses it in Observations and Notes, 1743 (Hudson’s Bay Record Soc., XII, 54: Leechman). EDD notes it as Yorkshire dial., ca. 1860. ‘The universal greeting of labourers and countrymen’ (David Garnett, New Statesman & Nation, 20 Feb. 1937). P.B.: but Garnett’s remark is a generalisation, and certainly not true of, e.g., that large stretch of the East Midlands where Ey-oo! is the popular greeting.

what cheese is an occ. var. (ca. 1890–1910) of hard cheese, as fromage was also.

what clock? See what watch?

what did Gladstone say in (e.g.) 1885? A political hecklers’ c.p. of late C. 19–20. For the most part, merely obstructive.

what did Horace say, Winnie? A c.p. from the music-hall turn of Harry Hemsley, who ‘produced’ the voices of a whole family of children, the youngest of whom, Horace, was unintelligible, and had to be interpreted by an older sister, Winnie: the phrase was used-coll., wherever applicable: 1930s–40s.

what did you do in the Great War, daddy? A military c.p. (1917–18, and after) used ‘scathingly in times of stress’ (B. & P.). Ex a recruiting-poster. In late 1917–19, the phrase had many variations, and several c.p. replies, the most popular being shut up, you little bastard! Get the Bluebell and go and clean my medals, which is devastating. P.B.: Bluebell is a brand of metal-polish.

What did your last servant die of? Do you think I’m a slave or a ‘slavery’?: harassed housewives to demanding husbands or children (‘Where’s my ...’; ‘Can you just ...’): C.20. (L.A., 1976.)

what do I owe you? See Do I owe ...

what do you expect me to do – burst into flames? A c.p., deprecating excitement: RAF: 1940+. (L.A.) Ex aircraft bursting into flames. Cf. the earlier, mainly US, what am I supposed to do—cry?, i.e. ‘burst into tears’.

what do you know? What is the news?; is there any new development?: c.p.: from ca. 1917. Prob. a shortening of well, what do you (often pron. whaddya know?, and the next; like the next, it is also often used as an expression of surprise, ‘mainly and ironically’ (B., 1959).

what do you know about that! A c.p. expressive of surprise: non-aristocratic and non-cultured: from ca. 1910.

what do you know, Joe? With its dovetail, damn (or bugger or, esp., fuck) all, Paul, it was a Services’ c.p.: WW2. The first half, without the dovetail, preceded 1939, and is not yet, 1977, †.

what do you think? ‘What is your general opinion of things?’: a middle-class c.p. introduced in 1882 by a comic singer; † by 1915.—2. From ca. 1912, it = ‘Well, of course!’—3. See think, v., 3., and:—

what do you think of it? A c.p. of the 1880s and, less, 1890s: elab. of prec., 1. The reply was I quite agree with you; contrast:—

what do you think of the show so far? With its dovetail, rubbish!, ‘Eric Morecambe’s customary inquiry of audiences animate and inanimate’ (Nigel Rees, Very Interesting ..., 1980), a c.p. that > very popular in the early 1970s, and has lasted: ‘Say to a stranger in a pub, “What do you think of it so far?” and you’re likely to get the reply, “Rubbish”, even though Morecambe and Wise have almost disappeared from the [TV] screen’ (Albert Hunt, New Society, 5 Mar. 1981: P.B.)

what do you think that (or this, these, those) is (are)? – Scotch mist? See Scotch mist, 2, and cf.:—

what do you think this is – Bush Week? Aus. c.p. addressed to anyone making a great noise or fuss: since 1920s. Also what’s this—Bush Week? (Baker.) B.P. adds that in later C.20 the commoner form is the elab. ... Bush Week or Christmas?, and that it is also ‘used when someone has produced something very “fishy”’. Cf. the Aus. (e.g. he doesn’t know if it’s Bourke Street or Tuesday, for someone rather ‘clueless’ or ignorant.

what do you want – jam on it? Services’ c.p. reproach to a grumbler: since late C.19. See jam on it, and DCpp. (at what do ...).

what does ‘R’ do now? What does (anyone) do now?; what’s my next move?: coll.: since ca. 1930; by 1975, slightly ob. Ex ‘brain-teasing’ games and puzzles, perhaps influenced by detective stories. (P.B.)

what does a mouse do ...? See COCKNEY CATCH-PHRASES, in Appendix.

what does that make me? A c.p., expression of disinterest or of refusal to participate or to be implicated: since ca. 1937. (L.A.) Often so what does ...?

what-d’ye-call-’em (occ. um), her, him, it; less frequently what-do-you-call-’em, etc. A phrase connoting some thing or person forgotten, considered trivial or not to be named, or unknown by name: coll.: C.17–20. Shakespeare, As You Like It, ‘Good even, good Master What-ye-call’t; how do you, sir,—a late C.16–17 var.; Ned Ward; Smollett; Dibdin; Dickens; etc., etc. The Shakespearean form has an alternative in -you- and a mid-C.19–20 var.: what-you-may-call-it (Dickens, 1848). Cf. Cotton’s satirical ‘Where once your what shal’s cal’ums—rot um! It makes me mad I have forgot um.’ (OED; F. & H.) In later edd., E.P. added the late C.19–20 spellings what-d’yer-call-it; watcher-call-it; cf. whatname; whatsit. The Dickens’ var. is usu. pron. whatcha-m’callit.

what else did you get for Christmas? Caustic deflation of someone showing off. e.g. a new car: c.p.: since (?) ca. 1960. See DCpp. (P.B.) what-ex. See whatter.

what ever; loosely whatever. Emphatic what?: C.14–20: S.E. until C.19, then coll., as in F.E. Paget, 1856, ‘Whatever in all the world was that?’, (OED).—2. Hence, as interrogative adj.: coll.: late C.19–20. OED.—3. For or whatever, see or what-have-you. See also whatever turns you on.

what for, what-for. Trouble; a great fuss, e.g. raise what-for, to ‘raise Cain’: C.20. (David Frome, The By-Pass Murder, 1932.) Ex give (one) what-for, to punish or hurt severely: from ca. 1870. Du Maurier, 1894, ‘Svengali got “what for”’ (OED). Ex what for?, why: ‘to respond to [one’s] remonstrant what for? by further assault’ (W.). Hence, to reprimand, reprove severely: from 1890s (F. & H.). As ‘why’ it may either stand alone, or be as in, e.g., ‘what did you want to go and do a silly thing like that for?’: coll.: mid-C.19.

what gives? What’s happening?: coll.: since ca. 1945; adopted ex US, where, as Claiborne points out, it derives directly ex Yiddish. Cf. what’s with, q.v.

what gives out? Elab. of prec., used by, among others, the RAF in N. Italy, 1945.

what goes up must come down. A late C.19–20 ‘Cockney c.p., commenting with cheerful Newtonian logic on a pregnancy’ (R.S., 1969)—and on other situations and incidents.

what has got ...? What has happened to, become of? Coll.: from ca. 1820; ob. a century later. Scoresby, in Whale Fishery, 1823, ‘They all at once ... enquired what had got Carr’ (OED).

what-have-we, a. An eccentrically dashing person, whether male or female: ca. 1912–18. Applied, by Tom Pocock in the Times, 13 Aug. 1977, to the Sybil Thorndike of 1916 (Sir Edward Playfair). In short, a ‘What have we here?’ Cf. what-shall-call-um.

what ho! As greeting or expletive, it is (orig. low) coll.: mid-C.19–20. Ballantyne, 1864, ‘What ho! Coleman ... have you actually acquired the art of sleeping on a donkey?’ (OED); 1898, ‘Pomes’ Marshall, ‘Where ‘e let me in for drinks all round, and as I’d but a bob, I thought, “What ho! ‘ow am I a-going on”’ (Cf. the semi-coll. what cheer!) Orig., a S.E. formula to attract a person’s attention.

what ho! she bumps. A satirical c.p. applied to 'any display of vigour—especially feminine': London (1899) >, by 1914, gen.; slightly ob. Ware derives it from 'a boating adventure... A popular song made this term more popular.' occ., since ca. 1920, completed and when she bumps she bounces. Earlier now she bumps! = excellent; splendid!: ca. 1895–1910 (F. & H., rev.).

what hopes! what a hope you've got! I don't like your chance! lower classes' and military: C.20. (B. & P.) P.B.: since ca. 1940, at latest, usu. what a hope!, (usu. =), 'not a hope!' Also in var., equally gloomily uttered, some hopes! what is. Unless the is is specifically emphasised, as in what is this – International...?, q.v., see under what's...

what is this? – International Fuck-Your-Buddy Week? A Services' (mainly army) emollient c.p. in situations where people are irritating each other, e.g. under tension from external pressure; or simply a complaint at being 'messed about': prob. adopted from the US Forces in Korea, 1950–3; ob. by ca. 1975. See DCpp. (P.B.)

what it takes. Esp., courage, fortitude, perseverance; ability; (in Aus.) money: coll., adopted ca. 1935 from US. (B., 1942.) Lit., what the situation requires.

what like? (Absolutely or as in 'what like is he?') Of what character, nature, quality?: dial. (—1820) >, col. 1860, (low) coll.

what makes (someone) tick. (His) chief interest in life, his driving-force: since ca. 1930. 'I've never discovered what makes him tick.' Ex watches and clocks.

what me! A c.p. greeting between two, or more than two, soldiers: WW1. B. & P.

what me? – in my state of health? A very popular c.p., later 1940s, from PMMA, q.v. in Appendix.

what next – and next? A c.p. contemptuous of audacious assertion: ca. 1820–1905. Ware.

what-o(h). A var. of what ho!—2. As in 'She is a what-oh', a lively or fast piece: proletarian coll.:—1923 (Manchon).

what o'clock. See what watch?

what odds? Is the usual post-1920 form of coll. (late C.19–20) what's the odds?, what difference does it make? Cf. what price?

what Paddy gave the drum. A sound thrashing: orig. (ca. 1845), Irish military >, ca. 1900, gen.; ob. by 1930. Ware.

what price —? (Occ. admiring, but gen. sarcastic; in ref. to a declared or well-understood value.) What do you now think of —? Just consider, look at —!: orig. racing ('What odds —?'), then gen.: from ca. 1890. P.H. Emerson, 1893, 'What price you, when you fell off the scaffold.'

what say? What do you think?; what do you say to the idea, plan, what not?: Cockney c.p.: from ca. 1880. W. Pett Ridge, Minor Dialogues, 1895; Edwin Pugh, Harry the Cockney, 1912.

what say you? The gen. form of the prec.: c.p.: late C.19–20; by ca. 1940, slightly ob.; by 1967, very ob.

what-shall-call-um. A light woman: euph. coll.: ca. 1800–70. (Scott; Redgauntlet, 1824.) Cf. what-have-we.

what shall we do, or go fishing? (Occ. which... or which would you rather do, or...?) A trick elab. of straightforward 'What shall we do now?': since mid- or late 1920s. (D.L. Sayers, The Nine Tailors, 1934.) Cf. which would you rather be—or a wasp?

what suit did you give it (up)on? How did you effect your purpose?: low: ca. 1790–1850. Vaux.

what the Connaught men shot at. Nothing: Anglo-Irish: —1833 (Ware).

what the devil. An intensive of what: coll.: C.20. E. Phillips Oppenheim, The Bank Manager, 1934, 'What the devil concern is it of yours, anyway?'

what the fuck. Orig. a stronger intensive of prec., and perhaps a shortening of next: since mid-C.20 at latest. Not necessarily a straight question: 'It's hopeless! Nobody knows what the fuck's going on anywhere.' (P.B.)

what the fucking hell! A very common lowerclass expletive: mid-C.19–20. A mere elab. of:— what the hell. One of the commonest intensifiers of what, as in 'What the hell do you think you're doing?': coll.: C.20 (prob. earlier). Standing on its own, as in the American columnist Don Marquis's archy and mehitabel series, 1927+, 'what the hell, archy, what the hell', it is elliptical for 'What do I care? (I don't)'; 'What does it matter?', sentiments either resigned, or challenging as in 'What the hell! I'll show the bastards...!' (P.B.) Manchon, 1923, listed the euph. what the fiery furnace... A further var. is what the Llanfairfechan hell, euph., ca. 1920–50, for 'what the effing [q.v.] hell!'

what was the name of the engine-driver? See COCKNEY CATCH-PHRASES, in Appendix.

what watch? occ., what clock? What's the time?: Aus. (rare, says B.P.): since ca. 1950. Cf. the German wieviel Uhr? Cf. the Brit. what o'clock, cock?, c.p. of a razorblade-manufacturer 1950s–60s: ex advertising campaign in which, over several years, this sort of jingle occurred.

what will you liq? What will you drink: middle-class c.p. of ca. 1905–15. (Ware.) Ex liquor; punning lick.

what would shock me would make a pudding crawl. It takes an awful lot to shock me: mostly feminine: ca. 1880–1920. (L.A., 1971.)

what would you do, chums? A c.p. dating since ca. 1938. Syd Walker, 'The Philosophic Dustman', with these words propounded various droll problems in the BBC radio programme entitled 'Band Wagon'. Syd Walker died of appendicitis during the 1939–45 war. E.P., Radio Times, 6 Dec. 1946.

what-ye-call-it, what-you-may-call-it. See what-d'ye-call-em.

what you can't carry you must drag! A nautical c.p. applied to clipper ships carrying too much canvas: late C.19–20; ob. Bowen.

what you say goes – all over the town. A c.p. addressed to gossips and rumour-mongers: since late 1940s. (Petch, 1966.)

whatcher. Var. of what cheer!

whatcher-call-it. See what-d'ye-call-it.

whater. See whatter.

whatever. See what ever, and:-

whatever turns you on. (Sc. is all right with me.) A phrase accepting another's foibles, hobbies or interests, that do not coincide with one's own: ca. 1972–7; adopted ex US. (P.B.)

whatname. Often old w.; var. of what's-his-name, q.v.: coll.: since ca. 1940. (P.B.)

what's all this in aid of? The usu. post-1945 version of what's it in aid of?

what's bit or biting or crawling on or eating you? What's the matter?: military (1915) >, by 1920, gen. c.p. (B. & P.) Ex scratching for lice. (Anticipated in 1911 in US.) Also 'transferable', as in, e.g., 'what's bitten him?', said of someone unaccountably snappish or tetchy (P.B.).

what's cooking? What is happening?: Services (esp. RAF): since mid-1940. Jackson, 1943; Partridge, 1945, 'From "What is that smell—what's cooking?": asked so very often by so many husbands'. Adopted from US. In 1942–6, often amplified to what's cooking, good looking?

what's-his-name, -her-, -its-, -your-; whatsname. Resp. for a man (or boy; loosely, thing), woman (or girl), thing, person addressed, or ambiguously for any of the first three of these, with name unknown, forgotten, to-be-avoided, or hardly worth mentioning: coll.: resp. late C.17–20 (Dryden), C.19–20 (Scott), from 1830s (Dickens), mid-C.18–20 (Foote), and mid-C.19–20 (Reade); app. Marryat, in 1829, is the first to apply what's-his-name to a thing; what's-their-names (G.A. Stevens) is rare. (OED.) Cf. what-d'ye-call-em; whatname; whatsit; wosname, qq.v.

what's it. See whatsit.

what's it in aid of? What's the reason, the purpose of it all—of this, etc.?: coll.: since ca. 1916, esp. in the Services. (Jackson.) In what respect, or way, does it help? P.B.: ex question asked of flag-sellers and other collectors of cash for charities; flag days started in WW1.

what's matter? What's the matter?: lower classes' coll.: C.20. Pett Ridge, 1907.

what's new? What's the news?; has anything noteworthy happened?: orig. army coll., from 1939 (P-G-R.); > post-WW2 gen.

what's(-)o'clock. A wattle bird: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.—2. For know what's o'clock, see the KNOW phrases, in Appendix.

what's on your mind? What is your difficulty, or what is the query?: coll. c.p.: since ca. 1930. Ex the S.E. sense, 'What's worrying or preoccupying, you?'

what's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. Let us be consistent! Coll. (in C.20, ?S.E.): from ca. 1660. (Head, Swift, Byron.) Apperson quotes Varro's idem Accio quod Titio jus esto. Cf. the proverbs 'As is the goose so is the gander', C.18, and 'Goose, gander, and gosling are three sounds, but one thing', C.17.

what's that – fog? See Scotch mist, 2.

what's that – the population of China? A Services' jeer at a comparatively high (in relation to one's own) service or regimental number: c.p.: 1941+. Cf. such boasts of long service as before you came up; before your number was dry; when I joined we all knew each other, etc.

what's the big idea? Used derisively = 'what folly have you in mind?'; indignantly, as 'Hey, steady on! What's...', usu. = 'I don't like it, so stop it!': coll.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1930. OED Sup.; P.B.

what's the damage? What's the cost or expense?; how much do I owe? See damage.

what's the difference between a chicken? A trick question with the equally nonsensical answer one of its legs is both the same: since (?) ca. 1950. Cf. why is a mouse when it spins?, at COCKNEY CATCH-PHRASES, in Appendix. (P.B.)

what's the dirt? What's the scandal, hence the news?: Society: from ca. 1932. Evelyn Waugh, A Handful of Dust, 1934.

what's the drill? How do you do it?—What are the arrangements?—What's the 'form'? Services (orig., army): since ca. 1920; but gen. only since 1939. See drill, n.

what's the dynamite?; what's the lyddite? What's the 'row'? Society: resp. 1890–9 and 1899–1900. (Ware.) The former ex dynamiters' activities in the 1880s, the latter ex the Boer War.

what's the form? What is it like?; how should it be done?; how must I conduct myself?: coll.: since early 1920s, in the first sense (E. Waugh, 1934); in WW2 and since, very common among Service officers for the second and third. See DCpp. Cf. what's the drill?

what's the mat? What's the matter?: Public Schools': late C.19–early 20. Ware.

what's the matter with...? What troubles or ails or is amiss with...?: coll.: 1715, Defoe, 'I beseech what is the matter with you.' OED.—2. In late C.19–20, it also = What objection is there to...?: joc. coll.

what's the matter with your hand? A military c.p. (from 1914) to one lucky enough to be holding an article of food. B. & P.

what's the score? What sort of weather is it?: RAF pilots': 1939+. Ex sport.—2. Hence, what is the latest 'gen' (information): RAF, soon > more gen.: since 1941.

what's the strength? What's the news?: Services': early WW2. Michie & Graebner, Lights of Freedom, 1941.

what's the strong of it? What is the truth? the gist of it?: Aus.: since ca. 1910. Baker.

what's the time? A juvenile c.p., dating from the 1880s (but by 1940 rather ob.) and directed, from cover, at a man whose feet are wide-spread as he walks. The posture is variously described as ten to two (o'clock), (a) quarter to three and (a) quarter to one, this last being in the Dict. and requiring to be dated back to ca. 1885.

what's the time by your gold watch and chain? A facetious elab. of 'What's the time?': ca. 1880–1914. (Leechman, 1969.) Cf. H. Samuel..., q.v.

what's this blown in? Whom have we here?: contemptuous c.p.: from ca. 1905. (W.L. George, The Making of an Englishman, 1914.) Cf. look what the cat's brought in.

what's this – Bush Week? See what do you think this is ... what's this in aid of? See what's it in aid of?

what's to pay? A c.p. of ca. 1796–1810, a sort of charm in every situation or predicament or against every misfortune. (Frederick Reynolds, Fortune's Fool, 1796: Miss Patricia Sigl.) See DCpp. for expansion.

what's up? What is the matter? What's wrong?: coll.: late (? mid)-C.19–20. A c.p. rejoinder is 'The sky'—or, now and then, 'Prices'. (Petch, 1966.) In ref. to someone or -thing, always what's up with (e.g. you, it)?

what's up, Doc? US c.p. popularised in UK by the cinema and TV cartoons 'starring' the crazy rabbit Bugs Bunny, who breaks off from chewing a carrot to inquire 'Mnyeh ... what's up, Doc' as a taunt to pursuers: since early 1960s. An elab. of prec.

what's what; orig. and gen. prec. by know, tell w. w. belonging to C.17–20, understand w. w. to C.18–20, and guess, show and perceive w. w. to C.19–20. 'To have [etc.] knowledge, taste, judgement, or experience; to be wide-awake..., equal to any emergency, "fly" [q.v.] (F. & H.): coll.: C.15–20. Barnaby Googe, 1563, 'Our wits be not so base, / But what we know as well as you / What's what in every case.' See also KNOW, in Appendix.

what's (something, or that) when it's at home? See when it's at home.

what's with (someone or -thing)? In what's with (e.g. him)?, it is a version of what's up with (him); but in what's with (e.g. the dinner-jacket)? it = Why are you (e.g. wearing one)?: adopted ex US, this idiosyncratic s. usage > gen. only ca. 1970, but I've heard it a decade or two earlier. R.S. cites the Daily Telegraph mag., 7 Dec. 1974, and adds, 'A literal translation of coll. Ger. was ist mit..., presumably via Yiddish.'

what's yer fighting weight; ... Gladstone weight? I'm your man if you want to fight! Cockney': ca. 1883–1914; 1885–6 (ex politics). Ware.

what's your beef? What are you complaining about?; also what's his, her, their, etc., beef?: adopted from N. America, mid-C.20.

what's your poll to-day. How much have you earned to-day?: printers': from ca. 1870. Ware, 'From numbers on a statement of wages'.

what's yours? See DRINKS, in Appendix.

what's yours is mine – and what's mine is me own (or what's mine I'm keeping!) A joc. comment upon have-it-all-ways greed and selfishness: since late C.19. In C.20 applied esp. to the practice (as opp. the theory) of socialism.

whatsename, whatsiname; occ. whatsername. Slurred what's-his-name (etc.), q.v. Cf.:-

whatsie. A shortened var. of prec.: Aus.: since ca. 1950. (B.P.)

whatsit. A shortened var. of what's-its-name.: since late C.19. Often, though by no means exclusively, a euph. for the lavatory.

whatsomever. Whatever, whatsoever (adj.): C.15–20: S.E. until C.19, then dial. and increasingly illiterate coll. The forms whatsom(e)dever, whatsumdever, mid-C.19–20, are sol.

whatter (occ. what-er or whater), a. A what, a what-did-you-say: C.20. "Yesterday I saw a dinosaur, Jim." "You saw a—a whatter, Bill?"

whatty; occ. whatesy. The same as whatter: low: late C.18–mid-19. Ware derives it from an anecdote about George III, whose English was not perfect.

wheadle, wheedle, n. As a wheedler, prob. S.E. from the beginning, but as a sharper it is prob. c.: ca. 1670–1830, but ob. by 1720. (Wycherley, 1673; B.E.) Whence, cut a wheedle (wheedle), 'to Decoy, by Fawning and Insinuation' (B.E.): c. of ca. 1690–1830. Ex:-

wheadle, whed(d)le (C.17), wheedle, v. In its usual senses, it may, orig., have been s., as The Century Dict. suggests, ex Ger. wedeln. Blount records it in 1661.—2. Whiddle in its c. sense (q.v.), of which it is a var.: c. of ca. 1700–20. OED.

wheat belt. A prostitute: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) With an erotic pun on harvesting. Cf. endless belt.

wheelie, n. and v. See wheadle.

wheelie the tire off a cart—(or cart's) wheel, can or be able to. To be extremely persuasive: non-aristocratic coll.:—1887 (Baumann).

wheel. A 5-shilling piece: C.19. Extant in NZ, however, for the sum of 5 shillings.—2. A dollar: late C.18—early 19. (Tufts.) Both, however, mainly as cart-wheel, q.v.—3. A motorcar: since ca. 1959. Nicholas Blake, The Sad Variety, 1964, 'The Leake character gave us a ride in his wheel.'—4. Someone important, esp. in an enterprise, whether licit or illicit: Can.: adopted, in late 1940s, ex US Daily Colonist 16 Apr. 1967, 'Poor old Robin Hood may have been a wheel in Sherwood Forest, but he would have had to call it quits [nowadays]'—'because,' as Dr Leechman remarks, 'of the cost of modern first-rate archery tackle'. By later C.20 also Brit.: see quo'tn at T.C.I.C.; see also big wheel, which it shortens.—4. See grease the wheel; keep a cart on the w.; enough on (one's) plate; had one but the w...

wheel, v. To 'cycle': coll.: 1884 (OED); rare after WW1. Cf. wheeler, 1.—2. (Of the police) to convey (a 'drunk') in a cab to the police station: low:—1909; † by 1920. Ware (at barred).—3. To be devious; wheeling cock, a shifty fellow: ca. 1810–70. Hence n. and v. wheeling: both occur in Bill Truck, Dec. 1825, p. 77. Cf. US wheeler-dealer.—4. See Wheeled.

wheel-band in the nick. 'Regular Drinking over the left Thumb' (B.E.): drinking: late C.17—early 19. (Grose, 1st ed.) Contrast and cf. supernaculum.

Wheel 'em Along. The captured French warship Ville de Milan: naval: early C.19. (Basil Hall, Voyages, 1831.) By Hobson-Jobson.

wheel 'em up. To bowl: cricket coll.: late C.19—20. Cf. trundle, q.v.

wheel him in! Show him in: c.p.: since late 1950s. P.B.: Services' (? mainly army) well before then, usu. applied to a man up before his superior officer on a disciplinary charge: 'All right, Sergeant-major—wheel him in!', or 'Before he knew what was happening, he'd been wheeled in and given 14 days' jankers.' Cf. next, and wheel, v., 2. See wheeled, 1.

wheel it on! Bring it on, or in; let's have it: orig. (ca. 1939) RAF; by 1950, fairly gen. Orig. in ref. to aircraft.

wheel-man or -woman; or as one word. A cyclist: coll.: 1874 (-man): ob. Also, for the former, knight of the wheel; very ob. coll. Cf. wheeler, q.v.—2. 'Expert driver of a motor car' (Powis): c., as also is the sense 'driver of a getaway car' (Underworld): since 1930s.

wheel-of-life. The treadmill: prison c.: ca. 1870–1910. Cf. everlasting staircase.

wheel up. (Usu. be wheeled up.) To bring (someone) before the officer commanding: army: C.20. (F. & G.) P.B.: but see date for wheeled, 1.

wheelbarrow. 'A bullock waggon laden with supplies for convicts working in the bush or country' (B., 1942): Aus.: ca. 1820–70.—2. For drunk as a wheelbarrow, see DRINKS, in Appendix; see go to heaven in a wheelbarrow.

wheelbarrows. A coll. synon. of travelling piquet: mid-C.19–20.

wheeled. Brought before one's officer commanding on a disciplinary charge: army. N.W. Bancroft, From Recruit to Staff Sergeant, 1885, writes of a drunken Irishman, 'Barney', who was a great favourite, and could take liberties for which another would be wheeled.' Cf. wheel, v., 2; but consider also the drill involved, which usu. contains at least two 'wheels': the sergeant-major gives the orders. 'Prisoner and escort, 'shun! Right turn! Quick march... right wheel, left wheel, mark time, halt! Right turn!' to bring the accused face to face with his OC. Later extended to wheel up, q.v. (P.B.)—2. Conveyed in a cab: lower classes': late C.19—early 20. Ware.

wheeler. A cyclist: coll.:—1887 (Baumann); rare after WW1.—2. A landing on the front wheel: RAF: from ca. 1938.

P-G-R.—3. As Wheeler, 'inevitable' nickname of men surnamed Johnson: army: early C.20. F. & G.

wheeler-dealer. In the sense of 'an adroit, quick-witted, scheming person; a person with many business or social interests' (W. & F.) it has been adopted ex US: later C.20 (L.A., 1974.) Also adj., wheeling-dealing, and the activity wheeling-and-dealing.

wheelie, -y. Esp. in do a wheelie, as in 'three youths on mopeds... were doing "wheelies"—revving up their engines and using the power to lift the front wheels' (Loughborough Echo, 12 Mar. 1976): later C.20. Also, of course, applied to motorcycles, and even to pedal-cycles. Mrs Barbara Huston told me, 1979, that she had heard a child describe a kitten up on its hind legs as 'doing cat-wheelies?' (P.B.)—2. Such a rapid acceleration of a motorcar as to cause the driving wheels to slip: Aus. motorists': since ca. 1965. (B.P.) wheeling, n. See wheel, v.

wheelman. See wheel-man.

wheels. A motorcar: var. of wheel, n., 3; coll.: since late 1960s. (Hawke.) Also Aus. (B.P., 1977).—2. See grease the wheels; tongue is well hung; and: wheels down! Get ready; esp., ready to leave train, tram, bus: RAF: since ca. 1937. H. & P., 'Taken from the lowering of the undercarriage... necessary to enable a modern 'plane to make a good landing.' Cf. land wheels up, to slip, lit. or fig.: id: 1941+.

wheeze, n. A theatrical 'gag', esp. if frequently repeated: circus and theatrical s. (in C.20, coll. and fairly gen.): in nuance 'a circus clown's joke' it occurs in All the Year Round, 16 Nov. 1861. Ex the act of wheezing; perhaps because clowns often affect a wheezy enunciation. In Lancashire dial, as early as 1873 is the sense, 'an amusing saying; a humorous anecdote' (EDD). Hence, crack (one's) wheeze, to speak one's patter: clowns': mid-C.19—20.—2. Hence, a c.p., esp. if often repeated; an 'antiquated fabrication' (W.): 1890 (Spectator, 17 May: OED). Hence crack a wheeze, 'To originate (or adapt) a smart saying at a "psychological" moment' (F. & H.): late C.19—early 20.—3. Hence, a frequently employed trick or dodge: from ca. 1895. Like sense 2, s. >, ca. 1920., coll.—4. A 'tip' (information); gen. the wheeze, esp. in give (a person) the wheeze (cf. give the whisper—see whisper, n.): C.20: c. >, by 1930, low s. Cf. the v., which is the possibly imm. origin.—5. Anything remarkable: Seaford Preparatory School: from ca. 1930. Ex senses 3, 4. Also wheeze.—6. A smart idea: RN: early C.20. (Musings, 1912, p. 55; Taffrail, Pincher Martin, 1916.) P.B.: but also schoolboys': earlier C.20. E.g. 'I say, what a cracking good wheeze!'; ex sense 3. Cf. Wheezers..., q.v.

wheeze, v. To give information, to peach: c.: later C.19—early 20. B. & L.; F. & H.

wheezier. A phonograph: music-halls': 1897–8. Ware.

Wheezers and Dodgers, the. The Admiralty's Department of Miscellaneous Weapons Development: RN: WW2. (Gerald Pawle, The Secret War, 1976.) Ex wheeze, n., 3 and 6, and the initials. (P.B.)

Wheezey. The French Revolution month, Vendémiaire (late Sept.—mid-Oct.): journalistic: ca. 1890–1910. Ex the colds so often contracted during this period. F. & H. wheezy; occ. weezy, adj. Remarkable, very fine: Seaford Preparatory School: from ca. 1930. Ex wheeze, n., 5.

Whelan the Wrecker. As in, e.g., 'It looks as though W. the W. was here', an Aus. phrase applied to a room: an office, in great disorder: since (?) ca. 1970. Mrs C. Raab, 1977: 'from a famous firm of demolition contractors who pull down city centres'.

whelk. The female pudend: proletarian Cockney: from ca. 1860. Anatomical. Whence the innuendo-c.p., comically threatening, I'll have your whelk: 1870s.—2. A sluggish fellow: Cockneys': late C.19–20. (Manchon.) Cf. Fr. mollusque.

whelk-stall. See no way to run a whelk-stall.

whelks behind a window-pane (, like). Phrase applied to the appearance of the eyes of anyone unfortunate enough to have to wear very thick-lensed spectacles: earlier C.20. Cf. bottle-bottoms. (P.B.)

whelp. To be delivered of a child: low coll.: late C.19—early 20. Cf. pup, which is far from being ob.—2. 'To fail to finish a "cut" in time to be reckoned in the current week's wages' (EDD): Lancashire weavers' s.: (?) C.18—19.

whelpie. A child: market traders': C.20. (M.T.) Cf. prec., 1.
when. Lol; see now!; then, mark you!: coll.:—1887. Baumann, 'When up comes a chap with a basket on his shoulder'.—2. See say when!

when Adam was an oakum-boy in Chatham Dockyard. Indefinitely long ago: ca. 1860—1900. H., 3rd ed. Cf.:

when Christ was a child. The same: C.20.

when coppers wore high hats. A long while ago: Cockney coll.: C.20; ob. I.e. policemen.

when do we laugh? See joke over!

when do you shine? What time have you been called for?: Can. railroadmen's:—1931. Cf. rise and shine!

when donkeys wore high hats. A long time ago: Londoners': since ca. 1920. Cf. when coppers...

when ever; loosely whenever. In questions, an emphatic form of when: from ca. 1710: S.E. until mid-C.19, then coll. E.g., 'When ever did you arrive, old man?'—2. In or whenever: either a shortening of 'or whenever you like', as 'We could go on Friday—or whenever', or, used like or whatever, an avoidance of a tedious listing of suggested times: since mid-1970s. Prob. ex the pattern of or whatever. (P.B.)

when father says 'Turn!', we all turn. A political c.p. of ca. 1906—8 (Collinson). But, as L.A. points out, it soon > 'a c.p. of father's authority as head of the house, or wife's tribute to, or mockery of, husband's domination'. Ex a political cartoon caption.

when hens make holy water. Never: coll. c.p.: C.17. See quot'n at Never-mass.

when I come into my Yorkshire estates. See Yorkshire estate.

when I joined the RAF,... The Services have many c.p. 'grips', taunts from longer-serving men to the comparatively newly joined; two well-worn RAF examples are ... Pontius Pilate was still at ITW [Initial Training Wing, where pilots do their elementary course], and ... we didn't have numbers, we all knew (each other or one another)! The latter is also army, where another equivalent is my first charge was for having a dirty bow-string. Cf. 'way back when ...; before you came up; get your number dry!; when Pontius ...

when I say 'shit!' – (you) jump on the shovel. An army and MN c.p. of the 1940s—60s. Alignable with like shit off a shovel: RN: id. Both imply fast, 'slippery'". (Peppitt.) The 'when...' phrase is drill-instructors' contemptuous; also attrib., as when he says... (P.B.)

when it's at home. A derivative tag implying contempt or incredulity: coll.: C.20. Best explained by a quot'n: Dorothy L. Sayers, Have His Carcase, 1932, 'Haemophilia. What in the name of blazes is that, when it's at home?' P.B.: also applied to persons, who's (he or she), when he (etc.).

when my ship comes in. See when the plate-fleet...

when my wife is here, she's my right hand; when my wife is away, my right hand is my wife. A c.p. applied to masturbation: C.20.

when pigs fly. Never: coll.: C.17—early 20. Withals, in his Dict., defines terra volat as 'pigs fly in the ayre with their tayles forward.' (Cf. blue moon, Greek kalends, Queen Dick, three Mondays in a week, etc.) In C.19—20, much less common than the S.E. pigs might fly!, perhaps!

when Pontius was a pilot (and Nero was his navigator). A long time ago: RAF: since ca. 1935. Cf. when Pontius Pilate was only second dicky (see second dickie, 2); see also when I joined...

when push comes to shove. When worse comes to worst: orig. US prostitutes; some UK usage in later C.20.

when (or if) rape is (or be) inevitable – lie back and enjoy it. A c.p. of encouragement in the face of an unavoidable unpleasantness: since ca. 1950. A mock 'Confucianism', sometimes introduced by Confucius, he say... or well, you know what Confucius said...

when roses are red (significant pause). An elliptical c.p., meaning that when girls attain the age of sixteen, they are no longer too young for sexual intercourse: perhaps orig. Aus., as E.P. suggests, but in UK for ever linked with the name of Max Miller (1895—1963), the comedian, 'The Cheeky Chap-pie', (? apocryphally) banned from BBC broadcasting in the 1930s for ending his 'turn' with the very widely known couplet 'when roses are red they are ready for plucking; when girls are sixteen they are ready for—Goodnight, ladies and gentlemen!' Cf. the C.20 c.p. familiar to English speakers all over the world: if they are big enough, they are old enough.

when she bumps she bounces. Occ. independent c.p., but usu. as 'dovetail' to what ho! she bumps, q.v.

when (name of person) suffers, everybody suffers. 'A c.p. used when a person with a cold, etc., makes everyone else miserable' (B.P.): Aus. c.p.: since ca. 1930.

when the devil is blind. Never; most improbably: coll.: mid-C.17—early 20. (Howell; Scott.) Cf., e.g., once in a blue moon.

when the (bloody) Duke (or Dook) puts his (bloody) foot down, the (bloody) war will be bloody well over. A 62nd Division c.p. of WWI. Ex the Divisional sign, a pelican with upraised right foot. (F. & G.) I.e., a Northern pron. of duck.

when the goose pisses (earlier pisseth, and often prec. by you'll be good), Never: coll.: C.18—early 20. Cf. such a reason...

when the maggot bites. At one's sweet will: coll.: late C.17—19. L'Estrange.

when the Plate fleet comes in. When I make or get a fortune: coll.: ca. 1690—1830. B.E., Grose. The Plate fleet was that which carried to Spain the annual yield of the American silver-mines. Cf. the C.19—20. when my ship comes in.

when two Sundays come together (or meet). Never: semi-proverbial coll.: early C.17—early 20. (Haughton, 1616; Ray.) Cf. the Shropshire the first Sunday in the middle of the week; St Tibb's Eve; week, 2, q.v. Apperson.

when you dance in France, the last drop always goes down your pants. A low Aus. c.p., dating from ca. 1955 and having three 'operative words' pron. dahnce—Frahnce—pahnts in derision of those who say dahnce and Frahnce, regarded by most Australians as affected, even though they say bahstard and cahstrated. (B.P.) 'An American (U.S.) artist gave me this version ca. 1925: "No matter how much you may wiggle and dance/The last drop invariably falls in your pants." There was nothing of the long "a" in his version.' (Leechman, 1967). And R.S. adds, 1972: 'In Cambridge in the 1920s I met an "educated" version (allegedly in the style of Pope), which did not, however, reflect on the pronunciations of -a-: "Shake as you will, the last drop ever lags: "Tis very sure to fall inside your bags".'

when you were... There are many c.p. for 'when you were a child, boy, baby, or even before that...'; a few are: when you were wearing short (or, intensively, three-cornered) pants: Aus.: since ca. 1920 (B.P.); when you were just a gleam (or twinkle) in your father's eye; or, more directly, when you were running up and down your father's backbone; Alex Buzo, 1970, in his play The Front Room Boys, has the Aus.: 'I was out the back o' Bourke when you were a dirty look': C.20; when your mother was cutting bread on you; when you were cutting bread and jam (I was cutting barbed wire): army: WWI. See before you came up.

when you're on a good thing, stick to it! A self-explanatory c.p., dating from ca. 1920. That is the sole form in the Brit. Dominions; in Brit. itself, on to or onto is much commoner than on.

when (or while) you're talking about me, you're giving somebody else a rest. A c.p. implying slander: mostly Can.:—1949.

when you've got to go, you've got to go. (Usu. pron. when you gotta go, you gotta go.) Orig. US, popularised by 'Western' films, a philosophical approach to death, but now a parody of 'duty calls!', and trivialised for, e.g., a visit to the toilet. Cf. the line, also ex 'Westerns', a man's gotta do what a man's gotta do: later C.20. See DCpp.

whenever. See when ever.

where, with from or to at end of sentence. The coll. equivalents of whence and whither: mid-C.18–20 for both, no doubt. Henry Brooke, 1760, 'I must go suddenly, but where to?'; Dickens, 1835 (where... from). OED.

where (I, we, etc.) came in. See this is where I came in. where did that one go? A military c.p. (1915–18) in ref. to a shell-burst (near by). B. & P. Short for 'Where did that one go to, Herbert/Where did that one go?', which comes from a popular war-time song.

where did they dig him up (from)? A comment on an odd-looking newcomer in, e.g., a bar: since the 1920s. (Petch, 1974.) Implying that he acts like a zombie.

where did you get that hat? A c.p. of ca. 1885–1914. Ex a popular song. ('Quotations' Benham.) Cf. who's your hatter? P.B.: but the quot'n, often with it's couplet, ... where did you get that tile?, lingers on into later C.20.

where did you get the Rossa? I.e. the borrowed plumes: 1885 only. Ex a New York police trial. Ware.

where do flies go in the winter time? A c.p. of ca. 1910–40. Ex a popular song. A Swanage hotel's advertisement in the Spectator; 13 Sep. 1935, borrowed the phrase as an eye-catching 'opener'.

where do you think you are – on Daddy's yacht? See daddy's yacht.

where ever; loosely wherever. In questions, an emphatic form of where: C.13–20: S.E. until C.19, then coll. (OED). Cf. what ever and when ever, qq.v.

where has he (or it, etc.) got to? What has become of it, him, etc.? From ca. 1885: s. in C.19, then coll. Jerome K. Jerome, Three Men in a Boat.

where have you been all my life? Exaggerated flattery, a preliminary in the first 'chatting-up' stage of a courtship; thence, always joc., in other contexts: adopted, ex US, ca. 1942. See esp. DCpp.

where it's at. The exact locality (the locus)—the true centre—of a situation or an incident: mostly counter-culture: adopted, ca. 1972, ex US. Landy, 1971, compares it with nitty-gritty.

where Maggie wore the beads. 'In the neck', i.e. disagreeably, disastrously; a c.p. of ca. 1905–25. W. (at neck). Cf. where the chicken got the axe.

where men are men. This cliché is often capped by ... and women are glad of it or... and women like it (that way): C.20. Moe notes the US var. ... and women are double-breasted.

where (or out where) the bull feeds (or gets his bleeding, or bloody, breakfast). In the outback—remote country districts: Aus. c.p.: C.20. B., 1942.

where the chicken got the axe. I.e. 'in the neck'; severely, disastrously, fatally: a c.p. dating from ca. 1896; slightly ob. by 1930. (W.) Cf. where Maggie wore the beads.

where the deception took place. A c.p. applied to courtship and marriage: C.20. A joc. ref. to 'where the reception took place'. (Petch, 1966.)

where the dirty work's done. 'Office, workshop or room where any work or business is carried on. Mostly used jocularly' (Petch, 1946): coll.: since ca. 1919.

where the dogs don't bite (, the place). Prison; in prison: c., mostly London: later C.19—early 20. (A. Morrison, A Child of the Jago, 1896.) Cf. where the coaches won't run over him.

where the flies won't get it. (Of liquor) down one's throat: c.p.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1912. Ware.

where the five'n'arf...? where in the name of God (e.g. have you been?): rhyming s., on rod (pole, or perch)=5½ yards: C.20. (Petch, 1976.) 'Where the five'n'arf you been, y' little skunk?' (J.D. Strange, The Price of Victory, 1930).

where the monkey shoves (occ. puts) its nuts!, you can shove (occ. put) it or them. A c.p. retort to one who refuses to give a share or hand over something: low: late C.19–20.

Also in the past tense (where the monkey put the nuts). James Joyce, Ulysses, 1922, has the var. where Jacko put the nuts. Cf. stick it!, 2, and where the sergeant...

where the Queen goes on foot or sends nobody. A water closet: low coll.: ca. 1860–1915.

where the sergeant put the pudding!, put it. 'You know what you can do with it': low c.p.: late C.19–20.

where the whips are cracking. In the front line: NZ army: WW1. Ex the activity of cattle-mustering, and the sound of small-arms fire.

whereabouts. Men's underpants: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) A pun on wearabouts.

whereas, follow a. To become a bankrupt: commercial and legal: late C.18—mid-19. Grose, 2nd ed., where also the synonymous march in the rear of a whereas.

where's George? A c.p. applied to any person unexpectedly absent: 1935–6. Ex Messrs Lyons' advertisement-pictures of a vacant stool, etc.

where's the fire? Joc. c.p. addressed to a person in a tearing hurry: C.20. See DCpp.

where's the war? A c.p. directed at a street wrangle: London streets': 1900–1. Ex scattered fighting in Boer War. (Ware.) Cf. come to the Russian war!, q.v.

where's your violin? An Aus. c.p., implying that a haircut is needed: since late 1940s. (B.P.) Ex tradition that male musicians wear their hair long. P.B.: Brit. Forces' NCOs were asking this, and similar heavily sarcastic questions with ref. to 'bleedin' musicians', of recruits with the barest hint of stubble showing at the nape ('What's under your beret you can keep; what's left is the army's!'), during WW2 and the years following.

wherewith; wherewithal. 'The necessary', esp. money: resp. rare coll. († by 1910) and dial.; coll., as first in Malkin, 1809, 'How the devil does she mean that I should get the wherewithal?... Does she take me for... treasurer to a charity?'

wherret. A blow: 1703 (Ned Ward: Matthews) wherry-go-nimble. Diarrhoea: lower classes:—1904 (F. & H.) Perhaps the old Cockney pron. of very, influenced by Jerry-go-nimble.

whet (one's) knife on the threshold of the Fleet, (one) may. One is not in debt: coll.: ca. 1650–1800. Fuller in his Worthies; Grose in his Provincial Glossary. The ref. is to the Fleet Prison (London), where debtors used to be imprisoned. (Apperson.)

whet (one's) whistle. See whistle, n.

Whetstone(s) Park deer or mutton. A 'Whetstone whore': London fast life: ca. 1670–1700. Ex Whetstones Park, 'a Lane betwixt Holborn and Lincolns-Inn-fields, fam'd for a Nest of Wenches, now de-park'd' (B.E.): the district was notorious at least as early as 1668. See esp. Grose, P. whetting-corn(e). The female pudend.:? C.17—mid-19. (Halliwell.) Lit., grindstone.

whew, the. Sir H. Maxwell, in Notes & Queries, 10 Dec. 1901, says that in C.15 the influenza was app. known as 'the Whew' just as, in early C.20, it is known as 'the Fluë'. (Mainly Scots) coll. and gen. spelt Quewo.

whiblin. This C.17 word (unrecorded later than 1652) is explained by F. & H. as a eunuch and, in c., a sword; by OED as perhaps 'thingumbob'. Perhaps ex whibble + quiblin.

which, 'in vulgar use, without any antecedent, as a mere connective or introductory particle' (OED): C.18 (and prob. earlier)-20. Often it is wholly superfluous; often, however, it = for, because; very often it = besides, moreover; and, occ., it = although. Swift, 1723, Mary the Cook-Maid's Letter, 'Which, and I am sure I have been his servant four years since October,/And he never call'd me worse than sweetheart, drunk or sober' (OED); J. Storer Clouston, 1932, 'So now they goes and dresses up as Sir Felix, which he were become a knight, and no one could tell them apart from one another,' an example less pregnant than these two in Dorothy L. Sayers, Unnatural Death, 1927: 'Ironsides... a clerk on the Southern, which he always used to say joking like, "Slow but safe, like the Southern—that's me"; 'I believe the gentleman acted with the best intentions, 'avin' now seen 'im, which at first I thought he was a wrong 'un.' Ex pleonastic which, as in Locke's 'Provisions... which how much they exceed the other in value... he will then see' (OED).

which way. See every which way.

which way (one) is playing. Esp. not to know..., to ask which..., not to know, to ask about, the accepted procedure or the agreed arrangements: mostly Services': since ca. 1935. Ex 'soccer'? See also KNOW, in Appendix.

which would you rather – or go fishing? See what shall we do...?, and cf.:-

which would you rather be – or a wasp? London school-children's c.p. of ca. 1905–14. Julian Franklyn compares or would you rather be a fish?, and adds, 'So far as I remember, there was no standard reply.' P.B.: the usage was more widespread and lasted longer than E.P. allows; prob. still current 1983.

whid, whidd(e), n. A word: c.—1567; ob. by 1930. (Harman; B.E.; Grose; Reade.) It prob. derives ex. O.E. cwide, a word, though influenced by word itself. Cf. the debased American woid, which orig. represented a Jewish pron. Scholarly opinion has, since ca. 1945, strongly opposed the Jewish origination of woid. (Claiborne, 1966.) Hence in crack a whid, C.19—early 20 c. (Vaux)=to talk, a late var. of cut the whid or cut whids, also c., resp. C.19 (rare: Ainsworth), and mid-C.16—early 20. Mostly in cut bene (or bien) whids, to speak fairly, kindly, or courteously, and cut queer whids, to speak roughly or discourteously, or to use blasphemous or obscene language: c.: resp. (? only) C.19 and rare (1821, Scott; 1861, Reade, 'Thou cuttest whids'); and, both bene and queer, mid-C.16—mid-19.—2. Speech: c. (—1823) >, by 1860, low. Bee, "'Hold your whid," is to stow magging'.—3. 'A word too much' (H., 3rd ed.): mid-C.19—early 20: s.; closely linked with dial. whid, a lie, an exaggerated story.—4. Hence, in c. verging on low s., talk, patter, jocular speech, jest: likewise only in pl. Hindley, 1876, The Life of a Cheap Jack, 'The whids we used to crack over them'.—5. A broken-winded horse: horse-copers' c.: mid-C.19—20. ('No. 747'.) I.e. a 'roarer': cf. sense 2.

whid, v.i. To talk cant: Scots c.:—1823 (Egan's Grose). Ex n., 1, 2.

whidd, whidde. See whid, n. and v.

widdle; in C. 18, occ. wheadle (wheedle), q.v. at v., 2, and whidel, whidle, and widdle; see also whittle. V.i. and v.t. To tell; to peach; to impeach: from the Restoration; ob. The OED records it at 1661; not gen., I think, before the 1680s or 90s; B.E.; Grose; Vaux.—Perhaps ex whid, n., 1, 2.—2. Hence, to enter into a parley, esp. if nefarious: c.:—1725 (A New Canting Dict.); H., 2nd ed.; ob.—3. Hence, to 'hesitate with many words' (H., 1st ed.): mid-C.19—early 20. Either c. or low s.: cf. whid, n., 3.—4. See Oliver; widdle.

whiddle beef. To cry 'thieft!': c.: late C.17—mid-19. (B.E., Grose.) Perhaps more commonly cry or give (hot) beef, q.v. at beef, n., 6.

whiddler. An informer to the police; a blabber of the gang's secrets: c.: late C.17—early 20. (B.E., Grose.) Ex whiddle, v. 1. whiff, n. A signal from a ship in convoy to the commodore: naval: 1832 (Fredk. Chamier, The Life of a Sailor, II, 51: Moe).—2. (A whiff of) oxygen: RAF coll.: since ca. 1935. Jackson.

whiff, v. To smell unpleasantly: coll.: since ca. 1875, at latest. (R. Kipling, Stalky & Co., 1899.) Ex the corresponding S.E. n.; but cf. synon. niff.

whiff, adj. Stinking, malodorous: low:—1923 (Manchon). More usu. whiffy (1905: OED): gen. s.

whiff out. To cause (e.g. a room) to stink: mostly Aus.: since ca. 1920. (Ross Campbell, 1964.) whifing, vbl n. Catching a mackerel with hooked line and brilliant object: nautical: C.19. (Bowen.) Perhaps ex whiff, a flat-fish, etc.

whiffle, n. A blow, a punch: C.19. Bill Truck, Sep. 1823, 'a smacking whiffle over the sconce'. Echoic.

whiffled. Tippy: ca. 1930. R.S., 1973, suggests, 'perhaps ex S.E. whiffle, to veer, to shift about haphazardly. Influenced by whistled.' P.B.: or a drunken attempt at synon. whistled, or ex prec., or merely fanciful.

whifflegig. Trifling: coll.: 1830, H. Lee, 'Whiffle-gig word-snappers' (OED). Presumably ex (mainly dial.) whiffle, to talk idly. Cf. whiffmagig.

whiffler. One who examines candidates for degrees: Oxford and Cambridge: ca. 1785–1830. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Ex the official sense.

whiffles. 'A relaxation of the scrotum' (Grose, 1st ed.): ca. 1780–1850.

whiffmagig. A trifler; a shifty or contemptible fellow: 1871 (Meredith: OED); ob. A var. of whiffler in these senses. Cf. whifflegig, q.v.

whiffs and a spit, take two. To smoke a little, have a short smoke, a pull: lower classes' coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Cf. a spit and a drag or draw.

whiffy. See whiff, adj.

Whig. The opp. of Tory, q.v. In the second sense, i.e. an opponent to Tory=a Conservative, the word dates from 1689, prob. began as s. and soon > coll. and then S.E.; ca. 1850, it was superseded by Liberal. Ultimately ex Whiggamer, Whiggamore. F. & H.; OED.—2. An irresolute person; a turncoat: middle classes': 1860–9. Ex the Whigs' temporising at that period. Ware.

Whig College, the. The Reform Club: political nickname: ca. 1845–1910. John Bull, 29 Apr. 1848, 'The Whig College, commonly called the Reform Club'.

Whigland. Scotland: ca. 1680–1830. (Flatman, B.E., Grose.) Because the 'home' of Whigs. Whence Whiglander (gen. pl), a Scotsman: same period.

while. See quite a while.

while there's life there's soap. Joc. c.p. var. of the old proverb: earlier C.20. I.e. ... hope. P.B.: perhaps influenced by the well-known Lifebuoy brand of soap.

whiles, when not deliberately archaic and 'literary', is, in late C.19–20, considered a somewhat illiterate coll. for while. Baumann.

whilk. Esp. in giddy whilk, a light-headed, silly girl: Cockneys':—1923 (Manchon, who misspells it wilk). A corruption of whelk, q.v. at giddy kipper.

whim; whim-wham. The female pudend: C.18; C.18—early 20. Lit., 'fanciful object'—but cf. synon. quim.

whim-wham for a goose's bridle or for ducks to perch on (, making a). Evasive 'put-offs' in answer to inquisitive 'What are you doing?' or 'what's that?' (Ducks cannot perch.) See weaving leather aprons.

Whimsicals, the. A group of Tories temp. Queen Anne: coll. nickname: 1714 (Swift: OED).

whine, (be) on the. (To be) querulous, given to whining: coll.: C.20. Heard in conversation, early 1979—and that reminded me of its existence since as early as 1904. P.B.: this was one of E.P.'s last 'home-grown', as opp. 'book-found', entries for this Dict. He sent the note to me in Jan. 1979, when he was already almost bed-ridden, and I'm sure a friend must have said to him, 'I've never heard you be on the whine', for he was uncomplaining and stoical to the very end.

whiners. Prayers, esp. in chop the whiners, to pray: c.: C.18–20; ob. (A New Canting Dict., 1725; 1830, Bulwer Lytton.) Ex whine, v.: lit., therefore, words that whine.—2. Whence, speech, 'gab', esp. in chop whiners, to talk: low: mid-C.19—early 20. Punch, 31 Jan. 1857.

whingding. See wing-ding.

whinge; -ger; -ging. See winge.

whingey. See wingey.

whinn. An occ. C.19 spelling of win, n., 1. Bee.

whiny. Given to whining: NZ coll.: late C.19–20. (Ruth Park, The Witch's Thorn, 1952.) P.B.: also Brit.: C.20. Often applied to a whining voice.

whip, n. Money subscribed by a mess for additional wine: Services' coll.:—1864. Ex whip, now whip-round (H., 5th ed., 1874), an appeal for money.—2. A compositor quick at his work: printers':—1890 (B. & L.). Cf. whip, a coachman.—3. A bustle, busyness: nautical coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Cf. S.E. v., whip around (v.i.).—4. Rum, the drink: Aus.: since ca. 1920. Nino Culotta, Gone Fishin', 1963.—5. In drink or lick on the whip, to receive a thrashing; coll.: C.15–16. Resp. Gascoigne and The Townley Mysteries.—6. See fair crack of the whip; old whip; balloon, 3.

whip, v. To drink quickly; gen. whip off; occ. in late C.17–18, whip up. C.17–early C.20. Deloney, B.E., Grose. OED.—2. Gen. whip through. To pierce with a sword, esp. in whip through the lungs: late C.17–mid-19. B.E.—3. To swindle (v.t.): c.: late C.19–20; ob. Cf. military flog and whip off. Superseded by:—4. Hence, to steal: since ca. 1917. (Gerald Kersh, Clean, Bright and Slightly Oiled, 1946.) P.B.: in later C.20 > gen. coll., though still rather low.

whip (someone) a cripple, as in 'The C.O.'ll whip him a cripple all right', pass a heavy sentence on: army: since ca. 1930. Proleptic. (P-G-R.) Contrast slip her a crippler, to coit with a woman.

whip-and-ginger man. A horse-dealer: Leicestershire s. (not dial.): earlier C.20. Ex two 'dodges' used by horse-copers as enslavers of the horses they wish to sell.

whip-arse. A schoolmaster: coll.: C.17. (Cotgrave.) Cf. bum-brusher.

whip-belly; w.-b. vengeance. Thin weak liquor, esp. 'swipes': C.19–20; C.18–19. Swift; Grose, 2nd ed., with var. pinch-gut vengeance; Halliwell (whip-belly).

whip-cat, n. A tailor: 1851 (Mayhew: OED). See whip the cat, n., and v., whip-cat, adj. Drunken: s. or coll.: late C.16–early 17. Ex whip the cat, v., 1.

whip-handle. An insignificant little man: Scots: C.17. Urquhart.

whip-her-jenny. See whipperginnie.

whip-jack. A beggar pretending to be a distressed, esp. a shipwrecked, sailor: c.: ca. 1550–1880. (Ponet, ca. 1550; B.E.; Grose; H., 2nd–5th edd.) The semantics are not very clear. Cf. turnpike sailor.

whip off. See whip, v., 1. B.E. gives whip off, to steal, as c.: but surely it is no worse than familiar S.E. Cf. whip, v., 3, 4.

whip-round. See whip, n., 1. Coll. >, by 1920, S.E.

whip-sticks; or W.-S. The Dunaberg-Witepsk shares: Stock Exchange:—1890 (B. & L.).

whip-the-cat, n. An itinerant tailor: mid-C.19–20: Scots s. >, by 1900, coll. (C. Murray, Hamewith, 1910.) Cf. whip-cat, n. Ex sense 4 of-whip the cat, v. To get intoxicated: ca. 1580–1820. Implied by Stonyhurst in 1582; Cotgrave, 1611; 'Water-Poet' Taylor, 1630; Gentleman's Magazine, 1807. (See esp. Apperson.) Synon. with jerk, shoot, the cat.—2. To indulge in a certain practical joke: C.18–19; coll. In C.17–18, draw or pull someone through the water with a cat, as in Jonson's Bartholomew Fair, 1614, in B.E. and in Grose: for an explanation of the origin of the phrases, see Grose.—3. To be extremely mean: dial. (—1825) >, ca. 1860, s.; ob. by 1930.—4. To work as an itinerant tailor (hence, carpenter, etc.), by the day, at private houses: dial. (—1825) >, by 1840, s. or, rather, coll. H., 1st ed.—5. To vomit: low: mid-C.19–20. (EDD.) prob. as a result of sense 1. See also shoot the cat.—6. To idle on Monday: workmen's:—1897 (B. & L.). Ex:—7. To idle at any time: id.:—1823 (Bee); ob. by 1930.—8. To cry over spilt milk; i.e., 'to whip the cat that has spilt the milk' (C.J. Dennis, The Moods of Ginger Mick, glossary, 1916): Aus. coll.: since mid-C.19; Wilkes.—9. To keep up a sustained complaining and grumbling: Aus. coll.: since mid-C.19, as in 'The Cockies of Bungaree' (Aus. trad. ballad): 'And there he sat and whipped the cat, the cockie in Bungaree' (Mrs Camilla Raab). whip the devil or the old gentleman round the post. To achieve illicitly or surreptitiously what can be accomplished honourably or openly: coll.: late C.18–early 20.

whip through; whip up. See whip, v., 2 and 1 resp.

whip up a smart one. To salute smartly; merely to salute: mostly RAF: since ca. 1925. (L.A.) Also sling up; fling up.

whip with a wet boot-lace. To apply an antidote to recalcitrance of the flesh: men's low: C.20.

whipper-in. The horse that, at any moment of the race, is running last: racing s. (from ca. 1890) >, by 1930, coll. Ex hunting. F. & H., 1904, gives whipping-boy in the same sense. whipperginnie, or whip her Ginny or whip-her-ginny. Term of abuse for a woman: late C.16–early 17. (OED.) One who merits 'whip her, Jinny!'

whipping-boy. See whipper-in.

whippy. In the game of hide-and-seek, the starting-out point: Aus., esp. children's: late C.19–20. Origin?

whips. See where the whips... whips of. An abundance: Aus.: C.20. Ex dial. whips, plenty, lots (EDD). Cf. lashings of. Wilkes.

[Whipshire. Yorkshire: late C.17–early 19. B.E.; Grose, 1st ed. I'm none too sure that this should not, in B.E., read Whigshire and that Grose has not copied B.E., for in the former, Whip-shire imm. follows Whig-land.]

whipster. 'A sly, cunning fellow' (B. & L.): c.: C.19–early 20. A deviation ex † S.E. whipster, a mischievous fellow.

whirl. In give it a whirl, to 'have a go', to try something: Can. and Brit., prob. ex US: since ca. 1950. Cf. Aus. synon. give it a burl.—2. In have a whirl!, an insulting c.p. = have a banana! or take a carrot!: Aus.: since late 1940s. Here whirl refers to whirling spray. (B.P.)

whirligig. A gadget, a 'what-d'ye-it': coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Cf. jigger.—2. A Westland Whirlwind fighter: RAF: ca. 1941–5. H. & P.—3. See:- whirligigs, whirlygigs. Testicles: late C.17–early 19. (B.E.) Ex lit. sense.

whirling spray. A Wirraway aircraft: R. Aus. AF: WW2. (B., 1943.) By Hobson-Jobson.—2. A long-winded bore: Aus.: since ca. 1940. (B., 1953.) A fanciful elab. of the idea informing synon. drip.

whirly-bird (or solid). A helicopter: Can. (RCAF and commercial airlines'): since ca. 1950. (Leechman.) By late 1950s, also Brit., esp. RAF. Superseded during 1960s by chopper.—2. A 'Matisa tamping machine' (Railway, 2nd): railwaymen's: since late 1950s.

whishler. A ring-master: circus: mid.-C.19–20. ? ex whish! (a warning).

whisk. A whipper-snapper; (often of a servant) 'a little inconsiderable impertinent Fellow' (B.E.): ca. 1625–1830. (Ford, 1628: OED; Brome, ca. 1653; Grose.) Perhaps ex whisk, a hair-like appendage.

whisker; in C.17–18, occ. wisker. Something excessive, great, very large; esp. a notable lie: 1668 (Wilkins: OED; B.E.; Grose.) In mid-C.19–20, mainly dial. Ex whisk, to move briskly.—2. A girl or young woman: Aus.: since ca. 1921. (B., 1942.) Antiphrastically, but also because 'she's the cat's whiskers'.—3. See mother of that was a whisker; shagged to a thin whisker.—4. In by a whisker, narrowly, esp. in succeed or win by a (thin) whisker: coll.: C.19–20.

whisker-bed. The face: 1853, 'Cuthbert Bede', 'His ivories rattled, his nozzle barked, his whisker-bed napped heavily.' Ob. in C.20.

whisker-splitter; in C.18, occ. wisker. A man given to sexual intrigue: ca. 1785–1840. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Cf. the more gen. beard-splitter.

whiskerando; occ. -os. A man heavily whiskered: joc. coll.: from ca. 1805; ob. by 1930. Thackeray, 'The... whiskerando of a warrior'. Ex Whiskerandos, a character in Sheridan's comedy, The Critic, 1779. Hence, whiskerandoed, (heavily) whiskered: 1838 (Southey).

Whiskeries (or Whiskeyries), the. The Irish Exhibition in London in: 1888: mostly Londoners'. Ware quotes Referee, 10 June 1888. On Colinderies, Fisheries, etc.

whiskers. A whiskerando (q.v.); often loosely of any man, as in the joc. greeting, 'Hallo, Whiskers!': mid-C.19–20.—2. In all my whiskers, nonsense: from ca. 1920. Dorothy L. Sayers, Clouds of Witness, 1926, 'All that stuff about his beard' so upset... was all my whiskers.' On all my eye.—3. In have whiskers (on it), (of a story, an idea) to be well-known, known for years, old: joc. coll.: from ca. 1925. Dorothy L. Sayers, Gaudy Night, 1935.

whiskers down to here, have. Usu., 'He has...': a low c.p.: C.20. Simultaneous with the utterance of here is the placing of the hand upon trousers flap.

whiskery. (Heavily) whiskered: coll. (in C.20, S.E.): from ca. 1860. Ex whiskers, q.v.

whiskey-. See whisky-.

Whiskeyries. See Whiskeries.

whiskeys or whiskies. Shares in the Dublin Distillers' Company: Stock Exchange:—1895 (A.J. Wilson's glossary).

whiskin. A pander: ca. 1630–50. (Brome, 1632.) Cf. pimp-whisk(in). OED.

whisking. (Of persons) briskly moving; lively; smart: coll.: from ca. 1610; ob. by 1860, virtually † by 1920. Middleton & Dekker, 1611, 'What are your whisking gallants to our husbands'; Carlyle, 1824. Ex whisk, to move briskly. OED.—2. Great, very big; excessive: s. (—1673) >, by 1750, coll. >, by 1830, dial. (Head; Grose.) Cf. whisker, q.v.

whisky. The Yellow-Tufted Honey-Eater: Aus. rural: C.20. B., 1943. whisky bottle. A Scotch drunkard: Scots:—1909 (Ware). Ex the typically Scottish drink.

whisky-drinker. 'A type of cicada' (B., 1959): Aus., mostly rural: C.20.

whisky-frisky. Flighty; lightly lively: rare coll.: 1782 (Miss Burney). Cf. whisking, 1.

whisky jack; C.19–20, also whiskey jack; C.18, whiskjack; all three may be hyphenated. 'A popular name for the common gray jay of Canada': Can. coll. verging on S.E.: from ca. 1770. Also whisk(e)y john, or, as for whisky jack, with capitals. The earlier is whisky john, a corruption of Red Indian wiskatjan. OED. (In all the two-word forms, the second element may be capitalised.)

whisky MacDonald. A whisky-and-ginger-wine: orig. Scot.: since ca. 1920. 'And by the 1960s, almost invariably abbreviated to whisky Mac' (R.S., 1967).

whisky racket, the. The offer of printing machinery (and accessories) without the production of bona fides: printers': 1945+. (World's Press News, 10 Jan. 1946.) So often made over a whisky offered by a crook.

whisky-stall. (Gen. pl.) A stall-seat at, or near, the end of a row, enabling the occupant to go out for a drink without inconvenience to himself or his neighbours: journalistic: 1883–ca. 1914. Ware.

whisper, n. 'A tip given in secret'; esp. 'give the whisper, ... to give a quick tip to any one', H., 5th ed., where also the whisper at the post, an owner's final instructions to his jockey': racing: from early 1870s. Cf. weezy, n., 4, q.v. Not surprisingly, used also among criminals and crooks (Frank Norman, Encounter, 1959). Also, loosely, a rumour (Tempest, 1950).—2. In get it on the whisper, 'To buy on hire purchase (because at one time you didn't tell the neighbours you couldn't afford to pay cash)' (John Gosling, 1959): lower and lower-middle classes: since ca. 1920. Cf. v., 1.—3. See angel's whisper; pig's whisper; whisper and talk.

whisper, v.t. To borrow money from (a person); esp. borrow small sums: ca. 1870–1930. (H., 5th ed.) Ex the whisper with which such loans are usually begged.—2. V.i., to make water: preparatory schools': from ca. 1920. Echoic.

whisper and talk. (Often shortened to whisper.) A walk: rhyming s.: late C.19–20. (John Lardner, Strong Cigars and Lovely Women, 1951.) An American, son of the late Ring, J.L. knew much about Bit. s. and was esp. interested in rhyming s.

whisperer. A petty borrower: later C.19—early 20. (H., 5th ed.) Ex whisper, v., 1.—2. A racing tipster: Aus. turf: C.20. (B., 1942.) Cf. whisper, n., 1.

Whispering Death. A sobriquet bestowed upon the Bristol Beaufighter fighter-bomber by the Japanese forces in WW2; ex its ability to deal destruction by approaching fast and low, and so unheard until too late: journalistic, and some RAF use, 1943–5, then historical. (Frank G. Bunn, 'sometime Beaufighter navigator, 603 (City of Edinburgh) Squadron, 1981.) The more gen. RAF name was Beau.—2. See killer, 2.

whispering-gallery. The old Gaiety Bar: theatrical: 1883–ca. 90. Ex whispered request for loans and ex the Whispering Gallery of St. Paul's. Ware.

Whispering Giant, the. The Bristol Britannia airliner: rather journalistic nickname—the aircraft was indeed very quiet for its power and size: 1950s–60s. (P.B.) whispering gill. Var. ofwhispering syl-alinger. A prompter (syl = syllable): theatrical: late C.19—early 20.

whispering Willie. A type of big naval gun used by the Germans: East African campaign of WW1. F. Brett Young, Jim Redlake, 1930.

whister-clister, -snefet, -snivet. A cuff on the ear or the side of the head: resp. late C.18—mid-19 (Grose, 1st ed.), then dial.; C.16 (Udall); C.16 (Palsgrave: OED). Perhaps a reduplication of whister, that which 'whists' or puts to silence; even so, -clister may pun clyster, an enema, while -snefet, -snivet may be cognate with the vv. snite snivel. Perhaps orig. dial., as the Palsgrave locus indicates; certainly dial. are the variants whisterpoop (C.17–20), whistersniff (C.19–20), and whister-twister—which last (C.18–19) is certainly a punning reduplication. See also wisty-castor.

whisticaster. A further var. of prec.: The Night Watch, II, 338, 1828 (Moe).

whistle, n. The mouth or the throat: joc. coll.: by itself, C.17–20. Ex wet (incorrectly whet: C.17–20) one's whistle, to take a drink: late C.14–20, likewise joc. coll. Chaucer, The Reeve's Tale, 'So was hir joly whistle wel y-wet'; Walton; Burns; Marryat (whet). Also wet (one's) mouth or weasand.—2. A flute: late C.19–20.—3. Whistle, esp. a child's: domestic: late C.19–20.—4. An abbr. of whistle and flute: Gilt Kid, 1936.—5. See blow the whistle (on).

whistle, v. 'To hurry away, to scam' (Jackson): RAF: 1940+. Ex the speed of the going. cf. whistle off, q.v.

whistle and flute. A suit (of clothes): rhyming s.: late C.19–20. B. & P.; Powis.

whistle and ride. To work and talk: tailors':—1890 (B. & L.). Presumably ex a rider's whistling as he journeys.

whistle and toot. Money, esp. cash: rhyming s., on loot: C.20. Usu. shortened to toot—see toot, n., 4. Franklyn 2nd.

whistle-belly vengeance. Inferior liquor, esp. bad beer: 1861, Hughes, 'Regular whistle-belly vengeance, and no mistake'; in C.20, mainly (Lancashire) dial. Cf. whip-belly (vengeance), which prob. suggested whistle-b. v.

whistle-cup (or solid). A drinking-cup fitted with a whistle, the last toper capable of using it receiving it as a prize: public-house coll.: from ca. 1880. Also, a cup that, on becoming empty, warns the tapster: id.: id.

whistle-drunk. Exceedingly drunk: mid-C.18. Fielding's whistled-d. is prob. a misprint. Cf. whistled.

whistle fox. To expect, seek, try to get, in vain; to fail to obtain, go without; have a very slight chance of obtaining: coll.: 1760, C. Johnston, "Do you not desire to be free?" "Aye! ... but I may whistle for that wind long enough, before it will blow," which indicates the origin, for sailors have for centuries whistled hopefully when becalmed.—2. Hence, shall I whistle for it?, a c.p. that is 'a jocular offer of aid to one long in commencing to urinate' (F. & H.): late C.19—earlier 20. P.B.: but this may also be the whistling hiss of a groom to make a horse urinate.

whistle in the cage. See sing out.

whistle off. To go off, to depart, lightly or, esp., suddenly:

coll.: from the 1680s (Shadwell); ob. by 1860; † by 1930. (OED.) But see also whistle, v.

whistle psalms to the taffrail. (Gen. as vbl n.) To give good advice unwanted and unheeded: joc. nautical: coll.: late C.19–20. Bowen.

whistle-punk. That boy who conveys signals from loggers to donkey-engineer: Can. lumbermen's: since ca. 1920.

whistle-stop. A very small town (at which the train stops only if signalled by a whistle): Can., adopted ex US: since ca. 1925. Hence, as adj. in whistle-stop tour, a vote-catching progress by a politician through a succession of such places: orig. and mainly US, but some Brit. use in later C.20.

whistle up. To send for (esp. reinforcements) in a hurry: army coll.: since ca. 1925. (P-G-R.) Claiborne adds, 1976: 'Cf. Kipling's "the Ballad of East and West", 1889, "With that he whistled his only son"/—2. Hence, to arrange for, e.g., food, usu. at short notice, as 'In no time at all they had whistled us up some supper': coll.: C.20. Cf. synon. rustle up. (P.B.)

whistle up the breeze. A joc. var. raise the wind. H., 3rd ed., 1864; † by 1890.

whistlecocks. Aboriginals: Aus.: since ca. 1880. B., 1942.

whistlecup. See whistle-cup.

whistled. Tipsy, upper classes': since ca. 1920; then Services' (esp. RAF) since ca. 1925. (G. March-Phillips, Ace High, 1938; Jackson.) M.H. MacAlpine, however, in a letter pub'd in TLS, 28 Nov. 1980, claims that the term was in use in Scotland, esp. Glasgow, very early in C.20. Perhaps ex the cheerful whistling that is characteristic of the drunk, as E.P. suggested; but as it is extremely difficult to whistle when in this state, cf. rather whistle-drunk, q.v., which dates back to mid-C.18. (E.P.; P.B.) whistler, n. A bad farthing: c. of ca. 1810–50. (Vaux.) Ex the false ring it gives.—2. A 'roarer' (q.v.) or broken-winded horse: from early 1820s: coll. >, by 1890, S.E.—3. An unlicensed vendor of spirits: 1821 (Moncrieff: OED); Dickens, 1837; very ob. Ex whistling-shop, q.v.—4. A chance labourer at the docks: East Londoners': from ca. 1880. Ware quotes Referee of 29 Mar. 1885. Ex whistling for work.—5. A revolver: low:—1923 (Manchon). Ex whistler, a bullet.—6. Something big: coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Recorded in dial. for 1895 (EDD).—7. 'A high-explosive bomb as it descends' (H. & P.): Services', from 1939, very soon > also civilian. Cf. screamer, 6.—8. As in the following quo't'n from Weekly Telegraph, 28 Feb. 1942: 'The war has brought into being many nicknames, which often mystify the uninitiated. Thus, women railway porters are known as "whistlers", female bus conductors as "Annie Lauries", women van drivers as "Gerties", girl munition workers as "Spitfire kittens", female "milk-roundsmen" as "dairy dots", women window-cleaners as "climbing Marys" and women fire-watchers as "pouncers", while land-girls are known as "dainty diggers" and women employed in the building trade as "kilted brickies".'—9. See long-winded whistler.

Whistler, adj. 'Misty, dreamy, milky, softly opalescent [in] atmosphere—from... pictures painted by [this] artist... Came to be applied to ethics, aesthetics, and even conversation, where the doctrines enunciated were foggy' (Ware): Society coll.: 1880s.

whistling. Adj. to whistling-shop.

whistling-billy (or -B). A steam locomotive: (children's coll.): later C.19—early 20. (H., 5th ed.) Cf. puffing Billy.

whistling-breeches. Corduroy trousers: un aristocratic: late C.19–20; ob. Ex the swishing sound that they are apt to make as one moves.

Whistling Dick. 'It took us all our time to dodge their Whistling Dicks (huge shell), as our men have named them' (Sgt E. Gowing, in a letter headed 'Camp before Sebastopol', 29 Oct. 1854). Cf. the other personifications following. (P.B.)

Whistling Percy. 'A German 9-inch naval gun of flat trajectory, captured at Cambrai in Nov. 1917—from the sound made by its shell in flight. (Whistling Willie, Whistling Walter, etc., were names similarly given to various other enemy guns and shells.)' (F. & G.)

whistling psalms ... See whistle psalms ...

Whistling Rufus. A Turkish gun at Gallipoli: army: 1915. (S.F. Hatton, The Yarn of a Yeoman, 1930.) Ex the lilting tune of that name, composed 1897 by Kerry Mills; it enjoyed a great vogue in Edwardian England, and was happily revived by Chris Barber's Jazz Band in the early 1950s. (Mrs C. Raab.)

whistling-shop. A room in the King's Bench Prison where spirits were sold secretly and illicitly: c. of ca. 1785–1840. (Grose, 2nd ed.) The signal indicative of 'open shop' was a whistle.—2. Hence, an unlicensed dram-shop: (low s.): 1821 (Moncrieff: OED); Dickens, who, in 1837, also has 'whistling gentleman' (see whistler, 3). Very ob. by 1930.

whistling Toms. 'Well, there was your whistlin' Toms—your twenty-four and forty-two pounders—flyin' athwart your folksel and crossin' your poop on opposite tacks' (W.N. Glascock, Sketch-Book, 2nd series, 1834, II, 175): naval: late C.18—early 19. Cf. the other whistling personifications above. (Moe.)

Whistling Willie and Sighing Sarah were Boer cannon firing on Ladysmith from Umbalwana: military: 1900. J. Milne, The Epistles of Atkins, 1902.

Whit; often Whitt; occ. Witt. Newgate Prison.—2. As the whit(t) any prison: c.: ca. 1670–1840. Anon., A Warening for Housekeepers, 1676, 'O then they rub us to the whitt'; Coles and B.E. (Newgate); Grose. Perhaps suggested by the git of Newgate as gen. pronounced: cf., however, Whittington's College, q.v.—3. Whitsuntide: coll.: late C.19–20. North Wales Pioneer, 19 May 1939.

white, n., only in large (or half-bull) white, a half-crown, and small white, a shilling: counterfeiters' c.:—1823 ('Jon Bee').—2. 'A true, sterling fellow' (C.J. Dennis): mostly Aus.:—1916. Ex adj., 1.—3. A white waistcoat: coll.: since ca. 1860. Sessions, Sep. 1871.—4. A £5 note: low sporting: mid-C.20. ('William Hickey', Daily Express, 20 Mar. 1946.) Tempest, 1950, glosses this sense, 'Five pounds and upwards'. Ex colour of the note, impressive black print on white; this form ceased in 1961.—5. 'Where jewellery is concerned "White" is used to refer to platinum' (Tempest, 1950): c.: mid-C.20.—6. See whites.

white, adj. Honourable; fair-dealing: US s. (—1877), anglicised ca. 1885; by 1920, coll. Ex the self-imputed characteristics of a white man. Cf. white man, q.v.—2. Hence as adv.: US s. (—1900) anglicised ca. 1905; by 1930, coll. E.g. act white, use (a person) white. Cf. n., 2.

white and spiteful. See all white ...

white-ant, v. To sabotage; to undermine: Australian labour movement: since ca. 1920. Hence, white-anter, a saboteur, and white-anting, sabotage. (B., 1942.) White ants are wood-destructive.

white ants. In have or get the w.a., to be or to become exceedingly silly, or insane: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942, 'also "in one's attic"/'; or, as in Ernestine Hill, The [Northern] Territory, 1951, have white ants in the billy (= billycan). Applied orig. to men gen. crazy or, at the least, eccentric through isolation and solitude.

white-apron. A harlot: coll.: ca. 1590–1760. (Satirist Hall; Pope.) Ex dress.

white as midnight's arse-hole (, as). Black as pitch: low coll.: ca. 1550–1640. Anon., Jacob and Esau, ca. 1557 (in Dodsley's Old Plays).

white-ash breeze. The breeze caused by rowing; boating (—1904); slightly ob. F. & H., 'Oars are gen. made of white ash.' Imm. ex white ash, an oar: coll.: mid-C.19–20.

white-bag man. A pickpocket: c.:—1923 (Manchon). Why?

white-bearded boys, the. 'People who establish unintelligible principles and prove them, like the ballisticians of Woolwich' (H. & P.): Services' (mostly army): since ca. 1938. Cf. really clever boys, the.

white blackboard. An instructional film: schoolteachers': since ca. 1930.

white blow. Semen: literary or cultured: C.20. white bottle. A bottle of medicine coloured white: coll. among female surgery-habituees: late C.19–20. white boy. A C.17 term of endearment—reference: coll. Cf. white-haired boy, q.v.
White Brahmins. 'Excessively exclusive persons': among Europeans in India: ca. 1880–1930. Ex an extremely exclusive religious sect. Ware.—2. Also, among the educated Indians, the English: coll.: from ca. 1880; ob. Ibid. white broth, spit. See spit white broth. white choker. A white tie: lower-class: from ca. 1860; slightly ob.—2. Hence, a parson: id.: late C.19—early 20.
White City, the. The military hospital at Helles (Gallipoli): 1915. white coat. A hospital attendant in prison: c.:—1932 (anon., Dartmoor from Within).—2. As Whitecoat, 'The senior examiner at the (taxi) Police Public Carriage Office' (Powis): taxi-drivers': later C.20. white elephant. A boat that did not pay its way: driftermen's: C.20. (D. Butcher, Driftermen, glossary, 1979.) A specialisation of S.E. white eye. Strong, inferior whisky: military (—1874); ob. (H., 5th ed.) Orig. US; so named because 'its potency is believed to turn the eyes round in the sockets, leaving the whites only visible' (H.). white face. Gin (the liquor): Aus.: ca. 1820–80. J.W., Perils, Pastimes and Pleasures, 1849.
White-Faced Ones, the. See Grass hoppers, the.
white feather. Grose, 1785: 'He has a white feather, he is a coward ... An allusion to a game-cock, where having a white feather, is a proof that he is not of the true game breed.' Has var. show a feather, as in Fredk Marryat, Frank Mildmay, 1829, p. 334 of the 1897 ed. (Moe). The full expression, to show the white feather, had > S.E. by 1895.—2. In show the white feather, to maintain 'sufficient pressure of steam in the boilers to keep a white feather of steam over the safety valves' (Bowen): nautical: earlier C.20.
white friar. A speck of white (froth, scum) floating on a (dark-coloured) liquid: from 1720s: coll. >, in C.19, dial. Swift, 1729. OED. white fustian. See fustian. white Geordie. A shilling: Ayrshire: 1897 (Ochiltree: EDD). white-haired boy. From late C.19, Aus. and NZ var. of next; by C.20 also Can.; and, since ca. 1950 at latest, often Brit. Whence you must have white hairs, a NZ c.p. to a man getting an unexpected favour: C.20.
white-headed boy; usu. my, her (etc.) w-h. b. Favourite; darling: 1820: coll.; orig. Irish >, by 1890, fairly gen. Melmoth; Hall Caine (OED). Ex the very fair hair of babies and young children. Cf. snowy, q.v., and † S.E. white (i.e. favourite) boy and son. Cf. prec., q.v. white hope. A heavy German shell, esp. the 5.9: soldiers': 1915–18. (Vernon Bartlett, No Man's Land, 1930.) Prompted by Jack Johnson, q.v. white horse. (Indicative of) cowardice: Anglo-Irish coll.: C.18–20; ob. Ware, 'From the tradition that James II fled from the battle of the Boyne on a white horse'. white-horsed in, be. To obtain a job through influence: tailors':—1890 (B. & L.). Perhaps ex buying a 'boss' drinks at an inn, (a) white horse being a frequent sign, hence name, of an inn. white house. A jail at a shore station: naval, coll. rather than s.: earlier C.19. L.L.G., 1 Jan. 1825 (Moe). white it out. To serve a prison sentence: Aus. c.: C.20. B., 1942. white jenny. A foreign-made silver watch: c.:—1890 (B. & L.). white lace. See white ribbon. white lady. Methylated spirits drunk as an intoxicant: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1953.) Because it turns white in water. white lapel. A lieutenant: RN: (? mid-C.18)—19. (Bowen.) Ex a feature of his uniform. See ship the white lapel.

white lot. A silver watch and chain: c.: from ca. 1860. Ex white, for centuries an epithet applied to silver. Cf. white wool, q.v. white magic. 'Very beautiful fair women': Society: ca. 1875–1905. Ex lit. S.E. sense.—2. The Roman Catholic ritual: Protestants' coll.:—1909. Likewise, Ware.
white man. An honourable man: US s. (1865), anglicised ca. 1887; by 1920, coll. Nat Gould, 1898, 'There goes a "white man" if ever there was one ... That beard [is] the only black thing about him.' See white, adj.; cf. sahib, q.v. white man's burden, the. Work: joc. coll.: from ca. 1929. Punning the S.E. sense.
white man's hansom woman. A coloured mistress: West Indian: mid-C.19—early 20. Clearly, there is a pun on hansom cab and handsome.
White Maori. Tungstate of lime: NZ miners': since ca. 1875. (B., 1941.) Ex appearance. white mice. Lice: low Aus. rhyming s.: C.20. K.S. Prichard, 'Kiss on the Lips', a story in Kiss on the Lips, 1932.—2. Dice: English spivs': from late 1940s. Picture Post, 2 Jan. 1954. white money. Silver money: low: C.20. (Stanley Jackson, An Indiscreet Guide to Soho, 1946.) Cf. whites, q.v.
White Moor; gen. pl. A Genoese: coll. nickname: C.17. Ex a very uncomplimentary proverb recorded by Howell in 1642: too rough on the Moors. white nigger. A term of contempt for a white man: Sierra Leone Negroes' coll.: from ca. 1880. Ware quotes Daily News of 20 June 1883. Cf. the American Negroes' poor white trash.
White Paper candidate. A candidate for a temporary commission in the RNVR: RN: 1940+. Granville. white poodle. A rough woolly cloth: tailors': ca. 1850–80. Ex poodle's coat.
white port. Some kind of strong liquor, prob. gin (cf. white ribbon ...): ca. 1750–90. (Toldervy, 1756.) See the quot'n at slug, n., 1. white prop. A diamond scarf-pin: c.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.) Cf. white lot. white rabbits! or simply rabbits! A South of England greeting on the first day of every month: late (? mid- or even earlier) C.19–20. 'Good luck!' In Southern folklore, however, it is 'a strictly female invocation to the new month, and must be uttered on the 1st of the month before speaking to anyone else. ... Also a feminine incantation on first seeing the new moon, regardless of date; apparently with sexual implications' (R.S., 1967).
white rat. 'A scyphont; a tale-bearer': RN: since ca. 1925. (Granville.) Cf. the c. use of rat, esp. for 'informer'. white ribbon, satin, tape, wine, wool; also w. lace. Gin: low: resp. C.19–20; C.19–20; from ca. 1720 (A New Canting Dict., 1725); 1820 (Randall's Diary); from ca. 1780 (Grose, 1st ed.); mid-C.19–20—occ. merely lace or its synonym driz. H., 1st ed., describes w. satin and w. tape as women's terms, as, also, was lace. All are ob.; in fact, white wine and w. wool did not survive beyond C.19; white satin may well endure, however, because of the trade name, White Satin gin. See also at ribbon and tape.
white sergeant. A 'breeches-wearing' wife, esp. and orig. as in the earliest record: Grose, 1st ed., 'A man fetched from the tavern ... by his wife, is said to be arrested by the white sergeant.' † by 1890 or soon after; H., 3rd–5th ed., has it. Ex the martial bearing of this hardly less formidable 'woman in white.'
white sheep. A c. term dating from ca. 1880. Rook, 1899, 'The young man who walks out with [the Servant], and takes a sympathetic interest in her employer's affairs, rarely takes a hand in the actual [burglary]. He is known as a "black cap" or a "white sheep" and is usually looked upon as useful in his way, but a bit too soft for the hard grind of the business.'
White Sheet. Wytschaete, in Flanders: army coll.: WW1. (F. & G.) By Hobson-Jobson. white soup. See soup, 5. white-stocking day. The days on which sailors' women-folk presented their half-pay notes to the owners: N.E. Coast: late C.19. Bowen.

white stuff. Articles in silver: c.: late C.19–20. (B. & L.) Cf. red stuff.

white swelling, have a. To be big with child: late C.18–mid-19. (Grose, 1st ed., in Corrigenda.) Ex the medical white swelling, a watery tumour. Cf. tympany.

white tape. See white ribbon.

white turtle-neck brigade. Male homosexuals: (London) Evening Standard, 16 Oct. 1969, 'The leader of a Council estate Tenants' association said "... [Wimbledon] Common has become an international stamping ground for what are known as the white turtle-neck brigade"' (L.A.). Ex current gay vogue at the time for this type of sweater.

white 'un (or un). A silver watch: C.:—1874 (H., 5th ed.). Cf. white lot.

white wine. See white ribbon.

white wings. A dinner-table steward: ships' stewards':—1935. Ex dress.

white wogs. Brit. and Continental European residents in Near and Middle East countries: army and RAF; since ca. 1930. See wog, 1.—2. A derogatory term, usu. joc., for a Welshman: Services': since ca. 1950. Ex prec.; cf. wogs begin at Calais.

white wool. Silver: c.: late C.17—mid-18. (B.E.) Cf. white lot, q.v.—2. See white ribbon.

Whitechapel; w. An upper-cut: pugilistic: ca. 1860–1930. H., 2nd ed.; 3rd ed. (1864) has:—2. That procedure in tossing coins in which two out of three wins: London; ob.—3. The murder of a woman: (East) London: ca. 1888–90. (Ware.) Ex numerous woman-murders in Whitechapel in 1888.—4. A lead from a single card: card-playing coll.:—1899; ob. by 1935. (OED.) Ex Whitechapel play, q.v.

Whitechapel beau. One who, as Grose (1st ed.) so neatly phrases it, 'dresses with a needle and thread, and undresses with a knife': ca. 1780–1840. Cf. the entries at St Giles and Westminster, and Whitechapel oner.

Whitechapel breed, n. and adj. (A person) 'fat, ragged, and saucy' (Grose, 1st ed.): low: ca. 1780–1850.

Whitechapel brougham; also Westminster b. A coster-monger's donkey-barrow: low London:—1860 (H., 2nd ed.). Occ. Chapel cart. On S.E. Whitechapel cart.

Whitechapel fortune. 'A clean gown and a pair of pattens': low London: 1845 in 'Gipsy' Carew, 1891 (i.e. 'No. 747'); H., 3rd ed. A euph. for Whitechapel portion, q.v.

Whitechapel needle, like a. Very sharp; very quickly, sharply, promptly: C.19. (Henry Cockton, The Life and Adventures of Valentine Vox, the Ventriloquist, 1840.) In Dickens's Barnaby Rudge, 1841, ch. 40: "'Ahl," he said, looking so... amorously at Miggs, that she sat, as she afterwards remarked, on pins and needles of the sharper Whitechapel kind'. Quot'ns by courtesy of D.B. Gardner. Evidently the needles of the Whitechapel tailors were proverbial for their sharpness.

Whitechapel oner. 'A leader of light and youth in the Aldgate district—chiefly in the high coster interests': East London:—1909 (Ware). Cf. Whitechapel beau.

Whitechapel play, n. and adj. Irregular or unskilful play, orig. and gen. at cards: coll.: 1755 (Connoisseur: OED).—2. Hence, in billiards (whence, in any game), unsportsmanlike methods: mid-C.19–20.

Whitechapel portion. Two torn Smocks, and what Nature gave': low (mostly London): late C.17—mid-19. (B.E., Grose.) Cf. Rocheater or Tetbury portion, and Tipperary or Whitechapel fortune.

Whitechapel province. 'A club or brotherhood under the government of a prætor' (Grose, 3rd ed.) London club life: late C.18—early 19. Punning Roman provincial government: in C.18 (e.g. in D'Urfey, 1719), prætor was occ. used of a mayor.

Whitechapel shave. 'Whitening judiciously applied to the jaws with the palm of the hand' (Dickens, 1863, The Uncommercial Traveller); ob. by 1930. Cf. Whitechapel beau.

Whitechapel warriors. Militia or volunteers of the Aldgate district: East London: ca. 1860–1910. Ware.

whitechokery. The upper classes: lower classes': ca. 1870–1700. (Ware.) Ex the white choker (see choker, 1). Contrast white turtle-neck...

whitecoat. See white coat.

Whitehall, he's been to. He looks very cheerful: military c.p. of ca. 1860–1905. (Ware.) Ex extension of leave obtained at Whitehall.

Whitehaven Docks. The pox: rhyming s.: later C.20. (Red Daniells, 1980.) Cf. Salford Docks.

whiter. A white waistcoat: Harrow School:—1904. Ex white by 'OXFORD -ER'.

whites. Silver money: c.:—1887 (Baumann). Ex white, n., 1; see also white lot. Tempest, 1950, lists white (sing.) = silver; silver coins, and instances pony in white, 'Twenty-five shillings in silver'.

whitewash, n. 'A glass of sherry as a finale, after drinking port and claret' (H., 3rd ed.): ca. 1860–1930. (Cf. whitewasher, q.v.) Ex colour—and use.

whitewash, v. In its bankruptcy sense it may orig. (mid-C.18) have been coll.—2. To coit with (a woman): C.20.—3. To beat (an opponent) before he has scored an opening double: darts players': since ca. 1930.

whitewash-worker. A seller of 'a liquid alleged to replat silverware at home' (P. Allingham, London Evening News, 9 July 1934): grafters': C.20.

whitewasher. A glass of white wine (e.g. sherry) taken at the end of a dinner: 1881 (J. Grant: OED). Ex whitewash, n.

Whitewashers, the. The 61st Foot Regiment; from ca. 1881, the (2nd Battalion of the) Gloucestershire Regt: military: mid-C.19—early 20. Ex liberal use of pipe-clay at the time of the Indian Mutiny. F. & G.

Whitely; or w. A white person, whether individually or collectively; hence, the Establishment as represented by the whites: orig. and still (1977) predominantly Negroes', in Britain usu. West Indians': adopted, ex US, ca. 1955. (DCCU.) Powis: 'A racist Negro term for a white person (usually male), not said in a pleasant manner.'

whither-go-ye. A wife: ca. 1670–1830. Ray, 1678, has how doth your whither-go-you?, i.e. your wife; B.E. (misprint whether...); Grose. Ex this question so frequently asked by wives.

whither or no, Tom Collins, 'is a phrase among sailors, signifying, whether you will or not' (W.N. Glascock, Sailors and Saints, 1829, II, 7). A var.—perhaps rather the orig.—is Tom Collins, whether or no, in Alfred Burton, Johnny Newcome, 1818. (Moe.)

Whitt, whitt. See Whit.

Whittington Priory. Holloway Prison (for debt); debtors': ca. 1860–1910. (Ware.) Ex proximity to Highgate (associated with Whittington).

Whittington's College. Newgate Prison: ca. 1785–1840. Grose, 2nd ed.; in G.'s Provincial Glossary, 1790: he has studied at Whittington's College, he has been imprisoned at Newgate; there, G. adds that Newgate was rebuilt in 1423 by Whittington's executors. Ex the famous Lord Mayor of that name, but perhaps suggested by Whit, q.v.

whittle. To give information, to 'peach'; to confess at the gallows: from 1720s: c. >, by 1850, low s.; ob. (Swift, 1727; H., 5th ed.) A var. of whiddle, q.v.—2. To talk, chatter; aimlessly, to 'rabbit on': coll.: C.20. Perhaps a var. of witter, q.v. (P.B.) And see wittle.

whiz, whizz, n. 'Buz, or noise, interruption of tongues': (low) London: ca. 1820–90. Bee.—2. Pocket-picking: c.: from ca. 1920. (Chas. E. Leach.) Powis, 1977, has 'Tom has been at the whiz these last ten years at least'. Cf. the v., and compounds below, q.v.—3. Energy, 'go': Aus.: since ca. 1910. Dal Stevens, Jimmy Brockett, 1951.—4. In hold your whiz!, be quiet!, 'Shut up!': low:—1887 (Baumann); ob. by 1930. Prob. ex 1, but perhaps influenced by sibilant whispering.

—5. A lively, energetic, go-ahead type: coll.: late 1950s. (Patrick Campbell, Come Here Till I Tell You, 1960.) Perhaps an abbr. of wizard, as in 'She's an absolute whizz at making meringues'; an adaptation of sense 3; or an early shortening of whizz-kid, q.v. (P.B.)

whizz, v. To be actively a pickpocket: c.: from ca. 1920. Cf. buz in the same sense. Ex his speed.

whizz-bang. A shell fired from a light field-gun, esp. the German 77; rarely the gun: military: from 1914. (B. & P.) One only just heard, if at all, the whizz of its flight before one heard the bang of the explosion.—2. Hence, the stereotyped field postcard (soon censored): id.: from 1915. Ibid.—3. 'A Fighter on the tail of an enemy aircraft' (H. & P.): RAF: 1939+.

whizz-boy. A pickpocket: c.: C.20. (Margery Allingham, Policemen at the Funeral, 1931.) Also among grafters: witness Cheap-jack, 1934. Cf.:-

whizz-game. The jostling of persons by one criminal to enable another to pick their pockets: c.: from ca. 1920. James Spenser, Limey Breaks In, 1934.

whizz-kid. A precociously bright boy shining at radio or TV knowledge tests: adopted ca. 1960, ex US, where formed on the quiz-kids of the 1930s (W. & F.).—2. Hence, a 'bright boy' (young man) rising rapidly, by intelligence and determination, in a firm, an organisation: likewise adopted ex US, later 1960s. Here, the whizz is more indicative of rapidity of rise through the ranks, and of energy (cf. whizz, n., 3), than any tenuous connection with quiz. The term is often used disparagingly, because enviously. (P.B.)—3. See:-

Whizz Kids, the. In John Wainwright's detective novel, Dig the Grave and Let Him Lie, 1971, this master of English Police Force procedure lists the following police nicknames, all prec. by the, for the Forensic Chemists: Baubles, Bangles and Beads Mob; Brain Drain; Clever Creeps; Egg-Head Brigade; Quackery; Test-Tube Wallahs; Whizz Kids. None of these arose earlier than 1930 and none later than mid-1960s. The sixth is, I think, the earliest—and the fourth the latest. Quackery contains a pun on quack, a charlatan; for whizz kids see prec., 1. Brain Drain alludes ironically to the drift of scientists to America; and an egg-head has been adopted ex US s. for an intellectual. The first, from the title of a song in the US musical show Kismet, later (1955) a film, is perhaps an allusion to witch-doctors.

whizz-man; whizzer. A pickpocket: c.: from ca. 1920. 'Stuart Wood', both forms. Ex whiz, n., 2.

whizz-mob. A gang of pickpockets: c.: C.20. Also among grafters: witness Cheapjack, 1934. See whiz n., 2.

whizzer. A ship's propeller: RN: since ca. 1918. Cf. fan, n., 4.—2. Anything superlative, whether good or bad: since ca. 1945. Elleston Trevor, Gale Force, 1956, "Rather windy."—"I'll bet it's a real whizzer on deck."—3. A drinking bout: Can.: since latish 1960s. H. Dempsey, Bob Edwards, 1975, 'He was only off on a little bit of a whizzer' (Leechman).—4. See put on the rattle; whizz-man.

whizzo, adj. Perhaps corresponds to whizz-kid, 2, with a suggestion of too much too fast, as in 'The Banks-Livingstone whizzo scheme was thrown out by the [Greater London Council]' (New Society editorial, 23 July 1981). But cf.:-

whizzo! (esp. as exclam.) Splendid: mostly children's: since ca. 1944. Ex the adj. wizard. Nicholas Blake, The Whisper in the Gloom, 1954.

whizzuck; usu. in pl. 'Whizzucks. Gremlins which live on the outskirts of enemy aerodromes' (H. & P., 1943). Echioic. See GREMLINS, in Appendix.

who. Occ. used without v., e.g., who dat? [=that], as mock-Pidgin, for humorous effect: later C.20. New Society, 23 July 1981, in an editorial on recent European election results, 'They all said that Mitterand would lose... and they thought that Franz-Josef Strauss (who he?) might finally make it'—a joc. implication that 'nobody's ever heard of' the latter. (P.B.)

who all. See and I don't know who all.

who are yer (you)? – who are you? An offensive inquiry and its truculent answer: c.pp. of London streets: from 1883 (Ware). But as 'who're you?' the inquiry part had already had a great vogue in the streets of the capital during the 1880s. See esp. DCpp.

who are you (or who're yer) calling dirty face? Concerning the latter half of 1916, Richard Blaker, in his memorable war-novel (written from the viewpoint of the Artillery officer), Medal without Bar, 1930, remarks: "'Oo yer calling dirty-face?" became a standardised pleasantry in the light of a lantern held to a cigarette-stump, from drivers turned muleteer ("the cavalry", as the gunners called them).'

who are (or who're) you kidding? Who do you think you're fooling?: adopted, ex US, ca. 1919. Also elab. who're you trying to kid?, or who do you think you're kidding?

'who are you shoving (or pushing)? said the elephant to the flea. A joc. c.p., uttered by a big—or, at the least, a noticeably bigger—man jostled, or knocked into, by a small man: since ca. 1920. (Petch.)

who ate (or stole) the cat? A c.p. directed against pilferers: coll.: mid-C.19—earlier 20. Perhaps ex an actual incident.

who blew your trumpet? Var. of who pulled your chain?: late 1960s—early 70s. Hawke.

who boiled the bell? and who hanged—or hung—the monkey? On the Clyde these are derisive C.20. c.pp. (Peter Sanders.)

who buggers whom and who pays? 'Jocular "what's the order of the going?", or query "what now?" at a party: mid-1930s. Ex a current joke' (L.A., 1974). Cf. the Aus. who's up who (and who's paying the rent)? = just what is happening?: WW2 and since.

who called the cook a bastard? – who called the bastard a cook? 'Complementary, but scarcely complimentary, rhetorical remarks passed in disparagement of the cook's efforts' (Granville): Services': since early C.20. P.B.: since mid-C.20, cunt is usu. substituted for bastard.

who cries stinking fish? Who would depreciate his own goods?: C.17–20; his own abilities?: C.18–20. Coll. B.E.

who did yer (you) say? A c.p. 'levelled at a person of evident, or self-asserting importance, and uttered by one friend to another': London streets': 1890s. Ware.

who(-)done(-)it; usu. whodunit. A murder story; a detective novel; a murder-story cartoon: coll.: adopted in 1942 from US, where current since ca. 1934. (Writer, Jan. 1944.) Ex the gaping curiosity and inquiries of the illiterate. Claiborne elaborates, 1976: 'Rather because the central problem in any detective story is, in fact, "who [has] done it?"—i.e., committed the crime.'

who has any lands in Appleby? A c.p. addressed to 'The Man at whose Door the Glass stands Long' (B.E. at landlord): late C.17—mid-18. (Cf. parson Mallum and parson Palmer.) Perhaps orig. of cider.

who hung the monkey? A derisive c.p., mainly North Country: C.20. Ex a Hartlepool incident. But see who boiled...

who is... See also who's...

who is at your elbow? A late C.17–18 c.p. caution or warning to a liar. (B.E.) The implication: 'There is One who hears'.

who is 'She' – the cat's mother? Var. of 'She' is the cat's mother, a warning to children to use a lady's proper name.

who kicked your kennel (or pig-sty)? Mind your own business: lower-middle class: since ca. 1910.

who let you out? 'When a person shows himself very cute and clever another says to him "Who let you out?"—an ironical expression of fun: as much as to say that he must have been confined in an asylum as a confirmed fool' (P.W. Joyce, English... in Ireland, 1910): Anglo-Irish c.p.: late C.19–20. Occ. heard elsewhere; by 1940, slightly—by 1960, very—old-fashioned.

who looks at the mantelpiece when poking the fire? A low and raffish rejoinder to adverse comment on a young woman's face: almost proverbial: C.20. See DCpp.

who pawned her sister's ship? A Clare Market (London) c.p. of ca. 1897–9, directed offensively at a woman. Ware proposes shift corrupted.

who pulled your chain? A military c.p. snub (1914; slightly ob. by 1930) 'for anyone intruding into a conversation'. Ex the pulling of a lavatory-chain + shit, n., 2.

who put that monkey on horseback without tying his tail? A low c.p. applied to a bad horseman: late C.18–early 19. Grose, 2nd ed.

who robbed the barber? A c.p. directed at a male whose hair is long: late C.19–earlier 20. Cf., e.g., where's your violin? who shot the cat (or the dog)? A stock reproach shouted at the Volunteers: orig. London streets': mid-C.19–mid-20. P.B.: it appears in a Punch cartoon, 28 Apr. 1860, captioned: 'Street Boy (fortissimo). "Who shot the dog!"', his shout directed at a uniformed Volunteer.

who stole the donkey? Sometimes another person, added, the man in or with the white hat: this latter represented also the occasion: ca. 1835–1900. Ex an actual incident. (Prof. Arnold Wall, 1939.)

who stole the mutton? A c.p. of ca. 1830–50 addressed jeeringly to a policeman. (Brewer.) Ex the force's failure to detect the culprit in a theft of mutton.

who struck Buckley? C.p. used to irritate Irishmen: C.19. Hotten.

who took it out of you? A c.p. connoting a dejected or washed-out look in the addressee: low London:—1909 (Ware).

who was the best man here before I came in? 'A jocular expression sometimes heard when a man enters a pub, canteen, etc.' (Petch, 1974): since late 1940s.

who was your lackey last year? C.19 version of what did your last servant die of? See DcPp.

who wouldn't sell a farm and go to sea? A nautical c.p. spoken when something unpleasant or extremely difficult has to be done: mid-C.19–20. Bowen.

whoa – anchors! See anchors.

whoa-Ball! incorrectly whow-ball. A milkmaid: late C.17–early 19. (B.E., Grose.) Prob. = whoa! + Ball, a common name for a cow, as Grose suggests. Cf. Whoball's children, at he is none...

whoa-bust me! A low London exclam., elab. of bust me!: ca. 1850–1910. Ware.

whoa, carry me out! See carry me out.

whoa, Emma! An urban lower-classes' c.p. directed at a woman 'of marked appearance or behaviour in the streets': ca. 1880–1900. Ware, who gives it an anecdotal origin. 'Quotations' Benham has the form whoa, Emma! mind the paint.—2. Whence, a non-aristocratic warning, to a person of either sex, to be careful: ca. 1900–30.

whoa, Jameson! A c.p. constituting 'an admiring warning against plucky rashness': non-aristocratic, non-cultured: 1896–7. Ex the Jameson Raid. Ware.

Whoball's children. See he is none...

whodunit. See who done it.

whoever. In perplexity or surprise, an emphasised who; properly, two words (cf. whatever): coll.: mid-C.19–20. R.G. White, 1881, says that it is 'mostly confined to ladies'. OED.

whole bag of tricks. See bag of tricks, 2.

whole boiling, the. The whole lot: 1822 ('A Real Paddy', Real Life in Ireland). Common also in US (the boiling, 1796: OED Sup.). Ex boiling, a quantity at one time: cf. S.E. batch (W.) Sometimes extended to the whole boiling lot (of'em). Cf. whole shoot.

whole box and dice, the. The whole lot, everything; (of persons) all: Aus.: since ca. 1930. Mary Durack, Keep Him My Country, 1955, 'The boys tossed it in... and the whole box and dice cleared out to Jericho.'

whole caboodle. The whole lot (persons or things): orig. (1848) US, anglicised ca. 1895. Prob. via US the whole kit and boodle (kit and being slurred to ca), ex Eng. kit, 2, and US boodle, 'a crowd' (Thornton), itself perhaps ex Portuguese cabeda, 'a stock, what a man is worth' (W.) See whole kit.

whole caboose, the. The whole lot; everyone and everything: Aus.: since ca. 1930. (B., 1943.) But the whole cabush occurs in a dialogue between two demobilised Brit. army subalterns, Punch, 5 Mar. 1919 (P.B.). See whole shebang.

whole can of worms. See open a can of worms.

whole cooloo. See cooloo.

whole-footed. (Of persons) unreserved, free and easy: from 1730s: s. >, ca. 1760, coll. >, ca. 1820, dial. (North, ca. 1734.) Ex whole-footed, 'treading with the whole foot on the ground, not lightly or on tip-toe' (OED).

whole hog. See go the whole hog, and animal, 6.

whole issue, the. See issue.

whole kit and caboodle, the. The lot; everything: Can.: adopted, ca. 1920, ex US. (Leechman.) P.B.: by 1950, at latest, also Brit.

whole pile. See go the whole pile.

whole shebang, the. The whole matter, affair, collection of things: coll.: adopted, ex US, later C.20. Cf. whole caboose or caboodle, and see shebang: like them, orig. = a cabin, and hence, the contents thereof.

whole shoot. The entire amount or number or price, etc.: 1884 (OED) or perhaps from as early as 1880 (Ware): s. >, ca. 1920, coll. Occ. the entire shoot (? first in 1896). Hence, go the whole shoot (—1903), to risk everything. Suggested by whole shot. P.B.: a C.20 elab. is the whole bang shoot, perhaps influenced by the whole shebang. Cf.:

whole shooting-match, the. The whole thing, affair, etc.: from ca. 1915. (R. Blaker, Night-Shift, 1934.) Ex prec., by influence of WW1.

wholeskin brigade. A military unit that has not yet been in action: Boer War army. Ware.

who'll sell his farm and go to sea? See who wouldn't sell...

whoop it up. To 'live it up'; have a riotous time; go on the spree: since late 1940s. 'A great section of the nation is still whooping it up' (Bournemouth Echo, 27 Dec. 1968, concerning a prolonged Christmastide holiday). Cf.—perhaps ex-whoopee, n.; esp. make whoopee, to enjoy oneself, rejoice hilariously: coll.: US (from ca. 1927) anglicised by 1933 at latest. F. Keston Clarke, Humorist, 21 July 1934, 'Sitting on molehills and counting grasshoppers isn't my idea of rural whoopee.' Ex whoop with joy.

whooper-up. A noisy, inferior singer: music-halls' and theatrical:—1909 (Ware); ob. by 1930, but cf. whoop it up, q.v. whoop (pron. hoo-er). A N. Country and low Scots pron. of whore, as in 'Ye dirty wee whoor!'; term of abuse between men: C.20. (L.A., 1974.) See also whore, 2, 3.

whoosh. To move rapidly, emitting a dull, usu. soft, always sibilant sound; eligible only when used fig.; coll.: since ca. 1920. 'He whooshed through the house without even saying goodbye.' Ex the lit., echoic S.E. sense, as in 'Miserable passengers huddled back against the wall while passing vehicles "whooshed" through the inches-deep roadway puddles' (Sydney Morning Herald, 30 Aug. 1963—with thanks to B.P.). The lit. sense is admitted by Webster's International without comment; in British—esp. Scottish—dialect, it has long been common as an interjection expressive of a dull, rushing, hissing sound, as noted by the EDD.

whop, whap, n., C.19–20; whapp, C.15. A bump, heavy blow, resounding impact: (in C.20. somewhat low) coll.: C.15–20. H.G. Wells, 1905, 'Explained the cyclist... "I came rather a whop"' (OED). Cf.:

whop, v., C.18–20; whap, C.16, 19–20; occ. wap, wop, C.19–20. To strike heavily, thrash, belabour: (in C.20. low) coll.: mid-C.16–20. Dickens, 1837, "'Ain't nobody to be whopped for takin' this here liberty, sir?" said Mr. Weller' (OED). Ex whop (spelt whapp), to cast violently, take or put suddenly.—2. Hence, to defeat (utterly); to surpass, excel greatly: coll.; in C.20. low coll. From the 1830s. Thackeray, 'Where [his boys] might whop the French boys and learn all the modern languages.'

whop it up. (Of men) to coit; esp. in, e.g. 'Cor! I could (or I'd like to) whop it up her!, among young men ogling an attractive girl: since mid-C.20. (L.A., 1974.)

whop-straw; Johnny Whop-Straw. A clodhopper, a rustic: (low) coll., ex dial.: C.19–20. Clare, 1821 (OED); H., 2nd ed. whop-whop-whop! See ching-ching-ching! and whoppity... whopcacker or wopcacker. Anything astounding, notable, excellent; hence as an adj.: Aus.: since ca. 1925. (B., 1942.) With whop-, cf. stunning, q.v.; cf. also woopknacker.

whopper, whapper, wopper, wapper. Something, some animal or person, unusually large in its kind: (in C.20, low) coll.: from ca. 1780. Grose, 1st ed. (whapper); John Till Allingham, Mrs Wiggins, 1803, II, i (wapper); Marryat, 1829 (whopper); Surtees, 1854 (wopper); Walker, 1901, "Blime, she's a whopper!" says Billy. Ex whop, v.—2. Hence, a 'thumping' lie: (low) coll.: 1791 (Nairne: OED)—3. A person that 'whops': (low) coll.: late C.19–20.

whopper-chopper. Nickname for a man known to be 'well-hung', q.v.: Services': since mid-C.20. (P.B.) whopping, n. A severe beating, thrashing, defeat: (low) coll.: C.19–20. Ex whop, v. W.N. Glascock, Sailors and Saints, 1829, II, 132 (Moe).

whopping, adj., C.19–20; whapping, C.18–20; wapping, C.17–20; wopping, mid-C.19–20. Unusually large or great: coll.; in C.20, low. P.B.: by 1940, at latest, almost always qualifying another adj. of size, e.g. whopping great, ... big, etc.—2. Rarely, 'terribly' false (tales, etc.), 'terribly fine' (persons): id.; same period. Ex whop, v. Cf. whopper.

whoppity-whop-whop-cockin' - 'andle. 'At the end of a sentence this phrase means "and so on and so forth". It's a gibe at Gunnery jargon' (David Bolster, Roll on My Twelve, 1945): RN wardroom: WW2.

whore is, in mid-C.19–20, considered a vulgarity; harlot is considered preferable, but in C.20, archaic; prostitute, however, is now quite polite.—2. Hence, a term of opprobrium even for a man: coll.: late C.19–20. Gen. pron. hoor or hoó-er.—3. A semi-affectionate term (cf. bastard) for a man: Anglo-Irish: C.20. Desmond O'Neill, Life Has No Price, 1959, 'Brian was one of the best—the cute whore.'

whore-pipe. Penis: low:—1791 (Grose, 3rd ed.); † by 1890. whore-shop. A brothel: coll.: C.19–20.—2. Hence, a house or flat where behaviour is dissolute: C.20.

whore's-bird. See sings more like...

Whores' Canteen, the. A certain Plymouth public house frequented by soldiers, sailors and prostitutes: from the 1880s. Richards.

whore's curse. 'A piece of gold coin value five shillings and threepence, frequently given to women of the town by such as professed always to give gold, and who before the introduction of those pieces, always gave half a guinea' (Grose, 1st ed.): (mostly London) coll.: mid-C.18.

Whore's Gazette - Red Light News - Piccadilly Part Two Orders - Screws of the World. National Servicemen's names, all in common use, for a famous newspaper: since ca. 1947. The 1st and the 2nd were common in the Services in 1939–45, and presumably date from much earlier. Affectionate, not (except very rarely) derogatory.

whore's get. An indivisible phrase used mostly as a pej. term of address: nautical:—1885; ob. by 1930. Ex get, n., 2, on whore's son.—2. A white-slaver: c., and low: C.20. Gen. hoorsget.

whore's musk. Scented cosmetics; esp., their odour when advertising the presence of women: military coll.: C.20.

whore's robber. See messer.

who's a pretty boy then? Conventional address to parrot, budgerigar, etc., which may be misapplied for humorous effect: C.20. See DCpp. (P.B.)

who's dead and what's to pay? What's all the fuss about?, or why all this fuss?: c.p.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1860; ob. by 1920. R.S. Surtees, Facey Romford's Hounds, 1862, ch. 62. See DCpp.

who's for tennis? See tennis, anyone?

who's hoisting my pennants? Who's talking about me?: RN lowerdeck, c.p.: C.20. P-G-R.

who's milking this cow? Aus. var., since late 1940s, of next B., 1959.

who's robbing this coach? Mind your own business! Aus. c.p.: since ca. 1880 (B., 1942.) In humorous allusion to bushranging. Hence 'Let me get on with the job!': a joc. Aus. c.p., dating since ca. 1890. (B.P.) Leechman, 1967, suggested a N. American orig. with: 'The anecdote from which this phrase derives: The train robbers were robbing the passengers and threatening to rape the women. An altruistic passenger cries, "Spare the women!" An elderly lady turns on him, exclaiming, "Who's robbing this train anyway?"' To which B.P., 1975, countered: 'Ned Kelly and his gang held up a coach. Ned gave orders to rape the men and rob the women. One of his offiders said, "You mean, rob the men and rape the women." A passenger with a squeaky voice exclaimed, "Who's robbing this coach?"' who's shit? This low, direct, and indignant inquiry occasioned by any offensive fart of unknown origin is often answered, with a deliberate hearing of whose for who's, by 'Yours if you want it!': C.20. (P.B.)

who's smoking cabbage leaves? A c.p. to a person smoking a cigar, esp. if rank: mostly Londoners': late C.19–20. Cf. cabbage, 4, q.v.

who's to pay for the broken glass? Who is to pay for the damage (any damage): c.p.: C.19–early 20, with some revival during the blitz on London.

who's up who... See who buggers whom...

who's (he, she, name) when (he, etc.)'s at home? See when it's at home.

who's your hatter? Cockney var., ca. 1860–85, of where did you get that hat? Appeared in Punch, 16 Mar. 1861.

who's your lady friend? A c.p.: from ca. 1910. Ex a popular song.

whose dog is dead?; whose dog's a-hanging?; whose mare is dead? What is the matter?; what's all the fuss about?: c.p.: resp. C.17–early 20; mare, late C.16–mid-18. See DCpp.

whose little girl(ie) are you? (often prec. by and). A playfully joc. address male to female, in an incipient 'pick-up': C.20. David Craig, Whose Little Girl Are You?, 1974.

whose mare is dead? See whose dog...

whosermymbob or whosermiyjig. 'Whatsit' or 'thingummy (bob)' or 'whatsiname': Aus.: since ca. 1930. (B.P.)

whosit. An occ. var. of whatsit, for whatsiname, a person whose name is momentarily forgotten: coll.: later C.20. Perhaps ex US. (P.B.)

whow-ball. See whoa-Ball.

whoy-oi! 'cry used by coster-class upon sight of a gaily dressed girl passing near them. Also the cry of welcome amongst London costermongers' (Ware, 1909). Cf. oy!, q.v.

whuff, n. and v. A or to roar or bellow (e.g. like, or like that of, a rhinoceros): coll.:—1887 (Baumann).

whump. See wump.

why buy a book when you can join a library?; (2) you don't have to buy a cow merely because you are fond of - or like or need - milk. These male c.p.p. jeers at marriage are (1) Aus., since ca. 1920, and (2) gen., late C.19–20. In the 2nd, Australians say just, not merely, and prefer the interrogative if you like milk, why buy a cow or why buy a cow just because you like milk? (B.P.)

why curls leave home. A c.p., referring to baldness: since ca. 1950. A pun on why girls leave home, which, by the way, has, since ca. 1910, been a c.p. derisive of a good-looking 'ladies' man'. (Petch.)

why don't you just rev up and fuck off! Services' elab. of 'go away!': mid-C.20. See DCpp. (P.B.)

why girls leave home. See why curls...

why is a mouse when it spins? See COCKNEY CATCH-PHRASES, in Appendix.

why keep a dog and bark yourself (or... do your own barking?)? A self-explanatory c.p.: C.20. P.B.: or as a statement, 'There's no point or use or sense in keeping a dog and barking yourself.'

why the devil or the fuck or the hell...? Meré intensifications of 'why': cf. what the hell?: C.20. But why the devil! was, C.17–early 20, an expletive, as in Arrowsmith, The Reformation, 1673, IV.; (Moe).

why for (erroneously -fore)? Why: Aus.: C.20. (B.P.) Cf. dial. for why which, however, can also mean 'because'.

Whyms. Members of the YMCA: clubmen's: ca. 1882–1905. (Ware.) By 'telescoping of these initials'.

Wi(-)Wi; occ. Wee(-)Wee, or Wewi; etymol., Oui-Oui. Also, the sing. form is often used as a pl. A Frenchman: NZ and hence, to some extent, Aus.: 1842, R.G. Jameson (B., 1941); 1859, A.S. Thomson, 'The Wewis, as the French are now called'; 1881, anon., Percy Pomo (Weeweves). (Morris.) Ex the Frenchman's fondness for oui! oui! (and non! non!): cf. Dee-Donk, q.v.

wibble. Bad liquor; any thin, weak beverage: (? mainly provincial) s. or coll. (—1785); ob. by 1930, except in the provinces. Grose, 1st ed.; F. & H., 1904. ? cf.:

wibble-wobble. Unsteadily: coll.:—1847 (Halliwell). A 'reduplication of wobble (with vowel-variation symbolising alternation of movement: cf. zigzag)' (OED).—2. Whence as v., to move unsteadily; to totter, oscillate, vibrate: from ca. 1870 and likewise coll. Whence:

wibbly-wobbly. Unsteady: coll. and dial.: from mid-1870s. Ex prec.

wibbly. A C.20 abbr. (unrecorded before 1914) ofwibbly-wobbly. Unsteady; apt to wibble-wobble, q.v.: coll.: C.20.

wibling's witch, or W.W. The four of clubs: C.18–19. Grose, 1st ed., 'From one James Wibling, who in the reign of King James, I, grew rich by private gaming, and who was commonly observed to have that card, and never to lose a game but when he had it not'.

wicher-cully, etc. See witcher.

wick. See dip (one's) wick; get on (one's) wick; turn up the wick.

wicked. Very bad, 'horrid', 'beastly': coll.: C.17–20. T. Taylor, 1639, 'It is too well known that a wicked number of followers he hath had'; Horace Walpole, 'They talk wicked French.' (OED.) Cf. wickedly.—2. Hence, expensive: not upper-class: late C.19–20. (Robert Eton, The Bus Leaves for the Village, 1936.) Esp. 'a wicked price'.

wicked enemy, the. The Germans: esp. German aircraft (sing. or pl): ca. Sep.–Dec. 1940. Hector Bolitho, The English Digest, Feb. 1941, 'Fashionable for a time'. Ex the Press.

wicked lady, the. The cat-o'-nine tails: London's East End: since ca. 1945. (Richard Herd, 1957.) wicked sod. A liar: proletarian: C.20.

wickedly. Very badly; horribly: coll.: since C.18. Sterne (OED). In C.20, esp. 'wickedly expensive'. Ex wicked.

wicket. A casement: c., or perhaps merely catachrestic: mid-C.17–early 19. Coles.

wicket-keep. A wicket-keeper: coll. verging on S.E.: 1867. (Lewis.) Abbr. wicket-keeper.

Wickham. A Wickham's fancy: coll. (anglers'): from ca. 1910. OED.

Wicklows. Shares in the Dublin, Wicklow, & Wexford Railway: Stock Exchange coll.:—1895 (A.J. Wilson, Stock Exchange Glossary).

Wid; usu. in pl Wids. A member of the Women's Division of the RCAF: Can. airmen's: 1942–5.

widda, widdier, widdy. A widow: dial. and low coll.: C.19–20.—2. Hence, the widdy. The gallows: Scots: ? C.19. Cf. widow, 3, q.v.:? pun on widdy, a halter.

widdle, v. To make water: children's: C.20. Ex wee-wee+iddle. Also as n., in have a widdle.—2. See whiddle.

widdy. See widda.

wide, n. Elliptical for wide boy: from ca. 1940.—2. In to the wide, utterly; esp. in done or whacked to the wide, utterly exhausted: coll.: from ca. 1912. Very gen. among soldiers in WW1. (F. & G.) I.e. to the wide world: for all to see.

—3. Hence, in dead or done to the wide, utterly drunk: C.20. Lyell.

wide, adj. Immoral; lax: mid-C.16–20: S.E. until late C.19, then coll.—2. Alert, well-informed, shrewd: 1877 (Horsley, Jottings from Jail). Abbr. wide-awake. It verges on c. Cf. wide boy.

wide, adv. Outside the harbour: Sydney anglers': since ca. 1930. 'Have you been fishing wide?' (B.P.)—2. In go wide, to spend money freely: army: ca. 1860–1905. (Robert Blatchford, My Life in the Army, 1910.) I.e. to spread oneself.

wide at or of the bow-hand (i.e. the left). Wide of the mark: coll.: late C.16–mid-17. Shakespeare, Dekker, Webster. (Apperson.) Ex archery.

wide-awake. Sharp-witted; alert: s. (1833) >, ca. 1860, coll. Dickens (OED).

wide boy. A man living by his wits: C.20: c. > by 1935, s. See wide, 2.

wide in the bows. 'With wide hips and posteriors' (Lex, Bal., where, as in Egan's Grose, bows is spelt boughs): nautical coll.: ca. 1810–70.

wider the brim, the fewer the acres, the. An Aus. c.p., corresponding to lunatic hat, q.v., but implying a lack of intelligence: since ca. 1935. (B.P.)

widger. A small boy: RN: since late 1950s, (Peppitt.) Perhaps ex dial.; or ex wee, (very) small+the -dger of such words as bodger, codger.—2. RAF var. of next, 1: late 1970s. (S/Ldr G.D. Wilson.)

widget. A mechanical contraption or device, usu. small: coll.: 1970s. Perhaps a contraction of wifflow-gadget. (P.B.)—2. The original widget was probably the cigarette card.

The traditional widget is the toy submarine in the cornflakes packet... [Widgets] are, in fact, any gewgaws which are given away free in packets of something else [as sales promotion 'gimmicks'] (Lynn Barber, 'Making Widgets Come True', Telegraph Sunday mag., 2 Dec. 1979). Whence n., widgetry, the design and manufacture of widgets, and widgeteer, one who designs them. (P.B.)—3. See GREMLIN, in Appendix.

widgie (or -gy). 'Girl with horse-tail hair-do and bobby-socks, also playing juke-box in milk-bar' (Sunday Chronicle, 6 Jan. 1952): Aus.: ca. 1950–60. Orig. also spelt weegie (Wilkes's quot'ns, dated 1950 and 1951). The female counterpart of bodgie. Ex wigeon, q.v.—2. Esp. in have (got) a widgy on, to be in a bad temper: RN: mid-C.20. L.A. records it for 1961.

wido, n. A hooligan: Glasgow c. and low s. late C.19–20. (MacArthur & Long.) Prob. ex adj.; cf. wide boy.

wido, adj. Wide-awake; alert: low:—1859 (H., 1st ed.); ob. by 1940. A var. of wide, adj., 2.

widow. As title to the name: mid-C.16–20: S.E. until C.19, then mainly dial. and uncultured coll.—2. 'Fire expiring's call'd a widow' (The British Apollo, 1710): C.18–early 20. Cf. S.E. widow's fire. OED.—3. (Always the widow.) The gallows: ? C.18–mid-19. Ex Fr. la veuve.—4. An additional hand dealt in certain card-games: late C.19–20: s. >, by 1920, coll.—5. As the Widow, Queen Victoria: Services' coll.: 1863–1901. Ware, 'In no way disparaging'. Cf. Kipling's poem, pub'd 1892 in Barrack-Room Ballads, that begins, 'Ave you' eard o' the Widow at Windsor...'

—6. As the widow, the W-, champagne: 1899, Guy Boothby, 'A good luncheon and a glass of the Widow to wash it down', (OED); Ware, however, states that it dates from forty years earlier. Ex Veuve Clicquot.—7. A single word in the top line of a page: printers': late C.19–20. Printers think it unsightly.—8. See grass widow.

widow bewitched. A woman separated from her husband: coll. (1725) >, in mid-C.19, mainly dial. (Bailey; Mrs Gaskell.) Cf. grass widow, q.v.

Widows, the. The Scottish Widows' Society: insurance coll.: late C.19–20. Cf. the Pru.

widows and orphans. A railwaymen's c.p., applied to the suicidal practice of walking along a railway line with one's back to the approaching traffic: C.20. Railway.

widow's balls, the. That weekly dance in Hull which is attended by wives of fishermen at sea: RN lowerdeck: since ca. 1970 or a little earlier. (Peppitt.)

widow's mite. A light: rhyming s.: late C.19–20. B. & P.

widow's wink. A Chinese: rhyming s., on chink: later C.20. (Ronnie Barker, Fletcher's Book of Rhyming Slang, 1979.) cf. Tid.

wife. A leg-shackle: (mostly prison) c.: from ca. 1810. (Lex. Bal.; H., 2nd ed.) Ex clinging.—2. A pimp's favourite harlot-mistress: white-slavers' c.: late C.19–20. Londres.—3. Fiancée; one's girl; one's mistress: Services' (esp. RAF): since ca. 1930. (Partridge, 1945.) Cf. bride.—4. The passive member of a homosexual partnership: homosexuals': late C.19–20. Complement: husband. Anon., Lavender Lexicon, 1965.—5. See all the world and his wife; sidepocket(s).

wife cries five loaves a penny, (one's). She is in travail: a semi-proverbial c.p. of ca. 1670–1758. Ray, 1678. (Apperson.) I.e. she cries out, painracked.

wife-in-law. A girl belonging to a 'stable' of prostitutes: the world of prostitution: since ca. 1920. (John Gosling & Douglas Warner, The Shame of a City, 1960.) An extension of wife, 2.

wife in water-colours. A mistress or concubine: ca. 1780–1840. (Grose, 1st ed.) Easily fading colours: bonds quickly dissolved.—2. Hence, in C.19, a morganatic wife.

wife keeps the key, his. He drinks on the sly. See key, n., 5.

wife out of Westminster. A wife of dubious morality: London coll.: C.18–20; very ob., Ware in 1909 remarking: 'Sometimes still heard in the East of London'. Ex the proverb cited at Westminster wedding, q.v.

wife-preserver. A rolling pin: joc.: C.20. (Petch.) A pun on S.E. life-preserver.

wifey, wifie, rarely wif(e)y. Endearment for a wife: coll.: from ca. 1820. Properly, little wife, but gen. used regardless of size.

wiffle-woffle. An arrogant fellow: low:—1923 (Manchon). Perhaps because he gives one:—

wiffle-woffles, the. A stomach-ache; sorrow; melancholy, the dumps: mainly proletarian:—1859; ob. (H., 1st ed.) Cf. colly-wobbles (sense), wibble-wobble (form).

wifflow gadget. The same as hook-me-dinghy, q.v.: nautical: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) See also gadget, and widget.

wify. See wifey.

wig, n. A severe scolding or reprimand: 1804 (Sir J. Malcolm: OED): s. >, by 1890, coll.; ob. by 1935. Cf. wiggling, much more gen. in C.20. Perhaps ex a bigwig's rebuke.—2. Abbr. bigwig, a dignitary: coll. (rare after ca. 1870): 1828 (OED).

—3. A penny: Ayrshire s. (—1905), not dial. (EDD Sup.). Perhaps because it was the usual price of a wig, a bun or a tea-cake.—4. A scene, an act; such playing as will render the audience, ecstatic: Can. jazz-lovers' and musicians': since ca. 1956. (Victoria, BC, Daily Colonist; 16 Apr. 1959, 'Basic Beatnik'.) Cf. the U.S. jazzmen's flip one's wig (later flip), to approve ecstatically (Norman D. Hinton, American Dialect Society, Nov. 1958).—5. See wigs; oil (someone's) wig.

wig, v. To scold; rebuke, reprimand, reprove severely: s.: 1828 (George R. Gleig, The Subaltern's Log-Book, II, 31: 'You rise often in a hurry, fearing that you may be too late for parade, and get "wiggled" by the Major for not coming in time to inspect your company on the private parade': (Moe) >, ca. 1860, coll. Ex wig, n., 1, or wiggling, q.v. Cf. Fr. laver la tête: W.—2. To move off, go away: N. Country c.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.). Whence?—3. To post a scout on the route of flight in a pigeon race with a hen pigeon, to attract the opponent's bird and retard his progress: pigeon-fanciers' from ca. 1860. James Greenwood.—4. To eavesdrop; to listen to (person or persons) surreptitiously, as 'Is he wiggling us?': market traders': C.20. (M.T.) Abbr. synon. earwig. Among trawlermen, to listen on the radio (D. Butcher, Trawlermen, 1980, glossary).

wig-block. The head: orig. boxers': since (prob.) ca. 1840. A. Mayhew, Paved With Gold, 1857; Manchon, 1923.

wig-faker. A hairdresser: low London: late C.18–19. Ware.

wig-wag, v., n. and adv. To wag lightly; such wagging: coll.: late C.16–20. (OED.) Reduplicated wag. Adj., wig-waggy: C.20.—2. Hence, n. and v., (to transmit) a message by signalling; the message; the flag: military: from 1914. F. & G. Wigan is national joke, esp. in come from Wigan to be a thorough urban provincial: from ca. 1920: c.p. popularised by George Formby. Sen., 'the Wigan Nightingale'. Derivative ref. is made also to Wigan Pier: a fact alluded to in a book by George Orwell, 1937, The Road to Wigan Pier.

wigannowns. A man wearing a large wig: ca. 1785–1830. Grose, 1st ed.

wigeon. An endearment for a little girl or a female teenager or a young woman: Aus.: since ca. 1946. This—the source of widgie, q.v.—derives ex S.E. pigeon (used occ. as endearment) + piggy-wiggy (see piggy-wig), as B.P. informs me.

wigga-wagga. A flexible walking-cane: ca. 1895–1912. Ex wiggle-waggle.—2. Hence, penis: low: earlier C.20. Perhaps influenced by an early C.20 popular song, 'With my little wigga-wagga in my hand', the protagonist being represented as walking down the Strand: cf. Harry Randall's gag, 'There is such a thing as love at first sight, but, young man, if you meet it in the Strand, walk on!'

wiggied-out. 'So high on drugs that one is removed from reality' (Paul Janssen, 1968): adopted, ca. 1972, ex US. Prob. ex flip (one's) wig: cf. wig, n., 4, q.v.

wigger. An eavesdropper: market traders': C.20. Ex wig, v., 4. (M.T.) Cf. earwigger.

Wiggie, -y. The 'inevitable' nickname of men surnamed Bennet(t): Services': earlier C.20. (F. & G.; Bowen.) Orig. presumably anecdotal.

wiggling. A scolding; a severe rebuke, reproof, reprimand: s. (1813) >, by 1850, coll. Barham, 'If you wish to 'scape wiggling, a dumb wife's handy.' Ex wig, n., 1.—2. The activity in wig, v., 3, and 4.

Wiggins, Mr. 'Any mannerist of small brains and showy feather' (Bee): London:—1823; † by 1900.

wiggle. A wriggle; esp. in get a wiggle on, to hurry: Can.: C.20. (John Beames.) P.B.: since ca. 1950, at latest, also Brit.

wiggle, v. To waggle, wriggle: C.13–20: S.E. till C.19, then coll.—2. Hence the n.: coll.: late C.19–20.—3. The same applies to simple derivatives.—4. See wiggle-waggle, 2.

wiggle-waggle, adj. (1778); hence v. and n., both from ca. 1820. Vacillating; to move (v.i. and t.) in a wiggling, wagging way: coll. OED.—2. To strut about: coll.:—1923 (Manchon). Also wiggle.

wiggly; wiggly-waggly or -woggly. The adj. of wiggle, q.v.: coll.: C.20. Ex dial.

Wiggy. See Wiggie.

wigs. In dash my wig(s)!; my wig(s)!, mild imprecations: coll.: resp. 1797 (1812); 1891 (1871). Morris, 1891, 'I am writing a short narrative poem. My wig! but it is garrulous' (OED). Perhaps ex dashing one's wig down in anger.

wigsby. A man wearing a wig: joc. coll.:—1785. Grose, 1st ed., has also Mr Wigsby; wigster occurs ca. 1820. All three were ob. by 1880, and by 1920 they were †. Cf. rudesby, a rude person, and wigannowns, q.v.

wigster. See prec.

wikkel. See dim-liggies (more fully in Underworld).

Wilcannia shower. See shower, 1.

wilco! Strictly, Services' telephonic j. (often used to complement roger!, q.v.), it telescopes ('message understood and will comply!': used loosely in ordinary conversation, it is Services' coll., civilian s.: WW2 and since; ob. by 1970).

wild, n. A village: tramps' c.:—1839 (Brandon; H., 2nd ed.) Cf. S.E. vill, c. vile, q.v.—2. As the Wild, 'The extreme Evangelical party in the Church of Scotland': nickname: from late 1820s. OED.

wild, adj. See MOVING-PICTURE SLANG, §6, in Appendix.

wild-cat, n. A rash projector, risky investor (1812); a risky or unsound business-undertaking (1839): US coll., anglicised ca. 1880; ob. by 1935.—2., (Usu. written solid.) Elliptical for wild-cat strike, an unofficial strike, called at short notice: industrial coll.: since ca. 1950.—3. In the petroleum industry, since ca. 1910, thus, 'Indications are sought of [geological] structures which might act as oil traps, and the most promising of these are tested by the drilling of deep wells, known in the industry as "wild cats"' (Colonial Report no. 1930, State of Borneo, 1938, pub. in 1940). Claiborne, 1976, 'Pace the Colonial Office, a wild cat well has nothing to do with depth, but rather risk... This is in contrast with a "producer well", drilled to exploit a known oil field.' These terms apply world-wide.

wild-cat, adj. Risky, unsound (business or business enterprise); hence, reckless or rash: coll., orig. (1838) US, anglicised ca. 1880. Ex the American wild-cat; it 'dates from US period of "frenzied finance" (1836)' (W.).—2. See n., 3, second quot'n.

Wild Cats and Tigers Union. The NZ Women's Christian Temperance Union: since ca. 1950. A pun on the initials. wild-catter; -cattng. A person engaging in, an instance or the practice of, 'wild-cat' business: coll.: US (1883), anglicised ca. 1900. See wild-cat, n.: in later C.20 it applies more to senses 2 and 3.

wild dell. A 'dell' (q.v.) begotten and born under a hedge: c.:? C.17—early 19.

wild-dog, v.i. To hunt dingoes: Aus. coll.: late C.19—20. Often shortened to dog. Archer Russell, A Tramp-Royal in Wild Australia, 1934.

wild-fire. Some strong liquor; perhaps brandy: ca. 1750—80. See quot'n at slug, n., 1.

wild goose. A recruit for the Irish Brigade in French service: military: mid-C.17—18. (M. O'Connor, Military History of the Irish Nation, 1845.) Ex wild-goose chase.—2. Hence, the Irish Jacobites self-exiled on the Continent in 1691 and later: a late C.17—mid-18 nickname. OED.

Wild Indians, the. The Prince of Wales's Leinster Regiment (Royal Canadians): military: from the 1870s; ob. Ex the Canadian expression of loyalty at the time of the Mutiny. (F. & H.) This would have referred to the 1st Battalion; the 2nd Bn was raised a few years earlier, from Europeans in India. The Regt was disbanded, with the other Southern Irish Regiments of the British Army, in 1922. Carew.

Wild Irishman, the. The Irish mail-train between London and Holyhead on the L. & N.W. Railway: coll.: from ca. 1860. The Times, 27 Mar. 1862, 'The Irish express train (better known as the Wild Irishman) between London and Holyhead...' (OED.) L. & N.W. = former London & North Western.—2. The tumatakuru (a NZ plant): NZ coll.: late C.19—20. B., 1941.

Wild Macraes, the. The 72nd Regiment of Foot, later the Seaforth, and since 1958, the Queen's Own Highlanders: from 1777, when the Regt was raised, the clan Macrae providing the majority of the recruits. F. & G.

wild mare. See ride the wild mare.

wild oats. A dissolute young man: coll.: ca. 1560—1620. Gen. a nickname. Bacon (d. 1570), 'Certain light brains and wild oats'. Prob. ex, though recorded some twelve years earlier than, sow one's wild oats, to commit youthful follies, while to have sown... indicates reform: coll.: in late C.19—20, S.E.: 1576, Newton, 'That wilfull... age, which... (as we saye) hath not sowed all theyr wyeld Oates' (F. & H., checked by OED). Ex the folly of sowing wild oats instead of good grain; cf. Fr. folle avoine (W.). Hence also have or get one's oats, to enjoy sexual intercourse outside marriage: low coll.: of men, C.20; of women, perhaps only later C.20. Manchon, 1923; George Simms, Sleep No More, 1967, 'Chrissie will not get her oats.' Aus. has get (one's) oats from (a woman): C.20. (B., 1942.) Cf. feel (one's) oats.

wild rogue. A born or thorough-paced thief; a born rogue ever on tramp or a-begging: c.: later C.16—early 19. Awdelay; B.E.

wild squirt. Diarrhoea: low coll.:—1785 (Grose, 1st ed.); ob. by 1930.

wild train. A train not on the timetable, hence 'not entitled to the track' as is a regular train: railwaymen's:—1904 (F. & H.).

wilderness. A windlass: nautical (not very gen.): late C.19—20. Bowen.—2. In be in the wilderness, to be in need of 99 points: darts-players': since ca. 1930. Also the adj. cracked and split.—3. For the Wilderness, see Woods, 2.

wilds. Esp. in give (one) the wilds, to make angry, to depress: Aus.: later C.19—early 20. ('Tom Collins', Such Is Life, 1903.) Cf. willies.

Wilfred. A teetotaller: mostly proletarian: ca. 1865—1910. B. & L.: 'This reference to Sir Wilfred Lawson [1829—1906], M.P., the great teetotal champion.'

Wilfred Pickles, do a. To 'have a go': ca. 1947—60. An allusion to the famous radio star's most famous programme.

wilful murder. The card-game known as 'blind hookey': from ca. 1860; ob. H., 3rd ed.

Wilhelm II much. A bit too much of the Kaiser!: Society: 1898. (Ware.) Ex his many activities.

wilk. See whilk.

Wilkie is a City nickname for men surnamed Collins: late C.19—20. Ex Wilkie Collins the novelist (1824—89). See also Lottie.

Wilkie Bards. A pack of cards: rhyming s.: C.20. (F. & G.) Ex Wilkie Bard, comedian and 'card'.—2. (In sing.) A race card: racecourse rhyming s.: C.20. Mr Clive Graham, alias 'The Scout', via Julian Franklyn.

will. See making (one's) will.

will do! I will obey your order, follow your advice, suggestion, etc.: gen. coll.: 1970s. Perhaps spontaneous elliptical, but more prob. influenced by wilco. (P.B.)

will I buggery! (or ... fuck!; hell!) No, I certainly will not!: low emphatic: C.20. Cf. is it fuck!

Will-o'-the-wisp. (Gen. pl.) A shell with flight difficult to follow: Army officers': WW1.

will you have it now — or wait till (or until) you get it? A mainly domestic c.p. addressed to someone either impatient or in a hurry: since earlier C.18. Swift, 1738 (... stay till ...); Dickens, Pickwick Papers, 1836—7, ch. 10.

will you shoot? Will you pay for the drinks?: Aus. taverns': earlier C.20. (Ware, 1909; B., 1942.) A pun on shoot, to stand drinks. Ware also records the var. will you short?, will you buy a tot of spirits?

William. Esp. in meet sweet William, to meet a bill on its presentation: commercial:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.). Punning bill.—2. Weak tea: lower classes':—1923 (Manchon).—3. An occ. synon. of John Thomas, the penis: low: mid-C.19—20. Cf. Willie.

William Powell. A towel: convicts' rhyming s.: since ca. 1935. (Franklyn 2nd.) Ex the famous American film star.

Willie, -y. A (child's) penis: N. Country s.:—1905 (EDD Sup.); not dial. Often little Willie. By later C.20, much more widespread and sometimes used by adults as joc., childish. (Norman Franklin, 1982.) "ET hasn't got a willie," observes Linda' (Val Hennessy, article on children viewing the film ET [Extra Terrestrial], New Society, 23 Dec. 1982, p. 494).—2. A waybill: Can. railroadmen's:—1931.—3. A supply of betting money: Aus. sporting (Lawson Glassop, Lucky Palmer, 1949); also Aus. c. for any money, money in the till; hence, the till itself. Neil James spells it willy.—4. A ball: Shrewsbury: since mid-1930s. Marples, 'Perhaps pill, bill, willy.'—5. In chuck or throw a willy, to throw a fit: Aus.: C.20. (B., 1942.) Cf. willies, and perhaps:—6. Short for willy-willy.—7. As Big, or Little, Willie, nicknames for all sorts of things, e.g. guns: army: WW1. Ex Big W., the Kaiser Wilhelm, and Little W., his son the Crown Prince. B. & P.—8. See wandering Willie, and: Willie, Willie, o(h). A c.p. of 'satiric reproach addressed to a taradiddler rather than a flat liar': non-aristocratic: 1898—ca. 1914. (Ware.) Cf.:

Willie, Willie — wicked, wicked! This c.p. of ca. 1900—14 constitutes a 'satiric street reproach addressed to a middle-aged woman talking to a youth.' Ware derives it ex a droll lawsuit.

WILLIES

willies, the. (Cf. wiffle-woffles, perhaps its origin.) A feeling of nervousness, discomfort, vague fear: US (1900), anglicised ca. 1925. (OED Sup.) Esp. in give one the willies, to induce this feeling in a person, as in 'I don't know what it is about (e.g. a person, a place), but (he, it) gives me the willies.' Cf. hebbie-jebbies.

willin', willing. (Of persons) 'strenuous, hearty' (C.J. Dennis): Aus. coll. verging on S.E.: late C.19–20.

willock-eater. (Gen. pl.) An Eastbourne fishing-boat: nautical: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) A willock is a guillemot, a not very edible bird.

willow. 'Poor, and of no Reputation' (B.E.): late C.17—early 19. Lit., willowly.

Willie. See Willie.

Willy Arnot. Good whisky: Shetland Islands s. (1897), not dial. (EDD.) Perhaps ex a well-known landlord.

Willy Lee. A flea; mostly in pl Willy Lees: Aus. rhyming s.: since ca. 1925. B., 1953.

Willy Wag or W.w. or w.w. A swag: Aus. rhyming s.: C.20. Mary Durack, Keep Him My Country, 1955.

willy-willy. 'On land, a spiralling dusty wind [a dust devil]; at sea, a minor cyclone: esp. N.W. Australia' (Wilkes, who quotes the Melbourne Age, 20 Jan. 1894, p. 13, 'name given to these periodical storms by the natives of the north-west'). Perhaps ex Aboriginal, but cf. next. By 1945 at latest, it > S.E. Often shortened to willy.

willywaws. Squalls in the Straits of Magellan; but also light, variable winds elsewhere: nautical: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) Perhaps ex whirly-whirly.

Wilson's den; in full, W.-d., number ten. In Bingo: 10: since late 1964. The Rt Hon. Harold Wilson; no. 10 Downing Street—the Prime Minister's London residence. P.B.: an elab. of the older Tombola call, 'Number Ten—Downing Street'; obviously this call must change with the Prime Ministers. See TOMBOLA, in Appendix.

wilt. To run away, to 'bunk': London: from ca. 1880; ob. Ex wilt, (of flowers) to fade, to grow limp. Cf. fade out, q.v., and the ob. C.20 'gag', 'wilt thou (be my wedded wife)?' and she wilted.

wimbler. A hand-worked auger: railwaymen's coll.: C.20. (Railway.) Ex S.E. 'to wimble', itself ex the n. wimble.

wimminy-pimminy. Dainty, elegant: lower-classes' coll.: —1887 (Baumann); ob. by 1930. A var. of S.E. miminy (or niminy-piminy, finicking, affected).

wimp. A (young) woman, a girl: perhaps orig. Cambridge undergraduates', from ca. 1909 (R.M. Williamson, 1939); >, by 1923, more gen. (Manchon); ob. by 1930. Perhaps ex whimper or—a long shot—wimpel.—2. One who is old-fashioned and behind the times, a 'square': teenagers': adopted, late 1970s, ex US. Val Hennessy, Guardian, 21 Sep. 1979.—3. Hence, 'a creepy, spotty youth; a drip' (Miss Sue Wallinger, 1979): id. Ian Walker, New Society, 26 June 1980, 'Mark [a skinhead, q.v.] says he has no time for mods ("just a load of wimps"); 'Weeds and wimps cluster pallidly around the Ultimate Nutrition Products stand ...' (New Society, 4 June 1981).

Wimpey. A Vickers Wellington bomber aircraft: RAF: ca. 1938–52, then nostalgic. (New Statesman, 30 Aug. 1941.) Ex J. Wellington Wimpey, Popeye the Sailor's esteemed partner, in a very popular series of comic cartoons.—2. Humorously reputed to be an acronym of 'We Import Millions of Paddies Every Year', an allusion to the number of Irishmen employed by the very large construction firm of this name: 1970s. Cf. McAlpine Fusiliers. (P.B.) win (or, sense 1 only, winn), n. A penny: c.:—1567 (Harrman); ob. by mid-C.20. Variants are: wing: late C.19—earlier 20 (mostly in Ireland and hence US); winn, from C.17; whin(n): C.19—early 20. Dekker, B.E., Grose, Vaux (Winchester; † by 1900), 'Jon Bee' (who defines as a halfpenny), H., Flynt (wing). Perhaps abbr. Winchester.—2. A victory: (sports and games) coll.: from ca. 1860. OED.—3. A gain; gen. pl. (mostly monetary) gains: coll.: from ca. 1890. Perhaps abbr.

winning(s).—4. Success of any fig. kind: coll.: C.20. C.J. Dennis.

win, v. To steal: c.: from late C.17. (B.E., Grose.) In the Army, WW1 (and after), s., with the extension: to gain not quite lawfully or officially. Galsworthy, Swan Song, 1928, "How are you going to get the money?" "Win, wangle, and scrounge it". Cf. (to) make, q.v., and, in Fr. c., the exactly synon. gagner. The n. winnings may, as = 'plunder, goods, or money acquired by theft' (Grose, 2nd ed.), be c.: C.18–20.—2. See heads I win ...

win a pair of gloves. To kiss a sleeping man: a kindly act meriting this reward: coll.: from ca. 1710: ob. Gay, Grose. win(-)on, v.i. To 'get off' with a girl: Aus.: since ca. 1945. (Dick.) win the button. To be the best: tailors': from ca. 1860. (B. & L.) Here, button = medal.

win the mare or lose the halter. To play double or quits: coll.: C.17–18. In Northants dial., saddle for halter.

win the shine-rag. To lose; be ruined: London, ca. 1850–1910. (Mayhew.) Occ. shiny-rag, as in H., 1st ed., 'Said in gambling when any one continues betting' after the luck sets in against him.

wincey. Very small: Aus.: since ca. 1930. 'I would class this word as mainly feminine and juvenile ... Not a recent introduction' (B.P., 1969). Perhaps, as B.P. proposes, ex Ger. winzig, tiny, itself ex wenig, few or little. P.B.: but cf. the old finger-game, played for very young children, with its rhyme 'Incey-wincey spider, climbing up the water-spout'.

Winchester. See win, n., 1.—2. See WINCHESTER, in Appendix.

Winchester goose. A bubo: mid-C.16–17. Bacon (1559), Shakespeare, Cotgrave. The brothels in Southwark were, in C.16, under the Bishop of Winchester's jurisdiction: F. & H.—2. Hence a person infected therewith; hence, an objectionable person: C.17. All three senses, also Winchester pigeon.

winchin'. Courting; courtship: Glasgow: C.20. I.e. wenching in favourable sense: cf. † Scots winchie, a young woman. See: wincing.

wincing. An army var. of prec.: 1930s–40s. Perhaps contaminated, purposely, by 'wincing a vehicle'. For a specialised var., see wanch, v.

winco or winko. Wing commander: RAF: since before 1930. (Allan A. Michie & Walter Graebner, Lights of Freedom, 1941 ('winko'); Jackson, 1943.) Ex Wing Co., a frequent abbr.

wind. The stomach: boxing: 1823 (OED). Dickens, 1853. A blow thereon 'takes away the breath by checking the action of the diaphragm'.—2. A strong liquor, prob. rum or gin: ca. 1715–50. (Anon., The Quaker's Opera, 1728.) See the quot'n at bunter's tea. Because it catches the breath.—3. A wind instrument: musicians': C.20: coll. >, by 1945, S.E.—4. In by the wind, short of money: nautical: late C.19–20. Bowen.—5. See also: carry the wind; in the wind; for lagged for one's wind, see nap a winder; raise the wind; sail near (or close to) the wind; slip the wind; rasher of wind; shot between ...; weather, n., 1; take the wind; get wind of.

wind and piss (euph. water). See all wind ... wind-bag. A wind-jammer: nautical: late C.19–20. Bowen.—2. See windbag.

wind bagged. In have one's wind ... , to be winded: Public Schools': from ca. 1880. E.H. Hornung, Raffles, 1899, 'Bunny, you've had your wind bagged at footer, I daresay; you know what that's like?' Ex bag, v., 2: q.v.

wind-bagger. A deep-sea sailor: nautical: since ca. 1880. Bart Kennedy, London in Shadow, 1902.

wind (one's) cotton. To cause trouble: proletarian:—1860 (H., 2nd ed.); ob. by 1930.

wind do twirl. A girl: rhyming s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.); † by 1900.

wind enough to last a Dutchman a week. More wind than enough: (orig. nautical) coll.: from the 1830s; ob. (Dana.) Cf. Dutch, q.v., and var. wind enough (or enough wind) to blow the devil's horns off: mid-C.19–20, nautical (Baumann).

wind fight. A false alarm: army: 1915–18. (F. & G.) Cf. windy, 2.

wind(-)hammer. A pneumatic riveter: RN: since ca. 1930. Granville.

wind in your neck! 'A polite way of asking someone to close a door' (H. & P.): Services (esp. RAF): since ca. 1936. Cf. the entry at wood in it; contrast wind your neck in!

wind-jammer (or solid). A sailing vessel: US s. (1899) anglicised almost imm.; by 1930, coll. Athenaeum, 8 Feb. 1902.—2. A player on a wind instrument: theatrical: from 1870s. (B. & L.) Also an army nickname for a bandsman: early C.20. (John Aye, Humour in the Army, 1931.) Perhaps influenced by US wind-jammer, a talkative person.—3. An unsparring officer, esp. if inspecting (army: F. & G.) or if sparing of leave (RN: Bowen): earlier C.20.—4. A concertina: army in S. African War, 1899–1902. J. Milne, The Epistles of Atkins, 1902. (P.B.) wind-mill. The fundament: low:—1811; ob. by 1930. Lex Bal, 'She has no fortune but her mills', a low c.p.: i.e. 'wind-mill' and 'water-mill'.—2. See windmill.

wind of. See get wind of.

wind-pills. Beans: joc.: C.20. 'I first heard it about 1908' (Leechman). Ex the flatulence they tend to cause; cf. musical fruit.

wind-pudding. Air, in live on w.-p., to go hungry: proletarian: from 1890s. Cf. synon. uses of air pie and prairie pudding.

wind-splitters. 'Lean and scraggy cattle' (B., 1943): Aus. rural: C.20.

wind-stick (or solid). An aircraft control-lever: RFC coll.: 1916+. F. & G. P.B.: F. & G. apparently erred, to judge from the song, 'The Ragtime Aircraft Builders', 1917, in Jackson, 2: 'We mustn't forget the old windstick, /it goes alright/without a flick,/But sometimes stops—then we look sick—at five o'clock in the morning.' A joystick is mentioned in another verse.

wind-stopper. A garrotter: c.: late C.19–20. Cf. ugly man, q.v.

wind-sucker. A horse with the heaves: stablemen's: from ca. 1865. B. & L.

wind the (or one's) horn. To publish one's having been cuckolded: C.17–18. Cf. the C.17–18 proverb, he had better put his horns in his pocket than wind them.—2. To break wind: C.18–mid-19 low.—3. To blow one's nose hard: from ca. 1850. In C.20, gen. blow one's horn.

wind up, n. Orig. in get or have (got) the wind up, to get frightened or alarmed: from 1915; whence, put the wind up (someone), to scare or greatly frighten, from 1916; and so, independent, the wind up, nervousness, anxious excitement, from not later than 1918: all orig. Services' >, post-WW1, gen. Ian Hay, 1915 (OED Sup.); P. Gibbs, (late) 1916, 'It was obvious that the blinking Boche had got the wind up'; C. Alington, 1922, put ... (OED). Cf. wind vertical, and var. breeze up. See windy, 2. Professor Arnold Wall, in his review (The Press, Christchurch, NZ) of the 3rd ed. of this Dict., relates that, having long thought about the origin of the phrase, he is at last convinced that it arose thus: 'A favourite marching tune in the Army was "The British Grenadiers", of which a rude parody had been made [perhaps soon after the Peninsular War]... and the marching soldiers would sing it right up to the time of the war of 1914–1918. One verse ran: "Father was a soldier, at the battle of Waterloo, The wind blew up his trousers, and he didn't know what to do." It was natural that when a man was flustered..., he was said to have "got the wind up his trousers", later shortened to "got the wind up". This bears the obvious stamp of truth... The wedding of the words to a well known tune doubtless aided the vitality of the expression.' Professor Wall is probably right.—2. Nigel Dempster, 'The Ins and Outs of our Social Minefield', Telegraph Sunday mag., 11 Mar. 1979, notes that wind-up (as a clock) 'is replacing the démodé hassle [q.v., the n.].' Cf. next, 2.

wind up, v. To render (a racehorse) fit to run: racing: from

ca. 1870. OED.—2. As wind (a person) up, in 'The kids... will "wind you up" (take the piss [q.v.]) as much as they can, [but] the conversation becomes deadly serious on certain topics' (Time Out, 30 Nov. 1979): Londoners': late 1970s. Perhaps ex the fig. use of, e.g., winding someone up (like a mechanical toy), priming him to argue with bureaucracy. (P.B.) Cf. prec., 2, and the title of a pop song, 1982, 'It's only a Wind-up'.

wind up, adj. Pinned up; hence taut: rhyming s.: ca. 1870–1929. (Franklyn, Rhyming.) Association with the n. is extremely doubtful.

wind up (one's) bottoms. See TAVERN TERMS, §2, in Appendix.

wind up the clock. To coit with a woman: educated: from ca. 1760; ob. Perhaps ex a mildly pornographic passage in Tristram Shandy.

wind vertical; with vertical breeze. 'Wind up', i.e. frightened, very nervous: military, mostly officers': from 1916. (B. & P.) Also suffer from a vertical breeze or, occ., gust, to be 'windy' (F. & G.). See wind up, n. P.B.: a further var. occurs in J.E. Tennant, In the Clouds above Baghdad, 1920, p. 241: 'With reinforcements of pilots we began to feel our strength, and determined, in the jargon of the air, "to keep a vertical draught up the enemy".'

wind your neck in! Stop talking!: RAF: late 1930s–late 40s. (Robert Hinde, 1945.) Cf. winding.

wind'ard. See windward.

windbag. A mystery packet: grafters': C.20. (Cheappack, 1934.) The contents are worth little more than those of an empty bag.—2. See wind-bag.

windbag-blower. Market traders' term for the next: M.T., 1978.

windbag man. A seller of sealed envelopes: grafters': from ca. 1910. (P. Allingham, Evening News, 9 July 1934.) See windbag, and cf. prec.

winded-settled. Transported for life: c.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Ex pugilism. Cf. nap a winder.

winder. A knock-out blow (lit. or fig.), something that astounds one, an effort that breathes one: coll.: 1825 (Westmacott: OED). Cf. nap a winder, 3, q.v.—2. Short for Sidewinder, the name of an air-to-air missile: RAF coll.: later C.20. Phantom.

W Indies, the. The West Indies test cricket team: Aus. sports writers': since mid-1960s: Mrs C. Raab cites Australasian Express, 2 Feb. 1982.

winding. In take (someone) out of w., to silence; to nonplus: Aus.: since ca. 1920. B., 1922.

winding-post. See nap the winding-post.

winding the chain. See keeping the pot boiling.

windjammer. See wind-jammer.

windmill. An autogyro: RAF: since ca. 1935. (H. & P.) Cf. egg-whisk, q.v.—2. A propeller: RAF: since ca. 1938. (Jackson.) Both senses † by 1950 (P.B.).—3. See wind-mill.

windmill J.P. An ill-educated J.P.: New South Wales: ca. 1850–80. Because presumed to indicate his name with a cross: on maps, X = a windmill.

windmills in the head. Empty projects: coll.: late C.17–19. (B.E., Grose, Spurgeon.) Ex the windmill-tilting of Don Quixote. Apperson.

window. A monocle: lower classes': from ca. 1860 (Ware); slightly ob. by 1935.—2. See goldsmith's window; roper, 2.

window-blind. A sanitary towel: low:—1904 (F. & H.). window-dressing. 'Manipulation of figures and accounts to show fictitious or exaggerated value': commercial coll. >, ca. 1920, S.E. Ex lit. sense.

window-fishing. Entry through a window into a house: c.: late C.19–20.

window-pane. A monocle: joc. coll.—1923 (Manchon). Cf. window, q.v.

window-peeker. An assessor and/or collector of the window-tax: coll.: ca. 1780–1860. (Grose, 1st ed.) This tax was removed in 1851 (OED).

windsel. A nautical var. of windsail: coll.—1887 (Baumann).

windstick. See wind-stick.

windward. In get to windward of, to get the better of (a person): nautical, esp. RN, coll.: late C.19–20. 'Guns, Q.F.C. & Phyl Theelucker', Middle Watch Musings, 4th ed., ca. 1912, p. 22. (P.B.)—2. 'To get on the right side of authority, especially dockyard officials, from whom is obtained paint and other materials for smartening a ship' (Granville): RN: C.20.

windward passage. In one who navigates (or uses) the w.p., a sodomite: low:—1785 (Grose, 1st ed.).

windy. Conceited, over-proud: C.17–20: S.E. until mid-C.19, then Scots coll.—2. Afraid or very nervous; apt to 'get the wind up': army >, post-WW1, gen.: since ca. 1909 in the Royal Sussex Regiment, by S.H. Ward, Esq., who adduces the evidence ('Winde Expert') afforded by the Roussillon Gazette (the Regt's journal) of July 1911, p. 87. See wind up, n.—3. Applied to any place likely to induce fear: military: from 1916. There were various 'Windy Corners' on the Western Front. (F. & G.) The date 'suggests that they took the name from that notorious Windy Corner at the Battle of Jutland through which Beatty's depleted Battle Cruisers and the Fifth Battle Squadron had to make their turn North to rejoin the Grand Fleet, under the concentrated fire of the German High Seas Fleet' (R.S., 1967). Mr Spencer adds that the phrase was in RN use as early as 1900, when it was employed of the approach to the attack on the Taku Forts during the Boxer Rising; attested by Geoffrey Bennett in Coronel and the Falklands, 1962. See also Windy Corner.—4. (Of officer or NCO) fussy: army: from ca. 1917.—5. 'Long-winded, prosey, etc., as in a windy bore' (Granville): HM submariners: mid-C.20.—6. (Of matter or of type) set very open: Aus. printers:—1950 (B., 1953).

windy bomb. Edmund Blunden, Undertones of War, 1928, "Windy bombs" with their bat-handled porcelain buttons': army: 1916–17. (Petch.)

Windy Corner. Northern Germany, esp. the coast near Kiel: RAF pilots': since 1939. (Allan Michie & Walter Graebner, Their Finest Hour, 1940, p. 63.) Cf. windy, 3, q.v.

windy wallets. 'A noisy prater, vain boaster, romantic yarnster' (F. & H.): C.19—early 20. Ex dial.

windyburbs. A wind-proof jacket: RN: later C.20. 'Presumably a blend of windcheater + Burberry' (Miss Margaret Wood, WRNS 1967–72).

wine, v. To drink wine, orig. and mainly at an undergraduates' wine-party: coll.: 1829 (C. Wordsworth: OED).—2. Hence, to treat (a person) to wine: coll.: from early 1860s.—3. Whence dine and wine, the entertainments being separate or combined: coll.: 1867 (OED). In C.20, frequently wine and dine (P.B.).

wine-bag. A toper specialising in wine: (low) coll.: late C.19–20.

wine-cellar. The spirit-room: RN: C.20. Knock.

winer. One who habitually or excessively drinks wine: coll.: C.20. Cf.:

winey. Drunk; properly, drunk with wine: low:—1859 (H., 1st ed.).

wing, n. A quid of tobacco: prison c.: 1882 (J. Greenwood, Gaol Birds).—2. See win, n., 1.—3. (Gen. pl.) An arm: nautical: ca. 1820–1910. Egan's Grose; Baumann.—4. A sandwich-man's boards: c.—1932 (F. Jennings).—5. See hit under the wing.

wing, v.t. 'To undertake (a part) at short notice and study it the "wings"' (F. & H.): 1885 (Stage, 31 Aug.).—2. 'To run in or report a sailor for an offence against Naval regulations. Lower deck, from the shooting sense of "winging" a bird' (Granville): RN: C.20.

wing-ding. A party, a celebration: Aus. and Can. (spelt whingding), adopted ex US, where orig. it = a fit (epileptic or drug-induced), hence of anger, hence any ruckus: since mid-C.20. (W. & F.; P.B.) See CANADIAN, in Appendix, and ding, 3.

wing her. To set the brakes on a moving train: Can. railroadmen's:—1931. Ex sportsmen's S.E. 'to wing a bird'.

wing of a woolbird. See wool-bird.

wingco is a var. of winco.

wing'd. Tippy: ca. 1840–90. (William Juniper, The True Drunkard's Delight, 1933.) Cf. synon. hit under the wing.

winge, v. To complain frequently or habitually: Aus.: since ca. 1910. (Sidney J. Baker, letter, Observer, 13 Nov. 1938.) A perversion—or perhaps merely a corruption of—to wince. Also whinge. Hence, winger or whinger, a grouser, and w(h)inging, grouching (g pron. dj). But orig. Eng. esp. Lancashire and Yorkshire—dial.; whence presumably the Aus. usage. P.B.: in common use in the British army since mid-1950s, at latest. During later C.20, much play has been made in Australia with the derogatory generalisation winging Poms. Also as n., in e.g., 'having a whinge'; 'What's his whinge?' = what is he complaining about?

winged. 'One-armed, or wounded' (C. Crowe, Australian Slang Dict., 1895: Wilkes).

winger. A steward at table: nautical: C.20. Bowen.—2. Hence, a sneak, an underhand fellow: RN: from ca. 1915. (Bowen.) Cf. wing, v., 2.—3. 'A young sailor; an old tar's protégé' (Knock); hence, an assistant, a 'mucker': RN lowerdeck: C.20. Variants of the latter nuance are (usu. vocative): wings (from ca. 1930) and wingsy-bash (from ca. 1940), a joc. elab.—4. As the Winger, the Commander (Flying): FAA: since ca. 1920. Cf. Wings, 2.—5. A ship's steward, or a sailor, habitually allowing himself to be used passively: homosexuals': since ca. 1930.—6. Hence, fig., as in 'She seems to think she's the admiral's winger' = He thinks a lot of himself: since ca. 1935: orig., RN; by ca. 1950, fairly gen. homosexual.—7. In do a winger, To take unfair advantage in a bargain: Services': since ca. 1916. (F. & G.) Cf. sense 2, and the army work a flanker. (P.B.)—8. See winge; and wingers. Long, flowing whiskers: military: ca. 1900. Ware.

wingey or whingey; inferior forms in -gy. Querulous; cantankerous: Aus.: since ca. 1930. (B., 1953.) See winge.

wingless wonder. An officer on ground duties, i.e., one not wearing pilot's 'wings', or aircrew brevet: RAF: since ca. 1930. (Sgt G. Emanuel, 1945.) Cf. synon. kiwi and penguin.

There may be a ref. to Winston Churchill's description of Ramsay MacDonald as 'the spineless wonder'.
Wings, wings. A wing commander: RAF: since ca. 1935. (Robert Kee, A Crowd Is not Company, 1947.) Cf. winco. Perhaps ex, or poss, influenced by:—2. A commander in the FAA: RN: since ca. 1925. (Granville.) Cf. winger, 4.—3. Hence, commander (Air) 'responsible for the flying routine or operations in an aircraft carrier' (Granville, 1967): RN: since late 1930s. Cf. earlier Guns, Torps.—4. A pilot's badge, worn on the left breast, showing that he is qualified; hence, have (one's) wings, to be qualified to fly: since 1916 (B. & P.), and get (one's) wings, to complete one's flying training and qualify as an operational pilot: RAF coll. >, by 1943, j. The pilot's badge is a double spread of wings, but the term is also applied, loosely, to the single wing, or brevet, of other aircrew: observer, navigator, air electronics officer, etc.; also, among commercial airlines, to, e.g., stewardesses of the cabin staff. (E.P.; P.B.)—5. See sprout wings; winger, 3. wingy (pron. wing'y). Nickname for a man who has lost an arm, or the effective use of one arm: orig. navvies' (D.W. Barrett, Navvies, 1881); in C.20, mainly Aus. and NZ (Wilkes). Cf. limby, and winged, q.v.

wingy, adj. See wingey.

Winifred, O(h). A c.p. expressive of disbelief: lower and lower-middle classes': 1890s. Ware, 'From St Winifred's Well, in Wales' and its reputedly marvellous cures. Cf. Oh Willie, Willie...

winick. See winnick.

wink, n. A housemaid: Marlborough College: from ca. 1870. See Winkery.—2. A sixpence: Aus.: since ca. 1920. B., 1942, 'One and a wink'. Cf. Eng. kick in this sense.—3. See tip the wink; winks.

wink in (one's) eye, have a. To feel sleepy: Aus. coll.: ca. 1850–1910. W.W., The Detective's Album, 1871 (B.).

wink the other eye. Flippantly to ignore a speech, warning, etc.: coll.: late C.19–20.

wink wink – nudge nudge – say no more! 'Eric Idle's prurient character in [BBC TV surrealist-comedy series] 'Monty Python's Flying Circus'. "Is your wife a goer then? Eh? Eh?" (Nigel Rees, Very Interesting . . . , 1980): c.p.: since early 1970s. The order may be reversed, and often is, as in, 'Woman—a sexual object to be lusted after . . . , whistled at on the silver screen and nudge nudge wink'd at in every comedy series' (Jill Tweedie, Guardian, 24 May 1979.) P.B.

winker. The female pudend: low: later C.20. L.A. cites Paul Bailey, Trespases, 1970, p. 46.—2. See sense 1 and 4 of: winkers. The eyes: from early 1730s: S.E. until C.19, then coll.; by mid-C.19, s. Cf. the dial. winkers, eye-lashes.

—2. Long, wavy or flowing whiskers: ca. 1865–80. (Ware, who lists synon. flanges.) Ex a horse's blinkers.—3. Spectacles: Aus.: C.20. (Caddie, A Sydney Barmaid, 1953.) Ex sense 1.—4. Directional indicators in the form of flashing lights, on an automobile: motorists' coll., verging on j.: since late 1950s. Occ. in sing., as in 'the offside front winker isn't working'; even, paradoxically, 'my winker's on the blink' (= isn't working properly). P.B.

Winkery, the. The maidservants' dormitory: Marlborough College: late C.19–20. Ex wink, n., 1, q.v., which that excellent scholar Leonard Forster holds to be a doublet of wench (used at the College for a maidservant) and not, as I flippantly suggested, to derive from the winks she saucily bestows upon 'the young gentlemen'.

winkie. See winkle, n., 1.

winking. See easy as winking; like winking.

winking at you (, usu. it's). It—esp. penis or vulva—greets you with a wink: a playful admission of either innocent, barely unintentional, or unabashed exposure of the human body: C.20.

winkle, n. Penis: Children's; (young) schoolboys': late C.19–20. But since ca. 1960, it has been also adults': joc. or disparaging ('his little winkle') rather than euph. (L.A., 1974; Jonathan Thomas, 1976.) P.B.: at nursery stage applied also to little girls' vulva: domestic: C.20. It may be diminished even further by nursery var. winkie, -y.—3. In have (got something) on the winkle, to be obsessed by it: since ca. 1920. Kingsley Amis, The Green Man, 1969. 'Look, Dad, for some reason you've got death on the winkle.' Ex sense 1: cf. get on (one's) wick (= penis). (D.B. Gardner.)—4. See winkle-bags.

winkle, v.t. To steal: lower classes': from ca. 1910. (F. & G.) Ex prising a winkle out of its shell.—2. To capture (individual soldiers) by stealth: army: WW1. (Ibid.) Cf. winkle out, q.v. winkle-bags (or solid). Cigarettes: rhyming s., on fags: later C.20. "Seize a winkle", from "G'ie us a winkle . . ." (Red Daniells, 1980.)

winkle barge. An anti-aircraft ship, esp. a Landing Craft (Flak): RN: ca. 1941–5. P-G-R.

winkle-fishing, n. Putting fingers in nose: proletarian: —1923 (Manchon).

winkle out; winking. To hunt out, house by house or 'fox-hole' by 'fox-hole', esp. with rifle and bayonet; bayonet exercises: resp. since 1940 (military) and ca. 1930 (RN). The latter: Granville. The former: People, 31 Oct. 1943. (RN). Cf. winkle-pin and winkle, v., 2 (the prob. orig.), qq.v.—2. Winking: attacks by Typhoon aircraft on small enemy strongpoints, 500-or-so yards ahead of the troops: RAF: 1944–5.

winkle-pickers. 'Winkle-picker' shoes—shoes with very pointed toecaps: since ca. 1959. Cf.:-

winkle-pin. A bayonet: army, esp. Cockney: WW1+.

(F. & G.) Meiosis; cf. toasting-fork, a sword. See winkle out. winkle(-)piss. 'A term of contempt for any insipid drink and not solely for alcoholic ones (cf. piss, n., 2)': C.20. Apparently current mostly in the Hampshire–Dorset region. ? Ex the pallid outflowings of childhood compared with the more [darkly coloured and] pungent effluxions of maturity' (R.S., 1976, in his customary 'dead-pan' way). P.B.: but cf. weasle-pee, q.v.

winkle-trip. Strip-tease act by male(s) for an all-female audience, performed on a Thames pleasure-boat; 'the boys [strippers] on the trip call it a "winkle trip" or "ladies' dingdong night"' (Stuart Weir, New Society, 24 Jan. 1980). Cf. winkle, n., 1. (P.B.) winkler. One who 'winkles' (sense 2): army: WW1. (F. & G.) See winkle out.

winko. See winco.

winks. Periwinkles: streets (mostly London): mid-C.19–20. Mayhew, 1, 1851.—2. See forty winks; TIDDLYWINKS, in Appendix.

winky. In my winky!, a trivial oath, disapproved of for children's use in Kipling, Puck of Pook's Hill, 1906. Perhaps cf. winkle, n., 1. (P.B.)—2. See like winking.

Winlaton shag. 'A slang name for an inhabitant of Winlaton [in Durham]': Durham s.:—1892 (EDD).

Winn. See win, n., 1.

winner. A thing, e.g. a play, that scores a success: since ca. 1912. Ex winner, a horse that wins.—2. Hence, from ca. 1920, something esteemed to be certain to score a success. (But many a publishing 'winner' is a 'flop'.) P.B.: E.P. writes with feeling; he was himself a publisher, ca. 1926–32.

winnit (or perhaps winnit). 'A dull, unimaginative student who is always studying; that is, he is a "grind"': St Catherine's College, Oxford. (Adam J. Apt, of Boston, Mass., and St Catherine's, 1978.) later C.20.—2. Sense 1 may poss. derive ex a term heard, used by a Scottish drill instructor, 1953: he amplified it thus: 'Ye're a load o' winnits! That's turds. Turds that winnit stay in—an' they winnit come oot!' (obviously, 'will not'.) Or it may be sheer coincidence, merely a homophone. (P.B.) winnick, v.i. To giggle, snigger: market traders': C.20. (Patrick O'Shaughnessy, 1979.) Perhaps derived ex whimny; whinnick is recorded in EDD as 'to whimper or cry'. (P.B.)

winnick, adj. Crazy; mad, in any degree: army, from 1915; some later gen. use. (B. & P.) Ex the lunatic asylum at Winwick (pron. winnick), Lancashire. Also in gone stone winnick, (to have) gone clean out of one's mind, insane: id.

Winnie, w-. Quinine: Services': WW1. B. & P.

winnings. See we're winning.

winnings. See win, v.

winnypopper. The penis: Can. schoolchildren's: since ca. 1950. (D.J. Barr, 1968.) Cf. winkle, n., 1.

wino. A drunkard on wine: Can.: adopted, ca. 1925, ex US. (Leechman.) Adopted also in UK, ca. 1945, for an 'Alcoholic, particularly one who drinks cheap domestic wine' (Powis). Petch cites its use in the Bournemouth Evening Echo, 26 May 1971.

wins. See win, n., 2.

Winston's pet. 'A colossal long range gun made at Sheffield . . . just before the Armistice, but never used': RN: late 1918–19. (Bowen.) Ex (the then Mr) Winston Churchill.

winter blossoms (or one word). Jeremy Seabrook, 'The Costa Geriatrica', New Society, 21 Apr. 1977, writes of Bournemouth in the spring, when 'The few old ladies, who still live in hotels—the "Winterblossoms" as they are sometimes called—begin their journey to . . . cheaper hotels inland' (P.B.).

winter-campaign. Riot(ing); a drunken 'row': 1884–5. Ex dynamiters' winter activities. Ware.

winter-cricket. A tailor: ca. 1785–1890. Grose, 2nd ed.

winter drawers on! A punning c.p. on 'winter draws on', when the onset of winter necessitates a change into warmer clothing: since late C.19; E.P. recalls its use in Aus., 1908 (DCpp.). The Rev. Kenneth Cracknell quotes the cartoon caption, prob. from a Donald McGill 'seaside' postcard: "'Winter draws on, then, Mrs Brown!"—"That's no business of yours, Vicar!"' (P.B.)

Winter Headquarters. Devon and Cornwall: tramps' c.: C.20. W.A. Gape, Half a Million Tramps, 1936.

winter-hedge. A clothes-horse: proletarian:—1904 (F. & H.); ob. by 1930.

winter-palace. A prison: c.:—1887 (Baumann); ob. by 1935. A shelter for necessitous criminals.

winter-time. See where do flies go...?

winter woollies. See woollies, 1.

winter's day. In he is like a winter's day—short and dirty!, a disparaging c.p. since late C.18 (Grose, 2nd ed.); still occ. heard later C.20. Cf. the dial. winter Friday, a cold, wretched-looking person.

wipe, n. An act of drinking: coll.: late C.16–early 17. Rowlands (OED). Cf. swipe.—2. A handkerchief: low: since ca. 1700. (Capt. Alexander Smith, The Life of Jonathan Wild, 1726.) Cf. wipe-lay and wiper, 1.—3. A blow, hit, punch: low: from ca. 1875. (B. & L.) Very common in Anglo-Irish: P.W. Joyce, English in Ireland, 1910; he instances 'He gave him a wipe on the face.' Cf.:-

wipe, v. To strike; to attack, with blows or taunts: C.16–20: S.E. until C.19, then s. and dial. Cf. n., 3, and swipe, v., 1, q.v.—2. To refuse (a loan): c.: from ca. 1921. Perhaps ex wipe out.—3. To do without, dispense with: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) I.e. 'wipe off the plate'.—4. To have nothing to do with; to refuse to see or to speak to (someone): Aus.: since ca. 1940. Jon Cleary, Back of Sunset, 1959.—5. Hence, to ignore (someone) coldly; to snub severely: Aus.: since the middle 1940s. Culotta, 1957, adduces 'He got wiped' and 'I've wiped him'.—6. To 'wipe out', i.e. to kill, esp. to effect the killing of (someone): espionage: since (?) ca. 1950. Craig Thomas, Wolfsbane, 1978.

wipe (a person) down. To flatter; to pacify: low:—1860 (H., 2nd ed.). As one would a lathered horse.

wipe-drawer. A C.19 var. of wiper-drawer. (Baumann.) Cf., e.g. wipe-lay.

wipe (a person's) eye. In shooting, to kill a bird that another has missed: sporting: from ca. 1820. Cf. wipe (one's) nose.—2. Hence, to get the better of: from late 1850s. H., 2nd ed.—3. To give him a black eye: 1874, R.H. Belcher, 'Cheeky! it's Sunday, or else I'd wipe your eye for you' (OED). Cf. wipe, v., 1.—4. A var. of wipe the other eye.

wipe (a person's) eye for (something). To rob him of it: army: since ca. 1930. (P-G-R.) Cf. wipe, (one's) nose.

wipe-hauling. The filching of handkerchiefs from owners' pockets: c.: 1845 in 'No. 747'; ob. by 1930. Ex wipe, n., 2.

wipe hell out of (someone). To thrash, or defeat soundly: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.

wipe lay, the. Handkerchief-stealing: C.18–19. Recorded by Captain Alexander Smith in 1726: see wipe, n., 2.

wipe (one's) nose. Synon. with wipe (a person's) eye, 1: sporting: from ca. 1840. Surtees.

wipe (one's) nose of. To deprive or defraud (one) of (something): late C.16–mid-18. Again the OED gives as S.E.; again I suggest coll. Bernard, 1598, 'Who wipes our noses of all that we should have'; Cibber, 1721, 'Thou wipest this foolish Knight's Nose of his Mistress at last' (OED), which, by the way, recalls 'He'll wipe your son Peter's nose of Mistress Lelia' in anon., Willy Beguiled, ca. 1606. Cf. nose of and nose-wiper, qq.v.; and cf. prec.

wipe-off, n. A dismissal: Aus.: since ca. 1930. (H. Drake Brockman, Hot Gold, 1940.) Ex:-

wipe off. To say a final good-bye to; to decide to see no more of (e.g. a locality): Aus. coll.: since ca. 1925. (D'Arcy Niland, The Shiralee, 1955.) Probably elliptical for wipe off the slate. wipe-out, n. A violent dumping of a surfer by a wave: Aus. surfboard riders': since ca. 1960. Sun-Herald, 22 Sep. 1963; Pix, 28 Sep. 1963.

wipe out, v. To kill: Fighting Services', prob. since ca. 1850; by 1919, also in civilian use; by mid-C.20, verging on S.E. W.G. Carr, Brass Hats... (WW1), 1939 (Moe).

wipe round. To hit on: Cockney: 1895, E. Pugh, A Street in Suburbia, 'Garn! I'll wipe yer ramed the marth, talk ter me'. Cf. wipe, v., 1; wipe (one's) eye, 3.

wipe the deck with. To defeat utterly: RN: C.20. ('Taffrail', Pincher Martin, 1916.) P.B.: by mid-C.20, this phrase had been 'civilianised' as wipe the floor with: orig. low coll. > gen. and sporting.

wipe the eye of. See wipe (one's) eye, 1.

wipe the floor with. See wipe the deck...

wipe the other eye. To take another drink: from ca. 1860. H., 3rd ed., in form wipe one's eye, to take, or to give, another drink: a public house, esp. an old toper's, term.

wipe up. To steal: army, from ca. 1908 (F. & G.); police s. (Freelance Writer and Photographer, Apr. 1948).—2. To arrest: c.:—1935 (David Hume).

wipe your chin! A c.p. addressed to a person suspected of lying: Aus.: from ca. 1905. (To prevent the 'bulsh' getting into the beer he is probably drinking.)

wiped-out. Very 'high' on drugs; hence incapable, unaware of one's surroundings, bewildered: adopted, ex US, late 1960s. (Jagger; W. & F.) But cf. wipe-out, n.

wiper. A handkerchief: 1626 (Jonson); B.E.; Grose. In C.19–20, wipe (n., 2).—2. A weapon; ? an assailant: C.17–20; ob. Conan Doyle (OED).—3. A severe blow or reply (or taunt): s. > coll.: from mid-1840s; slightly ob. Cf. S.E. wipe, a blow, a sarcasm. wiper-drawer. A handkerchief-stealer: c.: late C.17–18. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) See wiper, 1.

Wipers. Ypres in Flanders: military: from 1914. Prob. ex the 'Wypers' (properly Ypre) Tower at Rye: itself coll. of late C.19–20. B. & P.—2. Hence Wipers Express, the German 42-cm shell (approximately 16 in.) first notably used at the Second Battle of Ypres.

wire, n. A telegram: coll.: 1876 (OED). Ex by wire, recorded in 1859. Cf. the v.—2. An expert pickpocket: c.: 1845, in 'No. 747'; 1851, Mayhew. Ex the wire used in removing handkerchiefs from pockets. Cf. wirer.—3. A wire-haired terrier: dog-dealers': from ca. 1890. London Evening News, 2 July 1937.—4. The penis: low: C.20. Ex pull (one's) wire, q.v.

—5. A reprimand: Aus.: since ca. 1930. B., 1943.—6. In give (one) the wire, to warn secretly: low (pre-WW1) and Services' (WW1). (F. & G.) Revived in WW2, mostly army, for 'to give advance information' (P-G-R).—7. As the Wire, the wire fence built by Mussolini on the frontier of Libya and Egypt: army coll.: 1940–3. 'It kept out nothing but the gazelles' (Peter Sanders, 1967).—8. As the wire, a var. of the straight wire, genuine information: c.: from ca. 1918. (Gilt Kid, 1936.) Perhaps ex 6.—9. See hanging on the wire, of which on the wire at (e.g. Loos) is a var.

wire, v.i. and t. To telegraph: coll.: 1859, Edinburgh Review, April, 'Striving to debase the language by introducing the verb "to wire"' (OED). Cf. wire, n., 1, q.v.—2. Hence, to telegraph to (a person, a firm): coll.: 1876 (OED).—3. V.i. and t., to pick pockets (of persons): c.: 1845, in 'No. 747'. Ex wire, n., 2.—4. See phrasal vv. ensuing.

wire away. Rare var. of wire in: 1888.

wire-draw. 'A Fetch or Trick to wheeld in Bubbles': c.: late C.17–mid-18. (B.E.) Ex the corresponding v., which is S.E. wire-happy. (Of prisoners of war) depressed and slightly unbalanced mentally by the constant sight of the surrounding barbed wire and mess: WW2. Used also in Cyprus, late 1950s, by non-combatant troops confined to camp because of terrorist activities in the surrounding countryside. Cf. stir-happy. (P.B.)

wire-in, n. 'Daily in our camp, every "man-jack" ... was getting more eagerly impatient for what Barney Hennessy called a "wire in"—and the more refined, "a final encounter", with the enemy' (N.W. Bancroft, From Recruit to Staff Sergeant, 1885, writing of an Irish soldier in the Suttlej campaign of 1845–6). Cf. next. (P.B.)

wire in, v.; rarely wire away. To set-to with a will:—1864 (H., 3rd ed., but cf. prec.); H., 5th ed., 'In its original form, "wire-in, and get your name up", it was very popular among London professional athletes', but, at the very beginning, it derives perhaps ex wiring off one's claim or one's future farm. Whence wire into. Cf.:-

wire in and get your name up! Have a shot at it! 1862–ca. 1914. Ware, 'Originally very erotic.'

wire-inspection. A 'short-arm' inspection: army, esp. during WW1. (Petch, 1969.) See wire, n., 4.

wire into (a meal, etc.). To set about eagerly, vigorously: 1887 (Baumann). Ex wire in. Cf. synon. hoe into.—2. To understand and enjoy; to be at one with: students of technology: later C.20. 'I really wire into Beethoven's later quartets' (Matthew Harrison, 1978). Cf. dig, v., 3 and 4. Perhaps rather ex electronics than an extension of sense 1. (P.B.)

wire-puller. A Royal Engineer: army: C.20. They're forever handling wire.—2. An electrician: ca. 1900–25.—3. A male masturbator: low: late C.19–20. Ex pull (one's) wire.—4. A manipulator of people and events: coll.: later C.20. Ex pull wires, var. of pull strings, as a puppeteer does. (P.B.)

wire-worm. A man that collects prices to wire to country clients: Stock Exchange: from ca. 1890. B. & L.

wired. Tense; anxious: Nigel Dempster, 'The Ins and Outs of Our Social Minefield', Telegraph Sunday mag., 11 Mar. 1979, reports it as 'replacing the démodé "uptight" [q.v.]: therefore, Society: late 1970s. But it did not replace uptight for 'ordinary people'. (P.B.) wired for sound. (Of a person) wearing an earpiece of any kind: Aus.: since late 1950s. (B.P.) Ex radio mechanics' jargon.

wireless or message by wireless. A baseless rumour, a report without ascertainable origin: since ca. 1925.

wireman. A telegraphist: coll.: early C.20. Manchon.

wirer. A pickpocket using a wire (see wire, n., 2): c.:—1857 ('Ducange Anglicus'); ob. by 1930.

wirer's rifle. A neglected rifle, esp. if ill-made: a rare term of WW1. (Petch.)

wires, on. Jumpy; nervous: coll.: late C.19–20. Prompted by S.E. highly strung.

wires crossed. In get or (have) got (one's) ..., to talk at cross-purposes (since ca. 1935); to fall or be under a misapprehension (? since ca. 1950): orig. s. >, very soon, coll. Ex mishaps with the telephone; occ. lines for wires. Cf. get one's knitting twisted; have a leg over. (Petch; P.B.)

-wise. Suffix = concerning, or 'in the manner of'; but often virtually meaningless: some Brit. copying of the US vogue usage: later C.20. (P.B.)—2. See street-wise.

wise as a dockyard pigeon (, as). Keen-witted: nautical: C.20. 'The Liver Birds', episode broadcast on BBC TV, 1 May 1976 (Peppitt). Contrast:- wise as Waltham's calf (, as). Very foolish: coll.: ca. 1520–1830. (Skelton; Grose, 3rd ed.) Perhaps suggested by the wise men of Gotham, who 'dragged the pond because the moon had fallen into it' (Charles Kingsley). Apperson.

Wise Boy's Paradise, the. 'This very apt term is used in the services to describe the unimportant jobs which seem to keep so many eligible men out of uniform, and the places overseas to which men have gone to avoid conscription' (H. & P., early 1943): since 1939. A list should be published of all those actors, artists, authors, et al., who put themselves far (and long) before their country: 'Wise guys? huh!' The loss of a creative life is unfortunate and deplorable; loss of the nation's, nay civilisation's, opportunity to create, tragic and unthinkable. P.B.: E.P. himself, although already in his late forties, and with experience of trench warfare at Gallipoli and on the Somme, rejoined with a commission in the RAEC. Discharged after a few months on health grounds, he fairly soon re-enlisted, this time as an aircraftman, 2nd class (a 'store-basher') in the RAF. Later he was found a post, still as 'the lowest form of animal life', with the group of writers commissioned by the Air Ministry.

wise-crack. See wisecrack.

wise (to). Aware (of); warned (about). Esp. be (or get), or put a person, wise (to): US coll. (ca. 1900), anglicised ca. 1910. Cf.: wise up, v.i. To 'get wise'; v.t., to 'put (a person) wise': US (C.20), anglicised ca. 1918, but 'Australianised' by 1916 (C.J.

Dennis): Buchan, 1919; Wodehouse, 1922. Ex prec. (OED.) But adopted in Can. by 1905 at latest. 'You've got a little way to hike alone ... and you're not wised up in everything' (Frederick Niven, Wild Honey, 1927).

Wiseacres' Hall. Gresham College, London: a mid-C.18–mid-19 nickname. (Grose, 2nd ed.) The hit is at members of the Royal Society.

wisecrack. A smart, pithy saying: adopted, ex US, ca. 1932; it had, by ca. 1950, and as for some time in US, an often pej. connotation. Earlier, hyphenated.

Wiselon. A Wesleyan: Welsh: late C.19–20. 'Draig Glas', The Perfidious Welshman, ca. 1911.

wish I had your job! (, I only). I work much harder than you do: Cockney c.p.: C.20.

wish I may die! An asseverative tag: Cockney: mid-C.19–20.

wish in one hand and shit (earlier, piss) in the other and see which (hand) gets full first! A c.p. retort on the expression of any wish whatsoever: low, mostly Cockneys': C.20 (shit); C.18–mid-19 (piss). See exp. DCpp.

wish (a person) on (occ. upon). To recommend a person to another: rare before C.20. Many knowledgeable persons think (and several have written to tell me so) that this term should be included: but at lowest it is coll. and I myself believe it to be familiar S.E. E.g. 'That officer was wished on us by the—Brigade.' 'Ultimately, I think, from the Witch Doctor's ability to transfer evil wishes from his client to his client's enemy, and it prob. comes into English slang via the Colonial Service' (Julian Franklyn).

wished on, as in 'I had this job wished on me', i.e. foisted upon me: coll.: late C.19–20. Ex prec.

wisker. See whisker.

wisker-splitter. See whisker-splitter.

wiskideon. A waistcoat: ca. 1945+. Fanciful; ex the now dial. pron., weskit.

wisty(-)castor or wistycastor (or -er). A blow; a punch: pugilistic: ca. 1815–40. Boxiana, III, 1821, 'This round was all fighting, and the wisty-castors flew about till both went down.' A var. of the earlier whister-clister, q.v.

wit. See much wit as three folks ...; Whit.

witch-cove. A wizard: c.: C.18–19. Baumann.

witch-piss. An inferior, or an unpopular, beverage, ranging from 'Naffy' tea to thin beer: RAF: ca. 1940–60. Also witch's-piss. Cf. synon. winkle-piss and weasle-pee.

witch tit (or teat), adj. (Of weather) very, esp. if bitterly, cold: since ca. 1960. (Granville.) Claiborne, 1976, proposes, 'abridged from the (?US) phrase, "cold as a witch's tit" (at midnight)—which presumably arose through some confusion between witch and revenant [ghost]'. See also colder than a witch's tit.

witcher; occ. wicher. Silver: c.: mid-C.17–early 19. (Coles, 1676; B.E.; Grose.) Hence, witcher-bubber, a silver bowl (all three); w.-cully, a silversmith (Ibid.); and w.-tilter, a silver-hilted sword (Ibid.). Perhaps a corruption of silver influenced by white.

witches' hats. The portable, coloured, safety cones used by police or workmen to guide traffic around and away from obstacles on the road: coll.: since late 1960s. Ex shape, like that of the traditional witch's pointed hat. (P.B.) witch's cunt. See tighter than ...

witch's tit. See witch tit.

with. A S. African coll. (—1913) is with, as in 'Can I come with?', i.e. with you. Ex influence of Cape Dutch sam, together. Pettman.—2. See throw; warm with; with or without?

with a face like yesterday. Glum- or sulky-looking; ill-favoured: non-aristocratic: from ca. 1903; ob. W.L. George, The Making of an Englishman, 1914.

with a five-franc note in one hand and his prick in the other. A soldiers' c.p. (WW1), applied to those who, as soon as they received their week's pay, dashed off to a brothel.

with bells on. With lurid, or at least, picturesque additions:

c.p.: later C.19—mid-20. Prob. ex pictures of court jesters. See DCpp., and with knobs on.

with book. In the 'throes' of writing a book: C.20. I've heard it only rarely since ca. 1960. Prob. of medical orig., on with child. Warwick Deeping, Sorrell and Son, 1925, 'and that people who write books have a way of disappearing while they were "with book".'

with - but afters. 'Officers of the Naval Reserves who rank with, but after, officers of the Royal Navy' (Granville): RN wardroom: C.20.

with difficulty! A usu. true, but oblique, answer to questions starting 'How?'; e.g., 'Good Heavens, Janet! How did you get into those trousers?'; 'How do you get from here to the other side of Birmingham?', etc.: joc.: since ca. 1978. Often elab. with some, or great, difficulty. (P.B.)

with forty pounds of steam. See forty pounds...

with friends like that - who needs enemies? A c.p. used in such contexts as 'Well, I lent it to a friend, and he's lost it'—and worse examples of perfidy: adopted, ex US, mid-1970s. (P.B.)

with his hat off. See hat off.

with it. As agreement, with it!, or with you!; 'I understand you—I have grasped what it is you require of me': coll.: from ca. 1970. (P.B.) Prob. ex sense 3.—2. In be with it, to understand and appreciate and enjoy music: jazz-lovers': since the late 1930s. (Observer, 16 Sep. 1956.) This perhaps derives from the Can. (and US) carnival employees' to be with it, to be one of carnival or fairground crew. C.20. (Leechman.) P.B.: or is it ex 'in sympathy with'? See also JAZZ, in Appendix, for get with it.—3. Hence, to be alert or well-informed and up-to-date: since ca. 1959. Cf. the quot'n at Rockers... 'Even "with-it" might be acceptable as a kind of sociological onomatopoeia, an expression with overtones which match the thing described' (Anthony Lejeune, Daily Telegraph colour sup., 10 Mar. 1967). P.B.: also as adj., e.g., 'They were a very useful lot in my class.'

with kid. Pregnant. See kidded.

with knobs on, adj. Embellished; generous.—2. Adv., with embellishments; with interest, forcibly. Both, C.20. Ex knob = excrescence = ornament. Cf. with bells on.—3. In (and the same to you—with (brass) knobs on!), the same to you—only more (so): usu. a childish taunt or somewhat desperate rejoinder: since ca. 1910. (B. & P.) See same to you, in DCpp.

with or without? positive: with or without. 'Often heard in cafés and snack bars. The server at the counter, where sugar is put in tea at the counter, will say "With or without?" The person ordering often asks for tea and adds "With" or "Without"'. People who have heard German or Swiss say "mit" sometimes use this. They seldom say "With sugar"' (Petch, 1966): coll.: since ca. 1920. P.B.: Occ., joc. domestic: with or without with?

with the chill off! A comment or exclam. indicative of dissent or depreciation or disbelief: coll.: from ca. 1840. Cf. over the left.

with the corner up! Don't believe him!: c.: ca. 1930–60. Robert Fabian, Fabian of the Yard.

with (one's) trousers down. See caught...

within a gnat's (, to). A very short distance indeed; 'a fit to within, say, a "thou" [1000th of an inch]—the distance between a gnat's piss'ole and its arse'ole—but not to be measured with a micrometer' (Mr Chris Irwin, bookseller and engineer, 1979): engineers' and technicians': later C.20.

within a mile of an oak. Near enough; somewhere (derisively): late C.16–18: coll.; sometimes a c.p. Porter, 1599, 'Where be your tools?... Within a mile of an oak, sir'; Aphra Behn, D'Urfev, 'Your worship can tell within a mile of an oak where he is'; Swift, Apperson.

within call of. Near: coll., from ca. 1700; soon S.E. Cf. S.E. within sight of.

within the four seas. In the British Isles, it refers to a bird's breeding-range: coll.: since (?) ca. 1920. R. Fitter, Britain's Wild Life, 1966 (Peppitt).

without. (By ellipsis of the gerund.) Not counting: 1871, George Eliot, 'My father has enough to do to keep the rest, without me' (OED).—2. (By ellipsis of the object, except as opp. with): C.14–20, S.E. until C.19, then coll. Newman, 1834, '[He] was afraid to tell me, and left Oxford without' (OED).—3. (As conjunction.) If... not; unless: C.14–20: S.E. until C.18, then coll.; in late C.19–20, sol. Johnson, 1755, 'Not in use, except in conversation' (OED).—4. See with or without; cold without.

without a mintie. Penniless: Aus. sporting: since ca. 1920. (Lawson Glassop, 1949.) I.e. without a minted coin.

without a word of a lie. A c.p., emphatic for 'honestly!': late C.19–20.

without any. Without liquor (for a stated period): lower classes' coll.: from ca. 1890. Ware.

wits as sharp as a midshipman's hunger (, has or with). Keen-witted: RN: C.20. (A. Kent, The Flag Captain, 1971.) Perhaps a pun on the earlier, mid-C.18—mid-19 synon.,... as a midshipman's hanger (short sword). (Peppitt.)

Witsies. 'Students of the University of Witwatersrand, Johannesburg: since ca. 1925' (Prob. A.C. Partridge, of that university).

Witt, the. See whit.

witter. To annoy (someone) by talking nonsense: Leeds undergraduates:—1940 (Marples, 2). P.B.: in later C.20, fairly gen. coll.; used in the same way as rabbit, v., q.v.: 'He went wittering on, a great long spiel about how he'd...' Ex dial. (EDD, which compares twitter).

wittle. To talk at length to little point; to talk nonsense, to 'witter' q.v.: later C.20. Heard in E. Midlands; poss. ex dial., though not recorded in this sense in EDD, but more prob. a var. of witter. It might also be spelt whittle, q.v. (P.B.)

Wiwi. See Wi-Wi.

wiwol. 'A pilot that keeps telling people that he flew Lightnings [jet fighters]—"when I was on Lightnings"' (S/Ldr G.D. Wilson, 1980): RAF joc.: late 1970s.

wizard, adj. Excellent, first-rate: from ca. 1924. ('Ganpat', Out of Evil, 1933, 'A perfectly wizard week!') Ex wizard, magical. (Dict. 1st ed., 1937.) E.P. later added this note: it was immensely popular in the RAF (and the WAAF) in WW2: witness, e.g., Mary Welsh Monks in Lights of Freedom: Hector Bolitho's article, Listener, late 1940; H. & P.; Jackson, who postulates RAF currency before 1930; Partridge, 1945. Via the FAA, it > popular in the RN by 1942 (Granville). The term became gen. civilian s.; after ca. 1952, however, it was little used except by schoolchildren and—such things reach them after they've reached everyone else—by the lower-middle class. P.B.: Gp Capt H.W. Pearson-Rogers, in a letter to The Times, 28 Feb. 1981, confirms that the RAF was using wizard in 1929–30, dating it by the Schneider Cup victories.

wizard prang. A spectacularly successful raid on an enemy target: RAF: since ca. 1940; by 1955, ob. P.B.: as an exclam., Oh! wizard...!, uttered in a 'hearty' tone, it came, ca. 1944 +, to typify the hare-brained, 'press-on', pilot of the 'Flying Officer Kite', 'Pilot Officer Prune' sort. Cf. wizzo!

wizz, the. Var. of whiz(z), n., 2. F.D. Sharpe, The Flying Squad, 1938, where also occurs wizzer for whizzer (see whizz-man).

wizzer or wizzo. Urination: Scottish children's: late C.19–20. Echoic. Cf. widdle.

wizzo, usually exclamatory: splendid!: RAF: 1942+. (Partridge.) Ex wizard.—2. See whizzo.

wobbegong. Anything notable or excellent: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) Ironic ex woebegone? P.B.: Aus. POD gives wobbegong as Aboriginal name for a carpet-shark.—2. (Pron. halfway between wobbegong and woebegone.) A 'thingummy' (Baker); esp. an insect, a 'creepy-crawly', centipede, crane-fly, etc. (P.B.): Aus.: since (?) ca. 1925.

Wobbie or -y. A member of the International Workers of the World: Can. workers': from ca. 1910. (W.A. Gape, Half a Million Tramps, 1936.) In US, it is Wobbly or Wabby. In Brit. and Aus., Wobbly.

wobble, n. See throw a wobble.

wobble like a drunken tailor with two left legs. (Of a ship) to steer an erratic course: nautical c.p.: late C.19–20. Bowen.
wobble-shop. A shop where liquor is sold unlicensed: c. or low:—1857; ob. ('Ducange Anglicus'.) Cf. whistler, 3, and whistling-shop, qq.v.

wobbler or wabblor. (See foot-wobbler.) Rare in simple form: army:—1874 (H., 5th ed.).—2. 'A boiled leg of mutton, alluding to the noise made in dressing it' (Bee): ca. 1820–50.—3. A horse that, in trotting, swerves from side to side: racing:—1897 (B. & L.).—4. A pedestrain; a long-distance walker: sporting:—1909 (Ware). Cf. sense 1, and see bum-waggle.—5. An egg: low Cockney: from ca. 1880. Rook, 1899.—6. 'A soldier toadying for stripes' (B., 1942): Aus. army: WW2.—7. A staid, dull conformist, a 'square', q.v.: teenagers': early 1980s. (James Williamson, 1982.) Cf. wackie, 2, above.

wobbles, the. In horse, a sickness caused by eating palm leaves: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1880. Baker.

Wobblies. Members of the International Workers of the World: since ca. 1910. See Wobbie.

wobbly, n. In throw a w., to become mentally unbalanced, have a nervous breakdown: Services': later C.20. Polly Toynbee, Guardian, 30 Oct. 1982, quotes a naval psychiatrist, Surgeon Cdr Morgan O'Connell, reporting his experience in the Falkland Is. campaign: 'If the men heard my name called on the public address system all kinds of stories would go round. They'd say "Someone's thrown a wobbly again".' Cf. the coll. throw a fit, and similar entries at chuck a...—2. As Wobbly, a member of the wobblies.

wobbly, adj. Uncertain risky, likely to fail: coll.: late 1970s. David Leitch, Sunday Times mag., 9 Dec. 1979, article about the Radio 4 one o'clock news programme; right up to the last minute, the exact details of the broadcast are uncertain, so 'It gets very wobbly sometimes'. (P.B.)—2. Mrs C. Raab: as Wobbly, e.g. 'A wobbly song'.

Wobbly Eights, the. 'King Edward VII class of battleships, which comprised the Third Battle Squadron at the start of [WW1]. They were very erratic in their steering' (Granville): RN: 1914–15. Bowen.

wodge, wodgy. See wadge.

woe betide you (him, etc.). You'll be getting into trouble: coll.: mid-C.19–20. Ex + S.E. sense. OED.

woebegone. See wobbegong.

woefuls, got the. Sad; wretched: coll.:—1909 (Ware); still heard occ., 1980: sometimes a touch of the woefuls (P.B.). Cf. maid.

Woff. A member of the Women's Auxiliary Australian Air Force: Aus. Services': WW2. (B., 1943.) Cf. the English Waff.

woffie. To eat; drink: low:—1823; † by 1890. (Egan's Grose.) Perhaps cognate with Northamptonshire dial. waffle, to masticate and swallow with difficulty (OED).—2. V.i. and t., 'To mask, evade, manipulate a note or even [a] difficult passage'; music-halls' and musicians':—1909 (Ware). Ex waffle, to yelp: cf. waffle, v., 1.—3. Hence, more gen.: from ca. 1920. (G. Heyer, Death in the Stocks, 1935.) See waffle, v.

wog (or W.). A lower-class babu shipping-clerk: nautical: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) Soon, any Indian, Pakistani, etc. from the Indian Subcontinent; an Arab; 'A native. Someone once called enlightened natives "Westernised Oriental gentlemen" and the name caught on' (Jackson), via the initials: RAF: since ca. 1930. But Gerald Emanuel goes nearer the mark, I think, when (1945) he asks, 'Surely the derivation is from "golliwog"?—with ref. to the frizzy or curly hair; wog, indeed, is a nursery shortening of golliwog. See also white wogs. P.B.: in later C.20 the term has > gen., and, although patronising, is not always used with rabid xenophobia—it's often a matter of 'Well, what else can you call them?' Also as adj.; see compounds below.—2. A baby; a very young child: Aus. nursery: C.20. Also pog-wog, poggy-wog, pog-top, poggle-top, etc. (Baker.) Of the diddums variety of affectionate idiocy. P.B.: I suggest that these 'idiocies' are all variants or perversions of the common Eng. dial. polywog, a tadpole (EDD).—3. Hence, a germ or parasite; anything small (e.g. tealeaf floating on cup of tea): Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.—4. As the wog, tubercular infection: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (Margaret Trist, Now That We're Laughing, 1945.) Hence, wog, a person with tuberculosis: since ca. 1925. (Dymphna Cusack, Say No to Death, 1951.) But B.P., 1963, amends: 'I have made extensive enquiries and everybody agrees with my belief that the wog is used of tuberculosis only by those in sanatoria or during a discussion concerning tuberculosis. Ten million Australians regard the wog as influenza, or loosely as a heavy cold with aches and pains, running nose, headache, etc.' P.B.: I have heard it used (1960s) also for a stomach-ache: Aus.: 'I've got a wog in my belly this morning!' seemed to refer to the pain rather than the germ of sense 3. Cf.:- wog gut. (Acute) diarrhoea: Aus. army: mostly 1940–2. (Rats, 1944.) Also Palestine ache. Ex their training period in Palestine. See prec. 1, 4.

wog music. 'In the late [19]40s and early 50s "Wog music" was the common term for the Middle-East strains often picked up on the radio... Obviously it came from returned soldiers; it was not used offensively; and it seems to have been dropped when the immigrants started arriving.' Robert Bartrop is writing (1981, to P.B.) of London; but the term was more widespread and, in the Services, still current until at least ca. 1975. See wog, 1. woggerly. An Arab village: army and RAF: since ca. 1930. (P-G-R.) P.B.: used of the 'native quarter' of Port Said, during the invasion of Egypt by Anglo-French forces, late 1956.

Woggins. Worcester College: Oxford under-graduates': C.20. (Collinson.) Also Wuggins.

woggling. Wagging one's club for a long time before making the stroke: golfers' coll.: since ca. 1920. (Bernard Darwin, Golf Between Two Wars.) Ex waggle + jog.

wogs. See white wogs.

wogs begin at Calais. The c.p. that epitomises all that is worst in English parochial, xenophobic insularity: since ca. 1950 (? earlier). See wog, 1. I.e. 'anything outside little old England is full of nasty foreigners'; and the phrase has variants, for the ever more parochially-minded: wogs begin at Offa's Dyke (see white wogs, 2); ... West of Pompey; ... North of Cockfosters (for Londoners); ... at the Waveney (Rev. Paul Kybird, a Norfolkman); etc. (P.B.)

wolf. A philanderer: adopted, ca. 1944, ex US servicemen. One of the linguistic consequences of the American occupation of London during 1943–5. Cf. S.E. wolfish, predatory. 'The word "wolf" has softer meanings in Australia, particularly when used by girls, as in "I don't trust your father, he's a wolf"' (B.P.).—2. See see wolf.

wolf in the breast. An imposition consisting of complaints, by beggar women, of a gnawing pain in the breast: c.: mid-C.18—early 19. (Grose, 3rd ed.) Cf. medical lupus and: wolf in the stomach, have a. To be famished: coll.: late C.18–20; ob. (Grose, 1st ed.) Cf. stomach worm, q.v. Ex the old proverb, a growing youth has a wolf in his belly.

Wolf of Tuscany. An Italian soldier: Brit. army in N. Africa: 1940–3. Peter Sanders, Sunday Times mag., 10 Sep. 1967, adds. that 'one of the Italian formations in the desert was the Wolves of Tuscany division'. P.B.: this sounds like Brit. army ironic, 'taking the mickey'.

wolf-whistle. 'A whistle to show awareness of, approval of, and sometimes an invitation to, a sexually attractive woman ... Commonly a brief rising note followed immediately by a longer descending note' (W. & F.): coll.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1944. See wolf. SOD; P.B.

Wolfe's Own. The 47th Foot Regiment; from ca. 1881, the (1st Battalion of the) Loyal North Lancashire Regiment: army: from ca. 1760; ob. The black worn in the gold lace commemorates Wolfe. In late C.19–20. occ. the Wolves. F. & G.

Wolfland. Ireland: coll. nickname: late C.17—early 18. (OED.) P.B.:? ex Irish wolf-hounds.

wollop. See wallop.

wolly, wallie, n. A uniformed policeman, esp. a constable: much used by detectives—and also by the underworld—mostly in the Metropolitan Police area of London: later C.20. (G.F. Newman, Sir, You Bastard, 1970.) P.B.: just poss, ex Wallie, -y, diminutive of Walter: cf. charlie, in the sense of a fool, a buffoon. But see 3.—2. A moron, a fool (usu. a young male): since later 1970s. 'He thinks a lot of recent skin [i.e. skinhead, q.v.] converts [to the National Front Party] are "just a bunch of wallies who've learnt how to chant Sieg Heil at gigs"' (Ian Walker, New Society, 26 June 1980).—3. (Gen. pl.) An olive: East Londoners:—1909 (Ware). Ex the street cry, Oh! Olives! P.B.: a poss, source of sense 1: cf. nana, ex banana.—4. One who 'wollies': See:

wolly, v. To 'send up' the disco 'scene' by deliberate bad dancing or outrageous dressing; a term of approval for 'to parody': late 1970s. (Mrs. C. Raab, 1979.)

Wolver. Penis: Midland and Northern English rhyming s.: since ca. 1945. Short for Wolverhampton, clearly an elab. of Hampton, itself elliptical for Hampton Wick, q.v. (Ronald Hjort, 1967.)

Wolves, the. See Wolfe's Own.—2. The Wolverhampton Wanderers: sporting: late C.19–20. Cf. Spurs, the.

wom. A wireless operator (mechanic): RAF: since ca. 1935. (E.P., New Statesman, 19 Sep. 1942.) Ex the initials W.O.M. Distinct from wop.

woman. In tossing, the Britannia side of the penny: from ca. 1780. Grose (at harp).—2. See make an honest woman of; WOMEN, in Appendix.

woman and her husband, a. A c.p. applied to 'a married couple, where the woman is bigger than her husband' (Grose, 2nd ed.): late C.18—mid-19.

woman of all work. 'A female servant, who refuses none of her master's commands' (Grose, 2nd ed.): ca. 1785–1840. woman of the town. A prostitute. Orig.—witness A New Canting Dict., 1725—it may have been c.

woman of the world. A married woman: coll.: ca. 1580–1640. Shakespeare, As You Like It and All's Well.

woman-who-did or -diddery. A popular novel with sexual interest: book-world, resp. coll. and s.: very late C.19—early 20. (Manchon.) Ex Grant Allen's The Woman Who Did, 1895. womble, womblety. See wamble, wamblety.

women and children first. A joc. c.p. on an occasion of non-emergency: since ca. 1914.

women's-lib; libber; libby. See lib, n., 7.

womming. A 'GW/GC joint line expression for rail turning' (Railway, 2nd): ca. 1890–1925. Ex dial. wamble, or womble to revolve. I.e. Great Western and Great Central Railways.

won. Stolen, etc.: see win, v.

wonch. See wanch, n. and v.

wonder, n. See chinless wonder; wingless wonder.—2. As the wonder!, coll. abbr. of in the name of wonder: 1862 (OED).

wonder, v. In I wonder!, I doubt it, can't believe it, think it may be so: coll.: 1858, Punch, 'What next, I wonder!' (OED).—2. In I shouldn't wonder!, I should not be surprised (if, etc.): coll.: 1836, Dickens, "'Do you think you could manage...?' "Shouldn't wonder," responded boots' (OED).

wong. A catapult: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1943.) P.B.: perhaps a corruption of synon. shanghai.

Wong-Wong. The German Gotha bomber aircraft of 1918: RAF and AA: 1918, then historical. (Sholto Douglas, Years of Combat, 1963.) Ex the sound issuing from its twin engines. wongi. 'A friendly yarn, a chat; esp. in N.W. Australia, Ex Aboriginal' (Wilkes).

wonk. 'Yellow dog. A term commonly applied by foreigners to the ordinary chinese [mongrel, pi] dog. From the Ningpo pronunciation of the two characters [for y.d.]' (Herbert Giles, A Glossary... on Subjects Connected with the Far East, 1900). Still in use among 'Old China hands' in Hong Kong in the 1960s, for any scruffy mongrel. (P.B.)—2. A useless seaman; a very inexperienced naval cadet: RN: from ca. 1917. (Bowen.) Since ca. 1930, predominantly a junior midshipman. Granville derives the term ex sense 1, suggesting that it originated on 'China Stations'; E.P. prefers 'ex wonky'.—3. An Aus. Aborigine's pej. for a white person—cf. the Aus. whites use of boong for an Aboriginal: C.20. B., 1959.—4. In all of a wonky, upset, very nervous: ca. 1918–28. (OED Sup.) Ex wonky.—5. Occ. earlier spelling of whank, q.v. at wank.

wonky. See wanky.

wonner. See oner.

won't eat you! (, we, they, she, etc.). A c.p. applied to someone's expressed fears of, or reluctance to face, a certain person, or people; often 'Oh, go on—he won't (occ. can't) eat you!', in encouragement: since C.18. See quot'n from Swift, 1738, in DCpp. (we...).

won't have it, I (or he, etc.). I don't believe it; or, I won't admit it: coll.: mid-C.19–20.

won't run to it! A sporting c.p., early C.20, applied to a horse that has insufficient staying power to reach the winning-post. Ware.

won't you come home, Bill Bailey? A c.p. of the first decade, C.20. (Collinson.) Ex the popular song.

woo, n. A 'petting session', a bout of mild love-making: NZ: since ca. 1930. Slatter, 'Having a woo with some joker.' Directly ex S.E. 'to woo'.

wood. Money: London drinking s.:—1823 ('Jon Bee'); † by 1890. Ex liquor from the wood.—2. As Wood, Collingwood, a suburb of Melbourne: Melbourne's coll.: C.20. B., 1942.

—3. In have the wood on (someone), 'To hold an advantage' over him: NZ (B., 1941), soon >, if not there already, Aus. (Lawson Glassop, Lucky Palmer, 1949). Also, in Sunday Telegraph, 16 Sep. 1973, hold the wood on. Wilkes. E.P.: prob. ex the game of bowls.—4. As Mr Wood, a truncheon: police: C.20. (Free-Lance Writer, Apr. 1948.) Contrast Wood family...,—5. As the wood, the pulpit: 1854 (Thackeray: OED). See also look over the wood.—6. In put a bit of wood in it!, shut the door! Services' > gen.: C.20. (F. & G.) Variants are put the wood in the hole! (gen.) and put a piece of wood...! (recorded as Yorkshire dial.).—7. See can't get the wood; look through the wood; Woodbine, 2.

wood-and-water Joey. A parasitic odd-job man ('hewer of wood and drawer of water') hanging about hotels and other establishments: Aus.: later C.19—earlier 20. (B. & L.) See joey, 4.

wood-butcher. A carpenter: aircraft artificers': WW1. (F. & G.) Cf. wood-spoiler.

Wood family in front, the. A theatrical c.p.= a bad house, i.e., empty seats: late C.19–20. (C.B. Cochran, Showman Looks On, 1945.) Var. Mr and Mrs Wood in front, and, noted by Michael Warwick in the Stage, 3 Oct. 1968, Mr Woods in front.

wood in it (or in the hole). See wood, 6.

wood merchant. A seller of lucifer matches: London streets': ca. 1875–1912. Superseded by timber merchant.

wood on. See wood, 3.

wood-pile. See fish-horn.

wood-spoiler. Although listed as 'a ship's carpenter', RN lowerdeck use, by Ware, 1909, 'Taffrail' makes it clear that the term applies rather to the carpenter's mate, who is also known as chippy chap; earlier C.20. Cf. grub-spoiler, a cook; and wood-butcher.

Woodbine. A British soldier: Aus. and NZ Services': WW1 (B. & P.); WW2 (B., 1943). Because the Tommies smoked so many Wills 'Wild Woodbine' cigarettes, among the cheapest to be had.—2. Any cheap cigarette: coll.: from 1916. ('Taffrail', Pincher Martin). By ca. 1950, if not much earlier, Woodbine was shortened to Wood, as 'A packet of Woods', or 'It's only a Wood, I'm afraid' (P.B.). Cf. Woods, q.v.—3. See Packet of Woodbines.

Woodbine funnel. 'Long, narrow funnel above Elliott pot engine' (D. Butcher, Driftermen, 1979, glossary): driftermen's: earlier C.20.

woodcock. A tailor presenting a long bill: from ca. 1780; ob. (Grose, 1st ed.) Cf. snipe, q.v.

Woodcock's Cross, go crossless home by. (P.) To repent and be hanged. Without crossless, the phrase app.= to repent. (Cf. Weeping Cross, q.v.) Coll.: C.17.

woodcock's head. A tobacco-pipe: coll.: 1599 (Jonson); † by 1700. Early pipes were often made in the likeness of a woodcock's head. F. & H.

wooden, n. One month's imprisonment: c., and grafters' s.: C.20. (Cheapjack, 1934.) Prob. abbr. or postulated wooden spoon=moon=month. P.B.: but cf. woodman, 2, q.v.

wooden, v. 'To fell, knock out' (Wilkes: 'cf. stiffen'): Aus.: C.20. Cf. wooden fit; wooden out.

wooden casement; w. cravat. A pillory: joc.: ca. 1670–1720. Contrast hempen cravat.

wooden doublet. See wooden surtout.

wooden ears on, have, as 'I had wooden ears on', I couldn't hear: since ca. 1920. Cf. cloth ears and tin ears.

wooden fit. A swoon: proletarian: late C.19–early 20. B. & L.; F. & H.

wooden habes. The pieces on a draughts-board: London: ca. 1820–1910. Bee; Baumann.

wooden hables. A coffin: ca. 1780–1850. Grose, 1st ed., 'A man who dies in prison, is said to go out with a wooden habes'. Cf. wooden surtout, contrast wooden casement, and see esp. Grose, P.; cf. also dial. get a wooden suit, to be buried.

wooden hill, the. The stairs; esp. (go up the (little) wooden hill(s) to Bedford(shire)): lower-middle and upper working classes': mid-C.19–20.

wooden horse. A gallows: mid-C.16–17: s. soon > coll. (D'Urfev: Apperson.) Whence, prob.:

wooden-legged mare. The gallows: ? C.18–mid-19. Cf. three-legged mare, q.v.

wooden legs are cheap! See crutches are cheap!

wooden nutmegs. They occur esp. in the N. Country boast, 'Nobody is going to sell me wooden nutmegs', i.e., I am alert and nobody's fool: since ca. 1830. There are doubtless variants; cf. the N. American, poss. derivative, don't take any wooden nickels!

wooden out, v. To floor (someone) with a punch: NZ var. of wooden, v., q.v. Slatter, 'You bloody piker. A man oughta wooden you out.' Perhaps, as E.P. suggests, ex stretching out on the wooden floor.

wooden overcoat. A coffin: mostly joc.: since mid-C.19; in C.20 the predominant var. of those listed at wooden surtout.

wooden pegs. Legs: rhyming s.: C.20. An occ. var. of Scotch pegs, q.v. at Scotch peg. Franklyn 2nd.

wooden ruff. Same as wooden casement, q.v.: c.: late C.17–early 19. (B.E.) See ruff, 2.

wooden set-too. Anglo-Irish (C.19) for wooden surtout: Wm Carleton, Rory the Rover, 1845.

Wooden Shoes. Those who favoured either Pretender, hence France: ca. 1665–1750. With a pun on sabots. 'Here in England, two hundred years ago, when the "Jew Bill" was before Parliament, the walls were chalked with the words "No Jews.—No. Wooden Shoes"... rhyming slang. ... Wooden Shoes implied "foreigners"—people who wore sabots (Julian Franklyn, Leader, Jan. 1939). The Bill was passed in the year 1753: see Cecil Roth, A Jewish Book of Days, 1931, p. 92. R.S., 'After the honeymoon of the 1660 Restoration was over, the slogan was: "No popery—no wooden shoes";... The traditional English distrust of foreigners (wooden shoes) has been repeatedly linked with whatever was the immediate bogey of the period.'

wooden spoon. The person last on the Mathematical Tripos list: Cambridge University coll.: C.19–20. Ex the spoon formerly presented to him. Gradus ad Cantabrigiam, 1803.

—2. The Parliamentary usage mentioned in H., 3rd ed., is derivative: he whose name appears the least frequently in the division-lists. From ca. 1860; ob.—3. A fool: Society: ca. 1850–90. (Ware.) Ex sense 1.—4. In C.20 sporting coll., a 'booby' or consolation prize for being last.—5. A penis erect; the erection itself: ca. 1920. Attested by that barrack-room parody of a popular song ('I love my girl, I love her dearly') which ends: 'I love them all with a wooden spoon'.

Admittedly, I have never heard it used; but I accept the word of a friend well versed in these matters.

wooden spooner. 'A sporting team that comes last in a competition' (B.P., 1977): coll. rather than s.: since ca. 1950. Ex prec., 4.

wooden surtout. A coffin: from ca. 1780. Grose, 1st ed.: H., 3rd ed., 'Generally spoken of as a wooden surtout with nails for buttons'; ob. by 1930. Cf. wooden doublet, w. habes, w. overcoat, or w. ulster, the earliest being w. doublet (1761: OED), likewise the first to disappear; the latest is w. ulster (Ware, 1909).

wooden swear. An ill-tempered slamming of a door: C.20. Cf. wood, 6, q.v.

wooden tenpenny cases. Sabots: Anglo-French: ca. 1815–50. (David Carey, Life in Paris, 1822.) Here, cases=encasers.

Wooden Tops, the. The Guards Regiments: non-Guards army: since late 1940s. An amiably derogatory nickname, based on an alleged lack of intelligence, and the military legend that the cobblestones in St James's Palace courtyard are actually the tops of the heads of Guardsmen buried upright. (P.B.) And see woodentops.

wooden wedge. The last name in the classical honours list at Cambridge' (H., 2nd ed.): Cambridge University coll.:—1860. See wedge, 2. Cf. wooden spoon, 1.

woodener. A punch, a blow: Aus.: 1908 (H. Fletcher, Dads and Dan between Smokes, p. 39: Wilkes). Hence, woodener of five, a fist: Aus. low. (B., 1942.) See wooden, v.; cf. bunch of fives.

Woodentops. As in 'Smart Metropolitan detectives refer to their flatfoot colleagues in blue as Woodentops. In the wake of the latest Countryman trial for corruption the Woodentops have taken to calling their errant detective colleagues Bananas: yellow, bent and hanging around in bunches' (Guardian, mid-1982).

woodie. An 'old wood-panelled station wagon' (Pix, 28 Sep. 1963) or 'an old car, partly constructed, or reconstructed, of wood' (B.P., mid-1963); hence, 'any old car having surfboard racks' (B.P., late 1963): Aus.; the latter, surfers': since ca. 1950, 1961, resp.—2. See woods, 1.

woodman. A carpenter: coll. and dial.: late C.19–20. Cf. chips.—2. A prison sentence of one month: c.: C.20. 'From the fact that years ago in prison you slept on wooden boards for the first month' (John Gosling, The Ghost Squad, 1959). Cf. wooden, n. woodpecker. 'A Bystander that bets' (B.E.): c.: C.17–early 19. Dekker, 1608, shows that he is an accomplice betting to encourage novices or fools.

Woods. A Wills Wild Woodbine cigarette: army (1914) >, by 1919, lower classes'. (B. & P.) Also wood; woodie, -y.—2. The Woods (or the w-). The lavatories: Marlborough College: since ca. 1870. 'The lavatories were originally by the Mound behind the College, in the part now known as "the Wilderness"' (L.W. Forster). See wood family...

woodsex. See Jimmy Woodser.

woodwork. In such phrases as 'crept out of the woodwork' (Peter York, Harpers & Queen, Aug. 1977), 'he must have just crawled out...' (Burchill & Parsons, The Boy Looked at Johnny, 1978), and 'They're probably hiding in the wood work', comparing persons with woodworm, death-watch beetle, dry-rot, etc. for (usu.) humorous effect. (P.B.)

woof. 'To eat fast (from "to wolf")' (Jackson): RAF, since ca. 1925; by mid-C.20, also army. Often as woof it back.—2. Hence (?), 'to open the throttle quickly' (Ibid.): id.: since ca. 1930. P.B.: or perhaps echoic, ex the resultant whoof of energy and sound; cf. woofle.

woof run. A hash-house; a cheap restaurant: R Aus. N: WW2. (B., 1943.) Cf. prec., 1.

Woofers, the. The Worcestershire and Sherwood Foresters Regiment (29th/45th), 'now conveniently abbreviated to "The Woofers"' (Soldier Magazine, June 1980): army nickname. The regts amalgamated in 1970. (P.B.)

woofits, the; esp. get the woofits, to be moodily depressed: from ca. 1916; ob. by 1930. Perhaps = woeful fits?

woofle. The syncopated beat of a twin-cylinder engine: motorcyclists': later C.20. (Dunford.) Echoic; cf. woof, 2.

woofter. Var. of poofter, q.v., a male homosexual: teenagers': early 1980s. (Joanna Williamson, 1982.)

wool, n. Courage, pluck: c. (—1860) >, ca. 1870, pugilistic s. (witness H., 5th ed.); slightly ob. by 1930. H., 2nd ed., 'You are not half-wooled, term of reproach from one thief to another.' Prob. ex joc. S.E. wool, hair: see wool-topped un.—2. In have (one) by the wool, by infatuation to control: Aus.: C.20. (Baker.) Claiborne comments, 1976: 'Surely the "wool" here is the genital hair—thus related to get [or have] someone by the short hairs, which I continue to believe must originally have referred only to genital hair, as shown by the paraphrase short and curlies. Hair on the nape may be short, but it is not necessarily so.'—3. In in the wool; out of the wool, (of sheep) about, or soon, to be shorn; having only just been shorn: Aus. coll.: C.20. B., 1942.—4. See keep (one's) hair on; more squeak than wool; tie (one's) hair.

wool, v. t. To pull a person's hair: adopted, ex US, late 1860s. Le Fanu (OED).—2. To 'best' (a person): low:—1890 (B. & L.) Ex pull (the) wool over the eyes of.

wool(-)barber. A sheep-shearer: Aus. joc.: C.20. Tom Ronan, Only a Short Walk, 1961.

wool-bird. A sheep: orig. (—1785), c. >, early in C.19, low s. Grose, 1st ed.; H., 2nd ed., 'wing of a woolbird, a shoulder of lamb'. Also woolly-bird, q.v.

wool-bug. 'He pictured the shearers, the "wool-bugs", in their dirt and grease' (Jean Devaney, The Butcher Shop, 1926): NZ: ca. 1890–1940.

wool-classer. A sheep-biting dog: Aus. joc.: since ca. 1910. (Baker.) A wool-classer 'pecks at' the wool he classifies.

wool-grower. The head: pugilistic: ca. 1840–90. Augustus Mayhew, Paved With Gold, 1857.

wool-hawk. A skilful shearer: Aus.: C.20. (Baker.) Ex the habits of that bird.

wool-hole. A workhouse: orig. printers' s. (—1841: 'printing' Savage) >, by 1859, tramps' c. (H., 1st ed.); ob. by 1930. Ex a lit. and technical sense.

wool is up; wool is down. Times are good; times are bad: rural Aus. c.pp. (coll. not s.): from ca. 1880; ob. (B. & L.) In ref. to the price of wool, a staple product of Aus.

wool, or woollen, king. A sheep 'king' or owner of a very large sheep-station or of numerous stations: Aus.: since ca. 1920. B., 1943.

wool on. See keep (one's) hair on.

wool on the back. Money, wealth: commercial: 1909 (OED Sup.).

wool shorn, have (one's). To have or get a haircut: Aus.: since ca. 1925. (B.P.)

wool-topped un. A plucky fellow: boxing: ca. 1870–1900. H., 5th ed., where also a reg'lar woolled un, a very plucky fellow. See wool, n.

woolbird. See wool-bird.

Woolies. A Woolworth's store: urban Aus.: since ca. 1930. (H.C. Brewster, King's Cross Calling, 1944, cited by B., 1953.) Cf. woollies.

wooled. See wool, n., 1.

woolley. See woolly.

woollies. Woollen underwear: domestic coll.: late C.19–20. P.B.: esp. winter woollies, warm underwear (or jersey, cardigan, etc.), whether made of wool, or of any other material.—2. As the woollies, esp. in give one the woollies, an occ. var. of the willies: army officers' (prob. joc.): Feb. 1935—ca. (?) 1945.—3. As Woolies, a Woolworth's store: since ca. 1910. Cf. Marks.

Wooloomooloo Frenchman; W - Yank. A Sydney youth that apes the French or the Americans: Sydneyites': 1940 +. B., 1942 and 1943.

Woolly. 'Woollongong (popularly pronounced Woollen-gong)': Aus.: since ca. 1920. B., 1953.—2. (w.-) A sheep:

Aus.: late C.19–20. B., 1942.—3. A blanket: coll.: later C.19—early 20. (H., 3rd ed.)—4. See woollies.

woolly, adj. In a bad temper: from early 1860s; ob. (H., 3rd ed.) Perhaps the 'originator' of keep your wool on.

woolly-back. 'A thesis [about Skelmersdale, Lancashire] by Inspector Roy Yates produced last month speaks of tribal tensions between "scousers" (former Liverpoolians there) and "woolly-backs" (locals)' (The Times, 16 July 1981). But in his glossary to The Railway Workers, 1980, Frank McKenna Lists woolley-backs as a railwaymen's nickname for Leeds men. (P.B.)

woolly bear. Any large, hairy caterpillar, but esp. the larva of the tiger-moth: coll., mainly children's: 1863 (Wood); much earlier in dial. as woolly boy. OED.—2. A shrapnel shell (giving off white smoke): army: WW1. F. & G. woolly bird. A var. of wool-bird, q.v.: c. ca. 1810–50. Vaux.

woolly crown. 'A soft-headed fellow' (Grose, 1st ed.): ca. 1690–1850. B.E.

woolly-headed, go at. To attack furiously, most vigorously, very rashly: Aus.: C.20. Baker.

woolly-headed boy. A favourite: tailors': from ca. 1860. (B. & L.) Cf. white-headed boy.

woolly Maria. An occ. var. of woolly bear, 2.

woolly pully. The standard army-issue heavy jumper (pull-over), worn as part of barrack dress since ca. 1960: army, and perhaps the other Services', who wear their own coloured versions. (P.B.)

Woolly's. See woollies and Woolies.

Woolwich and Greenwich. Spinach: (mostly green-grocers') rhyming s.: late C.19–20. Franklyn 2nd.

Woolwich Arsenal or, in full, make way for Woolwich Arsenal! A c.p. applied by satirical, not unkindly onlookers, at the P.B.I., more heavily loaded than a Christmas tree (see Christmas tree order): 1915–18. As an 'Anzac', I never, at the time, heard the expression; as a Tommy, Albert Petch knew both phrases.

Woolworth carrier. 'Ships of the "Attacker" class, 11,420 tons... 18 aircraft... Known as "Woolworth" carriers, they were built in the USA, being adapted from uncompleted mercantile hulls' (Douglas Rendell, Brit. Jnl of Photography, 13 June 1980): RN and RAF: ca. 1940–5. P-G-R.

Woolworth marriage or wedding. A fictitious one, as feigned by the week-end couples that buy a 'wedding-ring' at 'Woolly's': coll.: since ca. 1925.

wooney or woony. Mother; darling: nursery and young children's: (?) mid-C.19–20. (L.A.) Prob. a two-year-old's attempt at mother.

woop. A rustic simpleton, a 'hick': Aus.: earlier C.20. Ex-woop woop (or W-). The country districts: NSW joc. coll.:—1926 ('Jice Doone'). In later C.20, often the woop woop. Satirising the Aus. Aboriginal names, so often reduplicatory.—2. Hence, 'the hypothetically most rustic of all rustic townships in Australia' (B., 1959): Aus.: since ca. 1930.

woop-woop pigeon. A kookaburra: Aus.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) See prec.—2. A swamp pheasant: Aus.: since ca. 1925. B., 1943.

woopknacker. A decided 'hard case': NZ: since ca. 1920. Slatter, 'He's a hard shot. Yeah, he's a woopknacker all right.' Arbitrary? P.B.: cf. whopcacker, q.v.

woosey. Alt. spelling of woozy, as in 'A bit woosey round the eyes' (Alan Hunter, Gently Sahib, 1964), where it = bleary, having the appearance of being 'hung over'. (P.B.)

wooston. Very, as in 'A wooston jolly fellow': Christ's Hospital (School): late C.19–20. Ex whoreson.

woozled. Tipsy: ca. 1905–30. Charles Benstead, Retreat: a Story of 1918, 1930, 'Collett had a bit of a newt party. Everybody got pleasantly woozled...' See pissed as a newt, and cf.:-

woozy. Fuddled (with drink); muzzy: US (1897), anglicised by Conan Doyle (OED) in 1917. ? ex woolly + muzzy (or dizzy or hazy).—2. Hence, dizzy, as from, e.g., a blow on the head, sunstroke, etc.: perhaps orig. Can. (ex US); Brit. by (prob.) ca. 1920. See woosey.

Wop; w-. An Italian: adopted, ex US, early 1920s. (W.L. George, The Triumph of Gallio, 1924.) Ex Sp. guapo, 'a dandy'—via Sicilian dialect. A. Train, Courts, Criminals and the Camorra, 1912, 'There is a society of criminal young men in New York City, who are almost the exact counterpart of the Apaches of Paris. They are known by the euphonious name of "Waps" or "Jacks". These are young Italian-Americans who allow themselves to be supported by one or two women, almost never of their own race... They form one variety of the many gangs that infest the city.' Hence as adj., and in such extensions as 'an Italian aircraft': 'It's a Wop!': WW2.—2. Hence, an Italian prostitute: Aus.: since ca. 1925.—3. Hence, any prostitute: since ca. 1930, but never very gen. Whence wop-shop, a brothel, ob. by 1960. B., 1953.—4. A wireless operator: RAF: since ca. 1930. (Sgt-Pilot F. Rhodes, 1942.) Ex abbr. W/Op. Cf. next.—5. See whop.

wopag. 'An airman of the trade of wireless operator/air gunner' (Jackson): RAF: ca. 1937–43, then ob. Ex the unofficial abbr. W.Op./A.G., the official one being W/O/AG.

wopacker. See whopacker.

wopper. See whopper.

woppidown. A damper (cake): Aus.: since ca. 1910. (B., 1943.) Ex whop it down?

woppity-wop-wop... See whoppity...

wops(e). See waps(e).

word. See warb.

word, n. As the word, 'The right word for the right thing': hence, the thing to be done: coll. Shakespeare, Congreve, W.S. Gilbert (OED).—2. In my word!, exclam. indicative of surprise or admiration: coll.: 1857 (Locke: OED). Cf. my oath!—3. See not a word...!; one word...

word, v. To warn or to prime (a person): C.20 s. >, ca. 1935, coll. Prob. ex give (a person) the word, to indicate the password. Also Aus., where sometimes elab. word up (B., 1941).

word 'go'. In (right) from the ..., from the very start: coll.; adopted, ex US (—1838), ca. 1890. Ex starting a race.

word-grubber. 'A verbal critic'; one who uses 'jaw-breakers' in ordinary conversation: late C.18—mid-19. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Cf. word-pecker.

word in edgeways. Not (or hardly) able to get a ..., to find oneself unable to take part in a conversation or discussion: coll.; from ca. 1870; earlier and S.E., edgewise.

word of mouth. See drink by word...

word-pecker. A punster: ca. 1690–1840. (B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) Punning woodpecker.

word up. See word, v.

words. A wordy dispute or quarrel: coll.: late C.19–20. Agatha Christie, 1934, 'What is called in a lower walk of life "words".' P.B.: usu. have words, as in 'She and I had words, I'm afraid—and now she's not speaking [sc. to me].'

words of the prophet. See in the words of...

work, n. See good work!

work, v. (Esp. of a vendor or beggar) to go through or about (a place) in the course, and for the purposes, of one's business or affairs: 1834 (Colonel Hawker, of a hound); 1851, Mayhew, of an itinerant vendor; 1859, H. Kingsley, of a parson. OED.—2. To obtain or achieve, to get rid of, illicitly, deviously, or cunningly: 1839 (Brandon, Dict. of Flash). Esp. 'Can you work it?' 'I think I can work it for you.'—3. Hence (of an itinerant vendor) to hawk: 1851 (Mayhew).—4. To steal: c.: mid-C.18–20. (B. & L.) Cf. sense 2.—5. V.i., to ply one's trade of prostitution: white-slavers' c.: C.20. Londres.—6. See WINCHESTER, §5, in Appendix; work it.

work a dead horse. See dead horse.

work a door. To ply prostitution by sitting or standing at the door of one's premises: Aus. c.: since ca. 1920. (B., 1953.) Hence, loosely, door, a brothel.

work a flanker; ... a ginger; ... a ready. See flanker; ginger, v.; ready.

work a slinter. To play a mean or illicit trick; tell a false story: Aus. low: C.20. (B., 1942.) See schlenter, 3.

work a swindle. To accomplish something by devious or irregular means: RAF: since ca. 1930. (Jackson.) See work, 2, and swindle, 4.

work a welt. See working a welt.

work back. To recover (stolen property): c.: mid-C.19–20. 'No. 747'.—2. To use up; finish: coll., esp. army: C.20. F. & G.

work-bench. A bedstead: c. (?joc.): ca. 1820–50. Egan's Grose.

work capital. To commit a capital offence: c. or low: earlyish C.19—early 20.

work cut out. In have (often all, one's) ..., to have enough, or all that one can manage, to do—anything more would be too much: coll.: 1856 (Dickies & W. Collins, 'The Wreck of the Golden Mary', one of the Christmas Stories in Household Words; T. Hughes, Tom Brown's Schooldays, 1857: D.B. Gardner). Ex cut out work for (a person), which may, orig., have been a tailoring phrase.

work (one's) fists. To be skilful in boxing; pugilistic:—1874 (H., 5th ed.); ob. by 1930.

work for a dead horse. See dead horse.

work for Street, Walker. See working for...

work from magpie to mopoke. See magpie to...

work (one's) head. See work (one's) nut.

work is the curse of the drinking classes. A c.p. pun on the cliché, drink is the curse of... since late 1940s. (Petch, 1966.) work it. To 'work one's ticket' (q.v.), for release from the Services: RN: mid-C.20. (Heart, 1962.) See quot'n at shot-away.—2. Often as exclam., work it (occ. up you!): go to the devil with!; expressly, 'You know what you can do with it!'—brutally, 'thrust it up your arse!' (cf. synom. stuff it!): low: C.20. Also in other grammatical moods; e.g., 'So that's what they intend, is it? Well, they can bloody well work it!' (E.P.; P.B.).—3. See work, v., 2.

work like a horse. To work very hard: C.17–20; coll. >, by ca. 1800. S.E. Pepys, 12 Jan. 1666, says his wife did. Cf. other, later similes, which remain coll.: like a black, ... a nigger, ... a navvy; in the C.20 low coll. work like a bastard, the like a bastard merely connotes an expletive energy. (E.P.; L.A.) work (one's) nut. To think hard; to scheme: orig. (C.19) dial. >, ca. 1905, (esp. Aus.) s. Also work (one's) head (cf. head-worker). Cf. nut, v., 4; nut out.

work off. To kill; esp. to hang: 1840 (Dickens: OED): ob. Lit., to dispose of.—2. See ETON, §2, in Appendix.—3. As work oneself off, to masturbate: low coll.: perhaps since C.16; certainly old.

work-out. A wholesale dismissal of employees: lower classes':—1935. Also slaughter.

work over, v.; a work(ing)-over. To beat up; a beating-up: low: since ca. 1930.

work Pompey. Var., since ca. 1920, of dodge Pompey.

work the bulls. To get rid of false crown-pieces: c.: ca. 1839–1910. Brandon, 1839; H., 2nd ed.

work the halls. (Gen. as vbl. n.) To steal from hall-stands, having called as a pedlar: c.:—1935 (David Hume).

work the mark. To handle or operate mail-bag apparatus: (mail-train) railwaymen's: from ca. 1926. (Daily Herald, 5 Aug. 1936.) Ex the Government mark on the bags.

work the oracle. To raise money: from ca. 1820. 'Jon Bee', 1823; J. Newman, Scamping Tricks, 1891.—2. To achieve (esp. if illicitly or deviously) one's end in a skilful or cunning manner: orig. (—1859), low s. >, by 1930, coll. (H., 1st ed.) See work, n., 2.—3. Hence, to contrive a robbery: c.:—1887 (Baumann).—4. As work the double or dumb or hairy oracle, (gen. of the man) to copulate: low: C.19 (? earlier)—early 20.

work the pea. To swindle one's employer by skilfully appropriating small sums off the takings at the bar of a public house, alluding to a conjuror's trick: barmen's: from ca. 1860. B. & L.

work the rattle. (Gen. as vbl n. or as ppl adj.) To operate, as a professional thief, on the trains: c.: from ca. 1890. (Yorkshire Post, latish May 1937.) See rattle, 1, and rattler, 3.

work the spread. See spread, n., 10.

work things. To achieve something, not necessarily though usu. dishonest or, at best, dubious: coll.: late C.19–20. Often, in C.20, work things so that (desired result ensues). Cf. work, v., 2, and work the oracle, 2.

work (one's; occ. the) ticket. To obtain one's discharge from the Army by having oneself adjudged physically unfit: from late 1890s: s. >, ca. 1910, coll. (The phrase get one's ticket, to be, in the ordinary way, discharged from the service, is military j.) Wyndham, The Queen's Service, 1899, 'It is a comparatively easy matter for a discontented man to work his ticket.' In Aus., from ca. 1918, get a ticket=to catch a venereal disease (bad cases were dismissed the Service): B., 1942.

work the coffee-mill. See grinder, 4.

work up. (Of men) to effect carnal union with: low coll.: late C.19–20. Var.: work oneself up. L.A. notes the elab., from ca. 1920, work(ing) up the middle.

workaholic. A person having an uncontrollable urge to work incessantly [e.g., E.P.: P.B.]... coined by pastoral counsellor Wayne Oates [ca. 1971] (Barnhart): adopted, ex US, early 1970s.

worker. A draught bullock: Aus. coll.: since ca. 1870. B., 1942.—2. A prostitute: Aus. low: later C.20. McNeil.

workhouse. A hard, ill-found ship: nautical: C.20. Bowen.

working a welt, pres. ppl. and ppl adj. 'Skiving' or 'miking'; 'wangling'—dishonestly contriving—a break from work: Liverpool dockers', hence, many dockers having changed over to the car factories, Liverpool car workers': since ca. 1900 (? earlier), the former; mid-C.20 the latter. Mr Lew Lloyd, the dockers' leader, explains the origin: 'In the old days, if a docker wanted a bit of time off, he used to pretend that the sole [of his boot] had come away from the welt [that part of boot or shoe to which the sole is attached]. He then got time off, ostensibly to go to the cobbler, but in fact usually went for a pint of beer' (John M. Kay, industrial reporter to the Sun, 30 Aug. 1976).

working by. Work on the wharves or from wharf to ship: stewards' coll.: C.20. W.A. Gape, Half a Million Tramps, 1936.

working for Street, Walker & Co. Out of work, and walking the streets in search of it: Aus. c.p.: since ca. 1920. B., 1942.

workingman's solo. A Solo Whist hand (almost) impossible to beat: Aus. card-players': C.20.

workman. A professional gambler: gamblers' c.: c. 1800–50. J.J. Stockwell, The Greeks, 1817.

workoholic. Perhaps a more logical form of workaholic, q.v., since the latter is presumably derived ex alcoholic.

works. See get on (one's) works.

works, the. A convict establishment: prisoners' c.: from ca. 1870. B. & L.—2. As the Works, Glamorganshire: from the late 1880s: South-Welsh s. >, by 1905, coll. The EDD cites 'Allen Raine', A Welsh Singer, that late-Victorian best-seller which appeared in 1897. Prob. ex the numerous factories there.—3. All the equipment needed for injecting drugs: syringe, spoon, etc.: drugs world: later C.20; adopted ex US. John Wyatt, Talking About Drugs, 1973; Sean McConville, in The State of the Language, 1980. (P.B.) Ex 'the works' of, e.g., a clock.—4. In give (one) the works, to give (or inflict) the complete treatment; to cure, as a doctor; or to harm, beat up, or even to kill (occ. here to give the whole works, although this phrase too may also be beneficent, as 'Yes, they gave me the whole works, X-ray, heat-treatment, massage—the lot'): adopted, ex US, ca. 1930: s. > coll.—5. As give (them) the works, to address a political, or 'hot-gospel', meeting: tub-thumpers': since ca. 1936. Perhaps, here, short for 'fireworks', but prob. ex 4.

Works and Bricks. The Air Ministry Works Directorate, and its successors: RAF coll.: since ca. 1920. (Jackson.) Cf. Bricks and Sticks.

workus. A workhouse; sol.: C.19–20. Usu. the workus, generic.—2. A Methodist chapel: Anglicans': ca. 1840–1914.

world. Knowledge of the fine world: Society: ca. 1790–1820. John Trusler, Life, 1793, 'That... is a proof of your want of world.—No man of Ton ever goes to the Theatre, for the amusements of that Theatre.' Ex S.E. the world, fashionable society.—2. See dead to the world; tell the world; all the world and his wife.

world to a China orange, (all) the. An occ. var (—1887) of Lombard Street to a China orange. Baumann.

worm, n. 'The latest slang term for a policeman' (H., 1864); extremely ob. (Manchon wrongly classifies it as c.)—2. A bookworm, an ardent student or reader: since mid-C.20. (Petch, 1969.)

worm, v.i. and t., esp. in worming, 'removing the beard of an oyster or muscle[sic]' (H., 1st ed.): mostly lower-class London:—1859. Ex crustacean, or oyster's, beard—likened to a worm.

worm-crusher. A foot-soldier: army: late C.19—early 20. Cf. mud-crusher.

worm-eater. A skilful workman drilling minute holes in bogus antique furniture to simulate wormholes: cabinet-makers': since 1880s. B. & L.; Ware.

worms. 'A line cut in the turf as a goal-line at football': Winchester College: from ca. 1880. (Wrench.) Ex the worms so discovered.—2. (Mostly as nickname.) That rating who, in an RN Establishment, attends to the gardens: since ca. 1910. Ex the worm-casts. P-G-R.—3. In give (one) the worms, Aus. synon. of get on (one's) works or wick. Baker.—4. Macaroni: RN lowerdeck; schoolchildren's: late C.19–20. Knock; P.B.—5. See gone to the Diet of Worms; have one for the worms; open a can.

worrab. A barrow: back s. : from the 1860s. Ware.

worret. See worrit.

worried as a pregnant fox in a forest fire (, as). Extremely anxious: Can. c.p.: since ca. 1920. (Leechman.) Claiborne, 1976, adds, 'This would appear to be a variant of the US c.p. "hot as (or hotter than) a freshly fucked female fox in a forest fire"—the heat... being either sexual or meteorological.' Alliteration's artful aid...

worries. See my worries!; no worries.

worries the dog, he or she. A c.p. directed at a visitor whose approach repels even the house-dog: lower-middle classes':—1909 (Ware); ob. by 1930.

worrimint. Worry: lower-classes' coll.: late C.19–20. (Dorothy L. Sayers, Unnatural Death, 1927, 'Such a state of wo.rimint.') worrit; occ. -et. Anxiety, mental distress, or a cause of these: (low) coll.: 1838 (Dickens). Ex next.—2. A person worrying himself or others: id.: 1848 (Dickens). OED.

worrit, v.t. To worry, distress, pester: (low) coll.: 1818 (Lamb). A corruption of worry, perhaps on dial. wherrit, to tease. OED.—2. Hence v.i., to worry, to display uneasiness or impatience: id.: 1854 (Wilkie Collins: OED).

worriting, n. (1857) and adj. (1845) of worrit, v. OED.

worry. See I should worry!; not to worry!

Worry and Grumble. A taxicab company (W. & G.): from ca. 1910; †.

worry and strife. A wife: rhyming s.: C.20. (Len Ortzen, Down Donkey Row, 1938.) Much less used than trouble and strife, which it varies.

worse end of the staff (, usu. have). The disadvantage: coll.: ca. 1530–1890. One of the Coventry Plays, 1534; J. Wilson, The Cheats, 1664; North, 1740. (Apperson.) Whence wrong end of the stick.

worse for. See would be none...

worse for wear, be (the). Tippy: coll.: C.20. (P.B.)

worse in gaol (jail), there are. A c.p. (C.20) indicating that the person referred to might be worse. Cf. pass in a crowd.

worse things happen at sea. A vaguely consolatory c.p.: since ca. 1910. See DCpp.

worsen, adj. and adv. Worse: from ca. 1630; dial. and sol.: 1634 (Heywood); Dickens. ? ex worse'n worse than. (OED.) Also, occ., wors'n.

worser, adj. Worse: late C.15–20; S.E. until C.18, then (esp. in C.19–20) either 'literary' and, in C.20, affected, or, in C.19–20, dial. and low coll.—in C.20, increasingly sol. Dickens, 1837, 'You might ha' made a worser guess than that, old feller.' Also, sol., wusser: 1845 (Disraeli).—2. Hence, adv. Worse: mid-C.16–20; S.E. until early C.18, then ob.; in C.19, low coll.; in C.20, sol. Dickens, 1835, 'Your ... wife as ybu uses worser nor a dog.' Also, from 1840s, wusser: sol. OED.

worserer. Worse: sol. when neither dial. nor joc.—as the latter, s.: 1752, Foote, 'Every body has a more betterer and more worsere side of the face than the other.' Ex worsere. (OED.) Also wusserer as in wusserer and wusserer. Cf.: worstest. Worst: sol.:—1887 (Baumann). Cf. worser and worserer.

wors'n. See worsen.

Worst End, the. The West End (London): among those who (e.g. waiters, taxicabmen, 'con' men, whores) go there for profit rather than pleasure: from ca. 1928. I.e. worst for the pleasure-seekers.

worth. See not worth ... (a bean, curse, light, etc.).

worth a bob or two. With ref. to persons, (fairly) wealthy; to things, (fairly) valuable: joc. (envious) coll.: C.20. As in 'After the old man snuffed it, they, and that grotty old cottage, must be worth ...' In Alan Hunter, Fields of Heather, 1981, a police inspector says, 'A few bobs'—worth here, sir', of an expensive-looking house. Cf. couple of bob. (P.B.; C.R.)

worth a guinea a box. A c.p. applied to any small, cheap, yet good or useful article: from ca. 1920. Ex the considerably older slogan of Beecham's Pills.

worth a guinea a minute! A c.p. applied to a pair (usu.) of persons with a good line in humorous cross-talk: Services': ca. 1950–70. Ex the fee believed to have been paid by the BBC, and prob. influenced by prec. (P.B.)

worth a plum, be. To be rich: coll.: ca. 1710–1800. (G. Parker: Apperson.) Ex plum, £100,000.

worth (one's) corn, be. To be worth one's wages—one's keep: coll., orig. farmers': mid-C.19–20. Also earn (one's) corn.

worth it. (Predicatively.) Worth while: coll.: late C.19–20.

worth (one's) weight in burnt copper. Of little worth: coll.:—1887 (Baumann); ob. by 1935. In copper instead of gold.

worthy. Much used as the concomitant of both 'decent fellow' and 'stout fellow': Public Schools', hence upper classes': ca. 1920–39. Although this usage approximates to that in S.E., yet it may well be classified rather as s. than as coll., for it is glib and somewhat vague. It is also applied to things: e.g. of a remark, one says 'That is not worthy' instead of 'not worthy of you'.—2. Hence, trustworthy and honest and good-natured, but rather dull: middle- and upper-class coll.: since ca. 1944.

wory. Any military reminiscence: army: since ca. 1950. Ex 'war story', and thus pronounced. See swing the lamp. (P.B.)

Wosby. The War Office Selection Board, that all who aspire to an army commission must pass: army: WW2 and since. A preliminary to 'going on Wosby', for men already operational in the ranks, was uzby, the Unit Selection Board (P.B.). Adopted by civilians, as in spiritual Wosby, an extended interview and tests for intending clerics.

wosname. A mere written var. of wassname, itself a slovening of what's-its-name. Cf. the writing of wot to represent what, and:-

wotcher! is the predominant Cockney shape, in C.20, of what cheer! as a greeting: coll. Often elab., in earlier C.20, to, e.g., wotcher cock, ... me old cock-sparrer, ... me old brown son, etc. + how's yerself or how are yer?: used other than by genuine Cockneys, joc. coll.; by Cockneys, dial. An later C.19 var., recorded by Ware, was wotchere(o).

would. In I would, I advise, recommend, you to: coll.: late C.16–20. Shakespeare, 1591, 'I would resort to her by night' (OED). Short for If I were you, I would. The opp. is, of course, I wouldn't: since mid-C.19, perhaps earlier.—2. In you (she, they, etc.) would! Abbr. you (etc.) would go and do that, curse you! or that's the sort of thing you would do. Coll.: C.20. Often a mere cliché or c.p.—3. See or would you rather ...

would be none the worse for. (Of person or thing) he, it, etc., would be (much) improved by: coll.: C.20.

would you rather do this than work? A joc. c.p., addressed to someone working manually in his leisure, or even to someone at work: since ca. 1920.

wouldn't. See would, 1.

wouldn't be in it, I or he, etc. I, he, wouldn't take part: Aus. c.p.: since ca. 1945. (B.P.)

wouldn't be seen dead with (her, etc.) or in or wearing (something to which the speaker objects), I. Shortened version of I wouldn't be seen crossing (or dead in) a forty-acre field with (him, etc.) or in her (etc.) hat (coat, etc.). C.p. of detestation, contempt or derision: orig. Cockneys', late C.19; in C.20 gen. and widespread, esp. the shorter version. To a Cockney, 40 acres are a considerable area; forty is generic for a largish number.

wouldn't it! Quintessentially Aus. expression of disgust or exasperation; often standing alone, almost as an expletive, but sometimes elab. by variants on the (wouldn't it) make you sick! theme, most of which seem to have orig. in Services, WW2. E.g.: wouldn't it give you the pip or the shits or the tom-tits or a touch of 'em—the last three synon. (B.P.), or rip you or rock you or rotate you or (even) rip the harness off a nightmare (all in Glassop, Rats; rock and rotate also NZ, J.H. Henderson, Gunner Inglorious, 1945); but, as B., 1945, notes, The authentic digger form is Wouldn't it root you! (Wilkes). Wouldn't it! was still in use, 1970, and the elabb. still occ. heard (P.B.) Cf. the earlier:-

wouldn't it make you spit chips (Aus.) or blood (Eng.) or ... rot your socks! (Aus.). C.p. of disgust: since, resp., ca. 1920; ca. 1910; ca. 1930. (Partly B:P.) See prec.

wouldn't read about it, you—but occ. he or she or they. It would amaze—it amazes—you (or him or ...); it 'beats the band': Aus. and NZ c.p.: since mid-C.20. Wilkes (quot'n dated 1950); Slatter.

wouldn't touch it with (the end of a) barge-pole (, I). A c.p. indicating utmost distaste or contempt since late C.19; in later C.20, usu. the shorter form. Usu. it, but occ. name, n., or pronoun. Cf. synon. wouldn't touch with a pair of tongs. A var. is ... with a forty-foot pole, which has some C.20 Aus. use; mostly Aus. is ... with a red-hot poker (Baker). A strictly low var., with sexual import, is I wouldn't touch it with yours, where it=a disreputable female, and yours=your penis. (P.B.) wounds (e.g. by Christ's wounds!) occurs in oaths of mid-C.14—mid-18, and as a self-contained interj. (abbr. God's wounds!) of C.17—early 19; occ. in C.19, wouns!

woune is Randle Holme's form of won, stolen.

wow, be a; rare except in it's a wow. To be a great success' or most admirable, 'really' excellent: US (1927), partly anglicised by 1929, esp. in theatrical s. Prob. ex a dog's bark: cf. 'howling', 'success' and:

wow-wow. A children's var. of bow-wow, a dog: coll.:—1887 (Baumann).

wow-wow! bow-wow! A Slade School c.p. of the late 1890s, as in R. Blaker, Here Lies a Most Beautiful Lady, 1935, "'Wow—wow—wow—'" she gurgled; for 'bow-wow' or 'wow-wow' was currency in her circle at that time, to denote quiet contempt of an adversary's bombast.'

wowser. A person very puritanical in morals; a spoil-sport; one who neither swears, drinks (in especial), nor smokes: from ca. 1895; Aus. s. >, by 1930, coll.; since ca. 1925, also NZ (R.G.C. McNab in the Press, Christchurch, NZ, 2 Apr. 1938). Perhaps ex wow, a bark of disapproval, + euphonic s + agential er; cf. the Yorkshire wowsy, 'an exclamation, esp.

of surprise' (EDD).—2. Since ca. 1945, the sense has tended to > narrowed to 'teetotaller'—as in Culotta, 1957.—3. 'A blue-stocking' (B., 1959): Aus.: since late 1940s. Most unfair to blue-stockings, many of whom are anything but wowsers. wowserish; wowserly: adj. Ex prec.: since ca. 1925. (Wilkes; B., 1953.) Also wowserism, n., that which is practised, or at least preached, by the wowsers.

woz. A deliberate mis-spelling of was, in juvenile graffiti of the 1970s +, as in '(e.g. Gaz) woz ere' = Gary was here. (P.B.) See -z.

wozz. See wazz.

Woizzer. See Wazzer.

Wraf. A member of the Women's Royal Air Force: from 1917: (mainly military) coll. Cf. Waac and Wren, qq.v. Disbanded in 1919, the WRAF was re-formed in June 1939 as the Women's Auxiliary Air Force; it again became Royal in Feb. 1949. See also Waaf and associated entries.

Wrangler's Hall. The House of Commons: literary and journalistic coll.: ca. 1820–50. Bee.

wrap-rascal. A red cloak: early C.18—early 19. (London Evening Post, 1738; Grose, 2nd ed.) An extension of S.E. w.-r. (a loose overcoat or a surtout), perhaps influenced by roqueulaire.

wrap-up, n. A girl willing, ready and available—on a vague yet firm understanding: raffish: since late 1940s. Bill Naughton, Alfie Darling, 1970, 'I can always accommodate a second wrap-up.' Distinct from a set-up, 3.—2. 'Brown paper packet containing cannabis' (Home Office): drugs world: later C.20.—3. 'A flattering account (interchangeable with rap up') (Wilkes): Aus. coll.: since mid-C.20. Occ. just wrap.

wrap up (usu. in imperative). To cease talking; also, stop making a row or a noisy fuss: Services': since ca. 1930. (Grenfell Finn-Smith, in list communicated in April 1942; H. & P., 1943.) Prob. ex wrapping up preparatory to cold-weather departure. L.A., 1978, notes, 'Still current and in widespread use.'—2. To crash-land (an aircraft): RAF: since ca. 1938. Jackson, 'Thus, "I'm afraid I've wrapped her up, sir".' I.e. to cause to fold up.—3. (Contrast sense 1.) Only as wrap up!, 'a cry of despair at the imbecility of one's superior or at one's own state of boredom' (P-G-R.): army: since ca. 1935. Cf. roll on! and stroll on!, used on similar provocation.

—4. Thoroughly to understand: R Aus. AF: WW2. (B., 1943.) Prob. ex wrapped up, 2, q.v.—5. 'To praise (interchangeable with rap up') (Wilkes): Aus. coll.: since ca. 1970. Cf. wrapped.

wrap up in clean linen. To couch smutty or sordid matter in decent language: coll.: C.18–19. See wrapped-up, 1.

wrapped, ppl adj. Enthralled: Aus.: since ca. 1955. A. Buzo, Rooted, prod. 1969, pub. 1973, I, iii, 'Richard took me to a turn [a party] and I was really wrapped.' A sort of emotive blend of wrapped up in a subject = rapture; not an illiteracy for rapt.—2. See next, 2.

wrapped-up, esp. in all nicely wrapped up, in seemingly language, and not even wrapped-up, crudely expressed: coll.: late C.19–20. Ex talk pack-thread.—2. Carefully arranged; carefully prepared; entirely in order: Services: since ca. 1935. H. & P., 'Don't worry; it's all wrapped up!' Often shortened to wrapped. Cf. buttoned up and sewn up.—3. See wrapped up ... wrapper.

wrapper. An overcoat, a top coat: fast life: ca. 1810–45. (P. Egan, Finish, 1828.) Cf. wrap-rascal.

wrapped up in the tail of his mother's smock, he was. A c.p. applied to 'any one remarkable for his success with the ladies' (Grose, 1st ed.): ca. 1780–1850. (Female fondling of male children increases their latent sexuality; it didn't need Freud to tell us this: this has been folk-lore for centuries.) Ex be wrapped in his mother's smock, to be born lucky.

wrapped up in warm flannel. 'Drunk with spirituous liquors' (Grose, 1st ed.): ca. 1780–1830. ? cf. the 'drapery' terms for gin (see white ribbon).

wrath of God, like the. 'The wrath of God ... To my children it is just a phrase, like "nothing on earth". I hear Christine and her friends saying that a dress or a play is "like the wrath of God" [i.e. terrible]. It seems to me to be one of the catch-words of 1936' (Stephen McKenna, Last Confession, 1354 1937): Society c.p., + by the end of 1939. Still common in Can. at least as late as May 1959. (Leechman.) Nor, even in Britain, did it quite disappear in 1939; have myself heard it, occ., during the 1950s.—2. Feeling very ill, esp. if from a bad hangover: since ca. 1950. (Peter Sanders.)

wreath of roses. A chancere: lower classes' euph.: C.20. (Slang, p. 191.) Cf. ring of roses at blue fever, q.v.

wreck. A recreation ground: Cockneys': C.20. A deliberate perversion of rec, q.v.—2. A 'dud' boy: Public Schools': since ca. 1925. (Marples.) Ex total wreck.

Wrecker's Retreat, the. The RN School of Navigation: RN: C.20; since 1941, merely reminiscent. Granville, 'This building, perhaps the oldest in Portsmouth Dockyard, was destroyed by enemy action during the Hitler War.'

wrecking. The ruining, by 'shady' solicitors, of limited companies: financial coll.: 1880–4. Ware.

wren. A harlot frequenting Curragh Camp: military: 1869, J. Greenwood, who adds, 'They do not live in houses or even huts, but build for themselves "nests" in the bush.'—2. (Gen. Wren.) A member of the Women's Royal Naval Service, which 'came into existence in 1939, taking its name from an earlier organisation estab. between 1917 and 1919' (Everyman's Encyclopaedia, 3rd ed.): in WW1, Services' coll.; in and since WW2, gen. coll. and, in the Service, j. cf. Waac, Waaf, etc., and—wren-pecked. Wren-beset; Wren-harassed: RN: 1940+ (Granville.) Poor, poor fellow!

Wrenlin. A Wren (prec., 2) 'gremlin': FAA: WW2. P-G-R.

wrennery. Quarters or billets of the Wrens: Services (esp. RN and WRNS): See wren, 2, for dates. H. & P.

wrest; wrester. A picklock (the thieves' tool): c.: late C.16—early 17. (Greene, 1592.) Ex S.E. wrest, v.

wriggle-diggle. Heavy petting; also, copulation; 'a spot of wriggle-diggle': mid-C.20. The girl does the wriggling, the man the digging. (P.B., 1974.) A reduplication more apt than most.

wriggle like a cut snake. To be evasive, shifty; to toady: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.

wriggle navels. To copulate: low coll.: C.18–19. Cf. giblets. Prob. later than and suggested by wriggling-pole.

wriggle off. To depart: Londoners': ca. 1860–90. Ware.

wriggling-pole. The penis: (late C.17 or early C.18–20; very ob. D'Urfev.

Wright, Mr. A warder 'going between' a prisoner and his friends: prison c.: C.19—early 20. Punning wright, an artificer, and right, adj. Cf. right, 5.

wring (one)self. To change one's clothes: c.: later C.19. (B. & L.) Ex wring (out) (one's) clothes.

wring (one's) sock out. (Of men) to urinate: joc. rather than euph.: C.20. Cf. synon. strain (one's) greens; shed a tear for Nelson; etc.

wrinkle, n. A lie, a fib.: c.—1812 (Vaux); ob. by 1930.—2. A cunning or adroit trick, device, expedient; a smart 'dodge': orig. and often put (a person) up to a wrinkle (or two), as in Lady Granville, 1817 (OED): s. >, by 1860, coll. Cf. the C.15–17 wrinkle, a tortuous action, a cunning device, a trick; the link is perhaps supplied by sense 1, or by such a repartee as occurs in Swift's Polite Conversation, I, or, most prob., by wrinkle more ... q.v.—3. Hence, a helpful or valuable hint or piece of information: sporting s. (1818: OED) >, by 1870, coll.—4. See more wrinkles ...

wrinkle, v. To tell a lie: c.—1812 (Vaux); ob. by 1930. Prob. ex n., 1.

wrinkle-bellied. (Gen. of a harlot) having had many children: low coll.: late C.18–20. Grose, 3rd ed., 'Child bearing leaves wrinkles.'

wrinkle more in (one's) arse, have one (or a). To get one piece of knowledge more than one had, 'every fresh piece of knowledge being supposed by the vulgar naturalists to add a wrinkle to that part' (Grose, 2nd ed.; cf. H., 2nd ed.): low: ca. 1786–1880. Here, perhaps, is the origin of wrinkle, n., 2 and 3, previously considered so problematic.

wrinkler. A person prone to telling lies: c.:—1812 (Vaux); ob. by 1930. Ex wrinkle, v.

wrinkles. See more wrinkles than inches.

wrinkly, n. An old person—as applied to anyone over the venerable age of thirty: teenagers', and the underground: later C.20. (Gavin Weightman, 1977.) Cf. groanies/grownies.

wrist-watch. Contemptible: RN: ca. 1900–13. (Bowen.) Considered effeminate.—2. High class; aristocratic: military: ca. 1905–20. E.g. 'He talks pukka wrist-watch'; 'Oh, he's pukka wrist-watch, he is!'

writ, when not deliberately 'literary', is, in late C.19–20, gen. considered a sol. Baumann.

writ-pusher. A lawyer's clerk: legal:—1909 (Ware). Cf. process-pusher.

write a poor hand. See sore fist.

write home about. See nothing to ...

write (one's) name on (someone's) face. To strike him in the face: sporting: ca. 1885–1912. (Ware.) Ex:—

write (one's) name on (a joint). To have the first cut at anything; leaving sensible traces of one's presence on it' (H., 2nd ed.): from late 1850s.

write-off, n. A completely wrecked aircraft: orig. RFC, from 1914. (F. & G.) The machine could be written off the inventory as useless.—2. Hence, any machine, vehicle, etc., smashed beyond economic repair: orig. mainly Services' >, in later C.20, insurance, hence motorists', j.—3. Hence, a useless or worthless person, as in 'As a rugger-player, I say he's pretty much of a write-off—not worth listing: mostly Services': since mid-C.20. (P.B.) write (one)self off. To get killed, esp., through carelessness or impetuosity: RAF: since 1939. Jackson. Cf. prec. and written off.

write to John Bull about it, or ... The Times ... If you wish to complain, write to the newspapers: c.p.: resp., ca. 1910–30 (before John Bull turned genteel) and late C.19–20.

write-up. A eulogistic paragraph or 'feature' or article: journalists' coll.: since ca. 1945.

write (an account) with a fork. To charge three times as much: N.T., Aus., since ca. 1925. (Ernestine Hill, The Territory, 1951.) Ex a fork's three tines.

written. In not enough written, insufficiently revised for style: authors' coll.: later C.19—early 20. Ware.

written all over. As in 'This job has [e.g. 'Small time Sid'] written all over it', i.e. it is obvious that (e.g. the crime) has been done by him: coll.: C.20. Cf. the two entries at write (one's) name on ..., of which this is a grammatical extension. (P.B.) Ex Signed all over.

written off. (Of aircraft) damaged, esp. crashed, beyond repair; (of a person) killed, esp. through carelessness: RAF, resp. coll. and, for persons, s.: resp. ca. 1930 and ca. 1939. (Jackson.) Cf. write-off. P.B.: by ca. 1950, also army, and prob. more widespread still; in later C.20, esp. of vehicles, j. wrokin. A Dutch woman? C.17–19. (F. & H.) Perhaps Dutch wrouw corrupted.

wrong. Silly, foolish; extremely eccentric, or slightly mad: Aus.: since early 1920s. B., 1942, 'I.e., wrong in the head'.—2. In get (someone) wrong, to mistake his spoken meaning or unexpressed intentions: coll.: since the early 1920s. 'Don't get me wrong, I mean you no harm'.—2. In get (a girl or woman) wrong, to render her pregnant; also v.i.: N. Country: C.20. Mostly among women and girls, as in 'Don't do that, or you'll get me wrong' (render me pregnant).

wrong box, in a or the. Out of one's element, in a false position, in error. Coll., mid-C.16–20. In C.16, Ridley, Udall (J. not N.); later, Smollett, Marryat. 'The original allusion appears to be lost; was it to the boxes of an apothecary?' (OED).

wrong end of the stick. See stick, n., 27.

wrong fount. An ugly human face: printers':—1933 (Slang, p. 1818.). Ex the technical term. P.B.: also 'a shady kind of fellow' (G.E. Rowles, The 'Line' Is On, 1948).

wrong in the (or one's) upper storey. Crazy: mid-C.19–20.

Cf. wrong in the (or one's) head or garret, resp. coll. and s. (when not dial.): from mid-C.19 (garret: OED). Cf. also synon. queer in the garret.

wrong pig by the ear. In pull (ca. 1540–1870) or get (from mid-C.18) the wrong pig or sow ..., to make a mistake: coll. Heywood, 1546.

wrong side (of the bed), get up on (or out of) the. To rise peevish or bad-tempered: coll.: C.19–20. To do this, lit., is supposed to be unfortunate. Scott, 1824; A.S.M. Hutchinson, 1921. Apperson.

wrong side of the blanket, (born) on the. Illegitimate: from ca. 1750, coll.; from ca. 1850, S.E. Smollett.

wrong side of the hedge. In be or fall on the ..., to fall from a coach: coll.: ca. 1800–80. (Ware.) Cf. later C.20 run out of road, to have a car or lorry accident.—2. In (e.g. he was) on the wrong ... when the brains were given away, (he) is brainless, or stupid, or at the least very dull: c.p.: ca. 1810–80. In late C.19–20, the form is on the wrong side of the door when (the) brains were handed out.

wrong-side out. See quot'n from Gowing, 1864, at monkey up.

wrong un (or 'un). A 'pulled' horse: racing s. (1889, Sporting Times, June 29) >, by 1910, (low) coll.—2. Hence, a welsher or a whore, a base coin or a spurious note, etc.: from ca. 1890: s. >, ca. 1910, (low) coll.—3. (Perhaps suggested by 1.) A horse that has raced at a meeting unrecognised by the Jockey Club: racing s. (—1895); by 1920, racing coll.—4. The wrong sort of ball to hit: cricketers' s. (1897) >, by 1920, their coll. Lewis.—5. Hence, esp. in tip a wrong 'un, to prophesy wrongly, make a bad guess. as in Howard Spring, Rachel Rosing, 1935, concerning a promising actress, 'Hansford has never been known to tip a wrong 'un.'

wrong with. In what's wrong with, What's the objection to?; why not have?: coll.: from early 1920s. Ronald Knox, 1925, 'I want to know what's wrong with a game of bridge?' (OED).—2. See put in wrong with.

wroth of rezes. A wreath of roses: theatrical: ca. 1882–1914. Ware, 'Said of a male singer who vocalises too sentimentally.' A Spoonerism.

wrought, n. 'Wroughts ... are situations in which something dramatic happens' (Laurie Taylor, New Society, 11 Nov. 1982, p. 250); later C. 20 'And don't forget. I'm not in on the wrought. I'm there dwelling up; changing up some money' (Ibid.: a con-man on working a bank fraud). See rott; but this wrought is perhaps rather from 'wrought up' than ex 'riot' (P.B.).—2. Aus. spelling-var. of rott; see also next.—3. See historical shirt.

wroughter. In the three-card trick, he who plays the cards, the trickster being a 'broad-pitcher': c.: from (? late) 1860s. B. Hemming, 1870, in his Out of the Ring, includes these terms in 'The Welshers' Vocabulary'. (OED.)? because wrought-on: cf. wrought-up, excited. See rott, n., 1, and rottoring.

wru. A rotter: a humbug: Public Schools': from ca. 1875. Perhaps ex dial. (w)rox, n., and v., (to) decay, rot.

wry mouth and a pissen (C.19 pissed), pair of breeches, a. A hanging: ca. 1780–1850: either c. or low s. Grose, 1st ed. Cf.:

wry-neck day. A day on which a hanging occurs or is scheduled to occur: c.: ca. 1786–1860. (Grose, 2nd ed.) Prob. suggested by prec.

W's. In between the two W's, between wind and water, q.v. at shot between ...: mid-C.19. Sinks, 1848.

wuff. To shoot (a person) dead; to blast with gunfire: Guards': 1940–5. (Roger Grinstead, They Dug a Hole, 1946.) Echoic.

wuffler. A guinea-piece; a sovereign: late C.19—early 20.

Wuggins. See Woggins.

wulla or wuller! There you are: army: 1914–19. Ex Fr. voilà.

wump; occ. whump. A hard blow: coll.:—1931 (Lyll). Perhaps a blend of whack (or wallop) + clump (or thump).

wurl; yurse. Defective pron. of well and yes, esp. in emphasis or reflection: C.19–20. As in Ernest Raymond, The Jesting Army, 1930, 'Many casualties in the battalion? Wurl, no—not too bad.' See also yurse.

WURLEY

wurley. A hut: Aus. coll.: late C.19–20. (B., 1942.) Ex Aboriginal.

wushup, your (etc.). Your worship: C.19–20: orig. and gen. sol., but, as often are wuss and wusser (both = worse), it may be joc. s. Also your wash-up.

wusser. A canal boat: from 1880s, if not earlier. B. & L.; F. & H.

wuzzy. An occ. var. of woozy.

Wyatt Earp. The penis: rhyming s., on curp, itself strictly kcirp, back s. Red Daniells, 1980.

WYPERS

Wyckers. Wycliffe Hall, Oxford: undergraduates'—1940 (Marples, 2). The 'OXFORD -ER(S)'. wylocks. 'Vicious horse; naughty child. "Give the little wylocks his clatters"' (M.T.); market-traders': C.20 (? earlier). Orig.?

wyn. See win, n., 1.

wypers. See Wipers.

X

X or x. 'The sign of cheatery, or Cross, which see' (Bee, 1823). Cf. X division, q.v.—2. See p.s., 2.—3. In take (a person) X or letter X, to secure (a violent prisoner), thus: 'Two constables firmly grasp the collar with one hand, the captive's arm being drawn down and the hand forced backwards over the holding arms; in this position the prisoner's arm is more easily broken than extricated' (F. & H.): c. and police s.: from early 1860s. H., 3rd ed.—4. See X's.

X, adj. Annoyed, irritated: since ca. 1945: c. >, by 1960, also s. (Robin Cook, The Crust on its Uppers, 1962). By a pun on S.E. cross, n., and cross, irritable, angry.

x-chaser. 'A naval officer with high theoretical qualifications' (Bowen): RN: from early C.20. ('Taffrail', Pincher Martin, 1916.) The x is that x which figures so disturbingly in mathematics.—2. Hence, an ardent mathematician: RN: since ca. 1910. Granville.

X division. Thieves, swindlers; criminals in gen.: c.:—1887 (Baumann). Ex X, 1; a pun on the lettered police-division of London.

X-legs. Knock knees: coll. verging on S.E.: mid-C.19–20. Ex shape when knocking; cf. K-legs.

X marks the spot. Trivialisation of caption to, e.g., a photograph of the scene of a crime thus clarified; used to indicate 'the window of our hotel room' on a holiday postcard, etc.: verging on c.p.: since ca. 1925. See DCpp.

X-ray art. 'A form of Aboriginal bark and cave painting which shows internal parts of human and animal anatomy' (B., 1959): Aus. artists' and art-critics' coll.: since ca. 1950. Technically known as mimi art.

X.Y.Z. A hack of all work: literary: ca. 1887–1905. (B. & L.) Ex an advertiser in The Times: using this pseudonym and offering to do any sort of literary work at unprofessionally low prices.—2. The YMCA: NZ army: WW1. A skit on the initials. Cf. the Y.

xaroshie. See khorosho.

xawfully. Thanks awfully: slovenly coll.: from ca. 1919. D. Mackail, The Young Livingstones, 1930, "'Good-bye, old thing. Good luck, and all that.'" "Xawfully." P.B.: better, ' 'ks awfully.'

Xmas. Christmas: low coll. when uttered as Exmas, coll. when (from ca. 1750) written; earlier X(s)tmaz was not pron. The X = Christ (cf. scholarly abbr. Xianity), or rather the Ch thereof—Gr. X (khi).

X's; more gen. as pron.—exes. Expenses: 1894, (Louise J. Miln: OED). Perhaps orig. theatrical, as the earliest quot'n suggests.—2. (Often X-es.) 'Atmospheric or static interference with wireless': wireless-operators', esp. on ships: from ca. 1926. Bowen.

X's Hall. The Sessions House, Clerkenwell: c.: mid-C.19–20. (Ware.) Ex Hicks, a judge.

Y, the. The YMCA: Services': WW2. (Jackson.) Used elsewhere since ca. 1919: see, e.g., C.S. Archer, China Servant, 1946. Short for Y.M. Cf. X.Y.Z.

-y or -ie (C.14–20); occ. -ey, C.17; -ee, C.17–18. As a diminutive and endearing suffix, it has a coll. tendency and savour, as, e.g., has -ish. In diminutives (and for proper names), -y and -ie are almost equally common, but in pet-names and other endearments, -ie is much the more gen.—2. At Manchester Grammar School, -y is used thus:—-mathy, mathematics; chemmy, chemistry; -gymmy, gymnastics, etc.: mid-C.19–20.

Y Dub. The YWCA: since mid-C.20 (? earlier). Short, for Y.W., q.v. at Y.M.

Y Emma. The YMCA: Services': from 1915. Emma = m, in signalese (see PHONETIC ALPHABET, in Appendix). See:

Y.M.; Y.W. (Pron. wy em, wy double you.) The Young Men's and the Young Women's Christian Association, frequently abbr. YMCA, YWCA: coll.: C.20. P.B.: in Services' coll. These usu. refer to the canteen or the accommodation provided by these organisations, as 'I stayed a night or two at the Y.M.' ya-inta! Hallo!: Services', on the Eastern Fronts: WW1. (F. & G.) Ex Arabic.

yabbadabba doo! A cry of exultation: B.P. notes its use among Aus. surfers, early 1960s, but it also 'caught on' wherever the American TV cartoon comedy-series, 'The Flintstones', was broadcast; the series depicted current US suburban life translated back into a make-believe 'Stone Age.' (P.B.)

yabber. Talk (1874); to talk (1848), v.i. esp. if unintelligibly: Aus. 'pidgin'. Ex Aboriginal. (Wilkes.) B.P. remarks that 'although perhaps influenced by some such Aboriginal word as yabba, the word prob. derives ex synonymous S.E. jabber'. Earlier, yabber-yabber (Wilkes quotes R. Caboni, 1855, The Eureka Stockade, ed. G. Serle, 1967). Hence, paper yabber, a letter: id.: 1888 (Wilkes).—2. Hence, to chatter: Aus.: C.20. Culotta, 1957.

yabbie, -y, n. A freshwater crayfish: Aus. coll.: since late C.19. ('Tom Collins', Such Is Life, 1903.) Ex Aboriginal. Hence also as v., to fish for them: id.: C.20. Kylie Tennant, The Battlers, 1941.

yachting, go. To break leave: RN (mostly officers'): C.20. (Bowen.) Here, yachting = on pleasure bent. P.B.: cf. the later jibe, where do you think you are—on your daddy's yacht?

yack, n.; rarely yac or yak. A watch: c.: app. late C.18—very early 19 (Vaux, 1812, declaring it †) and revived ca. 1835, for we find it in Brandon, 1839, and Mayhew, 1851, 'At last he was bowled out in the very act nailing [stealing] a yack.' It survives yet in a 1978 list of market traders' terms in current usage (M.T., where spelt yak). Sampson derives it ex Welsh gipsy yākengeri, a clock, lit. 'a thing of the eyes' (yak, an eye). See also church, v.—2. Food, esp. in hard yack (= hard tack): Aus.: since ca. 1955. It is, indeed, correct for yakker, 3 and 4, as B.P. has pointed out.—3. See:

yack, v., often yak; in full, ya(c)kety-ya(c)k. Both n. and v.: voluble talk; to talk volubly and either idly or stupidly or both: adopted, in the late 1950s, ex US. Clearly echoic of idle chatter: yack-yack-yack.—2. Hence, a or to talk, or even a, or to, lecture: since ca. 1962. Early in 1964, the late Nancy Spain, in a News of the World article, said, 'I was to yak'—deliver a talk—in Spennymoor (or some such place) that night.'

yack-a-poeser. 'A cup of tea flavoured with rum' (F. & G.): army: WW1. Why?

yacka, -er. See yakker.

yackers. Money: teenagers' early 1980s. (Joanna Williamson, 1982.) Ex ackers, Cf. synon. beans.

yackum. Human excrement: low: late C.19–20. Cf. synon. cack.

yad. A day; yads, days: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.).

yadnab. Brandy: slightly modified back s.:—1859 (Ibid.); but H., 5th ed., has yadnarb, which is close enough. The impossible yd-has > yad-.

yaffle, v.i. To eat: from ca. 1786: c. >, ca. 1820, low s. († by 1850) and dial. Esp. as vbl.n., yaffing (Grose, 2nd ed.). Perhaps cognate with dial. yaffle, to yelp, to mumble.—V.t., to snatch, take illicitly, pilfer: low: late C.19–20. Perhaps a perversion of snaffle.

yag. Yttrium aluminium garnet: diamond trade coll.: since ca. 1930(?). Derek Lambert, Touch the Lion's Paw, 1975.

yah! A proletarian (in C.20, mostly children's) cry of defiance: coll.: C.17. Poss. implied in Swift's Yahoos. Among children (and adults, joc.) in C.20, often amplified to yah! boo! (sucks to you! or can't touch me!; etc.): P.B.

yah-for-yes folk. Germans and Dutchmen: nautical coll.: late C.19–20. (Bowen.) Ex Ger. ja, yes.

yahoo, n. and adj. (A man that is) considered mad, crazy, or extremely eccentric: tailors': C.20. Tailor and Cutter, 29 Nov. 1928.

yak. See yack, n., 1, and v.

yakety-yak. See yack, v.

yakker; occ. yacka, yacker, yakka. (Correctly yakka.) To work; work at: Aus. 'pidgin': late C.19–20. Ex Aboriginal. Morris.—2. Whence as n., hard toil: id.: C.20. C.J. Dennis.—3. Food: Aus.: C.20. B., 1942.—4. Talk: Aus.: C.20. (Baker.) These two senses are loose, perverse, corrupt.—5. Hence, a contract: Aus. rural: since ca. 1925. (Sarah Campion.)

yallah! Go on!; get on with it! Services' coll., on Eastern Fronts: WW1. (F. & G.) Ex Arabic.

yam, n. Food: nautical: C.19. See toco for yam, andyam, v.i. and t. To eat; orig., to eat heartily: low and nautical: from ca. 1720. A New Canting Dict., 1725; William Hickey (1749–1809), in his Memoirs, 'Saying in the true Creolian language and style, "No! me can no yam more"' (W.). H., 3rd ed., 'This word is used by the lowest class all over the world.' It is a native W. African word (Senegalese nyami, to eat); W., after that extraordinary scholar, James Platt. The radical exists also in Malayian. Cf. yum-yum.

yam-stock (or Y. -S.) An inhabitant of St Helena: nickname: 1833 (Theodore Hook: OED).

Yammie, -y. A Japanese-made Yamaha motorcycle, in production since 1954: motorcyclists'. (Dunford.)

yan. To go: Aus. 'pidgin':—1870 (Morris). Ex Aboriginal. yandy. To winnow, now a tin-mining process [panning]. Ex Aboriginal' (Wilkes): Aus. 'pidgin': C.20.

Yank. Yankee (n. and adj.): coll.: 1778 (OED): in orig. US sense, C.19–20 for '(an) American'; the adj. Yank (of the US), app. not before the 1830s, as in Hurrell Froude. Abbr. Yankee.—2. An American motor-car: esp. in the secondhand-car business: since ca. 1945. (Anthony Cowdy, colour sup., Sunday Times, 24 Oct. 1965.) Cf. next.—3. See BIRD-WATCHERS, in Appendix; yankee shout; Yanks.

Yank iron. An American motorcycle: motorcyclists': since ca. 1950. (Dunford.)

Yankee; occ. Yank(e)y. Orig. (early 1780s) among the English, this nickname for any inhabitant of the United States (other and earlier senses being US), was coll.; in C.20., it is S.E. The theories as to its etym. are numerous (see, e.g., OED and W.'s Romance of Words): the two most convincing, — and the latter (blessed by both W. and the OED) seems the better, — are that Yankee derives ex US Indian Yankees for English, and that it derives ex Jankee, Dutch for 'little John' (Jan), this Jankee being a pej. nickname for a New England man, esp. for a New England sailor.—2. 'Slide hammer. Sometimes called a "slam hammer" [q.v.]... or "Yankee"... (these types of "push and pull" screwdrivers are often called "Yankees" by English tradesmen' (Powis, p. 29): later C.20. Because from USA; or ex the action? Perhaps both. (P.B.)—3. Aus. coll. for American in its nuance 'equal for all', as in Yankee tournament: since ca. 1930. B., 1943.—4. As yankee. 'An increasingly popular form of bet in which four horses are backed in six doubles, four trebles and one accumulator' (John Evans, Weekend, 16 Mar. 1983): turf: later C.20.

Yankee-bashing. See Yanking.

Yankee dish-up. 'To throw a dirty plate through the open scuttle instead of washing it' (Granville): RN: C.20.

Yankee heaven; Yankee paradise. Paris: coll.: resp. ca. 1850–80; from 1880. (Ware.) Cf. (? ex) the saying, 'All good Americans go to Paris when they die.'

Yankee main tack, lay (a person) along like a. (Gen. as a threat.) To knock a man down: RN: late C.19—early 20. (Ware.) A Yankee main tack is a direct line.

yankee particular. A glass of spirits: Aus.: ca. 1820–80. J.W., Perils, Pastimes and Pleasures, 1849.

yankee shout. A drinking bout or party or rendezvous at which everyone pays for his own drinks: Aus.: 1940+. (B., 1942.) Also a yank. Ex next; and cf. Dutch treat.

yankee tournament. An American tournament (everyone playing everyone else): sporting coll.: since ca. 1930. Baker.

Yankeeseries, the. The American and American-Indian display at Earl's Court Gardens: Londoners': 1887; soon f. (Ware.) On Colinderies and Fisheries.

Yankees. American stocks, shares, securities: Stock Exchange: from mid-1880s. E.C. Bentley, Trent's Last Case (but it wasn't), 1913, 'A sudden and ruinous collapse of "Yankees" in London at the close of the Stock Exchange day.'

Yanking. Popular expression to describe the activities of girls who specialise in picking up American soldiers' (or, come to that, sailors or airmen): since 1943; by 1966, slightly ob. (Tempest, 1950.) P.B.: this activity was known, among WRAC girls in Hong Kong, 1960s, where the scope was ample, as Yankee-bashing.

Yanks. Cheap American magazines flooding Brit. bookstalls ca. 1930–9: coll.: since ca. 1930.

yap. A countryman: low s. verging on c.: and mostly US: from 1890s. (F. & H.) Perhaps ex dial. yap, a half-wit.—2. A chat: from ca. 1928. Ex sense 2 of:

yap, v. To pay: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.) where it occurs in the form yap-poo, to pay up); in H., 5th ed., it is yap-pu. Cf. yappy.—2. To prate, talk volubly: coll.: late C.19–20. (C.J. Dennis.) Ex yap, to speak snappishly. Cf.:—3. 'To retort angrily' (L.E.F. English, 1955): Newfoundland coll.: late C.19–20.

yapper. A Bofors anti-aircraft gun: army and Civil Defence: 1940+. It 'barks' very loudly.

yappies, the; or the puppies. 'The dogs'—greyhound racing or coursing: Aus.: since ca. 1946. (B.P.) Cf. yapster.

yappy. Foolishly generous; foolish, soft: from ca. 1870. (H., 5th ed.) Ex yap, v., 1: q.v. Or it may rather derive ex Yorkshire yap, a foolish person. Cf.:—2. Among market-traders, it is both n. 'idiot' and adj. 'idiotic': C.20. The adj. may be elab. yappified. M.T.

yapster. A dog: low:—1798 (Tufts); ob. by early C.20. Cf. yappies, S.E. yapper and synon. buffer.

yaram. See yarrum.

Yarco. A Yarmouth man: nautical: C.20. D. Butcher, Drifters, 1979, glossary.

Yard, the. Scotland Yard, headquarters of the London police: coll.: in C.20. verging on S.E.: 1888 (A.C. Gunter: OED). The C.20 name is New Scotland Yard.

yard, v. To 'corral' or 'round up', to get hold of: Can.: since late 1950s. 'We yarded Harry and Alice and toolled off to the dance'—adduced by Douglas Leechman, who remarks, 'First heard by me, Dec. 1961.'

yard-arm. In clear (one's) yard-arm, to prove oneself innocent; to shelve responsibility as a precaution against anticipated trouble: nautical: late C.19–20. Bowen.—2. Hence, look after one's own yard-arm, 'to consider one's own interests first' (F. & G.): RN: C.20. Cf.:—3. In square yards with yard-arms, to settle accounts; finish, or finish with, a (troublesome) matter; have it out with (a person): id. Ibid.

yard goose; usu. pl, yard geese, yard switchmen: Can. railroadmen's: adopted, before 1931, ex US.

yard of clay. A long clay pipe, a 'churchwarden': from ca. 1840: coll. >, by 1880, S.E. Punch, 1842 (OED).

yard of pang. One of those long French loaves of bread (Fr. pain): army in France: WW1. (Petch.)

yard of pump-water. A tall, thin person: low: late C.19–20.—2. See purser's grin.

yard of satin. A glass of gin: 1828 (W.T. Moncrieff); ob. by 1930. See satin.

yard of tin. A horn: joc. coaching and sporting coll.: mid-C.19–20; ob. by 1930. Reginald Herbert, When Diamonds Were Trumps, 1908.

yard of tripe. A pipe: rhyming: 1851 (Mayhew, I); ob. by 1930.

yard-wide pack-thread. In send (someone) for..., to despatch on a fool's errand: coll. ca. 1800–60. (Apperson.) See FOOLS' ERRANDS, in Appendix.

yardnarb. Brandy: from ca. 1880. (Ware.) The back s. ydnarb > yardnarb for the sake of 'euphony'. See also yadnab.

Yark. To cane: Durham School: mid-C.19–20. A dial. form of yerk.

yarker. Ear: Cockneys': late (? mid-) C.19–20. (L.A.) I.e., harker, that with which one hearkens.

yarm. A rare form of yarrum.

Yarmouth. Esp. in go (mostly have gone) Yarmouth or quite Yarmouth, to go—chiefly, to have gone—(quite) mad: RN: earlier C.20. 'From the RN Hospital, Great Yarmouth, where mental cases are treated' (Granville).

Yarmouth bee. See Yarmouth capon.

Yarmouth bloater (or B.). A native of Yarmouth: coll.: 1850 (Dickens). Ex lit. sense, Yarmouth being famous for its herrings.—2. A motor-car: rhyming s.: since ca. 1910. Franklyn, Rhyming, 'Merely a contracted and less derisive form of tea for two and...'

Yarmouth capon. A herring; joc. s. > coll.: from ca. 1660; ob. Fuller; B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.: J.G. Nall, Great Yarmouth, 1886, 'In England a herring is popularly known as a Yarmouth capon.' Also, ca. 1780–1850, a Norfolk capon. (Apperson.) Cf. also Glasgow magistrate, q.v. Occ. Yarmouth bee: mid-C.19—early 20. F. & H.

Yarmouth mittens. Bruised hands: nautical: from ca. 1860; ob. (H., 3rd ed.) Ex hardships of herring-fishing.

yarn, n. orig. (—1812) and often in spin a yarn (nautical s. >, ca. 1860, gen. coll.), to tell a—gen. long—story, hence from early 1830s to 'romance'. A story, gen. long, and often connoting the marvellous, indeed the incredible: nautical s. >, ca. 1860, gen. coll. (Vaux, Reade.) Ex the long process of yarn-spinning in the making of ropes and the tales with which sailors often accompany that task (W.). Occ. a sailor's yarn.—2. Hence, a mere tale: coll.: 1897, Hall Caine, 'Without motive a story is not a novel, but only a yarn' (OED). Cf. the journalistic sense of a good yarn, a story that is not necessarily true—indeed, better not.—3. In have a (bit of a) yarn with, simply 'to chat with', e.g. over a drink at a bar: coll.: C.20. (P.B.) Cf.:-

yarn, v. To tell a story: nautical s. (—1812) >, by 1860, gen. coll. Vaux; 1884, Clark Russell, 'Yarning and smoking and taking sailors' pleasure.' Ex prec. Hence yarning, n. and adj.: from 1840s and prob. earlier.

yarn a hammock. To make it fast with a slippery hitch so that the occupant will fall to the deck: RN: late C.19–20. Bowen.

yarn-chopper; -slinger. A prosy talker; a fictional journalist: from ca. 1880; ob. by 1930.

yarn-spinner; -spinning. A story-teller; story-telling: coll.: ca. 1865. Ex yarn, n.

yarning, n. and adj. See yarn, v.

Yarra—stinking Yarra! An offensive c.p. addressed by Sydneyites to Melbourneites: C.20. Cf. our 'arbour! (the retort).

yarra, adj. Stupid; eccentric or even crazy: Aus.: since ca. 1910. (B., 1943.) The intensive is 'stone yarra, completely mad' (B., 1959). 'From the mental asylum at Yarra Bend, Victoria' (Wilkes). Cf. Eng. winnick and Yarmouth.

Yarra-bankers. Loafers and down-and-outs idling on the banks of the Yarra River: Melbourne coll.: C.20. B., 1942.—2. Melbourne soap-box orators: Melbourneites: since ca. 1914. (B., 1943.) On the banks of the Yarra river.

yarraman. A horse: Aus. 'pidgin': mid-C.19—early 20. Ex Aboriginal. Wilkes, who quotes pl. yarramans and yarramen.

yarrum (C.17–20); yaram, rare C.17 spelling; yarum, frequent C.16–18 spelling. Milk; esp. poplar(s) of yar(r)um, milk-porridge: c. from 1560s. (Harman; Dekker; B.E.; Grose, 1st ed.) One of the small group of c. words in -um (or -am)—cf. pan(n)um or -am—yarum is of problematic origin; but I suspect that it is a corruption of yellow (illiterately yellow)—n.b. the colour of beastings—with -um substituted for -ow: cf. Italian waiters' chirroff for chill off and, possibly, Welsh gipsy yáro, an egg (Sampson).

yasmé; Yasmé Villa. See PRISONER-OF-WAR SLANG, §7, in Appendix.

yassoo (occ. yasu). A greeting among troops serving, or having served, in Cyprus: since ca. 1950. Ex Greek giasou!, an all-purpose word for 'Hello', 'Goodbye', 'Cheers!' Sometimes elab. into mock Scots: yassoo the noo! (P.B.)

yaw-sighted. Squinting; nautical coll.: 1751 (Smollett: OED). Ex yaw, a deviation from one's direct course, esp. if from unskilled steering.

Yaw-Yaw. A Dutchman: nautical:—1883 (Clark Russell). In C.20, often a Baltic seaman: (Bowen.) Lit., yes, yes!—2. See haw-haw, of which it is an occ. var. (Baumann.) Contrast daw-yaw, stupid, 'yokelish'.

yawner. A very wide brook: hunting: since ca. 1830. 'Rolf Boldrewood', My Run Home, 1897, p. 360.

yawn(e)y. A dolt: rare:—1904 (F. & H.); ob. by 1930. I.e. the adj. made n., on saune. Much earlier in dial.

Yawpies. See Jaopies; cf. Yaw-Yaw, 1, q.v.

ye gods and little fishes! A lower and lower-middle class c.p. indicative of contempt: ca. 1884–1912. It then > a gen. derisive or joc. exclam. Ware, 'Mocking the theatrical appeal to the gods.'

yea. 'About "yea" high, or "yea" long, or broad, with appropriate gestures, meaning about "so" high, etc. Heard in the last 4 or 5 years' (Leechman, 1967): Can., adopted ex US ('Originally, I think, south-western US', Claiborne, 1976); some Brit. use (? esp. Army) since ca. 1970 (P.B.).

Yea-and-Nay man. A Quaker: coll. verging on S.E.: late C.17—early 19. (B.E., Grose.) Ex Quakers' preference for plain answers.—2. Hence, 'a simple fellow, who can only answer yes and no'. (Grose, 1st ed.): ca. 1780–1850. Contrast dial. yea-nay, irresolute (EDD).—3. Hence, a very poor, 'dumb' conversationalist: mid-C.19—early 20. H., 2nd ed.

year. As a pl., it was S.E. until late C18, when it > coll.: from ca. 1890, it has been considered—and in C.20 it certainly is—a sol. when it does not happen to be dial.

year dot, the. A date long ago: coll.: late C.19–20. Lit., 'the year 0'. Esp. as in 'Ganpat', Out of Evil, 1933, 'He's been in every frontier show [battle or skirmish] since the year dot.' Cf. 'I reckon he was born in the year dot, that 'orse was' (W. Pett Ridge, Minor Dialogues, 1895). At that point in historical times which lies between the last year BC and the first year AD. The var. in the year one occurs in 'Taffrail', Pincher Martin, 1916.

year'd, 'tis. A semi-proverbial coll. applied to 'a desperate debt' (Ray): ca. 1670–1750.

-yearer. A pupil in his first, second, etc., year: Public School coll.: late C.19–20. Alec Waugh, The Balliols, 1934, 'He was a third yearer at a public school.' P.B.: in later C.20 comprehensive schools the suffix is -years, as 'I'm taking the third year for maths', or 'She was one of the third years'.

yearling. A boy that has been at the School for three terms: Charterhouse: C.20. There, a new boy is a new bug, q.v.: a boy that has been at the School for a term is an ex new bug; for two terms, an ex ex new bug; the second and the third are rather j. than eligible.—2. Simply a boy in his first year: Charterhouse: C.20. (Peter Sanders.)

Yeddán, Yeddican. Variants (ca. 1880–1910) of Yid. B. & L.

yegg. A travelling burglar or safe-breaker: US c., anglicised by 1932, as s., among cinema-'fans'. (Irwin; COD, 1934, Sup.). Possibly ex Scottish and English dial. yark or yek, to break.

Yehudi: usu. in pl. A Jew: Army officers' (esp. in Palestine): since ca. 1941. Ex a Jewish given-name.

yeknod. See yerknod.

yell. Beer: 1848. Sinks, 'A pint of yell'; † by 1900. Short for its yellow colour.—2. A (tremendous) joke: mostly theatrical: since late 1950s. 'Of course Harry made it sound a bit of a yell' (Ngaio Marsh, Death at The Dolphin, 1967). Cf. synon. hoot, scream, etc., and:- yell-play. 'A farcical piece... where the laughter is required to be unceasing': theatrical coll.:—1909 (Ware.) Cf. prec., 2. yeller feller. An Aboriginal half-caste: Aus.: late C.19–20. (Xavier Herbert, Capricornia, 1939; B., 1959.) A mere slovening of yellow fellow: J. Devaney, Travels in North Queensland, 1951, has yellow feller.

yelling. The rolling of a ship: nautical coll.: C.19. (Bowen.) Ex the resultant noise.

yellow, n. A punishment at Greenwich College: ca. 1820–60. Sessions, 1831, where also be yellowed, to undergo punishment there.—2. (P1 yellow.) A pound sterling: c.: from ca. 1910. Paunshop Murder: 'Five hundred "yellow" to pay for it.' Ex the colour of a sovereign.—3. Var. of yellow-hammer, 2 (H., 5th ed; Baumann). Ex yellow-stocking.—4. Ordinary-issue yellow soap: RN lowerdeck coll.: (? mid-) C.19–20. Goodenough, 1901.—5. See Baby's yellow.

yellow, v. To make a 'yellow admiral' of: nautical coll.: 1747; ob. OED.—2. Hence, to retire (an officer): nautical coll.: 1820 (Lady Granville: OED).—3. See yellow, n., 1.

yellow, adj. Cowardly though perhaps not app. so; coll.: from ca. 1910. Orig. US; prob. ex yellow as applied to a writer on the yellow press (1898).—2. A New Canting Dict., 1725, asserts that yellow, jealous, was orig. a c. term: this is prob. correct.

yellow admiral. An officer too long ashore to be employed again at sea: RN: C.20. (Bowen.) Granville, 'Captain, RN, promoted to rear-admiral on retirement who has never flown his flag at sea. This is an echo of the time when flag officers were admirals of the Red, White and Blue. A "yellow" admiral is one who has flown his "flag" only in an imaginary (yellow) squadron.'

yellow as a guinea. Very yellow: C.19—earlier 20: coll. >, by 1900, S.E. Collinson.

yellow-back (a cheap, sensational novel) is, by some, classified as s. or coll., but prob. it has always been S.E.—2. 'A gob of phlegm' (B., 1942): Aus. low: C.20.

Yellow-Banded Robbers, the. The 13th Foot Regiment, later the Prince Albert's Somersetshire Light Infantry: military: C.19.

Yellow Bellies, the. The Royal Lincolnshire Regiment was sometimes known as "The Yellow Bellies" because the regiment colours were once all of yellow background with the red cross of St George' (Carew). But see-

Yellow Belly, or y.b. A native of the fens, orig. and esp. the Fens in Lincolnshire; 'also known in Romney Marshes, Kent' (EDD): from the 1790s. (Grose, Provincial Glossary, 1790; id., Vulgar Tongue, 2nd ed., 1788.) Ex the frogs, which are yellow-bellied, or perhaps, as Grose holds, 'an allusion to the eels caught there'.—2. A half-caste: nautical:—1867 (Smyth). Esp. a Eurasian: Anglo-Indian: from ca. 1860. George Orwell, Burmese Days, 1935.—3. A knife-grinder: Yorkshire s. (—1905), not dial. (EDD.) Perhaps ex the yellowish leather apron.—4. A coward: low: from ca. 1925. Ex US.—5. (Cf. 2.) A Central American: British and American in C. America: late C.19–20.—6. A Japanese: Aus.: 1942–5, then historical. Dymphna Cusack, Southern Steel, 1953.—7. A Yorkshire and Lancashire Railway tank engine: railwaymen's: ? ca. 1910–25. (Railway.) Cf.—8. 'These trains [connecting Leicester and Nottingham with Norwich and Lowestoft, via the Fen country] introduced the [Midland and Great Northern] "Yellowbellies" (a nickname derived from their distinctive livery) to the East Midlands' (P. Howard Anderson, Forgotten Railways: the East Midlands, 1973): railwaymen's: late C.19–early 20. But cf. sense 1. (P.B.)

Yellow Bob. The Yellow Robin: Aus.: late C.19–20. B., 1943.

Yellow boy. A guinea or, in C.19–20, a sovereign: from the Restoration: c. >, in C.18, s. (Wilson, The Cheats, 1662: OED; Grose; Dickens.) Ex its colour: cf. Welsh gipsy melano, yellow, hence a sovereign (Sampson).

Yellow Cat, the. The Golden Lion, 'a noted brothel in the Strand, so named by the ladies who frequented it' (Grose, 1st ed.): low: ca. 1750–80.

Yellow Devils, the. A sobriquet of the Bedfordshire Regiment, gained in action at the Suvla Bay, Gallipoli, landing, Aug. 1915, where the 1st/5th Bedford's, wearing yellow flashes on their sleeves, gallantly stormed 'Kidney Hill'. (Carew.) See Peacemakers.

Yellow doughnut. The small collapsible dinghy carried by modern aircraft: RAF: since ca. 1936. H. & P., 'It looks like a doughnut from the air.

Yellow fancy. A yellow silk handkerchief, white-spotted: pugilistic: from the 1830s. (Brandon.) Cf. yellow-man.

Yellow feller. See yeler feller.

Yellow fever. Gold-fever: Aus. joc. coll.: 1861 (M'Combie, Australian Sketches).—2. In catch yellow fever, to incur disgrace: Greenwich Naval Hospital pensioners': late C.18–19. (Matthew Barker's memoirs, L.L.G., 19 July 1823: Moe.) Smyth, 1867, glosses yellow fever as drunkenness; sailors there punished for drunkenness used to wear a parti-coloured coat, in which yellow predominated.—3. Spy. mania: Singapore: ca. 1930–41. How enthusiastically we Britons succeeded in shutting our eyes to the obvious danger! Cf. yellow belly, 6.

Yellow gloak. A jealous man, esp. a jealous husband: c. of ca. 1810–70. (Vaux, 1812; H., 1st ed.) Cf. yellow house; see gloak.

Yellow-hammer. A gold coin: ca. 1625–50. (Middleton, Shirley.) Cf. yellow boy. Ex the colour of the bird and the metal.—2. A charity boy in yellow breeches: C.19–20; slightly ob. by 1930.

Yellow hose or stockings, he wears. He is jealous: coll.: C.17–18. Dekker; Bailey.

Yellow jack (or J). Yellow fever: nautical: since early C.19. Frederick Chamier, The Life of a Sailor, 1832 (Moe).

Yellow-jacket. A wasp: Can. coll. (also common in US): mid-C.19–20. (John Beames.)

Yellow-Legs, the. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police: Can., esp. in the Yukon: since ca. 1950. W. Hunt, North of 53, 1974 (Leechman).? Ex yellow gaiters or some such part of their uniform.

yellow-man. A yellow silk handkerchief (cf. yellow fancy, q.v.): pugilistic and sporting: ca. 1820–80. Sporting Magazine, 1821 (OED); 'Jon Bee'; H., 2nd—5th edd.

yellow Monday and yellow Tuesday are only two of the numerous Aus. folk-names for various kinds of cicada. The second is analogous with the first; the element Monday folk-etymologises mundae, as heard, by the early settlers, in the speech of the Port Jackson natives, as also does yellow for the first part of the Aboriginal name. See Baker, 1953, p. 110.

yellow mould. A sovereign: tailors': later C.19—early 20. B. & L.

yellow peril; or with capitals. A Gold Flake cigarette: from ca. 1910. Ex the yellow packets, with a pun on journalistic y.p., the Chinese menace. P.B.: The scare about the expansion of the East Asian races was whipped up in Germany in the 1890s. Since this first (?) s. application the term has been applied joc. to all sorts of things with 'yellow' connections; the next four senses are by no means exhaustive.—2. A trainer aircraft: RAF: WW2. (Jackson, 1943.) In the 1930s–40s all RAF training planes were painted overall yellow.—3. Any slab cake that, yellowish and not notably edible, is served in institutions or sold in canteens: Services', school children's, etc.: since early C.20.—4. A haddock: RN: since mid-C.20.—5. A traffic warden: motorcyclists': later C.20. (Dunford.) Ex yellow flashes on the uniform.—6. See bolshies.

yellow plaster. Alabaster: provincial coll.: from ca. 1870.? suggested by rhyme.

yellow silk, n. Milk: rhyming s.: late C.19—earlier 20. B. & P.; Franklyn 2nd.

yellow-stocking. A charity boy: London: C.19–20. Ex the uniform; cf. yellow-hammer, 2. By later C.19, often shortened to yellow.

yellow stuff. Gold: c.: mid-C.19–20. B. & L.—2. Hence, gold stolen by miners from the company's mine they're working: Aus. miners': C.20. Gavin Casey, Downhill Is Easier, 1945.

yellowback. See yellow-back.

yellowing. 'The passing over of captains in a promotion to flag rank' (Bowen): RN: C.20. See yellow admiral.

yells, bells and knells. An Aus. var. of hatch, match and despatch.

yelper. A town-crier: low: from early 1720s; ob. A New Canting Dict., 1725; 'Jon Bee', 1823.—3. A wild beast: low: from ca. 1820. Egan's Grose.—3. A whining fellow: coll.: ca. 1830–90. Sinks, 1848.—4. The Red-Necked Avocet: Aus.: late C.19–20. (B., 1943.) Ex its distinctive call or note.—5. 'Railway dog used for catching rats' (McKenna, 1, p. 39; he explains why certain areas of railway property are infested with rats): railwaymen's: C.20—6. In get the yelper, to be discharged from employment: proletarian: ca. 1870–1910. B. & L.

yen. A passion; intense craving; esp. in have a yen for: US: adopted in England ca. 1831. (See Underworld.) The etym. is obscure: there has been much 'talk about it and about'. My own guess, for I cannot prove it, is that it is a thinned form of yearn. But Webster's New International Dictionary convincingly adduces Chinese (Pekin dialect) yen, 'smoke; hence, opium'.—2. As the Yen, the Yorkshire Evening News: journalists': since ca. 1933. An acronym punning sense 1.—3. A male homosexual: Liverpool street arabs': late C.19–20. Arab. yen(h)ams. Free cigarettes: mostly Cockneys': from ca. 1925. (E.P.) 'Yenams is Yiddish for "his", and in Hebrew slang also it is used for "free cigarettes"' (J.B. Mindel, 1971). A straight 'borrowing' by the Cockneys.

yen(n)ep. A penny: back s.:—1851 (Mayhew, I); still current, late 1970s. (Powis, who spells it yennap.) Whence, e.g. yenep-a-time, a penny-a-time (a term in betting); yenep-flatch, 1/2d. or p. (both yenep in H., 1st ed.). Cf.:-

yen(n)ork. A crown(-piece): back s.:—1851 (Mayhew, I, has flatch ynork, a half-crown; ynork in H., 1st ed., 1859).

Yeo-Boys, the. WW1 var. of:-

Yeos, the. The Yeomanry: army: late C.19–20. yeoman of the mouth. An officer attached to His (Her) Majesty's pantry: joc. nickname: late C.17–early 19. B.E., Grose.

yepl! Yes!: 1897 (Kipling: OED): low coll. ex dial. and US. Humorist, 27 Jan. 1934, 'Should Americanisms be banished from the English Language? Yep.' Cf. nope, no!

yer. You; your: sol. and dial.: C.19–20. Also yah and (for you only) yez. Cf.:-

yer actual (pron. ackh'll or acksh'll). Truly somebody or something, with yer (your) as familiar, button-holing, the—the real or true; popularised by Peter Cooke, mid-1960s, and by the character Alf Garnett in the very successful TV comedy-series 'Till Death Do Us Part'. For instance, Philip Jenkinson in Radio Times, 1 Mar. 1975, 'yer actual cast in Bill Naughton's very funny play'; and P.B., 1975 (to me), 'I heard an actress on the radio not long ago describing how she had been presented to "yer actual royals", i.e. the Royal Family.' I didn't particularly notice it until the early 1970s, but suspect that it has been a Cockneyism since (at a guess) ca. 1955.

yer blood's worth bottlin'(g). See blood's worth...

yerknod: properly yeknod; loosely, jirk-nod. A donkey: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.).

yes. See all day; make yes of it; does your mother know you're out?

yes – but in the right place. A fast girl's c.p. rejoinder to 'You're cracked' or 'You must be cracked': late C.19–20. I first heard it, in 1922, from a man-about-town.

yes – but not the inclination. A c.p., in joc. reply to 'Have you the time?': C.20. P.B.: another var., later C.20, is yes—if you've got the money.

yes – doctor! See yes – teacher!

yes(-)girls. Girls very easily persuaded to participate in sexual intimacy: since ca. 1960. After:-

yes man, yes-man, yesman. One who cannot say 'no': coll.: from 1933. (COD, 3rd ed., Sup. 1934; Margaret Langmaid, The Yes Man, pub'd in Aug. 1935.) Ex American yes man, a private secretary, an assistant (film-)director, a parasite. P.B.: but the US sense, 'a sycophantic parasite', has prevailed in Brit. since mid-C.20.

yes-sir-no-sir-three-bags-full-sir! A taunt or jibe at sycophancy or servility, as 'Oh, I know you! You'll be "yes-sir-no-sir-three-bags-full-sir" all over the bloody place': mostly Services'; but it may also be 'an indignant reaction to someone being bossy but whom one has to obey' (Patricia Newnham, 1976): the taunt since (?early) C.20. A parody of the nursery rhyme: 'Baa, baa, black sheep, have you any wool? Yes sir, yes sir, three bags full.' (P.B.) yes – teacher; or yes – doctor. A joc. yet ironic c.p. addressed to someone who is fond of airing his knowledge on general matters or esp.—the latter form—on medical ailments and cures: since ca. 1910. (Petch.)

yes – we have no bananas! C.p. arising from the song thus titled and chorussed, pub. 1923, by the Americans Frank Silver and Irving Cohn: its heyday was the 1920s, but it is still, 1983, only slightly ob. Given fresh impetus by food-rationing in WW2 and after. See DCpp.

yesf. S. abbr. of yesterday: ca. 1720–1870. A New Canting Dict., 1725.

yesterday. See with a face like...

yet to be. Usu., costing nothing; occ., unrestrained: rhyming s., on free: C.20. Franklyn 2nd.

yeute. No; not: Punch and Judy showmen's: mid-C.19–20. B. & L.

yewie. See U-turn.

yez. See yer. Mostly Anglo-Irish, as in Maria Edgeworth.

Yid. A Jew; orig.—1874 (H., 5th edn., where also spelt Yit), and properly, a Jew speaking Yiddish. Also Yiddisher: coll.:—1890 (B. & L.): Yiddish + agential -er.—2. (Also yid, and in half a yid.) A sovereign, £1; a half-sovereign, 10 shillings: Aus. rhyming s., on quid: earlier C.20. (Dal Stevens, Jimmy Brockett, 1951.) Cf. fiddle-did.

Yiddified. Anti-Semitic; Jewish: since 1934. I.e. Yiddish Yiddenfeint, itself = Yid + Ger. Feind, an enemy. Therefore, lit., inimical to the 'Yids'. Possibly in ironic contrast with the usual sense.

Yiddisher. See Yid, 1.

Yiddisher fiddle. A minor cheating or illegality: since ca. 1925; by 1960, ob. (Franklyn 2nd.) An elab. of fiddle, n., 11.

Yiddisher piano. A cash-register: Cockney street-boys': from ca. 1910. Cf. Aus. synon. Jewish pianola.

Yiddle. A Jew; esp. a Jewish boxer: mainly pugilistic: from ca. 1930. An elab. of Yid.

Yidsbury. See Abrahampstead.

yiesk. (A) fish: Shelta: C.18–20. B. & L.

ylke. A hot argument; a quarrel; a fight: Aus. low: since ca. 1920. (B., 1942.) A perversion of fight?

ylkes! An exclam. of surprise or excitement or shock or pain: Aus., adopted, ca. 1945, ex US, and common esp. among children. Ex yoicks!—or is it a euph. for Christ (cf. crikey!). P.B.: in later C.20 some Brit. use also, ex US comics and TV cartoons.

y'ihn. Scoundrel; (affectionately) scamp; often y'ihn elkalb, lit. son of a dog; among soldiers in Egypt: early C.20. (B. & P.) Ex Arabic.

Yim, Yoe and Yesus. Three knaves: Aus. poker-players': since ca. 1930. B., 1953.

yimkin (Arabic, anglicised as yimpkin). Perhaps: Brit. Forces in Middle East: WW1 and 2. F. & G., WW1; Peter Sanders, Sunday Times mag., 10 Sep. 1967: 'Expressive of extreme scepticism. "When Tunis falls, we're all going home, yimkin!"'—of WW2.

yip, v.i. To inform, to 'split': Liverpool street arabs': late C.19–mid-20. (Arab.) Derogatory comparison with a small dog's noise, a thinning of yap.

yippee! An exclam. of delight: since ca. 1930. (Allan A. Michie & Walter Graebner, Their Finest Hour, 1940.) Claiborne, 1976, confirms SOD's 'US': 'Much earlier in US, where it was a variant of whoopie—both may have originated as cowboys' cries for moving cattle.' Cf.:-

yippee beans. Baked beans: Aus. army: early 1960s. As L/Cpl Dick Shaeffer explained it to me: 'That's all cowboys eat!' Cf. prec. (P.B.)

Yips. Ypres: army: WW1. (Vernon Bartlett, Mud and Khaki: Petch.) Cf. Eaps and Wipers.

Yit. See Yid.

yi. A street: Punch and Judy showmen's: mid-C.19–20. (B. & L.)? ex Fr. rue.

yonork. See yenork.

yo, Tommy! 'Exclamation of condemnation by the small actor [i.e. in minor theatres]. Amongst the lower classes it is a declaration of admiration addressed to the softer sex by the sterner' (Ware, 1909). Perhaps this Tommy is related to that in hell and Tommy. See tommy, n., 17.

yo-yo. See up and down like a yo-yo.

yo-yo children. 'Children who become pawns in a violent matrimonial battle and are constantly changing home' (Patricia Barefoot & R. Jean Cunningham, Community Services: the Health Workers' A-Z, 1977): social workers': later C.20. (P.B.)

yob. A boy: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.).—2. Hence, a youth: from ca. 1890. 'Pomes' Marshall, ca. 1897, 'And you bet that each gal, not to mention each yob, / Didn't care how much ooftish it cost 'em per nob.'—3? hence, a lout, a stupid fellow (rarely girl or woman): low (orig. East End): C.20. A. Neil Lyons, 1908; F. & G. Perhaps influenced by yock. By ca. 1930, fairly gen. London s.; by ca. 1960, widespread and gen.—4. 'A raw recruit; a very much countrified airman (cf. swede)' (Partridge, 1945): RAF: since ca. 1937. Earliest dictionary-recording: Jackson, 1943. Ex senses 1 and 3.

yob-gab. Boys' talk or ziph (q.v.): coster's s., and c.: mid-C.19–20. B. & L.

yobbo. A post-1910 var. of yob, 3. (London Evening News, 7 Mar. 1938; Herbert Hodge, Cab, Sir?, 1939.) P.B.: W. McCg.

Eager, Contemporary Review, 1922, has yobo. In later C.20, yob (sense 3) is often thought of as a shortening:—2. Hence, an arrogant and resentful, loutish and violent Teddy boy: low, mostly London: since ca. 1948. An extension of yob, as Anglo-Irish boyo is of S.E. boy. P.B.: in later C.20 generic for any gang-lout, be he Teddy-boy, mod, rocker, skinhead or any other of that type.

yock. A fool, a simpleton: c. and grafters': since mid-C.19. (B. & L.; Cheapjack, 1934.) Ex yog, 1, q.v.; but cf.:—2. (Also spelt yok or yoke.) A man: Shelta: C.18–20. B. & L.—3. An eyes c. and market-traders': C.20. (Gilt Kid, 1936; M.T.) Directly ex Romany yok.

yodel, v., hence also n. To abuse; abusive language: Liverpool street-arabs': late C.19—early 20. Arab.

yog. A Gentle: East London back s., on goy: C.20. 'Pronounced yock for euphony' (the Leader, Jan. 1939)—but Powis lists 'Yockele: East End Yiddish for Christian (commoner than "goy"), often used in a slightly derogatory sense.'—2. (Also spelt yogg.) 'Fire (in the hearth)' (M.T.): market-traders': C.20. Ex Romany.—3. Yoghurt; a carton, or a helping of yoghurt: domestic; students', etc.: since ca. 1955.

yogis, the. The uniformed staff (commissionaires, security staff, et al.) at Nottingham University: early 1970s. Ex the popular US cartoons featuring the amiable 'Yogi Bear'.

yoke. A riding horse, whether ordinary or racehorse: Anglo-Irish: latish C.19–20. James Joyce, A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man, 1916, early in Part 5 (Travellers' Library ed., p. 207): 'I couldn't get any kind of a yoke to give me a lift.' (With thanks to Mr D.B. Gardner.) Cf. green-yoke.—2. Hence, by metonymy, a horse-drawn carriage: id. James Joyce, Ulysses, 1922 (Bodley Head ed., 1937, p. 81). (D.B.G.)—3. (? Hence), an apparatus; almost any gadget: Anglo-Irish: since ca. 1925. In The Student Body, 1958, Nigel Fitzgerald applies it to a revolver.

yokuff. A large box, a chest: c. (—1812) >, ca. 1850, low. (Vaux.; H., 1st ed.) Prob. a perversion of coffer.

yolly. A post-chaise: ca. 1840–1900 at Winchester College. Ex yellow, a colour frequent in these vehicles: cf. † yellow, yellow.

yomp. 'Earlier this month [May 1982] ... the Daily Telegraph's man in the Falklands report[ed] that British troops were "yomping" towards Port Stanley—"marching, humping anything up to 120lb of equipment and all the arms needed for attack at the end of the trek"' (John Silverlight, 'Words', Observer, 13 June 1982): RN: since ca. 1970. The picturesque term of course soon > a vogue-word, and its orig. meaning considerably loosened, to the extent that the Guardian could, 24 Oct. 1982, write of the miners' president doing 'a fortnight's yomp round Britain, campaigning for a "yes" vote [in a forthcoming ballot on pay, etc.]'. J.S. suggests ex Scandinavian pron. of jump; I prefer a perversion of hump. Cf. trog in this sense. Poss. ex Scandinavian rally-drivers' term for driving over rough country; this is the view held by the Oxford Word and Language Service. (P.B.) yonker. See younger.

yonks. Ages; an indefinitely long time; often in yonks ago or it'll take yonks before ... : perhaps orig. army, in Cyprus, where I first heard it in 1957; since > widespread, esp. student use. I propose ex 'years, months and weeks'; my contemporary at the Signals Regiment in Cyprus, Capt. E.W. Bishop, prefers a telescoping of donkey's years. (P.B.)

yonnie. A pebble, small stone: Aus.: late C.19–20. (B., 1942.) Aboriginal?

yooof, yufe. A person; also used voc.: Leicestershire teenagers': later 1970s. (D. & R. McPheely, 1977.) A deliberate mispron. of youth; cf. Hampshire 'a rare youth' (rhymed with south) of mid-C.20. (P.B.)

yook-and-twern. A swivel: Liverpool street arabs': later C.19—early 20. (Arab.) Perhaps a perversion of 'hook and turn'.

yorer. An egg: market-traders': C.20. M.T.

york, n. 'A look, or observation' (Vaux): c. or low: ca. 1810–80. Ex:

york, v. To stare impertinently at: c. (—1812); † by 1880. (Vaux.) Perhaps ex Yorkshire bite, 1, q.v.—2. V.i. and t., to look (at), to examine: low: ca. 1810–50. Ibid.—3. V.i., to rain: Bootham School: C.20. Bootham.

York Street is concerned; there is Y.S. concerned. Someone is looking (hard): c. or low: ca. 1810–60. Vaux. Cf. york, n. and v.

Yorks. Shares in the Great Northern Railway: Stock Exchange:—1895 (A.J. Wilson, Stock Exchange Glossary). The line passes through York and in 1923 became the LNER.

Yorkshire¹ orig. implied boorishness, but the connotation of cunning, (business) sharpness, or tricky appears as early as 1650. Variations of the latter senses occur in certain of the ensuing phrases, all of which have, from coll., >, by late C.19, S.E. (See also north, 1.)

Yorkshire, n. Sharp practice; cajolery: mid-C.19–20: coll. (S.E.) and dial.—2. Yorkshire pudding: coll.: late C.19–20. Esp. in 'roast and Yorkshire'.—3. See Yorkshire tyke, 2.

Yorkshire, v.t. 'To cheat, to take a person in, to prove too wide-awake for him': from ca. 1870. Ex come (or put) Yorkshire on (on over) a person. F. & H.

Yorkshire bite. A very 'cute piece of overreaching: 1795 (OED).—2. Hence, a particularly sharp and/or overreaching person: 1801 (OED). See bite and Yorkshire¹.

Yorkshire carrier. See confident as ...

Yorkshire compliment. 'A gift useless to the giver and not wanted by the receiver' (F. & H.): mid-C.19–20; ob. (H., 5th ed.) See Yorkshire¹. Also, mainly dial., a North-Country compliment.

Yorkshire estate. Money in prospect, a 'castle in Spain'; esp. in when I come into my Yorkshire estates, when I have the means: mid-C.19—early 20. (H., 2nd ed.) See Yorkshire¹ and cf. Yorkshire compliment.

Yorkshire hog. A fat wether: 1772, Bridges, 'A pastry-cook [That made good pigeon-pie of rook, / Cut venison from Yorkshire hogs / And made rare mutton-pies of dogs'; Grose, 1st ed.; extremely ob. Cf. Cotswold lion and see Yorkshire¹.

Yorkshire Hunters, the. 'A regiment formed by the gentlemen of Yorkshire during the Civil War'; military nickname: 1640s. (F. & H.) Yorkshire, a famous hunting county.

Yorkshire on (upon), put, C.18–20; come Yorkshire on (C.19–20), more gen. c. Y. over, app. first recorded in Grose, 1785. To cheat, dupe, overreach, be too wide-awake for (a person). The antidote is to be Yorkshire too, which phrase, however, is rare outside of dial. (EDD), though Wolcot has it in 1796 (Apperson). See Yorkshire¹ and cf. Yorkshire, v.

Yorkshire Penny Bank. 'Wank [q.v.]'. Usually in the sense of 'not worth a ...' rather than masturbation' (Red Daniells, 1980): rhyming s.: C.20. Cf. synon. Barclay.

Yorkshire reckoning. A reckoning, an entertainment, in which each person pays his share: mid-C.19–20. (H., 3rd ed.) Cf. dial. go Yorkshire, to do this. See Yorkshire¹.

Yorkshire tike or, gen., tyke. A Yorkshireman: coll. nickname: mid-C.17–20. (Howell, 1659; B.E.; Grose.) Northern tike (rare) occurs in Deloney ca. 1600 (Apperson). See tike for improving status of this term.—2. (Often shortened to Yorkshire.) A microphone: rhyming s., on mike: since ca. 1945. (Dallas Bower, 1957.)

Yorkshire too, be. See Yorkshire upon put.

Yorkshire upon ... See Yorkshire on ...

Yorkshire way-bit. A distance greater than a mile: coll.: ca. 1630–1830. (Cleveland, 1640.) In the earliest record, Y. wea-bit. Apperson.

Yorky. A Yorkshireman (or -woman): coll.: C.19–20. Boxiana II, 1818; James Curtis, They Ride by Night, 1938.

you. Short for next, I: since ca. 1910. Gerald Kersh, 1941.

you and me. Tea: rhyming s.: C.20. (F. & G.; Powis.) Cf. synon. Rosy Lea. Powis glosses it as 'the evening meal: "I'm off for my you and me."'—2. A flea: id.: ca. 1880–1914. Franklyn 2nd.—3. A urination: id.: C.20. On pee.—4. A pea: Aus. rhyming s.: C.20.

you - and who else?; you and whose army? A c.p. of derisive defiance addressed to a belligerent opponent: since, resp., ca. 1920 and 1944. 'I reckon I can fight you any day.'—'Yeah, you and whose army?' (B.P.)

you are ... See also you're ...

you are another; you're another! You also are a liar, thief, rogue, fool, or what you will: a c.p. retort (coll., not s.): C.16 (? earlier)—20. Udall; Fielding; Dickens, "Sir," said Mr Tupman, "you're a fellow." "Sir," said Mr Pickwick, "you're another"; Sir W. Harcourt, 1888, 'Little urchins in the street have a conclusive argument. They say "You're another".' A var., late C.19–20 (? ob.), is so's your father! In mid-C.19–20, the orig. phrase is almost meaningless, though slightly contemptuous. F. & H.

you are (or you're) slower than the second coming of Christ! A drill-sergeants' c.p.: C.20. B. & P.

you beaut! Aus. c.p., indicative orig. and mainly of approval, hence occ. of derision: since ca. 1925. B., 1943.

you bet! Certainly: ? orig. (ca. 1870) US; adopted ca. 1890.—2. You betcha (or betcher!), You bet your (e.g. boots!): US phrases anglicised ca. 1905. P.B.: but the phrase stands absolute, without an object, as if an elab. of you bet!

you can always stoop and pick up nothing! A c.p. remark made by a friend after a 'row' or by a parent concerning a child's intended husband (or wife): mostly Cockneys': C.20.
you can go off some people (, you know). A quietly minatory response to offence, or fancied offence, given: c.p.: late 1950s–60s. Usu. joc. (P.B.)

you can have it! I want nothing to do with it; it's no use to me: c.p.: prob. since 1890s. Var. you can keep it!; you can have it for mine! See DCpp.

you can hear them change their minds. A c.p. that, dating from ca. 1946, satirises the thinness of the walls in post-war flats and council houses.

you can put a ring around that one. That's one thing you can be sure of: NZ c.p.: since ca. 1925. (Slatter.) To 'ring' it so that it stands out on the page.

you can say that again! A c.p. expressive of heartfelt agreement: adopted, ca. 1930, ex US. Introduced into Aus. and NZ by American servicemen, WW2. Cf. say it again!

you can say that in spades! A c.p. of heartfelt agreement: since ca. 1945. The saw me properly then for the first time... "You look bushed. You need a drink."—"You can say that in spades," I said' (John Welcome, Beware of Midnight, 1961). Clearly from the game of bridge; 'a general intensifier' (Claiborne). Cf. prec.

you can smell my bloody arse! 'A late C.19–20 Cockney c.p., intended as a crushing conclusion to an argument, but sometimes evoking the even more crushing retort, "I can—from 'ere!"' (R.S., 1969).

you can take it from me! You may accept it as true: c.p.: since ca. 1910.

you can't do that there 'ere! and 'ere, what's all this? C.pp. that originated in derision at the illiteracy of the old-style police constable: C.20.

you can't fart against thunder. 'You can't do the impossible, or beat overwhelming odds' (H.P. Mann, 1972): c.p., esp. in MN: late C.19–20.

you can't fly on one wing. A c.p. invitation to one more drink before departure: Can.: since ca. 1945. (Leechman.) Also Brit. from about the same time, as an invitation to drink 'the other half' (P.B.).

you can't get high enough. A jeering comment on failure: low coll.: from ca. 1850; ob. 'Probably obscene in origin' (F. & H.).

you can't get the wood, you know. A nonsense c.p. from the radio-comedy series 'The Goon Show', 1950s: used in later C.20 to 'explain', by irrelevant joc. comment, the lack of almost anything. (P.B.)

you can't have more than the cat and his skin. Var. on the proverbial you can't have your cake and eat it, or, as in Derbyshire, 'you can't have your bun and your ha'pence': later C.19–early 20. Baumann.

you can't lodge here, (Mr) Ferguson. A London c.p., ca. 1845–50. (Ex the difficulties experienced, in 1845, by a drunk, not a drunken, Scotsman named Ferguson, in getting lodgings.) In denial or in derision.

you can't take him (occ. her) anywhere! Exclam. to the company at large re one's companion who has just done or said something contrary to the accepted social code: c.p.: since ca. 1945, at latest. Cf. excuse my pig—he's a friend and is he with you?, both used in the same way.

you can't take it with you! A C.20 c.p. directed at one who, saving money, loses happiness. S.P.B. Mais, Cape Sauce, 1948.

you can't think. You cannot imagine it; to an incredible degree: non-aristocratic, non-cultured c.p.: from ca. 1770. (Frederick Pilon, He Would Be a Soldier, 1776, III, i.) W. Pett Ridge, Minor Dialogues, 1895, 'She took up such a 'igh and mighty attitude, you can't think.' This you can't think, coming at the end of a phrase or sentence, derives naturally ex that you can't think! (q.v. at think, v., 3) which precedes a sentence.

you can't win. A Can. c.p., dating since ca. 1950 and 'expressing the impossibility of coming out on top and the futility of kicking against the pricks' (Leechman). In later C.20 also Brit., often as you just can't win, applied, e.g., against arguing with an invincibly stupid person or system (P.B.). Claiborne cites 'Shoeless Joe Jackson or some other baseball player of ca. 1910–30 who gave odds of "6–5 against life"—to which E.P. commented, 'But then, no spirited person would refuse such odds.' Cf.:-

you can't win them all! in England, often... 'em all. You can't always succeed: an American c.p., adopted ca. 1960, yet hardly acclimatised before ca. 1964. You can't win every game or battle—or girl. See DCpp.

you come of good blood – and so does black pudding! A proverbial c.p. reply to one boasting of good birth: C.19.
you could have fooled me (with emphasis usu. on me!) Often used with (a mostly gentle) irony, to mean the opposite of what it says; 'to counter or deride a boast, a lie' (L.A., 1976), as 'I am surprised at your story' (B.P. of Aus. use, 1974): c.p.: since ca. 1965.

you could piss from one end of the country to the other. A c.p., in ref. to the small size of England: since ca. 1910.

you couldn't be more right! A c.p. of entire agreement: Aus.: since the late 1930s. (B.P.) A var. of I couldn't agree more, q.v. at couldn't care less.

you couldn't blow the froth off a pint or knock a pint back; you couldn't fight (or punch) your way out of a paper bag. C.pp. addressed, in C.20, to a man boasting of his strength or of his fist-fighting ability; the third is mainly Aus. See also box kippers.

you couldn't do it in the time. 'A sarcastic comment addressed to a person who threatens to fight' (B., 1942): Aus.: since ca. 1910.

you couldn't throw your hat over the workhouse wall! You have many illegitimate children in there: a Cockney c.p. of C.20. To retrieve one's hat thrown over the wall would be to expose oneself to the risk of recognition.

you don't get many of those to the pound. Raffish comment on a well-developed pair of female breasts: C.20. See DCpp.

you don't have to buy ... See why buy ...?

you don't know the half of it. 'An old expression still heard at times' (Petch, 1969): adopted ex US, 1940s.

you don't know whether (a) you want a shit or a haircut, or (b) your arse-hole's bored or punched. These low C.20 c. pp. are used, the former to impute befuddlement, the latter to undermine an argument.—2. With substitution of won't for don't, both of these c.pp. are, in reaction to insult or to horse-play, intended to deter or to intimidate: since ca. 1910. (L.A.) See also arse-hole is bored; and know, in Appendix.

you don't know you're born! You don't know you're alive; you are ignorant and slow-witted: contemptuous c.p.: C.20.
you don't look at the mantel-piece ... See who looks at ...?

you don't say so! Expressive of astonishment (occ. of derision) at a statement: coll.: since ca. 1870. (OED.) Adopted ex US, as was the shorter you don't say! See DCpp.

you fasten on! Go on!; proceed: non-U; later C.19—early 20. B. & L.

you for coffee? An invitation at tea- or coffee-break; deliberate pidgin-Eng., punning you fuck off-ee!: army: later C.20. (P.B.)

you get nothing for nothing... See nothing for nothing, you give me the balls-ache!; or you give me a pain...! See pain, n., 2.

you have... See you've...

you have (usu., you've) been doing naughty things. A bourgeois c.p. addressed, C. 20, to a young couple when, obviously, the wife is pregnant.

you have grown a big girl since last Christmas! A non-aristocratic c.p. addressed to girl or woman: C.20. R. Blaker, Night-shift, 1934.

you have it made or you've got it made. You're on the point of succeeding: Aus. c.p.: adopted, ca. 1944, ex US. P.B.: in later C.20 also Brit., esp. the 2nd version; in other tenses and of other persons, as 'He'll have got it made' = he will have succeeded. See DCpp.

you haven't a dirty pound note or two (that) you don't want, have you? (or, I suppose?) A borrower's 'touch'—which may be merely playful: since ca. 1925.

you haven't got the brains you were born with! A derisive c.p.: C.20.

you heard! I know you heard me all right, so don't pretend you didn't, even if you don't like what I've just said to you!: adopted, ex US, early 1940s. See DCpp. for examples.

you kill me! You're so funny!: ironic c.p.: since ca. 1935. Also, since ca. 1942, you slay me!

you kill my cat and I'll kill your dog. An exchange of (the lower) social amenities: coll.: C.19—early 20. Cf. Scottish ca'me, ca' thee.

you know. This stop-gap, almost meaningless, phrase ranks as coll. and dates from at least as early as C.18. 'Cf. identically used coll. Ger. wissen Sie and Fr. vous savez' (R.S.).—2. Hence, in the Services, its use, as a coll., in contradiction. Thus: 'I'm just off to the flicks.'—'You're not, you know. You're duty stooge.' Apparently it arose in the 1920s and perhaps it originated in the RAF.

you know the old saying: the Persian Gulf's the arse-hole of the world, and Shaiba's half-way up it. A depreciatory c.p.: RAF and army: since the 1920s. At Shaiba—properly, Shu'aiba—there was, for many years, a transit camp. (L.A.) This distinction has, since the middle 1920s been claimed by the RAF for such unpopular stations as Aden, Basra, Freetown, Shaiba (in Iraq), Suez.

you know what (? or!) An introductory c.p., a mere announcer of a phrase or of a statement: mid-C.19—20; perhaps going back to late C.17. 'Cf. identical Ger. coll. weisst du was?' (R.S.).

you know what thought did. See thought.

you know what you can do! or what to do with it! or what you can do with it! I don't want it, you can 'stick it' (in the anatomical nuance): since ca. 1925: adopted by the Services. (Partridge, 1945.) But as Claiborne points out, 1976, the 1st version = Go away!, i.e. 'Go (and) fuck yourself!'

you lie like a flat fish. See lie like a flat fish.

you make a better door than a window. A C.20 NZ c.p., addressed to a person getting in the light. (B., 1941.) Heard occ, also in UK; cf. is your father a glazier?

'you make a muckhill on my trencher' quoth the bride. A c.p. of ca. 1670–1750 and = You carve me a great heap. Ray, Fuller. (Apperson.)

you make I laugh! A derisive var. of the contemptuous you make me laugh!: lower-middle class c.p.: ca. 1905–40. P.B.: still current until ca. 1970, and sometimes with the addition of and when I laughs, I pees myself.

you make me tired! You bore me to tears: a c.p. introduced from USA in 1898 by the Duchess of Marlborough, 'a then leader of fashion' (Ware).

you make the place untidy. An ungracious or joc. invitation to be seated, e.g., 'Well, sit down then. You ...' (Clement & La Frenais, Going Straight, 1978): later C.20. Sometimes you're making the place untidy (sc. so sit down)! (P.B.)

you may have broken your mother's heart, but you bloody well won't break mine! A drill instructors', esp. drill sergeants', c.p.: dating from ca. 1870—or earlier (? during the Napoleonic Wars).

you must. A crust: rhyming s.: late C.19—20. B. & P.

you must be joking or you have to be or you've got to be joking. An incredulous response to unwelcome order or advice, ill-directed query, etc., e.g. 'Finished? You must be joking! I haven't even bloody started yet!': later C.20. Cf. are you kidding?, which it largely superseded. (P.B.)

you never did. You never did hear the like of it; you've never heard anything so funny: Cockney coll.: from ca. 1870. A. Neil Lyons, Matilda's Mabel, 1903, 'My dearest Tilda. Such a go you never did! Mr Appleby proposed to me this afternoon!'

you never get a satisfied cock without a wet pussy. A low c.p.: C.20. 'The crude and the undeniable in juxtaposition are a frequent astringent herb of popular speech' (L.A., 1967).

you never know! You never know what may come of it: c.p.: late C.19—20.

you never know your luck! A C.20 c.p.; prob. elaborating the prec.

you pays your money and you takes your choice! You may choose what you like: c.p.: late C.19—20. Ex showmen's patter.

you play like I fuck! You're a poor card-player: low Can.: since ca. 1930.

you reckon. Either as statement or as question, with some degree of incredulity or irony implied: coll.: since (?) ca. 1930. (P.B.)

you ring the bell. You're accepted by the chaps: Services (esp. RAF): since 1939. (H. & P.) See ring a bell.

you see! At see!

you shape like a whore at a christening! A lower classes' and military (esp. drill-sergeants') c.p. to a clumsy person: from the 1890s, if not indeed considerably earlier. B. & P., 3rd ed.

you shock my mahogany! A silly c.p. (you offend my morals) among the empty-headed: since ca. 1935; by 1948, ob.

you should be so lucky (emphasis on you)! Who are you to be so lucky?: c.p.: C.20. (L.A., 1977.) P.B.: but, like its derivative I should be so lucky!, it is often used ironically, when good luck is actually most unlikely to eventuate; I surmise a fairly recent orig. in American Jewish idiom.

you should pay for them! A joc. c.p., addressed to the wearer of squeaky boots or shoes: late C.19—20. The wearer sometimes forestalls the witticism by saying (I) haven't paid for them yet. (They squeak in protest.)

you shouldn't have joined! See if you can't take a joke ...; the shorter version was revived in WW2 (L.A.)

you shred it - wheat. A punning var. of you said it (see you've said it!), on shredded wheat, the breakfast cereal: Can. teenagers': ca. 1946–7. Some occ. use, late 1940s, also in Brit.

you slay me. See you kill me.

you stick your prick... See I wouldn't...

you still wouldn't like it on your eye for a wart. A low c.p. 'retort to imputation of undersized penis, but, even more, with boring suggestiveness and knowing wink when anything is thought not big enough' (L.A., 1967): C.20.

you sure slobbered a bibful (baby)! What a lot of nonsense you have just uttered!: c.p.: adopted ex US, in Can. ca. 1938, NZ and Brit., ca. 1943. A modification of the orig. US you (sure) said a mouthful, itself an extension of you ('ve) said it!, I agree entirely.

you talk like a halfpenny book. You talk foolishly: a Liverpool c.p.: late C.19–mid-20.

you tell me! I haven't the slightest idea about the subject under discussion: c.p.: since 1920s. Sometimes elab. to you tell me—and then we'll both know.

you want porches in your coffin! Rebuke to a man extremely hard to please: RN lowerdeck: C.20. F. & G. you (or you'd) want to know all the ins-and-outs of a nag's arse! You're very inquisitive: Cockney: late C.19–20. P.B.: also cat's or duck's arse.

you want your head read! You need a phrenologist: a c.p. addressed to someone who has done or said something exceptionally stupid: since ca. 1920. (B.P.) Since mid-C.20, usu. examined for read; applied also to other people, as 'she wants (or needs) her head examined (or examining)'. Here, the ref. is to psychiatrist rather than phrenologist. (R.S.; P.B.) you were born stupid – you've learnt nothing – and you've forgotten (even) that. A c.p., not only Aus., current throughout C.20. B.P., who adds that 'it is known in Austria and Germany'.

you weren't born – you were pissed up against the wall and hatched in the sun. This c.p., prompted by, e.g., 'before I was born', is a piece of stock wit beloved by the unfastidious male section of the proletariat.

you what? What did you say?: a c.p., often challenging or truculent: since mid-C.20. See DCpp.

you won't know ... See you don't know.

you won't know yourself, as in 'Try on this overcoat—you won't know yourself': c.p.: C.20.

you won't melt! A c.p. addressed to a child objecting to going out—esp. to running an errand—in the rain: C.19–20 (? even older). P.B.: shortened from you're not made of sugar—you won't melt!

you would! See would, 2, and the entries at you'd.

you wouldn't chuckle. You wouldn't think so: Forces' c.p.: since ca. 1938.—2. You bet I would: Forces': since ca. 1940. Cf.:

you wouldn't fuck it (or rob it). 'Signifies the complete positive to a question or a statement. "It's cold this morning." "You wouldn't rob it" (or "fuck it").' (R. M. Davison, letter, 1942): RAF c.p.: since ca. 1925. It=S.E. 'And that's no lie.'

you wouldn't knob it, q.v. at knob, n., 6, has, esp. in the RAF, the further meaning, 'You bet I would!'

you wouldn't read about it. See wouldn't read ...

you wouldn't shit me; or don't shit the troops. A can. army c.p.: WW2: I don't believe you.

you wouldn't want to know (sc. about it). You'd be terribly disappointed disgusted—amazed; you just wouldn't believe it!: Aus. c.p., perhaps orig. underworld; by ca. 1955, fairly gen. Neil James, Sydney Bulletin, 26 Apr. 1975.

you'd be far better off in a home. Services' c.p., WW1+, derived from a late C.19–20 civilian saying: 'Jocular consolatory c.p. to one who is in a bad way [for any reason]' (Granville, 1969). Mr P.V. Harris recalls, 1978, that in the King's (Liverpool) Regiment, WW1, they used to sing on the march, 'you'd be far better off in the mush [=the guard-room]'—'if you were there you wouldn't be sweating on a route-march.'

you'd be (or get) killed in the rush. A low c.p., addressed to a girl who has just said 'I wouldn't marry you (even) if you were the last man in the world': C.20. Ex various ribald and scabrous anecdotes.

you'd better believe it! Can. c.p. of emphatic agreement: since ca. 1960. (Leechman.) P.B.: prob. ex US: I remember an advertisement in an American magazine, later 1960s, which started 'Would you believe [q.v.] (e.g. a certain garment for "only" $2.99)?', and went on 'Better believe!'

you'd forget your head if it wasn't screwed on (properly), often prec. by forget! A C.20 c.p. addressed to a forgetful person.

you'd have been taller if they hadn't turned up so much for feet. A Can. c.p.: since ca. 1930.

you'd have died. You'd have died of laughing: c.p.: since ca. 1920.

you'd only spend it. A c.p. reply to someone saying that he'd like to have a lot of money: late C.19–20.

you'd soon find it if there was hair round—or all around—it! A drill sergeants' c.p. to very new recruits learning their rifle drill and forbidden to look what they're doing: C.20, or prob. since ca. 1870. P.B.: usu. prompted by the recruit's helpless 'I can't find the hole'; cf. don't look down.

youlie. See yowlie.

you'll be a long time dead! Enjoy yourself while you can and may!: a late C.19–20 c.p. Cf. the C.18 proverbial there will be sleeping enough in the grave (Apperson). See DCpp.

you'll be lucky – I say you'll be lucky! (Usu. in a N. Country accent.) A sarcastic c.p. popularised by the comedian Al Read, 1950s. Cf. his right-monkey!

you'll be saying 'arseholes' to the C.O. See ch? – to me ...

you'll be smoking next! What a dissipated fellow—or fast girl—you are: a joc. c.p., commenting upon an act very much more audacious or improper: since ca. 1955. Based upon the story or a young boy who has been interfering with, or playing sexually with, the girls of his age or a little older and whose neighbours have complained to his father, who, promising to deal suitably with this grave matter, calls the lad before him and says, 'I hear you've been fooling round with the girls. What a young devil you are! Dammit, you'll be smoking next!' Occ. allusive, as in, 'Why! he'll be smoking next or soon.'

you'll be telling me like the girl that you've fahnd (or found) a shilling. An 'anecdotal c.p. expression of derisive incredulity' (L.A.): Cockneys': C.20. Also, you come home with your drawers torn and say you found the money?

you'll die. You will be vastly amused, i.e. you'll be overcome by laughter: since later C.17. In C.20 often 'you'll die when I tell you ...' See DCpp.

you'll do yourself out of a job. A joc. addressed to someone working hard: c.p.: since ca. 1910.

you'll get something you don't want. A C.20 c.p. When addressed to a man, it implies a venereal disease; to a girl or a young woman, pregnancy.

you'll get yourself disliked. A satirical, proletarian c.p. addressed to anyone behaving objectionably: from ca. 1878; now virtually S.E.

you'll know me again, won't you! See do you think ... you'll wake up one of these mornings and find yourself dead. An Anglo-Irish c.p. of late C.19–20; not much heard since 1945.

young. (Of inanimates) small, diminutive, not full-sized: mid-C.16–20: S.E. until, after virtually lapsing in C.17–early19, it >, ca. 1850, coll. and joc., as in Hornaday's 'Such a weapon is really a young cannon,' 1885. OED.—2. In the night is yet young, it is still early: coll.: C.20. Often yet is omitted, rarely is day (etc.) substituted for night.—3. Young is a nickname applied in contrast to Old to a Moore younger than another man thus surnamed: late C.19–20. Ex Old Moore's Monthly Messenger, a prophetic periodical usually called Old Moore's for short.

Young and Lovelies, the. The nickname, ex its initials, of the York and Lancaster Regiment (disbanded 1968 rather than face amalgamation): army. Carew.

young bear. A young midshipman very recently come to his first ship: naval: ca. 1810–60. The Night Watch (II, 71), 1828; Dublin University Magazine, Sep. 1834, p. 243, 'I found my brother middies on the whole very agreeable, and as a mark of kindness to the "young bear", I was invited to dine in the gun-room with the officers.' (Moe.)

young blood. A youthful and vigorous member of a political party: political coll.: C.20.

Young Bucks, the. The 14th Foot, now the Prince of Wales's Own West Yorkshire Regiment: 'from 1809, when the battalion, till then known as the Bedfordshire Regiment, exchanged County titles and depôts with the 16th Foot, the hitherto Buckinghamshire Regiment' (F. & G.). Opp. Old Bucks, q.v.

Young Buffs, the. The 31st Foot Regiment; from ca. 1881, the (1st Battalion of the) East Surrey Regiment: military coll. nickname: mid-C.18–early 20. At the battle of Dettingen, George II, 'through the similarity of the facings, mistook it for the 3rd Foot (or Old Buffs)' (F. & H.).

young Charley. See charley, n., 7.

young doc, the. The junior medical officer: RN: since ca. 1910. 'Bartimeus', Naval Occasions, 1914 (R.S.).

Young Eyes, the. The 7th (Queen's Own) Hussars: military: mid-C.19–20.

young fellow (or feller) me lad. A semi-joc. term of address: coll.: mid-C.19–20.

Young Fusiliers, the. The 20th Foot Regiment (now the Lancashire Fusiliers): military: 'a Peninsular War nickname' (F. & G.). Because then only recently formed.

young gentleman, or man, lady or woman are coll. when addressed in 'reproof or warning to persons of almost any age': from ca. 1860. (OED.) Cf.:-

young gentlemen, the. The midshipmen: Wardroom ironic coll.: C.20. (Granville.) But it goes back to ca. 1810 or perhaps even earlier. It occurs in Dublin University Magazine, Sep. 1836, p. 263, and, in the singular ('Young gentleman! pray where's your bed?'), in Alfred Burton's narrative poem, The Adventures of Johnny Newcome in the Navy, 1818. (Moe.) cf. prec., and young bear.

young hopeful. See hopeful.

young kipper. A very poor meal: East End of London: C.20. Punning the Jewish holy day, Yom Kippur.

young lady. A fiancée: low coll. when not joc.: 1896 (George Bernard Shaw: OED). Cf. young man and young woman. —2. See young gentleman.

young man. A sweetheart or lover; a fiancée: coll. (in C.19, always low; in C.20, often joc.): 1851, Mayhew, 'Treated to an ice by her young man—they seemed as if they were keeping company' (OED). Cf. young woman. —2. See young gentleman.

young one or un (or 'un). A child; a youth (rarely a girl): low coll.: C.19–20; Lex. Bal., 1811, 'A familiar expression of contempt for another's ignorance, as "ah! I see you're a young one";' this nuance is ob. As a young person, young one (or 'un) may not precede the 1830s: OED cites Egan at 1838. Opp. an old un, an old man, a father. See un, 'un. —2. 'I have been making a young one this morning ... I have been making a truss of hay' (Sessions, 9 Apr. 1845): farmers': since ca. 1829. In comparison with a rick of hay. Cf. young, 1.

young soldier. See soldier, n., 5.

young strop. (Gen. pl.) A newly joined ordinary seaman: nautical: C.20. (Bowen.) Cf. strop, -py, qq.v.

young student. See TAVERN TERMS, §3d, in Appendix.

young thing. A youth 17–21 years old: masculine women's coll.:—1909 (Ware). The gen. sense is S.E.

young 'un. See young one.

young woman. A sweetheart; a fiancée: coll. (see young man): 1858 (OED). On young man. —2. See young gentleman.

youngster. A child, esp. a boy; a young person (gen. male) not of age: coll.: 1732 (Berkeley: OED). By natural extension of orig. sense.

younker, earlier yonker, may always be S.E., though H., 2nd ed., 'younker, in street language, a lad or a boy', causes one to doubt it.

your. A coll. 'personalising' and familiarising, humanising, of the subject, as in 'Rain coming down in your genuine buckets'; for mock comic overtones' (L.A., 1977). This usage—Cockney, I think, in origin—has prob. existed since late or, even, mid-C.19, but it has, since early 1970s, > much more widely used because of its popularisation by the TV comedy series, 'Steptoe and Son'. P.B.: see also yer actual.

your ass-hole's sucking wind. You don't know what you're talking about: low Can. c.p., common in army usage, WW2. Note also the low Can. c.pp. (since ca. 1925): your ass is sucking blue mud or your cock's out a foot, both meaning 'You are in error'.

your cough's getting better. A c.p. addressed to one who coughs (not badly): since ca. 1910. Also you're coughing better. P.B.: also said ironically, to a man who has just farted loudly: low: since mid-C.20, prob. earlier. Cf. you've a bad cough.

your crowd. See Emden.

your face and my arse! (often prec. by yes—). A c.p. reply to a smoker's request 'Have you (got) a match?': since ca. 1950, prob. earlier. (P.B.)

your father a glazier? (? , sometimes is ..., occ. was ...). A c.p. addressed to one who stands in the light—esp. in front of a window, a fire, a candle, or a lamp. Grose (2nd ed.), who adds: 'If it is answered in the negative, the rejoinder is—I wish he was, that he might make a window through your body, to enable us to see the fire or light.' From ca. 1786. B.P. adds that the Aus. version substitutes glassmaker for glazier. Cf. you make a better door than a window.

your feet won't touch. See so fast his feet ...

your guess is as good as mine. A c.p., current since ca. 1943, for a situation where neither party knows the facts. Adopted ex US.

your heels won't touch the ground! A minatory c.p., intended to deter or intimidate, esp. as a retort upon insult or horse-play: since ca. 1920. (L.A.) I.e., 'you'll get knocked so high off the ground ...'; contrast so fast his feet ...

your humble condumble. Your humble servant; I (myself): C.18. Scott, in letter of 30 Dec. 1808, 'Every assistance that can be afforded by your humble condumble, as Swift says.' By rhyming reduplication. Recorded as early as Swift's Polite Conversation, 1738.

your knees aren't brown. A var. of knees brown ...

your lip's bleeding! What big words you're using!: Aus. juvenile: since ca. 1945. (B., 1953.) On the analogy of tongue-twister.

your mother does it. An Aus. c.p., dating from ca. 1920 and designed to overcome virginal reluctance.

your nabs, your nibs. See nabs, nibs.

your nose is bleeding. Your trouser-fly is undone: c.p.: later C.19–mid 20. By humorous indirection.

your nose up my arse! An expression of the utmost contempt: mid-C.19–20. Cf. the milder ask † mine or my arse!, q.v., and you can smell my arse!

your number isn't dry; your number's still wet. Boasts of long service: see before you came up.

your store is open! Can. var., since ca. 1960, of your nose is bleeding. I.e. 'all the goods are on display.' (D.J. Barr, 1968.)

your watch. See watch, n.

your wheel's going round! often prec. by hey! and a pause. C.20 street-wit c.p. directed at person on bicycle or in motor-car. P.B.: also your back wheel's catching up with your front one: juvenile: C.20. J.B. Smith, Bath, 1981, recalls this shout from mid-C.20, and draws attention to E.B. Wright, Rustic Speech and Folk-Lore, 1913, 'As fond as the folks of Token (Cumberland) is a saying based on the tradition that the first coach that passed through Token was followed by a crowd of the inhabitants who were anxious to see the big wheel catch the little one.'

you're a big girl (or less often, boy) now. You're too old to behave like that; you can look after yourself now—or should be able to do so: c.p.: since ca. 1920. But addressed to girl it prob. goes back further, as a domestic admonition not to sit ungainly, scratch indelicately, etc. Also you're getting a big ... Cf.:-

you're a big lad for your age. A joc. c.p., addressed to an apprentice or other youthful worker: esp. in factories: late C.19–20.

you're a poet and don't (or didn't) know it. See that's a rhyme ...

you're all about – like shit in a field. You're alert and efficient—I don't think!: c.p.: C.20. First, a compliment (see all about); then a significant pause; finally a jeer.

you're all mouth. See all mouth ...

you're another! See you are another!

you're as much use ... See useless as ...

you're breaking my heart. See my heart bleeds ...

you're fond of a job. A c.p. to someone doing another's work or unnecessary work: C.20.

you're getting a big boy (or girl) now. See you're a big ...

you're holding up production. You're wasting time (own or other's): RAF (mostly): since 1940. Partridge, 1945.

you're jealous! A joc. c.p. in retort to 'You're drunk': since ca. 1920.

you're not on; occ. you're on next. I want nothing to do with you; you don't convince me; you've failed: a Liverpool c.p., dating since ca. 1945. Ex boxing: 'You've been waiting, and expecting to substitute for an absentee—but you're not needed' (Frank Shaw, 1965).

you're not paid to think. 'Invariable admonition by NCOs and officers to privates excusing themselves by saying, "But I thought ..."' (J.B. Mindel, 1971): army: since late C.19. P.B.: not in the least true of the modern Army—but the old phrase was still in use in the early 1970s.

you're off the grass! You haven't a chance: cricketers': ca. 1900–14. (Ware.) I.e. outside the field.

you're on my hook. You're getting in my way: Aus. c.p.: ca. 1946–55. Ex angling.

you're selling tea! A facetious var. of you're telling me!: ca. 1945–55.

you're so full of shit your eyes are brown. A Can. army c.p. (WW2)—expressing a violent dislike.

you're so sharp you'll be cutting yourself! A late C.19–20 c.p., addressed to a 'smart' person. Cf. such variations on the theme as you've, or who's, been in the knife-box this morning!

you're telling me! I know that: American c.p. anglicised by 1933: see indignant letter in the Daily Mirror, 7 Nov. of that year; an advertisement in the agony column of the Daily Telegraph, 14 Sep. 1934.

you're the boss! I'm letting you make the decision on this point; I agree with the course of action you have just suggested: c.p.: adopted ex US by ca. 1940 at latest. Used among equals, or even to a child, with no real superiority involved. (P.B.) Cf.:-

you're the doctor! Whatever you say, (for) you're doing it; you're the authority or the expert or the man in charge—and the responsibility is yours: c.p., Can. and Eng.: since ca. 1945. (Leechman.) A var. is expert for doctor.

you're the top! A c.p. of approval: 1935. Ex the comedy, Anything Goes.

youm, your'n (C.19–20). Yours: late C.14–20: dial. and C.19–20, low coll.

yours and ours. Flowers: rhyming s.: current among Covent Garden porters and street vendors since ca. 1850; since late C.19, more gen. London. Franklyn, Rhyming; B. & P. lists the unlikely yours and hours.

yours if you want it. Low c.p. reply to the impolite query, 'Who's shit?' = who has farted?: C.20. A pun on who's and whose.

yours - or clean ones? See knickers!

yours to a cinder. A non-aristocratic c.p. ending to a letter: late C.19–20. (F. Brett Young, Jim Redlake, 1930.) Prob. orig. in the (coal-)mining centres.

yours truly. I; myself: joc. coll. bordering on and, in C.20, > S.E.: 1860 (Sala: OED); 1866, Wilkie Collins, 'Yours truly, sir, has an eye for a fine woman and a fine horse.' Contrast your mibs.

yourself, be. Pull yourself together!: US c.p., anglicised by 1934. COD, 3rd ed., Sup.

Yous, occ. youse. (Pron. yews.) You: dial > Services' coll.: late (?mid-)C.19–20. Lit., you + s, the sign of the pl. With this illiteracy, cf. you-uns and the US you-all and yous guys, all = pl you.

you've a bad cough; occ. that's a bad cough you have. A c.p., addressed to one who breaks wind: since ca. 1910. Cf. your cough's getting better.

you've been. Your promised trip (esp. in an aircraft) has been cancelled: RAF: later 1930s–40s. (H. & P.) Cf. you've had it at have had it, 3.

you've fixed it up nicely for me! No, you don't!; do you think I'm green?: proletarian c.p.: ca. 1880–1910. B. & L.

you've forgot(ten) the piano! Sarcastic c.p. (C.20) addressed to one with much baggage; often witheringly by bus conductors.

you've got a smile like a can of worms. A Can. (?orig. fishermen's) c.p., expressing dislike: since ca. 1925.

you've got a swinging brick. Your heart is like stone, you have no emotions: c.p.: North of England: since late 1950s. (David Wharton, 1966.)

you've got eyes in your head, haven't you? A disparaging c.p.: late C.19–20.

you've got it all round your neck. A c.p., stigmatising confusion, esp. inability or hesitancy to complete an explanation: since ca. 1945.

you've got something there. You're on to something good; there's much to be said for it: c.p.: since ca. 1910.

you've had it! See have had it, 3.

you've had your time. You're finished, you're 'through'; you're too late: RAF: 1940+. (Gerald Emanuel, 1945.)

you've picked a bad apple. You've chosen badly: c.p.: since ca. 1920.

you've said it. Yes, indeed!; I entirely agree with you; you're absolutely right: c.p.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1943. See DCpp.

yow. See keep yow.

yowl. The exhaust note of a twin two-stroke motorcycle engine: motorcyclists': C.20. (Dunford.) Cf.:-

Yowler. The Scott two-stroke motorcycle, in production 1909–50: motorcyclists'. (Dunford.) Cf. prec., a derivative.

yowlie or -y. A member of the watch; a policeman: Edinburgh s.: C.19–20; ob. Jamieson, 'A low term' that prob. derives ex 'their youling or calling the hours'. Occ. youlie.

yoxter. 'A convict returned from transportation before his time' (H., 3rd ed.): c. of ca. 1860–90. Origin?

yoyo, n. A fool, an idiot, as in 'Don't be a yoyo' (D. Mackenzie, Raven and the Paperhangers, 1980): police coll. (?more widespread): later C.20. (Mrs C. Raab.)

yuck!, yuk! An exclam. of disgust: since early 1960s. Ex the sound of vomiting, and perhaps an intensification of ugh! Whence yuck-yuck, unpalatable food: schoolchildren's. B.P., 1969, notes use of the exclam. in Aus. Hence yuck, and derivative yucky, ad adj. = revolting or nauseating (e.g. of food, a stench, etc.); hence, unduly or excessively sentimental. '15-year old Brenda de Wilde ... provides some non-yucky juvenile appeal' (Philip Jenkinson, Radio Times, 8 Mar. 1975). The Times, 12 Oct. 1976, spelt it yukky. E.P.; R.S.; P.B.

yug. Deviation from intended flight-path: RAF aircrews': later C.20. Phantom, 1979: 'a small "yug" develops which whiplashes down the line [of aircraft] and I ... fight to damp out the oscillations.'

Yugers. Yugoslavia: prob. since ca. 1941. By 'the OXFORD -ER(S)'. Ob. by 1970s.

yuk!, yukky. See yuck!

yuletide log(s). Dog(s): rhyming s.: later C.20. Normally abbr. Yuletide(s); sometimes rendered Christmas log(s). (David Hillman, 1974.)

yum-yum! Excellent; first rate: orig. and mostly low and juvenile:—1890 (B. & L.). Ex yum-yum!, an exclam. of animal satisfaction (with, e.g., exquisite or delicious food). R.S. notes that 'in Gilbert & Sullivan's The Mikado, 1885, the soubrette is called Yum-Yum. Also used by Kipling as a mock endearment in one of the Stalky stories, set in the late 1870s.'—2. Hence, as n.: love-letters: RN: since ca. 1920. H. & P.; Granville. Perhaps cf. yam, n. and v., q.v.

yummy. Delicious, scrumptious, of food; attractive, of e.g., a dress, a handsome male: mostly children's and feminine: later C.20. Ex yum-yum!, q.v.

yunk. A piece, a portion; a lump: Aus.: since ca. 1910. (B., 1943.) Ex Aboriginal? P.B.: or simply a corruption of S.E. hunk. Cf.:-

yunk of dodger. A slice of bread: Aus.: since ca. 1919. (B., 1959.) Cf. prec., and see dodger.

yurse. See wurl. Ernest Raymond, The Jestng Army, 1930,

"'We're for it, boys, if you arst me. . . Yurse," he concluded with rich appreciation, "that means we're for it." P.B.: this is just one of the many phonetic renderings of the different dial. or slovenly forms of yes that E.P. included in earlier edd. of this Dict., e.g., yeah, yep, yum, yus(s), etc.

Z

-z. During the 1970s, particularly, it was fashionable among teenagers to truncate one's forename to its first open syllable, and add a z; thus Gary > Gaz, Jeremy > Jez, Sharon > Shaz, etc. Popular graffiti stated that '(e.g. Gaz) woz ere'. (P.B.) zac, zack. Sixpence: Aus. and NZ: since ca. 1890; ob. by 1977 (Wilkes), Orig. zack; in C.20 usu., but not always, zac. Hence, not worth a zack, utterly worthless: Aus.: C.20. Perhaps a perversion of six; but cf. Dutch zaakje, 'small affair'. —2. Hence, a six-month prison sentence: Aus. c.: C.20. B., 1942.

zad; more zad. A bandy-legged and/or crooked-backed person: ca. 1720–1840. (A New Canting Dict., 1725.) Cf. crooked as the letter zad, q.v.—2. Occ. of a thing: same period.

zafzig. See zofzig.

zambuck. 'A first-aid man in attendance at a sporting contest' (B., 1943): Aus.: since ca. 1925. Ex a famous embrocation. Ob. by 1977 (Wilkes).

zanth. A chrysanthemum: market-gardeners' coll.: late C.19–20. (Gerald Kersh, Faces in a Dusty Picture, 1944.) Cf. synon. casant.

zap, n. Impact; sting; effectiveness, of article, book, play, etc.: adopted, ex US, early 1970s. R.S. cites a Daily Telegraph, 26 July 1973, book-review. Ex the next, v.—2. A self-adhesive sticker badge, esp. one sold for charity, 'zapped' on to one's coat by the vendor: heard at Duxford Air Show, 1982. (Mrs Barbara Huston.)

zap, v. To defeat heavily, perhaps orig. in boxing, hence in any activity: adopted, ca. 1966, ex US. (Paul Janssen, 1968; W. & F.) Ex:—2. To strike, or punch, heavily; hence, to criticise with almost inhuman severity: adopted, ca. 1967, ex US. Echoic. DCCU.—3. Usu. in jest (? rather, 'sick' humour), to kill (orig., however, to shoot (someone), esp. to shoot dead): again ex US, 1968—as, e.g., in Burton H. Stevenson, The Hippies, in that year. It occurs in the song 'The Continuing Story of Bungalow Bill', part of the Beatles' 'White Album', released in Nov. 1968 (Janssen). P.B.: the word became hideously familiar in late 1960s—earlier 70s from its use by the American Forces in Vietnam and their efforts to 'zap Charlie Cong' [their Communist opponents there]. It prob. orig. in the 'sound-effects' of US 'comic' magazines; cf. zot.—4. See:—

zap over. To change one's mind, allegiance, etc., very rapidly, as in 'Often you get very respectable pin-striped men who zap over and buy something very occult' (Observer colour sup., 1 Oct. 1972: L.A.).

zappy. Full of impact on the senses, as in 'It's an absolutely marvellous, zappy series' (a critic, on BBC Radio 4 'Kaleidoscope', 10 Mar. 1983); early 1980s. Prob. adopted ex US, and ex zap, to strike or kill.

zardner. The same as a tubbichon, q.v.: London lower classes': ca. 1863–70. (Ware.) Owing to its adoption by Princess (later Queen) Alexandra.

zarp; gen. Zarp. A policeman: the Transvaal: 1897 (Cape Argus, weekly ed., 8 Dec.); ob. An acronym ex Zuid Afrikaansche Republiek Politie, the South African Republic Police. Pettman.

zat? How's that?: cricketers' coll.: late C.19–20. K.R.G. Browne, Humorist, 27 Jan 1934, describes cricket as 'a game that consists chiefly of standing about in dégagé attitudes and shouting "Zat?" at intervals'.

'Zblood, 'Zbud, 'Z'death. See 'Sblood, 'Sbud, 'Sdeath. Likewise 'Zfoot = 'Sfoot.

zeb. Best: back s.:—1859 (H., 1st ed.). Modified tseb.

zeck. Var. of zac, 2. B., 1942.

zed. See crooked as ...

zed (gen. zedding) about. To zigzag, to diverge: society: ca. 1883–1900. (Ware.) Perhaps punning gad(d)ing about.

Zedland. The S.W. counties of Eng.: s. or perhaps coll.: from 1780s; very ob. by 1930. (Grose, 2nd ed.) There, dialectally, s is pronounced as z. (Also Izzard Land, dial.; cf. literary Unnecessarians.)

zeiger. See Jewish piano, 2.

zen. '(Instant Zen) Lysergic Acid Diethylamide (LSD 25) (US) (Home Office): drugs world: later C.20.

zeiger. See Jewish piano, 2.

zep; rarely zepp. (Gen. with capital.) A Zeppelin airship: coll.: 1915, Jessie Pope, Simple Rhymes, 'The night those Zeps bombarded town' (OED).

Zep, v.t. 'To drop bombs on from a Zeppelin': somewhat rare coll.: heard in 1917; 1920 (W.J. Locke: OED).

Zeppelins. 'Railway canteen sausages' (McKenna, Glossary, p. 39); cf. Zeppelin(s) (or Zepps) in a cloud or in a fog or in a smoke screen, sausage(s) and mashed potatoes: resp.; orig. army, since ca. 1917 at latest, > gen. lower-class or joc. s. and still, 1983, not quite † (F. & G.; T.E. Lawrence, for the RAF, in The Mint as Zepps, ca. 1925); RN, from ca. 1917 (Bowen); army > gen. (M. Allingham, Look to the Lady, 1931).

Zero and zero hour are military j.; but zero, to learn, experimentally, the peculiarities of (one's rifle), is marksmen's and snipers' coll. (now verging on j.): from ca. 1912. B. & P., 3rd ed.—2. A water-closet: Bootham School: from ca. 1916. Bootham.

ziff. A young thief: c.:—1864 (H., 3rd ed.).? thief perverted.—2. A beard: Aus., orig. army: since WW1. W.H. Downing, Digger Dialects, 1919 (Wilkes).—3. See ziph.

zift. No good; inferior; ineffectual: army: C.20. Arabic for 'pitch, tar, dirt'. (L.A.) Perhaps the E. zift contracts Ar. zefut, weak. (A. McQueen.)

zig. See catch the zig.

zigzag; zig-a-zag. Topsy: army: from 1916. (F. & G.; B. & P.) From Fr. s., ex the zigzag course taken by a tipsy person. zigzig, n. and v. Copulation; to copulate: Services': late C.19–20. A word known and used throughout the Near and Middle East, and in the Mediterranean. Ultimately, probably echoic. Commoner is jig-a-jig, q.v.

zilch. Nothing: RAF: since ca. 1948. W. & F., 1960, define the US meaning as 'gibberish', hence presumably 'non-sense', and remark 'Never common'; but 6,000 Words, 1976, defines it as 'nothing, zero' and states, 'Origin unknown'. In 1976 Robert Claiborne wrote to me, 'Orig., I think, US. In this sense [meaningless language] it dates from at least ca. 1930. Perhaps Yiddish—or pseudo-Yiddish double-talk.' Not German, to judge by its absence from the admirable 1972 ed. of Wildhagen & Heraucourt German-English Dictionary. It would, therefore, appear that Mr Claiborne's 'pseudo-Yiddish' could well be right, and than my orig. 'wild guess', that zilch could be a blend of zero + nīl + nichts, although prob. condemned by the professional philologists, may not, after all, be so very 'wild'.

zinfandel. Grave trouble, esp. as jail: Can., esp. Brit.

Columbia: since (?) ca. 1950. 'There was the prisoner of the morning, deep in the zinfandel again' (P. St Pierre, Chilcotin Holiday, 1970: Leechman). Orig. ? When a word is orig. underworld, the etym. can be almost impossible to establish. There is a Californian grape so named, itself presumably ex the original grower's name.

zing, n. Sex-appeal: coll.: adopted, ex US, ca. 1943. Echoic: it 'rings a bell', Cf. oomph.—2. Earlier, however, it had been current in the Guards Regt for 'vigour, energy'. Gerald Kersh, They Die with Their Boots Clean, 1941, records it as having been used in 1940 by a PT instructor, 'I'll soon get that paleness off your faces and put some zing into those limbs.' Cf.:-

zing, v. 'Mostly their minds are zinging with the alert restlessness and near tremor of methedrine or several yellowbellies' (A. Stuart, The Bikers, 1971); i.e., presumably, a sort of 'electric singing': ex US. (P.B.)

Zionist. A member of the Zion Mule Corps, 'a dreadful smelly lot of cut-throats, collected from Syria or somewhere to act as transport ... Not bad,' as Ernest Raymond remarks in The Jestling Army, 1930: army in 1915 (Gallipoli campaign) then historical.

zip, n. An echoic word indicative of the noise made by (say) a bullet or a mosquito in its passage through the air: coll.: 1875 (Fogg: OED).—2. Hence, force, impetus, energy, spirit: coll.: from ca. 1914. Cf. vim.—3. Hence, adj., as in zip (lightning) fastener: 1925 (SOD): coll. >, by 1930, S.E. Also zipper, n.: from ca. 1926: coll. >, by 1930, S.E.

zip, v.i. To make a zip sound: coll.: from ca. 1880.

ziph. That ancient linguistic aberration which consists in saying, e.g., shagall wege gogo fox shall we go. See Slang, p. 278.

zipper. See zip, n., 3.

zippy. Lively, bright; energetic, vigorous: coll.: 1923 (P.G. Wodehouse: OED Sup.). Ex zip, n., 2.—2. Hence, fast, speedy: since ca. 1930. 'My idea ... was to get a zippy load into Richon, and then move on to T.A.' (Jan Jeffries, Thirteen Days, 1958).

zit. An acne pimple or spot: teenagers': 1982. (Mrs Helen Burt.)

zizz, n. A rest period: Services': since ca. 1925. (H. & P.) RN var., WW2, dizz. Echoic ex the hissing and whistling noises made by those who fall off to sleep; but more prob. deriving ex the fact that newspaper cartoons (e.g. Felix) have long used a string of z's issuing from the mouths of their somnolent characters.

zizz, v. To sleep: orig. mostly RAF, since ca. 1930; by 1940, via the FAA, it was fairly common in the RN (Granville); by 1950 > fairly gen. Ex prec.

zizz-pud(ding). A heavy suet-pudding: RN: since ca. 1940. Granville, 'Because of its sleep-inducing properties'.

zizzer. A bed: Services', esp. RAF: ca. 1930–50. Ex zizz, n. and v.

zizzy. (Of, e.g., a tie or a pullover, or of material, fabric, patterns in general) gaudy; bizarre; angular and very brightly coloured: from early 1970s. (L.A., 1976.) Prob. ex streaks of lightning (P.B.).

Zlead(s), Zlid; Zlife. Minced oaths: coll.: C.17–18. I.e. God's lids, life. OED.

znees; zneesy. Frost; frosty or frozen: ca. 1780–1840, but perhaps covering a period as great as C.18–mid-19. (Grose, 1st ed.) Perhaps a S.W. England coll.; app.—witness EDD—it is not dial. Perhaps ex sneeze, sneezy, which are, however, unrecorded in these senses. Cf.:-

znuz. A var. of prec. Grose, 1st ed.

zob, v. To curse, and to exchange abuse: RN: C.20. Perhaps ex Maltese. R/Adml P.W. Brock, who adds that there was a gunroom—or junior officers' messroom—game called zobbing, from a Maltese game called zob.

zob, adj. Very nice: Plumtree School, Southern Rhodesia: 1920s–30s. (A.M. Brown, 1938.) Arbitrary?

zobbit. An officer: RAF lower ranks': later C.20. (Sgt R. Farley, 1967.) J.B. Mindel, 1971, 'From Arabic dabat, also pronounced zabat, an officer'.

zoftig. 'Yiddish term literally meaning "juicy". Often used to describe a curvaceous and attractive woman. Not used in mixed company, but not completely taboo' (Powis, 1977, spelling zaftig). By 1981 > fairly gen., and with wider application. (P.B.)

zol or aap (or arp); esp. make an aap or a zol, to make a dagga cigarette: S. African c.: C.20. (C.P. Wittstock, 1946.) The nouns are Afrikaans words, the former phrase meaning, lit., 'make a monkey'.

zombie. a conscript: Can. army: WW2. Cf.:-2. A Can. 'Home Guard' not allowed to serve outside N. America: ca. 1940–5. 'After the Voodoo cult which insist that dead men can be made to walk and act as if they were alive' (Daily Express, 16 Sep. 1943, cable from Austin Cross).—3. 'A "zombie" as the trade calls suspicious unidentified [flying] objects' (Tom Mangold, Listener, 29 July 1982): air traffic controllers' s. verging on j.: later C.20.—4. See:- zombies. (Rare in sing.) Policewomen: c., since ca. 1949; then, since ca. 1952, also police s. (John Dickson Carr, Patrick Butler ..., 1956.) Cf. prec.—2. Basutoland and Bechuanaland companies of Pioneers in E. Africa and Near East: army: ca. 1940–6.

Zone, the. 'The coveted promotion zone, the goal of the two-and-a-half striper. If one is outside the zone one is said to have "been"' (Granville): RN officers': since ca. 1925. Compare the Army's sweat on the top line. P.B.: the usage spread to the Army. I remember, as a Warrant Officer 2 in the late 1960s, being told by a visiting Brigadier, 'You're in the zone, y'know—you're in the zone.' I didn't know, and the phrase was new to me at the time.

zonked. Extremely intoxicated, on alcohol or drugs: adopted, at first by teenagers, in Can., mid-1960s, (Leechman), in UK, late 1960s, ex US (P. Janssen, 1968). Either echoic or arbitrary (DCCU). The v. zonk is recorded by B.H. Wolfe, The Hippies, 1968. Hence, in 1970s, > gen., as in 'Getting zonked by the Holy Spirit is a confusing experience at first ...' (Canon Michael Green, of Oxford, quoted in The Times, 30 Jan. 1980, under the headline 'Oxford faces a zonking from the Holy Spirit'). Cf.:-

zonked(-)out. Drug-high, esp. on a hallucinogen or a psychedelics: adopted, ca. 1968, ex US, at first by addicts and then by teenagers in general. Janssen remarks, 1968, that the term implies a long euphoric, followed by a comatose, period.—2. Hence, merely deeply asleep, as from physical exhaustion: later 1970s. (P.B.)

zonks. A superlative, as in 'People have been here for zonks of years' (Anthony Smith, BBC archaeological programme 'Hot Air', 4 July 1982). Cf. yonks.

Zoo, zoo. (Usu. the zoo.) The Zoological Gardens, London (NW1); elsewhere, as already in the OED's earliest example: Macaulay, ca. 1847, 'We treated the Clifton Zoo much too contemptuously.' The zoo has been telescoped to one syllable.—2. As the zoo, the barbed-wire entanglements: army, in France: 1915–18. Reginald Pound, The Lost Generation, 1964.—3. The Montreal immigration hall for those immigrants who wish to return to their own country: Can.: from ca. 1929. Ex the variety of dress and language.—4. As the zoo, it was the 29th Armoured Division's name for 'the funnies', q.v.: ca. 1942–5. P-G-R.—5. As zoo, zoology: schoolboys' and -girls': since ca. 1925.

zoo box. A messing van: railwaymen's: C.20. Railway.

zoo tie. A gaudy necktie: S. African: C.20. (Alan Nash, Cape Times, 3 June 1946.) Afrikaans zoot.

zooks. Sweets: schoolchildren's, esp. in West Country: late C.19–20. Ex dial. form of sucks=suckers, sweets.—2. See:- Zooks!; Zookers!; Zoodikers! (rare); Zooners! Oaths and asseverations: coll.: C.17–mid-19. OED.

zoom. An abrupt hauling-up and forcing-up of an aeroplane when it is flying level: aviation. Also, and slightly earlier, a v.i. Both, 1917 (Daily Mail, 19 July: OED). Ex zoom, 'to make a continuous low-pitched humming or buzzing sound' (OED). See also B. & P.—2. Hence, as v.i., to 'make a hit'; v.t. to boost by publicity: mid-C.20.

zoomer. A member of an aircrew: R Aus. AF: WW2. (B., 1943.) Ex prec., 1.

zoon-bat. Funny-looking. See CANADIAN..., in Appendix.

zooped (up), adj. Applied to anything enhanced, 'tarted up', q.v.: teenagers': early 1980s. (Joanna Williamson, 1982.) Ex souped up, itself from S.E. 'supercharged'.

zoot canary. A fashion model (the person): beatniks' and teenagers': ca. 1959+. (Anderson.) Exzoot suit. A flashy suit of clothes: adopted, ca. 1950, from US. Here, zoot is perhaps Dutch zoet, sweet. Dr Douglas Leechman comments thus: This is a bit complicated. In the first place, the New York ruffians corresponding to the Teddy-boys pronounce 'suit', as 'soot', rhyming with 'boot', not as we do, rhyming with 'cute'. When zoot suits became fashionable, it was 'the thing' to duplicate words, thus the 'zoot soot', which had a fashionable 'drape shape'. Claiborne adds, 1976, 'The original zoot suit, popular among "tough" adolescents in US, 1940s, consisted of a long jacket with immensely padded shoulders, its skirts reaching halfway down the thighs (the "drape shape"), and baggy trousers with pleats at waist (a "reet pleat") and sharply pegged cuffs. It was said of the true "zoot suiter" that he had to grease his feet to get his pants on.'—2. 'Special wind- and water-proof clothing which, issued to the crews of armoured vehicles in Europe in Nov. 1944, could also be used as sleeping bags' (Peter Sanders): late 1944–5. (Maj. Gen. G.L. Verney, The Desert Rats, 1954.) This sense shows an earlier Brit. awareness of the term, prob. borrowed from US servicemen; E.P.'s '1950' in sense 1 should, I think, be amended to 'ca. 1945'—as a schoolboy I knew about zoot suits in the later 1940s (P.B.).

zot. 'Like zap [q.v.], a very useful import from USA, principally, I think, from the excellent cartoons of Johnny Hart; used to express suddenness of movement, a swift surprise strike, as of lightning. Sometimes used alone simply as a very expressive noise, sometimes as a verb: "There I was, zotting down the motorway at a rate of knots, when all of a sudden there was this fuzz..."' (P.B., 1974): since ca. 1965. Purely echoic.

zouave. In play the zouave, to show off, to swagger: army coll., never very gen.: WW1. (F. & G.) Ex the dashing zouaves' fiercely military bearing.

zouch. A churl; an unmannerly fellow: C.18. (Street Robberies Considered, 1728.) Perhaps ex ouch, the exclaim.

zoucher. Cf. prec., and see sycher.

'Zounds! An oath or asseveration: late C.16–20: coll. until C.19, then archaic S.E. except when dial. Euph. abbr. by God's wounds. Cf. Zooks!

zowie. 'A new import from San Francisco, meaning hippy language' (Peter Fryer, Observer colour sup., 3 Dec. 1967): hippies': since (? May) 1967. In US s., since ca. 1920 (R.S. cites its use by Sinclair Lewis in Babbitt, 1922), zowie has signified 'energy' or 'zest' or the two combined (W. & F.); itself ex the exclamatory zowie!, biff! or bang!

Zozo. A metropolitan Frenchman: late C.19–20: 'a term with little currency in Australia but quite widespread in the New Hebrides and New Caledonia among Australians. From Pidgin "mens-aux-oreilles" (ear-men) because the French offered a bounty on the ears of New Caledonian natives during the revolt of 1878' (Edwin Morrisby, letter, 1958).

zubric(k). Penis: Services', mainly army and RAF in, or ex-, Middle East; also Aus.: since early C.20. Esp. in 'soldiers' Arabic', shufti zubrick or shufti zoob, let's see (or show) the penis. (L.A.; P.B.; Morrisby.)

Zulu. 'An emigrant outfit', esp. a train for either emigrants or immigrants: Can. railroadmen's: adopted, before 1931, ex US. Perhaps ex anglers' zulu, a gaudy fly. P.B.: but see Zoo, 3.

Zulu Express, the. A certain Great Western afternoon express train: railwaymen's at the time of the Zulu War (1879). (Ware.) Prob. because it ran to 'Zummerzett'.

zurucker. A police trooper: Aus.: C.20. Used by John Manifold in his 'Ballad of Ned Kelly', which I set to music ca. 1947. ('"Come out o' that, Ned Kelly", the head zurucker calls.') 'Presumably ex Ger. zurück, adv., backwards, but [semantics] not clear' (Claiborne, 1976), I hazard that a zurucker is, lit., a back-tracker, the detectival following of a trail or other clue. There may even be a punning ref. to those remarkable black (Aboriginal) trackers who have done such wonderful work, with the white police, in the Australian 'bush'.

zyders. The washing places: Felsted School: since ca. 1925. Marples, 'Probably from Zuyder Zee'.

zymotic, whence the even slangier zymy, 'Lousy': teenagers': since ca. 1963. (Mrs Verily Anderson, 1963.) Contrast unzymotic.

Appendix

THE EVOLUTION OF THE PHONETIC ALPHABET

	ROYAL NAVY WW1	— IN USE IN —					INTER- NATIONAL since 1956
		1904	1914	1927	1938	1941
A	APPLES	ACK	ACK	ACK	ACK	ABLE	ALFA
B	BUTTER	BEER	BEER	BEER	BEER	BAKER	BRAVO
C	CHARLIE	C	C	CHARLIE	CHARLIE	CHARLIE	CHARLIE
D	DUFF	D	DON	DON	DON	DOG	DELTA
E	EDWARD	E	E	EDWARD	EDWARD	EASY	ECHO
F	FREDDY	F	F	F	FREDDIE	FOX	FOXTROT
G	GEORGE	G	G	G	GEORGE	GEORGE	GOLF
H	HARRY	H	H	HARRY	HARRY	HOW	HOTEL
I	INK	I	I	INK	INK	ITEM	INDIA
J	JOHNNIE	J	J	JOHNNY	JOHNNIE	JIG	JULIETT
K	KING	K	K	K	KING	KING	KILO
L	LONDON	L	L	L	LONDON	LOVE	LIMA
M	MONKEY	EMMA	EMMA	MONKEY	MONKEY	MIKE	MIKE
N	NUTS	N	N	N	NUTS	NAN	NOVEMBER
O	ORANGE	O	O	O	ORANGE	OBOE	OSCAR
P	PUDDING	PIP	PIP	PIP	PIP	PETER	PAPA
Q	QUEENIE	Q	Q	QUEEN	QUEEN	QUEEN	QUEBEC
R	ROBERT	R	R	R	ROBERT	ROGER	ROMEO
S	SUGAR	ESSES	ESSES	SUGAR	SUGAR	SUGAR	SIERRA
T	TOMMY	TOC	TOC	TOC	TOC	TARE	TANGO
U	UNCLE	U	U	U	UNCLE	UNCLE	UNIFORM
V	VINEGAR	VIC	VIC	VIC	VIC	VICTOR	VICTOR
W	WILLIAM	W	W	W	WILLIAM	WILLIAM	WHISKEY
X	XERXES	X	X	X	X-RAY	X-RAY	X-RAY
Y	YELLOW	Y	Y	Y	YORKER	YOKE	YANKEE
Z	ZEBRA	Z	Z	Z	ZEBRA	ZEBRA	ZULU

References:

Signalling Regulations, 1904, ch. 13, p. 187; Training Manual, Signalling, part II, 1914, p. 96, 1915, p. 194; Signal Training, vol. V, part I, 1927; Signal Training, All Arms, 1938; Signal Training, All Arms, 1952.

My thanks for the above information are to the Royal Signals Museum at Blandford Forum, and in particular to its Librarian, Mr L.L. 'Les' Evans, for his ready help. (P.B.)

ARMY SLANG IN THE SOUTH AFRICAN WAR

Not until this 8th ed. of the Dictionary was nearly completed did I chance to find the verses reproduced below. They are anonymous, and first appeared in The Friend, the army newspaper published in Bloemfontein at the instigation of the Commander-in-Chief, Field Marshal Earl Roberts ('Bobs'), in the issue of 14 Apr. 1900, when the paper was still under the editorship of H.A. Gwynne, Rudyard Kipling, Perceval Landon, and Julian Ralph. The verses were re-printed in Julian Ralph's War's Brighter Side, 1901, his account of the paper under the joint editorship, Mar.-Apr. 1900. I include it here not only because it backdates a number of the entries in the main text, but also because it shows very clearly the use of a dictionary like this one to later generations.

MY COMRADES' CONVERSATION

When I was quite a young recruit, not very long ago,
My comrades' conversation was a talk I didn't know;
I really thought to some far-distant country I'd been shipped
When they said I was a 'jowler', and described me as 'just nipped',

If I was 'slightly dragged', or with my 'praco' couldn't cope, They said I'd 'lost my monnicker' and earned an 'extra slope',
And, though I'm known as Ferdinand to all my kin and kith,
They went and dropped my Christian name and called me
'Dusty Smith'.
They called me 'Dusty Smith'.

But a soldier's life is the life for me,
And the foe shall ne'er alarm me,
For you won't feel queer on 'Drug-hole beer', What's called 'three-thick' in the Army.

I asked them what my food would be. They said: 'Your food? Oh, that's
"Meat", "jipper", "spuds" and "rooti", with occasional "top-hats".'

They said I'd find coal-hugging quite a lively little job, Then they put me 'on the timber' and they called me 'Junior Swab'.

But when my work was over, after 'tapping up' a bit, I'd take my own 'square missus' out—you bet we made a hit.

And when I had to go on guard she'd come there every day

To see me marching down the street and hear the 'fiddlers' play.

Just to hear the 'fiddlers' play.

So a soldier's life is the life for me,
And the foe shall ne'er alarm me,
As I slope my gun in Number One What's called 'Long-Swabs' in the Army.

But now I understand them 'cause I know my way about,
And comprehend the Sergeant's unintelligible shout;
When he says: 'Shooldare Hipe!' I know that he means:
'Shoulder hup',

So I'm never for 'Small-dodgers' and I never got "Built-up".

I'm not a mere 'Jam-soldier', I've extended sure enough,
And been made 'Assistant-bully' so I help to cook the 'Duff'.

I've kept my kit and rifle clean, so's never to be rushed,
And I've never been 'done-tired' and I've never once been 'pushed'.

No, I've never once been 'pushed'.

Then a soldier's life is the life for me,
And the foe shall ne'er alarm me,
And soon I shall be a Corporal, What's called 'Sauce-Jack' in the Army.

Notes. (Bold type is a ref. to the main text.)

Jowler is a 'new' word to the Dictionary; it appears in EDD as 'a heavy-jowled dog, a hunting dog', and perhaps in the verse's context it means a lad thick about the chin, still with his 'puppy-fat', as just nipped (? orig. = newly born) means newly enlisted: see nipped. Slightly dragged is 'late on parade', and praco is prob. a term for 'practical training or exercises'; to lose one's monnicker is a var. of lose one's name or number, to be charged with a minor military offence: see monaker. The resulting extra slope must be 'extra drill'. Dusty is a nickname more often associated with Miller or Rhodes than with Smith (see NICKNAMES, below). I can offer no clues to drug-hole beer, alias three-thick. Jipper, gravy, grease or butter, is an oldish term: see gippa and jipper; rooti = bread, an Indian Army term ex Hindustani; but I can't explain top-hats. I take coal-hugging to mean 'coal-heaving', since the author seems to progress from that outside job into the dining-hall as a fatigue man, Junior Swab (see swab, which this back-dates), cleaning the floor, on the timber. Tapping up is either smartening up, or a 'petting session' with his regular girl-friend: with square missus cf. square pusher. The fiddlers she came to hear were the regimental buglers. I am merely guessing when I suggest that Long-Swabs or Number One mean a best uniform. Hipe or hyy became a very popular term for a rifle in WW1: see hipe, and cf. the older and still, 1983, current bundook. Small-dodgers and built-up defeat me at this stage: they may be forms of punishment (dodger = bread; small-d = ? bread and water), or they may allude to drunkenness. Since the author has extended his service, a jam-soldier must be a short-term or 'for the duration of hostilities' man; and as duff = food in general, the assistant-bully is prob. the assistant cook, ex bully-beef. I propose that done-tired = to be caught unawares, as pushed was still army s. in later C.20 for 'to be caught behindhand or on the hop'. I wonder if sauce-jack (cf. lance-jack, a lance-corporal) here means esp. a cook-corporal. I shall be glad to hear from anyone who can elucidate further on any of these expressions; the verses were obviously composed to bring in as many as possible of the Army's then current slang terms, and it may be of interest to compare them with those at KOREAN WAR and RHODESIAN ARMY later in this Appendix. (P.B., 1982.)

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL

Here follow the nicknames of some of the British 'Soccer' teams. A few, e.g. Canaries, Gunners, Hammers, Magpies, Posh, Throstles, Toffee, appear in the main text. All are prec. by the; all are s. except the few classified as coll. I owe most of them to Mr Albert B. Petch.

Addicks	Charlton Athletic
Borough	Middlesbrough
Cestrians	Chester
Dons	Aberdeen
Fifers	East Fife
Filberts	Leicester [P.B.: their home ground is at Filbert Street in the city]
Forest	Nottingham Forest: coll.
Gills	Gillingham
Glaziers	Crystal Palace
Grecians	Exeter City
Imps	Lincoln City
Latics	Oldham
Lions	Colchester (?)
Moorites	Burnley
Orient	Leyton Orient: coll.
Owls	Sheffield Wednesday
Paraders	Bradford (?)
Pilgrims	Plymouth
Rangers	Queen's Park Rangers: coll.
Reds	Manchester United
Robins	Bristol City
Saddlers	Walsall (?)
Seasiders	Blackpool
Shakers	Bury
Tangerines	Blackpool (?)
Trotters	Bolton Wanderers
Villains	Aston Villa

AUSTRALIAN SURFING SLANG AND COLLOQUIALISMS

The terms cited in the main text come notably from four sources: J.R. Westerway ('The Surfies' in the (Sydney) Bulletin of 30 Mar. 1963; a brief, unsigned article ('Language of Their Own') in the Sun-Herald of 22 Sep. 1963; Dick Dennison, 'The World of the Surfies'—a valuable article, with a glossary, containing, however, much that is sheer jargon (technicalities); and the comments, and several additions, made by Mr Barry Prentice, who sent me the articles.

As a sport, surf-board riding became extremely popular soon after WW2; it erupted as a passion, a rage, a cult, almost a way of life, among teenagers, in 1960–1. All its jargon and some of its slang have been imported from Hawaii. P.B.: and many of the terms associated with surfing made their way to Britain in the later 1970s, borrowed and adapted by skateboarders.

AUSTRALIAN UNDERWORLD TERMS CURRENT IN 1975

In the (Sydney) Bulletin of 26 Apr. 1975, Neil James, who had been a member of the underworld for some thirty years, published a long article titled 'Nodding the Nut for a Swy and One', which means 'pleading guilty and being sentenced to a term of two years, with remission of one year for good behaviour'. This fascinating article generalises upon the underworld itself, the knock-about or knock-around (composed of *knock-about*s, or -arounds), a term that promptly became low and, finally, gen. s., and upon its speech, its idiom, its vocabulary. The vocabulary used here is, as it must inevitably be, selective, but the selection is truly representative.

Most of the terms go back to just after WW2 (1939-45); a few arose not long before it; a very few of them arose late, or latish, in the C.19. From the following alphabetical list, I have omitted those terms which appeared in the 7th edition (1970) of this work, except where a ref. seemed necessary. Many terms belong also to the fringes of the underworld, and a very few even to mere low slang; it's occ. impossible to decide which stratum has influenced which. Moreover, many of the true cant (or underworld) words and phrases are known and used outside Aus.: especially in near-by NZ; fewer in Can. and the US; a few have been adopted from the UK, notably London.

I have put the terms treated by Mr James into alphabetical order, defined them, and, where advisable, cross-referenced. But the credit for the terms themselves belongs to him; and I'm most grateful to the Bulletin, Australia's greatest weekly, for their courteous permission to use the article.

Items in bold type are references to the main text of the Dictionary; 'above' and 'below' to entries within this section. arse, n. Anyone the speaker rates as objectionable; a 'shit'; any place he thinks poorly of; a 'dump': although much used in the underworld and its fringes, also low s.: prob. since ca. 1930. Neil James employs it in both these nuances. See also put on the arse bit, below.

back-up. 'A friend or ally willing to defend another man in trouble': since ca. 1920: c. > low s. > gen. s. Ex back up, v. bagman. That member of a shoplifting team who carries away the stolen goods: since ca. 1930.

bake, n. 'He [a prisoner] went on to say that the jacks [i.e. the police] gave him the best bake in history (a malicious description of his character to the court). A bake is a verbal assault, also known as a roast, or "being on the griller": since ca. 1945.

balk, v. To cover up, as in 'balk with a molly', to use a girl as cover or shield: C.20.

barrel, v. To deliver (a punch): also low s.: since ca. 1945. 'Some mug... barrelled a king at him' (i.e., a king-hit, a hard, unexpected punch).

bow the crumplet. 'To plead guilty in court', is also known as get one's head down.

brass, v. To steal from a fellow thief, esp. a mate: since early 1920s. Ex brass, v. 2.

comics. Short for comic cuts, rhyming s. for 'guts' or belly: C.20.

dip, v. Cf. dip, v., 7, to fail: in Aus. c. it=to fail in committing a crime, esp. of theft or robbery.

dolly, v. To interrogate (a suspect): since ca. 1930.

drag, n. = drag, n., 7: in Aus. c. prob. since late C.19.

dud, n. (the dud) and v.; vbl n. dudding. 'He had been charged with dudding, that is, misrepresenting the origin, quality and value of goods he sold': since ca. 1935, or a decade earlier. Ex 'dud' goods—of inferior quality or performance—orig., duds, clothes. See duff, v. and duffer.

earn. Money obtained illicitly by the police for granting a thief or other criminal leniency or other privilege; hence, a (mild) degree of bribery: since ca. 1930. Cf. earn, v., 2.

egg. A pimp: short for rhyming egg and spoon, on synon. Aus. c. hoon.

fall, v. To arrive, esp. if suddenly; applied esp. to police or store detectives: since late 1940s. Often in 'the law falls (or fell)!', the police arrive or make a raid.

fix, n. A well thought out plan, the locus carefully reconnoitred: since ca. 1945.

fizz-gig. A busybody: orig.—late 1930s—c., but soon also low s. Cf. fizz-gig.

fly the flag. 'To appeal the case to a higher court in the hope of having the sentence reduced': since early 1940s. P.B.:? the flag of distress.

front, n. "'The Limp" [a man with one] had front (boldness and self-confidence)': since ca. 1940. Ex front, n., 1.

gather (usu. in passive, be gathered). To be arrested: since ca. 1930. Also lumbered.

gear, n. Anything (esp. if illicit) intentionally undefined: since 'long before the word became popular'; therefore, since ca. 1945, if not ca. 1930. Peculiarly Aus. c.

get (one's) head down (to it). Slightly less common than nod the nut: since, at latest, 1945; prob. since the 1920s.

give (a place) a peg. To 'case' it, reconnoitre it: since ca. 1930.

give (the accused) the book. Aus. var. of the much more widely distributed throw the book at; to condemn to the maximum term of imprisonment: since late 1940s.

goose, n. A shop assistant: esp. shoplifters' c.: since (?) late 1930s.

Gregory Peck. Often shortened to Gregory: the neck: rhyming s., esp. in Aus., and there mostly in the lowest stratum: since ca. 1950. P.B.: also Brit., later C.20.

griller. See bake, above.

head. See pullaway, below.

heavy, n. (usu. in pl). An intimidator used by money-lenders, bookmakers, et al., for the collection of dues from reluctant clients: both in Brit. and in other Commonwealth countries: since ca. 1930: c., hence also low s. Cf. standover man.

junk, n. Short for junkie, -y, a drug addict: since latish 1950s.

king, n. Short for king-hit: a knock-out, esp. if unexpected, punch: since ca. 1930. Also v., as in 'he kinged a floor-walker'.

kite blue. A worthless cheque: since ca. 1930. See kite, n., 3.

knock-about, less often knock-around; the former, derivative, also an adj. 'A guy who is appalled at the idea of an honest day's work', but rather more than a mere 'layabout', for it virtually means a crook, esp. a professional thief: since ca. 1930 or perhaps a decade earlier.

live square. To be an honest citizen: c. and low s.: since ca. 1950.

load, n. and v. Fabricated evidence; to fabricate evidence against (a suspect): since ca. 1930.

loiter, n. 'Loitering with intent to commit a felony': c., and police s.: since ca. 1920, perhaps since ca. 1910.

lumbered. See gather, above—but prob. considerably older than it.

monkey. Monkey, n., 2, has naturally become applied to 500 Aus. dollars.

Moreton. Short for Moreton Bay, itself short for Moreton Bay fig, q.v. at gig, n., 10. Neil James wrongly spells it Morton. Moreton Bay is situated at the mouth of the Brisbane River and is enclosed on the north-east by Moreton Island. In the early days of transportation, one of the harshest of the penal settlements was sited there. Moreton Bay, and its notorious governor, Logan, frequently crop up in Aus. 'convict' ballads. (Mrs Camilla Raab.)

nod the nut is much commoner than bow the crumplet. Commoner also—though less so than nod the nut—is get one's head down (to it). Neil James mentions only the get... and nod... forms. All four obviously refer to nodding, or ducking, one's head in voiceless affirmative.

onkaparinga, often shortened to onka. A finger: app. of Aus. orig., and certainly underworld rhyming s., perhaps throughout C.20. P.B.: Wilkes gives only the short form, notes 'rare', and explains 'from the place-name'.

peg, n. See give a peg, above.

post, v. 'There's no way he'll post you on the job'—leave in the lurch, abandon you to the police in order to secure his own freedom or safety: since the 1930s.

pullaway (or pull-away). 'The terms "pullaway"—"tugging a head", "pulling away" or "slewing a head" [or "pulling a head"] mean simply diverting someone's attention from the scene of operations': since ca. 1930, if not 20–25 years earlier.

pussy, esp. pussy in. To move, to enter, very quietly or unobtrusively: since ca. 1930: c. >, by ca. 1940, s. Like a cat. P.B.: cf. synon. S.E. pussyfoot, v.

put (someone) on the arse bit. To tell another indignantly what one thinks of him: c. and low s.: since mid-1940s.

put on the griller; mostly being put... See bake, above.

rave. To talk fluently and loudly, with connotation of craziness; hence raver, one who does this as a role in a crime: since latish 1940s.

raver. See prec.

red-penny man. A pimp: since late 1930s. Less common than synon. hoon.

roast, n. See bake, above.

rotter. A petty confidence trickster: since ca. 1910. A specialisation of rotter, 1.

serve, n.; serve up, v. Unpleasant or painful or unjust 'service' or treatment; to beat up, to assault or to attack: c.: C.20.

sling, n. In beat it for the sling, to fail to appear in court, e.g., at the end of one's bail: since ca. 1950.

shoppy; shoppying; shoppying job. A shoplifter; shoplifting in general; shoplifting in particular: since the 1930s; by 1950, also low s. slewing a head. See pullaway, above. But also 'to slew', as in 'Marg pussies in to slew the manager.'

slot. A prison cell: c.: since ca. 1950. A prisoner is put into a (strictly, small) cell or a cell for two. He is slotted into his allocated niche.

smother. To use something to conceal a movement, a trick, an object, as in 'Marg and Ratty Jack was gonna smother with a box while [a shoplifting was in progress]': since ca. 1920. As an Aus. usage, recorded by Baker 35 years earlier.

snag, n. It survives, in its main text sense, but it seems to be s., not coll.; I suspect that it is mainly Sydney-siders'.

spear, v. To throw (someone) out of a shop, a pub, etc.: since ca. 1910: c. and low, then gen., 'I got speared through the front door.' Cf. get and give the spear at spear, n.

spot, n. 100 dollars Aus.: since ca. 1965. Neil James has 'the police had asked for two spot ($200) in return for the no-bake [see bake, above]'. It is only fair to the Australian police to remark that he seems to have encountered an exceptionally high amount of corruption.

swinging, be. (Of a case) 'adjourned to a further date': c. and low s.: since ca. 1920.

swy with one. A sentence, or a term, of two years' imprisonment, with one year remitted for good behaviour: c., esp. convicts' and ex-convicts': since ca. 1925. See swi, 3.

take, n. A theft: c.: since latish 1940s.

take man (or hyphenated). 'The man who [in a gang] actually steals the money': since ca. 1930.

tank. Tank, 2, a safe for money, is also, as Neil James shows, Aus.—clearly adopted ex NZ. But as a prison cell it has, since ca. 1940, been Aus. c.—adopted ex US where, however, it denotes a large cell for temporary detention of, e.g. drunk-and-disorderlies.

tea-leaf. This Brit. rhyming s. for 'thief' is common also in the Aus. underworld, and Neil James notes it.

tidy (someone) up. To deal with someone thoroughly, to complete his (e.g. police) examination, esp. of detectives interrogating a suspect: since ca. 1930. Ironic.

top mag. A fast-talking 'con man' or other crook: prob. throughout C.20. Perhaps suggested by mag, n., 2.

tug, n. See next. It derives straight from the v.—and prob. did so almost immediately.

tug, v. To warn, as one crook (or a beggar, a 'layabout') warns another of imminent or immediate danger: since the 1930s. Sometimes tug (one's) coat and sometimes give (one) the tug: both in Neil James. 'The expression derives from the system of signals shoppies [shoplifters] use in large stores... One of these signals is tugging at the lapels of the signaller's coat, signifying danger.'

verbal, n. and v. An official police interrogation, ending in a signed statement: police j. > semi-c. Whence, prob., the specifically c. sense, as in 'because the police had... verballed him (perjured themselves giving testimony)': since ca. 1950. See verbal, for Brit. usage.

willy. See Willie. Sense 4 of Willie may derive ex sense 5 (spelt willy by Neil James); money, whether in gen. or, as of that in a till, in particular, or indeed the till itself.

you wouldn't want to know! That is: ... know about it, because you wouldn't believe it—it'd disgust, or seem impossible, to you: Aus. c.p., perhaps originating in the underworld: since late 1940s.

BACK SLANG

Back s. dates from the first half of C.19: the earliest ref. I've seen occurs in G.W.M. Reynolds's Pickwick Abroad, 1839, p. 587 (footnote). It would be fair to say that back s. is slowly disappearing from general low-level s., but that it actively persists among minor criminals and near-criminals. See, e.g., Frank Norman's article in Encounter, 1959, reprinted in Len Deighton's London Dossier, and in Frank Norman's own Norman's London. Several back s. terms adduced by F.N. occur in this Dictionary. The situation remains the same in 1977 as it was in 1959. (E.P., 2 May 1977.) P.B.: Another group making considerable use of back s., at least until mid-C.20, were retail butchers, and not only in London, to judge by C.S. Upton's comprehensive article 'Language Butchered: Back-Slang in the Birmingham Meat Trade', Lore & Language, vol. 2, no. 1, July 1974. Further evidence is provided in a 1981 letter to me from Robert Bartrop, co-author of The Muvver Tongue: 'Many years ago I worked for Sainsbury's as a shop porter... There was a butchering staff, from whom the use of backslang spread through the place. Some of them were quite clever at it: cries of "Kay-rop poches!" and "Sheep's dee-aitch!" (pork chops, sheep's head) answered by "Ee-mocing pu!" Scales were ee-lacs, "nam-oh" for a woman, "exobs" boxes, "ee-fink" a knife, "ee-nobs" bones. The call "Nav pu!" to me meant a delivery van to be unloaded; and a thorough muddle was a "slabs-pu" ("pu" pronounced peu).' See also Slang, pp. 276–7.

A variant of back slang is centre slang, which is discussed in Slang, pp. 277–8.

BIRD-WATCHERS' SLANG

Although scientific and semi-scientific and informed-amateur bird-watching (in the S.E. sense) has existed since earth knows when, it has at the pursuit-of-knowledge level been a very serious matter, hardly conducive to levity. As a popular hobby, especially among the youthful, it arose, I'd have thought, only since WW2 (1939–45). Not until 1977 did I become aware that there existed a small but healthy group of bird-watching slangy and colloquial terms; on 17 Nov. New Society published an article by Gavin Weightman, 'To Twitch a Dowitcher' (a real American bird roughly equivalent to a UK sandpiper, esp. the red-breasted snipe, and in Brit., first dictionaried in the 2nd Sup. of OED, vol. I, 1972). Here, with the very kind permission of New Society and of the author, is a vocabulary of the bird-watchers' slang terms noted by Mr Weightman:

birder. A bird-watcher: perhaps coll. rather than s.; mostly since ca. 1955.

clinch, v.t.; whence vbl n. clinch. 'Clinching is identifying a rarity' (G.W.): since ca. 1955.

dip in. 'They were on their way back from the Scilly Isles where they had dipped in on an alpine accentor (a European bird like a dunnock or hedge-sparrow). In twitcher talk, to be dipped in is to go on a successful twitch (trip to see a rarity)' (G.W.): since ca. 1955. Cf.:

dip out. To fail, on a bird-watching trip, as in 'we nearly dipped out when two water authority men walked past in the open and sent the birds up.' P.B.: see dip out in the main text, and cf. use of dip in children's counting-out songs. dude. 'At Wilstone, I was clearly among dudes (rather staid non-twitchers)'; serious, experienced, usually rather older bird-watchers: since (?) ca. 1955.

grip off, usu. be gripped off, as in 'If you miss a rarity a fellow twitcher sees, you are gripped off'; annoyed, bitterly disappointed: since (?) ca. 1950. Perhaps influenced by be gripped off. P.B.: but grip and gripped, in various forms and with various meanings akin to the one given here, were common among National Servicemen, WW2—early 1960s.

lister. An enthusiastic bird-watcher, listing in his little notebook every rarity or, to him, new bird he has ever seen (cf. train- or plane-spotters): since ca. 1950. Cf. tick-hunter. Med. A Mediterranean bird: since ca. 1950.

Sibe. A Siberian bird: since ca. 1960.

tick-hunter. An ardent, devoted, usu. excitable bird-watcher; also known as a lister or twitcher.

twitch; twitchable; twitcher; twitching, n. and adj. A group based on the fact that many bird-watchers tend to twitch with excitement, whether at the sight of a bird new to them or of a genuine rarity. (Contrast dude.) The n. twitch, the earliest derivative, signifies a trip to see a rarity; then comes twitcher, one who reacts thus, also called a lister or tick-hunter, and G.W. refers to the 'hard-core twitcher'; twitching = either 'excited' or 'being a twitcher' or 'pertaining to such bird-watching'—and, as a n., 'the practice of excitable, enthusiastic bird-watching'; and twitchable = likely to cause such ardour and excitement, as in 'looking at a Blyth's reed-warbler, "the first twitchable one for years"' (G.W.). R.E. Emmett claims to have coined twitcher in mid-1950s to describe the behaviour of well-known bird-watcher Howard Medhurst when on the trail of a rare bird.

unblock. 'If you miss a rarity' a fellow twitcher sees you are gripped off. You can unblock him by seeing one he misses'—that is, you can get even with him and dampen his triumph: since ca. 1965.

Yank. Also yank (as in G.W.'s article): 'It might be a yank (American bird)': since ca. 1950.

BODY

W. Mathews notes that '[Ned] Ward frequently uses a number of slang terms, some of them vulgar, for various parts of the body. The following... occur fairly often in his works': esp. in London: 1700–25. The head was noddle (1703); eyes were peepers (1722); breasts, bubbies (1703) and dumplings (1709); feet, pettitoes (1709) and the rare pedestals (1703); a hand was a paw (1700); the nose, beak (1715) or handle of one's face (1703); tongue, clapper (1700); the behind, bum-fiddle (1709), scut (1709), tail (1703) or toby (1703); a face, fiz (1700); teeth were stumps (1709—but is this correct?); entrails, puddings (1703).

CANADIAN ADOLESCENTS' SLANG, 1946

'Mother! Do you want to be able to converse easily with your teenagers? Here is the glossary: Ameche, telephone: alligator, swing fan: blitz-buggy, automobile: bone-box, mouth: crumb-hunting, house work: dazzle dust, face powder: dig the drape, buy a new dress: droolin with schoolin, a grind: fag hag, a girl who smokes: give with the goo, explain in detail: in a gazelle, I'm feeling good: junior wolf, kid brother: make like a boid, go away: pucker paint, lipstick: Red Mike, a woman hater: riffs, music: whing ding, head covering: you shred it, Wheat, you said it: zoon bat, funny looking' (A Toronto newspaper, 24 Oct. 1946). Teenagers = teen-agers = those in their teens.

'Practically all this is now obsolescent or obsolete' (Leechman, May 1959).

CHARTERHOUSE

This school's s. is dealt with by A.H. Tod in his handbook, Charterhouse, 1900; all terms noted by him, and many others (owed to the kindness of Mr David MacGibbon), are defined in the course of the present work. Cf. the entries at ETON, HARROW, WESTMINSTER and WINCHESTER.

CHOW-CHOW

From Col. Albert F. Moe, USMC, Ret., of Arlington, Virginia, comes the following summary of the English use of this term and its compounds. I give it verbatim.

chow-chow (food).

Fanning, Edmund, Voyages Round the World, N.Y.: 1832, p. 253. 5 Aug. 1798... At day-break, when the cable was hove in, their [Chinese fishermen's] net was found so entangled and wound around, that we were obliged to cut it into several pieces before it was cleared, (but it could not be avoided,) for now they could not procure any chow-chow (victuals) until the net was first taken on shore and mended.

Wood, W.W., Sketches of China, Philadelphia: 1830, p. 216. Chow-chow. This, in the slang of Canton [pidgin-English], means either food, or a collection of various trifling articles.

Roberts, Edmund, Embassy to the Eastern Courts, N.Y.: 1837, p. 65. (October 1832)... Having stepped on board, the first words they uttered, were 'Capetan me peloto—you wanty peloto?'... The 'celestial'... not forgetting to ask, as is usual, for a bottle of samsheiw, (rum) which he snugly stowed away in his bosom. Scarcely had he taken half a dozen strides up and down the deck, and pointed to steer more to port, before he asked for chow, chow, meaning something to eat, which, to his astonished eyes, was furnished forthwith, in a lordly dish, on the quarter-deck.

chow-chow [food, general; pickles; preserves]

Downing, Charles Toogood, The Fan-Qui in China in 1836–7, London: 1848, I, p. 99.

(1838) Chow-chow is another favourite word with the Chinese. When applied to little dogs and tender rats, and other delicate articles of food, it is spoken with great gusto... while a mixture of different pickles or preserves bears the same alluring title of chow-chow.

chow-chow (v. to eat). Charles de Montigny, Manuel de Négociant Français en Chine, 1846, Paris: 1846, p. 321.

chow-chow. Mixed, miscellaneous, mixed meats, to eat food.

chow-chow account [food account] Canton, 2 Nov. 1830.

chow-chow amah [wet nurse] Hong Kong, 1886.

chow-chow basket [so-named from being divided into compartments, not from carrying an assortment, miscellany or medley of knick-knacks or odds-and-ends].

Downing, op. cit., I, p. 99.

Baskets, which are procured in Canton, with many compartments, are called chow-chow baskets....

chow-chow cargo [assorted cargo], 1882.

chow-chow chop [chop = licensed lighter, chow-chow = odds-and-ends comprising the last lighter-load of cargo to complete the loading of the ship] [James Bannerman, ed.] Dialogues and Detached Sentences in the Chinese Language, Macao, 1816, p. 85. E[uropean]. That will do. Has the Country Ship sent down her Chow-chow Chop yet? Morrison, Robert, A Dictionary of the Chinese Language, Macao, 1819. Part II, vol. I, p. 698/2.

... to send down the last boat load of goods to a ship, locally called the Chow chow chop.

chow-chow joss [to place food offerings as a part of religious worship] 1886.

chow-chow man [dealer in all kinds of goods] 1878.

chow-chow water. Downing, op. cit., I, p. 99.

[1838] Where the river is troubled in particular parts near the shore by small eddies, that part of it is called chow-chow water.

P.B. adds: This comprehensive list was prompted by several miscellaneous chow-chow entries in the 1st ed. of this Dict. These included evidence that the term had been taken into Anglo-Indian usage, in the sense of 'assorted, general', e.g. chow-chow cargo and shop; it was also given the fresh meaning, as n. and v., (to) chit-chat, gossip. 'See esp. Lady Falkland's Chow-Chow, 1857; ed. by Prof. H.G. Rawlinson, 1930' (wrote E.P., who in fact published the book himself at his Scholartis Press).

CLERGYMEN'S DICTION IN THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND

The following passage, caustically true of many clerics, occurs in Ernest Raymond's Mary Leith, 1931 (Part I, ch. iii): "'All," when Mr Broadley was in high emotional state, showed a strange tendency to become "ull"—"Brethren, shall we ull now rise and sing a hymn"; the holy Apostles, on the crest of the wave of very strong feeling, changed most distinctly into "Thy holy Aparcels, O Lord"; and at times—at really stirring times—"Lord" enriched and strengthened itself into something very like "Lorder".' This passage is preceded by an equally pertinent one on cleric clichés.

COCKNEY CATCH-PHRASES

Cockney catch-phrases of derisory and/or provocative interrogation: Do they have ponies down a pit?; what was the name of the engine-driver?; what does a mouse do when it spins? These C.20 c.pp. are used either to express boredom or to start a discussion or a 'row'. The second derives ex the trick of asking numerous questions concerning speed, times, etc., etc. The third has the c.p. answer, because the higher the fower! And, by the way, the third occurs perhaps more frequently in the form, Why is a mouse when it spins?, with the c.p. answer as given: so Mr Ramsey Spencer tells me. P.B.: to these examples may be added: What's the difference between a chicken?—one of its legs is both the same!

COCKNEY SPEECH

Edwin Pugh, one of the best of all writers on Cockney life, wrote at the beginning of Harry the Cockney, 1912: 'There is no such being . . . as a typical Cockney. But there are approximations to a type. There are men and women, the sons and daughters of Cockneys, born and bred within sound of Bow bells, and subject to all the common influences of circumstance and training and environment that London brings into play upon their personalities, who may be said to be . . . typical. The average Cockney is not articulate. He is often witty; he is sometimes eloquent; he has a notable gift of phrase-making and nicknaming. Every day he is enriching the English tongue with new forms of speech, new clichés, new slang, new catch-words. The new thing and the new word to describe the new thing are never very far apart in London. But the spirit, the soul, of the Londoner is usually dumb.'

Considerable space is given in this work to peculiarities of Cockney speech, because it is in itself important; it is important, too, for the influence it has exercised on the everyday language of Colonials—and, it must not be forgotten, that of Americans. Moreover, back slang and rhyming slang were invented by Cockneys; they are still used widely by costermongers. In 1908 Clarence Rook, in London Side Lights, could say: 'I will back the costermonger . . . to . . . talk to a Regius Professor of English for half an hour, tell him the most amusing stories, and leave that Professor aghast in darkest ignorance.'

One of the best-informed aperçus on the Cockney is that on pp. 42–3 of Michael Harrison's Reported Safe Arrival, 1943—a book containing many vivid, and accurate, transcripts of the Cockney speech of the 20th century.

But the best and most comprehensive study of the Cockney and his speech is Julian Franklyn's The Cockney, 1953, 2nd ed. revised—1954. P.B.: to which must now be added Robert Barltrop & Jim Wolveridge, The Muvver Tongue, 1980, and Jim Wolveridge's pamphlet He Don't Know 'A' from a Bull's Foot, [n.d.].

COLSTON'S

Colston's School, Bristol, had in 1887–1922, and certainly for some years before 1887 and probably for some years since 1922, 'two popular types' of abbreviation, one in -s: e.g. blots (blotting paper), detens (detention), impots, paps (paper), swifs (soap); the other by omission of s.: e.g. cla (class), gra (grass). Marples.

CONSTABLES

In the first quarter of the C.18, the following terms occur in Ned Ward: catchpole rapiplaree (1709), city bull-dog (1703; gen. in pl.), cony-fumble (1703), and trap (1703) or town-trap (1709); the watchmen are hour-grunters (1703) and bailiffs are bums (1703); lawyers are tongue-padders (1703). Matthews.

CROWN AND ANCHOR

For a very clear description of the game—a favourite in the Forces—see Richards, p. 65–7, where also are listed the figures with their nicknames:

Heart transixed	Puff and Dart
Diamond	Kimberley
Club	Shamrock
Spade	Grave-digger
Anchor	Mud-hook
Crown	Sergeant-Major

The first term is rhyming s. for heart and dates from ca. 1860; Kimberley in S. Africa is famed for its diamonds; the Club symbol in cards is a trefoil; for the last three s. terms, see entries in the main text.

TO DIE

Boxing synonyms of ca. 1810–60, recorded by anon., Every Night Book, 1827, are: go to see one's friends, muzzle, morris, muff it, not to be at home, snuff and toddle, step below, take it in.

DRINKS, DRUNKENNESS

Lyell gives, as the commonest coll. invitations to drink, the following, all of which are of late C.19–20, except the last two—rarely heard before ca. 1910:—What'll you have?, What's yours?, How'll you have it?, What is it?, Name yours!, Let's have one!, What about a small spot? and D'you feel like a small spot? Cf. What's your poison? (see poison) or Name your poison!

Having been tempted thus far, one may then overdo it and so become intoxicated. Many and many are the similes applied to a person in this state. Some are listed here; all take the form (as) drunk as a . . .; since mid-C.20 those still current may also be expressed (as) pissed or tight as a . . . See also ashed and so drunk . . . in the main text; references in bold type are to the main text.

drunk as a besom: ca. 1830–90 (Cuthbert Bede, Verdant Green, 1853); cf. mops and brooms; . . . as a boiled owl: from early 1880s: Ware thinks it may be a corruption of . . . as Abel Boyle; . . . a broken cart-wheel: late C.19—early 20 (Frank Richards, The Battle of Loos: Petch); . . . a cunt: since late C.19 (P.B.: prob. the commonest of all the cunt similes; cf. the chorus of a traditional drinking song, to the tune of 'McNamarra's Band', 'Oh, you're drunk, you're drunk, you stupid old cunt, you're drunk as a cunt can be . . .'); . . . an emperor: late C.18—early 19 (Grose, 3rd ed.: 'Ten times as drunk as a lord'); . . . a fiddler: a C.20 shortening of . . . a fiddler's bitch: mid-C.19–20 (A. Hyder, Black Girl, 1934; P.B.: still heard occ. in the army, 1950–70); . . . a fowl: Aus. (B., 1942: 'A variant of "drunk as an owl"'); . . . a kettlefish: mid-C.20 (L.A., 1977); . . . a lord: from ca. 1670: coll. till C.19, then S.E.; . . . a monkey: occ. army use, ca. 1950–70 (P.B.); . . . a mouse: C.14—early 20 proverbial coll.: orig. . . a drowned mouse (cf. rat); ... a newt: mostly Services', esp. army: C.20 (P.B.: by ca. 1960 much more gen., and usu. in var. pissed as a newt, whence even, occ., the allusive newtoid. Also tight as ..., implying perhaps 'water-tight'); ... an owl: C.20: more usu. tight as an owl; ... a piper: 1770, Graves, Spiritual Quixote, Jerry ... proceeded so long ... in tossing off horns of ale, that he became as drunk as a piper': coll. >, early in C.19, S.E., and † by 1890: in dial., piper-fou; ... a piss ant: Aus. (B., 1959); ... a polony: London proletarian:—1909 (Ware, who derives ex Fr. soûl comme un Polonais, drunk as a Pole); ... a rat: mid-C.16–17 (Boorde, 1542): cf. ashed; ... a rolling fart: low: since ca. 1860 (Frank Richards, 'In my old days [ca. 1910] it was a common sight to see every man in the Canteen as drunk as rolling f*ts,'); ... a sow: (see ... as David's ..., below); ... a wheelbarrow: ca. 1670–1750 (Cotton, 1675, where he gives the occ. var. ... a drum); ... as Ballylana: Anglo-Irish coll.: late C.19–20: perhaps rather Ballylannan; ... as blazes: from ca. 1860 (perhaps not from blazes! but a folk-etym. corruption of drunk as blazers, ca. 1830–60, a phrase arising from a feast held in honour of St Blaize, blazers being the participants);

... as David's (later Davy's) sow: 1671 (Shadwell): Bailey, Erasmus, 1733, 'When he comes home ... as drunk as David's sow, he does nothing but lie snoring all night long by my side' (Apperson): orig. obscure, but presumably anecdotal; ... as forty billygoats: Aus.: ca. 1955 (Jack Slater): P.B.: what is it about billygoats? In a small army unit in Hong Kong, early 1960s, we made much use of an 'ephemeral parochialism' (E.P.'s term) screaming, billygoat, nitty pissed; ... as soft mick: C.20: prob. Anglo-Irish in orig.: see soft mick; ... and Irish = fighting drunk: army: ca. 1860–1920 (Robert Blatchford, My Life in the Army, 1910). See also Chloe; continando; hole in a ladder.

Further on the subject of drunkenness, E.P. drew attention to some 'synonymies, in unconventional English ... admirably set forth in F. & H. at drinks (esp.), drunk, elbow-crooker, flesh and blood, gallon distemper, Gladstone, lush, pistol and razors. He referred also to his Words!, at 'Euphemism'. Among the last of his manuscript notes was this transcript of a letter from Col. Albert Moe, Oct. 1976: 'Recently I began to look into terms relating to drunkenness. Some time ago I gave you clips the King's English from Benjamin Franklin's 1722 list. Franklin (as Silas Dogood) listed a few terms in 1722; his Drinker's Dictionary appeared in his Pennsylvania Gazette, Feb. 1737, and South Carolina Gazette, 30 Apr. 1737. To have been in the sun appeared in the Gentleman's Magazine, 1770 list, but it was antedated by Franklin in 1737. In the following, I have indicated the "drunk" terms as they appear in DSUE, but they all appear in Franklin's list and can carry the date "1737": afflicted; cherry merry; coguy—cogey was in the 1722 list and coguy in the 1737; corns in his head; dagged; make indentures; juicy; oiled; see the devil; shoe pinches; have got a skinful; soaked; stewed; wear; his head is full of bees. I do not agree with OED new sup., which lists Franklin's 1722 cogey as cockeyed. Franklin in 1737 had both coguy and cockeyed.' E.P. added, 'By checking, you will notice that Franklin puts some of my dates back by over a century! When, however, these terms became adopted in Britain, I shouldn't care to guess.'

The notes below, at TAVERN TERMS, are also relevant to this subject.

DROP A BRICK

To make a faux pas, esp. of tact or speech: C.20; by ca. 1935, coll. I am credibly informed that this phrase arose among a group of third-year undergraduates of Trinity College, Cambridge, in the May term, 1905; that it soon > university s.; and that it spread very rapidly. The guarantor's account of the origin of the phrase is this: H.S. was Sergeant-Major of the Trinity College Company of the University Volunteers—a pre-Territorial force renowned neither for discipline nor for efficiency. Whilst leading his company—small in numbers—along Trumpington Road on a route march, H.S. had to give an order, the road being under repair and building operations in progress on one or both sides. This H.S. did, in his best form and voice. Result: (1) on the troops, nil; (2) on the builders, some in alarm dropped their bricks. The order was repeated with the same result. H.S. told us that after that he felt that each time he gave an order he too was going to drop a brick—hence the phrase meaning to 'make a mistake'. In a few days the phrase was all over Cambridge and in a few months had gone round the world and returned to us.

DRUGS

British slang names for minor drugs: 'Mandrake', Sunday Telegraph, 20 Oct. 1963, 'Oxford: The Real Dope', writing of undergraduate 'users', says: 'The demand for the minor drugs: Pot (marihuana), Purple Hearts and Blueies (Drin-amyl), Black Bombers, Prels (Preludin), Bennies and Dexies (Benzedrine and Dexedrine) is almost unlimited. On the other hand, there is very little demand for Snow or the White Stuff (heroin or cocaine).'

DUPES

Dupes and fools receive many names in slang: here are those which Matthew lists as appearing in Ned Ward during the years 1700–24: cod's head (1703), country chub (1709), golden chub (1714), gudgeon (1703, prob. always S.E.); bubble (1703; but see the main text), coniuobble (i.e. coney-wobble; 1703), looby (1703), ninny-hammer (1703; prob. always S.E.), nisey (1703), Tom-doodle (1703), zany (1709; prob. always S.E.); country fools being battered bun (1715), country cokes (1709) or c. hick (1722) or c. put (1700). Those who resort to courtesans are cullies (1703), rum cullies (1709), rum culls (1709). Of debauchees, we hear of old snufflers (1709), young fumblers (1703) and town-stallions (1703).

ECHOISM IN SLANG

Many of the most vivid slangy neologisms originate as echoic words, seen at their most immediate as nouns of impact, more or less synonymous with such exclamations as smash!—crash!—bang!—whack! Some of those nouns become or, at the least, give rise to nouns of enthusiastic approval. A long essay or even a monograph could very easily be written on the subject. This Appendix, however, is not in any sense, nor to any degree, a collection of essays, large or small.

The point can be illustrated, briefly yet perhaps adequately, with three passages from William Golding's masterpiece, Lord of the Flies, published in 1954 and dealing with a miscellaneous group of boys aged 6–13. (The edition used is the Faber paperback, 1962.)

The great rock ... leapt droning through the air and smashed a deep hole in the canopy of the forest. Echoes and birds flew, white and pink dust floated, the forest further down shook as with the passage of an enraged monster: and then the island was still.

'Wacco!'

'Like a bomb!'

'Whee-aa-oo!' (p. 37)

Jack was on his feet.

'We'll have rules!' he cried excitedly. 'Lots of rules! Then when anyone breaks 'em—'

'Whee-oh!'

'Wacco!'

'Bong!'

'Doink!' (p. 44)

Immured in these tangles, at perhaps their most difficult moment, Ralph turned with shining eyes to the others.

'Wacco.'

'Wizard.'

'Smashing.'

The cause of their pleasure was not obvious. (p. 35)

Again came the solemn communion of shining eyes in the gloom.

'Wacco.'

'Wizard.' (p. 36)

Strictly, no comments are necessary. Yet perhaps one should note that wacco is better written whacko and that the echoic bong has the same root as bonkers, crazy, and that doink occurs, with its intensively echoic prefix ger or ker, in ger-doing, ker-doing, qq.v. at ker-doing, in main text.

EJACULATIONS

Ejaculations of 1700–25, so far as they appear in Ned Ward, are these:—Ads-bleed (1703) or -flesh (1709) or -heart, -heart's-wounds, both in 1703; Cat's nouns (God's wounds; 1703); Cud's bobs (1714); Ud's bobs (1714) or bodkins (1714) or lidikins (1714) or niggers noggers (1714) or wount-likins (1714); the shortenings, bloody wounds (1709), nouns (1706), and wounds (1703), all with Ads or Ud's understood; 'zooks (1706); non-God ejaculations are: i'fecks (1703), or i'fackins or i'facks (ifacks)—both in 1714 and all=in faith; and sure as a gun, 1715. Matthews.

EPITHETS AND ADVERBIAL PHRASES

Ned Ward, in 1700–25, has the following eligibles among epithets (mostly abusive):—baker-legged (1714), brauney-buttock (jade; 1714), case-hardened (1703), clod-skulled (1703), cock-sure (1712), doodle (foolish; 1708), dub-snouted (1709), goggle-eyed (1703), jibber-nolling (? nodding; 1715); loobily (1709; with caution), lousie-look'd (1703), maggot-brained (1703), nitty (lousy; 1703), pat (opposite; 1722), peery (suspicious-looking; 1703), perdu (hidden; 1709; more prob. S.E.), sap-head (sot; 1703), smug-faced (1703), snotty (1703), swanking (1709), thumping (great; 1703), topping (1703), two-handed (vigorous; 1714), and tui-mouthed (? dumb; 1714).

Adverbial phrases:—hugger-mugger (secretly; 1714; prob. always S.E.); mutton fists (1709; more prob. S.E.); upon the titting (galloping; 1703; prob. always S.E.); within an ambs-ace (very nearly; 1703).

ETON

A. Clutton-Brock, Eton, 1900, writes thus: '1. There are not many slang terms in common use at Eton. . . . At Winchester to "furf" (Latin furca, a fork) means to expel. [Both R. Townsend Warner and R.G.K. Wrench, however, derive—and correctly derive—the Winchester sense from an old English word.] At Eton [it] is used only in connection with the wall game, and means to extract the ball out of the "bully" by a particular process. The player who performs this process is called the furker. Many . . . words peculiar to Eton are based on the "Lucus a non lucendo" principle; . . . call over is termed "absence" because every one has to be present. . . .

2. The most common slang term at Eton . . . is "scug"; this is primarily a term of abuse. It does not mean "cad", like "lout" at Rugby, or "chaw" at Harrow. . . . It has various elusive meanings, ranging from a person of no account to one of dirty appearance, unpleasant habits, and undignified behaviour. . . . "Grub" at Eton is called "sock" [q.v.], and confectioners' shops are "sock shops". To work hard is to "sap" (Lat. sapio, to be wise?), and a "sap" is too often a term of abuse. To kick behind is to "fit", and to kick on the shins is to "slick". "Cheek" is [at Eton] "nerve". When a boy is caned by his fag-master or any other boy in authority he is "worked off". [For pop, see that term; an excellent account of that institution occurs in this book by Clutton-Brock.]

3. The origin of . . . "wet-bobs" and "dry-bobs" is . . . unknown. That of the word "tug" is disputed. A tug is the oppidan word for a collegier, and is said to be derived from the Latin "gens togata", the "gowned race". A more probable explanation is that the word originally meant a certain waste part of the mutton on which the collegier was supposed to live. [Cf. Charles Lamb's "gag" and "gag-eater", which once had the same meaning at Christ's Hospital.] Abbreviations are usually unfashionable at Eton [whereas at Charterhouse they are very general], and are considered the mark of a boy fresh from a private school. Thus, no one may say "ma" or

"mi" for major or minor. An elder brother speaks of his younger brother as his "minor" and a younger of his elder as his "major". Cf. HARROW.

EUPHEMISMS

Grant the favour (v.i.; v.t. with to), to 'take' a man, is euphemistic not unconventional: this is a frequent error of F. & H.'s; they, like 99.9% of people, fail to perceive that 90% of the world's obscene terms and locutions are the result of euphemism: neither the frank nor the mealy-mouthed realise that to call, e.g., the genitals by the one name and to eschew all others would soon lead to a lack of both obscene and euphemistic words and perhaps even minimise both euphemism and obscenity.

FELSTED

Felsted School has a considerable body of slang. In The Feldstedian of Dec. 1947, there appeared an excellent glossary of current slang, arranged by subject. I have re-arranged the material in alphabetical order, shortened the definitions, and omitted certain terms belonging to the main body of slang. A sergeant, e.g. a Gym Instructor. Amputated sarge. Hence argery, mostly the gymnasium.

bang-on or bash-on. Terms of approval, 'recent importations, but rapidly passing into common speech', as in 'It's absolutely bang-on'. From the Forces: bang on the target.

Billy boy; Billy man. A House boy; man.

blotch or blotch. Blotting-paper. The former is a thinning of the latter, and the latter is a proleptic.

bog. A bicycle. A shortening of bog-wheel.

bumming. A caning, a beating. Ex bum.

butch. A sturdy fellow; also in address. Cinematic influence. cheery. Excellent; e.g. 'a cheery pudding'. By humorous transference.

cheese off. To annoy. Cf. cheesed off.

chigger. To cheat; chigger notes, notes used in cheating, or a crib; chiggerer, a cheat (person). By the 'OXFORD -ER'.

clothers. Clothes-room (?).

coffins. A particular set of deep and ancient baths in the main block.

Confirmaggers. Confirmation; Confirmagger pragger (prayers), a confirmation class. By the 'Oxford -agger(s)'.

debaggers. A debate. Cf. prec.

dip. A light; an electric bulb. Hence, dips, lights in general or 'Lights out!'

Div (not Divvers). A Divinity period.

dockets. Cigarettes. Cf. docker.

drive, esp. in 'am I driving?'—Must I hurry?, and in Drive in!, Get a move on! Ex drive, energy.

Duck. Matron; Under-Duck, Under-Matron.

ex. Exercise, games. See vol ex.

fugs. A radiator; also fug-pipes; under-fugs, underpants. Cf. fug-boots.

grass. Lettuce; watercress; any green salad.

Headman. Headmaster.

hook. To take—not necessarily to filch.

hot, as in half-hot, halfpenny; six hots, sixpence; hots, pennies, cash; trav. hots, travelling expenses; hot ice, an ice-cream costing a penny.

ipe. A rifle. Ex army (h)ipe.

jack. As v.i., to cease (cf. jack in); as v.t., to shirk.

knockers. Cigarettes.

Ma (e.g. Smith). A master's wife; a lady on the staff.

mooners. A manservant who cleans classrooms. Ex moon about.

new nip. A new nip or small boy, a new boy. Cf. nipper.

quagger-pragger. Choir practice. By the 'Oxford -agger'.

razz up. To reprimand severely.

rollers. Roll-call. By the 'OXFORD -ER(S)'.

shants. Lavatories.

Siggers. The JTC Signals Hut. 'OXFORD -ER(S)'. [JTC = Junior Training Corps, a post-WW2 title of the army branch of the Combined Cadet Force.]

skiv. A maidservant. Short for skivvy. smut. A person one happens to dislike. snitch. To take—not necessarily to filch. stodge. A steamed pudding. stooge. A School steward. Ex the Services' sense.
stub. To kick (a ball), esp. at Rugger.
swipe. To take—not necessarily to filch. swot. A lesson period.
tabby. A bedside cupboard. The Felstedian proposes deriv. ex tabernacle. tolty mug. A tooth mug or glass.
tonk. To hit (a ball) with a stick, e.g. at hockey.
tough. A fight; toughing, fighting, fisticuffs. toys. Desks with bookcase attached. Adopted from Winchester. trav tie. A (too) smart tie, not worn in School. I.e. for travelling.
Tuckers. The School tuck-shop. By the 'OXFORD -ER(S)'.
Underling. Nickname for the under-butler. By pun on Ling, the butler.
uni (pron. unny). A uniform.
Vic! A warning cry, in Lower School only and gradually going out of use.
Vill. Felsted village.
vol. 'An afternoon free from prescribed games'; vol ex, an afternoon when exercise—of one's own choice—must be taken.
wagger-pagger. Short for wagger-pagger-bagger, a waste-paper basket.
Washes. The ablution rooms. wasses. Lavatories. Ex Ger. Wasser, water. But see wass, in main text. wonker. A kipper.

FOOD

Food, in s. and coll. of early C.18, as represented by Ned Ward, receives the following names: in gen., belly-timber. Trotters were bullocks' pettitoes (1703); sheep's heads, nappers' nulls (nolls), 1703; 'pigs' faces or the like' were grunters' muns (1703); butter-milk, bonniclabber (1709). Matthews.

FOOLS' ERRANDS

The items listed here are also to be found individually in the main text, but I have collected them together for easier comparison. Some are better known than others; all at some time or another have been used to make a laughing-stock of the luckless apprentice or recruit artisan sent to fetch the article appropriate to his trade. See the main text for explanations, if any. (P.B.)

Carpenters':

crooked straight-edge, round square, rubber hammer for glass nails or flannel hammer.

Storemen could often do with a wall-stretcher.

Painters':

red, white and blue paint.

Printers':

cubic type.

Nautical:

galley down-haul, key of the starboard watch.

Miscellaneous:

left-handed spanner, horse-ladder, yard-wide pack-thread.

Frank McKenna, in Railway Workers 1840–1970, 1980, p. 114, of young engine-cleaners: 'The usual leg-pulling was inflicted on new starters; the more gullible were sent to the stores for a bucket of steam, a packet of big ends or side rods, an umbrella if rain was entering the shed. Awaiting delivery of a "long stand" has sent many a young cleaner fleeing from the store, red-faced and embarrassed, after the hoax was explained.'

FOPS AND GALLANTS

These receive in the works of Ned Ward in the first quarter of C.18 such various s. names as these: butter-box (1703), crack (1703), Jack of Dandy (1703), pilgarlic (1724), skip-Jack (1703), sprag (1709), Tom Essence (1703). Matthews, who notes that these terms are all pejorative: I doubt, however, this sense of pilgarlic.

GRAFTERS' AND MARKET-TRADERS' SLANG

This is that argot used by those who work a line at fair or market, e.g. as fortune-teller or quack doctor. Some of it is Parlyaree, some Romany, some Yiddish, some rhyming s.; some of it, too, verges on c. The authority on the subject is Mr Philip Allingham: see his fascinating Cheapjack, 1934. [E.P.'s note in the 1st ed.; in the manuscript notes for the 8th ed., he wrote:] It should be aligned with market-traders' s.; clearly the two overlap. The best glossary I've seen of market-traders' occurs in Lore & Language, July 1975; it was compiled by Mr Patrick O'Shaughnessy and was based upon the recollections of Mrs Grace Lilian Ashworth (1899–1975), with a brief supplement of words added by her surviving children. P.B.: Even a cursory scan through this Dictionary will show the extent to which I am indebted to Mr O'Shaughnessy: all entries attributed to him are tagged '(M.T.)'. His glossary was published in booklet form, with a short introduction, in 1979, by Richard Kay, Boston (ISBN 902662–20–1).

GREMLINS

Soon after my 80th birthday (6 Feb. 1974), Mr Alastair Phillips, literary editor of the Glasgow Herald, sent me a cutting (undated) from a flattering article (marred only by making me an Australian instead of a New Zealander and by stating that I was once a lecturer in the University of Oxford). Then he berated me for stating that C.H. Ward-Jackson was the first to use the word in print. I didn't—Mr Phillips had failed to consult the edition of 1970. I placed earlier in 1943 another Service glossary, but I did not claim that this was the earliest reference in print; merely intimated that it was the earliest I had encountered. But I am most grateful to him for telling me that gremlins, and their sub-species the spandules, Ground (or Grand) Wallopers, yehudis, the snurges, and the petrol-boosers, were first, and definitively, portrayed in the Glasgow Herald of 7 Mar. 1942. Both the Ground Walloper and the spandule will be found in this edition of the Dict.; a yehudi wasn't a sub-species of gremlin, neither, clearly, was a petrol-booser (properly—bowser). [P.B.: but surely booser might have been a pun on bouser, and applied to gremlins infesting a refuelling wagon? From 'Battle of Europe', Men Only (temp. WW2): The RAF first learned about the little creatures in 1923 and called them gremlins—prob. from the obsolete Old English v.t. greme (meaning, to vex). Yet it was not until WW2 that the RAF really got to know the gremlins. Then they learned that a female gremlin is a finifella and that the babies are widgits. Flyers also learned that gremlins must always be referred to as them; gremlins prefer them to they or it or he and she because them conveys a feeling of the gremlin's immanence and nameless power.]

About the origin: The New World Dictionary, 2nd ed., 1974, declares that gremlin probably derives from a hypothetical diminutive of obsolete Danish gram, a devil, from Old Norse gramr, angry, akin to English grim. I suspect that here we have an example of philological wishful-thinking. The latest reprint, 1976, of Webster's Third International Dictionary, however, thinks that it might be a modification, influenced by goblin, of Erse gruaimin, an ill-humoured little fellow, from gruaim, ill-humour. I think that goblin has influenced, perhaps prompted, both the form and the sense.

[P.B.: in an earlier ed., E.P. wrote: 'See esp. Jackson, and Charles Graves, Seven Pilots, 1943, for good accounts of the activities of gremlins: for the word itself, which is fanciful, see in my Words at War: Words at Peace, 1948, the essay on the influence of the war of 1939–45. A fanciful explanation is that a gremlin is a goblin that lives in a Fremlin beer-bottle, the second -lin reinforcing the first. Fremlins were brewers in Kent, lost in the big mergers mid-C.20.) I should not care to dogmatise about the rest of the word. I happen to think that gremlin blends 'grinning goblin'; that, by the potent operation of the academically unrecognised principle or 'law' of Ease of Pronunciation, grinlin becomes grimlin and that, 'just for the hell of it' (to make things harder for those who are not initiates), e is substituted for the first i: and thus we get gremlin. The erudite etymologies from Danish–Old Norse and from Erse were, I surmise, 'thought up' by scholars who had not served in the Air Force. (During my RAF days, Dec. 1942–July 1945, I did at least serve five or six months on a Bomber Command Station.) Gremlins were regarded, except by the congenitally gloomy, not as malevolent and destructive devils, but as mischievous imps, some few of 'em moved occasionally by malicious glee rather than by pure fun: Pucks responsible for minor mishaps otherwise unaccountable, and dangerous only when the sheer aggregate of mishaps caused bewilderment. My theory is based on mere knowledge of RAF slang and its coiners and its on-the-spot practitioners. Nor is it anything more than a guess. I can play the etymological game with the best of them: here is a term springing from observation of facts and human nature. Erudition is a wonderful thing—but it's not a linguistic panacea. Here, I believe, erudition is powerless—more, it's irrelevant. And see gremlin, in main text.

GUARD-ROOM, in army s. of late C.19—early 20.

The Regiment for 1900 noted corner-shop, digger, mush; that for 1898 had listed cape, clink, dog's home, dust-hole, Marble Arch, net, trap. In detail: cape prob. derives from L. capere, to take; corner-shop; because it often stands at the corner of the barracks-square: the dog's home, for 'lost' gay dogs; dust-hole, not because of dust, for usually it is spotlessly clean, but perhaps because it's a God-forsaken place for a soldier to be; Marble Arch, because within the Marble Arch itself there existed a small lock-up, for use by the police; the net, catching all offenders; the trap, for the unwary. For remainder, see the appropriate entry, clink, etc.

HARLOTS

C.18 terms in the words of Ned Ward are these: bang-tails (1703), belfas (1703), Blowzabellas (1703), blowzes (1709), bunters (1709), does (1700; but in R. Head, Proteus Redivivus, 1675), doxies (1703), drabs (1715), fire-ships (1709), frowes (1703), jills (1703), lady-birds (1703), lechery-layers (1703), madams (1703; prob. S.E.), market dames (1705), nymphs of delight (1703), punchable nuns (1709), punks (1703), snuffing community (1709), still sows (1709), tickle-tail function (1703), trug-moldies (1703), trulls (1703), wag-tails (1703). He calls bawds by three names: madam (1709), Mother Knab-Cony (1709) and succubus (1709; rare and prob. S.E.). With bawds he associates midwives, for whom his names are groper (1703) and Mother Midnight (1714). Matthews.

HARROW

J. Fischer Williams, Harrow, 1901, writes thus pertinently:— 'As to language, the inhabitants of Harrow speak, generally, the English tongue. But ... they cut short certain words of their last syllable or syllables and substitute the letters "er". [See OXFORD -ER.] Thus Duck Puddle becomes "Ducker", football "footer", and Speech-Room "speaker", blue coat "bluer". ... Some years ago the number of these changes was strictly limited, but latterly the custom has been spreading. Harrow has often been made responsible for a variation of this final "er" into either "agger" [q.v.] or "ugger" ... but these seem to have arisen at a famous Oxford college ... and Harrow is guiltless of this invention. Perhaps the only other word of the Harrow language worth noticing is "Bill" for "names-calling" or "call-over" [roll-call is the usual S.E.

term]. Some have suggested that this is a corruption of "Bell", the School bell being rung to call the boys together, but probably "Bill" is the truer word, and is used in the older English sense of list.' Orig. coll., bill is in C.20 to be considered as j.—Cf. ETON, above.

HARRY, as a meaningless prefix.

With the support of Wilfred Granville's note in his Dictionary of Sailors' Slang, 1962, I propose that the evolution of this originally RN 'in-word' went something like this: from drink at [Henry] Freeman's Quay (see Freeman's Quay), to drink at another's expense (—1811), the RN had, by ca. 1870, produced 'It's Harry Freeman's' for anything on which there was nothing to pay (F. & G; Bowen), a blending of the name and the idea of 'free', e.g. free cigarettes or, as 'Harry Frees', fruit and vegetables donated by the civilian public. Harry then became 'free' of Freeman's (? during WWI) and began, now always accompanied by the '-ers' suffix, to be attached to various other terms; e.g. the English Channel off Dunkirk in the fateful weeks of early summer 1940 was said to be Harry flatters, dead calm. By the late 1950s, however, the RAF had adopted Harry flatters to mean 'flat out', at full speed; but 'flat out' on one's back through exhaustion or intoxication was already (ca. 1918, according to E.P.) Harry flakers—ex 'flaked out'. (Note that what E.P. designated 'the Oxford -er' suffix is equally common in RN s.) These terms then gave rise to numerous others on the same pattern, e.g.: H. booters, 'boot-faced'; H. clampers, weather completely overcast; H. crashers, 'crashed out' asleep; H. roughers, opp. of H. flatters, calm; H. screechers or shriekers, drunk; and in Colin Evans's naval novel, The Heart of Standing, 1962, are H. shakers, extreme nervousness, and 'I'm harry starkers [naked], and freezing bastard solid.' Peter Sanders notes that H. starkers may also = stark mad, and adds H. skinters, penniless. In the later 1950s there was a revival and extension of the usage, as Michael Gilderdale in his 'A Glossary for Our Times', News Chronicle, 23 May 1958, wrote concerning the smart young set: 'One verbal affectation (not new, but still in circulation) is the habit of saying "Harry" in conjunction with a host of words. Thus: Harry champers (champagne), Harry bangers (sausages), Harry redders (red wine), Harry spraggers (spaghetti), Harry Blissington (absolutely wonderful).' Gilderdale's last example harks back to a suffix even older than -ers; cf. Alderman Lushington is concerned, an early C.19 c.p. applied to drunkenness. The form was popular not only in what E.P. called 'the smart young set'; it plagued the Intelligence Corps unit I served with in Cyprus at this time, and, when flying home on leave in 1959 I felt at once 'on the same wavelength' with the BEA stewardess who was amused by a pilot's coinage: he had been trying on a seat-belt, only to become, as he groaned, 'Harry trappers', entangled in it—a good example of the usage's instant adaptability. (P.B.)

HAULIERS' SLANG

The British Road Services have a slang of their own: and much of it—that is, many of the printable terms—has been recorded in British Road Services Magazine, Dec. 1951. Aberdeen booster. See Scotsman's fifth. anchor. A brake: since ca. 1930. Billy Bunter. A shunter: rhyming s.: since ca. 1925. Chinese dominoes. A load of bricks: since ca. 1930. Chinese gunpowder. Cement: since ca. 1930. dangler or pup. A trailer: since ca. 1920. hook, on the; on the ribs. On tow; very old; since ca. 1925 and 1900. jockey or pilot. The driver of any heavy-load vehicle: since ca. 1925 and 1945. load of wind. A light load: since ca. 1920. monkey. Two-wheeled trailer used for carrying very long loads': since ca. 1930. Mrs Greenfield's, staying at. See below.

pilot. See jockey.
pimple. A steep hill: since ca. 1925.
pipe. A telephone: since ca. 1925. poodler. A small vehicle: since ca. 1935.
pup. See dangler.
ribs, on the. See hook, on the.
roller skate. A small, light waggon: since ca. 1945. round the house. (Adj. and adv.) Of or for or in or by 'multiple delivery work': coll.: C.20.
Scotsman's fifth or Aberdeen booster. Coasting (n.): since ca. 1930. showboat. A large eight-wheeled van (Fisher Renwick type): since ca. 1946. skull. A passenger: since ca. 1945.
smoke, up the, adj. and adv. Going to London: C.20. spud-basher. A lorry carrying potatoes: since ca. 1920. staying at Mrs Greenfield's. Sleeping in the cab of one's vehicle: since ca. 1925. [See Greenfields, in main text.] track, up the, adj. and adv. Travelling along a depot's particular trunk route: since ca. 1940.

In Drive, a motorists' magazine, there appeared in 1968, at p. 113, an article that appears to 'catch up' and add to the list given above. The only new terms, including modifications, are these:— bookie. A Scottish lorry-drivers' term for the office where he books in and receives his instructions and documents. crime-sheet. A log-sheet.

gunpowder. Short for Chinese gunpowder. junk pile. A lorry in exceedingly poor condition: a 'pile' fit only for the 'junk heap'.
quickie up the track. A return journey made during one night and along the usual route—cf. track, up the.
stiff 'un, the. A person given a lift: he just sits there while the driver does all the work and takes all the responsibility.

HOOLIGAN

E.P.'s first attempt at an etym. for this term was: Ex a 'joie-de-vivre' Irish family (the Houlihans) resident, in the middle 90's, in the Borough (London): W. Ware derives it from 'Hooley Gang, a name given by the police in Islington to a gang of young roughs led by one Hooley'. W.'s is preferable. Cf. hoodlum, larrikin, and tough, qq.v. in main text. (The derivatives, e.g. hooliganism, do not belong to unconventional speech.) [In a later ed., he added:] Too late for inclusion in the Dict. proper, I have found the following confirmation of the proper-name origin. Clarence Rook in his sociologically valuable The Hooligan Nights, 1899—portions of it had been published early in the same year in the Daily Chronicle—writes thus:

Good Americans ... may be seen ... eating their dinner at the Cheshire Cheese. I was bound on an expedition to the haunts of a more recent celebrity than Dr Johnson. My destination was Irish Court and the Lamb and Flag. For in the former Patrick Hooligan lived a portion of his ill-spent life, and gave laws and a name to his followers; in the latter, the same Patrick was to be met night after night, until a higher law than his own put a period to his rule. ... My companion was one ... who held by the Hooligan tradition, and controlled a gang of boys who made their living by their wits, and were ready for any devilry if you assured them of even an inadequate reward. ... The dwelling-place of Patrick Hooligan enshrines the ideal towards which the Ishmaelites of Lambeth are working; and ... young Alf's supremacy over his comrades was sealed by his association with the memory of a Prophet.

At the beginning of Chapter II, he expatiates thus: There was, but a few years ago, a man called Patrick Hooligan, who walked to and fro among his fellow-men, robbing them and occasionally bashing them. This much is certain. His existence in the flesh is a fact as well established as the existence of Buddha or of Mahomet. But with the life of Patrick Hooligan, as with the lives of Buddha and of Mahomet, legend has been at work, and probably many of the exploits associated with his name spring from the imagination of disciples. It is at least certain that ... he lived in Irish Court, that he was employed as a chucker-out at various resorts in the neighbourhood. ... Moreover, he could do more than his share of tea-leaving, ... being handy with his fingers, and a good man all round. Finally, one day he had a difference with a constable, put his light out, and threw the body into a dust-cart. He was lagged, and given a lifer. But he had not been in gaol long before he had to go into hospital, where he died. ... The man must have had a forceful personality, a picturesqueness, a fascination, which elevated him into a type. It was doubtless the combination of skill and strength, a certain exuberance of lawlessness, an utter absence of scruple in his dealings, which marked him out as a leader among men. Anyhow, though, he ... left a great tradition. ... He established a cult.'

P.B.: In 1979 Hooligan Nights was re-issued (ISBN 19-281256-4), and reviewed in The TLS. The review elicited the following letter from Professor Michael R. Booth, Dept. of Theatre Studies, University of Warwick, pub'd in The TLS, 21 Mar. 1980: 'The derivation of "hooligan" may go back further than either Eric Partridge or Peter Keating in his review of Clarence Rook's The Hooligan Nights (29 Feb.) supposes. In T.G. Rodwell's farce More Blunders than One, first performed in 1824, the name of the tipsy scapegrace Irish valet is Larry Hoolagan, and since it was still common dramatic practice in the nineteenth century to base the names of characters on words in common use that were expressive of certain types of behaviour, it might be that "hooligan" or "hoolagan" is older in usage than 1824.' In a subsequent letter to P.B., Professor Booth added: 'Rodwell was a Londoner, I think, but I don't know his ancestry. I have often wondered whether "hooligan" might have some relationship to the not uncommon Irish name, "Houlihan", especially given the "h" pronunciation of "g" or "gh" in some Irish names. Unfortunately I know no Gaelic, but I suspect the answer might be found there and could easily be checked, and it might well have something to do with early C.19 Irish emigration to England—although 1824 is rather too early for railway navvies. [P.B.: but not for canal navvies, the original 'navigators'.] There were a lot of popular farces with rumbustious low-class Irish characters in the 1820s and 1830s.' As a 'clincher', E.G. Quin, Associate Professor of Celtic Languages at the University of Dublin, confirms in a letter to P.B.: 'There can be hardly any doubt that the origin [of hooligan] is the surname Ó hUallacháin, which normally appears in Anglicised form as "Houlihan, Hoolohan" and so on. The "g" in the English word is due to the difficulty of pronouncing the voiceless velar fricative represented by the Irish spelling ch.'

IMPERIAL SERVICE COLLEGE

'Imperial Service College (1910+) possessed three abbreviations of a curious type, crisch (= cricket), foosch (= football) and hoosch (= hockey), the last ... failed to take root' (Marples). Otherwise, its two best-known terms have (since 1910) been tramp, 'a master'—ex former slovenliness?—and topes, qq.v.

INITIALS FOR NAMES

Objectionably for surnames, as in 'My regards to Mrs S.' addressed to her husband; unobjectionably when affectionately for Christian names. Both usages are coll.: mid-C.19–20. I have even heard P for pater as a term of address; cf. P.A. in main text.

INTERPOLATION

This is a minor characteristic of unconventional speech; prob. it does not antedate the C.20, for it was rare before WW1.

E.g. not bloody likely, abso-bloody-lutely, cheer-(most-)frightfully-ho! This last occurs, e.g., in Dorothy L. Sayers, The Unpleasantness at the Bellona Club, 1928.

ITMA

The acronym stands for 'It's that Man Again', and was the title chosen for the radio comedy show which became the most popular and best-loved of all such during WW2 and years immediately following. The show starred the irrepressible Tommy Handley (1894–1949), the Liverpool comedian, with a supporting cast of actors and actresses capable of producing an amazingly wide range of instantly recognisable—and imitable—'funny voices', each identified by an appropriate catch-phrase; indeed, in retrospect the half-hour shows seem to have been little more than a string of c.p.p. but what a ray of sunshine and laughter and morale-boost they were during those grim times. 'Itma' owed much of its vast and enduring popularity to its script-writer, Ted Kavanagh, and its producer Francis Worsley, and its story is told in their books: T.K., Tommy Handley, 1949; and F.W., ITMA, 1948; a collection of scripts, with additional notes and reminiscences, was published by the Woburn Press in 1974, under the title The ITMA Years (ISBN 8600 7245 2); see also the entry at Tommy Handley Catch Phrases, in DCpp, and Nigel Rees, Very Interesting... but Stupid!, 1980 (ISBN 04 827021 0). Some of the better-known and most often imitated c.p.p. were:

After you, Claude!—No, after you; Cecil! (A pair of excessively polite 'gents'.)

But I'm all right now! (Awful small girl 'Sophie Tuckshop', after eating something dreadful in each episode.)

Can I do you now, Sir? (Introductory remark of 'Mrs Mopp', the char.)

Don't forget the diver! and Going down now, Sir! (The 'diver' was an early 'character'.)

Funf speaking (A voice on the telephone, a skit on current spy-scares.)

Good morning—Nice day! (A commercial traveller.)

I don't mind if I do! ('Colonel Chinstrap' extracting an invitation to a drink from the slightest double entendre or awful pun.)

I go—I come back! ('Ali Oop', the archetypal Oriental pedlar: 'you like very nice... Oh crikey, no likey!')

I'll 'ave to ask me dad! ('Mark Time', the 'oldest inhabitant'.)

It's being so cheerful as keeps me going! (Always in the most doleful tone, by the washerwoman 'Mona Lott'.)

No cups outside! (Railway station buffet 'dragon'.)

T.T.F.N., expanded to Ta-Ta for now! ('Mrs Mopp's' farewell, always countered by Tommy Handley with a different set of initials each time, e.g. NCTWWASBE, explained as 'Never clean the window with a soft-boiled egg'.)

Well—for evermore! ('Sam Scram', Tommy's machinegun-toting, Chicago-gangster bodyguard.)

What a common boy!

What, me?—in my state of health? (The resident valetudinarian.)

There were many others, some ephemeral, some more permanent, and they all continued to infest colloquial conversation for a number of years after 'Itma's' demise. Public speakers had to be very careful not to trigger off instant responses from the huge repertoire, and failure to do so was sure to ruin whatever atmosphere any orator was trying to create. 'Itma' added greatly to the gaiety of this nation at a time when such cheerful heartening was desperately needed—Long may its memory remain! (P.B.)

JAZZ TERMS

An attempt has been made to include the best-known, mostly widely used British Commonwealth s. terms of jazz. Most of them come ultimately from the US. A sane, judicious article on the 'Language of Jazz Musicians', written by Norman D. Hinton, appeared in American Dialect Society, Nov. 1958. For Can. usage, I owe almost everything to Professor F.E.L. Priestley and Dr Douglas Leechman.

1384

Jazz slang current in May 1963: In that month, Mr Rex Harris sent me a selected—and select—list of s. words and phrases popular and general at that time. Several, it will be noticed, were, well before that date, already used widely; and since, several others have gained a wide currency.

all that jazz. All that sort of thing: since ca. 1958, orig. jazz-lovers'.

bundle on, go a. To be wildly enthusiastic about (something): since ca. 1955, esp. among jazz-lovers.

gasser. Something quite breath-taking: adopted by jazz-lovers, in 1960, ex US.

gate. A form of greeting, esp. in Hiya, gate!: adopted by jazz-lovers, in 1962, ex US.

get sent. Sent sent, get, below.

get the message. See message, get the, below.

get with it. See with it, get, below.

give out. To do one's utmost, esp. in playing a musical instrument: adopted, ca. 1960, ex US, by jazz-lovers. Elliptical for give out one's best?

grab (oneself) a ball. To have a very good time: adopted, ca. 1959 and orig. by jazz-lovers, ex US.

groove, in the. 'Firmly established in the situation: musically integrated' (Rex Harris); adopted ex US, ca. 1955, by jazz-lovers.

jumping, adj. Moving, musically, in a fine, esp. an exciting, rhythm: jazz-lovers': since ca. 1959.—2. Hence, (very) successful, as in 'The joint is jumping'—the club, or the cafe, is happily excited: since ca. 1960.

message, get the. To understand the gist of an argument, the point of a warning, a hint: since ca. 1957. Cf. the Fighting Services' j. message received.

out of this world. Very beautiful; wonderful; superlative; perfect; although heard occasionally since ca. 1956, it has been common only since 1960. Applied orig.—and, of course, still—to consummate playing by an instrumentalist or to consummate singing.

sent, get. To become en rapport with, or enthusiastic about, the music (esp. jazz) that is being played, whether one is listener or performer: jazz-lovers': since ca. 1950.

solid. Satisfactory; (solidly) good; since ca. 1960, orig. jazz-lovers'.

trad. 'Abbreviation of traditional (jazz)': since ca. 1961. Rex Harris.

way out. Of jazz music: 'extremely advanced; complicated; esoteric' (Rex Harris): jazz-lovers': adopted, ca. 1950, ex US. with it, get. (Cf. with it, be.) To appreciate a situation or a quality: since ca. 1957, orig. among jazz-lovers.

With these terms, cf.:

JIVE AND SWING

This slang reached Britain from the US in 1945; still in July 1947 was it very little known except among the hep cats or addicts of jive and swing, early called 'hot jazz'. All of it is American, most of it ephemeral. In mid-1947 Vic Filmer compiled a glossary of jive and swing. Almost the only terms that have the least importance and look at all likely to survive more than a year or two are these, culled from that glossary: beat up (one's) chops. To be loquacious.

blow (one's) wig. To go crazy; hence, to act crazily. Prompted by that other Americanism, blow (one's) top. Cf. later flip (one's) wig.

fin. £1 (sum or note); mash me a fin, give me one pound. See finnif, in the main text.

gravy. Money. Hence get (one)self some gravy for grease, to obtain money for food.

neigho, pops! No (or, nothing doing), pal! Ex nay!, no! razz-ma-tazz. Ordinary jazz, old-fashioned jazz, also called ricky-tick or rooty-toot.

twister. A key, esp. in twister to the slammer, a door key.

In a letter, 1965, Professor F.E.L. Priestley amends the foregoing paragraph thus, 'I have a record I bought ca. 1934, made by the Negro band-leader and pianist Fats Waller, with the title "Don't try your jive on me", which suggests that it did not then mean the same as jazz. May mean "tricks", whence jive as a "tricky" form of playing. When the term jive came in, it denoted the sort of music that jitter-bugs danced to. This was a different style from the traditional "hot jazz". Jive and swing are not the same thing as what was before called "hot jazz". He adds that fin and gravy are not, of course, jive talk; that razz-ma-tazz refers esp. to Cab Calloway's singing and conducting, ca. 1925–35; and that ricky-ticky or rooty-toot is old-fashioned New Orleans jazz.

KIBOSH

Kibosh, v., and as n. in put the kibosh on, has as its main sense 'to ruin, spoil'. The latest OED Sup., 1976, offers no explanation for the word's derivation; but the very oddity and exotic feel of it have prompted several etymologies, the most plausible being B. & L., 'ex Yiddish kabas, kabbasten, to suppress'. Julian Franklyn (author of The Cockney, A Dictionary of Rhyming Slang, Shield and Crest) proposes a quite different origin: the heraldic caboshed (or caboched or cabossed or cabaged or ...)—see the OED—and Scots hunting caboché or cabage or cabbage, to cut off a deer's head close behind the horns. (Cf. cabbage, n., 1.) Yet another theory is suggested in G. Drepper, American Antiques (glossary), 1944: 'Kibosh: blowing of cement or plaster on sculptured or wooden forms; hence the old phrase "to put the kibosh on", meaning to change the shape and form' (Douglas Leechman, 1977). E.P. considered that 'both the Franklyn and the Drepper theories are rather too technical for an expression so lowly'—and Drepper's may well be a derivation rather than the origin. The earliest instance discovered by E.P. dates from 1836: Dickens, in Boz, "'Hooroar," ejaculates a pot-boy . . . , "put the kye-bosh on her, Mary!"' At kye, in the 1st ed. of this Dict., E.P. noted 'Eighteenpence: costermongers': from ca. 1860. Abbr. Yiddish kye, 18, + bosh, pence.' If this is correct, it may be that this arbitrary sum is the answer: cf. the later 'give him a fourpenny one', which would fit the Dickens' context with no change in sense at all. The '18' crops up again in the sense of kibosh used by John Gosling in The Ghost Squad, 1959: a prison sentence of 18 months. Other, later, meanings were (a) Nonsense; anything valueless [?the 18 pence again]: it is recorded by Hotten, 2nd ed., 1860, and occurs in Punch, 3 Jan. 1885, 'Appy New Year, if you care for the kibosh, old chappie'. E.P. sees this as a blend of bosh, 1 and 2, trash or nonsense, and the already extant kibosh, and adds 'Occ. kiboshery'. (b) Fashion; the correct thing: low: from ca. 1888. As in, 'That's the proper kibosh'. (c) In put (a person) on the kibosh, to calumniate: recorded by Manchon, 1923. Contrast (d) put the kibosh on (a person or affair), as in the Boz quot'n above, and in the very popular WW1 c.p. 'We'll put the kibosh on the Kaiser'—for which the word could have been tailor-made! EDD records the v. (which E.P. glosses additionally as 'check; bewilder; knock out (lit. and fig.)', with the note 'Irish', and date 1884. A Cockney var., recorded by Baumann, 1887, was kyebosh.

This note compiled, 1980, by P.B. from existing entries in the 7th ed. of this Dict., and incorporating E.P.'s additional material (Leechman's contribution). Further theories and conjectures may be found, very amusingly presented, in Leo Rosten, The Joys of Yiddish, pub'd in USA, 1968, in UK, 1970. Rosten is doubtful about derivation from Yiddish.

KILROY WAS HERE

This c.p., which arose early in WW2, as if by magic, was written on walls, etc., everywhere the British and American soldiers fought or were stationed. No satisfactory explanation has ever been made; hundreds have been suggested. But the San Francisco Chronicle of 2 Dec. 1962 printed a short 'feature', 'Kilroy Was Here', in which a credible origin is proposed:

Two days before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, an unimposing, bespectacled, 39-year-old man took a job with a Bethlehem Steel Company shipyard in Quincy, Mass.

As an inspector . . . , James J. Kilroy began making his mark on equipment to show test gangs he had checked a job. The mark: 'Kilroy was here.'

Soon the words caught on at the shipyard, and Kilroy began finding the slogan written all over the installation.

Before long, the phrase spread far beyond the bounds of the yard, and Kilroy—coupled with the sketch of a man, or at least his nose peering over a wall—became one of the most famous names of WW2 [see Chad, in main text].

When the war ended, a nation-wide contest to discover the real Kilroy found him still employed at the shipyard.

And last week, James Kilroy . . . died in Boston's Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, at the age of 60.

(The cutting was passed to me by John Moore, author of You English Words and distinguished novelist, who had received it from an American admirer.)

KING'S OWN SCHNEIDERS

In Viscount Samuel's delightful memoir The Horseback Zionist (published late in 1967 or early in 1968) we read,

In the summer of 1918 . . . Dr Weizmann returned to England and I was due to go back to GHQ. Inspired by the patriotic Jewish spirit I had found in Tel Aviv, I volunteered instead to join the so-called 'Jewish Legion': I thought it was time I did a spot of fighting myself. Now, there were three Jewish (Royal Fusilier) Battalions then in the British Army. The first was the 38th Battalion, raised in Whitechapel (and affectionately dubbed by British cockneys as the King's Own Schneiders). The second was the 39th Battalion, raised in the Bronx, which was said to have as its regimental motto: 'No advance without security'. These two battalions were already fighting in the Jordan Valley where they twice took part in raids across the river towards Amman and won many decorations for valor. The third Battalion (the 40th Royal Fusiliers) was raised in Palestine itself and was known, not as 'the Gordon Highlanders' but as 'the Jordan Highlanders'.

As Claiborne points out, 'the reference is obviously to the Yiddish and German schneider, a tailor, many East End Jews being then in "the rag-trade".'

KNOW

Here are listed some of the various slang or colloquial ways of expressing the idea that a person is well-informed, experienced, wide-awake, equal to an emergency. Most are used in admiration (even if grudgingly given), but a few, included because they may be (though seldom are) used positively, are predominantly negative and derogatory; the latter are generally used contemptuously of someone who, in the speaker's opinion, is stupid, ignorant, brash, incompetent, etc. (P.B.)

know (a great) A from a bull's foot (, not): coll.: C.18–20. See also . . . B, and cf. the earlier not know A from a battledore or a windmill or the gable-end: 1st two, C.15; last, C.19—early 20.

know a hawk from a handsaw. See hawk from . . .

know a shilling from a sixpence: late C.17—mid-18. John Dryden, Jr., The Husband . . . , 1692, at II, i (Moe).

know a thing or two: late C.18–20. (Holcroft.) A Cockney elab. of late C.19—early 20 was know a thing or two or six, occ. know a thing or six; both occur in Edwin Pugh, the former in Harry the Cockney, 1912, the latter in The Cockney at Home, 1914. Not to be confused with the emphatic I know one thing—and that ain't two, as prefix to a firm declaration.

know a trick or two: C.18—earlier 20.

know(one's)age (, gen. not): C.20. (Petch, 1966.)

know (one's) anus from (one's) ankle (gen. not): C.20. Radio 4 play by Ivor Wilson, Broken Fences, 26 June 1982.

know (one's) arse from a hole in the ground or from (one's) elbow (, gen. not): Can.: since ca. 1910. (Leechman.) But also Brit. Cf. . . . ears, and where (one's) arse . . .

know B from a battledore or, rarely, from a broomstick or, very gen., from a bull's foot (, not): to be illiterate, extremely ignorant: resp. mid-C.16–17; C.19; C.15–20. A battledore was an alphabet-hornbook. For the 1st phrase and the 3rd, see esp. Apperson. Cf. know A...

know (one's) boxes: printers' coll. Ex the layout of type boxes. G.E. Rowles, The 'Line' Is On, 1948.

know (one's) ears from (one's) elbows (, gen. not): coll.: mid-C.19–20. Blaker, "'nor an' 'un of us knows his ears from his elbows when it comes to learning [vbl n.]'". Perhaps a polite version of not know whether (one) is on (one's) arse or on (one's) elbow; cf. 'He doesn't know his brass [or bass] from his oboe' (attrib. to Sir Thomas Beecham).

know (one's) eccer: Aus.: C.20. (Baker.) Ex eccer, 3, school homework.

know enough to come in out of the rain (, gen. not): later C.20. See rain, 1.

know how many beans make five (white ones): s.: C.19–20. (Galt, 1830.) Adumbrated in Shelton's know how many numbers are five, 1612 (Apperson).

know how many days go to the week: C.16–17.

know how many go to a dozen: mid-C.19–early 20. Almost S.E. know how the cards are dealt: C.17 drinkers'. See TAVERN TERMS, §2, below.

know if... See know whether...

know (one's) kit: army: since ca. 1950. (P.B.) know (one's) life: late C.19–early 20. Contrast know life, q.v.

know more than (one's) prayers; ... than the priest spoke on Sunday: to be worldly-wise. See prayers, 5, and priest, 3.

know (one's) onions: s. > coll.: adopted ex US mid-1930s. Ernest Weekley, Observer, 21 Feb. 1937.

know something: later C.19–early 20. Cf. know a thing or two.

know (one's) stuff: coll.: adopted ex US ca. 1930.

know the price of old iron or old rags: Cockneys': late C.19–20.

know the ropes: orig. nautical: since ca. 1850. Cf. outside the ropes.

know the score: adopted ex US ca. 1950. Ex games, or music?

know the time of day: since ca. 1890.

know (one's) way about: since ca. 1860. Almost S.E.

know what is what, from ca. 1400; what's what, from ca. 1600.

Jonson; Wycherley.

know what's o'clock: from ca. 1835. (Dickens; Thackeray.) Ex the S.E. sense, to know the real state of things.

know where (one's) arse hangs (, gen., not): since early C.20.

'For a man who has got on in the world and become greedy in the process: "Since he's come into money he doesn't know where his arse hangs"' (Muover); L.A., on the other hand, writes, 'Applied to a (usually) young man who hasn't "grown up" and who retains his boyhood's delusions of being a "hero": the two are not mutually exclusive.

know where (one) is at or where (one) lives (, gen. not): resp. later C.20; since ca. 1920.

know whether (one) is Arthur or Martha (, not): to be in a state of confusion: dithering: (?mainly) Aus.: C.20.

know whether (or if) it's Pancake Tuesday or half-past breakfast-time (, not): since ca. 1945: orig. for any of the more vulgar examples in this list, but by 1955, it had > independent and gen:

know whether (or if, one) is on (one's) arse or (one's) elbow (, not): to be utterly incompetent, or in a state of confusion: C.20. Cf. know (one's) ears...

know which way the wind blows: mid-C.16–19. Almost S.E.

KOREAN WAR SLANG

During this war, 1950–3 (but the period here is ca. 1951–5), the British Commonwealth troops, occasionally in collusion with the Americans, evolved a slang of their own. I owe all the examples given in these Addenda to Staff Sergeant C.R. O'Day of the Royal Army Educational Corps, four from his letter (18 Feb. 1955) and the rest from 'Slanguage', an article in the New Zealand contingent's magazine, Iddiwah, issue of July 1953. These terms are: bring on, (?)Britcom, bug out, chop-chop, Gook, grog on, hachi, hava no and hava yes, hills are closing in, hoochie, moose, Noggies, noggie number one—ten—ninety-nine, sexy (n.), slickee-slick and slickee-slickee, skoshi, swan, qq.v. in main text.

LONG TIME NO SEE!

In British usage, it derives ex Far East pidgin; in American, either from the British phrase or from Amerindian pidgin. Perhaps the most widely used c.p. in the world.

Wilfred Granville thinks that it came to Britain via the Navy and says that it is a 'Chinaside locution akin to such phrases as no can do, chop chop, no wanchee, etc. Naval Officers used to greet "old ships" who'd been on China Station with "Hullo, old boy, long time no see!" (letter of 5 Nov. 1967). Douglas Leechman, however, supports a US–Canadian origin, thus: 'It is based on an anecdote concerning an eminent citizen of some Pacific Coast city, Vancouver, Seattle, or San Francisco, who was showing the sights of Chinatown to a visiting tycoon. They were stopped by a ravishing Chinese girl, obviously of the profession, who cried in delight, "Why Hally. Wassa maller you? Long time no see!" I first heard it about 1910 and used it no later than last week. Very common out here.' (Letter written from Victoria, British Columbia, on 18 Nov. 1967.) Professor F.E.L. Priestley likewise thinks it of American origin—perhaps from the cinematic conception of Red Indian speech.

As for the printed record, the earliest I have is Harry C. Witever, Love and Learn, 1924, p. 73. (Moe.)

P.B.: The phrase is in fact a direct translation of the Chinese equivalent, hao jiu mei jian. Among Servicemen in Hong Kong in the 1960s there was a c.p. attributed (?wishful-thinking) to the bar-girls or 'hostesses': 'Long time no see! Short time [q.v.] buckshee!'

LOO

E.P.'s first suggested etym. was ex either Fr. l'eau or gardy-loo, but he later amended this: 'Far more prob. suggested by Waterloo station in London, itself named after the battle. In Fr. colloquialism, "le water" is elliptical for water-closet; and the loo part of Waterloo suggests Fr. l'eau, water.' But as R.S. has remarked, 1977, there is still another theory worth consideration: 'The bordalou, much used in C.18 by ladies travelling or in other privy difficulties on drawn-out social occasions. Portable in a muff, its artistic quality and its shape have sometimes led to its being mistaken nowadays for a sauce-boat. The name is said to derive from Louis Bourdaloue, the fashionable and prolix Jesuit preacher of Louis XIV's reign. The first known example, made in Delft, dates from 1710—and the article became very much "the thing"'. (The Penguin Dictionary of the Decorative Arts, 1977.) A case can also be made that loo is cognate with 'leeward', since on board a small boat that is the side one would use (see G. Nixon's article 'Loo', Lore and Language, Jan. 1978, pp. 27–8); or might it simply be an anglicised lieu, 'the place', as in the frequently mispronounced 'time off in lieu/loo [of time worked]'? Nigel Dempster, Telegraph Sunday mag., 11 Mar. 1979, notes the term as 'out' in fashionable circles, being replaced by law. But in ordinary, unfashionable circles it is still going strong in 1983. (P.B.)

LOVERS' ACRONYMS or CODE-INITIALS

Mostly lower and lower-middle class, and widely used by Servicemen: C.20; perhaps also late C.19. Usu. at the foot, or on the envelope, of letters. The commonest of all is SWALK, sealed with a loving kiss; perhaps earlier, and less demonstratively, merely SWAK, as in F. & G., who also note the var. SWANK, ... nice kiss; a joc. elab. is SWALCAKWS, sealed with a lick 'cos a kiss won't stick. Common also are [E.P. writing ca. 1950] BOLTOP, better on lips than on paper (set over against X, a 'paper kiss'), and ILUVM, I love you very much. The next three occur in John Winton, We Saw the Sea, 1960, but are, of course, very much older: ITALY, I trust and love you; BURMA, be undressed, ready, my angel (dating from WW2); NORWICH, (k)nickers off ready when I come home (prob. since WW1). The phonetic element is worth noting; also note the symbol (), an embrace. (With thanks to L.A., 1967, who cautiously adds that there are doubtless others.) P.B.: L.A. was right to be cautious! Two other examples are HOLLAND, here our love lies and never dies, and the somewhat more earthy EGYPT, eager to grab your pretty tits. I have heard the theory put forward that these 'code-words' were at first less demonstrations of affection than, used in their expanded form, indications to a girl-friend of the writer's location if this were officially secret.

MAE-JONG

A player writes, late in 1961: We have the White Dragon referred to as 'soup' (being a completely blank—or clean—tile). There are three suits commonly referred to as (a) woods, bamboos, sticks; (b) balls, circles; (c) characters, ricks or 'icks. These are numbered 1 to 9, and some have nicknames:

Woods: 1 bird or shitehawk or hawk 2 Long Annie
3 tripod, hence tripe
8 garden-gate, hence gate
9 all the wood

Circles: 1 plate
2 dog's (for dog's balls)
3 'broker (for pawnbroker's three balls)
4 taxi (four wheels or circles)
5 spare wheel
7 main crane
8 scrubber
9 all the balls

Ricks: 1 Eric (from 'a rick') 6 spew (from 'seasick' through 'six 'ick')

P.B.: there must be many, many variations on these themes, wherever mah-jong is played in the English-speaking world. In our family games the 'dragons' are reduced to drag; the 'red dragon', actually the Chinese character for 'centre', is sometimes called Deitol, from its fancied resemblance to the trademark of that well-known antiseptic; and the 'South wind' is candlesticks, from its appearance when viewed upside down.

-MANS

Always prec. by the, -mans was a c. suffix of ca. 1560–1890, though † in most words by 1840. It means either 'state of being' or 'thing' according as an abstraction or an object is indicated; though it may simply be a disguise-appendage, a deliberately misleading amplification, as a glance at the -mans words shows. Perhaps ex L. mens via the Fr. advl ending -ment, or simply a perverted and extended use of man, a human being. Cf., however, the Welsh gipsy suffix -imen (?a var. of the much commoner Romany and Welsh gipsy ben), found in words adopted direct ex English, as aidlimen, idle,—gladimen, glad,—madimen, mad, and its radical form -men, which Sampson derived ex the Gr. 'middle passive participle-μενος', and notes as orig. attached to loan-vv., as in zilvimen, jealous (§ 201); certainly relevant is the Welsh gipsy -moni, app. derived ex Bengali -man, with which cf. Sanskrit manah, mind, mood (Sampson, §205). See such words as crackmans, darkmans, Gracemans, harmans, lightmans, ruffmans, togemans in main text.

MEN

In the first quarter of C.18, esp. in London, the following—culled by Matthews from the very representative Ned Ward—are the general s. and coll. names for men, apart from the OCCUPATIONAL and the REGIONAL, qq.v.: Friends were chaps (1715) or chums (1722); a pleasant or a boon companion was a merry grig (1715), merry snob (1715), or jolly tit (1714); contemptuously, a married man was a hug-booby (1703) or smug [open to query; see smug, n., 1, in main text] (1709); a chatterer was either a prattle-box or a tattle-basket (both in 1703); a miser, a love-penny (1703); a tell-tale, a blab (1714); an expert at games was thus early known as a dab (1715); squabs (1722) were fat people; a grumbler was a grizzle (1703) or a grumbletonian (1714); a mean, despicable or surly fellow was a cuff (1703), a scab (1715), a swab (1709), a grave nobby (1703) or a muck-worm (1703).

MISCELLANEA

In the early C.18, Ned Ward has—apart from the nn. listed here under 'Body', 'Dupes', 'Ejaculations', 'Epithets', 'Food', 'Fops', 'Harlots', 'Men', 'Occupational names', 'Regional names', 'Rogues', 'Shortenings', 'Verbs' and 'Women'—the following miscellaneous ones, all noted by Matthews: A bedroom, snoring kennel (1703); a privy, bog-house (1703) and jakes (1722). Talk was padding; chatter, tittle-tattles (likewise in 1703) or prittle-prattle (1703); impudence, bounce (1703); a quarrel, rattle (1703); wind music, tooting (1703), and violin music, diddle-diddle (1703). Energy was elbow-grease (1709); kissing, slip-slop (1703); a jest, fiirt (1709); parchment dabs (1709) were writs, leading to Rat Castle (1700), a prison; razorridge (1703), shaving; fag-end (1703), part near the end; swag (1703), swag (n.); juggle (1714, prob. always S.E.), a duping trick; tag rag and bobtail (1703; prob. always S.E.), rabble; muckender (1703), a swab; a hat was either nab (1703) or mounteer (1703), whereas pig-tails were rat's tails (1714); an object of name forgotten was a thingum (1703) or a what-ye-call'-em (1709).

MOCK AUCTION SLANG

A few examples occur, scattered about the main text: e.g. gazump (there are other spellings), hinting gear, nailers. But here is a passage reported, in the section headed 'Parliament' (dealing with the Mock Auctions Bill) in Daily Telegraph, 25 Feb. 1961:

Sir Tufton [Beamish] told members that he had been to mock auctions in Britain and America. He gave an example of the jargon used:

'The top man operates his joint by nailing the steamers among the plunder-snatchers in the pitch got by his frontman, running out the flash gear or hinton lots as N.S. lots to ricks and gees or to hinton, and gazoombing the sarkers with swag and plunder, while the raving Noahs are silenced with bung-ons and the bogies are smitized to hinton to noise the edge...'

He gave the translation:

'The mock auctioneer operates a stall by ensuring attendance until the end of the sale of those who are mugs rather than those who are just out for free gifts among the crowd collected by his men.

'He pretends to sell, as bait to his victims, genuine goods, which are in fact never sold, to accomplices among the crowd or to non-existent bidders at the back and tricking those of the mugs who have enough money to buy his cheap trash.

'Anyone who tries to warn the crowd is given a present. Dissatisfied customers who are likely to complain about previous sales are taken behind the rostrum to avoid trouble.'

The 'translation' is not a translation but a very free paraphrase. The following little glossary may help, even though, through my ignorance, I cannot render it either complete or 'watertight'. Refs. in bold type are to the main text.

bogies. Dissatisfied customers. See bogey, n., 9.

bung-ons. Gifts. Cf. bung, v., 2.

edge. See noise the edge, below.

flash gear. Showy, yet superior goods. Cf. flash, n., 6.

frontsman. That member of the gang who attracts the crowds.

gazoomphing. Swindling. See gazump.

gees. Auctioneer's accomplices. See gee, n., 2.

hinton-lots. Goods offered as bait; usu. genuine. Cf. hinting-gear in the para. below.

joint. A stall; the room where the auction is held. See joint, n., 6.

nailing. Successfully attracting. See nailers, and para. below.

noise the edge. To avoid trouble: app. since ca. 1945.

pitch. The crowd around the stall or in the auction room. See pitch, n.

plunder-snatchers. Seekers after free gifts—and the real bargains.

raving Noahs. Trouble-makers. (Noahs prophesying floods.) P.B.: more prob. a shortening of rhyming Noah's ark, 'nark'. ricks. Accomplices. See rick.

sarkers. ?Those tending to be sarcastic, yet, for all that, 'mugs'. P.B.: or perhaps a var. of (raving) Noahs: Noah's arkers.

smitzed. ?Reduced to silence. Perhaps on 'smithereens', but prob. Yiddish ex Ger. schmitzen, to lash, to whip.

steamers. Simpletons (natural victims) or 'mugs'. See steamer, 2.

swag and plunder. Cheap goods.

topman. Auctioneer. See top man, 2.

Earlier, in Bournemouth Evening Echo, 18 Feb. 1960, had appeared the following:

'Mr Rudling said part of his duty—at a mock-auction—'was to front up at the "hinting gear" table for the purpose of getting people into the shop'; hinting gear occurs thus, 'The selling was done by gathering an audience. There was a table put inside the shop on which was what was called "hinting gear". To passers-by it was said that alarm clocks were going at a shilling each or even sixpence. Among the "hinting gear" were such things as electric shavers and musical boxes'; articles sold for sixpence or a shilling were called "nailers" and were such things as after-shave lotions and ornamental poodle dogs'.

MONEY

In the period 1700–25, the following terms—for most of which, see the main text—occur in Ned Ward; Matthews lists them: Money in gen. was named cole (1700), mumper's brass (1709) and rhino (1700; spelt rimo). A sixpence was tester (1709), sice (1715) or Copper-John's (1700; I'm not so sure about this term!); a guinea was a Jacobus or a yellow boy (both in 1700); a half-guinea, a smelt (1703); 'coppers' were megs (1703). Bribes or tips were garnish or sweetring (both in 1703); and the process of bribing was expressed in grease a palm (1703) and drop (a person so much: 1714).

MOVING-PICTURE SLANG

Most of the terms in the following short article, 'It is Said in Filmland: "Slanguage" the "Movies" Have Made', reprinted—with many thanks to the proprietors and the editor—from Tit-Bits, 31 Mar. 1934, date, in England, from ca. 1930:-

The visitor to a foreign country expects to hear the natives speaking a tongue which is unlike his own, but it comes as a surprise to a visitor to a modern studio to find the technicians and artists speaking one of the strangest languages ever evolved.

2. Every trade and profession has its own jargon, but the film world has a colourful compilation of expressions unlike those in other walks of life.

3. 'Niggers' are not men of colour, but blackboards used to 'kill' unwanted reflections from the powerful lights. The latter, however, are not called lights but 'inkies' (short for incandescent), or 'sun arcs' (searchlights), or 'baby spots' (powerful lamps giving a very narrow beam), or 'boards' (lights which give flat, over-all lighting). 'Spiders' are the switches into which connections are plugged. When it is bristling with cables on all sides it is not unlike a giant spider. The 'organ' is not a musical instrument but a control panel which enables the technicians to start up the cameras and sound-recording apparatus, switch on red warning lamps outside the doors, and cut out all telephones.

4. 'Gertrude' is not a young lady, but a giant steel crane, with a camera at its head, which enables shots to be taken of players going up staircases or along balconies. 'Dollies', too, have nothing to do with femininity; they are the low trucks, with pneumatic-tired wheels, on which cameras follow stars as they hurry through hotel foyers or along the decks of liners.

5. Here are some more studio terms. 'Juicers' are electricians; 'lens hogs' are stars who are over-anxious to hold the dead centre of the picture. A 'wild' scene has nothing to do with Hollywood parties, it is the terse description for scenes, usually of cars, aeroplanes or trains, which have appropriate fake sounds added in the laboratory after they have been photographically recorded.

6. When a film is completed it is 'in the can'. Every time a scene is successfully 'shot' it is called 'a take'; the whole of the day's 'takes' are then assembled and shown to the producer in a private projection room, but are then known as 'the rushes' or 'the dailies'. Exposed film is 'stuff'; unexposed film is 'raw stock'. If too much film has been shot on a scene, the surplus is known as 'grief'. The chemicals in which film is developed are known as 'soup'.

7. But not all studio terms are coined; as in other walks of life, many of the expressions used owe nothing to slang and everything to tradition.

8. For instance, a broadly funny situation is known as 'a Mack Sennett'; a film cheaply and hurriedly made is known as 'A Poverty Row Picture', in commemoration of the days when Gower Street, Hollywood (nicknamed Poverty Row), was the home of small independent companies turning out pictures quickly and cheaply.

9. 'To do a Gaynor' means to smile upwards through eyes swimming with tears, a tribute to Janet Gaynor's ability to switch on the 'sunshine through the tears'.

10. 'To do a Garbo', on the other hand, means to be proud, aloof, and unbending.

11. But perhaps the most picturesque phrase of all is 'the lot', which is always used to describe the company's land surrounding the studio. It has been in use since the days when, before studios were thought of, all 'interior' scenes were made in the open air (sunlight being the only satisfactory illuminant thirty years ago), and for which purpose hard-pressed pioneers rented vacant building lots.

NICKNAMES

'Inevitable' nicknames are of two classes: general; particular. The general denote nationality (Fritz, Frog, Ikey, Jock, Mick, Taffy) or a physical trait (Bluey, Bunty, Snowy, Tich, Tiny).

The particular, which are the 'inevitable nicknames' par excellence, attach themselves to certain surnames; like the general, they are rarely bestowed on women. The following are the most frequently heard:—Agony Pain(e) or Payne; Betsy Gay; Blanco White (cf. Chalky); Bogder Lees (cf. Jigger); Bogey Harris; Brigham Young; Buck Taylor; Busky Smith (cf. Dusty and Shoey); Chalky White; Charley Peace; Chats Harris; Chatty Mather; Chippy Carpenter; Dan Coles; Darky Smith; Dinghy Read; Dodger Green (cf. Shiner); Dolly Gray; Doughy Baker (cf. Snowy); Dusty Miller and, occ., Jordan, Rhodes, Smith; Edna May; Fanny Fields; Flapper Hughes; Ginger Jones; Granny Henderson; Gunboat Smith; Happy Day; Hooky Walker; Jack Sheppard (-erd, -herd); Jesso Read; Jigger Lees; Jimmy Green (cf. Dodger); Johnny Walker (cf. Hooky); Jumper Collins or Cross; Kitty Wells; Knocker Walker or White; Lackery Wood; Lottie Collins; Mouchy Reeves; Nobby Clark(e) and, occ., Ewart, Hewart, Hewett, Hewitt; Nocky Knight; Nutty Cox; Pedlar Palmer; Piggy May; Pills Holloway; Pincher Martin; Pony Moore; Rattler Morgan; Shiner Black, Bright, Bryant,

Green, White, Wright; Shoey Smith; Shorty Wright; Slinger Woods; Smoky Holmes; Smudger Smith; Snip Parsons, Taylor; Snowy Baker; Spiky Sullivan; Spokey Wheeler, Wheelwright; Spud Murphy; Taffy Jones, Owen and, as above, any Welshman; Timber Wood (cf. Lackery); Tod Hunter, Sloan; Tom King; Topper (occ. corrupted to Tupper) Brown; Tottie Bell; Tug Wilson; Wheeler Johnson; Wiggy Bennett. (A small Army group consists of Arabic words; see Eska, Jebbel, Ketir Mug, and Mush.)

These 'inevitable' names app. arose first in the RN (see esp. Pincher; cf. Nobby and Tug) and soon—by 1890 or so—reached the Army; WW1 effectually distributed them among the lower classes, a few (e.g. Dolly and Tug) among the upper classes. They derive from the commonness of some phrase, as in 'Happy Day' and 'Hooky Walker'; from an historical or a vocational association, as in 'Pedlar Palmer', 'Dusty Miller', and 'Shoey Smith'; from a merely semantic suggestion, as in 'Lackery (or Timber) Wood' and 'Shiner White'; rarely from a neat phrasal connexion as in 'Jumper Cross' (jump across); occ. from a well-known trade article or advertisement, as in 'Blanco White' and 'Johnny Walker'; from a famous personage, as in 'Pincher Martin', 'Nobby Ewart', 'Spiky Sullivan'—the largest of the ascertained-origin groups; and from some anecdotal cause or incidental (or local) notoriety, as in 'Pills Holloway', 'Rattler Morgan', 'Wiggy Bennett', whose origins are, at this date, either unascertainable or ascertainable only with great difficulty. (F. & H.; Bowen; B. & P.; and personal research. For an article on the subject, see A Covey of Partridge, 1937. See also the nicknames themselves in the main text for what elucidation is available.)

Albert Petch later contributed these additions: Cock Robins, hence Robinson, ex the nursery rhyme; Dickie (or -y) Bird; Foxy Reynolds—an allusion to Reynard the fox; Ginger Smith (as well as Jones); Jonah Jones; Lefty Wright; Peeler Murphy, from murphy=potato (cf. Jumper Collins); Rabbit Hutchin(g)s, hence Hutchinson (a rabbit's hutch); Sandy Brown; Taffy Davies (Davis); Tubby Martin. And these, from Gerald Kersh, They Die with Their Boots Clean, 1941: Captain Kidd (from the buccaneer); Iron Duke, hence Dukes (of Wellington); Muddy Waters, hence Waterson; Spider Kelly (ex a boxer's nickname?). And Stitch Taylor: G. Kersh, Clean, Bright and Slightly Oiled, 1946.

P.B.: A few more are listed in 'John Aye', Humour in the Army, 1931, pp. 105–6: Teabread or Teacake Smith; Sweeper White; Con O'Donnell; Digger Hicks; Ned Carver; Monty Broke. Although I knew many men with these 'inevitable' nicknames, and Dixie Dean(e) is yet another, during my time in the Army 1953–74, they were mostly men of the generation that had served in WW2; it is my impression that the custom became obsolescent ca. 1950. I met two of what were perhaps among the last of the type, in the RAF early 1950s: Bomber Harris (ex Sir Arthur Harris, C-in-C Bomber Command in WW2) and Judy Garland (from the famous film star of mid-C.20).

E.P. included in the past-WW2 edd. of the Dict. a note on 'Ephemeral General Nicknames': 'The names of the latest murderer (or murderess) and of certain film stars are, by children in the (esp. London) streets, shouted at persons having some sort of resemblance to the notoriety: prob. immemorial. A very few names—e.g. Crippen—have lasted more than a year or two; Crippen, indeed, is still to be heard frequently among Cockney children.' He also included a number of 'Australian Rhyming and Alliterative Nicknames', with the preface, 'Most of these are inevitables,' says Barry Prentice, who has—in June 1963—supplied the ensuing list. Several of them come from the US and are known also in the other Dominions and in Britain. Refs. in bold type are to the main text.

Charlotte the Harlot. P.B.: ex a 'smoking-room ballad' concerning one 'Charlotte, the harlot, the cowpunchers' whore'. Den(n)is the Menace. Ex US.

Even Stephen (or Steven). Ex US even-Steven, evenly or fairly.

Flo the Chro. See chro (ex chromo).

Giggling Gertie.

Hairy Mary.

Harriet the Chariot. See entry in main text.

Harry the Horse. Ex the character created by Damon Runyan.

Mero the Perv. Cf. perv and perve and pervy.

Myrtle the Turtle. See entry in main text. Occ. invested with a Brooklyn pronunciation: Moitle the Toitle.

Nola the Bowler. Ex 'Nola Dekyvere, the social leader of Sydney' (B.P.). But † by end of 1967, B.P. tells me.

Peter the Poof.

Phil the Dill. Cf. dill.

Roger the Lodger.

Slapsie Maxie. Ex Maxie Rosenbloom.

Terry the Ferry.

Tizzie Lizzie. Cf. tizzy.

Nicknames of regiments, squadrons, aircraft and ships are too numerous to be listed here. They are to be found alphabetically in the main text.

O.K.

In the 1st ed. of this Dict., E.P. wrote: All right; correct; safe; suitable; what is required; comfortable, comfortably placed: orig. US s.; >, ca. 1880, Eng. s. and ca. 1895, Eng. coll. (For its use by 'the great Vance', see below.) Thornton records it at 1828 and gives an anticipation (likewise by Andrew Jackson) at 1790: but on these two instances the OED throws icy water and gives 1840 as the date. It either=all (or orl) korrekt (or K'rect) or is a Western US error for order recorded (Thornton inclines to the latter origin); or again—the fashionable (but not the OED Sup.'s) view of the 1930s—it may represent the Choctaw (h)oke, it is so, for Jackson presumably knew the Choctaw word and it was his opponents who, wishing to capitalise his well-known illiteracy, imputed (so it is held) the orl K'rect origin to the phrase's first user. Graphic, 17 Mar. 1883, 'It was voted O.K., or all correct'; 1889, Answers (no. 56), 'John Jenkins... was O.K. with Matilda Ann at Williams Street'; the label on bottles of Mason's 'O.K.' Sauce—cf. oke, q.v. (Such fanciful etymologies as aux Cayes and och aye! can be summarily dismissed; o.k. is an evergreen of the correspondence column.) [P.B.: E.P. was right about the 'evergreen'—it flourished in The Times again in Sep. 1980, with advocates for origins ex Elwe, 'the West African language spoken by many of the slaves taken to the southern states [of USA]' (Geoffrey Sampson, 10 Sep.), and ex Fr. aux quais (Laurence Weston, 5 Sep.). On 15 Sep. 1980 Robert Burchfield urged all inquirers to refer to the 3rd vol. of the latest OED Sup.—and what better authority could one wish for? E.P. amended his notes above in a later ed. as follows:] To the Dict. entry it is pertinent to add the fact that Alfred Glanville Vance, 'the great Vance' of the music-halls (from the middle sixties to the late eighties, C.19), used to sing:

The Stilton, sir, the cheese, the O.K. thing to do,

On Sunday afternoon, is to toddle to the Zoo.

Week-days may do for Cads, but not for me and you;

So dress'd right down the road, we show them who is who.

The chorus ran thus:

The walking in the Zoo—

Walking in the Zoo—

The O.K. thing on Sunday is the walking in the Zoo.

The expression was taken to England by Artemus Ward and was well acclimatised by 1880 at the latest. Dr Allen Walker Read, 'The Evidence on "O.K."', Saturday Review of Literature, 19 July 1941, has conclusively dated it back to 1840 and to a semi-secret political society known as 'The Democratic O.K.', wherein the letters O.K. are used as a cabalistic symbol, perhaps for 'Old Kinderhook', the nickname of Martin Van Buren.

See O.K., the entries immediately following it, and oke, in the main text.

OCCUPATIONAL NAMES

Ned Ward, in 1700–24, has the following s. or coll. terms in addition to those at 'CONSTABLES', q.v.: sailors are tar or lubber (both, 1703); soldiers, red-coat (1703); fishmongers, pull-guts or strip-eel (both in 1700); parsons, hum-drum (1709), pulpit-cackler (1709) and tubster (1712), while Quakers are Aminadab (1709); scavengers are Tom-Turd-man (1703); Tower-rook (1703), a guide to the Tower; Crispin (1703), a cobbler—prob. always S.E.; a cook, lick-fingers (1703)—prob. S.E.; a butcher, sheep-biter (1703); slab-dab, a glover (1703); Essedartus (1703; rare), a coachman; a fiddler is a cat-gut scraper (1700); an astrologer, hocus-pocus (1703). Aldermen are lob-cocks (1703). Matthews.

OCKER

ocker, a constant disparager, whose assurance matches his ignorance and prejudice: Aus.: since ca. 1965 (or, perhaps, even a decade or two earlier), but not widely used until 1968. It derives, I believe, from knocker, an inveterate adverb-criticiser: a knocker has > an ocker by a well-known phonetic process: in originally careless pronunciation, knocker = nocker, therefore a nocker > an ocker, and the noun is apprehended as ocker; cf. a nadder (M.E. naddr), which duly > an adder. The process is discussed in 'Articled Nouns', an essay in my From Sanskrit to Brazil, 1952.

That origination was prompted by Mr John B. Gadson of New South Wales in a letter he wrote to me on 26 Dec. 1975: and I show my grateful appreciation by mentioning that it was he who drew my attention to the semantic equivalence of ocker to the earlier knocker (in its sense 'constant disparager'). To render him full justice, I quote from his letter:

There is the added attraction that this peculiarly Australian word... can be uttered in a peculiarly Australian way; i.e. with unmoving lips, relaxed throat and the head slightly back as if looking into the sun or into a raised glass of beer.

This type of person, who drinks regularly with his mates at his favourite pub after a hard day's 'yakka' [i.e. work], has few but highly self-centred interests. He tends to disparage what he has not, what he cannot have. He is Master Sour-Grapes of classical vintage. He 'knocks' almost everything with an accomplished inverted snobbery. A 'knocker' is an 'ocker'...

This figure has pervaded TV commercials... and is exemplified by such entertainers as Bazza McKenzie and Paul Hogan. As a possible reproach to a deteriorating national image it may be justifiable for local consumption, but attempts to foist it on the unsuspecting foreigner make one wonder anew at the pretensions of ockerdom.

The word has now come to the attention of the academics because of its... application to a new situation and... to a type of person receiving more prominence than hitherto in the mass media...

The word serves its new purpose admirably; it conveys a distinct, recognisable and verifiable concept.

Academic and scholarly, and indeed all literate, men and women both in Australia and in Britain were initiated, not as fully as necessary, into the word when, in 1976, the late Professor Graham Johnstone defined ocker thus: 'A boorish person who is aggressively Australian in speech and behaviour, often for humorous effect.' Hence, ockerism.

Jack Fingleton, famous Australian batsman and fielder and later an excellent writer on cricket, defined ocker (Sunday Times, 20 Mar. 1974) very succinctly as 'a cheerful, abrasive type who likes to be tough and throw his weight about.'

The type is also known as Alf, perhaps because it typifies a cheerful moron or virtual moron [P.B.: cf. 'Alfred E. Neuman' of the American magazine Mad].

'OXFORD -ER(S)'

At Oxford, it began late in 1875 and came from Rugby School (OED Sup.). By this process, the original word is changed and gen. abridged; then -er is added. Thus, memorial > memugger, the Radcliffe Camera > the Radder (for the is prefixed where the original has the). Occ. the word is pluralised, where the original ends in s: as in Adders, Addison's Walk, Jaggers, Jesus College. This -er has got itself into gen. upper-middle-class s. See esp. Slang, revised ed. (1935), pp. 208–9. [E.P.'s note in 1st ed.; later he added:] Mr Vernon Rendall, himself an old Rugby School boy, rejects the Rugby School origin; he is supported by Fischer Williams (see HARROW).

P.B.: the RN seems to have taken enthusiastically to the custom from quite early in C.20; see HARRY.

It should be noted that the suffixes -agger(s) and -ugger(s) (other initial vowels are seldom, if ever, used) are elaborated variations on the original -er(s) theme. They seem to have occurred where the original word was a monosyllable, e.g. the Pragger Wagger being preferred to the possible Princers of Waters for ease of pronunciation; Jaggers for 'Jesus' above because the possible Jesers makes little difference verbally; and they occur when a simple -er(s) suffix seems feeble or unsatisfactory: indijaggers rolls more easily off the tongue than mere indigers or indigesters for 'indigestion', and the same applies to memugger above. These are merely observations; I am in no way attempting to explain the phenomenon, for I cannot.

PAINT THE TOWN RED

The incident mentioned as the prob. orig. of the phrase at this entry in the main text was commemorated by Henry Alken in a pair of contemporary (1837) prints. As J.B. Firth's Highways and Byways in Leicestershire, 1926, after describing the outbreak of aristocratic hooliganism, goes on: 'The lines—unusually rich in the slang of the period—underneath this print [of the revellers painting the inn sign of the White Swan red] recapture the spirit of the scene:

A Spree at Melton

or doing the thing in a sporting-like manner

Coming it strong with a spree and a spread Milling the daylight or cracking a head,
Go it, ye cripples, comes tip us your mauleys,
Up with the lanterns and down with the Charleys.
If lagged we should get, we can gammon the Beak, Tip the slaveys a Billy to stifle their squeak, Come the bounce with the snobs and a— for their betters,
And make all the Statues so many dead letters.

Quick work without a contract

By Tip-top Sawyers.

It is typical of Early Victorian days that this drunken spree by "tip-top sawyers" should be glorified in a print intended for wide circulation, while the omitted word was considered so certain to offend a sensitive public that it could only be expressed by a dash.'

All the slang terms are noted in the main text, except this sense of Billy. It seems prob. that here it means a sovereign (£1) coin bearing the head of King William IV (reigned 1830–7).

(My thanks to Mr Colin Measures, of Melton Mowbray, for bringing this item to my attention. P.B.)

PARLYAREE

The 'Lingua Franca'—but actually as to 90% of its words, Italianate—vocabulary of C.18–20 actors and mid-C.19–20 costermongers and showmen: (orig. low) coll. verging, after ca. 1930, on S.E. (How long the word itself has existed, I do not know: prob. not before ca. 1850, when the vocabulary was much enlarged and the principal users changed so radically, though itinerant and inferior actors supply the link.) Ex It. parliare, to speak. Cf. palarie and see Slang, passim, and at 'Circus Slang,' and P. Allingham's Cheapjack, 1934. [E.P.'s note in 1st ed.; later he added.]

In line 8, pargliare is a misprint for parlare, which accounts for the Parlaree (-ry) form; the Parlyaree form has been influenced either by parlarie or by, e.g., parliamo, 'let us speak'.

A full account of this Cinderella among languages appears in my book of essays and studies upon language, Here, There and Everywhere, 1949.

Parlyaree is both less general and less serviceable than Parlary or parlary. In late C.19—early 20, palarey or palary was very common, esp. among music-hall artists; after ca. 1945, palary is demotic, parlary hieratic. Lester's title for his glossary means 'Know Parlary'. In this work, ca. 1937, he enumerates the old, pre-decimal coins thus: halfpenny, medza; a penny, or (so many) pence, soldi; threepence, tray-bit, adopted from gen.—orig., low—s. and elab. from tray, 2; sixpence, say soldi; a shilling, bionk; a florin, dewey bionk; a half-crown, medza(-caroon); a crown (piece) or 5 shillings, caroon; 10 shillings, daiture bionk or medza(-)funt; £1, funt. Lester cites the numerals: una, 1; dewey, 2; tray, 3; quattro, 4; chi(n)qua, 5; say, 6; setta, 7; otta, 8; nobba, 9; daiture, 10; lepta, 11; kenza, 12. For numbers over 12, see daiture in main text. The greatest deviation from the Italian originals are exhibited by daiture, kenza, lepta, which aren't Italian at all.

Mr Herbert Seaman, learned in the ways of theatre, music-hall, side-show, tells me (letter, 1950) that 'Mr Dai Griffith, a singer, once sang to me this song, which he said was current among buskers.

Nantee dinarly; the omee of the carsey Says due bionic peroney, manjaree on the cross.
We'll all have to scarper the letty in the morning Before the bonee omee of the carsey shakes his doss.

The tune is simple, in 6/8 time, and should have a guitar accompaniment.'

Since ca. 1970, as L.A. notes, 1976, 'gay' slang has come to be known, in raffish, homosexual circles, as polari.

PIE IN THE SKY

As a US c.p. it dates—according to W. & F.—from ca. 1910, but there is reason to suspect that ca. 1907 would be nearer the mark, for either it originated as a taunt addressed by members of the Industrial Workers of the World (slogan: "Workers of the world, unite") to non-sympathisers in general and to the conventionally minded in particular, and, as such, served to inspire Joe Hill's song, 'The Preacher and the Slave', pub'd in or about the year 1906, as Webster's New International Dictionary, 3rd edition, 1961, states, or the IWW very promptly utilised the song or rather the one phrase pie in the sky when you die. The phrase caught on, and by ca. 1910 or, at latest, 1912, was addressed, no longer merely by the underprivileged to the privileged but by anyone to anyone sure of a coming Utopia or an eventual Heaven. By 1920, it was fairly common in Canada and in other American-affected parts of the world.

In his long-out-of-print American Tramp and Underworld Songs and Slang, the late Godfrey Irwin includes in the glossary this entry:

Pie in the Sky.—One's reward in the hereafter. From that parody on the hymn, 'In the Sweet Bye and Bye', which declares in the refrain:

You will eat, bye and bye,
In that glorious land in the sky;
Work and pray, live on hay, You'll get pie in the sky when you die.'

In the selection of songs, Irwin gives the full text of Joe Hill's 'The Preacher and the Slave' and thus identifies the parody with the song.

PIP-SQUEAK

Amplification of the entry at pip-squeak, 6: 'Forgetting to switch off his "pip-squeak" (radio contactor), Nicky climbed thankfully out on to the wing' (Paul Brickhill & Conrad Norton, Escape to Danger, 1946). H. & P., 1943, 'Radio telephony set': RAF (aircrews') since ca. 1935. Cf. sense 2. At short intervals, it goes pip squeak.

"Radio-telephony set" is perhaps misleading. The pip-squeak was an automatic transmitter only, whose once-a-minute signals enabled ground direction-finding stations to fix the aircraft's position accurately for the benefit of the Fighter Controller in the Operations Room. But for those seconds when it was transmitting, ordinary radio-telephonic communication with the pilot was not possible. The Controller's occasional query: "Is your pip-squeak in (i.e. switched on)?" soon acquired sexual connotations.

'An equivalent equipment in homing bombers was I.F.F. (Identification, Friend or Foe), which, however, imparted a characteristic pulse to the visual echo on radar screens' (R.S., 1967).

PRISONER-OF-WAR SLANG

There is a valuable note on the prisoners-of-war-in-Germany slang at the beginning of Paul Brickhill & Conrad Norton, Escape to Danger, 1946: see entry at kriegy. Guy Morgan's no less readable Only Ghosts Can Live, 1945, contains these additional terms: big eats!: How are you?—Ger. Wie gehts?, How goes it?; bunker, solitary-confinement cell; fish-paste?, What time is it?—Ger. Wie spät ist es?; goon (see main text), 'after that dumb top-heavy ham-handed race of giants in the "Pop-Eye" comic strip'; hence, goon up!—a warning that a German (soldier) is near-by or approaching; millet, 'porridge-like soup'; Nix fish-tins, I don't understand—Ger. Nicht verstehen; stimmt, genuine, true—from Ger. alles stimmt, all correct; tiger-box, a square box that, on a pole at each corner of the barbed wire, contained searchlight, machine-gun, telephone and a sentry.

2. For the POW slang of the Far East, there was published in a ship's news-sheet of late 1945, an excellent and delightful article by H.W. Fowler & I.P. Watt, who have generously allowed me to make full use of it. Here are some few of the terms they list; the quotations come from that article.

3. A rumour: borehole (ex a rough-and-ready latrine); griff (see griff, n., in main text); and latrin(e)o-gram.

4. 'Anyone thought to run a wireless set, or to have other sources of information, was "in the cloak and dagger club".' The word canary was officially suggested for 'radio' or 'wireless'; thence 'came 'dicky bird', "birdsong" and "birdseed" ... Trouble in getting batteries to work the sets was "trouble about birdseed".'

5. At Changi camp, the Sikh guards did not behave well: hence sikhery, 'brutality; bloody-mindedness'; Sikh's beard, a local tobacco, coarse, tough, wiry.

6. Terms from Malay were go buso, 'to turn septic'—from busok, 'rotten'; lagi, often mispronounced leggy, superseding the synonymous baksheesh; Nazi Goering, 'fried rice'—from nasi goreng; and a number of direct adoptions. [E.P. later added:] Concerning leggy, another Far East POW—Mr R.H. Pantling—tells me (1960) that 'its far more general use was for a second helping of our very inadequate rations. The frequent cry, towards the end of a meal, of "Any more leggies?" made pedantic scholars of Malay wince.'

7. Japanese supplied benjo, lit. 'a convenient place'—a water closet or latrine; byoki, sick; yasmé, lit. 'rest', which did duty for 'rest'—'sleep'—'holiday'—'peace'; camp headquarters being Yasmé Villa; and, remotely, Nip, a Japanese. To which Cdr C. Parsons, RN ret., added in 1973, 'Yasmé' (phonetic) derives from Japanese yasumi, rest, recess, etc.'

8. From Aus. slang, or from association with Australian soldiers, came jokers, 'chaps', 'fellows'; 'bronzies' (Aussies, the "bronzed gods" of Singapore ballyhoo journalism); 'Bungs (for Dutch half-castes), originally Australian slang for their own Aboriginals'.

9. Dutch yielded eten halen, lit. 'to fetch food', and Got(t)fordomms, from Gott verdomme (Dutch version of God damn!), both as nicknames for the Dutch themselves.

10. Some names for food were these: 'The staple stew, tasteless, meatless... was dubbed "jungle stew"—anything bad was "jungle"—jungle sores, jungle camps, jungle fever, jungle bananas'; 'various types of dried fish... "Cheese fish"—"Bengofish"—"Picture-frame fish" or "Tennis-racket fish"; the various disguises of rice were generically doovers (see doover; though perhaps ironically ex 'hors d'œuvre') or efforts, the latter having, at Changi, been a rissole. A gas-cape stew was a dried vegetable soup.

11. Canteen cries and names: hot, sweet and filthy, concerning coffee or for 'coffee'; nutty nutty, 'a local concoction of sugar, peanuts and newspaper'; lime slime, a sweetened version of gu-gu (tapioca gruel); limo-limo, a hot lime drink.

12. Medical terms: 'Amputations were so frequent that two abbreviations, "amputs" and "stumpies", were required; and "amput cigarettes" were on sale'—rolled by those men who had had a limb amputated; avit, an avitaminosis patient; the diary, diarrhoea.

13. References to Japanese influence occur in Jap-happy, 'for those who were thought to "collaborate" in any way or to do well out of the Nips... coined early in Singapore. But it became current in Thailand when the lucky few were the recipients of Japanese clothing—rubber boots were "Jap-happies", and a loin cloth was a "Jap-happy" (or sometimes a "G-string").'

14. Phrases: Anyone who was in a constipated mental condition 'had his finger up', and was expected to 'pull it out'; see take your finger out. 'One phrase... stands out...; it will live to describe an aspect of human nature seen very clearly in the bad times, when selfishness and greed were matched by the envy and malice of the less fortunate, in the utter lack of privacy of the camps in Thailand. It was developed from the phrase "Pull the ladder up, Jack, I'm all right!" which had long been current, as had "fuck you, Jack, I'm all right!" It was abbreviated, however, by frequency of use to the P.O.W. forms "A Jack Club", "a ladder club" or "Ladder", "a ladder job", "Got your ladder", "Mine's up", and so on all to describe whatever was considered a "cushy" job for which the usual term could have been "administration" as opposed to "work". On the other hand, our officers spurred themselves to greater efforts in hut-building with the cry, "Up guards and atap!" (Note. All our huts were atap-roofed.)'

15. Miscellaneous: Bangkok bowler, a Thailer's bamboo hat; bamboo presento, a beating-up with a bamboo; Gordon Thailanders, Gordon Highlanders; 2359 (hours), a coloured officer—usually as a nickname—the time, on the very verge of midnight, when all is dark.

16. P.B.: in Charles Drage, Two-Gun Cohen, 1954, is noted Mimi Lau's for bricks and concrete used as a bed: in Stanley Prison civilian internment camp, Hong Kong, WW2: 'origin unknown'.

PUBLIC AND GRAMMAR SCHOOL SLANG IN 1968

On 1 Sep. 1968, 'Atticus' in the Sunday Times published a short article on the slang vocabulary of 'a typical school', based on the findings of sociologists Royston Lambert and Spencer Millham. Apart from words or phrases merely variants of S.E. and from those common in many English Public and Grammar Schools, I have listed a few that seemed note-worthy, either because apt and picturesque or because they have since gained a wider, several a much wider, currency; on the other hand, several clearly belonged also to other schools.

basic. Simple-minded; (of acts) stupid.

brace, n. A snub; brace up, to snub (someone)—brace up!, 'You have been snubbed.'

bugger. 'A type of rigger with no rules played in the water-meadows'.

bushy. Annoyed.

crease, v. Esp. in the vbl n., creasing. 'To make oneself pleasant to [someone] with the idea of getting somewhere oneself.'

kick up, v. To 'make a fuss (especially applied to masters who complain about a boy's behaviour).'

oil, n. Gravy.

pseud. 'One who holds pretentious or unorthodox opinions'; a cynic; an insincere person; a would-be or, 'for the hell of it' pretending to be, an intellectual and tending to incomprehensible conversation; a dry intellectual; a socialist or any other non-Conservative. Mostly used pej.—'almost the exact opposite of staunch'.

shag, adj. Shaggy in appearance; but usu., 'bad'—with a derogatory connotation.

staunch, n. 'A person who is exceedingly keen on games and other house activities, and makes it unpleasant for those who do not wish to participate.'

turf! Senior to junior schoolfellow, 'You have been turfed off from doing that, because I, your senior, say so and want it.'

RAILWAYMEN'S SLANG AND NICKNAMES

Many items of railwaymen's s. are to be found scattered through the main text. Most are taken from Harvey Sheppard's Dictionary of Railway Slang, 1964, and later ed., or from Frank McKenna's Glossary of Railwaymen's Talk, 1970. The latter was the basis of his admirably informative book The Railway Workers, 1840-1970, pub'd 1980 by Messrs Faber & Faber Ltd, and I am most grateful to Mr McKenna and to the publishers for permission to draw on the book both to support entries in the main text, and for the lists, which I append here without additional comment, from pp. 239-41:

Signalling Terms

back 'un
big dipper biscuit blackboard bullseye Christmas tree clear pop
dolly, dodd, dummy double yolk fairy land feathers
Forever Amber gun harbour lights
Hitler salute.
iron man on the block orange peel peg, stick, board persecuted minority pounded spider stairway to the stars triple crown

Distance signal
High semaphore
Signal line token
Oblong ground signal Signal light
Multiple aspect signal
Clear signal
Ground signals
Two yellows
Multiple aspect signals
Lunar lights
Fixed distant signals
Radar speed trap
Lunar lights
Upraised semaphore
IBS post
In the loop
Plate-layers' orange jackets Semaphore signals
Employed, over-65s
Inside clear Signal apparatus in four foot Ladder to signal's arm
Three headlamps

Places of Interest

Back Pan, the Big Stacks, the Block all Junction Cupboard, the

Washwood Heath
Brickfield Chimneys, Bedford
Watford
Coppermill Junction, Eastern Region
Waterloo
Plate-layers' cabin
Cricklewood
Another region
Eastern region
Overtime
Clapham Junction

Drain, the Fernando's Hideaway Goal Post, the Hostile Territory
Indian Country
Land of Plenty Maze, the

Orchard, the Plywood Sidings
Ponderosa, the Rat Hole, the Shanty, the; also Library Tea Gardens, the

Cricklewood sidings
Barking, Essex
Kentish Town to Barking
Euston Tunnel
Messroom
Somers Town Sidings, St Pancras

Nicknames

Abadan Excessive oil user
College of Knowledge The depot union representative Dead-end kid Person not taking promotion Desk jockey Clerk
Florence Nightingale Shunter with lamp Genial Menial Shed labourer Gruesome twosome Joint chairmen Gutta percha Bird on shed roof Jumping jack Lively chargehand Mistletoe Men, Out Riders Non-union men
Pail hands Office cleaner Set of grinders Sheffield men Siamese twins Branch and LDC secretaries Syndicate, the Full meeting, management—unions Talkies, the Local negotiating meeting Talking machine Branch secretary Traps Guard's equipment
Whispering Baritone Noisy person
Wigan blind A grey puddeny mass. Dross, a mixture of dust found in coal wagons emanating from briquettes, cobbles, slack and nuts.

I have permission to reprint the following from p. 234 of The Railway Workers: 'an example of railway talk which could have been heard almost anywhere on the railways of Britain in the days of steam':

We were humping the bricks with a short of puff Black Five. It was as thick as a bag. At Stone Crossing both squirters packed in, but we got inside without blocking the fast. A set of Huns with a tender first crab hooked up but we still made a rounder.

Translation

Humping the bricks Working a brick train Short of puff An engine steaming poorly
Black Five A Class 5 Mixed Traffic Engine, LMS Thick as a bag Very foggy. [P.B.: cf. black as a bag.] Squirters Water injector mechanism, taking water from tender to boiler Getting inside Entering a loop line or siding Blocking the fast Blocking the main line Set of Huns Engine-men from another depot Tender first crab 'Crab' was a freight engine; tender first meant that the engine was wrong way round for train working Making a rounder A twelve-hour shift—half-way round the clock

Another example is the skill with which railway workers gave new titles to the companies that employed them:

Staff Nickname Railway Company
The Clog and Knocker Grand Central Let Me Sleep }
Lord, My Shepherd } London, Midland and Scottish Elleeva Mess }

Go When Ready Greatest Way Round
God's Wonderful Railway } Great Western Late, Never Early }
Muddle, Goes Nowhere } London and North-Eastern Slow and Dirty } Midland, and Great Northern Languish and Yawn } Somerset and Dorset Lancashire and Yorkshire.

REGIONAL NAMES

Those current in the first quarter of the C.18, as represented by Ned Ward, are Bog-Lander and Teague, both in 1703; Sawney in 1709; Taffy in 1714; Tike in 1703; and Butter-Box, a Dutchman, in 1700. (Matthews.) Cf. NICKNAMES, 1st para., above.

RHODESIAN ARMY (LIGHT INFANTRY) SLANG
CURRENT IN NOV. 1976

In the Star, Johannesburg, 22 Nov. 1976, as my friend Ashley Cooper Partridge tells me, appeared an entertainingly light-hearted anonymous article, 'Tune Me a Glide, Toppie'. Because of its ephemeral nature, emphasised by Capt. Colin Dace of the Rhodesian Light Infantry, I here alphabetise the terms therein treated, but do not insert them separately into the main text. Several, however, will be recognised as of a venerable antiquity or of a much wider distribution—or as of both: 'see above' means 'see at this entry in the main text of the Dict.' babalas. Topsy. [P.B.: should perhaps be babarasi, which means 'drunk' or 'with a hangover', in the Ndebele language. With thanks to Mr Eshialwa D. Obati, of Nairobi.] bend. To damage (a car): coll. rather than s. [P.B.: Brit. Forces' s.]

burg. A town. This, however, was orig. US, then by ca. 1925, fairly gen. Brit. s. [P.B.: but may it not have arisen independently, under Afrikaans influence, in Southern Africa?]

buzz. Esp. give (someone) a buzz, to cause (him) trouble. catch a gonk. See gonk.

chibuli. See flatten.

chick. A girl. Gen. s., ex US. See above.

clobber. Clothes. Gen s. See above.

cream into. To collide, as one car with another. See cream, v., above.

fade. To leave (a locality or position), i.e. to fade away from it, as in 'Let's fade this posy (or loc)'. Adopted ex US. flat dog, or flatdog. A crocodile; cf. mobile handbag.

flatten (or kill or slay) a chibuli. To 'down' one's beer. [Chibuli, perhaps a corruption of chibuku, a word for beer, and also a well-known brand-name for it in East Africa. With thanks to Mr E.D. Obati. P.B.] floppy. "Floppies"—Terrorists... because of a noted tendency to flop down when shot.' Cf. ter.

gangen. The bush or outback. Cf. the Aus. walkabout. [P.B.: perhaps one of the words absorbed into Swahili from the former German East Africa: Ger. gangen, to go.]

give a buzz. See buzz.

glide. A lift in a vehicle, as in tune me a glide, formally 'Kirtlyd give me a lift'. Semantics: accord a lift.

gonk. In catch a gonk, to have a nap or a full sleep, but also to take a look.

gook. See rev, 2. [P.B.: the former sense also Brit. Forces' s. See above.]

graze, n. and v. Food or 'a bite to eat', a meal; to eat, to have a meal. Ex livestock grazing.—2. To injure or wound, as 'I was grazed by a flatdog.'

grimmy. An unattractive girl, as in 'Who was that grimmy I saw you with last night?' [P.B.: cf. Brit. Public Schools' grimmer.]

hit out to the gomos. To climb and search a hill, a group of hills, e.g. in search of terrorists. Gomo is presumably a native word. [P.B.: Mr E.D. Obati tells me that gomos means 'hill' in the Ndebele language.]

hooli. A lively party or a night on the town, esp. in lekker hooli, a successful one. [E.P. surmised a shortening of hooligan, but cf. hooley, 2, in maintext.] kill a chibuli. See flatten.

lekker. Excellent or delightful, as in lekker chick (girl) and lekker hooli. Afrikaans. [P.B.: cf. the lowish German 'Hast du geschmückt?' (Have you enjoyed your meal?)—'Lecker, lecker!' (Yes, indeed!)]

loc. A locality—place—(military) position: as in 'Let's fade this loc.'

mobile handbag. A crocodile. Ex use of crocodile skin in making women's handbags.

owen. 'Among themselves the troopies often refer to one another as owens': at a guess I'd say that here is a pun on the given name and surname Owen and 'our own fellows'.

possy. A position, esp. if military; a post, trench, site: a WW1 term; see above.

pull, v.i. To 'pull out' or depart.

rev. 'A "rev" (dressing down) from the commanding officer'. [—2. To kill. Listener, 9 Nov. 1978, quotes 'rev goods' as Rhodesian Army s. for 'to shoot terrorists', and adds, 'the word "goods" is courtesy of Vietnam.']

Saints, the. The nickname bestowed, by themselves, on men of the Rhodesian L.I.: joc. ironic.

scale, v.i. To dress in one's best clothes, for instance in order to meet a girl. [P.B.: ex 'full scale of issue?'] slay a chibuli. See flatten.

ter. A terrorist, esp. a member of a terrorist striking force. toppie. An old man; in address, 'old fellow', as in the title of the article. Cf. the writer's 'and the toppie bit? If that's what your troopy's thinking, you may as well... quietly fade. You're past it, over the hill, too long in the tooth. Over 30 anyway.' ?Afrikaans.

troopy. A trooper, i.e. a private, occ. a non-commissioned officer, in the Rhodesian Light Infantry.

tune. To accord—to agree to give or grant (a kindness) to someone, as in tune (me) a glide, to oblige with a lift in car or jeep.

[zap. To shoot and kill. Listener, 9 Nov. 1978, quotes 'zap CTs' as Rhodesian Army s. for 'to kill terrorists'. 'Zap' has been taken over from US Forces' usage in the Vietnam war (cf. gook, q.v. at rev, 2), while CT, standing for 'Communist Terrorist', was in common use during the war in Malaya, 1948–60. P.B.]

RHUBARB

Alexander McQueen, an Englishman long resident in the United States, writes thus (on 31 Aug. 1953):

Here's a genuine one that I've never seen recorded anywhere; I've been looking for it for half a century! It is the word 'rhubarb' used as a theatrical term.

When I was a boy (14–17 years old) I studied dramatic art under a pupil of the famous old actor Hermann Vezin [1829–1910]. Although Vezin had been born in Pennsylvania, he flourished in London for years, and studied and worked under Charles Kean, c. 1852. Kean had received traditions from other actors, and they from others, all the way back to Davenant and Shakespeare. They all took a pride in passing down the genuine Shakespearean acting traditions and 'business'. One of these was to do with 'rhubarbing'. When a few actors gathered backstage and represented the 'noise without' made by a mob, they intoned the sonorous word 'rhubarb'. The action was called 'rhubarbing', the actors 'rhubarbers'. (Try the word yourself; it really DOES produce an effect if only two or three work at it.)

I have only met one old-time actor in the United States who knew about this custom; and he was from England. 'In Holy Deadlock, 1934, Sir Alan Herbert describes a stage rehearsal with the chorus "rushing about excitedly and muttering 'Rhubarb'" (Ramsey Spencer).

B.P., 1975, tells me that this sense is 'widely known in Australia and often appears in print'; but the Aus. use of the word also, as the late Mr McQueen has clearly shown, comes from England.

ROGUES AND BEGGARS IN C.18

Ned Ward, during the period 1700–24, has the following terms. Beggars are clapperdudgeons (1709), mumpers (1703) or mumps (1709), and strol[lers] (1709). Sodomites are boretto-men (1703), buggerantoes (1703), Mollies (1709), and town-shifts (1709). Highwaymen are Gentlemen Outers (1709), light horse (1700) and pads and woads (1709, in The Secret History of Clubs; the phrase is not very satisfactory). Cut-purses are clippers or gentlemen of the nig (1709); pickpockets, divers (1709). Rogues of various kinds are canary-birds (1703) dark engineers (1703; prob. a nonce-phrase), Newgate birds (1709), and the sharpening tribe (coll. rather than s.; 1717). Dirty ruffians are clip-nits (1703). Various names for confidence-tricksters are cadator, sweetner, tongue-pad (1703, all three). Certain touts are Long-Lane clickers (1703). Horse-thieves are, in 1709, termed snaffle-biters. Matthews.

SHELTA

Shelta is 'a kind of cryptic Irish spoken by tinkers and confirmed tramps; a secret jargon composed chiefly of Gaelic words disguised by changes of initial, transposition of letters, back-slanting and similar devices' (F. & H.). Discovered in 1876 by Leland, who published his account of it in his Gypsies, 1882: considerable attention has been paid to it since the Gypsy Lore Society started in 1889, its Journal in 1890. (See, e.g. toby.)

SHORTENINGS

Shortenings were, in the first quarter of C.18, very common; they were satirised by both Addison and Swift. Ned Ward has these, culled by Matthews: blab, a blabber, 1714; bub, 'bubble' or liquor, 1715; cit, citizen, 1703; fiz, a face, 1700; mob, n., 1703; mump, a mumper, 1709; non-com-schools, 1709; non-Com, Nonconformist, 1709; qual, the quality or gentry, 1715; rep(utation), 1715; skip, skipper, 1715; and strum, a strumpet, 1712.

SPANGLISH

Writing from Argentina in 1960, Mrs Daphne Hobbs remarks,

'You would be quite interested in the sort of lingua franca spoken in Argentina—in Buenos Aires particularly—among the Argentine-born children of English parents. We call it 'Spanglish'... The custom is to anglicize Spanish verbs and use them as if they were English—and also to do the same to some of the Argentine (Criollo) slang. For instance, 'to iron' is planchar in Spanish and this becomes planchate, e.g. 'I must heat the iron to planchate my dress.' In Criollo slang, canchero means someone rather smart, good-looking, exciting, etc., so we get canch, meaning, roughly, 'super' as the English schoolboy or -girl would use it. Again, in Criollo patois, we have cacho, a small chunk, and this becomes catch, meaning 'a small piece' or even 'slightly', e.g. 'Now I understand a catch.'

Claiborne adds, 1976, that in US it is 'the dialect spoken by Hispanic (mostly Puerto Rican) immigrants in New York City. Educated Puerto Ricans dislike the term because [it implies] that their countrymen do not speak "correct" Spanish—which most of them don't, and what difference does it make?'

STONYHURST

Marples lists atramentarius, a 'fag'; bonk, bunker, a cad; cob, to 'cop' (take); crow, a master; haggory, 'a garden used for discussion... from agora, market-place'; heavy, important (or self-important), impressive; oil, to take (a culprit) by surprise, and oilers, rubber-soled shoes; pin, to enjoy—hence pinning or pinnable, enjoyable; shouting cake, a currant cake; squash, a football scrum; stew, to 'swot'; switz, a crib; taps, a caning; tolly, an improvised cane.

STRINE

Despite Mr R.W. Burchfield's stricture (New Statesman, 17 Mar. 1967, p. 376): 'Australiana abound but Strine has escaped notice', it has nothing to do with slang: it doesn't mean 'Australian slang': it does concern the way in which Australians, esp. of the larger State capitals, run words together—and mispronounce them—in conversation; its true unit is not the word but the colloquial group, usually a phrase. Let Stalk Strine, Alistair Morrison's biting satire published in 1965, mean's 'Let's talk Australian.' P.B.: A.M. later, and again under the pseudonym 'Afferbeck Lauder', compiled an equally witty collection entitled Fraffy (= frightfully), following his sojourn among the upper-class inhabitants of Mayfair.

SURNAMENES, TRUNCATED

'Always in the plural, thus, "The Partri: The Partridges; the Prenti: the Prentices". This practice has some currency among schoolboys and undergraduates' (B.P.): Aus.: since the late 1940s. I'd say that it originated as undergraduate wit, on the analogy of Ancient Roman gens (or clan) names ending in -i, reinforced by Latin plurals in -i, e.g. 'the Gracchi'. P.B.: similar affectionate perversions are not unknown in UK: the next-door neighbours of my childhood, 1930s, a family surnamed Foot, were always known as 'The Feet', and inevitably surnames ending in -man, e.g. Portman, Chapman, become 'The Portmen', etc.

SWAHILI

Swahili words used by the Armed Forces in E. Africa (and S. Africa) in 1939–45 include pesi-pesi (pronounced pacey-pacey), quickly, get a move on!, and pole-pole (pronounced poley-poley), slowly, take it easy; pombi, native beer, hence any brew obtained in the East; shauri or shauria, trouble, a row or fracas; umgeni, more, again, hence amgenis, 'afters'.

TAVERN TERMS, SLANGY AND COLLOQUIAL, IN C.17

1. In 1650 there appeared an anonymous pamphlet entitled The English Liberal Science: or a new-found Art and Order of Drinking. In addition to some general matter (introduction, comment, anecdote), there are groups of slangy and colloquial phrases used freely by tavern-frequenter's of the time. Of these terms, a few will be found also in the body of the Dict.; a few terms arose early in the C.17, a few survived for long periods; but the majority, qua drinking-terms, belong to ca. 1640–90. Unfortunately I did not come upon this quite unknown book with its valuable and amusing list of terms—a list here reproduced complete—until 14 June 1937, or four months after the publication of the 1st ed. and when the 2nd ed. was already in the press.

2. The titles which they—the drinkers—give one to another.

He is a good fellow.
A boon Companion.
A mad Greek.
A true Trojan.
A stiffe Blade.
One that is steel to the Back.
A sound Card.
A merry Comrade.
A Low-Country Souldier.
One that will take his rouse.
One that will drink deep, though it be a mile to the bottom.
One that knows how the Cards are dealt.
One that will be flush of all four.
One that will be as subtle as a Fox.
One that will drink till the ground looks blew.
One that will wind up his bottoms.
One that bears up stiff
One whose nose is dirty.
One whom Brewers horse hath bitte.

One that can relish all waters.
One that knows of which side his bread is butter'd.
One that drinks Upse-Freeze
One that drinks Supernaculum.
One that lays down his ears and drinks.
One that can sup of his Cyder.
He is true blew, &c.

3. The drinking-places and the orders of drinkers at the two Universities.

a. 'The Students or professors thereof call [a tavern with] a green garland, or painted hoop hanged out, a Colledge; a sign where there is lodging, man's meat, and horse meat [respectively] an Inn of Court, an Hall, or an Hostle; where nothing is sold but Ale & Tobacco, Grammar School: a red or blew Lettice'—i.e. a tavern with a lattice coloured thus—a free School for all commers'.

b. '... In all Schools there are severall degrees to be attained unto, therefore they in their... profound Judgement, have thought it expedient to call,

A fat Corpulent fellow, a Master of Art.

A lean drunkard, a Batchelor.

He that hath a purple face, in chact' with Rubies... , A Batchelor of Law.

He that hath a Red-nose, a Doctour

And he that goeth to School by six of the morning and hath his lesson perfect by eleven, him they hold to be a Pregnant Scholler, and grace him with that title.'

c. 'Now before they go to study, at what time of the day or night soever, it is fit to know what language.'

English is the name for Ale.

Dutch " " Beer.

Spanish " " Sack or Canary.

Italian " " Bastard (a sweet Spanish wine).

Grecian " " Rennish (Rhenish) or Palermo.

Irish " " Usqueba'he (usquebagh).

Welsh " " Metheglin.

Latin " " Alligant (Alicante).

Greek " " Muskadell (muscadell).

Hebrew " " Hypocras (hippocras).

d. 'He that weeps in his cups, and is Maudlen drunk, is said to study Hydromancie.

'He that Laughs and Talks much, studies Natural Philosophy.

'He that gives good counsel, Morality.

'He that builds Castles in the Air, Metaphisicks.

'He that sings in his drink, Music.

'He that disgorgeth his stomach, Physick.

'He that brags of his travels, Cosmography.

'He that rimes ex tempore, or speaks Play speeches, Poetry.

'He that cries Tril-lil boys is a Rhetorician.

'He that cal's his fellow Drunkard, a Logician.

'He that proves his argument by a Pamphlet or Ballad, a Grammarians.

'He that rubs off [f] his score with his elbow, hat, or cloak, an Arithmetician.

'He that knocks his head against a post, then looks up to the Skie, an Astronomer.

'He that reels from one side of the channel to another, a Geometrician.

'He that going homewards falls into a ditch or channel, a Navigator.

'He that looseth himself in his discourse, a Mooter.

'He that brawls or wrangles in his cups, a Barrester.

'He that loves to drink in higger-mugger, a Bencher.

'He that drinks to all commers, a young Student.

'He that hath no money in his purse, but drinks on trust, a Merchant venturer.

'He that in his wine is nothing els but complement, a Civilian.

'He that drinks and forgets to whom, is said to study the Art of Memory.

4. Law terms.

'He that plucks his friend or acquaintance into a Tavern or tipling-house perforce, is called a Sergeant.

'He that quarrels with his Hostesse, and calls her Whore, Puts in his Declaration.

'He that is silent or tongue-tied in his cups, is said to Demur upon the Plaintiff.

'He that ingrosseth all the talk to himself, is call'd Foreman of the Jury.

'He that with his loud talk deafens all the company, Cryer of the Court.

'He that takes upon him to make the reckoning, Pronounceth Judgement.

'He that wants money, and another man pays for, is Quit by Proclamation.

'He that gives his Host or Hostesse a Bill of his hand, is said to be Sav'd by his Clergy.

'He that is so free that he will pledge all commers, Attourney General.

'He that wears a night-cap, having been sick of a Surfeit, Sergeant of the Coffe.

'He that is observed to be drunk but once a week, An Ordinary Pursevant.

'He that takes his rowse freely but once in a moneth, a Sub-Sheriff.

'He that healths it but once in a Quarter, a Justice of the Peace.

'And he that takes his rowse but twice a year, Judge of a Circuit.'

5. Terms in use among civilians (other than lawyers, ecclesiastics, University men); apparently, among Court officials and Civil Servants chiefly.

'He that is unruly in his cups, swaggers and flings pots and drawers down stairs, breaks glasses, and beats ye fidlers about the room, they call by ye name of Major Domo.

'He that cuts down signs, bushes or lettices—Master Controuler.

'He that can win the favour of the hostesses daughter to lie with her, Principal Secretary.

'He that stands upon his strength, and begins new healths, M[aste]r of the Ceremonies.

'He that is the first to begin new frolicks, M[aste]r of the Novelties.

'He that flings Cushions, Napkins, and Trenchers about the room, M[aste]r of Mis-rule.

'He that wanting mony is forc'd to pawn his Cloak, Master of the Wardrobe.

'He that calls for Rashers, pickle-Disters, or Anchova's, Clerk of the Kitchen.

'He that talks much, and speakes nonsense, is called a Proctour.

'He that tels tedious and long tales, Register.

'He that takes the tale out of another mans mouth, Publick Notary.

6. Soldiers' terms.

'He that drinks in his boots, and gingling spurs, is called a Collonel of a Regiment.

'He that drinks in silk-stockings, and silk-garters, Captain of a Foot-Company.

'He that flings pottle and quart pots down stairs, Marshall of the Field.

'He that begins three healths together to go round the table, Master of the Ordnance.

'He that calls first in al the company for a Looking-glasse, [i.e. a chamber-pot], Camp-Master.

'He that waters the faggots by pissing in the Chimney, Corporall of the Field.

'He that thunders in [the] room and beats the Drawers, Drum Major.

'He that looks red, and colors in his drink, Ensign-Bearer.

'He that thrusts himself into company, and hangs upon others, Gentleman of a Company.

'He that keeps company and hath but two pence to spend, Lansprizado.

'He that pockets up gloves, knives, or Handkerchers, Sutler.

'He that drinks three days together without respite, An Old-Souldier.

'He that swears and lies in his drink, An Intelligencer.'

7. Sailors' terms.

'He that having over-drunk himself utters his Stomack, in his next fellows Boots or Shoes, they call, Admirall of the Narrow-Seas.

'He that pisseth under the Table to offend their shoes or stockings, Vice-Admirall.

'He that is first flaw'd—tipsy—in the company before the rest, Master of a Ship.

'He that is the second, that is drunk at the Table, Masters-Mate.

'He that slovenly spilleth his drink upon the Table, Swabber.

'He that privately and closely stealeth his liquor, Pyrat of the Narrow-Seas.

'He that is suddenly taken with the hitch-up, Master Gunner.

'He that is still smoaking with the pipe at his nose, Flute.

'He that belcheth either backward or forward, Trumpeter.'

8. 'No man must call a Good-fellow Drunkard . . . But if at any time they spie that defect in another, they may without any forfeit or just exceptions taken, say, He is Foxt, He is Flaw'd, He is Fluster'd, He is Suttle, Cupshot, Cut in the Leg or Back, He hath seen the French King, He hath swallowed an Hair or a Taven-Token, he hath whipt the Cat, He hath been at the Scriveners and learned to make Indentures, He hath bit his Grannam, or is bit by a Barn Weasel.'

9. 'Sundry Terms and Titles proper to their young Students.' (Nothing is said about lawyers but these terms would seem to be slang used by those practising or connected with the Law.)

'He that maketh himself a laughing stock to the whole company, is call'd a Tenant in Fee-simple.

'He that will be still smowching'—wheedling and caressing—and kissing his hostesse behind the door, Tenant in-tail special.

'He that will be stil kissing all commers in, Tenant in-tail general.

'He that is three parts foxt, and will be kissing, Tenant in-tail after possibility of Issue extinct.

'He that is permitted to take a nap, and to sleep, Tenant by the curtesie De Anglitter.

'If two or three women meet twice or thrice a week, to take Gossips cups, they are Tenants in dower.

'He that hath the disposing of a donative amongst his comrades, Tenant in Frank-Almain.

'He whose head seems heavier than his heels, holds in Capite.

'He whose heels are heavier than his head, holds in Soccadge.

'All Gentlemen-Drunkards, Schollers and Souldiers, hold in Knights service.

'He that drinks nothing but Sack, and Acqua-vitae, holds by Grand serientry'—sergeantry is properly a form of feudal tenure.

'He that drinks onely Ale or Beer, holds by Petit serientry.

'He that drinks uncovered, with his head bare, Tenders his homage.

'He that humbles himself to drink on his knee, Doth his fealty.

'He that h[ajunteth the Taverns, or Tap-houses, when he comes first to age, Pays his relief—a fee.

'He that hath sold and mortgaged all the Land he hath, Sueth for his Livery.

'He whose wife goeth with him to the Tavern or Ale-house, is a Free-holder.

'He whose wife useth to fetch him home from the Library [tavern or ale-house], is a Tenant at will.

'He that articles with his hostesse about the reckoning, is a Copy-holder.

'He that staggering supports himself by a wall or a post, holds by the Verge.'

10. See also the notes above, at DRINKS, for later developments.

TIDDLYWINKS

P.B.: although, strictly speaking, the terms that follow ought to be considered jargon, they are colourful and slangy enough to qualify for entry in this Dictionary. I was made aware of their existence by a short article in the Sunday Times mag., 9 Mar. 1980, and am very grateful to Mr C.W. Edwards, sometime Secretary of the English Tiddlywinks Association, for this Glossary which he compiled for me in 1980:

'blitz, v.i. and n. To pot all six winks of one colour before the 20-minute time-limit has elapsed and thus score an easy victory (American).

bomb, v.t. To play a wink at a pile of winks with destructive intent.

boondock, v.t. To send an opponent's wink (lying beneath one's own) a long way away, preferably off the table. (Amer. 'in the boondocks') [P.B. See boondocks.]

bridge, v.t. and n. To cover further winks of the opponent's colours with a wink that is already covering at least one.

bristol, v.i. and n. To play a shot with one's own wink, taking with it an underlying opponent's wink that thus remains squopped [see below]. (Difficult to describe, but ought to be effective over long distance.) From Bristol University Tiddlywinks Society in the 1960s. Most recent derivatives include 'a John O'Groats'—a disastrous attempt at a Bristol shot that loses the opponent's wink.

carvosky, v.i. and n. To pot a wink or several winks from the baseline, a distance of 3 feet. This usually happens by accident, and is to be avoided in the early stages in the game, but the name derives from the feat of Steve Carnovsky at Harvard in 1962 of potting four winks in succession from the baseline in his very first game. He immediately retired from the game. (Amer.)

doubleton, an. A shot which results in one of one's own winks squopping two enemy winks.

murgatroyd, n. A badly manufactured wink which is flat on both sides. Etymology unknown, but very probably Oxford Univ. T. S.

nurdle, v.t. To play a wink into a position so near the pot it cannot be potted. (No such position really exists, in my view!)

pile-jump, v.t. and n. To play a shot which involves placing at least two winks on at least two more, with one's own winks preferably on top and in command. (Amer.)

pot, v.t. and n. To play one's wink(s) into the pot. Hence to pot-out, to place all six winks of one's colour in the pot, hence gaining a bonus point. Pot-squop is a strategy which involves one of the two partners attempting to pot his winks, while the other keeps the opponents tied up by covering them. The alternative strategies are double-pot (bordering on the insane) and double-squop (the most commonly practised and effective strategy).

scrunge, v.t. To pot a wink which then bounces out of the pot again.

squidger, n. A circular plastic counter of between 1 and 2 inches in diameter used to play one's (smaller) winks with. Hence to squidge, squidging.

squidge-off, n. and v.i. The action of playing a wink to the middle to determine who commences the game. (Etym. from kick-off).

round(s), n. The last five shots of the four players after the time-limit has elapsed.

squop, v.t. and n. To cover one's opponent's wink with one's own (Cambridge, 1950s).

squopped up, p. ppl. The state of having all one's winks covered, and thus being unable to play a shot.

sub, v.i. To play one's wink under an opponent's wink or pile, inadvertently (from 'submarine').

tiddlywinks, n. See OED. The adult game was devised by Cambridge undergraduates in 1955.

wink(s), n. Abbr. of above, but also the six plastic counters, two 3/32 in. thick and 7/8 in. in diameter and four 1/16 in. thick and 5/8 in. in diameter, which each player has.

There are doubtless many more terms which I have forgotten or do not employ myself, but these I think are the most commonly used. There is, I believe, an American linguistics thesis on winks terminology, but I've just had a vain hunt for a reference to it. The American terminology has influenced our British terminology, and of the two theirs is—not untypically—the more colourful and creative language. I restrict myself to those terms in current usage on the mainland. Putting a date to the terms is difficult, but none of them is likely to be older than 1955 and the founding of modern tiddlywinks in Cambridge.'

TOMBOLA

P.B.: I have here concentrated all the notes about the game that were scattered through the 7th ed. They were drawn mostly from three sources: Laurie Atkinson, ca. 1950 (=A); Michael Harrison, Reported Safe Arrival, 1943, p. 85 (=H); and Frank Richards, dealing with Services, mainly army, early C.20 (=R). To these have been added my own observations, army calls, later 1950s (=B); and the later C.20 Bingo calls, some rhyming, listed in Peter Wright, Cockney Dialect and Slang, 1981 (=W). P=unannotated, from earlier editions of the Dict.

The game was known originally, in later C.18, as Lotto (1778: SOD); in late C.19—early 20 Services it was House or Housey-Housey, from the call shouted by the winner on completing his card or ticket; by mid-C.20 it had become Tombola (SOD: 1880, as 'a kind of lottery'); and finally, when it became a widespread craze ca. 1960, the game was called Bingo (although SOD has 1936). It appears that earlier the highest number to be marked off was 100, but by 1950, if not before, this had been reduced to 90. Nearly every number has its nickname, some have several; in Service messes the numbers have to be inferred from the nicknames shouted by the caller, they are not included in the calls every time; in civilian Bingo halls however the game has to be made as simple as possible.

The traditional call to attention on the game, at the start or resumption of play, is 'Eyes down—look in! And the first number is...' If, as must occasionally happen, the first number drawn out of the bag to be marked off by the holders of those cards on which it is printed is actually the number 1, the caller will continue, 'as it should be: number one!' Otherwise, the numbers may be called as follows. Note that the single numbers are usually prefaced, 'On its own...'; 'q.v.' references are to the main text of the Dict., where most of the nicknames are listed anyway, some with further explanation.

1. Kelly's eye (R) or (rare) wonk (P); Buttered scone (W); Little Jimmy (R).

2. Dirty old Jew (A); Baby's done it (B); Me an' you or Doctor Who (from children's TV) (both W); One little duck (see 22) (B).

3. Goodness me (P); Dearie me (B); One little feather or fevver (see 33) (B).
4. Knock at the door; Door to door; 'The one next door—it's number four' (all W).
5. Jack's alive (P); Dead alive (W).
6. Spot below (P); the counter has a spot below the figure to distinguish it from 9; Tom Mix; Chopping sticks or Chopsticks (all W).
7. One little crutch (see 77) (B); Gawd's in 'eaven (W).
8. Garden gate (A); One fat lady or waaf (see 88) (B); 'Arry Tate (W).
9. The doctor (P). The 'number 9' pill was the Service medical officer's standby, especially to cure constipation, in early C.20, and gave rise to variants: Doctor's chum (B); Doctor Foster (P); Doctor's favourite or orders (H); Doctor's shop (P); Medicine and duty (P); 'Orspital (W).
10. May be preceded 'One oh...': Shiny ten, q.v. (H); occ. Blind ten (cf. 20); Downing Street (A), ex the Prime Minister's official residence, whence [name of incumbent]'s den (B); Cock's an' 'en (W); Uncle Ben (H).
11. Legs eleven (R), Kelly's legs (P), or Legs—they're lovely (B); Marine's breakfast (H). (The number resembles a pair of legs, and was given this extra syllable to distinguish it from 7 and avoid mistakes.)
- From here on, the double numbers, except in multiples of 10 and 11, are called with 'and' between the tens and digits, e.g.:
12. One and two—one duzz (=dozen) (B); Monkey's cousin (W).
13. Unlucky for some (R); or simply 'Unlucky'.
15. Rugby team (W).
16. Sweet sixteen or lovely (B); Sweet sixteen and never been kissed (R).
17. Never been kissed or Never had it (A); How I like 'em (B, who adds, 'if followed by a much higher number, e.g. 87, the latter would then be called "8 and 7—how I get 'em!"').
20. Blind twenty (A).
21. Key of the door (R), ex the former legal coming-of-age; Age o' mi of dutch (W); Royal salute (H).
22. Dinkie doo(s) (A); All the twos (A); Two little, or A couple of, ducks (B), ex shape, also: Ducks in the, or on a, pond or in the water (P).
24. Two duzz (=dozen) (B); Pompey [=Portsmouth] (wh)ore (A).
26. Bed and breakfast (A, who adds 'half-a-crown being evidently the accepted traditional charge').
28. The Old Brags (R), q.v.
30. Blind thirty (A); Speed limit (W).
33. All the threes (A); occ. elab. All the threes—fevvers, or simply Fevvers!, an allusion to the Cockneyism 'firty-free-fahsand fevvers on a frush's froat' (B); Gertie Lee (P).
34. Dirty 'ore (A).
36. Three duzz (=dozen) (B).
39. All the steps (A: from the title of John Buchan's novel The Thirty-Nine Steps).
40. Blind forty (A); Life begins (B: from the advertising slogan of that tonic which claims to 'fortify the over-forties').
44. All the fours (A); Open the door (R); Menopause (W); Diana Dors (B); Pompey ('whores' understood), whence var. Grant Road (also B: the brothel district of Bombay, an army call inherited from those with service in India).
45. Halfway house (B: for the later-style card).
48. Four duzz (B).
49. Copper (ex PC49 of radio police series); Cannock-nuff (also W: from WW1 attempts at French quarante-neuf).
50. Blind fifty (A); Halfway house (A: the old-style card); Change hands (B).
51. The Highland Div[ision] (B).
52. The Lowland Div[ision] (B).
53. The Welsh Div[ision] (B: these three refer to WW2 military formations).
55. All the fives (A).

57. Heinz or Beans or All the beans (A: from Heinz's well-known 57 varieties).

59. The Brighton Line (B: hearsay tells me that the first engine used to pull the old Brighton Belle was locomotive number 59).

60. Blind sixty (A).

65. Old age pension (P); Stop work (W: men's retirement age).

66. All the sixes (A); Clickety-click (R), whence Clicketies (B).

70. Blind seventy (A).

72. Six duzz (B).

76. Was she? (B: i.e. worth the cost of the marriage certificate; or, as A has it more positively) She was worth it!; Trombones (W: from the song about 'seventy-six trombones in the big parade').

77. All the sevens (A); Crutches (B: from the shape).

80. Blind eighty (A).

88. All the eights (A); Two fat ladies or Two old ladies or Two fat waafs (B: ex shape); The Connaught Rangers, q.v. (B).

90, 99, 100. The highest number in the game may be called Top of the house or shop (P) or ... the bleeding bungalow (R) or ... the ship. Lt Cdr J. Irving, Royal Navalese, 1946, has '90: Top of the Grot'; Petch notes Top of the box as a Bingoism, and W has Top of the tree.

After the call of 'House' for the claim of a won game, the usual call is 'Eyes down for a check'. For resumption after a trivial query, players are warned of the resumption by 'Eyes down'. If someone 'has a sweat on' and calls 'House!' prematurely out of nervous anticipation, and his card is found on checking to be wrong or incomplete, then the caller announces, amid jeers, 'House a bogey!', and the game continues.

In order to break the monotony of always playing for a 'full house', there are various subsidiary forms. The simplest is 'a jildi five', covering the first five numbers of the card in any order. 'A Nelson's column' requires one number on the top line, one on the middle, and one on the bottom, as near vertical as possible on the card.

Atkinson defines 'a NAAFI sandwich' as 'covering, for example, two in the top line of the card, one in the next line, and two on the following line, or any three lines in this order.' Whereas B remembers it as a round in which the winning ticket has all the numbers in the top and bottom lines marked off as having been called, but none in the middle line. Atkinson contrasts with his version, an 'Officers' Mess sandwich', in which 'the middle term' is thicker, e.g. two, three, two. B knew A's version of the NAAFI sandwich as 'a Union Jack', with all four corner numbers marked off, and the centre one of the middle line.

TWO-UP

The Australian gambling game known also as swi or swy. Certain expressions are to be ranked rather as jargon than as slang; e.g. Come in, spinner! (the title of the novel, 1951, by Dymphna Cusack & Florence James)—and Fair go, spinner!; Get cut in the guts!; Heads on 'em like mice, these three occurring in, e.g., Douglas Baglin & Barbara Mullins, Rough as Guts, 1973.

VERBS IN, C.18 SLANG

Verbs that are s. or coll. in Ned Ward—one of the most, if not the most, coll. of all C.18 writers—are these, taken from his work of 1700–24: brim (1703; see Dict.), tick (to have credit; 1709), pig in (share quarters; 1703), knock off (to cease; 1708; prob. always S.E.), mumble (to chew; 1703; rather, S.E.), tiffle up (to dress up; 1709), swop (to exchange; 1703), dop down (one's noddle; to duck; 1703); huckle (to chatter; 1703).

Verbal phrases that are eligible: make a loose (to escape; 1709); open one's pipes (to sing; 1709), pass a sham saint (to be a hypocrite; 1709), pay one's shot (1722), save one's bacon (to escape; 1722), stand the bears (to suffer; 1703), and tie the noose (spelt tye the nooze, to marry; 1700). Matthews.

WAR SLANG, 1939-45

As in 1914-18, so in 1939-45, war has considerably increased the vocabulary both of S.E. and of slang and other unconventional English: see esp. my Words at War: Words at Peace (1948), alike for general and for particular aspects of the subject, whether for 1914-18 or for 1939-45.

In [the first post-WW2 ed. of this Dict.] Forces' slang of the latter period is richly—yet, inevitably, far from completely—represented; in Navy, Army, Air Force, there are so many arms or branches of each Service, and so many theatres of war involved, that it is impossible to glean everything from every harvest-field. For a conspectus, hence for a conspective view, the inquirer could do worse than consult Forces' Slang: 1939-1945 which, published late in 1948, has been edited, with an introductory essay, by myself, and to which I have contributed the Air Force terms; the Navy's words and phrases being the privilege of Wilfred Granville, and the Army's being that of Frank Roberts, two men who know what they're talking about.

Wilfred Granville, by the way, is the author of Sea Slang of the 20th Century (published early in 1949), to which I have had the honour of writing the introduction and of supplying the etymologies: in that comprehensive work, he has assembled not only the Navy's slang and colloquialisms of both wars, and earlier and after, but also the Merchant Service's relevant terms, with the addition of yachtsmen's, trawlermen's, bargemen's, canal-men's and so forth. I have been fortunate in availing myself of Wilfred Granville's generosity: he has permitted me to draw upon this delightful book. (Note written in 1949.)

WESTMINSTER

In his interesting Westminster, 1902, Reginald Airy discourses thus: 'Westminster has a fairly large repertoire of words and phrases peculiar to the school. In the first place, a Westminster never goes "to" a part of the school, but always "up" or "down". Thus a boy will talk of going "up-fields", "down-school", etc. Nor does he use the preposition "in": e.g. he leaves his books "down" college. To be "out of school" is to be ill. "Up-school" also serves as a name for "detention". [All these uses are rather j. than either s. or coll.]. The college servant is in all cases "John"—a name now applied to any school servant. A "ski" [q.v.] is the word for a cad... To work is to "muzz"—a "muzz" being one who works hard, corresponding, even in the delicate opprobrium underlying the name, to the Eton "sap". A "greeze" is a scum or crowd, and compulsory games are known as "station" [ex stationary]. In many cases words are shortened: e.g. the Debating Society is Deb. Soc., etc. A boy is "tanned" by a monitor, but "handed" by the headmaster. A half-holiday is "late play", a whole holiday "a play". [Both these terms are j.]... At Grant's a study is known as a "Chiswick". Several words are peculiar to college: milk is known as "bag", sugar as "beggar"; a new gown is a "bosky", and the pendent sleeve of a gown a "bully", while any coat other than an "Eton" or a "tails" is a "shag". When the monitors meet to interview a culprit, they hold a "case" [ex the legal term]. An inkpot was until lately known as a "dip"...: a novel is "a blue-book". The monitors in college are Mon. Cham. (short for Monitor of Chambers and pronounced Monsham), Mon. Stat. (Monitor of Station), and Mon. Schol. (Monitor of School). [These three terms are j.]... For other words, a ball is called a "blick", prize compositions are sent up on "principe" paper, while ordinary foolscap sheets are called "quarters"; the second and the third of these terms are j.—Cf the entries at ETON, HARROW, and:

WINCHESTER

Winchester College slang is the richest and most interesting of all the Public School slangs: cf. the entries at ETON, HARROW and WESTMINSTER. Many terms will be found in these pages, but it is to be remarked that in the Winchester 'notions' it is extremely difficult, in many instances, to distinguish between technicalities (j.) and slang or colloquial terms. The 'locus classicus' is R.G.K. Wrench's Winchester Word-Book, 1891; the second ed.—the only one possessed by the British Museum—followed in 1901. But a very good short account appears in R. Townsend Warner's Winchester, 1900—from which this abridgement:

"Notions", or the school language... Complicated as the language of Winchester is, there is no consciousness of anything like affectation or pedantry in using it. To a new-comer, after a week of two, notions seem the only possible words for certain meanings... As they are the last forgotten, so they are the first learnt lesson of Winchester. A new man must learn, for instance, that the article is seldom found in Winchester grammar, especially in the names of places...

2. Another tendency is the pluralisation of words... Hills, meads, croquets (cricket). The last word also is an example of the fondness for strengthening vowels in the middle of words, such as cropple, meaning to "pluck" or "plough" (from cripple), and roush for a rush or rapid stream of water, with which cf. housle, q.v., for hustle.

3. A less ancient tendency of Winchester talk is to drop the final "tion"... lengthening the vowel then left final; thus "examinā" [examinah] for "examination"... [Wrench dates it from ca. 1850.]

4. Apart from their often respectable antiquity, notions also differ from ordinary school slang in that many of them are not merely the language of the boys, but are part of the official language of the school used by and to masters also. Thus is answer to a Don (master) asking a man why he was "tardy up to books at morning lines" [late in school at first lesson], it would be quite proper to reply that "junior in chambers sported a thoke" [the junior in his dormitory overslept himself instead of waking the others in time].

5. Many notions are simply old English words which have been dropped out of common use. For instance, to firk is the notion for to send or to send away. And we find this sense... in "Morte Arthure"... Again, a Winchester man who says he finds it "an awful swink (hard work) to do mathematics" [is using an excellent old English word]; and should he... pursue his mathematical labours till he got a headache, he would naturally say it works (hurts), thus using the language of... Malory: "myn hede werches so". If his head got worse he might have to go continent... to sickhouse or a continent room. The word continent here means "keeping within doors" [as in Shakespeare]. And if he got worse the doctor might forbid him to "come abroad" (the notion for being allowed out again after "going continent"), [thus employing the language of Sir Thomas More].

6. Latin words

These are either bodily imported into use or slightly altered or contracted... This is a common practice of all schools, but... particularly prevalent at Winchester, where... the talking of Latin was [once] a regular institution.

Half-remedy, commonly half-rem, "half holiday". From remedium.

To tund, "to beat with a ground-ash". From tundo.

Semper, "always", used as an adjective.

Non-licet, "not allowed".

... A ball is still called a "pill", which is simply pilum anglicised, while the notion for a stone is a "rock" [via L. saxum: cf. U.S. usage]... Other Latin-formed words are evidently perpetuated from the Latin of the statutes, or early school rules. Thus to socius, meaning to go in company with another..., is a relic of the early rule that scholars must always go in company, "sociati"...

7. Names of people perpetuated as words...

Barter [see main text]...

John Des paper, a special kind of paper introduced at Winchester for mathematics by John Desborough Walford, the first regular mathematical master.

Bill brighter [see main text]...

8. Notions surviving as names of places

[Technicalities, these.]...

9. Notions commemorating old school customs

[E.g. (perhaps), brock, brockster, see main text]...

'Prefects' writing-tables are still called "washing-stools" in college, because the tables were originally provided to stand basins on for washing. [This, clearly, is a technicality.]

WOMEN IN C.18 SLANG

Women receive the following s. names in the writings of Ned Ward in the first third of C.18. A girl: drozel (1714), giggler (more usually of a wanton), hussif (1703; gen. of a married woman and perhaps always S.E.), Malkin (1706; spelt Maukin; prob. always S.E.), petticoat (1709; ditto), pug (1706) or pug-Nancy (1703); in 1712 he applies blowze to a shrew, and in 1709 honest trout to a respectable woman ('who is 'a good sort'); Billingsgate fishwives he refers to in 1703 as Flat-Caps and Straw-Hats. Matthews.

'A most fascinating book; an archaeological museum, a veritable Madame Tussaud's of the vulgar language.
It is a really epoch-making, monumental piece of work, carried out with astonishing industry and learning'
New Statesman

Eric Honeywood Partridge, renowned philologist, etymologist and lexicographer, dedicated his life to the study of language but it is for his work on slang, and in particular for his flagship dictionary, The Dictionary of Slang and Unconventional English, that he is most widely remembered and admired. Now for the first time from Routledge, the eighth, and current, edition of Partridge's renowned dictionary is available in paperback.

Originally published in 1984, this edition was published posthumously but had been worked upon by Partridge until six weeks before his death. Its place in the history of the lexicography of slang is assured as the last edition to feature original work by Partridge himself.

This paperback edition features a new foreword by David Crystal, Honorary Professor at the University of Wales, writer, editor and broadcaster.

If you would like to contribute to the future edition of this dictionary, please go to www.partridge-slang.com

Reference/English Language

 Routledge
Taylor & Francis Group

11 New Fetter Lane
London EC4P 4EE
29 West 25th Street
New York NY 10001
www.routledge.com
Printed in Great Britain

ISBN 0-415-29189-5

