Philologists who chase

FOREWORD

The great, round, duomo-like reading-room of the British Museum is one of the world's most prolific sources of scholarship. Of all the scholars who have toiled to carve their own books out of the word mountain there, the most diligent and extraordinary was Eric Honeywood Partridge. Every day for more than fifty years he was at his desk, unless interrupted by diversions from his work such as the Wimbledon fortnight or the Second World War. It was his seat. 'Oh no, madam,' a not altogether pleased American scholar was told. 'You can't occupy K1: Mr Partridge will be coming in a few minutes and that is his seat.' That was where I found him when I was sent to interview him on one of my first jobs for The Times, and we went across to the grotty little café, Oddi's, where he used to come up for air from his web of words. For a man so obsessed with his work, he was astonishingly generous with his time. Professional lexicographers today are supported by computers, secretaries, readers, and other back-up. Eric Partridge was a one-man-band, supported by a huge network of friends and correspondents around the world. He was never too busy to reply to an importunate letter. He was a gaunt, shy man, a New Zealander and therefore unmarked by English class distortions about language, lit up from inside when he got on to his hobby horse. He described himself as an addict of language, 'who is cheerfully and incorrigibly serving a life sentence'. He was an amateur in the true sense of the word, whose love of English has enriched the world and added to the gaiety of nations.

Of the more than 40 books that were researched from seat K1 between 1923 and 1976, the word is that Origins, his etymological dictionary of modern English, is the one of which Eric himself was most proud. It is a work of wide-ranging, broad-based, eclectic scholarship, but also a magical treasure hunt, and fun. His etymologies are based on literary scholarship, intuitive judgement, and bright imagination more than on philological theory. Indeed, he distrusted theory from Bloomfield and the Prague School to Chomsky and the structuralists. Not surprisingly some narrow professionals tried to dismiss him as an unsound amateur. The trouble with that line is not only that his books are compulsively readable while theirs are not. It is worse than that: he often got it right and hit the bull's eye, where they had missed or given up after five minutes and written 'origin obsce.'

Nathaniel Bailey was the first English writer to try to give the etymologies of words in An Universal Etymological Dictionary published in 1721, and hilariously inventive some of them were. Samuel Johnson drew on Bailey for his dictionary, and added some startling etymologies of his own, for example deriving helter-skelter from the Old English for 'the darkness of hell, hell being a place of confusion'. A cheeky young Irishman criticized the great man's etymology, and when invited to do better, offered, quick as a flash, hilariter celeriter, Latin for 'cheerfully quickly'. Brilliant improvisation, but wrong again. As far as we can be sure in such turbid waters, Partridge got it right as an echoic reduplication, like hurry-scurry, or the German holter-polter. Perhaps it is based ultimately on the Middle English skelte hasten.

After philology became professionalized, the first specialist etymological dictionary was produced by Walter William Skeat between 1879-82, revised and enlarged in 1910. He had begun it with the object of collecting material for James Murray's New English Dictionary, renamed the Oxford English Dictionary. This was followed by Ernest Weekley's etymological dictionary, and then by Partridge's in 1958. Finally in 1966 came Dr C.T. Onions's The Oxford Dictionary of English Etymology, harvesting his lifetime's work on the OED.

All the others are reference books, cautious and based on the latest linguistic theory. Partridge is in a pear-tree of his own. His book is for bedside and browsing as well as reference. As The Times Literary Supplement said, reviewing its first edition: 'It is both abundantly informative and delightfully readable.' Its idiosyncratic virtue is to collect assembled families of words in one entry, and thus discover connexions and unexpected roots throughout all the cognate Indo-European languages. So for example, opening his book at random, you look up light, and before you know where you are you are off on a typical Partridge hunt through levin and leys and lunatics and lynx. Lynx? 'The quadruped was so named from the bright colour of its keen and flashing eyes.' Turn up watch, and you are directed to vigor, where a great feast of vegetables and invigilators, vigilantes and waitresses, vegetarians and wakers is waiting for you.

No doubt some of the connexions are wrong (not many), and some are speculative or brilliant guesses. No other etymologist has been so widely read in European literature, and so bold as Partridge. They would not have thought it scholarly, or perhaps they could not have coped with the vast reading. Look up Partridge on the tarot cards used in fortune telling, whose roots he traces down the centuries to the Gypsies and Ancient Egyptian theology. He was aware that the professionals gasped at his leaps. He told the story of the tarot cards in one of his books called From Sanskrit to Brazil, 'a title that caused a very good scholar to imply, although he didn't in so many words say, that he thought it damn' silly'. Look up Partridge on mystery words of unknown origin, such as lad and lass, and boy and girl, and if you have the word-itch at all, as most of us do, you will be off on a helter-skelter as hilarious and accelerating as the cheeky young Irishman's false etymology to Dr Johnson.

True scholars must have a humane imagination as well as dry facts and a cogent theory. Eric Partridge made his apologia in a paper to the English Seminar of Liverpool University on October 19, 1953: 'Etymology, you see, calls for the exercise of mind, but also of will: for cool judgement, but also a warm heart: for knowledge of books, but also of mankind: for research into books, but also into life: for a bed-rock of philology, but also a deep top-soil of general culture: for a knowledge of, or at least an unfailing tact in, psychology, but also a wide reading in history: for a combination of well-ordered general knowledge and of well-directed specialized knowledge: that specialized knowledge falling into two parts, a general knowledge of language and its operations, and a particular knowledge of all those branches of philology upon which etymology, if it is not to degenerate into ingenuity on the one hand or into fancy on the other, must be based. Advisedly I say 'fancy', not 'imagination'. In etymology, imagination, if carefully controlled, will occasionally solve problems that phonetics cannot touch; it must, however, be imagination exercised, not in defiance of philology, but within the vast horizons available to even the most formal philology; the trouble is that some people shrink from marching to the horizon, for fear (an early medieval fear) of falling over the world's edge.'

We should not be surprised (though we are saddened) that the man holding such subversive and magnificent views about scholarship never received the official recognition, the chairs and doctorates and knighthoods and peerages, that lesser men got. Eric would have been embarrassed. Not his cup of tea, at all. But he did better. He left a name that has become a byword for all lovers of English, and some books, notably Origins and his Dictionary of Slang and Unconventional English, that will be read and loved when the work of lesser scholars is ashes under the new British Library at Euston.

PHILIP HOWARD

PREFACE

PROFESSOR W. W. SKEAT'S large and small etymological dictionaries were last revised in 1910; Ernest Weekley's Concise Etymological Dictionary and Ferdinand Holthausen's Etymologisches Wörterbuch der englischen Sprache, both excellent in their way, treat words so briefly and ignore ramifications so wholeheartedly that it was easy to plan a work entirely different—a remark that applies equally to Skeat's Concise and, for relationships, almost as much to his larger book.

'Exigencies of space'—not always a myth, nor always a mere excuse for laziness—preclude a large vocabulary. The number of entries in Origins is comparatively small, even for an etymological dictionary, but the system I have devised has enabled me, with the aid of cross-references, not only to cover a very much wider field than might have seemed possible but also, and especially, to treat all important words much more comprehensively and thoroughly. I have concentrated upon civilization rather than upon science and technology; dialect and cant have been ignored; slang is represented only by a very few outstanding examples (e.g., phoney).

On the other hand, I have included a certain number of words not usually found in a small British etymological dictionary: words that, little known in Britain, form part of the common currency of Standard English as it is spoken and written in the United States of America, Canada, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, India and Pakistan.

One class of words has deliberately been treated very meagrely: such exotics as do not fall into the classification 'Americanisms'—'Australianisms'—etc. It does not much help the searcher to be told that llama has been adopted—that is, accepted unchanged—from Quechuan, or okapi from Bambulan (Mbuba); only a little more does it help him to learn that cassowary has been adapted from Malayan kasuari. For Amerindian, Australian aboriginal, Maori, Hindi and similar words, I have, wherever possible, avoided the baldness and inadequacy of such entries as 'kangaroo. Australian aboriginal word' or 'pakeha. Maori for a white man'.

In a book of this size a certain number of abbreviations is unavoidable. These abbreviations will not impede the easy flow of the consecutive English I hold to be indispensable in a book designed for the use of the general intelligent public as well as for that of the erudite. Nor, I hope, will scholars and students find readability a defect; after all, a work is not necessarily the more scholarly for being written in philological shorthand. Where, however, the conventions of lexicography make for clarity and simplicity, I have followed most of these conventions: and where either extremely brief etymologies or multiple cognates and complex histories occur, I have employed a brevity hardly less austere than compact. This combination of consecutiveness and terseness should prevent the treatment from becoming too deadly monotonous.

Warmest thanks are due, both to Professor John W. Clark, of the University of Minnesota, for help in choosing terms important in the United States of America, yet little known in Britain and the British Dominions, and to Professor D. Winton Thomas for occasional help in Semitic origins.

I shall be grateful for (private) notification, whether of printer's and other errors or of entries that 'simply must be added': non-specialist words that, falling within the 10,000-or-so used by every intelligent person, have been inadvertently omitted from this dictionary. Also, a few important affixes and elements have probably slipped through the net.

ERIC PARTRIDGE

Postscript to the second edition. I have to thank Professors John W. Clark, Norman Davis, Simeon Potter, for some valuable notifications and corrections.

Postscript to the third edition. I owe much to Professors John W. Clark, Norman Davis, Simeon Potter and especially R. M. Wilson; and something to Mr R. W. Burchfield (by salutary indirection)—Dr A. J. R. Green—Professor Mario Pei—Mr Stephen Potter—and Mr T. Skaug of Oslo. All these gentlemen have been most generous: I can only hope that the third edition approaches their ideals a little more closely than did the first: it leaves me a shade less dissatisfied than I was.

Postscript to the fourth edition. In addition to several correspondents telling me of this or that printers' error, I have to thank especially Professor Ralph W. V. Elliott of the University of Adelaide, for both corrections and suggestions; Professor Yoshio Terasawa (of Tokyo City University), whose corrections largely duplicate Professor Elliott's; also Dr Nicola Cerri, Jr, of Maryland. It is difficult to thank at all adequately all the persons concerned, but I can at least assure them that I am most grateful.

HOW TO USE THIS DICTIONARY

AN etymological dictionary supplies neither pronunciations nor definitions. Here, pronunciation is indicated only where it affects the origin or the development of a word; and definitions only where, in little-known words, they are necessary to an understanding of the problem. Wherever the meaning of a word has notably changed, the sense-transformation is explained, as, for instance, in knave, marshal, phoney, adjectival rum: here we enter the domain of semantics, the science of meanings, for semantics will sometimes resolve an otherwise insoluble problem.

If the reader intends to use this book extensively and even if he intends merely to consult it occasionally, he will spare himself much time and trouble if he previously familiarizes himself with the list of abbreviations immediately preceding the dictionary proper.

If he wishes to be in a position to understand words in their fullest implications and subtleties, in their nuances and most delicate modifications, he will do well to study the list of suffixes and then the little less important list of prefixes; lists that are themselves etymological. By the way, the prefixes and suffixes are my own idea; the list of compound-forming elements (this list, too, is etymological), that of an eminent and humane, practical yet imaginative French philologist, the late M. Albert Dauzat. Like his, my list is confined to learned elements: where he omits such elements as, in the fact, are self-contained French words, I omit such elements as are English words recorded in the dictionary itself. My list, however, is more than twice as long as his and, in treatment, much more spacious, for Origins differs considerably from the Dictionnaire étymologique de la langue française.

This list of compound-forming elements will enable inquirers to ascertain the etymology of most of the innumerable learned words—scientific and technical, philosophical and psychological, economic and sociological, linguistic and literary—missing from the dictionary; these are specialist terms. Take, for example, Calyptorhynchus, a genus of dark-coloured cockatoos: such a word has no right to appear in an etymological dictionary and no privilege to appear in any 'straight' dictionary other than one of the Universal Stores class. Yet the list of elements will reveal that the word is compounded of calypto-, meaning 'covered', hence 'hidden', and -rhynchus, 'beak'.

Having assimilated the table of abbreviations and the lists of Prefixes, Suffixes, Elements, inquirers will find consultation easy and reading unimpeded. The cross-references will present no difficulty, for if one word is to be sought at another, as for instance erg at work, and if the latter entry be at all long, the long entry is divided into numbered paragraphs.

'See WORK' would mean 'See that word in the Dictionary'. If the dictionary contains any such references as 'See para-'—'See -ace'—'See calypto-', the application is clearly to para- in Prefixes, -ace in Suffixes, calypto- in Elements. If the reference happens to be double, as in 'See PSEUDO and pseudo-', the application would be to the former in the dictionary and to the latter in Elements.

All words belonging to alphabets other than 'English'—to Greek, Russian, Egyptian, for instance—have been transliterated. The transliteration of Greek words, in particular, has been more exact than in several dictionaries one might, but does not, name. I have, for χ , preferred kh to ch, and represented $\gamma\gamma$ as ng, $\gamma\kappa$ as nk, $\gamma\xi$ as nx, $\gamma\chi$ as nkh. In pre-Medieval Latin words I have retained i and u, as in Iulius, ML Julius, and uinum, ML vinum, for reasons too obvious to be enumerated. Long Greek and Latin vowels have been shown as long. I have, however, omitted that over the final \bar{i} of Latin passives and deponents.

a, indefinite article. See ONE.

abaft. See AFT, para 2.

abandon comes, in ME, from OF abandoner (whence abandonement, whence E abandonment), itself from the n abandon, arising from the phrase (mettre or laisser) a bandon, in(to) the power (of someone): a, Mod à, from L ad, to+bandon (cf Norman banon), power or authority, from ban, a sovereign's proclamation within his jurisdiction. Cf BAN.

abase: late ME abeese, abasse: OF abaissier (F abaissier): a, to+baissier, to lower, from VL bassiare*, from bassus, low: cf the adj BASE. Abasement: prompted by F abaissement, but from abase+suffix -ment.

abash: ME abashen, earlier abaishen, earliest abaissen: OF esbair, esbahir (F ébahir), to astound: formed either of es, from L ex, out (of)+bah! (astonishment)+inf suffix -ir, hence lit 'to get a bah out of someone', or, more prob, of es+baer (Mod bayer), to bay, influenced by baif, astounded (B & W): cf 'to BAY'. Abashment: OF esbahissement, from esbahir, influenced by abaissier (see ABASE). Cf ABEYANCE.

abattoir. See BATE. Cf the 2nd BAT, para 3.

abbé, abbot, abess; abbey, abbacy.

The descent is from Aramaic abbā, father, thus: post-Class Gr ἀββᾶ (abba), indeclinable; ἀββᾶς, abbas (gen abbados), 'reverend father', abbot:

I. LL Abba, 'God the Father'; LL abbās (gen abbātis), abbot: LL acc abbātem, OF abet, abe, F abbé: LL o/s abbāt-, OE abbad, abbod—whence E abbot:

II. LL abbātissa (from abbāt-, o/s of LL abbās)—OF abaesse, abbesse—whence E abess:

III. ML abbātia (same origin), monastery, convent, headed by an abbot or an abess, hence an abbot's office or dignity—whence E abbacy; and, from the basic LL sense, OF abaie, abeie (F abbaye), whence E abbey; the derivative ML adj abbātialis yields abbatial.

abbreviate. See ADDENDA TO DICTIONARY.

abdicate, abdication. See DICT, para 8.

L abdōmen, o.o.o., perh derives from abdere (ab+dare), to put away, aside, at a distance, hence to cover or hide. The basic sense of dare, to give, has been lost in the cpds, which take on that of the IE r dhe-*, to place. Abdominal: abdomin-, o/s of abdōmen+adj suffix -al. Cf the element abdomino-.

abduct, abduction, abductor. See DUKE, para 6.

aberrant, aberration. See ERR, para 2.

abet, abettor. See BAIT.

abeyance is an AF word deriving from MF-EF abeance, expectation, from MF-EF abeer: a (mod à), to+baer, beer, to gape (at): cf ABASH and esp BAY, v. Basic idea: hope deferred, pointless expectation.

abhor, abhorrence, abhorrent. See HEARSE, para 7.

abide. See BIDE, para 2.

ability. See HABIT, para 5.

abject, abjection: f.a.e. JET.—Imm from L abiectus (ML abj-), pp of abi(i)cere, to throw away, and from the derivative abiectio, o/s abiectio- (ML abj-).

abjure, abjurement or abjuration. Cf CONJURE, but see JURY, n, para 4.

ablaut. See LOUD, para 3.

abluent, ablution. See LAVA, para 9.

abnegate, abnegation. See NEGATE, para 2.

abnormal, abnormality. See NORM, para 3.

Abo, abo. See ORIGIN, para 6.

abode. See BIDE, para 3.

abolish, abolishment, abolition (-ism, -ist): 1st, via abolissant, pres p, or (nous) abolissons, we abolish, from late MF-F abolir, to abolish—cf perish from F périr—from L abolēre, to destroy, to abolish, perh ex abolescere, to perish (ab, away, (hence) not+alescere, to nourish, cf ALIMENT); 2nd either=abolish+suffix -ment or, more prob, derives from F abolissement; 3rd, abolition (whence abolitionism, abolitionist: cf the suffixes -ism, -ist): adopted from late MF-F, which took it from abolitiōnem, the acc of L abolitiō, itself from abolitus, pp of abolēre.

aboriginal, aborigine. See ORIGIN, para 6.

about: ME aboute, earlier abouten, earliest abutēn: OE ābutan, for onbūtan, on the outside of:

on+būtan, outside, itself contracting be, by+ūtan, outside, itself deriving from ūt, out: cf therefore ON, BY, OUT. Adv from prep. Cf:

above: ME above, earlier aboven: late OE abufan: a, on+bufan, above, itself contracting be, by+ufan, above: cf therefore ON, BY, OVER. Prep very soon from adv. Cf. prec.

abracadabra: o.o.o., it is explained either (in B & W) as the LL transcription of Gr ἀβρακάδαβρα (abracadabra, where c=s but was read as k), the whole being an elaboration of LL (Church Fathers') Abraxas, for Basilides the Gnostic's Ἀβρααδάξ, Abraxas, the Lord of Heaven—'The numerical value of this figment is 365, the number of days in the year' (Sophocles)—found on amulets; or else (in Webster) as L abracadabra from Aram abhadda kēdābrah, 'Disappear (O sickness) as this word'—abracadabra written as a diagram resting finally on the initial a.

abrasax, abraxas. A charm, an amulet. See ABACADABRA.

abreast. See BREAST.

abridge, abridgement.

The latter comes from MF-EF abregement, from OF-MF abregier (F abréger), from ML abbreviāre, from L abbreviāre: ab-, either the assimilation (to b) of ad, to, or, more prob, ab, from, in nuance 'off'+breuiāre, to shorten, from breuis, short: cf BRIEF. OF abregier yields ME abregen, whence 'to abridge'.

abroad. See BROAD.

abrogate, abrogation, abrogator. See ROGATION, para 3.

abrupt, abruption, abruptness. See RUPTURE, para 3.

abscess: L abscessus, a departure, a gathering (esp of bad matter), an abscess. See CEDE.

absence; absent. See ESSE, para 5.

absinthe (occ AE absinth): EF-F absinthe: reshaped from OF-EF absince: L absinthium: Gr apsinthion, wormwood, from OPer. The v absinthiate, to treat or impregnate with wormwood, comes from the LL pa absinthiātus, flavoured with wormwood.

absolute, absolution, absolve. See LOSE, para 5.

asonant. See SONABLE, para 5.

absorb; absorbent (absorbency); absorption; absorptive.

'To absorb' comes (perh via MF-F absorber) from L absorbēre: ab, away+sorbēre (s sorb-), to suck in or up, akin to Gr rhophein (s rhoph-) to swallow—cf Ionic rhuphein; to Lith suřbti (s surb-), to suck, srēbti, to sip, lap up; to MĪr srub, snout (esp a pig's), and Ga srubadh, to suck, and srub, to drink with smacking lips.

Absorbent (whence, via suffix -cy, absorbency): absorbent-, o/s of L absorbens, presp of absorbēre.

Absorption: absorption-, o/s of L absorptiō, formed from absorpt-, the s of absorptus, pp of absorbēre; absorpt- yields also absorptive (cf suffix -ive), as if from ML absorptivus*.

abstain, abstainer. See TENABLE, para 5.

abstemious: L abstēmīus: abs, var of ab, (away) from+the r (tem-) of tēmētum, potent liquor, perh akin to Skt tāmyati (s tam-), he is dazed or dumbfounded.

abstention; abstinence, abstinent. See TENABLE, para 5.

abstract, abstraction, abstractive. See TRACT, para 10.

abundance, abundant. See UNDA, para 4.

abuse, n and v; abusive. See USE, para 9.

abut, abutment, abuttal. See BUTT, to push or strike with the head.

abysm, abysmal; abyss, abyssal.

Both adj simply tack the suffix -al to the nn; abysm derives from OF-MF abisme (F abîme), LL abismus* (by influence of suffix -ismus, cf. -ism), from LL abyssus (whence E abyss), bottomless gulf or pit, itself from Gr abussos, bottomless: a-, not+bussos, bottom or depth, akin to buthos, bottom (of the sea), itself prob akin to bathos, depth, and bathus, deep, qq.v. at BATHOS.

acacia: L acacia: Gr akakia, very prob from Egyptian, the name being orig applied to a thorny Egyptian tree or shrub: cf Gr akakalis, the seed(s) of the Egyptian tamarisk, with influence from the IE r ak-, sharp, (hence) thorny. (Boisacq.) Chem acacatin and acacin=acacia+acatin (cf ACID) and acacia+Chem suffix -in.

Academe, academy, academic(al), academician, academicism or academism.

The development is natural and easy: the Gr hero Akadēmos (L Acadēmus), orig Hekadēmos, gave his name to Akadēmeia (orig a f adj), orig Hekadēmeia, that gymnasium in a suburb of Athens where Plato taught, hence (akadēmeia) a place of superior learning, the L form acadēmia yielding, via F académie, the E academy and the now literary academe; the Gr adj Akadēmeikos, hence akadēmeikos, became L acadēmicus, became alike F académique and E academic (adj, hence also n), with elaboration academic(al) (adj suffix -al). Academism=academy+-ism; academicism=academic+-ism. Academician derives from F académicien, which=L acadēmic(us)+suffix -ien (cf the suffix -ian).

acanth, acanthus, acanthine; acantha; cf the element acantho-.

Acanth anglicizes acanthus, the L trin (whence the adj acanthinus, whence E acanthine) of Gr akanthos, a herb with spiny flowers, itself from akantha, a thorn or prickle (Webster); ? perhaps rather akantha from akanthos, lit 'spine flower': akē, a point+anthos, a flower. Cf ACUTE.

acariform; acaroid. See element acari-, acaro-.

accede, whence accedence (suffix -ence); access;

accessary, from accessory; accessible; accession: resp, L accēdere (supine accessum, s access-), to move towards, to approach, ad, to + cēdere (s ced-), to move, cf CEDE; access, L accessus, from accedere; accessary, an -ary (as in necessary) var of accessory (adj, hence n), itself from ML accessōrius, from accessus; accessible, from LL accessibilis, approachable, from accedere—cf the suffix -ible; accession, from accessiōn-, o/s of L accessiō, an approach, from the pp (accessus) of accedere.

Cf CONCEDE, PRECEDE, RECEDE; PROCEED, SUCCEED; ABSCESS.

accelerate, acceleration, accelerative, accelerator; f.a.e.: CELERITY. Imm from L accelerātus, pp of accelerāre, to cause to go faster; EF-F accélération and EF-F accélérateur, both from EF-F accélérer (from L accelerāre); the 3rd term, anl from 'to accelerate'.

accent (n, hence v); accentor, accentual; accentuate, whence accentuator; accentuation.

The effective origin resides in L canere (s can-), to sing; cf CANTO. Resp, accent, adopted from MF-F, from L accentus (ad, to + cantus, a singing, a song), from canere; accentor, adopted from L (ad + cantor, a singer, from canere); accentual = accent + -ual (cf the -ual of gradual in relation to arade); accentuate, ML accentuātus, pp of accentuāre, from accentus; accentuation, adopted from EF-F, from accentuātiōn-, o/s of ML accentuātiō, from accentuāre.

Here we have two groups: first, the derivatives, via F, from L accēptāre (s accept-), the freq of accipere, to receive, whence, via the pp acceptus or its s accept-, the second group, accipere (s accip-) being an ad- (to) cpd of capere (s cap-), to take; cf CAPABILITY. Thus, I: accept, MF-F accepter, L accēptāre; acceptable, adopted from OF-F, from LL acceptābilis, from accēptāre—cf the suffix -able; acceptability, prob direct from LL acceptābilitās (gen -itatis); acceptance, adopted from OF (accept-, s of accepter + suffix -ance); acceptant, prob via F, from acceptant-, o/s of acceptans, presp of accēptāre; acceptation, perh via MF-F, from LL accēptātiō, o/s accēptātiōn-. Group II: acception, perh via late EF-F, from accēptiōn-, o/s of L accēptiō, an accepting, acceptance, formed (abstract -iō, gen -iōnis) upon accept-, s of acceptus (as above), whence also acceptor, adopted by E; acceptive (cf the suffix -ive), as if from ML acceptivus*. Cf CAPABILITY, para 7.

access, accessary, accessible, accession, accessory. See ACCEDE.

accidence (obs), accidency; gram accidence; accident, adj and n; accidental; accidented.

L accidere (ad, to + cadere, to fall; cf CADENCE and CHANCE), to befall, to happen, has presp accidens, o/s accident-, whence the rare adj accident, now usu accidental (MF-F accidentel, from ML accidentālis); whence also the n accidentia, chance, a chance, whence the obs syn E accidence and the extant accidency (cf suffix -cy).

The gram accidence stands for accidents, pl of accident, something that happens to a word, a special sense of accident, a chance event, from the OF-F n accident, from the L presp (as above). Accidented, uneven of surface, owes much to the obs syn F accidenté.

Cf CADENCE, para 7.

The 2nd is the obs form (adopted from OF) of the 1st, itself from ML accidia, a faulty shape— influenced by L accidere, to happen—of LL acēdia, trln of Gr akēdia, lit 'a not-caring' (privative a-, not + kēdos, care, anxiety); LL acēdia accounts for E acedia, apathy, (eccl) sloth. Gr kēdos is akin to HATE, q.v.

acclimate, acclimation, acclimatize, acclimatization. See CLIME, para 5.

acclinal, acclinate. See CLIME, para 7.

acclivitous, acclivity, acclivous. See CLIVUS, para 2.

accolade: adopted from EF-F: It accolata (s accol-), itself from accollare (s accol-), to embrace: from L ad, to + collum (r col-), neck; cf COLLAR.

accommodate, accommodation. See MODAL, para 14.

accomplice. See complice at PLY, para 21:

accomplish, adj accomplished; accomplishment. See PLENARY, para 7.

account: an old form of ACCOUNT.

accord, n and v; accordable; accordance, accordancy; accordant; according; accordion.

All except the last come from OF acorder, from LL accordāre, ac- for ad, to + cord-, the o/s of cor (gen cordis), heart; cf CORDIAL and HEART. Thus: the n accord, ME ac(c)ord or acorde, from OF accord(e), from acorder, whence, via ME ac(c)orden, 'to accord', whence the pa according, whence the adv according, accordingly; accordant, however, derives from ME acordant, adopted from the OF acordant, presp of acorder, whence also both OF acordable (cf suffix -able), whence E acordable, and OF acordance, whence E acordance, with var accordancy. The musical accordion consists of It accord-, the s of accordare, to play in tune + the -ion of, e.g., clarion and melodion.

accouchement. See COUCH.

account, n and v; accountable; accountancy; accountant; accounting. See the 2nd COUNT, para 5.

accouter (AE), accoutre; accouterment (AE), accoutrement. See SEW, para 6.

accredit, accredited. See CREDENCE, para 7.

acrescence, accretion, accrete. See CRESCENT, para 3.

accrual, accrue. See CRESCENT, para 4.

accumbent, accumbency. See HIVE, para 8.

accumulate, accumulation, etc. See CUMULATE, para 2.

accuracy, accurate. See CURE, para 3.

accuse; accusable, accusal, accusant, accusation, accusative, accusatorial, accusatory. See CAUSE, para 5.

accustom. See CUSTOM.

ace, n hence v: ME as, OF-F as, L ās, a unit of the duodecimal system, hence a monetary standard and, later, a copper coin: perh an Etruscan word. Semantically, what serves as a standard is (or is regarded as) the best: hence the card-game sense: hence the sporting, hence again the aeronautical sense.

acedia. See ACCIDIA.

acerb. See ACRID and cf ACUTE.

acescent, acetate, acetic, acetylene. See ACID, 2nd para.

ache, n and v: (to) ache derives from ME aken (cf the obs spelling ake) OE acan, o.o.o.—but perh akin to Gr akē (s ak-), a sharp point, and L acēre, to be sharp: cf ACUTE. Whitehall postulates the IE etym agos*, fault, guilt, and adduces MD akel, shame, and LG āken, to smart. But, ult, the two IE rr ag-* and ak-*, may have been id.

The 3rd either corrupts the 2nd, influenced by F hachement, an ornament in heraldry, or (EW) comes direct from F hachement, an inferior form of acesmement, from OF acesmer, to adorn, itself o.o.o.; the 2nd derives from MF-F achèvement (cf the suffix -ment), from OF-F achever, to bring to a head, to conclude: a (Mod à), to+chef, head: cf CHIEF; and the 1st derives from ME acheven, from the OF-F achever.

acid, adj hence n; acidic; acidific, acidify; acidity; acidulate, acidulous; acescence, acescent; acetate; acetic, acetous; acetylene.

The adj acid comes, perh via EF-F, from L acidus (s acid-, r ac-: cf torrid from L torrēre, s tor-); the derivative n acid yields the subsidiary adj acidic (cf the suffix -ic). The derivative L n aciditās yields, perh via EF-F acidité, the E acidity (cf -ity). The dim L adj acidulus accounts for acidulous, whence acidulate: acidul(ous)+the v suffix -ate. Acidific, acidify: acid+ific and -fy; the latter has derivative acidification.

Acescence=acescent+-ce; acescent comes, perh via F, from L acescent-, o/s of acescens, presp of acescere, to become or turn sour, the inch of acēre, to be sharp, hence sour. Acetate comes from L acētum, vinegar, itself from acēre, akin to acer, sharp; and acētum gives us the adj acetic (acid) and acetose or acetous (cf -ose and -ous). In Chem, both L acētum and E acetic possess numerous derivatives: here we need mention only acetylene: acetyl (acet-+Chem -yl)+Chem -ene (as in benzene). Cf the element aceti- or aceto-.

acknowledge, acknowledgement. See CAN, para 6.

acme: Gr akmē, a point, the topmost point, the prime: IE r, ak-. Adj: acmic (for acmetc). F.a.e., ACUTE, s.f.

acne: SciL perh from Gr akhnē, a particle, hence chaff: s akhn-, prob r akh-; cf Gr akhuron (s akhur-, prob r akh-), straw.

acolyte: ME acolyt, acolyte: ML acolitus, earlier acolithus: LL acolithus, acolyte: Gr akolouthos (adj hence n), attendant: a-, with+keleuthos (r kel-), a path—cf L callis.

aconite (plant, hence an extract), whence the adj aconitic (unless direct from Gr akonitikos) and the Chem aconitine: L aconitum, Gr akoniton, o.o.o.—but perh suggested by akoniti, the adv of the adj akonitos, without dust (a-, not+konis, dust), i.e. without the dust of the arena, hence of combat or struggle (L & S; Hofmann): it affords cardiac relief.

acorn: ME akern, OE aecern, var aecren, akin to ON akarn, forest-tree fruit, and Go akran, fruit, itself prob from Go akrs, a field, akin to L ager, a field: f.a.e., see ACRE, the basic meaning of acorn being 'fruit (or produce) of the field'. The Mod E spelling is folk-etymological for oak (OE āc)+corn.

The n acoustics derives from the adj acoustic, much as ethics from ethic: and acoustic descends, perh via F acoustique, from Gr akoustikos, aural, from akouein (s akou-), to hear, itself akin to HEAR. Catacoustics=cat-, for prefix cata+acoustics; dysacousia or -acousis=dys-, bad(ly)+acousia, Sci L for Gr akousis (whence -acousis), a hearing.

The latter derives from ME aqueyntance, from OF-EF acoistance, from OF-EF acoitier, from LL accognitāre: ac- for ad-, to+cognitus, known, from cognoscere, to know (a person), itself=co-, with+gnoscere, the old form of noscere, to know: cf cognition and quaint: f.a.e., CAN. OF-EF acoitier becomes ME acointen, later aqueynten, becomes 'to acquaint'.

acquest. See QUERY, para 7, s.f.

acquiesce; acquiescence, acquiescent. See QUIET, para 5.

acquire, acquirement; acquisition, acquisitive. See QUERY, para 7.

acquit; acquittal, acquittal, acquittance. See QUIET, para 6.

acre, whence collective acreage (suffix -age): ME aker, OE aece, akin to ON akr (cf Da ager)—OHG achar (cf G Acker)—OS akkar—Go akrs—all meaning 'a field'; to L ager, a field; Gr agros, a field; Skt ājras, a plain. IE r: agr-*. Basic sense, prob 'pasture' or 'pasture land'—cf L agere, to lead or drive flocks or herds. Cf ACORN and PILGRIM.

Acridity (suffix -ity) derives from acrid, which app blends acr-, the o/s of L acer, sharp, with acid-, the s of L acidus. Acrimonious comes from ML ācrimoniōsus, the adj of L ācrimonia, sharpness, bitterness, from acer; ācrimonia yields acrimony perh via F acrimonie. Acerbity goes, perh via MF-F acerbité, back to L acerbitās, bitterness, itself from acerbis, bitter (whence OF-F acerbe, whence E acerb), a modification of acer, itself from an IE r ac-* (ak-), a point, pointed, to be pointed—cf Gr akē, a point, and akōn, a javelin. But, f.a.e., see ACUTE. (Cf ACID.)

acrobat; acrophobia; acropolis; acrostic.

For acro-, from Gr akros, at the farthest point (usu upwards), see Elements. The cpds have originated thus:

acrobat, via F acrobate (n), either from the Gr adj akrobatos, walking a-tiptoe, hence walking aloft, from akrobatein, to walk a-tiptoe, or, more prob, from Gr akrobatēs, an acrobat, from akrobatein, the element bat- deriving from bainein (s bain-), to walk; the adj acrobatie comes from Gr akrobatikos; acrophobia, a dread of high places: a SciL formation: cf PHOBIA; acropolis, the citadel—lit 'highest (part) of a city', esp in Greece: cf POLICE, para 4; adj, acropolitian; across. Cf the element -scope; acrostic: L acrostichis, Gr akrostikhis, lit 'extreme line', i.e. at the beginning or the end of a verse-line (Gr stikhos, order, verse: cf the element -stich).

acrostic. See ACROBAT, s.f., and, for 2nd element, the 3rd STY, para 2, s.f. act, n and v; acta; action; active, activate, activism, activity; actor, actress; actual, actualism, actuality; actuary; actuate, actuation. Prefix-cpds: enact, enactive, enactment, enactor, enactory; exact (adj and v), exacting, exaction, exactitude, exactor; inaction, inactive; react, reactance, reactant, reaction, reactionary, reactive, reactor; redact, redaction, redactor; transact, transaction, transactional, transactor. Cognate group: AGENT, q.v. also f.a.e.

I. Act and its simple derivatives:

act, n: perh via MF-F acte, from L actum, a thing done (pl acta, adopted by E for 'proceedings, transactions'), orig the neu of actus, pp of agere, to (drive, hence) do, but also partly from L actus (gen actūs), a doing, an action. The v act comes from the L pp actus, but has been influenced by the n act.

action: via MF-F action from L actiō, o/s actiōn-, formed on actus, pp of agere + the suffix -iō (o/s -iōn-), whence E -ion; actionable comes from ML actionābilis, subject to an action at law.

active: perh via active, the f of OF-F actif; from ML activus, L actīvus: pp s act- + -ivus (cf the E suffix -ive). Subsidiaries: activity, prob via late MF-F activité, from ML activitās; activate (whence activation, activator), from active + v suffix -ate; activism = active + suffix -ism.

actor (cf MF-F acteur): L actor, one who does things, esp in a purposeful way: pp s act- + agential suffix -or (cf E -or); whence, via actoress*, derives actress—perh influenced by F actrice and even by the ML actrix (pars).

actual (whence actualism, actualist, actuality—perh influenced by LL actuāliter, practically): ME from OF actuel, from LL actuālis, from actus, a doing, an act.

actuary, whence actuarial: L actuārius, shorthand writer, bank clerk, from the n actus, influenced by the pl n acta.

actuate: from ML actuātus, pp of actuāre, to put into action, from n actus; actuation, from ML actuātiō, o/s actuātiōn-, from actuātus.

II. Prefix-cpds from L actum (or actus, n) or from E act, n and v:

enact, to make into act or law, to perform legislatively: prefix en- + act; perh influenced by the AL freq inactitare and the rural L inigere (pp inactus), to drive (stock); hence, enactment (suffix -ment)—enaction, enactive, enactor, enactory.

exact, adj: L exactus, precise, orig the pp of exigere, (lit, to drive out) to enforce, to demand, to complete; exactus yields the F exactitude (-itude), adopted by E. Cf:

exact, v: from L exactus, pp of exigere; derivative L exactiō, o/s exactiōn-, yields, perh via OF, exaction; exactive, from LL exactivus; exactor, from L; exacting (adj), from 'to exact'.

inaction: in-, not + E action; inactive (whence inactivity), prob in- + active, but perh from ML inactīvus, negligent.

react: prob re-, back, again + act, v, but cf the medieval schoolmen's L reagere, pp reactus, and, for reaction, their reactiō, o/s reactiōn-; reactionary (adj hence n), from reaction; as reactance = react + suffix -ance, so reactant = react + -ant; reactive, reactor = react + -ive, -or.

redact: L redactus, pp of redigere, to bring back, (hence) to reduce; redaction, from LL redactiō, o/s redactiōn-; redactor = redact + -or.

transact: L transactus, pp of transigere, to drive across, (hence) to 'put through' or achieve; derivative L transactiō, o/s transactiōn-, yields transaction, whence transactiona; transactor, adopted from L.

III. All the prec words, whether single or prefixed, come from the L pp s act- of agere, to drive, to do; the ag-, complementaries—agent, reagent, etc.—will be found at AGENT, q.v. also f.a.e. acuity. See ACUTE.

acumen; acuminate, acumination; acuminous.

Acumen, sharpness of mind, shrewdness, comes direct from L and represents acū-, the s of acūere, to sharpen + the suffix -men; the derivative LL acūmināre, to sharpen, has pp acūminātus, whence both 'to acuminate' and the adj acuminate, tapering to a point; acuminous = acumin- (o/s of L acūmen) + adj suffix -ous. Cf ACUTE.

acushla, Aír for 'darling': Ir a, the voc O + Ir cuisle, vein, pulse (of the heart): cf Aír cush-lamochree (or -machree), for Ir cuisle mo chroidhe, vein of my heart; cf also the F O, mon cœur l and the sl heart throb (darling).

acute—cute, cutie—acuteness; acuate—aculate—acutate; acuity.

Acuteness merely adds the abstract -ness to acute (whence cute, whence the Am sl cutie): acute comes from L acūtus, orig the pp of acūere, to sharpen.

Akin to acūtus is L acus, a needle, s acu-, whence acuate (pa -ate), sharp-pointed; the L dim acūleus has subsidiary acūleūtus, whence aculeate, possessing a sting or a sharp point. The LL acūtāre, to sharpen, from acūtus, has pp acūtātus, whence acutate, slightly sharpened. The ML acūtās (acū-+itās, cf E -ity), prob an avoidance of acūtītās*, becomes late MF-F acuité and E acuity.

Cf ACANTH, ACID, ACME, ACRID, ACROBAT, ACUMEN. The IE r ac-, ak, occurs not only in Gr akē, a point, in L acus and acūtus, in L acer, sharp, keen (edge, mind), in L acidus and aciēs, a sharp edge, but also in Gr akis, a point, akōn, a javelin, akaina, a point, a spur, and akanos, a thistle, and notably in Skt asanis, a cutting edge, a sharp weapon, and āsrīs, edge, (sharp) corner; cf also Oscan akriđ, sharply, keenly, bitterly—and even L occa, a harrow, and ocris, a very uneven mountain, Umbrian ocar, a mountain, Ir ochar, a wedge, and many OC words. Also akin are EAGER and EDGE; L acer, thinly 'disguised' in eager, shows clearly in exacerbate.

adage: adopted from F, from L adagium, app composed of ad, to+the r of aiō, I say—cf prodigy. 'Aiō represents an ancient ag-yo*' (E & M).

Adam. The H Ādām usu has preceding article, 'the adam', which means either 'the made (or, created) one', the man (cf Assyrian adamu, to make or produce), or 'one of earth', from H adamah, earth—cf Genesis, ii, 7, 'God formed man of the dust of the ground'. Adam's ale: the poor fellow had only water to drink. Adam's apple: the forbidden fruit of the tree of knowledge got stuck, they say, in his throat (EW).

Adamant, adopted from OF, comes, via L adamas, o/s adamant-, from Gr adamas (gen adamantos), the hardest metal: a-, not+n from daman (s dam-), to tame: f.a.c., see TAME. The adj adamantine goes, via EF-F adamantin and L adamantinus, back to Gr adamantinos. Now, L adamas had, in ML—perh influenced by Gr diaphanēs, transparent—the var diamas, o/s diamant-, which entered OF as diamant, which became ME diamant, later diamant, whence Mod diamond: L adamas, the hardest metal, merges into ML diamas, the very hard diamond. Diamantiferous: F diamant+connective -i-+element -ferous (cf the element -fer). Diamantine: from F diamantin, f -ine.

add; addend, addendum (pl addenda); addition (whence additional)—additament—additive.

Add comes from L addere (s add-), which, combining ad, to+dare, to place, to give (dō, I place, I give), means 'to place beside', hence 'to add'. The L vn addendum, thing to be added, is anglicized in the Math addend. Addit-, the s of additus, pp of addere, accounts for (1) additio, o/s addition-, whence, via MF, the E addition; (2) additāmentum, whence E additament; (3) additiuus, ML additivus, whence E additive.

adder, snake, derives from ME addre, from a naddre apprehended as an addre; ME naddre or neddere derives from OE nāðere, akin to the syn OS nādra, OHG nātara, Go nadsr, ON nathr—to OIr nathir, adder, snake—and (perh the origin of nathir) L natrix, water snake, the sense perh influenced by L natāre, to swim. (For the formative process, see 'Articled Nouns' in P.)

addition, additament, additional, additive. See ADD.

addle, v, derives from the adj addle, empty, confused, muddled, itself from the now dial n addle, (liquid) filth, OE adela, akin to OSw -adel, urine, and MLG adele, liquid manure.

address. See REX, para 9.

adduce, whence adducible; adduction. See DUKE, para 6.

adenoids; adenoid, adenoidal.

Adenoids is strictly the pl of n adenoid (whence adenoidal: adj suffix -al), itself from adj adenoid, Gr adenoeidēs, glandular, adēn, a gland: cf the element -aden and the suffix -oid.

adept, n hence adj; whence adeptness.

The n adept comes from L adepus (artem), one 'that has attained to (an art)', pp of adipisci, to attain to: ad, to+apisci, to obtain, from apere, to tie, pp aptus: cf therefore APT.

adequacy, adequate. See EQUAL, para 7.

Adhere comes, prob through MF-F adhérer, from L adhaerēre (s adhaer-), to be attached (to): ad, to+haerēre, to be attached, remain fixed: f.a.e., HESITATE; cf COHERE and INHERE. The presp adhaerens, o/s adhaerent-, yields, prob via MF-F adhérent, the E adherent; derivative ML adhaerentia yields, prob via MF-F adhérence, the E adherence. The s adhaes- of pp adhaesus leads to adhaesiō, o/s adhaesiōn-, whence, perh via late MF-F adhésion, E adhesion; adhesive arises in F adhésif, f adhésive: adhésion+ -if, f -ive.

adhibit, adhibition. See HABIT, para 11.

adieu: OF adieu, for a Dieu, in full je vous recommande a (F à) Dieu, I commend you to God, spoken to a departing guest or traveller; OF a Dieu=LL ad Deum. Cf DEITY.

adipose, whence adiposity (suffix -ity). See the element adipo-.

adjacence or adjacency, adjacent: ML adjacentia, from ML adjacent- (whence E adjacent), L adiacent-, o/s of adiacens, presp of adiacēre, to lie (iacēre) towards or by (ad, to, towards); iacēre, lit 'to be in the state of some person or thing cast or thrown (down)', derives from iacēre, to cast or throw. (E & M.) For iacēre, c/f -icere, cf the -ject of abject, deject, inject, object, project, reject, subject, and:

adjective: ML adjectivum (LL adiectivum), elliptical for adjectivum verbum, added word (cf the Gr ἐπιθετον, q.v. at EPITHET); neu of ML adjectivus, L adiectivus, tending to add or increase, from adicere, to cast (-icere) towards (ad) or beside, (often merely) to add. Cf prec; f.a.e., see JET.

adjoin, whence the pa adjoining; adjunct (adj hence n), adjunction, adjunctive. See JOIN, resp para 17 and para 14.

adjourn; adjournment. See DIANA, para 11.

adjust; adjustment. See JURY, n, para 7.

The latter is for adjutantcy (suffix -cy): and adjutant comes from adjutant-, the o/s of ML adjutans, L adiutans, presp of adiutāre, freq of adiuuāre (ad+iuuāre, to help): cf AID. The adjutant (bird, crane, stork) stands about like an adjutant.

administer; administrate, administration, etc. See MINOR, para 13.

admirable. See MIRACLE, para 4.

admiral, Admiralty; amir, emir.

Emir is an E var of amir (or ameer), from Ar amīr, a commander, as in amīr-al-bahr, commander of the sea, an admiral: the frequency of amir-al in various combinations explains the EF-F amiral, MF amirail, OF amiralt, the d of the MF-EF var admiral intruding from admirable; ME adopted both forms, the -d form prevailing; ME amiral, however, here derives from ML amiralis. The MF amiralte (F amirauté) leads to E Admiralty.

admissible, admission, admissive; admit, whence admittance (suffix -ance). See MISSION, para 7.

admix, admixture. See MIX, para 9.

admonish, hence admonishment (suffix -ment); admonition, admonitor, admonitory. See MIND, para 18.

adnate. See NATIVE, para 9.

ado. See DO, para 2, s.f.

adobe: adopted from Sp, from adobar, to plaster, from ML adobāre, to adorn, the a- being prob L ad, used intensively, and dobāre being prob akin to MF-F dauber, to plaster. See DAUB.

adolescence; adolescent. See OLD, para 5.

Adonis: Gr Adōnis (deriving from Phoenician adōn, lord, and prob akin to Babylonian Tammūz), an exceedingly handsome youth, beloved of Aphrodite.

adopt, adoption, adoptive: resp from MF-F adoptere, L adoptāre (s adopt-)—ad, to+optāre, to choose: cf OPT; perh via MF-F, from L adoptiō, o/s adoptiōn-; perh via OF-F adoptif, f adoptive, from ML adoptivus, L adoptivus.

adore, whence adorer; adorable, adoration. See ORATION, para 5.

adorn; adornment. See ORDER, para 9.

adrift. See DRIVE, para 1, s.f.

adroit. See REX, para 7.

adscititious. See SCIENCE, para 4.

adscript, adscription. See SCRIBE, para 9.

adsignification. See SIGN, para 11.

adsum. See ESSE, para 6.

adulate, adulation, adulator, adulatory: L adulātus (s adulāt-), pp of adulāri, to flatter, orig of a dog wagging its tail (cf Skt vāla, tail) as it approaches; adulation, perh via OF-MF adulacion (MF-F adulation), from L adulātiō, o/s adulātiōn-; adulator, adopted—cf the MF-F adulateur—from LL adulātor; adulatory, L adulātōrius—cf the adj suffix -ory.

adult. See OLD, para 5. Cf ADOLESCENT.

adulterate, adulterant; adulteration, adulterator; adulterine; adulterer, adulteress, adulterous, adultery.

The L adulterāre (for adalterāre*: ad, to+v from alter, other; hence, different), to alter, (hence) to corrupt, (hence) to seduce a woman, (hence) to commit adultery, has presp adulterans-, o/s adulterant-, whence the adj and n adulterant, and pp adulterātus, whence the E adj and v adulterate; the derivative adulterātiō, o/s adulterātiōn-, yields adulteration; the equally derivative adulterātor, a counterfeiter, has been form-adopted, sense-adapted into E.

Adulterine (-ine, adj suffix), L adulterinus, prob from adulter-, the s of adulterāre, rather than from L adulter, an adulterer, itself from adult-, the r of adulterāre; but E adulterer derives, by suffix -er, from the obs E adulter, to corrupt (a woman), to commit adultery, and adulteress, by suffix -ess, from the obs E adulter, an adulterer. Adultery: from L adulterium (adulterāre+suffix -ium); adulterous: prob from adultery+suffix -ous, but perh from the obs E n adulter+-ous.

Cf ALTER.

adumbrant, adumbrate, adumbration, adumbrative. See UMBRA, para 6.

advance, advancement. See the 1st VAN, para 3.

advantage (n and v), advantageous; disadvantage, disadvantageous.

1. With intrusive d as in ADVANCE, the n advantage comes, via ME avantage, avauntage, from ÓF-F avantage, which=the suffix -age attached to avant, before, from L ab ante; the v advantage comes from MF-F avantager (from the n). Advantageous: late MF-F avantageux, f avantageuse. Cf the 1st VAN, para 2.

2. Disadvantage: ME disavauntage: MF des-avantage (EF-F dés), whence both the EF-F v dés-avantager, whence 'to disadvantage', and the EF-F adj désavantageux, f désavantageuse, whence E disadvantageous.

advection, advectionitious. See VIA, para 12.

advene, advenience; advent, adventitious. See VENUE, para 3.

adventure, adventurous. See VENUE, para 4.

adverb, adverbial. See VERB, para 7.

adversary, adversative; adverse, adversity; advert—advertise, advertisement. See VERSE, para 15.

advice; advise, advisable, advisement, adviser, advisory. See VIDE, para 13.

advocate, whence advocacy; advocacy. See VOCABLE, para 10.

advowson. See VOCABLE, para 10.

advolution. See VOLUBLE, para 4.

adze: ME adese, adse, adsse, adis, an adze: OE adesa, an axe or a hatchet: perh akin to AXE (OE acas, aex, eax)—cf the extremely relevant Go agizi, an axe.

aegis: L: Gr aigis, shield of Zeus: perh from Gr aix (gen aigos), a goat, many primitive shields being goatskin-covered.

aeon. See AGE, para 5.

aer, aerate, aerial. See AIR.

aerobatics; aeronaut. See the element acro-. For aeroplane, see PLANE, para 3.

aery, n. See EYRIE.

aesthete, aesthetic, aesthetics; anaesthesia, anaesthetic, anaesthetist: AE spellings esthete, etc.

1. Aesthete, from Gr aisthētēs, a (keen) perceiver; aesthetic, Gr aisthētikos, sensory, sensitive; hence aesthetics—cf ethics and adj ethic. The Gr words derive from aisthanomai, I perceive, aorist inf aisthesthai, akin to Gr aiō, L audio, I hear.

2. Anaesthesia: Gr anaisthēsia, lack of feeling—an-, not + a c/f var of aisthēsis, feeling; anaesthetic (adj, hence n), an -ic elaboration from Gr anaisthētos, devoid of feeling; anaesthetist, one who administers, and anaesthetize, to administer, an anaesthetic, represent anaesthetic + suffixes -ist and -ize.

aestival. See the element estivo-.

afar. See FAR.

affair: ME afere, earlier afere: OF-MF affaire (MF-F affaire), from a (F à, L ad), to + faire, to do, from L facere: cf ADO and, for faire, FACT. Cf also: affect, n and v (whence the adj affected); affectation; affective;—affectation, affectionate.

The effective origin of all these words is L afficere, to do to, set oneself to: ad, to + ficere, c/f of facere, to do, make: cf FACT. Afficere has pp effectus (s affect-), whence (as, e.g., of a disease) affect, to attack. From that pp s affect- derive: the freq affectāre, to aim at, whence late MF-F affecter and, perh independently, E 'to affect'—the n affect, however, comes from L affectus (gen -tūs), a disposition, from the pp s affect- (from afficere); affectatiō (imm from affectāre), o/s affectatiōn-, whence F, hence E affectation; affectiō, o/s affectiōn-, whence OF-F, hence E, affection—cf affectionate, an -ate (adj) derivative from F affectionné, pp of affectionner, from F affectio. But affective (suffix -ive) derives from late MF-F affectif, f affective, of, by, for affect, from ML affectivus; hence the Psy affectivity (suffix -ity).

affiance. See FAITH, para 10.

affidavit. See FAITH, para 9.

affiliate, affiliation. See FILIAL, para 1.

affirm; affirmance, affirmation, affirmative, affirmatory. See FIRM, para 4.

affix, affixation. See FIX, para 3.

affatus. See FLATUS, para 3.

Prob, like the obs adj afflict, afflicted, 'to afflict' comes from L afflictus, pp of affligere, to deject: ad, to -ligere, to strike: cf CONFLICT, INFLICT—and PROFLIGATE. The L pps afflict- yields both afflictio, o/s afflictio-, whence, via F, affliction, and ML afflictivus, whence, prob via MF-F afflictif, f afflictive, the E afflictive (-ive).

affluence, affluent, afflux. See FLUENT, para 5.

afford: ME aforthen: OE geforthian, int of forthian (s forth-), to further, (hence) to accomplish, to afford: f.a.c., FORTH.

afforest, afforestation. See FOREST.

affray, n and v—fray (n); afraid.

The n fray, combat, is short for affray; the obs v fray derives from the short n. Affray, fight, tumult, ME af(s)rai, comes from OF esfrei (F effroi), from esfreer, to disquiet, to frighten, (lit) to put out of (OF es, from L ex) peace (Gmc root for 'peace'—cf OHG fridu, peace); OF esfreer, esfreer, yields ME af(s)raien, whence E 'to affray'; the ME pp af(s)rayed, later affraide, frightened, has become E afraid.

affront, n and v. See FRONT, para 5.

afoot. See FOOT, para 2.

afore: ME afore, earlier aforn: OE on oran, aetforan, in or at the front. Cf FORE.

afraid. See AFFRAY, s.f.

afresh. See FRESH, para 2.

Africa; African, adj hence n; Afric; Afrikaans.

L Afer, gen Afri, African, has derivatives africanus, f africa, as in terra africa, land of the Africans, whence Africa; Africanus (imm from Africa), whence African; africanus, whence the archaic Afric, African or an African, or even Africa. Afrikaans is SAf D, from D Afrikaan: cf D Afrikaner, whence, after Hollander and prob Englander, comes Africkander, a born white South African of either (and esp) D or Huguenot origin.

But Afer may derive from L Africa, Gr Aphrikē, both from a Phoenician name for 'land of Carthage'; the name extended only after a millennium to the entire continent.

aft—abaft; after, adv, hence adv and prep.

1. Aft: OE aestan, behind—cf Go afta, properly aftra, behind, and aftana, from behind, both adv, and OS (at)aftan; IE r, ast-, an elaboration of af-; var ap*, as in ON (merely scribal) and Hit.

2. Abaft: a-, on+ME baft, itself from OE beaestan—be, by+aestan (as above).

3. Prob akin to aft is the adv after: OE aester, after, behind, akin to Go aftaro, from behind, behind, backwards, OHG aftara and ON aptra, behind—and, more remotely, Gr apōtero, farther off. The suffix -ter, in E also -ther, was orig comp: after is the comp of of, off (see OF). The prep after derives from the adv; the adj after, OE aestera, from OE aester.

4. Two simple derivatives merit a note: aftermost (opp foremost), ME aftermost, earlier efte-mest, from OE aefte-mest—cf Go aftumist, the last, aefte-mest being orig the sup of of, off (cf or); and afterward, OE aesterweard, aestanweard, (adj) behind, the form afterwards being orig the gen aesterweardes.

5. The cpds are mostly self-explanatory. Thus: afterbirth, afterglow, afterlife, afternoon, afterthought. Aftermath=after+math, a mowing, OE māeth: cf MOW (grass).

aftermath. See AFT, para 5, and cf MOW, para 2. afterward, afterwards. See AFT, para 4; cf the suffix -ward.

Gainsay: ME geinseien (or ageinseien), to say (cf SAY) against, to contradict: gain-, ME gein-, derives from OE geg- or gēan-, again, against, akin to ON gagn-. Against: ME agens, ageynes: OE ongegn, ongēanes, the -s being a gen ending (OE -es) and the s, as in amidst and whilst, intrusive. Ongēanes is the gen of ongēan, which, with its varr ongegn and the worn-down agēn, yields ME agen, agayn, agein, whence the E aga n. The OE ongēan and ongegn reveal their origin as on, on (or in)+gagn* or gegn*, straight: cf OHG ingagan, ingegin, OS angegin, again, against, and ON gegn (or gagn), against, from gegn, straight.

agaric: L agaricum: Gr agarikon, perh the neu of adj Agarikos, of Agaria in Eastern Europe.

agate: adopted from F, from L achates (cf G Achat), from Gr akhatēs, itself from Gr Akhatēs, the Sicilian river where agate was earliest found.

agathology. See the element agatho-.

age; coëval—medieval (or -aeval); eternal (and sempiternal); eterne, eternity; aeon or eon; ay or aye, always; perh EVER, q.v. separately.

1. There are three IE sub-families represented: Germanic, Latin, Greek. In the first we have ay, aye, always: ME ai, earlier ei, from ON ei, intimately akin to OE ā, āwa, always—cf OFris ā, OS eo, eo, io, Go aiw, always: and aiws, an age, and OHG es, always: f.a.e., see para 6.

2. ML aeuum, L aeuum (earlier aeuom; s aeu-), an age, a lifetime, appears in coëval (formerly co-aeval), adj hence n, an -al formation from ML coaeuus (prefix co-+aeuum), contemporary, and in medieval, mediaeval (medius, middle+aeuum+-al), and in primeval (earlier primaeval), an -al formation from ML primaueus, L primaueus (primus, first+aeuum); less clearly in E age, OF aage, VL aetāticum*, from L aetātem, acc of aetās, a contraction of aeulītās (ML aeuitās), from aeuum.

3. Aet-, the o/s of L aetās, recurs in aeternus (adj suffix -ernus), whence the literary eterne; aeternus has the derivative LL var aeternālis (aet-+ernus+-ālis), whence, via OF-MF eternel (EF-F é-) the E eternal, and the derivative LL n aeternitās, whence, via OF-MF eternité (EF-F é-), the E eternity. But eternize goes no further back than EF-F étérniser, from EF éterne.

4. Sempiternal comes from ML sempiternalis, from L sempiternus (whence the rare sempitern), a contraction of semperaeternus—semper, always.

5. AE eon, E aeon (adopted from L), comes from Gr aion (s ai-), lifetime, age, intimately akin to PL aeuom; Gr aionios, eternal, yields aeonian (adj suffix -an). Cf Gr aiēi (s ai-), always.

6. Gr aion app derives from PGr aīwōn, s aīw-: cf the L r aeu-, OHG ēwa, a long time, eternity, and Go aiw (always). Cf further the Skt āyus, Av āyu, life, with s ay-: cf ON ei (always). Clearly the IE r is aiu-* (or aīw-), with var aeu- (aew-*), basic sense 'duration'—usu 'long time' and often 'limitless time, eternity'.

agency; agenda. See:

agent, agency, agential; agenda.

Agenda, things to be done, has been adopted from the neupl of agendus, gerundive of agere, to drive or lead, hence to act or do. The pp actus leads into the ACT group. The presp agens, gen agentis, o/s agent-, yields the obs adj agent and (ML agens) the n agent, whence the adj agential (suffix -ial); yields also the ML agentia, whence the E agency.

Agere (s ag-) is akin to Gr agein (s ag-), to lead or drive—cf the ON aka (s ak-), to drive, Arm acem (s ac-), I lead, OIr ad-aig, he leads or rushes towards, and Skt djati (s aj-), he goes or drives. IE r, ag-*; perh akin to the r of work.

agglomerate; agglomerant, agglomeration, agglomerative.

L agglomerāre (ad, to+glomerāre, to make a ball of) has presp agglomerans, o/s agglomerant-, whence the n agglomerant; the pp agglomerātus yields both 'to agglomerate' and adj agglomerate, whence n agglomerate. Derivative agglomerātiō, o/s agglomerātiōn-, leads to agglomeratton; but agglomerative is an E -ive formation upon the L pp s agglomerat-.

Cf CONGLOMERATE and, f.a.e., CLAM.

agglutinate, adj and v; agglutination, agglutinative: whether adj or v, agglutinate comes from L agglutinātus (s agglutin-), pp of agglutināre, to stick, orig to glue, to something: ad, to+glutināre, to glue: f.a.e., GLUE. On agglutinat- have arisen agglutination and agglutinative, via EF-F agglutination and agglutinatif.

aggradation. See GRADE, para 6.

aggrandize, aggrandizement. See GRAND, para 1. aggravate, aggravation. See GRAVE, adj, para 3, s f.

aggregate, adj (hence n) and v; aggregation, aggregative. See GREGAL, para 4.

aggress, v; aggression, aggressive, aggressor. See GRADE, para 6.

aggrieved. See GRAVE, adj, para 4.

aghost. See GHOST, para 2.

L agilitās, o/s agilitāt-, which became MF-F agilité, whence E agility (-ity), derives from L agilis, nimble (ag-+adj suffix -ilis, cf E -ile), itself from agere (s ag-), to drive or lead—f.a.e., AGENT.

agio: F agio or agiot (whence agiotage, adopted by E): It aggio (or agio), ease, convenience, obs var asio, prob from OF aise: f.a.e., EASE.

agist, agistment, agistor: OF agister (s agist-), from a (F à), to + gister, to provide lodging, from giste, (s) lodging, ult from ML jacēre, L iacēre, to lie (stretched out): cf ADJACENT. Agister yields both OF agistement, whence E agistment, and AF agistour, whence E agistor.

agitate; agitation, agitative, agitator.

L agitāre (freq of agere, to drive), to set moving, has pp agitātus, whence 'to agitate'. The pp s agitāt- has derivatives agitātiō, o/s agitātiōn-, whence F, whence E, agitation; agitātor, adopted by E; and LL agitātius, ML agitātivus, whence the adj agitative. Cf AGENT and COGITATE.

agnate. See NATIVE, para 9.

agnomen. See NAME, para 4.

agnostic, whence agnosticism. See the 2nd GNOME, para 5.

ago: ME ago, agoon, agon, pp of agon, to go away, OE āgān, to go away, pass by: ā-, off + gān, to go.

agog; earlier, on gog: MF en gogues, lively, merry—cf EF-F être en goguette(s), to be on the spree, and EF-F goguenard, mockingly playful. The MF gogue is prob echoic; but perh, by false division, from It agognare, to be eager, to long, itself akin to:

agony; agonist, agonistic, agonize; antagonist (antagonistic, antagonism) and protagonist.

The Gr agōnia, a contest—from agōn, a sports gathering (from agein, s ag-, to drive, lead, hence to celebrate: cf AGENT), derivatively an athletic contest—became applied also to a non-physical striving, agony, and has passed through LL agōnia and MF-F agonie to E agony. Three Gr derivatives have influenced E: agōnistēs, a contestant, LL agōnista, E agonist, esp in Physio; the subsidiary adj agōnistikos, LL agōnisticus, E agonistic; and agōnizesthai, LL agōnizāre, (perh via EF-F agoniser) E agonize.

The two principal Gr cpds are antagōnia, obs E antagony, antagōnizesthai, to struggle against, whence antagonize—(from the v) antagōnisma, whence antagonism—and antagōnistēs (anti-, against + agōnizesthai) LL antagōnista, E antagonist, whence antagonistic; and prōtagōnistēs (prōtos, first + agōnistēs), whence protagonist, orig 'the actor taking the leading part', hence the chief spokesman, the champion of a cause.

agora. See ALLEGORY and the element agora.

agouara and agouti: SAM animals, with SAM names: the former, from Tupi via Port; the latter, from Guarani via Sp.

agrarian; agriculture, -cultural, -culturist; agronomy.

The base is L ager, o/s agr-, gen agri, a field; in agronomy, from Gr agronomos, manager of public lands, it is agros, a field, the 2nd element coming from nemein (s nem-), to distribute, (hence) to manage. The IE r is agro-*, an uncultivated field—cf Av ajras—perh akin to the IE ag-* seen in agere, to drive: cf AGENT.

Agrarian: L agrārius, adj of ager; agriculture: via F from L agricultūra, (lit) cultivation (cf cultivate at CULT) of the field; hence agricultural (-al, adj) and agriculturist (-ist).

agree, agreeable, agreement—disagree, etc.: maugre.

The L grātum, strictly the neu of grātus, pleasant, is prob akin to Skt gūrtās, celebrated, and said to be of religious origin; it becomes OF-MF gre (MF-F gré), pleasure, will, whence OF-MF agreer (a, F à, to), to please, whence ME agreeen, whence 'to agree'; the derivative OF-MF agreable, later agréable, yields agreeable, and late MF-F agrément yields agreement. Cf DISAGREE, from MF-F désagrée (dés-, OF dés-, L dis-, from)—disagreeable, from MF-F désagréeable—disagreement, from EF-F désagrément. The archaic maugre, despite, comes from OF maugre, MF maugré, EF-F malgré, (lit) ill-will, hence a prep 'in despite of'.

agriology. See the element agrio-.

agronomy. See AGRARIAN.

ague: OF (fevre) ague: ML (febris) acūta, acute fever: f.a.e., ACUTE. Adj: aguish (suffix -ish).

ahem! See the 3rd HEM.

ahoy!=interjective a+interjection hoy!—cf ho and D hui! With ahoy! cf F ohé!

aid, n and v; aidance, aidant; aide-de-camp.

Aid, n: OF-F aide—as in aide-de-camp, 'aid of camp' or camp assistant, hence a civil-life adjutant—from OF-F aider, to help, whence 'to aid', from ML adiutare, L adiūtāre, freq of adiuāre, to help, from ad, to + iuāre, to give pleasure to, (hence) to help; iuāre, s iu-, is akin to iucundus (s iu- + suffix -cundus, as in secundus—cf FECUND); the IE r is app iu-*, to please.

Aidance, aidant: adopted from OF, the former deriving from the latter (aidant, presp of aider).

ail, whence (via suffix -ment) ailment: ME ailen, earlier eilen, from OE eglan, to pain, (? orig) to trouble, akin to Go us-agljan, to distress, and agls (neu s agl), disgraceful. Prob akin to ILL.

aileron. See AISLE, para 2.

aim, v hence n: ME amen, aimen, eimen, to estimate, (hence) to aim (at): OF aesmer (a, to + esmer, to estimate): L aestimāre, to estimate, or a LL adaestimāre*: f.a.e., see ESTEEM.

air, n hence v; airy;—aerate, aerial, acrification; aria; aero-, see Elements.

Air comes, via ME aire (or eir) and OF air, from L aërem, acc of aër, air, from Gr aēr, haze, mist, (later) air, akin to aētēs, (strong) wind, and Aeolic auēr, Attic aura, cool breeze or fresh air, and aēmi, I breathe hard, for awēmi*—cf Skt vāti, it blows, and Go waihan, to blow. Hence airy (adj suffix -y).

'To aerate' (whence aeration)=L aer+v suffix -ate; aerial=aerius (Gr aérios)+adj -al; aerification, from aerify, itself=aēri-, L c/f+-fy (see Elements). Mus aria: It aria: L aëra, var acc of aër.

aisle: ME ile or ele: OF-MF ele (late MF-F aile), wing, (hence) wing of a building: L āla, point of articulation, (hence) armpit and wing, akin to L axilla, armpit, dim of axis (see AXIS), and to OHG ahsla, OE eaxl, (articulation of) the shoulder. Mod aisle shows the influence of isle and, for sense, alley.

2. L āla has adj ālāris, whence alar; and F aile has dim aïeron, adopted by E.

ajar, occ on the jar, derives from ME on charr: charr, from OE cerr, a turn. Ajar denotes (a door) 'on the turn'.

akimbo. See KINK.

akin. See KIN.

alabaster: OE alabastre, adopted from OF (var albastre, F albâtre): L alabaster: Gr alabastos, prop alabastos, perch from an Egyptian town where first treated industrially (cf P⁴).

alack(a day)! Prob ah! lack!; ME lak, loss—cf LACK.

The adj represents alacrity+suffix -ous. Alacrity comes from L alacritās, o/s alacritāt-, abs n (cf suffix -ity) from alacer (gen alacri), lively. The s alac- derives app from IE r al-, var ul-, to go, as in L ambulāre (s ambul-), to walk; cf AMBULATE. But perch rather from L āla+acer, lit 'wing-keen'.

Aladdin: European form of Aladin, from Ar 'Alā-ad-dīn (ad- for al, the), 'the height of religion'.

alar. See AISLE, para 2, and cf the element ali-.

alarm, n—hence v, hence also alarum (rolled r) and alarmist (suffix -ist)—derives from ME, from MF, alarme, from It all'arme!, 'To arms!': f.a.e., ARM. Cf ALERT.

alas! See LATE, para 4.

alb; ? Alban, alban; albescent; albino; ? Albion; albugo; album; albumen, albumin—albuminous; aubade.

1. The base is L albus (s alb-), white, akin to Gr alphos (s alph-), a white leprosy, and alphiton, barley flour, and significantly OHG albiz, a swan; IE r, albh-, occ var albh-.

2. The Eccl vestment alb is white, from ML alba (vestis, white garment), f of albus. Whereas the Chem alban certainly derives from albus, the PN Alban may be of independent C origin. Albescent comes from albescent-, o/s of albescens, presp of albescere, inch of albāre, to whiten, from albus; album is prop the neu s of albus—from the blank white pages; albugo, coming direct from L, means lit 'whiteness'—albus+suffix -ūgō; L-become-E albumen, white of egg, derives (suffix -men) from albus, and albumin is a Chem alteration, and albuminous (albumin-, o/s of albumen+suffix -ous) the adj of either. Albino is Port for 'whitish', from albo, white, from albus.

3. F aubade, a song at aube or dawn, represents aube+n suffix -ade: and aube derives from VL alba (as later in OPr and in Sp), n from the f of albus and prob elliptical for alba lux, the pale 'white light' of dawn.

4. Albion, adopted from L for 'England', derives from C; alb-, white, occurs in C as in other IE languages; and the name may genuinely refer to albatross: with b folk-etymologically substituted (for c) from L albus, white, albatross truly comes from E alcatraz, orig pelican, then frigate bird: Port alcatraz, cormorant, albatross, from Port alcatraz, bucket: Ar al-qādūs, lit 'the (al) water jar or vessel', qādūs deriving perch from Gr kados (itself from Phoenician or else from H kad), but prob direct from H kad, water jar, bucket. 'Basic idea: water carrier' (Webster).

'the white cliffs of Dover' (and other parts of Britain).

albeit, (even) though: ME al be it, 'all (though) it be'.

albescent, albino (both para 2); Albion (para 4); albugo, album, albumen, albumin (all para 2). See ALB.

alcanet; alcanna. See HENNA.

alchemist, alchemy. See CHEMICAL, para 2.

alcohol, whence the sl alky and the adj, hence n, alcoholic.

Alcohol comes direct from ML, which adapted it from Ar al-kuhl, 'the (al) powder (kuhl): whence E kohl' for painting the eyelids. For al, cf:

alcove: EF-F alcôve: Sp (and Port) alcoba: Ar al-qubbah, the arch or vault, hence a small-recessed room, usu with a couch. (Cf 'Articled Nouns' in P⁴.) alder: ME alder, earlier aller: OE aler, alor, akin to ON elrir, ölr, OHG elira—Lith alksnis—Pol olcha—L alnus—and prob E ELM. IE r, al-, var el-.

alderman. See OLD, para 4.

ale; alegar; alum—aluminium, aluminium; aluminous.

Alegar blends ale and vinegar: and ale derives from OE alu, var ealu, akin to ON öl, ale, and OSI olü, beer—and also to L alūmen (alum), whence, via OF-MF alum (EF-F alun), the ME and F alum, which tastes astringent; 'basic idea: bitter' (Webster). L alūmen, o/s alumin-, yields the Chem alumina, whence aluminium (Sci suffix -ium) and AE aluminum, both with adj aluminous, prompted by L alūminōsus, the adj of alūmen, perch akin, incidentally, to Gr aludoimon or aludimon, prop the neu s of aludoimos, bitter.

alembic: ME, from MF, alambic: Ar al-inbiq, the still; al, the +inbiq, from Gr ambix (o.o.o.), cap of a still. Hence, by aphesis, the archaic 'mbec(k).

alert, adj hence n, hence v: F alerte, EF a (F a) l'erte, on the watch: It all'erta, (standing) in a look-out, e.g. on a watch-tower: It all'=alla=a (L ad) la, at or in the +erta, a look-out, orig the f of adj erto, steep, from erto, elevated—the pp of ergere, from L ērigere, to raise: cf ERECT. Orig a call to arms: cf ALARM. (P⁴: 'Articled Nouns'.)

alethiology; alethoscope. See the element aletho-.

aleurometer. See the element aleuro-.

Alexander—Alexandria—Alexandrian—Alexandrine, alexandrine; sawney.

Alexander, 'protector of men', L Alexander, comes from Gr Alexandros (alxein, to protect + andros, gen of anēr, a man); the f Alexandra, from It Alessandra; from Alexander the Great, the derivative city-name Alexandria, whence Alexandrian—L Alexander has adj Alexandrinus, whence Alexandrine, whence, via MF-F alexandrin, the alexandrines of verse, from MF heroic poems about Alexander the Great. (Cf P^a).—E Alexander, a favourite given name in Scotland, has pet-form Sandy, occ corrupted to Sawney—not the origin of B dial sawney, foolish, idle (fellow), cf ZANY.

alfalfa (lucerne): adopted from Sp, earlier alfalsez, from Ar al-fisfīṣah or -faṣṣaḥ, the best sort of fodder.

algae, pl of L alga (s alg), seaweed: perh alga is akin to algēre (s alg-), to be cold. Cf algid, cold, from L algidus, itself from algēre.

algebra, whence algebraic, algebraist: adopted from either It or ML algebra, from Ar al-jabr, elliptical for al-jabr w-al-muqūbalaḥ, 'the reduction and the comparison' by equations: al, the +n from jabara (triconsonantal r: jbr), to bind together. Al-jabr, the reduction (lit, reparation), became, in Math, understood as 'the reduction of arithmetic to a better form'. (B & W.)

alias; alibi: L alias, otherwise, esp otherwise called; L alibi, elsewhere: both from alius, other. Cf:

alien, adj hence n; alienage; alienate, alienation; alienist.

L alius, other (adj), another (pron)—f.a.e., ELSE—has derivative aliēnus, of, belonging to, another, whence: alien, via OF-EF alien; alienage (suffix age), from F aliénage; alienate, from L aliēnātus, pp of aliēnāre, to estrange, from aliēnus; alienation, MF alienation (EF-F alié-), L aliēnātiō (acc aliēnātiōnem), from aliēnāre; alienist, from F aliéniste (alien+-iste, E -ist). Cf ALIAS.

aliferous, aligerous, aliform. See the element ali-.

alight, adj: either a-, on + light, fire, or the pp of ME alihten, to set aflame, OE alihtan (a, on + lihtan, lihtan, to shine: cf LIGHT, v).

alliterate; alliteration, alliterative. See LETTER, para 6.

allocate; allocation; ML allocātus, pp of allocāre, to put into its place, to apportion: L ad, to+locāre, to place, from locus, a place: f.a.e., LOCAL. Hence ML allocātiō, o/s allocātiōn-, whence allocation. Cf ALLOW.

alochromatic; allomorph; allopathy. See the element allo-.

allot, allotment. See LOT, para 3.

allow, whence (? via F allowable) allowable; allowance.

Allow comes, via ME alouen and OF-EF alouer, to place, to assign, from L allocāre: cf ALLOCATE and, f.a.e., LOCAL: sense-confused with OF alouer, to laud, to approve (L allaudāre, to belaud). OF alouer, to place, has derivative alouance, whence allowance, n hence v.

Alloy, n, comes from MF-F aloi, from OF aloier, earlier aleier (var alier), to bind, to combine, from L alligāre: cf ALLIANCE and, f.a.e., LIGAMENT. OF aloier became F aloyer, whence 'to alloy' and F aloyage, whence E alloyage (suffix -age).

allude; allusion, allusive. Cf collusion, delude, elude, illusion, prelude—but see LUDICROUS, para 3.

alp, whence the Alps; alpenstock; alpine: from L Alpes (cf the LGr Alpeis), the Alps, whence the adj alpinus, whence Alpine, alpine (cf EF-F alpin); alpenhorn and alpenstock are borrowings from G (Alpen, pl of Alpe). L Alpes is app of C origin; several authorities (e.g. Walshe) think it prob non-IE, but of the C alp*, high mountain (Ir ailp or alpa, a protuberance, a high mountain)—perh a var of the C alb*, (to be) white, akin to L albus, Sabine alpus, Gr alphos (cf ALB); perh cf Hit alpas, a cloud. Only the high mountains tend to be white.

alpaca is cloth made from hair of the alpaca (a SAm llama): Sp alpaca: Quechua alpaca, perh from Quechua paco, red.

alpenstock. See ALP; cf STAKE, para 6.

alphabet: perh adopted from late MF-F: LL alphabetum: LGr alphabētos, from the 1st two letters of Gr alphabet, A, B, alpha, bēta (cf H beth). Alpha (akin to H āleph) occurs also in alpha and omega, the beginning and the end, omega (ω) being the last letter: cf Revelations, i, 8.

already; alright. Simply all ready and all right.

Alsace; Alsatia, whence Alsatian: ML Alsatia, from OHG Elisaz (G Elsass), whence Alsace, the much-contested marches between France and Germany, hence, in C17—early C18 London, a sanctuary for debtors and criminals. The quadruped Alsatian is elliptical for Alsatian wolf dog (German sheepdog).

also. See ALL.

altar; altarist. The latter comes, prob via F altariste, from LL altarista, from LL altāre (usu of a Christian altar and as pl altāria), whence, via OE and ME, the E altar (cf the OF alter); the connexion with L altus, high, is prob f/e—but then so perh also is that with L āra, a pagan altar.

alter, whence alterable (cf the MF-F altérable); alterant; alteration; alternative, adj hence n.

Alter: MF-F altérer: LL alterāre, to change, from alter, the other (of two)—orig a comp of, or at the least akin to, alius, other, (pron) another: f.a.e., see ELSE. Alterāre (s alter-) has presp alterans, o/s alterant-, whence the E adj (hence n) alterant; and pp alterātus, s alterāt-, on which arose both the LL alterātiō, o/s alterātiōn-, whence, prob via MF-F altération, the E alteration, and the ML alterātivus, whence alterative. Cf ALTERNATE and:

altercate, altercation.

The L altercāri, to be at variance, esp heatedly, derives from alter, other (see prec), and has pp altercātus, whence 'to altercate', and subsidiary n altercātiō, o/s altercātiōn-, whence MF-F, hence E, altercation.

alternate, adj (whence n) and v; alternant, adj hence n; alternation; alternative, adj hence n; alternator.

The adj and v alternate both come from L alternātus, pp of alternāre, from alternus (suffix -nus), from alter (see ALTER); alternus yields the rare altern. Alternāre has presp alternans, o/s alternant-, whence alternant, whence the irreg formed alternacy; and on the pp alternātus (s alternāt-) arose both the L alternātiō, o/s alternātiōn-, whence alternation, and the ML alternātivus, whence the adj alternative. Alternator is an E formation.

L altus (s alt-), high, was orig the pp of alere, to nourish: f.a.e., OLD. Its derivative altitūdō yields E altitude, and the It form alto has, with its sup altissimo, been adopted, by Mus, everywhere—so has its cpd contralto (prefix contra, against), the lowest female voice.

altogether: ME altogedere, from al, all + togedere. See ALL and TOGETHER.

altruism, altruist, altruistic.

Altruism: F altruisme, (with L l) from autrui, other persons, itself deriving, under the influence of lui, he, from autre, another, from L alter, other: f.a.e., ALTER. Altruistic comes (by -ic) from the F adj altruiste, which prob suggested the E n altruist.

alum; alumina, aluminium, etc. See ALE.

always. See VIA, para 6.

am, OE am and eom, comes, like is and are and '(thou) art', from an IE r es-*, to exist: f.a.e., ESSENCE.

amain. See MAIN.

amalgam; amalgamate, amalgamation, amalgamation, amalgamator.

Amalgam: late MF-F amalgame: late ML amalgamea: Ar al-malgham: Ar al, the + Gr malagma, an emollient, from malassein, to soften, from malakos, soft, IE r perh mal-*. Amalgam + v suffix -ate yields 'to amalgamate', whence amalgamation (suffix -ion, cf -ation)—amalgamative (-ive)—amalgamator (agential -or).

amanuensis. See MANUAL.

amass, whence (suffix -ment) amassment: OF-F amasser: a (F à), L ad, towards, to + masser, to assemble, from the n masse (see MASS).

amateur, n hence adj and amateurism; amative; amatory; amorist, amorous, amour—enamour, AE enamor, and paramour—inamorata, inamorato;—amicable, amiable (amiability); amity; inimical; enemy.

The chain is this:

IE r am-*, to love: cf Gr adamnein (ad-, Phrygian int prefix + am- + infix -n- + inf suffix -ein);

I: L amāre (s am-), to love; whence

1, amator, a lover, whence MF-F, hence E, amateur—cf the suffix -ator;

2, amatōrius, whence amatory—cf the suffixes -atory and -ory;

3, ML amativus, worthy of love—but in E, tending to love.

II: L amor (s am-), love, prob imm from amāre; personified as Amor; hence the OF-F amour, sense-adapted by E to 'love affair'; whence

1, LL amorōsus, full of (passionate) love, whence OF amoroux (F amoureux), whence E amorous

2, amorist, an E formation (suffix -ist) from amor;

3, the prefix cpds enamour, AE enamor, from OF-MF enamorer, EF-F enamoureur (en, in + amour + inf suffix -er), and inamorata (f), inamorato (m), a person in love or a person loved, from It innamorata, innamorato, f and m of the pp of innamorare, to enamour; and paramour, ME par amur, par amour, paramur, (C14 onwards) paramour, from OF par amour, orig adv, by (or with) love.

III:—amicus, friend, whence

2, VL amicitās*, acc amicitātem*, whence OF-MF amistié or -té (EF-F amitié), whence E amity;

3, the opp inimicus (for inamicus*), an enemy, whence OF enemi, whence E enemy; with derivatives LL inimicālis, whence inimical, hostile, and VL inimicitās* (o/s inimicitāt-), whence OF enemistié, whence ME enemyte, whence enmity.

amaze, amazement. See MAZE.

Amazon, amazon.

An amazon, or proficiently bellicose or merely tall, strong woman, derives from Amazon: L Amazon; Gr Amazōn, member of a race of mythical (?) female warriors: perh privative a- + mazos, breast + presp suffix -ōn, with mazos akin to madan, to be moist, IE r mad-, to drip: from removal of right breast to facilitate archery; prob, however, from Iranian, esp OPer, hamazan-, a warrior, as Boisacq holds.

The river Amazon, Sp Rio Amazonas, takes its name from some riverine women that impressed the early explorers.

ambassador, ambassadorial. See EMBASSY.

Ambergis half-anglicizes the F ambre gris, grey amber (cf GRAY). Amber itself came into ME from OF-F ambre, from Ar 'anbar (ambergis).

ambidextrous, ambidexterity: the latter, prompted by dexterity, derives by suffix -ity from the former, which anglicizes the rare ambidexter, adopted from ML: ambi-, both + dexter (manus), right hand: 'having two right hands'. Cf AMBIGUITY.

ambience, ambient. See AMBIT.

The former comes, via MF-F ambiguité, from L ambiguitās, o/s ambiguitāt-, from ambiguus, whence E ambiguous (suffix -ous): and ambiguous derives from ambigere, to drive, hence to go—L agere (f.a.e.: AGENT)—on both sides—L ambo, both, c/f ambi- (Elements). Cf:

ambit; ambition, ambitious; ambience, ambient.

Resp, ambit: L ambitus, a circuit, from ambire, to go around or about—cf the element ambi- and, for the r it-, ISSUE; ambition, perh via MF-F, from L ambitiō (o/s ambitiōn-), a going about, esp for votes; ambitious—perh via MF-F ambitieux, f ambitieux—from L ambitiōsus, adj corresp to ambitiō; ambience—perh via F ambiance—from ambiant+abstract suffix -ce; ambient, perh via EF-F ambiant, from L ambient-, o/s of ambiens, presp of ambire—cf the LL ambienter, ambitiously.

ambivalence, -valent. See VALUE, para 11.

amble, n and v—preamble—? ramble, v hence n and rambler; ambulance, ambulant—ambulate, ambulation, ambulatory; circumambulate, circumambulation; perambulate, perambulation, perambulator; alley (sep).

1. Amble, n, adopted from OF-F: from OF ambler, whence, at the ME stage, 'to amble': perh via OProv amblar: from LL ambulāre, to amble, from L ambulāre, to go about, take a turn, make a tour, (hence) to walk: amb-, for ambi-, (lit) on both sides, (hence) about, around+al-, to go+inf suffix -āre. The r ul-, like al- (see ALACRITY), is a var of IE r el-*, to go; perh cf Gr alaomai (s al-), I wander, and elaunō (s elaun, r el-), I drive—and certainly cf L exul, one who goes out (from his homeland)—and W el, let him go!

2. Ambulāre has resp ambulans, o/s ambulant-, whence the E adj ambulant, also in F; the F hôpital ambulant, a field hospital, yields F, hence E, ambulance. The pp ambulātus accounts for 'to ambulate', and the subsidiary ambulatiō, o/s ambulatiōn-, becomes E ambulation; ambulator comes direct from L, ambulatory—perh via late MF-F ambulatorio—from L ambulatorius.

3. The rare 'to preamble', lit 'to walk before' (cf the prefix pre-), comes from LL praeambulāre, whence the LL adj praeambulus, whence the ML n praeambulun, whence MF-F préambule, whence E preamble.

4. L perambulāre, to walk per or through, has pp perambulātus, whence 'to perambulate', to walk, hence to travel, over; the derivative LL perambulatiō, o/s perambulatiōn-, yields perambulation; perambulator is an E formation (cf agential -or): the baby-carriage sense is derivative.

5. LL circumambulāre, to walk circum or around, has pp circumambulātus, whence 'to circumambulate', whence E has analogously derived circumambulation, etc.

6. Now, 'to ramble', whence 'a ramble' and rambler (person, later a rose), is usu described as 'o.o.o.': but ME ramblen could, after amble, have come from VL rambulāre*, for LL reambulāre, an inferior var of L redambulāre, to walk back, esp from an excursion.

7. Cf sep ALLEY.

ambrosia, ambrosial: L, from Gr, ambrosia, from ambrotos, immortal: am-, euphonic for an-, not+brotos, mortal: cf MORTAL and MURDER. Ambrosial: E ambrosia+adj suffix -al; or an -al adaptation of L ambrosius (Gr ambrosios).

ambulance; ambulant; ambulate. See AMBLE, para 2.

ambuscade, n hence v; ambush, n and v.

Ambuscade comes from late MF-F ambuscade, from MF-L ambusquer, to ambush, from OF embuscher, embuschier (influenced by It imboscare), whence the n embusche (later embûche), whence E 'an ambush'; whence also, via ME embuschen, the E 'to ambush'. Embuscher, embuschier, lit 'to take to the woods'= em-, in(to)+busche: f.a.e., BUSH.

amenity: late MF-F aménité: L amoenitās, o/s amoenitāt-: amoenus, pleasant: perh orig 'lovable', from amare (s am-), to love.

amentia. See MIND, para 11.

America, whence American (cf -an, adj): as if (terra) America, 'Amerigo's Land', from Americus (Vespuccius)—L form of It Amerigo (Vespucci)—apprehended as adj: Amerigo Vespucci may or may not have discovered the mainland of America late in C15; certainly his writings (early C16) publicized it.

With Americanism cf Anglicism, which prompted it.

Amethyst: ME ametist: OF-MF ametiste (EF-F améthyste): L amethystus: Gr amethystos, amethyst, orig a remedy against intoxication, this precious stone being fabled to possess that virtue: a-, not+-methustos, app a blend of methusos and methustas, drunken, from methuein, to be tipsy, from methu, an intoxicating drink, closely akin to Skt madhu, honey, mead (made from honey); akin also to OSl medu, OP meddo, honey; to OIr mid, W med, Cor medhu, medu, mēdh, medd, mead; and to OFris mede, OGH metu, OE meodu, ME mede, E mead (the drink). The IE etymon is medhu*, honey, from adj medhus*, sweet, ult akin to Gr meli, L mel, honey. The word is prob Medit: cf, in Sem, the tri-consonantal r mtq, 'sweet' or 'sweetness' (hence perh 'honey'), as in H māthōq, sweet, sweetness, and the rare metheq, sweetness—Ugaritic mtq, sweet—Akkadian matqū, sweet, mutqū, sweetness, mutdqū, sweet food, perh honey—Ar matqā, sweetness—Ethiopic meiūq, sweet, metgat, sweetness. (With thanks to Professor D. W. Thomas.) Perhaps related, in Ham, are Eg k(h)ebi, wild honey, and retchem-t, anything sweet. The Medit r is app madk-, var medk-; and in Sem the r mtq bears also the related meaning 'to suck'.

2. Amethystine: L amethystinus: Gr amethystinos, from amethystos.

ana, memorable or odd sayings: from L -ana, neu pl of adj in -ānus, pertaining to, as in Americana and in Johnsoniana (connective -i-), the sayings, the ana, of Dr Johnson.

anachronism, whence anachronistic: perh via F anachronisme, from Gr anakhronismos, itself from anakhronizein, to refer wrongly (lit, backwards: Gr ana-) in time (Gr khronos: cf CHRONICLE).

anacōnda is prob either a Singhalese (Webster) or (OED) a Singhalese and Tamil word; Enci It, however, says that it originates in Surinam (Dutch Guiana). If Singhalese or Tamil, it app (OED) means 'the crusher' or 'the killer'—or, says Skeat, 'lightning stem'.

anaemia, anaemic; also, in AE, anemia, anemic: anaemia, SciL from Gr anaimia, blood-deficiency: an-, var of a-, not + haima, blood. Hence anaemic (-ic, and adj suffix)—perh prompted by Gr anaimos. Cf the element haemo-.

anaesthesia, anaesthetic, anaesthetist. See AESTHETE, 2nd para.

anagram. See GRAMMAR, para 3.

analecta, analectic. See LEGEND, para 24.

analogy; analogic(al), analogism, analogist, analogize, analogous, analogue. See LEGEND, para 24.

analysis; analyst, analytic, analyse. See LOSE, para 10.

anapest: L anapaestus, trln of Gr (daktulos) anapaistos, ∪ ∪ ∪, (a dactyl: - ∪ ∪) reversed, lit struck (paistos, pp of paiein, to strike) back (ana).

Adj, anapaestic: via L, from Gr anapaistikos.

anarchy; anarch, anarchic, anarchism, anarchist.

The Gr anarkhos (an-, not + arkhos, ruler: f.a.e., the element arch-) becomes E anarch, of which anarchist (suffix -ist) is a needless elaboration; moreover, Gr anarkhos has derivative anarkhia, whence, prob via MF-F anarchie, the E anarchy, with needless var anarchism (-ism). Anarchic, with -al elaboration anarchical, either anglicizes EF-F anarchique or = anarch + adj suffix -ic.

anathema: L, from Gr anathema, a thing devoted, esp to evil, hence a curse: from anathēnai, to dedicate: ana, up + tithēnai, to place or put—cf THESIS.

anatomical, anatomist, anatomize, anatomy. See TOME, para 4.

ancestor, whence (suffix -ess) ancestress; ancestral, ancestry.

L antecedere, to go (cedere: cf CEDE) before (ante), has derivative antecessor, a goer before, whence OF ancestre, ME ancestre, Mod ancestor. OF-MF ancestre has derivative ancesterie, whence, anl, E ancestry. Ancestral, if not prompted by MF ancestre, is a contr of ancestor + -al (adj).

anchor, n and v

The v, if not direct from the n, comes from OF-F ancrer (from n ancra, from L); the n, ME anker, OE ancor, comes from L ancora, anchora, itself from Gr ankura, r ank-, akin to E angle, r ang-: f.a.e., the n ANGLE. Although from anchor, v (+ suffix -age), anchorage was perh suggested by F anfrage.

anchoret or anchorite (influence of agential -ite): EF-F anachorète: L anachōrēta: Gr anakhōrētēs, from anakhōrein, to retire: ana, back+khōrein, to give place, from khōros, a place: cf the 1st element choro-.

anchovy: Sp anchova, var of anchoa, either from Basque anchua, itself from antzua, sterile, dry (Webster), or from Gr aphuē, some small fish, via VL apyia, from L aphya, apua—cf the It acciuga and, for the infix -n-, the Port enchova (B & W): those rude, virile illiterates, the many-countried Mediterranean sailors, reshaped aphua to their needs.

ancient (adj hence n), whence ancientry (suffix -ry): ME auncien: OF-F ancien, irreg from VL antianus*, from VL antius*, from ante (prep) or antea (adv), before—cf the prefix ante-. The -i may owe something to OF-F ancienmeté, ancientry.

ancillary: LL ancillāris, from L ancilla, hand-maiden, f of anculus (o.o.o).

and: OE and, end, akin to OFris and or anda, and end, enda, ende—cf also OS ande or endi, OHG anti, enti, inti, unti or unta (G und)—perh ON enn, even, also, and esp Skt dāta, then, also, and. The IE r could be and-* or end-, varr ant- or ent-; but I suspect that the IE r is at- or et-*: cf Skt dāta and perh ati, beyond—Gr eti, moreover, still—L et, and—perh Go ith, and, and id-, again—Gaul itic, and—perh OIr acus, Ga aḡus, and.

andante (Mus), moderately yet fluently slow: It prep of andare, to go: o.o.o.; ? an IE r and-*, to go—cf Hit anda, andan, to go (to a person, to a place), app only in the taut anda pai- and andan pai-.

andiron: influenced by iron: ME aundiren (or -yrne): OF andier, prob from Gaul andero, young bull, andera*, heifer—cf Ir ainder, young woman, and W, Cor, Br anner, heifer. 'Andirons often have, at their extremities, an animal's head' (B & W, at landier).

androgynous, etc. See the elements andro- and -gyn.

anecdote; anecdotal, anecdotalist; anecdoteage.

Anecdote comes, via F, from Gr anekdotos, unpublished—an-, not+ekdotos, published, from ekdidōnai, to publish, (lit) give out: ek, out+didōnai, to give: f.a.e., date (time). But between F anecdote and Gr anekdotos there intervened Procopius's gossipy memoirs of his day (C7), Anekdotia (n from the neupl of the adj anekdotos), 'Things Unpublished'. (B & W.) The derivatives arise thus: anecdot(e)+-al; anecdot(e)+-ist; anecdote+dot-age.

anemone: L anemone: Gr anemōnē, from anemos, wind: cf the element anemo-.

anesthesia, anesthetic. See AESTHETE.

aneurism, better aneurysm: Gr aneurusma, an opening: ana, back, up+eurus, broad, wide+ suffix.

anew. See NOVA, para 8.

angel, angelic, Angelica, angelica.

Whereas the 3rd arises in ML, from L angelicus, and the 4th is elliptical for L herba angelica ('angelic' because reputedly curative), the 2nd, imm from MF-F angélique, comes—via LL angelicus—from Gr angelikos, the adj of angelos (ἄγγελος), a messenger, hence, in LGr, a divine messenger, an angel, whence, via LL angelus and OF angele, the E angel. With angelos, cf the Gr angaros, a Persian courier, itself of Iranian origin, and Skt angiras, a divinity.

2. Note the cpds (1) archangel, perh via OF archangel, from LL archangelus, from Gr arkhangelos (cf the element arch-), with adj arkhangelikos, whence, via ML archangelicus, the E archangelic; (2) evangel, ME from OF evangile, ML euangelium, LL euangelium, Gr euangelion, glad tidings, from euangelos, bringing good news (Gr adv eu, well), with adj euangelikos, whence, via LL euangelicus, ML ev-, MF-F évangélique, the E evangelic, whence evangelical—with agent euangestlis, whence, via LL euangelista, ML ev-, OF evangeliste, the E evangelist—and v euangelizesthai (s euangeliz-), to bring, announce, good news, whence, via LL euangelizāre, ML ev-, MF evangeliser, the E evangelize, evangelism being an E formation (evangel+-ism); (3) Los Angeles, Sp for '(the convent of) the angels'.

anger (n and v)—hence angry (for angery): ME angre: ON angr, sorrow, distress, whence angra, to grieve or distress, whence 'to anger': akin to ANGINA, ANGUISH, ANXIOUS.

angle (1): n (a corner): adopted from OF, from L angulus (r ang-), corner, angle, akin to Gr ankulos (r ank-), bent, from ankos (s ank-), a bend. Hence, triangle, quadrangle, etc., and, via L angulāris and perh EF-F angulaire, the adj angular, triangular, etc. Cf ANCHOR and:

angle (2): n (a fish-hook): OE angel or angul, akin to OHG angul, ango, and ON ǫngull—to L uncus, a hook, cf Gr onkos, an arrow-barb, and onkē, a corner—esp Skt anka, a hook—but also, ult, to prec. Hence, to angle or fish, whence angler.

Anglia, Anglian; Anglican; Anglicize, etc. See ENGLAND.

Anglo-Saxon. See SAXON, para 3. angostura. See ANGUISH.

anguish, n and v; angostura.

1. The latter derives from the angostura bark of a SAm tree (Sp angostura): from Angostura, built on the narrows of the Orinoco: Sp angostura, a strait, narrows: from L angustus, narrow, from angere (s ang-), to constrict, akin to L angulus, a corner—cf 1st and 2nd ANGLE.

2. L angustus has derivative angustia, narrowness, (hence) distress, whence OF anguisse (F and OF angoisse), whence ME anguise, later anguishe, E anguish. 'To anguish' comes from the OF angoissier, OF-F angoisser (either from angoisse or from LL angustiare, angustare, to compress, to afflict). Cf ANXIOUS.

angulate. See the element angulato-.

aniline derives, by Chem -ine, from anil, a dye from the W I shrub anil: EF-F, from Port, anil: Ar al-nil, the (al) indigo plant: Skt nīlī, indigo, from nīla, dark blue, whence also Per nil, blue, whence the dim nīlak, bluish, whence Ar laylak, Sp lilac, whence, via EF, the E lilac.

The former comes from ML animadversio-, o/s of animadversio, L -uersio, from animaduersus, pp of animaduertere, for animaduertere, lit 'to turn (uertere) the mind (animus—cf next) to (ad): cf advert at VERSION.

animal, n and adj (whence animality, animalize): animate (adj and v)—inanimate—animation; animism, animistic: animus, animosity—equanimity; longanimity; magnanimous, magnanimity; pusillanimous, pusillanimity; unanimous, unanimity.

1. L animus (s anim-), mind, spirit, is a parallel to anima (s anim-), spirit, soul. Strictly, animus is the thinking principle opp both corpus, body, and anima, soul: and anima (hence, ult, animus) is orig 'breath of air', hence breath of life, hence the soul, whether of the living or of the dead. Anima is perh the most echoic of all words: a-ni-ma: a-, a slow in-breathing+ni-, (a moment of) relaxed breathing+ma, a strong out-breathing: cf, echoically and sem, L flātus and spiritus—Gr atmos—Skt ānilas, ātman, breath—and even 'a breath' and 'to breathe'.

2. Animus, adopted by E, has gradually assumed the sense 'feeling of hostility'; the L adj animōsus has derivative animōsitas, o/s animōsität-, whence, via MF-F animosité, the E animosity (cf suffix -ity).

3. Animus recurs in animadversion, q.v. sep; equanimity, magnanimous, unanimous, contain a blend, sem and phon alike, of both animus and anima.

4. Anima issues in the v animāre (anim-+inf suffix -āre), to endow with breath, hence with life, to put life into, with pp animātus, whence both the adj animatus and the v 'to animate'; whence also the L animātiō, o/s animātiōn-, hence E animation, and the agential animātor, adopted by E. Anima leads also to E animism (anima+-ism) and animist (cf -is), whence animistic (cf -ic and -istic).

5. Prefix derivatives of anima, animāre, etc., include exanimāre, to deprive of breath, pp exanimātus, whence E exanimate, and LL inanimātus (in, not+animātus, alive), whence inanimate. 'To reanimate' and reanimation are E formations: re-, again+animate, animation.

6. Certain true L cpds of anima and animus, or of both, result in E words:

aequanimus, from aequo animo ferre, to bear with an equal, hence even, mind—hence the E equani- mous; derivative aequanimitās, o/s aequanimitāt-, yields (prob via EF équanimité) equanimity;

LL longanimis, long-minded, i.e. patient, has derivative longanimitās, o/s longanimitāt-, whence, prob via MF-F longanimité, the E longanimity; magnanimus, great-minded, (esp) generous, yields magnanimous, and its derivative magnanimitās, o/s magnanimitāt-, yields—prob via MF-F magnanimité—magnanimity; its opposite

LL pusillanimis, perh from pusillo animo, with very little (pusillus) courage (a special sense of animus), gives us pusillanimous, mean-spirited, (usu) cowardly, and its derivative pusillanimitās, o/s -animitāt-, gives—prob via MF-F pusillanimité—pusillanimity; unanimus (unus, one), which produces E unanimous (and F unanime), has derivative unanimitās, o/s unanimitāt-, whence MF-F unanimité, whence E unanimity.

7. Also from L anima comes the L adj animālis, breathing, animate, whence the E adj animal; animālis has neu animāle, whence the n animal, a breathing thing, i.e. an animal. The E formations are simple: animalism=animal, n+suffix -ism; animality=animal, adj+-ity; animalize (whence animalization)=animal, adj+-ize. Animality (cf LL animālitās) and animalize may owe something to F animalité and animaliser.

8. L animal has dim animalaculum, whence, perh via EF-F, animalcule.

aniseed=anise seed (cf SEED); anise comes, through ME anys and MF-F anis, from L anisum, var anethum, from Gr anison, var anēthon, anise, app a loan-word.

ankle: ME acle, perh from ON ökla (cf OFris ankel or onkel, anklēu or onklēu); the earlier ME form anclowe derives from OE anclēo, anclēow akin to OHG anchlāo (early Mod HG Enkel) and prob to Skt āṅga, limb.

Ann, F Anne, It from L Anna: Gr Anna: H Hānnāh, grace, whence E Hannah. The dim Nanny accounts for nanny (goat) and perh for nanny, children's nurse, although the latter may be childish for nursie, mother's reference to nurse—cf the F nounou.

anna, small Indian coin: Hi ānā. annalist; annals. See ANNUAL, para 2.

anneal: ME anelen: OE anāelan: an, on+āelan, to kindle, bake.

annex, annexation, annexion. See the 2nd NET, para 8.

annihilate, annihilation. See FILAMENT, para 12.

anniversary. See ANNUAL, para 5.

annotate, annotation, annotator. See NOTABLE, para 7.

announcement, announcer. See NUNCIO, para 3.

annoy, annoyance. See ODISIOUS, para 6.

annual, annuity (whence annuitant); annals, annalist; anniversary; biennial, triennial; centenary, centennial; millennium, millenary, millennial; perennial; superannuate, superannuation; cf SOLEMN.

1. The source of all these words is L annus (s ann-, r an-), a year, akin to the -en- of Gr dienos (di-, two + -en- + formative -o- + nom -s), of two years, Skt atati, it passes—to Go athnam (dat pl), once, and ata-athni, (lapse of) a year—perh also Oscan akenei, in a year, and Umbrian acnu (acc pl), years. Basic sense: 'passing of a year's period'. (E & M.)

2. The following L derivatives result in E words: annulālis, MF-F hence ME annuel, E annual (-al, adj);

ML annuitās (o/s annuitāt-), MF-F annuité, E annuity (-ity)—whence annuitant (cf -ant, n); annālis, annual, whence (libri) annāles, chronicles (year by year), whence E annals and late MF-F annales, whence EF-F annaliste, whence E annalist (-ist).

3. L numerical cpds relevant to E include:

biennālis, from biennium, a period of two years (cf bis, twice, and prefix bi-): hence E biennial; triennial comes analogously from L triennium, a period of three years; quadrennial, four-yearly, from L quadriennium, period of four years; quinquennial from L quinquennis, five-yearly; millennium Mod L (from mille, a thousand), adopted by E; milleni, a thousand each, has LL derivative millenārius, whence E millenary; millennial derives from millennium on analogy of biennial, etc., as also does centennial from L centum, a hundred; but centenary, n, comes from LL centenārium, a century, from L centenārius, of a century, whence the E adj centenary.

4. One L prep cpd is relevant:

perennis, lasting through the year, whence—cf biennial, centennial, etc.—perennial, adj hence n. Cf the E formation superannuate: L super, above + L annus, a year + suffix -ate; hence superannuation.

5. There remains L anniuersārius, ML -versārius, returning, each year, with a particular day of the year: from anni versus, the turning of the year (uersus, ML versus, from uertere, vertere, to turn—cf verse): whence E anniversary, adj hence n, perh via the OF-F adj and n anniversaire. annul, whence annulment. See NULL, para 1.

annular, ring-shaped: L annulāris, from annulus, a ring, better anulus, orig the dim of anus, (perh cf OI āune, āinne), a ring, adopted by E in its physio sense, with adj anal. Annulus leads to the E dim annulet (cf -let); cf OF-F annelet.

annunciation. See NUNCIO, para 3.

anode. See ODOGRAPH (heading).

anodyne, adj and n: ML anodynus, adj; LL anodynos: Gr anodunos, pain-free or -stilling; an-, not + odunē, pain. The E n comes from ML anodynum, itself from Gr anodonon, orig the neu s of the adj.

anoint, anointment. See UNCTION, para 4.

anomalous, anomaly. See the element anomalo-.

anon, adv. See ONE, para 9.

anon.: short for anonymous; anonym, anonymity. See NAME, para 3.

anormal. See NORM, para 3.

answer, n and v (whence answerable). See SWEAR, para 2.

ant: ME ante, earlier amete or emete (cf the archaic emmet): OE āemete, akin to OHG āmeiza (G Ameise)—ā-, off + meizan, to cut (cf G Meissel, a chisel)—and to Go maitan, ON meita, to cut. Lit, therefore, 'the cutter-off, gnawer' (Walshe).

antagonism, antagonist. See AGONY, 2nd para.

Antarctic. See ARCTIC.

antecedent, whence antecedence and antecedency: MF-F antécédent: L antecedent-, o/s of antecedens, presp of antecedere, to go (cedere: cf CEDE) before (ante: cf prefix ante-).

antechamber. See CHAMBER.

antedate. See DATE (in time).

antediluvian, adj hence n: before (ante) the Flood (ML Dilūvium, L dilūutum: cf DELUGE).

antelope: OF antelop: ML antalopus, earlier anthalopus: MGr antholops (gen antholopos), o.o.o.

antenna (pl antennae). See the element antenni-.

antepone, anteposition. See POSE, para 4.

anteversion. See VERSE, para 15.

Both of these words come from Gr antiphōna, neu pl of antiphōnon, an antiphon or anthem, itself orig the neu s of the adj antiphōnos, sound-returning (anti, over against + phōnē, a voice, a sound: cf -phone): Gr antiphōna became LL antiphōna (f sing) became E antiphon—cf E antiphonary (suffix -ary, n) from the derivative ML antiphonārium, and antiphonal from E antiphon; Gr antiphōna became also LL antefana (var of LL antiphōna), which became OE antefen, antefn, became ME antefne, later antem, whence, under Gr influence, the E anthem.

anther. See para 2 of:

anthology, whence anthological, -logist, -logize: Gr anthologia, from the adj anthologos, flower-gathering: anthos, a flower, akin to Skt āndhas-, a herb, and prob to OIr ainder, a girl, and OBr enderic, MBr annoer, a young bull; IE r, perh andh-* (or and-), var endh- (or end-); + -logos, -gathering, from legein, to gather—cf LOGIC and LEGEND.

2. Anther: EF-F anthère: L anthēra, medicine concocted from flowers: Gr anthēros, flowery, from anthos, flower.

3. Cf polyanthus, SciL from Gr poluanthos, rich (cf the element poly-) in flowers: it has a many-flowered umbel.

anthracite, whence anthracitic (-ic, adj); anthrax: L anthracites, bloodstone: Gr anthrakitēs, from anthrax, coal, charcoal, carbuncle, whence, via L anthrax, the E anthrax. With Gr anthrax, perhaps of the Arm ant'el, a glowing coal; anthrax, however, could contract antherax*, from anthos, a flower.

anthropoid; anthrcpology, anthropomorphic, anthropophagy.

1. The Gr anthrōpos, a human being (cf the element anthropo-), akin to anēr (gen andros), a man, has several Gr derivatives relevant to E. Note:

anthrōpoidēs, resembling a human being—hence anthropoid; anthrōpomorphos, of human form (morphē, form, shape: cf MORPHEUS)—hence anthropomorphous, whence anthropomorphism (-ism) with adj anthropomorphic; anthrōpophagia, cannibalism—hence anthropophagy (cf the element -phaga).

2. Of the numerous other cpds, one stands out: anthropology (whence anthropological and anthropologist): element anthropo-+element -logy, q.v. at -logia: perh imm from EF-F anthropologie.

antibiotic. See VIVA, para 11, s.f.

antic, adj hence n; antique (adj and n), antiquity—antiquary (adj hence n), antiquarian: antiquate, antiquated.

1. The n antic, a caper, derives from the adj antie, grotesque: It antico, ancient: L antiquus, ancient, (lit) former, from ante, before, (lit) over against; the suffix -quus may be id with that in propinquus, near. Cf the prefix ante-, akin to prefix anti-.

2. The E n antique has been adopted from the F n antique, itself from the MF-F adj antique (itself from L antiquus), whence the E adj.

3. L antiquus has several derivatives relevant to E:

antiquitās, o/s antiquitāt-, OF-F antiquité, E antiquity (suffix -ity); antiquārius (adj), loving the ancient, hence a n: whence the E rare adj and the n antiquary (cf EF-F antiquaire), whence the adj (hence n) antiquarian (suffix -an, adj); antiquāre, L 'to throw back, reject, abrogate', LL 'to cause to fall into oblivion', pp antiquātus, whence 'to antique', to render old or ancient, (hence) to render obsolete, whence the pa antiquated.

anticipate, anticipation, anticipative, anticipator, anticipatory.

The 5th derives, by adj suffix -y, from the 4th, itself adopted from L; the 3rd=L anticipāt-+suffix -ive; the 2nd, if not direct from MF-F, comes from L anticipātiōn-, the o/s of anticipātiō, itself from anticipātus (s anticipāt-), pp of L anticipāre, to forestall: ante, before+ a derivative from capere, to take, 'to take beforehand'. The L presp anticipans, o/s anticipant-, yields the adj, hence n, anticipant.—CF CAPABILITY, para 4.

anticlimax. See CLIMAX.

antidote, whence antidotal: L antidotum: Gr antidoton (pharmakon), 'the (medicine) given against': orig the neu of antidos, given against: anti, against+dotos, given, pp of didonai, to give: cf DOSE.

antimacassar. See MACASSAR.

antimilitarism. See MILITANT, para 3.

antimony, whence antimonial, antimonic, antimonious: ML antimonium, perh Ar al-uthmud or antinomy, whence antinomian, antinomic: L, from Gr, antinomia: anti, against+nomos, law+abstract suffix -ia; nomos (s nom-) derives from nemein (s nem), to distribute. Cf NOMAD.

-ithmid; al being the Ar 'the', and -ithmid prob borrowed from Gr stimmī (var stibi, whence L stibium, adopted by Chem), itself app a borrowing of popular Eg stim, hieratic Eg štm (Hofmann).

antipathetic, antipathy. See PATHIC, para 2.

apathy, whence apathetic, derives, perh via EF-F apathie, from L apatia: Gr apatheia: privative a-+pathos+abstract suffix -eia. Cf SYMPATHY and see PATHIC.

ape, n hence v: OE apa, akin to ON api and OHG affo (G Affe): 'an early Teutonic loan word, perhaps from Celtic' (Webster)—but from which C language, if indeed from any? Cf OSl opica and Cz opice (Walshe). Perh rather cf Eg aāfi, a hideous man—and gafi, gef, an ape. If, however, ape be 'the imitator', then a C origin is not impossible: Ga atharrais, a mimic, prop ath-, an int prefix+aithris, mimicry, to mimic, and EIr aithrisim, I re-tell, and Mx arrish, mimicry, a mimic.

aperient; aperitive; aperture, whence apertural; ? April.

1. The L aperire (s aper-), to open, (hence) to uncover, discover, is the complement of operire, to shut, to cover—cf COVER. The IE r is therefore uer-*: cf Lith at-veriu, I open, and už-veriu, I shut; cognates exist also in OSI and Skt. (E & M.)

2. Aperire has presp aperiens, o/s aperient-, whence aperient, adj hence n; and derivative n apertūra (whence, E aperture), built upon the pp apertus, whence, via OF, the archaic adj apert; the LL apertius (ML apertivus) perh suggested F apertif, adj and n, whence E aperitive.

3. The ancient grammarians may have correctly derived L Aprilis—whence April—from Aperilis*, from aperire: Aprilis comes in the middle of the European spring, the month in which buds open. But Walde proposes that, April being the second month of the year, Aprilis derives from IE apero*, the later, akin to Skt áparas, later, following; and E & M support Benveniste's derivation from Etruscan apru, itself borrowed from Gr Aphrō, pet-form of Aphrodītē, April being, in Medit countries, when young people's fancy turns to love. The third theory is the most convincing.

apert. See PERT.

apex, pl apices; apical: L apex (s ap-), summit, esp of something small, e.g. of a cap: perh from apere (s ap-), to attach. Apical=apic-, o/s of L apex+adj -al.

aphelion. See SOLAR, para 6.

aphid. Aphis. See the element aphidi-.

aphorism, aphoristic.

The latter comes from Gr aphoristikos, adj of aphorismos, a definition, hence a pithy saying, from aphorizein, to define: aph-, for apo, from +horizein, to separate: f.a.e., HORIZON. Gr aphorismos became LL-ML aphorismus became MF-F aphorisme became E aphorism.

aphrodisiac; Aphrodite: Gr aphrodisiakos, of sexual love, from Aphrodītē, perh 'descendant (-itē) of the foam (aphros)', with euphonic or formative -d-, from aphros (whence aphrite, a pearly calcite), cf Skt abhrás, cloudy weather.

L apis (s ap-), a bee, has c/f api-, as in apiculture (cf CULT), and derivatives aplānus, whence apian, and apiārium, whence apiary. Cf the element api- and perh BEE (b for p; aphesis).

aplomb: EF-F aplomb, uprightness, exact poise: F à plomb, adv, with plummet: plomb, lead, plummet: f.a.e., PLUMB.

The latter comes from Gr apokaluptikos, the adj of apokalupsis, whence, via LL apocalypsis, the E apocalypse: and Gr apokalupsis derives from apokaluptein, to uncover, to reveal: apo, from +kaluptein, to cover, the origin of Gr Kalupsō, whence E Calypso, whence perh the WI calypso. Ult Gr r, kal-; IE *r, kel-, cf L celāre, to hide.

apocope. See the element -copate.

Apocrypha, whence (adj -al) apocryphal: apocrypha, neu pl of LL apocryphus: Gr apokru- phos, hidden (hence, spurious), from apokruptein, to hide away: apo, from +kruptein, to hide: cf cryptic at CRYPT.

apodeictic. See DICT, para 23.

apogee: (perh via EF-F apogée) L apogaeum, trin of Gr apogaiōn, prop the neu s of adj apogaios, (situated) up from (apo) the earth gaia, var gē—cf GEOGRAPHY.

Apollo, adopted from L, comes from Gr Apollōn, earlier Apellōn, perh from IE *r apel-, to excite, promote, procreate: 'The Exciter or Generator', Apollo being the god of sun and light: cf, sem, the Skt epithet savitā, applied to a sun god. (Boisacq.)

apologia, apology; apologist, apologize; apologetic, apologetics; apologue. See LEGEND, para 25.

apophthegm, adj apophthegmatic: Gr apophthegma, something uttered, lit 'spoken out': apo, off, from +a derivative from phthengesthai, to speak—cf diphthong; hence apophthegmatikos, whence apophthegmatic.

The adj comes, perh via F, from LL apoplēcticus, itself from Gr apoplēktikos, adj of apoplēxia, whence, via LL apoplēxia and MF-F apoplexie (adopted by ME), the E apoplexy: and Gr apoplēxia derives from apoplēssein, to strike cripplingly: apo, from +plēssein, to strike: f.a.e., PLAGUE.

apostacy or -ey; apostate: Gr apōstēnai, to stand (stēnai: cf STAND) off (apo) has two notable derivatives: apostasia, adopted by LL, whence, perh through MF, the ME apostasie, E apostasy, var apostacy; and the agent apostatēs, whence L apostata, whence MF (later apostat), hence ME hence E, apostate.

apostil. See POSTERIOR, para 3.

apostile; apostolate; apostolic. See STALL, para 15.

apostrophe, apostrophize. See STRAP, para 3.

apothecary. See THESIS, para 7.

apothecosis, whence apothecize: via LL from Gr apothēōsis, from apothēoun, to deify (theos, a god: cf THEISM): apo- connotes '(up) from mankind'.

appal, appall. See PALE, para 2.

appanage. See PANTRY, para 10.

apparatus: adopted from L (gen -ūs), from apparat-, s of apparātus, pp of apparāre, to prepare: ap- for ad, to +parāre, to make ready, s par-, app akin to parere (s par-), to bring forth (a child): the sem link is clear and strong. Cf:

apparel, n and v.

Then n comes, through ME aparail, from OF aparail, apareil (F appareil), itself from OF apareillier (F appareiller), to prepare, whence 'to apparel': and apareillier comes from VL appari-culāre*, a freq from L apparāre—cf prec.

apparent, apparition. See APPEAR.

appeach, appachment. See FOOT, para 13.

appeal. See the 2nd PULSE, para 6.

appear, appearance; apparent, apparition, apparitor.

Appearance comes, through ME aparaunce, appareance, and OF aparance, from L apparentia, from apparent- (whence E appear), o/s of apparens, presp of apparère, whence OF aparoir (note ils aperent, they appear) and ME aperen, apperen, whence the E appear. On apparit-, s of apparitus, pp of apparère, arose both apparitiō, o/s apparitiōn-, whence, via OF-F, the E apparition, an appearance, esp a ghostly appearance, a spectre; and apparitor, adopted by E law. Apparère=ap- for ad, to + parère (s par-), to be visible, to appear, prob akin to Gr peparein (s par-), to display, pe- being app an int prefix.

The latter represents OF-F apaisement, itself from apaiser, to pacify, quieten, OF apaisier, OF-F apaiser (a, to + pais, peace + -er, inf suffix), whence, via ME apaisen, apesen, the E appease. Cf PEACE.

appellant, appellate, appellation. See the 2nd PULSE, para 6.

append, appendage, appendant; appendix, appendicitis. See PEND, para 13.

apperceive, apperception. See PERCEIVE.

appertain. See PERTAIN, para 3.

appetency, appetent, appetite. See PETITION, para 3.

applaud, applause. See PLAUDIT, para 2.

apple: ME appel, eppele: OE aeppl, aepel, akin to OFris appel, OS appul, OHG apful (MHG-G apfel); to ON eple, epli; to OIr aball, MÍr uball, ubull, OW ballen, Ga ubhal, Cor aval(l) or avell, Br aval, Manx ooyl; to OSl ablūko (or jablūko) and Lith obuolas; prob also to L Abella (malifera, rich in apples: Virgil) in Campania. Indeed, Abella may well constitute the origin of this European word. The var Auella, ML Avella (the sole modern form), accounts for the E adj avellan, from L auellana, ML av-, the filbert, elliptical for nux auellana, nut of Abella.

archetype, whence (-al, adj) archetypal. See the element -type.

archipelago, whence the adj archipelagic (ic): It arcipelago, lit 'chief sea': element arch-+L pelagus from Gr pelagos, sea, whence pelagios, of the sea, L pelagius, E pelagian; the syn pelagic represents L pelagicus, from pelagos. With Gr pelagos (s and r pelag-), cf Gr plax, surface of the sea, a plain: IE r, pela-*, flat, to be flat, to stretch.

architect, architecture (whence architectural); architonic, whence architectonics. See TECHNIC, para 5.

architrave. See TAVERN, para 4.

archive, whence archival (-al); archivist.

The 3rd represents ML archivista, from ML archivum, LL archivium, a record-office, var of archium, a transliteration of Gr arkheion, government house, from arkhē, a beginning, the first place, the government. E archive prob comes from ML archivum; archives (collective n), prob from late MF-F (les) archives, from Gr (ta) arkheia, archives, via ML archiva, pl of archivum.

arctic, adj hence n Arctic; Arcturus; Antarctic.

Arctic comes from MF-F Arctique, from L arcticus, from Gr arktikos, adj of arktos, a bear, akin to Skt īkṣas, L ursus, OIr art: perh 'the storer' (of honey); cf Skt rākṣas-, a storing, a store. (Hofmann.) Gr arktos signified also the northern constellation so called: Ursa, The Bear: cf L Arcturos, from Gr Arktouros, the Bear Guard (ouros, guard). The n Antarctic derives from the adj antarctic, from MF-F antarctique, from L antarcticus, from Gr antarktikos: anti, opposite + arktikos: opposite the north pole or the arctic circle.

arcual; arcuate, arcuation. See ARC, resp paras 5 and 4.

Ardennes, ardennite. See ARDUOUS.

ardent, whence ardency (ardent + suffix -cy); AE ardor, E ardour; arid, aridity; arson, whence arsonist (-ist); perh ASHES, q.v. The base, phonetic and semantic alike, is L arēre (s ar-), to be dry, akin to Skt āsas, ashes—Gr azein (s az-), to dry—Tokh A ḍsar, dry—Arm azazem, I dry—OHG asca, Go azgō, ashes. (E & M.) The IE r is perh ā-*, to be dry, to be hot: cf Hit a-a-ri, an extrn of Hit ā-, to be hot, and perh Hit Agniš, the Fire-God.

2. Deriving from arēre, the following L words affect E:

aridus (occ ardus), dried up, parched, whence arid, the derivative ariditas, o/s ariditat-, yielding aridity; ardere (s ard-, r ar-), to be on fire, with presp ardens, o/s ardent-, whence, via OF ardant and ME ardaunt, the E ardent;

ardor (akin to and prob deriving from ardere), orig 'extreme dryness', hence 'a burning heat', leads to OF ardor or ardour, whence ME ardure or ardeur, whence E ardour, ardor.

3. Ardere became OF ardre, pp ars, whence the n arson, adopted by E: cf the suffix -on.

arduus; Ardennes.

Arduus comes from L arduus, high, steep, hence difficult and strenuous; akin to OIr ard, high, and perh to Skt ūrdhvās, upright, and to Gr ardis, a point: IE r, ard*. Gaul Arduenna, name of a mountain, is at least akin to the mountainous Ardennes (pl), whence the min ardennite.

are, n. See AREA.

are, v: Northumbrian OE aron, we, you, they are: akin to ON eru, they are: cf ART, v, and AM.

area; are, n.; areola. The F are (100 square metres) derives from L area, a piece—usu broad—of level ground, a courtyard, a threshing floor; the dim areola has likewise been adopted by E; the L adj areālis becomes E areal. With area, o.o.o., perh cf Hit ards, a granary, esp if 'threshing floor' be the orig sense of L area.

A gladiatorial ring, later a bull-ring, arena consists of sand or a sanded surface: L arēna, sand, hence a sandy, usu enclosed, space, is a var of early harēna, itself with var hasena, found also in Sabine: app o.o.o., although Hit kordiz (dat karaitti), sand, may be relevant; IE r, ? khar-*. The derivative adj arēnāceus, arēnōsus, yield arenaceous (suffix -aceous) and arenose (-ose).

argent, n hence adj; argenteous, argentine (ad hence n)—Argentina; argill; cf ARGUE.

The L argentum, silver, becomes OF argent, adopted by E; its derivative adj argenteus yields argenteous; argentine (adj -ine), however, represents OF-F argentin, from argent. Argentina is app elliptical for Sp (tierra) argentina, silvery land, from the country's wonderful rivers (esp Rio de la Plata, river of silver) and lakes. Now, L argentum is akin to Gr arguros, silver, from argos, argēs, white—cf Skt rajatā-, white, hence silver, and OIr argat, silver; argos has another derivative, argilla, adopted by L, whence OF-F argile, whence E argil, (white or potter's) clay.

Argonaut. See NAUTIC, para 3, s.f.

argosy: EE ragusyē: app from It (nave) ragusea, orig 'ship of Ragusa'—sailing from that port.

argue, whence arguable and arguer; arguffy and argy-bargy; argument, argumental, argumentation, argumentative; argute.

1. Argue, ME arguen, comes from OF-F arguer, from L argūtāre (or -ārī), freq of arguere, to clarify, akin to L argentum, silver: see ARGENT. Certain L derivatives affect E:

argumentum, proof, argument, becomes OF-F argument, adopted by E; its derivative LL adj argumentālis yields argumental; another derivative, argumentārī, to demonstrate or argue, has derivative argumentātīō, o/s argumentātīōn-, whence, prob via MF-F, argumentation;

LL argumentātīuus, ML -ivus, yields argumentative; argūtus, pp of arguere, hence adj 'clear; hence shrewd; subtle', yields argute.

2. E formations include the coll and dial argusy, either argue + element -fy or argument + -fy, and the mostly dial argy-bargy, a rhyming redup of argue.

aria. See AIR.

arise, pt arose, pp arisen. See RAISE, para 2.

aristocracy, aristocrat, aristocratic: resp Gr aristokratia, aristokratēs, aristokratikos, all via L and then MF-F: cf the elements aristo- and -crat. Cf Aristophanes, ? 'he who shows (things) best', and Aristotle, ? 'he who fulfils the best'.

arithmetic, whence arithmetical and arithmetician: L arithmētica; Gr arithmētikē (tekhne), from arithmētikos, numerical, from arithmein, to number, from arithmos, (a) number: akin to OHG and OIr rīm, number; IE r, ari-* or ri-*, to arrange, esp in numbers.

2. Logarithm, whence logarithmic, derives from SciL logarithmus: Gr logos, account, proportion + arithmos: cf LGr logarismos, a calculation.

ark: arcane, arcana; coerce, coercion, coercive; exercise, n and v.; exercitant, exercitation.

1. All these terms ramify from L arcēre (s arc-), to contain or maintain, hence to maintain at a distance, to keep or ward off: prob akin to Gr arkein

(s ark-), to keep off, and perh to Arm argelum (s argel-, r ? arg-), I prevent.

2. Relevant L derivatives of arcēre are arca, basket, box, coffer, whence OE arc (or earc), whence ark; arcānus (from arca), boxed, closed, hence secret, whence arcane; neu arcānum, become n and adopted by E, occurs mostly in pl arcāna.

3. Relevant L prefix cpds of arcēre:

coercēre (co-, con-, together), to contain, hence to refrain, whence 'to coerce'; its derivative coercio (for coercitiō), o/s coerciōn-, gives us coercion; but coercive = coerce + -ive; exercēre (ex, out of), to drive out, pursue, hence to keep (someone) moving, hence to practise, to exercise, whence the n exercitium, exercise, MF-F exercice, ME and E exercise, whence 'to exercise'; exercitāre (freq of exercēre), to practise or exercise diligently, with presp exercitans, o/s exercitant-, whence, via F, the n exercitant, and with derivative n exercitātiō, o/s exercitātiōn-, whence, prob via OF-EF, excitation.

arm (1), weapon. See ARMS.

arm (2), upper limb: OE arm, earm: akin to OFris arm, erm—OHG aram—Go arms—ON armr; to OP irno; to L armus (s arm-), shoulder, arm—and to Skt īrmas, arm; perh also to Hit āra, something right or fitting: IE r, prob ar-, var er-, with -m- as a formative. Perh akin to ARMS.

2. The derivatives are obvious—e.g., armlet, (lit) little arm; armpit (arm+pit, a hollow).

arm (3 and 4), v—answering to prec and to arms.

armada; armadillo. See ARMS.

Armageddon: LL Armagedon: L Gr Armagedōn, Harmagedōn, the H har, mountain of Megiddo. See Revelations, xvi, 16, and Judges, v, 19.

Armenia, Armenian. See ERMINE.

armor, armour. See para 2 of:

arms; army.

The base rests on L arma, neu pl used as a collective, whence OF-F armes, hence ME armes, whence arms; the s is a b/f. Arma may well, as Bréal suggested, derive from armāre (next para), itself from armus, the arm (see the 2nd ARM): he compares pugna, a fight, from pugnāre, to fight, itself from pugnus, fist.

2. Arma has the foll cognates and derivatives relevant to E:

armāre, to equip with arms, whence, via OF-F armer, the E 'to arm'; OF-F armer has derivative OF-MF desarmer (EF-F dés-), whence ME desarmen, whence 'to disarm'; armātūra (likewise from armāre), whence the MF-F and E armature; it yields also OF armeüre, MF-F armure, whence ME armure, whence E armour, AE armor.

(from armāre comes) armāmentum, whence, like MF-F armement, the E armament;

3. Armoury, AE armory, app derives from E armo(u)r; there has been confusion with EF-F armoiries, coats of arms, MF armoieries, from OF-MF armoier, to paint (coats of) arms, from OF armes (cf para 1). Either adopted from EF-F or formed anl from armory comes armorial.

4. F in origin are: army, from MF-F armée, from armer, from L armāre (para 2 above); armo(u)rer, from ME armurer, from MF-F armurier, from MF-F armure; armistice, adopted from late EF-F which, after F solstice, coined it from L armi-, c/f of arma+-stitium, n c/f of stāre, to stand: a standing (still) of arms.

5. Sp intervention occurs in:

armada, adopted from Sp from L armāta, prob elliptical for classis armāta, an armed fleet, where armāta is the fs of armātus, pp of armāre; armadillo, a plated mammal: adopted from Sp—dim of armado, armed, pp of armar, to arm, itself from L armāre.

The latter descends, via LL arōmaticus and F aromatique, from Gr arōmatikos, adj of arōma, itself o.o.o., but perh, as Hofman proposes, from Gr arōmenai, to plough (L arāre), presumably from the smell of good earth upturned. Gr arōma, adopted by LL, yields E aroma and F arome.

around. See ROLL, para 22.

arraign, arraignment. See REASON, para 8.

arrange, arrangement. See RANGE, para 5.

arrant: var of errant, q.v. at ERR.

arras: for and from Arras tapestry: first made in NE France, land occupied formerly by the L Atrebatas (L Gr Atrebatoi or -tioi).

array, n and v, whence arrayal (n suffix -al) and arrayment (-ment)—cf RAIMENT; DISARRAY, n, v; CURRY, v.

1. The n array, ME arrai or arai, comes from OF arrei or ar(r)oi, arrangement, dress, itself from areer, to arrange (areie, he arranges), whence, via ME araien, the E 'to array': and OF areer comes from VL arrēdāre*, to arrange—ad, to+ a s of Gmc origin, cf Go garaiþs, set in order, arranged: f.a.e., READY.

2. OF areer has derivative n areement or araie-ment, whence the E arrayment, meaning both an arraying and raiment; indeed, raiment, garments, is aphetic for arraiment, an early var of arrayment.

3. OF areer has derivative MF v desarrieer, influential in the forming of E 'to disarray', whence app the n disarray—cf F désarroï.

4. With 'to array' cf 'to curry', to dress—esp to comb—a horse's coat: ME curreien: OF correer (var conveer), to curry (a horse), special sense of correer, to arrange or prepare: cor-, or L con-, with, together (often merely int)+OF rei (var roi), order, arrangement, of Gmc origin (see para 1, s.f.).

arrect. See REX, para 26.

arrest, n, v; arrestation, arrestive, arrestment.

Arrest, n, passes through ME arest from OF arest (F arrêt), itself from the v arester (VL arrestāre*: ad, to+restāre, to stop or remain:

f.a.e., REST, remainder)—whence, via ME aresten, the E 'to arrest', whence the pa arresting. OF arester has derivatives MF arestaison, whence, influenced by L restare and the many nn in -ation, the EF-F, hence the E, arrestation, and MF-EF arestement, whence E arrestment; the MF arestif, tardy, may have form-suggested E arrestive, fixative.

arrière-pensée. See PEND, para 11.

arrive; arrival; arrivé, arriviste. See RIVER, para 3.

arrogance, arrogant; arrogate, arrogation, arrogative. See ROGATION, para 4.

arrow, n—hence v, and adj arrowy: ME arewe: OE arwe or earh, akin to ON ör, gen örvar, and Go arhwazna (Gmc s arhwo-*): also to L arcus (a bow), q.v. at ARC. Of the cpd arrowroot, Webster remarks that 'the Indians are said to have used the roots to neutralize the venom of poisoned arrows'.

arroyo, a watercourse, a (dry) gully formed by water: adopted from Sp, which has thus reshaped ML arrogium (akin to L arrugia, gallery of a mine, a canal), itself from L rius (ML rivus), watercourse, brook.

arse: OE ears or aers, akin to the syn OFris ers, OHG ars (Mod Arsch), ON ars—and to Hit arraš, Gr orrhos, the behind. IE r, ars-, varr ers-, ors-*.

arsenal: perh via ML arsenal (cf EF-F arsenal, MF archenal), var of arsena: It arsenale, arsenale, dockyard (as orig in E): Old Venetian arzaná: prob via MGr arsenalēs: Ar (dār) al šinā'ah, maritime arsenal, lit 'court or house) of manufacture'.

arsenic: MF-F arsenic: L arsenicum, arrhenium: L Gr arsenikon, Gr arrhenikon, yellow orpiment, itself—via Sem channels (esp Syriac zarnig)—from OPer: cf Skt hiranya, Av zaranya, gold. Adj arsenious; derivative arsine (chem suffix -ine)

art (1), n; artful, artless, arty; artifice, artificer, artificial, artificiality; artisan; artist, artiste, artistic, artistry; cf theelement arti-;—inert, inertia, inertial. Cf sep ARM and ARTICLE.

1. L ars, as in ars poetica, the poetic art, has o/s art-, acc artem, whence, via OF-F, the E art: and ars, a way of being or of acting, hence a skill, hence talent, has r ar-; indeed, the IE r itself is ar-* or er-*; L prefers the former, as in armus (cf ARM), and artus, a joint, hence a limb (cf ARTICLE).

2. The purely E derivatives include artful, artless, arty: cf the adj suffixes -ful-, -less-, -y.

3. The main L derivatives relevant to E are:

iners, unskilful (in-, not+ars), hence inactive, lazy, inert, has o/s inert-, whence E inert, with derivative inertia, adopted by E, which coins the adj inertial (-al); artifex, artificer, artist, derives from artem facere and generates artificium, whence MF-F artifice, adopted by E, with own derivative artificer; artificium has adj artificiālis, technical, merely technical, artificial, whence E artificial (cf the MF-F artificiel), with own derivative artificiality.

4. It intervention accounts for E artisan, an adoption from EF-F; F artisan comes from It artigiano, from arte, itself from L ars, o/s art-.

5. Predominantly F in formation is artist, from MF-F artiste (adopted by E for an artist of theatre, ballet, music-hall), from F art; F artiste has adj artistique, whence E artistic; but artistry represents E artist+suffix -ry.

art (2), v (ME eart, art): an inflexion of AM, q.v. artery, arterial.

The adj represents the MF artériel (soon artériel), from MF-F artère, from L artēria, wind-pipe, artery (from Gr artēria), whence E artery; artēria is app akin to, perh derived from, artaō, I suspend. Cf the element arterio-.

artesian: F artésien, adj from L Artesium, F Artois, F district where this type of well was first made.

artful. See ART, para 2.

arthritic, arthritis. See the element arthro-.

artichoke: northern dial It articiocco (cf Sp alcachofa, significant var of alcachofa): Ar alkhurshūf, where al is the Ar 'the'. (Cf 'Articled Nouns' in P¹.)

article, n hence v; articulant; articular; articulate (adj and v)—articulacy; articulation, articulative, articulatory.

L artus, a joint (cf the element arthro-), has dim articulus, an articulation or joint, hence a precise moment (e.g., in articulo mortis, in the article of death) or a precise part, a division, an article (via MF-F article). L derivatives affecting E include articulāre, to divide into joints or precise parts, to utter distinctly; the presp articulans, o/s articulānt-, yields the E n articulant; the pp articulātus (s articulāt-) yields both the adj articulate, whence articulacy (articulate+-cy: cf accuracy from accurate), and the v 'to articulate'; derivative from articulat- are articulātiō, o/s articulātiōn-, whence late MF-F articulation, adopted by E, and ML articulātor, adopted by E, and the E formations articulative and articulatory. ML articularis (from articulus) accounts for articular—cf the EF-F articulaire.

artifice. See FACT, para 2; cf ART.

artifice, artificial, artificiality. See ART, para 3.

artillery, whence artillerist (suffix -ist): ME artilrie: MF-F artillerie, from OF-MF artiller, to equip, deriving—? influenced by OF art, skill—from artiller, to arrange, to equip, app of Gmc origin—cf OHG ziarī (G Zier) and OE tir (E tire; cf ATTIRE), ornament.

artist, artistic, artistry. See ART, para 5.

artless; arty. See ART, para 2.

arum (lily): perh via EF-F: from L arum: Gr arōn.

Aryan: Skt ārya, noble, a noble, an Aryan: akin to the syn Av airya and OPer ariya (whence Per Īrān, Iran), and also to PN element ario- in C and Gmc—e.g., in Ariovistus.

as, adv (whence conj and pro): ME as, earlier als, also, also, earliest al swa: OE alswā, ealswā, eal swā, all so, all thus, (hence) quite so, quite as: akin, both to G als, as, than, from MHG als, earlier alse, earliest alsō, usu 'as if', from OHG alsō; and to OFris al-sa and its contrr asa, ase, esp as. For E also, see ALL, para 2.

asbestos, whence adj asbestine (suffix -ine): L asbestos (n): Gr asbestos, inextinguishable: a-, not+pp of sbennunai, to extinguish, with many prob, but no certain, IE cognates.

ascend; ascendency (-ancy), ascendent (-ant); ascension (whence ascensional), ascensive; ascent.—deascend; descendence (-ance), descendent (-ant); deascension, deascensional, descensive; descent: cf condescend, condescendence, condescension, condescensive.—transcend, transcendence or -ency, transcendent (adj hence n), transcendental, whence transcendentalism; transcension.—scan, scansion.—Intimately akin: scandal, scandalize, scandalous and the parallel slander (n, v), slanderer, slanderous; also scale, a ladder.

1. L scandere, to climb, hence to scan (verse), 'in reference to the movements of the foot raised and lowered to mark the metre' (E & M), yields 'to scan' (verse), hence the sense 'to examine'—look at carefully—hence (orig as a careless misuse) to look at hastily. The pp scansus has s scans-, whence scansiō, o/s scansiōn-, whence E scansion (of verse). Scandere consists of r scan-+formative -d-+inf suffix -ere: cf the Skt skan, he leapt, and skāndati, he leaps, and such C forms as Mīr scendim, I leap, Oīr sescaīnd, he leapt, and W cy-chwynnu, to rise or climb.

2. Cf also Gr skandalon, a stumbling block, whence LL scandalum, OF-F scandale and ME scandle—both operative in E scandal. Skandalon has derivative skandalizein, whence LL scandalizāre, leading to OF-F scandaliser and E scandalize; but scandalous comes from MF-F scandaleux, f scandaleuse, from scandale.

3. LL scandalum yields not only the var OF escandele, MF escandle, whence scandal, but also that additional var, the MF-F esclandre, whence, with deviation of sense, ME sclaundre, whence E slander; OF esclandre has derivatives MF-EF esclandrere, whence 'to slander', whence a slanderer, and EF adj esclandrux, f esclandreuse, perch concerned in the formation of E slanderous (more prob merely slander, n+suffix -ous).

4. L scandere (s scand-, r scan-) has an important derivative not imm obvious: scāla, from scand-slā*: scāla, a ladder, is that by which one scandit or climbs. 'To scale' or climb derives from the n. And L scāla becomes It scala, whence the v scalare, whence scalata, a mounting by ladders, whence late MF-F escalade, adopted by E, whence 'to escalate' (cf EF-F escalader, whence the agential trade-name Escalator, whence any escalator).

5. L scandere is hardly less influential in its prefix cpds ascendere—dēscendere, whence condēscendere—transcendere. (Conscendere and inscendere became learned, long obs' E conscend, inscend; and escendere has lacked issue.)

6. Ascendere, which represents as—for ad, to+

-scendere, c/f of scandere, became E ascend, whence ascender. Ascendere has presp ascendens, o/s ascendent-, which became E ascendent, adj, and, via MF-F, ascendant, n, whence the nn ascendence, -ance, or -ency, -ancy. The pp ascensus, s ascens-, has derivative ascensiō, o/s ascensiōn-, whence, via OF, ascension and, as an E formation, ascensive (-ive). Ascent imitates descent.

7. Descent was adopted from MF descent (soon descente), from OF-F descendre, after such formations as vente, sale, from vendre, to sell. Descendre, which yields 'to descend' (whence descender), comes from L dēscendere (dē, down from + -scendere). The L presp dēscendens, o/s dēscendent- yields adj descendent and, via MF-F n descendant, whence the nn descendence, -ance. On the L pp s dēscens—arises dēscensiō, o/s dēscensiōn-, whence, via MF-EF, descension and the E formation descensive.

8. Dēscendere has subsidiary LL condēscendere, whence, prob via OF, 'to condescend'; the derivative condēscensiō, o/s condēscensiōn-, yields condescension; but the now mostly legal condescendence shows the influence of EF-F condescendance. A ML derivative, condēscensivus, accounts for condescensive.

9. L transcendere, to raise oneself beyond, became 'to transcend'; the L presp transcendens, o/s transcendent-, became transcendent, and the ML derivative transcendentia became transcendence, occ elaborated to transcendency. The n transcendent gained, esp in Phil, its own adj transcendental, whence transcendentalism. The rare transcension comes from LL transcensiō, o/s transcensiōn-.

ascertain. See CERTAIN, para 5.

ascetic (adj hence n), whence asceticism (suffix -ism): Gr askētikos, self-denying in the cause of gymnastics, from askēsis, exercise, practice, from askein (s ask-), to practise gymnastics: o.o.o.

ascribe, ascription. See SCRIBE.

aseptic. See SEPTIC.

ash (1). See ASHES.

ash (2), tree: ME asch, esch: OE aesc, akin to OHG asc, MHG asch, esche (G Aschbaum, Esche) and ON askr, also to Arm haçl, ash, to Lith uosis, ash, OB jasene, to Oīr uinnius, ash, to L ornus (for osinus*), mountain ash, to Gr oxua, oxuē, beech, and perh to Eg āsh, cedar. father, s au-: akin to Arm haw, grandfather, and OP awis, OIr aeu, maternal uncle: cf UNCLE.

atheism, atheist, atheistic. See THEISM, para 2.

Athens, Athene; Athenaeum, athenaeum; Athenian, Athens; Attic, attic.

Gr Athēnai (cf Gr Thēbai, E Thebes) became F Athènes became E Athens; the adj Athēnaios became Athenian (-ian substituted for -aios), and its neu Athēnaion was used as n for 'the temple of Athēne or Athēna'—which shows that Athens means 'Athēna's city'; Athēna appears to be pre-Hellenic (? Mycenaean): ? 'The Protectress'. Gr Athēnaion became L Athēnaeum, but with predominant meaning 'a school of rhetoric, philosophy jurisprudence' at Rome—hence, the London Athenaeum and the generic athenaeum, a literary association or club.

2. App deriving from Athēna, -nē, is Attika, L Attica, E Attica, the region and state, the land of Athene, the adj being Attikos, L Atticus, E Attic, connoting a refined elegance and purity of taste and style (as in Attic salt, delicate wit: sal Atticum) whence, from Attic architecture, the F attique (Attic), whence E attic.

athirst. See THIRST.

athlete; athletic, whence both athleticism (-ism) and athletics (-ics, q.v. at suffix -ic).

Athletic, L athlēticus, Gr athlētikos, answers to athlete, L athlēta, Gr athlētēs (agential -ēs), from athlein, to compete for a prize in the public games, from athlos, a contest (physical), itself perh from athlon, Hom aethlon, a prize: if aethlon, -os, represents an earlier awethlon*, -os, it may be akin to Skt vāyati, he exhausts himself, with IE r auē* (Boisacq).

athwart. See THWART.

Atlanta, Atlantic, Atlantis; Atlas, atlas.

The 1st is a SciL derivative suggested by Atlantic, L Atlanticus, Gr Atlantikos, the adj of Atlas, pl Atlantes and o/s Atlant-; in Gr Myth, Atlas was that Titan who, forced to uphold the heavens and esp the Earth, much later became Mt Atlas in NW Africa: from pictures of Earth apprehended as a globe upheld by the Titan came atlas, a collection of maps. Atlantis lay in the Atlantic, out from Mt Atlas. See TOLERATE, Atlas 'the Upholder' deriving from Gr tlēnai, to uphold, bear.

atmosphere, whence atmospheric (ic, adj): atmo-, c/f of Gr atmos, breath, hence vapour+Gr sphaira, a sphere: see the element atmo- and word SPHERE.

atoll: atolu in Maldivan, the basically Malayan language (of the Maldives, coral islands SW of India) with Dravidian and Ar admixtures.

attinge, attingent. See TACT, para 10.

attire, n and v (whence attirement; suffix -ment).

The n derives from ME atir, adopted from OF-MF atir, equipment, whence prob the OF-EF v atirier, hence ME atiren, E 'to attire': f.a.e., TIER. The archaic tire, furniture, apparel, head-dress, derives from ME tir, aphetic for atir; and the archaic v tire, to dress (e.g., the hair), is aphetic for 'to attire'. The tire (needlessly tyre) of a vehicular wheel is 'so called as being an attire or covering for a wheel' (Webster).

auction, n hence v (whence auctioneer). See AUGMENT, para 2.

audacious, audacity.

The adj comes from late MF-F audacieux, f audacieuse, from MF-F audace (audacity), from L audācia, from audāx, from audēre (s aud-), to desire to, hence to dare to, itself a modification of auēre, to desire strongly to—akin to avidus, whence audible (whence audibility)—inaudible (-ility); audience, audient; audile; audit (n hence v)—audition—auditor—auditorium—auditory.—Exaudi.—obedience, obedient, obediential, obedientary—obeisance, obeisant—obey; disobedience, disobedient, disobey.

1. All these words come, as adoptions of or as derivatives, whether direct or through F, from L audire (s aud-), to hear, akin to the syn Gr aiēin (s ai-), presumably for awein* (s aw-), and to Skt āvī, OSl avē, evidently. The IE r is au-*, L audrei being clearly an extension.

2. Audire has the foll simple derivatives relevant to E:

L audibilis, hearable, whence audible, whence audibility (suffix -i y), the neg ML inaudibilis yielding inaudible, whence inaudibility; presp audiens, o/s audient-, whence audient; hence L audientia, whence F, whence E, audience; pp auditus, s audit-, whence (1) the n auditus (gen -ūs), a hearing, whence E audit, whence 'to audit'—(2) LL auditiō, o/s auditiōn-, whence, prob via MF-F, the E audition, whence the very mod 'to audition'—(3) auditor, a hearer, LL investigator in a lawsuit, whence AF auditour (MF-F auditeur), whence E auditor, with accountancy sense influenced by audit—(4) adj auditiōrius, whence auditory, the neu auditiōrium becoming n and yielding both auditorium and (n) auditory.

3. Audile=aud-+ adj suffix -ile; anl with tactile.

4. Derivative exaudire occurs in E only as Eccl Exaudi, conn 'Hear, O hear!'

5. But the irreg formed oboedire—ob (see prefix ob-)+audire—later obēdre, to obey, accounts for obedient, OF-MF obedient, L obedient-, o/s of obediens, presp of obēdre—for obedience, adopted from OF-MF (EF-F obé-), from L ob(ō)edientia, from the presp—for obediential, ML obedientialis, adj of obedientia—and Eccl obedientary, ML obedentiārius. Cf inobedience, inobedient, perh adopted from F, but prob direct from LL inobediens, presp, and derivative inobedientia.

6. F influence is even clearer in:

obey, ME obeyen, OF-MF obeir (EF-F obēir), L obēdre; obeisance, (orig) obedience, a deep bowing, MF obeissance (EF-F obé-), from the MF presp obeisant, whence E obeisant.

7. Cf disobey, MF desobeir—des- for L dis- (prefix dis-)+obeir; disobedience, disobedient, are adopted from MF formations consisting of OF des+OF obedience, OF obedient, as above.

auger: a nauger, misapprehended, in ME, as an auger: OE naflugār, lit a nave-borer: cpd of naflu nave of wheel + gār, a spear.

ought. See NAUGHT, para 2.

augment, n, v; augmentation, augmentative.—auction, n hence v, whence auctioneer (suffix -eer): augur, n, v; augural, augury.—august; August, Augustan; Augustine.—author, whence authorial; authoritarian, authoritative, authority, authorize (whence authorization).—auxiliary, adj hence n.—inaugurate, inauguration.

1. L augēre (s aug-), to enlarge, increase; IE r, prob au-*, with g (etc.) as extension. Cognates: syn Go aukan, OFris āka (v and n), ON auka (v) and auki (n), OHG ouhōn, OE ēacan (see sep eke, v); Lith augti, to grow, and aukštas, high; Gr auxein (s aux=-auks-), to increase; Skt ukṣati, he grows, and ojas, strength. Cf sep WAX.

2. Augēre has pp auctus, on which arose both auctiō, (lit) an increasing, (but always) a public sale, with o/s auctiōn-, whence E auction, and auctor, lit an increaser, hence a founder, an auctioneer, an author: indeed, auctor became OF autor (F auteur) became ME autour, later author, E author. The derivative L auctoritās (acc auctoritātem), which corresponded to auctor in all its senses, led to OF auctoritei, -iteit, later autorité, whence ME autorite, E authority (-ity); and derivative ML auctorizāre became OF-F autoriser became late ME authorize became E authorize. Authoritarian, authoritative represent authority+ suffixes -arian, -ative.

3. The inf augēre has derivative augmentum, an increase, whence F, then E, augment. Augmentum itself has derivative LL augmentāre, whence MF-F augmenter, whence 'to augment'; and on the pp augmentātus were built both the LL n augmentātiō, o/s augmentātiōn-, whence, prob via MF-F, the E augmentation, and the F augmentatif, f -ive, whence E augmentative.

4. Less obvious than the aug-, auct- derivatives are those from L augur, augustus, auxilium. The last perh=s aug-+connective or formative s-+ ilium (-um, neu nom and acc) and prop means 'an increase of forces, a reinforcement'—hence, assistance, help, with adj auxiliāris, whence auxiliary (cf EF-F auxiliaire).

5. Lit, an augur (formerly derived usu from L avis, a bird: cf auspice) means 'one who predicts an increase, hence success' (later, any issue to an undertaking): aug-, s of augēre+-ur, prob a var of agential -or. Augur has derivatives:

augurālis, whence EF-F and E augural, of an augur, (hence) ominous; augurium, a (favourable) presage or prediction, whence, prob via OF-MF augurie, the E augury; auguro (-or), inf augurāre (-āri) to make an augury, to augur, to predict, whence 'to augur'; the pp augurātus, whence the obs augurate, to augur, leads to LL augurātiō, o/s augurātiōn-, whence the obs auguration; hence:

inaugurāre (in-, in-, into+augurāre), to augur, esp before an important undertaking, hence to destine, give a start to, to consecrate, with pp inaugurātus, whence 'to inaugurate'; the derivative n inaugurātiō, o/s -ātiōn-, yields inauguration; the adj inaugural was adopted from F (inaugurer+-al, and with augural).

6. L augustus, whence E august, signified orig either 'consecrated by the augurs' or 'undertaken under favourable auguries'; it was in 27 B.C.

applied to Octavius Caesar: and the first Augustus bestowed his title upon the month Augustus, our August. Augustus, the PN, had two adj: Augustānus, whence E Augustan, transferred to any period similar to that of Caesar Augustus; and Augustinus, which became a PN, whence (St) Augustine or Augustin, which by shortening became Austin (canons, friars).

augur, augury. See prec, para 5.

augment; Augustan. See AUGMENT, para 6.

auk, whence auklet (dim suffix -let). See HALCYON, para 2.

aura. See SOAR, para 2.

aural. Adj of prec; also the Med adj for 'ear': cf EAR.

aureate; aureole; auri-, auro-: see Elements; oriole; loriot.

Aureate comes from L aureātus, gilded, golden, from aureus, golden, from aurum, gold; aureus has dim aureolus, whence ML aureola, elliptical for aureola corona, a crown of gold, hence a halo; aureolus, used as n, became OF oriot, whence, via Sci L oriolus, the E oriole; and OF oriot became (suffix -ot for suffix -ol) OF oriot, and l'oriot, apprehended as one word loriot, became MF-F, hence E, loriot; the bird was so named from its bright-yellow plumage.—Perhcf AURORA.

auruchs. See OX, para 3.

aurora (whence the adj auroral), the reddish-golden dawn-light, personified as Aurora, the Roman goddess of dawn; aurora australis, a. borealis, the austral or Southern lights, the boreal or Northern lights. Adopted from L, aurora perh derives from aurum, gold; many scholars relate it to EAST. The IE r is prob au-*, extended, in L, as aur-.

auscultate, auscultation. See EAR.

auspice, auspicial, auspicious; auspicate.

L auspex is one who, for omens, examines (specere, spicere—a spec-, spic-, to see) the flight of birds (avis, ML avis, s au-, a bird)—for the elements, see AVIARY and SPY; auspex has derivatives auspicium, whence MF-F, hence E, auspice, an omen so obtained, hence any, usu a favourable, omen, and auspicāre or -āri, to take an augury, with pp auspicātus, whence 'to auspicate'. Both the lit auspicial (-ial) and the fig auspicious (-ious) are of E formation.

The latter comes, via MF-F austérité, from L austērītās, o/s austērīāt-, a derivative of austērus, rough, harsh, from Gr austēros, itself from auēin, to parch: cf SEAR. Austērus, via MF austere (F austère), yields austere.

Austin (friars, etc.). See AUGMENT, last para, s.f.

austral; Australia, whence Australian, adj hence n also.

L austrālis, whence E austral, derives from the o.o.o auster, the south wind, hence the south,

Either the L Terra Austrālis, southern land, has prompted Australia, anl with the numerous -ia lands; or, as Enci It impressively implies, Australia is 'erudite' f/e from 'Australia del Espíritu Santo', as, in honour of an Austrian prince (cf next), the Port navigator Pedro De Quiros named, in 1606, the largest of the New Hebrides; the name was confused with L austrālis and, much later, transferred to Australia. The s Aussie represents both Australia and, usu, Australian.

Austria, whence Austrian, adj hence also n; austrium.

The 3rd = Austria + the Chem (element) suffix -ium; and Austria is the L form (A.D. 996) of the medieval Gmc Ostarrichi or Osterriche, MHG Osterriche, G Osterreich, 'Eastern Kingdom' (Enci It): cf EAST and REX.

The 3rd derives, by suffix -ity, from authentic, ME autentike, adopted from OF (later authentique, F authentique)—from LL authenticus, from Gr authentikos, adj of authentēs, one who acts on his own authority, a chief: auth-, for aut- for auto- (q.v. in Elements) + -hentēs, a c/f o.o.o. Gr authentēs, by the way, became Mod Gr aphentēs, became Tu efendi became E Effendi, a title of respect. LL authenticus had derivative ML authenticāre, pp authenticātus, whence 'to authenticate', whence authentication.

2. The Gr aut(o)-, auth-, is the c/f of autos, self, (adj) same; autos represents au- + theme to- + nom suffix -s; and au- derives, app, from asu-*, akin to Skt ásus, life, esp of the soul (Boisacq).

authigenic. See auto- in Elements.

author, authoritative, authority, authorize. See AUGMENT, para 2. autobiography, autobiographical autobiographer: auto- (see AUTHENTIC, para 2) + biography, etc.: lit, 'self life-story'.

autochthon, autochthonous. See HOMO, para 3.

autocracy, autocrat, autocratic: resp Gr autokratēia—(via F, from) Gr autokratēs—the -ic adj of autocrat: auto-, for autos, self + krateia, power, from kratus, powerful. See the elements auto- (cf AUTHENTIC, para 2) and -crat.

auto-da-fé. See FAITH, para 3.

autograph, n hence adj and v; autographic; autography.

The 2nd and 3rd are anl formations—cf BIOGRAPHY; the 1st comes from L autographum, orig the neu of autographus, written (cf GRAPH) with one's own (auto-: cf AUTHENTIC, para 2) hand, from Gr autographos.

automat, automatic, automatism, automaton (pl automata). See MIND, para 9.

automobile: F automobile, adj then also n: auto-, self (cf AUTHENTIC, para 2) + mobile.

autonomous, Sci autonomic; autonomy. See NIMBLE, para 8.

autopsy, whence (suffix -ic) autopsic; autoptic. See OPTIC, para 3.

The latter—perh imm from OF-F automnal— represents L autumnālis, adj of autumnus, whence, via OF autompne or automn (F automne), the E autumn: and L autumnus is o.o.o., perh Etruscan, although the old L explanation by augere, to increase, may, after all, be correct, autumn being the season when the crops' increase is yielded at the harvest. Conceivably autumnus represents PL uertumnus*, from uertiare, ML vertiare, to turn, (later) to convert, autumn being the season of change from warmth to cold. This uertumnus* was perh altered to avoid confusion with the Etruscan Uertumnus, god of the seasons.

avail, v whence n; derivatively available, whence availability. See VALUE, para 12.

avant-garde. See the 1st VAN, para 1. avarice, avaricious: the latter comes from MF-F avaricieux, f avaricieuse, from OF-F avarice, whence E avarice: and OF avarice comes from ML avāritia, L auāritia, from avārus, auārus, from avēre (auēre), to covet: f.a.e., AVID.

avast (esp heaving): perh either Port abasta, it is enough, or the term being nautical, D houd vast, hold fast! (EW): the former is phon preferable.

avatar: Skt avatāra: from ava, down + tarati, he crosses over.

avenge, avengement, avenger, avengeress. See DICT, para 21.

aver (2), v; averment. See VERACIOUS, para 4.

āvara, average, feudal services. See OPERA, para 7.

average, n hence adj and v: app form-influenced by ME average, a feudal service (work), but strictly from F avarie, damage to a ship or its cargo, (hence) port dues: It avaria: Ar 'awāriyah (pl), goods damaged by sea water, from the sing 'awār, damage. E sense-development: 'tariff on goods': 'mean tariff': 'a mean': Mod 'average'.

averse, aversion, aversive; avert. See VERSE, para 15.

aviary, whence aviarist; avian.—aviation, aviator, aviatorial.

Here the key is L avis (s au-), ML avis, a bird: cf Arm haw, Gr oiōnos, large bird, and aietos (? for awietos*), eagle (the bird), and Vedic ves (pl vayas), Av vayō (pl), and Skt vi, bird: IE r, aw-*.

2. L avis has derivative adj aviārius, of a bird, whence (orig, neu s adj) aviārium (ML av-), whence E aviary. The adj avian = ML av- + -ian.

3. F derivatives from ML avis include aviation, adopted by E, and aviateur (orig a flying machine), adapted as aviator. The adj aviatorial = aviation + -orial.

The latter comes, via late MF-F avidité, from ML aviditās, L aviditās, derivative from avidus, ML avidus, whence, via MF-F avide, the E avid: and L avidus derives from auēre, to be desirous.

aviso. See VIDE, para 13.

avocado: Sp aguacate or ahuacate; Nahuatl (Aztec) ahuacatl or, esp, auacatl: perh, as Webster suggests, the form avocado owes something to Sp bocado, a delicacy.

avocation. See VOCABLE, para 10.

avoid, whence avoidable and avoidance. See VACANT, para 7.

avoirduois: ME avoir de pois, earlier aver de peis: OF-MF avoir de peis, goods of weight: OF-MF aveir, F avoir, goods, property, from OF aveir (F avoir), to have—de, of—peis, later pois (F pois), weight, from pensum: f.a.e., POISE.

avouch. See VOCABLE, para 8.

avow, to acknowledge, to declare; avowal. See VOCABLE, para 10.

avulse, avulsion. See VELLICATE, para 3.

awake, awaken. See VIGOR, para 11.

award, n and v. See WARD.

aware, awareness. See WARY, para 2 and heading.

away. See VIA, para 6.

awe, n hence v; (aweful) awful, awesome.

The adj merely represent awe, n+adj suffixes -ful (cf FULL) and -some (cf SAME). The n awe (ME aghe) comes from ON agi, akin to OHG agisōn, to frighten, Go agis, fear, and ōg, I am afraid, OIr -āgor, I fear, and, more remotely, Gr akhos, distress, pain.

With coll awful, cf dreadful, shocking, terrible.

awkward, whence awkwardness (suffix -ness): ME awkwarde, awkward, (but usu) awkwardly: ON ōfjugr, turning the wrong way+the E suffix -ward, conn 'direction'.

awl comes, through ME aule or alle, from OE awel or al (or ael), akin to OHG āla, MHG āle, G Ahle, and ON alr—cf Lith yla and, remotely, Skt ārā. The Gmc r is āelō*; the IE r, prob ēlā*. (Walshe.)

awn, a bristle at end of spikelet of barley or oats: ME awne or agune: ON ōgn, pl agnir, akin to Go ahana, OHG agana (G Ahne), chaff. Perh ult akin to IE r ak-*, a point.

awning: o.o.o.; perh, with Webster, cf F auvent (OF auvan) and Pr avan, or, with B & W (apropos auvent), the OProv amban, a (sort of) parapet or gallery in fortification, and Langue d'Oc embans, awning of a shop, from Gaul andebanno-*: ande, aug prefix (C r and*, up against)+banno-, animal's horn (Langue d'Oc bano), 'bulls' horns having been employed by the Gauls as a totem protecting the house'.

awry. See WRATH, para 4, s.f.

ax (AE), axe, n hence v: OE eax, aex, also acas: akin to OFris axa, OHG acchus (MHG ackes or axt, G Axt), OS acus or accus, Go aqizi, ON ōx; also to L ascia, hoe, pick, and Gr axinē, axe.

IE r, prob aks-: perh, therefore, akin to, or even extended from, IE r ak-, a point.

axial; axil, axilla, axillary. See AXIS.

axlom, axiomatic.

The latter comes from Gr axiōmatikos, adj of axiōma, a worthy thought, from axioun, to think worthy, from axios, worthy, akin to Gr agein (s ag-), to drive, (also) to weigh so much: axios represents agtios*, 'that draws or pulls by its weight, pulls its own weight' (Boisacq). Axiom derives from EF-F axiome, from L-from-Gr axiōma.

axis, axial, axil, axilla, axillary; axle, axletree.

1. The L axis (s ax-), adopted by E, has E adj axial (ax-+-ial) and dim axilla, armpit, adopted by Sci and also anglicized as axil, with adj axillary, from F axillaire (s axill-+adj suffix -aire). Now, axis, which means either axis or—the orig sense—axle, is akin to Gr axōn (? for aksōn*), axle, and Skt akṣas, also to OP assis and Lith ašis, and to OHG ahsa.

2. Also cognate is OE eax, axis, axle, surviving in dial axtree. Note that E axle derives from the first element of ME axeltre (whence axletree), itself from ON ōxultrē, where (-trē answers to E TREE and) ōxul is akin to OE eaxl, OFris axle or axele, OHG and OS ahsla, all meaning axle, and, ult, to L axilla, armpit.

3. The IE r is presumably aks-*. Cf AISLE.

ay, usu aye, always; ay or aye, yes. The latter, by many said to be o.o.o., prob derives from the former: cf, sem, such terms as certainly, the Am coll sure, right, as emphatic synn of yes. Aye, ay, always, constantly, derives from ME ai or ei, itself from ON ei, akin to OE ā, always, Go aiv (prob the acc of aivs, an age) and OHG io or eo (MHG ie: G je, ever—cf ja, yes): IE adv, ult from the IE n exemplified in Go aivs, OHG ēwa, L aeuum (ML aeuum), Gr aion, an age, and in Skt āyus, life: cf AGE, para 6.

azalea Sci L: Gr azalea, f of azaleos, dry, from aza, dryness, akin to azein (s az-), to parch: cf Cz ozditi, to dry, Go azgō, ash, Skt dsas, dust, ashes—and to L arēre (cf ARID).

azimuth. See ZENITH, para 2.

azote, nitrogen (incapable of maintaining life): F: b/f from Gr a-, not+zōtikos (zoē, life), life-maintaining, whence perh imm the adj azotic, unless from the F derivative azotique.

Aztec, n (inhabitant) hence adj hence n (language): Sp Azteca, an Aztec: from Aztec Aztlan, 'Land or region or place of the Herons' or 'White Land', less prob 'Seacoast'.

azure, n hence adj: ME azure, asur: OF-F azur, OF asur (with l- lost, as if the article 'the'): Ar lāzaward: per lāzhuward, lapis lazuli, hence the colour; Ar lāzaward also became ML lazulus, whence (lapis, stone) lazuli (prop gen).

azygous: Gr azugos, unyoked, pl azugoi, unpaired: a-, not+zugon, a yoke: f.a.e., YOKE.

baa, like bow-wow, is an echoic rural and nursery word.

Baal; Bel; Beelzebub.

Akk bel=Phoen ba'al, owner, lord, whence H Ba'al, any of numerous ancient Semitic gods; Beelzebub=Gr Beelzeboub=H Ba'al zēbūb, Lord of Flies, (later) a powerful associate of Satan's.

baas. See BOSS.

babble; bibble-babble.

The latter merely reduplicates the former: and babble, n, derives from 'to babble', arising in early ME as an echo-word akin to G babbeln, ON babba, LL babulus, a babbler. Cf, sem, PRATTLE and, phon and sem, BARBARIAN and:

babe; baby, whence babyish (suffix -ish, adj): ME babe or bab; ME baby or babi, prob dim: akin to MHG bābe, mother, buobe, boy (G Bube); LL babulus, a babbler or prattler; Gr babazein (s babaz-, r bab-), to prattle; Skt barbaras, (given to) stammering, with var balbalā- in balbalākārōti, he stammers. Cf BABBLE and BARBARIAN.

babel, Babel; Bab el Mandeb, Babylon.

Generic babel comes from 'the tower of Babel' (see Genesis, xi, 9): H Bābel: Ass-Bab Bābilu, Gate of God (cf ALLAH), which, becoming Gr Babulōn, passed into L, hence E, as Babylon; cf Bab el Mandeb, Gate of Tears.

baboo. See BABU.

baboon: ME baboyne (or babewyn): MF babuin (F babouin): from babine, lip, 'the baboon having prominent lips' (B & W), influenced by the cognate MF baboue, a grimace.

babu, often anglicized baboo: Hi bābū, a Hindu title of respect, hence a Hindu gentleman, whence babu English (pej).

baby, babyish. See BABE.

Babylon. See BABEL.

baccalaureate: F baccalauréat: ML baccalaureātus, from baccalaureus, a 'joking alteration—after bacca lauri, "laurel bay"—of ML baccalarium, bachelor' (B & W): cf BACHELOR.

baccarat: adopted from F, var baccara, o.o.o.: ? from the F town of Baccarat (Meurthe-et-Moselle) famous for its glassware.

bacchanal, Bacchanalia, bacchanalian; Bacchae; bacchant, bacchantic; Bacchic, bacchic; Bacchus.

The L Bacchus transliterates Bakis, the Lydian origin of Gr Bakkhos (Βάκχος), syn of predominant Dionusos: derivatives include Bankhai, whence L Bacchae, female companions of this God of Wine;

L bacchanālis, adj ('of Bacchus'), hence n ('devotee'), whence the E n bacchanal, with adj bacchanalian, influenced by L Bacchanālia (orig the neupl of bacchanālis), the festival of Bacchus; L bacchāri, to celebrate that festival, with presp bacchans, o/s bacchant-, whence E bacchant, f bacchante (from F), with adj bacchantic, perh influenced by Bacchic (L Bacchicus), of Bacchus or his festival, whence bacchic, drunken.

baccy: coll for TOBACCO.

bachelor: ME bachelor: OF-MF bachelier (MF-F bachelier), a young gentleman aspiring to knighthood, hence young man: ML baccalāris*, usu baccalārius, a tenant farmer, perh of C origin: cf OIr bachlach, a shepherd, from bachall, from L baculum, a staff, but also—of Gaul-Roman stock—the OProv bacalar, young man (B & W).

back, adv. See para 5 of:

back, n, hence adj and v; aback; backward(s); backblocks — backbone — backfire — backgammon — background — backside — backwater.

Back: OE baec, akin to ON (and OS) bak, back, and to OHG bach, back, and baccho or bahho, haunch, ham; cf BACON. Earlier etym, obscure.

2. Of the many cpds, note backblocks, from blocks of land in the back (remote) areas—backbone (cf BONE)—backfire (back, adv+FIRE), n hence v—backgammon, prob from back, adv+gammon, a game, 'because the men are often set back' (Webster)—background (GROUND), ground at back—backside, the part (e.g., of the body) at the back—backwater, lit water turned back, hence remote, cf backwoods.

3. The adj backward derives from the adv backward, var of backwards, towards the back: cf TOWARDS.

4. The derivative 'to back' has agent backer and vn backing.

5. The adv aback—whence, by apheresis, the adv back—represents the ME abak, earlier on bak, from OE on baec, on or at (the) back.

backgammon. See para 2 of prec.

backsheesh, coll backshee. See BAKSHEESH.

bacon, whence the surname Bacon, with derivative adj (whence n) Baconian: ME, from OF-MF bacon: (perh via OProv bacon, from) ML baconem acc of baco: OHG bac(c)ho or bahhō, haunch, ham (buttocks and rear part of thigh), hence flitch of bacteria, whence (suffix -al) bacterial; bacteriology. See the element -bacter.

bad (adj hence n), whence adv badly (suffix -ly) and badness (-ness): ME bad, earlier badde: perh (Webster) from OE baeddel, a hermaphrodite, cf OE baedling, an effeminate; but ? rather from C bados* (well attested in derivatives), with var badtos*, whence bassos* (cf the LL bassus, squat, short, low), the r being bad*, to be wide or open, the basic idea of the adj being 'wide-open (to all influence, esp the worst)'. (Cf Malvezin at BAD.)

badge; badger.

Badge: ME and EE bage or bagge, o.o.o. Hence, prob (OED; Webster), in ref to the white mark (badge) on its brow, that burrowing quadruped the badger, EE bageard: EE bage+suffix -ard, influenced by the agential -er: cf, sem, F blaireau (B & W). badinage: adopted from EF-F: f.a.e., the 5th BAY, para 2.

baffle, whence the pa bauffing: Sc bauchill, bachill, bauchle, to disgrace publicly, to ridicule, prob from Sc bauch, ineffective, inferior, prob from ON bagr, clumsy, or ON bāgr, uncomfortable, in difficulties. (Craigie.)

bag, n hence v; baggage: direct from bag: bagman, bagpipe, baggy.

Baggage derives from MF-F bagage, itself (collective suffix -age) from OF-EF bague, a bundle, akin to ON baggi, a packet, whence, via ME bagge, the E bag.

bagatelle: EF-F bagatelle: It bagatella, app the dim of baca, a berry: L baca, perh (E & M) akin to Bacchus.

baill (1), surety: MF-F bail, from OF-MF baillier, MF-F bailler (whence 'to bail'), to deliver, give, from L baifulāre, to carry a burden, from baifulus, baifulus, a burden-carrier: 'from Baiaiae?' ask E & M; Bai(i)ae was a favourite seaside resort of the ancient Romans. Perh rather akin to BEAR, v.

2. L bai(i)ulus yields LL bai(i)ulus, ML bai(i)ulvus, whence OF-EF baillif (F bailli) custodian, hence magistrate, adopted by ME, whence E bailliff, Sc bailie, whence bailiwick, which cpds baill(e) or baill(ff), and wick, a hamlet or village, OE wic (L uicus, cf VICINITY).

bail (2), a bucket, hence 'to bail' (water out of, e.g., a boat): late MF-F baillie, a bucket: VL bai(i)ula*, f of bai(i)ulus, as in prec.

bail (3), an outer defence: partly from MF-F bail: L bai(i)ulus, as in prec, and partly from L baculum, a staff. The ME bail has, prob via the var bayle, the further var baily, whence E bailey, occ baily, a castle's outer wall, later a castle-prison, finally a prison—cf 'the Old Bailey', London's central criminal court.

2. The MF-F bail had the dial sense 'crosspiece': hence the cricket sense of E bail.

3. Akin to 'crosspiece' is the sense 'a pole, a bar' hence 'to bail', to confine, e.g., cattle, hence prob the Aus (orig, bushrangers') bail up, to stop and rob wayfarers.

bait; abet, abetment, abettor; bet.

1. 'To bet' derives from 'a bet': and bet, n, app derives from ME abet, an abetting, from OF abet, from abeter, to excite or instigate, from a, to+OF-MF beter, to bait, of Gmc origin: and OF abeter yields ME abetten, whence 'to abet', to incite or, at the least, countenance; abet, assisted by AF abatement, leads to abetment (suffix -ment), and, assisted by AF abettour, to abettor.

2. The OF-MF beter mentioned above is akin to OHG beizēn, OE bāetan, ON beita, to cause to bite; beita became ME beytan or baiten, whence E 'to bait', to incite (a dog) to bite, (hence) to harass an animal by setting dogs on to it, (later) to feed, e.g., a horse, esp on the road. From 'to bait' and ON beita, pasture, food, comes bait, food serving as allurement, hence any allurement or temptation.

3. Cf BITE, whose OGmc forms have the caus mentioned above.

bake, baker, bakery; batch.

Bakery derives, with suffix -ery, from 'to bake'; baker, however, derives from OE baecere, itself from OE bacan, to roast or bake, akin to ON baka, OHG bahhan (MHG and G backen), Gmc r bak-, var bōk; IE r, bhag-, var bhōg-, as in Gr phōgein (s phōg-), to roast. (Walshe.) OE bacan directly leads to E 'to bake'.

2. OE bacan also yields ME bach or bache, whence batch, a baking, the loaves of a baking, hence anything else used in, or produced at, one operation.

baksheesh, bakshish; often anglicized to backsheesh: via Ar, from Per bakhshish, from bakshidan, to give, akin to Skt bhājati, he allots.

balance, n hence v: ME balance, adopted from OF: L bilancem, acc of bilanx (o/s bilanc-), adj (having two plates or scales), hence n (a balance, or pair of scales): bi-, twice+lanx (gen lancis), a plate, esp of a pair of scales. Lanx is app of Medit stock: cf the Gr lekos, a plate, and lekane, a basin; perh akin to the IE r lek-*, to bend or curve.

balcony: It balcone, aug of balco, a scaffold, from OHG balcho, a beam, akin to OE balca, a ridge; f.a.e., the n BALK.

bald, whence baldly (-ly, adv) and baldness (-ness): ME balled, akin to Da baeldet, bald, Go bala, a white-faced horse, Gr phalios (r phal-), white or clear-(shining): IE r, bhel-*, to gleam, esp to gleam whitely.

baldric. See BELT.

bale (1), malign evil, torment: OE balu, akin to OFris balu-, OS, OHG balu, ON böl, evil (adj)—cf Go balweins, pain.

bale (2). See the 1st BALL.

balk, n, loosely bauk: OE balca, a ridge, whence the sense 'unploughed ridge between furrows', whence both 'beam, rafter' and 'hindrance' (as in ba(u)lk): akin to ON balkr, a partition, and bjalki, a beam—OFris, balka, OHG balcho, OS balko, a beam—L fulcire (s fulc-), to prop: cf BOLE and FULCRUM, also BLOCK.

2. 'To ba(u)lk', to avoid, to check or baffle, (v.i.) to stop or swerve (whence balky), derives from balk, either as 'a ridge between furrows' or as 'a beam'.

ball (1), a sphere: ME bal or balle: ON bolle, akin to OHG balla, whence, via MF bale (MF-F balle), the ME and E bale, a large bundle, close-packed and packaged. Cf BALLOON and BOWL (2).

ball (2), obs 'a dance', hence 'an assembly for dancing': OF-F bal, from OF-MF baler, MF-EF baller, to dance: LL ballāre: Gr ballein (syn with its extension ballizein), to dance, akin to Skt balbalīti, he whirls about: IE r, bal-*.

2. LL ballāre became OProv balar, whence balada, a dancing song, whence MF balade (EF-F ballade), ME balade, E ballad.

3. LL ballāre passed into It, with derivative ballo, a dance, dim balletto, whence, soon sense-adapted, the EF-F, hence E, ballet.

ballad. See prec, para 2.

ballet. See the 2nd BALL, para 3.

ballistic, explosively hurled, whence ballistics (cf -ics), the science of projectiles in motion, whence ballistician (after statistician): L ballista, a stone-throwing military engine, from Gr ballein, to throw; cf the syn LGr balistra.

ballcock. See the 2nd BUTT.

balloon, n hence v; ballot, n and v: former, EF-F ballon, It ballone, aug of balla, a ball, of Gmc origin (cf the 1st BALL); latter, It ballotta, dim of balla, the E v deriving from It ballotare, from ballotta.

bally, coll euphemism for expletive bloody, owes something to the boisterous village of Ballyhooly (County Cork), whence perh AE coll ballyhoo, noisy preliminary publicity, whence AE hooy, bunkum.

balm, balsam; balsamic, *balm*y; embalm.

Balm, whence balmy, derives, through ME baume or basme, from OF-EF basme, MF bausme, MF-F baume, from L balsamum (whence E balsam, whence balsamic): Gr balsamon, app of Sem origin—cf H bāsām; perhaps cf Eg m'adm. Embalm, ME enbaumen, comes from OF-MF embasmer, later embaumer: em-, for en, in(to) + baume + inf suffix -er; and embalmer owes something to EF-F embaumeur.

baluster, balustrade; banister.

The 3rd is baluster corrupted: and baluster anglicizes EF-F balustre, from It balauastro (whence balaustrata, for (? via) balaustrata, a way set with balusters: hence EF-F balustrade, adopted by E); balauastro derives from It balaustra, the flower of the wild pomegranate, itself—via L balauustum—from Gr balaustron; the sense-transition refers to the shape-resemblance.

bamboo: (? via D or Port) from Mal bambu.

bamboozle: o.o.o. Probably this is an arbitrary redup of baffle, approximately equivalent in sense, perh form-blended with the echoic Gr bambaluzein (s bambaluz-), to chatter with cold, to stammer, and perh prompted by BANTER.

ban, n, v, and banns; banish and bandit; banal.

1. Banns or bans, a proclamation enabling an objection to be made to a marriage, is merely a pl derivative of 'a ban': and ban, ME ban, derives from ME bannen, to summon, interdict, curse, but also from OF ban, from LL bannum, akin to OFris, OS, OHG, ON bann, a public prohibition. ME bannen derives from OE bannan, to summon by proclamation, akin to OFris banna, OHG bannan, ON banna, and prob to Gr phanai, to say, and Skt bhānati, he speaks: IE r, bhā-*, to speak.

2. The LL bannum, proclamation, has v bannire, whence MF banir (EF-F bannir), whence, via 'ils banissent' and 'banissant', the ME banishen, E 'to banish'; banishment, influenced by MF banissement, proclamation of a ban, effectively derives from 'to banish' (suffix -ment). B & W hold bannir to be, ult, independent of ban; the confusion must have happened very early indeed.

3. LL bannire had var bandire, whence It bandire, to banish, with pp bandito, which became n, 'an outlaw', whence, perh via late EF-F banditi, the E bandis. B & W, however, postulate the origin of It bandire to be Go bandwjan, to give a signal. The older view seems the more prob.

4. The OF ban, an edict, has adj banal (1293), 'of or for obligatory feudal service', hence 'merely obligatory; perfunctory', hence (1778) 'common-place, trite' (B & W), adopted, mid-C19, by E; the derivative banalité became E banality.

5. Cf 'abandon' and 'contraband'—and perh FAME.

banal, -ity. See prec, para 4.

banana: Sp and Port banana: Taino (WI) banana, akin to Arawak prattana, therefore to E plantain, a kind of banana, from Sp plantano, prattana having var platena and several WI cognates.

banco. See BANK, para 2.

band, n hence v; bandage; bandanna; bandeau; bandoleer.—bond, n hence v.

1. F.a.e.: see BIND and cf BEND, v.

2. The n band, ME band, comes from ON band, akin to OHG bant, Go bandi, Skt bandha. In sense 'strip' it comes from MF-F bande, OF bende, of Gmc origin; in sense 'group of associates' it comes, via MF-F bande, from It banda, itself of Gmc origin.

3. Bandage, adopted from EF-F, derives from F bande; so does the even more Gallic bandeau, a narrow band; cf bandoleer, F bandoulière, Sp bandolera, from banda, of Gmc origin.

4. Bandanna, however, goes much further back: the Hi bāndhnū, a dyeing process in which the tied parts of the cloth remain uncoloured: cf BIND.

5. Bond, ME bond, is a mere var of band, a fastening. In bond(s)man, bondswoman, the origin is different: ON bōndi, for būandi, from būa, to dwell.

bandicoot, Aus nuance deriving from: Telugu (India) pandi-kokku, (lit) pig rat.

bandoleer. See BAND, para 3.

bandore. See MANDOLIN.

bandy, adj, n, v: bandy (e.g., legs) comes from F bandé, bent, from OF-F bander, to bend (esp a bow), whence also bandy, a game similar to hockey, though orig a form of tennis: cf 'to bandy', to beat (a ball) to and fro, hence to hit or toss from one to another, hence to exchange (pleasantries), from OF-F bander, of Gmc origin: cf BAND and BIND.

bane, a deadly agent, hence fatal mischief or harm, hence ruin: OE banan, murderer, akin to OFris banan, Os and OHG banan, murderer, and OHG banan, murder, and to ON bani, murderer, murder, death, and ult to Av banta, ill, harm. Adj baneful (cf -ful).

bang, v hence n and adv: ON banga, to hammer: echoic. Cf BUNGLE.

bangle, ornamental bracelet: Hi bangrē, bracelet, bangle: -le, perh from 'circle'.

banish, banishment. See BAN, para 2.

banister. See baluster.

banjo. See MANDOLIN.

bank, n hence v; banker, bankrupt, embankment; banco (bumco), banquet; bench.

1. Bank, a sloped mound, whence 'to embank', whence embankment (suffix -ment), via ME banke, is of Scan origin (the ON bakki) and akin to bench, ME benk, OE benc, of Gmc origin, cf ON bekkr and OFris and OS bank. The monetary bank, orig a paying counter, comes, via late MF-F banque, from It banca, a counter, orig a bench, of Gmc origin and clearly akin to BENCH; the derivative 'to bank' (money) yields banker (-er); the adj and v bankrupt derive from the n, orig bankruptcy, hence a person in bankruptcy: late MF-F banqueroute; It banca rotta, broken bank, rotta representing L rupta, f of ruptus, pp of rumpere, to break (cf RUPTURE).

2. It banca has var banco, orig a bench, hence a bank (money), with a special sense in baccarat: hence AE bunko or bunco, a monetary swindle.

3. It banco has dim banchetto, which passed into MF-F as banquet, feast, adopted by E: the trestled bench became 'the festive board', whence the food and wine upon it, whence the occasion.

banner, n hence adj and v; banneret.

The latter, ME baneret, comes from MF baneret (EF-F banneret), a dim of OF-MF baniere (EF-F bannière), the origin of E banner: from LL baneria, for banderia, from bandum, a banner: Go bandwa (or -wō), a sign, akin to ON benda, to give a sign; IE r, bhen-*, cf Gr phainō (s phain-), I indicate.

bannock. See BUN.

banns. See BAN.

banquet. See BANK, para 3.

banshee. See SHEE.

bantam: from Baniam, the very small fowl coming from Bantam, in Java.

banter, v hence n: to ridicule playfully: o.o.o. Perh from the obs Sp bandear, to cross from one to another.

Bantu: ba-, plural prefix + ntu, a person: 'The Persons' (the persons).

banyan (tree): via Hi from Skt vanij, merchant: its wide-spread branches afford a market-place for native traders.

baptism, baptismal; Baptist, baptistery; baptize.

The effectual origin lies in Gr baptizein, a modified form of baptein (s bapt-, r bap-), to dip in water, akin to ON hafa, to dive. Baptizein passes through LL baptizāre to OF-F baptiser, whence 'to baptize'; its derivative baptisma, adopted by LL, became OF baptisme (F baptême), whence the E baptism; OF-F baptismal (from LL baptisma) is adopted by E; the Gr agent baptistēs passes through LL baptista and OF baptiste to E baptist, now only in John the Baptist and the Baptist sect, and the derivative baptistērion, LL baptistērium, OF-MF baptisterie, became baptist(e)ry, the font recess of a church.

1. 'To bar', ME barren, represents OF-F barrer, from OF-F barre, a usu flat, long piece of wood or metal, serving as support or leverage or esp obstruction: from LL barra, o.o.o but perh of C origin: the C r bar(s)*, an eminence, appears in Br barr, mountain top, tree top, hence branch (esp as barri), bar (bar), cf Ir and W bar(r), and W bar, branch, mountain top, Manx barr, a bar, and Cor baar, n, and bara, v, (to) bar, and Cor bar, a branch; cf also Ga barra, a bar, a spike, and barrach, the top branches of trees; the sense 'branch' certainly could, as Cor shows, lead to the sense of F barre, E bar.

2. Barrack, orig a temporary hut for soldiers, became the modern barracks: late MF-F baraque, a hut: It baracca: Sp barraca, prob from Sp barra, itself from LL barra (as above).

3. Barrage (military) derives from F tir de barrage, obstructive fire; OF-F barrage, which has, moreover, been adopted by E, esp in engineering, derives from OF-F barrer, to close the way to, from barre (para 1).

4. Barricade, v, comes from the EF-F v barri-cader, itself from the EF-F n barricade (adopted by E): It barricata, from barricare, from barra (from LL barra), a bar.

5. Barrier, ME barrere, represents MF barriere (EF-F barrière), from barre.

6. Bar, in its special sense 'the entire body of advocates or barristers', derives from the utter (outer) bar formerly, in E Inns of Court, separating the benchers from the students, who, when duly called to participate in debates, became utter barristers (cf be called to the bar), finally barristers; and barrister, earlier barraster or -ester, consists of E bar (rather than F barre, the equivalent F term being barreau) + formative r + a suffix app connoting 'a stander (at)', from Gr histasthai (vi), to stand, the -ister form being prob influenced by, e.g., chorister.

7. Embarrassment represents EF embarrasement, itself from EF-F embarrasser, whence 'to embarrass': and embarrasser comes from Sp embarrazar or perh It imbarazzare, lit 'to [put] a bar (LL barra) into (L in)'.

8. Embargo, Sp word, perh comes into E via EF-F; it derives from Sp embargar, to issue an edict against: VL imbarriçare*: L in-, in(to)+LL barra.

barb (1), horse: EF-F barbe: It barbero (L barbarus), a horse of Barbary (N Africa). Cf, therefore, BARBARIAN.

barb (2), beard (obs) and backward projection; barbate, barbel, barber; beard, n hence v; halberd.

1. Halberd, via It and F, comes from MHG helmbarte, an axe to split a helm (cf HELMET), a beard-shaped axe.

2. Barb (F barbe, L barba), a beard, hence a beard-like projection, hence the backward projection of arrow or fish-hook, has derivative 'to barb', to furnish with barbs: cf barbate, bearded, L barbatus, from barba, which has LL dim barbellus, whence, via MF-F, the E barbel. Barba, moreover, has a VL derivative barbator (agential -ator), whence MF barbeor, EF-F barbier, and ME barbour, EE-E barber.

3. Now, beard derives from OE beard, akin to OFris berd, OS bard, OHG bart; PGmc barth-(?), IE bhardh-: cf OSl brada, Lith barzdà, L barba. (Walshe.)

barbarian (adj and n), barbaric, barbarism, barbarity, barbarize, barbarous; Barbary, Berber; cf 1st BARB.

1. The effectual base consists of Gr barbaros, non-Greek, also n, esp in pl barbaroi: hoi barbaroi, the non-Greeks, are lit 'the Unintelligibles, The Stammerers': cf the Skt adj barbaras, stammering; orig echoic, as also is the stammering redup in Tatar (loosely Tartar). Cf BABBLE and BABE.

2. Gr barbaros becomes L barbarus, whence E barbarous, whence (abstract suffix -ity) barbarity and barbarian (-ian for -ous), n and—cf F barbarien—adj. The secondary Gr adj barbarikos—answering to hoi barbaroi—becomes L barbaricus becomes E barbaric. Barbaros has two other derivatives affecting E: barbarizein, to behave or speak like a barbarian, (vt) to mistreat barbarously, whence obs F barbariser and E barbarize (-ize); and barbarismos, use of a foreign or misuse of one's own language, the qualities of a barbarian, whence MF-F barbarisme and, perh independently, E barbarism.

3. L coined barbaria, 'barbarianness', hence foreign lands, hence, in ML, Saracen lands, esp Barbaria, whence MF-F barbarie, Barbarie, whence E Barbary, North Africa from the western borders of Egypt to the Atlantic coast. The inhabitants, called barbari by the Latin settlers and their descendants, were, by the conquering Arabs, named, collectively, al-Barbar; Berberi, prob a ML reshaping of the Ar pron of L barbari, yields E Berbers, soon applied to the Arabs themselves. (Enci It.)

barbecue (the entertainment from the animal roasted whole, from the raised platform serving as open-air kitchen): Sp barbacoa, a raised frame or platform: Taino (WI) barbacoa.

barbel. See 2nd BARB, para 2.

barber. See 2nd BARB, para 2.

bard: C in origin: cf Ir and Ga bard, Br barz, a poet, and OIr bard, an inferior poet. (LL bardi, LGr bardoi, the Gaulish bards: from C.)

bare, adj and v; barefoot (OE baerfōt, cf OFris berfōt).

Bare, adj: ME bar: OE baer, akin to OHG and OS bar and, in cpds, OFris ber-; also to ON berr. The v derives from OE barian, from the adj. The Sl languages show the var bās- or bos-; IE r, prob bhos-*. (Walshe.)

bargain, n (hence adj) and v.

The n derives from ME bargayn, from OF-MF bargaigne or -gagne, a market, from OF-EF bargaignier, whence, via ME bargaynen, the E 'to bargain': and OF-EF bargaignier, to buy and sell in the market-place, to chaffer, higgler, comes from LL barcaniāre (o.o.o): perh cf OHG borgēn, to spare, hence, as in G, to borrow, and OProv barganhar, to bargain.

barge, n, hence—from slow, heavy motion—v: adopted by ME from OF, from L barica*: cf LL irraga: see 3rd BARK. Bargee=barge, n+suffix -ee, irreg for -er.

baritone. See the element -bar.

bark (1), of tree; hence v: from ON börkr; cf Skt bhūrja, birch-bark.

bark (2), of dog: n, perh from v, but cf OE beorc, bearce; 'to bark', ME berken, OE beorcan, akin to ON berkja, to bark, and berkliga, like a bark, and also to Lith burgėti, to growl: echoic. (Holthausen.)

bark (3), a small sailing ship: MF-F barque, often so in E: OProv barca: LL barca, prob for bārica*: from L bāris, a barge: Gr baris, an Egyptian barge: from Eg—cf Coptic bari and perh Eg bāk, a barge, orig a hawk-boat, from bak, a hawk.

2. Barkentine, barquentine app=bark, barque+brigantine.

3. The cpds come from F: debark, EF-F débarquer; disembark, EF-F désemparquer; debarkment, EF-F débarquement; disembarkment, EF-F désemparquement; disembarkation, however, is formed after E embarcation;—embark, EF-F embarquer; embarkment, EF-F embarquement; embarcation (now usu embarcation), adopted from F, itself from Sp embarcación. (B & W.)

barley: ME barly, earlier barlich: OE baerlic, orig 'barley-like': bere, barley+lic, like. With OE bere, cf ON barr, barley, Go barizeins, made of barley, and several Sl cognates. Cf BARN and perh: bar: ME berme: OE beorma, akin to LG barme, G Bärme, Alb brum, and perh to L fermentum, yeast—cf FERMENT.

barn: ME bern: OE bern, orig berern: OE bere, barley (see BARLEY)+ern (aern), a closed place: a barley, hence grain, place (shed).

barometer: a meter or measure of atmospheric heaviness (hence pressure): see baro- at the element -bar. Adj: barometric.

baron: baronet (whence baronetcy: suffix -cy); barony.

A baronet is a little (dim suffix -et) baron; barony, ME from OF-MF baronie (EF-F baronnie), from baron: and OF baron, which yields ME hence E baron, is the acc of ber (cf OProv bar), orig a free man, a warrior, later a high-ranking feudal officer: usu said to be Gmc (Frankish baro*: B & W), but perh from the C r bars*, eminence, whence barron*, whence baron, eminent man, later a feudal baron (Malvezin).

baroque, (orig) irregularly shaped: adopted from EF-F: from Port barroco, an irregular pearl: prob Ar, for cf Port and Sp aljofar, a (usu small) pearl irregularly shaped, from Ar al-cháuhar.

barque, barquentine. See the 3rd BARK, paras 1, 2. barrack, n.; barracks. See BAR, para 2.

barrack, Aus v: perh Aborigine borah, derision. (Cf P* for a var proposal.)

barracuda: Sp barracuda, perh from Valencian barraco, a large, protrusive tooth.

barrel: ME barel: OF-F baril, very doubtfully from either OF barre, a bar, or Frankish bera*, to carry: cf OProv barril and It barile. Dauzat, citing the late C9 OF barriclos, derives it from VL barriculus*, o.o.o. Malvezin implies a dim derivative from the C r bar*, liquid (cf mar*, liquid, akin to L mare, sea).

barren, adj hence n: ME barain, barein: OF brehaing, f brehaigne or baraigne or baraine, elliptical for terre brehaigne (baraigne, baraine), barren land: perh (Webster) from L barbarus in sense 'uncultivated', but prob from nearer home. In short, I propose a Br origin, the Br form of brehaing, brehaigne, being breheign or brehagn: perh 'Brehn (land)', the Br name of Brittany (F Bretagne) being Breigh or Bréh: the coast lands are rocky and sterile.

barrier. See BAR, para 5.

barriester. See BAR, para 6.

barrow (1), a mound: ME beoruh and bergh: OE beorg, beorh, mound, mountain, akin to OFris berch, OFris and OHG-G berg, mountain: cf 'ice-berg' (see ICE). Cf also BOROUGH and BURY.

barrow (2), as in wheelbarrow: ME barow, barewe: from OE bearwe, wheelbarrow: cf BEAR, v, and BIER.

barre See BASS, n.

barter (v hence n) comes, via ME bartren, from OF-MF barater, bareter, to cheat, e.g. in exchanging goods, (rarely) to exchange: either from Gr praitain (s prat-), to do, to deal, to practise tricks, or from C—cf Ir braith, trickery, treachery, Ga brath, to betray, OIr mrath, betrayal.

2. OF barater has the MF derivative barateor, deceiver, whence ME baratour, whence E barrator, one guilty of barratry: and barratry comes from MF-F baraterie, deception, hence, in late C17, marine fraud by a ship's master, from barater, itself from barat, deception, trickery, o.o.o. but perh from C bar, din, brawl (DAF).

basal. See BASE, n.

basalt: perh via EF-F basalte: L basaltes, a hard, dark Abyssinian marble: of African origin; perh cf Eg bekhen, basalt, and baa kam, black basalt.

base, adj; base (voice); abase, debase, with nn in -ment.

1. E base derives from ME bas, bass: OF bas, basse: LL basus, squat, low, ? of Oscan origin. Hence baseness (suffix -ness).

2. The bass (voice)=base, adj, influenced by It basso and perh EF-F basse.

3. Abase, ME abasse, comes from OF-MF abaissier (MF-F abaissier), VL adbassiare*: ad, to+ bassi-, c/f of basus, low+inf suffix -äre; and debase=de, down from+base, v, anl with abase.

base, n hence v; basal, basic; basis; basement (prob the v+suffix -ment).

Whereas basal=E base+adj -al, basic=base+ic; base, adopted from OF-F, comes from L, from Gr, basis, a stepping, a step, a stepping-stone, a pedestal, a base, from bainein, to step or go, akin to L uenire and E COME; E basis comes straight from L basis.

bash, v hence n: echoic: cf CLASH, CRASH, PASH, SLASH, SMASH.

bashaw. See CHECK, para 4.

bashful: from obs bash (ME baschen), aphetic for abash; suffix -ful.

basic. See BASE, n.

basil, aromatic herb; basilica, a 'royal' building, a noble church; basilisk, a fabled serpent.

The base is Gr basileus, a king: o.o.o: perh basil- (from bainein, to step or go)+Ionic leus* (for leōs), people, hence 'guide of the people'. It affects E in the foll words: Basil, from L Basilius, Gr Basileios, The Kingly, from basileus; basil, OF basile, ML basilicum, from Gr basilikon, prop the neu of basilikos, royal, from basileus, basil having sovereign qualities; basilica, adopted from L, from Gr basilikē, elliptical for basilikē oikia, royal dwelling, or perh b. stoa, royal (roofed) colonnade; basilisk (suffix -isk), L basiliscus, Gr basiliskos 'little king'—reputedly its breath was fatal, its hissing expulsive.

basin: ME basin, adopted from OF-MF basin (MF-F bassin): VL bacclnum* (cf LL bacchinon), (? dim) from L bacca, a water vessel: o.o.o, but perh from the C r bac*, liquid, as in F bac, vat or tank, dim baquet, bucket.

basioscopic. See the element -scope.

basit. See BASE, n.

batk, to sunbathe: contr of ON bathask, to bathe oneself: batha, to bathe (cf BATHE)+ reflexive sk.

basket: ME basket: o.o.o: the L poet Martial says that L bascauda is a C word; cf Cor bascauda, usu basced; W basgawd; Manx bascad.

Basque, basque, basquine; Biscay, Biscayan.

The basque of a garment—the F basque, earlier baste, from It and OProv basta, from bastir(e), to build (with dress material), the form basque being influenced by F basque, adj of F Basque, a Basque (Dauzat); basquine, adopted from F, comes from Sp basquina, from the adj basco, better vasco, Basque. The N Sp province Vizcaya, F Biscaye, whence E '(bay of) Biscay', has adj Biscayan (F biscatal). The F Basque, a Basque, comes prob from the Sp adj and n Vascón, itself from ML Vascōnes, L Uascōnes, the Basques.

bas-relief. See LEVER, para 9.

bass, adj hence n, ref voice: see BASE, adj, para 2.

bass, n, the European perch: deviation from barse, OE bears or baers, akin to MHG bars, the fish, and G barsch, D bars, rough: therefore prob cf BRISTLE.

bass, n, fibre. See:

bast, woody fibre: OE baest, akin to OHG, ON bast, and perh to L fascia; the form bass is a corruption. The OHG bast accounts, via OF bastir, ME basten, for baste, to sew.

bastard, adopted from OF bastard (F bâtard): orig the (legitimate) son of a noble and his concubine: prob, with pej suffix -ard, from OF fil (and fil) de bast, where bast app derives from PGmc bansti*, a granary, a barn, cf the syn G banst: 'barn son', 'barn daughter'. (B & W.) Dauzat prefers to interpret bast as OF bast, F bat, a packsaddle: 'son, or daughter, begotten on a packsaddle', after the fashion among muleteers.

baste (1), to sew loosely. See BAST.

baste (2), to moisten (roasting meat) with melted butter or fat: from C16 baast, pp, whence C16–17 bast and C16–20 baste: app from OF basser, to moisten slightly, from bassiner, to moisten, from bassin, a basin (contents usu liquid)—cf BASIN.

baste (3), to thrash: ON beysta, to beat: cf BEAT.

bastille: MF-F bastille, a small fortress, hence a fortress prison, esp la Bastille de Paris: MF bastide: OProv bastida, from bastir, to build, itself of disputed etym. Cf:

bastion, adopted from F, comes from It bastione, aug of bastia, bastion, from bastire, to build, perh (B & W) from Frankish bastjan*, cf OHG bestên, to lace, and MHG bast, G Bast, inner bark of lime-tree, cf BAST. With It bastire, cf OF and OProv bastir: both may (Webster) rather come from VL bastire*, to build, var of VL bastāre*, (? LL-)ML bastāre, to suffice, (? orig) to carry, itself from Gr bastazein (s bastaz-, r bast-), to carry. But the Gmc origin (supported also by Dauzat, Prati, EW) seems preferable, for, as B & W remark, the ancient Gmc peoples often built the walls of their dwellings with bark, or similar materials, plaited or interwoven. Cf prec.

bat, 1 (flying): corruption of ME bakke, cf Da backe, Sw backa: app from ON blaka, to flutter: 'the flutterer'.

1. The effective origin lies in L bellus, handsome, a specialized dim of bonus, good. The derivative It bello has f bella, as in belladonna, for bella donna, pretty lady, euphemistic for the very poisonous plant. The corresp F derivative is OF-F beau, as in E beau ideal, misapprehension of F le beau idéal, ideal beauty, and beau monde, F le beau monde, the world of fashion. The F derivative beau (pl beaux), a fop, has become E beau, a social escort; hence prob the AE bo, as term of address (cf HOB0). OF-F beau, adj, has derivative OF-F beauté, whence beauty, whence beauteous (-ous) and beautiful (-ful) and beatify (element -fy, to make).

2. The F adj, hence n, beau has f belle, pl belles; adopted by E in the n belle (e.g., of the ball), a popular beauty, and in belles-lettres, fine literature having aesthetic value, orig the humanities. Agent: belle-lettrist; adj: belle-lettristic, often abbr belletristic.

3. The prevocalic m of the F adj beau is bel, reduplicated in OF belbel, a plaything, whence OF-MF baubel (or babel), whence E bauble. Cf bibelot: MF-F bibelot, from OF beubelot, -et (cf OF-MF babelet), etc, from OF beubelot, -et (cf OF-MF babelet), a small jewel, a trinket, from OF belbel: beu- (for bel-) + bel + dim suffix -ot.

4. F has a derivative OF v, embellir: em-, for en-, in (used int) + bel- + euphonic -l- + inf suffix -ir-: whence, via such forms as 'embellissant' (presp) and 'ils embellissent', they beautify, the ME em-belisen, -belisshen, E 'to embellish', whence, prompted by MF-F embellissement, the n embellishment (suffix -ment).

beaver (1), the rodent amphibian: ME bever: OE beofor, akin to OHG bibar (G Biber) and ON biórr and Av bawra; cf also Skt babhrúś, brown: like the BEAR, the beaver is named from its brown colour, and indeed beaver, like bear, is ult akin to BROWN.

bezant. See BYZANTINE.

bezique: F bésigue (occ bésy): o.o.o., say Dauzat and B & W; EW adduces the two-centuries earlier form basseque and compares the still earlier It card-game bazzica, which Prati derives from the echoic It bazzicare, to frequent or resort to.

bias, n hence v: F (en or de) biats, (on or from) a bias: app from OProv biais, from Gr epikarsios (oblique), 'which would have penetrated by the Greek colonies of the Provençal coast, through a form *(e)bigassius' (B & W). Gr epikarsios derives from epi, upon+karsion, side or flank; with karsion and its adj karsios, cf OP kērscha (or kērscha), over the top of.

bib, n and v (whence bibber). See BIBULOUS.

bibble-babble. See BABBLE.

bibelot. See BEAU, para 3.

Bible, whence Biblical: OF-F bible: LL biblia* (neu pl): Gr ta biblia, the little books, pl of biblion, dim of biblos, (inner rind of) papyrus, hence a book, from the Phoenician city Bublos (Byblos), 'whence papyrus was exported' (Webster).

bibulous: bib, n and v (whence bibber).

'A bib' derives from 'to bib': a bib drinks a child's slopped-over beverage. 'To bib' or drink comes from L bibere, s bib-, whence the adj bibulus, whence E bibulous. App bibo (I drink) represents pibo*, the p being assimilated to the interior b: cf Skt pitati, he drinks, and L potus, (of one) who has drunk. Cf also the C r pi-, often shortened to pi-: cf Gr pinein (s pin-, r pi-), to drink. The IE r, therefore, is pi-, var po-, with extensions pib-, pin-, pob-, pon (cf Lesbian Gr pōnō-, s pōn-), pot-*.

bicker: ME bikeren, to skirmish: o.o.o., but cf OHG bicchan, to hack or stab, perh influenced by OF-F piquer, to peck (F bequer); bec* is also a C r. Cf, therefore, BEAK.

bicycle. See CYCLE, para 1.

bid, v (pt bade, bid, pp bidden) hence n: ME biddan, to beg, ask, pray (cf BEAD): OE biddan, akin to OFris bidda (cf ON bithja), OS biddian, OHG (and G) bitten, Go bidjan: IE r, prob bheidh-*, cf Gr peithein (s peith-), to persuade, for pheithein*. Cf also BIDE.

2. The one notable cpd, apart from unbidden (prefix un-), is forbid, pt forbid or -bade, pp forbidden: ME forbeden: OE forbēodan (cf the privative for-), akin to ON forbjōtha and G verboten. Cf also:

bide; abide—abode (n).

1. 'To bide' derives, through ME bidan, from OE bīdan (s bīd-), akin to ON bīda, bītha, Go beidan, OFris bidia, OHG bītan; cf also L fido (s fid-), I trust, and Gr peithomai, I follow; IE r, bheid-*; cf BID.

2. Abide derives from OE ābidan (a-+bīdan), akin to Go usbeidan, to expect; from the transitional ME abiden comes the ME n abood, whence abode.

bident. See TOOTH, para 11.

biennial. See ANNUAL, para 2.

bier: ME beere, earlier baere: OE bāēr, akin perh to OFris bare, certainly to OHG bāra (G Bahre) and ON barar; cf also Gr pheretron (from pherein, to bear, s pher-); the r of bier is that of 'to bear', and the IE r is that in Skt bhāras, a burden.

bifurcate, bifurcation. See FORK, s.f.

big, whence bigger (big+orthographic g+-er) and biggest (big+g+sup -est): ME big, earlier bigge, akin to Nor bugge, an important man ('big fellow')—cf E BUG (big insect) and, ult, L buccae, (puffed) cheeks, the basic idea being 'puffed up, swollen' (Webster). The L word may be of C origin—cf E BEAK (L beccus); the C root would be buc* (Malvezin).

bigamist, bigamous, bigamy. See MONOGAMIST, para 2.

biggin, coif. See BEG, s.f.

bishop, archbishop—bishopric, archbishopric; episcopal, archiepiscopal—episcopate.

Bishop derives, via ME bischof, earlier biscop or bisceop, from OE bisceop, biscop, itself from LL episcopus, superintendent, (later) bishop, from the Gr episkopos (prefix epi-, on or over+skopos, inspector, cf the E SCOPE), a superintendent; archbishop, from OE arcebisceop (-biscop), from LL archiepiscopus, from Gr arkhiēpiskopos (arkhi-, chief). The adj derive from LL and ML episcopālis, archiepiscopal being anl; episcopate comes from LL episcopātus, archiepiscopate being anl; episcopacy=episcopate+the suffix -cy, much as accuracy derives from accurate. Archbishopric derives from OE arcebiscoprice; its prototype bishopric, from OE bisceoprice (bisceop+rice, kingdom—cf the element -ric).

bismuth: adopted from G, var of Wismut: o.o.o.: MLG wesemot, perh from 'the first bismuth-mine (1440) at St Georgen in der Wiesen'; the 2nd element app comes from OHG muotōn, to demand, sc 'permission to open a mine'. (Walshe.) For v (w)-b mutation, cf:

bison: late MF-F, from L, bison: prob from LGr bisōn, itself perh from the Thracian bisontes, wild oxen (cf ML bissonus, wild ox): orig a European wild ox (the urus), hence the A bison. Rather than from Gr and Thracian, the L bison may have a Gmc origin: cf OHG wisant, OE wisend: ? orig Balto-Slavic.

bit (n); bite, pt bit, pp bitten.—bitter, bitterness.—Cf BAIT and BEETLE.

1. Bit, a bite (obs), hence a horse's bit, derives, through ME byt, bite, etc., from OE bite, a bite or biting, akin to ON bit and to—prob from—OE bitan, to bite; bit, a morsel, derives, through ME bite, from OE bita, akin to, prob from, OE bitan, to bite: a morsel is a portion bitten off at one attempt.

2. 'To bite', whence 'a bite', derives, through ME biten, from OE bitan, akin to OFris (and ON) bīta, OS bītan, OHG bīzan, bīzzan (G beissen), Go beitan—and Skt bhedati, he cleaves; IE r, perh bheid-*.

3. Bitter, OE bittor, biter, is akin to OS bittar, OHG bittar (MHG and G bitter), ON bitr, Go bāitrs: and prob to OE bitan, to bite, although, as Walshe proposes, it may rather be akin to L foedus, disgusting, itself o.o.o. Bitterness derives from OE biternys, from the adj.

bitch: ME bicche: OE bicce, akin to ON bikkja, bitch, and grey-baka, (int) bitch; to G Petze (? from E); perh to F biche, OF bische, dial form of OF bisse, prob (B & W) from VL bistia*, from L bēstia, beast. Perh of the Skt bhagas, genitals. 'To bitch' is akin to 'to BOTCH'.

bitter, bitterness. See BIT, para 3.

bittern: ME bitoure or botor: OF butor: doubtfully from VL butitaurus*: the app echoic L būtīō (s būtī-, r būt-), a bittern+taurus, a bull, introduced for echoic reasons. The ME word was perh influenced by ern(e), the (sea) eagle.

bitumen: L bitumen, either of Osco-Umbrian or (E & M) of C origin—perh of the Ga bigh-thalmhuinn and certainly of the C r beit-*, to be thick or viscous (Malvezin).

bivouac. See VIGOR, para 11, s.f.

bizarre: EF-F bizarre: It bizzarro, capricious: Sp bizarro, brave, prob from Basque bizar, a beard, whence the Sp senses 'energetic'—'manly'—'brave'.

blab, blabber. Blab, a telltale, derives from ME blabbe, akin to ME blaberen, to blab, which is echoic. Blabber, v hence n, is a freq: cf 'to blubber', equally echoic.

black (adj hence n and v), with many obvious cpds; blacken.

1. 'To blacken' derives, by v suffix -en, from adj black; and black, adj, ME blak, derives from OE blaec, akin to OHG blah and ON blakkr and, further off, the L flagrāre (s flagr-, r flag-), Gr phlegēin (s, r phleg-), to burn; IE r, bhleg-*; basic idea, ? 'to burn with black smoke' or 'to burn black with smoke'.

2. Of cpds not too obvious, note blackguard, orig one of the kitchen menials in a great house, and blacksmith, from the dark metals he handles.

blackmail. See the 3rd MAIL, para 2.

bladder derives from OE blāēd(d)re, blister, bladder, akin to OHG blāt(t)ara, MHG blātere, G Blatter, and ON blathra: akin to OE blāwan, to blow. Cf blade: ME blad: OE blaed, leaf, hence blade of an ear, akin to OHG-MHG blat (G Blatt) and ON blad, blat(h)—and OE blāwan, to blow. Cf prec, BLAIN, the 1st BLOW, (in)FLATE.

blah, pretentious nonsense or verbiage: blah!, term of contempt: ? blend of bleat+bah.

blain, obsol except in chilblain (chill+blain): ME blein, bleyn: OE blēgen, with cognates in at least two Scan languages; akin to bloat and ult to 'to blow'.

blame, v (whence blamable: cf EF-F blâmable) and n (whence blameless); blaspheme, blasphemous, blasphemy.

1. Blame, n, comes, in ME, from OF-MF blasme (EF-F blâme), from OF-MF blasmer (EF-F blâmer), to blame, whence, via ME blamen, the E 'to blame': and OF blasmer comes from LL blas- phēmāre, to BLASPHEME, to blame, from L blasphemāre, to blaspheme, from Gr blasphēmēin to speak ill of, from the adj blasphēmos, evil-speaking, -phemos from phanai, to speak, with 1st element (blas-) perh akin to Gr meleos, futile, itself with C and Skt cognates.

blanch (1), in hunting: a var of BLENCH.

blanch (2), to render, or become, white or pale: ME blaunchen or blanchen: OF-F blanchir, from OF-F blanc, f blanche, white: f.a.e., BLANK.

bland; blandish, whence (suffix -ment) blandishment.

'To blandish' comes, through ME blaudisen, from OF-EF blandir (presp blandissant), from L blandiri, to flatter, from blandus, (flatteringly) mild, whence the E bland. L blandus, s bland-, is o.o.o.—? echoic.

blank adj hence n: ME blank, blonc, blaunc: influenced by OF-F blanc, f blanche (cf E BLANCH), but perh from OE blanca, akin to OHG blanc, bright (G blank) and therefore also to ON blakkr, a white horse; app the OF word comes from the OHG blare, v hence n: ME blaren, var bloren, to weep, akin to G plärren, to bleat: echoic.

blasé: pp (as adj) of EF-F blaser, to weary (someone) with strong liquor: D blasen, to cause to swell: 'bloating with liquor'. (B & W.)

blaspheme, blasphemous, blasphemy. See BLAME, para 2.

blast, n hence v: OE blāest, a blowing, a gust (or a breeze) of wind, akin to OHG blāst and ON blāstr, and to the OE blāwan, to blow, OHG blāsan (G blasen) and blāian, ON blasa, OFris blā; the Gmc r is therefore bla-, the IE r bhla-, with varr bhle-, bhlo-*, cf the L flō, I blow, flāre, to blow, flātus, blown; ult echoic. Cf BLAZE, 2nd BLOW, BLUSH, BLUSTER.

blat, blate, bleat; blatant; blather.

1. The first two are varr of 'to bleat' (whence the n), ME bleten, OE blāetan, akin to G blōken; echoic. The adj blatant (whence blatancy; suffix -cy) app derives from Spenser's 'the Blatant (or Blattant) Beast', a bellowing monster, perh suggested by L blaterāre (s blater-, r blat-), to babble, whence the mainly dial E blatter, to prate.

2. Blather, n, comes from ON blathr, nonsense; 'to blather', from ON blathra, to talk nonsense, two intimately related ON words that, clearly echoic, are obviously akin to OE blāetan and L blaterare. Blether is a Sc var.

blaze, effusion of light (and heat or flame): ME blase: OE blaese or blase, akin to OE blas, white or whitish, and G bläss, pale, MHG and OHG blas, whitish, with a white forehead, the MLG var blase leading to E blaze, a white mark on the face, usu the forehead, of (domestic) quadrupeds; cf the ON bles, in both senses; perh, ult, of OSi origin or, at the least, akin to OB bélyj, white (Walshe). 'To blaze', to burn brightly and vigorously, derives from the prec n, as, from its latter sense, does 'to blaze', to mark with a white spot or patch.

2. A blazer (jacket) is so named because it glows. A blazon, whence directly the v (cf, however, the MF-F blasonner), comes, via ME blasoun, from OF-F blason, a shield (with coat of arms), prob of Gmc origin and akin to blaze.

blazon. See prec, para 2.

bleach, v hence n; 'bleachers'.—bleak.—blight, n hence v.

1. 'To bleach' or whiten derives, through ME blechen, from OE blācan, itself from blāc, blāce, pale: cf ON bleikja, MHG blichen, G bleichen, and the adj ON bleikr, OHG bleih, MHG-G bleich: IE r, ? bhla-, bhle-.

2. 'Bleachers' are wooden seats that, exposed to the weather, turn paler and paler, season after season.

3. Bleak is of Scan origin: cf ON bleikr, pale, white.

4. And blight app comes from the same Gmc r as bleach.

blear (v hence n), blear (adj), bleary; blur (v hence n), blurry.

'To blear', render dim and watery, derives from ME bleren, cf LG bleer-oged, blear-eyed; the ME adj blere, whence E blear, is cognate, cf G Bleor, eye-soreness; o.o.o. Bleary=blear, n+adj suffix -y. Blurry=blur, n+euphonic r+-y; 'to blur' is app of same obscure r as 'to blear' bleat. See BLAT.

bleb. See BLOB.

bleed; blood.

'To bleed': ME bleden: OE blēdan, derived from the OE blōd, ME blod, E blood: cf OFris blēda. With OE blōd, cf. ON blōth, Go blōth, OFris and OS blōr, OHG bluot, G Blut, perh akin to Blume, a flower, with basic idea 'florid' (Webster); IE r, perh blodh-*. Cf BLESS.

blemish, v hence n: ME blemishen, earlier blemissen: from OF-MF blesmir (F blēmīr), to fade or cause to fade, in such parts as blesmissant, blesmissent: either from the r occurring in OHG blas, G bläss, pale (cf BLAZE, para 1), or from OScan blami, pale blue (cf G blau, E blue).

blench (1), to pale: a var of the 2nd BLANCH, to turn pale.

blench (2), with var blanch, in, e.g., hunting, to turn aside (vt and vi): ME blenchen, to divert, to deceive: OE blencan, to deceive, akin to ON blekkja, to impose upon: perh, as Webster proposes, a caus of blink, to make (someone) wink, hence to deceive. 'To blink', vi as well as vt, ME blinken, blenken, is akin to G blinken, to gleam or shine; ME blinken is prob only app a nasalization of OE blēcan, to gleam. The n blink occurs already in ME. Derivatives from the v: blinkard (-ard) and blinkers).

blend, to mix, hence n; obs blend, to dazzle or blind; blind, adj, hence n and v; blunder, v hence n.

1. If we set out from the predominant meaning —'to render dark, (hence) to confuse'—the dark is light enough, and the path becomes clear: 'to blend' (mingle) comes, through ME blenden, from ON blanda, akin to OFris blenda, OHG blentēn. MHG-G blenden, to blind, esp to OE blendan, to dazzle or blind (hence the EE blend, to blind), and to OHG blantan, to mix (Go blandan); akin to the OE, whence the E, adj blind (ON blindr, OFris and OS blind, Go blinds, OHG-MHG blint, G blind); akin also to ON blunda, to close one's eyes in sleep, itself akin to ME blunderen, to confuse, (v.i) to move clumsily, to blunder, hence the E 'to blunder'. With all three OE-ME originals, of the Lith blandus dusky, (of soup) thick, and blandytis, to lower the eyes, and the Orkneys bland, buttermilk diluted with water, from ON blanda, hot whey similarly diluted. (Notably Walshe.)

2. Blende, as in pitchblende, is G (from blenden, to blind, to deceive): so named, either from its brilliance or from its deceptive lack of lead.

3. The IE r is prob b(h)lend-* or bhlendr-*.

bless, whence the pa blesed, blest, and the vn blessing: ME blesen, earlier bletsen, bledsen: OE blētsian, blēdsian, bloedsian, to sanctify or consecrate with blood, q.v. at bleed: by rendering holy, to render happy. (For sem, see esp OED.)

blight. See BLEACH, para 4.

Blighty: Pl N from Hobson-Jobson adj blighty: Hind bilāṭī (foreign, hence European, esp E), var of wilāyatī, adj of wilāyat, country, esp if foreign, itself from Ar wilāyat, a province, hence a country, from wāli, governor (of a province): cf Tu wilāyet, from Ar wilāyat.

blimp, a small, non-rigid airship, hence a flabby, pompous (old) reactionary: coined ? in 1915, by Horace Short: prob a blend of bloody+limp (adj).

blind. See BLEND, para 1.

blink, blinkers. See the 2nd BLENCH.

bliss, whence blissful; blithe.

Bliss derives, through ME blis, blisse, from OE bliss, an 'eased' var of bliths, itself from OE blithe, whence E blithe: cf OFris blith-ship, 'blitheship', joy—Go bleiths, kind—ON blithr, gentle—OHG blīdi, kind, blithe; IE etymon, bhleitiō*, extension of r bhlel*, to shine.

blister, n hence v: ME blister or blester, either from MD bluyster or from OF blestre, itself from ON blāstr, a swelling, (orig) a BLAST—cf, sem, 'puff of wind' and 'eyes puffed up'.

blithe. See BLISS.

blitz, n hence v; Blitzkrieg.

The former shortens the latter, which, in G, means 'lightning war'. G Blitz, lightning (MHG blitze) is akin to G Blick, a glance (MHG, OHG blīc, a flash, lightning); the IE s is bhleg-, perh cf bhlet-, to shine (see BLISS, s.f.). G Krieg, war, derives from OHG krēg, obstinacy.

blizzard is a suffix -ard derivative and sense-adaptation of blizz, a storm, itself app a thinning of blaze, a bright flame, the hiss of rain being likened to that of a blazing fire.

bloat, to cause to swell, hence to cure (fish), whence bloater, a large cured herring: OE blāttan*: cf BLAIN and the Gr phloidaō (s phloida-, r phloid-), I let swell; IE s, bhleid-*, r bhlel-.

blob, blister or bubble, hence a small drop or lump: from dial, where the syn blob or blab is clearly echoic, with intimate cognate blub, to become puffed, as with weeping, hence to weep noisily, with the freq derivative blubber, (orig) to bubble, hence weep noisily; blubber, (whale's) fat, derives from blubber, a large marine nettle, from blubber, foam or a bubble, from blubber, to bubble.

block, n and v; blockade, n hence v; blockhead, blockhouse.

Blockhead= block+ HEAD; blockhouse=block+HOUSE, and is prob imitative of G Blockhaus (cf MD blochhus). Blockade is a suffix -ade derivative of 'to block': cf the It bloccata. 'To block' comes from late MF-F bloquer, itself from MF-F bloc, whence, via ME blok, E 'a block': and MF-F bloc derives from MD blok, a felled tree-trunk, akin to MHG, from OHG, bloh, a block: prob cf BALK.

blond (m), blonde (f): adj hence n: adopted from F. The OF-F blond (cf OProv blon, It biondo) is dubiously of Gmc origin, although cf the OE blonden-feax, grey-haired, where blonden derives from OE blondan, blendan, to mix: cf the basic meaning of BLEND.

blood. See BLEED. Note the derivatives bloodless (OE blōdlēas) and bloody (OE blōdīg); the latter, used by sl as an int, results naturally from the violence and viscosity of blood.

bloom, n hence v; blossom, n and v.

1. A bloom, ME blome, comes from ON blōm, var blōmi, akin to OFris blōma, Go bōma, OHG bluomo (G Blume), OS blōmo—and to OE blōma, a lump or heavy mass, whence the metallurgical E bloom.

2. 'To blossom' derives from OE blōstmian, itself from OE blōstm or blōstma (with further var blōsma), a flower, whence E blossom: and the OE words are akin to MHG blössem and ON blōmstr. Blossom is therefore, in its early Gmc forms, an extension of bloom: f.a.e., the 1st BLOW—cf 'Every flower that blows'.

blot, n, v (whence blotter); blotch, n hence v.

1. 'To blot' comes from MF blotter, to stain or blot, from MF blotte, bloutte, bloute, from OF bloste or blostre, a clod or a mound of earth, a blister, of Gmc origin: cf BLISTER.—The blot in backgammon app derives from Scan blot(t), naked, hence exposed.

2. Akin to MF bloute is MF bloche, a clod of earth, whence the E n blotch.

blouse, adopted from F (recorded 1798), is o.o.o.; but since, as Dauzat sagely remarks, the primitive form was prob belouse, the word is perh C and ult akin to L follis, a pair of bellows, later an air-filled pillow or cushion: cf the phon kinship of C bel*, a leaf (as in beliu), to L folium, a leaf.

blow (1), to bloom or blossom: ME blowen: OE blōwan, to blossom, akin to the syn OS blōjan, OHG bluoen (for bluojan*), MHG blüejēn, G blühen, OFris blōia, to several C words and, further back, to L florēre (s flor-), to 'bloom' or flourish. The IE r is app bhlo-*. Cf BLADE and BLOOM.

blow (2), of air: to move swiftly and strongly: ME blowen, earlier blowen: OE blāwan, (of wind) to blow: akin to OFris blā and OHG blāhan, blāen (for blājan*), MHG blāējen, G blāhen, and prob to L flāre, to blow, flō, I blow: ult echoic, cf BLAST.

blow (3), forcible stroke with fist or instrument: ME blowe, blow, akin to OHG bliuwan, MHG bliuwen, G blāuen, Go bliggwan (= bliwwan), to thrash: prob echoic.

blowze, whence blowzy. Blowze, a ruddy-faced woman, (later) a slattern, app derives from the same r as BLUSH.

blub; blubber. See BLOB.

blucher, a half-boot: from General Blucher, of Waterloo fame. Cf wellington, a high boot, loose-topped, from the Duke of Wellington.

bludgeon, n hence v (whence bludgeoner, whence Aus s bludge), is o.o.o. EW proposes that, influenced by blood (? rather blow, a heavy stroke), it comes from OF bougeon, dim of OF bouge (var bolge), a club, prob id with OF-F bouge, the concave or swollen part of an object, itself prob, as Dauzat mentions, akin to—if not, indeed, from—OF-F bouge, OF-MF bolge, a leather bag, from L bulga, itself prob of C origin, with several modern C cognates.

blue, adj, hence n and v: ME bleu (var blew), adopted from MF: OF blau, blo, bloe: of Gmc origin: cf OFris blāu, OHG (and OS) blāo (G blau), and—not itself the source of blue—OE blāw or blāw. 'Orig. meaning "bright"; cognate with Lat. flavus [better flāuus, s flāu-] "yellow"' (Walshe).

A bluff or high, steep river or seaside bank, derives from the adj, 'broad- and flat-fronted; rising high and steep; hence, abrupt, unceremonious, roughly good-natured': and the adj is app of LG origin—cf MLG blaff, smooth, and MD blaf, flat, broad, flat and broad, and blaffaert, a broad-faced person.

bluff (2), v hence n: like prec, of LG origin: prob from D verbluffen, to baffle (ver-, int prefix), cf LG bluffen, to frighten: prob orig echoic.

blunder. See BLEND, where cf blind.

blunderbuss. See THUNDER, para 2.

blunt, occurring since early ME: adj hence v: perh. akin to early G. pluntsch blunted, depressed, clumsy, and to Lith beldėti to knock, beat' Webster); perh (OED) of ON origin—cf ON blunda, to doze, and blundr, a dozing, themselves prob akin to ON blanda, to mix, (hence) confuse, and the adj blindr, blind: cf therefore BLEND.

blur, v hence n. See BLEAR.

blurb was coined in 1907 by Frank Gelett Burgess, who dubbed a 'lovely' appearing in a comic book-jacket designed by him: 'Miss Blinda Blurb'. (Mencken, Sup I.) Perh it is a blend of 'bloody absurd', Burgess knowing colloquial blurt is echoic. EW adduces the Sc blirt, a sudden weeping.

blush, v hence n: ME bluschen, to be (or turn or shine) red: OE blyscan, to shine, esp red, to be red, from blyscā, a flame, a torch (clearly akin to BLAZE), and āblyscan (int a-), to blush: cf ON blys, a torch. Cf also:

bluster, v hence n: prob from LG blustern, (of weather) to storm, hence to bluster: ult akin to BLAZE and to the 2nd BLOW.

'bo': see BEAU.

boa (constrictor). The huge A snake derives from L boa, a water snake, answering to Gr hudra (E HYDRA). Perh L boa comes from the idea of cattle (boves, ML boves) coming to drink at stream or pool. (Cf BOVINE.)

boar: ? ME bor, which has the var bar: OE bār, akin to OHG bēr, G dial bār, syn with MHG eber (G Eber), OHG ebur, and OS evur: since the dissyllabic form corresponds to L aper and since OE bār is syn with OE eofor (cf the basic meaning of ON iðforr, a prince), the Gmc s is app, as Walshe proposes, ebhuras*, presumably with r ebhur-; the IE r is perh abher-, var ebher-*.

board (1), n (plank) hence v: ME-OE bord, akin to ON borth, plank, and Go fötubaird, footstool, also to OE bred, OHG-MHG bret (G Brett), a board or plank: basic idea, 'to cut' (Webster).

board (2), n (side of ship; border) hence v: OE bord, border, akin to OFris (and OS) bord and OHG bort (G Bord) and ON barth, borth: basic idea 'something that projects' (Webster); like Walshe, however, I think that (1) and (2) are cognates.

boast, v hence n: ME bosten or boosten (n bost or boost): perh akin to OHG bōst, worthless, slanderous (MHG boese; G böse, evil), itself o.o.o.

boat, n hence v: ME boot, var bat: OE bāt, akin to ON beit, beitr and G Boot (modern only). Perh OE bāt comes from ON beit(r), itself from ON bita, to split (up): cf, sem, 'dug-out' (boat).—For boatswain, see SWAIN, para 2.

bob, n (bunch or cluster, esp if pendent, as in bobtail; knob; ball of a pendulum; short, jerky motion) and v (to strike severely; then, strike lightly; to move (vt, vi) shortly and jerkily): ME bob, bobbe, bunch, and boben, bobben, to strike: prob echoic, but just possibly C: cf Ga bad, Br bod, tuft, bunch, cluster. 'To bob' has freq bobble.

bob (sl for a shilling). See ROBERT, para 2, s.f. bobbin: EF-F bobine, from bobiner, to wind, itself o.o.o., but prob echoic (see, e.g., B & W at bobard)—cf the 1st BOB.

bobble. See the 1st BOB, s.f.

bobby, a policeman. See ROBERT, para 2.

bobolink; bobwhite: Bob Lincoln; Bob White: from the bird-calls or -notes.

bock: F bock: G Bockbier: Bavarian Etmbock: G Einbecker, for einbecker Bier, beer made at Einbeck in Germany. (Walshe.)

bode, to announce or foretell, (later) to portend (ill), hence the now obs n bode, whence the adj bodiful (-ful); forebode, whence adj and n foreboding.

1. 'To bode' derives, via ME bodien, from OE bodian, to announce, from boda, a messenger, itself from the same r as bēodan, to command (cf, therefore, bid); OE bodian is akin to OFris bodia, to summon.

2. 'To forebode' = to bode, tell or announce, fore, in advance.

bodice; bodily. See BODY.

bodkin: ME boydekyn, boidekin, boitequin, a dagger: o.o.o. EW proposes AF boitekin*, dim of F bolte (earlier boiste), a box, and, sem, compares TWEEZERS; no less tentatively I suggest that the first element (the -kin is prob dim) comes from IE r bhod-, var bhed-, issuing in L as fod-, as in fodere, to dig, and in C as bod-* (with var bed-*), as in W bedd, a tomb, and several F dial terms in bod- (Malvezin); there are Sl cognates, both ancient and modern.

Embodiment = embody + -ment; embody (with var imbody) = em-, for en-, in + body. Bodily, adj hence adv, represents body + -ly; bodice, orig 'corset', is merely a graphic and phon alteration of bodies, much as the OF, whence E, corset lit means 'little body'. The v body derives from the n: and the n, through ME bodi, derives from OE bodig, akin to OHG botah, perh akin to OHG botahha (G Bottich), tub, vat, cask: sem cf 'tubby' persons. In anybody, nobody, somebody we see the 'person' sense of body: cf the combatant Services' use of bodies.

Boer. See BOOR.

bog, n hence v and the adj boggy: Ga and Ir bog, damp, miry, OIr boc (cf bocaim. I soak), Ir bogach, Ga bogalach, bogainn, a bog or marsh: orig, prob echoic.

bogey (or bogy), bogle, goblin, bugbear; boggle. 'To boggle', start or shy in alarm, (hence) to hesitate, derives from boggle, var of bogle, app the dim of bog (var of bug, ME bugge, a bugbear), whence also bog(e)y: and bug, whence bugbear (see BEAR, n), has cognates in G and is ult akin to PUCK.

bogle: var of prec.—bogie, in transport, is an E dial word, o.o.o.

bogle. See BOGEY.

bogus, adj hence n: ? short, as Webster proposes, for dial (SW England) tankarabogus, var tantarabogus, a goblin, where -bogus clearly refers to bog, or bog(e)y, a goblin, and the first elements are fanciful; bog or bog(e)y has perh been influenced by hocus-pocus.

bogy. See BOGEY.

bohemian, n hence adj: Bohemian, a native of Bohemia, fig a romantic land (picturesque scenery, gypsies): the sense '(poor and) unconventional artist or writer' springs from the tremendous success of Henry Murger's stories entitled Scènes de la vie de Bohème, 1849, and of the play, La vie de Bohème, 1851. Bohemia, G Böhmen, derives from L Boii, a C people that emigrated, c400 B.C., from Gaul.

boil, v hence n ('come to the boil') and agential boiler and vn boiling: ME boilen: OF-MF boillir (EF-F bouillir): L bullire, var of bullāre, from bullā, a bubble: cf 'ebullition'. A boil or inflamed swelling has been influenced by boil; it derives from the obs syn bile, OE byl, itself akin to L bullā.

2. The cpd parboil, ME parboilen, comes from OF parboillir, itself from LL perbullire, to boil well (per- being here an int).

boisterous: ME boistous, prob influenced by BLUSTER (orig, to wander blindly): Webster aptly compares the MD adj bijster, running wild: the MD varr bister, bestier do rather suggest an origin at least partly echoic.

bold, whence (suffix -ness) boldness: ME bold, earlier bald: OE bald, beald, akin to OHG (and OS) bald and ON ballr, and to Go balthei, boldness, and balthaba, boldly; perh ult to the v BLOW; Feist proposes an IE etymon balths*, swollen.

bole (1), tree-trunk, came into ME from ON bolr, akin to MHG and MLG bole (G Bohle), a plank. Kluge proposes a Frankish bolo-*; Holt-hausen a kinship with the n BOWL. Hence ME bolroysche, bulrysche, whence E bulrush (rush, a plant).

bole (2), friable clay: L bōlus, clay, lump of clay, lump: Gr bolos, a clod (i.e., lump) of earth, perh akin to L bullā, a bubble. The med bolus is the L word bōlus.

bolero, short jacket, derives from the Sp dance named bolero, itself app from bola, a ball: f.a.e., BOWL, a ball.

boloney, occ baloney: Bologna sausage, all sausages being gastronomic inferiors.

bolster: OE bolster, akin to OHG bolstar, MHG (and G) polster, ON bólstr: cf OHG belgan, to swell (see BELLY).

bolt (1), a shaft or arrow: OE bolt, akin to ON bolti, OHG and MHG bolz, MLG bolte, G Bolzen. The Gmc words come perh from L catapulta, influenced by MHG boln, to throw. (Walshe.) Hence 'to bolt', orig to start forth like a bolt or arrow.

bolt (2), to sift: ME boulten, bulten: MF-OF buleter (MF-F bluter): MD biutelen, rather than MHG biuteln, to sift—perh cf G Beutel, MHG biutel, OHG būtil, a bag, a purse, hence a bolting-cloth (B & W), known, tech, as a boultel, from OF buletel.

bolus. See the 2nd BOLE.

bomb, n hence v (whence bomber); bombard, n and v; bombardier, bombardment.

'To bombard' comes from EF-F bombarder, itself from MF-F bombarde, a heavy projectile-firer, whence the obs E n bombard; bombardier is adopted from late MF-F (bombarder + agential -ier); bombardment (suffix -ment) merely adapts F bombardement (from bombarder); and the E n bomb represents EF-F bombe, from It bomba, bombst ell, from L bombus, a dull, heavy noise, from Gr bombos, itself echoic: cf echoic BOOM.

bombast, whence bombastic; bombazine (or -sine); beige.

1. Bombast comes from MF bombace, cotton, hence padding: LL bombāc-, o/s of bombāx, a fusion (? confusion) of LL bambāx, cotton, and post-Classical bombyx, silk, silkworm, themselves from Gr bambax, cotton, and bombux, silk worm or cocoon, hence silk, both perh from Per—cf Pahlavi pambak, cotton (Webster).

2. Bombasine, -zine=MF-F bombasin, either from It bambagia, modification of It bambagia, cotton, from LL bambax, or, more prob, from LL bombasinum, alteration of bombycinum, a fabric of cotton or of silk, orig the neu s of bombycinus, adj of L bombyx (as above).

3. Beige, n hence adj, is adopted from MF-F, which, perh by aphesis, takes it from It bambagia (as in para 2); EW, more prob, proposes beige, F dial form of OF-EF bis (f bise), yellowish grey, and compares It bigio, grey; bis is o.o.o.

bon, F adj (f bonne), as in bon mot (cf MOTTO) and bon vivant (cf VIVACIOUS), and, disguised, in debonair (OF de bon aire, of good stock)=the L bonus (f bona), good: cf BONNY.

bonanza: Sp, fair weather, hence prosperity: from bono, good, early form of bueno: f.a.e., BONNY.

bonbon: F: nursery redup of bon.

bond, a band or fastening: see BAND, last para.

bondage: ML bondagium (with -agium, cf the suffix -age): ME bond(e), a serf: OE bonda, a servant, orig a householder, esp a husband: ON bōndi, for biandi, lit 'a person dwelling', from ON būa, to dwell.

bondsman, bondswoman. See BAND, last para.

bone, n hence v; bonfire.

A bonfire was orig a fire of bones, ME bonefire: and bone derives, via ME bon, ban (also bane), from OE bān, akin to OFris (and OS) bēn, OHG bein, bone, MHG bein, bone, leg, G Bein, leg, ON bein, bone, leg. Adj: bony, for boney.

bonnet: ME, from MF, bonet, var bonnet: late ML boneta, bonetta, bonet(tum): by aphesis, from ML abonnis, a cap, o.o.o. but perh Gmc (B & W). bonny; bonus.

Bonny derives, prob influenced by joly (jolly), from ME bonie, itself from F bon, f bonne, from L bonus, good, which, sense-adapted, becomes the commercial E bonus: and L bonus is app for duenus* (IE dwenos*), the r being duen-, Gr dun- (as in dunamis, power): basic idea, 'health, energy, strength'.

bony. See BONE, s.f.

boob is short for booby, from Sp bobo, stupid, itself from L balbus (adj), stammering, the stammerer appearing stupid: and balbus is echoic (cf BARBARIAN).

boodle; caboodle. The latter prob=either kit and boodle (Webster) or int prefix ker-+boodle; boodle itself appears to represent either MD-D boedel, property, or MD budel, ED buydel, D buidel, MLG büdel, a purse, the latter being, sem, the more likely.

boom (1), a long pole: see BEAM, para 2.

boom (2), echoic v hence n, including the stock-market sense: cf ME bommen, to hum; the noise has become deeper.

boomerang, n hence v, is an Australian Aboriginal word.

boon, adj: F bon: L bonus, good: f.a.e., BONNY.

boon, n: ME bone: ON bōn, a petition: a petition granted constitutes a favour or advantage, a sense influenced—cf prec—by F bon, good.

boor, boorish; Boer; the Bowery.

Boor, whence boorish, comes from D boer, a farmer, hence a country lout, for earlier geboer, cf LG gebur, OHG gibūro, OE gebūr, a countryman, from ge-, together+būr, a dwelling (cf the 2nd BOWER). The D farmers in SAfr, hence all Dutchmen there, became known as Boers. The Bowery district of New York City represents D bouwerij, from bouwer, farmer, akin to boer.

boost, v hence n and the agent booster: Scots dial boost, to purposefully drive or push, itself o.o.o., but very prob echoic.

boot (1) amends, remedy, profit, whence bootless: ME bot or bote: OE bōt, akin to OFris bōte, OS and Go bōta, OHG buoza, MHG buoze, G Busse: akin to BETTER.

boot (2), footwear: ME bote: OF bote (F botte): o.o.o., but prob formed from the same r as F bot—in pied bot, a club-foot, akin to bot, a toad, a squat creature—in the sense 'heavy shoe or boot' (B & W). Bootee is diminutive: cf the suffix -ee.

2. A bootlegger is the agent of 'to bootleg', orig to carry on the person, usu in a bootleg, liquor that is illicit.

bootlegger. See prec, s.f.

bootless. See the 1st BOOT.

booty; freebooter.

1. Booty comes from MF-F butin, plunder, from MF-F butiner, to take as plunder: of LG origin, cf MD (and MLG) buten, to take booty, and esp MLG bute, MHG biute, MD buyt, D buit, booty, akin to ON byte; ME bote, E BOOT, profit, has intervened.

2. Freebooter=D vrijbuter, whence also the G Freibeuter: vrij, free+buit, booty+agential -er.

3. Spaniards reshaped E freebooter to filibustero, which became filibustero, which Englishmen turned into filibuster, whence the AE 'to filibuster'.

booze or bouse, v hence n and boozier, boozy: ME bousen: MD bousen, busen, to drink intoxicants, akin to MLG busen, to carouse: ult akin to BOAST.

bora. See BOREAL.

borax, adj boracic. See the element boro-.

bordel. See BROTHEL.

border, n hence v (whence borderer): ME, from MF-F bordure—from OF-F border, to border or edge—from OF-F bord, a border or edge: f.a.e., the 2nd BOARD.

bore (1), pt of 'to BEAR'.

bore (2), auger, n hence v; whence boredom.

The tool derives from OE bor, whence both bora, a hole, orig one made by boring, the source of E bore, including finally the sense 'ennui' (cf the F Quelle scie!), now usu expressed by boredom; 'he who bores' derives rather from OE bor. 'To bore' has, in all its senses, passed through ME borien from OE borian, from OE bor, the tool. Akin are, e.g., ON bora, a hole made by boring, and the vv ON bora, OHG borōn (G bohren), to pierce, esp with a bore or auger, themselves akin to L forāre (s for-), to bore, and Gr pharan (s phar-), to plough, lit to make a long hole in the earth; IE r, bhar-, varr bher- and bhor-*, to pierce. Cf the metathetic Arm brem, I hollow or dig.

bore (3), a tidal wave: ON bāra, akin to MD bāre: prob source, ON bera (cf MD baren, beren), to carry, q.v. at 'to BEAR'.

boreal, boreān, hyperboreal, -boreān; Boreas, bora.

Boreān and Hyperboreān are varr of E boreal (L boreālis) and Hyperboreal, adj and n (L hyperboreus, Gr huperboreos: ? 'beyond'—cf prefix hyper—'the mountains'), Hyperboreans being mythical inhabitants of the extreme north. The base is L, from Gr, Boreās, God of the North Wind, the North Wind itself, whence It borea, with dial var bora, a strong wind blowing over the N Adriatic; Gr boreās perh means 'wind from the mountains', cf the OSI gora and Skt girls, mountain. (Hofmann.)

borough, burgh, burg, burgess, burgher, burgomaster; bourgeois; burrow; (in place-names) -bury, and 'to bury'; burglar.

1. Borough derives, through ME burgh (whence E burgh, whence, in turn, burgher; perh, however, from D) or burw or boru, from OE burh or burg (whence E burg), akin to OFris burg, a castle—OHG burg, fortified place, esp a citadel, hence a city or town, MHG burc, G Burg, a castle—Go baürgs, city—ON borg, wall, hence fortified place or castle: prob akin to OE beorgan, to shelter, defend, preserve, cf OHG bergan, G bergen, to bring to safety; Gmc s, berg-, IE s bherg- (Walshe).

2. Whereas burgomaster prob comes from D burgemeester, 'city master' (cf OFris burga-māstere and G Bürgermeister and Bürgermeister), burgess comes, through ME burgeis, from OF-MF burgeis, itself from OF-MF burc, either from MHG burc, as above, or from ML burgus, itself from OHG burg. OF-MF burc became EF (and F) bourg, whence the adj (hence n) bourgeois, whence bourgeoisie, both adopted by E.

3. A burrow or animal's made hole in the ground—whence 'to burrow'—was prob, orig, a var of borough, and is certainly akin to it.

4. Bury, a manor (house), derives from OE byrig (dat of burh); it survives only in place-names, whether independently in Bury or in cpds, as in Canterbury and Shrewsbury.

5. 'To bury' derives, through ME burien or berien, from OE byrgan, akin to OE beorgan, to shelter or preserve (para 1, s.f.). The ME forms had derivatives buryel, beriel: whence burial.

6. The ML burgus, a fortified place (esp town)—see para 2—has a derivative agent burgātor, with varr burglātor, burgulātor, with -l- perh suggested (Webster) by that of L latrō, a thief: burgulātor looks suspiciously like a var of burgilātor*, for burgilātrō*, a city thief: a burglar is an essentially urban malefactor. Burgle is a b/f; burglary merely adds n-suffix -y.

7. Cf also HARBO(U)R and:

borrow: ME borwen: OE borgian, from borh or borg, a pledge: akin to OFris borgia (var burgia), OHG borgēn (orig 'to spare', later 'to borrow'), G borgen, to borrow or to lend, ON borga, to stand surety: also to OE beorgan, to protect, to preserve, and G bergen, to stand surety: cf, therefore, BOROUGH. The n borrow derives from OE borh, borg.

bosage. See BUSH, para 1.

bosh (coll), nonsense: adopted from Tu bosh empty, useless, worthless.

bosky. See BUSH, para 1.

bosom, whence the adj bosomy: OE bōsm: akin to OFris bōsem, OS bōsm, OHG buosam, MHG buosem, G Busen: o.o.o., but prob (Webster) cf Skt bhastrā, bellows, and bhasman, blowing.

boss (1), protuberance; emboss.

'To emboss' comes from OF embocer: em-, for en-, in(to)+bocer (var bocier), whence, via ME bocien, the E 'to boss' or ornament with bosses: and bocier, bocer derives from OF boce, itself of Gmc origin—cf OHG bōzan, MHG bōzen, to knock, strike—boss (ME bose, earlier boce) being ult akin to BEAT.

boss (2), overseer, master, hence 'to boss': D baas, master, MD baes, uncle, prob akin to OHG basa, aunt, MHG-G bāse, female cousin.

bosun. See SWAIN, para 2.

botanic(al), botanist, botanize, botany.

Botanical merely elaborates, with suffix -al, the adj botanic, from the EF-F adj botanique, itself—via LL botanicus—from Gr botanikos, concerning plants, from botanē, a herb, a plant, (orig) pasture, from boskein, to graze. Botanist (-ist) comes from late EF-F botaniste, 'to botanize' from F botaniser. Botany is usu said to come from the EF-F n botanique (Webster), from Gr botanikē, prop the f of the adj botanikos, or (OED) from the E botanic, but perh it rather comes—prob via F botanie* (cf the C16 botanomantie, divination with plants)—from LGr botania, herbs (collectively).

botch, to mend (roughly), hence to bungle, whence the n botch, a bungling: ME bocchen, app from MD botsen, butsen, to mend, to patch: ? orig echoic.

both: ME bothe, earlier bathe: ON bāthir (where -ir is a suffix or other mdfn): cf OE bā, Go bai, and OHG bēde, OHG-G beide OFris bēthe OS bēthia; cf also the 2nd syllable of L ambō Gr amphō, Skt ubhā.

bother See PUT, para 2.

bottle, n hence v; butler—butt, a cask—buttery.

1. Bottle passes through ME botel, earlier botelle, from OF-F bouteille, from buticula, var of popular Early ML butticula, dim of LL buttis, vase, cask, prob of C origin, r but-, var of bot-, swollen, round, whence EF botte, a cask (Malvezin), and Ga buideal, OIr buidel, cask. 'To bottle' was perh prompted by OF bouteiller.

2. LL buttis yields also Prov bota, var bouto, whence EF (and F) botte, var boute, cask, whence E butt, a (large) cask. Buttis has derivative ML adj buttarius, set in charge of the wine-vessels, whence (?) botaria, a place for casks, whence MF boterie, a place for bottles, whence ME botery, E buttery, a store-room for liquors, hence for provisions.

3. OF bouteille has derivative OF-EF agent botillier (later bouteillier), bottle- (or cup-) bearer, whence ME boteler, later buteler, wine-servant, whence E butler. Butlery descends from OF-F bouteillerie, from bouteille.

bottom, bottomless, bottomry. See the 1st FOUND, para 6.

botulism. See element botuli-.

boudoir: F: from MF-F bouder (to pout), expressive of the grimace: a room to which a woman can retire, not only to pout. Perh ult akin to pout (p for b, t for d).

bough: ME bogh: OE bōg, bōh, akin to ON bōgr, shoulder, (hence) bow of ship—OHG buog, MHG buoc, G Bug—Skt bāhu, arm; IE r, ? bhagh-, var bhogh-. Cf the 2nd BOW.

bought. See BUY.

boulder: of Scan origin: cf Sw bullersten, a large (lit, noisy) stone in a stream, and bultra, to roar (Nor buldra, Da buldre); cf Nor bulder, a rumble, a roar: clearly echoic.

boulevard. See BULWARK.

boultel. See the 2nd BOLT, s.f.

bourne, v hence n: ME bunsen, perh akin to LG bunsen, D bonzen, themselves possibly akin to OF-F bondir, to leap, cf the 4th BOUND.

bound (1), adj: 'prepared, ready' (obs), 'intending to go, going', as in 'homeward-bound': pp of ME bounen, to prepare, from boun, ready, from ON būinn, pp of būa, to dwell (cf BOWER, room).

bound (2), adj: 'compelled; morally obliged': pp of bind, to tie.

bound (3), n: 'landmark; limit, boundary', hence 'to bound, set limits to': ME bounde or burne: OF-MF bonde or bone, bonne, or bodne: ML bodina, butina, a territorial boundary, perh of C origin (r but-*).

bound (4), to leap suddenly, hence the n: OF-F bondir, to rebound, then simply to leap, orig to resound: VL bombitare*, to hum, from L bombus, a buzzing: f.a.e., BOMB. The social bounder is to be compared with 'jumped-up' and bounce, impudence.

boundary: a blend of 3rd BOUND + ML bonnārium (s bon- + euphonic -n- + -arium), a well-defined piece of land; with the E n-suffix -ary substituted for L -arium.

bounder (socially). See the 4th BOUND, s.f.

bounteous, bountiful, bounty.

Whereas bountiful=bounty-full, bounteous derives from ME bountevous, which tacks -ous to altered bontive, f of OF-MF bonif, the adj of bonté, whence E bounty; bonté represents bonitātem, the acc of bonitās, itself an -itās (E -ity) derivative from bonus, good: cf BONNY.

bouquet, nosegay, hence its smell, hence the smell of wine: F: OF-MF boschet, dim (-et) of bois, a wood, from ML boscus: f.a.e., BUSH.

bourbon is elliptical for Bourbon whisky, manufactured orig in Bourbon County, Kentucky: the Bourbon dynasty of France: a seignior (and its castle) in central France: Borvon (var Bormon), God of Warm Springs, a sort of Gaulish Apollo: C borvo*, r borv-, var of berv-, to be hot (cf L feruere, ML fervere, s ferv-), hence boiling, hence bubbling, as hot springs do.

brant. See BRAND, para 3.

brash, boldly impudent, impudently tactless, is usu explained as a sense-development from brash, (of timber) brittle, lifeless, itself app from brash, debris, app from OF-F brèche, a breach: all very 'iffy'. Perh it is rather a blend, either of bold + rash, or of brassy + rash.

brasier. See the 2nd BRAZE.

brass, n hence adj and v; braze; brazen.

'To braze', make or cover or adorn with brass, drives from OE braesian, from braes, brass, whence, via ME bras (var bres), the E brass: f.a.e., FERROUS. The adj is brassy (-y). Brazen, adj, derives, via ME brasen, from OE braesen, adj of braes, brass; 'to brazen', usu brazen (it) out, derives from the adj brazen, perh influenced by the derivative sense 'impudent' of brassy. A brazier, or worker in brass, derives from ME brasiere, from ME bras.

brassard; brassière (whence the sl bra, already by 1953 become commercial j).

Brassard, arm badge, derives from brassard, brassart, armour for upper arm: EF-F brassard, from bras, arm, from L brachium: f.a.e., BRACE. Brassière is adopted from MF-F, where orig it meant some kind of arm-guard, the modern senses (C16 onwards) being prob euphemistic. Cf the suffixes -ard and -ier.

brat, child (usu pej): from ME (now—except in dial—obs) brat, a coarse garment: OE bratt, a covering, e.g. mantle, of C origin: cf OIr brat(t), cloth, cloak, Ga brat, a covering, mantle, W brat, clout, rag, Manx breid, cloak: OC brattos*, ? var brettos*. The sem transition is afforded by child's clout or perh bib.

bravado. See:

brave, adj hence n and v; bravery; bravado; bravo!; bravura; braw.

1. Bravado is a well-meant E attempt at Sp: but the Sp word happens to be bravada (now -ata), a boast; bravura, however, happens to be a mere sense-adaptation (cf the C16 Sc bravetie, display, elegance) of It bravura, high spirit; bravo, a daring villain, hence a hired assassin, is likewise It, as also is bravo!, m, the f usu being brava!—cf the E good girl! The It bravo, wild, savage, fierce, (later) daring, became MF-F brave, adopted by E, whence the n; 'to brave' comes from EF-F braver, from F brave; cf bravery from EF braverie from F brave. The It adj bravo is perh a conflated reshaping of L barbarus, q.v. at BARBARIAN, but Prati suggests that it rather comes from L prāuus, ML prāvus, crooked (Skt pravas, pārvas), crooked, hence perverse, vicious.

2. Braw, fine, splendid, derives from OSc brawf, brave, app from MF-F brave. Cf the OProv brau, (of bulls) wild, savage, occurring in late ML as brāvis, a young ox or bull.

braw. See prec para.

brawl, v, hence n and agent brawler, pa and vn brawling: ME braulen, to quarrel (noisily), brallen, to weep noisily, make a noise: perh cf LG brallen, D brallen, to boast, but rather cf OProv braulhar, to brawl, from the r present in BRAY (1).

brawn: OF braon, fleshy part, muscle, piece of flesh, fat of thigh, of Gmc origin: cf OHG brāto, tender meat, flesh, ON brāth, flesh, raw meat, MHG brāte and G Braten, a roast. Adj: brawny.

bray (1), to utter a cry like an ass's, loud and harsh: ME brayen: OF-MF braire, to cry aloud (F, to bray), perh of C origin: cf Ga braigh, to crackle, brag (and braghadh), noise, explosion, OIr braigim, I break wind, and possibly Cor begy, to bray: prob akin to BRAG and ult to L fragor (s frag-), a crashing noise, by denasalization from frangere, to break: IE r, ? brag(h)*. Therefore akin, ult, to:

bray (2), to pound, to grind or rub small: ME brayen: MF breier (F broyer), from West G brekan* (cf OE brecan): f.a.e., BREAK. Cf prec.

braze (1), to hard-solder: F braser, var braiser, from OF-F braise (at first written breze), embers, live coals: PGmc brasa*, preserved in Sw brasa, fire, burning log—cf OProv brasa and early It brascia, bracia, bragia, It brace. Derivatives: 'to braise', now only in cookery, from OF-F braiser; braiser or brazier, from OF-F brasier.

2. OF-F braise, live coals, has OF-MF derivative brestil (EF-F brésil), whence, or from cognate Port and Sp brasil, the ME brasil, whence E brazil, the hard red wood usu called brazilwood; hence, ult, Brazil. (See P⁴.)

braze (2); brazen. See BRASS.

brazier. See BRASS, s.f., and 1st BRAZE, s.f.

brazil; Brazil. See the 1st BRAZE, para 2.

bread: OE brēad; akin to OFris brād, OS brōd, OHG-MHG brōt, G Brot, MD brot or broot, D brood, ON brauth (cf BROTH); cf also Gr broutos, brutos (or -on), fermented liquor, beer; the basic idea is that of fermentation—cf L feruere (ML servēre), to seethe (see FERVENT) and the E BREW.

breadth. See BROAD, para 2.

break, v, hence n and also breaker (-er), break-age (-age); pt broke, pp broken;—breach, n hence v.

1. The n break, ME brek, breke, derives from ME breken, whence 'to break', from OE brecan, akin to OFris breka, OHG brehhan, MHG (and G) brechen, OS brecan, brekan, Go brikan, MD (and D) breken; cf the nasalized L frangere, pt frēgi, and the Skt element -bhraj-, breaking forth: IE r, prob bhreg(h)-*, app echoic. Cf BRICK and perh BROOK.

2. A breach comes, through ME breche, from OF-MF breche (F brèche), itself from OHG brecha, a fracture—cf the syn OE brice, bryce, from the pres tense of brecan.

bream, a fish: ME brem, breme: OF-MF bresme (F brême), var of OF braisme: Frankish brahsima*—cf OHG brahsema, OS bressema, MD brasem (also D), bresse, breesem.

breast, n hence v: ME brēst, earlier breost: OE brēost, intimately akin to OS brēost, brīost, OFris brīdst, ON brīöst, less closely to OHG-G brust and Go brusts (pl). The varr OFris borst, burst, and MD borst (also D), burst, berst, barst, could easily mislead: cf rather (with Webster) the MHG brüstern, to swell, and the OIr bru, belly, also OIr briunne, the chest, EIr and Ga brollach, bosom, chest, and Br bruch, brusk, bresk, the chest: IE s, bhreus-, to swell (Walshe), a merely phonetic extension of bhrew-. Cf BRISKET.

'To breathe' derives from ME brethen, from the ME n breth, earlier breath, from OE bræth, brēth, breath, odour, akin to OHG brādam, vapour, breath, MHG brādem, G Brodem (fumes): comparison with OE æthm, OHG ātam, atum vapour (G Atem), and with Gr atmos, vapour, suggests (EW) that br- is the vestige of a lost prefix (? int ber-*); for æthm, etc., cf the atmo- of ATMOSPHERE. Cf also BREED.

bred. See BREED.

brech, breches.

The former is partly a b/f from the latter: the latter derives, through ME brech, from OE brēc, breches, the pl of brōc, brech, breches, akin to OFris brōk, OHG bruoh, MHG bruoch, G Bruch, ON brók: cf also L (from Gaul) brāca, sing brāca.

breed, pt and pp bred; brood.

'A breed' derives from 'to breed': ME breden: OE brēdan, to nourish (and cherish), to keep warm, akin to OHG bruotēn, G brüten, and OE brōd, ME brod, E brood (whence 'to brood'), akin to MHG bruot, G Brut, akin to G bruchen, to scald, orig 'to hatch out by warmth' (Walshe). The basic idea is 'a warming', prob orig by breathing upon—certainly cf BREATH and 1st BROIL.

breeze, n hence v: F brise (C16 onwards), perh an expressive alteration of OF-F bise, from Frankish bīsa*—cf OHG bīsa, OProv bīza: prob echoic, cf L susurrus.

brēt. See BRAND, para 3.

brer; brethren. See FRATER, para 7 (brer) and heading.

Breton. See BRITISH.

breve, brevet, breviary, brevity. See BRIEF, paras 1 (breve only) and 2.

brew, v hence n; brewery; brewster, a -ster var of brewer (brew, v+-er).

A brewery represents brew, v+-ery: and 'to brew' passes through ME brewen from OE brēowan, akin to OFris brīuwa, OHG brīuwan, MHG brūwen, G brauen, ON brugga; also to the OFris n broute and to the -frū- of L defrūtum, must boiled down: IE r, bhrū-*. (Walshe.) Cf BROTH and BREAD, the basic idea being 'fermentation'.

briar. See BRIER.

bribe, n hence v; bribery.

The ME brybery, roguery, whence E bribery, is akin to MF brimberie, beggary (brimber, to beg+-erie, E -ery), from MF brimbe, a nasalized var of MF-F bribe, a worthless trifle, hence a scrap one begs; brimbe, or bribe, is o.o.o., but prob echoic.

brick, n hence v: OF-F brique: MD bricke, a brick—akin to E BREAK.

The adj bridal=bride+adj suffix -al; the n bridal (ME bridale, brudale: OE brȳdealo) is lit 'bride-ale', served at the marriage feast. The OE brȳd, whence E bride, is akin to OFris breid, OHG-MHG brūt, G Braut, ON brúthr—and Go brúths, daughter-in-law; IE r,? brūd-*. For bride-groom, see HOMO, para 14.

bridge, n hence v: ME brig(ge) or brug(ge): OE brycg or bricg, akin to OFris bregge (occ brigge), OS bruggia, OHG brucca or brūcka, MHG brücke, G Brücke, bridge, ON bryggia, pier, app an extension of brū, bridge (Da bro), Gaul brīva, bridge. Webster poses the basic meaning as 'beam'; Walshe says, 'The original meaning was apparently "brow" (from the shape). Cf Braue' (OHG brāwa, cf ON bra, E BROW) and he cites an OB word signifying both 'bridge' and 'brow': whereas the Gmc s is app brug-, the Gmc r—as the ON words tend to show—is bru-*, with 'brow' the more likely sense. Cf Bristol, OE bryggstōw or Bricgstōw, 'Bridge Place'.

Bridget. See BRIGADE, para 2.

bridle. See BRAID, para 3.

brief, adj and n; breve, brevet, breviary, brevity; —abbreviate (sep entry), abridge (sep).

1. The n breve comes, legal from ML breve, a summary, a letter, musical from It breve, other senses from F brève, all from L breve, neu of breuis (ML brevis, neu breve), short; ML breve, letter (prob suggested by LL breuis, a summary), became OF-MF, whence ME, bréf, whence—influenced by the E adj—the E n brief. The adj brief derives, prob via ME bréf, from OF-MF brief (var of bréf), from ML breuis, L breuis, s breu-, akin to the syn Gr brakhus, s brakh-.

brier, occ briar, is a sense-adapted derivative from OF-F bruyère, heather, heath (F -ère corresponding to L -aria, cf the suffix -arium): VL brucāria*: VL brūcus, heather: C brūko*, r bruk-* or bruc-, perh a var of brac- or brec-*, to break: cf Elr fræch, frōech, bristles, Ga fraoch, heath, heather, W grug, heath, Br brug, bruig, heath, heather, Cor grig, heather, Manx freouch, heath. Cf BRISTLE and BRUSH, also BRISK and BRUSQUE. But brier, thornbush, comes from OE brēr or brǣr, perh independent of brier, the tree (or white) heath, from which pipes are made.

brig. See para 3 of:

brigade, brigadier; brigand, brigandage; brigantine; brigue.

1. Brigadier, adopted from EF-F, is an agent from MF-F brigade (cf the suffix -ade), likewise adopted by E: from It brigata, from brigare, to quarrel or fight, from briga, strife, whence MF-F, hence obs E, brigue, quarrel, intrigue: It briga is of C origin—cf Olr brig, Ga brigh, substance, importance, power, W bri, authority, Br bri, (formerly) dignity, (now) respect, Manx bree, substance, importance. The C r is brig-, var of berg-, an eminence, hence eminence (Malvezin), the OC n being briga* or, in cpds, brigo-*.

2. It brigare, to fight, has presp brigante, which, as n, became MF-F brigand, duly adopted by E, as was the late MF-F derivative brigandage. Cf the Br and W brigant, a robber, and prob of the Brigantes, a powerful tribe or people of ancient Ireland and N Britain, and Brigid, Brigit (whence Bridget), their patron goddess, akin to Skt brhātī, lofty, hence powerful.

3. The It n brigante has a dim derivative brigantina, orig a pirate ship, whence MF-F brigantine, whence F and E brigantine, often abbr as brig.

bright, brighten, brightness.

Whereas 'to brighten'=bright+v suffix -en, brightness (-ness) derives from the OE beorhtnes, from OE beorht, var bryht, whence, via ME briht, comes E bright: cf OHG bēraht, MHG birht, OS berht, Go bairhts, ON bjartr, with cognates in C and Sl; IE r, bhrek-*, basic idea 'to become white (and bright)': cf Skt bhrāśatē, it shines. (Walshe.) Cf BRICH.

brigue. See brigade.

brilliance (suffix -ce) derives from the adj brilliant, from F brillant, presp (whence the F n brillant, whence the E n brilliant) of briller, to sparkle or shine: It brillare, o.o.o., but (B & W) prob from L beryllus (cf BERYL): to shine like a beryl, although (Prati) it may simply be, like It prillare, imitative.

brim, edge, brink, hence v (esp brim over): ME brim, earlier brimme, akin to MHG brem (G Brame) and ON barmr; brim could be a shortened metathesis of barmr.

brimstone. See ADDENDA TO DICTIONARY.

brindled, whence brindle, is a dim of brinded, ME brended, streaked: brended is a form of branded—see BRAND.

brine, whence the adj briny (for briney), derives from OE brȳne, akin to MD brīne and one or two Sl and Skt words: basic idea, 'bitter' (?).

bring, pt and pa brought: ME bringen: OE bringan, akin to OFris bringa, varr brenga, branga, OS bringian, OHG bringan, MHG (and G) bringen, Go briggan (pron bringan): perh cf W 'he-brwng', to bring, and Cor 'hebrency (-ky)' or hembryncy (-ky), to lead.

brink, edge (esp at top): ME brink or brenk, app of Scan origin, akin to MD brinc, MLG brink, brim, shore: a nasalization of OGmc brik-, var of brek-, to BREAK—cf ON brekka, a slope, and Go brikan, to break.

briny. See BRINE.

brisk, whence brisken and briskness: perh a thinning of brusque, q.v. at para 2.

brisket: ME brusket, perh influenced by the Da syn bryske: ult akin to BREAST.

bristle, n hence v: ME brustel (var brostle), app a dim (-el, -le) and metathesis of OE byrst, akin to OHG burst, MHG borst, G Borste, OS bursta, ON burst—and Skt bhr̥stis, point, edge. Cf BROOM and BUR.

Bristol. See BRIDGE, s.f. Bristol milk, a fine sherry, was so named because, as smooth as milk, it was—and is—landed in Bristol.

Britain, Britannia, Britannic; British; Briton; Brythonic; Brittany, Breton.

Britannic comes from L Britannicus, the adj of Britannia, the Roman name for Britain; Britain comes from ME Bretayne (or -eyne), from OF Bretaigne, whence also Brittany—cf Breoton (or -en), Bryten, from an OGmc Brituna*. British derives from OE Brettisc or Bryttisc, from Bret, usu in the pl Brettas or Bryttas, Britons; Briton, from OF Breton—whence obviously F Breton—from L Brittōn-, o/s of L Brittō (var Brītō), a Briton. The transference of the F name for Britany and Bretons to Britain and Britons points to a C origin: cf Brythonic, the adj of Brython, a collective pl for the British Celts, Brython being W and deriving from the OC name (? Britto*, pl Brittones*) that yields alike the OE Bryttas (and its adj Bryttisc) and the L Brit(t)ō. Important is the Gr name (c300 B.C.) Prētanikai nēsoi, British isles; the s of Pretanikai (adj suffix -ikos, cf E -ic) is Pretan-; the name answers to Ir cruithin, Picts, MIr cruthen, a Pict—cf OGa cruithneach, a Briton, for, as the late R. G. Collingwood remarks in Roman Britain (2nd ed., 1937), 'It can hardly be doubted . . . that the inhabitants of these islands . . . were called Pretani or Priteni'; Pretani, he says, must be identical with 'the old Welsh Priten, the "P" [Celtic] form, of which the corresponding "Q"-form is Cruithin, the name by which many Irish writers refer to the Picts';—Picti is a L translation;—it was, he points out, prob Caesar who, for Pretani and Pretania (Latinized forms of the C words), substituted Britanni and Britannia. The basic meaning of the name could be, as for W Brython it app is, 'the tumultuous, hence warriors'. brittle derives from ME britel (var brutel), from OE brēotan, to break, akin to ON brjōta, to break, and OHG brōdi, fragile: the OE brēot- has 'thinned' to brit- and the -le is an adj suffix (cf L fragilis from frangere), the sense being 'easily broken, essentially breakable'.

broach (n and v) and brooch; brocade, n hence v; brochure; broker, brokerage.

1. Brooch (F broche) is historically identical with the similarly pronounced broach: broach (n) comes, through ME broche, from OF-F broche, from L of C origin; OF broche has derivative OF-F brocher, to stitch, whence E 'to broach'; the basic meaning is 'pointed head' of weapon or tool.

2. Brocade, a fabric with raised design, comes from Sp brocado, prob from ML brocāre, to prick, hence to figure (a textile), itself of same C origin as broach.

3. Brochure is F: from brocher, to stitch.

4. Broker derives from ME brocour, from ONF brokeor (OF brocheor), from ONF brokier, to broach: orig a broacher of wine casks, hence a retailer of wine.

5. The C r appears to have been broc-*, a point (Malvezin).

broad, whence broadness (-ness); broaden; abroad; breadth.

1. Abroad=a-, on, in+broad: and broad, ME brād, earlier brad, derives from OE brād, akin to OFris (and OS) brēd, OHG-G breit, MD breet (D breed), ON breithr, Go braiths (neu brāid): o.o.o.: IE r, ? brādh-, var brēdh-. 'To broaden' derives (suffix -en) from broad—cf OE brāēdan, OFris brēda, OS brēdian, ON breitha.

2. Breadth derives, through ME bredethe, earlier brede or breede, from OE brāēdu, from brād: cf OHG breiti, G Breite, from breit, and OFris brēde, from brēd.

Broddingnagian is the adj of Broddingnag (incorrectly Broddingnag), Swift's land of giants in Gulliver's Travels (1726). Contrast LILLIPUTIAN. (See P⁸ for an essay on Swift's neologisms.)

brocade. See BROACH, para 2.

brochure. See BROACH, para 3.

brock (badger): OE broc, lit 'the speckled (beast)': cf Ir (and Ga) breac, OIr brec, variegated, freckled, piebald, and W brech, brych, Br breac'h, variegated-brown, and EIr brocc, Ir and Ga broc, Cor brōch, brogh, a badger; cf also W brych, a brindled brown.

brogue (1), stout shoe: an Irishism: Ir brōg, EIr brōc, a shoe, a hoof, prob from ON brōk, hose; cf, therefore, BREECHES.

brogue (2), a dial pron, esp the Ir pron of E: Ir barrōg, a hold or bond, e.g. on the tongue, hence a defective pron, hence the E sense: a mdfn of Ir barra, a bar, a hindrance: cf, therefore, BAR.

broider, broidery; embroider, embroidery.

Embroidery derives from 'to embroider' and broidery; embroider=em-, here merely int+broider; broider comes perh rather from OProv broidar, than from MF-F broder (OF brodser), prob from Frankish brozdōn*: cf ON broddr, a spike, and therefore BRAD. F broder has derivative MF-F broderie, which prompted E broidery (suffix -ery).

broil (1), to char (by burning), hence cookery sense; ME broilen: OF bruillir, from—though perh influenced by OF boillir, to boil—OF bruir, to burn, from OGmc bruējen (G brühen, to warm up): cf E BREED.

broil (2), to confuse, to entangle, hence n; embroil, embroilment.

1. 'To broil' comes from EF-F brouiller, MF brouillier, prob (B & W) from brou, mud, mire, influenced by such vv as mouiller and souiller; its MF-F prefix (em-, in) derivative embrouiller produces E embroil; the subsidiary EF-F embrouillement prob produces E embroilment, which may, however, derive, by suffix -ment, from embroil.

2. Imbroglia, an adoption from It, derives from It imbrogliare, cpd of brogliare, itself from the OProv form corresp to the OF v.

brought. See BRING.

brow: ME browe, earlier bruwe: OE brū, akin to ON brūn, OIr forbru (acc pl), OSi brūvē, Skt bhrū. (The G Braue is unrelated.)

brown (adj hence n), brownie; Bruin; brunette, burnet; burnish, v hence n; prunella.

1. A brownie or good-natured goblin (whence Brownie, a Girl Guide of 8–11) is so named from its tawny colour: brown+dim -ie: the Ga bruinidh (pron broony) is merely a rough trln of brownie. Brown, ME broun, earlier brun, derives from OE brūn, akin to OFris, OS, OHG, MHG brūn (G braun); to ON brūnn; perh to Gr phrunē, a toad; certainly to the Skt redup babhrūš, brown (hence, a beaver): IE r, bhru-*; cf the var ber- in BEAR, n.

2. Bruin the bear derives from D bruin, brown, so named from his colour: cf BEAR, n.

3. Brunette (adj hence n)=the f of OF-F brunet, dim of OF-F brun (f brune), brown, from OHG brūn. The derivative MF n brunete has metathesis burnete, whence ME-E burnet, a brown woollen fabric, hence several brown-hued plants.

4. 'To burnish' comes, via ME burnischen, earlier burnissen, from OF-MF burnir, metathesis of OF-F brunir, to render brun or brown, hence, to polish: cf MHG briunen, to render brown, to polish; burnishment= 'to burnish'+suffix -ment.

5. The old med term prunella, thrush (the disease), angina, is a Sci L var of brunella, Mod L dim of ML brunus, brown, from MHG brūn (para 1); brunella was suggested by G Bräune, quinsy (lit, brownness). The plant Prunella was formerly supposed to cure quinsy. But prunella, a sloe-coloured woollen fabric, comes from F prunelle, dim of FRUNE (a plum), q.v.

browse. 'To browse' comes from MF brouster (OF bruster; F brouter), from MF broust (OF brost), a sprout, a shoot, of Gmc origin: cf OS brustian, to sprout: basic meaning, 'to swell' (IE bhreus-*), therefore of BREAST. Browse, young shoots, hence such fodder, prob comes from MF broust; but browse, an act of browsing, clearly derives from 'to browse'.

Bruin. See BROWN, para 2.

bruise, v hence n and the agential bruiser. 'To bruise' derives, through ME brusen (var brisen), from OE brysan, to bruise, influenced by OF-MF bruissier, to break into small pieces, to shiver, of C origin: cf MĪr brūim, I crush, smash, bruise, Ga brooth (pron broo), to bruise, Cor brew, (pp) bruised; the C r is prob brug-*, I break.

bruit, n hence v: adopted from OF-F bruit, from the v bruire: VL brūgere*, itself either from C brug-*, to make a noise, or from L rūgīre, to roar+ VL bragere*, to cry out (cf 1st BRAY).

brumette. See BROWN, para 3.

brunt, a blow (hence its force), an assault (hence its impact or shock): ME brunt is app akin to OE brūnetha, heat, ON bruni, a torch, therefore cf BRAND.

Brush, a cleaning device, ME brushe, comes from OF-MF broisse (F brosse), perh of Gmc origin: cf OHG bursta (MHG borst, G Borste), a bristle, ult akin to Skt bhr̥ṣṭīś, a point. 'To brush', ME bruschen, brusshen, derives from the ME n. Cf, however, the more prob origin in:

brush (2), lopped branches of trees, hence brush-wood. ME brusche: OF broche, broce, brouce (etc.)—cf MF-F brosse, broussaille—perh from the r occurring in F bruyère, heather, q.v. at BRIER. The OF n has derivative MF-F brosser, orig to dash through brushwood or underbrush, whence ME bruschen, to rush, whence 'to brush (usu off)', to hurry off; hence, brush, a skirmish. B & W derive both OF nn from the one source, with primary sense 'brush(wood)', secondary 'a brush or cleaning device'; the earliest brushes being made, not of bristles but of leaves and twigs; they derive broce, etc., from VL bruscia*, a collection of shoots, from bruscum, woody excrecence on a maple tree, a post-Classical L word of app C origin, prob from the r of BROWSE.

brusque, brusquerie; brisk, brisken, briskness.

1. Brusquerie, EF-F, derives (cf the E suffix -ery) from MF-F brusque: and F brusque comes from It brusco, rough (of manner), abrupt, from L bruscum or bruscus, the plant named butcher's-broom (very rough). 'It seems that there has been a confusion between bruscum (brustum) and ruscus (rūstum) [holly] and perh also brūcus*' (E & M)—cf BRIER.

2. Brisk, whence brisken (v suffix -en) and briskness (-ness), is perh a thinned form of brisque, but prob of C origin: cf EIr brisc, Ga brisc, brittle, fragile, and Br bresk, brittle, (also) brusque: brec-, breg-, and bric-, brig-, are app thinned forms of C brac-, brag- (and brad-), to break, akin to the frag- of L frangere (nasalized; cf frēgi, I have broken).

brutal, whence brutality and brutalize; brute, adj hence n.

Brutal, unless from LL brūtālis, = brute + adj -al; brute comes from MF brute, later differentiated as brut, m, and brute, f from L brūtus, f brūta, heavy, stupid, unreasoning, as in 'the brute creation', prob of Oscan origin: cf Lett grūts, L grauis (s grau-), heavy; IE r, app b(h)ru-, var g(h)ru-, prob cf Skt gauris, heavy, and perh the syn Gr barus.

bryology. See the element bryo-, whence also bryony.

Brythonic. See BRITAIN.

bubby. See BEVER.

bubble, n and v; adj, hence n, bubbly;—burble.

Burble, to speak confusedly and pointlessly, imperfectly blends bubble and gurgle. A bubble derives from ME bobel, or boble, akin to MD bobbel (also D) and bubbel and Sw bubbla; to bubble derives from late ME buble, bobel, akin to MLG bubbeln, MHG brodelen. The -le (-el) is freq; the r, prob echoic.

A buccan, or grid for grilling or drying meat, comes from EF-F boucan, from SAmerind bocan, a grill for either smoking or drying meat; the derivative EF-F v boucaner yields 'to buccan', grill (meat) thus; and boucaner has late EF-F agent boucanier, one who does this, whence E buccaneer (cf suffix -eer), applied first to F settlers in Haiti, then to the Caribbean pirates, who subsisted largely upon buccan.

buck (1), beech. See BEECH, para 3.

buck (2), lye. See BEECH, para 3.

buck (3), male deer: ME buk, bucke: OE buc, bucca, a he-goat, app of C origin: cf OIr bocc, Ga boc, he-goat, roe-buck, Cor bōc(k), bocca (etc.), W boch, Br bouc'h, he-goat; the OC word would be buccos*, lit '(the beast) that flees', from buc-*, to flee, answering to L fug- in fugere. Cf:

buck (4), Am sl for a dollar: o.o.o., but prob from buck, a counter used in poker (whence pass the buck: Mathews), this counter usu being, at least orig, a buck-knife, a knife made with a handle of buck-horn.

buck (5), to leap abruptly, plungingly: from BUCK (3), the lit sense being 'to leap like a buck', cf Ga boc.

buckaroo. See VACCENIC (heading).

buck mate, buck Negro, etc. Buck is here an adj from BUCK (3).

bucket: ME bucket: AF buket, buquet, a dim from OE būc, a pitcher, any (water-) vessel, the belly, akin to OFris būk, OHG büh, MHG buch, G Bauch, belly, and ON būkr, belly, body: Gmc r, būk-; IE r, bhug-. (Walshe.)

buckeye is a plant with a seed like a buck's eye.

buckle (1), n and v; buckler.

A buckler, or shield with boss, ME bocler, comes from OF boucler (MF-F bouclier), itself from OF-MF bocle, MF-F boucle, the boss of a shield, whence, via ME bocle, the E buckle, with sense-adaptation; also from OF-MF bocle comes ME boclen, whence 'to buckle'. Now, OF bocle derives from L buccula, little cheek (or mouth), dim of bucca, a cheek, a shield's boss, a boss or knob resembling a cheek; bucca is prob C.

buckle (2), to bend more or less permanently: either from late MF-F boucler (from the n boucle—see prec), esp in the sense '(of a wall) to bulge', as OED holds, or, as a freq (-le), from MD bucken (var bocken; D bukken), to bow (vi), akin to the 3rd BOW, as Webster prefers, and so do I.

buckler. See 1st BUCKLE.

buckram: ME bukeram, buckram (later bokeram): OF-EF boquerant; prop bo(u)queran (? adj as n), cf Sp bucarán and It bucherame: Per Bukhārā, Bukhara, E usu Bokhara, where this fine linen was orig manufactured. Bukhārā was app so named from the ancient Buddhist monastery—Skt vihāra—situated nearby; through the Turco-Mongolian form bukhar. (Enci It.)

buckwheat. See BEECH, para 3.

bucolic: L būcolicus: Gr boukolikos, orig 'of a boukolos or cowherd', from bous, an ox (cf BOVINE and, f.a.e., cow); the 2nd element = kolos*, akin to L colere (s col-), to cultivate—here, one who tends cows, not crops. (Hofmann.)

bud (n hence v) derives from ME budden, akin to MD bote, botte, D bot, a bud—to MHG butzen (s but-), to swell—perh also MLG budel, a purse (G Beutel): basic idea, 'a swelling': IE r, bhu-*, to swell.

Buddha, whence Buddhism and Buddhist: Skt buddha, awakened, hence aware, hence enlightened, of same r as bodhati, he awakes, hence becomes aware, hence understands.

budge, to move slightly, hence n: OF-F bouger, to stir: VL bullicāre*, vi, to boil and bubble: L bullire, to boil, from bulla, a bubble: cf BOIL.

budgerigar is an Aus aboriginal word.

budget, n hence v. See BULGE.

buff (1), a superior leather, derives from obs buff, earlier bufe, a buffalo, the first buff having been prepared from buffalo hide: f.a.e., BUFFALO. Hence, 'to buff', polish with a buff.

buff (2), a buffet: OF bufe: f.a.e., BUFFET. 'To buff' or strike: OF buffer, from bufe.

buffalo: It buffalo, var of bufalo (cf Port búfalo): L būfalus, var of būbalus: Gr boubalos, orig 'N African antelope', later 'buffalo', from bous, ox (cf BOVINE and, f.a.e., cow), boubalos being orig an adj 'of, for, like an ox' (cf L būbulus), and ult, though remotely, akin to Skt gavalas, wild buffalo (Boisacq).

buffer. See:

buffet (1) derives, through ME, from MF buffet, a slap, dim of OF-EF bufe, a blow: prob echoic (cf PUFF). 'To buffet', ME buffeten, derives from MF buffeter, from buffet. E buffer derives from either of the two vv BUFF, qq.v.; the sense 'fellow', usu 'old buffer', derives prob from buff, to strike, but perh from cant buffer, a dog—cf the fig use of dog.

buffet (2), a sideboard, now often one set with food: adopted from OF-F: usu, by E philologists, said to be o.o.o., but B & W mention that OF buffet, like OProv bufet, denotes both 'a sort of table' and, earlier, 'a box (on the ear)', and add, 'Perhaps the word became the designation of a piece of furniture because the latter was, orig, furnished with a board that one could lower'—(presumably) with a smart tap or with the sound of a slap.

The latter, deriving (by suffix -ery) from the former, was prompted by EF-F bouffonnerie, itself from EF-F bouffon, whence E buffoon: and F bouffon comes from It buffone, prob from buffa, a rough joke, a fooling-about, a jape, but perh from the intimately cognate buffare, to play the fool, to puff out one's cheeks: echoic (cf PUFF). The operatic buffo merely shortens buffone (Prati).

bug, goblin; bugbear. See BOGEY.—As coll for 'insect', a 'creepy-crawly' form of life, it derives from the basic sense 'goblin'.

bugger, buggery; Bulgar (n), Bulgaria (Byz Gr Bulgaria), whence Bulgarian, adj hence n.

Buggery comes from MF-EF bugrerie, (MF) heresy, (EF) sodomy, from MF-F bougre (OF bogre), whence E bugger; or so the dict tell us. I prefer to derive buggery from MD buggerie, and bugger from MD bugger. The OF bogre, MF-F bougre, and MD bugger derive, the former from ML Bulgarus, a Bulgar, hence a heretic and, by lay slander, a sodomite, the latter from the 'eased' ML forms Bugarus (s Bugar-) and esp Bugerus (s Buger-): by b/f from C6 LL Bulgari, the Bulgars (Tatars, settling in what became Bulgaria): from C5 Byz Gr Boulgaroi, Bulgars, a name akin to the river Volga, itself perh a confusion of Tatar Ethil or Itil and Gr Rha. (Enci It.) buggy, a light carriage: 'o.o.o.' is the usual verdict; but perh buggy is simply bogey influenced by bug, insect, from the 'spidery' appearance of its framework.

bugle (1), musical instrument, whence bugler; OF-MF bugle: L būculus, a young ox, dim of bos, an ox (cf BOVINE and, f.a.e., COW): orig 'buffalo', then 'hunter's horn', used orig in the hunting of buffaloes.

bugle (2), plant, whence bugleweed: MF-F bugle; LL bugula (var bugilla): o.o.o., but perh of same origin as (1)—cf the plant bugloss, lit 'ox's tongue'.

build (pt, pp built): a compromise between the two predominant ME forms bulden, bilden: OE byldan, from bold (var botl), a house, akin to OFris bold, house, and -belda, to build, to ON bōl, farm, farmhouse, abode, and to OSw bol, bole, dwelling, house: prob from the OGmc r present in ON būa, to dwell. Derivatives: builder, building.

bulb, with adj bulbar (bulb+ar) and bulbous (L bulbōsus): L bulbus: Gr bolbos, app a redup of r bol-, akin to the bul- of L bulła, a bubble. Cf the 1st BULL.

Bulgar, Bulgarian, etc. See BUGGER.

bulge, n hence v and pa bulging, and adj bulgy; budget, n hence v and the adj budgetary (-ary).

Budget, a wallet (or sack), hence its contents, esp if monetary, comes from OF bougette, a small bag, a wallet, dim of OF bogge, bouge, from L bulga, a leather bag, of Gaul origin: cf the Ga bolg, bag, belly, and bolgach, bulging, bulgy—the EIr bolg, bag—Manx bolg, belly—perh Cor bolitho, a large belly—certainly Br bolc'h, a pod, and W bol, bag, belly, bulge: C r, bolg-, var of balg-, balc-*, to swell, to be large (Malvezin). OF bogge or bouge has var boulge, whence ME-E bulge.

bulk (1), n hence v and the adj bulky: ME bulke, bolke: ON bulki, cargo (cf 'to break bulk'), heap, akin to ON bulkr a ball, a globe: basic idea, 'to swell', therefore cf BALL (1) and BOLD.

bulk (2), as in bulkhead, is akin to—almost a var of—BALK.

bull (1), a seal, hence a papal letter sealed with a bulła, derives from ME bulle, from ML bulła, seal, hence document, from L bulła, air bubble, hence seal: bulła, prob imitative, is either echoic, like BUBBLE or, as E & M hold, pictorial for a round protuberance, like Gr bolthos, onion, bulb, and E BULB.

2. L, hence It, bulła, leads to the It dim bulletta, which acquires its own dim bulletino, whence EF-F, hence E, bulletin. Cf the 3rd BILL.

bull (2), male corresp to cow; whence bulldog, bulldoze, bullfrog, bull(-)headed, bull's-eye, etc.

Bull derives from ME bule from OE bula, bull, with extension bulloc, whence bullock; akin to ON boli, MD and MLG bulle, bull; to OSw bulin, swollen; to OIr ball, ? Mx bwoid, penis; perh also to OHG ballo, MHG balle, a ball (sphere), L folis (s fol-), bellows, and Gr phallos (s phal-), penis (cf PHALIC): the basic idea and the IE r are 'to swell', IE bhel-*.

bullion: a C15 loan from MD bulioen, varr bolioen and esp billioen: MF-F billon, an ingot, a modification of OF-F bille, a round stick: f.a.e., the 2nd BILLET.

bullock. See the 2nd BULL.

bully (1), meat: F bouilli, boiled beef, bouilli being prop the pp of bouillir, to BOIL.

bully (2), orig 'good or dear fellow' (whence the adj bully, excellent), then a blustering browbeater: D boel, brother, friend, lover, MD boele: MHG buole, relative, friend (G Buhle, paramour): prob cf Lett bāleniš, little brother: o.o.o.; sense-influenced by 2nd BULL. (Walshe.)

bulrush. See 1st BOLE.

bulwark; boulevard.

Both words, the former directly, the latter through EF-F, come from MLG bolwerk (cf MD bolwerc, bollewerc, D bolwerk), lit 'stem-work': f.a.e., the 1st BOLE and WORK.

bum (1), n and v: echoic: a var of the 2nd BOOM. This may form the origin of:

bum (2), the behind: see prec; perh, however, the ME bom comes from D dial bom, for D bodem, the behind (cf BOTTOM).

bum (3), n and v: a bum or tramp shortens the syn G Bummeler, from bummeln, to loaf, to wander, whence 'to bum'; bum, worthless, derives from the n.

bumble, n and v. The n derives from bumble, v, ME bumblen, prob a freq of bum, to hum: cf the 2nd BOOM.

bumblebee. See HUMBLEBEE.

bumboat. See BEAM, para 2. Cf:

bumkin (nautical). See BEAM, para 2.

bump (v hence n and the agent bumper): echoic (sound upon impact): cf the equally echoic thump, v and n. Adj: bumpy.

bumpkin, (1) a spar, (2) a rural lout. See BEAM, s.f.

bumptious, obtusely pert: bump + presumptious (illiterate for presumptuous).

bum, formerly often bunn: the shape of the round, raised, sweetened bread-confection leads to bun of hair: and the edible bun derives from ME bonne, var bonne, prob of C origin: cf Ga bonnach, var bannach, Sc bannock, also MF buigne, F beignet, a fritter: the basic idea is app 'a swelling', hence a 'swollen' confection.

bunch, n hence v and the adj bunchy; bunk (bed, esp nautical).

The common idea is 'pile, heap', e.g. of bed-clothes; bunk is a doublet of bunch, ME bunche, but comes direct from the Scan origin of bunche: OSw bunke or ON bunki, heap, pile; the former also denotes 'boarding', a sense formative in bunk.

bumcombe, insincere speech—hence insincere talk, hence nonsense; in C20 usu bunkum, whence, by abbr, bunk: Buncombe, that county in North Carolina which was represented (1819-21) by Felix Walker; persisting in a long-winded speech, he said that his electors expected him to 'make a speech for Buncombe'. (Webster.)

bung, n hence v: MD bunge (var bonge, as in D): MHG bunde: MF-F bondé, of C origin: cf OIr bond, Ir and Ga bonn, W bon, base, sole of foot—Mx bong, bung—and perh Cor bēn, base.

bungalow: Hindi bangla, Bengali: elliptical for '(house, characteristic) of Bengal'.

bungle is app of Scan origin: cf OSw bunga, to strike (cf BANG), and bangla, to work inefficiently: ? a phonetic blend, with sense predominantly from bangla.

bunk (1), nautical bed. See BUNCH.

bunk (2), nonsense. See BUNCOMBE.

bunker, a large bin or chest, hence a small sand-pit (hence, in golf): Sc bunker, var bunkart, a bench, a chest serving as seat: akin to BENCH.

bunkum. See BUNCOMBE.

bunny, pet-name for a rabbit, is a dim of Sc and N dial bun, rabbit, itself from bun, rabbit's tail, of C origin: cf Ga and EIr bun, stump, and derivative Ga bunabhas, buttock; OC bonu-* (MacLennan).

bunt (1), middle part of net or sail; hence bunt-line (cf LINE), a special rope: cf MHG bunt (G Bund), and esp MD bont, a bundle.

bunt (2), to butt, hence n: o.o.o.; app echoic and perh influenced by Sc and N dial bunt, tail of rabbit or hare, var of bun (as at BUNNY), from butting with one's rear: cf SHUNT.

bunting, occ buntine, flags collectively, derives from bunting, that thin woollen material from which flags are made: ME bontin, to sift (whence E dial bunt, to sift), this material having perh been used for sifting meal.

buntline. See the 1st BUNT.

bunyip is an adoption from an Aus aboriginal language.

buoy, n hence v; buoyant, buoyancy.

Buoyancy=buoyant+suffix -cy; buoyant derives from buoy, v, as if from a F presp; a buoy comes from MD boeie, from OF-MF boie, buie, a chain, hence—because held by a chain—a buoy, of Gmc origin: cf OHG bouhhan, MHG bouchen, OS bōkan, OFris bāken, E BEACON, q.v.

bur or burr, prickly cone, etc., of plant: ME burre, borre, burdock (itself=bur+ the dock plant): OSw borra, burdock, thistle. Cf the 2nd BURR.

burble. See BUBBLE.

burden (1), n hence v and the adj burdensome (suffix -some); burthen, survival of a ME spelling, along with late ME burden and early birthen, from OE byrthen, akin to Go baurthei, OHG burdi, MHG-G bürde: from the r of 'TO BEAR' (OE beran).

burden (2), in music: influenced by prec, but from ME burdoun: MF-F bourdon, the bass in music: ML burdō, bumblebee, o/s burdōn-, of echoic origin.

bureau; bureaucrat, -cratic, -cracy; burlesque, adj hence n and v.

Burlesque, adopted from EF-F, comes from It burlesco, adj of burla, jest, joke, mockery, ? from VL burrula*, a flock of wool, dim of LL burra, shaggy garment, (orig) coarse hair, perh elliptical for lana burra, from burrus, ruddy, from the syn Gr purros, from pur, fire (cf FIRE). Now, LL burra has app a VL var būra*, whence OF-F bure, with OF-MF dim bure! (suffix -el), woollen fabric, adopted by E (now obs), whence OF-F bureau, a coarse woollen cloth, used for covering tables; hence, a desk; hence, an office; whence E bureau, (mostly) office. The F word has three notable derivatives: bureaucrate, whence E bureaucrat (cf the element -crat, as in ARISTOCRAT); bureaucratie, whence bureaucracy; and bureaucratique, whence bureaucratic.

burg. See BOROUGH.

burgeon. See BURLY.

burgess; burgh, burgher. See BOROUGH.

burglar, burglary; burgle. See BOROUGH, para 6.

burgomaster. See BOROUGH, para 2.

Burgundy, the wine, comes from this ancient province of France, from ML Burgundia, from L Burgundii, an ancient Gmc tribe, a var of Burgundiōnes, earlier Burgodiōnes, which suggests the same Gmc origin as that of burg, q.v. at BOROUGH; Burgundiōnes may have prompted the n Burgundian; the adj Burgundian derives rather from Burgundia. The F form Bourgnignons led to the head-armour called burgonet.

burial. See bury at BOROUGH (para 5).

burlesque. See BUREAU.

burly, whence burliness; burgeon, n hence v (perh from the OF-F v), with Fvar bourgeon.

A burgeon, bud, derives from ME burgen, earlier burjon, adopted from OF-MF burjon (F bourgeon), prob of Gmc origin: cf esp OHG burjan, to raise, itself akin to OHG burlih, lofty, excellent, OE borlice, excellently, eminently, whence prob ME borlich, late ME burly, taken over by E. OGmc forms are clearly akin to Go bairan, to carry—usually one raises before one carries—and therefore to E 'to BEAR'.

burn (1), a brook. See the 1st BOURN.

burn (2), to be, to cause to be, on fire, v hence n: pt burned, pp burnt.

'To burn' derives from ME bernen (var brennen), vt, confused with ME beornen or birnen, vi, themselves from OE baernan or bernan, vt, and beornan, vi: cf the merely app metathetic varr in the OGmc cognates, e.g. OFris barna, berna, esp burna, OS and OHG brennian, vt, OHG brinnan, vi, Go brannjan, vt, and brinnan, vi, ON brenna, vt, and brinna, vi: perh akin to the Ir r brenn-, to gush forth; cf also Skt bhurati, it quivers or flickers. Cf BRAND.

burnish. See BROWN, para 4.

burnous, occ burnoose: F burnous, with EF varr bernus, bernous, barnusse: Ar burnus: Gr burros, var of birros (L birrus), a kind of cloak. Both F beret and It biretta come from the same IE r. Cf BERET.

burp (of a child) is, like gurk, varr gherk, ghurk (of an adult), purely and excellently echoic.

burr (1), of plant. See BUR.

burr (2), of speech: n hence v: of same origin as prec: bur of plant, hence numerous mechanical devices (usu burr), hence the noise made by several of them, hence that rough or whirring-hum pron, the trilled r; Webster, however, derives the final sense from a 'bur in the throat' (cf, sem, 'frog in the throat').

burro comes straight from Sp, which 'shortens' it from borrico, ass, itself from LL burricus, buricus, bur(r)ichus, a small or inferior horse, a pony, a nag, perh (E & M) from Tacitus's Buri (Gr Bouroi), a German tribe: 'the Buric beast'.

Malvezin, however, derives it from Gaul burs (or bors), var of bars, height, (whence) physical strength: 'the strong beast': cf EIr borr, puffed (up), proud, Ir borr, proud, strong, Ga borr, pride, words derived by MacLennan from OC borsos*, strong.

burrow, n, v. See BOROUGH, para 3.

bursar, bursary. See PURSE, para 2.

burst, n, v. As 'injury, damage', the n derives from OE byrst, loss, failure, crash, akin to OHG brust and, of course, to OE berstan, whence, via ME bersten (var bresten), the E 'to burst'. Akin to OE berstan (impf pl burston) are, e.g., OFris bersta, to burst, break, also to fail; OHG brestan, MHG bresten and bersten, G bersten; OS brestan; MD bersten (also D), barsten, borsten; ON bresta; OIr brissim, I break. The OGmc barst-, berst-, borst- forms are metatheses for brast-, brest- forms; and the IE r is app bhrest-, with varr bhrast-, bhroost-*. Cf G brechen, E 'to BREAK'.

bury. See BOROUGH, paras 5-6.

bus shortens omnibus, 'a carriage that is for all' (L omnibus).

bushy: o.o.o.: ? from a PN (manufacturer or first notable wearer).

bush, a (thick) shrub, hence a thicket, hence an uncleared piece of country, hence, in Aus, the outback; boscage, bosky.

1. Boscage, ME boskage, comes from OF-MF boscage, boschage, a grove, from ML boscus, whose It shape bosco has dim boschetto, whence EF-F bosquet, adopted by E with var bosket, a thicket, whence, by abbr, the syn bosk, whence the adj bosky, bushy, wooded.

2. ML boscus prob originated both OHG busc (MHG and G busch) and MD busch (var bussche and, as in D, bosch); ME busch (var busk), whence E bush, prob comes from the MD busch rather than from OHG or MHG. Now, the ML boscus either derives from or is very intimately related to Gr boskē, pasture (as Walshe proposes), cf boskein (s bosk-), to graze (vt).

bushel: ME buschel, boischel: OF-MF (presumed) and OProv boissel, dim (-el) of OF-MF (presumed) and EF (recorded) boisse, a grain-measure, of C origin: cf Ga bas, occ bois, palm of hand, concave side of a club, OIr bass (dat boiss), Mx bass, palm of hand: OC etymon bostā*. (B & W; MacLennan.)

business. See BUSY.

busk (1) of corset: var (It busco) of BUST, n.

busk (2), to seek, hence to seek to provide entertainment, whence busker, singer (etc.) in public-house or to a theatre queue: EF-F busquer, to seek: Sp buscare, to search (the woods): ? ult a parallel to BUSH.

busk (3). See BUSTLE.

buskin: app a slovened borrowing of MD broseken (o.o.o.), a small shoe, perh via MF brosequin.

bust (1), n: EF-F buste: It busto: ? L bustum, a tomb (orig, a—usu, shaped—log of wood): from the busts often set over tombs (B & W).

bust (2) n and v: coll and dial form of BURST. Hence the AE buster, gay fellow, hence merely voc.

bustard blends OF bistarde, a bustard, prob (DAF) for vistarde*, from ML avis (L avis) tarda, lit 'slow bird'+the MF doublet oustarde (F outarde), from L avis (ML avis) tarda, prob (B & W) via Gaul L austarda*. This kind of tautology does occur.

bustle, v hence n. 'To bustle' derives from EE buskle, a freq (-le) of the obs busk, to make oneself ready, itself, via ME busken, from ON būask, vr from būa, to prepare, (orig) to dwell: cf the 2nd BOWER. From a person bustling (moving fussily) along, derives the bustle worn beneath a woman's skirt.

busy, whence the v 'to busy', the adv busily (-ly), the n business (-ness), derives from ME busi, var bisi, from OE bysig, var bisig, akin to MD besech, besich, D bezig, LG besig, o.o.o: Cf OFris bisgia, to use, and OE bysgian, bisgian, to occupy or employ: IER, bes-, var bis-, perh orig echoic.

2. Hence pidgin (further corrupted to pigeon), elliptical for pidgin English, a Chinese-coast and China Sea lingua franca, pidgin being a Ch attempt at business. Cf 'That's not my pigeon', not my business nor my concern.

but, conj, is elliptical for but that, lit 'without, (hence) except for, that', and therefore derives from the prep but, itself deriving, via ME bute, earlier buten, earliest butan, outside (of), without, except, from OE būtan (cf OFris būta), on the outside of, outside, without, except, orig an adv, outside, besides: be-, by + ūtan, outwards, without, itself an extension of the adv ūt, from the interior to or towards the exterior: therefore see BY, prep, and OUT.

The latter, orig a slaughterhouse, derives from ME bocherie, shambles, from OF-MF bocherie, MF-F boucherie, slaughterhouse, from OF-MF bouchier, var bochier (MF-F boucher), perh (Webster) from ML buc- in bucida, bucola, a cattle-slayer, from Gr bouthytiēs, a sacrificer of oxen (Gr bous, L bōs, an ox: cf BOVINE); Dauzat and B & W prefer to derive OF-MF bouchier, MF-F boucher, 'vendor of goat-flesh', from OF-F bouc, he-goat, itself from Gaul bucco-*: cf OIr bocc, he-goat, and see the 3rd BUCK.

butt (1), a cask. See BOTTLE, para 2.

butt (2), the thicker end, e.g. a buttock, stump, handle: ME but, butte, where the but- is prob that of OE buttuc, end, end-piece, whence ME buttoke, rump, whence E buttock, the -uc being app the dim suffix OE -uc, E -ock, cf OE bealluc, E ballock, a testicle (? orig a bull's), now vulgar—cf the 1st BALL (and the s, ? coll, balls, testicles). Even in ME and indeed in OF, there has been a certain confusion, caused by F but, goal, and bout, end; of Gmc origin: cf BUTTE.

butt (3), to thrust at, to push, esp with head or horns or rump: ME butten: OF-MF boter (MF-F bouter), to strike, to push, of Gmc origin: cf MD boten, and esp ON bauta, to strike. The word has been influenced by the 2nd BUTT. A butt with the head drives from the v BUTT. Cf BUTTON.

butte, a lone, steep-sided hill: MF-F butte, var of MF-F but, goal, boundary: akin to the 2nd BUTT.

butter, n, whence the adj—not the n—buttery and the v 'to butter': ME butter, earlier butere: OE butere or, in cpds, buttor-: L butyrum: Gr bouturon, butter: bous, cow (cf BOVINE)+turos, cheese, cf the element tyro-. (The OGmc and Scythian etymologies are unconvincing.)

2. The butterfly, OE buterflēge, buttor-flēoge, was prob so named because a common species is yellow: 'the yellow flier'.

buttery, n. See BOTTLE, para 2, s.f.

buttock. See the 2nd BUTT.

button, n and v. The n derives from ME bouton: OF-MF boton (F bouton), orig a bud, very soon the 'bud' of a garment, a button: from OF-MF boter (F bouter), orig to strike, thrust, push, then to bud: f.a.e., the 3rd BUTT. 'To button' comes, via ME botonen, from OF-MF botoner, from boton. Cf:

buttrass, n hence v: ME butrass, earlier boterace: the OF-MF boterez, bouterez, adj 'projecting', then n 'projecting structure': from boter, later bouter, to thrust: cf prec and, f.a.e., the 3rd BUTT.

buxom: ME buxum, earlier buhsum, obedient, (lit) pliable: OE būhsum*: the suffix OE -sum, E -some, attached to the r of OE būgan, to bow, to bend: cf the G biegsam, pliant, manageable, from biegen, to bend, MHG biegen, OHG biogan, akin to Go biugan, OS būgan: f.a.e., the 3rd BOW.

buy, pt and pp bought (late OE-early ME pt, bohte; pp, boht). 'To buy', whence the coll n, as in 'a good buy', derives from ME buggen, biggen, from OE bycgan, akin to Go bugjan and OS buggean; Gmc r, bug-*.

buzz, v hence n, is purely echoic.

buzzard: ME, from OF-F, busard (suffix -ard): from OF-F buse: L būtiōnem or būteōnem, acc of būtiō or būteō, s būt-, r perh bū-, as in būbō (gen būbōnis), an owl, būbō being a redup of echoic bū-.

by, prep hence adv hence adj, with var bye. whence the n (something that goes by or to the side): ME bi: OE bī, by the side of, near—by, of, from—after, according to: akin to OFris and OS bī (or bi), be, OHG (and MHG) bī, G bei, Go bi (around, about; by), MD bie, D bij; OHG bī is ult identical with OHG umbi, cf the amb- (? for ambi*) of L ambīre, to go around, make a circular tour of, and Gr amphi (for ambhi*), around, about: the IE etymon would be ambhi*, var umbhi*, often, perh even at that stage, shortened to bhi* (Walshe). Cf the un-nasalized form in Skt abhi, about, around, and abhi-tas, on both sides, and such C cognates as OIr imb- and W ambi-, around; cf also G um, around, for. Clearly, therefore, this OGmc bī, E by, is ult identical with the prefix be-.

bye. See prec.

bygone is merely 'gone by, hence past'.

byre, cowshed, cow-house: OE bȳre, mdfn of OE būr, a dwelling: f.a.e., the 2nd BOWER.

byword. See VERB, para 1, s.f.

Byzantine, Byzantium: bezant or besant.

Bezant, a gold coin issued by Byzantium throughout the CC6-15, derives from ME besant, besaunt, from OF-MF besan, var of OF-F besant, L bȳzantium, elliptical for aes bȳzantium or 'Byzantine coin', from Bȳzantius, adj of Bȳzantium, from Gr Buzantion, 'The Close-Pressed (City)', compactly built, akin to Gr buzēn (adv), close-pressed, itself akin to buzein (s buz-), to be frequent. The L adj Bȳzantinus yields E Byzantine, whence Byzantinism (-ism).

cab, cabby, cabriolet.

1. The 2nd pet-forms 'cab-driver'; cab shortens cabriolet; cabriolet, adopted from F, is a dim of EF-F cabriole, a leap, a caper, var of capriole: prob from cabrioler, var of caprioler, from It capriolare, to leap like a goat, to caper, from capriolo, roebuck, from L capreolus, roebuck, orig a wild goat, from caper, he-goat, capra, she goat, perh akin to Gr kapros, a wild boar, and to ON hafr, OE haefer, he-goat. The IE r may have been khap-, varr kap- or kep-*. The cabriolet was so named (1755) from 'the leaps made by these light vehicles' (B & W).

2. The EF-F capriole, n, was adopted by C17 E; the v caprioler was adapted as 'to capriole': these two E words yielded resp 'a caper' and 'to caper'.

3. Capricious comes from EF-F capricieux, f capricieuse, adj, from EF-F caprice, itself from It capriccio, a horripilation, then a shivering, a shudder, finally (sense-influenced by It capro, a goat) a whim: but capriccio does not derive from capro; it derives from It capo, head (from L caput), perh rather from its pl capora+riccio, hedgehog (L ericius); the basic idea (Webster) being that of a head with hair 'standing on end', like a hedgehog's spines.

cabal, n and v; cabala, occ cabbala.

'To cabal' comes from EF-F cabaler, itself from EF-F cabale, whence E cabal, n: and cabale derives from ML cabala, var cabbala, a trin of H qabbālāh, received, hence traditional, lore, from qābal, to receive (? ult akin to L capere, s cap-). The sense-development of the F and E cabale, cabal, is '(secret) tradition, secret, secret machinations, secret meeting, secret meeters, an intriguing group'. The adj cabalistic derives from EF-F cabalistique.

caballero. See CAVALCADE, para 2.

cabaret is adopted from MF-F: MD cabaret, varr caberet, a vocalized form of MD cabret, itself a denasalized form of MD cambret: either from Old Picard camberete, dim (cf the suffix -et) of Picard cambre, chamber, large room, F chambre (f.a.e., CHAMBER), as B & W propose, or from Ar khamārāt, a place of refreshment, as Dauzat suggests.

cabbage: ME cabage, earlier caboche: by shape-resemblance from Old Picard caboche, head, var of OF-MF caboce: OF-MF boce (MF-F bosse), a swelling (f.a.e.: boss, protuberance), with prefix ca-, perh suggested by L caput, head.

cabin, n hence v: ME cabane: MF-F cabane: OProv cabana: LL capanna, perh a metathesis for LL cannapa, hemp, influenced by capere, to take (E & M), but prob of C origin: cf Ir caban, W cabban (and cab), hut, and Mx cabbane (and cab), with var bwane, contr of bo-ane, a stall for oxen, perh by f/e. In C, cab- has var cap-; both mean orig 'to take', hence 'to contain', and are therefore akin to L capere (s cap-): cabin prob has orig sense 'container', perh via the presp form. For the F cabine (except for 'ship's cabin' sense, borrowed from E cabin), see:

cabinet has at least three different etymologies: OED and EW preferring to make it a dim of E cabin; Webster and Dauzat deriving it from F cabinet, early var gabinet, an adaptation of It gabinetto, already a piece of furniture, dim of gabbia, a cage or a basket, from ML cavea, L cauea, var cauia, prob not from L cauus, ML cavus, hollow; B & W postulating an -et dim—F cabinet being orig a small, intimate room—of F cabine (1364), orig cant for a gaming-house, a word 'born in the underworld of the rich Flemish cities', with r o.o.o., though just possibly from, or akin to, the r of MD gabben (s gab-), to mock.

Cable (message) is short for telegram, sent by electric cable, orig, as still naut, a thick, long, strong rope: MF-F câble: OProv (? rather ONF) cable: ML caplum, contr of ML capulum, some kind of cord, prob from capere (s cap-), to take. MF-F câble, however, could have come from MHG kabel; certainly both the OF and the MHG words could derive from Ar ḥabl, a rope (Walshe).

caboodle. See BOODLE.

caboose, a cook's galley, hence railroad sense: prob either MLG kabūse or, better, MD cabuse, cabuus, o.o.o.; but perh a var of MD kookhuis, cookhouse, galley.

cabriolet. See CAB.cacao. See COCOA.*cache, n hence v; cachet.

Cache=EF-F cache, a hiding-place, from MF-F cacher, to hide or conceal: Gallo-Roman coactitare* (S) and coacticare* (N), to compress, hence, because, by forcing something into a small space, one renders it less noticeable, to conceal:

L. coactāre, to compress: coactus, pp of cogere (for co-agere, to drive together), to force: cf COGENT. From the 'compress' sense of F cacher derives late MF-F cachet, adopted by E: 'seal of a letter' (very distinctive), hence 'distinctive quality'.

cacique. See SHEIK, para 2.

cack, v hence n. (Cf the element -cace.) The word is not only IE, as attested by L. cacō, Gr kakkōō, OIr caccaim, I defecate, Ru kakal', to defecate, and other terms, incl the corresp nn (e.g., Gr kakkē); but prob Medit: cf Hit sakkar, zakkar, excrement, and Eg ḥaḥa, a foul excretion, and kai-t, excrement. The Eg kai-t, with -t merely indicating the f gender, suggests that the IE (and other) vv are redupp of a Medit r ka-*, itself clearly echoic.

cackle, v hence n: ME cakelen, adopted from MD cakelen (var kekelen; D kakelen): ult echoic. Cf GAGGLE and GIGGLE.

cacōthes scribendi. See SCRIBE, para 8, s.f.

cacophony: Gr kakophōnia, lit 'bad sound': cf the elements caco- and phon-.

cactus: L. cactus: (Sicilian) Gr kaktos, a prickly plant, esp a cardoon: usu said to be o.o.o., but prob adapted from Eg qatcha, thorns, thornbush.

cad, whence caddish (cad+euphonic d+adj suffix -ish); cadet, caddie (or -y).

The 4th merely represents the E pron of the F original of cadet: late MF-F cadet, younger son, (hence) young officer, derives from Gascon capdet, a chief, from Prov capdel, itself from LL capitellum, the top, dim of L. caput, head: f.a.e., CHIEF. Cf, sem, the sl 'the heads' and 'the big white chief'. Cad merely shortens cadet; orig cad was an unbooked, hence inferior, passenger, occupying an inferior seat on coach or primitive omnibus.

The 2nd (cf the F cadavérique) is an E var (suffix -ic) of the 3rd (cf the EF-F cadavéreux), itself from ML cadāverōsus (suffix -ōsus), L. cadāuerōsus, the adj of ML cadāver (adopted by E), L. cadāuer, which has s cadāu-, r cad-: the r, in short, of cadere, to fall: f.a.e., CADENCE.

caddis, loc caddice.

Both the caddis or anglers' artificial fly and the caddis fly (and caddis worm) derive from caddis, caddice, floss silk, cotton wool, worsted yarn, esp ribbon, itself from EE caddis, lint, from ME cadace, cadaz (cf late MSc cadaz, caddaz), from MF cadaz, cadaz; the sense 'heavy woollen twill' used in Scotland derives from MF cadis (1352), a kind of serge made in the S of France, from OProv cadis, var cadiz, prob connected with Sp Cadiz; the form cadis is app the F prototype. (Craigie; Dauzat and B & W.) But the 'heavy woollen twill' sense perh represents a different word, and the 'floss silk' or 'lint' sense may, as EW proposes, derive from OF cadarce, from OProv cadarz, aphectically from Gr akathartos, uncleaned, a-, not+kathartos, pp of kathairein, to cleanse (f.a.e.

CATHARSIS).

caddy (2), for tea: earlier catty: Malay kaffi, kāfi a solid, hence a lump used as a weight.

cadence, cadent, cadenza; cadaver (sep); caducity, caducous; cascade; case, casual; chance, chancy; chute; parachute.—accidence, accident, accidental; coincide, coincidence, coincident(al); decadence, decadent, decay; deciduous;—escheat;—incidence, incident, incidental; occasion, occasional; occident, occidental;—recidivism, recidivist, recidivous.

1. Cadence, with var cadency (-y, n), is adopted from late MF-F, which thus adapts It cadenza, itself taken over, internationally, by Music: and It cadenza derives from ML cadentia, a falling, e.g. of dice, an offshoot from cadent- (whence the E adj cadent), the o/s of L. cadens, presp of cadere, to fall. Now cadere has s cad-, akin to Skt ṣad-, to fall, to the kad- of Gr kekadomto, they have yielded (fallen to opponents), and prob to EIr, Cor, Ga cās (kās), case, predicament: cf case in next para.

2. The pp cāsus has s cās-, whence the n cāsus (gen cāsus), fall, accident, happening, whence MF-F cas, whence ME cas, later case. The L n cāsus has derivative LL adj cāsualis, whence MF-F casuel and E casual; casuality, contr of casuality, comes from ML cāsualitās, gen -itātis; (see esp B & W) derivative EF-F casuiste, imm from Sp casuista, comes from ML cāsus, a case of conscience, with subsidiary casuistique, whence E casuistic(al); casuistry is an E formation.

3. L. cadere also has adj cadūcus, falling, hence tending to fall, whence E caducous; the derivative LL cadūcītās, o/s cadūcītāt-, became, perh via late MF-F caducitē, the E caducity.

4. L. cadere issues, through its cas- form, into a VL casicāre*, to fall because nothing impedes, whence It cascare, with derivative cascata (d'acqua), whence EF-F, hence E, cascade, whence 'to cascade'.

5. 'To chance' derives from 'a chance', whence also chancy: and chance, n, ME cheance, represents OF-MF cheance, from ML cadentia (see para 1).

6. L. cadere becomes OF-MF cheoir (MF-F choir), whence, from the f pp cheoite (as n), influenced by chu, pp of choir, derives MF-F chute, orig a fall, adopted by E, which has also adopted the F derivative parachute (prefix para-).

7. L. cadere has numerous prefix cpds; some have entered E, the most important being these, mostly based upon cid-, the c/f of cadere:

accidence, for accidents; accident, adj hence n (whence accidental), L. accident-, o/s of accidens, presp of accidere, to happen: ac- for ad, to;

coincidence eases coincident+ce; coincident, adj hence n (whence coincidental), ML coincident-, o/s of coincidens, presp of coincidere, to fall in with or together, to occupy the same space: co-+incidere (see below); decadence: MF-F décadence: ML dēcadentia, a falling away (L. dē, away from), hence deterioration, an abstract n consisting of -ia tacked onto dēcadent-* (whence E decadent, adj hence n), o/s of dēcadens*, presp of dēcadere*; influenced by cadentia; decay, v (whence the pa decayed) hence n: ONF decaër (OF decheir): ML dēcadere*: dē, (down) away from + cadere; deciduous: L dēciduus, adj from dēcidere, to fall off: dē+cid+inf -ere; the L neu pl dēcidua, adopted by An, has adj decidual (-al);

escheat, whence 'to escheat' and escheatage (-age), escheator deriving prob from AF eschetour: ME, from MF, eschete, var eschēoit(e), from escheoir (F échoir): VL excadere*, to fall out for, hence to the lot of: ex, out+cadere; incidence: via F incidence, from LL incidentia (neupl), circumstances; incident, adj hence n (whence incidental), derives, prob via MF-F, from incident-, o/s of incidens, presp of incidere, to fall upon: in, into, onto;

occasion, n hence v and the adj occasional: via OF-F from occāsion-, o/s of L occāsio, from occās-, the s of occāsus, pp of occidere (oc- for prefix ob-), to fall, go down, esp of sun or stars; cf:

occident, (adj and) n: where the sun sets, hence the west: OF-F occident: L occident-, o/s of occidens, presp of occldere: the OF n arose imm from the L n occidens, elliptical for sol occidens, the setting sun; the derivative L adj occidentālis passed through MF-F to become E occidental, whence the n Occidental, opp Oriental; recidivism (-ism) and recidivist (-ist), an habitual criminal, derive from recidivous, tending to fall back (re-): ML recidivus, L recidiuus, from recidere, to fall back.

cadet. See CAD.

cadge, to carry (as a burden), hence to hawk, hence to sponge: b/f from cadger, hawker, hence sponger, itself from cadge, a wicker basket, from F cage (see CAGE); codger, dial and coll, is prob a var.

cadmia, cadmium.

The latter derives, by Chem suffix -ium, from the former, an adoption of L cadmia, calamine (calamine, ML calamina, a distorted derivative of cadmia), from Gr kadmeia ('so named because found near Thebes, the city of Cadmus': B & W), n from f of adj kadmetos, of the myth Kadmos, slayer of a dragon whose teeth became warriors—whence Cadmean victory.

caducity, caducous. See CADENCE, para 3.

Caesar, Caesarean; Kaiser—Czar, Tsar; caesura, whence caesural; the -cide and -cise cpds are treated sep;—sherry.

1. L caedere (s caed-) to cut, esp to cut off, has pp caesus, s caes-, whence caesūra, a cutting-off, hence a part cut off, a division, break, stop, adopted by E metric: cf Skt khidāti, he tears, s khid-.

2. Perh f/e, but prob correct, is the old L explanation of Caesar: caesus matris utero, cut from his mother's womb, one who, caesa matre nascitur, is born after his mother has been cut open; thus reputedly born, Julius Caesar accounts for Caesarean (L Caesarianus) in Caesarean section or operation.

3. The title Kaiser particularizes kaiser, an emperor: G Kaiser, MHG kaiser, OHG keisar, akin to Go kaisar, OE cāsere, OB cēsarb: L Caesar.

4. L Caesar, in becoming Go kaisar, led to OS! cēsari, whence Ru tsesar', later tsar', whence Tsar with frequent var Czar. A Czar's son was tsarevich, whence E Czarevich; a daughter, tsarevna, E Czarevna; wife, tsaritsa, but G Czarín, whence, by blend, E Czarina.

5. Julius Caesar gave his name to Caesaris (urbs), Caesar's City: whence Sp Xeres (now Jerez), whence EE sherris, which, apprehended as a pl, produces the b/f sherry, ('wine of') Xeres.

café, cafeteria, caffein(e). See COFFEE.

cag. See KEG.

cage, n hence v: OF-F cage: ML cavea, L cauea, a cavity, hence a cage: from cauus, hollow: f.a.e., CAVE. Hence perh the adj cagey, wary, from birds shy of capture.

cairn; cairnform.

The latter is lit 'azure of a cairn': Ga gorm, azure+cairn, of a cairn, gen of carn, a heap, esp a rounded heap of stones over, or to the memory of, the dead: of C origin: cf the syn Ir (and EIr), Cor, W, Br, Mx carn (karn): perh an extension of OC car-, var of bar(s)*, an eminence.

caisson. See 2nd CASE, para 4.

caitiff. See captivus, in para 3 of CAPABILITY.

cajole, cajolery.

The latter comes from F cajolerie, an -erie (E -ery) derivative of cajoler, whence 'to cajole'; EF-F cajoler, orig 'to babble like a jay in a cage'. from the syn EF gaioler, from Picard gaiole, a cage, from ML caveola dim of cavea, L cauea, a cage: f.a.e., CAVE. (B & W.)

cake, n, whence 'to cake' and the adj cak(e)y.

The ME cake derives from ON kaka, akin to MLG kōke, MD coeke, coec, coke (D koek), MHG kuoche, OHG kuocho (G Kuchen); the D koek has dim koekje, whence E, esp AE, cookie, cooky. The exact connexion with 'to cook', G kochen, is obscure.

calabash: EF-F calebasse, earlier EF calabasse, either (Webster), by l for r, from Prov carbasse, perh from Ar qar 'ah yābisah, a dry gourd, or more prob (B & W) from Sp calabaza, from Cat carabasa (or -baça), perh from the syn Ar qar 'ah, with obscure suffix or 2nd element. EW derives the F word from Sp calabaza; the latter, from Per kharbuz, a melon.

calaboose (AE), jail: Sp calabozo, dungeon, akin to—? from—Galician cabouco, from caber, L capere, to take, to contain.

calamine. See CADMIA.

calamitous, calamity.

The adj comes, via late MF-F calamiteux, f-iteuse, from L calamitōsus, from calamitās, o/s calamitūdi-, whence, via MF-F calamité, the E calamity (-ity): and calamitās, presumably from an adj, is akin prob to the -colum- of L incolumis, unharméd, perh to Gr kolobos and klambos, mutilated, and perh to Gr kēdein (s kēd-), to afflict, kēdos, affliction, anxiety, and Skt kadanan, destruction (cf the syn L kādēs).

The 1st comes from L calcareus, the adj of calx, lime, o/s calc-, whence the Sci L calcium and the MF-F calciner, whence 'to calcine': f.a.e., CHALK. Cf the element calcareo- and:

calculable, calculate, calculation, calculator, calculatory, calculus; incalculable.

Incalculable: in-, not+calculable; calculable, perh from F, as if from LL calculābilis*, from LL calculāre, to reckon, which has pp calculātus, whence 'to calculate'. On the L pp s calculāt-rose LL calculātiō, a reckoning, with o/s calculātiōn-, whence E calculation, and the LL agent calculātor and the ML adj calculātōrius, whence calculatory. Now calculāre derives from L calculus, dim of calx (gen calcis) or limestone: f.a.e., CHALK. Calculus, pebble, hence (a round) one used in voting or in gambling, hence a children's counter used in reckoning.

cauldron or cauldron: ME, from ONF, caudron, mdfn of ONF caudiere (OF chaudière): VL and LL caldāria, n from L adj caldārius, warming, for warming: caldus, warm: calēre, to be warm: f.a.e., CALORIC; cf CAUDLE.

2. F chaudière, cauldron, results in chowder, a stew cooked in one.

Caledonia, whence Caledonian, adj hence n: L name (Lucan, Tacitus) for Scotland (cf Gr Kalēdonia, adj Kalēdonios), adj Caledonius: of C origin: cf W cel, OIr ceil, a concealing (? cf L celāre, to conceal, s cel-), a shelter, and W celydd, a woody shelter; cf also Mx keyll, Ga coille, OIr caill, Cor coid, Br koed, a wood or forest; perh the -keld of Sc Dunkeld; OC kaldet*. The 'concealment' origin is doubtful; the 'forest', attractive.

calendar, calends; intercalary, intercalate, intercalation.

1. Calendar: ME calender (or k-): L calendārium, an account book, a book showing interest: calendae (or k-), calends, the first day of the Roman month, because such days were proclaimed: from calāre, to proclaim. Calendae yields OE calend, a month, and ME kalendes, a month, (but also) calends, whence E calends, kalends. (F.a.e., CLAIM.)

2. L calāre has cpd intercalāre, to call between, to proclaim (a day) among (inter) the orig days of a month, whence, from the pp intercalātus, the E 'to intercalate'; on the pp s intercalāt-rose intercalātiō, o/s intercalātiōn-, whence E intercalation. Intercalary, however, comes from L intercalārius, an -arius (E -ary) adj on intercal-, the inf s.

calf, pl calves; v, calve.

1. The calf of the leg comes from ON kālfī, akin to ON kālfr, a quadruped calf, itself akin to OE cealf, whence the quadruped calf. OE cealf is akin also to OHG (and G) kalb, Go kalbō, ON kālfir.

That the basic idea in IE is app 'a swelling of the body' is supported by Gaul galba, a fat man, and Skt gārbhas, womb. The Gmc r is kalbh-; the IE r, gwolbh-, with var gwalbh-*: cf Ga calpa, OIr colpa, calf of the leg.

2. 'To calve' derives from OE cealfian (s cealf-), from the OE n.

caliber (AE) or calibre; calibrate, calibration.—caliper or calliper.

Cal(l)iper, usu pl cal(l)ipers, an instrument, is a form-corruption and sense-change of caliber, var of calibre, the diameter of a projectile, hence of the bore of the weapon discharging it: and calibre has come from late MF-F calibre (cf It calibro, obs calibra), itself from Ar qālib, a form or mould (cf Tu kalyb), from qalaba, to turn over, hence to form or mould. The derivative It v calibrare has pp calibrato, whence 'to calibrate', whence, anl with other -ation nn, calibration.

calico: orig imported, via EF-F calicot, from Calicut, on the Malabar coast of India.

California, whence Californian, adj hence n: perh (Enci It) a Sp reshaping—California occurs first in a Sp romance of c1500—of that imaginary land Califerne (o.o.o.) which appears in the Chanson de Roland.

caliper. See CALIBRE.

calisthenics. See CALLISTHENICS.

calc (1), of horse's shoe: perh from L calcar (s calc-), a spur. Cf:

calc (2), occ calque, to trace or copy: EF-F calquer, to trace: It calcare, to trace, (orig) to trample: L calcāre (s calc-), to trample, from calx, a spur, orig a heel. Cf:

calc (3) or caulk, to prevent a ship from leaking by driving tarred oakum into seams: ME cauken: ONF caukier: L calcāre, to trample: L calx, a heel, o.o.o. Cf prec.

call, v hence n, derivatively, caller, calling (cf, sem, VOCATION).

'To call': ME callen: OE ceallian, akin to OHG callōn (or k-), ON kalla, to call, MD callen, to talk, also to OIr gall, a swan, W galw, to call, Ga glaodh, a call, to call, MÍr gloed, a call, Br galu, called, galūein, to call, Cor galow, n, and galu, galua, galwy, v, and prob to OSl glasiti (gla- for gal-), to speak, call out, and glasja, a voice. The relationship to L calāre (s cal-) is obscure, as is that of L calāre to L clamāre (cf CLAIM); both, however, are extremely probable.

calligraphy, beautiful writing; callipygian, fair-buttocked; callisthenics, var calisthenics, bodily exercise to promote health and grace. For calli-, see that element; for -graphy, Gr -graphia, writing, see element -graph; -pygian, from Gr pygē, buttocks; Gr sthenos, strength.

calliper. See CALIBRE.

callosity, callous, callus.

L callus (var callum), indurated skin, adopted by E, is akin to OIr calath, hard, W caled, Cor calēs, calas, calys, Br kalet, W caleden, hardness, a callus, and remotely to Skt kīṇa, callosity; its adj callōsus yields E callous and its derivative abstract n callösität, o/s callösität-, yields, prob via EF-F callosité, the E callosity.

callow (whence calowness): ME calewe, earlier calu: OE calu, featherless, bald, akin to OFris kale, baldness, kalia, to deprive of hair or feathers—to OHG kalo, MHG kal, G kahl, bald—prob to OB golū, naked—perh to L calvus (ML calvus), bald, thence to Skt khalatīś, bald.

callus. See CALLOSITY.

calm, n hence v; calm, adj, whence the superfluous calmness; calmative, adj hence n.

The adj calm derives from MF-F calme (adj from n), from It calmo, adj, from calma, n, from LL cauma, warmth, heat, from Gr kauma, a burning heat, the heat of the day, when beasts are at rest, winds fallen, the fields quiet—cf OProv cauma, heat—from kaiein (s kai-), to burn, for kawein* (s kaw-); IE r, kau-* (kaw-) or kēu-*: cf CAUSTIC. The n calm derives, via ME and MF-F calme, from the It n calma, whence the v calmare, whence MF-F calmer, whence 'to calm'. Calmative imitates palliative and sedative.

calomel: element calo-, beautiful (Gr kalo-)+Gr melas, black: cf the occ F calomelas: a white resultant of a black mixture.

caloric, calorie (var calory), calorific; nonchalance, nonchalant.

1. Caloric=F calorique, from L calor, heat, from calēre, to be hot, s cal-; IE r, kal-* (var kel-), var kla- (or kle-*)—cf OHG lawer, ON hlæer, lukewarm. (Cf CALDRON, CAUDLE, CHAFE, CHAUFFEUR.) Calory anglicizes calorie, adopted from F, which derives it from L calor. Calorific=F calorifique=L calorificus, heat-making, cf the element -fic, from L facere, to make.

2. Nonchalance, adopted from OF-F, derives from F nonchalant, likewise adopted by E: non, not+chalant, presp of OF-MF chaloir, to care (vi), from L calēre, to be hot, hence desirous, hence concerned.

calotte. See CAUL.

caltrop varies caltrap, ME calketrappe, ONF kauketrapp: lit, a trap for the calk or heel.

calumet, Red Indians' ceremonial pipe: EF-F dim (suffix -et) of L calamus, a reed, from Gr kalamos: f.a.e., HAULM.

calumniate, calumniation, calumniator; calumnious, calumny.

L calumnia, whence MF-F calomnie and E calumny, derives from calumnus* (pa), from caluāri (or -āre), to trick or deceive; IE r, kal-, var of kel-. Calumnia has adj calumniōsus, whence MF-F calomnieux and E calumnious, and v calumniāri, to slander, with pp calumniātus, whence 'to calumniate', and with LL agent calumniātor, adopted by E, and with LL abstract calumniātiō, o/s calumniātiōn-, whence E calumniation.

Calvary: ML calvāria, LL caluāria, a bare skull, from calvus, bald: cf CALLOW, s.f. The LL Caluāria renders Gr Kranion (cf CRANIUM), which in turn renders Aram gūlgūlhā, place of skulls, from H gulgōleth, a skull. (Golgotha is a LL adoption of Gr golgotha, from gūlgūlhā.) Cf Luke, xxii, 33, and Matthew, xxvii, 33.

calve. See CALF, para 2.

calx. See CALCAREOUS.

Calypso, calypso. See APOCALYPSE.

calyx: L calyx: Gr kalix, akin to Gr kulix, L calix, a cup, and to Skt kalásas, a cup, and kalikā, a bud: IE s, kalik-, kolik-, kulik-, with r kul- varr kol-, kal-: possibly, however, Gr kalux and L calix are of different origins. Cf CHALICE.

cam, as in camshaft (cf SHAFT), derives from D kam, MD cam, a comb: f.a.e., COMB.

camaraderie. See CAMERA, para 2 camas, usu camass, also quamash, an edible-bulbed lily of West NA: Chinook Jargon kámass, a bulb: Nootka chamas, pleasant-tasting, sweet. (DAE.)

camber: OF-MF cambre, curved, bent, a Norman or Picard form of OF-MF chambre, convex, from L camur or camurus, varr camer, camerus, perh a loan-word: cf Hit kam, gam, down, convexity having a downward curve; or L camer, -ur, s cam-, might be a nasalized mfn of Eg kháb, to bend, or kháb, a crescent.

cambial, cambium. See CHANGE, para 2.

Cambria(n). See CYMRIC.

cambric: earlier camerike; blending F Cambra and Fl Kamerik, the Fl-become-F city where the fabric was orig made.

Cambridge—the latinized Cantabrigia yields Cantabrigian, usu abbr Cantab—was orig 'Roman fort on the Granta', later 'bridge over the Granta' (whence Cam): C8, Grantacaestir; C11, Cantebruge; C15, Cambrugge. (Ekwall.)

came. See COME.

camel: ME, OE camel: L camēlus: Gr kamēlos: of Sem origin—cf H (and Phoen) gāmāl and Ar gaml, jamāl. But surely the source might rather have been the Eg kamāl, kamali, with var gemr? The obs camelopard (see (PARD)=L camēlopardus, altered from camēlopardalis: Gr kamēlopárdalis).

camellia is Sc L, from Georg Kamel or Camelli, the Jesuit reputed to have brought it, c1700, from the East to Europe; thus: kamel (with c for k) + euphonic l + suffix -ia.

camelopard. See CAMEL.

camera and in camera; Camorra; comrade (whence comradeship) and chum and camaraderie; camber (sep).—chamber, n hence v; chamberlain; chamber-pot.

1. In camera, in secret, is L, lit 'in chamber' or private room. The L camera, var camara (whence perh, by dial var, camorra), orig 'vaulted roof, a vault', came, in LL, to mean '(large) room', esp if at all private; it derives from Gr kamárā; IE r kam-, curved, bent, crooked—cf Skt kmarati, (it) is crooked, and Av kamarā, a girdle; cf also the sep CAMBER.

2. L camera, -ara, was adopted by Sp in sense 'chamber'; Sp camara had derivative camarada, chamber-fellowship, (hence) chamber fellow, whence EF-F camarade, whence both camaraderie, adopted by E, and the E comrade; and a slurring of 'chamber fellow' produces chum, whence 'to chum'.

3. L camera became OF-F chambre, whence E chamber; the 'bedroom utensil' sense derives from chamber-pot (EF-F pot de chambre). In chamberlain, -lain = the suffix -ling, but the entire word comes from OF chamberlenc, from Frankish kamerling*—cf OHG chamarling, the stem representing OHG chamara, from L camara, camera.

4. Cf CHIMNEY.

camisade, camise, camisole. See CHEMISE, para 2. camonile. See HOMO, para 4.

camouflage, n hence v: F: by suffix -age from camoufler, to disguise, orig a cant word: It camuffare, to disguise, to deceive, itself orig cant, perh (Prati) via It camuffo* from ML camuzzum, a sort of cloth—used as a mask.

camp, n and v (whence camper, camping), and campus; decamp, decampment; encamp, encampment; scamp (rogue) and scamper.—campaign, n hence v (whence campaigner); champaign and champagne; champignon; champion, n hence adj and v.

1. The source of all these terms is the L campus (s camp-), a field, app o.o.o.—prob a survival from an ancient Italic language (B & W); a remotely possible cognate is the Hit kanza, grass, cereal. 'To camp' comes from EF-F camper, itself from either Picard or Prov camp, from It campo, from campus, itself surviving in AE for college, or university, grounds.

2. Decampment anglicizes F décampement, by suffix -ment from EF-F décamper, whence 'to decamp': dé- (L dis-), from + (F) camp + inf -er.

3. Encampment derives, by -ment, from 'to encamp': en-, in + camp, v.

4. A scamp, highwayman, hence rogue, derives from dial scamp, to roam, itself from scamper, to run hastily or speedily: It scampare (L ex, out of, away from + campus in its frequent sense, 'field of battle'), to escape, orig—it seems—from a battlefield (Prati).

5. L campus has LL adj campānius (var -āneus), whence Campānia, the flat or flattish country about Naples, whence ML campānia, flat country, whence EF-F, from ONF, campagne, such country, hence a war fought in it or a period spent in it, hence in any country, by an army; hence E campaign (orig, flat country).

6. Campaign has the doublet champaign, a plain: ME champayne: OF-MF champaigne: ML campānia. OF-MF champaigne has MF var champagne, whence Champagne, the F province, whence champagne, the scintillant wine made there.

7. The champignon or field-mushroom is adopted from MF-F, which derives it, with a fresh suffix, from the MF champegneul, either from LL campāneus, OF campegneus, or, less prob, from VL campāniolus*, of the campi or fields, (hence) growing in the fields.

8. Champion: ME, from OF-F, champion (earliest, campiun), either, as Webster, from LL-ML campiō, o/s campiōn-, orig a warrior (cf It campione), or, as B & W, from W Gmc kampjo*, warrior, from kamp*, borrowed by G mercenaries from L campus.

campaign. See prec, para 5.

campanology. See the element campani-.

camphor. See element campho-.

campus. See CAMP, para 1.

can, n, whence 'to can', put into cans: ME, from OE, canne: akin to OHG channa, kanne, MHG and G kanne, OS kanna, ON kanna, and prob to Mlr gann, Cor canna (kanna): IE s, perh gandhn-* (Holthausen). The LL canna, a drinking vessel, prob lays a false trail.

can, pt could; con; couth, uncouth—ki; cunning; keen; ken, kenning; know, knowledge.—See sep ACQUAINT(ANCE) and QUAIN; AGNOSTIC; COGNITION, COGNIZANT, CONNOISSEUR; GNOME, with GNOMON, GNOSIS, etc.; IGNORANT, with IGNORE, etc.; INCOGNITO; NARRATE, etc.; NOTE, etc.; RECOGNIZE, with RECOGNITION, RECONNAISSANCE, etc.

1. Could, influenced, as to l, by would (and should), derives from ME coude, earlier couthe, earliest cuthe, from OE cūthe, pt of cunnan (ME cannen, connen), with the importantly operative lc cann (or can), ME I can, I know, hence know how (to), hence be able: with OE cunnan, to know (etc.), cf OE cennan, to make known, ME kennen, to make known, to teach, but also, influenced by ON kenna, to know, whence E 'to ken', to make known (obs), to discern, to know, hence a kenning (cf OFris kanninge, kenninge); OE cunnan is also akin to OFris kunna and kenna, to OHG kunnan, MHG kunnen, G können, to be able, and to OHG -kennēn, MHG and G kennen; to Go kunnan, to know, and -kannjan, to make known; to ON kunna, to know, and kenna, to make known, to know; ken is, in short, a caus of can (in orig sense 'to know').

2. Prob akin to can, OE cunnan, to know, is OE cēne, daring, daringly shrewd, wise, hence sharp, whence ME kene, bold, sharp, whence E keen. The OE cēne is akin to OHG kuoni, MHG küene, G kühn, keen, and ON kōēnn, experienced, wise.

3. Orig the presp of OE cunnan, to know (how), to be able, is cunning, which has become a simple adjective. Compare the obsol couth, known (cf L nōtus), familiar, orig the pp of cunnan; we know it better in the form uncouth (OE uncūth), orig unknown, therefore strange—hence unknowing, therefore ignorant. OE cūth, known, had derivative cūth, cūththe, native land (one's known land)—whence ME cuththe, kiith—whence E kith, (obs) knowledge, hence (obs) familiar land or district, hence neighbours, friends, hence, by confusion, relatives, as in 'kith and kin'.

4. OE cunnan, to know, be able, yields, through its ME var connen, to know (and to be able), the E 'to con', whence conner and conning.

5. Akin to all the prec words, esp to can, to know (how), be able, is 'to know', ME knowen, earlier knawen, from OE cnāwan (s cnāw-): cf OHG -knāan or -chnāan, to know, and ON knā, can, perh for knēga*; cf also Tokh knān, to know, OIr gnāth, known, Skt janati, he knows. (Holt-Hausen.)

6. The n knowledge, ME knowledge, earlier knowleche, perh comes from the v: ME knowlechen, knowlechen, knowlegen, to admit, confess, prob, as OED proposes, from ME cnaw, confession, acknowledgement; the -legen, -ledge is o.o.o. Hence acknowledge, which=ac- for ad, to + 'to knowledge'; with derivative acknowledgement.

7. F.a.e.: NOTE.

Canada, whence Canadian (adj hence n), derives from 'an erroneous interpretation of the Amerindian word canada or canata, 'huts, hovels', which the earliest explorers took for a place-name' (Enci It).

canaille. See CANINE, para 3.

canal, whence (by suffix -ize) canalize; channel, n hence v.

From L canna, a reed (f.a.e., CANE), derives L canālis, water-pipe, large ditch, canal, whence both OF-F canal, whence E canal, and OF chanel, reshaped, after canal, to chenal, the E channel deriving, however, from the older form.

canary, the Canaries.

The L insula Canāria, one of the Canary Islands, was so named from its large canes or dogs (f.a.e., CANINE); the derivative Sp adj canario became n, with senses 'Canary wine' and 'Canary bird', the latter yielding EF-F canari or canarie, whence E canary.

canasta, orig an Argentinian card-game: Sp canasta, a basket, from canasto, large basket, an 'eased' form of the earlier canastro, from L canistrum (f.a.e., CANE). Two packs or decks are used—a 'basketful'.

cancel (v hence n), cancellation; chancel, chancellery, chancellor, chancery.—incarcerate, incarceration.

1. The L carcer, a prison, has var carcar: it is therefore a redup of r car-. Cf the Gr karkaron, karkaros, and Skt karkaṣas, crayfish (hard-shelled). Clearly the IE r kar-* means hard, and it occurs, unreduplicated, in E HARD; clearly, also, we must ult relate both these words to CANCER, the r-n alternation being entirely characteristic of the IE languages.

2. For E, the only important direct impact of carcer results from the prefix-cpd incarcerāre, to put into prison, with pp incarcerātus, whence 'to incarcerate'; the derivative LL incarcerātiō, o/s incarcerātiōn-, yields incarceration.

3. The IE s karkr-* becomes kankr-*, seen in L cancer, a lattice, pl cancri, with dim celluli, (cross-)bars, a trellis or lattice, whence cancellāre, to cover with a trellis or make like a lattice, hence to bar, or cross, out, whence MF-(archaic)F cancellier, whence E 'to cancel'. Cancellation prob comes from ML cancellātiō, o/s cancellātiōn-.

4. L celluli, bars, lattice, became OF chancel, adopted by E: the chancel of a church was orig enclosed with lattices. L cancellārius, from cellilli (which encircled a seat of judgement or other similar authority), became OF-F chancelier, which became ME chanceler, which, influenced by agential -or, became E chancellor. OF chancelier had OF-F derivative chancellerie, whence E chancellery, with contracted doublet chancery.

cancer, whence cancerous; cf the element cancero-. Cancer, the malignant growth, derives from L cancer, a crab, akin to Gr karkinos, Skt karkaṣa, a crab; f.a.e., CANCEL, para 1. L cancer becomes late MF-F chancre, adopted by E in Med sense.

2. The var canker, orig a corroding ulcer, represents ONF cancre (L cancer), adopted by ME, with anglicized var canker.

candelabrum. See candle in para 3 of:

candid, candour; candidate, candidature; incandescence, incandescent.—candle, candelabrum; chandelier.—incendiary, incense (n and v).—sandalwood.

1. Candour, AE candor, comes, the former through F, the latter direct from L candor, itself from candēre (s cand-), to glow white, akin to Gr kandaros (s kandar-, r kand-), a live coal, and Skt candrās (s cand-), shining, shining-white, with cognates in C—e.g., W cann, white, and Br kann, full moon, and karnein, to blanch. Also from candēre is candidus, brilliantly white, whence, perh via F candide, the E candid. Candidus has derivative candidātus, as if from candidāre*, to garment in white; as n, candidātus signifies and indeed produces candidate: those who sought Roman office wore a white toga.

2. Candēre has inch candescere, with presp candescens, o/s incandescent-, whence E candescent, less usu than incandescent, from presp of incandescere, to become warm, in- being int; incandescence = incandescent + the suffix -ce, much as candidacy = candidare + -cy; candidature = candidare + suffix -ure.

3. Candēre has a prefix-cpd of some importance: incendere, to set fire to, with pp incensus, whence OF-F encenser, whence E 'to incense'; the derivative L n incensus (gen incensūs) y:z. OF-F encens, adopted by ME, whence incense, material for producing a perfume. Incendere has ad incendiārius, whence E incendiary (cf the suffix -ary); the L adj used as n produces the E noun incendiary.

4. Skt candrās, shining (as in para 1), is akin to Skt candana, sandalwood, with derivative or, rather, cognate L Gr sandalon, santalum, whence ML sandalum, santalum, whence EF sandal (MF sandalle), EF-F santal, whence E sandal, with explanatory wood added in sandalwood: a fragrant, insect-routing wood.

5. Less remote is candle: ME, from OE, candel: L candēla, a candle, from candēre. Candēla has derivative candelābrum, adopted by E, usu in the L pl candelābra; candelābrum becomes OF chandelabre, whence OF-F chandelier, adopted by E. L candēla becomes OF chandoile, a candle, whence MF-F chandelle, whence MF-F chandelier, one who sells candles, whence the contracted E chandler, who orig sold mainly ship's candles.

candle. See prec, last para.

candy is elliptical for sugar candy, a 'translation' of MF-F sucre candi, itself from It zucchero candi, where candi represents Ar qandī, adj of qand, cane sugar, from Skt khaṇḍa, broken sugar. The MF-F candi has the EF-F v candir, whence E 'to candy'.

cane, n hence v; caramel. Caramel: adopted from late EF-F, comes from OF calemele: ML calamella (-mellus), var of cannamella (etc.), sugar cane: L canna, reed, cane+mel, honey (f.a.e., MELLI-FLUOUS).

2. L canna passes through OProv cana to become MF cane, MF-F canne, whence ME canne or cane: and L canna=Gr kanna, usu said to be of Sem origin (cf H qāneh and Ar qanāh), but perh rather from Eg ganu (varr gen and kenn), a reed, a more likely origin also than the Sumerian-Akkadian gin proposed by Hofmann. Cf CANNISTER, CANNON, CANYON.

canine, canaille; kennel.—cynic (adj hence n), whence cynical and cynicism; cyosure; cf the element cyno-; hound (n hence v), dachshund.

1. Here we have the Gmc (hound, hund), the L (canis), the Gr (kuōn) shapes of an IE word represented in Skt by śván (gen súnas) and in Ve by śuván-; the IE s was prob kuon- or kwon-, or kuan- or kwan-, with shorter form kun-, the r being perh ku-*: cf OIr cú, gen con, and Tokh A ku, both meaning 'dog'.

2. First the Gmc: dachshund=Dachs, a badger+Hund, a dog. G Hund, OHG hunt, is intimately akin to E hound, OE hund, itself akin to OFris (and OS) hund, Go hunds, ON hundr.

3. Then the L: canis, prob for quanis* (IE kuan-+is), has adj caninus, whence E canine (cf the adj suffix -ine). From L canis derives It cane, whence canaglia, a pack of dogs, whence the late MF-F canaille, the rabble, partly adopted by E. Canis has also a derivative canile*, a kennel, whence ONF kenil* and MF-F chenil, whence ME kenel, whence E kennel.

4. The Gr kuōn, gen kunos (o/s kun-), has adj kunikos, whence L cynicus, applied to the Cynics, a philosophical school (lit 'the snarlers'), whence MF-F (modern sense: C17) cynique, whence E cynic, used also as n, with consequent extension of the adj to cynical; cynicism is an E formation (cynic, adj+the suffix -ism); cyosure, app borrowed from EF-F, derives from L Cynosura (a constellation), from Gr kunosoura, lit 'dog's tail'—cf the element -ure.

canister: L canistrum, a basket woven of reeds: prob Gr kanistron, from kanna, a reed: f.a.e., CANE.

canker. See CANCER, para 2. cannabis. See CANVAS.

cannery=can, n+euphonic n+suffix -ery.

cannibal, n hence adj and cannibalism (-ism), whence, or from cannibal, cannibalistic; Carib, whence the adj Cariban (-an) and Caribbean (-ean).

The Caribs, an Amerindian race of northern S Am and the West Indies, were anthropophagous:

in Cuba, Columbus heard the form caniba: the Cariban name, calina or galibi (lit, strong men), became Sp canibal (var caribal), a cannibal, whence E cannibal.

cannon, canon, cañon or canyon.

L canna, a reed (f.a.e., CANE), became It canna with aug cannone, a large reed, esp a large tube, whence MF-F canon, whence E canon; became also Sp caña, whence caño, a tube, whence cañon, a (large) tube, a hollow, whence a cañon or deep valley, high-sided, duly Englished as canyon. Derivative It cannonata prompted EF-F canonade, whence, anl, the E cannonade.

2. Akin to Gr kanna (the origin of L canna) is Gr kanōn, a rod, hence a rule, whence L canon, a rule, whence OE canon, a moral rule, whence E canon, a rule, esp a code. The L canon, a rule, (LL) a list, has adj canonicus (perh direct from the Gr adj kanonikos), named on the list of a large church's staff, whence, in LL, a clergyman, whence the ONF canoine, whence ME canoun, whence E canon, officer of the Church. In ML, canonicus has the mfn canonicālis, whence E canonical, whence the pl n canonicals. 'To canonize' comes from ML canonizāre, perh via MF-F canoniser.

canny, shrewd, careful: can, to know+orthographic n+adj -y: f.a.e., CAN, v, where cf cunning. canoë: EE canoā, adopted from Sp: Taino canoa and (Antilles') Carib canaoa, canaëua.

canon, a rule, and officer of the Church. See CANNON, para 2.

cañon. See CANNON, para 1.

canonical, canonize. See CANNON, para 2.

canopy, n hence v: EF-F canapé: ML canapeum, a canopy: L canopeum, a curtain, e.g. one over a bed: Gr kōnōpeion, a mosquito-net: orig the neu of kōnōpeios, the adj of kōnōps, mosquito, gnat: kōn- became kan-, perh (Hofmann) under the influence of the Ancient Eg city Cānōps. Kōnōps itself is app a loan-word: perh cf Eg khenus, khnemes, gnat, mosquito.

cant (1), an angle, a tilt, an inclined plane: ONF cant, edge, angle, prob via MD: L cantus, var of kanthus, an iron band around a carriage wheel, a metal tire: Gr kanthos, felly of a wheel (from L), prob the corner of the eye: perh of Gaul origin, but orig from IE s kanth-, extension of kam-, curved, bent (see CAMERA). Hence: 'to cant'.

2. Akin is 'to decant' (whence a decanter): F décantar: ML decanthāre, to pour from the canthus or edge (the lip) of a vessel.

3. L cantus, edge (etc.), has derivative OProv canton, orig a corner, hence a mountainous district: adopted by MF-F, hence by E; 'to canton' prob comes from the MF-F cantonner, to divide into parts, hence into districts, with derivative cantonnement, whence E cantonment.

4. ONF cant, edge, angle, has dim cantel, corner, side, adopted by ME, whence E cantle.

cant (2), n hence adj and v, whence canter and canting, adj and n: the singing, whining utterance of certain preachers and, from much earlier, of beggars: L cantus (gen cantūs), chanting, singing, perh via ONF cant: akin to cantāre (s cant-), to sing or chant, orig an int of canere (s can-), to sing or chant: f.a.e., HEN.

2. It, from L, cantare has pp cantato, with f cantata, adopted by E, elliptical for 'musica cantata': 'sung music'.

3. L cantus became OF-F chant, adopted by E; cantāre became OF-F chanter, whence E 'to chant'.

Cantab. See CAMBRIDGE.

cantata. See para 2 of the 2nd CANT.

canteen: late EF-F cantine, a case for bottles, a store (and café) for enlisted men: It cantina, a cellar, 'prob derived from canto, "corner", apprehended as "reserve"' (B & W): therefore from L cantus, q.v. at the 1st CANT.

canter (1). See the 2nd CANT.

canter (2), n hence v: from 'Canterbury gallop', a slow and easy gallop, adopted by pilgrims riding to the shrine of Thomas à Becket at Canterbury (England).

cantharides, made from the cantharis (pl cantharides), blister beetle or Spanish fly; L, from Gr kantharis, o.o.o.

canticle: L canticulum, dim of canticum, a song, from canere, to sing: f.a.e., HEN; cf the 2nd CANT.

cantilever: ? cant, an (external) angle, cf the 1st CANT+euphonic i, for 'easement'+LEVER.

canting. See the 2nd CANT.

cantle. See 1st CANT, para 4.

canto: It, from L cantus, a song: cf 2nd CANT and, f.a.e., see HEN.

canton; cantonment. See 1st CANT, para 3.

canvas, n, and canvass, v; cannabis.

The 3rd is adopted from L, where it means 'hemp' (indeed, see HEMP): its derivative VL cannabaceus*, hempen, yields ONF-F canevas, adopted by ME, whence E canvas, whence 'to canvas', differentiated as canvass, to toss in a canvas sheet, hence to castigate, hence to examine severely, hence to solicit for votes: Webster compares OF canabasser, to sift through canvas, hence to sift thoroughly, hence to examine thoroughly. But F canevas could blend Picard canavach and OF chenevas (orig 'made of hemp'), a derivative of OF chaneve, itself from L cannabis, as B & W hold.

canyon. See CANNON, para 1, s.f.

cap, n hence v; cape (garment); cope, coping stone; chapel.

1. Cap, a simple head-covering, derives, via ME cappe, from OE caeppe, cap, cape, from LL cappa, perh from caput, head (E & M). L cappa becomes OProv capa, whence late MF-F, hence E, cape. Cappa has ML var capa, a long cape, whence ME, hence E, cope, with derivative sense 'arch' or 'vault', whence 'coping stone'.

2. Cappa has dim VL cappella*, a short cloak, later a reliquary or a sacred vessel, then a chapel, whence OF-MF, hence ME, chapele, whence EF-F chapelle and E chapel. (Webster.) B & W, however, after deriving OF chapele from VL cappella*, explain the 'chapel' sense by the fact that 'it served at first to designate the place where they kept the cape (chape) of St Martin of Tours—a cape venerated by the first kings of France'. But note that OF chapele more prob derives from ML capella, a chapel, whence ML capellānus, a chaplain. Whatever the VL or the LL form may have been, the ML word for 'chapel' is capella, not capella.

3. Cf CHAPERON, CHAPLAIN, CHAPLET.

capability, capable.

1. The former, anl with able, ability, derives from the latter: and the latter comes, prob through MF-F capable, from LL capābilis, capacious, (then) capable, itself from capere (s cap-), to take in one's hands, to contain, to take: IE r, kap-, varr kep- and kōp-* or kōp-*.

2. On the s cap- arises the adj capāx, able to hold or contain, hence spacious, with o/s capāc-, whence, by suffix -ious, the E adj capacious; the derivative capācītās, o/s capācītāt-, becomes MF-F capacitē becomes E capacity, whence capacitate, usu in the neg incapacitate, anl with other -ate vv; incapacity renders EF-F incapacitē.

3. On the s capti- of the pp captus arise:

captiō, a taking, o/s captiōn-, whence, partly by confusion with caput, head, the E caption; hence captiōsus, whence E captious; captivus, ML captivus, whence ONF caitif, whence ME caitif, whence E caitiff (adj hence n), and F captif and E captive; the derivative captivitas, ML captivitas, o/s captivitat-, yielding E captivity and the derivative LL captivāre, ML -vāre, with pp captivātus, yielding 'to captivate';

LL captor, a taker, hence a capturer, adopted by E; captūra, whence MF-F capture, adopted by E, whence 'to capture'.

4. V cpds in -āre include:

anticipāre, to take (capere) before (ante) the proper or usual time, with pp anticipātus, whence 'to anticipate'; the derivative anticipatiō, o/s anticipatiōn-, yields anticipation; anticipative and anticipatory are E adj formations in -ive, -ory;

occupāre (oc- for ob-): OF-F occupar: ME occupien: E 'to occupy', whence occupier; occupant (whence occupancy) comes, perh via F occupant, from L occupant-, o/s of the presp occupans; on the pp occupātus (s occupāt-) arises occupatiō, o/s occupatiōn-, whence, via OF-F, the E occupation, with adj occupational;

participāre, from particeps (see para 8), has pp participātus, whence 'to participate'; on the pp s participār- arises LL participatiō, o/s participatiōn-, whence, via MF-F, the E participation; the presp participans has o/s participant-, whence the E adj, hence n, participant; LL participātor, adopted by E; whereas participative, -atory, are E formations, participable represents the LL participābilis; recuperāre, to get back, to recover, has pp recuperātus, whence 'to recoverate'; the derivative recuperatiō, o/s recuperatiōn-, yields recuperation; recuperātivus, ML -ivus, becomes recuperative; recuperator is adopted by E; recuperatōrius becomes recuperatory.

5. Also from recuperare comes, via OF recover, ME recoveren, the E 'to recover'; recovery is prob recover+n suffix -y, although cf the OF recovree (from recover).

6. The freq captare, to catch, has pp captātus, with derivative captātiō, o/s captātiōn-, whence, via EF-F, the E captation; legal ad captandū=L ad captandū vulgus, for the purpose of winning over the crowd by appealing to sentiment. Cf the sep entry CATCH, where also CHASE, to pursue.

7. Cpđ vv in -cipere (s cap-), the true c/f of capere, have considerably influenced E:

accipere, to take to (L ad) oneself, hence to receive: see the sep ACCEPT; concipere, to take together (L con), to contain, to gather, notably concipere semina, (of a woman) to gather the male seed, to conceive; from the derivative n conceptus (gen -ūs) derives E concept, whence the adj conceptual; from the derivative conceptiō, o/s conceptiōn-, derives, via OF-F, the E conception; conceit (n hence v, whence the pa conceited) prob comes from the L n conceptus, but perh stands to conceive as deceit to deceive; 'to conceive' derives either from OF conceivre (F concevoir), esp from 'ils conceivent', they conceive, or, more prob, from the var conceveir, itself from L concipere, pp conceptus; conceivable=conceive+able, or it represents EF-F conceivable; inconceivable=in-, not+conceive+able, or it represents EF-F inconceivable; preconceive (whence preconceivable)=pre-, before+conceive; preconception=pre-+conception; dēcipere, to take by causing game to fall (dē, down from) into a trap, hence to capture by ruse, hence to trick, hence to betray; dēcipere becomes OF deceivre, deceveir (F décevoir), whence E 'to deceive', whence deceiver; on the pp dēceptus (s dēcept-) arises LL dēceptiō, o/s dēceptiōn-, whence, via OF-F, the E deception; deceptive either represents F déceptive, f of déceptif, prob from dēception, or comes, perh via F, from LL dēceptiūsus, ML -ivus; deceptious comes from MF dēceptieux, f dēceptieuse, from LL dēceptiōsus; deceit (whence deceitful), ME deceite, adopted from OF, comes from LL dēceptus (gen -ūs), fraud, deception; excipere, to take separately (ex, out of, the general), has pp exceptus, whence both the E prep except and the L v exceptāre, whence F excepter, whence E 'to except'; exception (whence the adj exceptional) comes, via AF excepcioun, from the derivative L n exceptiō, o/s exceptiōn-; exceptive prob derives from LL exceptiūsus* (cf LL exceptiūsus, by way of an exception); incipere, to undertake (lit, take in), hence to begin, has pp inceptus, with derivative inceptiō, o/s inceptiōn-, whence E inception, and the freq inceptāre, whence 'to incept', and the agent inceptor, adopted by E, and the LL adj inceptiūsus (ML -ivus), whence E inceptive; intercipere, to take from among, i.e. to intercept, has pp interceptus, whence, perh via EF-F, 'to intercept'; derivative interceptiō, o/s interceptiōn-, yields, perh via EF-F, interception; interceptive is an E formation, prob after receptive; interceptor is adopted from L; percipere, to take (something) through (something else), hence to perceive, has pp perceptus, neu perceptum, whence the Psy percept; on the pp s percept- arise both LL perceptibilis, whence MF-F, hence E, perceptible (cf E from MF-F imperceptibile, from ML imperceptibilis), and L perceptiō, o/s perceptiōn-, whence, perh via F, perception; perceptive is an E formation, prob from receptive; 'to perceive' comes from OF perceveir (esp 'ils perceivent', they perceive), var of parceveir, from percipere; praecipere, to take in advance, hence to recommend or prescribe, has pp praeceptus, neu praeceptum, used also as n, whence OF-MF, whence E, precept; on the pp s praeept- arise praeeptiō, o/s praeeptiōn-, whence E preception—the agent praeeptor, whence E preceptor—the adj praeeptiūsus (ML -ivus), whence E preceptive;

recipere, to gather, to take something offered, has pp receptus, whence the n recepta, elliptical for pecunia recepta, money received, whence OF recepte, eased to recete (F recette), whence ME receite, whence, influenced by the L, the E receipt, whence 'to receipt'; on the pp s recept- arise LL receptibilis, whence E receptible—receptiō, o/s receptiōn-, whence, prob via OF-F, the E reception, whence receptionist (-ist)—ML receptivus, whence E receptive—and the int receptāre, whence receptāculum, whence—prob via MF-F—the E receptacle; 'to receive', whence (perh by F example) receivable and receiver, comes from OF receivre, esp 'ils receivent', they receive, from recipere; suscipere, to take from underneath (sub), hence to undertake, has pp susceptus, neu susceptum, whence the Bio n suscept (cf the El susceptance, suffix -ance); on the pp s suscept- arise LL susceptibilis, neg insusceptibilis, whence E susceptible, neg insusceptible, and derivative ML susceptibilitās, o/s -itāt-, whence E susceptibility—and susceptiō, o/s susceptiōn-, whence E susception.

8. L capere has an agential c/f -ceps, which occurs, relevantly to E, in:

forceps, tongs, pincers, for formiceps* or formuceps*, lit 'a hot-taker, a taker of what is hot': L -formus (s form-), hot (akin to WARM)+-ceps; adopted by E; manceps, a taker-in-hand, i.e. one who takes something, lit in his hand (L manus: see MANUAL), in order to possess or re-possess it: o/s mancip-, seen in mancipāre, pp mancipātus, whence 'to mancipate', to transfer (a slave) by selling, with subsidiary mancipātiō, o/s mancipātiōn-, whence E mancipation; commoner is the prefix cpđ ēmancipāre, pp ēmancipātus, whence 'to emancipate', with subsidiary ēmancipātiō, o/s ēmancipātiōn-, whence E emancipation, and LL ēmancipātor, adopted by E; emancipatory and emancipist are E formations; municeps (where muni- represents munia, official duties: f.a.e., MEAN, adj), inhabitant of a free town, with derivative adj municipālis, whence EF-F and E municipal; municipality comes from F municipalité, derived anl from L municipālis; particeps, 'who takes his part of' (pars, a portion, o/s part-: f.a.e., PART), has the derivative Gram term participium, whence OF participle, adopted by E; the L adj participiālis yields E participle; princeps, a prince=primus, first (f.a.e., PRIME)+-ceps, taker, primiceps* becoming princeps, whence OF-F prince, adopted by E (whence princely), the derivative MF-F princesse being adapted to princess; the derivatives are important—principālis (princip-, o/s of princeps+-ālis, E -al, adj suffix), whence the E adj hence n principal, the subsidiary LL principālītās, princeliness, pre-eminence, yielding, via MF principalitē, the E principality—principātus (gen -atūs), a prince's power or domain, whence E principate—principium, where the emphasis lies upon the 1st element, whence MF-F principle, whence, influenced by OF principel, princely, hence principal, the E principle, whence the v principle, mostly in the pa unprincipled.

9. Cf HEAVE.

capacious, capacity. See prec, para 2.

cap-a-pie. See FOOT, para 15.

caparison. The v comes from EF-F caparaçonner, from late MF-F caparaçon (whence the E n), itself from Prov and ult akin to:

cape (1), a garment. See CAP.

cape (2), a headland: MF-F, from It capo, head: L caput: f.a.e., CAPITAL.

caper, (1), n and v. See CAB, para 2.

caper (2), a shrub, with buds and berries used in sauces: late MF-F cāpre: It cappero: L capparis, trln of Gr kapparis, prob of Médit stock.

capillary, adj ('hair-like') hence n, hence also capillarity: L capillāris, from capillus, the hair of the head: o.o.o.: ? caput, head+pilus, hair (Jules Bloch). Cf the element capilli.

2. Dishevelled is the pa of dishevel, to loosen or disarray (one's hair), from MF descheveler, from VL discapillāre*: dis-, apart from+capillus.

capital, adj hence n, whence also capitalism, capitalist, capitalize; capitation; capitulate, capitulation.

The adj capital is adopted from OF-F capital: L capitālis, of the head, concerning loss of head, from caput, the head, o/s capit- (f.a.e., CHIEF); the n capital is adopted from EF-F. Capitation derives from LL capitātiōn-, o/s of capitātiō, a poll tax, from capit-; 'to capitulate', from ML capitulātus, pp of capitulāre, to number, hence to distinguish, by heads or chapters, with derivative capitulātiō, o/s capitulātiōn-, whence, via EF-F, the E capitulation, with E-formed adj capitulatory. The cpd LL recapitulāre, to number again, has pp recapitulātus, whence 'to recapitulate', and subsidiary recapitulātiō, o/s -ātiōn-, whence, perh via MF-F, the E recapitulation.

capon, a castrated cock or male chicken: OE capun: L capon-, o/s of capō, akin to Gr koptein, to cut: cf COMMMA.

caprice, capricious. See CAB, para 3.

Capricorn. See the element capri-.

capsize: earlier capacise, o.o.o.: prob cf F chavirer, to capsize, from Prov capvira, to turn (F virer) the head (L caput) downwards, as B & W have shown.

capstan: MF-F, from OProv, cabestan: Pro cabestran, orig the presp of a v deriving from Prov cabestre, halter, (later) a pulley cord: L capistrum, a snaffle, (later) a halter, a strong cord: o.o.o., but prob deriving from L capere (s cap-), to hold, to take—unless it comes from L caput (s cap-), head. (B & W; E & M.) capsule. See the 2nd CASE, para 2.

captain (hence v), whence captaincy (suffix -cy): ME capitain: MF-F capitaine: LL capitāneus, adj from L caput, head, o/s capit-: f.a.e., CHIEF.

caption. See CAPABILITY, para 6.

captor; capture, n and v. See CAPABILITY, para 3.

car; career, n hence v; carriage, carry; charge; chariot.

1. Car, a chariot, later a vehicle, derives from ME, from ONF, carre, from LL carra (L carrus): of C origin: cf Br kar(r), chariot, carriage, Cor car, chariot, and carios, cart, carriage, Ga and OIr carr, dray, sledge, W car, chariot, dray, sledge, OC carsos* (karsos*), from cars*, to run: cf current at COURSE.

2. Career represents EF-F carrière, highway, (race)course, hence a running, from OProv carriera, deriving from ML (via) carrāria, a road for vehicles, itself from L carrus; with the ML adj carrārius, cf the LL adj carrāricus.

3. Carriage derives from ONF carriage, a carrying, from carier, to carry in a vehicle, whence 'to carry', whence carrier: and ONF carier (cf the OF-F charrier, from char) derives from ONF car, itself from L carrus.

4. Charge, n, adopted from OF-F, comes from OF-MF chargier, to load, whence 'to charge' orig to load, hence to place, upon someone, a load other than of weight: and OF-MF chargier (EF-F charger) represents VL carricāre*, from carrus, a waggon, (earlier) chariot. A charger, whether a large platter or a cavalry or ceremonial horse, carries a weight: ME chargeour: MF chargeour, from chargier. Discharge, n, derives from 'to discharge': ME dischargen, earlier des-: OF-MF deschargier: VL discarricāre*: dis, away or apart from (i.e. riddance)+carricāre*. Surcharge, adopted from late MF-F, derives from OF-MF surchargier, EF-F surcharger (sur=L super, over), whence 'to surcharge'.

5. Chariot itself, adopted from MF-EF chariot, chariote, is a dim of OF-F char, itself from L carrus; hence the v 'to chariot', whence a charioteer.

6. Cf CARGO and CARK.

caracul. See KARAKUL.

caramel. See CANE.

carapace: late EF-F carapuce: Sp carapacho, o.o.o.: ? L caro, flesh (akin to Gr keirein, to cut) +Gr pakhus, thick (cf pachyderm at element dachy-).

carat: MF-F carat: alchemists' ML carratus: (like It carato, from) Ar qīrāt, bean, weight of four grains, carat: Gr keration, a little keras or horn (f.a.e.: CEREBRAL), a carab bean, a carat.

Caravanserai is EF-F caravansérai (now -sérail): Per kārwānsarāi, cpd of kārwān, caravan + sarāt, palace, (large) inn, the form -serai being due to Tu serāt, derived from Per sarāt. Kārwān, a company of travellers, esp merchants or pilgrims, whence the mod sense 'covered vehicle', became MF carvane, later caravane, whence E caravan, which, drastically lopped, yields van, a light waggon, (later) a large covered vehicle.

carbide. See the element carbo-.

The latter is EF-F carabinier, from EF-F carabine, a carbine, whence E carbine: carabine derives from EF-F carabin, a carabineer, itself from EF escarrabin, vocalized form of scarrabin, a bearer of plague-stricken corpses, prob (Webster) orig a carrion beetle, from scarabée, a beetle, itself from L scarabaeus, a dung-beetle, from the syn Gr skarabeios, itself app a mdfn of karabos, any horned beetle or prickly crustacean: perh of the 1st CRAB; perh also of the Eg kheprer, a dung-beetle.

carbon: F carbone (cf OF-F charbon, coal): from L carbō, coal, o/s carbōn:- perh ult akin to HEARTH. Adj: carbonic.

carbuncle, orig a red-hued precious stone: ONF carbuncle: L carbunculus, a little piece of carbō (see prec) or coal, later the precious stone and the tumour. Adj: carbuncular.

carburettor (-etor, -etter) is the agent -or, -er, of carburet, to combine (something) with carbon; cf the suffix -er, a carburet being a carbide.

carcase or carcass: EF-F carcasse: MF charcois, carcois: perh from MF-F carquois, a quiver for arrows, influenced by chair, flesh (B & W).

card (1), a tool used in cloth-making: MF-F carde, head of a thistle, hence the tool: Prov carda, from cardar, to card, whence MF-F carder, whence E 'to card'. The Prov cardar derives from VL cartiāre*, itself app a blend of L cārere (s car-), to card + cardu(u)s, a thistle.

card (2), made of paper; carte blanche; cartel; carton and cartoon (n, hence v and cartoonist); cartography, whence anl -grapher, -graphic(al); cartidge; cartulary; -chart, n hence v; Magna C(h)arta; charter, n hence v; Chartist; chartulary; -écarté.

1. Card anglicizes MF-F carte: L carta, var of charta: Gr khartēs, a leaf of papyrus, a writing: o.o.o., but prob of Hamitic origin—cf Eg tche-t, papyrus, and tchamaa, (a roll of) papyrus, a document.

2. Carte blanche, complete freedom, comes from EF-F donner carte blanche, lit 'to give a blank sheet of paper'.

3. Cartel, orig a letter of challenge, much later an agreement between opponents: EF-F cartel: It cartello, dim of carta: L c(h)arta.

5. Cartography owes something to F cartographie, lit map-drawing: cf the elements carto- and -graph.

6. Cartridge: earlier cartrage, a slovening of F cartouche, EF cartuche: It cartuccia, a suffix (uccia, cf -accia, E -ace) derivative of carta, paper: L c(h)arta. Many sorts of cartridge are wrapped in pasteboard; hence cartridge paper.

7. Cartulary is a var of chartulary, from ML chartulārium, an -ārium derivative from L chartula, dim of charta, paper; the sense 'archivist' comes from LL chartulārius, an adj used as n.

8. Charter, a written legal instrument, represents MF-F charte (pron char-te), a charter, but orig a map, from L charta; OF-F charte, map, accounts for E chart, a map, esp nautical, hence a graphic presentation of, e.g., statistics. The Chartists, promulgators and adherents of Chartism, are so named from The People's Charter, formulated in 1838.

9. The F card game écarté was orig the pp of EF-F écartier, (at cards) to put aside, to discard: lit, to take a card out (é-). 'To discard' itself derives from late MF-EF descarter (cf the It scartare): des-, L dis- (prefix) + carte, a playing card + inf suffix -er; hence the n discard.

cardiac. See CORDIAL, para 3.

cardinal, adj and n. The n, adopted from MF-F, comes, as does the It cardinale, from ML 'cardinalis (adj as n) ecclesiae Romanae': and the E adj, likewise adopted from MF-F, comes from L cardinālis, adj of cardō (o/s cardin-), a hinge, a pivot: cf, sem, 'key man'. L cardō, s card-, is o.o.o.: cf, however, Skt kīrdati (s kurd-), he leaps, and the perh metaphorical Gr kradē (s krad-), a waving, hence turning, tree-branch, a tree-top, itself akin to Gr kordax, a quivering twig (etc.) at branch's end, and perh to ON hrata, to oscillate, quiver. (Boisacq.)

care (n and v), careful, careless (whence carelessness); chary; cur; garrulous, garrulity.

1. 'To care' derives from OE cearian (s cear-), itself from OE cearu (s cear-), var caru (s car-), grief, sorrow, akin to syn OS kara—to Go kara, OHG chara, a lament, OHG karrōn, kerran, to cry—to L garrīre (s gar-), to chatter—to Gr gērus (s gēr-), Doric gārus (s gar-), voice—to Ga gàir, EIr gàir, a (loud) laugh, a many-voicèd clamour, OIr gairim, I cry (out), cf W garm (s gar-), Cor garm, a cry or call or shout, Br garm, a cry or weeping, OC gar*-, to cry. The IE r gar*-, to cry (out), is clearly echoic: cf Tokh A, B, kar, ker, to laugh.

2. Careful=OE cearful; careless=OE cearlēas (cf -less).

3. OE cearu has adj cearig, whence E chary.

4. Akin to OE cearu are OE ceorian, to murmur, complain, ON kurra, to grumble, and MLG kurren, to growl; the latter perh yields ME curre, E cur, orig any dog, lit 'growler'. The adj is currish (cur+ orthographic -r-+ ish, adj).

5. L garrire, to talk, esp to chatter, has derivative adj garrulus, whence E garrulous: from garrulus derives LL garrulitās, o/s garrulitāt-, whence, prob via EF garrulité, the E garrulity.

careen, to incline (a ship) well over to one side, in order to cleanse it, hence (vi) to lurch, hence to go fast and lurchingly: EF cariner, EF-F carèner, from MF-EF carine, MF-F carène, a ship's keel: It carena: L carina, orig a nut's shell, s carin-, r car-: akin to Gr karuon, a nut, s karu-, r kar-: IE r, kar-*, hard (cf HARD itself).

carmine; crimson, n hence v. Carmine: OF-F carmin=ML carminium: Ar qirmiz, kermes+L minium (Iberian in origin), vermilion. Now, Ar qirmiz also becomes EF-F kermès, whence E kermes, an insect yielding a purplish colouring matter. Ar qirmiz—from Skt kṛmi, insect or worm (akin to Per kirm and Lith kermis, and to L uermis, s uerm-, worm),—further becomes the Sp cremesin, whence E crimson. In the tortuous peregrinations of the Arabic word, the Byz Gr khermezi has app intervened. (B & W.) Cf WORM.

carriage; carnal (carnality) and charnel; carnate and incarnate, carnation and incarnation (and reincarnation) and incarnadine.—carnify, carnification, carnival; Carnivora, carnivore, carnivorous, carnivorous.

1. The full cpds first:

carnification derives, anl, from carnify, to make or become flesh, from L carnificāre: carni-, c/f of L carō (gen carnis), flesh+-ficāre, a c/f of facere, to make (cf FACT); carnival: either EF carneval, EF-F carnaval, or its source, the It carnevale: not from It Carne, vale l, O flesh, farewell (sheer f/e), but prob either from ML carnelevamen, a taking-away of flesh, or, by contr, from the Milanese trans thereof—carnelevale; perh, however, simply It carne+-vale, a false-division adj suffix—cf manovale from mano: therefore '(the festival) of flesh'. (Hoare; Prati; Tommaseo & Bellini.) Orig, the festival before the fasting of Lent;

Carnivora, the flesh-eating quadrupeds: Sci L, from the neu pl of L carniuōrus, ML -vōrus, flesh-eating (cf VORACIOUS), whence the E adj carnivorous and the EF-F adj, whence n, carnivore, adopted, as n, by E; carnivorism=carnivorous+the suffix -ism.

2. The prefix-cpds include:

incarnadine, adj whence v, comes from EF-F incarnadin, from It dial incarnadino, for incarnatino, dim of incarnato, itself from LL incarnātus; cf incarnate, adj whence v: LL incarnātus, pp of incarnāre, to invest with flesh (in-, in); the derivative incarnātiō, o/s incarnātiōn-, becomes OF-F, whence E, incarnation; reincarnate (adj and v), reincarnation: by prefix re-, again, anl with incarnate and incarnation.

3. Next, carnate and carnation. The former, now rare, derives from L carnātus; the latter (late MF carnacion, EF-F carnation), a becoming-flesh, from LL carnātiō, o/s carnātiōn-. The flower carnation derives from the sense 'flesh tints': F painting term, from lit OF carnacion.

4. Only two much-used simple L derivatives of carō remain: LL carnālis, fleshly, with its derivative carnālītās, o/s carnālītāt-, issuing resp into E carnal and E carnality; and LL carnāticum, animals' flesh, whence Prov carnatge, whence EF-F carnage, adopted by E in sense 'a mass or collection of animals' or men's carcasses', the mod sense deriving, through F, from It carnaggio, from carnāticum.

5. LL carnālis had the ML derivative carnāle (orig the neu of the adj), a burial place, whence OF-F charnel, adopted by E, often in the form charnel house.

6. L carō (s car-), orig a piece of flesh, part of a carcass, is akin to Umbrian karu, a part or portion, and kartu, distribution; to Gr keirō (s keir-), I cut, future kerō (s ker-); and to Hit karss-, 'to cut off': basic idea 'a piece of flesh cut off', orig in sacrifices. Cf CUIRASS.

carol, n and v. 'To carol', orig to dance a carol, then to sing and dance one, then merely to sing one, comes from OF-MF caroler, whence the OF-MF n carol, whence the E n carol; OF-MF caroler, prob from L choraula, a flute-player accompanying a choral dance, earlier choraules, from Gr khoraulēs, itself from khoros, a dance+aulēin, to play a flute, from aulos, a flute: the 1st element is allied to CHOIR.

Caroline. See CHURL.

carotid (artery, supposed by Ancient Greeks to cause drowsiness): Gr karōtides, carotid arteries: from karos, torpor, drowsiness, from karousthai, to feel heavy-headed, from kara, the head, s kar-; cf the cer- of L cerebrum.

carousal is an -al (n) derivative from 'a carouse', whence 'to carouse' (cf EF carousser): and the n carouse comes from EF carrouse, earlier EF carous: G garaus, th. roughly (gar) out (aus), all out, as in garaus trinken, to drink it all.

carp (1), a fresh-water fish: MF-F carpe: Prov carpa: ML carpa, app of Gmc origin: cf OHG karpo, var charpfo, MHG karpfe, G Karpfen, and ON karfi, themselves o.o.o.

carp (2): ME carpen, to talk: ON karpa, to boast. In its passage to E, carp was influenced by L carpere (s carp-), to gather or pluck, (hence) to slander (cf 'excerpt').

carpal. See CARPUS.

carpel: SciL carpellum, a dim from Gr karpos, fruit.

carpenter (n hence v), carpentry.

The latter (cf the suffix -ry) derives from ONF carpenterie, from ONF carpentier, whence the E carpenter (cf agential -er): and ONF carpentier (OF-F charpentier) derives from LL 'artifex carpentarius', a waggon- or carriage-maker, from carpentum, waggon, carriage, of the same C origin as CAR.

carpet: OF-MF carpite: perh via It carpita (sing); certainly from ML carpita, var carpeta (pl), woolly cloths. from L carpere (s carp-), to pluck, e.g. wool: f.a.e., HARVEST.

carpus, wrist, with derivative adj (hence n) carpal: SciL: Gr karpos, wrist: f.a.e., WHORL.

carriage, carrier. See CAR, para 3.

carrion, n hence adj; crone; caries.

1. ME carion, earlier caroine, comes from ONF caroigne, carogne, carrion, from VL carōnia*, var of carīōnia*, from L cariēs, decay (adopted by Sci E), perh akin to Gr kēr, death. Cariēs has adj carīōsus, whence E carious.

2. ONF carogne becomes ED karonje, carcass, old ewe, whence, in its contr form kronje, derives E crone, a withered, usu poorish or poor, old woman, dial an old ewe.

carrot, whence the adj carrotty: MF-F carotte: LL carōta: Gr karōton, perh from karos*, var of kara, the head: cf, sem, Gr kephalōton, garlic, from kephalē, head. (Boisacq.)

carry. See CAR, para 3.

cart, n hence v (whence carter); cradle, n hence v.

1. Cart derives, by metathesis, from OE craet; prob orig made of wickerwork, the cart has a name app akin to MD crate, a woven mat or hamper, therefore to cradle, from OE cradel or cradol, itself akin to OHG kratte, a basket, and perh to Skt grantha (nasalized form), a knot.

2. Crate, by some derived from L crātis, wickerwork, a hurdle, might equally come from MD crate, D krat, a basket.

carte blanche. See the 2nd CARD, para 2.

cartel. See the 2nd CARD, para 3.

cartilage, adopted from F, comes from L cartilāgō, akin to L crātis, wickerwork; derivative LL cartilāginōsus yields cartilaginous. Cf crate at CART, para 2.

cartography, etc. See the 2nd CARD, para 5.

carton. See 2nd CARD, para 4.

cartoon, cartoonist. See 2nd CARD, para 4.

cartilage. See 2nd CARD, para 6.

cartulary. See 2nd CARD, para 7.

carve, pt carved, pp carven, vn carving.

Carve derives from OE ceorfan, to cut, (hence) to carve, with several Gmc cognates: cf also the Gr graphein (s graph-), to write, q.v. at GRAPH (cf 1st GRAFT).

cascade. See CADENCE, para 4.

case (1), occurrence, legal cause. See CADENCE, para 2.

case (2), a box, hence v (usu encase; prefix en-) in; casement; caisson; capsule; chase (jewellery, and enchase; chassis; sash (of window).

1. Case, ME cass, ONF casse, goes back to L capsa, box, chest, case, itself from capere (s cap-: f.a.e., CAPABILITY), to hold, contain, take.

2. The L form is visible in E capsule, adopted from EF-F, from L capsula, a little box, dim of capsa; the E adj is capsular—cf the adj suffix -ar.

3. Casement derives, by apheresis, from MF encasement (var of MF-EF encasement, from MF-F enchasser: cf para 5), a frame, and in Mod E it is elliptical for casement window.

4. Caisson, orig a chest for explosives, comes straight from EF-F, which thus adapts It cassone, aug of cassa, from L capsa.

5. 'To chase' jewellery is aphetic for 'to enchase', from MF-F enchâsser, which = en, in + OF-F châsse, a box for relics + inf suffix -er: and châsse, whence the E n chase, setting of a gem, (later) a groove, derives—? influenced by It cassa—from L capsa.

6. The OF-F châsse yields OF-F châssis, a frame, whence E chassis; F châssis perh (Webster) derives rather from OF chassiz, from VL capsiceum*, from LL capsum, from L capsa.

7. E sash (of window) is app a b/f from sashes, earlier shashes, earliest shasses, trln of F châssis, a sing misapprehended as pl. Sash, a scarf, a band, a wide belt, etc., is an entirely different word, deriving from Ar shāsh, a long band of fine material worn as a turban.

8. Cf CASH.

caseic, casein. See CHEESE, para 2.

casement. See the 2nd CASE, para 3. caseous. See CHEESE, para 2.

cash, n hence v; cashier, n.

Cash, orig a money-box, comes, either through EF-F casse or through It cassa (or via EF-F casse, from It cassa), from L capsa, a box: cf the 2nd CASE. L capsa became, prob via a VL derivative, the Prov caissa, whence EF-F caisse (MF quecce), with EF-F agent caissier, whence, via D kassier, the E cashier.

cashew derives, either aphetically from EF-F acajou (adopted by E in differentiated sense), from Port acaju, or direct from the Port aphetic var caju; the Port acaju represents the Tupi (S Am) acajú, the tree concerned.

cashier (1), n. See CASH, s.f.

cashier (2), v: C16 casseir, casseer: MD-ED casseeren, casseren (D kasseeren): OF-F casser (cf Prov casar): LL casāre, to annul, to destroy, from casus, empty, vain, prob from carēre, to lack. (Not from quassāre, freq of quātere, to shake.)

cashmere is elliptical for Cashmere shawl, a shawl made in Kashmir (India); hence, the goat's wool used therefor.

casino, adopted from It (orig, country house, summerhouse), is the dim of casa, a house, from L casa, a hut, a lowly cottage, o.o.o.: perh of C origin, ? casda*, from cad-, var of cap-, to cover—cf the F Alpine dial case, jacket. The It casino yields also the card-game casino. Cf CASSOCK.

cas and casque (helmet) both come from Sp casco, orig a potsherd, then a skull, a helmet, a cask: from cascar, to break, from L quassāre, to break, orig to shake vigorously and continuously, a freq and int of quātere, to shake, o.o.o. Cf QUASH.

casket: MF-F cassette: It cassetta, dim of casa, from L capsa, a box: cf the 2nd CASE.

casque. See CASK.

cassava: F cassave: Sp cazabe: Taino (extinct Caribbean Amerind language) casavi, manioc-flour.

casserole: EF-F casserole, saucepan: extn of MF-F casse (now a ladle, a scoop): OProv cassa: VL cattia, saucepan, trowel: Gr kuathion, dim of kuathos, a cup. (B & W; Dauzat.)

cassia: L casia: Gr kassia, var of kasia: either from H qētsi'āh, from qātsa, to strip off the bark (Webster), or, more prob, from Eg khasit, khesait. cassino. See CASINO.

cassock; chasuble.

The latter, adopted from OF-F, arises in LL casubla, hooded garment, alteration of LL casula, hooded cape, prob a fig use of LL casula, a small hut, from casa, hut: f.a.e., CASINO. The r of casubla is cas-: perh from it arose the It casacca, whence MF-F casaque, whence E cassock, the long, close-fitting eccl garment. Certainly the E word comes from the F, but the MF-F casaque (cf the EF var casquin), orig a tunic, more prob (as B & W propose) comes from Per kazagand, a kind of jacket.

cassowary: Mal kasavāri, kasuāri, prob via the C17 naturalists' Sci L casoaris, casuaris, dat casoari, casuari. The mod Sci L casuarinus has adj casuarinus, f casuarina: the tree casuarina is elliptical for arbor casuarina, 'cassowary tree', its twigs resembling a cassowary's feathers.

cast (v, hence n cast and the vn casting); castaway.

Castaway merely='a person cast away'. 'To cast' derives, via ME casten, from ON kasta, to throw, prob akin to L gestāre (s gest-), orig a freq of gerere, to carry, and formed from the s (gest-) of its pp gestus: therefore cf JEST.

castanet. See CHESTNUT.

caste—chaste, chastity; castigate, castigation—chasten, chastise, chastisement;—incest, incestuous.

1. Caste, orig a race or stock of men, comes from Port casta, (strictly, unmixed) race, from L (gens) casta, f of castus, 'conforming to religious rules and rites', hence—by fusion with castus, lacking, deprived, from carēre, to lack—'exempt free or pure' of some fault, esp sexual, hence 'virtuous, sexually chaste'. The orig castus is akin to Skt ciṣṭas, well educated, well trained.

2. L castus, chaste, yields OF-F chaste, adopted by E; the derivative L castitās, o/s castitāt-, becomes OF-F chasteté, whence E chastity.

3. The orig castus has cpd castigāre, lit to drive (agere), hence to render, chaste, hence to correct, to reprimand, or punish, with pp castigātus, whence 'to castigate'. On the pp s castigāt- arise castigātiō, o/s castigātiōn-, whence castigation, and castigātorius, punitive, whence castigatory.

4. L castigāre becomes OF-MF chastier (F châtier), whence ME chastien, later chasten, whence E 'to chasten', with pa chastening and pa chastened. The ME chastien acquired, by anl with other -ise (or -ize) vv, the var chastisen, whence E 'to chastise', whence chastisement (suffix -ment).

5. L castus has the opp incestus, soiled, impure (in-, not+castus), becoming specialized as 'incestuous', whence the nn incestum, incestus (gen -ūs)—source of E incest—whence the adj incestuous, whence E incestuous.

castigate, castigation. See CASTE, para 3.

castle, n hence v; castellated, castellation; château, châtelaine; castral, castrametation;—caster, -chester, -chester.—Akin to CASTRATE, treated sep.

1. The basic word is L castrum, an entrenched or fortified place, mostly in pl castra, a strongly entrenched, hence a fortified, camp; whence the E adj castral. The cpd castrametāri, to measure off (metāri) a camp, has derivative castrametātiō, o/s -metātiōn, whence, through F, the E castrametation, camp-surveying.

2. Castrum, castra, have the Pl N derivatives -caster, as in Doncaster—chester, as in Worcester—chester, as in Chester and Manchester. Cf Elements.

3. L castrum has dim castellum, fortified camp, fortress, whence ONF and OE castel, whence, esp from the ONF (C14 onwards) sense 'castle', ME castel, whence E castle.

4. L castellum ult becomes F château (for chasteau*), adopted by E. Moreover, castellum has adj, hence n, castellānus, whence ONF castelain, whence obsol E castellan, a castle's governor or warden; whence also OF-MF chastelain, EF-F châtelain, with f châtelaine, a castellan's wife, a castle's mistress, whence E châtelaine, mistress of a large house, whence, from the keys she formerly handled, an ornamental hook, etc., for keys.

5. Castellum has, in ML, the derivative castel- lāre, to build as or like a castle, with pp castellātus, whence the E v castellate and the pa castellated and the anl n castellation.

castor (1), a rodent: OF-F, from L, castor, a beaver: Gr kastōr, from Kastōr, twin of Pollux. The secretion castor (whence castor oil) derives from ML castoreum, rendering Gr kastorion, neu sing of adj kastorios, of the kastōr or beaver. That secretion was used in maladies of the womb: and Kastor was a noted preserver of women. (Boisacq.)

castor (2), as in the castor of a chair- or bed-leg: earlier caster (still occ used), from cast, to throw, to turn (in packing, e.g., furniture).

castor oil. See the 1st CASTOR.

castral; castrametation. See CASTLE, para 1.

The Bot adj castrate and the v 'to castrate' come from L castrātus, pp of castrāre, to castrate; the n castrate, castrated person, eunuch, has the same origin, but reaches E prob via It castrato (applied to operatic singers) and F castrat; on the pp s castrāt- arises the n castrātiō, o/s castrātiōn-, whence, prob via F, the E castration. The L castrāre, s castr-, derives from PL kastrōm (kas-, r+-ro-, a formative+-m, suffix of neu n), 'that which serves to cut', whence L castrum, (lit) a cutting off, (hence) a place cut off, hence an entrenchment, hence a place trench-fortified, hence a fortified camp: cf CASTLE. With castrum, cf the Skt gastrām, a cutting instrument, and, with the L r cas-, cf the Skt śasati, he cuts; prob cf also the IE kezō (s keaz-, elongation of kaz-), I split or cleave. The IE r would be kez-, var kaz-*. (E & M.) casual, casualty. See CADENCE, para 2.

casuarina. See CASSOWARY.

casuist, casuistry. See CADENCE, para 2.

cat; catbird, catfish, catgut, catkin, catsup, cat-tail; cat's-claw, -cradle, -ear, -eye, -paw, -tail; caterpillar, caterwaul; catty.—kitten, kitling, kitty, kit.

1. ME cat derives partly from OE cat, catt, catte, partly from ONF cat: LL cattus, f catta, s catti, r cat-: either of C origin, cf Gaul kattos* (s katt-*), PN Cattos, derived by Malvezin from r cat-*, to flee, cf also Ga and OIr cat, Mx cat or cayt, W cath, Br cas, caz (kaz) and earlier kad, Cor cāth (kāth) or cāt (kāt); or, less prob, but as E & M suggest, African—but the closest word afforded by Eg is āmdit or māt, cat. The other cognates, e.g. OHG kazza, ON köttur, cat, Serb koiti (r ko-), to whelp, Ru kot, tomcat, merely serve to indicate that the C origin is at least possible.

2. Catbird: one of its calls resembles a cat's mew; catfish: with teeth, barbels—and ferocity—resembling a cat's; catgut: folklore; made usu from the intestines of sheep; catkin: cat+dim suffix -kin: it resembles a cat's tail;

catnip: cats enjoy it;

cat-tail (cattail): a plant with furry spikes; cat's-claw: a shrub with hooked tendrils; cat's cradle: strings so arranged as to form a small cradle—fit for a cat; cat's-ear: a plant with leaves not unlike a cat's ear; cat's-eye: a gem emitting reflections, as does a cat's eye; cat's-paw: a light wind ruffling the water much as it would ripple to a cat's paw; as 'dupe' it arises from the fable of a monkey using a cat's paw to pull chestnuts out of a fire; cat's-tail: any of several plants that resemble one.

3. The adj of cat is catty: cat+euphonic t+adj suffix -y.

4. Two not entirely obvious cpds of cat are:

caterpillar: ONF cate plue, var catepelose: LL catta pilosa, (lit) hairy cat; caterwaul: either from MD kater, tomcat+D wauwelen, to tattle, cf LG dial katterwaulen, to caterwaul, or for catawail, an easing of cat-wail, to wail like a cat.

5. Kitling, a kitten, derives from ON ketlingr, dim of köttur, cat—or of its E-derived var ketta. Kit is short for kitten: and kitten derives from ME kitoun, itself (the -i- influenced by the 1st -i- of kitling) from ONF caton, dim of ONF cat, cat; its adj is kittenish and its pet-form is kitty.

catachresis: adopted from L: Gr katakhrēsis, a misuse, from katakhrēsthai: kata-, against (see Prefixes)+khrēsthai, to use. The Gr adj katakhrēstikos yields E catachrestic.

cataclysm, whence the adj cataclysmic: EF-F cataclysm: LL cataclysmus, the Biblical Flood: Gr kataklysmos, from katakluzein, to inundate: kata-, down+kluzein, to wash.

catacomb: MF-F catacombe: It catacomba: LL catacumba, prob a hybrid, either of Gr kata, down+L tumba, tomb, or of Gr kata+cumbere (s cumb-), to lie down, to be abed, sense-influenced by tumba.

catacoustics. See ACOUSTIC.

catalfaque. See SCAFFOLD.

catalepsy, cataleptic. See EPILEPSY, para 2, and cf the element -lepsia.

catalogue, n hence v (whence cataloguer): MF-F: LL catalogus: Gr katalogos, a list, (lit) a counting up, from katalegein: kata-, down+legein, to say, to count (cf LOGIC).

catalpa, an A tree: SciL, from Creek (Amerind) kutuhlpa, lit 'winged head', ref its flowers. (Mathews.)

catalyse, catalysis, catalyst, catalytic. See LOSE, para 11.

catamenia. See MEASURE, para 2.

catamount=cat of (a) mount, cat of the mountain(s). Also catamountain.

catapult: MF-F catapulte: L catapulta: G katapaltēs or -peltēs: kata, down+pallein (s pall-, r pal-), to hurl.

cataract: perh via EF-F cataracte: L cataracta, earlier catarractes: Gr kataraktēs, an easing of katarrhaktēs, a waterfall, either from katarassein, to dash down (kata, down + arassein, to smite), or from katarrhēgnunai, to break down (kata + rhēgnunai, to break). A cataract in the eye comes from the same Gr word.

catarrh. See RHEUM, para 3.

catastrophē, catastrophie. See STRAP, para 3.

catawba: Choctaw Katāpa, '(a tribe) separated (from other Siouan tribes)'. Mathews.

catch, v hence n (whence adj catchy); chase, to pursue, a pursuit; purchase, v and n.

1. 'To catch', ME catchen, derives from ONF cachier (cf OF chacier, whence F chasser), from VL captiāre*, for L captiāre, int of capere, to take: f.a.e., CAPABILITY; cf HEAVE.

2. VL captiāre* becomes OF-MF chacier (EF-F chasser), whence ME chacen, later chasen, whence 'to chase' or pursue; the derivative OF-MF n chace (EF-F chasse) becomes ME chace, later chase, continuing in E.

3. OF chacier has the OF-MF cpd porchacier, var purchacier, to chase eagerly (por-, per- = L per, through, used int): hence ME porchacen, later purchasen, whence 'to purchase', to chase and catch, hence to attain or obtain, esp with money. The OF-MF v has derivative n porchace, purchace, etc., which becomes porchas, pourchas, purchas, etc., whence E purchase.

catechism, catechist, catechize.

'To catechize' comes—perh via MF-F catéchiser—from LL catechizāre, from LGr katēkhizein, var of Gr katēkhein, to instruct, (lit) to sound through or over: kata, down, used int + ēkhein, to sound, from ēkhē, a sound, itself echoic. Katēkhein has (1) agent katēkhistēs*, an instructor, (later) esp in religious knowledge, whence LL catechista, whence E catechist (cf EF-F catéchiste), and (2) abstract-n derivative katēkhismos, whence LL catechismus, whence MF-F catéchisme and, perh imm from F, the E catechism. Cf ECHO.

Categorical is an E elaboration of categoric (cf EF-F catégorique), from LL catēgoricus, trln of Gr katēgorikos, the adj of katēgoria, whence LL catēgoria, whence E category (cf EF-F catégorie); and katēgoria derives from katēgorein, to accuse, (but also) to affirm or predicate: kata, against, also merely int + (the r of) agoreuein, to harangue, (but also) to assert, from agora, an assembly: ult from agein, to drive, (hence) to do: cf ACT and AGENT.

catena, catenary, catenate (catenation). See CHAIN, para 1.

cater, v (whence caterer), derives from cater, obs for 'caterer': ME catour, caterer, (lit) purchaser, aphetic for acatour, purchaser: AF, from ONF acatour (cf OF achateor, acateor, the former yielding EF-F acheteur): VL accaptātor*, purchaser (cf ML acaptātio, a purchasing), from VL presumed, through ML factual, accaptāre, to purchase, buy: ad, to + captāre, int of capere, to take.

caterpillar. See CAT, para 4.

catgut. See CAT, para 2.

catharsis: Gr katharsis, a cleansing, a purification, deriving from kathairein (s kathair-, kathar-), to cleanse, from katharos, pure, (lit) utterly clean, spotless: o.o.o.; perh akin to L castus (cf CASTE). Kathairein has derivative adj kathartikos, whence E athartic, whence the Med n, meaning 'a purgative'.

cathedral, adj and n: resp LL-ML cathedrālis (adj of cathedra) and ML cathedrālis (ecclesia), church with a bishop's cathedra or chair: f.a.e., CHAIR, where see cathedratic.

cathode: Gr kathodos, a way (hodos) down (kata).

catholic, adj, whence Catholic, adj, whence Catholic, n; Catholicism (cf EF-F catholicisme), from Catholic, adj; and catholicity (cf EF-F catholicité), from catholic, both by anl.

Orig and strictly, catholic means 'general, world-wide', and comes, perh through MF-F catholique, from L catholicus, itself from Gr katholikos, general, universal: adj from Gr kath holou, concerning (kath for kata, down, concerning) the whole (holos, adj: akin to SAFE).

cat's-paw. See CAT, para 2.

cattle; chattel; resp property in general, then of live stock (quadrupeds), finally the domesticated bovines; and personal property, esp movable goods.

The words are doublets, thus: cattle, from ME catel; chattel, from the ME var chatel; catel, from ONF catel, but chattel from OF-EF chattel; both from L capitāle, n from the neus of the adj capitālis, chief, (lit) concerning the caput or head: cf CAPITAL and, f.a.e., CHIEF.

catty. See CAT.

Caucasian, adj hence n; Caucasus.

The adj derives from Gr Kaukasia, the region (-ia), itself from Kaukasos, Mt Caucasus, whence, via L, Caucasus: of Caucasian origin.

caucus: perh of Amerind origin, prob Alg—cf Virginian caucausau, an elder of the tribe, a counsellor (Webster); but more prob (Mathews, after the Century) from ML caucus—cf LL caucum—from LGr kaukos, a drinking-vessel.

cauda, adj caudal. See CODA.

caudle, a warm medicinal drink: ONF caudel, by metathesis from L calidus, warm: cf CALDRON, see CALORIC.

caul, a membrane; calotte. Caul: late MF-F cale, b/f from MF-F calotte, a skullcap: Prov calota, callotta: Gr kaluptra, a covering, from kaluptein, to cover, conceal: akin to HELL; cf APOCALYPSE. B & W, however, derive calotte, presumably as a dim, from cale, which, for them, is aphetic for écale, shell, husk, pod, from Frankish skala*—cf the Go skalja, a tile.

cauldron. See CALDRON.

cauliflower: reshaped after the element cauli- and the E flower: earlier coly-flory: EF-F chou-fleuri (soon chou-fleur), lit 'flowery cabbage': L caulis (s caul-), a stalk, intimately akin to Gr kaulos+L flos, a flower, o/s flor-.

caulk. See CALK.

cause, causal (whence causality), causation, causative, causidical; because; accuse, accusation, accusative, accusatory; excuse (n and v), excusable, excusal, excusatory, excusive; inexcusable; recuse, recusancy, recusant (adj hence n), recusation;—kickshaw.—Cf, remotely, HEW.

1. 'To cause' derives from MF-F causer, itself from the OF-F n cause, from L causa, cause, origination. Causa acquired in law the special sense 'lawsuit', cf causidical and accuse: o.o.o.: 'Would it be a loan-word?' (E & M). The PL kaussa suggests a loan from Eg khe-t, cause, perh via khetsa*, khessa*, khassa*.

2. Because is elliptical for 'because (earlier by cause) that'.

3. L causa has simple derivatives LL causālis, whence E causal; LL causātiō, o/s causātiōn-, whence causation; and LL causātiuus, ML -ivus, whence, prob via F, the E causative.

4. The cpd adj causidicalis, cause-saying, hence -pleading, whence E causidical, has 2nd element deriving from dicere (s dic-), to say.

5. The relevant prefix-cpd vv are accusāre, to bring a lawsuit against (ad, to), excusāre and recusāre. Accusāre, via OF-MF acuser (EF-F accuser) and ME acusen, yields 'to accuse', whence accuser; derivative accusābilis leads, perh via EF-F, to accusable; accusātiō, o/s accusātiōn-, to accusation, prob imm from MF-F; accusātiuus, ML -ivus, to accusative (adj hence n), perh via F; accusatōrius to accusatory and, by elaboration, accusatorial.

6. L excusāre, to take out of (ex) a lawsuit (causa), to absolve of blame, becomes OF-F excuser, whence ME excusen, whence 'to excuse'; an excuse, adopted from MF-F, derives from OF excuser. The derivative LL excūsābilis becomes, prob via MF-F, excusable; excusal, excusative= 'to excuse' + n suffix -al, adj suffix -ative.

7. LL inexcūsābilis gives us inexcusable.

8. L recusāre becomes, via MF recuser (F ré-), the legal recuse; the presp recusans, o/s recusant-, yields recusant, whence recusancy (r, dropped for ease); the derivative recusātiō, o/s recusātiōn-, yields legal EF-F and E recusation.

9. The Shakespearean kickshaw, a toy, a delicacy, represents EF-F quelque chose, something: quelque, from L quālis (as in quality); chose, from L causa, cause, (hence) thing.

causeway; causey. The former is f/e for the latter, which, ME cauci, comes from ONF caucie, from LL (uia) calciāta, from calciāre, to make a road, either (by paving with lime) from L calx, lime, or (by treading firm) from L calx, heel.

causidical. See CAUSE, para 4, and DICT, para 11.

caustic (adj and n), whence causticity and causticize; holocaust; cauter, cauterize (whence cauterization), cautery.

1. The n caustic represents L causticum, elliptical for causticum medicamentum, causticum being orig the neus of causticus, from Gr kaustikos, from kaiein (s kai-), to burn, akin to kaustos, a burning fever; IE r kēu-, keu-, var kaw-*.

2. Holocaust comes, prob via OF-F holocauste, from LL holocaustum, from LGr holokauston, prop the neus of Gr holokaustos, burnt whole: holo- (see Elements)+kaustos, burnt, pp of kaiein.

3. 'To cauterize' comes from LL cauterizāre, from Gr kautēriazein, itself from kautērion, a branding iron, from kaiein; kautērion becomes L cauterium, whence both the E cautery, branding iron, now used a curative branding, and, via MF-F cautére, the E cauter, the instrument.

4. Cf INK.

caution (n hence v), cautionary (adj hence n), cautious; incautious; precaution (n and v), precautionary; caveat.

1. The base is L cauēre, ML cavēre, to be on guard (against, lest), to take great care, with ML imp cave, whence the sl Cavey!, and with the subj caveat, let him beware, whence the E legal n caveat. Having s and r cau-, cauēre is perh akin to Gr koōō, I understand or notice, and Skt ākuvate, he intends, ākūtis, intention, and esp kavis, prudent, observant; perh also to OS skawōn, OFris skāwia, OHG scouwōn, to notice, observe, and therefore to E show. (E & M.)

2. Cauēre has derivative cautus, on guard, wary, prudent, whence cautious, influenced by caution, which comes, prob via MF-F caution, a security, from L cautiōn-, o/s of cautiō, built upon the adj s caut-; 'to caution', although prob influenced by MF-F cautionner, derives from the E n caution, whence also cautionary (adj suffix -ary).

3. L cautus has opp incautus, whence, after E cautious, the E incautious; incaution, however, = in-, not+ caution.

4. L cauēre has prefix-cpd praecauēre, whence, in LL, praecautiō, o/s praecautiōn-, whence, prob via EF-F precaution, the E precaution; 'to precaution' owes something to late EF-F precautionner (from the n); precautionner derives, after cautionary, from the n precaution.

cavalcade; cavalier (n hence adj); cavalla; cavalry—chivalry, chivalric, chivalrous; caballero.

1. The imm base is L caballus, a horse, esp a working horse or a gelding, perh from the rare Gr kaballēs: Hofmann proposes, for the Gr word, a Balkan origin (? Illyrian); Boisacq thinks kaballēs a borrowing from some language of NE Europe and adduces the OSI kobyła, a mare; E & M, after mentioning the Gr word and the Balkan possibility, lean towards C, as does Malvezin. The C origin (cf CAR) seems the most prob: of the Gaul PN Caballos, Br caval, Cor cevil (or k-), also keffyl, W ceffyl, Mx cabbyl, Ga and Ir (and EIr) capall. The C r would be cab-, to run, to flee, with var cap-, as in L caper, a he-goat (see CAB, para 2).

2. Caballus has LL agent caballarius, a horse-man, whence both the Sp caballero, a knight, a gentleman, and the It cavaliere, whence late MF-F cavaliere, adopted by E, a well-born mounted soldier (cf, sem, the L equus), whence the Cavaliers (cf L Equites).

3. The LL caballa, a mare (the f of caballus), adopted by Sp, became, in Port, caballa, a fish with an equine head, adopted by AE

4. Caballus has a LL derivative caballicāre, to ride a horse, whence It cavalcare, whence the n cavalcata, whence MF-F cavalcade, adopted by E; cf the suffix -ade.

5. Caballus has a LL adj caballāris, on horseback, whence, via its neupl caballāria, the ML cavallāria, a military ceremony of inauguration, with a differentiated var, cavalleria, horse soldiers, cavalry, adopted by It, whence the EF-F cavalerie, whence E cavalry.

6. Caballus itself became OF-F cheval, whence the OF-F agent chevalier, horseman, later a knight; its OF-F derivative chevalerie yields the E chivalry (cf suffixes -ry, -ery), with E-formed adj chivalric and F-formed adj chivalrous (OF-EF chevaleros, -ereus, -erus). The late MF-F chevaleresque (from It cavalleresco, influenced by F chevalier) blends with the E chivalry to produce the absurd E chivalresque.

cave, n hence v; cavern, cavernous; cavity;—concaue, concavity; excavate, excavation, excavator;—decoy, n hence v; gabion (cf the sep CAGE); gaol, jail (n hence v), gaoler, jailer (-or).

1. Decoy (n)=D de kooi, the enclosure for trapping wildfowl, D de being apprehended as part of the word; kooi comes from ML cavea, L cauea, from L cauus, ML cauus, hollow. ML cavea becomes It gabbia, with aug gabbione, a large cage, (hence) a gabion, whence EF-F gabion, adopted by E.

2. E gaol (now often jail) and AE jail derive from ME gail, gayhol, jaille: OF-MF jaiole (whence EF-F geôle): ONF gaiole: ML caveola, VL caueola, dim of L cauea, as above. Gaoler, jailer, later jailor, derive from ME gailer, jailer: MF jaiolier (EF-F geôlier): ONF gaiolier, from ONF gaiole.

3. L cauus has two notable prefix-cpds: (1) concauus, ML -cavus, whence MF-F concaue, adopted by E; 'to concaue' represents ML concauāre (L -cauāre); concavity represents ML concauitās (LL -cauitās), prob through MF-F concauité; and (2) excauāre, ML -cavāre, to hollow out, with ML pp excavātūs, whence E 'to excavate'; the derivative excauātūō, ML excavātīō, has o/s excavātīōn-, whence E excavation; excavator is an E formation, prob after navigator.

4. L cauus has LL derivative cauitās, ML cavitās, o/s cavitāt-, whence, via MF-F cavité, the E cavity.

5. Cauus also yields—perh, for the suffix, after cisterna and laterna, lanterna—cauerna, ML caverna, whence, via OF-F caverne, the E cavern, whence the rare 'to cavern'; and cauerna has adj cauernōsus, ML cavernōsus, whence, perh via caverneuse, the f of MF-F caverneux, the E cavernous.

6. The r is cau-, with var cou-, as in the early var couus, for PL couus*, hollow; prob akin are Mlr cūa, Gr koilos, hollow, Gr kuar, a hollow; perh ult akin is HOLE.

caveat; Cavey! See CAUTION, para 1.

caviare, occ caviare: EF-F caviar (earliest as caviare): It caviaro (now caviale): Tu khāvyyār (modern havyār).

cavil, v hence n and the agent caviller; cavillation.

Cavillation, a cavilling, a (legal) quibble, derives, perh via MF-EF, from cavillātīōn-, the o/s of L cauillātīō (ML cav-), itself built on cauillāt-, the pps of cauillāri, to banter, to censure, from cauilla, mockery, perh—by dissimilation—from caluāri, to deceive (cf CALUMNIATE). Cauillāri becomes MF-EF caviller, whence 'to cavil'.

cavity. See CAVE, para 4.

cavort. See curvet at CURVE.

caw, v hence n: echoic: the cries of crows, rooks, ravens, etc.

cay. See the 2nd KEY.

cayenne pepper: Tupi kyinha: from the Tupi version of the island of Cayenne, off F Guiana, rather than of Cayenne, the capital of F Guiana. Guiana and Cayenne (F shape) are the same word.

cayman: Sp caimán: of Caribbean Amerind origin—cf Galibi cayman and Cariban acagouman. cayuse, an Indian pony, prop one bred by the Cayuse tribe of the NW U.S.A.: o.o.o.

Ceaseless=cease, n+suffix -less (cf LESS); unceasing=un-, not+ceasing, presp of 'to cease'. The n cease comes from OF ces (F cesse), itself from OF-F cesser, to cease, whence ME cessen, later cesen, whence 'to cease': and OF-F cesser derives from L cessāre, to cease, prop a freq of cēdere, to go, walk, hence esp to retire, hence to halt, hence to cease: f.a.e., CEDE. Cessāre, pp cessānus, has derivative n cessātiō, o/s cessātiōn-, whence, via MF-F, the E cessation. LL has presp used as adj incessans (in-+cessans, presp of cessare), o/s incessant-, whence, via EF-F, the E incessant, unceasing, whence incessancy (abstract suffix -cy).

cede, cedent, cession; abscess (sep); accede (sep), with access, accession; antecede (sep), with antecedent; ancestor (sep); cease (sep); concede, concession, concessionaire, concessionary, concessive; decedent—decease, n hence v; exceed, exceeding, excess (n hence adj), excessive; intercede, intercession, intercessor, intercessory; necessary (sep), with necessity, etc.; precede, precedence, precedent (adj and n), precess, precession (whence precessional); proceed, proceeding (n)—procedure, procedural—process (n hence v)—procession (n hence v), processional, processionary, processive; recede.

recess (n hence v), recession (whence recessional), recessive; secede, seceder, secession (whence secessional, secessionist), succeed—succeedent—success, successful, successor, successive, successor.—Prob akin to Gr hodos, (high)way, journey, as, e.g., in EPISODE and METHOD.

1. Cede comes, prob via EF-F céder, from L cēdere (s cēd-), to go, hence to go back, hence to halt, give way (cf CEASE): perh akin to L cadere (s cad-), to fall; to Gr hodos; to Skt utsad-, to step aside, (hence) to disappear; perh also to L sedēre (s sed-), hence to E sit.

2. The presp cedens, o/s cedent-, yields the legal E cedent, assignor of property; the pp cessus has s cess-, whence the n cessiō, o/s cessiōn-, whence, via MF-F, the E cession.

3. Most of the L prefix-cpds of cēdere have affected E, thus:

abscedere, to depart: see ABCESS; accedere, to approach: see ACCEDE; antecedere, whence antecessor: see ANTECEDENT and ANCESTOR.

4. The remaining relevant L prefix-cpds are concedere, dēcedere, excedere, intercedere, praecedere, prōcedere, recedere, sēcedere, succedere.

5. Concedere, to retire, yield position (to), concede, whence, perh via MF-F, 'to concede'; on the pp concessus arise concessiō, o/s concessiōn-, whence, perh via MF-F, the E concession, with adj concessional, concessionary; concessionaire, holder of a concession, anglicizes EF-F concessionnaire; concessive represents LL concessivus, ML -cessivus.

6. Dēcedere, to depart, (hence) to die, has presp dēcedens, o/s dēcedent-, whence the legal E n decendent; its derivative n dēcessus (gen -ūs) becomes OF-MF deces (EF-F déces), adopted by ME, whence decease, whence 'to de cease'.

7. Excedere, to go out from, to pass beyond (lit, hence fig), becomes MF exceder (EF-F excéder), whence 'to exceed', whence the pa exceeding; the derivative excessus (gen -ūs), an extravagance, becomes MF exces (EF-F excès), whence E excess; excessive comes from the ML excessivus, immodest, perh via F excessive, the f of MF-F excessif.

8. Intercedere, to intervene, yields 'to intercede'; on intercess-, the s of the pp intercessus, arise intercessiō, o/s intercessiōn-, whence, perh via MF-F, the E intercession, and intercessor, adopted by E (cf the MF-F intercesseur), and the ML intercessōrius, whence E intercessory.

9. Praecedere, to walk or march at the head, to precede, yields, perh via MF-F, 'to precede'; the presp praecedens, o/s praecedent-, becomes, prob via MF-F précédent, the E adj precedent, whence (or from the F derivative n) 'a precedent', whence precedence, the t being omitted for ease before the suffix -ce; on praecess-, the s of the pp praecessus, arise LL praecessiō, o/s praecessiōn-, whence E precession, whence, by b/f, 'to precess'. Predecessor comes, via ME predecessour and MF-F prédeces- seur, from LL praedēcessor, which = prae, before + dēcessor, withdrawer (cf para 6).

10. L prōcedere (prō-, forwards), to advance, to progress, becomes MF-F prōceder, whence ME proceden, whence 'to proceed', whence, from the presp, the n proceeding(s); procedure represents MF-F prōcedere, from MF-F prōceder, the F adj prōcedural yielding E procedural. The derivative L n processus (gen -ūs) becomes MF proces (EF-F procès), adopted by E, whence process, whence 'to process'; the derivative EF-F adj processif, f processive, perh suggested the E processive. The derivative L n processiō, o/s processiōn-, becomes OF-F procession, adopted by E; whereas processional, adj, represents late MF-F processionnel, early also -al, the n comes from ML processionāle, prop the neu of the rare ML adj processionālis (whence the F adj), a commoner adj being ML processionārius, whence E processionary.

11. L recedere, to march back, to retreat, yields 'to recede'; the derivative n recessus (gen -ūs) yields recess, whence 'to recess'; the derivative LL recessiō, o/s recessiōn-, yields recession; recessive is an E formation.

12. Sēcedere, to go sē- or aside, leads to secede, whence seceder; the derivative sēcessiō, o/s sēcessiōn-, to secession.

13. Succedere, to go under, hence to follow or succeed, hence to be successful, leads, perh via OF-MF succeder (EF-F succéder), to succeed; the presp succedens, o/s succedent-, accounts for the adj and n succedent. The derivative n successus (gen -ūs) becomes E success, whence successful and successless: derivative LL successiō, o/s successiōn-, becomes, perh via late OF-F, the E succession; the ML adj successivus*, deduced from ML adv successive, yields successive; L successor, built, like the prec, on success-, the s of the pp successus, becomes, prob via OF-F, the ME successour, whence E successor.

14. In short, the -ceed forms indicate F intervention; the -cede forms come direct from L -cedere.

cedilla is adopted from Sp: dim of Gr ζ (zēta), i.e. z, 'formerly written after the c to indicate the sibilant value' (Webster). But is Sp cedilla perh not rather the dim of Sp 'letra Ce', letter C'?

cell, v; ceiling; celestial, adj hence n.

1. Ceiling is vn from ceil, to overlay, to roof (a room), app from OF-F ciel, sky, canopy, from L caelum (s cael-), sky, canopy or arched covering, o.o.o., but perh akin to celāre (s cel-), to hide, with basic sense 'a covering', or even to caedere (s caed-), to cut, to cut up, to divide by cutting up: ? caelum for caedlum*, the sky being regarded as 'cut up' into regions.

2. Caelum has adj caelestis, whence OF celestiel, whence E celestial; Celestial, obsol for 'a Chinese', derives from 'Celestial Dynasty'—a kingdom ruled by a heaven-appointed dynasty. The OF-F equivalent adj celeste accounts for the colour celeste, sky-blue.

celebrate, celebrated; celebrant; celebration, celebrative, celebratory; celebrity.

The base is L celeber, frequented, hence famous: o.o.o.; perh akin to Gr kelomai (s and r kel-), I push or excite, perh also to Gr kellō (s kell-, r kel-), I accost. Its derivative celebritās, o/s celebritāt-, yields E celebrity (cf MF-F célebrité). But the most influential derivative is celebrāre, to frequent, hence to celebrate. Its presp celebrans, o/s celebrant-, yields celebrant; its pp celebrātus yields 'to celebrate', whence the pa celebrated, and on the pps celebrāt- arise celebrātiō, o/s celebrātiōn-, whence, prob via OF-F, celebration, and the agent celebrātor, adopted by E, and the E formations celebrative (-ive, cf -ative) and celebratory (-ory, adj—cf -atory).

celerity: (perh through MF-F celerité, from) celeritāt-, o/s of L celeritās, from celer, swift, prompt; r cel-, therefore cf Gr kelēs (r kel-), a racehorse.

celery: late EF-F céleri: It dial selieri, var of It seleni: L selinum: LGr selīnon, celery: Gr selīnon, parsley: o.o.o.: but perh from IE r suel-, shortened to sel-, a var of uel-*, to roll (up), to wind. The Ancient Greeks used parsley for garlands. (Boisacq.)

celestial. See CEIL, para 2.

The former = celibate + abstract suffix -cy: and celibate comes from L caelibātus, an -atus adj from caelebs, itself adj, meaning 'single, unmarried': o.o.o., but perh akin to Skt kévalas, alone, private.

cell; cellar, cellarer, cellarage; cellule, adj cellular; celluloid; cellulose. See HALL, paras 11–12.

'cellist, 'cello. See FIDDLE, para 5, s.f.

Celt, Celtic. The latter comes from the L adj Celticus, influenced by Gr Keltikos but deriving from L Celta, whence, prob through F Celte, the E Celt; Celta is a b/f from the pl Celtae, itself from Gr Keltai, earlier Keltōi; perh akin to L celsus, high, but prob of C origin, with r cel-*, to rise or mount. If, however, it does belong to the celsus group, it must be aligned with HELL.

celt, an archaeological chisel, often of flint: LL celtis, perh of C origin: cf Mlr celtair, a stake, and W cellt, flint, flint stone.

cement, n (whence the adj cemental)—hence v (whence cementation).

Cement, ME ciment, comes from MF-F ciment: L caementum, marble chips used for making mortar: for caedimentum*, an easing of caedimentum*, from caedere, to cut, to cut down, s caed-: cf the -cise of CONCISE and PRECISE, the -cide of DECIDE; IE r, perh kād-, kēd-.

cemetery: cf OF cimiterē, MF cimetiere, EF-F cimetière, both the OF and the E coming from LL coemētērium, itself from Gr koimētērion, lit 'resting- or sleeping-place', hence 'burial place', from koiman (s koim-: cf COMA), to put to sleep: akin ult to CITY.

cenotaph. See the 2nd ceno- in Elements. Lit 'empty tomb'. The EF-F cenotaphe was formed by the most prolific, the most brilliant, of all F word-makers: Rabelais (cf RABELAISIAN).

censer is aphetic for incenser: OF-MF encensier, from OF-F encens, incense: cf para 3 of CANDID.

ensor (n hence v), ensorious, ensorship; censure, n and v; census, adj censual.

1. Censorious represents L ensōrius, the adj of ensor, which E has adopted; E ensor has derivative ensorship (suffix -ship). L ensor is the agent of ensēre (s ens-), to declare formally, hence to describe officially, to evaluate, to tax: akin to Skt sāmsati (čāmsati), he recites or announces, with s čans-, r perh cam-* for can-*, to chant, q.v. at the 2nd CANT. Ensēre has also the derivatives ensūra, evaluation, judgement, hence a condemning, whence, via MF-F, the E ensure, and MF-F ensure has derivative EF-F ensurer, whence 'to censure'; census (gen -ūs), the act of taking a census, adopted by E; censual stands for L consuālis, adj of census.

2. The prefix-cpd recensēre, to estimate afresh, to review, hence to revise, whence, perh via MF-F recenser, the E recense, to revise (a text); the derivative recensidō, o/s recensidōn-, becomes, perh via F, the E recension.

cent, orig 100, hence the 100th part of a dollar, etc.: F cent: L centum, 100: f.a.e., HUNDRED.

centenarian, n from adj from centenary, q.v. at ANNUAL, para 3.

center. See CENTRE.

centigrade, centigramme, centilitre, centimetre, etc. See the element centi-, denoting 100, and, of course, the 2nd element (-grade, etc.).

centipede: obs F centipède: L centipeda, 100-footed (pes, o/s ped-, a foot: cf PEDAL).

central. See para 1 of:

centre, AE center, adj central; centri-, as in centrifugal—see FUGITIVE, para 5; centric, whence centricity.—concenter, concentrate, concentrated, concentration; concentric; eccentric (adj hence n), eccentricity.

1. Centre, center, derives from MF-F centre: L centrum: Gr kentron, any sharp point (from kentein, to prick, s kent-, IE r kent-*, to prick), hence any point, hence a geom centre L centrum has adj centrālis, whence EF-F and E central; centric was form-suggested by Gr kentrikos, of a cardinal point.

2. The derivative LL centrātus, situated about a centre, leads to E 'to concentrate', whence the pa concentrated and, by anl (cf the F concentration), the n concentration. MF-F centre has derivative EF-F center, whence 'to concentrate or center'.

3. The ML derivative concentricus becomes MF-F concentrique and, perh independently, E concentric, whence centricity.

4. The ML derivative excentricus, out from (ex-) the centre, away from the centre, from Gr ekkentros, becomes MF-F excentrique and, thereby, E eccentric; subsidiary ML excentricitas, o/s excentricitat-, becomes late EF-F excentricité and centurion, century.

E eccentricity (perh, however, by anl from eccentric).

Centurion, perh adopted from OF-F, comes from centuriōn-, the o/s of L centuriō, the leader of 100 soldiers, from or intimately akin to L centūria, a company of 100 soldiers, from centum, 100: cf CENT and, f.a.e., HUNDRED. From meaning '100 soldiers', century came to denote any sequence of 100, but esp of 100 years.

cephalic, of the head: (perh via F céphalique, from) LL cephalicus, trln of Gr kephalikos, adj of kephalē, the head: cf the element cephalo-.

ceramic, adj, whence ceramics, n. See HEARTH, s.f.

Cerberus, a Gr mythical hound: L Cerberus: Gr Kerberos, akin to Skt Karbaras, one of Yama the Lord of the Netherworld's two dogs: prob echoic. cere. See CEREMENT.

cereal, n from adj: L Cereālis, belonging to Ceres, goddess of agriculture, esp of grain crops: akin to creāre, to create.

cerebral, cerebration, cerebrum, cerebellum.

The 4th is the dim of the 3rd; L cerebrum, the brain, leads to the EF-F adj cérébral, whence E cerebral; cerebration, mental activity, is suggested by cerebrate, to think actively, itself formed by anl. Ult akin to Gr kara, head; IE r, prob *kar- or *ker-, hard.

cerement; cerecloth; cere, n and v.

Cerement=EF-F cirement (obs), from OF-F cirer, to wax+suffix -ment: from OF-F cire, wax, from L cēra, akin to Gr kēros. Cēra has derivative cērare, whence F cirer, whence E 'to cere', to treat with wax; F cire, wax, becomes the E n cer; cerecloth (cf CLOTH) stands for cered cloth.

ceremony; ceremonial, adj hence n; ceremonious.

Ceremony: ME cerimonie, ceremoin: MF cerimonie, ceremonie (EF-F ceré-): L caerimōnia, a cult, pl caerimōniae, ritual observances: o.o.o: perh Etruscan (E & M), but prob akin to L cīra (see CURE). Its LL adj caerimōniālis and caerimōniōsus become, the latter perh via MF-F, the E ceremonial and ceremonious.

Ceres. See CEREAL.

cerise. See CHERRY.

cern, to decide, is rare singly: see the cpds CONCERN and DISCERN. Cf:

certain, certainty; certify, certificate, certification, certificatory; certiorari; certitude;—ascertain, whence (suffix -ment) ascertainment; incertitude; uncertain, uncertainty—incertain.—Akin to L-derived cernere, discern, discreet, discrete, discriminate, crime, excrement; to Gr-derived crisis and critic; to Gmc-derived riðalle (a sieve): see sep.

1. The L base is cernere (s cern-), to pass through a sieve, hence to distinguish or discern, hence to decide, akin to Gr krinein (s krin-), to separate, to decide: IE r, *krei-, to separate, occ shortened to *kre- and often enlarged to *krein-. The pp of cernere is crētus, of which the adj certus may be a metathesis; orig 'decided, fixed, appointed', it soon became also 'decided, determined, sure'.

2. Certus passes through a derivative VL certānus* into late OF-F as certain, adopted by ME and confirmed by E; OF-F certain has derivative MF-EF certaineié, whence E certainty.

3. L certus has several LL and ML derivatives relevant to E:

LL certificāre (c/f certi-+ficāre, a c/f of facere, to make), to establish (one) in faith, to define, ML to make certain, whence, via MF-F certifier, the E certify; the pp certificātus has influenced 'to certificate'; 'a certificate' derives, via MF-F certificat, from ML certificātum, prop the neus of the pp; certificative is an E formation (-ive, adj); certificatory derives from ML certificātōrius;

LL certiorāre, to inform (legally), from certiorem facere, to make (someone) more sure, certior being the comp of certus; the passive certiorāri, as an E legal term for a Chancery writ, is short for certiorāri volumus, we wish to be certainly informed, hence to be certified;

LL certitūdō, a state of certainty, becomes, perh via MF-F, the E certitude.

4. LL incertitūdō becomes, prob via late MF-F, the E incertitude. The obs incertain, adopted from MF-F, derives, by way of VL incertānus*, from L incertus, uncertain: and uncertain itself=un-, not+E certain; hence uncertainty instead of the obs incertainty (from EF).

5. Ascertain derives from MF ascertainer, acertener: OF-MF a, to+MF certainer (certain+inf-er): cf para 2. cervical, of the neck: adj -al tacked to cervic-, the o/s of ML cervix, L ceruix, the neck, perh akin to L cerebrum, the brain. Cf the element cervico-, cessation. See CEASE.

cession. See CEDE, para 2.

For the 2nd element, see PIT (hole) and POOL; cess derives either from cess, a peat bog, o.o.o. (but, sem, cf sl bog, a privy), or from It cesso, a privy, aphectically from L sēcessus, a place of retirement, a privy, or, the earliest (C16) form being cesperalle, a corruption of obs suspiral, from OF-MF suspiral, MF souspirail (EF-F souspirail), from OF-MF s(ou)spirer (EF-F souspirer), to sigh, from L suspirāre, to sigh, to breathe. (Resp, E.P.; OED, Webster; EW.)

Ceylon, hence adj (whence n) Ceylonese (suffix -ese); Singhalese or Sinhalese or Cingalese, adj hence n.

Sinhalese (etc.)=national -ese tacked onto Sinhala, the Aryan conquerors (C5 A.D.), hence the native population: and Sinhala derives from Skt Simhala (? from simha, a lion), the conquerors' name for the island. It is, however, from Silān (pron see-lahñ), the Hi name, that, via F Ceylan, we get Ceylon.

cha. See TEA, para 2.

chafe, v hence n: ME chaufen, to warm or heat: OF-MF chauffer (EF-F chauffer): VL calesfare*, contr of L calesfacere, to make (facere) warm (calère, to be warm): cf CALDRON and, f.a.e., CALORIC. Hence chafing-dish or -pan—cf DISH and PAN.

2. F chauffer, to warm, has late EF-F agent chauffeur, lit and orig a stoker.

chaff (1), n, husks of grain, straw cut fine; chaffinch.

The bird chaffinch is a FINCH addicted to chaff: and chaff derives from OE ceaf, akin to G Kaff, MHG kaf, and D kaf, MD caf, very prob akin to OHG cheva, MHG këve, a husk. (Kluge.)

chaff (2), to make fun of, hence n: from CHAFE, phonetically and graphically influenced by chaff (1), perh in its derivative use as a v (chaff, to mix with chaff, to cut for straw).

chafing-dish, -pan. See CHAFE, s.f.

chagrin (1), anxiety, grief, vexation: adopted from EF-F. The F n chagrin derives imm from the MF-F adj chagrin, whence also the late MF-F v chagriner, whence E 'to chagrin'. The adj chagrin is, say B & W, o.o.o.: perh of Gmc origin, for cf OHG-G gram, irritated, hostile, OE gram, OS gram, ON gramr, angry, all akin to OE-E grim, OFris and OS grimm, OHG-MHG grim, G grimm, ON grinnr, fierce: cf GRIM, para 6. Indeed, OHG gram would account for OF-MF graim, grain, grieved, and this OF-MF grain would, with the int prefix cha- (as in 'se chamailier', to quarrel noisily), account for the MF-F adj chagrin, as Dauzat proposes. With cha-, var ca-, cf the E ker-, as in kerwallop.

chagrin (2), untanned leather, usu spelt shagreen: EF sagrin, F chagrin: Tu šāghri. The -n is prob due to that of OF-F grain; the change from sa- to cha-, prob to the 1st chagrin. (Dauzat.)

chain, n and v; enchain; catena, catenarian, catenary, adj and n; catenate, catenation—concatenate, concatenation.

1. The starting-point is L catēna, a chain, o.o.o.: perh of Etruscan origin, with final syllable (? rather suffix) the same as that in the rare L sacēna, o.o.o.; perh akin to L cassis, a net, and cassis, a helmet. The following derivatives concern E:

catēnārius, adj, whence catenary (suffix -ary) and catenarian; catēnātus, enchained, whence catenate, adj and v; catēnātiō, o/s catēnātiōn-, whence catenation;

LL catēnula, a little chain, whence, anl, the adj catenulate.

2. LL has the prefix-cpd concatēnāre, to chain together, with pp concatēnātus, whence 'to concatenate', with subsidiary concatēnātiō, o/s concatēnātiōn-, whence concatenation.

3. L catēna becomes OF-MF chacine (EF-F chatne), whence ME chayne (or cheyne), whence E chain, whence 'to chain'.

4. 'To enchain' derives from OF-F enchainier, from OF en, in, to+OF chaener (from L catēnare); derivative MF-F enchainement leads to E enchainment.

chair, n hence v; chaise (longue) and chay; (ex) cathedral, cathedral (adj and n), cathedralic; element -hedral, -hedron, q.v. sep.

1. Gr hedra, a seat (cf Gr hezesthai, to sit, and, ult, E SIT), combines with kata, down (cf the prefix cata-), to form kathedra, a backed, four-legged, often two-armed seat, whence L cathedra, LL bishop's chair, ML professor's chair, hence dignity, as in 'to speak ex cathedra', as from—or as if from—a professor's chair, hence with authority. L cathedra has LL-ML adj cathedrālis—see sep CATHEDRAL; and the secondary ML adj cathe-drāticus, whence E legal cathedratic.

2. L cathedra becomes OF-MF chaiere (whence F chaire, a pulpit), which becomes ME chaiere (var chaere), whence E chair.

3. OF-MF chaiere has Central F (MF) var chaeze, whence EF-F chaise, partly adopted by E in its specialized 'carriage' sense; chay is a b/f from E chaise apprehended as pl.

chaise. See prec. para 3.

chalcedony. See element chalcedo-.

chalet is adopted from F, which adopts it in C18 from Swiss chalet, dim (cf the suffix -et) of cala*, a shelter, prob from a pre-L Medit tongue. (B & W.) 'The original sense must have been "shelter of stone": from r cal-*, stone [as in caillou, a pebble]': Dauzat. Cf CHALK.

chalice: ME chalis: Central MF chalice (cf OF-MF calice): L calix (o/s calic-), a cup, akin to L calyx: f.a.e., CALYX.

chalk derives from OE cealc, itself from L calx (o/s calc-), stone, chalk, from Gr khalix, pebble, limestone, with IE r khal-, varr khel- and khil-, often weakened to kal-, etc.; cf CHALET, s.f. The adj is chalky.

challenge, n—and v, whence the pa challenging and the agent challenger.

'To challenge', ME chalengen, to claim, to accuse, comes from the syn OF-EF chalengier, var chalongier, from L calumniāri, to accuse falsely: f.a.e., CALUMNIATE. From OF chalengier derives OF chalenge, a claim, an accusation, adopted by ME, whence E challenge.

chamber; chamberlain. See CAMERA, para 3.

chameleon. See HOMO, para 4.

chamfer, n hence v: alteration of F chanfrein, earlier chanfrain, from chanfraindre, a cpd of OF-F chant, edge (cf the 1st CANT)+fraindre, to break, from L fyangere (cf FRACTION).

chammy. See:

chamois, whence, by eased pron, chammy or shammy (chamois leather): OF-F chamois: LL camōx, acc camōcem: of Alpine origin.

champ, to bite vigorously and noisily: earlier, also cham, prob echoic—cf JAM, to squeeze.

change (n and v), changeable; changeless, changer; exchange (n, v), exchangeable; interchange, etc.; cambium, adj cambial; gambit.

1. The LL cambiāre, to change, esp to exchange, is app of C origin, prob Gaul: cf OIr camm or camb, Ir cam—Ga, W, Mx cam—OBr cam, Br kam—all meaning 'bent, crooked'; cf Cor camma, (? by metathesis) cabmy, to bend; and perh cf Mlr cimb, tribute, EIr càin, statute, Ga càin, tribute, Ir gaimbín, interest (on money), whence the AIr 'gombeen man', money-lender. Malvezin poses PC cam*, to bend, cambo*, bent, with basic idea 'to turn'.

2. LL cambiāre has derivative n cambium, exchange, adopted by E and sense-adapted by Bot; cambium has adj cambiālis, whence E cambial.

3. Cambiāre becomes OF-F changer, whence 'to change'; and OF-F changer has derivative OF-F n change, adopted by ME, and derivative OF-F adj changeable, likewise adopted. Changeless is an E formation, but changer derives from OF-F changeur.

4. Exchange, n, ME eschange (or -chaunge), derives from MF-EF exchange, itself from MF-EF v eschangier, from VL excambiāre* (ex, out of + cambiāre); and OF eschangier yields 'to exchange', whence exchangeable.

5. Interchangeable has at least been suggested by the MF-EF entrechangeable, from MF-EF entrechangier (entre, L inter, between), whence, via ME entrechangen, the E 'to interchange'; MF-EF entrechangier has derivative MF-EF n entrechange, which duly becomes E interchange.

6. Akin to OF-F change, an exchange, but presumably from It cambio (from cambiare, from LL cambiāre), is Prov cambi, an exchange, which becomes F gambit, adopted by E, esp for an opening 'exchange' at chess, whence the general sense 'opening move'.

channel. See CANAL.

chant, n and v. See the 2nd CANT, para 3.

chanticleer: ME Chaunticlere or Chauntecler: MF Chantecler, the cock in the C13 Roman de Renart, a medieval epic about beasts: il chante cler, he sings clearly. Cf CLEAR and the 2nd CANT.

chantier. See GANTRY, para 1.

chaos, chaotic; chasm, chasmal, chasmic, chasmy; gas (n whence v), with obvious cpds gasbag, gasoline (or -ene), gasometer, etc.—with adj gaseous and gassy—and v gasify.

1. Gas, 'invented' early in C17 by chemist Van Helmont, was suggested by L chaos or its Gr source, khaos: 'Halitum illud gas vocavi, non longe a chao veterum'—as Van Helmont himself states. (B & W.) Gaseous=gas+adj suffix eous; gassy=gas+euphonic s+adj -y; gasify, which=gas, n+combiner -i-+-fy, to make, perh owes something to F gazéfier.

2. Intimately akin to Gr khaos is Gr khasma, a gaping abyss, a vast cleft in the earth: whence L chasma, adopted by Med for excessive yawning:

whence E chasm, with its adj formed with -al, -ic, -y.

3. Of Gr khasma, as of Gr khaos, the r is kha-; the IE r is app kha-* or khe-, with varr gha- or ghe-, often in extended forms kha- or gha-*, etc., with basic meaning 'to gape', hence 'empty space', as in Gr khaos, which, from being 'the atmosphere' and 'unformed matter', becomes 'vast chasm', etc. Gr khaos becomes L chaos, whence MF-F and E chaos. The adj chaotic, of E formation, is anl with, e.g., erotic and hypnotic.

chap (1), a blain, derives from 'to chap', ME chappen, to chop, (later) to cause to crack or split, with pa chapped, as in 'chapped hands': f.a.e., CHOP, to cut (wood).

chap (2), coll for 'a fellow, a man', is short for chapman, a trader or dealer, later an itinerant dealer, from OE cēapman, lit 'trade (or market) man': f.a.e., CHEAP. Orig, chapbooks were sold by chapmen.

chap (3). See CHOP, jaw.

chaparral, a dense thicket, orig of evergreen oaks, is adopted from Sp, which derives it, by n-suffix -al, from Sp chaparro, an evergreen oak, from syn chaparra, itself from Biscayan dial zabarra, an evergreen oak, the dim of Biscayan abarra, an oak.

chapel. See CAP, para 2.

chaperon, often (esp of a woman) anglicized as chaperone, is adopted from OF-F chaperon, orig a (males' and females') hood covering the Middle Age'd head and neck, then, as protection, an escort to a (young) woman: from OF-F chape, a mantle, a cap, from LL cappa: f.a.e., CAP. 'To chaperon(e)', although prob deriving from the E n, owes something to the OF-F chaperonner, itself from F chaperon. Cf:

chaplain: OF-F chapelain: either the ML capellānus, one who officiates in a capella or chapel, or OF-MF chapele (EF-F chapellet), a chapel (itself from ML capella)+suffix -ain (L -ānus): f.a.e., CAP, esp para 2. Cf prec and:

chaplet, a garland, orig and prop for the head, represents OF-F chapelet, dim of OF chapel, hat or garland, itself a dim of OF-F chape, a mantle or a churchman's cope, from LL cappa: f.a.e., CAP. Cf CHAPERON and CHAPLAIN.

chapman. See the 2nd CHAP.

chaps (of face). See CHOP, jaw.—In AE, chaps is a coll shortening of Mexican Sp chaparrajos (or -ejos), or chaparreras, cowboys' leather separate trouser-legs, worn over ordinary trousers, so called 'because they protect the legs against chaparral or chaparrals' (Santamaria)—i.e., against dense thickets or thorny shrubs. Cf CHAPARRAL above.

chapter: ME, from MF-F, chapitre, OF chapitle: L capitulum, title at head of a section, hence the section itself: dim of L caput, head, o/s capit-: cf CAPITAL and, f.a.e., CHIEF. From the reading of a chapter, esp of the Bible, at the beginning of all formal meetings of persons in religious orders, comes chapter, a body of, e.g., canons of a cathedral.

char (1), n.

1. Short for charwoman, one who does the chars, rare for chares or chores. Char, then, is a var of chare, a single or odd, esp household, job, earlier a turn of work, earliest a turn or recurrence: ME char, earlier cherre: OE cerr, cyrr, a turn, occasion, esp of work, from cerran, cyrran, to turn, whence 'to chare'.

2. Chare, both n and v, has var chore, orig mainly AE, but now, esp as n, predominant everywhere—except in charwoman.

char (2), to reduce to charcoal, (hence also) to burn superficially: b/f from charcoal, lit '(wood) turned to coal', the 1st element being that of CHAR (1) in its orig sense 'to turn', hence 'to convert'.

char (3), sl. See TEA, para 2.

character, n hence v; characteristic, adj hence n; characterize, whence characterization.

1. A character, a sign, a brand or stamp, hence a graphic symbol, hence an attribute, comes, through ME caracter and MF caractere (F -ère), from L character, trln of Gr kharaktēr, a marking instrument, hence a symbol, from kharassein (? for kharaksein), to sharpen, hence to cut into grooves, hence to engrave, r kharak-; IE r, khar-, var kher-, or ghar-, var gher-, to scratch, to cut: cf Lith žeriti, žeriu (r žer-), to scratch or scrape, and the freq žarsyti, to scratch often: perh of the Hit r kar-, to cut (often in extension kars-): perh of Medit pre-Gr stock, for cf Eg kha, to carve or engrave, perh also the synn kheti and qehqeh.

2. Gr kharaktēr has derivatives the adj kharaktēristikos (an extension of kharaktērikos, whence the obsol characterical), whence E characteristic—kharaktērizein, to engrave, to characterize, whence 'to characterize' (-ize)—whence kharaktērismos, whence E characterism (-ism), representation by symbols.

charade, adopted from F, derives from Prov charrado, conversation, (later) charade, from charra, to chatter or gossip: echoic—cf the syn It ciarlare, to chatter.

charcoal. See the 2nd CHAR.

chare, n and v. See 1st CHAR.

charge, n and v; charger. See CAR, para 4.

chariot. See CAR, para 5.

charitable; charity; sep cherish.

1. Charitable, adopted from OF-F, derives from OF-F charité (whence E charity), from L caritās, o/s caritāt-, itself from carus, beloved, dear, akin to Skt cārus, lovable, and to several words in the C and Sl languages; IE r, kar-*.

2. On the Gmc side, cf whore, n hence v (cf ON hōra), hence also the adj whorish; whoredom (cf -dom), ME hordom, comes from ON hordomr. The n whore, ME hore, OE hōre, comes from ON hōra, akin to OHG huora (G Hure), and to Go hōrs, adulterer.

The latter derives from EF-F charlatanerie (cf It ciarlataneria), an -erie (E -ery, -ry) derivative of

EF-F charlatan, itself from It ciarlatano, prob an easement—? influenced by ciarlare, to chatter—of ciarratano, var of ceratano, charlatan, orig an inhabitant of the village of Cerreto, near Spoleto in Umbria; there long existed the intermediate sense 'vendor of medicines and salves, cum dentist, cum juggler, plying his trade in the streets', the first such cheapjacks (etc.) coming from Cerreto. (B & W; Prati.)

Charles. See CHURL.

charm, n and v, whence charmer (cf EF-F charmeur, MF charmeor) and charming (cf F charmant).

'To charm' derives from OF-F charmer, (orig) to enchant with magic, to bewitch, hence to attract strongly, itself (prob not, as in B & W, from LL carmināre, to sing, to sing and play, but) from OF-F charme, orig a magical formula, incantation, (later) attraction, attractiveness, itself from L carmen, chant, esp a magical incantation, app for canmen* (suffix -men), from canere (s can-), to sing. 'A charm' derives from the OF n.—Cf the 2nd CANT and, on Gmc side, HEN.

château; chatelaine. See CASTLE, para 4.

chattel. See CATTLE.

chatter. See CHAT.

chauffeur. See CHAFE, para 2.

chauvinism, exaggerated patriotism, derives from F chauvinisme (suffix -isme, E -ism), from F chauvin. orig a naively enthusiastic celebrator and eulogist of Napoleon Bonaparte, esp as soldier, a type popularized by draughtsman Charlet and then, in 1831, by the playwright brothers Cogniard: an -in derivative of OF-F chauve, bald, the Napoleonic veterans tending, by the late 1820's, to be bald; there may also, in the fact as in legend, have been a Nicolas Chauvin (of Rochefort), so demonstratively Napoleonist as to be ridiculed by his comrades.

chay. See CHAIR, para 3.

cheap (adj and n), cheapen, cheapness; cheap-jack, Cheapside; sep chap, chapman.

A cheapjack is a Jack, fellow, dealing—usu itinerantly—in cheap goods; Cheapside, orig an open square, later a street, where, in London, there were many shops, in short a cheap or market. Cheapness=cheap, adj+the suffix -ness; cheapen=obs 'to cheap', to buy, trade (in)+v suffix -en, and cheap, v, derives from ME cheapien, from OE cēapian, to trade, to buy, to sell, itself from OE cēap, a sale or a bargain, a price, deriving, like OHG koupo, a trader, from L caupō, a huckster, an innkeeper, perh akin to L cūpa, a vat. The OE n cēap becomes the now obs cheap, a bargain(ing), a trading, hence (extant in PINn) a market.

cheat, n hence v and further agent cheater and cheatery (suffix -ery): aphetic for escheat (q.v. at CADENCE, para 7) in specific sense 'act of confiscation'.

check, n hence v; checkers (or chequers), check-mate; cheque, chequered (or checkered); chess; eschequer; shah, pasha—and satrap.

1. 'To check', orig at chess, results naturally from the chess term check, an interj, warning one's opponent that he is in a dangerous position, whence flow all the other 'hindrance' senses, incl that of the banking cheque (F influence), AE check: and a check, ME chek, is aphetic for OF-MF eschec, var of eschac which comes, via Ar, from Per shāh, king—whence obviously the title Shāh, E Shah—akin to Skt kṣāyati, he possesses, controls, rules, and kṣātra, power, rule; cf also Gr ktdomai, I acquire, ktēma, anything acquired, a possession; IE r, khe-* or khei-, varr kha-, khai-*, to acquire.

2. Checkmate (n, whence v), ME chek mate, derives from OF-MF eschec (et) mat, itself from Ar al-shāh māt, the king is dead (cf MATE, v). Checkers, chequers is the pl of checker, chequer, orig a square on a chessboard, hence an alternating black and white (element of a) pattern: MF eschequier (OF eschaquier), chessboard, from OF-MF eschec (OF eschac): hence 'to checker, chequer', whence the pa checkered, chequered. Eschequier becomes ME escheker, orig a chessboard, whence—chess being, by etym, a royal game, a kingly matter—the Exchequer or royal, (later) governmental, treasury.

3. Checkers, the game of draughts, is doubly derivative; chess, however, comes, through ME ches, from OF-MF eschec, the acc pl of eschec (para 1): cf F échecs, chess, prop the pl of échéch (from eschec).

4. Per shāh becomes Tu pāshā, whence the anglicized title Pasha; both the merely graphic E var pacha and the phonetic Tu var bāshā, in its E form bashaw, are obsol.

5. Somewhat remotely akin is satrap: perh via MF-F satrape: L satrapes: Gr satrapēs: OPer shathrapāvan, satrap (governor of a province), lit 'protector of the (royal) power': 1st element akin to Skt kṣātra, power, dominion (cf para 1), 2nd element to Skt pātī, he protects: cf FUR.

Cheddar is short for the very common Cheddar cheese, made orig at Cheddar in Somersetshire, England: OE Ceoder, akin to OE cēod, a pouch, in ref either to Cheddar Gorge or to the caverns.

cheek, n, hence the coll n (impudence) and v (speak impudently to)—cf the coll uses of lip and jaw—and the coll adj cheeky (impudent): ME cheke, cheoke: OE cēace, cēoce, akin to MD cake, D kaak, o.o.o.

cheer, n hence v and the adj cheerful (-ful) and cheerless (-less) and cheery (-y); cheerio and cheero.

Prob cheero!=(good) cheer+hello; cheerio!=cheery (times)+hello; in both, however, the -o is perh the brisk, coll -o occurring in 'all-aliveo' or an 'eased' form of ho!, cf bung-ho!, good cheer, a-a toast. The sem development is: 'face'—'expression of face'—'glad or happy expression'—the mood 'gaiety' or 'gladness' accompanying or causing that expression—the cause of the gaiety, esp 'good food and drink (good cheer)', entertainment, kindly encouragement or consolation, etc.'—'a shout expressing joy or warm approval'. Cheer derives from ME chere, face, welcome, adopted from MF chere (OF chiere), face (later chère): LL cara: Gr kara, head, face, akin to Gr kephalē, head, and L cerebrum, brain—cf CEREBRAL.

cheese, whence cheesemonger (see MONGER); 'cheesed off';—caseic, casein, caseous.

1. Cheese derives, through ME chese, from OE cēse (var cýse), itself—like G Käse, OHG kāsi—from L cāseus (s case-, r cas-): f.a.e., WHEY.

2. L cāseus yields caseic (s case-+-ic, adj)—casein (case-+chem -in)—caseous (case-+-ous); cf the element casei-, caseo-.

cheetah; chintz; chit (document, note).

All three spring from Skt citra (chitra), marked, spotted, variegated, brightly marked, for it yields (1) Hi citā, that spotted quadruped the cheetah; (2) Hi chint, E chint, pl chintz, altered to chintz, orig a stained or painted calico imported by Europe from India, now a printed, often glazed, cotton cloth; (3) Hi ciṭṭha (Maharatti chitūi), E chitty, shortened to chit (black ink on white paper).

chef; chef-d'œuvre. See CHIEF, para 6.

chemical, chemism, chemist, chemistry; alchemic, alchemical, alchemist, alchemistic, alchemy.—For found, foundry, and fuse, fusion, etc., see FOUND, to melt.

1. The base is Gr kheō-, I pour, let flow, (later) smelt (metals), cast (statues), IE r gheu-* (kheu-), to pour, with extension gheud- (kheud-*), nasalized in L fundere, to pour, hence to shape by melting, whence E 'to found' (see FOUND, to melt); whereas the Gr past s (in aorist and pp) is khu-, as in khuma, a fluid, and khumos, a juice, the L past s is fu-, as in pp fūsus, whence E 'to fuse' (see FOUND, to melt).

2. Gr khunos, juice of a plant, has derivative khumeia, an infusion, often, in LGr, in form khēmeia, the extracting of medicinal juices (and, later, their mixing), whence the Ar al-kīmiyā' (where al is prop the article 'the'), whence ML alchimia, whence MF alquimie, -quemie, with varr alkimie and alkemie, whence E alchemy. The ML alchimia has adj alchimicus, whence E alchemic, with elaboration alchemical, and agent alchymista, whence MF alquemiste (EF-F alchimiste), whence E alchemist, the adj alchemistic coming from ML alchymisticus.

3. Alchemic(al) leads, by aphesis, to the obs chemic and its surviving extn chemical, with perh some impulse from the LGr adj khēmeutikos; alchemist likewise leads to chemist, whence prob (though cf the obs alchemy, syn of alchemy) chemistry; chemism (-ism) app blends E chemistry and F chimisme.

chemise, camisade, camise, camisole; 'shimmy'.

1. The last is a sl, then coll, 'familiarization' of the first: cf chemmy for the game chemin-de-fer. Chemise, adopted from OF-F, comes from LL camīsa, var camīsia, a shirt, itself prob either through C from Gmc kamīya* (cf OHG hemidi, G Hemd); or from C (whence the OHG ?), cf Ir cáimís, OIr cáimse, W camse, Cor cams, tunic, smock, shirt, shift, priest's alb (cf Br kamps), with PC r cam-*, to cover (the body), as Malvezin proposes; or, most prob, from LGr kamision, var kamason, a kind of outer garment, ? a smock: all, however, from an IE r kam-, usu in extended form kamas-, kamis-: cf (Walshe) the Skt sāmulyám, a woollen shirt. (The Ar qmīs, cited by Sophocles, is presumably a borrowing.)

2. LL camīsia becomes It camicia, with dim camiciola, whence EF-F camisole (by B & W, however, derived from OPr camisola, dim of OProv camisa, camiza, from LL camīsa), adopted by E; It camicia has derivative camiciata, from obs incamiciata, a night attack by soldiers wearing shirts as means of recognition, hence Prov camisade*, whence EF-F camisade, adopted by E for 'a night attack'. But E camise, smock, tunic, has, from LL camīsia, perh passed through the derivative Ar qamīš.

cherish, cherishment; caress (n and v), caressing (adj and n), caressive; cf charitable (sep).

1. Cherishment comes, by suffix -ment, straight from cherish, from OF-MF cherir (esp in such forms as cherissant, cherissons, cherissent), from cher, from L cārus, dear to one: f.a.e., CHARITABLE.

2. A caress derives from EF-F caresse, itself from the late MF-F v caresser, whence 'to caress': and F caresser derives from It caressare, from caro, from L cārus. Caressing, caressive, derive by -ing (adj) and -ive from 'to caress'.

cheroot: Tamil curuṣṭu, the written form of suruṣṭu, cigar, orig a curl, from suruḷ, a curl.

The latter, 'cherry-colour(ed)', derives from OF-F cerise, a cherry, from VL ceresia*, from Gr kerasia, var of kerasion, a cherry, from Gr kerasos, a cherry tree, prob a loan-word (? Phrygian) from Asia Minor (Hofmann); and cherry, ME chery, the fruit, derives from ONF cherise, app mistaken for a pl, from VL ceresia*. The Gr kerasos is prob akin to Gr kranos, cornel tree. The place Kerasos in Pontus (Asia Minor) might have given its name to the tree and its fruit; the reverse is more likely.

cherub, pl cherubim (-im, H pl): H kērūbh. Hence cherubic (-ic, adj).

chervil: OE cerfille: L caerfolium, shrewd f/e for chaerephyllum, trln of Gr khairéphullon, cpd of khairain (s khair-), to rejoice + phullon, a leaf (cf L folium, E folio), an aromatic herb culinarily desirable.

chest. See CIST, para 2.

chestnut and 'chestnut'; castanet.

1. 'Chestnut', an old joke or story, prob comes from roasted chestnuts eaten at the giossipy fireside; chestnut, earlier chesten nut, derives from ME chesten, earlier chesteine, earliest chasteine, from OF-MF chastaigne (EF-F châtaigne), from L castanea, trln of Gr kastanea, var of kastanon, a chestnut, prob a loan-word from Asia Minor (cf CHERRY): cf Arm kaskeni, chestnut tree, from kask, a chestnut.

2. L castanea has derivative castanētum, chestnut grove (cf the suffix -etum), which has influenced Sp castañeta, a paired percussion instrument named from its resemblance to a pair of chestnuts, from castaña, a chestnut, from L castanea; castañeta becomes EF-F castagnette becomes E castanet.

chevalier. See CAVALCADE, para 6.

chevaux-de-frise. See FRISIAN, para 2.

chevron: OF-F chevron, orig a after, then, from rafter-like bands on a blazon, a small galloon worn as a badge of rank: an -on derivative from OF-MF chevre (F chèvre), from L capra, a she-goat (f.a.e., CAB, para 3), the -on being partly due to that of OProv cabrion, from capriōnem*, acc of VL capriō*, from L capra. (B & W.)

chevy, coll chivy, usu chivvy, to pursue, hence (coll) to harass or tease, derives from chevy (coll chivvy), a chase or pursuit, earlier a hunting cry, from the EE ballad of Chevy Chase—for Cheviot Chase, in the Cheviot Hills of the English-Scottish border.

chew, v hence n; chaw (v hence n), chawbacon.

Chaw is a var of chew; chawbacon, a rustic, from this habit. 'To chew' descends from OE cēowan, akin to the syn OHG kiuwan, MD keuwen or couwen, D kauwen, and prob to L gingīua, the gum.

chiaroscuro. It chiaro, clear + oscuro, obscure.

chiasmus: Gr khiasmos, a setting crosswise, from khiazein, to mark with a khi: χ.

chic, n hence adj: F, orig painters' sl: either short for EF-F chicane or id with C17-18 chic, legal trickery. Chicane derives from Villon's chicaner, to quibble, app from MLG-G schicken (cf ON skikka), to arrange, in nuance 'to arrange to one's advantage'. (B & W.) The E chicanery represents late MF-F chicanerie, from chicaner.

Chicago city: Chicago river: Amerind, perh Ojibwa she-kag-ong, 'wild-onion place' (Ency. Brit.).

Chick is app a b/f from chicken: and chicken derives from OE cicen or cyen, akin to the rare MHG küchelîn (G Küchlein, Kücken), to MD cuken, kieken (D kieken, kuiken), and to ON kiuklingr—also to COCK (bird). Chickweed (cf WEED) has foliage and seeds enjoyed by birds (Webster).

chickpea. See CICERO, para 3.

chickweed. See CHICKEN.

chicory; succory. Chicory represents MF-F chicorée, by metathesis for MF cichorée: ML cichorea: L cichoreum (or -ium): Gr kikhora, kikhoreia, kikhōrē: o.o.o.

2. ML chorea became MD sükerie and MLG suckerie: whence EE sycory (var cioree), whence E succory.

chide: OE cīdan (s cīd-), o.o.o.; perh related to the -cīdere (s -cīd-) of L occidere, to slay (not to occidere, to succumb).

chief, n hence adj, and chieftain; chef, chef-d'œuvre; kerchief, handkerchief; mischief, mischievous.—achieve (etc.), cad, cadet, cape (headland), capital, captain, cattle, chapter, all treated sep.—biceps; decapitate, decapitation; occipital, occiput; precipice, precipitance, precipitant, precipitate (adj, hence n and v), precipitation, precipitator, precipitous.—head (behead, etc.): sep.

1. L caput (orig kaput; LL capus, gen capī), the head, has s cap- and is akin to Skt kapālam, skull, and to OE hēafod, akin to OE hafud, ON höfuth, OHG houbit (G Haupt), Go haubith: the IE s, therefore, would prob be khaph-, with varr khab- and khap-*. If L capere (s cap-) be akin (then cf HEAVE), the basic idea would be 'vessel' (Webster).

2. The L derivatives affecting E are biceps, dēcapitāre, occiput, praiceps (whence praecipitāre), sinciput. Biceps, two-headed, becomes the An n biceps, a two-headed (i.e., -origined) muscle. Occiput (ob-+caput), adopted by An, has o/s occipit-, whence the ML adj occipitālis, whence E occipital; likewise sinciput (semi, half+caput), adopted by An, acquires E adj sincipital.

3. LL dēcapitāre (de-, off from +o/s capit-+inf suffix), to behead, has pp dēcapitātus, whence 'to decapitate', and ML derivative n dēcapitātiō-, o/s dēcapitātiōn-, whence E decapitation.

4. Praiceps (prae, before+c/f of caput), with head before, headlong, has o/s praecipit-, whence praecipitium (b/f from the neupl praecipitia of the adj), whence EF-F précipice, whence E precipice. The F n has obs adj précipiteux, f -euse, whence E precipitous. Also on the adj o/s praecipit- arises the v praecipitāre, with presp praecipitans, o/s praecipitānt-, whence the adj praecipitānt, whence (suffix -cy) praecipitancy; with pp praecipitātus, whence the adj (whence the n and the v) precipitate; with subsidiaries praecipitātiō, o/s praecipitātiōn-, whence, perh via F, the E precipitation, and LL agential praecipitātor, whence precipitator; precipitative is an E formation: precipitation+-ive, adj.

5. Through F have come chef, chief, kerchief, mischief with their subsidiaries.

6. OF-F chef, orig 'the head', later 'person at the head', is adopted in the forms chef, elliptical for chef de cuisine, and in chef-d'œuvre, 'master(piece) of work', masterpiece.

7. OF chef has var chief, adopted by ME and, in the sense 'person at the head' (of, e.g., a clan), surviving in E chieftain; ME cheftayne, earlier chevetayn, derives from OF-MF chevetain, from ML capitānus (var -āneus): cf CAPTAIN.

8. Kerchief, ME coverchef, derives from OF-F couvrechef, lit a cover-head (cf COVER). Handkerchief simply adds HAND.

chrism, archaic chrism; chrismal; chrismation; chrismatory.—Christ; christen; Christian, Christianity; Christmas; criss-cross.—cream, creamy; cretin, cretinism, cretinous.

1. Chrism, consecrated oil, hence consecration and a consecratory, e.g. baptismal, garment (var chrism), derives, through ME crisme, from OE crisma, itself from LL chrisma, trln of Gr khrisma, an anointing, an oil used therefor, from khriein (s khri-), to rub, to anoint, akin to Skt gharṣati, he rubs or grinds, e.g. oil from seeds; IE r, ghrei-* or ghri-, to rub; akin to GRIND. LL chrisma has LL adj chrismālis, whence E chrismal, the neu chrismāle, used as n, becoming the E n chrismal; the ML chrismātiō, o/s chrismātiōn-, yields chrismation; the ML chrismatōrium, prop the neus of the adj chrismatōrius (whence the E adj), yields the n chrismatory.

2. Gr khriein has pp khristos, whence the LGr Khristos, The Anointed (One), whence LL Christus, whence E Christ. A follower of Christ is LGr khristianos, n then adj—LL christianus, adj then n—E Christian, almost simultaneously (early in C16) n and adj, displacing ME and OE crīsten, a Christian, itself from LL christiānus. This OE crīsten has two notable derivatives, the v crīstnian, to make a Christian of, whence ME crīstnian, later crīstnen, whence E 'to christen' (whence christening, adj and n), and crīstendōm (cf the suffix -dom), whence Christendom, orig syn with Christianity, itself from LL christiānitās (o/s christiānitāt-): christiānus, adj+abstract suffix -itās (E -ity). Christianize represents LL christiānizāre, from LGr khristianizein. Christmas, however, merely blends Christ+religious MASS: a C16 reshaping of ME Cristes maesse, later ME cristmaesse, -masse, etc.

3. The not imm obvious criss-cross (n hence adj and v) 'eases' the earlier Christcross: X for Gr χ (khi), the Ch of Christ.

4. LL chrisma becomes OF creme, becomes ME creme becomes E cream, obs for 'chrism'; note, however, that the precise OF creme, var craine, yielding E cream of milk (F crème), has been blended with LL (C6: VL) crama, cream, of Gaul origin (? akin to W cram, cramen, incrustation)—perh rather vice-versa. Hence 'to cream' and the adj creamy; creamery owes something to F crèmerie.

5. LL christiānus becomes OF-MF chrestien (EF-F chrétien), which, in the diall of Valois and Savoy, becomes cretin, a congenital idiot (of the Alps), whence F crétin, whence E cretin; derivative F crétinisme becomes E cretinism; cretinous is, however, of E formation. F dial cretin 'was at first used in pity, only later pej' (B & W).

1. Cinch, a strong, esp if tight, girth, hence a firm, tight grip (hence prob also the card-game cinch), hence something easy to do, derives from the Sp cincha, from L cingere (s cing-), to gird, to encircle, app akin to Skt kāñcate, he binds, kāñci, a belt or girdle, and Lith kinkýti, to harness (a beast).

2. Cingere has pp cinctus (s cinct-), whence E cinct, girdled, girt, surrounded; the derivative L cinctūra, a girdle, becomes cincture (cf the F ceinture).

3. Cingere has three cpds relevant to E: incingere, to gird about (int in-); praecingere, to gird from in front (prae, before), hence to surround; succingere, to gird from below, to tuck up. Incingere has pp incinctus, LL incincta, pregnant, whence F enceinte (m enceint), adopted by E; the n enceinte, likewise adopted from MF-F, is prob elliptical for place, or forteresse, enceinte, where enceinte is the f of the pp of enceindre (L incingere). Cf:

4. Praecingere has pp praecinctus, whence the ML praecinctum, an enclosure, esp of a church, whence E precinct, now usu precincts, immediate environs of a cathedral, hence a legally determined district.

5. Succingere has pp succinctus, tucked-up, held tightly in place, hence compressed: whence the E succinct.

7. L cingulum has ML derivative cingulus, an acute skin disease, girdle-area'd: whence E shingles.

cinct, cincture. See CINCH, para 2.

cinder, sinter; Cinderella; cinerary, cinereous; incinerate, incineration, incinerator.

1. Sinter, dross of iron, is adopted from G (OHG sinīar): and it answers to OE sinder, dross, slag, akin to ON sindr, dross, OSl sedra. OE sinder yields E cinder, with sense, esp in pl cinders, influenced by that of the independent F cendres, ashes.

2. OF-F cendres has derivative Cendrillon of Perrault's fairy tale (1697): whence sem, though phon from E cinder, the E Cinderella (-ella, f dim suffix).

3. F cendres, sing endre, derives from LL cedra, var cindra, from LL cinus, gen cineris, from L cinis (gen cineris), ashes, a dead coal; with its s and r cin- cf Gr kon-, s of konis, dust; IE r, ken-, varr kin-, kon-*.

4. L cinis, o/s ciner-, has derivative adj cinereus, whence E cinereous, and cinerārius, whence E cinerary.

5. The derivative ML incinerāre, to reduce to ashes, has pp incinerātus, whence 'to incinerate'; its derivative incinerātiō, o/s incinerātiōn-, yields, perh via MF-F incinération, the E incineration; incinerator, one who, hence that which, incinerates, is an E formation (incinerate+agential -or).

cinema, cinematic; cinematograph, -grapher, -graphic, -graphy.

1. Cinema, with Grecized adj cinematic, is short for cinematograph, a motion picture: kinēmato-, c/f of Gr kinēma, motion, from keinē (s kin-), to move, whence kinēsis, movement, and its adj kinētikos, whence resp the Sci kinesis and kinetic: f.a.e., CITE.

2. Cinematograph has agent -grapher, adj -graphic, abstract n -graphy: cf -grapher, etc., at GRAPH.

cinerary, cinereous. See CINDER, para 4.

cinple. See CINCH, para 6.

cinnamon derives, perh via MF-F cinnamone, from L cinnamon, from Gr kinnamon, trln of H qinnāmōn, perh ult Malayan (Hofmann).

cinquain, cinque, Cinque Ports.

Cinquain, adopted from EF (cf quatrain), derives from OF-F cing, five, whence cinque, as in Cinque Ports, the (orig) five charter ports of Kent and Sussex. F cing derives from VL cinque, from L quinque, to which E FIVE is ult akin.

cion. See SCION.

cipher (n hence v), occ cypher; zero; decipher (v), whence decipherer and decipherment.

'To decipher' (influenced by the MF-F déchiffrer) = prefix de-, from +cipher: and the n cipher derives from MF-EF cifre, zero, itself from Ar ṣifr, empty, hence zero; and zero represents EF-F zéro, from It zero, a conflation of the earlier zefiro, a violent attempt at the Ar ṣifr. The sense 'a secret writing' comes from Commynes's use (1486) of F chiffre, which derives from It, from ML, cifra, from the Ar word. (See esp B & W at chiffre and zéro.)

circa. See para 2 of:

circle, n and v; encircle, encirclement; circlet; circuit (n hence v), circuitous, qq.v. sep; circular, circularize; circulate, circulation, circulatory; circum and circa; circus;—search, n, v (whence pa and vn searching), searchlight; research, n, v (whence researcher); recherché.

1. The firm base upholding all these words is the L circus, a circle, hence—circus 'circle' being displaced by the dim circulus—a circus in the modern sense, whence both the MF-F cinque and the E circus: and L circus, s circ-, is akin to Gr kirkos, s kirk-, a ring; akin also to L curvus, ML curvus, curved—cf, therefore, CURVE. The IE r of Gr kirkos, L circus, is kirk-* or kerk-; of the two groups combined, ker-, var kir-*.

2. L circus, circle, yields the adv-prep circum, in a circle, around, orig the acc sing (cf the prefix circum); and circa (cf extra, supra, etc.), around, becomes 'about', esp of dates.

3. The dim circulus becomes OF-F, whence ME, cercle, whence, by L influence, E circle; ME cercle has derivative v cerclen, whence, by L influence, 'to circle'. 'To encircle', whence encirclement (suffix -ment; cf the F encerclément)=prefix en-, in+circle: cf the OF-F encercler. Circlet=circle+dim suffix -et.

4. Circulus, s circul-, has two notable L derivatives:

circulāris, whence E circular (adj suffix -ar, L -aris), whence 'to circularize' (cf F circulariser), whence circularization; on the L s circulār- arose ML circulāritās, gen -itātis, whence E circularity;

circulārī, vi and vt, to gather—to put—into a circle, has pp circulātus, whence 'to circulate'; derivative circulātiō, o/s circulātiōn-, yields, perh via MF-F, the E circulation; derivative circulātor is adopted by E, its adj circulātorius becoming circulatory.

5. From L circum, circa (para 2 above), rather than from L circus, derives the LL circāre, to go around, (hence) go about, whence OF-MF cercher (EF-F chercher), whence ME cerchen, later serchen, whence 'to search', whence searcher (cf EF-F chercheur) and 'a search'—cf the OF-MF n cerche from the v cercher. Searchlight is an obvious, though important, cpd with LIGHT.

6. OF cercher has the OF-MF cpd recercher, whence 'to research', whence the n research, unless it comes from the EF-F recherche, itself from rechercher, the EF-F development of recercher; and rechercher has pp recherché, sought after, hence, as adj, particularly elegant, hence also far-fetched.

circuit, n hence v; circuitous.

Circuit, adopted from MF-F, comes from L circuitus, itself from circuīre, to go around or about, a contr of circumīre: circum, around (f.a.e., CIRCLE, para 1)+īre, to go, supine itum (cf ISSUE). The derivative ML adj circuītōsus yields E circuitous.

circular; circulate, circulation, etc. See CIRCLE, para 4.

circumcise, -ision; (sep circumduce, q.v. at DUKE, para 6); circumference; circumflex; circumlocution, -locutory; circumnavigate, -navigation; circumscribe, -scription; circumspect, -spection; circumstance, -stantial; circumvent, -vention.

1. For circum-, see both CIRCLE, para 2, and the entry in PREFIXES.

2. Circumcise: L circumcīsus, pp of circumcidere, to cut around, hence to circumcise; derivative L circumcīsiō, o/s circumcīsiōn-, yields E circumcision.

Circumference: L circumferentia; circumferential (cf deferential)=circum+-ferent-+adj suffix -ial: cf also differential.

Circumflex. See FLEX, para 5.

Circumlocution: LL circumlocūtiōn-, o/s of circumlocūtiō, a talking around and about, from LL circumloqui, pp -locūtus, to talk thus: cf LOCUTION, LOQUACIOUS. Hence the adj circum- locutory: cf LL locūtōrium, a conversation-room.

Circumnavigate: ML circumnavigātus, pp of circumnavigāre, L -navigāre, to sail around; hence circumnavigation, -navigator, on navigation, navigator.

Circumpose, circumposition. See POSE, para 5.

Circumscribe. See SCRIBE, para 10.

Circumspect: L circumspectus, pp of circumspicere, to look around and about; the derivative circumspectiō, o/s -spectiōn-, yields circumspection. Cf SPECTACLE, para 7.

Circumstance. See STAND, para 22.

Circumvent, circumvention. See VENUE, para 8.

Circumvolute, circumvolution; circumvolve. See VOLUBLE, para 4.

circus. See CIRCLE, para 1.

circus (Met): L cirrus, a curl or ringlet: o.o.o.; perh (E & M) cf the syn Gr kikinnos, ? for kirkinnos*, with kirk- as in Gr kirkos, a ring, q.v. at CIRCLE, para 1, s.f.

cisco, a Great Lakes fish: var of sisco, itself short for siscowet: Can F ciscoette: Ojibway pemite-wiskawet, (lit) oily-fleshed fish. (Mathews.)

cist, cyst, kist; cistern; cf element cysto-; chest.

1. Kist is the Sc form, cyst a misspelling of E cist, box, chest, from L cista, basket, chest, from Gr kistē, s kist-, basket: perh cf OIr ciss, cess, basket, ainchis, bread basket: IE r, kis-, extension kist-. The derivative cisterna has the Etruscan suffix -erna; hence OF-MF, whence ME, cisterne, hence E cistern.

2. In OE, the L cista became cist or cyst or cest: whence ME chist or chest; the latter prevailed in E. The chest of an animal's, esp a human's, body encloses the lungs, as if in a box.

3. The spelling cyst is prop applied, in Med and Bot, to a sac or a sac-like spore: and it represents Sci L cystis, trln of Gr kustis, bladder, sac, s kust-, akin to Skt kuṣṭhas, the lumbar cavity, and kōṣṭha, entrails, and perh, after all, to Gr kistē, as in para 1. If this latter kinship be real, IE kis-, kos-, ku-, are extensions of an ult r ku-, with varr ke-, ki-, ko-*. (Perh cf CT.)

cit (mid C17–mid C19): short for citizen.

citadel: late MF-F citadelle: It cittadella, dim of cittadē, city: ML civitās, L civitās, gen civitātis: f.a.e., CITY. A 'little' or nuclea' 'city': a fortress within a city.

cite, citation, citatory; exciter excitable, excitant, excitation, excitatory, excitement; incite, incitant, incitation, incitement; recite, recital, recitation, recitative, reciter; resuscitate, resuscitation, resuscitative; suscitate; SOLICIT (etc.), sep; kinetic, sep at CINEMA.

1. The effective base is L ciēre (s ci-), to set in motion, akin to Gr kiein (s ki-), whence knein (s kin-, r ki-), to move. Ciēre has pp citus, whence the adj citus, quick, prompt, s cit-. Citus has derivative ciāre, to cause to come quickly, to convoke or summon, (later) to set moving, to stir up. Ciāre becomes MF-F citer, whence 'to cite', to summon, to adduce or quote; the derivative n citātiō, o/s citātōn-, yields, prob via MF-F, the E citaton, and the adj citātōrius yields citatory.

2. Citāre has the following relevant prefix-cpds: excitāre, incitāre, recitāre, suscitāre and its subsidiary resuscitāre.

3. Excitāre, to summon forth (ex), hence to provoke or excite, whence, through OF-F exciter, the E 'to excite'; its LL derivative excitābilis becomes E excitable, whence, on anl of able-ability, excitability; presp excitans, o/s excitant-, becomes E excitant, adj hence n; derivative excitātō, o/s excitātōn-, becomes MF-F excitation, adopted by E; excitatory perh derives from ML excitātōrius*; excitement = excite + -ment.

4. Incitāre, to move, hence thrust, forward, yields MF-F inciter, whence 'to incite'; presp incitans, o/s incitanti-, yields adj incitant; derivative n incitātō, o/s incitātōn-, yields—perh via MF-F—incitation; for incitement, cf excitement.

5. Recitāre, to repeat names of defendants, hence to read loudly, gives us, perh via OF-F reciter, 'to recite', whence recital (-al, n suffix of action); derivative recitātō, o/s recitātōn-, gives, perh via MF-F recitation, the E recitation; recitative comes from It recitativo (adj, whence n), itself prompted by the ML recitative, by name, expressly; reciter = recite + -er.

6. Suscitāre (sus- for sub, under), to raise, has pp suscitātus, whence 'to suscite', now obsol; its re- 'again' cpd resuscitāre, to raise again, hence to restore or revive, has pp resuscitātus, whence 'to resuscitate'. The derivative LL resuscitātō, o/s resuscitātōn-, accounts for E resuscitation; resuscitative is an E formation (cf -ive, adj); LL resuscitātor, adopted by E.

citizen, -ry, -ship.

The two longer words derive, by suffixes -ry and -ship, from citizen, ME citezein (var citesein), itself—influenced prob by denizen—from OF-MF citeien, citeain, from OF-F citē, city, from ML civitas, o/s civitat-, a city state: f.a.e., CITY.

citron, citrus; citrange; citric; citrous, citrate.

Citrange blends citrus + orange; citrate = citrus + Chem suffix -ate; citric = citron (or citrus) + adj suffix -ic; citrous derives from L citrosus, adj of citrus. Citron, adopted from MF-F, is either an alteration of L citrus or from LGr kitron, itself from L citrus, citron tree, cedar, akin to, rather than from, Gr kedros, cedar, (earlier) juniper: cf CEDAR. Both L citrus and Gr kedros are prob of Medit stock: perh cf Eg seb or seb-t, cedar.

city; sep citadel and citizen; cityfy; civic, civicism, civics; civil, civilian, civility, civilize and civilization; hide of land; akin ult to Siva, Shiva (Skt śiva, friendly, hence dear to one) and to sep HOME.

1. Cityfy, to render urban, esp clified, excessively urban, represents city + i for y + -fy, to make or render.

2. City itself comes, through ME cite, from OF-F citē, a contr from ML civitatem, acc of civitas, L ciuitās, city-state, prop an aggregation of ciues, pl of ciuis (ML civis), a citizen, s ciu-, r ci-, akin to the kei- of Gr keltai, he lies down, is recumbent, and (Hofmann) prob to the ke- of the syn Hit keta; IE s kei-, r kel-, to lie down, issuing, as above, in Gr and L, and as hei-, hi-, in PGMc—cf OHG-MHG-G heim, house, home, and hiwo, husband; also OE hīgan, htwan (pl), household, and hid, short for hīgid, family (cf syn hired), whence hide, an old land-measure, orig sufficient to maintain a family; and Go haims, village; and ON heimr, village. Prob cf HOME.

3. L ciuis, citizen, has adj ciuicus, ML civicus, whence E civic, whence—cf ethics from adj ethic—the n civics, and, soon predominating, ciullis, ML civilis, whence, prob via MF-F, the E civil, of a citizen, hence of a good citizen, hence well-mannered and well-moral'd, whence the n, hence the adj, civilian (-ian, n); the derivative L ciuitās, sense of citizenship, LL affability, ML civilitās, o/s civilitāt-, yields, very prob via MF civilité, EF-F civilité, E civility. The MF-F civil has derivative EF-F civiliser, whence 'to civilise or -ize', whence civilisation (F influence) or -ization.

civet, the substance, and its source, the zibet (var zibeth) or civet cat, both derive from It zibetto, from ML zibethum, from Ar zabād, musk.

civic, civics. See CITY, para 3.

civil, civility, civilize (-ization). See CITY, para 3.

clack, v hence n; echoic: cf MF-F claque, to clap, whence MF-F claque, a body of hired applauders. For echoism, cf SMACK and CLATTER and CLANG.

clad, adj (clothed, arrayed), derives from the pp of OE clāēthan, to clothe.

claim (n and v), claimant; acclaim (v hence n), acclamation; conclamation; declaim, declamation, declamatory; disclaim, -er; exclaim, exclamation, exclamatory; proclaim, proclamation; reclaim, reclamation.—clamant, clamo(u)r, clamorous.

1. The n claim derives from OF-MF claim, claime, itself from OF-EF clamer (il claime, he calls), from L clamāre, to call (out), to cry out, s clam-; 'to claim', ME claimen, derives from OF-EF clamer. L clamāre is akin to calāre, to summon, s cal-, and clārus, loud, clear, s clar-, cf DECLARE; akin also to Gr kalētōr, a herald, and kalein, to call or summon; IE r kal-, var kla-, with extensions klam-, klar-.

2. Claimant, deriving from 'to claim', has perh been influenced by OF-EF clamant, presp of clamer; the E clamant, however, derives from L clamant-, o/s of clamans, presp of clamāre; and clamāre has derivative clamor, a shouting, a din, whence, via OF-MF clamor, clamour, clamur (cf the EF-F clameur), the E clamour, with AE clamor reverting to L; 'to clamo(u)r' follows from the n; the ML adj clamorōsus yields E clamorous.

3. L clamāre has, relevant to E, these prefix-cpds: acclamāre, conclamāre, dēclamāre, exclamāre, prōclamāre, reclamāre; only erudite or rare terms issue from inclamāre and suclamāre.

4. Acclamāre, to cry out to (ad), to address noisily, yields 'to acclaim', whence the modern n acclaim—acclamation (L acclamātiō, o/s -clamātiōn-) is, however, customary.

5. Conclamāre, to cry out, whether altogether or vigorously, has presp conclamans, o/s conclamant-, whence the E adj conclamant, rarer than the E n conclamation, from conclamatiōn-, o/s of L conclamātiō.

6. Dēclamāre, to call noisily, hence to declaim, yields EF-F dēclamer, whence E declaim; the derivative dēclamātiō, o/s dēclamātiōn-, mostly in rhetoric, and dēclamatōrius, yield—perh via F—E declamation and declamatory.

7. Exclamāre, to call out, either loudly or suddenly, leads to MF-F exclamer and, perh thence, E exclaim; derivative exclamātiō, o/s exclamātiōn-, leads, perh via MF-F, to exclamation; exclamatory imitates declamatory.

8. Prōclamāre, to call openly, plead noisily, becomes ME proclamen, whence, anl, 'to proclaim'; derivative prōclamātiō yields proclamation; for proclamatory, cf exclamatory.

9. Reclamāre, to cry back at, to appeal to, becomes MF-F reclamer (il reclaime), whence ME reclamen, reclaimen, whence 'to reclaim'; derivative reclamātiō yields reclamation.

10. 'To disclaim' derives, anl, from AF desclamer (F des-, from L dis-, apart); and this desclamer, used as n, yields disclaimer, a denial; disclamation and disclamatory are 'reversions' to imaginary L words.

clairvoyance, EF-F b/f from MF-F clairvoyant, clear-seeing: OF-F clair, cf E CLEAR; voyant, presp of OF-F voir, to see, cf CLARIFY.

clam: clamshell.

The shellfish clam is short for clamshell (cf SHELL), the 1st element being clam, a clamp, from OE clamm, a bond or fetter, akin to CLAMP; cf MHG klamm, constriction, and klamer (G Klammer), a fetter; Gmc r, klam-, IE r glam-, glem-, glom-. (Walshe.) Cf CONGLOMERATE.

clamant. See CLAIM, para 2.

clamber: ME clambren; akin to, prob an echoic mdfn of, CLIMB.

clammy app derives from OE clām, clay, influenced by OE clamm, a fetter, q.v. at CLAM.

clamor, clamour; clamorous. See CLAIM, para 2.

clamp, n hence v: a holding or binding device: MD clampe (D klamp, as also in LG): akin to CLAM: prob echoic. Hence the tool clammer.

clan, clannish. See the 2nd PLANT, para 6.

clandestine. See HALL, para 13.

clang, clango(u)r. See LAUGH, para 2.

clank, n hence v, prob comes from MD clanc (D klank), itself echoic. Cf prec and also CLINK.

clannish. See the 2nd PLANT, para 6.

clap, v hence n: ME clappen: OE clappan, to clap, (claeppan) to throb: akin to ON klappa, to clap: echoic. Cf:

clapboard: f/e for obs clapbolt, itself from LG Klappholt: echoic G klappen, to fit noisily together, bang to (cf prec)+G Holz, wood.

claque. See CLACK.

claret is elliptical for OF-MF 'vin clatret (extant), cleret', light red wine, the adj being the dim of OF-MF cler, clear—cf the F clairer and see CLEAR.

clarify: OF-F clarifier: LL clārificāre, to render (-ficāre for facere) glorious, lit clear (clārus): cf the elements clari- and -fy.

clarinet: F clarinette, dim (cf suffix -ette) of EF-F clarine, a musical bell, orig the f of the old adj clarin, from L clārus, clear-toned: f.a.e., CLEAR. Cf the next three entries.

clarion, ME clarioun, modifies MF claron (EF-F clairon), from ML clārīō, o/s clārīōn-, from clārus (cf prec): f.a.e., CLEAR.

clarionous. See element -sonance and cf prec.

clarity: perh through EF clarité (EF-F clarté): from L clārītās (o/s clārītāt-), abstract n from clārus: f.a.e., CLEAR.

clash, v hence n: echoic, cf BASH, CRASH, SMASH, SPLASH.

clasp, v hence n: ME claspēn, metathesis of clapsēn, freq of clap in its sense 'to fit noisily together': akin to CLIP.

class, n hence v (cf F classer); classic, adj (elaboration classical)—hence n; classicism, classicalist; classify, classification, classificatory, classifier; déclassé.

1. The n class derives from MF-F classe, from L classis, prob orig a summons, hence a summoned collection of persons, a group liable to be summoned: perh for calassis*, from calāre, to call, hence to summon, itself perh akin to CALL; cf CLAIM.

2. The adj classicus, applied in gen to the civic classes of the Roman people and esp to the 1st class, the classici, created by Servius Tullius (C6 B.C.), came, in the term scriptores classici, to mean 'writers of the first rank', the classics: hence both the E adj and the E n, also the EF-F classique; whence classicism (suffix -ism) and classicalist (-ist).

3. 'To classify'=L classis+element -fy, to make; hence the agent classifier and the abstract classification (? borrowed from F); classificatory prob=classification+adj -ory.

4. Déclassé, adopted from F, is prop the pp of déclasser, remove from a specified class.

clatter, v hence n; perh a b/f from OE clatrun, a rattle, but prob from MD clateren, to rattle, to clatter, cf the D var kletteren, to clatter: echoic: cf BATTER and SPATTER.

clause, whence clausal (-al, adj), is adopted from MF-F: ML clausa, perh elliptical for sententia clausa, lit a thought closed, and prob suggested by the syn L clausula, the close of a rhetorical period, clausa being app the f of clausus, pp of claudere, to shut, hence to end. Cf CLEF.

claustral. Cf cloistral at CLOISTER.

claustrophobia: SciL cpd of L claustrum, a confined space (see CLOISTER)+comb -o-+-phobia, fear, q.v. in Elements.

clave. See 1st and 2nd CLEAVE.

clavicle, collarbone: EF-F clavicule: ML clavícula, L clauicula, little key, dim of clavis, a key. The r clau-, to close, occurs also in the closely related clauus, ML clavus, a nail, and claudere, to close (cf CLAUSE).

claw. 'To claw' derives from OE clawan, itself from OE clawu (var of clāa), whence E 'a claw': akin to G Klaue, OHG klāwa, MHG klā, klāwe, OFris klāwe, klē, ON klō, and prob to CLEW.

clay, whence adj clayey (-ey), derives from OE clāeg, akin to MD clei, D klei, OFris klāt, OHG kliwa, G Kleie, bran: basic idea, 'stickiness': f.a.e., GLUE; cf the 1st CLEAVE.

clean, adj, adv, v (whence cleaner, n); adj cleanly; cleanness; cleanse.

Clean, v, derives from clean, adj, which derives, via ME clene, from OE clāene, whence OE adv clāene, whence clean, adv. Clāene, adj, has OE derivatives clāennes, whence cleanness; secondary adj clāenlic, whence adj cleanly; derivative secondary adv clāenlice, whence cleanly; and v clāensian, whence 'to cleanse'. The OE adj clāene is akin to OFris klēne, small, narrow, OHG kleini, pure, elegant, neat, MHG kleine, elegant, hence small, G klein, small; sem of the E FINE, adj. (Walshe.) clear, adj, hence adv, n, v; clearance (suffix -ance) and clearness (-ness) from the adj.

Clear derives, via ME cleer, earlier cler, from OF-MF cler (F clair), itself from L clārus, clear in sound, hence to sight: akin to clamāre, to cry out. The L r is clā-, with extn clam-, clar-: and clā- is perh a metathesis of cal-, as in calāre (s cal-), to summon. Cf CALL and CLAIM.

clerestory. See CLERESTORY.

cleat, n hence v: ME cleete or clete: OE clēat, akin to MD cloot, D kloot, a ball, and to CLEW.

cleavage derives from the 2nd CLEAVE.

cleave (1), to adhere, pt cleaved, archaic clave and clove, pp cleaved: ME clevien, cleovien, clivien, cliven: OE cleofian, clifian, akin to OHG klebēn (vi), MHG and G kleben, OHG klīban, OS klībōn, prob also to ON klifa, to repeat again and again ('stick to a subject'), and, more remotely, L glūs, Gr glia, glue; cf, therefore, CLAY and GLUE—and CLIFF.

cleave (2), to forcibly part (e.g., by splitting) or divide or pierce, pt cleaved, cleft, clove, archaic clave, and pp cleaved, cleft, cloven: ME cleven, earlier cleoven: OE clēofan, akin to OHG and OS klioban, MHG and G klieben, and ON kliūfa (kljūfa), to split, and OHG kluft, tongs (a split instrument), G Kluft, a chasm (gap), akin to the OFris kleft and the E n cleft (ME clift)—cf the pp cleft used as adj; akin also to Gr gluphein (s gluph-), to carve, q.v. at element glypto-. A butcher's cleaver (instrumental -er) derives from the v.

cleaver. See prec, at end.

cleek, in golf, derives from the mainly Sc cleek, to seize, ME cleken or clechen—akin to CLUTCH.

cleft, in music, is adopted from OF-F, which takes it from ML clāvis, L clāuis, a key, which serves to CLOSE a door.

cleft, adj and n. See 2nd CLEAVE.

clematis. See the clement -clemā.

clemency, clement, Clement, Clementina, Clementine; inclemency, inclement.

Clementina is It, Clementine adapts F Clémentine, feminines deriving from L Clemens, PN from clēmēns, gentle of character, whether moral or physical, perh from clināre* (s clin-), to bend (vi, vt), well attested in cpds. L clēmēns has o/s clēmēt-, whence both the E clement (cf the MF-F clément) and the L clēmēntia, whence E clemency.

The L opposites inclēmēns, inclēmēntia result in E inclement, inclemency.

clench, v hence n; clinch, v (whence clincher) hence n.

Both clench and its thinned var clinch derive, via ME clenchen, from OE -clencan, to hold fast, akin to OHG klenkēn and MD clinken, D klinken—and to CLING.

clerestory varies clearstory, i.e. 'clear storey': it rises clear of the other roofs of the building.

clergy, whence clergyman; cleric, clerical (whence clericalism); clerk (n hence v), clerkly.

1. Clerkly=clerk+adj -ly. Clerk comes, via OF-F clerc and OE clerc, cleric, both from LL clēricus, a priest, from LGr klērikos, belonging to the clergy, from klēros, a piece of wood used in drawing lots, hence lot, allotment, hence, an allotment of priests, hence, in LGr, the clergy; s klēr-, akin to OIr claur, Ga clār, W claur, a plank; OC klār-; IE r, klār-.

2. E cleric, n, derives from the OE var cleric and the LL clēricus alike; the derivative LL adj clēricālis yields E clerical. Clergy derives from ME clergie, adopted from OF-F, where it=clerc+suffix -ie, the c being changed to g. (F clergé: OF clergie: LL clēricātus (gen -ūs), priestly office or life.)

clever, whence cleverness (suffix -ness): prob from ME cliver, dexterous, skilled, expert, prob either from OE clibbor, adhesive, or from ME cliven, OE clifan, to adhere—cf the 1st CLEAVE. EW, however, suggests ME cliver, from OE clifer, a claw, with sem parallel in handy, dexterous, q.v. at HAND.

clew or clue (whence clueless), n hence v, derives, through ME clewe or clue, from OE clēowe, cleowen, cliwen, ball, skein, akin to syn OHG kliuwa (chliuwa, chliwa), and MD cluwen, also cluwe, D kluwen; akin also to Skt glāuś, ball. Cf, therefore, CLAW, CLEAT, CLOD. A ball of thread was, in Ancient Gr myth and fact, used for finding one's way out of a labyrinth: hence, a means of discovery, hence a discovery that assists in the solution of a crime.

cliché, adopted from F, was orig the pp of the echoic clicher, to stereotype. Therefore cf:

click, n and v; clique.

Click is echoic; with 'to click', cf the OF cliquer, to make a noise, akin to claquer, to clap (see CLACK). This OF cliquer has derivative MF-F clique, a resounding blow, later a noisy band of persons (cf claque at CLACK), whence a closely knit circle, adopted by E. client; clientèle, whence AE clientele. See LOUD, para 4.

cliff, whence cliffy: OE clif, akin to OS and ON klifa, and to ON klifa, to climb, to which a nasalized cognate occurs in CLIMB. Cf the 1st CLEAVE.

climacter, climacteric; climate; climax. See CLIME.

climb, v hence n, derives from OE climban, akin to OHG climban (klimban), MHG and G klimmen, and, without nasal (n), ON klifa; prob akin to the 1st CLEAVE, for climbing is a progress marked by continual sticking (holding tight).

clime, climate, climatic; climacter, climacteric; climax, n hence v;—acclimate, acclimation and acclimatize, acclimatization.—cline, see Elements; clinic, clinical; acclinal, acclimate; decline (v, n), declination (and declension), declinatory, declinature; incline (v, n), inclinable, inclination, inclinatory, and disinclined, disinclination; recline, reclinate, reclination; syncline, synclinal;—enclitic;—L-derived subsidiaries acclivity (-itous), declivity (-itous), proclivity, all treated sep at CLIVUS.—Gmc-derived LEAN, v, treated sep.

1. Clime represents L clima (s clim-), gen climatis, o/s climat-, from Gr klīma (s klim), gen klīmatos, o/s klīmat-, inclination, esp an earth-point's obliquity in relation to the sun or the imagined inclination or slope of the earth towards the North Pole, hence a region on the earth's surface, hence that region's weather. Gr klima derives from Gr klīnein, s klin-, to slope: IE r, klei-*: cognates in Gr, L, Skt, C, Sl.

2. L climat- yields OF-F climat, whence E climate, whence the adj climatic (ic).

3. Gr klīnein, to slope, has also the derivative klīmax, a ladder ('it leans against': L & S), hence, in LGr, a rhetorical climax; hence L, whence E, climax, with adj climactic, as if from Gr klīmak-tikos*. Klīmax has subsidiary klīmak-tēr, round or rung of a ladder, hence an important step or stage, whence L climacier, adopted by E; klīmak-tēr has adj klīmak-tērikos, proceeding by steps or stages, whence L climactēricus, whence E adj hence n climacteric, esp in its Med sense, whence adj climacterical.

4. Klīnein has yet another relevant derivative: klinē, a couch, a bed, with adj klīnikos, whence L clinicus, whence E clinic, adj whence n, with subsidiary adj climical (-al).

5. OF-F climat has derivative v acclimater, which =a for ā, from L ad, to+euphonic -c-+climat+inf suffix -er; hence 'to acclimate'; E acclimation is adopted from F. But E has coined 'to acclimatize', whence acclimatization.

6. Gr klīnein leads to L cline, hardly found outside its compounds and their cognates: acclināre, dēclināre, inclināre, reclināre. Note that the Geol n syncline, whence the adj synclinal, represents the Gr sunklīnein, to slope together (so as to meet): sun, with+klīnein. Possibly, however, syncline is a b/f from synclinal, itself anl to acclinal, as in:

7. L acclināre, to lean towards (ad) or against, has pp acclinātus, whence the adj acclinate, somewhat oddly meaning 'sloping upwards'; the Geol adj acclinal, (of a stratum) 'leaning upon another' =L acclimis+E -al.

8. L dēclināre (vt and vi), to turn oneself away (de), to remove oneself (hence to fall, to fail, to deteriorate), to avoid, yields OF-MF decliner, whence ME decliner, whence 'to decline'; 'a decline' adapts EF-F déclin (OF-MF de-), from dēcliner (OF-MF decliner). Dēclināre has two relevant derivatives:

ML dēclinatōrius, tending to refuse, whence declinatory, perh via MF-F déclinatoire; dēclinātiō, o/s dēclinātiōn-, yields declination, perh via MF declinacion, whence EF-F déclinaison, whence E declension, a 'decline from the nominative'; declinature is anl with curvature, signature, etc.

9. 'An incline' (cf the OF-F enclin) derives from 'to incline', itself, through ME inclin (var enclinen), from OF-MF incliner (var encliner): L inclināre (vt, vi), to lean, or cause to lean, inwards. Inclinable was adopted from MF-EF, as was inclination, from L inclinātiōnem (o/s inclinātiōn-), acc of inclinātiō, an inclining, physical then emotional, in fact an inclination; inclinator and inclinationary seem to be E formations.

10. The adj disinclined and disinclination are likewise E formations: cf the prefix dis-.

11. L reclināre, to lean back, (LL) to rest, yields MF-EF recliner and E 'to' recline; the pp reclinātus yields the Bot reclinate, bent backwards; LL reclinātiō, a leaning back, has o/s reclinātiōn-, whence E reclination.

12. LL has the adj encliticus, whence in the same grammatical sense, the E enclitic; but encliticus is a mere trln of Gr enklitikos, deriving from Gr enklīnein, to incline: cf, in para 9, the influence of Gr en, in, upon the OF var forms.

clinch. See CLENCH.

cling: OE clingan, to adhere, akin to G Klängen (s klüng-), a ball of thread, OHG klungiltin ('dim of OHG klunga), and to OE -clencan, q.v. at CLENCH.

clinic, clinical. See CLIME, para 4.

clink (v, hence n), ME clinken, app derives from MD clinken: echoic: cf CLANK. The al clink, a prison, prob derives from the clink of chains. MD clinken, D klinken, has derivative klinchaerd, a brick so hard that, struck, it rings: hence the E clinker, kind of brick, stony matter. Clinker, a fast mover (esp ship), derives from 'to clink' in its secondary sense, 'to move quickly or suddenly'. Clinker-built comes from clinker, var of clinch (from 'to clinch').

clinology; clinometer. Cf the element clino-.

Clit. See LOUD, para 5.

clip (1), to cut (off), hence n; hence also clipper (it cuts through air or waves) and the vn clipping. 'To clip', ME clippen, comes from ON klippa, klyppa, to cut, to shear: prob echoic.

clip (2), to embrace, hence n; hence also clippers, clip hooks.

This v clip derives, through ME clippen, cluppen, from OE clýppan, akin to OFris kleppa, klippa, to embrace, OHG chlāfira, MHG klāfter, width of the outstretched arms, whence G Kläfter, a fathom, and Lith glóbiu (s glob-), I embrace, and L globus, globe, and glēba, clod: cf, therefore, GLEBE, GLOBE, also CLASP.

clique. See CLICK.

clivus (in An); acclivity, acclivitous—acclivous; declivity, declivitous—declivous; proclivity, proclivitous—proclivous.

1. ML clivus, L clivus, a slope, hence a hill, has s cliv-, r cliv-, as in clivāre (s cliv-, r cliv-), to which clivus is intimately akin: f.a.e., CLIME, para 1.

2. ML acclivis, L acclivus (ac, for ad, to + clivus, adj form of clivus), var acclivus, ML -ivus, yields the E adj acclivous; derivative acclivitas, o/s acclivitāt-, ML acclivitāt-, yields acclivity, whence adj acclivitous.

3. ML dēclivis, L dēclivus, accounts for E declivous; derivative ML dēclivitas, L dēclivitās, o/s dēclivitāt-, ML dēclivitāt-, accounts for declivity, whence declivitous: cf prefix de-, down from.

4. L prōclivis, var prōclivus, ML -ivis, -ivus, gives us proclivous, inclined pro or forward, esp obliquely forward; derivative prōclivitas, ML prōclivitās, o/s prōclivitāt-, gives proclivity, whence proclivitous.

cloaca, cloacal; clyster.

Cloacal represents L cloācālis, adj of cloāca, a sewer, a privy, from clōāre*, var of rare cluere (s clu-), to cleanse, akin to Gr kluzein (s kluz-, r klu-), to wash, to cleanse with water, with derivative klustēr, a cleansing injection of water, whence L clyster, whence, ? through MF-F clystère, the E clyster, with subsidiary, now obsol, sense 'enemy'.

cloak, n hence v: ME cloke: OF-MF cloke for cloque, var of cloche, cloak, from OF-F cloche, a bell, because of a 'filled' cloak's bell-shape: from ML clocca, cloca, bell: f.a.e., CLOCK.

cloche, an airtight utensil in cooking, a tight, bell-shaped hat: adopted from F: f.a.e., prec. Cf:

clock, n hence v: ME clok or clokke: MD clocke (cf D klok, clock, bell): either from OF-MF cloque, which has var cloche (the F form), or from ML clocca (C7), var cloca, a bell, of C origin: the EIr cloc, bell, was 'brought to the Continent by the Irish monks' (B & W); cf Ga clag, W cloch, Cor clōch, clōgh, bell. Prob echoic.

clod; clot (n hence v). The former derives from ME clodde, a later form of ME clot, a clod, from OE clot or clott, the modern differentiation between 'clod of earth' and 'clot of blood' being a natural development. With OE clot(t), clod, cf G Klotz, a block, and MHG kloz, block, earlier a lump; cf also CLOUD.

clog, orig a block of wood, a short, thick log, whence a heavy shoe and also an impediment; hence the v. From ME clogge, block of wood, stump: o.o.o.: perh cf CLOD.

cloister (n hence v), cloistral—claustral—cf the element claustr-.

Cloister derives from ME cloistere, adapted from OF-EF cloistre (whence EF-F cloître), a blend of the OF-MF clostre with OF-EF cloison, an enclosure, whence, incidentally, cloisonné; OF-MF clostre derives from L claustrum, a means of closing, later an enclosure, from claudere, to close, pp clausus: f.a.e., CLOSE. Claustrum had LL adj claustrālis, acting as a barrier, whence claustral, which, 'blended' with cloister, explains cloistral.

close (adv from adj; n; v); closet, n hence v; closure;—disclose, disclosure; enclose, enclosure.

1. The adj close, ME clos, derives from OF clos, from L clausus (s claus-), pp of claudere, to close or shut, s claud-, r clāu-, as in clāuis, a key, and clāuis, a nail: cf CLAVICLE and CLAUSE: cf also Gr kleis, a bolt or a key (? PGr klāwis), and klein (s klei-), to close; OIr clo, nail; and, with the IE int prefix s-, the G schliessen, to close, to lock, OHG sliogan (pron slioyan), MLG slūten, OFris slūta, to close; and several Sl cognates in kl-.

2. The n close, ME from OF-F clos, comes from L clausum, an enclosure, prop the neu of clausus, pp of claudere, to close. Close, conclusion, derives from 'to close'.

3. The v close, to shut, derives from ME clösen: inf suffix -en attached to clōs-, the pp s (cf para 1, 1st sentence) of OF-F clōre, to close, from L claudere.

4. Closet is the MF-EF closet, a small enclosure, hence a small room, dim (cf -et) of the n clos (as in para 2).

5. Closure, adopted from OF-MF, comes from LL clausūra, itself consisting of claus- (pp s of claudere) + suffix -ūra (E -ure).

6. Disclosure, imitating closure, derives from 'to disclose', ME disclosen, earlier desclosen, from the pres-ind s of OF-MF desclōre, from L disclaudere (cf prefix dis-), to open that which has been closed.

7. Enclosure comes from OF-MF, from the enclos- s of OF-F enclōre, to shut in, from VL includere*, from L includere; the F s enclos- has prompted 'to enclose', strictly en-, in- 'to close': cf INCLUDE.

clot. See CLOD.

cloth, pl cloths, kinds of cloth, and clothes, garments; clothe.

'To clothe', ME clothen, earlier clathen, derives from OE clāthian, clāēthan, itself from OE clāth, cloth in general, a garment in particular, whence ME clath, cloth, garment, later cloth, retained by E: akin to OFris klāth, kleth, ON klāēthi, MHG kleit (G Kleid), dress, garment: f.a.e., perh cf OE clith, plaster. (Walshe.)

clothes. See prec.

cloud, n hence v: ME cloud, earlier clud, rock, hill(ock), cloud: OE clūd, rock, hill(ock): basic idea, mass—cf CLOD and its derivative clot. Hence cloudless (suffix -less) and cloudy (-y, adj). Cf:

clout. 'To clout', ME clouten, earlier clutten, derives from OE clūt, a patch, a small cloth or piece of metal, akin to ON klūtr, kerchief, Fris klūr, a lump, and E clot, q.v. at CLOD. The 'to strike' sense of clout derives from the 'patch clumsily' sense; 'to clout' orig meant 'to cover or bandage' or patch with a (piece of) cloth'.

clove, as used in cooking: ME clow: MF-F 'clou de girofle', lit 'nail of clove', hence 'clove': L clāuus (ML clāvus), nail: f.a.e., CLOSE.

clove, pt. See 1st and 2nd CLEAVE.

cloven, pp. See 2nd CLEAVE.

clover derives, through ME clover, earlier claver, from OE clāfre or clāefre, akin to MLG klever and MD claver, -ere, D klaver: app the r cla-+an obscure element -fre (MD -vere, MLG -ver), because the G Klee, clover, MLG klēz, has OHG form chlēo, s chlē-. (Walshe.)

clown, n hence v. Orig (C16) a farm worker, hence a boor, whence—boors seeming funny to townsmen—a funny fellow, a buffoon, a jester, clown is o.o.o.: cf, however, the NFr klönne, clown, Icelandic klunni, clumsy boor, and D kloen, hoyden, from kluwen, a clew: basic idea, 'lump—lumpish'.

clow (whence the pa cloying) shortens the obs acclow, orig to drive-in a nail, hence to stop up, choke up, esp to excess, hence to glut or satiate: from OF-MF enclouer (cf the F derivative enclouer: en+clou+er), itself from ML inclāuāre: in+clāuus, a nail+inf -āre. Cf 1st CLOVE.

club (n hence v), heavy weapon of wood, usu with bulbous or knobbed striking end, hence a knob, hence a bunch, hence a group, orig forcibly associated: ME clubbe: ON klubba, var klumba: akin to CLUMP.

cluck, v hence n: OE cloccian, akin to MHG klucken or glucken, LG klukken, G glucken, MD clucken, D klocken: echoic.

clue. See CLEW.

clump, an unshaped mass, a lump, hence a cluster, hence also a heavy blow (cf CLOUT); whence the v.

Clump app comes from MLG klumpe, var klompe, akin to OE clympe, (heavy) piece of metal, and ON klumba, a club, and MLG klumpe, a clog, G Klumpen, a lump, a clump, MD clompe or clomp, D klonip, also G Klampe, a clamp: ŌGmc s, klamp-, var klump-; IE s, glemb-, var glomb-; IE r, gleb-, var glob-, as in L glēba, a sod (see GLEBE), and globus (see GLOBE).

clumsy, whence clumsiness (suffix -ness), derives from ME clumسد (pa from pp), benumbed, from clumsen, to be or become numb: intimately akin to Sw dial clumsig, numb with cold, (hence) clumsy; also akin to CLAM.

cluster, n hence v: OE cluster, akin to OE clot(t), q.v. at CLOD.

The n clutch, a grasp or a grasping, a claw (usu pl clutches), derives from 'to clutch', to grasp, seize, hold tightly, ME cluchen, var clicchēn (whence the dial clitch), from OE clyccean, akin to cling. But a clutch of eggs, or brood of chicks, varies cletch, itself a dial derivative from the mainly Sc cleck, to hatch, from ON klekja, cf Nor 'klekke (ut)'.
clutter, n and v: var of clotter (n from v): a -ter freq of 'to clot': cf pat, patter, spat, spatter: f.a.e., CLOD.

clyster. See CLOACA, s.f.

coach, n hence v, derives from EF-F coche, from G Kutsche, either from Hung kocsi, 'of Kocs', i.e. '(carriage) of Kocs', the Hung town where, supposedly, coaches were first manufactured, or from Cz cotchi, '(carriage) of Kosice' in Czechoslovakia, where, supposedly, coaches were first manufactured (B & W). Perhaps, however, both EF-F coche and G Kutsche derive from ML cocha, varr cocha, cocca, cogga, cogo, a barge or passenger boat or merchant ship, according to the region. Du Fresne's Du Cange defines cogo as 'a kind of ship, which the English call cogs, the French coquets' (rare dim form). The ME cogge is usu said to come, perhaps via MLG kogge or MD kogghe, from ON kuggi, var kuggr. But the OF coque or cogue or predominantly coche might rather (DAF) come from L cōdica (nāuis), a ship, esp a barge, made from cōdex, better caudex, a tree-trunk. The transition from sea- to land-conveyance is far from impossible: cf the AE use of 'to ship'.

coadjutor needlessly lengthens coadjutor: ML coadjutor, LL coadiutor, a fellow-helper: co-, together+adiutor, helper (cf ADJUTANT).

coagulate, coagulation.

The latter comes, perh via MF-F, from L coagulation-, o/s of coagulatio, itself formed upon coagulat-, the s of coagulatus, pp of coagulare, prob from coagulum, something that causes coagulation, from coactus, pp of cogere, to drive (hence, force) together, to coagulate: co-, together+agere, to drive: cf COAGENT (f.a.e., ACT).

coal, n hence v: ME cole, earlier col: OE col, akin to OHG kol, kolo, charcoal, MHG kol, G Kohle, coal, MD cole, charcoal, coal, OFris (and MLG) kole and ON kol, (wood-)charcoal, the sense also in OE, the mineral sense hardly antedating C13; cf OIr gual, charcoal, prob from goulo*; perh akin to the jual- of Skt jualati (jvalati), it burns (Holthausen).

2. ME col has derivative colier, whence E collier, whence—influenced by the obs coalery—colliery (-y, n).

3. Collie, a large, black-and-white sheepdog, prob derives from coaly, coal-black; app influenced by collier.

coaming, a raised frame, whether at floor (orig, deck) or at ceiling level, to prevent water from entering: o.o.o.: but cf Nor lukekarm, a coaming; Nor karm, a frame, has perh been blended with E 'incoming (water)', the sense being 'a (protective) framing'.

coarse, whence, by v suffix -en, 'to coarsen': C15, cors, corse; C16–17, usu course: app from the n course, the general run of things (as in 'of course'), hence common (cf common in its subsidiary sense 'vulgar, coarse').

coast (n and v), coastal; costal, intercostal; accost; costard—costermonger; cutlet.

'To coast' derives both from ME costen, earlier costien, from MF coster, costier, and from costeien, from OF-MF costoier (later cōtoyer), from OF-MF coste (F côte), a coast, whence ME cost, whence E coast (n). OF-MF coste derives from L costa, a rib, hence side (of the body), hence coast, prob akin to OSi kostl, a bone, and perh also L os, bone, Skt ásthi; a k- prefix (as in caper, goat) being presumed and possible (B & W).

2. The E coastal (coast, n+adj -al) was perh suggested by L costālis, whence the Med adj costal and its cpd intercostal (inter-, between).

3. Accost (v hence n), lit to come to (ad) the costa or side of a person or a land, comes from OF-F accoster, from It, from LL, accostare.

4. Costard, an apple with prominent ribs or angles, is app 'a ribbed apple', from OF-MF coste, rib+suffix -ard, connoting largeness. The obs costardmonger, apple-seller (cf MONGER), became eased to costermonger.

5. Cutlet is a f/e adaptation of syn MF-F côtelette, lit a small rib, dim of côte, a rib, OF coste (see para 1).

coat, n hence v (whence vn coating), ME cote, derives from OF-MF cote, OF-F var cotte, a tunic, of Gmc origin: cf OHG chozza, kozso, a coarse cloak, MHG kotze, G Kotze, a coat of rough material: prob from Frankish kotta*, whence the ML cotta and the OF-F cotte. (Kluge.) Cf COTILLON.

coax, whence the pa and vn coaxing, seems to derive from the obs cokes, var cox, a fool, esp a dupe, itself o.o.o., but perh, as EW has proposed, from F cocasse, ridiculous (recorded in E in 1546): cf hoax from hocus. Cocasse is a var of OF-EF coquard, foolish, vain, from coq (cf cock).

cob, a lump or heavy piece, hence nut, stone of fruit, cob of corn, a short, stocky horse, etc., derives from ME cob, earlier cobbe, app of Scan and LG origin, with basic idea 'something plump, esp if round': cf D kobbe, var kob, Fris kobbe, var kub, a seagull, ON (and Ice) kobbi, a seal, and, in cpds, -kubbi, a block or stump: akin also, therefore, to CUB.

cobalt; kobold; cove (Geog).

1. Cobalt, a G word, derives—because miners used to find the metal dangerous to work, the ore being arsenical—from G Kobold, goblin, gnome, likewise adopted by E, often with spelling cobold: and Kobold, MHG kobolt, familiar spirit, prob derives from OHG kobwalto*, a household spirit (lit, power, ruler): cf, sem, the OE cofgodu, household gods, OE cofa, a room+godu, gods, and, etym, the G Koben, MHG kobe, a hovel+walten, to rule or control, E WIELD. (Walshe.)

2. OE cofa, a room, akin to ON kofi, cell, hut, yields cove, (Sc) a rock-hollow, (E) a small, esp if sheltered, inlet (e.g., bay); the Arch sense owes something to both of the others.

cobber (Aus), sl now coll for 'comrade, mate, chum': Yiddish chaber (pron khah'ber), comrade.

cobble (1), a cobblestone (also a piece of waste metal), hence to pave with cobblestones: dim of COB, a lump.

cobble (2), to make, or to mend, roughly; to patch or patch up: o.o.o.; prob, however, from ME cobelen*, a freq of cob, to strike or thump, itself akin to COB. Agent cobbler (ME cobelere), a boot-and-shoe mender, hence a clumsy worker.

cobbler. See prec, s.f.

cobold. See COBALT.

cobra: elliptical for Port cobra de capello, hooded serpent, cobra deriving from VL colobra*, from L colubra, itself o.o.o. but prob Eg.

cobweb, lit spider-web: ME coppeweb: obs cop, a spider, ME coppe, OE -coppe+WEB.

cocaine is a Chem -ine derivative of coca, a SAM shrub with medicinal leaves. A Sp word (earlier, cuca), adopted from Quechua or Aymara (var cuca).

coccal is the adj of coccus, a Bact cell (c/f element -coccic, cocco-): Gr kokkos, a grain, a seed; akin to kikkos, the sheath containing the seeds of a pomegranate: exotics. Cf COCO and COCOON.

coccyx. Akin to CUCKOO.

cochineal adapts EF-F cochenille, itself from Sp cochinilla, cochineal, orig a wood louse: the dried bodies of this parasite, in the specific form of the cochineal insect, yield a valuable dye. Cochinilla is the dim of Sp cochina, a sow, m cochino, akin to F cochon: 'prob formed from the cries uttered by those who call pigs to the trough' (B & W), perh akin to LL cuciōnes, better cutiōnes, wood lice, sing cutiō, from cutis, skin ('thick-skinned creature': E & M).

cochlea (whence cochlear: cf adj suffix -ar): L for 'snail' or 'snail's shell': Gr kokhlias, snail, from kokkhos, shellfish having a spiral covering, akin to konkhē (κόχχη), mussel: f.a.e., CONCH.

cock (bird; faucet; penis), hence prob the v 'to cock'; cocker (spaniel); coll adj cocky; cockchafer, cock-eyed, cockhorse, cockpit, cockspur, cocksure, cocktail; cockscomb, coxcomb;—coquet, coquetry.

1. Certain derivatives of cock, the male of the common domestic fowl, include cocker (agential -er), lit a fighter; and cocky, as confident as a cock; and the foll—and many other—cpds:

cockchafer: cock, either used fig in ref to size, or euphem for cack, dung+chafer (OE caefor, akin to OHG chevar, MHG kever, G Käfer, prob 'the gnawer', for cf MHG kiven, to gnaw: WALSHE); cockpit, a pit for cockfights, hence a district, or a country, noted for much past fighting; cockscomb: a cock's comb, occ corrupted to coxcomb, a badge that, resembling a cock's comb, was worn by jesters in their caps, hence the cap, hence the wearer, hence a fool or a vain, silly fellow, a fop, with derivative coxcombry (suffix-ry); cockspur: a cock's spur, or plants with features resembling one; cocksure: as confident as a cock; cocktail, any creature with tail resembling a cock's, hence (?) a lively, cheerful, basically spirituous drink.

2. Prob from 'a cock' derives 'to cock', ME cocken, (obs) to fight, to strut, prob from the brisk, confident movements of a cock's head; prob from a cock's upright posture when it is crowing, come the senses (vi) to turn up; stick up, and (vt) to set upright, tip upwards, e.g. a firearm's hammer, a hat's brim.

3. Derivatives of 'to cock' include:

cock-eyed, squinting, hence crooked, from cock-eye, a squinting eye: cock, to tip up + EYE; cockhorse: anything, esp a rocking horse, that a child rides astride, i.e. with legs cocked or turned up.

4. The cock of a gun and cock, a faucet, derive quite naturally from a fancied resemblance to the bird or its head or its comb.

5. The sense-development of the n seems to be: male bird; faucet or tap, and then, very soon, a cocking mechanism; finally, prob from the 'faucet' sense, the true C18-20 SE word for 'penis'.

6. The n cock derives from OE cocc (predominant form), akin to the rare ON kokr, to OSi kokotū, to OF-F coq, to LL coccus, app deriving from L coco coco, the cock's cry, LL var cucurru—cf the syn Skt kukkuṣa.

7. OF-F coq has the derivative late MF-F adj coquet, as vain and swaggering as a cock, f coquette, both soon nn; coquet has derivative EF-F coqueter, whence 'to coquet'; coqueter has derivative EF-F coquetterie, whence E coquetry. Cf COCKADE.

coco, whence COCONUT (wrongly COCOANUT): Port and Sp coco: L cocum, coccus, kernel, fruitstone: Gr kokkos, a grain, a seed. Cf COCCAL and COCOON.

cocoon, a Sp word influenced by prec, derives from Sp cacao, itself from Nahuatl or Aztec cacahuatl, the seed of the cacao tree.

coconut. See COCO.

cocoon: EF-F cocon: Prov coucoun, cocoon, (earlier) egg-shell, from coco, a shell, from L coccum, excrescence on a plant, kernel: f.a.e., COCO.

cod (fish) is o.o.o.: ? suggested by cod, the enclosed part of a fishing net, itself identical with cod, a small bag, a pouch, hence a pod or husk (as in peasecod), from OE codd, a small bag, akin to ON koddi, pillow, and MD codde, testicle (whence the E dial and obsol sl cods, testicles); also to OE cēod, cēoda, OHG kiot, LG küdel, a sack. The sl cod, fellow, fool, and 'to cod': or hoax, prob belong here.

codā (Mus), adopted from It, comes from L cōda, a var of cauda, a tail, whence the erudite E (and F) adj caudal, as also the E Sci adj caudate.

2. L cauda, cōda, has a far more notable derivative, the E coward, thus: coward (whence cowardly: -ly, adj): OF-F couard, a coward, orig cowardly, lit 'with tail between legs', from OF coe, tail + pej suffix -ard: coe deriving from L cōda. (The L word, usu said to be o.o.o., is prob (Webster) akin to Lith kuodas, a tuft.) Cowardice, ME cowardise, derives from OF-F couardise, from couard.

coddle, to cook, esp boil, slowly, hence to pamper, app derives either from CAUDLE or from its ONF source.

code, n hence v (whence decode and encode); codify; codex—codicil, codicillary.

1. The last comes from L cōdicillāris (-ārius), of a codicil, itself from L cōdicillus, tablet, hence memorandum, hence a legal codicil, dim of L cōdex, a book in manuscript, hence, in E, an ancient manuscript, but, in L, a writing tablet, consisting of a wax-smear board for writing (whence 'book'), earliest a tree-trunk or a shrub-stem, with var caudex (cf the cōda-cauda var), perh (E & M) akin to L cōda, tail; only very improb akin to L cūdere, beat, and E HEW.

2. L cōdex becomes MF-F code, adopted by E; the F code has derivative codifier, whence app 'to codify', whence, or from F, codification.

codger. See CADGE.

codicil; codify. See CODE, paras 1 and 2 resp.

codlin or codling, a kind of apple, whence codlin(g) moth, was orig a hard-cored cooking apple: F cœur-de-lion, lion's heart, (hence) hard core.

coffee, whence coffee-bean, -house, etc.; café, cafeteria, caffein(e).

E coffee, like the EF-F café, coffee, hence a place where they sell it, comes from It caffè: Tu qahveh (kahvé): Ar qahwah, wine, but also coffee. F café has derivative caféine (Chem -ine), anglicized to caffeine (or -in). Tu kahvé, cahvé, also becomes Sp café, whence the AmSp cafeteria, coffee shop, whence AE, whence E, cafeteria, a self-service café.

The Gr kophinos (s kophin-), a basket, perh of Medit stock (? cf Eg karehtā and qar, basket), becomes LL cophinus, whence, on the one hand, MF-F cofin, whence ME coffin, basket, container, whence E coffin in its modern sense, and, on the other hand, the MF cofre, MF-F coffre, whence ME coffre, cofer, which, linked, yield E coffer.

cog, an Arch and miners' securing device, prob derives from cock, to secure (e.g., make ready a fire-arm), from the 1st COCK, q.v. at para 2.

cogency derives, by suffix -cy, from cogent, itself from cogent-, o/s of cogens, presp of L cogere, to force, (lit) drive (agere) together (co-): cf COAGULATE and, f.a.e., ACT.

cogitate, cogitation, cogitative, cogitator; excogitate, excogitation, excogitative, excogitator.

1. Agere (s ag-), to drive (see ACT), has the int-freq derivative agitāre (see AGITATE), which, in turn, has derivative co-agitāre*, whence L cōgitāre, to set astr in one's mind, to think actively about. The pp cōgitātus yields 'to cogitate'; its derivative cōgitātiō, o/s cōgitātiōn-, E cogitation, perh via F; LL cōgitātūus, ML -ivus, whence, perh via F, cogitative; cōgitātor, adopted by E.

2. Cōgitāre has subsidiary excōgitāre, to thoroughly think out, to ponder deeply: the pp excōgitātus yields 'to excogitate'; the derivative excōgitātiō (o/s -ātiōn-), excogitation; excogitative and excogitator are E formations.

cognac is adopted from F: made at Cognac in the department of Charente.

cognate, cognition. See NATIVE, para 9.

cognition, cognitive, cognizable, cognizance, cognizant, cognize; connoisseur;—recognition, recognitive, recognizable, recognizance, recognizant, recognize; reconnaissance.

1. The effective base (f.a.e.: CAN) rests upon L cognōscere, to know, to learn about, a cpd of co-, together + gnōscere, early form of nōscere, to know (cf NOTION). The pp cognitus, preserved in the neu-become-n cognitum, an object of knowledge, has derivative cognitiō, o/s cognitiōn-, whence E cognition; on the pp s cognit-, cognitive (-ive) arises. Cognize, whence cognizable, is prob a b/f from cognizance, ME conissance, earlier connaissance, adopted from OF-MF, itself from OF-MF conoistre, from L cognōscere; the adj cognizant prob represents OF-MF connoissant, presp of conoistre.

2. Connoisseur is adopted from F (now connaissanceur): OF-MF connoisseur, from conoistre.

3. Recognize (whence recognizable), to cognize or know again (re-), owes its sense to L recognōscere, whence OF-MF reconoistre, with presp reconnoissant, whence, in part, the E recognizant and, wholly, the OF-MF reconnaissance, reconissance, whence ME reconnaissance, whence E recognizance; the OF reconnaissance becomes F reconnaissance, adopted by military E.

4. L recognōscere has pp recognitus, s recognit-, whence the n recognitiō, o/s recognitiōn-, whence, perh via F, the E recognition; for recognitive, cf cognitive.

cognomen. See NAME, para 4.

cohabit, cohabitation. See HABIT, para 10.

cohere, coherence, coherent, cohesion.

L cohaerēre (s cohaer-), to stick (haerēre) together (co-), yields 'to cohere'; its presp cohaerens, o/s cohaerent-, yields—perh via EF-F cohérent—the adj coherent, and the derivative cohaerentia—perh via EF-F cohérence—coherence. The pp cohaesus (s cohaes-) has subsidiary cohaesiō*, o/s cohaesiōn-* (cf the real adhaesiō, adhaesiōn-), F cohésion, E cohesion; cf cohesive (? after adhesive). Cf ADHERE and INHERE and, f.a.e., HESITATE.

cohibit, cohibition. See HABIT, para 11.

cohort: MF-F cohorte: L cohors-(acc cohortem), o/s of cohors, a farm enclosure, hence division of an army camp, hence the appropriate number of soldiers, hence a subdivision of the Legion: a contraction of cohortus*, lit an enclosure (hortus, later a garden) together (co-): f.a.e., HORTICULTURE.

coif, n, hence v; coiffeur, coiffure.

Both the 2nd and the 3rd, adopted from F, derive from MF-F coiffer, to dress (someone's) hair, itself from OF-MF coife or coiffe, whence, via ME coyfe, the E coif, n, the v deriving from coiffer: and OF-F coif(f)e comes from LL cofia, var cofea, earlier cupha, head-dress, cap, by psilosis from Gr skuphion (s skuph-), skull, mdfn of skuphos, a cup: shape-resemblance.

coign. See COIN.

coil. See LEGEND, para 6.

coin, n and v (whence coiner, coining), coinage; coign; quoin;—cuneiform.

'To coin' derives from OF-MF coignier, whence coignage (-age=F -age, E -age), whence E coinage: and OF-MF coignier (later cogner) derives from OF-EF coing, an angle or a corner—whence

E coign—a wedge—a metal stamp, later a piece of metal certified by the assay-master, who signified his approval by stamping it; in tin-mining, he weighed the tin and then 'chiselled a small piece from the corner (coign) of each block of tin and assayed it for quality before stamping it' (W. G. Hoskins, Devon, 1954): OF-EF coing became EF-F coin, adopted by E, with var quoin, specialized in Arch as 'a solid exterior angle'. Now, OF-EF coing derives from L cuneus, wedge, whence a wedge-shaped or triangular coin, with s cu-, r perh cu-*, cf L culex, a gnat, and Skt sūlas, a sharp tool. From cuneus: cuneiform, wedge-shaped.

coincidence, coincident, coincidental. See CADENCE, para 7.

colt; coition: L coitum, supine of coīre, to go together; derivative L coitiō, o/s coitiōn-: f.a.e., ISSUE.

coke: ? ME coke, for colke, core, perh influenced by ME cole, coal: the 'core', because it is the residue of coal after it has been 'destructively distilled': Webster, who adduces Sw kalk, pith, and Gr gelgis (s gelg-), clove of garlic. The EDD offers E dial colk(e) or coke, core or pith, and adduces OFris kolk, a hole (id in MLG): cf E dial kelk, any hollow-stalked plant.

col; collar, collarbone.

1. Col, a pass that, in a mountain chain, separates two adjacent peaks, is adopted from OF-F: L collum, neck, s col-: cf OFris, Go, OHG, ON hals, and OE heals: IE r, perh kol-*, to turn.

2. L collum has adj collāris, whence the n collāre (prob elliptical for collāre uinculum, neck-bond), whence OF-MF colier, coler, whence ME coler, coller, whence E collar, with cpd collarbone (cf BONE); 'to collar' derives from the n.

collander, often phon spelt cullender, app comes either from It colino, strainer, sieve, from It colare, to strain or filter, from syn L cōlāre, itself from L cōlum, a filter, a sieve (cf L cōlātōrium, ML cōlātōr, whence Sp colador, a sieve), or, less prob, from L (lanx) cōlanda, (a dish) to be strained or sieved, hence for straining.

cold, adj, hence n and v (OE cealdian) and, by suffix -ness, coldness.

The adj cold, ME cold, earlier cald, derives from OE cald, var ceald, akin to OFris and OS kald, OHG-G kalt, Go kalds, ON kaldr; more remotely to L gelidus, very cold, and gelū, frost, severe cold; IE r, gal-, with var gel-. Cf CHILL and COOL and GELID, JELLY, GLACIER.

cole, the plants rape and kale; coleslaw; colewort (cf WORT); kale.

1. Cole, ME col, derives from OE cāl, cāwel, cawl, intimately akin to ON kāl: L caulis (s caul-), a stalk, akin to Gr kaulos (s kaul-). The AE coleslaw, cabbage salad, represents D kool sla, kool being MD cole, identical with the E word.

2. Kale is the N form: Sc kale or cale or kail. colic; colon (in An).

Colic derives from MF-F colique: L colica, n from the f of the adj colicus, sick with colic, from Gr kolikos, adj of kolon, (part of) the large intestine, whence, of course, L colon, the colon, adopted by E. The Gr kolon has cognates in Arm and Lith. E colic has dial and coll redup collywobbles, stomach-ache.

colony. See COLONIAL.

colophon: LL: Gr kolophōn, summit, (hence) finishing stroke or touch: s koloph-, r kol-, akin to the col- of L collis, hill: f.a.e., HILL.

color, colour, derives not by adoption from L color (s col-) but through OF color, var colour (cf the assimilated F couleur): and L color is very prob akin to L celāre (s cel-), to conceal, as, e.g., varnish does. The derivative colorāre, to colour—E 'to colour' derives from OF-F colorer—has subsidiary colorātīō, o/s colorātīōn-, whence late MF-F and E coloration; L colorābilis yields colo(u)rable. Coloratura—orig, ML—is imported from Italy.

2. L colorāre becomes Sp colorare, with pp colorado, used also as adj for 'reddish', hence Rio Colorado and, derivatively, the State of Colorado.

3. 'To discolo(u)r', ME descolouren, comes from OF-MF descolorer: des- for dis-+ colorer from L colorāre; discoloration blends 'to discolo(u)r+' + coloration.

Colorado. See prec, para 2.

colossal, colossus; Colosseum, Coliseum.

The 4th is a var of the 3rd, itself orig the neu of L colosseus, huge, from colossus, a huge statue, trln of Gr kolossos; colosseus became (EF-F and) E colossal. The Gr kolossos is prob akin to Gr kolophōn, q.v. at COLOPHON: in form, cf Gr Molosso s, E molossus, a metrical foot of three long syllables.

colour. See COLOR.

colt: ME colt, young horse—ass—camel: OE colt, young ass or camel: mainly Scan: ult akin to CHILD. Hence coltish.

colter, coulter: ME colter, culter: OE culter: L culter, any cutter, esp ploughshare and knife: o.o.o.

colombine: (perh via MF-EF colombine, but certainly from) LL columbina, from columbinus, of or like a columba or dove: 'from the fancied resemblance of its inverted flower to a group of five pigeons' (Webster). With L columba, cf Gr kolumbos, the little grebe, 'both birds having been named from their colour' (Boisacq): cf kelainos, sombre. The IE r, therefore, would be kel-, var kol-, sombre.

column, columnar, columnist, columniation; colonnade; sep colonel.

1. A columnist (suffix -ist) writes literary or journalistic columns: and column derives from L columna, an Arch column, akin to L columen, a summit (cf CULMINATE and, f.a.e., HILL); its LL adj columnāris yields E columnar (-ar, adj). The Arch columniation is oddly formed from L columnātus, supported with columns.

2. Columna becomes It colonna, whence colonnata, whence F colonnade, adopted by E; cf the suffix -ade.

coma (1): Gr kōma, lethargy, (lit) profound sleep, intimately akin to kōmainō, I sleep profoundly, s kōmain-, r kōm-, and koimaō, I lull to sleep. On the o/s komat- is formed the E adj comatose (suffix -ose).

coma (2), nebulous mass, blur of light. See COMET, last sentence.

comb, n hence v: OE camb, akin to OHG kamb

combat, combatant, combative. See 2nd BAT, para 3.

combe. See COOMB.

combine, v hence n; combination, combinative.

The 3rd is an E formation (-ive), suggested by the 2nd, which, perh via MF-EF, comes from combinātiōn-, the o/s of LL combinātiō-, itself from LL combināre, whence, perh via MF-F combiner, the E 'to combine', whence 'a combine': com-, together+bini, two at a time, from bis, twice: cf BINARY.

combustible, combustion.

Adopted from MF-F, combustible suggests a LL combustibilis*, formed—like LL combustio, o/s combustīōn-, whence OF-F, hence E, combustion—from combust- (cf the obs E adj combust, burnt up), the s of combustus, pp of combūrere, virtually a blend of co-urere, to burn together or simultaneously+ambūrere, to burn on both sides. L ūrere, to burn, has s ūr- and prob r ūr-: cf Gr heuō, Skt ōṣāmi, I burn, and, for the pp ustus, Skt uṣṭā, burnt.

come, pt came, pp come, presp (and vn) coming; sep become; income, incoming; oncome, oncoming; outcome; obvious cpds, come-back, etc.

1. The etym constellation of come is too vast to be conveniently grouped. But cf such Latin cognates as advēne, convēne, intervēne—advēnt, convēnt, event, invent, prevent—convention, invention, prevention, subvention, with such adj as conventional, preventive; such F 'intermediaries' as adventure, avenue (and venue), parvenu, revenue—provenance; and such Gr cognates as acrobat and the n base: all recorded sep in this dict.

2. 'To come' derives, through ME comen, earlier cumen, from OE cuman, s cum-: akin to OFris kuma, koma, OS cuman or k-, Go qīman, OHG queman, MHG komen, G kommen, MD comen, commen, D komen, ON koma: Gmc kwm-, IE gwem- or guem-*: cf L uenīre (ML venire), s uen-, for guemīre*; cf Gr bainein, to go s bain-; cf also Skt gāmāmi, I go.

3. The principal prefix-cpds are:

become, treated sep;

income, n (cf REVENUE), app derives from obs 'to income' (OE incuman); oncome, n, mainly Sc: ME on-come, on-kume; oncoming, adj, from presp of obs oncome, vi, ME on-comen, on-kumen; outcome, n, prob from obs outcome, vi, ult from OE ūtcyman, for ūtan-cumen.

comedy, comedian, comédienne, comedic. See ODE, para 3.

comely, whence comeliness (-ness): ME comlich or comeliche, earlier cumlīch: OE cūmlīc, by -lic (E -like) from cūme, pretty, beautiful, fine, tender, delicate: akin to OHG chūmo, MHG kūme, weakly (adv), and MHG kūm, weak, and OHG chūma, sorrow, and G kaum, scarcely. (Walshe.) comestible. See EDIBLE, para 2.

comet, whence adj cometary (cf F cométaire) and cometic, derives, like OF-F comète, from L comētā, var of comētes, trln of Gr komētēs, (lit) the long-haired, elliptical for astēr komētēs, long-haired star, from koman, to wear one's hair long, from komē, hair, itself o.o.o.; komē becomes L coma, adopted by E Astr and Bot.

comfit. See CONFECTION, para 2.

comfort, comfortable. See FORCE, para 7. comfrey. See SOLID, para 7, s. f.

comic(al). See ODE, para 4.

comity: L cōmitās, courtesy, o/s cōmitāt-, from cōmis, affable, courteous, earlier cosmis, perh from IE r smei*, to smile, to laugh (cf SMILE), with co- (for con-, from cum, with) used as an int prefix. (E & M.)

comma: L comma, clause, (later) comma: Gr komma, clause, ? for koptma*, from koptein, to cut off: s kopt-*, r kop-: IE r kap-, varr kep- and kop-*: cf Alb kep, I cut or dress stone. Cf CAPON.

command (n and v), commandant, commandeer, commander, commandery, commandment. See MANUAL, para 22.

memorable, commemorate, commemoration, commemorative, commemorator. See MEMORY, para 6.

commence, commencement; recommence, recommencement.

Recommencement, adopted from EF-F, derives, by suffix -ment, from OF-F recommencer: re-, again+commencer. And OF-F commencer—whence OF-F commencement, adopted by E—is OF commencer, whence ME comencer, whence 'to commence'; OF comencer derives from VL cominitiare*, an int (com-, with, together) of initiāre (orig 'to initiate' someone into esp a religion, then, from C5), 'to begin': f.a.e., INITIAL.

commend, commendation, commendatory. See MANUAL, para 24.

commensurable, commensurate. See MEASURE, para 6.

comment, n, v; commentary; commentate, commentation, commentator. See MIND, para 15.

commerce, commercial. See MARKET, para 4.

commère. See FATHER, para 3. commination, comminatory. See MINATORY, para 2.

comminute, comminution. See MINOR, para 7.

commiserate, commiseration, commisericative. See MISER, para 2.

commissar, commissariat, commissary; commission (n hence v), commissionaire, commissioner. See MISSION, para 8.

commissure. See MISSION, para 8.

commit; committee. See MISSION, para 8.

commix. See MIX, para 9.

commode, commodious, commodity. See MODAL, para 11.

commandore: earlier commandore: prob D kommandeur: certainly OF-F commandeur, from the v commander: cf command, q.v. at MANUAL, para 22.

common, adj (with neg uncommon), hence nn common (land held in common) and commons (the Commons; food eaten in common); commonalty; commoner; commonness; such cpds, all easily derivable, as commonplace (n hence adj), commonsense, commonweal and commonwealth.—commune (cf the adj communal) and 'to commune'; communicable, communicant, communicate, communication, communicative (neg in-), communicatory; communion, Communion; communiqué; communist (adj communistic), community; sep MEAN, held in common, to be consulted f.a.e.

1. Common, adj, blends as it were the two predominant ME forms, commun and comon: OF-MF comun, OF-F commun: L commūnis. Commonness merely attaches the suffix -ness; commonalty anglicizes, in the ME period, the MF communalité (F communauté), which attaches -té; for -ité, to F communal (see para 3); commoner, perh suggested by OF-MF communier, one who holds something in common.

2. Cpds worth a remark include:

commonplace, imitative—cf F lieu commun—of L locus commūnis, itself prompted by Gr topos koinos; commonsense, earlier common sense: cf the F le sens commun and see SENSE, para 2; commonweal, earlier common weal: archaic form of commonwealth, orig merely common wealth, public welfare: cf VOLITION, para 17.

3. The L origin appears very clearly in:

communal, adopted from OF-F, from LL commūnālis, mdfn of L commūnis; commune, n, deriving from 'to commune', itself from OF-MF communier, to render available to all, to share, from the adj commun; communicable, adopted from MF-F, from LL communicābilis; communicant, from L communicant-, o/s of communicans, presp of communicāre, to impart (news, knowledge), hence, in LL, to take Communion, from communicus*, mdfn of commūnis; communicate, v, from communicātus, pp of communicāre; communication, prob via MF-F, from L communicātiō, o/s communicātiōn-, from communicāre; communicative: prob via MF-F communicative, f of communicatif, from ML communicātivus, LL communicātivus; communicatory, from LL communicatōrius; communion, perh via OF-F, from L commūniō, o/s commūniōn-; Communion is a sharing with God; communiqué, n from the pp of MF-F communiquer, to communicate; communism, from F communisme, and communist, from F communiste; community, from OF-MF communité, communité, from L commūnitās (o/s commūnitāt-), from commūnis.

4. The prefix cpds are two:

LL incommunicābilis, whence E (and EF-F) incommunicable;

LL excommunicāre, to exclude from the Eucharist, with pp excommunicātus (used also as n), whence the E 'to excommunicate' and the pa and n excommunicate; derivative LL excommunicātiō, o/s excommunicātiōn-, explains excommunication; derivative LL excommunicator is adopted by E.

5. L communis=com-, with + munus, an official occupation (with secondary sense 'present one gives'—cf REMUNERATE) + -is, adj suffix. Basic idea of munus is 'exchange': see MEAN, held in common.

commotion; commove. See MOVE, para 10.

commune, n and v. See COMMON, para 3. communicate, communication, communicative. See COMMON, para 3. communio, Communio. See COMMON, para 3.

compensable, compensate, compensation, compensative, compensator, compensatory. See PEND, para 15.

compère. See FATHER, para 3.

compete, competence, competent; competition, competitive, competitor. See PETITION, para 4.

compilation derives, prob via MF-F, from L compilātiō (o/s compilātiōn-), itself from compilāre, to press together, hence to gather together, hence to compile: com-, together + pilāre (s pil-), to press. Derivative MF-F compiler leads to E compile. L pilāre derives from pila, pillar: f.a.e., FILE, pillar.

complacence (or complacency), complacent. See PLEASE, para 9.

complain, complainant, complaint. See the 2nd PLAIN, para 3.

complaisance, complaisant. See PLEASE, para 9.

complanate, complanation. See PLANE, para 9.

complement (n hence v), complementary, complementary. See PLENARY, para 9.

complete, completion. See PLENARY, para 8.

complex, adj and n; complexio; complexity. See PLY, para 20.

compliance, compliant. See COMPLY.

complicant, complicate, complication. See PLY, para 9.

complice, complicity. See PLY, para 21.

compliment (n and v), complimentary. See PLENARY, para 10.

complin (AE), comply. See PLENARY, para 11. complot. See PLANE, para 23.

comply; compliant, compliance. 'To comply' derives from It complire, to compliment, orig to complete, from Sp complir, cumplir: cf COMPLIMENT. Compliance=compliant+-ce; compliant, on anl of pliant.

component. See POSE, para 6.

comport, comportment. See the 3rd PORT, para 4. compose, whence pa composed and agent composer; composite, adj hence n; composition; compositor; compost and compote; composure. See POSE, para 6.

compound (1), an enclosure: Mal campuñ, influenced by the n in:

compound (2), to combine, to mix, whence adj and n compound and agent compounder and pa and vn compounding. See POSE, para 6, s.f.

comprehend, comprehensible, comprehension, comprehensive. See PREHEND, para 7.

compress, compression, compressor. See the 2nd PRESS, para 5.

comprise, occ comprize. See PREHEND, para 9.

compromise, n hence v; compromissary; compromit. See MISSION, para 20.

comptroller. See ROLL, para 7, s.f.

compulsion, compulsive, compulsory. See the 2nd PULSE, para 8.

compunction. See PUNGENT, para 19.

computation, compute. See the 2nd COUNT, para 2.

Comus. See ODE, para 3.

con, to learn by reading. See CAN, para 4.

concatenate, concatenation. See CHAIN, para 2. concave, concavity. See CAVE, para 3.

conceal, concealment. The latter comes from MF concelement, a -ment formation from OF-MF conceler (il concele, he conceals), whence 'to conceal', and conceler derives from L concelāre, an int (con-) of celāre, to hide, s cel-: f.a.e., HILL.

concede. See CEDE, para 5.

conceit. See CAPABILITY, para 7, at concipere. conceivable, conceive. See CAPABILITY, para 7, at concipere.

concenter, concentrate, concentration. See CENTRE, para 2.

concentric. See CENTRE, para 3.

concept, conception. See CAPABILITY, para 7.

concern, v, whence n, the pa concerned, the prep concerning, and concernment (by suffix -ment).

'To concern' derives from MF-F concerner, itself from ML concernere, to regard, (hence) to concern, a development, from LL concernere, to mix, to mingle together, formed upon Gr συνκρίνω, sunkrīnō, I combine, compare, decide, and falsely referred to cernere, to pass through a sieve. (E & M.) concert, n, v (whence pa concerted), concertina; disconcert, pa disconcerted, disconcertion.

1. 'To disconcert' derives from obs F disconcerter (dis+concerter); hence disconcertion.

2. 'To concert': EF-F concerter, perh from EF-F n concert but prob from It concertare, to act together, to agree; L concertāre, to contend, to be rivals: con- with +certāre, to strive, from certus, decided, determined, hence sure, certain: f.a.e., CERTAIN. The It concertare has derivative concerto, agreement, later a musical concert; hence the F concert, active agreement, a concert, adopted by E.

3. Prob on the anl of other musical instruments: concertina from concert: perh, however, suggested by It concertino, a brief concert, a concerted piece of music, dim of concerto.

concession, concessive. See CEDE, para 5.

conch, whence conchoid (-oid); cf the element concho-.

Conch derives from L concha, trln of Gr konkhē (κόγχη), perh orig echoic: akin to Skt śaṅkhās, conch, shell.

conciliate, conciliation, conciliator, conciliatory; reconcile, reconciliation, reconciliatory.

1. 'To reconcile' comes, perh via OF-F, from L reconciliāre, to bring together again, to reunite: re+conciliāre. Derivative L reconciliātiō, o/s reconciliātiōn-, leads, perh via MF-F, to E reconciliation; reconciliation=re+conciliatory.

2. L conciliāre (f.a.e., COUNCIL) has pp conciliātus whence 'to conciliate'; derivative L conciliātiō, o/s conciliātiōn-, explains MF-F and E conciliation; L conciliātor, adopted by E (cf MF-F concilateur), prob suggested the E adj conciliatory.

conceise, concision. The former (cf EF-F concis) represents L concisus, cut off short, orig the pp of concidere, to cut into pieces: con-, used int+caedere, to cut: cf CAESAR, para 1. Derivative L concisio, o/s *concisio*n-, becomes—perh via late MF-F—concision. conclamant; conclamation. See CLAIM, para 5.

conclave: MF-F: ML conclāve, L conclāue, orig the neu of conclāuis*, 'with (con-) a key (clāuis)': a key-lockable (room): f.a.e., CLAVICLE. Cf:

conclude, conclusion, conclusive.

'To conclude' derives from L concludere, int (con-) of claudere, to close: cf CLAUSE and CLAVICLE. On conclūs-, s of the pp conclūsus, arise:

conclūsio, o/s *conclūsio*n-, whence, perh via MF-F, the E conclusion;

LL conclūsius, ML -ivus, whence E conclusive.

concoct, concoction. Cf decoct and see COOK, para 2.

concomitant. See 1st COUNT (nobleman), para 4.

concord, concordance, concordant.

Concordance, adopted from OF-F, comes from LL concordantia, an agreeing, (general) agreement, formed upon concordant- (whence, via F, the E adj concordant), o/s of concordans, presp of concordāre, to be in agreement, from adj concors (con-, with +cors, gen cordis, heart), agreeing. L concors, o/s concord-, has derivative concordā, whence, via OF-F concorde, the E n concord. Cf CORDIAL, f.a.e.

concourse. See COURSE, para 2.

concrete, concretion. See CRESCENT, para 5.

concubine; concubinage. See HIVE, para 5 and heading.

concupiscence, concupiscent, concupiscible.

The 2nd derives from L concupiscent-, o/s of concupiscens, presp of concupiscere, inch of cupere, to desire ardently: con+cupere, to desire: cf cupidity at COVET; on concupiscent- arises the LL concupiscentia, whence, prob via MF-F, the E concupiscence; concupiscible derives, prob via MF-F, from LL concupiscibilis: concupiscere+-ibilis (E -ible).

concur, concurrence, concurrent. See COURSE, para 10.

concuss, concussion.

'To concuss' represents L concussus, pp of concutere, to shake (quatere) violently (con- used int): f.a.e., QUASH. Derivative L concussio, o/s *concussio*n-, explains concussion.

condemn, condemnation, condemnatory. See DAMN.

condense, whence pa condensed; condensation. The n derives, perh via MF-F, from LL condensātiō, o/s condensātiōn-, from L condensāre (int con+densāre, to thicken: f.a.e., DENSE), whence, via MF-F condenser, 'to condense'.

condescend, condescension. See ASCEND, para 8.

condition. See DICT, para 7 (at condicere).

condign, well-deserved: MF-EF condigne: L condignus, very (int con-) worthy (dignus: f.a.e., DIGNITY).

condiment derives, through MF-F, from L condimentum, a spice, from condire, to pickle.

condition, conditional, conditionate. See DICT, para 10.

condole, condolence. See DOLOR, para 2.

condominium. See dominium in DOMESTIC, para 5.

condonation, condone. See DONATION, para 2.

condor: Sp cóndor: Quechuan condor.

condottiere. See DUKE, para 8.

conduce, conducive. See DUKE, para 6. Cf:

conduct, conductance, conduction, conductive (whence -ivity), conductor. See DUKE, para 6.

conduit. See DUKE, para 9.

cone, n hence v; conic (whence conics) and conical; conifer, adj coniferous.

1. The geom cone derives from the cone of a tree, esp of a pine: L cōnus: Gr kōnos, s kōn- (=IE kō-*+n infix). The Gr adj kōnikos becomes EF-F conique and E conic, with extension conical.
2. The L cpd adj cōnifer, cone-bearing (cf element -fer), is adopted by E as a n, with consequent adj coniferous (cf -ferous at -fer).

confabulate, confabulation. See FABLE, para 1.

confection, confectioner, confectionery; comfit; confetti.

1. L conficere, to prepare (int con+facere, to make: f.a.e., FACT), has pp confectus, whence the rare E v confect; derivative L confectio, o/s con- fectiōn-, becomes, via OF-F, the E confection, whence confectioner and confectionery (-ery): cf para 3.

2. L conficere becomes OF-F confire, pp confit, with its n use borrowed by E in form confit. Conficere has in VL the cpd disconficere, whence OF desconfire, pp desconfit, whence the E 'to disconfit'; OF desconfire has derivative desconfiture, whence E disconfiture.

3. L conficere becomes It confire, pp confetto, used also as n, with pl confetti, adopted by E, orig in It sense 'confections, sweetmeats'.

confederacy, confederate, confederation. See FEDERAL, para 2.

confer, conference, conferment.

The 3rd = the 1st + -ment; the 2nd derives, via late MF-F conferēce, from ML conferentia, formed from the o/s of the presp of conferre, to bring together, to consult: con-+ferre, to bear, bring: f.a.e., FERRY. Conferre yields 'to confer'.

confess, confession, confessional (adj, n), confessor.

'To confess' derives, via OF-F, from LL confessāre, from L confess-, s of confessus, pp of confiteri, to confess, int (con-) of fatēri, to confess, akin to fāri, to speak: cf PROFESS. Confession derives, via OF-F, from L confessiō, o/s confessiōn-; the derivative ML adj confessionālis yields E confessional (adj), and its subsidiary n confessionāle becomes EF-F confessional, adopted by E. LL confessor, adopted by OF (whence the F confesseur), passes into E.

confetti. See CONFECTION, para 3.

confide, confidence, confident; confidant, confidante. See FAITH, para 12.

configuration. See FIGURE, para 5.

The 2nd, adopted from EF-F (obs), derives by suffix -ment from MF-F confiner, to border upon, to hold within limits, whence 'to confine'; MF-F confiner derives from *OF-MF confines (later confins), whence, indeed, the E confines, whence, by b/f, the sing confine; and MF confines represents LL confines, limits, borders, from the L adj confinis, limiting, bordering: int con-+finis, end, esp in pl fines, borders: f.a.e., FINAL.

The last is an E formation: -ory attached to confirmat- as in confirmative, from LL confirmātivus (ML -ivus); confirmation derives, prob via MF-F, from L confirmātiōn-, o/s of confirmātiō, itself from L confirmātus, pp of confirmāre (int con-+firmāre, to strengthen, from firmus, firm, solid: see FIRM), to strengthen, later to confirm, whence, via OF-EF confirmer, MF-F confirmer and ME confirmeren, -firmen, the E 'to confirm'.

confiscate (adj and v), confiscation, confiscator, confiscatory.

The last is an E formation; confiscator is sense-adapted from L confiscātor, a treasurer; confiscation derives, via MF-F, from L confiscātiōn-, o/s of confiscātiō (lit, a treasuring), from confiscāre, to safeguard in a special basket or fiscus: see FISCAL. Confiscāre, esp in sense 'to appropriate for the treasury', has pp confiscātus, whence 'to confiscate'.

conflagration. See FLAGRANT, para 2.

conflate, conflation. See FLATUS, para 4.

conflict, n, v; confliction; conflictive and conflictory.

The two adj are of E formation from conflict-, the s of L conflictus, pp of confligere, to strike or clash (fligere) together, to conflict: cf AFFLICT and INFLICT. L conflictus yields E 'to conflict'; the derivative LL n conflictus (gen -ūs) yields 'a conflict'; the abstract conflictīō, o/s conflictīōn-, becomes confliction.

confluence, -ent. See FLUENT, para 6.

conform, conformation, conformity. See FORM, para 4.

confound. See the 2nd FOUND, para 5.

confront, confrontation. See FRONT, para 5.

Confucius: L form, earlier Confutius, of Pekinese K'ung fu-tzu, 'K'ungmaster', K'ung the philosopher: K'ung was his family name. Hence the adj Confucian. (Enci It.)

confuse, confusion. See the 2nd FOUND, para 5.

confute; confutation, confutative.

The 3rd = confute + -ative; the 2nd derives from confutātiōn-, o/s of L confutātīō, from confutāre, whence, perh via EF-F (obsol), the E 'to confute'; int con-+futāre, to fell, to abase, perh an int or a freq, or both, of fundere (see the 2nd FOUND): cf REFUTE.

congeal, congealment, congelation.

The 3rd derives, perh via MF-F congélation, from L congēlātiō, o/s congēlātiōn-, from congēlare, to freeze (gelāre: cf JELLY) hard (int con-); the 2nd = 'to congeal' + -ment; 'to congeal' derives from MF-F congeler, from congēlare.

congener. See GENERAL, para 20. Cf:

congenial, whence congeniality. See GENERAL, para 20. Cf:

congenital. See GENERAL, para 20.

conger: ME congre, var cungre: MF-F congre: L conger, var gonger, and, in LL and glossaries, congrus, gongrus: Gr gongros (γόγγρος), the L con- being due to the frequency of con- in L words: akin to Gr gongulos (γογγύλος), round or rounded.

congeries. See GERUND, para 8.

congest, mostly as pa congested; congestion; congestive. See GERUND, para 9.

conglomerate, adj (whence n and v); conglomeration.

The latter—cf AGGLOMERATION—derives from conglomerātiōn-, o/s of conglomerātiō, formed from conglomerātus, pp of conglomerāre, to roll together (con-) as if into a ball (glomus). Cf CLAM.

congratulate, congratulation, congratulatory. See GRACE, para 11.

congregate, adj hence v; congregation, with adj congregational. See GREGAL, para 5.

congress; congressional. See GRADE, para 7.

congruence (or congruency), congruent, congruity, congruous; incongruence, incongruent, incongruity, incongruous.

1. Incongruous comes from L incongruus; incongruence from L incongruentia, formed from incongruent-, o/s of L incongruens; incongruity, perh via EF-F incongruité, from LL incongruitās, o/s incongruitāt-.

2. These neg (in-) L forms may be referred to:

L congruus, whence E congruous: from L congruere, to come together (con-), to coincide, to be harmonious: con-+formative g (cf ingruere, to rush into)+ruere, to rush, itself akin to ruina, a (down)fall, ruin: f.a.e., RUIN;

L congruentia, whence E congruence and var congruency;

L congruens, o/s congruent-, whence E congruent;

LL congruitās, harmony, whence, perh via late MF-F congruité, the E congruity.

conic(al), conics, conifer(ous). See CONE.

conject, conjective; conjecture (n, v), conjectural.

Conjective adds adj -ive to the obs v conject, from ML conjectāre, LL coniectāre, an int of coniicere (pp coni(i)ectus), to throw (con-), hence to conjecture, -iicere being a c/f of iacere, to throw: f.a.e., JACULATE. Conjecture, n, derives, perh via F, from ML conjectūra, LL coniectūra, from the pp s coniect-; the v conjecture perh derives either from the E n or from MF-F conjecturer (from F conjecture), but, most prob, from the LL coniectūrāre, to conjecture, s coniectūr-, ML conjectūr-; the adj conjectural, however, comes—perh via EF-F—from ML conjectūrālis, L coniectūrālis.

conjoin, conjoint. See JOIN, para 17. Cf:

conjugal, conjugant, conjugate (adj, n, v), conjugation, conjugative; conjunct, conjunction, conjunctive (adj hence n), conjunctivitis, conjuncture. See JOIN, resp para 13 and para 14.

conjunction; conjure, whence conjuror, var conjurer, and conjury (now usu conjuring). See JURY, para 4.

connate, connatural. See NATIVE, para 9.

connect, whence connector or -er; connection or connexion; connective (whence connectivity). See the 2nd NET, para 9.

connivance, connive.

L connuere, better coniuere (or -ere), ML conivere, to shut, esp the eyes (to), con- used int+a cognate of nictāre, to wink: whence 'to connive'. (Cf OE hnāegan, Go hneiwan, OFris hnīga, OS and OHG hnigan, to bend; IE r, perh kneigh-*, to lean upon.) Connivance, earlier connivence, derives either from EF-F connivence or its source, ML con(n)iventia, LL coniuentia.

connoisseur. See COGNITION, para 2.

connotation, connote: cf denote, but see NOT-ABLE, para 8.

connubial. See LYMPH, para 5.

conquer (whence pa conquering), conqueror, conquest; Conquistador. See QUERY, para 8.

consanguineous, consanguinity. See SANGUINARY, para 4.

conscience, conscientious, conscionable and unconscionable; conscious, consciousness. See SCIENCE, para 5.

conscribe, conscript, conscription. See SCRIBE, para 11.

consecrate (whence pa consecrated), consecration, consecratory. See SACRAMENT, para 15.

consecution, consecutive. See SEQUENCE, para 8.

consension, consensus. See SENSE, para 15.

consent, n, v; consentaneous; consentience, consentient; consensive. See SENSE, para 15.

consequence, consequent. See SEQUENCE, para 8.

consertal. See SERIES, para 8.

conserve, n, v; conservancy; conservation; conservatism, conservative (adj hence n); conservator, conservatory and conservatoire.

1. The base is ML servāre, L servūre, to keep safe or well, to preserve, s serv- (ML) or seru- (L), with prob r ser-; perh akin to L seruus, *guardian, slave, and prob akin to L servūre, to serve: cf the other cpds OBSERVE, PRESERVE, RESERVE.

2. ML conservāre, L conservāre, int (con-) of servāre, becomes OF-F conserver becomes 'to conserve'; OF conserver has derivative MF-F n conserve, adopted by E. The L presp conseruans, o/s conseruant-, ML conservant-, yields the adj conservant; the derivative LL conseruantia, ML conservantia, yields conservancy. The pp conseruātus, s conseruāt-, ML conservāt-, appears in L conseruātiō, o/s conseruātiōn-, ML conservātiōn-, whence, very prob via MF-F, the E conservation;

LL conseruātius, ML conservātivus, yields, perh via F, the E conservative, whence conservatism;

L conseruātor, ML conservātor, is adopted by E; LL conseruātōrius, ML conservātōrius, yields the adj conservatory, the E n coming from the ML neu conservātōrium used as n, whence also the F conservatoire.

consider, considerable, considerate, consideration; neg: inconsiderable, inconsiderate, inconsideration.

1. Inconsiderable derives from LL inconsiderābilis, hard to understand; inconsiderate, from LL inconsiderātus; inconsideration, from LL inconsiderātiō, o/s inconsiderātiōn-. In all, in- is 'not'.

2. 'To consider' derives from OF-F considérer, from L considerāre, to examine carefully, prob orig a term in augury and therefore deriving from sidus (o/s sider-), mostly in pl sidera, the stars: if the s be sid-, the r sī-, the word is perh Medit: cf Eg siu. Considerāre has derivatives:

LL considerābilis, whence both EF-F considérable and E considerable;

L considerātus, pp used as adj for 'carefully examined', hence homo considerātus, one who thus considers others, whence E considerate; its derivative considerātiō, o/s considerātiōn-, whence, prob via OF-F, the E consideration.

3. Likewise from sidus (adj sidereus, siderālis, whence the blended E sidereal) comes L dēsiderāre, to cease to view, hence to regret the absence of, with pp dēsiderātus, whence 'to desiderate'; neu dēsiderātum, pl dēsiderāta, used as n, are adopted by E; derivative dēsiderātiō, o/s dēsiderātiōn- becomes E desideration; and LL dēsiderātīus, ML -ivus, becomes E desiderative, used also as n.

consign, consignment, consignee, consignment, consignor. Cf DESIGN, INSIGNIA, RESIGN—but see SIGN, para 13.

consignification, consignify. See SIGN, para 13, s.f. consist; consistence (or -ency), consistent; consistency. See SIST, par 3.

consolation, consolatory, console (v). See SOLACE. console, n. See consolidate at SOLID, para 6.

consound. See SOLID, para 7. conspicuous. See SPECTACLE, para 8.

conspicuity, conspicuous. See SPECTACLE, para 8. conspiracy, conspiracy, conspirator, conspiratorial, conspire. See SPIRIT, para 8.

conspue. See the 2nd SPIT, para 3, s.f. constable, constabulary (adj hence n).

Constable, the same in ME, derives from earlier ME conestable, adopted from OF-MF (OF var cunestables), which adapts it from LL comes stabuli, the officer in charge of the Emperor's stable, later the head of the household army: lit, count of the stable. Derivative ML constabulārius, of, by, for a constable, yields the E constabulary; the predominant adj is now constabular. Cf COUNT (the person) and STABLE.

constancy, constant. See STAND, para 22. constat; constate. See STAND, para 22.

constellate, constellation; constellatory. See STAR, para 4. consternate, consternation. See STRATUM, para 6. constipate, constipation.

The latter comes, perh via MF-F, from conspatiōn-, o/s of LL conspatiō, a crowding, or being crowded, together, itself deriving from L conspāre, to press, or crowd, together: int con- + spāre, to press, esp to surround or enclose narrowly: f.a.e., COSTIVE. Constipate derives from L conspātus, pp of conspāre.

constituency, constituent, constitute, constitution, constitutional, constitutive. See STAND, para 22, s.f.

constrain, constraint. See the 2nd STRAIN, para 7. constrict, constriction, constrictive, constrictor; constringent. See the 2nd STRAIN, para 6.

construct, adj (whence n) and v; construction, whence constructional (-al, adj); constructive; constructor;—construe, v hence n. See STRUCTURE, para 6.

consubstantial, consubstantiality. See STAND, para 35.

consul, consular, consulate; proconsul, proconsular.

The last represents L prōconsulāris, from L prōconsul, adopted by E—as is the simple consul, prob orig 'one who is consulted': see next. Consul has adj consulāris, whence E consular, and n consulatus consult, consultant, consultation, consultative, consultatory, consultor (or -er).

The last, adopted from L, is built upon consult-, s of consultus, pp of consulere, to consult; but it is the derivative consultāre, to consult, which is concerned in the other E words, for 'to consult' derives, via MF-F consuler, therefrom; consultant = consultant-, o/s of the presp consultans; consultation derives, perh via MF-F, from consultātiōn-, o/s of the derivative consultātiō; consultative derives, perh via EF-F consultatif, from LL consultātīus, ML -ivus, and consultatory from consultatōrius*. See COUNSEL, f.a.e. consume, whence consumer. See SUMPTION, para 3.

consummate, consummation, consummative, consummatory; consummator. See SUM, para 5.

consumption, consumptive. See SUMPTION, para 3.

contact (n and v), contactor; contagion, contagious. Cf intact; see TACT, paras 13 and (contagion) 14.

contain, whence container; contents; content (adj, n, v), contentment and discontent (n, v); continence, continent (adj, whence n), continental; incontinence, incontinent; countenance (n, whence v).

1. All these words come from L continēre, to hold (tenēre) together (con-), to hold within, to contain, to retain: f.a.e., TENABLE.

2. Continēre has presp continens, o/s continent-, whence the E adj continent, whence, influenced by L terra continens (source of the F terre continentie), the n continent, with adj continental; derivative L continentia leads to OF-F continence, adopted by E; neg L incontinentia yields incontinence, and incontinens yields incontinent.

3. ML exhibits continentia in the secondary sense 'demeanour', which takes in OF the distinct form contenance, adopted by ME, with later var countenance, surviving into E. (B & W, however, derive OF contenance from OF contenir.)

4. Continēre has pp contentus, neu contentum, which, used as n, yields E content, 'that which is contained', usu pl contents. Content, state of quiet satisfaction, app derives from the adj content, quietly pleased or satisfied or happy, adopted from MF-F content, from L contentus; the OF content has derivative MF-F v contenter, whence 'to content', which, in turn, has derivative late MF-F n contentement, duly adapted by E as contentment.

5. Discontent, adj, n, v, and discontentment are E dis- formations.

6. The OF-F contenir becomes ME contenen, var containen, whence 'to contain'.

contaminable, contaminate, archaic adj and living v; contamination; contaminative; contaminator. See TACT, para 14.

concept, contemptible, contemptuous; contemn, whence contemner or -or.—Perh akin: contumacy, contumacious, and contumely, contumelious.

1. Contemptuous is an E -uous formation from contempt, which derives, perh via EF, from L contemptus (gen -ūs), itself from contemnere, to slight or despise, whence, prob via EF contemner, the E 'to contemn'; the pp s contempt- (pp contemptus) has further derivative LL contemptibilis, whence MF-EF, hence E, contemptible. Contemnere is an int (con-) of the syn rare temnere, which has s temn- and is perh akin to Gr temnein (s temn-), to cut: sem cf cutting.

2. Perh akin to L contemnere is L contumax, o/s contumac-, whence, by suffix -ious, the E contumacious; contumax has derivative contumácia, whence E contumacy.

3. Also perh akin to L contemnere is L contumelia, a slight, an insult, whence EF contumelie, whence E contumely; the derivative L adj contuméliōsus becomes E contumelious. Benveniste attaches contumelia to tumēre (s tum-: see TUMID), to be puffed up, e.g. with insolence.

continual, continuance, continuation, continuity, continuous; continue; continuum; and discontinuance, discontinuation, discontinuity, discontinuous, discontinue.

1. 'To discontinue' derives from MF-F discontinuer; discontinuance is AF (from the v), discontinuation is adopted from MF-F, and discontinuity=dis+continuity. Dis- implies a breaking-off, a ceasing.

2. The con- terms likewise come, with one exception, from, or imitate, or are present also in F: continual, ME continuel, OF-F continuel, comes from L continuus; continuance is adopted from OF; continuation derives, via MF-F, from L continuātiōn-, o/s of continuātiō, from the v continūare, itself from continuus; continuity, via MF-F, from L continuitās (o/s continuitāt-), from continuus; continuous, however, comes straight from L continuus, whose neu continuum supplies a n to modern Physics; 'to continue' passes through OF-F continuer on its journey from L continūare. The 'active principle' of L continuus springs from its source or, at the least, its influential cognate, continēre, to hold together, (almost) to ensure the continuance of: cf, therefore, continent at CONTAIN, para 2, and for the basic idea 'holding on', see TENABLE.

contrary (adj hence n), whence contrariness; contrariety.

The 3rd comes, via ME contrariete and OF contrarieté, from LL contrārietās, itself from L contrārius (from contra, against), whence, via OF-MF hence ME contrarie, the E contrary.

contrast, n, derives from EF-F contraste, orig a contest, from It contrasto, itself from contrastare, whence, via EF-F contraster, the E 'to contrast': and It contrastare, to be opposed to, is the LL contrastāre*, from L contra stāre, to stand (stāre: f.a.e., STATE, cf STAND) against (contra).

conundrum: orig Oxford University sl: of mock-L type: EW compares the later panjandrum (Gr pan-, all+mock-L ending). Dial con(n)undrums, one's belongings or odds-and-ends, is borrowed from the sl term. Perh suggested by L conuoluulus, ML convolvulus, a caterpillar that wraps itself in a leaf, a bind-weed (the convolvulus), from L conuoluere, ML convolvere, to roll (uoluere, volvere: cf involve) around (con- used int); the ending might have been influenced by Trivandrum, a famous, ancient city of India. But most prob a punning, mock-L var of QUANDARY, itself of academic origin.

conurbation. See URBAN, para 1.

convalesce, convalescence, convalescent. See VALUE, para 13.

convection, convector. See VIA, para 12.

convene, convenance; convenience (n and v), conveniency, convenient, and their negg; convent and its adj conventual; conventicle; convention, conventional, conventionalize;—coven (or -in); covenant (n hence v), covenanter.

1. The n inconvenience, whence 'to inconvenience', takes its form from LL inconuenientia, disagreement, its sense as neg of convenience; inconvenient derives from inconuenient-, ML -uenient-, o/s of inconueniens, neg of conueniens, accordant (para 3).

2. The effectual origin of all these terms is L conuenire, ML conuenire, to come (uenire, s uen-) together (con-), to unite, whence, via OF-F convenir, the E 'to convene', orig vi: f.a.e., COME.

3. The L derivatives relevant to E include:

presp-become-adj conueniens, o/s conuenient-, ML conuenient-, whence E convenient; its derivative conuenientia, ML conuenientia, whence E convenience (with rare derivative v) and conveniency; the Gallicism convenance derives from F convenir; conuentiō, ML conuentiō, o/s conuentiōn-, whence, perh via MF-F, E convention; its LL adj conuentionalis, ML conu-, yields conventional, whence conventionalism (-ism)—conventionalist (-ist)—conventionalize (-ize); conuentus, a meeting, ML conuentus (gen -ūs), a convent, whence E convent; its ML adj conuentuālis yields conventional, of a convent; its dim conuenticulum, ML conu-, yields conventicle.

For paras 1–3, cf VENUE, paras 9–10.

4. Coven, var covin or covine, derives either from OF-MF covin, var covine, or from OProv coven, itself prob from It covento, from ML coventus, contr form of conuentus, L conuentus; the E word is now applied only to an assembly of witches.

5. The contr L couenire, ML couenire, becomes OF-MF covenir, presp covenant, used also as n 'an agreement between persons or esp parties'—and, as this n, adopted by E; its derivative v has aged covenanter. Cf VENUE, para 11.

cook (n, whence directly the v); cookery (C14 cokerie).

1. The latter merely attaches -ery, connoting 'trade of', to cook, n. A cook derives from OE cōc, itself from L cocus, var of coquus, a cook, from coquere (s coqu-), to cook: Italic r, ? kokw-, var of kekw-, itself akin to pek w-, as seen in Gr pessein, to cook, with var pak w-, as seen in Skt pácāmi, I cook (cf the syn Alb pjek); IE r, pek w-, with var pok w-.

2. Two L derivatives concern E: concoquere, lit to cook together (con-), hence to cook entirely, with pp concoctus, whence 'to concoct', and derivative concoctiō, o/s concoctiōn-, whence E concoction; and dēcoquere, to reduce (dē-, down from) by cooking, with pp dēcoctus, whence 'to decoct', and derivative dēcoctiō, o/s dēcoctiōn-, whence, perh via MF-F dēcoction, the E decoction. cookie or cooky (small cake). See CAKE.

cool, adj, n, v; coolant, cooler, coolness, coolth.

The last derives by suffix -th (as in warmth) from the adj cool, whence also coolness (-ness); coolant attaches suffix -ant (n) to the adj cool; the n cool derives from the adj; 'to cool' descends from OE cōlian, from the OE adj cōl, whence E cool. OE cōl is akin to OHG kuoli, MHG küele, G kühl, cool, and ON koela, to cool—also to CHILL and COLD.

coolie, oca cooly: Hind qāli, a native (usu unskilled) hired labourer: cf Tamil kūli, hire (n), hired labourer or servant. EW, however, proposes derivation from Kulī, var Koli, the name of a native tribe of Guzerat (Gujarat) in India, the word having been so used, in Port, in C16.

coolth. See COOL.

cooly. See COOLIE.

coomb or combe, a narrow—or a short, steep—valley, derives from OE cumb, of C origin: cf OIr comm, cumm, a hollow, a coomb, Ir com, a hollow (cf Ga com, the chest)—Cor cūm, small valley, W cwm, coomb—Mx coan, couan, coomb—Br kom(m), a trough; cf also ML comba, var of cumba, curvature, declivity. Malvezin postulates C comb, var of camb, to curve or bend; C cūm, therefore, is basically a curved hollow.

coon, with adj coony; raccoon or racoon.

Coon, the quadruped, hence the fur, merely shortens raccoon; from its predominant grey, black-marked, comes the A sl coon, a Negro. Rac(c)oon is of Alg origin: Webster compares Virginian ārā'kun, raccoon, from ārā'kunēm, 'he scratches with his hands' (feet).

co-ordinate, -ordination: co-, with + ordinate, q.v. at ORDER, para 4, s.f.

coot, a black, rather duck-like bird: ME cote or coote: cf D koet, MD coet or cuut: ? echoic.

cop (1), n, head, top, hence a heap or pile (cf the Afr kopje, hillock, dim of D kop, hill): ME cop or coppe, head, top; OE cop or copp, top, summit: akin to G Koppe, summit, and OFris kopp, G

Kopf, head, either from Gmc kuppa* head, or from LL coppa, cuppa—cf CUP.

cop (2), v, to catch or capture (sl and dial), whence A sl cop, a policeman, E sl cop, a capture, and E sl copper, policeman: prob OF-MF capere, to seize, catch, capture: L capere (s cap-), to take, to catch: f.a.e., CAPABILITY.

cope (1), n. See CAP.

cope (2), v (to deal adequately with): ME cuppen: OF couper, colper, to hit, strike, from coup, a blow, (powerful) stroke, an extant form adopted by E (cf coup de grâce), with OF var colp: VL colpus*, contr of VL colapus*, from LL colaphus, a kick, a cuff or punch: Gr kolaphos, a cuff (e.g., on the ear): IE r, prob kola-*, to strike resoundingly.

cope (3), to pare. See COPPICE.

cooper, (horse) dealer, derives from E dial cope, to barter, ME coopen: MD coopen: akin to CHEAP.

cooping stone. See CAP, para 2. copious. See COPY, para 1, s.f.

copper (1), the metal: OE coper (or -or): L cuprum (adj cupreus: E cupreous), a coll form of Cyprum, elliptical for Cyprum aes, Cyprian copper: Gr Kuprios, of Kupros or Cyprus, anciently renowned for its copper mines. Cyprian=L Cyprus+E suffix -an; Cypriot(e) is a F formation.

copper (2), policeman. See the 2nd cop.

coppice and its contr form copse: OF copeiz, from cooper (whence the tech cope, to pare), var couper, to cut: VL cuppāre*, to behead, from VL cuppum*, skull, from LL cuppa: cf CUP and also COUPON.

copra: Port (and Sp) copra: Mal koppara: Hind khoprā: perh akin to, or even deriving from, Skt kharpāra, skull.

coprological. See element copro-.

copse. See COPPICE.

Copt, Coptic. See EGYPT, para 6.

copula, copulate, copulation, copulative, copulatory; couple, n and v (whence coupling, n, and coupler)—couplet.

1. Copula is L for 'a bond': for co-apula*: co-, together+ a derivative from apere (s ap-), to bind. L copula has derivative copulāre, to bind (together), to unite, with pp copulātus, whence 'to copulate'. On the pps copulāt- arise copulātiō, o/s copulātiōn-, whence, perh via MF-F, the E copulation, and the LL adj copulātius, ML -ivus, whence copulative, and syn LL copulātōrius, whence copulatory.

2. L copula becomes OF-F couple (OF-MF varr cople, cuple), adopted by E, soon with predominant sense 'two linked persons'; 'to couple' derives from OF-F coupler (OF-MF varr copler, cupler), itself from L copulāre. OF-F couple has the MF-F dim couplet, adopted by E, esp in versification.

copy (n and v); copious; copyist; copyright.

1. Copyright is the exclusive right to copy; copyist merely attaches the agential -ist to the v copy; 'to copy' derives, via MF-F copier, from ML cōpiāre, from ML cōpia, a transcript, from L cōpia, abundant supply, (large) number: co-, together+ opia*, from ops (gen opis), abundance, hence power, wealth, akin to Skt apnas, property, and—clearly operative—L opus, work (cf OPERATE). ML cōpia becomes OF-F copie, whence the E n copy; and the L adj cōpiōsus, abundant, becomes E copious.

2. L ops has adj opulentus (for the suffix of fraudentus: E & M), abundant, rich, whence MF-F, hence E, opulent; derivative L opulentia yields EF-F and E opulence.

coquet, coquetry, coquette. See 1st COCK, para 1.

coracle: W corwgl, coracle, mdfn of corwgl, trunk, anything round, e.g. a coracle: akin to EIr (and Ga) curach, coracle: OC kuruko-* (Mac-Lennan).

coral, coralline.

The adj derives from LL corallinus, coral-pink, from corallum, var coralium, from Gr korallion, perh of Sem origin—cf the H gōrāl, pebble; L corallum becomes OF-EF coral (EF-F corail), adopted by E.

corbel; cormorant. The Arch corbel, orig a raven, comes from F: dim (-el) of OF corb, raven, from ML corvus, L coruus, prob echoic. L coruus (ML corvus) marinus, raven of the sea, becomes OF cormareng (for corb marenc), whence F cormoran and E cormorant.

cord, thin rope or stout string, hence 'to cord'; syn chord; cordón, n hence v; corduroy.

1. Chord, cord, derives from L chorda, catgut, hence cord, trln of Gr khordē, ult akin to YARN. L chorda becomes OF corde, whence E cord; OF-F corde has the OF-F aug cordón, ornamental cord.

2. Perh from F corde de roi*, king's cord, derives E corduroy, which may, however, be a contr of the earlier fabric colourderoy (F couleur de roi, king's colour), 'the purple'—but in mid C17, a bright tawny. (EW.)

cordial (adj hence n), whence cordiality; miscericord; sep accord, concord, discord, record; cardiac; sep core (of fruit); courage, courageous—discourage, discouragement, and encourage, encouragement; ult akin to HEART (f.a.e.); cf Hit karza, illuminatingly peripheral to Gr kardia and to E heart.

1. L cor, heart, gen cordis, has ML adj cordiālis, of the heart, intimate, whence, perh via MF-F, the E cordial; cordiality prob derives from the late MF-F cordialité, itself either from MF-F cordial or from ML cordiālitās, o/s cordiālitāt-.

2. The cpd misericordia derives, via OF-F misericorde, from the L cpd misericordia, compassion: from misericors, o/s misericord-: misereri, to feel pity (from miser, wretched)+cord-, o/s of cor, heart+abstract suffix -ia.

3. Intimately akin to L cor, o/s cord-, is Gr kardia (f.a.e., HEART), which has adj kardiakos, whence L cardiacus, whence, perh via MF-F cardiaque, the E cardiac.

4. L cor becomes OF-MF cuer, whence curage, var corage, whence ME corage, whence E courage, whence the adj courageous—cf the OF-MF corajus, F courageux, f courageuse.

5. OF-MF corage has derivatives MF descoragier, whence 'to discourage', with subsidiary MF desco(u)ragement, whence E discouragement; and MF enco(u)rager, whence 'to encourage', with subsidiary MF enco(u)ragement, whence E encouragement.

cordite: by Chem -ite, after dynamite: from CORD.

cordón. See CORD, para 1, s.f.

corduroy. See CORD, para 2.

cordwainer: ME cordwaner: MF cordoanier, worker (-ier) in cordoan, Cordovan leather: OProv cordoan, a re-shaping of Sp cordobán, n from Ar adjab-become-n cortobanī, 'of Cordoba'; it was the Arabs who founded the leather industry of Cordoba. (B & W.)

core (of fruit), whence 'to core': ME core: prob from L cor, heart; cf CORDIAL and, f.a.e., HEART.

Corinthian. See CURRANT.

cork, n hence v: Sp alcorque: Ar al, the, corque, cork-oak, prob from L quercus, oak, akin to FIR.

cornorant. See CORBEL.

corn (1), grain: OE corn, akin to OFris, OHG, OS, ON korn and Go kaurn, and to L grānum (cf OIr grān); Gmc r, kurna*-; general European r, perh gran*-; IE r, perh grnom*- (Walshe). Cf GRAIN.—For corncrake, see CROAK, para 2.

corn (2), on foot. See HORN, para 2.

cornea, corneous. See HORN, para 2.

cornet. See HORN, para 4.

cornice, adopted from EF after being adopted from It, comes by contr from L corōnis, trln of Gr korōnis, mdfn of korōnē: f.a.e., CROWN.

cornicle. See HORN, para 4.

Cornish, Cornwall. The adj = Cornwall + -ish; the n derives from OE Cornweallas, the Headland Welsh: C corn (akin to L cornu, horn), a horn, a headland; cf WALES, WELSH. The Cor name is Cerneu or Cernow (or K-), cf the Br Kerneu, (the) Headland.

cornucopia. See HORN, para 5.

cornute. See HORN, para 5.

corolla, corollary; corona, coronal (adj hence n); coronary; coronated, coronation; coroner; coronet; crown, n and v.

1. The pedestal is L corōna, a crown; the foundation, Gr korōnē, a circle or ring, s korōn, prob from korōnos, curved; with r korō-, cf the curu- of L curuus (ML curvus), curved; basic idea, to curve.

2. L corōna has adj corōnālis, whence E coronal, and corōnārius, whence coronary; and dim corolla, adopted by E, with adj corollārius*, whence the n corollārium, whence the E corollary; and derivative v corōnāre, with pp corōnāre, whence the rare 'to coronate', surviving mostly in the Bot and Zoo pa coronated; on corōnāt-, s of corōnātus, arises LL corōnātiō, o/s corōnātiōn-, whence, perh via MF-EF, the E coronation.

3. L corōna becomes OF-MF corone, whence the AF agent coroneor, coronere, adapted by E: a coroner represents the Crown. The rural crowner is a dial alteration. OF-MF corone has MF-EF dim coronete, whence E coronet, a little crown: cf the suffix -et.

4. OF-MF corone, var corune (cf the F couronne), becomes ME corune, later croun, whence crown; 'to crown', ME crounen, earlier corunen, derives from OF-MF coroner, from L corōnāre.

coronation. See prec, para 2, s.f.

coroner. See COROLLA, para 3.

coronet. See COROLLA, para 3.

corporal, adj and n; corporate (adj, rare v)—corporation—corporative, and incorporate (adj, v), incorporation, incorporator; corporeal (whence corporeality) and incorporeal, and corporeity; corps, corpse; corpulence, corpulent; corpus; corpuscle, corpuscular; corsage; corse; corselet or corslet; corset.

1. The effective origin, the L corpus (adopted by E for 'body of a man's work'), has s and r corp-, with IE r korp-, with potent var kerp-: cf the Av kēhrpem, form, body, and perh the OP kērmens, body. (E & M.)

2. L corpus has o/s corpor-, on which arises corporālis, of the body, whence, prob via OF corporal, the E adj corporal. The Eccl n corporal (a Communion cloth) derives from ML corporāle, prop the neu of corporālis; but the Army corporal, although form-influenced by the E adj, represents EF corporal, a f/e var of EF-F caporal, from It caporale, from capo, a chief, orig the head, from L caput (f.a.e., CHIEF).

3. Also on the L o/s corpor- arise:

corporāre, orig to slay, then to furnish a body and, in passive, to take bodily shape, with pp corporātus, whence the E adj corporate and the rare v 'to corporate';

LL corporātiō (corporātus+suffix -iō), incorporation, o/s corporātiōn-, whence E corporation;

LL corporātiuus (-iuis, ML -ivus, E -ive), whence, E corporative;

L corporeus, whence the ML corporeitās, o/s corporeitāt-, whence E corporeity; corporeal, however, derives from LL corporeālis.

4. Incorporeal derives from L incorporeus, influenced by LL incorporālis; incorporate, adj and v, derives from LL incorporātus, pp of incorporāre, to incarnate—an int of corporāre in its passive sense; incorporation derives from LL incorporātiō, o/s incorporātiōn-; incorporative and incorporator are E formations.

5. On the r corp- arise:

LL corpulentus, well-bodied, hence stout, whence, prob via late MF-F, the E corpulent; its LL derivative corpulentia, LL bodily nature, ML stoutness, becomes E corpulency and, via MF-F, corpulence; corpusculum, lit 'little body', therefore a dim of corpus, whence the E corpuscle, with adj corpuscular, perh from F corpusculaire.

6. Imm from F, come:

OF-F corsage, a woman's bust, later the waist of a woman's dress, last a flower, or a bouquet, worn at waist or, as now, on bust, from OF-MF cors, body+suffix -age; corslet, earlier corselet, adopted from OF-F corselet, dim (elet) of Of cors; corset, a MF-F dim (-et) of cors: orig, surcoat, basque, bodice, etc.

7. Also from F, come:

corse, archaic spelling of corpse: OF-MF cors; corpse: ME corps, earlier cors, adopted from OF-MF: from L corpus; corps, adopted from F, with a sense-differentiation present already in Classical L: EF-F corps, earlier cors, as above.

corps. See prec, para 7.

corpse. See CORPORAL, para 7.

corpulence, corpulent. See CORPORAL, para 5.

corpus. See CORPORAL, para 1.

corpuscule, corpuscular. See CORPORAL, para 5, s.f.

corral: Sp corral, a yard, esp for cattle, from corro, a ring, from correr, to run: L currere: f.a.e., COURSE. The Port curral, cattle pen, becomes D kraal, enclosure, village in S Afr, a native village.

correct (whence correctness), correction (adj correctional), correctitude, corrective, corrector. See REX, para 27.

correlate, correlation, correlative. See RELATE, para 2.

correption. See RAPT, para 11.

correspond, whence the pa corresponding; correspondence, correspondent (adj hence n).

'To correspond' derives from ML correspondere: cor-, for con-, used int+re+spondere, to engage oneself to (do something): cf RESPOND. The ML pp correspondens, o/s correspondent-, yields E correspondent, whence correspondence (cf the MF-F correspondance).

corridor, adopted from EF-F: OIt corridore, from correr, to run: L currere: f.a.e., COURSE.

corrigible. See REX, para 27.

corrival. See RIVER, para 10.

corroborate, corroboration, corroborative, corroborator, corroboratory; corroborant. See ROBUST, para 5.

corroborée is adopted from the Aus aborigines.

corrode, corroident; corrosible, corrosion, corrosive. See RAT, para 3.

corrugate, whence the pa corrugated; corrugation. See RAG, para 4, s.f. corrupt, corruptible, corruption. See RUPTURE, para 4.

corsage. See CORPORAL, para 6.

corsair: MF-F corsaire, earlier corsar: OProv corsari: It corsaro: ML corsarius, adj become n: L currere, to run: f.a.e., COURSE. (B & W.)

corse. See CORPORAL, para 7.

corset. See CORPORAL, para 6.

corslet. See CORPORAL, para 6.

cortege. See COURT, para 3.

cortex, cortical.

The adj cortical merely tacks -al to cortic-, o/s of L cortex, bark, akin to Sl kora, bark, and perh to L corium, leather; IE r, perh ker-, var kor-, to cut, bark being easily cut—or separable—from the trunk. Cf CUIRASS.

corundum: Tamil kurundam, from Skt kuruvinda, a ruby—a red, crystallized form of corundum.

coruscate, coruscation. L coruscāre (orig, prob echoic), to sparkle, has pp coruscātus, whence 'to coruscate'; derivative LL coruscātiō, o/s coruscātiōn-, becomes E coruscation.

corvée. See ROGATION, para 5.

cosh, n hence v: akin to, indeed prob from, QUASH, to shatter, to crush.

cosh. See KOSHER.

cosine. See SINE, para 1.

cosmetic, adj hence n (usu, pl cosmetics). See:

cosmic, occ elaborated to cosmical (-al, adj); cosmos—cf the element cosmo-, as in cosmology and esp in cosmopolite (-itan) and cosmopolis; macrocosm and microcosm;—cosmetic, adj, whence n.

1. For the cosmo- cpds, see the element cosmo-; for cosmopolis, cosmopolitan, etc., see POLICE, para 6.

2. The source of all these terms, the Gr kosmos (prob for konsmos*), order of harmony, hence the world, has s kosm-, perh akin to L censere, s cens-, to think, to order, the IE r being kens-, var kons-, to speak or announce authoritatively (Boisacq).

3. Gr kosmos has adj kosmikos, whence L cosmicus, whence E cosmic.

4. The Gr s kosm- recurs, in its L form cosm(os), in macrocosm and microcosm: MF-F macrocosme, as opp MF-F microcosme: Gr makros, long, big, and mikros, small: the latter, LL microcosmus, Gr mikros kosmos.

5. Derivative Gr kosmētikos (from the 'order, harmony' sense of kosmos), skilled in adorning, yields EF-F cosmétique and E cosmetic, whence the n use, esp in cosmetics.

Cossack: Ru kozak, var kazak: Tu quzak (kazak), var quzq, an adventurer. Cf the EF-F Cosaque.

cosset, v, derives from cosset, a pet lamb: ? OE cotsāeta, cottager, lit a 'cot (cottage) sitter'—cf SIT.

cost, n and v; costly. See STAND, para 22.

costal. See COAST, para 2.

costard. See COAST, para 4.

costermonger. See COAST, para 4.

costive, whence costiveness (-ness): MF costivé, costevé (orig, pp): L constipātus, constipated, orig the pp of constipāre, to cram: con-, together+stipāre, to press: stipāre (s stip-) is akin to Gr stiphros, crammed (together), compact, and OE stif (see STIFF).

costly. See COST.

costume, n hence v; costumier.

The latter, adopted from F, derives from the F v costumer, itself from F costume, C19-20, a suit of clothes, a dress, earlier 'truth of usage, clothes, etc., reproduced in works of art' (B & W): from It costume, dress, (earlier) custom: LL costūmen*: L consuetūdō, custom, from consuēscere, to accustom, to become accustomed: con-, used int+suēscere, to become accustomed (to): suēscere (s suēsc-) is orig the inch of a Lucretian suere (s su-), itself from sui, of or for oneself—cf SUICIDE.

cosy. See COZY.

cot and cote; cottage, cottager; cotter or cottar—cottier;—coterie.

1. Cote, cottage, hence as in dovecote, is a var of the syn cot, ME cot or cote, OE cot or cote, hut, akin to MD kote, LG Kot or Kote, ON kot, hut (ML cota, cotta: from OE or ME); perh of C origin (? cut*, to hide, to cover, with var cot*)—cf EIr coite, Ga coit, W cwt, hut, cottage, and, basically, Br kut, hide-and-peek, kuza, to hide, MBr cuđennec, obscure, and Cor cuđhe, to hide, and cūth, hidden, secret; Malvezin adduces an OF (and F dial) cute, dark place, hut, and proposes kinship with Gr keuthein, to hide, which is akin to Skt kuharam, a hole, and has IE r keu-* (ku-*).

2. Cottar or cotter, influenced by Ga coitear, derives app from ML cottārius or cotārius, var coterius, from cota, cotta (para 1). Cottier, now only hist, adapts MF cotier, from OF cote*, hut, deduced from the OF-MF syn cotin, itself from OE cot.

3. Cottage, ME cotage, rather adds suffix -age to ME cot than comes from AF cotage (from OF cote*)—note that ML cotāgium, pl cotāgia, antedates ME cotage; agential -er attached to cottage accounts for cottager.

4. OF cote* has derivative MF-EF adj cotier, whence (f -erie, E -ery) coterie, in C14-16 an 'association of peasants holding in common the lands of a lord' (B & W), hence, mid C17 onwards, a set or circle of persons.

cotillon, AE cotillon: elliptical for F danse avec le cotillon: late MF-F cotillon, petticoat, dim of cote, OF-EF var of OF-F cotte, tunic, here in sense 'woman's dress or robe': f.a.e., COAT.

cottage, cottager. See COT, para 3.

cottar, cotter; cottier. See COT, para 2.

cotton—n hence adj cotton and (-y) cottony and 'to cotton'—derives from ME coton, adopted from OF-F, which takes it from Sp cotón, a re-shaping of Ar quṭun, var quṭn, cotton. Cf Eg 'khet en shen', lit 'khet or plant [usu, tree, shrub]+en or of+*shen or hair', the 'hair plant' being prob the shrub that is the cotton plant: cf Eg shenti, (?) a hairy plant, and Eg shent, cloth, tunic, prob both of cotton. The A cottontail, wood rabbit, has a tail with white-tufted under side, and the A cottonwood a cottony hair-tuft investing the seeds (Webster).

couch (grass). See VIVA, para 8.

couch (2), a form of bed, and 'to couch'; couchant; accouchement, accoucheur.

Accoucheur, f accoucheuse, obstetrician, f midwife, adopted from EF-F, derive from OF-F accoucher, orig to put to bed, then go to bed: a, for à, to (L ad)+coucher; accoucher has also the OF-F derivative accouchement, a delivery, partly adopted by E.. OF-F coucher derives from L 'se collocāre', to put oneself to bed, from collocāre, to put to bed, orig to place firmly, an int (con-) of locāre, to place: f.a.e., LOCAL. Coucher has presp couchant and pp couché, both occurring in E Her; it has the OF-F derivative n couche, a person's horizontal outstretching, then the place one does this: whence E couch. 'To couch' derives from OF-F 'se coucher', to go to bed.

cough, v hence n: ME coughen or coghen, intimately related to OE cohhetan, to cough, app an int of cohhan*, to gasp—cf MHG kūchen, to breathe, to blow, G keuchen, to gasp or pant, MHG kichen, to breathe heavily, MD cochen, var cuchen, D kuchen, to cough: clearly echoic.

could. See CAN, para 1.

coulter. See COLTER.

council, councillor (AE councilor).

The latter derives by agential -or from the former; prob with influence from counsellor (see next entry). A council derives from ME council, adapted from OF-MF cuncile, var concile, themselves from L concilium, a calling together, hence an assembly, esp if deliberative: con-, together+calāre, to call, summon; cf the formation of:

counsel, n and v; counsellor (AE counselor).

The 2nd derives, through ME counseiller and OF-MF consillier, from L consiliārius, ? from consiliāri, to deliberate, give counsel, itself from consilium, a place of deliberation or counsel, hence the deliberation or counsel, akin to—indeed, prob from—consulere, to gather for deliberation, to consult (an assembly), to deliberate: con-, together +the r of a simple v app lost, but perh akin to L consēre, to be of the opinion, to state or give an opinion. L consiliāri becomes OF-F conseiller, whence ME consellen, whence, influenced by the ME n, 'to counsel'; and L consilium becomes OF-MF cunseil, OF-F conseil, whence ME counseil (var conseil), whence E counsel. There has been some confusion between this and the prec word.

count (1), a nobleman; county; concomitant; viscount.

1. All stem from L comes, a companion, orig on the march: contr of comites*: com-, with +it-, from the supine s (it-) of īre, to go+-es, agential suffix. Comes has o/s comit-.

2. From the acc comitem derives the OF-MF conte (F comte) or cunte, whence E count; derivative OF-MF contesse yields countess; derivative OF-MF conté or cunté yields E county, orig the estate of a count or an earl; the territorial division county has been influenced by L comitātus, orig a body of well-born men, hence their status, their (district, etc., of) authority, a comes having, in C4, become a personage employed at court—a companion to the Emperor.

3. L comes has the ML cpd vicecomes, whence OF-MF visconte (F vicomte), whence ME vicounte, whence E viscount, whence viscountess (cf F vicomtesse)—with OF vis- restored (silent s).

4. Comes, o/s comit-, has derivative v comitāre, to accompany, with cpd concomitāre (con- used int); the presp concomitans has o/s concomitant-, whence the E adj, hence n, concomitant; the derivative ML conconitancia yields concomitance.

count (2), n and v, enumeration, to compute; counter (token), countless; account (n and v), accountant, accountancy; recount, recountal;—putation, putative; amputate, amputation; compute, computation, computative; depute, deputation, deputy; dispute, disputant, disputation, disputations; impute, imputable, imputation, imputative; repute, reputable, reputation.

1. The base is L putāre, (a) to prune, (b) to purify, to correct (an account)—hence, to count or calculate: perhaps there were two separate rr, with the latter (to purify, esp to count) deriving from the L putus, pure, esp (of money) unalloyed: prob akin to Skt pūtās, purified. (E & M.) Cf PAVE, para 1.

2. Putāre, to reckon, has pp putātus, s putāt-, whence putātiō, o/s putātiōn-, whence E putation, a supposing; whence also LL putātīvus, ML putātīvus, whence putative, supposed or reputed.

3. Putāre has the following cpds relevant to E: amputāre, to prune (or cut) around (am- for ambi-, on both sides), pp amputātus, whence 'to amputate'; derivative amputātiō, o/s amputātiōn-, yields amputation, perh imm from EF-F; amputative is an E formation in -ive; computāre, to count (int con-), whence 'to compute'; on computāt-, s of pp computātus, arise computābilis, whence computable—computātiō, o/s computātiōn-, whence computation—and computātor, adopted by E; computative is an E formation; dēputāre, to cut downwards (dē-), to esteem, LL to allot; whence 'to depute', perh via MF-F dēputer, pp dēputé, whence E deputy, whence (!) 'to depute'; LL dēputātiō, o/s dēputātiōn-, yields MF-F dēputation and deputation; LL dēputātīvus, ML -ivus, yields deputative; disputāre, to think about contentiously, becomes OF-MF des- and MF-F disputer, whence ME des- or disputen, whence 'to dispute', whence 'a dispute' (cf EF-F dispute); on disputāt-, s of pp disputātus, arise disputātiō, o/s disputātiōn-, whence disputation—LL disputātīvus, ML -ivus, whence disputative—LL disputātor, adopted by E; disputations, however, derives from disputation; disputant derives from L disputant-, o/s of presp disputans; imputāre, to put into (im- for in-) the reckoning, hence to charge or impute, becomes OF emputer, MF-F imputer, whence 'to impute'; derivative ML imputābilis yields imputable—LL imputātiō, o/s imputātiōn-, yields, prob via late MF-F, imputation—LL imputātīvus, ML -ivus, imputative; reputāre, to reckon or examine accounts again and again, to think over, LL to credit to, whence MF-F rēputer, whence 'to repute', whence both repute, n, and reputed, pa, and—perh via MF—reputable; derivative LL reputātiō, o/s reputātiōn-, yields—prob via late MF-F rēputation—reputation.

4. L computāre has, via F, important issue in E, thus: 'to count', ME counten, a 'blend' of OF-MF cunter and conter, L computāre; count, a reckoning, ME counte, OF-MF cunte and conte, LL computus (gen -ūs), a reckoning, from computāre; countable. OF-MF cuntable, contable, from cunter, conter; counter, a reckoning device, ME contour, OF-MF countouer, contouer, ML computātorium, counting-house. Countless derives from count, n.

5. An account, deriving from ME account, earlier acunt, acont, comes from OF-MF acunter, aconter (a, F à, to+cunter, conter), whence ME acounten, E 'to account', whence accountable; accountancy derives, by -cy, from accountant, OF-MF acuntant, acontant, presp of acunter, aconter.

6. A re-count (recount) derives from 'to re-count (recount)', count again, orig identical with 'to recount', to relate, OF-MF reconter (re-, again+conter, as in para 4), whence F raconter, to relate, and recompter, to count again: cf the differentiation of OF-MF conter, to count, to tell, into F conter, to tell, and F compter, to count; recountal=recount, v+the n suffix -al.

countable. See 2nd COUNT, para 4.

countenance, n, v. See CONTAIN, para 3.

counter (1), adv hence adj: F contre: L contra, against.

counter (2), a reckoning device. See 2nd COUNT, para 4. The 'shop counter' (display table) derives from the board, hence the table, on which money is counted. Counter, the opposite, an effectual reply, derives from counter (1).

counter (3), v: partly from counter (1), esp as used in cpds, and partly from encounter.

counterfeit, adj, hence n and v: a 'blend' of OF-MF contrefet and MF-F contrefait, orig pp of contrefaire, to counterfeit, lit to make against the law: cf the 1st COUNTER and OF-F faire, to make, from L facere, q.v. at FACT.

countermand, n, derives either from F contremande (from the F v) or from 'to countermand', itself from OF-F contremander: contre (L contra, against)+mander, L mandāre, to command (cf COMMAND).

countermine: counter (1)+MINE, v.

counterpane is a blend of the obs counterpoint, coverlet (MF-EF contrepointe), and pane, coverlet (see PANE).

counterpart: 1st COUNTER+PART.

counterpoint. See PUNGENT, para 23.

counterpoise, n, v. See PEND, para 9. counterscarp. See SCARP, s.f.

countersign, n, comes from EF contresigne, from the source of 'to countersign': EF-F contresigner, a cpd of signer: f.a.e., SIGN.

countervail. See VALUE, para 14.

countess. See 1st COUNT, para 2.

countless. See 2nd COUNT, para 4, s.f.

country (whence countrieved): ME cuntree or contree (or contre): OF-F contrée: ML contrāta, elliptical for contrāta regiō or c. terra, region or land set over against (contra) another, hence distinct from it.

county. See 1st COUNT, para 2.

coup. See the 2nd COPÉ.

couple. See COPULA, para 2. couplet. See COPULA, para 2, s.f.

coupon, adopted from OF-F, derives from OF-F couper, to cut: f.a.e., COPPICE.

courage, courageous. See CORDIAL, para 4.

courier. See para 5 of:

course, n hence v (whence courser, influenced by OF-F coursier); concourse, discourse, recourse; courier; cursive; cursor; current (adj and n), currency; curricule, curriculum; sep corral (incl kraal)—corridor—corsair—and coarse; hussar; scour, to run.—Cpds in the L mode: concurrency, concurrent, concurrent; decurent, decursive; discursion, discursive, discursus; excurrent, excursion (excursionist), excursive, excursus; incur, incurrent (whence incurrence), incursion; occur, occurrence, occurrent; precurrent, precurial, precurive, precursor, precurory; procurent, procurive; recur, recurrent (whence recurrence), recursion, recursive; succour (AE succor), succo(u)rer, succursal (adj and n); transcurrent.

1. A course derives from F cours (OF-MF curs, cors), course of, e.g., streams or stars, itself from L cursum (gen -ūs), a running, a place for running, from cur-, s of cursum, pp of currere (v cur-), to run, with influence from MF-F course, a running, a race, itself from It corsa, from It correre, to run, from L currere, which is of C and Gmc stock: cf the C CAR and the Gmc HORSE; IE r perh khar-, with var khor-, khur-*.

2. Concourse: MF-F concoars: L concursum, from concurrere, to run together (con-).

3. Discourse, v, derives from discourse, n: EF-F discours: L discursus, from discurrere, to discourse, lit to run to and fro (dis-, separative).

4. Recourse: MF-F recours: L recursus, from recurere, to run back (re-).

5. Courier: MF-F courrier: It corriere, from correre, to run, from L currere.

6. L currere has the following simple derivatives (from cur-, s of pp cursum) relevant to E:

ML adj cursum, running, flowing, whence cursive;

L cursor, runner, adopted by E Math;

L cursorius, whence cursor.

7. Currere has presp currans, o/s current-, whence, prob partly via OF-MF, the adj current; the n current derives perh from the E adj, but prob from the OF presp-become-n curant (or corant), from OF corre, to run, from L currere; derivative ML currentia yields currency.

8. L currere has derivative cursum (gen -ūs), car, with dim curriculum, a chariot, a racecourse, a race, a running, hence a general course, adopted by E; its LL adj curricularis, of a carriage, becomes E curricular, of a course; and the 'carriage' sense of curriculum becomes E curricule, a two-wheeled chaise.

9. The E hussar derives from Hung huszár, freebooter, from Serbian husar, huzar, from Byz Gr koursōrios, adj-become-n from koursōr, a skirmisher, from L cursor, runner; ML curdarius, pirate (cf CORSAIR), has prob intervened.

10. The L cpds of currere, to run, appear in easily recognizable dress in the remaining E words:

concurrere, to run together, has presp concurrans, o/s concurrent-, whence concurrent; derivative concurrentia yields concurrency; on concur-, s of the pp concursum, arise concursum, o/s concursum, whence concursum, and concursum (gen -ūs), adopted by E; dēcurrere, to descend at a run, to run down, has presp dēcurrans, o/s dēcurrent-, whence decurent; decursive is an E formation upon the pp dēcursum;

discurrere, to run to and fro, has pp discursus, s discurs-, on which arise discursio, o/s discursiōn-, whence discursion—ML discursivus, whence discursive—discursus (gen -ūs), adopted by learned E; excurrere, to run out, has presp excurrans, o/s excurrent-, whence excurrent, and pp excursus, s excurs-, whence LL excursio, o/s excursiōn-, whence excursion (whence excursionist: -ist)—and excursus (gen -ūs), adopted by learned E; excursive is an E formation;

incurrere, to run onto or against, whence 'to incur', has presp incurrans, o/s incurrent-, whence incurrent, and pp incursus, s incurs-, whence incursio, o/s incursiōn-, whence incursion; incursive is an E formation; occurrere, to run in front of, present oneself to, whence 'to occur', has presp occurrans, o/s occurrent-, whence occurrent; derivative ML occurrentia yields occurrence; percurrere, to run through, has presp percurrans, o/s percurrent-, whence the adj percurrent; praecurrere, to run ahead, to precede, has presp praecurrans, o/s -current-, whence precurrent-, and pp praecursus, o/s praecurs-, whence praecursor, forerunner, anglicized as precursor, with adj precurial, precurive, precurory (L praecursōrius); prōcurrere, to run forward, has presp prōcurrans, whence procurrent; procurive is an E formation; recurere, to return at the run, to run back, also to run again, whence 'to recur', has presp recurans, o/s recurrent-, whence recurrent, whence (after occurrence) recurrence, and pp recursus, s recurs-, whence recursio, o/s recursiōn-, whence recursion; recursive is an E formation;

succurrere, to run under or towards, hence run to the help of, whence OF-MF sucurre or soucurrere, ME socouren, E 'to succo(u)r'; the n succo(u)r comes, via ME or OF-MF from ML succursus (gen -ūs), built on succurs-, s of the pp succursus, as in the late EF-F adj succursal, auxiliary, adopted by E, along with derivative n succursal or succursale, auxiliary institution, a branch (of business); transcurrere, to run across or beyond, has presp transcurrans, o/s transcurrent-, whence the adj transcurrent.

11. 'To scour' or run swiftly or rovingly, app simple is prob cpd, for it seems to come, by aphesis, from OF-EF escourre, var of escorre, to run forth, from L excurrere (as in prec para).

court, n (whence courtly) and adj and v; courteous; courtesan; courtesy, curtsy (n hence v), courtier; curtain.

1. A court or area enclosed by buildings, hence all the other senses, derives from ME court, curt, cort, from the same forms in OF, cort being the clearest derivative from L cort-, o/s of cors, a contr of cohors, o/s cohort-: co-, for con-, with +s and r id with those of hortus, a garden: f.a.e., HORTICULTURE. 'To court' has perh been influenced by F courtiser.

2. Courteous derives through ME courteous, rare var of cortéis, from OF-MF cortéis, curteis, adj of cort, curt, court; courtesan from F courtisane, a court mistress, f of late MF-F courtisan, a courtier, from It cortigiano, orig the adj of corte, court, from the L word; courtesy, through ME, from OF-MF curteisie, cortoisie, etc., from the adj curteis, etc.; curtsy (or -cy), contr of curtesy, var of courtesy. Courtier derives from court: by agential -ier.

3. It corte, court, has a derivative corteggio, whence EF-F cortège, whence E cortege.

4. On cort-, o/s of cors (as in para 1), arises the LL cortina, which, orig a cauldron, takes the sense 'curtain' under the influence of L aulaeum or aulaea (Gr aulaia, from aulē, court), a tapestry, hence a curtain, tapestries being characteristic of courts; ? at first, a tapestried screen in front of a fire. LL cortina, occ var curtina, becomes OF-MF cortine, curtine, ME cortine, curtin, E curtain:

cousin, cousinage, cousinly, coz.

Coz is an EE pet-form of cousin (whence cousinly: -ly, adj); cousin, adopted from F cousin, OF-MF cosin (var cusin), derives from ML cosinus, contr of L consobrinus, a mother's sister's child: con-, with + sobrinus, f sobrīna, hence used as n for male or female cousin on the mother's side, from soror, sister, prob for sosor*: f.a.e., SISTER. Soror has ML derivative sororitās, whence sorority, sisterhood; sororal, sisterly, is an E and F formation, balancing fraternal (-nel). Cousinage (-age) is adopted from OF-F. Cf COZEN.

couvade. See HIVE, para 6.

cove (1), small inlet. See COBALT, para 2.

cove (2), a fellow: sl: Rom covo, that man.

coven. See CONVENE, para 4. covenant (n, v), covenanter. See CONVENE, para 5, and cf VENUE, para 11.

cover, v hence n and, by suffix -age (cf acreage), coverage; coverlet; covert (adj and n) and coverture.

1. The last, adopted from OF-MF, derives from OF-MF covert, covered, hence hidden—whence both the E n covert and the E adj covert—orig the pp of covrir (F couvrir), to cover, E 'to cover': L coopere, int (co- for con-) of operire, to shut, to cover, to keep hidden. Operire, like its opp aperire, to open, is multifariously explained by E & M and by Walde, both on the basis of an assumed uerire*, which must then have a sense it would need an Aquinas to adequately postulate: perhaps aperire is fundamental, its opp operire explicable as ob, against + aperire, with obaperire* becoming operire.

2. A coverlet, ME coverlyte, derives from MF cowelit (Mod couvre-lit), lit and factually bed-cover; lit, bed, derives from L lectus—cf the 2nd LIE, para 13.

3. The cpds discover, re-cover, uncover are easy:

ME discoveren, OF-MF descovrir (F découvrir), LL discooperire; re-, again + 'to cover', contrasted with recover, get back; uncover, un-, active 'not' + 'to cover'. Discoverer and discovery = discover + agent -er, discover and n -y.

covet, covetous.

The latter derives from OF-MF coveitos, from OF-MF coveitier, whence 'to covet': and OF-MF coveitier derives from VL cupidietāre*, from VL cupidietās*, an alteration of L cupiditās, from cupere, to desire: cf CUPID. (B & W.)

covey. See HIVE, para 6.

covin. See CONVENE, para 4.

cow, female to 'bull' (cattle): ME cou, earlier cu: OE cū, pl cȳ, whence kyen, whence kine. The OE cū is akin to OFris kū, OHG chuo, MHG kuo, G Kuh, OS kō, MD couwe, usu coe, D ko, and ON kȳr; to L bōs, Gr bous; to Skt gāūs—cf the Lett guovs: Gmc r, kwō-; IE r, ǵwōw-. (Walshe.) The cpds of cow present no difficulty; note cowslip, OE cūsylppe (lit cow's droppings).

cow (2), to daunt or overawe: ON kūga, to oppress.

coward, cowardice, cowardly. See CODA, para 2.

cowder. See GYRATE, para 4.

cowl, n hence v: ME coule, couele: OE cuhle, cugele: L cuculla, var of cucullus, cap, cape, prob of C origin: C cucullos*, s cucul-, redup from C cuc-*, to cover: cf Br kougoul, Cor cugol, cape. (Malzevin and Malzevin¹.)

cowslip. See 1st COW, s.f.; cf SLEEVE, para 4.

cox. Short for COXSWAIN.

coxa. See HHEEL, para 2.

coxcomb. See 1st COCK, para 1.

coxswain. See SWAIN, para 2.

coy. See QUIET, para 3.

coyote: Asp coyote: Nahuatl coyotl.

coz. See COUSIN.

cozen, obsol 'to cheat': EF-F cousiner, to cheat, lit to treat as if a cousin: from OF-F cousin (cf COUSIN).

cozy, cosy, cosy, esp as n in 'tea cosy': Sc cozie, cosie, of Scan origin—cf, perh indeed from, Nor koselig, snug, from kose sig, to make oneself comfortable. (EW.)

crab apple: cf Sw krabäpple: perh from:—

crab, a crustacean: OE crabba, akin to ON krabbi, LG krabbe, G Krebs, OHG chreibiz, whence MF crevice (F écrevisse), whence ME crevis, whence, by f/e, the E crayfish.

2. Hence both crabbed, morose, peevish, and crabby.

crack, v hence n: ME cracken, craken, to crack, crash, break, also to boast: OE cracian, to crack, akin to OHG chrahhōn, MHG-G krachen, to crack or crash; also to Skt gārjati, he rustles or rumbles or roars: clearly echoic; cf CRASH.

2. The freq (or dim) of 'to crack' is 'to crackle', whence crackling, adj and n: cf cracknel, a brittle biscuit, from MF-F craquelin, from MD crakelinc (D krakeling), from MD craken (D kraken), to crack.

cracknel. See para 2 of prec.

cradle. See CART.

craft, whence craftsman; crafty.

The adj crafty derives from OE craftig (adj -ig, E -y), from OE craft, strength, skill (hence cunning), art: akin to OFris kraft or krefi, OS kraft, OHG-G kraft, MD craft or cracht, D kracht, ON krafr, strength, cf ON kraefr, strong: perh akin to ON krefia, to demand, E CRAVE. (Walshe.)

crag, whence craggy: C, perh with basic idea 'to hang suspended': cf EIr crec; Ir craig or, as also in Ga, creag; W craig, pl creigiau; Mx creg; Br karreg, pl kerreg; Cor clegar.

crake. See CROAK, para 2.

cram, v hence n; hence also crammer: OE cramian, akin to ON kremja, to squeeze, and prob to L gremium (s grem-), an armful (hence the lap), and Skt grāmas (s grām-), group of persons. Perh cf:

cramp, n hence v. Both the mechanical and the Med sense come, the latter via OF crampe, from MD crampe or cramp, cramp iron, a painful contraction of muscles: akin to OHG krampsf, MHG krampf, MLG krampe, G Krampf, convulsion, cramp. The E n perh derives rather from the E adj cramp, contracted, confined, strait, itself prob from OHG kramph, crooked, akin to ON krappr (for krampr*), squeezed in; perh cf CRIMP. If the r is cram-, cramp is akin to CRAM. (Walshe.) cranberry: LG kranbere: cf CRANE and BERRY.

crane, long-necked bird, hence, from the instrument's long neck, the machine used for lifting heavy weights: OE cran, allied to late MHG kran, krane, the bird, G Kran, the machine, cf OHG kranuh, MHG kranech, G Kranich, the bird; allied also to W and Cor garān and Gr geranos (s geran-): ult from 'the bird's call gru, from which L grūs [cf F grue] is more directly derived' (Walshe). Hence 'to crane'. Gr geranos, crane (bird), has derivative geranion, whence L geranium, adopted by E, with syn crane's-bill, 'from the long slender beak of the carplets' (Webster).

crank (1), adj: bent, distorted, shaky: partly from next, partly from MD cranc, D krank, weak (OE cranc, tender, brittle; MHG kranc, weak, G krank, ill).

crank (2), n hence v: something bent or crooked, esp as a mechanical device, hence a crotchety person: OE cranc. Cf CRINGE.

cranky, (dial) ill, twisted or disordered, derives from prec, influenced by 1st CRANK.

cranny: E dim (-y) from OF cran, var cren, from OF-EF crener, to (cut with a) notch, either from VL crena*, a notch, o.o.o., or from Gaul crināre*, akin to OIr ar-a-chrinnim, I disappear (B & W). Crena*, by the way, yields the OF-MF, from OProv, dim crenel, embrasure in a battlement, lit an indentation, adopted by E; derivative OF-F créneler, to indent, leads, anl, to E crenellate, or crenellated, and to crenellation.

crape. See CRISP, para 2.

crappie. Am freshwater fish, derives either from F dial crape or from LG Krape, of approx the same meaning.

craps, Am game played with two dice, is merely a sense-changed F craps, a game of dice, earlier crabs, from E crabs, a two-aces throw, the lowest throw, at hazard. Cf CRAB.

crash (1), a heavy, coarse linen: app of Ru origin, for cf Ru krashenina, coloured linen.

crash (2), v hence n: ME craschen, ult echoic—cf G krachen, to crash, and therefore cf CRACK. crass, crassitude, crassness.

1. The 3rd derives (suffix -ness) from the 1st; crassitude derives from L crassitudo, itself by suffix -itudo from the adj crassus, thick, fat, gross, s crass-, r cras-, prob akin to Skt krtsna, entire.

2. From L crassus, via the VL derivative n crassia*, derives OF-MF craisse, with varr OF-F graisse and MF gresse, whence ME grese (var grece), whence E grease; hence, perh influenced by late MF-F graisser, 'to grease', and hence also greasy; the v has agent greaser.

crate. See CART, para 2.

crater, orig a drinking vessel, hence a volcano's crater (cf EF-F cratère), descends, via L crater, from Gr kratēr, from kerannunai, to mix, esp wine with water: s keran-, IE r ker-*.

cravat: EF-F cravate, a neckcloth worn by a Cravate, is a var of F Croate, from G Kroate; Cravate prob derives imm from the G dial form Krawat. (B & W.)

crave, whence the vn craving: OE craftian, to demand, akin to syn ON krefja (or -ia): cf CRAFT.

craven, adj hence n: ME cravant, adopted from OF-MF cravant (OF-F crevant), prop the presp of craver, crever: L crepant-, o/s of crepans, presp of crepāre, to crack, crackle, rattle, applied esp to wood and fabrics, and later, fig, to persons: s crep-: prob akin to Skt krpate, he laments; certainly the word belongs to the considerable echoic group in cr- (kr-).

craw, a bird's crop, an animal's stomach: ME crawe: akin to OFris kraga, OHG krago, neck, MHG krage, neck, collar, G Kragen, collar; perh also to Gr bronkhos, windpipe. (Walshe.)

crawfish is the predominant AE form of crayfish, q.v. at 2nd CRAB, para 1, s.f.

crawl, v hence n and the agent crawler: ON krafla, to scabble with one's hands, Sw kråla, to crawl, MHG krabelen, G krabbeln, to crawl: Gmc r, prob krabh-*. (Walshe.)

crayfish. See the 2nd CRAB, para 1, s.f. crayon, adopted from EF-F, derives, by dim -on, from MF-F crāle, from L crēta, chalk, adj crētāceus, whence E cretaceous, chalky.

craze, v hence n, the pa crazed, the adj crazy: ME crazen, crasen, to break: echoic: cf Sw krasa, to break; akin to CRASH: cf, sem, cracked, insane, from CRACK. Note that EF-F éraser, EF var ac(c)raser, derives from the E v.

creak, v hence n and the adj creaky: ME creken, to croak: f.a.e., CROAK.

cream, creamery, creamy. See CHRISM, para 4.

creance. See CREDESCENCE, para 6.

crease, n hence v; crest, n hence v.

Crease is an easing of creast, an obs var of crest: OF-MF creste (EF-F crête): L crista, a cock's comb, a bird's tuft (if on the head): o.o.o.; but perh cf ON krista, to shake or cause to tremble. Derivatives: crested, crestfallen (from cock-fighting), crestless (-less).

crease (2). See KRIS.

create, creation, creative, creator, creature; procreate, procreation, procreative, procreator; (re-create) recreate, recreation, recreative.

1. L creāre (s cre-), to produce, cause to grow, was orig a rustic term, clearly allied to crēscere, to grow, hence to come into existence; crēscere prob began as an inch of creāre; cf L Cerēs (q.v. at CEREAL)—Arm serem, I engender—Lit šerti, to nourish. (E & M.)

2. Creāre has pp creātus, whence 'to create'; derivative creātiō, o/s creātiōn-, yields creation; creative is an E formation (creat-, s of the pp + -ive); creātor, adopted by E; LL creātūra, a creating, hence a (living) thing created, whence, prob via OF, the E creature.

3. Prōcreāre, to engender, where prō-, forward, forth, emphasizes the physical acts of conception and birth, has pp prōcreātus, whence 'to procreate'; derivative prōcreātiō, o/s prōcreātiōn-, leads to procreation; whereas procreative is an E formation, procreator is adopted from L.

4. Recreāre, to cause to grow again, to give new life to, hence to revitalize or refresh, has pp recreātus, whence re-create, to produce again, and recreate, to refresh; derivative recreātiō, o/s recreātiōn-, leads, through MF-F, to recreation, with adj recreational; derivative LL recreātor is adopted by E; recreative is of E formation.

5. Somewhat less obvious is Creole: late EF-F créole, earlier EF criole: Sp criollo: Port crioulo, from criar, to nourish or rear, from L creāre, to breed. The obscure Port suffix -oulo prob answers to the L dim -ulus, a Creole being, as it were, a by-product of certain racial and sociological conditions.

crèche, adopted from MF-F, derives from Frankish kripja*, akin to G Krippe, MHG krippe, OHG krippa or kripia, and to E crib (manger, child's cot).

credence, credent, credential (adj hence n, esp credentials); credenda; credible, credibility, credit (n and v), creditable, creditor; credo; credulity, credulous;—accredit, accreditation, accredited; discredit (v hence n), discreditable; incredible, incredibility; incredulous, incredulity;—creed, creedal (ism); creance, creant—recreant (adj hence n), recreancy; miscreant.

1. The base is formed by L crēdō, I trust or believe, whence the Credo or Christian confession of faith, whence credo, any professed belief, with inf crēdere and s cred-; IE r kred-, as in L, with var kret-, as in C (cf OIr cretim, but W credaf, I believe), and with an alternative krad-, krat-, somewhat obscured in Skt.

2. Crēdere has presp crēdens, o/s crēdent-, whence credent; derivative ML crēdentia yields credence and also the adj, hence n, credential. L crēdenda, things to be believed, hence doctrines, is adopted by Theo.

3. Two simple L derivatives of crēd-, s of crēdere, are relevant to E:

crēdibilis, believable, whence credible; its derivative crēdibilitās, yields o/s crēdibilitāt-, credibility; the negg incrēdibilis and incrēdibilitās become incredible, incredibility; crēdulus, tending to believe, and its derivative crēdulitās, o/s crēdulitāt-, become credulous and credulity; the negg incrēdulus, incrēdulitās, become incredulous, incredulity.

4. Crēdere has pp crēditus, neu crēditum apprehended as n, whence the It n credito, commercial credit, whence EF-F crédit, whence E credit; but late MF-F crédit, trust, reputation, comes direct from L crēditum and fathers the E credit, reputation. (B & W.) Credit, reputation, has derivative creditable. The v 'to credit' prob derives from the n; at least, that is the general view. It perh comes, however, from LL crēditāre, to believe.

5. The pp s credit- has derivative crēditor, lit believer, whence, perh aided by MF-F crēditeur, the E creditor.

6. Other notable E derivatives from simple crēdere are creed and creance, the former deriving from ME crede, OE crēda, from L crēdō, I believe (cf para 1), and the latter from OF creance, from ML crēdentia (cf para 2); adj creant, believing, is extant in recreant, cowardly, whence the n, coward, from OF-MF, orig the presp of recreire (var recoire), to go back on one's faith, to surrender, from ML (se) recrēdere; re-, back + crēdere; derivative is recreancy (recreant + -cy). Cf miscreant: OF-MF mescreant: mes- (cf the prefix mis-) + creant, presp of creire, to believe (L crēdere).

7. Two F prefix-cpds of credere are relevant to E:

EF-F accréditer (a, to + crédit + inf -er), whence 'to accredit', whence the pa accredited and, anl, accreditation;

EF-F discréditer, whence 'to discredit', whence the n discredit and, after creditable; the adj discreditable. The EF-F discréditer owes something to LL discrēdere, to disbelieve.

creed. See prec, para 6.

creek, small inlet, (AE, Aus, NZ) a brook or rivulet: ME creke, crike: ON -kriki, in cpds; cf MD creke, D kreek, inlet. Basic idea: a bend in the coastline.

creel, fisherman's basket or trap: OF-MF creil*, for greil, gretle, from a dim (? crāticula*) of L crātis, wickerwork: cf crate at CART.

creep, v hence n (whence creepy) and the agent creeper: ME crepen, earlier, creopen: OE crēopan, s crēop-, akin to MD crupen. D kruipen, and ON krjūpa, to creep; perh also to Gr grupos, curved, bent; basic idea, perh 'to walk with back bent'—so as to keep out of sight. Cf CRIPPLE.

creese. See KRIS.

cremate, cremation, crematory (adj and n).

'To cremate' derives from L cremātus, pp of cremare, to burn esp corpses, s crem-: perh akin to HEARTH. Derivative cremātiō, o/s cremātiōn-, yields cremation; LL cremātor is adopted by E; but crematorium is Sci L, and crematory its E derivative.

crenel, crenellate(d), crenellation. See CRANNY, s.f.

Creole. See CREATE, para 5.

creosol=creos- (short for creoso-), c/f of creosote+-ol, oil (f.a.e., OIL); and creosote=creo-, Gr kreo-, c/f of kreas (gen kreōs), flesh+-sote, from the pp of sōzein, to preserve.

crêpe. Cf crape at CRISP, para 2.

crepitant, crepitate, crepitation.

L crepitāre, to crackle, is a freq of crepāre, to crack (f.a.e., CREVASSE); its presp crepitans, o/s crepitant-, yields the adj crepitant, crackling; its pp crepitātus yields 'to crepitate'; LL derivative crepitātiō, o/s crepitātiōn-, yields crepitation.

crepuscular is the adj (-ar) of crepuscule, var crepuscle, twilight, from L crepusculum, from creper, dusky, perh of Sabine origin.

crescendo. See para 1, s.f., of:

crescent, adj and n; crescive; crescendo; crew; cpds: accrescence, accrescent, accrete (adj and v), accretion, accretionary, accretive—accrue, accrual; concrece, concrecence, concrescible, sep concrete and concretion; decrease, n and v (whence pa decreasing), and decrement; excrescence (or -ency), excrescent, excrescential; increase, n and v (whence increaser and pa increasing), and increment, incremental, and incidence, increscent; recrescence, recrescent—recruit, n and v (whence recruiter), recruital and recruitment—'rooky'.

1. L crēscere, (vi) to grow, is akin to creāre, to produce: f.a.e., CREATE, para 1. Its presp crēscens, o/s crēscēt-, whence the E adj, as in 'the crescent moon', whence the n crescent in several of its senses; but crescent, the waxing moon, whence the Byzantine, later the Tu, national emblem, appears to come, via ME cressant, from OF-MF creissant, orig the presp of creistre (F croître), itself from crēscere. The adj crescential derives from the n crescent; crescive=L crēsc-, s of crēscere+-ive, adj. Crescendo, adv and adj, hence n, is adopted from It crescendo, gerundive of crescere, to grow, from L crēscere.

2. Not immediately recognizable as from crēscere is the E crew: MF creüe (F crū), growth, increase, hence reinforcement, soon applied to persons: from the pp, perh via force creüe, of creistre, to grow (para 1).

3. Several L prefix-cpds affect E, the first being accrēscere (ad+crēscere), to increase itself, hence come to add itself, with presp accrēscens, o/s accrēscēt-, whence the E adj accrescent; the LL derivative accrēscēntia becomes E accrescence, a continuous growing, hence an accretion; pp accrētus (s accrēt-) yields the adj and v accrete, grow(n) together; the derivative L accrētīō, o/s accrētīōn-, yields accretion, with its own abj accretionary; accretive is an E formation.

4. Accrual='to accrue'+-al, n; and 'to accrue' derives from the obs n accrue, an increase or accession: F accrue: MF accreüe, from the f of the pp (acreu) of OF-MF acrestre: L accrēscere.

5. L concrēscere, to grow together, hence to become congealed or condensed, yields 'to concrece' or coalesce; presp concrēscens, o/s concrēscēt-, yields the adj concrecent, and derivative L concrēscēntia yields concrecence; concrecible is an E formation. The pp concrētus yields both the adj, whence the n, concrete and the v 'to concrete'; derivative concrētīō, o/s concrētīōn-, yields concretion, which develops its own abj concretionary.

6. L dēcrēscere, to grow down (de-), hence to grow or become less, has the LL var discrēscere: hence OF-MF decreistre, descreistre: ME decrecen, discrecen: E 'to decrease'; the n decrease derives, via ME decrees, from OF-MF decreis (var descreis), from the OF v. The derivative L n dēcrēmētum becomes E decrement.

7. L excrēscere, to grow out from, to form excrescences, has presp excrēscens, o/s excrēscēt-, whence the E adj excrecent; the L neu pl excrēscēntia, used as n ('excrescences'), becomes, in ML, apprehended as f sing, whence the OF-MF excressance (F excroissance, a re-shaping) and the E excrescence, var excrescency, with its particular abj excremental.

8. L incrēscere (in- used int), to grow larger, becomes OF incresitre, whence ME incresen, later incresen, whence 'to increase'; the n increase derives from ME encres or encrese, app from the en- form of the ME v. The presp incrēscens, o/s incrēscēt-, whence the adj incresent, waxing, with n increscence. Derivative L incrēmētum (cf dēcrēmētum in para 6) yields E increment, with its own abj incremental.

9. L reocrēscere, to grow again (vi), has presp reocrēscens, o/s reocrēscēt-, whence reocrescent, whence recrecence, a new growth (reocrescent+-ce). Reocrēscere becomes OF reocrestre*, var of reocrestre, with pp reocrell, whence the EF-F n recrue, with var recrute, whence both the E n recruit, lit a reinforcement, and the late EF-F v recruter, whence E 'to recruit'. Whereas recruitment was prompted by F recrutement, recruital is an E formation (recruit, v+n suffix -al).

10. Army sl rooky derives from the n recruit, via rekroot*, by contr and metathesis, with dim -y attached to rook-.

crese: ME crese(se) or kers(e): OE cesse or caerse, cerse: akin to MD kerse, D kers, and OHG chresso, chressa, MHG (and G) kresse, perh from OHG kresōn, to creep or crawl. (Walshe.)

crest; crestfallen. See CREASE.

cretaceous. See CRAYON.

cretin, cretinism, cretinous. See CHRISM, para 5. cretonne, adopted from F, derives from Creton, a Normandy village, renowned, since C16, for the fabrics manufactured there. (B & W.) crevasse, crevice.

Sense-differentiated into 'large or deep crack or fissure' and 'crack or fissure', crevasse and crevice come resp from EF-F crevasse, OF-MF crevace, from crever, to crack open, to burst, from L crepāre (s crep-, IE s krep-, IE r kra- or kre-, cf CRACK, CRASH, Gr krazō, I croak, bawl, scream), and from ME crevice, var crevace, from OF-MF crevace.

crew. See CRESCENT, para 2.

crib, a manger, whence the other senses, whence also 'to crib' or confine, whence, not very clearly, the sense 'to pilfer, to plagiarize', whence, by suffix -age, the game of cribbage, with 2nd b euphonic: OE cribb, a manger: akin to OFris kribbe, OHG kripia, krippa, MHG (and G) krippe, OS krippja, MD cribbe (D krib) or crebbe; cf also MLG krebe, a basket, and even OHG (and G) korb, L corbis (s corb-), basket.

crick in the neck, hence v: o.o.o., but prob a thinned CREAK. Cf:

cricket (1), chirping insect: ME criket: OF-F criquet: MD crikel, akin to CREAK: in short, echoic.

cricket (2), game: EF-F criquet, a goal stake at bowls: MD cricke, a staff or stick: akin to CRUTCH and to CROOK and OF-F croc, a hook. (Orig here were only two stumps, with a top cross-bar.)

crier, as in town crier. See CRY.

crime, criminal, criminality, criminology (whence criminologist), criminate, crimination, criminatory, criminous; incriminate, incrimination, incriminator, incriminatory; recriminate, recrimination, recriminatory.

1. Crime, adopted from OF-F, derives from L crimen, that which serves to sift (hence, to decide), decision, esp a legal one, hence an accusation, finally the object of the accusation—the misdeed itself, the crime: for cernimen (cf regimen from regere, s reg-), from cernere, to sift: f.a.e., CERTAIN, para 1.

2. L crimen has o/s crimin-, on which arise:

LL crimālis, of, by, for an accusation, hence also of (a) crime, whence, perh via OF-F criminel, the E adj criminal, whence the n criminal; from the ML derivative crimānālītās, o/s crimānālītāt-, derives—perh via EF-F criminalitē—criminality;

crimīndre (or -āri), to accuse, has pp crimīnātus, whence 'to criminate', now mostly in the two cpds (paras 4, 5); on the pp s crimīnāt- arise crimīnātiō, o/s crimīnātiōn-, whence crimination, and the agent crimīnātor, accuser, adopted—though seldom used—by E; criminatory is an E formation; crimīnōsus, whence criminous, guilty.

3. On crimīn- is built criminology (cf the elements -ology and, at -loger, -logy), whence criminological and criminologist.

4. The LL cpd incrimīnāre (in-, into, against) has pp incrimīnātus, whence 'to incriminate'; its LL derivative incrimīnātiō, o/s incrimīnātiōn-, yields incrimination; both incriminator and incriminatory are E formations, prompted by criminator and criminatory.

5. The ML cpd recrimīnāre (re-, again, back at), to make a counter charge, has pp recrimīnātus, whence 'to recriminate'; the derivative recrimīnātiō, o/s recrimīnātiōn-, becomes recrimination; recriminator, recriminatory (var recriminative) are E formations.

crimp, v hence adj and n, including the 'decoy' v and n: MD and LG crimpen, MD crempen: akin to, perh—in Middle Gmc—a thinned form of, CRAMP, q.v.

crimson. See CARMINE.

cringe, whence pa cringing; cringle; crinkle (v hence n), crinkly.

'To cringe', ME crengen, is a form- and sense-adaptation of OE cringan, var crincan, to yield, and is akin to MD cringen, crengen, D krengen, to turn, and MD cring, var crinc, D kring, a circle: cf the 2nd CRANK.

2. MD cring has dim cringel, a spiral, whence the naut E cringle. Allied is crinkle, a freq of cringe; the derivative n has adj crinkly.

crinkle, crinkly. See para 2 of prec.

crinoline is adopted from F, itself from It crinolino; It crino (L crinis, s crin-, hair)+It lino (Gr linon, flax, hence linen).

cripes!: euphem for (by) Christ!

cripple, n hence v: ME cripel, crepel, crupel: OE crypel, akin to OFris kreppel, MD crepel, creupel, crupel, D kreupel, MHG-G krüppel, and prob to OE crēopan (see CREEP).

crisis, critic, critical, criticism, criticize, critique; criticaster; crititioner.

1. Crisis is the L trln of Gr krisis, a sifting, from krinein, to sift: f.a.e., CERTAIN, para 1. Cf DISCERN (and DISCREET) and SECRET.

2. Gr krisis has adj kritikos, able to discern—judge—discuss, whence a critic, whence L criticus, whence E critic, whence adj critical (-al) and the n criticism and v criticize; Med critical goes back to LL criticus, in grave condition, and ML criticāre, to be extremely ill. On s krit-, Gr has raised also kritērion, a judgement, whence, perh aided by LL critērium, the E criticism, a standard or means of judgement. Criticaster is an E formation (critic+pej suffix -aster), after poetaster. Hypercritical, hypercriticize, hypercritic were perh suggested by the EF-F hypercritique. The EF-F, hence E, critique, a criticism, represents Gr kritikē (tekhnē), the critical art.

crisp, adj hence n (whence adj crispy) and also crispness (-ness); 'to crisp'.

1. The adj crisp, already in OE, derives from L crispus, (of hair) curly, curling, hence quivering, undulatory: metaphorical for kripsos*, of C origin: cf Ga and Elr crith, to quiver, and W crych, curly; C r, krit-*, to tremble. 'To crisp' derives, perh via F crisper, from L crispāre, to curl, to quiver; the L pp crispātus yields the adj crispate; F crisper has derivative crispation, adopted by E.

2. F crisper was OF cesper, from the adj cespe

criss-cross. See CHRISM, para 3.

criterion. See CRISIS, para 2.

critic, critical, criticaster, criticism, criticize, critique. See CRISIS, para 2.

croak, v, hence agent croaker and vn croaking; from n croak (from the v), the adj croaky.

1 To 'croak' derives from the r of the OE syn cræcettan: cf CROW: ult echoic.

2. Akin also is the bird crake, with cpd corn-crake, frequenter of grain fields: ME crake, orig a crow, a rook, prob from ON krāka, a crow: ult echoic.

3. Cf CREAK.

croceous. See CROCUS.

crochet. See CROOK, para 2.

crock (1), a piece of earthenware; crockery.

The latter = croak + suffix -ery: and crock derives from OE croc, var crocca, akin to ON krukka; also to OHG krōg, kruog, MHG kruc, G Krug, a pitcher, and syn OE krop: beyond OGmc, o.o.o. Cf. CRUET.

crock (2), an old or barren ewe, an old or decrepit horse, hence, coll, a broken-down person, prob influenced by the secondary, i.e. 'potsherd', meaning of CROCK (1): cf Fris and LG krakke, an old, decrepit horse, hence man: prob akin to CRACK. The v 'to crock', to disable or to become disabled, owes something to each crock n.

crocket. See CROOK, para 2.

crocodile, whence the adj crocodilian: EF-F crocodile: L crocodilus: Gr krokodilos (later krokodēilos), lizard, esp 'the lizard of the Nile' (sem, cf ALLIGATOR): dissimilation of krokodrilos*, worm of the stone: krokē, a pebble, c/f krako + drilos, a worm: 'lizards sun themselves on smooth stones' (Boisacq). Cf COCKATRICE.

crocus, croceous.

The latter derives from L croceus, adj of crocus, trln of Gr krōkos, saffron, of Sem origin: cf the syn H karkōm. (Hofmann.) Cf the element croceo-.

Croesus, as rich as: L trln of Gr Κροισος, a fabulously wealthy king of ancient Lydia.

croft, whence crofter, derives from OE croft, a (small) enclosed field, esp one with a cottage: akin to MD croft, D kroft, field, hillock, and perh to E CREEP, with basic idea 'a curving'. (Webster.)

crore. See CARRION, para 2.

cronk. See the 2nd CROOK.

crony. See CHRONIC, para 3.

crook, n and v (whence the adj crooked); crookback.

1. The latter = the now obs adj crook, crooked + BACK; 'to crook' derives from ME croken, from ME crok, whence a crook, even in its criminological sense: and ME crok derives from ON krōkr, a hook, (basically) a bend, akin to OF-F croc, a hook, from Frankish krōk*.

2. OF-F croc has OF-F dim crochet, a (small) hook, whence E crochet, knitting done with long, hooked needle, whence 'to crochet', perh influenced by late MF-F crocheter; OF-F crochet yields also ME crochet, whence E crotchet, a curl or crocket (ONF croquet, from OF crochet), a small hook, hence a whim, esp if unreasonable, whence the adj crotchety; the Mus crotchet also derives from OF-F crochet.

3. A direct dim of OF croc is MF croche, a hook, whence E crotch, a fork, esp that of the body;

4. From ONF croquet derives the game of croquet, orig applied to a hooked stick used in the game.

5. Akin to ON krōkr and OF-F croc is OE crycc, whence ME crucche, whence E crutch, a lame or ill person's supporting staff, with a propping crosspiece; the basic sense 'hook', hence 'fork', accounts for crutch, the fork of the human body. With OE crycc, cf also OHG chrucchia, MHG kruche, G Krücke.

6. From the Gmc r of crutch and crook derives ML crucca, a crutch, with var croccia, whence OF-MF croce, MF-F crosse, whence MF crocier or crossier, staff-bearer, whence E crozier or crossier, the bearer of a bishop's crook (pastoral staff), whence the bishop's crook itself. The F la crosse, the hooked stick, i.e. the crozier, lends its name to lacrosse, the game played orig by the NA Indians, esp those of Canada.

7. OF-F croc, a hook, has MF derivative crochir, to become hooked-like or bent, whence ME cruchen, later crouchen, whence E 'to crouch', whence 'a crouch' and the agent croucher.

8. OF-F croc has the derivative cpd v MF encrochier, EF encrocher, to fasten to (en, into) a hook, hence seize, also to perch, whence E 'to encroach', whence encroachment (suffix -ment).

9. Akin is CRICKET.

crook (2), Aus sl for 'ill', owes its form to E crook, esp in its personal meanings, but its sense mainly to G krank, ill (MHG kranc, weak), whence the likewise Aus sl syn croak.

croon, v hence n and the agent crooner: MD cronen (D kreunen), to whimper or groan: perh cf GROAN; certainly ult echoic.

crop, n hence v (whence cropper in farming); croop, a quadruped's hinderpart, croupier, crupper.

1. A crop derives from ME croop or croppe, a bird's craw, a plant's top, a harvest, from OE crop or cropp, craw, top, an ear of corn: akin to ON kroppr, trunk of body, MD crop, D krop, craw, and OHG-G kropf, crop, hump; basic idea, (a) swelling, a hump.

2. The Gmc croppa*, Frankish kruppa*, yields OF croupe, whence ME croupe, E crop; OF-F croupe has derivative EF-F croupier, orig one who rides, on the horse's croup, behind the guiding horseman, hence an assistant at a gaming table.

3. OF croupe has var crope (the earlier form), whence OF-MF cropiere (F croupière), whence ME croperere, whence E crupper, a leather strap passing under a horse's tail.

4. P Gmc croppa*, Longobard crūp(p)a, becomes It gruppo, a cluster, a group, whence EF-F groupe, whence E group, whence, aided by late EF-F grouper, the E 'to group', whence the vn grouping. (B & W.)

croquet. See CROOK, para 3.

crozier. See CROOK, para 6.

cross, n hence adj ('not parallel; athwart; lit and fig, contrary'): crossbow, crosspatch, cross-staff, cross-tree, crossword, and other obvious cpds; crux, crucial, cruciate, crucible, crucifix, crucifixion, crucify; crusade (n, v), crusader; cruise (n, v), cruiser; cruciform; excruciate, excruciation.

1. The keyword is the L crux, o/s cruc-, a perpendicular supporting a horizontal beam, hence, in LL, the Cross upon which Christ was suspended: o.o.o., but app Punic (Carthaginian); Webster suggests kinship with the n RUNG.

2. From the derivative sense 'torture' comes crux, a problem, the decisive point. The L adj crucius becomes EF-F crucial, adopted by E; the likewise derivative cruciāre, to crucify, has pp cruciātus, whence the E adj cruciate, cross-shaped; the subsidiary LL cruciātiō, o/s cruciātiōn-, yields cruciation. The ML crucibulum (cruci-, c/f of crux+suffix -ibulum), a light burning before the Cross, hence a hanging lamp, hence an earthenware pot for the melting of metals, becomes E crucible.

3. LL crucifer, he who or that which bears (cf the element -fer) a cross, has E adj cruciferous. LL crucifigere, to torture on a cross, to crucify, has pp crucifixus, hence n 'the crucified Christ', hence a representation thereof, hence loosely the Cross, adopted by E; derivative LL crucifixiō, a being attached to a cross, o/s crucifixiōn-, yields crucifixion; crucifigere itself becomes OF-F crucifier, whence 'to crucify'. Cruciform=of the form of a cross.

4. The prefix-cpd excruciāre, to torture thoroughly (ex- used int), has pp excruciātus, whence 'to excruciate', whence the pa excruciating; derivative LL excruciātiō, o/s excruciātiōn-, yields excruciation.

5. L crux becomes Sp cruz, whence cruzada, whence E crusade (suffix -ade), from the Cross marked upon the soldiers' breastplates or shields: cf the It crociata and late MF-F croisade; hence crusader and 'to crusade'.

6. L crux becomes MD cruse, cruyse, D kruis, whence crusen (crucen), D kruisen, to move, esp to sail, crosswise, hence 'to cruise', whence cruiser and 'a cruise'.

7. L crux becomes OF-MF crois (F croix), adopted by ME, and OIr cross, whence ON kross, whence late OE cross, extant in ME: ME crois, sem, and ME cross, both sem and phon, yield E cross, whence 'to cross'.

8. The adj cross-country derives from 'a run made across country'.

crotch. See CROOK, para 3.

crotchet, crotchetty. See CROOK, para 2.

crouch. See CROOK, para 7.

croup (1), of body. See CROF, para 2.

croup (2), an affection of the throat: from the now only dial 'to croup', to cry or speak hoarsely, to croak: echoic. Adjj: croupous (Med), croupy.

croupier. See CROF, para 2.

crow (1), the bird: OE crāwe, akin to OHG krā (also MHG), krāha, krāja, krāwa, G Krāhe, and to 'to crow': echoic. Such cpdd as crow's-foot are self-explanatory.

crow (2), to utter the cock's cry, or one like it: OE crāwan, akin to OHG krāēn, MHG kraejen, G krāhen: 'orig must have denoted the sound made by crows, but early applied to the cock' (Walshe): cf Lith grōjū, I croak, groti, to croak. Hence crow, a crowing sound; crow, a bar of iron, hence crowbar, so named because orig beaked.

crowbar. See prec, s.f.

crud, v hence n: ME crouden, earlier cruden: OE crūdan, akin to creōdan, to press, to push hard, and to MD crūden to push or shove. Prob from OE crūdan is ME crud (var crod), whence, by metathesis, ME curd (with adj curdy), adopted by E, whence 'to curd', whence the freq 'to curdle', whence the pa curdled.

crown, n and v. See COROLLA, para 4.

crowner, coroner. See COROLLA, para 3.

crozier. See CROOK, para 6.

crucial, cruciate. See CROSS, para 2.

crucible. See CROSS, para 2.

cruciferous. See CROSS, para 3.

crucifix, crucifixion, crucify. See CROSS, para 3.

crude, crudity; recrudescence, recrudescent; cruel, cruelty.

1. Crudity derives from crūdītāt-, o/s of L crūdītās, rawness, undigested matter, cruelty, from crūds, bloody-handed or -minded, cruel, with secondary sense 'raw'. Its s crūd- is an extension of of r crū-, seen in crūor (s crū-), bloody flesh, hence predominantly a pool of blood, coagulated blood; akin to Gr kreas (for krewas*), flesh, and Skt kravis, raw meat.

2. From crūds, bleeding, derives crūdescere, to bleed, with cpd recrūdescere, to bleed again, hence to break out afresh, with presp recrūdescens, o/s recrūdescēt-, whence the E adj recrudescent; hence recrudescence.

3. Also from r crū-, with s crūd- (cf fidelis from fidēs) derives L crūdelis, delighting in blood, hence cruel, whence OF cruel, adopted by E; derivative L crūdelītās, o/s crūdelītāt-, becomes OF cruelte, whence E cruelty.

cruet is an AF dim of OF-MF crue, var crue, from Frankish krūka*, akin to MHG krūche (cf the MF-F cruche), also to OHG krōg, krug (G Krug), a pitcher—cf, therefore, the 1st CROCK.

cruise, cruiser. See CROSS, para 6.

cruller, a small cake, cut into rings or twists: lit, 'curler': MD crullen, D krullen, to curl: cf CURL.

crumb, n hence v; also from the n, crummy (whence the sl crummy, lousy); crumble, whence—influenced by crummy—crumbly.

'To crumble' is a freq of 'to crumb' or break into crumbs: cf the G krumeln, (vi) to crumble away, orig to crumb, from Krume, a crumb, MHG crump (1), dial for 'berft, crooked' and 'a hunch-back'; derivative v 'to crump', to curl up, with freq crumple, (of fabrics) to cause to wrinkle, to become wrinkled, whence 'a crumple' and the pa crumpled. The adj crump has always, in E, been crump, with OE var crumb: akin to OFris krumb, OHG krumb, MHG krump, G krumm.

'crummy': see prec.

crump (2), to crunch, to make a dull, heavy thud, hence n: echoic.

crumpet: ME crompid cake: OE crompeht, a flat, thin cake, from the OE adj crompeht, full of wrinkles or crumples: perh of C origin, for cf W crempog, pancake, crumpet, and crammwyth, pancakes—Br krampoez, krampoe'ch, pancake, or a flat, thin cake—Cor crampethen, -pedhan, -podhan, -pothan, pancake.

crumple. See 1st CRUMP.

crunch, v hence n and the adj crunchy: earlier craunch: echoic. Cf SCRUNCH.

crupper. See CROP, para 3.

crural. See the element cruro-.

crusade, crusader. See CROSS, para 5.

cruse, jar, pot: MD cruese, varr croese and crose: of Gmc origin—cf the MF-F cruche and E CRUET.

crush, v hence n and crusher and pa crushing: ME cruschen: OF-MF cruisir, var of OF-EF croissir, croissier, to gnash, crack, crash, break, from P Gmc krostian*—cf Go kriustan, to gnash. Echoic; cf CRASH.

crust, n hence v and the adj crusty; crustacean (adj hence n), crustaceous, crustose, crustate, crustation;—incrust or enrust, incrustation.

1. The keyword is L crusta, a hard, wrinkled covering, hence a crust on bread or cake; the IE r is app kru-*, hard, coagulated: cf Gr kruos (s kru-), extreme cold, and crustallos, ice or CRYSTAL, with cognates in Gmc, C, Sl.

2. L crusta has adj crustōsus, whence E crustose, and derivative v crustāre, to incrust, with pp crustātus, whence the adj, and the obs v, crustate, whence crustation.

3. The cpd incrustāre yields 'to incrust', perh via learned EF-F incruster; the v 'to enrust', whence enrustment, presumably comes from MF encrouster; the L pp incrustātus accounts for the adj incrustate and, anl, for EF-F, hence E, incrustation.

4. From L crusta, Sci L coins the adj crustaceus, whence both E crustaceous (suffix -aceous) and E crustacean; cf the Zoo Crustacea, lobsters, barnacles, crabs, shrimps, etc.

crutch. See CROOK, para 5.

crux. See CROSS, para 1.

cry. The n derives from OF-F cri, a cry, from the source of 'to cry': OF-F crier, to cry out, call out, itself from L quirītāre (s quirīt-), to wail, orig to implore the Quirītēs or Roman citizens, sing quirīs, s quīr-, perh akin to L uir, ML vir, a man crypt, cryptic.

Cryptic derives from crypticus, the LL trln of Gr kruptikos, hidden, secret, from kruptos, hidden, pp of kruptein, to hide, s krupt-; IE r, perh krubh-*, to hide. Gr kruptos, hidden, has derivative n, kruptē, perh elliptical for kruptē oikēsis, a hidden room. Cf APOCRYPHAL and GROTTO.

cryptogam, cryptogamous. See MONOGAMIST, para 2.

cryptogram. See the element crypto-.

crystal, n hence adj; crystalline; crystallize (crystal+euphonic l+-ize), whence crystallization; crystallography (see the element crystallo-).

Crystalline derives from L crystallinus, trln of Gr krustallinos, adj of Gr krustallos, ice, crystal, from kruos, frost: cf CRUST, para 1. From crustallos derives L crystallum, whence, perh via OF-F crystal, the E crystal.

cub, n hence adj and v: the young of canine and feline quadrupeds, orig of the fox: C16, cube: o.o.o. The OED tentatively compares the rare OIr cuib, a dog; EW more firmly the Nor kubbe, kub, a block or stump, the basic idea being shapelessness.

cubbyhole: cubby, a snug, confined space, from cub, a pen or stall, a bin or cupboard, from MD cube, a stall, a cattle-shed: cf COVE, a nook.

cube, n hence v; cubic, adj, whence cubicity and the extended adj cubical. See HIVE, para 10.

cubicle, cubicular. See HIVE, para 7.

cubism, cubist. See HIVE, para 10, s.f.

cubit. See HIVE, para 9.

cuckold. See:

cuckoo, adj cucline; cuckold (n hence v), cuckoldry.

1. Cuckoo derives from EF-F coucou (OF-EF cocu, MF cucu), itself from L cucūlus: echoic, with many IE cognates. Either from the cuckoo's habit of laying eggs in another bird's nest, or from the female's never remaining long with the same male, L cucūlus has transferred sense of 'adulterous lover', whence, in F (sem as differentiated cocu), that of 'betrayed husband'; from the F var cucu derives MF cucuault, whence ME cocold (etc.), whence E 'a cuckold', whence cuckoldry (suffix -ry for -ery).

2. From L cucūlus comes the erudite adj cucline.

cucumber compromises between ME cucumer and ME cocumber: prob via MF coucombre, cocombre and OProv cogombre, from L cucumis, o/s cucumer-, akin to syn Gr kukuon: of Medit stock; with the syn Gr sikuon, sikuos, cf H quissu'a (Hofmann) and prob Eg ashep.

cud: OE codu, with varr cwudu, cwidu: the latter yields the chewable QUID of tobacco. Akin to BITUMEN.

cuddle, v hence n: perh a freq of the now only dial cull, var of the now dial coll, to hug or fondle (ult from L collum, neck: cf COLLAR); prob a var of CODDLE.

cudgel (n hence v), ME cuggel, derives from OE cyggel, akin to MHG-G kugel, a ball, itself prob a var of MHG kiule, kule, G Keule, a cudgel; prob cf also COG. (Walshe.)

cue, certainly as 'tail-like plait' and 'tapering rod' (as in billiards) and prob as 'last word(s) or act, gesture, in an actor's speech', hence 'warning, hint', comes from OF-F queue, tail, (derivatively) end, itself from L cōda, var of cauda, tail: f.a.e., CODA. F queue, tail, hence a file of persons, esp if waiting, has been adopted by E, with derivative v 'to queue'.

cuff, a blow, derives from 'to cuff', to strike flat-handedly, late ME cuffe, perh from ME cuffe, E cuff, a glove, a mitten, later that part of a glove which covers the wrist, later an ornamental wrist-band, then the sleeve-part covering the wrist; the ME var coffe suggests derivation from the s of COIF, 'as if a mitten or cuff were a cap for the hand' (Webster). Note that MF-F coiffer, to dress the hair, has the MF var coueffer, whence perh (EW) the ME cuffe, coffe, to buffet: cf, sem, the coll dress down, to beat, reprimand.

cuggermugger. See HUGGERMUGGER.

cuirass: MF-F cuirasse, a breastplate, orig of leather, either from It corazza (via the L adj coriāceus, from L corium, leather, hide) or, by -asse (E -ass), from OF-F cuir, leather, L corium, s cori-, r cor-, akin to Gr khōr-, r of khōrion, intestinal membrane, and ult to IE ker-, to cut, as in Gr keirein (s keir-), to cut: cf SHEAR, and also CARNAGE, final para, and CORTEX. MFF cuirasse has EF-F agent cuirassier, a cavalryman with a cuirass.

2. L corium has LL derivative excoriāre (ex, out from, off + s cori- + inf suffix -āre), to take the hide off, to flay (lit and fig), with pp excoriātus, whence 'to excoriate'; derivative ML excoriātō, o/s excoriātōn-, yields excoriation.

cuisine. See KITCHEN.

culinary: L culinārius, adj of culīna, kitchen: f.a.e., KILN.

cull. See LEGEND, para 6, s.f.

culm, a stalk: L culmus (s culm-), stem, stalk: akin to E hulm, ME halm, OE halm, itself akin to Gr kalamos, a reed: IE r khal-, with extension khal- issuing in L and in Gmc.

culminate, culmination; culminant.

L culmināre, to come to a peak, derives from culmen, upper part, summit, app a contr of the syn column, akin to columna (cf COLUMN) and to collis, a hill. The pp culminātus yields 'to culminate', whence, ani, culmination; presp culminans, o/s culminant-, yields the adj culminant.

culpable, whence culpability; culprit; exculpable, exculpate, exculpation, exculpatory; inculpate, inculpation, inculpatory.

1. L culpa, (act of) negligence, a fault (as in mea culpa, my fault), earlier colpa, has s colp-, r perh col-*. Derivative culpāre, to blame, has derivative culpābilis, whence culpable. Culprit = OF-MF cul(pable) prit, var of cul prist; prist is a var of OF-MF prest (F prêt), ready (to prove it), from LL praestus.

2. The LL cpd inculpāre, to impute something to (in) somebody, to blame, has pp inculpātus, whence 'to inculpate'; derivative LL inculpātiō, accusation, o/s inculpātiōn-, yields inculpation; inculpatory is an E formation. Inculpable, blameless, derives from LL inculpābilis: in-, not + culpābilis.

3. ML exculpātiō, o/s exculpātiōn-, whence F exculpation, suggests a ML exculpāre*, to clear of fault or guilt, with pp exculpātus*, whence 'to exculpate', with subsidiary exculpatory.

cult; cultivable, cultivate, cultivation, cultivator; culture (G Kultur), cultural, culturist; cf the element -cole; sep COLONIAL (etc.).

1. The starting-point is L colere (s col-), to till or cultivate; IE r, kwel-*, to move around (a place); akin, therefore, to WHEEL. Its pp is cultus, whence the n cultus, gen -is, a cultivating, hence active care, hence the religious sense, whence, perh via EF-F culte, the E cult; whence also cultūra, orig a tilling, cultivation (soon fig), whence, prob via MF-F culture, the E culture, whence cultural (-al, adj) and, esp in cpds, culturist (-ist).

2. The pp cultus has subsidiary LL adj cultiuus, attested in cultiua, elliptical for cultiua terra, cultivated land, whence the ML cultivāre, to cultivate (lit, then fig), with pp cultivātus, whence 'to cultivate'. ML cultivāre becomes late OF-F cultiver, with derivatives cultivable and cultivation adopted by E; MF-F cultivateur becomes E cultivator.

culvert: o.o.o.; perh from EF coulere, coulouere (F couloir), a channel, from OF-F couler, to flow, itself from L colāre, to filter, from cōlum, a filter, prob influenced by OF-F couvert, f couverte, covered (over).

cumber, v hence n; from the n, both cumbersome (-some) and cumbrous (for cumberous: suffix -ous).

'To cumber', ME cumbren, var of combren, is aphetic for late ME encomber, from OF-F encombrer, to obstruct: en, in (used int) + combre, an abatis (felled trees used in fortification) + inf suffix -er. Late ME encomber becomes E 'to encumber'; the E encumbrance (suffix -ance) derives from OF-MF encumbrance from encombrer.

cumin. See KÜMMEL.

cummerbund: Hind kamarband: (via Ar) from Per kamar, loins + Per band, a band or bondage.

cumquat. See KUMQUAT.

cumulate (adj and v), cumulation, cumulative; cumulus; accumulate (adj and v), accumulation, accumulative, accumulator.

1. L cumulus, a heap (whence the E Met sense), then an excessive heap, then a surplus, has s cumul-, with prob IE r cum-*; cf L tumulus, a mound. Its derivative cumulāre, to heap up, has pp cumulātus, whence 'to cumulate'; derivative LL cumulātiō, o/s cumulātiōn-, yields cumulation; cumulative is of E formation.

2. The cpd accumulāre, to put heap to (ad) heap, has pp accumulātus, whence 'to accumulate'. Derivative accumulātiō, o/s accumulātiōn-, yields accumulation, and derivative accumulātor is adopted by E; accumulative is an E formation.

cuneiform, wedge-shaped. See the elements cunei- (of a wedge) and -form from FORM.

cunning. See CAN, para 3, both adj and n deriving from the presp of OE cunnan, to know.

cunt: ME cunte (occ counte), recorded once in OE: OFris kunte, akin to ON kunta, MLG-LG kunte, D kunte, MD conte; also to MF (and F) con, OF varr cun, cunne: like It conno, from L cunnius, s cun-. The presence of t in the Gmc has long puzzled the etymologists: even Walther von Wartburg aligns the Gmc kunta, kunte, with the L cunnius only under the aegis of a question-mark; for cunnius, E & M adduce the syn Gr kusthos and the Per kun, the posterior, but they omit to cite the Hit kun, tail; for kusthos, Hofmann proposes an orig kuzdhos*, with extended r kus-* or keus-* and with true IE r ku-* or keu-*, to hide or conceal, and he adduces L cutis, skin, which has s cut-, extension of r cu-, ku-, the skin being a coverer.

But is it not probable that the word is of common Medit stock? Eg offers qefen-t, vagina, vulva, akin to the n-lacking Eg ka-t, vagina, vulva, mother, women collectively. There are also several Sem cognates. The basic idea is prob 'essential femininity'.

cup, n hence v; cupboard; cupola, cupule.

A cup, ME cupp or cuppe, derives from OE cuppe, itself from LL cuppa, cup, from L cūpa, a tub or a cask: akin to Gr kupē, ship, hut, hole, and Skt kupas, hole, well. L cūpa has dim cūpula, small cask, a small burial-place, a tomb, whence the Bot cupule (suffix -ule); L cūpula becomes It cupola, adopted by E. A cupboard was orig a shelf (BOARD) for cups and dishes.

Cupid, the god of Love; cupidity.

Cupid=L Cupidō, from cupidō, desire (of love), from cupidus, desirous, from cupere, to desire, s cup-: o.o.o.; perh an int of capere, to take; to long to take. Cupidus has derivative cupiditās, o/s cupiditāt-, whence, via MF-F cupidité, the E cupidity. Cf COVET.

cupola. See CUP.

cupreous. See the 1st COPPER.

cupule. See CUP.

cur. See CARE, para 5.

curate; curator. See CURE, para 1.

curb (1), AE n. See kerb at CURVE. Therefore cf: curb (2), E n: a restraining strap or chain, a restraint or check or hindrance, whence 'to curb' or restrain. This n curb derives from OF-F courbe, a curve, hence a curved instrument or device: from OF-F courbe, curved, bent, crooked: from ML curvus, L curuus, curved, bent: f.a.e., CURVE.

curd; curdle. See CROWD.

care, n and v; curable, incurable; curative; curator, curate, curé; curious (incurious), curiosity; —accurate, accuracy; procure, procurable, procurator (and proctor, with adj proctorial), procurer, procuress; proxy; scour, to cleanse; secure (adj, hence v), security, and insecure, insecurity; sure, surety—assure, assurance—ensure—insure, insurable, insurance.

1. L cūra, anxiety, care, medical care, hence a medical cure, is o.o.o. It becomes OF-F, hence ME, cure. 'To cure' derives from OF curer, from L cūrāre, to take care of, from cūra. Cūrāre has the foll derivatives relevant to E:

cūrābilis, whence curable; from its LL neg incūrābilis derives incurable pp cūrātus becomes the ML n for 'one charged with the cure of souls', whence E curate, whence curacy (the cure + -cy); MF-F curé also comes from this ML n; derivative cūrātiō, o/s cūrātiōn-, yields curation; agent cūrātor, adopted by E.

(Curative is from F curatif, -ive.)

2. Irreg formed from cūra is the adj cūrīōsus, anxious about, hence inquisitive, whence E curious; its derivative cūrīōsītās, o/s cūrīōsītāt-, yields OF-MF curiosete (EF-F curiosité), adopted by ME, whence E curiosity; the neg L incūrīōsus yields incurious. From curiosity, by abbr, derives curio.

3. The foll prefix-cpds affect E:

accūrāre, to give care to (ad), be careful about, with pp accūrātus, whence the adj accurate, whence accuracy (accurate + -cy);

LL excūrāre, to clean off, whence OF-MF escurer, whence, by apheresis, MD schuren, whence E 'to scour', to rub hard, to cleanse by rubbing hard; prōcūrāre, to occupy oneself with (prō, for), hence to provide oneself with, becomes OF procurer, whence 'to procure', whence procurable, procurer, procuress; on prōcūrāt-, the s of the pp prōcūrātus, arise prōcūratiō, o/s prōcūratiōn-, whence, prob via MF-F, procurator, and prōcūrātor, adopted by E, and LL prōcūrātorius, whence procuratory.

4. L prōcūrātor became OF-MF procurator (EF-F procurateur), whence, by contr, the ME procoutor, later proketour, whence E proctor, with several obvious derivatives.

5. L prōcūrātiō has, in ML, a needless syn: prōcūrātia, var procuracia, whence ME procuracie, whence E procuracy. Now ME procuracie has the ME contr prokecie, a doing business through an agent or a substitute, hence that agent or substitute: whence 'a proxy', used derivatively as adj and v.

6. There remains, held over from para 3, the L prefix-cpd sēcūrus: the privative prefix sē-, without + cūrus, from cūra: 'without anxiety or care': whence the adj secure. L sēcūrus has derivative sēcūrītās, o/s sēcūrītāt-, whence security. The ML insēcūrus* and insēcūrītās yield insecure, insecurity.

7. L sēcūrus becomes OF seür, later sur (F sür), whence ME seur, sur, later sure; derivative OF seurté becomes ME seurte becomes E surety. Unsure, therefore, is an E formation.

8. OF seür has an AF derivative enseurer, whence 'to ensure'.

9. Late ME sure has derivative ensure, perh by confusion between AF enseurer and ME assuren (see next para): whence 'to insure', with derivatives the abstract insurance (cf assurance) and the agent insurer, as well as the adj insurable.

10. L sēcūrus has LL derivative assēcūrāre (as-for ad-, to, used int), to render safe or secure, whence OF-MF aseūner, whence 'to assure'; derivative OF-MF aseurance becomes ME assurance becomes E assurance; 'to assure' has agent assurer and pa assured.

curé. See prec, para 1.

curfew. See FOCAL, para 5.

curio, curiosity, curious. See CURE, para 2.

curl, v hence n (whence the adj curly): ME curlen, by metathesis from krul, curly, akin to MD krul, MHG krol, curly, MD crulle or crolle or crol, a curl, MD crullen or crollen, to curl, D krul, a curl, krullen, to curl: perh ult akin to ROLL and ROUND.

curlaw: MF corlieu or courlieu (C13), EF-F courlis: echoic (cf Picard dial corlu). B & W. curling, the Scottish game, is played with curling stones: from CURL.

curmudgeon, whence curmudgeonly (-ly, adj): o.o.o.: perh akin to the echoic Sc curmurring, a low rumbling or murmuring (cur-mur), a source of grumbling, ? of the Shetlands and Orkney dial curmullyit, a dark, ill-favoured fellow. (E.D.D.) Derivation from F coeur méchant, ill-tempered heart, is 'erudite' f/e.

currant: elliptically from AF raisins de Corauntz, grapes of Corinth (F Corinthe: L Corinthus: Gr Korinthos), the Gr city of Corinth being prob the orig centre of exportation. Corinth has adj, hence n, Corinthian, licentious, a rake, the ancient city being noted for luxury and licence.

currency, current. See COURSE, para 7.

curricule; curriculum. See COURSE, para 8.

currier. From 2nd CURRY.

curry (1), n (hence v): orig a condiment: Tamil kari.

curry (2), v, esp 'to curry a horse, to curry leather', whence currier, a dresser of tanned leather. See ARRAY, para 4.

curse, n and v; accurse, whence the pa accursed.

'To accurse' derives from ME acursien, a- used int+cursien, to curse, whence 'to curse': ME cursien derives from OE cursian, itself from late OE curs, whence 'a curse'. The OE word is o.o.o.: perh from ML curus, a COURSE or series of prayers (esp prayers of imprecation), from LL cursus, the order of a church service; cf, however, OIr cúrsagim, I chide, with r cúrs-, akin to the syn OIr cairigim, (cf Ga coirich), I blame or chide. EW suggests that OE curs derives from ONF curuz, from OF coroz, anger, from OF-MF corocier, to anger, from VL corruptāre*, from L corruptus, pp of corrumpere (cf CORRUPT): a likelier origin.

currive; cursory. See COURSE, para 6.

cut, whence cuttness; curtail, whence curtailment.

1. Curt (cf the OF-F court, short) derives from

L curtus, cut off, cut short, prob the pp of a lost v from the IE r ker-*, to cut. OF-F court has derivative MF courtault (EF-F courtaud), whence the obs E curtal, having a short tail, hence wearing a short frock: whence, f/e-influenced by TAIL, the v curtail, to shorten.

2. Prob from L curtus derives OE cyrtel, whence ME cutle, later kirtle, extant in E, now usu a woman's short skirt.

curtain. See COURT, para 4.

curtsey, curtsy. See COURT, para 2.

curve, n, derives from curve, adj, which derives from ML curvus (L curvus), curved, bent, whence ML curvāre, L curuāre, to bend, to curve, pp curuātus, ML curvātus, whence the adj curvate; yields curuātiō-, o/s curuātiōn-, ML -vātiōn-, yields curvation; derivative curuatūra, ML -vatūra, yields curvature.

2. ML curvus has It dim corvetta, whence EE corvetto, whence the n curvet (made with arched back); 'to curvet' derives from It corvettare, from It corvetta.

cushion, n hence v: ME cushyn, cuisshin: OF cussin (C12), coissin (C12-16), coussin (as still): Gallo-Roman coxinus*, from L coxa, the thigh, 'cushions being orig intended for chairs and forms' (B & W).

cushy (sl): Hind khush, pleasant, influenced by Hind khushi, pleasure: Per khūsh, pleasant.

cusp: L cuspis (r cus-), a pointed end, e.g. of a spear: o.o.o.

cuspidor. See the 2nd SPIT, para 5.

cuss, sl for 'a fellow', is short for customer (q.v. at CUSTOM); 'to cuss' is an AE coll form of CURSE; the pp cusshed has derivative cusshedness, contrariness.

custard: by metathesis from ME crustade, a crusted pie: MF croustade, from OF-MF crouste, a crust: f.a.e., CRUST.

custodian=custody (y becomes i)+n suffix -an; and custody derives from L custōdia, a guarding, by -ia from custōd-, o/s of custōs (s cust-), a guard, perh akin to Gr keuthein (s keuth-), to hide, keusō (s keus-), I shall hide, and Skt kuharam, a hole, and therefore to HIDE. (Hofmann.)

custom, customary, customer; accustom.

'To accustom': OF acustumer, var of acostumer: a-, L ad, to+custume, var of costume+inf -er: f.a.e., COSTUME. OF custume and its var costume are adopted by ME: whence E custom. The derivative OF adj costumier (C12; as n, C14), somehow blending with LL consuētudinārius, usual, yields E customary—and also, as n from adj, the doublet customer, orig a toll-gatherer, influenced by the syn ML custūmārius. Customs, customary dues, is merely the pl of custom in its obsol sense 'a duty expected by ruler or government'.

cut, v, hence adj and n, derives from ME cute, cutte, cutten, varr ketten and kitten, and is o.o.o.: EW's conjecture that it derives from OF-MF escurter (F écourter), to shorten, to dock, from L curtus, cut off, cut short (see CURT), is not to be sneered off, for, as he remarks, 'cutty (pipe, sark) corresponds exactly to F écourté. Hence the pa cutting and the agent cutter (the boat cuts through the water).

cute is prop 'cute, aphetic for acute.

cuticle: L cuticula, dim of cutis (s cut-), skin, ult skin to the E n HIDE. cutlass: EF-F coutelas, prob a reshaping of It coltellaccio, itself from L cutellus, a little knife, dim of culter, a knife: see COLTER. Cf:

cutler, cutlery.

The former derives from OF-F coutelier (cf couteau, a knife): LL cutellarius, knife-maker, from cutellus (see CUTLASS); the latter from MF-F coutellerie, itself from couteau. cutlet. See COAST, para 5.

cutter. See CUT, s.f.

cuttlefish has 2nd element fish, and 1st element cuttle, (influenced by CUT, but deriving from) ME cotul, earlier codull, OE cudele, akin to COD.

cutty pipe; cutty sark. See CUT. A sark, shirt or chemise, derives from OE serc or serce, akin to ON serkr.

cyanide tacks Chem -ide to cyan-, s of cyanic (acid), itself from Gr kuanos. Cf the element ciano-.

cybernetics. See GOVERN, para 3.

cyclamen is adopted, perh via the id MF-F, from L, which thus adapts Gr kuklaminon (or -nos).

cycle, n hence v; bicycle, tricycle; cyclic, with elaboration cyclical—cf encyclical; cyclone, cyclonic; Cyclops (see the element -ope), with adj Cyclopean; for cyclo- cpds in general, see the element cyclo-.

1. E cycle derives, perh via EF-F cycle, from L cyclus, trln of Gr kuklos, ring, circle, hence a circular movement in time, hence also a wheel, whence bicycle (n hence v), bi-, two, and tricycle, tri-, three; the coll bike derives from the wrong division bic-ycle. Gr kuklos, s kukl-, has r kuk-, the IE r being kuk-* or kak-*: cf Skt ḍakráś, Tokh A kukal, Tokh B kokale, a wheel, all ult akin to WHEEL. (Hofmann.)

2. Gr kuklos has adj kuklikos, whence L cyclicus, whence EF-F cyclique and E cyclic; the prefix-cpd encyclical, adj hence n, tacks -al to the adj encyclic, LL encycliticus, LGr enkuklikos (ἐγκυκλιτικός): en, in + kuklikos: 'circular (letter)'.

3. Irreg from Gr kuklos, a circle, or more prob from Gr kukloōn (presp of kukloō, I go round, I encircle), contr to kuklōn, is the E cyclone, whence the adj cyclonic.

cyder. See CIDER.

cygnet: E dim, in -et, from MF-F cygne, OF cisne, a swan: VL cicinus: L cycnus: Gr kuknos, prob akin to Skt śakunas, a large bird, perh orig a large white bird, from Skt śucis, white, shining-white, brilliant—cf Skt śocati, to shine. (Boisacq.)

cylinder, cylindrical; calender, n and v.

1. Cylinder derives from MF-F cyindre, L cylinndrus, Gr kulindros, from kulindein, to roll, akin to Skt kuṇḍám, a round container, a round hole, and kuṇḍalám, a circle; IE r, app kel-*, to bend, to curve. Cylindrical is an -al elaboration of the obsol cylindric, via Sci L cyllindricus from Gr kulindrikos, adj of kulindros.

2. 'To calender' (cloth) derives from MF-F calandrer, as the E n does from MF-F calandre, app from ML calendra, itself obscurely from Gr kulindros. (Cf B & W at calandre.)

cymbal. See CHIME.

cyme: L cyma, young cabbage-sprout: Gr kuma, orig anything swollen: cf CAVE.

Cymric, adj hence n; Cambria, whence Cambrian.

Cymric adds adj suffix -ic to the Cymr- of W Cymry, the Welsh, and Cymru, Wales: Cymry is the pl of Cymro, from cymro, a compatriot (com, with + brog, land). Cambria is the ML name for Wales: from W Cymru.

dab, n and v; dabble, dabbler, dabster; dap (n and v)—dabchick;—dib (n, v), dibble (n, v)—dibbler.

1. 'To dab', ME dabben, prob derives from MD dabben, app echoic. From the basic sense 'to strike smartly and lightly' (vt, hence vi) come the answering n and the sense 'a flat, or flattish, mass of, e.g., butter' and the coll sense 'somebody very smart at'; dabster is derivative (cf the suffix -ster); and dabble is a freq of 'to dab', with agent dabbler.

2. Dap, to gently drop a bait upon the water, is a var of 'to dab'; from the sense 'to dip into water' comes dapchick, soon dabchick.

3. 'To dab' has the obs thinned form dib, with freq dibble, whence the n dibble and the agent dibbler; dib, n, as counter or token, and as pl dibs, a children's game, played with knucklebones or pebbles, hence sl for 'money', app derives from 'to dib' or dab lightly.

dace (fish): ME darce, darse: OF dars (F dard): LL darsus, of Gaul origin.

dachshund. See CANINE, para 2.

dactyl, dactylic; date (fruit).

The adj dactylic comes, via L dactylicus, from Gr daktulikos, the adj of daktulos, a finger, hence the metric foot —∪∪, L dactylus, E dactyl: perh for datkulos*, o.o.o., but perh Sem, the Gr daktulos, a date (fruit) being very prob Sem and certainly, via L dactylus, yielding, either via OProv datil or via It dattero, the OF date (MF-F datte), whence the E date (fruit), the transition from 'finger' to 'date fruit' arising from the fruit's long, narrow form (B & W). Nevertheless, I suspect that the Gr daktulos, date fruit, is Sem and that daktulos, s daktul-, has r dak-*, akin to the deik- (cf Hind dekho, look!) of deiknumi, I show, point out, the finger being the orig pointer.

dad, whence pet-form daddy; dada, dadda; grandad (grand dad).

Dad is the usu E form (cf the Ir daid and Cor, Br, W tad); dada is the form that corresponds most closely with L tata, Gr tata or tetta, Skt tatas, familiar (prob orig childish) forms of L pater, Gr patēr, Skt pitṛ; cf also Ru táta; f.a.e., FATHER.

daddle. See DAWDLE.

dado is adopted from It: from L datum, a die, prop the neu of datus, given (pp of dare, to give): cf DATE (2). The Arch dado was at first the die-shaped part of a pedestal.

daemon. See DEMON.

daffodil: D de affodil, the affodil or asphodel:

EF-F asphodèle (cf MF afrodille): L asphodelus (whence E asphodel), trin of Gr asphodelos, itself o.o.o.

daft; deft. whence deftness.

Deft, ME defte, is a doublet of daft, the latter deriving from ME dafte, var defte: ME dafte, defte, 'stupid' as well as 'meek', derive from OE gedaefste, gentle or mild, akin to OE gedafen (s -dafen) or gedēfe (s -dēfe), suitable, fitting, due, akin to Go gadaban, to be suitable to or fit for, and gadob, gadof, suitable, fitting, and ON dafna, to grow strong: perh akin to FORGE. Whereas daft specializes as 'stupid', deft specializes as 'adroit': cf, sem, SOFT.

dagger: MF-F dague: OProv, or perh It, daga: ML daggerius, daggarius, daggarium, earlier dagga: o.o.o., but prob of C origin—cf the syn OIr daigean: OC dag*, a (sharp) point.

Dago, orig a Spaniard, derives from Diego, the Sp equivalent of James.

daguerreotype=Daguerre (F inventor, c1838) + comb -o- + TYPE.

dahlia: Dahl (a Sw botanist) + flower-name suffix -ia.

daily. See DAWN, s.f.

daimon. See DEMON.

dainty, adj, derives from the n: see DECENCY, para 8.

dairy: ME deierie, an -ery derivative from ME deie or daie, a maid: OE dāege, kneader of OE dāh (see DOUGH): cf Gr deigan, to knead.

dais. See DISH, para 3.

daisy: ME daiseie: OE daeges ēage, 'day's eye', with ref to the flower's yellow disk.

dale comes from the OE dael, akin to OE—whence E—dell, which, a valley so much smaller than a dale, suggests that OE dell is a mutation of OE dael. With dell, cf OFris and MD del, delle, and OHG tellia; with dale, cf OS and Go dal, OHG tal (G Thal), ON dalr, and, more remotely, Gr tholos (s thol-), a rotunda.

2. Through LG and D daler, from G thaler (now Taler), a coin worth 3 marks, short for Joachims-thaler, made, 1519 onwards, at Joachimst(h)al, St Joachim's Valley, in Bohemia, comes the dollar, E and, much later, AE. Cf OPHTHALMIA.

dalliance comes, by suffix -ance, from 'to dally', itself from OF dalier, o.o.o., but perh a var of OF deslier (vi), to rejoice, enjoy oneself: des- used int + lie (contr form), joyous, from L lactus, joyous + inf -er. DAF has OF daillier, syn of deslier, yet declares it o.o.o.

2. Dally has the redup dilly-dally.

Dalmatian (dog); Dalmatic, dalmatic.

The former is the E adj (-an) for 'of Dalmatia'; Dalmatic represents the syn L Dalmaticus, whence, via L Dalmatica uestis, Dalmatian garment, Eccl LL dalmatica, derives the OF-F dalmatique, whence E dalmatic, a priestly vestment, made orig of white wool from Dalmatia (B & W).

dam (1), a quadruped's mother. See DAME.

dam (2), (water confined by) a barrier: app taken by ME, either from the syn OFris damm, or from MD dam, var damm, akin to MHG tam and OE fordemman (for-, private+demman), to stop up: notably of the syn ON dammr; IE r, perh dab-ma* (Walshe). Hence 'to dam'.

damage, n: ME, from OF-MF, damage: suffix -age tacked onto OF dam, from L damnum, damages, a fine or penalty: f.a.e., DAMN. OF-MF damage has the OF-MF derivative damagier, whence 'to damage'.

damascene, v, from adj Damascene; damask; damson.

Damascus, an ancient Syrian cultural and industrial city, famed for its silks and its steel, is L Damascus, Gr Damaskos, perh of the H Dammeseq (the Ar Dimashq) and esp Dumashqa in the Letters of Tel-el-Amarna. The L adj is Damascēnus, whence E Damascene, applied esp to swords marked in a peculiar way (damascened, damascene). The L Damascus becomes It Damasco, whence damasco, a figured fabric, whence E damask; and L Damascēnum (prūnum) becomes damascēnum (mostly in pl damascēna), whence ME damasin, plum of Damascus, whence E damson.

dame, adopted by ME, with var dam (extant in E), from OF, derives from L domina, f of dominus, master, lord: cf DOMINIE and, f.a.e., DOMESTIC. Madam anglicizes F madame: ma dame, my lady: cf the It madonna.

damn (n hence v), damnable, damnation, damnatory, damnify (whence damnification), damnous; condemn, condemnation, condemnatory; indemnify (whence indemnification, indemnificatory) and indemnity;—damn (it)! and darned;—sep damage.

1. Darn it! and darned are euphem for Damn it and darned.

2. 'To damn', ME damnen, OF-F damner, comes from L damnāre, to fine, penalize, condemn, from damnum, damage, loss, expense, hence, in Law, monetary fine for material loss, hence a penalty, perh akin to Gr dapanē, expense, and daptō, I share, hence to Skt dāpayatē, he shares; IE r, perh da-* or dai-, to share, with extension dap-. (Hofmann.)

3. Damnum has adj damnōsus, whence the legal damnous, injurious. The v damnāre has pp damnātus, s damnāt-, whence both the n damnātiō, o/s damnātiōn-, whence, prob via OF-F, damnation, and the adj damnātōrius, whence damnatory; damnāre itself, s damn-, has LL derivative damnābilis, worthy of a penalty, whence late OF-F, hence E, damnable, and the cpd adj damnificus damage-causing, whence LL damnificāre, to injure or fine, whence EF damnifier, whence 'to damnify', the LL derivative damnificātiō, o/s damnificātiōn-, becoming damnification.

4. Damnāre has the prefix-cpd condemnāre, whence OF-EF condemner, whence 'to condemn'; derivative condemnātiō, o/s condemnātiōn-, yields, prob via MF-EF, the E condemnation; condemnatory is an E anl formation, perh prompted by L condemnātor, a condemner.

5. The adj prefix-cpd indemnīs, unharmed (in-, not), s indemn-, has LL derivative indemnītās, a not being hurt, acc indemnītātem, whence MF-F indemnitiē, whence E indemnity; 'to indemnify' = L indemn-+connective -i-+-fy, to make.

damozel. See DAMSEL.

damp, n hence adj (whence dampness) and v damp (whence dampener) and v dampen (whence dampener): MD (and MLG) damp: vapour, very closely akin to ON dampi, dust, and to OHG-MHG dampf, G Dampf, steam, and to DUMP, despondency, and DIM—cf MHG dimpfen, to steam. (Walshe.)

damsel and archaic damozel: ME damesel, earlier damatsele, dameisele: OF dameisele, var damoisele (influencing damozel), a gentlewoman: VL dominī-cella*, diim of L domina (cf DAME), f of dominus, master, lord: f.a.e. DOMESTIC. The MF-F demoiselle, young lady, whence EF-F mademoiselle (ma, f of mon, my), derives from OF-MF damoisele.

damson. See DAMASCENE, s.f.

Dan (title: cf Don). See DOMESTIC, para 6.

dance, n and v (whence dancer, dancing).

A dance, ME daunce, derives from OF dance, var danse (as in F), itself from the v dancier, var danser (as in F), app of Gmc origin—cf OHG dansōn, to stretch out (here, one's limbs), cf E THIN; B & W, however, propose a Frankish dinjan*, (vi) to move here and there, as in the syn D deinzen; cf DANDLE. The OF v yields ME dauncen or daunsen, whence 'to dance'.

dancettē. See TOOTH, para 4, s.f.

dandelion. See TOOTH, para 10; sem cf DAISY.

dandle. See GONDOLA, para 2.

dandruff app blends E dial dander (var dan), scurf+ON hrufa, scab; the former is o.o.o., the latter akin to OHG hruf and MD rove, scurf.

dandy, n, whence the coll adj dandy and the literary adj dandiacal.

Dandy, a fop, is o.o.o.: perh from Dandy, a pet-form of Andrew, esp as the term was first used on the Scottish border and St Andrew is the patron saint of Scotland; perh, however, a b/f from Sc and North Country dander, to saunter, a word used by Scott: sem cf the F flâneur.

Dane, Danish; Danegeld, Daneiauw.

Dane derives from Da Daner, Danes, from ON Danir, akin to LL Dani. (The OE form is Dene.) Danish=Dane+adj -ish. Danegeld was a tribute (with OE geld, cf YIELD) paid to the Danish invaders of England; Danelaw derives from or was, at least, suggested by OE Dena lagu, 'law of the danger, dangerous; endanger.

1. Danger, ME daunger, later danger, dominion, jurisdiction, (later) difficulty, danger, derives from MF-F danger, earlier dangier, earliest dongier, orig a lord's jurisdiction or power, itself from VL domniarius*, power, esp a lord's power, from L dominus, master, lord: cf DOMINIE and, f.a.e., DOMESTIC.

2. Dangerous—in ME 'haughty (like a master), hence difficult, dangerous'—derives from MF dangeros (F dangerieux), from OF danger, dangier.

3. The cpd endanger=(to put) en-, in+danger.

dangle, whence the pa dangling: of Scan origin (cognates in -ang, and -ing-): app the freq of a v akin to DING; cf the redup dingle-dangle.

dank, adj hence n, akin to DAMP, is of Scan origin (cognates in -ank and -unk).

dap. See DAB, para 2.

daphne, shrub or its flower, derives—via L—from the Gr nymph Daphnē, changed into the daphnē or laurel tree whence she gets her name, itself of Medit origin.

dapper, orig 'brave': MD-D dapper, nimble, strong, akin to OHG tapfar, MHG tapfer, heavy, weighty, G tapfer, brave, and ON dapr, heavy-hearted: with Sl cognates; IE r, perh tab-*, prob echoic.

dapple, n hence v and the pa dappled, app meant orig 'a small splash', hence 'blot' or 'spot', for its source, the ON depill, a spot, hence a dog with spots above the eyes, derives from ON dapi, a pool, and is presumably a dim thereof.

dare, v hence n and the pa and vn daring; deriving-do.

1. 'To dare' comes from ME I dar, earlier I dear, I dare, from OE ic dear, the inf being durran (s dur-): akin to OS gidar, inf gidurran, and Go gadars, inf gadairsan, where gi-, ga- are varr of the OE prefix ge-; to OHG tar, inf turran (MHG turren), and OFris inf dūra; to Gr tharsein, tharreïn (r thar-), to be courageous; to Skt dharšati, he dares; to several Sl words, e.g. Lith drasus, dresus, bold; IE r, dhars-, dhers-, to be courageous, to dare.

2. App derring-do, audacious action, audacity, is a contr of daring [to] do; perh rather was Chaucer's durring don (daring to do) supposed by Spenser, who coined derring-do, to mean 'bold, chivalrous action', and his misapprehension, perpetuated, has fathered a word. (EW.)

dark, adj hence n, hence also darkness (-ness) and 'to darken' (-en, v suffix); darkling, in the dark.

The last=dark, adj+-ling, adv; and the adj dark, ME darke, earlier derk(e), earliest dearc, comes from OE dearc* (OE deorc): cf OHG tarchanjan, to hide, render obscure; to Lith darga, dull, rainy weather; and to several C words, e.g. OIr dorche, darkness, and derg, dark-red—Ga dorch, W duog, Mx dorragh(e)y, dark, obscure.

darling. See DEAR, para 4.

darn (1), to mend (e.g., stockings), with early var dern: Channel Islands F darner, derner, to darn, to patch: NF darne, a piece: Br darn, a piece: akin to syn W and Cor darn, the C r being dar-*, to split or divide, cut or tear; but akin also to Skt dērṇa, torn.

darn (2), in darn (it)! and darned. See DAMN, para 1.

darnel. See NEGRO, para 8.

dart (n hence v): OF-MF dart (MF-F dard): like the OProv dart and the OHG tart (javelin, dart), it derives from Frankish daroth*—cf OE daroth, darath, dagger, and ON darrathr, dart.

dash, v hence n and the pa dashing, the agent dasher, and the adj dashy (-y): ME daschen: of echoic Scan origin. For -ash, cf clash, crash, flash, gnash, lash, mash, pash, smash, thrash, etc.

dastard, whence dastardly; daze (v hence n), whence the freq 'to dazzle', whence the n.

'To daze', ME dasen, comes from the r dasā- of ON dasask, to grow weary and exhausted. From the ON pp dasathr, weary and exhausted, prob comes the E n dastard.

data is the pl of L datum, orig the neu of datus, pp of dare, to give (cf dat, he gives), akin to Skt dādāti, he gives, with cognates in Gr and Sl: cf DONATE. Date in chronology derives, prob via MF-F date, from the ML n data (var datum), used in this sense, orig for littera data, letter given, data being the 'first word of the formula indicating the date on which an act [or document] had been drawn up' (B & W). 'To date' comes from MF-F dater (from the n).

2. On the pps dat- arises L dativus, ML dativus, suitable for giving, whence the F datif and the E dative, adj hence n.

date (1), fruit. See DACTYL.

date (2) in time. See DATA, para 1.

dative. See DATA, para 2.

daub (v hence n and agent dauber): ME dauben, to smear: MF-F dauber, to plaster, prob not from L dēalbāre, to whiten (dē- used int+albus, white+ inf suffix -āre), as so often stated, but, as B & W propose, by aphesis (in a dial) from OF-F adouber as influenced by Sp adobar, to plaster (cf ADOBE).

daughter (whence daughterly): ME doughter, earlier doghter, earliest dohter: OE dohter, dohtor, akin to OFris and MD-D dochter, G Tochter, MHG-OHG tohter, OS dohtar, Go dauhtar; to ON döttir; to certain Sl, but not to C nor to L, words; to Gr thugatēr; and notably to Skt duhitā: IE prototype, perh dhugter*. Cf the distribution of and varr in BROTHER.

daunt, v hence obsol n (whence dauntless), derives, via ME daunten, from OF danter, var of OF-MF donter (EF-F dompter): L domiāre, int of domāre, to tame: cf DOMESTIC and TAME.

Dauphin. See DELPHINIUM.

davenport, a small writing-desk, and, in AE, a large well-upholstered sofa, derive prob from an E cabinet-maker and from an Am furniture-maker. (See P³ but cf EW.)

David; davit; Davy Jones ('s locker).

Davit, a naut crane, from OF daviot or daviet, from Daviot, Daviet, dim of David, perh (EW) an 'allusion to David being let down from a window (1 Samuel, xix, 12)'. David is the H Dāwid or Dāwid, beloved. The Davy of Davy Jones, the malevolent spirit of the sea, as in gone, or sent, to Davy Jones's locker, drowned, prob arises from Jonah, ii, 5; the prophet Jonah of Jonah and the Whale, 'formerly called Jonas, being made into Jones and supplied with a fitting Welsh Christian name' (EW), St David being the patron saint of Wales—cf sem DANDY. (Webster has a far too erudite, far too un-British explanation of this orig and predominantly British term.)

daw, a jackdaw, ME dawe, is akin to OHG taha, MHG tahe: ? echoic.

dawdle, v (hence n), whence dawdler, is akin to the dial daddle, to toddle, app a freq of the C16-17 SE, then dial, dade, to walk unsteadily, (vt) to support with leading strings, itself o.o.o., but prob echoic.

dawn, v (the n from the v), derives from dawning, daybreak, itself of Scan origin: cf Da, Nor, Sw dawning, an -ing n from ON daga, to become day, akin to OE dagian (late ME dawen), to become daeg or day.

2. Now, OE daeg survives as day (ME dai) and is akin to ON dagr, OS dag, Go daḡs, OHG (and G) tag, O Fris dai, the basic Gmc idea being 'hot period' of the 24-hours cycle, for cf such remoter cognates as Skt nidāgha, heat, summer, and dāhati, it burns, and Lith dāgas, harvest-time, and dēgti, to burn; IE r, dhagh-* (Gmc r dag-), varr dhegh- and dhogh-*. (Walshe.) The cpds are self-explanatory. The adj daily, whence the adv, derives from OE daeglic (daeg+-lic. E -like), cf OFris degelik.

day. See prec, para 2.

daze. See DASTARD.

dazzle. See DASTARD.

deacon; diaconal, diaconate.

1. Deacon, ME deken, derives from OE diacon: LL diaconus, trln of Gr diakonos (Ionic diēkonos), a servant, in LGr a minister of the church: dia-, thoroughly, in all things+enkonēō (ἐγκονέω), I am active in service+-os, m n-suffix; enkonēō consists of en-, in, used int+konēō, I hasten, lit I raise dust (kōnis).

2. LL diaconus has adj diaconālis, whence E diaconal, and 'office of' n diaconātus (gen -ūs), whence diaconate.

dead, adj hence n ('the dead') and adv; hence also deaden (-en, v); deadly;—death, deathly—deathful, deathless;—to die, whence vn and pa dying (neg undying);—perh akin to sep FATIGUE.

1. Deadly comes from OE deadlic, dead-like, subject to death, (later) causing death, from OE dēad, whence, via ME deed, ded, dead, the E dead; OE dēad is akin to OFris dād, OS dōd, OHG-MHG tōt, G tot, Go dauths, ON dauthr; app dēad was orig the pp of a lost OE v for 'to die' (see para 3). With dead, phon cf DEAF.

2. Also from this lost v comes OE dēath, whence E death; derivative OE dēathlic, death-like, subject to death, (later) causing death, yields E deathly; deathful (-ful) and deathless (-less) are post-ME formations. OE dēath is akin to ON dauthi, Go dauthus, OS dōth, OHG tōd (G Tod).

3. 'To die', ME dien, earlier deyen, comes from ON deyya, akin to Go diwan, OS doian, OHG touwēn, to die, and to OFris dēia, to cause to die, to kill; cf also OIr duine, man (subject to death: a mortal) and prob L fūnus, q.v. at FUNERAL. (Walshe.)

deaf (adj, hence n 'the d.'), whence deafen (-en, v) and deafness (-ness), comes from OE dēaf, akin to Go daufs and ON dauf, also to OFris dāf, OS dōf, OHG toub, G taub, deaf, and, less nearly, to Gr tuphlos (s tuphl-, r tuph-), blind, perh a dissimilation of tuphlos*; IE r, dheubh-*, to be or render misty or obscure; of the Gmc words, the basic meaning is perh 'dull, stupid'—cf the perh cognate DUMB.

deal, a part or share; 'to deal' or share, hence to do business, whence 'a deal' or piece of business; also from the v: dealer and the pa and vn dealing.

1. 'To deal', ME delen, earlier daelen, derives from OE dāelan, to divide, to distribute or share out, from dāel, a part, hence a share, akin to OFris (and OS) dēl, OHG-G teil, Go dails, ON deild, with cognates in Sl. With the OE v, cf OFris dēla, OS dēlian, Go dailjan, ON deilja. The IE r is dhāi-*, var of dāi-, to cut into parts, hence to divide into parts. (Whitehall.)

2. OE dāel has a cpd ordāel (with var ordāl), a judgement, lit a dealing out, this or- (perh cf ORT) being influenced by G ur- and er- (cf the Go us-); cf MD ordeel, D oordeel, and OHG-G urteil, judgement, a judge's sentence against the prisoner. 'The various kinds of mediaeval ordeal (by fire, water, combat) were regarded as judgements of God' (Walshe).

deal (2), a board of pine or fir wood, derives from MD dele (D deel), plank, perh reinforced by MLG dele, intimately akin to MHG dile, OHG dil, board (G Diele, plank), ON thili, plank, OE thille, board or plank, whence E thill, either of the two shafts of a vehicle drawn by one horse. The OE thille has cognate thel, plank, perh ult akin to L tellus (s tel-), earth, IE r tel-*.

dean, whence deanery; doyen.

L decem, 10 (f.a.e., TEN), has LL derivative decānus, leader or chief of ten persons, which becomes OF deien (cf OProv degan), whence both the F doyen, partly adopted by E, and the ME deene, dene, whence dean.

dean (2). Cf dene, see DEN.

dear (adj hence n), whence dearness; dear, whence endearing and endearment; dearth; darling.

1. Dear, highly esteemed, hence precious, highly priced, derives, through ME dere, earlier deore, from OE dēore, var dīere, akin to OHG tiuri, MHG tiure, G teuer, OS diuri, ON dýrr.

2. 'To dear' = en, in, to+dear, used as v: to render dear to.

3. ME dere has derivative derthe, dear, hence scarcity, hence famine: whence E dearth.

4. OE dēore has derivative dēorling (-ling, connoting a possessor of the quality implied by the adj): whence ME derling, E darling.

debauch (n and v); from the v: debaucher, debauchery.

The n debauch anglicizes EF-F débauche, itself from the MF-F débaucher, orig to entice away from one's work, whence 'to debauch': and F débaucher derives from OF desbochier, to quit one's work, to be idle: des-, L dis-, apart from + boschier, for baucher*, from bauch (earlier balc, later bau), a beam, from Frankish balc* (cf BALK): the semantic development, as detailed by B & W, is clear enough.

debenture. See DEBT, para 2.

debilitant, debilitate, debilitation, debility.

L dēbilis, physically weak, infirm, appears to consist of dē, away from + r bil- + adj suffix -ilis, with bil- answering to Skt bālam (s bal-), strength, to Gr belteros (r bel-), better, and to OIr ad-bal (r bal-), strong. Dēbilis has derivatives dēbilitās, weakness, whence, perh via MF-F débilité, the E debility, and débilitāre, to render weak, with prep débilitans, o/s ilitant-, *dēb*whence E adj, whence n, debilitant—with pp débilitātus, whence 'to debilitate—and with a pp-derivative débilitātiō, o/s débilitātiōn-, whence debilitation.

debit. See DEBT, para 3.

debonair: ME debonaire: OF de bon aire (F débonnaire), of good stock or race, where aire, bird's nest, usu area, derives from L area: f.a.e., AREA.

deboshed is a C18–19 Society form of debauched (see debauch).

debouch, to emerge, flow out: EF-F déboucher: dē- for de-, (down) from + bouche, mouth (L bucca, mouth cheek) + inf suffix -er. The n debouchement anglicizes F débouchement (suffix -ment). Cf disembogue, to flow (into a lake, the sea): Sp desembocar: des-, L dis- + embocar, to put into the mouth: em- for en- in + boca, mouth (L bucca) + inf -ar.

debris: EF-F débris, from MF debrisier: de-, down from + brisier, briser, to break, from early ML brisāre, of Gaulish origin—cf OIr brissim, I break, Ga bris, to break, Cor brewy, to shatter; cf also BRUISE.

debt, debtor; debenture; debit; indebted;—devoir;—due, adj hence n; duty; endeavour (AE endeavor), v hence n.

1. The base, L dēbere, to owe, is a contr of dēhabēre*, to have or possess (habēre: cf HABIT) by holding it from (dē) someone (E & M).

2. From dēbentur, (moneys) are owed, therefore due, comes the commercial share known as a debenture, usu in pl debentures.

3. The pp dēbitus has neu dēbitum, soon used as n, whence the E debit, whence 'to debit'; VL app substituted dēbita, either f sing from neu pl or simply elliptical for pecunia dēbita, money owed, for dēbitum, and thus accounts for OF dette, adopted by ME, with E then reviving the b of the L word. On dēbit-, s of pp dēbitus, arises the agent dēbitor, whence, influenced by OF-F dette, the OF detor (detur, detour), whence ME dettour, dettur, whence ME detour, dettur, whence, with L b restored, the E debtor.

4. OF-F dette has the late OF-F cpd endetter, to put or bring into (en) debt (dette), with pp endetté, whence ME endetted, whence the E indebted, as if harping back to L indēbitus*.

5. L dēbere becomes OF-F devoir, soon also a n, partly adopted by E in 'pay one's devoirs' or social duties.

6. OF-F devoir, to owe, has OF-MF pp deü (F dü), whence the E adj due, owed, therefore to be paid or otherwise performed; its neg is undue (un-, not) with derivative sense 'excessive'. Prob from deü comes AF dueté, as if ult from L dēbitās*, o/s dēbitāt-*: whence E duty, due conduct, hence any service (etc.) required by ruler or state. (With AF dueté, however, cf OProv deuta, deute, debt, the former prob from VL dēbita, the latter from L dēbitum.)

7. F devoir, to owe, was OF deveir, whence the n dever, devor, duty, whence, via se mettre en devor, to put oneself in duty, to make it one's duty, the ME endeavor or endevor (en, in), to strive, whence 'to endeavour'.

debut, n hence v: EF-F début, beginning (of a career): from EF-F débüter: dē, from + but, mark (in game or sport) + inf suffix -er; MF-F but prob derives from Frankish but*, stump or block of wood. (B & W.)

decade, whence the adj decadal: MF-F décade: L decad-, o/s of decas (s dec-), a set or group of decem (s dec-) or ten: Gr dekas, o/s dekad-: f.a.e., TEN.

December; decimal (adj hence n), decimate, decimation; decuman; decuple, decuplet; dicker; dime.

1. December, with suffix as in September, October, November, derives from L decem, 10 (f.a.e., TEN), it being the 10th month in the ancient Roman year. L decem has adj decimus (whence the PN Decimus, lit the tenth-born), whence ML decimālis, whence E decimal—whence also LL decimāre, to take 1 in 10, whether as punishment (e.g., 1 soldier in 10, for mutiny) or, later, as tithes, with pp decimātus, whence 'to decimate', with subsidary LL decimatiō, o/s decimatiōn-, whence decimation.

2. L decem has also adj decumanus, of the tenth, one in ten, whence E decuman (esp wave); also on the decu- var, decuplus, tenfold, whence E decuple, whence, after couplet and triple, a decuplet or set of ten musical notes.

3. L decima (pars), tenth (part), becomes OF disme, dime (F dime), whence E dime, a tenth part (cf tihe), hence the Am coin of 10 cents (one-tenth of a dollar).

4. L decem has derivative decuria, a division, part, group of ten: whence MLG deker, G Decker, whence E dicker, a set of 10 hides, etc., whence prob AE dicker, a bartering, whence 'to dicker' or barter, (later) to haggle.

decency, decent—indecency, indecent; décor, decorate, decoration, decorative, decorator; decorous, decorum;—deign; indignant, indignation; dignified, dignitary, dignity; disdain; dainty; all akin to DOGMA, q.v. sep.

1. Decency comes from L decenia, formed upon decent- (whence the E decent), the o/s of decens, presp of decēre, esp decet, it is fitting or seemly; the opposites indecenia, indecens, o/s indecens-, yield indency, indecent. L decere, s dec-, is akin to Gr dokein, s dok-, to seem (good), and Skt daśasyati, he seeks to please, he is gracious

2. Very intimately akin to decet, s dec-, are L decor and its virtual syn decus, o/s decor-, ornament, thing of beauty, whence the v decorāre, with pp decorātus, whence 'to decorate', whence decorative (-ive, adj); decoration comes from decoratiōn-, o/s of LL decoratiō, formed upon decorāt-, s of the pp; decorator is adopted from ML. L decorāre becomes MF-F décorer, whence décor, adopted by E.

3. L decor has adj decōrus, whence E decorous; the L neu decōrum, used as n, is adopted by E. The L opp indecōrum (in-, not), likewise adopted by E, is the neu of the adj indecōrus, with LL var indecōrōsus, whence perh—though more prob from the former—the E indecorous.

4. Also akin to decet, it is seemly, is the adj dignus, fitting, worthy, with derivative dignitās, merit, dignity (in various senses), whence OF-MF dignité (extant), digneté, whence ME dignite (dignete), whence dignity. Dignus has LL cpd dignificāre, to render worthy: digni-, c/f + -ficāre (var of -ficere), a c/f of facere, to make; whence EF dignifier, whence 'to dignify', whence dignified. The F dignitaire, whence E dignitary, comes more prob from F dignité than from L dignitās. Condign, although passing through F, almost embalms L condignus, thoroughly worthy (con used int + dignus), hence the predominant E sense, thoroughly deserved, as in 'condign punishment'.

indignatiō, o/s indignatiōn-, whence, prob via OF-F, the E indignation.

6. Less imm obvious a derivative is 'to deign', ME deinen, deignen, from OF-MF deignier (F daigner): LL dignāri (dignāre), to deem worthy, from dignus.

7. LL dēdignāri (-āre), to think unworthy, becomes VL disdignāre*, whence OF-MF desdeignier, whence ME desdainen, disdainen, whence 'to disdain'. OF-MF desdeignier has derivative OF-MF n desdeign, desdain, whence ME desdeyn, disdayn, whence disdain, whence disdainful.

8. L dignitās has acc dignitātem, whence OF-MF deintié, var daintié, whence ME-E dainty, n, whence dainty, adj.

deception, deceptive. See CAPABILITY, para 7.

decide, whence pa decided (neg undecided); decision, decisive—indecision, indecisive.

1. 'To decide' comes from MF-F décider: L dēcidere, to cut (-cidere, c/f of caedere) thoroughly (dē-, down, used int), hence to decide; caedere, s caed-, is perh akin to Skt khidati, he tears. Cf CONCISE.

2. Dēcidere has pp dēcīsus, s dēcīs-, whence both the L dēcīsiō, o/s dēcīsiōn-, whence, prob via MF-F dēcisiō, the E decision, and the ML dēcīsiuus, whence MF-F dēcīsiif and E decisive.

3. Indecision derives from EF-F indēcisiōn (in-, not); indecisive = in-, not + decisive, but perh owes something to the ML adv indēcīsim, without the lawsuit being decided.

declaim, declamation, declamatory. See CLAIM, para 6.

declare; declarant, declaration, declarative, declaratory, declarer.

'To declare', whence declarer, comes, via MF declarer, from L dēclārāre, to make very clear: dē-, used int + clārāre, to make clear, from clārus, clear: f.a.e., CLEAR. L dēclārāre has presp dēclārāns, o/s dēclārānt-, whence E declarant; on dēclārāt-, s of the pp dēclārātus, arise dēclāratiō, o/s dēclāratiōn-, whence, prob via OF-F, the E declaration, and LL dēclārātīuus, LL dēclārātīuus, whence E declarative. Declaratory is either an E formation (-ory, adj) or a derivative of EF-F dēclāratiōre.

deem, deemster. See DOOM, para 2.

deep, deepen; depth.

1. Deep, adj, has derivatives deep, n (the adv comes from OE dēope, from the OE adj), and deepen (-en, v): and the adj deep, ME dep, earlier deop, derives from OE dēop, akin to OFris diāp, OS diop, Go diups, MD diep, diepe, D diep, OHG tiuf, MHG-G tief, ON diōpr, djūpr; prob to W dwn, dofn, OIr domain, OC dubnos*, var of dubos* (or doubos*), r dub-*; cf Lith dubius. (Walshe.) Cf also DIP and DIVE.

2. Much as width from wide, breadth from broad, length from long, so depth from deep.

deer; reindeer.

The latter comes from ON hreinđyri (hrein, reindeer+dyr, deer): and ON dyr is akin to the source of E deer, viz.: OE dēor, dior, beast, ME deor, later der, beast, later deer. OE dēor (dior) is akin to OFris diār, OHG tior, MHG-G tier, Go dius, all '(wild) beast': perh cf, sem, E animal from L anima, breath, soul—the Gr theos, a god, being possibly related to deer in its orig sense '(wild) animal': the breather, (theos) the animator.

deface, defacement. See FACE.

defalcate, defalcation, defalcator.

L dēfalcāre, to cut off (dē-) with a sickle (falx, o/s falc-), hence to deduct, has pp dēfalcātus, whence 'to defalcate'; late derivative dēfalcātiō, o/s dēfalcātiōn-, yields defalcation; defalcator is an E formation in agential -or. Perh cf FALCON.

defamation, defame. See FAME.

default. See FAULT.

defeat, n (whence defeatism: -ism) and v.

'A defeat'—influenced by MF-F dēfāite—derives from 'to defeat', and 'to defeat' derives from ME defet, dejected, depressed, from OF-MF desfait, undone, pp of desfaire, from VL disfacere* (dis-, apart+facere, to do or make: cf FACT).

defecate, defecation. See FAECAL.

defect, defection, defective.

LL dēfectiuus, ML -ivus, whence E defective, and L dēfectiō, o/s dēfectiōn-, whence defection, and L dēfectus (gen -ūs), whence defect, are all built upon dēfect-, the s of dēfectus, pp of dēficere, to fail or be wanting: dē-, from +ficere, c/f of facere, to make or do: f.a.e., FACT.

defence, AE defense; defend, defendant; defensible, defensive. See FEND.

defenestration. See PENATES, para 4.

defer (1), to postpone. See DIFFER, para 1.

defer (2), to yield (vi), to refer (vt) to; deference, deferent, deferential.

Deferential is the adj (t for c+suffix -ial) of deference, itself from MF-F dēfērence, from MF-F dēfērent, from L dēferent- (whence E deferent, adj hence n), o/s of dēferens, presp of dēferre, to bring (ferre) down (dē-): cf INFER, PREFER, PROFFER, REFER: f.a.e., 'TO BEAR'. Dēferre becomes MF-F dēfērer, whence 'to defer'.

defiance, defiant. See DEFY.

deficiency, deficient. L dēficere, to be wanting (see DEFECT), has presp dēficiens, o/s dēficiens-, whence E deficient; derivative LL dēficiēntia yields deficiency.

defile (1), to befoul, to sully or pollute, blends the obs file, to foul, with the true origin: ME defoulen (contaminated var, defoilen): OF defouler (de-, down+fouler, to trample, akin to L fullō, a cloth fuller, see 'TO FULL'). Hence, by suffix -ment, the n defilement.

defile (2), to march in a file, comes from EF-F dēfiler; the pp dēfilé, used as n (EF-F), becomes EE dēfilee, whence E defile; f.a.e., FILE, a rank or row.

defilement. See the 1st DEFILE, s.f.

define, definite, definition, definitive.

Definitive comes, via OF-F, from L dēfinitiuus, ML -ivus; definition, via OF-F, from L dēfinitio, acc dēfinitioŋem; both the L words being formed upon dēfinit-, s of dēfinitus (whence E definite), pp of dēfinire, to limit (dē-, from +finis, a boundary, hence an end); dēfinire becomes OF-MF dēfinir (EF-F dé-), var defenir, whence 'to define': f.a.e., FINAL.

deflate, deflation (whence deflationary).

'To deflate' comes from L dēflātus, pp of dēflāre, lit to let the breath out of: cf INFLATE and, f.a.e., 'TO BLOW'. Deflation is an E formation on anl of inflation.

deflect, deflection (-flexion), deflector. See FLEX.

defloration, deflorescence, deflower. See FLORA.

deform, deformation, deformity. See FORM.

defraud. See FRAUD.

defray (whence defrayal) comes from F défrayer (C14), an int (de-) of frayer (C13), itself from frait*, fret*, deduced from the C13 fres, frais; frait*, var fret*, derives from L fractum, a thing broken or infringed, from fractus, pp of frangere, to break: the earliest sense was 'damage caused by breaking something' (B & W). Dauzat holds that fractum was blended with—or, at the least, influenced by—ML fredus, fredum, fridus, a fine for breakages, war indemnity, from Frankish fridu* (OHG fridu, MHG fride, G Friede, OS frithu, OFris fretho), peace.

deft. See DAFT.

defunct. See FUNCTION.

defy; defiance, defiant.

Defiance derives from OF-MF desfiance, app from desfiant, presp of desfier, orig to renounce a sworn faith, hence, to remove one's confidence from, to provoke or defy: des-, for L dis-, apart+OF-F fier, to entrust to, to trust in, from VL fidāre*, to entrust, from L fidēs, faith: cf FIDELITY and, f.a.e., FAITH. OF-MF desfiant becomes F défiant, whence E defiant; and OF-MF desfier yields 'to defy'.

degeneracy, degenerate (adj, v), degeneration, degenerative. See GENERAL, para 8. deglutinate, deglutination. See GLUE.

degradation, degrade. See GRADE, para 8.

degree. See GRADE, para 9.

degression. See GRADE, para 8.

degust, degustation. See GUST, para 2. dehisce, dehiscent. See YAWN, para 3.

dehydrated, dehydration. See HYDRO and cf the element hydro-.

deictic. See DICT, para 23.

deify, deific, deification; decide; deism, deist; deity.

Of all, the base is L deus, a god, LL God: and deus, akin to L diuus (ML divus: cf DIVINE) and Gr dios, godlike, akin also to L diēs, Skt dyaús, day (Skt, also sky): f.a.e., DIANA. L deus, a god, has LLi derivative deitās, acc deitātem, whence OF dete, adopted by ME, whence E deity (cf the EF-F déité); the EF derivatives déisme, déiste, become E deism, deist. The LL cpd adj deificus, god-making (facere, to make), becomes E deific; subsidiary LL deificāre (pp deificātus) becomes MF-F déifier becomes 'to deify'; from LL deificatiō come late MF-F déification and E deification; decide comes from LL decida, God-slayer, suggested by L homicida, a man-slayer.

deign. See DECENCY, para 6.

deism, deist; deity. See DEIFY.

deject, whence pa dejected; dejection; dejectory.

'To deject' comes from ML dēiectus (L dēiectus), pp of L dēicere, to throw (-icere, c/f of iacere) down (dē-): cf ABJECT, CONJECT; INJECT, OBJECT, PROJECT, REJECT, SUBJECT, and, f.a.e., JET. On dēiect-, s of dēiectus, arises dēiectiō, o/s dēiectiōn-, whence, via ML, the E dejection; but dejectory (cf TRAJECTORY) is an E formation.

delated, elation, delator. See the 1st TOLL, para 6.

delay, n v. See LANGUID, para 10.

delectable, delectation. See DELICACY, para 7. delegacy, delegate, adj, n, v; delegation. See LEGAL, para 6.

delete, deletion, deletory; delible, indelible (whence indelibility).

L dēlere (s dēl-), to efface, to destroy, app (E & M) confuses dēlināre (s dēlin-), to smear or anoint (cf the 1st LIME), and dēolēre*, syn of abolēre, to destroy, to efface: cf ABOLISH. Dēlere has the foll derivatives relevant to E:

dēlēbilis, whence delible, its neg indēlēbilis yielding indelible; dēlētiō, o/s dēlētiōn-, whence deletion. Deletory, however, is an E formation (delet-, from the L pp dēlētus+adj suffix -ory).

deleteriosus. ML dēlēterius, noxious (cf LL dēlēterion, a poison): Gr dēlēterios, from dēleisthai, to harm, akin to Lett delit, to torture; IE r, dēl-, to cut, hence to harm by cutting.

delf or delft; Delft. See DELVE, para 2. deliberate (adj, v), deliberation, deliberative. See LEVEL, para 4.

delible. See DELETE.

delicacy, delicate, delicatessen; delicious; delight (n, v), delightful; diletante; delectable, delectation;—elicit, elicitation, elicitory;—lace (n, v) and enlace; lash (to bind); lassoo; latch, latches.

1. The clue to this app tangle is very simple: L laqueus, a noose or snare, a cord, a lace, akin to lax (o/s lac-), deceit, trickery, seduction: o.o.o.

2. Laqueus becomes OF-MF laz (F lacs), whence ME las, a cord, a snare, whence E lace, (obs) noose, snare, net, (extant) cord, string, lace—whether of a shoe or of an openwork fabric; 'to lace' comes from OF-MF lacier (F lacer), from L laqueāre, to noose, to take in a laqueus or snare. 'To enlace' (whence, by suffix -ment, the n enlacement, perh adopted from OF-F) derives from OF-MF enlacier (en L in, in); a cpd of lacier.

3. OF-MF lacier has dial var lachier, whence 'to lash' or bind with cord or rope.

4. Lachier has derivative n lache, a tie or fastening, whence, via ME lacche, E latch, anything that fastens; the latch of a door (whence latch-key) or in a knitting machine derives from ME lacche, which is prob the same word but might owe something to ME lacchen, to seize, from OE laecan, whence certainly 'to latch', to seize, to catch, to receive, extant in dial ('latch milk in a pail'); 'to latch' a door obviously derives from the n. Latchet, loop or thong, derives from ME lachel, adopted from MF lachel, a dial var of MF-F lacet, itself an -et dim of OF laz (as in para 2).

5. L laqueus becomes Sp lazo, whence E lasso, whence 'to lasso'.

6. Intimately akin to laqueus is lacere (s lac-), to entice—cf lax in para 1. Lacere has cpd ēlicere, to draw out by trickery, to wheedle from (ē, ex, out of) someone; the pp ēlicitus yields 'to elicit', whence the E formations elicitation (by anl with other -ation nn) and elicitory (-ory, adj).

7. Lacere has int-freq lactāre, with cpd dēlectāre, to draw clear of, to draw out from, to seduce, hence to charm or delight; pp dēlectātus yields 'to delectate', and subsidiary dēlectātiō, o/s dēlectātiōn-, yields OF and (? hence) E delectation; dēlectābilis yields, perh via OF, the E delectable.

8. L dēlectāre becomes OF-MF deleitier, MF deliter, whence ME deliten, whence—perh influenced by LIGHT, illumination—'to delight'; the n delight derives from ME delit, adopted from OF-MF, from the OF v; delightful (-ful) is an E formation from n delight. Moreover, dēlectāre becomes It diletitare, with presp diletitante, which, used as n, is adopted by E.

9. L lacere, to snare, has, in addition to ēlicere (para 6), the cpd dēlicere, to turn aside by trickery or seduction, with derivative pl n dēliciae, (means of) enticement, (sources of) delight, with adj dēliciosus, whence, via OF-MF delicieux, the ME-Ē delicious.

10. Akin to dēliciae is dēlicātus (unless for dēlicitus, pp of dēlicere), grateful to the senses, enticing, voluptuous, whence—cf the F délicat—the E delicate (adj, hence n), whence delicacy (delicate+-cy: cf accuracy from accurate). Late MF-F délicat has EF-F derivative délicatesse, delicacy, whence—perh influenced by G essen, to eat—G délicatessen, adopted by E.

delphinium; dolphin; Dauphin.

1. The third, orig bestowed in C12 on the Count of Vienne, prob as a nickname, became, in C14, the title of the eldest son of the successive Kings of France: F dauphin, earlier daufin, the fish dolphin: OProv dalfin: VL dalfinus (early C8), var dalphinus: L delphinus: Gr dēlphis, o/s dēlphin- (gen dēlphinos), from dēlphus, uterus, womb. The flower delphinium (Sci L) is 'so named from the shape of the nectary' (Webster).

2. OF daufin has var daulphin, whence ME dolphyn, whence E dolphin.

delta, whence the adj deltaic; deltoid.

The third (adj, whence n) represents Gr deltoeidēs, delta-shaped (cf IDOL and the suffix -oid): and delta, adopted from Gr, is the name of the capital letter Δ, the E D; Gr δ, Δ, comes from Phoenician. The form Δ gives its name to the marshy tract at Nile's mouth, hence to any other such tract.

desecrate, desecration. See SACRAMENT, para 16.

desert (1), often in pl deserts, merit, merits. See SERVE, para 6.

desert (2), arid wasteland; also v; deserter, desertion. See SERIES, para 9.

deserve. See SERVE, para 6.

desiccate; desiccant; desiccation, desiccative, desiccator, desiccatory.

L dēsiccāre, to dry up, is an int (dē) of siccāre, to dry, from siccus (s sic-), dry, akin to Gr iskhnos (s iskhm-, r iskh-, of which sikh-* is a metathesis), dry, dried up, and perh to Skt hikus, dry. Its presp dēsiccans, o/s dēsiccant-, yields the E adj hence n desiccant; pp dēsiccātus yields both the adj and the v desiccate. On dēsiccāt-, s of dēsiccātus, are built: LL dēsiccātiō, o/s dēsiccātiōn-, E desiccation; LL dēsiccātius, ML -ivus, E adj hence n desiccative, the simple L adj siccātius, ML -ivus, yielding E siccative, adj hence n; LL dēsiccātor, adopted by E; and LL adj dēsiccātorius, whence E desiccatory. desiderata, desiderate, desideration, desiderative. See CONSIDERATE, para 3, and cf DESIRE.

design, n and v; designate, designation. Cf assign, consign, resign: See SIGN, para 14.

desire, n and v; desirable; desirous.

Desire, n, comes from OF-MF desir, itself from OF-MF desirer, whence 'to desire': and desirer comes from L dēsiderāre, (orig in augury) to cease to see, regret the absence of, hence to seek, to desire: dē-, (away) from + sidus, a star, o/s sider- + inf suffix -āre; dēsiderāre was prob suggested by considerāre. Derivative dēsiderābilis becomes OF-MF desirable, adopted by E; LL dēsiderōsus becomes OF-MF desiros, whence E desirous.

desist, whence desistance. See SIST, para 4.

desk. See DISH, para 2.

desmoid. See the element desmidio-.

desolate, adj and v; desolation. See SOLE, para 4.

despair, v hence n; desperado; desperate, desperation; esperance, Esperanto; perh prosper, prosperity, prosperous.

1. The basic word is L spēs, (a) hope: o.o.o.; prob IE r, spe-, with cognates in Sl, Baltic, Gmc. Primitive o/s: app sper-.

2. Derivative L spērāre, to hope, becomes OF esperer, presp esperant, whence the n esperance (F espérance), adopted by E; Esperanto ('the hopeful artificial language') adds an It-Sp ending to esper-.

3. L spērāre has cpd dēspērāre, to lose (dē-, down from) hope, which becomes OF-MF desperer (note il despeire, he loses hope), whence ME despeiren, despayren, whence 'to despair', whence the n despair, prompted by OF-MF dēsipoir (from desperer). In Sp, L desperare becomes OSp desperar, with pp desperado, whence the Sp n desperado, a desperate man, hence a desperate criminal. L dēspērāre has pp dēspērātus, whence the E adj desperate; subsidiary L dēspērātiō, o/s dēspērātiōn-, yields, prob via OF-MF, the E desperation.

4. The ancient derivation of the L adj prosper, arriving opportunely, faring well, from prō spēre*, conforming to, answering, one's hope, is, despite much opposition, at least plausible; the kinship with Skt sphirás, abundant, rich, is possible (E & M)—but why then pro-? The L adj prosper accounts for the PN Prosper; its derivative var prosperus accounts for E prosperous—derivative prosperitās (o/s prosperitāt-), via OF-F prosperité accounts for E prosperity; its derivative prosperāre, perh via OF-F prospērēre, accounts for 'to prosper'.

1. dēspōndēre, to promise (spondēre) away (dē-, down or away from, used int): spondēre, to solemnly undertake or engage to, hence to promise, has s spond-, akin to Gr spondē, a drink-offering, hence, libations being made on the occasion, a solemn truce, and its v spondein (s spend-), to make a drink-offering, hence to make a treaty, and to Hit šipand-, var špand-, to pour a libation.

2. Spondēre has two notable cpds: dēspōndēre and respondēre. The former, to separate oneself formally from (dē-), hence to abandon, to lose, yields 'to despond'; presp dēspōndens, o/s dēspōndent-, yields E despondent, whence despondency.

3. Respondēre, to undertake in return (re-), to perform one's part in a solemn engagement, yields, prob via OF-MF responde, 'to respond'; MF respondeance (formed from the F presp) explains responsence, var -cy. The L presp respondens, o/s respondent-, explains E adj, whence n, respondent. The ML subsidiary correspondēre (cor-, for con-, with) becomes MF-F corresponde and, prob independently, E correspond, whence (cf the MF-F correspondant) correspondent (adj hence n)—whence, in turn (cf MF-F correspondance), correspondence. Correspondence and corresponsive answer to responsion, from L responsiō, o/s responsiōn-, whence E (and F) responsion, and responsive, from ML responsivus, LL responsivus, answering. Respondēre has, one perceives, the pp responsus (s respons-), with neu responsum used as n, whence, prob via OF-MF response, var of respons, the E response. Responsibility derives, by anl, from responsibile, adopted from MF (cf the F responsable), perh altered from ML responsabilis.

4. The simple spondēre has, of course, pp sponsus, f sponsa, used as nn ('the promised'), whence OF-MF espos, var espos, f espouse, whence both the F époux, f épouse, and the common-gendered E spouse, husband or wife; derivative OF-MF esposer, MF espouser, yields 'to espouse'. The L terms have derivative v sponsāre, to betroth, whence OF espousailles, whence E espousal, a betrothal—or a wedding— ceremony, whence the aphetic spousal(s).

5. The pps spons- has a further derivative, the agent sponsor, a guarantor, hence a responsible person; adopted by E.

6. The Gr spondē, a drink-offering (as in para 1), has adj spondeios; whence the elliptical n spondeios (pous), a metre (— —) favoured, for its solemnity, at libations: hence L spondeus, whence MF-F spondée, whence E spondee; the derivative Gr prosodic adj spondeiakos L spondiacus, spondaicus, (EF-F spondalque and) E spondaic.

despot, despotic, despotism.

Gr despotēs, for demspota*, akin to Skt dāmpatis, lord of the house (cf L domus, house, and potis, able), becomes MF-F despote, whence E despot; the Gr adj despotikos becomes MF-F despotique, whence E despotic; Gr despoteta becomes, with new suffix, EF-F despotisme, whence E despotism. Cf DOMESTIC, para 1.

dessert. See SERVE, para 7.

destinate, destination, destine, destiny; predestinate, predestination, predestine, and, anl with other -arian adj (hence nn), predestinarian.

1. Predestinate, adj and v, comes from L praedēstinātus, pp of praedēstināre, to determine, or to doom, in advance (prae-); subsidiary LL praedēstinātiō, o/s -dēstinātiōn-, yields—perh via OF-F—predestination; 'to predestine', however, comes, like OF-F prēdestiner, straight from praedēstināre.

2. Dēstināre, to determine, arrange definitely, is a cpd (int dē) of stanāre* (s stan-), to fix, a nasal mfn of stāre, to stand (cf STATE); the pp dēstinātus yields the obs adj and the v destinare; subsidiary dēstinātiō (dēstināi-+-iō), o/s dēstinātiōn-, yields—perh via OF-F—the E destination; OF-F destiner (L dēstināre) accounts for 'to destine'; the OF-F derivative n destinée (f of pp destiné), becomes ME destine, desteny, whence destiny.

destitute (adj hence v), destitution. See STAND, para 23.

destroy, destroyer; destruction, destructive, destructor. See STRUCTURE, para 4.

desuetude: EF-F dēsueiude: L dēsuetūdō, from dēsuescere, to fall out of use: dē-, away from+suescere, to grow accustomed, from the adj suus, one's own: cf, therefore, CUSTOM.

desultor, desultory. Cf exult, insult, result, but see SALLY, para 11.

detach, whence the pa detached; detachment. See TACH, para 4.

detail. See the 2nd TAIL, para 5.

detain, detainer; detention, detentive.

L dētīnēre, to hold (tenēre) from (dē-) one's wish or business—f.a.e., TENANT—becomes OF detenir, whence 'to detain' and AF detener, whence the legal detainer. The L pp dētentus, s dētēt-, has LL derivative dētentiō, o/s dētentiōn-, whence E detention, whence, by anl, the adj detentive (cf retentive at RETAIN).

detect, detection, detective (adj hence n), detector. See TECHNIC, para 9.

detent, détente. See TEND, para 9.

detention, detentive. See DETAIN.

deter. See TERROR, para 1.

detergent. See TERSE, para 2.

deteriorate, deterioration, deteriorative.

The 3rd is an E anl formation (-ive, adj); the 2nd derives from dēteriorātiōn-, o/s of LL dēteriorātiō, degeneration; the 1st, from dēteriorātus, pp of LL dēteriorāre, from L dēterior, worse, a comp of dēter*, bad, from dē, down from.

determinable, determination; determine, determined; etc. See TERM, para 5. deterrent, whence deterrence. See TERROR, para 1.

See VACANT, para 17.

develop or develope, whence developable, developer; development, whence developmental, developmentary (adj suffixes -al, -ary);—envelop, envelope, envelopment.

1. Envelope derives from MF-F enveloppe, itself from enveloper, OF-MF enveloper, whence 'to envelop': and OF-MF enveloper is an alteration of OF enveloper: en-, in+OF-MF voloper, to wrap up, to envelop, either from ML volvere, L volvere, to roll, esp into a spiral or a ball, or (B & W), influenced by volvere, from ML faluppa, mostly in pl faluppae, chaff, a bale of corn, o.o.o., or, more prob, from Celtic volup-, extn (Malvezin) of PC vol-, to turn, akin to ML vol-, L uol-, as in L uoluere, ML volvere: OF-MF voloper is a var of OF voluper and there is even the MF var veloper: with OF voluper, cf the OF volu, from ML volūtum, neu of volūtus, L uolūtus, pp of uolere. Also from OF-F envelop(er) derives MF-F enveloppement, whence E envelopment (suffix -ment).

2. Deriving from the same r as OF-MF enveloper, and prompted by that word, is OF-MF develope, F développe, whence 'to develop', whence (suggested by late MF-F développement) development.

devest. See VEST, para 3.

deviate, deviation, deviator, devious. See VIA, para 15.

device, whence deviceful (-ful for full), comes from ME devis, intention, invention: OF-F devis, intention, wish, plan, from OF-F deviser, to direct or regulate, to distribute: VL divisāre*, to distribute, divide, from ML divisus, L diuisus, pp of diuidere: f.a.c., DIVIDE. OF-F deviser yields 'to devise', (obs) to divide or distribute, hence to invent, to plan, hence, in Law, to give by will.

devil (n hence v), with obvious animal and plant cpds (devil fish, devil's bit, etc.) and one less obvious (devil's advocate) and with derivatives devilish (-ish, adj) and devilry (-ry for -ery); diabolic (whence diabolical: -al, adj), diabolism, diabolist.

1. A devil's advocate—trans of ML advocātus diaboli—is a Catholic official charged with pointing out flaws in the character of a person to be either beatified or canonized; hence, one who quibbles for the sake of truth; hence, loosely, one who, for argument's sake, champions the worse or weaker cause.

2. Devil, OE dēofol (var -ful), comes from LL diabolus, trin of Gr diabolos (LGr Diabolos, Satan), the slanderer, from diaballein, to slander, lit to throw (ballein) across (dia); with the Gr r bal-, cf Skt gal- in galati, it trickles, and, for E, ballistic.

3. The Gr adj is diabolikos (for bol-, a var of bal-, cf metabolism): LL diabolicus: MF-F diabolique: E diabolic. On s diabol- arise the E formations diabolism (-ism) and diabolist (-ist); the game diabolo represents It diabolo, devil (LL diabolus).

devious. Cf deviate; see VIA.

Devonian is the adj (-ian) of Devon; devonite an -ite derivative of Mt Devon in Missouri; and Devon is short for Devonshire, OE Defnascīr, Defnascīr, the SHIRE of the Defenas or Defnas, an OE re-shaping cf C Dumnonii (cf C Dumnonia, the territory), perk 'sons of the god, or goddess, Dumnū'.

devote (pa devoted), devotee, devotion. See VOTAL, para 5.

devour. See VORACIOUS, para 2.

devout. See VOTAL, para 5.

dew, n, whence 'to dew'; dewberry; dewlap; dewy.

The last=dew+adj -y; dewberry is an obvious cpd; dewlap, ME dewlappe, is a LAP, or fold, that tends to moistness, cf the 1st LAP, para 2; and dew itself, OE dēaw, is akin to the syn OFris dāw, OHG-MHG tou, G Tau, ON dögg—to Gr theō, I run—and to Skt dhāvati, it runs or flows, and dhātis, spring (of water).

dexter, dexterity, dexterous (now usu contr to dextrous); dextral, dextrin; dextrose.

The last two are Chem derivatives, in -in and -ose, from dextr-, c/f of the first; dextral=dextr-+adj -al; dexterous=dexter+-ous; dexterity comes, perh via EF-F dextérité, from L dexteritās, an -itās derivative of the L adj dexter: and L dexter, of or situated on the right, to the right, is the complement of L sinister, of or situated on the left, to the left, with derivative dextra or dextera, the right hand (cf sinistra, the left hand); the right hand being normally the stronger and dexter, L dexteritās and dexter, E dexterity and dexterous, gain the further and now predominant sense of manual skill: cf ADROIT. As in L sinister, the ending -ter connotes situation or direction: cf the Gr adj dexteros, aristeros, right, left (of a pair); for the r dex-, cf the syn Gr dexios, Skt dākṣina (Av daśina-), OSl desnū, Lith dėšinas, OIr dess, Go taishwa, OHG zesō; cf also OSl desnica and OHG zesara or zeswa, right hand, and Gaul Dexiva or Dexsiva, Goddess of Fortune. The IE r is therefore deks-, right (adj), hence right hand, and is prob a reduction of IE dekos (cf L decus), that which is fitting, hence favourable, good: the right hand and the right side are those which are fitting on solemn occasions (esp in augury), hence in ethics and in matters rather more trivial. (Boisacq, esp; E & M.)

diabētes, diabeti.

The latter—cf the EF-F diabétique—attaches adj suffix -ic to diabet-, s of LL diabētes, Gr diabētēs, lit 'a passer through', from diabainein, to walk or go (bainein) through (dia): the disease is characterized by a constant and excessive passage of urine.

diabolic(al), diabolism, diabolist, diabolo. See DEVIL, para 3.

diacanal, diaconate. See DEACON, para 2.

diadem: OF-MF diademe (EF-F diadème): L diadēma: Gr diadēma, from diadein, to bind about or around: dia, through, across+dein, to bind (cf Gr hupodēma, ὑπόδημα, a sandal), akin to Skt dyāti, he binds; IE r, dei-*, to bind.

diacresis. See SERUM, para 4.

diagnosis, diagnostic, diagnostician. See the 2nd GNOME, para 5.

diagonal, adj hence n; L diagōnālis: Gr diagōnīs, passing through or across (dia) something from angle (gōnia) to angle, akin to Gr gonu, knee.

diagram—whence, by anl (cf anagram—anagrammatic), diagrammatic—comes from L, from Gr, diagramma, itself from diagraphēin, to write (graphēin) across (dia), hence to mark out with lines: cf GRAPH.

dial, showing the time of day: late ML diāle, dial of a clock, prop the neu of ML diālis (s diāl-), adj of L diēs, day: f.a.e., DIANA.

dialect, dialectal; dialectic, dialectical, dialectician. See LEGEND, para 26.

diamantiferous. See DIAMOND.

diameter. See MEASURE, para 7.

diamond (n hence v): ME diamand, earlier diamauant: OF-F diamant: ML diamant-, o/s of diamas: an aphetic corruption (? suggested or aided by Gr diaphanēs, transparent) of L adamas (gen adamanis), the hardest iron, (later) diamond, from Gr adamas, the hardest metal, (later) diamond: cf ADAMANT.

Diana (whence Dian); diva, divine, divination, divinity; sep deify, deism, deist, deity, deus; sep deodar; sep dial; dies—diary—dismal—diurnal (adj hence n) and journal (adj hence n), journalise, journalism, journalist—journey (n hence v), with obvious cpds, journeyman, journeywork, etc.—adjourn, adjournment and sojourn (n and v), sojournment; hodiernal; meridian; quotidian; Jupiter, Jove, jovial; joss; Zeus, Dyaus; Tuesday.—Cf the 2nd DIET.

1. L Diāna is either an -āna (m -ānus) derivative of L dīus, the oldest adjective of deus, a god, or a contraction of L dīuīāna, itself a shadowy derivative of dīus; diva, a prima donna, is the f of It divo, divine, from the L var dīuus, ML dīvus; L dīuīnus, an -inus derivative of dīuus, becomes ML dīvīnus, of or by or for a god, the gods, also inspired by them, whence MF-F divin, OF-MF devin, both adopted by ME with later form divine, extant in E, whence, prob, the n, the v appearing to derive from ME divinen, var devinen, from OF-F diviner, from ML divināre, L dīuīnāre, from the 'god-inspired' sense of dīuīnus, whose 'of or for a god' sense yields dīuīnitās, the quality or power of a god, ML dīvinitās, whence OF-MF devinité, MF-F divinité, whence ME devinite, var divinite, whence E divinity. L dīuīnāre has derivative dīuīnātio, acc dīuīnātionem, ML div-, whence EF-F, whence E, divination.

2. The base of those words, as of the sep treated DEIFY (where also deity), is the L deus: and L deus stems from an IE deiuo*, whereas the very closely linked L diēs, day, a day, and Iuppiter stem from IE deiu-* or dei-*: cf Skt devas, a god, and the syn OP deywis or deiwās, ON tívar (pl), OIr and Ga dia, OW duu, W dur, Cor deu, dew, OC deuos* or divos*. The derivative L adj dīus means three different but very closely related things: divine; of the sky; luminous: 'The luminous day and the sky are confused with the god' (E & M). In part, L dīus imitates the Gr adj dios, of a god, of the gods, divine: and dios (for dīuios* or dīvos* ?) is akin to Skt divyas, diviyas, celestial.

3. The Gr adj dios may have derived almost imperceptibly from Gr Dios, the gen of Zeus (for Dīvos* ?); in Boeotian and Laconian Gr, Zeus (Zeús) is Deus (Δεός); cf Skt dyāus, the sky, day, heaven (IE diēus, sky, bright day), whence Dyāus, Heaven, also elliptical for Dyaus-pitr, Father of Heaven, Gr Zeus patēr, voc Zeus pater, which prob suggested the L Iupiter, Iuppiter, ML Jup(p)iter, whence E Jupiter; note, too, the form of the syn L Diespiter. With Gr Zeus, Deus, and L deus, cf also Hit sius (contr of siunas), a god, and the syn OHG Zio, ON Týr, OE Tiw, the God of War; OE Tiw has cpd Tiwesdaeg (whence E Tuesday), the War-God's day, akin to OFris Tiesdei, OHG Ziestac, ON Týrsdagr, Týsdagr.

4. In L, Iupiter has gen Iovis (PL Diouis), used also as nom: ML Jovis, whence E Jove. Derivative LL adj Ioviālis, ML Joviālis, yields F, whence E, jovial.

5. L deus becomes Port deos, whence the Pidgin joss, a Chinese domestic divinity, whence sl joss, luck.

6. As we have seen, L deus has a very close cognate: diēs, daylight, day, duration of a day. Diēs was refashioned from the acc diem, itself app modelled upon Ve dyām, var diyām (cf Homeric Gr Zēn). The link between 'light (of day), day' and 'the sky', on the one hand, and 'god', on the other, is a double link: sem in the fact that the luminous sky (the source of daylight) and daylight were apprehended as divine forces and manifestations, also a god is 'the shining one'; phon in the IE r dei-, to shine, be luminous. This dei- appears in C, usu shortened to dī-, as in OIr diē and Br deiz, day (cf the OW diu, a god), OIr in-diu, today; it appears also in Arm tiv, day, and, of course, in L diēs.

7. Diēs occurs, disguised, in the adj dismal; but then, this adj derives from the n dismal, a period of

(L) dies mali, bad or unlucky days, OF dis mal, whence ME dismale.

8. Clearer is the origin of diary: L diārium (esp in pl diāria), ration for a day, a daily record; with the form diārium, cf that of L diālis, daily (see DIAL), both deriving from diēs. Also deriving from dies is the adj diurnus, complementary to and prompted by nocturnus, of the nox or night; its extn diurnālis, daily, esp in ref to diurnum, a journal (from acta diurna, things done daily—and recorded), comes the E adj diurnal, daily, whence the n diurnal, a daybook or diary, later a newspaper.

9. Now, L diurnālis becomes the OF-EF adj journal, which, used by EF-F as n, is adopted by E for a newspaper—a modern diurnal. F journal, newspaper, has derivative journalisme, whence E journalism and journaliste, whence E journalist. Journalese is an E formation (orig coll) in -ese, after Johnsonese.

10. The L adj diurnus has neu diurnum, turned by LL into a n meaning a day', whence VL diurnāta*, a day's work or travel, whence OF-MF journee (F ournée), whence E journey; with OF-MF journee (OF jernee), cf OProv jornada and It giornata—note, however, that these three words more prob derive from the contemporaneous words for 'day'—OF-MF and OProv jorn (later F jour) and It giorno, themselves all from LL diurnum, a day.

11. OF-MF jorn has two cpds relevant to E: ajorner and sojorner. MF ajorner, var ajurner, whence ME ajornen, whence 'to adjourn', derives from ML adjurnāre, LL adiurnāre; ad, to+diurnus+inf -āre. The MF derivative adjournement becomes E adjournment. OF sojorner, OF-MF sejorner (whence F séjourner), whence ME sojornen, sojornen, whence 'to sojourn', derives from VL subdiurnāre*: sub, under, hence a little after+diurnus+-āre. OF sojorner has derivatives sojorn (and sojor, sejor), whence the E n sojourn, and sojournment, whence sojournment.

12. Three L cpds of diēs remain: hodiernus, meridiānus, quotidiānus. Hodiernus, s hodiern-, yields E hodiernal (-al substituted for -ous), of this day, and it represents an -ernus adj derivative from hodiē (adv), today: (in) hoc diē, on this day: cf Skt adya.

13. Meridiānus, whence OF-MF, whence ME, meridien, whence E meridian (adj, whence n), derives from meridiēs, noon (from adv meridiē, at noon, a dissimilation of mediei diē*), for OL medidiēs, middle day, from adj medius (s medi-, r med-), middle.

14. Quotidiānus, later cottidiānus, whence OF-MF cotidian, cotidien (later quo-), both adopted by ME, whence E quotidian (adj hence n), derives from the adv quotidiē, daily: quotus, in what number, adj from adv quot, how many+diēs. (Cf QUOTA.)

diapason, adopted from L, comes from Gr d apasōn, formed of the 2nd and 3rd elements of ἡ διὰ πᾶσῶν χορδῶν συμφωνία, hē dia pasōn khordōn sumphonia, the through-all-chords symphony, i.e. the concord of all notes—in short, the octave. Cf the prefix dia- and PAN.

diaper, orig a rich, later a cloth or linen, textile fabric, hence a table napkin, now—esp in AE—a baby's napkin (breech-cloth), derives from ME, from MF, diapre, OF-MF diaspre, from ML diasprum, var of diasprus, trln of LGr-MGr diaspros, pure white (cf Gr dialeukos): dia, through, hence thoroughly+LGr-MGr aspros, white, from G aspros, rough (cf the LGr aspron, white of egg), akin to L asper (cf ASPERITY). From diaper in the sense 'figured design' (orig on the textile) comes 'to diaper', perh from EF-F diaprer, OF-MF diasprer, from OF-MF diaspre; hence the pa diapered.

diaphanous. See the element -phane.

diaphragm: MF-F diaphragme: LL, from Gr, diaphragma, the muscle separating thorax from abdomen, (lit) a barrier or partition, from diaphragmatai, to fence (phragmatai, to fence) thoroughly (dia-): f.a.e., FARCE. Adj: diaphragmatic, from F diaphragmatique, an -ique (L -icus, Gr -ikos) learned adj from Gr diaphragmat-, o/s of diaphragma.

diarist is an E -ist derivative from diary, q.v. at DIANA, para 8.

diarrhoea (AE -rrhea). See RHEUM, para 3.

Diaspora. See the element -spora, 2nd para.

diastole. See STALL, para 13.

diathesis. See THESIS, para 8.

diatom, diatomous. See TOME, para 6.

diatonic comes, via F and LL, from Gr diatonikos, adj of diatonon, the diatonic scale, prop the neu of diatonos, stretched, extended, from diasteinein, to stretch out; prefix dia-, through+teinein (s tein-) to stretch: cf TONE.

diatribe. See THROW, para 11.

dibble, dibbler. See DAB, para 3.

dibs, game, (sl) money. See DAB, para 3.

dice (n hence v). See 1st DIE.

dichotomy, adj dichotomous.

The former derives from Gr dikhotomia, an -ia derivative of dikhotos, whence, via LL dichotomos, the E dichotomous, cut (-tomos: cf TOME) in two (dicho-: cf the element dicho-).

dickens!, what the, What the devil!: Dickens, for Diccon* from Diccon's or Dickon's (son), Diccon being an extn of Dick, pet-form of Richard, itself adopted from F, of Gmc origin—cf OHG Richhart (cf RICH and HARD).

dicker. See DECEMBER, para 4.

dickey, var of dicky, any of several—either inside or inferior—articles of clothing: perh from D dek, a covering: f.a.e., DECK. Hence the coll adj dick(e)y, inferior, weak, shaky.

dict, cf dicta, dictum; dictate, dictation, dictator (whence dictatorship: suffix -ship), dictatorial; diction and dictionary; cf the element dicto-; dight; digit; ditto; ditty. Latin prefix-cpds: abdicate, abdication; addict (adj, n, v), addiction; benedict, benediction, benedictive, benedictory, cf benison—and malediction, maledictory, cf malison; causi- dical; condition (n, v), conditional (whence unconditional), conditionate; contradict, contradiction, contradictory; dedicate, dedication, dedicatory; edict (whence adj edictal); fatidic(al); index (pl indices), indicate, indication, indicative, indicator; indict (whence indictable), indiction, indictive, indictment—cf indite, inditement; interdict (n, v), interdiction, interdictive, interdictor, interdictory; judex, judge (n, v), judgement—cf misjudge, misjudgement—judicable, judicative, judicator, judicatory (adj, n), Judicature, judicial, judiciary, judicious—cf adjudge, adjudicate, adjudication, adjudicative, adjudicator—cf also juridic(al), jurisdiction, jurisdictive; predicable, predicament (whence adj predicamental), predicant, predicate (adj, n, v), predication, predicative, predictor, predatory—cf preach, preacher, preachment; predict, prediction, predictive; vendetta; vengeable, vengeance, vengeful—avenge, avenger—revenge (n, v), revengable, revengeful; verdict; veridical; vindex, vindicable, vindicate, vindication, vindicative (and, of course, vindictive), vindicator, vindictory.—Greek cognates: deictic, apodeictic, epideictic; paradigm, paradigmatic; remotely cf TEACH.

1. Obs dict, a saying, comes from L dictum (pl dicta), prop the neu of dictus (s dict-), pp of dicere (s dic-), to say: OL deicere (s deic-) is akin to Gr deiknunai, to show (r deik-); to Skt dīśati, he points out or shows (pp dīśās, shown: cf dictus); to Go ga-teihan, to show, tell, proclaim (ga-, int prefix; r teih-), and OHG zeigōn (G zeigen: s zeig-), to show, int of OHG zihan (r zih-), G zeihen, to accuse; and prob to Hit tek-kusmu, to show or prove. The IE r is deik-, var deig-, with shorter forms dik-, dig-, to point to, to show; the sem relation between pointing to, hence showing, and telling, hence merely saying, hardly needs to be laboured.

2. The neu pp dictum used as n becomes It ditto (var detto), adopted by E: lit, the said, hence the aforesaid, thing.

3. Not from pp dictus but prob from the IE var r dig-* comes L digitus, s digit-, whence E digit: ? orig 'the pointer', hence a toe or, usu, finger. Derivative adj digitālis yields digital; derivative digitāre has pp digitātus, which, used as adj (having fingers), yields the E adj digitate; cf prestidigitation and prestidigitator, the former adopted from F, the latter adapted from F prestidigitateur, learned cpds with 1st element the F preste, nimble, from It presto (as in hey presto!) from late VL praestus, ready at hand.

4. On L dict-, s of pp dictus, is formed L dictiō, saying, a saying, a word, o/s dictiōn-, whence OF-F and E diction, now usu a manner of speaking. On o/s dictiōn- is formed the -ārius (E -ary) adj dictiōnārius, whence, for d. liber, the ML dictiōnārius, later dictiōnārium, a book of words, whence E dictionary.

5. L dicere has int and freq dictāre, to say loudly, to say often (so as to be easily reported), later to compose, with pp dictātus, whence 'to dictate'; the neu dictātum, used as n, becomes both the E n dictate and, via OF-MF dirié, var diré, the ME dite, E ditty, orig a composition. On the pps dictāt- arise LL dictātīō, o/s dictātīōn-, whence E dictation, and, with changed senses, the agent dictātor, adopted by E, with adj dictātorius, whence (with -al for -ous) dictatorial, and the office dictātūra, whence dictature. Dictāre, to say often, hence to order, yields OE dīhtan, to dictate, order, dispose, whence ME dihthen, whence the obs 'to dight', extant in its pp dight, furnished, clad.

6. Such derivatives of L dicere, to say, as dicāre (durative and int), to say solemnly, to proclaim, and dicīō, a word or a formula of command, and the elements -dex and -dicus, both connoting an agent, occur, as to E, only in cpds: e.g., abdīcāre (see para 8); condīciō (para 10); index, iudex, uindex (paras 13, 15, 19, resp) and their derivatives indīcāre, iudīcāre, uindīcāre (paras 14, 15–18, 20–21, resp); causidīcus . . . ueridīcus (para 11).

7. Of dicere, the L prefix-cpds affecting E are these:

addīcere, to adjudge or accord, with pp addictus, whence the obs adj, the n, the v addict; derivative addictīō, o/s addictiōn-, becomes addiction; benedīcere, to say 'well' (bene) to, i.e. to bless, with imp benedīcite, Bless ye!, whence E benedīcite, a blessing, and with pp benedictus, whence the PN Benedict (anglicized as Benedick) and the adj, hence n, benedict, blest, a married man; derivative LL benedictīō, o/s benedictiōn-, becomes directly the E benediction and indirectly, via OF benēçun, benelson, and ME beneysun, benesoun, the E benison; ML benedictōrius* accounts for E benefictory; cf maledīcere below;

condīcere (int con-), to conclude (an arrangement), has derivative condictiō, whence the legal condiction—cf conditio in para 10; contradīcere, to speak contra, or against, with pp contradictus, whence 'to contradict'; derivative contradictiō, o/s contradictiōn-, whence via OF-F, the E contradiction; and LL contradictōrius, whence E contradictory, adj whence n; ēdicere (ē-, out), to say out, to proclaim (e.g., a law), with pp ēdictus, with neu ēdictum used as n, whence E edict; indīcere, to proclaim (a war) or impose (a tribute), has pp indictus, s indict-, whence both indictiō, o/s indictiōn-, whence E indiction, proclamation, edict, and indictius, ML -ivus, whence E indictive; but that pp merely form-influences 'to indict', to accuse, which (pron indite) derives from ME enditen, to write down, to accuse, whence clearly 'to indite', to (compose and) write; ME enditen comes from OF enditer, to indicate, to write; en, from L in, in(to), against+dictāre, to dictate, to proclaim; and derivative ME enditement becomes, under the same influence, indictment (pron inditement)—inditement being now rare;

interdicere, to legally interpose, to prohibit, has pp interdictus—whence 'to interdict'—with neu interdictum used as n, whence the E n interdict (perh, however, from LL interdictus, gen -ūs), both v and n experiencing OF intermediation in entre-; derivative LL interdictiō o/s interdictiōn-, becomes interdiction, itself suggesting interdictive; LL interdictor is adopted, LL interdictōrius adapted, by E; maledicere, to speak ill of, to curse, with pp maledictus, s maledict-, whence maledictiō, o/s maledictiōn-, whence directly the E malediction and indirectly, via OF maletçon, the E malison—cf benison at benedicere above; maledictory is an anl E formation; praedicere, to foretell, has pp praedictus, whence 'to predict'; derivative praedictiō, o/s praedictiōn-, becomes prediction, as derivative praedictiūus, ML -ivus, becomes predictive; ualedicere (ML vale-): for valediction, valedictory, see VALUE, para 21.

8. L dicāre, to proclaim, has three prefix-cpds: abdicāre (ab, from), to refuse to recognize, and se abdicāre, to renounce, with pp abdicātus, whence 'to abdicate'; derivative abdicatiō, o/s abdicatiōn-, yields abdication; LL abdicatiūus, ML -ivus, yields abdicative; ML abdicātor is adopted; dēdicāre (dē- used int), to consecrate to the gods, to declare solemnly, has pp dēdicātus, whence the obsol adj and the v dedicate; derivative dēdicatiō, o/s dēdicatiōn-, becomes, prob via OF, the E dedication; dēdicatiūus, ML -ivus, becomes dedicative, mostly displaced by dedicator (-ory, adj), itself suggested by dedicator (adopted from L); praedicāre (prae, before), to proclaim, LL to preach, has presp praedicans, o/s praedican-, whence the E adj, hence n, predicant; pp praedicātus yields adj and v predicate, and its neu praedicātum, used as n, the n predicate; derivative praedicatiō, o/s praedicatiōn-, becomes OF, whence E, predication; praedicatiūus, ML -ivus, becomes predicative; praedicātor becomes predicator; LL praedicātorius becomes predicatory. Moreover, praedicābilis yields predicable, and LL praedicāmentum, something predicated, hence a quality, hence a condition or a circumstance, esp if unpleasant, yields predicament.

9. L praedicāre, to proclaim, to preach, becomes OF-MF preechier or prechier (the F prêcher): ME prechen: 'to preach'; preacher comes from MF preecheor, deriving from the OF v but suggested by L praedicātor; preachment, from MF preechement, from the v.

For indicāre, see para 14.

10. L dicō, a word or formula of command, has a notable prefix-cpd: condiciō, a formula of agreement between two persons (con, with, together), o/s condiciōn-: OF condicion, adopted by late ME, whence E condition; F condition has derivative conditionner, whence 'to condition', whence the pa conditioned. LL condiciōnālis becomes OF condicōnel, whence, influenced by ML conditiōnālis, the E conditional (with neg unconditional). Derivative ML conditiōnāre (perh influencing F conditionner) has pp conditiōnāus, whence the adj and v conditionate.

11. The c/f e -dicus, connoting an agent or, as adj, an agential quality, occurs in the foll words relevant to E:

causidicus, a pleader in a law court, with adj causidicālis, whence E causidical; fātidicus (adj), telling of FATE: E fatidic, now usu fatidical (-al); iuridicus, ML iuridicus, of or by or for (legal) justice, whence E juridic, now usu judicial; iuridictiō, o/s iuridictiōn-, ML juris-, whence, perh via MF-EF, the E jurisdiction; uēridicus (adj), telling the truth (L uērum, ML vērum): E veridic, now usu veridical; cf the ML vēredictum or vēridictum, often contr to vēdictum, whence the E verdict, L-remade from ME verdit (OF veirdit, from vēdictum).

12. Thus we reach the cpds in -dex (akin to OL dix, as in dicis causa, because of the formula, (hence) in a manner of speaking), connoting an agent or an instrument: index, iudex, uindex, prob for indix*, etc., influenced by artifex, etc.

13. L index, o/s indic-, is lit a 'pointer at or to' (in, in, into, against), whence esp 'forefinger', whence the senses 'table of contents' (now 'alphabetical list of contents') and 'catalogue of books', as in the Catholic Index Expurgatorius (of books with suspect passages) and Index Librorum Prohibitorum (of books entirely forbidden to the laity).

14. Serving as the v answering to L index is L indicāre, which perh rather=in, into, at + dicāre, to proclaim. Its pp indicātus yields 'to indicate'; on the pps indicāt- arise indicatiō, o/s indicatiōn-, whence, perh via F, the E indication—LL indicatiūus, ML -ivus, whence indicative—and LL indicātor, adopted by E.

15. L iudex, ML iudex, is 'he who points to or shows the law' (L ius, r iu-). Retained in certain legal terms, iudex has s iudic-, ML judic-, and becomes OF(-F) juge, adopted by ME, whence E judge; 'to judge' derives from ME jugen, from OF jugier, from ML iudicāre, L iudicāre (s iudic-), itself from iudex. ML iudicamentum (L suffix -mentum, cf E -ment) yields OF jugement, adopted by ME, whence E judgement. 'To misjudge' and misjudgement are E mis- cpds of the simple words.

16. L iudicāre has several derivatives affecting E:

LL iudicābilis, whence judicable; pp iudicātus, whence, via ML, the rare E 'to judicate';

LL iudicātor, whence, via ML, the E judicator, whence judicatorial (suffix -ial);

LL iudicātorius, whence the adj judicatory; the neu iudicātorium, used as n, becomes the n judicatory;

ML iudicātūra, office or profession of judge, yields judicature.

17. L iudex, ML iudex, has the derivative iudicium, with adjj iudiciālis and iudiciārius, whence, via ML, the E judicial and judiciary, adj whence n; judicious (neg injudicious), however, derives from F judicieux, f judicieuse, from ML iudicium; judicative is an E formation in -ive.

18. The L cpd adiudicāre, ML adjudicāre, int (ad-) of iudicāre, leads to the foll E words:

adjudge, ME ajugen, OF ajugier (ML adjūdicāre); adjudicate, from ML adjūdicātus, the pp (s adjūdicāt-); adjudication, from ML adjūdicātiōn-, o/s of adjūdicātiō, LL adiūdicātiō, from the pps; adjudicative, adjudicator, adjudicature, anl E formations on the simple words.

18a. A more important prefix-cpd of iūdicāre is praeiūdicāre, to judge prae or beforehand, which, via ML praeiūdicāre, becomes F préjuger, whence 'to prejudice'; derivative F préjugement becomes E prejudgement. The L pp praeiūdicātus, ML -jūd-, yields the adj and obsol v prejudicate; derivative LL praeiūdicātiō, o/s -ātiōn, yields prejudication. Moreover, iūdicium (para 17) has LL cpd praeiūdicium, lit a legal judgement made beforehand, whence OF prejudice, adopted by E; derivative F préjudicier (? influenced by Tertullian's LL) accounts for 'to prejudice'. Derivative LL praeiūdicialis, of a previous judgement, becomes legal prejudicial, decided prior to a hearing before a judge; the sense 'hurtful' app derives from OF prejudicial and is influenced by the non-legal senses of the F and E n prejudice. But already in LL does 'hurtful' appear; esp in Tertullian's use of praeiūdicāre for 'to do harm to', which follows, with complete sem naturalness, from the L 'pre-judge' sense. (Souter.)

19. Completing the L words in -dex is uindex (o/s uindic-), ML vindex, he who guarantees, stands surety for, (hence) proves the innocence of, avenges. It has obscure 1st element: he who points to—what? Perhaps for uindex*, he who shows the uis (ML vis) or violence done to his client; E & M (rightly, I think) prefer the 1st element to be a lost L cognate of OHG wini, friend, one who 'belongs' to the family, cf OIr fine, relationship, clan, tribe, Ga fine, tribe, OC venjá (cf the Cor vensy, to vindicate).

20. L uindex has derivative v iūdicāre, with senses answering exactly to those of the n. Its pp uindicātus, ML vindicātus, yields 'to vindicate'; on the pps uindicāt- arise uindicātiō, o/s uindicātiōn-, whence E vindication—ML vindicātivus, tending or designed to vindicate, whence vindicative, whence (influenced by L uindicāta, restitution of or to liberty, (later) punishment, itself, by contr, from uindicāre) vindictive, disposed to, or aiming at, revenge, whence vindictiveness (-ness); LL uindicātor, ML vindicātor, adopted by E. Vindicable is as if from ML vindicābilis*; vindictory as if from ML vindicātorius*. Revindicate, revindication answer to ML revindicātus, pp of revindicāre, and revindicātiō*, o/s revindicātiōn-*.

21. Uindicāre, ML vindicāre, passes through F with these results for E:

OF venchier and venkler, F venger, whence obs 'to venge'. The OF-F vv have derivatives MF-EF vengeable, adopted by E—OF-F vengeance, adopted by E—OF-MF vengement, adopted by E, now obs—OF-MF vengeor (F vengeur), whence E venger, avenger, and OF-MF vengeresse, whence obs E vengeress; but vengeful is an E formation;

OF-MF avengier (a-, L ad-, to, app used int), to take or exact retribution for (someone), whence 'to avenge', whence avengeful and avenger, avengeress, on anl of the simple words; hence OF avengement, adopted by E;

OF-MF revengier (re-, L re-, back, again) has varr revenchier and esp revencher, soon usu revancher, OF to avenge, EF-F to revenge—hence the E 'to revenge', whence revengeable and revenge; MF-F revancher has derivative EF n revanche, whence the E n revenge, whence revengeful.

22. L uindicta, ML vindicta, in sense 'revenge', becomes It vendetta, adopted by E, in sense 'blood feud'.

23. Gr deiknunai (r deik-), to show—see para 1—has derivative deiktikos, serving to point out or show, demonstrative, whence the erudite E deictic. The cpd apodeiknunai (apo-, away from, from, of), to point out, has derivative apodeiktikos, whence E apodeictic, the derivative L apodicticus accounting for the var apodictic; the cpd epideiknunai, to show forth (cf the prefix epi-), has derivative epideiktikos, whence epideictic; and the cpd paradeiknunai, to show para or by the side of, esp as an example, aas derivative paradeigma, whence LL paradigma, an example (in grammar or in rhetoric), whence EF-F paradigme, whence E paradigm, a patterned or diagrammatic table of examples, with adj paradigmatic (Gr paradeigmatikos).

dictionary; dictionary. See prec, para 4.

dictum. See DICT, para 1.

didactic (whence didactician and didacticism): Gr didaktikos, from didaskein, to teach: f.a.e., DOCTILE.

diddle, to cheat or hoax, is prob a b/f from Jeremy Diddler, a resourceful sponger in James Kenney's Raising the Wind, 1803; and Diddler prob derives from E dial diddle, 'to busy oneself with trifles' (EDD), prob akin to the app echoic E dial diddle, to jog up and down, to dance about, a thinned form of daddle (to totter, to toddle), q.v. at DAWDLE.

die (1), n; pl dies—but, as cubes employed in gambling, dice.

A die or gambling cube, later a shaping tool, the mould used, a perforated block, etc., derives from ME dee: OF de (F dé), a gambling die: L datum, a piece or 'man' in games, prop the neu of datus, pp of dare, to give, to cast or throw: f.a.e., DATA.

die (2), v. See DEAD, para 3.

Diesel is elliptical for Diesel engine, invented in 1900 by Rudolf Diesel (1858–1913) of Munich.

diet (1), n whence v; dietary, adj hence n; dietetic, adj whence n dietetics; dietician (loosely dietetian).

The last = diet, n + physician; the 3rd comes from LL diaeteticus, trln of Gr diatētikos, adj of diaita, manner of living; the 2nd from LL diatētarius (adj used as n), a house-steward; and diet from Gr diaita, through L diaeta, MF diète (F diète), ME diète. Gr diaita is app a di- (for dia, through) prefix-cpd from aisa (αἴσα), a god's dispensation, a share—esp at a meal; aisa is akin to Gr oitos (οἶτος), lot, luck: cf the Av aēta, the lot that befalls: IE oitos*, a share (Boisacq).

diet (2), (obs) a day's journey, (Sc) a sessions day, (general and extant) a formal, esp governing, assembly: ML diēta, a day's journey: an -eta derivative of diēs, a day: f.a.e., DIANA, para 6.

differ; difference, different, with negg indifference, indifferent; differential; differentiate (whence differentiator), differentiation;—defer, to delay, postpone, whence, by suffix -ment, deferment.

1. The last derives from ME differen, to delay, from MF differer, this being also the imm origin of 'to differ': L differre, to carry (ferre) from one side or another, to disperse, (by a time extension) to put aside (di- for dis-) for later, to postpone, and, as se differre, to carry oneself from one side or another, hence to be different: f.a.e. ferre, see FERTILE.

2. The presp differens has o/s different-, whence E different (and MF-F différent); on that o/s differen- was coined differentia, whence OF-MF différence, adopted by E, whence both 'to difference' and the adj (hence n) differential, prob suggested by It differenziale (cf Sp diferencial); 'to differentiate' recalls It differenziato, pp of differenziare; differentiation recalls It differenziazione (from the v).

difficult, app a b/f of difficulty, was perh suggested by EF-F difficultueux, the adj of MF-F difficulté, whence E difficulty; and difficulté comes from L difficultās, o/s difficultāt-, the n of difficilis (di-, for dis-, apart, not), the opp of facilis: f.a.e., FACILE.

diffidence, diffident. See FAITH.

diffraction. See FRACTION.

diffuse (adj and v), diffusion. See FUSE, to melt.

dig (pt and pp dug or digged), whence n dig and agent digger and vn digging(s); dike or dyke; ditch, n and v (whence ditcher); vandyke (beard).

'To dig' comes, through ME diggen, from MF diguer, to excavate, from MF digue, earlier dike, from MD dijc (D dijk), akin to OFris dika, to dig, and dik, a dike, itself akin to the syn ON diki and esp OE dīc, ME dīc, var dike, adopted by E, with var dyke; ME has the further var dich, whence E ditch; all these E words have cognates in OLG, MLG, MHG—perh (Walshe) cf also the Gr tiphos, stagnant water. A vandyke (pointed, very trim) is elliptical for Vandyke beard, characteristic of men painted by Vandyke, better Van Dyck, '(He) of the dyke'.

The Australian voc digger and the PN Digger come from the gold-diggers of the 1850's-60's; the Californian gold-diggers have originated gold-digger, a mercenary female.

digest, n and v; digestible; digestion, digestive. See GERUND, para 10.

Digger, digger. See DIG, s.f.

digit. See DICT, para 5, s.f.

digit, digital, digitate. See DICT, para 3. The drug digitalis derives from Digitales, a genus of herbs with flowers having a finger-shaped (L digitalis) corolla.

dignified, dignitary, dignity. See DECENCY, para 4.

digraph is a double (di-) writing (graph): two letters, usu vowels, with one sound.

digress, digression, digressive. See GRADE, para 10.

dihedral, adj hence n, is lit 'two (di-) seated' (Gr hedra, a seat)—cf cathedral at CHAIR.

dike. See DIG.

dilaceration. See LACERATE.

dilapidate, dilapidation. See LAPIDARY, para 3.

dilatant, dilatation, dilate, dilation, dilator. See LATERAL, para 4.

dilatory. See the 1st TOLL, para 6.

dilemma, adopted from LL, comes from Gr dilemma, a double (di-) lēmma or assumption, hence, in logic, an ambiguous proposition; Gr lēmma, (lit) anything received, derives from the r of lambanein, to take, akin to Skt lambhate, he takes. The adj dilemmatic is formed anl (-atic, -ic) from the Gr gen dilemmatos.

dilettante. See DELICACY, para 8, s.f.

diligence, diligent. See LEGEND, para 7.

dilly, a tree. See SAPODILLA.

dilly(-)bag. See DITTY BAG, s.f.

dilly-dally. See DALLIANCE, para 2.

dilute, dilution; diluvial, diluvium; also diluent. See LAVA, para 9.

dim, adj hence v (whence the n dimmer); dimness.

The latter derives from OE dimnes (with -nes cf -ness), itself from OE dim, var dimme, whence E dim: akin to OFris dim, dim, ON dimmr, dim, sombre, dark, OHG timber, sombre—perh also the ten- of L tenebrae, darkness, the them- of Gr themeros, august, and the dam- of G dämmerung, twilight (cf OHG demar, darkness).

dim. See DECEMBER, para 3.

dimension. See MEASURE, para 7.

diminish (whence pa diminished), with -ment derivative diminishment; diminuendo; diminution, diminutive (adj hence n).

1. 'To diminish' blends the now obsol minish and the obs diminue, from MF-F diminuer, from L diminuere, earlier and better dēminuere (dē, down from +minuere, to lessen); minish has passed through OF and ML from L minūtus, very small, orig the pp of minuere: cf MINUTE, small, and, f.a.e., MINOR.

2. Diminūt-, s of diminūtus (earlier dēminūtus), pp of diminuere, accounts both for L diminutiō (earlier dē-), o/s diminutiōn-, whence, via MF-FL, diminution, and for diminūtius (earlier dē-), ML -ivus, whence—prob via MF-F diminutif, f -ive—the E adj diminutive.

3. In It, L diminuere remains unchanged; its gerund diminuendo, with diminishing volume, has been adopted by music.

dimity, a corded cotton fabric: It dimiti, pl of dimito: Gr dimitos, double-threaded, hence, as n, dimity: di-, twice+mitos, a warp-thread, s mit-, prob akin to Hit mitis, thread, string (Hofmann).

dimmer, n. See DIM.

dimorphic, dimorphism, dimorphous. See MOR-PHEUS, para 3.

dimple, n (whence dimply: -y, adj), hence v (whence pa dimpled): ME dympull, prob akin to MHG tümpfel, G Tümpel, pool, OHG tumphilo, whirlpool, and, if that be so, perh also to E DIP, dimples being likened to ripples.

din, v, derives from OE dynnan, var of dynian, itself prob from—certainly very intimately related to—OE dyn, dyne, (as still) a loud, confused, discordant noise: with the OE v, cf the syn ON dynja, OS dunian, MHG tünen, also Skt dhuni, roaring (cf dhundayati, it roars): ult echoic.

2. 'To dun' a debtor may be a 'thickened' var of 'to din': to din it into his ears that he owes this money.

dine (whence diner and dining) and dinner; déjeuner; jeune.

1. Dinner, ME diner, represents the OF-MF disner (F diner), to dine, used as n: and disner—whence ME dinen, whence 'to dine'—orig means 'to breakfast', hence the speculative derivation from VL disiēiünäre*, disjējünäre*, to break one's fast: dis-, apart, connoting cessation + L iēiünäre, to fast, itself from the adj iēiünus, ML jējünus, fasting, hence hungry, hence dry, thin, weak, whence the E jeune. iēiünus is prob akin to L ientäre (s ient-), with redup var ieientäre (s ieient-), to make one's first meal of the day: iē-, ML jē-, therefore, merely constitutes an int-by-redup: ient- remains o.o.o.

2. From VL disiēiünäre*, disjējünäre, later disjünäre*, comes OF-F desjeuner, to breakfast, whence F déjeuner, used also as n, orig breakfast, now lunch (breakfast being le petit déjeuner). According to the disjējünäre* theory, F déjeuner and diner are doublets. But, whatever the origin of déjeuner, diner or rather OF-MF disner (whence both 'to dine' and dinner) may rather come from the C r dei*, to be luminous, whence dites*, contr to dies*, whence Br deiz, day, perh even the L diēs (cf DIANA, para 6). 'By a shortening to dis, we have diner, for the old disner, to take the meal of the day, of midday, disner coming from an earlier derivative disnos* or disna*, but not from the VL disjünäre* for L disjējünäre, given by Darmesteter.' Malvezin's theory is not to be lightly dismissed. (He does not deny the disjējünäre-déjeuner etymology.) ding, to strike or hurl. See DINT.

ding-dong: no less imitative than (say) the L tintinnabulum, a bell.

dinghy: Bengalese dingi, dim of dinga, a boat: ? from Skt dru, wood (cf the Gr drus, s dru-, the oak).

dingo (Aus) is DUNG an aboriginal word.

dingy. See DUNG.

dinner. See DINE.

Dinornis and dinosaur. See the element dino- and cf DIRE; for the latter, cf also SAURIA, para 2.

dint, n hence v, with var dent; ding, to strike or hurl.

Dint, n, derives from ME dint, var of dunt (retained in Sc), from OE dynt, akin to syn ON dynttr, var dyttr; to Lith dundėti, to knock, and to Alb gdhende, to beat: ult echoic. 'To ding' comes, through ME dingen, var of dengen, from ON dengja, to beat or hammer, akin to OHG tangol, a hammer, OHG tingan*, to strike, G dengeln, to beat or hammer. (Klugen.)

diocesan, diocese.

Diocesan represents MF-F diocésain, adj of OF-F diocèse, which, like E diocese (ME diocise), derives from OF diocise: L diocēsis: Gr diokēsis, housekeeping, hence administration, hence a province, LGr a diocese; from diokēin, to keep house: dia, through, thoroughly + oikein, to keep house: from oikos, a house: f.a.e., ECONOMY.

diorama. See the element -orama.

dip, v (hence n), whence dipper.

1. 'To dip' comes, through ME dippen, var of duppen, from OE dyppan, akin to syn ON deypa and to OFris dēpa, Go daupjan, OS dōpian, to baptize.

2. The last two are akin to MD dopen, D doopen, to dip, whence the n doop, a dipping, a sauce, any viscous liquid, whence the E dope, whence 'to dope', to treat with dope (in any of its senses).

3. Cf also DEEP and DIVE.—The IE r is dheub-*. diphtheria, Sci L: F diphthérie: Gr diphthera (var dipsara), a prepared hide or a piece of leather, used by F for a membrane: akin to Gr depsein, to tan, orig, as also the basic var dephein, to soften by kneading, itself o.o.o.

diphthong. See PHONE, para 5.

diploma; diplomacy, diplomat, diplomatic, diplomatist.

Adopted from L, diploma is simply the Gr diplōma, a paper folded double, from diploon, to double, from diploos, twofold, var diplosios: f.a.e., DOUBLE. L diploma has (modern) adj diplomaticus, whence F diplomatique, whence E diplomatic; by b/f, diplomatique yields diplomate, whence E diplomat; diplomate has derivatives diplomatie, whence E diplomacy (-cy), and diplomatiste, a student of diplomatics, whence the needless E diplomatist, a diplomat.

dipper. See DIP.

dipsomania, dipsomaniac. See MIND, para 4.

dire: L dirus, of bad augury, sinister, hateful, s dir-, perh akin to the s dein- of Gr deinos, terrible, and to Skt dvēsī, he hates—cf also Gr deidō (s deid-, r dei-), I fear.

direct; direction (whence directional), directive, director (whence directorate, directional, directorship), directory. See REX, para 28.

direption. See RAPT, para 11.

dirge. See REX, para 29.

dirigent, dirigible. See REX, para 28.

dirt, whence dirty, adj (whence the v): by metaphor from ME drit, from ON drit, excrement, from the v drita, akin to OFris drita, OE dritan, to MLG dret, n, and driten, v, cf OHG trizan, to MD drite, n, and D dryten, v, and to several Sl vv. (Holthausen).

disable (whence the pa disabled), disability. See HABIT, para 5.

disabuse. See USE, para 9. disadvantage, disadvantageous. See ADVANTAGE, para 2.

disaffect, -ed, -ion: dis- anl formations from AFFECT, etc.

disagree, disagreeable, disagreement: resp OF-F désagrèer, MF-F désagréable, EF-F désagrément: des- (L dis-) derivatives from agrèer, agréable, agrément: cf AGREE.

disallow—whence (after allow-allowance) disallowance—comes from MF-EF desalouer, to disapprove. Cf ALLOW.

disappear (prefix dis-), whence disappearance (-ance), derives from APPEAR.

disappoint, disappointment. See PUNGENT, para 22.

disapprobation, disapprove (whence disapproval). See PROVE, para 7.

disarm, whence, after armament, disarmament. See ARMS, para 2.

disarray. See ARRAY, para 3.

disaster, disastrous. See STAR, para 8.

disavow (whence disavowal: -al, n): MF-F désavouer: cf AVOW.

disband (whence disbandment: suffix -ment): EF (se) desbander: des- for L dis-, apart + bande (see BAND), a company + inf -er.

disbar, to expel from the Bar; debar, to prevent, as with a bar: OF-MF desbarer; its derivative débarrer: des-, L dis-, apart + OF-F barre, q.v. at BAR.

disbelief, disbelieve, are merely the dis- (not) 'answers' to belief, believe.

disburse, disbursement. See PURSE, para 2.

disc. See DISH.

discard. See the 2nd CARD, para 9.

discern, discernible, discernment.

The 3rd, if not from EF-F discernement, comes straight from the 1st, which represents MF-F discerner, L discernere, to distinguish (cernere) apart (dis-), to make out with the eye: f.a.e., CERTAIN; cf DISCREET. Discernible comes perh via F discernable from LL discernibilis.

discharge. See CAR, para 4.

disciple; discipline, disciplinarian, disciplinary.

Disciple, adopted by ME from OF-F, derives—like OE discipul—from L discipulus, itself from discere (s disc-), to learn, akin to docere (s doc-), to teach, q.v. at DOCILE. Discipulus has derivative disciplina, education, military education and training, discipline, whence, via OF-F, the E discipline. Disciplina has derivatives LL disciplināre, to teach or train, whence 'to discipline', with derivative disciplinābilis, whence disciplinable; ML disciplinārius, whence, with -an substituted for -ous, the adj disciplinarian, whence the n, and, directly (cf the F disciplinaire), disciplinary.

disclaim, disclaimer; disclamation. See CLAIM, para 10.

disclose, disclosure. See CLOSE, para 6.

discoid. See DISH.

disconsolate. See SOLACE.

discontent. See CONTAIN, para 7.

discontinuance, discontinue, discontinuity. See CONTINUAL, para 1.

discord, discordance, discordant.

The 3rd comes from OF-MF descordant (whence OF-MF descordance, whence EF-F and E discordance), presp of descorder (whence obsol E 'to discord'), from L discordāre, from the adj discors, o/s discord: dis-, apart + cord-, o/s of cor, heart (f.a.e., CORDIAL) + inf -āre; the OF-MF descorder has the derivative OF-MF n descort, MF-EF descorde, EF-F discorde, the latter adapted by E. discount, n, comes from EF descompte, itself from MF descmptre, from which, in its var desconter, comes 'to discount': cf the 2nd COUNT.

discourtenance: EF descontenancer: des-, L dis- + contentance (cf countenance at CONTAIN) + inf -er.

discourage, discouragement. See CORDIAL, para 5.

discourse. See COURSE, para 3.

discourteous, discourtesy: opp courteous, courtesy, qq.v at COURT.

discover, discovery. See COVER, para 2.

discredit, discreditable. See CREDENCE, para 7.

discreet, discrete, discretion.

Whereas discrete, clearly separate, derives straight from L discrētus, discreet passes through OF-F discret; discretion, adopted from OF-MF, comes from L discrētiō (o/s discrētiōn-), separation, discernment, from discrēt-, the s of discrētus, the pp of discernere, q.v. at DISCERN. Indiscreet, indiscretion derive from MF-F indiscret, indiscrēt.

discrepancy, discrepant.

The former, perh adapted from MF-EF discrepance, comes from L discrepantia, formed from discrepant- (whence the E adj discrepant), the o/s of discrepanis, presp of discrepare, to sound out of tune: dis- + crepare (s crep-), to rattle (cf CREAK).

discrete; discretion. See DISCREET.

discriminant (adj hence n); discriminate (adj and v), discrimination, discriminator, discriminative and discriminatory.

The last two are E anl formations (-ive, -ory, adj) from 'to discriminate', which, like the adj discriminate, derives from the pp (LL adj) discriminātus of discrimināre, to distinguish, from discrimen, a sifting-out, division, distinction, from discernere, q.v. at DISCERN. The presp discriminans has o/s discriminant-, whence the E adj discriminant. On L discrimināt-, s of discriminātus, arose both the LL discriminātiō, o/s discriminātiōn-, whence E discrimination, and LL discriminātor, adopted by E. Indiscriminate=in-, not+discriminate, adj.

disculpate (whence, by anl, disculpation): ML disculpātus, pp of disculpāre, to excuse (connoted by dis-) from culpa or blame: f.a.e., CULPABLE.

discursive, discursus. See COURSE, para 10 (at discurrere).

discus. See DISH.

discuss, discussion, discussive.

The 3rd is an E -ive formation from 'to discuss', itself from L discussus, pp of discutere, to strike (quaterē, also to shake) apart (dis-), in LL to discuss: for quaterē, see QUASH. Derivative discussiō, o/s discussiōn-, becomes OF-F, whence E discussion.

disdain, disdainful. See DECENCY, para 7.

disease, n and v (whence pa diseased). See EASE.

disembark. See the 3rd BARK, para 3. disguise. See GUISE in ADDENDA TO DICTIONARY.

disgust. See GUST, para 3.

disk (n hence v); disk; disc, discus, discoid; desk; dais.

1. Dish comes from OE disc, a plate, from L discus, dish, disk, quoit (sense adopted by E), whence both disc and disk: and L discus represents Gr diskos (s disk-), platter, quoit, from dikein (s dik-), to throw, IE r dik-*, to throw. Diskos has derivative diskoeidēs, quoit-like (or -shaped), whence E discoid.

2. L discus, with LI sense 'table', becomes It desco (cf OProv desc), table, board, desk, whence ML desca, whence ME deske, E desk.

3. L discus also becomes OF-MF deis, table (EF-F dais, canopy), whence ME dets, table, (later) dais, whence E dais.

divest. See VEST, para 3.

divide (v hence n), whence divider; dividend; divisible (indivisible), division, divisor.—individual (adj hence n), individualism, individualist, individuality, individualize.

1. The last four terms derive from the adj individual, yet owe something to the corresp F terms. Individual (cf the EF-F individuel) comes from ML individuālis, an -ālis (E -al) mdfn of L indivīduus (ML -viduus), indivisible: in-, not+ divīduus, divisible, from dividere, ML -videre, to separate, disjoin, to divide, itself app di- for dis-, apart+ uidere*, to deprive, perh akin to uiduus (ML viduus), deprived, hence as n, uiduus, a widower, and uidua, a widow (f.a.e.: WIDOW).

2. The ML dividere becomes ME dividen (var de-), whence 'to divide'. Derivative dividendum (L diui-), something to be divided, yields, perh via EF-F dividende, the E dividend.

3. On diūs-, ML divis-, s of pp diuisus, ML divisus, arise diūsiō, o/s diūsiōn-, ML divisiōn-, whence, via OF-F, the E division; LL diuisibilis, ML divi-, yields MF-F, whence E, divisible, the neg indivisible deriving from the ML form of LL indivisibilis; L divisor, ML divisor, is adopted by E.

divination; divine (adj, n, v); divinity. See DIANA, para 1.

divisible, division, divisor. See DIVIDE, para 3.

divorce, divorcée.

'To divorce' comes from MF divorcer; divorcée, adj used as n, is the f of the F pp divorcé. MF-F divorcer derives from MF-F divorce, adopted by E: ML divortium, L diuortium, from diuoriere, var of diuertere, to turn (uertere) apart (di- for dis-), to divert, to divorce: f.a.e., VERSATILE.

divulgate, divulgation, divulge, divulgence. See VULGAR.

divulse, divulsion. See VELLICATE, para 6.

diwan. See DIVAN.

dixey, dixie, dixy: Hind degci (var degcā), a pot or kettle, prob lit 'receptacle'—cf Gr dekamai (s dek-), Att dekhomai (s dekh-), I receive, with IE r dek-*. dizen. See STAFF, para 3.

dizziness, dizzy.

The former derives from OE dysigness (suffix -ness), folly, itself from OE dysig, foolish, whence ME dusi, disi, foolish, whence dizzy, giddy: akin to OFris dusia, to be or feel dizzy, OHG dusig, tusig, MHG dusec, foolish, LG duselig, silly, MD duiselen, duselen, D duizelen, to be or become dizzy; akin also to OE dwāes, foolish, and to G Tor, a fool, MHG tōre, fool, deaf person; Gmc r dus-, var dauz. (Walshe.)

do, pt did, pp done, presp doing used also as vn; undo; deed—indeed; doff, don, dup.

1. 'To undo' comes from OE undōn (un+ dōn, to do, put). Doff=do off, do—put—off; don=do on, do—put—on, complementary to doff; and the now dial dup=do up, put up (the latch), i.e. to open.

2. The adv indeed=in deed, in (proved) fact: and deed comes from OE dēd, dāēd (cf OFris dēd, dāde, OS dād, OHG tāt, ON dāth), intimately akin to OE dōn, to perform, (often narrowed to) to place or put, whence, through ME don, later do, the E 'to do': cf to-do, fuss, from 'something to do', to be done, and ado, contr of ME (N form) at do, to do, '(something) to be done', and, sem, affair (F à faire).

3. OE dōn is akin to OFris dūa, to do, to make, OS duan, MD doen (extant), doon, donne, don, duen, OHG-MHG tuon, G tun, to do, and, less closely, OSl dēti, to put or place, Lith dėti, to lay eggs, Gr tithēmi, Skt dādhami, I place, set, establish, L fēci (fē- for dhē-*), I have made, Skt dai- or te-, to place or put, Tokh A tā-, to lay; IE r dhē-*, to put, place, set, lay. Cf the sep epithet and theme.

Dobbin. See ROBERT, para 4.

docile, docility; doctor (n hence v), doctoral, doctorate; doctrine, doctrinal, doctrinaire—indoctrinate, indoctrination; document (n hence v), documentary (adj hence n), documentation; sep didactic, disciple, discipline.

1. Docility has come, via late MF-F docilité, from

L docilitās, acc docilitātem, from docilis, teachable, willing to be taught—whence, via late MF-F, the E docile—itself from docēre (s doc-), to teach, akin to L discere (s disc-), to learn, and Gr didaskēin (s didask-, redup of r dask-*), to teach, and perh Gr dokēō (s dok-), I believe; IE r, dek-, with varr dak- and esp dok-*.

2. Docēre has pp doctus (used also as adj for 'erudite'), with s doct-, upon which arise:

doctor, a teacher, hence a learned person, esp in medicine—adopted by E, with derivative adj doctoral (-al); derivative ML doctorātus (gen -ūs) yields E doctorate and EF-F doctorat; doctrina (perh imm from doctor), whence, via OF-F, the E doctrine; the derivative LL adj doctrinālis yields OF-F, whence E, doctrinal; OF-F doctrine has MF-F adj doctrinaire, adopted by E as adj (merely theoretical, yet dogmatic) and n; 'to indoctrinate' and indoctrination derive resp from in-, used int+ML doctrināre, to teach or instruct (itself from doctrina), and from int in-+ derivative doctrinātiō, o/s doctrinātiōn-, the former perh suggested by OF-F endoctrināre;

OL documen, whence L documentum, a teaching or lesson, whence OF-F document, used in modern sense only since ca 1800 and duly adopted by E; derivative F documentaire becomes E documentary; derivative LL documentāre, to warn, has subsidiary ML documentātiō (o/s documentātiōn-), a warning, form-adopted in E and F documentation but, in the modern sense, reasonably derivable from E and F document.

dock (1), a weed: OE docce, akin to G Docken-blatter (G Blatt, OHG blat, a leaf), and prob to: dock (2), the stump or solid part of an animal's tail: ME dok, akin to OFris dōk, a bundle, and MLG docke. Hence 'to dock', to curtail.

dock (3), a natural, then an artificial, inlet or hollow for receiving vessels under repair: MD (and MLG) docke, Sw docka (1698): ? from a late VL ductia*, from dūcere, to lead, as Kluge proposes. Hence, of a ship, vi and vt 'to dock', whence docker.

dock (4), in law-court: Flem dok or docke, an enclosure, cage, hutch: ? akin to prec.

docket, n hence v, is often declared to be o.o.o.; EW, however, derives it, via the earlier doggette, a summary, an abridgement, from Elt doghetta, (Her) bendlet, a dim of doga, a cask-stave (o.o.o.o.). doctor, doctorate. See DOCILE, para 2.

doctrinaire, doctrinal, doctrine. See DOCILE, para 2 at doctrina.

document, -ary, -ation. See DOCILE, para 2 at documen.

dodder (leafless, yellow-stemmed, parasitic plant): ME doder: akin to MLG doder or dodder, MHG toter (OHG totoro), G Dotter, yolk of egg: perh akin to E dot (1).

dodge, v (whence dodger) hence n (whence dodgy, evasive, tricky, whence sl 'dangerous'): perh (EW) akin to MHG tucken, G ducken (obs docken), to duck (down), to bow, to dodge, (obs a freq of tauchen, to dive: cf therefore DUCK.

dodo: Port dadó, doudo, (a) silly (bird), cf the Sp dido: a heavy, flightless, now extinct bird, hence a person blissfully and entirely unaware of change in the world about him.

doe: ME dou, do: OE dā, perh of C origin: cf OIr dam, ox, Cor da, fallow deer; cf also Gr damalēs, young steer, and damalis, damalē, heifer; perh ult akin to L domō, Gr damāō, I subdue, E TAME, the C r being dom-*, to tame.

doff. See DO, para 1.

dog (n hence v and the adj doggy): late OE dogca: o.o.o., but prob echoic: cf the cant bufe and buffer (Sc cant bugher) and the mastiff's woof! woof! 'To lie doggo': from a dog pretending to be asleep, with familiar suffix -o. The adj dogged refers to bulldogs and mastiffs.

doge. See DUKE, para 3. doggerel: ME dogerel: prob, as EW suggests with several convincing parallels in G, D, Prov, E itself, from L doga, a cask-stave.

doggo. See DOG.

doggone (it!): AE euphem for God damn (it)!

dogie (AE), motherless calf in a range herd, (esp of cattle) an inferior animal: o.o.o.: perh a blend of dobie (later-recorded in this sense)+doggie, pet-form of DOG.

dogma, dogmatic (whence the n dogmatics—cf apologetics from apologetic), dogmatism, dogmatist, dogmatize; doxology, paradox, orthodox and heterodox, orthodoxy, heterodoxy.

1. Dogma, adopted from L, is the Gr dogma (o/s dogmat-), from dokein, to believe (dokei, it seems), with s dok-, IE r dek-*, as in L decet, it seems good or is fitting, becoming. The Gr adj dogmatikos becomes LL dogmaticus, whence E dogmatic; derivative Gr dogmatismos, LL dogmatismus, becomes E dogmatism; Gr dogmatistēs, LL dogmatistes, becomes dogmatist; Gr dogmatizein becomes LL dogmatizāre, whence MF-F dogmatiser and E dogmatize.

2. Gr dokein has the further derivative n doxa (for doksa*), opinion, praise, glory, with cpd adj doxologos (cf LOGIC), praising (esp, in L Gr, God), whence the n doxologia, adopted by ML, whence E doxology.

3. From doxa derive the cpd adj heterodoxos, of another (heteros) opinion, esp in religion, whence E heterodox, whence—after orthodoxy—heterodoxy; and orthodoxos, of right (orthos) or true opinion, whence LL orthodoxus, whence E orthodox, Gr derivative orthodoxia yielding orthodoxy; and paradoxos, contrary-thinking, with neu paradoxon used as n, whence (late MF-F paradoxe, hence prob) E paradox, with adj paradoxal (L paradoxus: -al substituted for -ous) and paradoxical (-ical).

dolly: Dolly, a C17 draper in the Strand, London. (Prob anglicized from F surname Doillet.)

doit. See WHITTLE, para 3.

doldrums. See DULL.

dole, a share. See 1st DEAL, para 2.

dole (2), grief (obs), whence doleful. Cf condole; see DOLOR.

Doll, whence doll; Dolly, whence dolly.

Doll is a pet-form of Dorothea, the E shape of Dorothea, from L Gr Dōrothea, gift (dōron) of God (Theos: cf THEISM). Dolly is a further familiarization, prop a dim, of Doll; its adj is dolly.

dollar. See DALE, para 2.

dolmen; menhir. Dolmen, adopted from F, consists of Br tol, var of taol, a table+men, var of mean or maen, a stone; menhir, likewise adopted from F, consists of Br men+hir, long; and these etymologies truly describe.

dolor (AE) or dolour; dolorous; Dolores.—dole, grief, whence doleful; condole, condolence.

1. Dolo(u)r derives from OF-MF dolor, varr dolour, dolur, from L dolor, pain, grief, from dolēre, to suffer; the derivative LL adj dolorōsus yields dolorous. Dolēre becomes E 'to dole', now dial; the n dole comes from MF-F dol, itself, via VL dolus, from L dolēre. Dolores derives from Sp Maria de los Dolores (as in L, the pl of dolor), Mary of the Sorrows.

2. Dolēre has the LL cpd condolēre, to suffer, hence to grieve, with (con), whence 'to condole', whence—cf the late MF-F condolēance—condolence.

dolphin. See DELPHINIUM, para 2.

dolt, whence doltish (-ish, adj), perh derives from ME dold, var dult, pp of dullen, to DULL.

Dom (title: cf Dan and Don). See DOMESTIC, para 6.

dome. See para 1 of DOMESTIC.

Domesday Book. See DOOM, para 1, s.f.

domestic, domesticate, domesticity; dome; domicile, domiciliary; domain, demesne; dominant, dominate, domination—whence predominant, predominate, predomination; domineer; dominical, Dominican, dominie, domino, Dominus; dominion (and condominium); Dom, Don, Dan; Domina, Donna, Dona, dame; sep dam; sep demoiselle (and mademoiselle), damozel, damsel—madame, madam, Madonna; sep danger (endanger), dangerous; sep daunt, dauntless; perh cf indomitable, q.v. at TAME; certainly cf DESPOT.

1. Dome comes from L domus (s dom-), a house; the IE r is app dem-, with varr dam- and dom-*; cf Gr domos and Skt dāmas, house, and perh Gr demein (s dem-), to build; cf also Gr despotēs (for demsopotēs).

2. L domus has adj domesticus (cf rusticus from rus), whence MF-F domestique and, perh via F, the E domestic; derivative LL domesticitās yields domesticity (cf the late EF-F domesticité); the domesticus-derivative ML domesticāre, to reside in, has pp domesticātus, whence 'to domesticate', whence domestication.

3. Domus has mdfn domicilium ('more abstract than domus': E & M)—whence MF-F, hence E, domicile, whence, perh prompted by EF-F domicilier, 'to domicile'; the derivative ML adj domiciliārius yields both domiciliar and domiciliary.

4. The master of the domus or house is naturally dominus; the mistress, domina. LL Dominus is the Lord God: the lord. The voc domine becomes Sc and E dominie, schoolmaster, and the dat or abl domino becomes the F, hence E, domino, a kind of monastic hood, hence a hooded masquerade costume with a small mask, hence a small mask, hence a piece in the game of dominoes, perh ref the black spots. The adj dominicus leads to the PN Dominic; its LL extn dominicālis produces dominical, the further extn ML Dominicānus, from Dominicus the founder, explains the adj hence n Dominican.

5. On the s domin- arise also:
domināri, to be master of, to dominate, with presp dominans, o/s dominant-, whence—perh via OF-F—the E dominant, adj hence, esp in Mus, n; hence dominance, as if from dominantia*; its pp dominātus, s domināt-, yields 'to dominate'; the derivative dominātiō, o/s dominātiōn-, yields—perh via OF—the E domination;

domināri becomes OF-F dominer becomes D dominieren, whence 'to domineer'; dominium, right of property (orig the master's), survives in Law; cf its modern cpd condominium, joint rights over a territory; in ML, dominium becomes dominiō, o/s dominiōn-, whence, prob via F, the E dominion; L dominium, however, becomes MF-F domaine, whence E domain—contrast demesne, adopted from AF (s silent) demesne, for OF-MF demeine, from L domicus (as in para 4), —but both of these F words were influenced by ML domānium.

6. L dominus becomes Sp don (whence, ult, the coll academic sense) and Port dom; domina becomes It donna, whence madonna, my lady, Madonna, Our Lady, and Sp doña and dueña (whence E duenna, orig the Queen of Spain's chief lady-in-waiting). In OF-MF, dominus takes the form danz (nom) or dan (acc), adopted by ME, the latter form surviving in archaic Dan (Chaucer).

domicile. See prec, para 3.

dominate, domination, etc. See DOMESTIC, para 5.

dominie. See DOMESTIC, para 4.

don, v. See DO, para 1; cf ON, para 2.

donate, donation, donative, donator, donatory; condonation, condone; pardon (n and v), pardonable, pardoner.

1. L dare, to give, do, I give (cf DATA), has derivative donum (s don-), a gift, whence donāre (s don-), to make a gift of, with pp donātus, whence 'to donate'. On the pps donāt- arise:

donātiō, a giving, o/s donātiōn-, whence, prob via MF-F, the E donation; donātīvus, adj, ML -ivus, whence the E adj donative; hence the LL n donātium, ML -ivum, whence the E n donative; donātor (-or), adopted by E, becomes also the MF doneor, whence E donor;

ML donātōrius, adj, whence the E legal n donatory.

2. The cpd condonāre (int con-, lit 'together'), to give up or remit (e.g., a sin), to forgive, yields 'to condone'; derivative condonātiō, o/s condonātiōn-, yields condonation.

3. LL perdonāre (int per-, lit 'through') becomes OF-MF pardonere, whence 'to pardon'; the OF-F n pardon (from pardonere) is adopted by E; pardonable derives either from 'to pardon' or from OF-F pardonnable; MF pardonier (from pardonere) yields the medieval pardoner.

donjon. See DUNG.

Don Juan. See JOHN, para 1.

donkey: ? dun (-coloured)+dim -key (cf monkey); ? a nickname (Dominic or Duncan) like the syn cuddy, dicky, neddy. (EW.) Unrecorded before Grose, 1785, it might possibly derive from that egregious ass, Don Quixote, Cervantes's book having appeared in Shelton's translation in 1612–20, revised by John Stevens in 1700; in Motteux's (1710–12), 8th edition, 1749, and revised by Ozell, 1766; in Jarvis's, 1742, 4th edition, 1766, and in Smollett's in 1755, 5th edition, 1782. Don Quixote was, in short, familiar to the C18.

donna (whence the Aus sl donah). See DOMESTIC, para 6.

donor. See DONATE, para 1.

doom, n hence v; doomsday—Doomsday, or Domesday Book; deem, deemster and dempster.

1. The ancestral OE dōm, a law or decree, hence justice, a verdict, is akin to OFris (and OS) dōm, Go dōms, OHG tuom, ON dōmr, and perh to Gr themis, law, s them-, itself perh akin, ult, to histēmi, I set upright, L stāre, to stand, with IE r sta-*, to stand; others, however, relate OE dōm to OE dōn, to do. The OE dōmes daeg, day of judgement, yields doomsday, as in Doomsday Book, with var Domesday Book.

2. Intimately akin to OE dōm is OE dēman, whence ME demen, to judge, hence often to condemn, whence 'to deem', in the same senses (now obs), hence to have an opinion about, to believe or to suppose. ME demen, s dem-, has a -ster derivative demester, whence deemster, a judge, the var dempster deriving from the ME var demster (later dempster): cf the now rare EE var doomster.

doon, var of the n dun: see TOWN.

door; indoors, outdoors, with derivative adjj in -door.

Indoors=in (sense of within) doors, inside the house; outdoors=out (in archaic sense of out of) doors, outside the house. Door itself comes, through ME dore (var dure), from OE dor (var duru): akin to OFris dore, var dure, OS dora, var duru, OHG turi, MHG tür, G Tür or Türe (intimately akin to G Tor, MHG-OHG tor, gate, cf the syn Go dair), ON dyrr; akin also to OSI dvlri, Lith dūrys—to OIr dorus, Br and W dor (from dora*), C r dor*—to L foris (f from dh), pl fores—to Gr thura—to Skt dvār, pl dvāres; IE r, dhur-, with var dhwer-. Cf FOREIGN (where also forensic and forum).

dope, whence the adj dopey or dopy, lethargic. See DIP, para 2.

Doric: L Doricus; Gr Dōrikos, adj of Dōrios, a Doric Greek.

dormant, dormer, dormitive, dormitory (whence the coll dorm); dormouse.

1. The L dormire (s dorm-), to sleep, has r dor-, a var of IE r der-; the -m of dormire represents -em, a fundamental suffix connoting present time: akin to OSI dremati, Gr darthanein (formed upon the aorist edarthen, Homeric edrathon), to sleep, and Skt drāyati (Ve drāti), he sleeps.

2. On dormit-, the s of the pp dormitus, arise both the L dormitōrius, of or for sleeping, with neu dormitōrium used (LL-ML) as n, whence the E dormitory, and, by anl, the E formation dormitive (perh via F dormitif), soporific.

3. Dormire becomes OF dormir, with presp dormant, whence the E adj dormant; dormitōrium becomes OF dormeur, whence E dormer, orig a bedroom or a dormitory, then a bedroom window, then elliptically a dormer (window).

4. OF-F dormir has agent dormeur (C14), f dormouse, whence perh, by f/e, the E dormouse, which, however, could=F dormir+E mouse or, more prob, E dial dorm (from F dormir), to sleep or doze+mouse. Cf, sem, the syn MD slaepmuys or -muys.

dormy or dormie (in golf): ? F dormi, asleep, hence, in the game, safely asleep: pp of dormir, q.v. in para 3 of prec.

dorsal; does; cf the element dorsi-.

1. Dorsal comes, prob via MF-F, from L dorsālis, the adj of dorsum, the back, s dors-; perh for dōrsom*, short for dēuorsom*, var of dēuersom*, with prefix dē-, down+uers, as in uersus, pp of uertere, to turn, s uert-, r uer-* or wer*, to turn. Dorsum becomes OF-F dos, whence prob the sl doss, a bed, whence 'to doss'.

2. Also from OF dos comes MF-F dossier, a bundle of papers concerning a certain, usu suspect, person; so named from being described on the back.

3. 'To endorse or indorse' represents, the latter ML indorsāre, to put on (in) the back (dorsum), and the former a blend of the ML word+OF-F endossere (ME endossen), itself=en, in+dos, back+euphonic s+inf -er. Hence endorsement.

4. But parados is adopted from F: para-, against +dos, the back: the complement to parapet, which, likewise adopted from EF-F (whence so many E military terms, esp of fortification), comes from It parapetto: parare, to protect+petto, the breast (L pectus).

dory (fish): F doré, gilded, pp of OF-F dorer, itself from LL dēaurāre: int dē-+aurāre, to gild, from aurum, gold: f.a.e., AUREATE.

dose, n hence v (whence, in turn, dosage: suffix -age): late MF-F dose: ML dosta, adopted from Gr: lit 'action of giving (sc medicine)', from didonai, to give, redup of r don-*, to give (cf L donāre).

doss. See DORSAL, para 1, s.f.

dossier. See DORSAL, para 2.

dot (1), a small piece, a small point, whence the v 'to dot' and prob, as dim, dottle, residue of (tobacco and) ash in a pipe bowl: OE dot: akin to OE dyttan, to stop up, to plug; cf also OHG tutta, nipple, and D tot, knot.

dot (2), woman's marriage-portion, is adopted from MF-F: L dot-, o/s of dos, a gift, esp a dot: from do-, r of donum, itself from dare, to give: f.a.e., DATA.

dotage derives, by suffix -age, from 'to dote', to act foolishly, to be foolish, whence 'to dote (up)on': MĒ doten, var dotien, akin to MD doten, to doze, to become childish, and MHG tūzen, to be or keep still.

dottle. See the 1st DOT.

douane, douanier. See DIVAN, s.f.

double, adj (whence n) and v; doublet; doubloon. See PLY, para 23.

double-entendre. See TEND, para 12.

doubt (n and v), doubtful; redoubtable; dubitable (indubitable), dubiety, dubious.

1. Doubtful=doubt, n+-ful: and doubt, n, comes, via ME doute (var dute), from OF-F doute, itself from OF-F douter (OF var duter), 'to doubt, from L dubitāre; OF-F douter (duter) becomes ME douten (duten), whence 'to doubt'.

2. L dubitāre is a freq of the rare dubāre, to be in two minds, prob from an adj dubus* (duo, two+formative -b-+nom -us). Derivative dubitābilis and its neg indubitābilis yield E dubitable, indubitable.

3. Dubus*, of two minds, in doubt, survives in the L var dubius, whence dubium, doubt, with its own adj dubitōsus, whence E dubious; the derivative LL dubietās, o/s dubietāt-, leads to dubiety.

4. Redoubtable derives from ME redoubtable, adopted from OF-F; the OF word derives from OF-F redouter, var of redoubter, from ML redubitāre, to fear ('doubt back at'), a re- cpd of L dubitāre. The E redoubt, to dread, is obs.

douce; douceur. See DULCET.

douche, n (whence the v), adopted from EF-F, comes from syn It doccia, from docciare, to pour, from doccia, waterpipe, from doccione, conduit, from L ductiōn-, o/s of ductiō, a leading or conducting, from ductus, pp of ducere, to lead: f.a.e., DUKE.

dough (whence the adj doughy); duff, as in plum duff.

1. Both dough and duff come from ME dogh, from OE dāh, dāg, akin to OHG(-G) teig, Go daigs (cf deigan, to knead, to shape), ON deig: IE r, dheig-*, cf the Gr teikhos, a wall, thinganein, to handle (s thingan-; r thing-, with n infix), and Skt dehmi, I smear, and L fungere (with n infix), to form. Cf therefore FEIGN.

2. The coll doughboy, an A infantryman, combines dough+boy: he formerly had to eat so much doughy food.

doughty: ME douhhti, dohti, duhti: late OE dohtig, earlier dyhtig, akin to MHG tühtec, G tüchtig, fit, capable; also to OE dugan, OFris duga, OHG rugan (G taugen), Go dugan, ON duga, to be of use—fit, strong—capable, and app also to Gr teukhein (s teukh-), to make ready. IE r, dheugh-*.

dour. See DURABLE, para 2. (Cf douce at DULCET.)

douse, dowse, the former usu for 'to strike, lower hastily, extinguish', the latter (whence dowser and dowsing rod) for 'to strike, hence to find, water by using the divining rod', a much later sense following naturally from 'to strike': ? from LG—cf the archaic doesen, to strike, as EW suggests.

dove—hence dovetail, n (anything shaped like a dove's tail), hence v—derives from ME dove, earlier douve, duve, OE dūfe, of Gmc origin: cf OS dūba*, duve, Go -dubo, OHG tūba, MHG tūbe, G Taube; ON dūfa, prob also to OIr dub, Ir dubh, dark-coloured, and perh to DEAF.

dowager; dower, dowry; endow, endowment.

1. Dowager comes from late MF douagiere, agent from MF doage, douage, woman's marriage-portion, itself from MF-F douer, OF doer, to make a gift of, esp as a marriage-portion, from L dotāre, from dos, marriage-portion, o/s dot-: cf the 2nd DOT. Doirdre has the ML derivative dotārium, whence MF douaire, whence both E dower (n whence v) and obs E dowery, whence dowry.

2. MF-F dower has MF cpd endouer (en- for L in, in, into), whence 'to endow'; endowment (suffix -ment) is adopted from AF endow(e)ment, MF endouement.

dowdy: adj (-y) from EE dowd, an ill-dressed or slovenly woman: ME doude: o.o.o.—perh cf DEED.

dower. See DOWAGER.

down (1), adv (whence the adj and prep, whence, in turn, the v) and n; dune.

The adv down is aphetic for adown, ME adun, adune, representing OE of dūne, from off the dūn or hill, whence, through ME dun, later down, the E down, orig hill, esp a hillock of sand, later an upland (cf South Down): and OE dūn is akin to MD and MLG dune—whence, via MF-F, the E dune—and perh to Skt dhanvan, seashore, dry land.

down (2), soft, fluffy feathers, hence soft, short hair: ME downe, earlier doun: ON dūnn: prob cf DUSK and perh cf DUST. Hence downy (adj -y).

doyen. See DEAN.

doze, v hence n: of Scan origin: perh ult from ON dusa, to doze, itself prob akin to OFris dusia, to be or feel dizzy, and therefore to DIZZY.

dozen, whence dozenth, comes, via ME doseine(e), from OF-MF dosetne (EF-F douzaine): douze, 12+suffix -aine, E -ain, -en: OF-F douze deriving from L duodecim, 12: duo, 2+decem, 10. Duodecim has adj duodecimus, whence (in) duodecimo, lit 'in twelfth'; whence also duodecimal, influenced by decimal (cf DECEMBER, para 1).

drab, a dull brownish or yellowish woollen cloth, hence the adj ('so coloured; monotonously dull') and perh the n drab, a slatternly, or a loose, woman: OF-F drap, cloth: LL drappus, o.o.o.—but perh (Malvezin) for OC drappos*, a thing broken, torn, divided, hence a piece (esp of cloth) from drap*, to break: cf W drab, a piece cut off or torn off, and drabio, to cut into pieces; E & M cf such PNN as Drappo, Drappus, Draponus.

2. OF-F drap has MF-F derivative draper, whence 'to drape': and this E v and that F n confusedly combine to form 'a drape'. The MF-F draper has two important MF-F derivatives: the agent drapier, whence the AF draper, adopted by E, and the collective draperie, (manufacture of, trade in) cloth or woollens in general, whence E drapery.

3. LL drappus becomes besides OF-F drap, the It drappo and, notably for E, the Sp trapo, both meaning 'a rag': from a confusion of the OF, It, Sp words with the MF derivative drapure, an ornamented cloth-covering for a horse, come ME trappe and trappure, trappings, whence ME trappen, to caparison, whence the syn obsol E 'to trap', with vn trapping, an ornamental horse-cloth, now usu pl trappings, esp in senses 'gay clothes and ornaments; mere outward signs'; from trapping influenced by obsol 'to trap' comes, by b/f, the obs trap, usu pl traps, an ornamented horse-cloth, whence the coll E traps, personal belongings.

dragon, with many cpds, based upon similarities real or fancied; dragoon (n hence v); drake, battle standard, cannon; rankle.

1. Dragon, adopted from OF-F, comes from L dracō (o/s dracōn-), itself from Gr drakōn (gen drakontos; s drak-), dragon, huge serpent, so named because of its quick-glancing, terrible eyes: cf the Gr drakein (s drak-), derkesthai (s derk-), to glance or look, and drakos, eye—cf the syn OIr derc; IE r, derk-, with metathesis drek-, var drak-, to look or glance.

2. The L acc dracōnem yields OF-F dragon, whence, in late C16, 'cavalryman'—whence the E dragoon—from fighting under the dragon (C13 onwards) or battle standard, from L dracō's LL sense 'military standard like a serpent' (Souter): cf the syn E drake, which, however, derives from OE draca, dragon, from L dracō.

3. Dracō has dim dracunculus (cf homunculus from homo), a little dragon or serpent, which takes, in ML, the derivative senses, a fiery sore, an abscess, an ulcer, adopted in the derivative OF-MF draoncle, whence, by aphaesis, MF raoncle, contr to rancler, whence rancler (OF-MF draoncler), to fester, hence to fester in the mind, whence 'to rankle', whence 'a rankle, a rankling'.

4. Gr drakōn, a dragon, has dim drakontion, with derivative sense 'adderwort, snakeroot', whence the Ar ḡarkhun, which becomes Sp taragona whence the E tarragon, a herb allied to wormwood and used for seasoning.

drain (v hence n), whence, by suffix -age, drainage: OE drēhnian, var drēahnian, to drain: akin to DRY.

drake (1). See DRAGON, para 2, s.f.

drake (2), male duck; sheldrake.

The latter is lit 'variegated drake': E dial sheld, akin to —? from—MD schillede, variegated. Drake, ME drake, is of Gmc origin: perh by aphesis from MLG andrake, cf MHG antrach, antreche, OHG antrahho 'for ant-trahho* "duck-drake"' (Walshe).

dram; drachm.

The former derives from OF drame: L drachma, whence MF-F drachme and E drachm: Gr drakhmē, lit a grasping, hence a handful: from drassesthai, to grasp. ? for drak(h)sesthai*: Gr drakh-, metathetic var of IE r dergh-, to grasp. From the sense 'measure' derives that of 'liquid measure'.

drama, dramatic, dramatist, dramatize, dramaturgy—melodrama, melodramatic; drastic.

1. Drama, adopted from LL, is the Gr drama (s dram-, r dra-), from dran, to do, act, make, akin to Lith daraū, daryti, to do or make. Gr drama has adj dramatikos, whence LL dramaticus, whence E dramatic; the learned F derivatives from F drame (from LL drama) include dramatiser, dramatiste, dramaturgie (from the Gr dramatourgia, itself from dramatourgos, a worker—cf ERG—in drama, a dramatist): whence E dramatize, dramatist, dramaturgy.

2. Gr dran, to do, has adj drastikos, whence E drastic.

3. Another learned F formation is melodrame, whence E melodrama, whence by anl the E melodramatic: Gr melos, a song + drama.

drastic. See DRAMA, para 2.

drat (It!): euphem for God rot it!

draught, draughtsman. See DRAW, para 4.

Dravidian and Dravidic are the adj (hence nn) of Dravida, (a native of) Southern India: Skt Drāviḍa, from dramela or damiḷa, and therefore akin to Tamil.

draw (v—with pt drew; hence n), whence drawer(s), drawing, drawing-room, (pp as adj) drawn, and prob drawl (v hence n); withdraw, withdrawal, withdrawn;—draft (n hence v), draftsman—draught, draughts, draughtsman, draughty; drag (v hence n), dragg, bedraggled; dray (n hence v), drayage; dredge (n hence v), whence dredger and dredging.

1. 'To draw', to pull, haul, drag, bear or carry along, hence to change the shape of, hence to represent in line, etc., derives from ME drawen, earlier drahen (etc.), itself from OE dragan: akin to OFris draga, usu drega, OS dragan, Go dragan, OHG tragan, MHG-G tragen, to carry, and ON draga, to drag; perh also to L trahere, to draw, pull, drag, pp tractus—see sep TRACE, TRACK, TREK; perh even to Gr trekhein (s trekh-), to run.

2. Drawing-room is aphetic for withdrawing-room, from withdraw (with, against, hence back), to draw back (vi, vt), take back, go back; whence withdrawal (-al, n), act of withdrawing.

3. Drawl app=to draw+ (often with freq or dim force) suffix -l for -el or -le: to draw out slowly.

4. Draft, the predominantly AE spelling of E draught, is however virtually obligatory for the v: ME draught (now pron draft), earlier draht: from OE dragan, to draw, pull, etc. For the game, draughts predominates; the atmospheric draught, AE draft, is an in- or out-drawing of air, with adj in -y.

5. 'To drag', ME dragen, comes prob from the syn ON draga but perh, by a dial deviation, from OE dragan; the freq is dragg, to drag so as to soil with mud or moisture, and it has cpds draggletail, a slatternly woman, and the int bedraggle, mostly in the pa bedraggled.

6. Dray, OE draege, a dragnet, from OE dragan, was, in late ME-early EE, a sledge; hence drayage (suffix -age).

7. Dredge, from the r of draw, prob derives from MD dregge, a dredge, from MD dregen, to carry, akin to OFris drega (as in para 1).

dread, v hence n (cf OFris dred), whence dreadful and dreadless.

Dreadnought is a dread-nought (nothing): and 'to dread' comes from ME dreden, aphetic for adreden, from OE adrāedan, worn-down var of andrāedan, akin to OS andrādan, to frighten, and OHG inrātan, to dread; the division, therefore, of the OE ondrāedan is prob ond-rāedan, where ond- is a var of and-, akin to OFris and-, OS and(e)-, Go and-, OHG ant- (var int-), in, on, against.

dream, n hence v; from n, dreamless, dreamy; from v, dreamer, dreaming.

A dream, ME dream, earlier dreme, prob from OE drēam, joy, music, and certainly akin to ON draumr, OHG-MHG troum, G Traum, MD droem, drome, droom (as in D), OS drōm, and esp OFris drām, all meaning 'dream'; the last also means '(shout of) joy'.

drear, adj, is a b/f from dreary, ME dreeri, earlier dreori, from OE drēorig, sad, (orig) bloody, deriving in -ig from OE drēor, blood, gore, akin to OHG trūren, MHG trūren, G trauern, to mourn, and to OE drēosan, Go drusian, to fall, and OE drūsian, to sink, therefore ult to E DROP. (Walshe.)

dredge, dredger. See DRAW, para 7.

dree. See DRUDGE.

dreg, usu pl dregs: ME dreg: ON dregg: akin to OP dragios (cf DROSS).

drench, n, derives from OE drenc, itself from OE drencan, to supply with drink, to drench; OE drencan is the caus of OE drincan, to drink: f.a.e., DRINK.

dress, dressage, dressing. See REX, para 8.

drill (1), a heavy linen or cotton fabric: b/f of EE drilling, with E suffix -ing for G suffix -ich: G Drillich, OHG drilth, with G dreī for L tri: L trilix, three-threaded (fabric): tri- from tres, 3+-lix, from licium, a warp-thread.

drill (2), to pierce, bore, to exercise soldiers (et al.), hence—cf MD dril, drille—the n (instrument; military exercise, perh also the farming implement): MD drilen, MD-D drillen, to pierce or bore, to drill (soldiers): akin to MHG drillen, to turn; cf also the F vrille, a gimlet, app by blending the earlier veille with vire, to turn (cf VEER).

drill (3), the farming implement: perh from drill, to cause to trickle, hence to sow seeds thus, itself perh from trill, vt to turn or twirl, vi to trickle, ME trillen, to turn about or around, to roll, of Scan origin but akin to OF-F vire, OProv virar, to turn, from ML virāre*, LL uirāre*, from L uirāre, (vt and vi) to whirl; f.a.e., VIBRATE.

drink, n, derives from 'to drink', pt drank, pp drunk (OE druncen) and (now only pa) drunken (OE druncen); from v: drinker, drinking; from pa drunk: drunkard (pej suffix -ard); sep drench; akin to drunken: drown, whence vn drowning.

1. 'To drink' comes from OE drincan: cf OS drincan, OFris drinka, OHG trinchan, MHG-G trinken, also Go drigkan and ON drekka: 'not found outside of Gmc' (Walshe).

2. 'To drown' derives from ME drounen or drunen: cf OE druncian, to be drowned, to become drunk, and ON drukna, to be drowned.

drip (v hence n), hence also the vn dripping; drib (v hence n), dribble (v hence n); drop (n and v); droop (v hence n).

1. 'To dribble' is the freq (suffix -le) of 'to drib', mdfn of 'to drip': and 'to drip' derives from OE drȳpan, akin to syn MD drupen, D druipen, and MLG druppen.

2. OE dryppan is perh a mutated form (and sense) of OE dropian, droppan, whence ME droppen, whence 'to drop', whence several of the modern senses of drop, n; the n drop has come through ME drope from OE dropa: akin to the nn OS dropo, ON dropi, OFris dropia, OHG tropfo, and to vv OE drēopan, OFris drīāpa, OS drīopan, OHG triofan, MHG-G triefen, ON drjūpa, to drip or trickle; also app to OIr drucht (for drupt*), dew-drop, dew. Orig drop was only a globule of liquid, esp water, as it falls, hence 'to fall', vi to fall in drops, vt to cause to, or let, fall in liquid globules.

3. ON drjūpa is very intimately akin to the partly syn ON drūpa, to droop, whence, through ME dr(o)upen, comes 'to droop'.

drive (whence the n—and the agent driver), pt drove, pp and pa driven; drift (n hence v)—adrift; drove, n, whence the v, whence drover.

1. 'To drive' comes from the OE drifan, akin to OFris drīva, Go dreifan (-ban), OS drīban, OHG triban, MHG triben, G treiben, ON drīfa. Derivative is the ME n drift, lit a driving or a being driven (persons, quadrupeds, snow), influenced by OFris, ON, MD drift, cf MHG trift; for the formation of drift, cf gift (give)—rift (rive)—shrift (shrive):—thrift (thrive). Adrift=a- for on-+the n drift.

2. OE drifan has derivative n drāf, things but esp cattle collected for driving, hence being driven: whence drove.

drivel, to slaver, hence to talk like a congenital idiot, hence as a fool; whence, by contr (? dial), 'to drool', whence the AE n; draff.

'To drivel' comes, through ME drevelen, var dravelen, from OE dreftian, which is perh a freq; cf OE draef, ME draf, which, becoming E draff, refuse or lees or dregs, is akin to ON drāf and MD-D drāf, also to OHG trebir, MHG-G treber—perh of G trübe, dull, sad, and Gr trephein (s trephe-), to curdle.

drizzle (v hence n): app a freq of ME dresen, to fall, from OE drēsian. Cf DREAR.

droit. See REX, para 6.

droll (adj and n) and drollery.

The latter=EF-F drôlerie, from the n drôle, earlier drolle: MD drolle, drol, a jolly little fellow, a wag, cf MD droelen (drulen, etc.), to play.

duct, ductile, duction. See DUKE, para 5.

dud (1), adj, derives from dud, n, one who is a failure, app substituted for coll AE dub, an awkward performer, perh from E dial dub, blunt (of point), dull.

dud (2), garment: ME dudde, prob akin to ON dūtha, to swathe, cf Efris bedudeln, to clothe. Usu in pl duds, one's clothes.

dude (AE), a dandy: perh (EW) G dial dude, a fool.

dudgeon, in (high): C16 take in usu (great or high) dudgeon: o.o.o.: EW proposes derivation from It aduggiare, to overshadow, from uggia, a shadow (? a dial var of ombra, from L umbra, cf LL umbrātiō, a shadowing) and cfs 'to take unbrage': perh rather from MF prendre en (sc mauvaise) duison or duigon, to take in (bad instruction, or perh by a false division ('to digest badly')) of MF-EF enduison, digestion, from enduire, to digest; a rare C17 var is endugine, which certainly suggests a F origin.

due, adj hence n. See DEBT, para 6.

duel. See DUO, para 2.

duenna. See DOMESTIC, para 6.

duet. See DUO, para 3.

duff (padding). See DOUGH.

duffel (a D word) was orig made at Duffel, near Antwerp.

dugong: Mal (and Jav) duyun: with unjustified g for y.

duke, duchess, duchy—cf archduke, etc.; ducal, ducat; dux; duct (Med ductus), ductile, duction; -duce, -ducent, -ducible, -ducive, -duct, -duction, -ductive, -ductor in: abduce, abduct, abduction, abductor; adduce, adducent, adducible, adduct, adduction, adductive, adductor; circumduce, circumduct, circumduction; conduce, conducent, conducibile, conducive, conduct (n and v), conductance, conduction, conductive (whence conductivity), conductor; deduce, deducible, deduct, deduction, deductive; educe, educt, eduction, eductive, eductor; induce (whence inducement), inducible, induct, inductance, induction, inductive, inductor; introduce (whence introducer), introduction, introductory; produce (whence producer), productible, product, productile, production, productive (whence productivity—after activity), cf reproduce, reproduction, etc.; reduce (whence reducer), reducible, reduction, reductive, reductor; seduce (whence seducement and seducer and seductive), seduction (whence seductionist), seductress; subduce, subduction; traduce (whence traducer), traduction;—educable, educand, educate, education (whence educational, educationist), educative, educator;—via It: condottiere and dogal (dogate, doge) and ducat and Duce and ridotto;—prefix-cpds via F: conduit, sep douche (partly It), endue, redoubt (n); subdue (whence, by n-suffix -al, subdual).

1. L dux, leader, hence chief, stands for ducs* (duks*), s duc-, from dūcere (s dūc-), draw to oneself, draw on or along, to lead, conduct; IE s duk-, var deuk-, to lead. The Gmc var of the IE r is seen in OE tēon, to draw (pull, drag), cf Go tiuhan, and OE heretoga (here, army), an army leader—cf G Herzog, duke, orig an army (Heer) leader, OHG herizogo, MHG herzoge, akin to and syn with the OE cpd and to OFris heretoga, OS heretogo, ON heretoge; with OE tēon, cf G ziehen.

2. The E derivatives and cognates of OE tēon are treated sep: sec, e.g., 'to togn' and 'to tug'—TAUT—TEAM and TEEM—TOY—TIE.

3. L dux becomes It duce, as in Il Duce, The Leader Mussolini; Venetian duce, chief magistrate, with derivatives dogale, whence E dogal, of a doge, and dogato, whence dogate (cf -ate, n), the office or rank of a doge; Sp duque; OF ducs (nom), duc (acc), whence F duc; OF duc becoming ME duc, later duke, adopted by E. The OF duc(s) has derivatives OF-F duchesse, whence E duchess, and—rather than from LL ducatus (gen -ūs)—OF duchee, later duché, whence E duchy, and—rather than direct from LL ducālis (duc-, o/s of dux, adj-suffix -alis)—OF-F ducal, adopted by E. (For ducat, see para 8.)

4. OF duc(s) has late MF-F cpd archiduc, with derivatives archiducal, archiduché, archiduchesse, which prompted the E archduke, archduchess, etc.

5. L dūcere has pp ductus, s duct-, on which arise the n ductus (gen -ūs), a leading, that which leads, a canal or channel, whence E duct (whence ductless), and the adj ductilis, whence, prob via EF-F, the E ductile (whence ductility), and the n ductiō, o/s ductiōn-, whence duction, and the agent ductor, adopted by E.

6. L dūcere has numerous prefix-cpds, which originate E vv in -duce and, from the pp ductus, several in -duct; the presp ducens, o/s ducent-, leads to adj in -ducent; (?) ducibilis, able to lead—or be led, occurs in adj in -ducible; most adj in -ducive lack forebears in -ducivus, ML -ducivus; for nn in -duction, -ductor, cf the prec para. The relevant L prefix-cpd vv are these:

abdūcere, to lead ab or away, whence 'to abduce'; presp abdūcens, o/s abdūcent-, whence the adj abducent; pp abductus, whence 'to abduct'; derivative LL abductiō, o/s abductiōn-, whence abduction; abductor (cf F abducteur) is an anl agent-in-or formation; addūcere, to draw to oneself, to bring ad or to, whence 'to adduce'; with presp addūcens, o/s addūcent-, whence the adj adducent; anl adducible; pp adductus, whence 'to adduct'; LL adductiō, o/s adductiōn-, whence adduction; anl adductive; agent adductor, adopted by E; circumdūcere, to lead circum or around, whence 'to circumduce'; pp circumdūctus, whence 'to circumdunct', and derivative circumdūctiō, o/s circumdūctiōn-, whence circumdunction; condūcere, to bring con- or together, to lead together (in a party), hence favourably, whence 'to conduce'; presp condūcens, o/s condūcent-, whence conducent; condūcibilis, whence conducible; anl conductive; pp conductus, whence 'to conduct' (whence conductance), with derivative n conductus, gen -ūs, whence the E n conduct, with E hybrid misconduct (n and v); derivative conductiō, o/s conductiōn-, whence conduction; anl conductive (cf deductive, inductive); LL conductor, adopted by E; dēdūcere, to draw dē or down, to lead away, bring from or out, whence 'to deduce'; anl deducible; pp dēductus, whence 'to deduct'; derivative dēductiō, o/s dēductiōn-, whence deduction; likewise derivative LL dēductiūs, ML -ivus (esp in Logic), whence deductive; ēdūcere, to lead ē or out, bring forth, hence to rear, whence 'to educē'; pp ēductus, neu ēductum, which, used as n, yields educ; derivative ēductiō, o/s ēductiōn-, whence education; anl educative; derivative LL agent ēductor, adopted by E in mechanical sense; indūcere, to lead to or (in-) into, (later) to persuade, whence 'to induce'; anl inducible; pp inductus, whence 'to induct' (whence inductance—c, conductance); derivative inductiō, o/s inductiōn-, whence induction; derivative LL inductiūs, ML -ivus, whence inductive; derivative agent inductor, adopted by E; introdūcere, to bring intro or within (house or circle), whence 'to introduce'; derivative introdūctiō, o/s introdūctiōn-, whence, prob via F, introduction; anl introductive; LL introdūctōrius, whence introductory;

prōdūcere, to lead or bring prō or forward, hence to beget, produce, whence 'to produce'; presp prōducens, o/s prōducent-, whence producent; anl producibile; pp prōductus, neu prōductum, whence the E n product; derivative LL prōductilis, prōductiūs (ML -ivus), whence E productile, productive; derivative LL prōductiō, o/s prōductiōn-, whence, prob via MF-F, production; E reproduce (whence reproducer), reproduction, reproductive, were prompted by F reproduire, reproduction, reproductif (f -ive); redūcere, to lead or bring re or back, (later) to diminish, whence 'to reduce'; presp redūcens, o/s redūcent-, whence reducent; anl reducible; reductiō (as in L r. ad absurdum), o/s reductiōn-, whence reduction; anl reductive; but E reductor=reduction + agential -or;

sēducere, to lead sē or aside, hence to mislead, hence seduce, whence E seduce; LL sēducibilis, whence seducible; pp sēductus, s sēduct-, whence LL sēductibilis, whence seductible; derivative sēductiō, o/s sēductiōn-, whence—perh via OF-F sēduction—E seduction; anl seductive; anl seductress, perh suggested by LL sēductrix; subducere, to draw from below, to lead sub or under, whence 'to subduce'; derivative subductiō, o/s subductiōn-, whence subduction; cf 'to subdue', para 9, s.f.; trādūcere (for transducere*), to lead trans or across, hence to transfer, translate, to disgrace, etc.; whence 'to traduce', (esp) to slander; derivative trādūctiō (from pp trādūctus), o/s trādūctiōn-, whence—perh via EF-F—the E traduction.

7. L dūcere, to lead, has durative dūcāre, used only in cpds, esp ēdūcāre, to rear (a child), hence to educate; its gerundive ēdūcandus, fit to be reared, yields the E n educand, a student; educable is an anl formation, as if from L ēdūcābilis*; pp ēdūctus yields 'to educate'; derivative ēdūcātīō, o/s ēdūcātīōn-, yields education; educative and educatory are anl in -ive, -or; derivative ēdūcātor is adopted by E.

8. Through It come condottiere, from L conductor; doge (etc.) and Duce, as in para 3; sep douche; ducat, adopted from late OF, from It ducato, a coin bearing the effigy of a duca or duke, ult from L dūx; ridotto (in fortification), either from ML reductus (gen -ūs), from reduct-, s of L reductus, pp of reducere, or from It ridurre—see next para.

9. From F come:

conduit, taken by ME (conduyte, condyte, etc.) from OF-F conduit, from L conducitus (gen -ūs)—cf para 6 at conducere; sep DOUCHE (F from It);

endue, influenced by OF enduire, to lead into (en, L in) but strictly from L induere (s indu-: in, onto + r du-*, to put, as in exuere, to put off), which has direct derivative 'to indue';

redoubt, from EF redoute (earlier ridotte), from It ridotta (now ridotto), f of ridotto, pp of ridurre, to lead back, itself from L reducere (as in para 6); subdue, ME soduen, from OF-MF soduire, souduire, sousduire, to draw or lead away, from L subducere (para 6, where cf the E doublet 'to seduce'), to draw from below.

dulcet; dulcify; dulcimer; dolce (far niente); douce, douceur; edulcorate.

1. Dulcet is a refashioning, after the L, of ME from OF-F doucet, dim of douz, from L dulcis, sweet (of taste, hence of disposition), perh akin to Gr glukus (see GLYCERIN); dulcify=dulci-, L c/f + element -fy, to make; dulcimer comes from OF doulcemeer, alteration of doulcemele: doulce, from dulcis+mele from Gr melos, song (cf the element melo-); dolce is the It shape of dulcis; Sc douce=F douce, f of doux (OF douz), and douceur, adopted from OF-F, derives from F doux.

2. L dulcis has LL derivative dulcor, whence ML ēdulcorāre, in ē-+dulcorāre, to sweeten; pp ēdulcorātus yields 'to edulcorate'.

dull (adj whence v), whence dul(l)ness and dullard (pej suffix -ard); doldrums; cf sep DWELL.

Doldrums is the pl of doldrum; app (EW) it blends and 'corrupts' dull+tantrum. Dull, ME dul, is akin to—perh from—OE dol, foolish: cf OHG-MHG tol, foolish (G toll, mad), OFris doll, dull, mad, and Go dwals, foolish.

dumb (whence dumbness), dumbbell; dummy (adj, whence n, v).

Dumbbell is orig a muted bell; and dummy is an easement of dumby, with pej sense from dumbness apprehended as stupidity. Dumb is OE dumb, akin to OFris and OS dumb, OHG tumb, dumb, stupid, G dumm, stupid, whence A sl dumb, stupid; Go dumbs, ON dumbr, dumb; perh akin to DEAF and to Gr tuphlos, blind.

dump (1), usu the dumps, low spirits: MD domp, a haze, akin to G dumpf, dull-sounding, (of air) close and damp, and Dampf, steam, therefore to E DAMP.

dump (2), shapeless piece, whence the n dump-ling (-ling, dim n suffix) and the adj dumpy, is akin to, perh derived from, the next; the senses 'a thump, temporary store, sawmill yard, (sl) shabby house, (sl) any inhabited place' prob belong to the same word.

dump (3), to let fall, unload, (vi) to fall heavily, whence dumpage, dumper, dumping: ME dumpen, to fall heavily, to cause to fall (heavily), to carelessly throw down: of Scan origin, orig echoic: cf Nor dumpa, Da dumpe, to fall suddenly or heavily, but esp ON dumpa, to strike, esp to thump.

dumpling. See 2nd DUMP.

dumpy. See 2nd DUMP.

dun (1), adj; dunlin.

The latter, for dunling, consists of dun, brown + n-suffix -ling: and dun=OE dunn, prob of C origin; cf OIr donn, brown, dark, syn Ga donn (comp duinne) and W dwn, OC donnos*, var dunnos* (? for dubnos), dark.

dun (2), n, fortified place. See TOWN.

dun (3), v, to importune a debtor, whence he who does this. See DIN, para 2.

dunce: ironically from 'a Duns man', a student or disciple of the great medieval schoolman, Duns Scotus.

dune. See DOWN. (Adj dunal.)

dung (n whence v), with adj dungy (-y); dungeon, predominantly an underground prison in a castle, and donjon; dingy.

The last is app a thinning of dungy. Dungeon=ME dongeon, var donjoun: OF-F donjon, itself adopted, in the F sense, by E: perh of Gmc origin—cf ON dynjia, an underground working-place covered with dung. Now, dung—the same in OE—is akin to OFris dung, G Dung, MHG tunge, OHG tunga, dung; in the OHG form tunc and sense 'underground chamber covered with dung' (cf ON dynjia), cf the syn OS dung; perh akin to Lith dengti, to cover, as with a roof (Webster); Walshe, however, notes that G Dung, therefore E dung, could be akin to Gr τάφος (taphos, s taph-), a grave, on the assumption of an IE form dhenghuos*, varr dhonghuos*, dhunghuos*. B & W, like Dauzat and EW, dissociate OF-F donjon, lit 'master tower of a château' or 'the lord's tower', from dung and derive it from VL dominiōnem*, acc of dominiō*, itself from dominus, master of the house (cf DOMESTIC, para 4). In all, it seems best to separate E dung from OF-F donjon (whence, of course, E dungeon) and to accept the VL origin of donjon.

dungaree. Hi dungrī (a coarse cotton fabric).

dunk. See DYE, s.f.

dunlin. See 1st DUN.

dunnage. The sense 'personal effects' derives from the naut sense 'loose materials (brushwood, wood, mats, netting, ropes, etc.) on the bottom of a hold or among goods to protect cargo': o.o.o.: the -age is the semi-collective, semi-agential or -instrumental -age of other nn (e.g., cordage) with that suffix; therefore the word prob=dun+euphonic n+-age. What, then, is dun? The ref is, I think, to dun, greyish-brown, the colour of the materials used for the protection of cargo. Since, however, the E word is unrecorded before the 1620's, it may well derive from D or LG, like so many other naut terms of the period: OED neatly adduces the LG dunne twige, brushwood; cf MD dunne (D dun) and MHG dünne (G dünn), thin, and, of course, THIN itself. The early varr dennage, dinnage, donnage cause one to glance at MD denne, a ship's deck, and dennen, to load, and dennenhout, a ship's hold.

duo (cf the element duo-); dual, duality; duel; duet; duodenum (see the element duodeno-); deuce; sep duodecimo and dozen (where see both); sep double, where also see duple (etc.). For the Gmc cognates, see two, where also twain, twelve, twenty, twice, twinn, twine, and such less obvious derivatives as tweed, twig, twill, twist, between and betwixt.

1. L duo, 2, is intimately akin to Gr duo, with IE etymon duwo*: f.a.e., two. Its adj is duālis (s duāl-), whence E dual; the LL derivative duālitās, o/s duālitāt-, yields duality; dualism and dualist (whence dualistic) are E formations in -ism, -ist.

2. The L duellum, war, is the earliest form of bellum, which was by the ancients declared to be etym a struggle, battle, war between duo, or two, parties: although E & M and others assert the duo origin of duellum to be merest f/e, the ancients may, after all, have been right. Certainly L duellum, often used even in L for a fight between two persons, becomes It duello and EF-F duel, adopted by E.

3. L duo survives in It, where, as n, it gains the sense 'duet'; with resulting dim duetto, duet, whence E duet.

4. L duo has m acc duos, whence OF deus, F deux, whence E deuce (C15-16 deux; C16 deuis, dewse, C16-17 dewse, dewse), the 2-pipped side of a die, a cast of 2, a 2-spotted card. (OED.) Hence prob the senses 'bad luck, the Devil', whence the adj deuced, devilish.

duologue. See LEGEND, para 28.

dup. See DO, para 1.

dupe (n and v), dupery; hoopoe.

1. Dupery comes from late EF-F duperie, itself from EF-F duper, to trick, whence E 'to dupe'; F duper comes from late MF-F dupe, whence the E n dupe; F dupe derives from MF (orig, underworld) duppe, a gamester's victim, app from d'uppe, of—hence like—an uppe, F huppe, hoopoe, a stupid-looking bird.

2. E hoopoe derives from EE hoop, houpe; F huppe (Gmc h-), OF-MF uppe: VL ūpupa*: L ūpupa, from its cry: cf for the form, L ulula, the screech-owl (cf ULULATE), and, for both the form and the sense, Gr apaphos (? alteration of epaphos*), syn and prob a derivative of Gr epops (gen epopos), hoopoe.

duple, duplex, duplicate, duplicity. See PLY, para 22.

durable, durability; durance; duration, durative (adj, hence n); dure; obs v dure—cf endure (whence pa enduring), endurance; obs adj dure—cf dour; indurate (whence pa indurated), induration, indurative; obdurate, whence obduracy (for obduratecy*: cf accuracy from accurate); perdurable, perdurance, perdure.—L terms: dura mater, with adj dural; duramen; durum (wheat).

1. L dūrus, hard, has s dūr-, perh a dissimilation of IE dūr-*, cf Skt dārūnās, rough, strong, Lith drūtas, strong, solid, Ir dron, OIr tromm, G trom, solid, OIr tren, Ga treun, strong, W tren, strenuous, and Argive Gr droón (neu=iskhuron), strong.

2. Dūrus becomes OF-F dur, whence obs E dure, severe, and prob the Sc dour.

3. Dūrus has L derivative dūrāre (vi, vt), to harden, with cpd indūrāre (int in-), to harden (vt), with pp indūrātus, whence both the adj indurate, hardened, and 'to indurate' or harden; derivative LL indūrātiō, o/s indūrātiōn-, yields induration; indurative is an anl E formation. Cf endure in para 9.

4. Derivative LL obdūrāre (int ob-), to harden (vt), has pp obdūrātus, whence the E adj obdurate, obstinate (cf LL obdūrus); derivative LL obdūrātiō perh suggested obduracy.

5. By most modern etymologists, L dūrāre (vi), to last, is usu dissociated from dūrāre (vt, vi), to harden, and by them related to that IE r dūr-*, connoting a long time, which occurs in L dūdum, formerly, long since, and perh in L dum, while: but does not dūrāre, to last, ensue very naturally from dūrāre, to harden, used intransitively? 'To harden, to become or be hard, therefore to be strong and firm, therefore time-resisting, to last long in time'—can there be a more natural sense-development?

6. Dūrāre (s dūr-), to last, becomes the obs dure, to last, (vt) to endure; derivative dūrābilis becomes OF-F durable, adopted by E; subsidiary dūrābilitās becomes EF-F durabilité and, prob from F, the E durability; the presp dūrans, o/s dūrant-, shapes the

OF presp durant, whence OF durance (suffix -ce), duration, whence E durance, with subsidiary sense 'imprisonment' (so long in the enduring)—cf duress in para 8; derivative dūrātiō (from dūrāt-, s of the pp dūrātus), o/s dūrātiōn-, passes through MF-EF to become the E duration; durative (-ive, adj) is an anl E formation.

7. Dūrāre, to last, has cpd perdūrāre, to last per or throughout, for a very long time, whence the obsol 'to perdure'; derivative LL perdūrābilis becomes MF-EF perdurable, adopted by E; adopted from MF is perdurance.

8. Other L derivatives of dūrus concern E:

dūra mater (lit 'hard mother'), adopted from ML physiology; dūramen hardness, a ligneous vine-branch, adopted by Bot for heartwood; dūrīta, hardness, whence OF-MF durece, EF-F duresse, hardship, whence E duress; dūrum (wheat) is, lit and factually, hard wheat, dūrum being prop the neu of dūrus: cf L dūrum, elliptical for dūrum lignum.

9. L indūrāre, to harden (cf para 3), becomes VL 'to tolerate' and LL (Eccl) 'to harden one's heart against', both senses persisting in OF-F endurer, which further contains something of durer, to last: hence E 'to endure', to last or persist, (vt) to sustain, successfully undergo; whence—unless from MF endurance—then endurance.

durian, a hard-rinded East Indian fruit, is adopted from Mal: from Mal durt, a thorn.

durum. See DURABLE, para 8.

dusk, adj whence n (with its own adj dusky), comes, through ME dosc, deosc, later dusc, from OE dox, dosc, akin to L fuscus (s fusc-), sombre, dark—cf Skt dhūsara, dust-coloured, and therefore:

dust, whence 'to dust' (whence duster and the vn dusting) and the adj dusty (cf OE dystig): OS dūst, akin to OLG and ON dust, dust, and OHG tunst, MHG tunst, a storm, G Dunst, vapour, MD dust, dunst, D duist, meal dust; cf also Skt dhūsara, dust-coloured, and dhvāsati, is scattered, and Hit tuhhwis, smoke, vapour: 'primary notion "that which is blown in a cloud"' (Walshe). Cf DUSK.

Dutch, adj hence n; Teutonic.

1. Dutch comes from MD dutsch, duutsch, duutsc, of Holland, (more generally) Germanic (cf D duitsch, German) —akin to G deutsch, German, and MGH tiutsch, tiusch, OHG diutisc, the German language, lit the popular language as opp Latin, from OHG diot, diota, a people or nation, akin to OFris thiāde, OS thiōd, thiōde, Go thiuda, OE thēod, ON thiōd, thjōth, OIr tūath, Cor tūs, tüz, düs, düz, OC teuts*, and Lith tauta, a people, and the Gmc (? rather the Celtic) tribe the Teutones, also OP tauto, W tūd, land, Ga tuath, the country, country people, and Lith Tauta, Germany; perh also Hit tuzzias, army. The IE r is prob teut-*, a people, the people.

2. L Teutones, var Teutoni, app of Gmc origin ('the people'), yields the b/f Teuton; the L adj is Teutonicus, whence Teutonic.

3. The numerous pej expressions containing Dutch (Dutch courage—uncle—etc.) result, orig, from the D-E trade, hence other, rivalry of C17–18.

duty. See DEBT, para 6.

dux. See DUKE, para 1.

dwarf (whence dwarfish: -ish, adj): ME dwarf, earlier dwerf, earliest dwergh: OE dweorg, dweorh: akin to the syn OFris dwerch, OS dweg, OHG twerg (G Zwerg), ON dvergr; perh cf Skt dhvāras, a demon, a phantom.

dwell, whence dweller and dwelling, comes from OE dwellan, to wander, to linger, to tarry, akin to OE dwalian, OFris dwalia, to wander, be in error, OE dwala, error, OFris dwalinge, OE dwolung, doubt, and ON dvelja, to linger, delay, tarry; also to DULL.

dwindle (whence pa and vn dwindling): freq (-le) or dim of obs dwine, to pine: ME dwinen, to waste away: OE dwinan, akin to ON dvīna, to dwindle, LG and MD dwinen, to vanish.

dyad, a pair, a couple: cf the element dy- and the suffix -ad (as in triad).

dye, n and v (whence pa and vn dyeing and the agent dyer).

'To dye' comes, through ME dyen, earlier dēyen, from OE dēagan, dēagian, itself from OE dēag, var dēah, a dye, a colour, whence E 'a dye': o.o.o., but perh akin to the ti- of L tingō, I steep in water, hence dye, s ting-, perh a nasal form of IE r tig-, extn of ti-, to colour or dye: cf the syn Gr tengō (τέγγω) and OHG ihunkōn, dunkōn, MHG dunken, G tuanken, to dip (something) in water, whence AE dunk, to dip (esp bread into milk, coffee, soup).

dying. See DEAD, para 3.

dyke. See DIG.

dynamic, adj (whence dynamics); dynamism; dynamite (n whence v); dynamo (cf the element dynamo-); dynast, dynastic, dynasty; dyne.

1. The effective r is grounded in Gr dunasthai, to be able, have strength, s dun-, r either dun-* or more prob du-*, to have the strength (to), be able (to) perh ult akin to E do, ? 'have the strength to do, and then perform it': cf Hit dū, to make.

2. Dunamī, I am able, has derivative dunamis (? for dunis*: dun-+i+-s), ability to do, (hence) power, with derivative adj dunamikos, whence F dynamique, whence E dynamic; the learned F formation dynamisme yields dynamism; dynamite, created, 1866, by Sw physicist Nobel, from Gr dunamis, power; dynamo, elliptical for dynamo-electric machine.

3. F dyne, from LL dynamis, from Gr dunamis, is adopted by E 'for unit of force'.

4. Gr dunasthai, to have strength, hence power, hence great power, has derivative dunastēs (s dunast-), whence L dynastes, whence late MF-F dynaste and E dynast, a ruler; subsidiary Gr dunastikos yields F dynastique and E dynastic; and subsidiary Gr dunasteia becomes LL dynastia whence EF-F dynastie and (perh from the F word, E dynasty).

dysacousia. See ACOUSTIC.

dysentery, dysenteric; enteric, enteritis.

The 1st derives, via MF-F, from L dysenteria, trln of Gr dusenteria; dus-, ill-, badly + -enteria, from entera, intestines, pl of enteron, from entos, within, from en, in; derivative adj dusenterikos, L dysentericus, MF-F dysentérique, E dysenteric. E enteric, n=enteric fever, from Gr enterikos, adj of entera; and enteritis=entera + suffix -itis.

dyslogistic, dyslogy. See LEGEND, para 30.

dyspepsia, dyspeptic. See the element -pepsia.

each comes, through ME eche, earlier elc and esp aelc, from OE āelc, a contr of ā-gelic, ever like (cf LIKE): akin to OFris ellik, elk, OHG eo-gilih, orig 'always alike', hence 'each, every', MHG ieglich, G jeglich: Cf also AYE, always.

eager, adj: ME egre, sharp, spirited, keenly desirous: OF-F aigre: VL ācrus*: L ācer, f ācris, neu ācre, s and r ac-; akin to Gr akros (r ak-), highest, which connotes the idea of a sharp point at the top. Cf ACID—and also EDGE.

2. OF-F aigre has the MF-F cpd vinaigre (vin, wine; cf WINE), whence ME vinegre, whence E vinegar.

eagle derives, through ME egle, adopted from OF-MF egle, var of OF-F aigle, itself—perh via OProv aigla—from L aquila, which has adj aquilinus, whence E aquiline, applied esp to a nose like an eagle's. F aigle has derivative MF-F aiglette, whence E eaglet.

eagre, a tidal flood, etc. See AQUA, para 7.

ear (1), the organ of hearing: OE ēare: cf OFris āre, OS and OHG ōra (G Ohr), MD ore (D oor), ON eyra; cf also L auris; Go ausō, Lith ausis, Lett ausu, ausū, ear, and Av usi, both ears; OSl ucho, ear, uši, both ears; Gr oūs, Doric ōs; OIr āu or ō. IE r is therefore au*, varr ou* and ō*, with extrn aus*- (also ous*), var aur*-.

ear (2), a cereal's fruiting spike: OE ēar (var aehher): akin to OFris ār, OS ahar, OHG ahir, ehir, MHG eher (G Ähre), Go ahs, ON ax, and, further off, the L acus, chaff, and agna (for acna*, akna*), ear of a cereal. Hence 'to ear', put forth ears.

earl, earldom.

Earl, ME erl or eorl, derives from OE eorl, a man, esp a nobleman, akin to OS and OHG erl, boy, man, and ON jarl, nobleman. The OE cpd eorl-dōm, an earl's territory or jurisdiction (cf the suffix -dom and the word DOOM), becomes earldom. —Perh it is related to CHURL.

early, adj, ME earlich, is very closely akin to the ME adv erliche, later erli, whence the E adv early: and ME erliche derives from OE āerlice: āer, sooner + -lice, whence adv-suffix -ly. Cf ERE.

earmark, n whence v, is orig a domestic animal's identification-mark (a slitting, a notching) on the ear.

earn, earning (pa and vn, usu in pl).

The latter, as n, derives from OE earnung, from OE earnian, whence 'to earn': akin to OHG arnōn, to harvest, and OHG aran (syn with the intimately related OHG arnōd, G Ernte, MHG ernede, pl, a harvest), Go asans, a harvest, OP assanis, harvest-season, autumn; prob also to ON ōnn, working season, and perh L annus (r an-), year. (Walshe.)

earnest, adj. See EARNEST (3), s.f.

earnest (2), a pledge: ME ernes: app by a scribal error from OF-MF erres (pl)—cf the refashioned EF-F arrhes—from (Law) L arra, for arrha, short for arrhabō, a pledge, from Gr arrhabōn, certainly of Sem origin—prob from H 'ērābōn.

earnest (3), a close, grave attention or purpose: OE eornest, eornost: akin to OHG ernust, MHG ernest, G Ernst (seriousness), but also to OE eornes, with var eornest, a combat or duel, to Go arniba, firmly, safely, and to Av arenu, a contest or combat.

The adj earnest derives from OE eorneste, eornoste, itself from the n: cf OFris ernst, OHG ernust.

earning(s). See EARN.

earth (n hence v); earthen, earthenware; earthly; earthy: such obvious cpds as earthborn, -bound, -quake, -work, -worm.

1. Earth, ME erthe and earlier eorthe, derives from OE eorthe, akin to OFris erthe (var irthe), OS ertha, Go airtha, OHG erda (MHG-G erde), the OE varr eord(e), eard, MD aerd, aert, ard, art, ON jörth, iörth. That the r is er- appears from OHG ero and Gr era, earth, and Gr eraze, to earth: cf such C words as OIr -ert (in cpds), EIr úr, Ga úir, Cor aor, the OC prototype being prob urā*. But the distribution is still wider: cf Arm erkir, Akk eršetu, iršetum, and perh Eg āakhut, earth.

2. The derivative adj are earthen (-en), with cpd earthenware (cf WARE)—earthly, from OE eorthlic—earthy (-y).

3. The only important prefix cpd is 'to unearth'. earwig: OE ēarwicga: OE ēar, the ear + wicga, beetle or worm: folklore has it that this insect creeps into the human ear. For the elements, cf EAR and VETCH.

ease, n (whence easeful and v; easement; easy).

1. Easy comes from MF-F aisié, prop the pp of aisier, whence 'to ease': and MF aisier, OF aaisier, derives from OF-F aise, whence, in ME, the n ease. Now, OF-F aise, comfort, elbow-room, derives from VL adiacēs, var of VL adiacens, a, or the, neighbourhood, n from L adiacens, presp of adiacère, to be situated near: f.a.e., ADJACENT. The absol easement (suffix -ment)=OF-MF aise-ment, from the OF v; easiness (-ness) derives from easy.

2. The chief cpds are unease, n, whence uneasy (-y, adj); the n disease, ME disese, earlier desese, from MF desaise (des-, L dis-), and the v disease, ME disesen, from MF desa(a)isier, from desaise; malaise, adopted from OF-F (OF-F mal, badly).

easel. See ASS, para 2.

east (n hence adj and v); easterly, eastern, eastward.

1. The n east derives from OE ēast, also in cpds an adj—cf OE ēastan, from the east, also as adj: akin to OHG ōstan, MHG ōsten, G Osten, and OHG ōstar, in (or to) the east, and ōstana (OE ēastan, ON austan), from the east; ON austr; Lith aušra, dawn, and the syn L aurōra (for ausōsa*), Homeric Gr ēōs, Attic heōs, Aeolic auōs, Skt uśās (cf ucchatī, it dawns, (lit) shines). The Gmc r is aust-*; the IE r, aus-, itself perh an extn of au-; basic idea, 'the shining'. Cf EASTER.

2. East has adj easter (now only dial), whence adj and adv easterly (-ly); OE ēast has adj ēasterne, whence eastern; also from east, n, comes eastward, adv and adj (cf the suffix -ward).

Easter, whence Eastertide (ride, time: cf TIDE), derives from OE ēastre (pl ēastron), from OE Eastre, var Eostra, the old Gmc goddess of Spring: after dull Winter, Spring comes as 'the shining (season)': akin to OHG ōstarūn (cf the OE var ēastrun), MHG ōstere, G Ostern (pl), and to Skt usra, dawn: since dawn comes in the east, the kinship of Easter with east is prob.

easterly, eastern, eastward. See EAST, para 2.

easy. See EASE.

eat; pt eat (ēt) and ate; pp eaten.

'To eat' derives, through ME eten, from OE etan, akin to OS etan, Go itan (cf OFris ita), OHG ezzan, MHG ezzen, G essen, ON eta; also to Ga ith, to eat, OIr ithim, I eat, and Mx ee (n), eating; to L edere, Gr edein, to eat—both with s ed-; to Skt ādmi and Lith edmi, I eat, and Hit et-, at-, ez-, az-, to eat, and adai, he eats. The OGmc r is et-*; the IE r, ed-*. (Walshe). Cf EDIBLE.

eaves (orig sing): ME evese (pl eveses): OE efes, brink or brim, hence eaves: akin to OHG obisa, obasa, porch, and OHG obana, from above, G oben (adv), above: cf, therefore, OVER.

eavesdrop. See OVER, para 3.

ebb, n and v. 'To ebb' derives from OE ebbian, itself from the source of the n ebb: OE ebba, akin to OFris ebba, OS ebbia, MD-D ebbe (v ebben), and perh to the Go adj ibuks, turned backwards, backward, with IE r ibh-*, to turn.

ebony, ebony, ebonite.

The 3rd=ebony+chem -ite; the 2nd is prob the n use of ebony, the -y adj of the n ebon, the wood ebony; the 1st (n, then adj) comes, via OF ebaine, MF ebene (F èbene), from L ebenus, the tree (ebenum, the wood), from Gr ebenos, itself from Eg hebin (var hebni, habni)—cf the syn iban.

Ebriety, ebriosity, ebrious; inebriety—inebriate inebriation; sobriety, sober.

1. The adj ebrious, tipsy, derives from L ēbrius, prob coming either from ē, out of + bria, a wine-jar, and therefore applied to one who has emptied the jar or cup, or from ē, out of + the r of ferre, to bear, carry—cf, sem, L ēlātus, E elate.

2. L ēbrius has derivatives ēbrietās, o/s ēbrietāt-, whence MF-F ēbriété, whence E ebriety, intoxication, and ēbriōsus, whence ēbriōsītās, o/s ēbriōsītāt-, whence E ebriosity, habitual intoxication, and LL ēbriāre, to render drunk, with pp ēbriātus, whence ebriate, intoxicated.

3. Ebriare has int inēbriāre, with pp inēbriātus, whence both the adj (hence the n) and the v inebriate; derivative LL inēbriātō, o/s inēbriātōn-, yields inebriation.

4. The opp of L ēbrius is sōbrius, who has not (yet) drunk from the wine-jar, hence who does not drink wine: either so- for privative sē-, apart from, without + an adj from bria, wine-jar, or so- + ēbrius, soebrius* being eased to sōbrius. Sōbrius becomes OF-F sobre, adopted by ME, whence E sober, whence 'to sober'; derivative sōbrietās, o/s sōbrietāt-, yields, perh via OF-F sobriété, the E sobriety.

ebullience derives from ebullient, itself from L ēbullient-, o/s of ēbulliens, presp of ēbullire, to bubble- or boil-up: ē, out + bullire (s bull-), to boil (see BOIL); on ēbullit-, s of pp ēbullitus, rises ēbullitiō, o/s ēbullitiōn-, whence, prob via MF-F, the E ebullition.

écarté. See the 2nd CARD, para 9.

eccentric, eccentricity. See CENTRE, para 4.

ecclesia, ecclesiarch, ecclesiast, Ecclesiastes, ecclesiastic(al), ecclesiasticism, ecclesiology.

1. LL ecclēsia, assembly of people, esp of Christians, congregation, (E-) the Church, a church, derives from Gr ekklēsia, a political assembly of citizens, (app for ekklētia*, but cf klēsis, a summoning) from ekklētos, called out, the pp of ekkalein; kalein, to call, or summon by crier + ek-, out: kaleō, I name by calling, call by name, has r kal-, var kel-, to call, summon: cf CLAMOR and (of cattle) 'to LOW'.

2. The chief derivatives are:

ecclesiarch: LL ecclēsia + archos, for Gr arkhos a ruler; ecclesiast: perh via the OF-MF adj écclesiaste: either from LL ecclesiastēs or from Gr ekklēsiastēs, a preacher; the Biblical Ecclesiastes is a specialization; ecclesiastic (whence the -al extn ecclesiastical), adj hence n: perh via MF-F ecclesiastique, from: LL ecclesiasticus: Gr ekklēsiastikos, adj of ekklēsia; hence ecclesiasticism (-ism); ecclesiology: ecclesio-, c/f of ecclēsia + -logy (element): hence ecclesiologist (cf -logist at the element -logia).

echelon: OF-F échelon, aug of échelle, a ladder: an initial -e vocalization of L scala: f.a.e., SCALE.

echo (n hence v), echoic, echoism; sough (n hence v).

Sough, ME swough or swogh, a sound, derives from OE swōgan, to sound, akin to OS swōgan, to rustle, and Go gaswōgjan (int ga-), to sigh—and to Gr ekhos, sound, noise, itself intimately related to Gr ēkhō, sound, esp an echo, whence, via L echo, the E echo. With both sough and echo, cf the Lith svagiū, I echo: all, ult, are echoic. And echoic itself derives either from E echo or, more prob, from the LL adj echōicus; echoism=E echo+ suffix -ism.

eclair, prop éclair, is adopted from OF-F éclair: lit, a flash of lightning, éclair came, in C19, to designate a pastry, so named because 'eaten in a flash'. (Dauzat.)

éclat. See SLATE.

eclectic, eclecticism. See LEGEND.

eclipse, n hence—? influenced by MF-F éclipser—v; ecliptic, adj and n.

An eclipse, adopted from OF-F, derives from L eclipsis, trln of Gr eclipseis, lit an omission, an abandonment, from eclipsein, to leave (leipein) out (ek), to abandon: f.a.e., LEND. The derivative Gr adj eclipseitikos becomes L eclipticus, whence E ecliptic (cf F écliptique); eclipseitikos, used as n, leads to the Astr n ecliptic.

eclogue. See LEGEND, para 29.

ecology: element eco- (connoting 'environment') + -logy, q.v. at the element -logia.

economic, adj, whence economics; economical; economist, economize, economy; ecumenical; sep diocese; parish, parishioner; parochial, whence parochialism.

1. The base of all these words is Gr oikos, a dwelling place, esp a house, app for woikos*, having r woik-* and being therefore akin to L uīcus, ML vicus, and so to E village and vicinity, treated at VICINAGE (f.a.e.). For the simple word, cf the element eco-.

2. Oikos occurs in the notable cpd oikonomos, steward, with 2nd element -nomos, from nemein, to distribute (cf the element nomo-): whence oikonomia, household management, whence, via L oeconomia and perh MF-F économie, the E economy. The derivative Gr adj oikonomikos becomes L oeconomicus, whence, perh via MF-F, the E economic, with extrn economic having special sense 'thrifty'. MF-F économie has derivatives économiste and économiser: whence E economist, economize.

3. Gr oikos has derivative oikein, to live in (a house), to inhabit, with pp oikoumenos, whence oikoumenē (gē), the inhabited world, with its own adj oikoumenikos, LL oecumenicus, E ecumenic, usu in extrn ecumenical, world-wide, esp concerning the Church as a whole.

4. Oikos has the prefix-derivative adj paroikos, dwelling para or beside, whence paroikia, a sojourning, LGr a diocese, whence LL paroecia (with var parrocia), whence OF-F paroisse, whence ME-E parish; the OF-F derivative adj paroissien becomes ME parishen and then adds agential -er to form parishioner.

5. LL paroecia has the further var parochia, with adj parochiālis, whence ONF parochial, adopted by E: lit 'of a parish', hence 'confined to a parish', hence 'narrow-minded'.

écossaise. See SCOT, para 4.

ecstasy, ecstatic (adj hence n); Gallic varr extasy, extatic. See STAND, para 7.

ectoplasm. See PLASM, para 2.

Ecuador. See EQUAL.

ecumenical. See ECONOMIC, para 3.

eczema is Sci L, from Gr ekzema: ek, out+ zema, a fermentation, a boiling, from zein, to boil: f.a.e., YEAST. On the o/s ekzemat- arise the E adj eczematoid (-oid) and eczematous (-ous).

edacious, edacity. See EDIBLE.

eddy (n hence v): ME ydy: ? ON itha, from ith-, back, again (OE and OS ed-, OFris et-, Go id-, OHG ei(a)-, it(a)-), ult akin to L et, and, Gr eti, moreover, again, and Skt ati, beyond.

edelweiss: G Edelweiss, '(a flower) nobly white': edel, noble+ weiss, white: cf WHITE, para 7.

Eden (whence adj Edenic) is adopted from LL, which takes it from H 'edēn, delight, hence a place of delight, the latter deducible from H gan 'edēn, garden of delight (hence the Vulgate's paradisus uoluptātis).

edentate, toothless. See TOOTH, para 7.

edge, whence the adj edgy and also the v 'to edge', whence edger, edging.

An edge, ME eg or egge, derives from OE ecg, akin to OFris egg, OS eggia, OHG ekka, MHG-G ecke, ON egg; also to L aciēs, edge, hence a sword, and ācer, sharp (cf EAGER), Gr akē, akis, a point, and oxus, sharp, and Skt āstri, edge.

edible (whence edibility); edacious, edacity.

1. Edible derives from LL edibilis, eatable, from edere, to eat, s ed-: f.a.e., EAT. Edere has derivative adj edāx, voracious, with o/s edāc-, whence E edacious (-ious), and with derivative edācītās, o/s edācītāt-, whence E edacity.

2. Edere has two prefix-cpds relevant to E: comedere, to eat com- or entirely, and obedere. Comedere has pp comēsus, whence agent comestor, whence LL adj comestibilis, whence MF-F comestible, suitable for eating, hence the E n 'suitable food', usu in pl comestibles.

3. Obedere occurs only in pp obēsus, gnawed (prefix ob-), hence adj 'emaciated, thin' (very rare), whence, ironically, fat, whence E obese; derivative LL obēsītās, o/s obēsītāt-, yields E obesity.

edict. See DICT, para 7 at dicere.

edification, edificatory, edifice, edificial, edify (whence pa edifying).

'To edify', orig to build, hence to improve (character), derives, through ME edifien, from OE-MF edifier (F é-), from L aedificāre, for aedem facere, to make a house: aedēs, orig a hearth, akin to Gr aithein, s ait-, to burn, and OIr āed, a fire; for facere, see FACT. On the pp aedificātus, s aedificāt-, arises aedificātiō, o/s aedificātiōn-, whence, perh via OF-F, the E edification, whence, anl, the adj edificatory (-ory); on the inf s aedific- arises aedificium, a building, whence, via OF-F, the E edifice; the adj edificial comes from the derivative L aedificiālis.—Cf OAST.

edit, edition, editor (whence editorial, adj hence n).

'To edit' comes from L ēditus, pp of ēdere, to give (dare), hence put, ē or out, to publish: f.a.e., temporal DATE. On the pps ēdit- are formed both ēditio, a publishing, o/s ēditōn-, whence, prob via MF-F, the E edition, and ēditor, a putter forth, hence a publisher, adopted by E, esp for a newspaper or a textual editor.

educable, educand, educate, education, educator, etc. See DUKE, para 7.

educer, education, etc. See DUKE, para 6 at ēducere.

edulcorate. See DULCET, para 2.

Edward, whence the -ian adj (hence n) Edwardian, derives from OE Ēadward or -ward, an OE ward or defender of ēad or property.

eel: OE āel: akin to OHG-MHG āl, G Aal, and ON äll: perh akin to Gr elaion, olive oil, because of its slipperiness; IE r, el-. (Walshe.)

erie, ery, orig timid, hence that which causes timidity, esp in a ghostly way: Sc: from OE earg or earh, timid, akin to OFris erg, bad, OHG arg, MHG arc, cowardly, ON argr, timid.

efface, effacement. See FACE, para 5.

effect (n hence v), effective (adj hence n), effector, effectual; efficacious, efficacy; efficiency, efficient; ineffective, ineffectual.

1. The last two merely tack-on the neg prefix in-.

2. 'An effect', adopted from MF-EF (cf the modern effet), derives from L effectus (gen -ūs), from effect-, s of the pp of efficere, to bring about: ē, out + c/f of facere, to do or make: f.a.e., FACT. On effect- arise:

LL effectiuus, ML effectivus, whence—perh via MF-F effectif, f effective—the E effective; effector (agential -or), adopted by E. But effectual derives from ML effectuālis* (deducible from the ML adv effectuāliter), built upon the n effectus.

3. Efficere has derivative adj efficāx, o/s efficāc-, whence efficacious (-ious); whereas subsidiary efficācitās, o/s efficācitāt-, yields efficacy, subsidiary LL efficācia yields efficacy.

4. Efficere has presp efficiens, o/s efficient-, whence, prob via MF-F, the E adj efficient; derivative L efficientia yields efficiency.

effeminacy, effeminate. See FEMALE, para 1.

effendi. See AUTHENTIC, para 1.

effervesce; effervescence (or -cy); effervescent. See FERVENT, para 1.

effete: L effētus, that has brought forth young and is therefore exhausted: cf FETUS, paras 1, 2. efficacious, efficacy. See EFFECT, para 3. efficiency, efficient. See EFFECT, para 4.

effigy (whence the adj effigial): MF-F effigie: L effigies, a de-nasalized derivative of effingere, to shape (ingere) forth (e, out): f.a.e., FEIGN.

efflorescence, efflorescent. See FLORA, para 14.

effluence, effluent. See FLUENT, para 7.

effluvium. See FLUENT, para 7.

efflux. See FLUENT, para 7.

effort, effortless. See FORCE, para 8.

egg (1), n, derives, not from OE āeg (whence ME ei, ey) but from ON egg, akin to OE āeg, OHG-G ei, Crimean Go ada, OSI aje (var jaje); also to L ouum (ML ovum), Gr -ōion; IE r, out-*.

2. The 2nd element in kidney, ME kidenei, is ME ei; the 1st is o.o.o.

egg (2), to urge or incite: ME eggen: ON eggja, (lit) to put an egg, or edge, on: cf EDGE.

eglantine: EF-F églantine, orig the f, taken as n, of the EF aiglantin, adj of OF-MF aiglent: VL acuilentum*, from L aculeus, a prickle, from acus, a needle, akin to ācer, q.v. at EAGER. (B & F.)

ego, egoism, egoist, egoistic; egotism, egotist, egotistic; egocentric; egolatrous; egomania, egomaniac (adj, hence n, whence egomaniacal).—I (pronoun).

1. The pronoun I, ME i, earlier ich, earliest ic, derives from OE ic: akin to OFris, OS, Go, D ik (MD ic), OHG ih (MHG-G ich), ON ek, ik, the Gmc etymon being ika*, unstressed form of eka*; the IE etymon is ego*, var egom*, as in L egō and Gr egō (dial var egōn); cf the IE varr occurring in Skt ahām (OPer adam, Av azem)—in OLith eš (Lith as), OP es, usu as, Lett es—Arm es; Hit has both ug- and ūk, later ammuk. Note also that the syn Eg uā suggests that the word is Medit.

2. L ego, adopted by E Phil and Psy, has the foll derivatives and cpds:

egoism, F égolsme: L ego + -isme, E -ism; egoist, F égolste; L ego + -iste, E -ist; whence egoistic (-ic); egotism: L ego + -t-, as in despotism + -ism; egotist: a blend of egotism + egoist; whence egotistic (cf egoistic), with extrn ego istical (-al, adj); egocentric: L ego + -centric, q.v. at CENTER; whence egocentricity (-ity); egolatrous: L ego + the -latrous of ido atrous; egomania: Sci L: L ego + the Med c/f -mania (cf MANIA), whence egomaniac (cf maniac at MANIA).

Egypt, Egyptian (adj hence n), Egyptology (Egypt + connective -o- + -logy, q.v. at the element -logia); Gypsy, Gipsy—cf gyp or gip, to cheat; Gitano.—Copt, Coptic (adj hence n).

1. Egypt derives, via F Egypte, from L Aegyptus, itself from Gr Aiguptos, not 'the land of the aigupios or culture' but (Enci It) app from Bab Hikuptah, the very ancient city of Memphis—cf the Eg Atur, as in Atur-meh, Lower Egypt, and Atur-res, Upper Egypt.

2. Gr Aiguptos has adj Aiguptios, whence L

Aegyptius, whence F égyptien, whence ME Egyptician, Egipcian (adj and n), the former yielding E Egyptian.

3. ME Egipcian, Egyptician (both with var -ien) have the C16 aphetic derivatives, resp gipcyan, gyptian, the former yielding gipsy (or Gipsy), the latter gypsy (or Gypsy), the gi- form being the commoner. Gypsies, coming from India, sojourned long in Egypt, hence their early name Egipcian, Egyptician, C16–17 Egyptian.

4. 'To gip or gyp', to cheat, derives from gip or gyp, a swindler, very prob from gipsy, gypsy.

5. L Aegyptus, Egypt, became Sp Egipto, whence Egiptano, an Egyptian, whence gitano, a Gipsy, pl gitanos.

6. Gr Aiguptios, an Egyptian, became Coptic Guptios, with var Kuptios, whence Ar Qufi, Qibt, the Copts, whence learned L Cophtus, Coptus, the latter yielding both E Copt and learned L Copticus, whence E Coptic; the Coptic language derives (early A.D.) from Egyptian.

eider (also eider duck) comes from Ice æthr, pron aithr—cf Skt ātīl, water bird; eiderdown, via G Eiderdaune, from Ice æthardünn—cf DOWN, soft hair or feathers. (Walshc.)

eidetic; eidolon. See IDEA, para 3.

eight, eighteen, eighty.

Eight derives from OE eahta, akin to OFris achta, OS ahto, OHG ahto, MHG ahte, G acht, Go ahtau, ON átta: Gmc etymon, ahta* or ahtau*; IE etymon, oktō* or oktōu*: cf OIr ocht, L octō, Gr oktō, also Skt aṣṭa: cf OCTAVE. Eighteen=OE eahtatýne or -tēne (cf TEN); eighty=OE eahtatig (for -tig, cf TEN).

either, adj hence pron and conj and adv: ME either, earlier aither: OE æēgther, contr of æēg-hwaether, var āhwaeder, each: akin to OFris aider, eider, contr of ahwedder (cf var āuder), OHG iowedar, iohwedar, contr of ēoghweder, eigowedar, MHG ieder, contr of ieweder, G jeder: orig, each of two. The elements are OE ā (E AYE, always) and hwaether (E WHETHER).

ejaculate, ejaculation, ejaculative, ejaculator; ejaculatory; eject, ejection, ejective, ejectment, ejector.

1. L ēiaculāri (ML ej-), to throw out, derives from L ē, out+iaculāri, to throw, from iaculum, dart, javelin, from iacere (s iac-), to throw. The pp ēiaculātus, ML ējaculātus, yields 'to ejaculate'; on the pps ēiaculāri- arise the E formations ejaculation, etc., on anl of the eject- words.

2. 'To eject' derives from ML ējectus, L ēiectus, pp of ēicere, to throw out: ē, out+c/f of iacere, to throw. On the pps ēiect- arises ēiectiō, o/s ēiectiōn- (ML ēj-), whence E ejection. The other eject- words are E anl formations, with suffixes -ive, -ment, agential -or.

3. Cf JBT.

eke, adv, conj: OE ēac; akin to OFris ak, OS ōc, OHG ouh, MHG ouch, G auch, ON auk, also, and Go auk, but, moreover; also to L autem, but, Gr auge, ante, again, Skt u, and, but.

2. But Go auk is akin to Go aukan, to increase, therefore to syn OE ȝcan, ēcan, OFris aka, OS ōkian, OHG ouhōn, ON auka; also to L augēre (s aug-) and Gr auxein (s aux-, for auks-*). OE ēcan (var ȝcan) becomes ME echen, dial eken, whence E 'to eke' or increase.

elaborate (adj, v), elaboration, etc. See LABOR, para 6.

elaidic, elaidin. See OIL, para 6.

élan. See LANCE, para 5.

eland. See ELK, para 2.

elastic, adj (hence n), whence elasticity: Sci L elasticus: Gr elastikos, propulsive, springy, from elaunō (s elaun-), I drive, extn of syn elaō (PGr elamī*); akin to Arm elanem, I come, or go, forth, and perh to L alacer, lively; IE r, ela-*, to push or drive. (Boisacq.)

2. Elauñō has agent elatēr, a driver, adopted, as elater, by Bot and Zoo.

elate (adj, v), elation, elative.

Elate derives from L ēlātus, pp of efferre, to carry out or away, to lift up, ē, out+ferre, to bear or carry. On s elat- arises ēlātiō, o/s ēlātiōn-, whence, perh via EF, the E elation; elative is an E anl formation.

elater. See ELASTIC, para 2.

elation. See ELATE.

elbow (n hence v). See ELL.

eld, elder (adj), eldest. See OLD, paras 2–3.

elder (tree): ME eldre, eller: OE ellern, ellen: with Flemish and LG cognates (e.g., MLG ellern); perh akin to ALDER and therefore to ELM.

El Dorado is Sp for 'the Gilded', hence 'the Golden Land, Land of Gold': Sp dorar, to gild.

eldrich or eldritch, eery (orig Sc, with wholly Sc var elphrish): earlier elrish; from ELF.

elect (adj, v), election, elective, elector, electoral, electorate. See LEGEND, para 8.

electric, whence electrical and electricity and electrify (electric+-fy); electrocute, whence electrocution; electron; such obvious cpds (with c/f electro-) as electrode, electrolysis, electromagnetic, electromotive, electroscope, electrotype.

1. Electric derives from Sci L electricus, produced (by friction) from amber, adj of L electrum, amber, trln of Gr ēlektron (whence E electron), orig the neu of adj ēlektros, gleaming, shining, brilliant, akin to syn ēlektōr, which, used as n, denotes the sun ('the shiner'): o.o.o., but prob cf Skt ulkā, a meteor.

2. Electrocute=c/f electro-+the -cute (from L secūtus, pp of sequi, to follow) of execute.

electuary. See LICK, para 4.

eleemosynary: ML eleēmosynārius, adj of eleēmosyna: f.a.e., ALMS.

elegance, elegant. See LEGEND, para 10.

elegy, adj elegiac.

The adg comes, perh via late MF-F élégiague, from LL elegiacus, trln of Gr elegeiakos, adj of elegeia, whence, via L elegia and, prob via late

MF-F élégie, the E elegy: and Gr elegeia is elliptical for elegeia didē, mournful song, from elegeios, elegiac, from elegos, a song of mourning, accompanied on the flute: o.o.o.: origin akin to LEGEND, but prob of Asiatic origin—cf Arm elēgn-, a reed, hence a flute. (Boisacq.)

element (whence elemental), elementary.

Elementary comes from L elementārius, the -ārius adj of L elementum, usu in pl elementa, the four simple substances or principles—air, earth, fire, water—of which the physical universe was anciently supposed to consist, hence elementary knowledge, hence, in E, the forces of Nature and, in sing, a living creature's natural medium: o.o.o.: ? for elimentum* from elgmentum*, from ēligere, to choose (the fundamental substances or the basic principles) from (a welter of physical phenomena). L elementum becomes OF-MF element (later élé-), adopted by E. elephant; elephantiasis (Gr word—of the element -iasis); elephantine (L elephantinus, adj of elephantus, as below).—Ivory, adj ivorine (OF ivorin, adj of ivoire, as in para 2).

1. Elephant derives from ME elefaunt: OF-MF elefant: L elephantus (cf learned and later elephas, gen elephantis), elephant, ivory: Gr ἐλέφαντος, elephantos, gen of ἐλέφας, elephās, ivory, (later) elephant: ? orig 'the ivory beast'. The Gr elephās app consists of el-, o.o.o., perh an IE r el-*, horn (perh cf ἐλαφος, elaphos, a stag: ? 'the antlered beast'), and -εφās, -ephās, with s and r eph-, akin to L ebur, ivory, with s and r eb-, from an IE r ebh-*, ivory: ? therefore 'the beast with the ivory horns' (tusks). Both the Gr -ephas and the L ebur come from Eg abu (whence Coptic ebu, ebou), elephant, a tusk of ivory, ivory—cf Eg aab, ab, ivory. (Note that the ME var olifant is adopted from OF-MF, where it predominates over elefant, and is akin to OE olfenda, olfend, OHG olbanta, olbenta, OS olbhundeo, Go ulbandus, ON ūlfaldi, which all mean 'camel'; this ol- (var ul-) form prob indicates a 'popular channel', perh a VL oliphantus*.)

2. Ivory, present in ME, derives from AF ivorie and ONF ivurie, varr of OF-F ivoire, itself either from ML ebor, var of L ebur, ivory, or from eboreum*, neu (employed as n) of eboreus, adj of ebur, o/s ebor-.

3. The crux obviously lies in the 1st element: el-, which cannot be the Ar article 'the', el (var al), which did not, by many centuries, exist so early as Gr elephās. Now, the el- of the Gr word is prob akin to Skt ibha-, elephant, rather than to Berber elu; nevertheless, elu and ibha (therefore Gr ἐλ-), as well as Akk pīlu, later H pīl, and Ar fīl, are ult of prob the one origin, as Professor M. Cohen has suggested in Essai comparatif sur le Chamito-Sémitique, p. 170.

4. Subsidiarily, yet importantly, one must remember that the two kinds of elephant—the Indian and the African—were known to the ancients: the former being recorded in Skt as ibha- and in Gr as ἐλ- (el-), and presumably also in the Akk, later H, Ar, as pīlu, pīl, fīl; the latter as Eg abu or ebu, the Berber elu; Berber elu is basically Hamitic, being perh independent but prob a blend of the Akk (and H and ? Ar) and the Eg words.

5. The Gr ἐλέφας, elephās, is therefore both a phonetic and a semantic duplicate, consisting of the Indian elephant and the African elephant and their names: the one with an IE (app from Sem) origin, the other with a Ham origin (? influenced by Sem). These facts rather point to Gr ἐλέφας being a very old word indeed, with the Sem and the Ham origins becoming lost at some point in what was, for the Greeks, pre-history.

elevate, elevation, elevator, elevatory. See LEVER, para 8.

eleven, eleventh; 'elevenes'. See ONE, final para. elf (pl elves), elfin, elfish or elvish.

1. The 4th softens the 3rd; the 3rd=elf+adj -ish; the 2nd prob=elfen (-en, adj suffix); and elf derives from OE aelf, var ylf, akin to the syn ON aelfr, ālf, and to MHG-G alp, a nightmare; perh cf ALB, but prob (Walshe) cf Skt rbhūś, a cunning artist (name of a genie).

2. The ON ālf yields oaf (earlier, also auf), an elf's child, hence a changeling, hence an uncouth child, hence a dolt, a lout. Hence the adj oafish.

Eliza, Elizabeth (whence Elizabethan); Elise; Liza, Liz, Lizzie; Betty, betty.

Eliza (cf the F Élise) shortens Elizabeth: LL Elisabeth: LGr Elisabeth, Elisabet: H Elisheba, lit 'God is (an) oath', hence consecrated to God. Liza is a pet-form of either Eliza or Elizabeth, and Liz—whence Lizzie—a further shortening; Bet, whence Betty, comes from the -beth of Elizabeth and has the humorous derivative (orig underworld) betty, a short bar used by thieves—cf the syn jemmy or jimmy.

elk; eland; lamb (n hence v).

1. An elk comes from ON elgr, akin to OE eolh and OHG elaho, MHG elhe, G Elch, elk, and ult to Skt ṛśya, antelope.

2. Eland is adopted from D eland, elk (MD elant, elen), akin to—perh from the MHG form of—G Elend, extn Elentier, elk, MHG elen, for elhen*, from an oblique case of MHG elhe (Walshe), from OHG elaho; akin also to Lith elnis, elk, and to Gr ellos, deer.

3. Lamb descends direct from OE lamb, var lomb: intimately related to the syn OHG, OS, ON lamb, and to Go lamb, a sheep; perh related to Gr elaphos, ellos, deer, and to Lett lōps, cattle.

ell; elbow.

An elbow, lit an arm-bend, derives from OE elboga, var of elnboga, akin to OHG ellinbogo, MHG ellenboge, G Ellenbogen, Ellbogen, and ON ölnbogi. For the 2nd element, see bow, to bend. The 1st element is OE eln, the forearm, hence an ell, ME eln, later elne, latest ellen, whence E ell: akin to OFris elne; to OHG elina, MHG elene, later—'the radical -n being taken as an inflexional ending' (Walshe), ? as in ME—ele, whence G Elle; to Go aleina; to ON alin; also to L ulna (s uln-), the forearm, hence the distance from elbow to wrist—an ell; to Gr ólenē (s ólen-); cf OIr uile (gen uilenn), Ga uileann, W and Cor elin, OC olēn*-, and, more remotely, Skt aratnis, elbow, ell, and several SI words.

ellipse, ellipsis, ellipsoid; elliptic, with -al extr elliptical.

Elliptic derives, perh via EF-F elliptique, from Gr elliptikos, adj of elleipsis, a leaving, a falling short, from elleipein, to leave (leipein) in (el- for en): for leipein, cf LEND. Gr elleipsis becomes L ellipsis (adopted by E), pl ellipses, whence, by b/f, ellipse, whence, by suffix -oid, ellipsoid.

elm, direct from OE, is akin to OHG-MHG elmboum (G Baum, tree) and ON almr, themselves akin to L ulmus (s ulm-) and—? a metathesis—MÍr lem, Ga leamhan (but Cor elan).

elocution, whence elocutionary and elocutionist; eloquence, eloquent. See LOQUACIOUS, para 4.

elongate, elongation. See LONG, para 11.

elope, elopement. See LEAP, para 4.

eloquence, eloquent. See LOQUACIOUS, para 4.

else (adj hence adv): OE elles, otherwise, prob orig the gen of a Gmc adj akin to L alius: cf OHG elles, otherwise, and Go aljis, other: cf also OIr aile and Gr allos, other, and cognates in Tokh A and B and in Arm; IE etymon, alios*. Cf ALIAS.

elucidate, elucidation, elucidatory. See the 3rd LIGHT, para 15.

elude, elusive. See LUDICROUS, para 6.

elute, elution; elutriate. See LAVA, para 9, s.f.

Elysian, Elysium; Champs Elysées.

Elysian substitutes -an for L -us in Elysium, Elysian, of Elysium, trln of Gr Élusion, elliptical for Elusion pedion, Elysian field, which, in L, became elysii campi, whence LL elysei campi, whence F champs élysées (C14, c. elisies), finally bestowed upon the finest avenue in Paris. The Gr élusion (ἑλύσιον) perh derives from the Gr r eluth-, as in Homeric éluthon, preterite of eleathō, I come or arrive: 'the field-of arrival' in the Gr heaven.

elytroid, elytron. See VOLUBLE, para 5.

emaciate, emaciation.

1. The latter derives, by anl, from the former; the former, from L emaciātus, pp of emaciāre, to render lean: int ē+maciāre, to render lean, from maciēs, leanness, itself from macer, lean (cf aciēs, sharp edge, and ācer, sharp), r mac-, akin to Gr makros, long, s makr-, r mak-, and to Hit maklanza, thin, lean, r mak-; IE r, mak-* or mek-*.

2. L macer becomes OF maigre (extant), meigre; the latter is adopted by ME—hence E meagre, AE meager.

emanate, emanation, emanative.

'To emanate' derives from L ēmānātus, pp of ēmānāre, to trickle out: ē, out †mānāre, to trickle (s mān-), hence to distil; subsidiary LL ēmānātiō, o/s ēmānātiōn-, yields E emanation; emanative is an anl E formation. L mānāre app derives from a n akin to EIr moin, a marsh, peat-bog, fen, Ga mōine, a morass, peat, W mawn, peat.

emancipate, emancipation, etc. See CAPABILITY, para 8 (at manceps).

emarginate, emargination. See MARK, para 8.

embark, embarkation. See 3rd BARK, para 3.

embarrass, embarrassment. See BAR, para 7.

embassy; ambassador (whence both ambassador, cf F ambassadrice, and ambassadorial, with aj suffix -ial).

Ambassador merely anglicizes MF-F ambassadeur, itself from It ambasciatore, from OProv ambaissador, answering to OProv ambaissada, whence It ambasciata, whence OF ambassee, whence E embassy. OProv ambaissada derives from O Prov ambaissa*, answering to ML ambactia (var ambascia), of Gmc origin: cf Go andbakti, OHG ambahti (G Amt, function), service, function, itself of C origin; cf Gaul ambactos* (Caesar's ambactus), servant, client, vassal, W amaeth, ploughman, husbandman (cf Cor amēthy, to till), Cor omagier, vassal. Cf also ML abantonia, maidservant, and L ambāgēs, a going about (see AMBIGUOUS). Note that Gaul ambactos* is for ambiactos*, from ambi, about, around, the L ambi, on both sides, all around; the C r is amb*, on both sides, around. Basic idea: one who goes about (husbandman) or is sent about (servant, vassal, ambassador).

embellish, embellishment. See BEAU, para 4.

ember (1), adj, as in Ember days: ME ymer: OE ymer, Ember days, app a confusion of L quattuor tempora or (iēiūnia) quattuor temporum, (fast of) the four seasons, the days of fast appointed by the Church for each of the four seasons of the year (cf the G Quatember, Ember days: L quattuor tempora), with OE ymbryne, a running about, a circuit, a cpd of ymb, about, around (L ambi: therefore cf AMBASSADOR)+ryne, a running, from rinnan, to RUN.

ember (2), a lighted coal, esp embers, smouldering remains of a fire: ME eymbre, earlier emer, aymer: OE āemerge: akin to OHG eimuria and ON eimyrja, ember, and ON eimr, steam; and prob to Gr heuein (s heu-), to singe.

embezzle—whence embezzlement (-ment) and embezzler (agential -er)—comes from MF embesillier: o.o.o.; perh from VL (? rather ML) imbecillāre*, to render feeble, from LL imbēcillāri, to be feeble, from L imbēcillus (or -is), feeble: f.a.e., IMBECILE. Basic idea: to enfeeble (someone) financially—by cheating him.

emblem: L emblēma, inlaid work, gen emblēmatis, o/s emblēmatis: Gr emblēma, gen emblem- matos, from emballein, to throw in, hence put on: em- for en, in+ballein, to throw: cf BALLISTIC. Emblematic derives from a probable LL emb-lēmaticus*; emblematize is an anl E formation. For blem- (Gr -blēma), cf PROBLEM; for Gr emballein, cf EMBOLISM.

embodiment, embody. See BODY.

embolism: LL embolismus; Gr embolismos, from emballein, to throw in, to insert: cf EMBLEM.

embonpoint. See PUNGENT, para 23.

emboss. See the 1st BOSS.

embrace, v hence n; hence also embracement (-ment). 'To embrace' comes from OF-MF embracer (F embrasser): em- for en, in+brace, the two arms (cf BRACE)+inf -er.

embrasure, adopted from EF-F, derives from EF embraser, later ébraser, to enlarge (an opening): perh from OF-F embraser, earlier braser, to set alight, from OF breze, later braise, fire: cf BRAZIER. The sem development is obscure. (B & W.)

embrocation, adopted from MF-F, derives from embrocation-, o/s of ML embrocātiō, from embrocāt-, s of embrocātus, pp of LL embrocāre, to treat with moist dressings, from LL embroca (var embroce), embrocha, a moist dressing, from Gr embrokḗ, lit a sprinkling, hence a lotion, from embrekhein, to foment: em- for en, in+brekhein, to wet, to moisten; cognates in Lett and Cz.

embroider, embroidery. See BROIDER.

embroid, embroidery. See the 2nd BROIL.

embryo; for cpds, see the element embryo-.

Embryo, adopted from ML, derives from ML embryon: Gr embruon, from en, in+bruein (s bru-), to swell, perh akin to ON brum, a bud, with IE r bhreu-*, to swell. Embryonic has been influenced by MF-F embryon, embryo.

emend, emendation. See MENDICANT, para 3.

emerald: ME emeraude: MF esmeraude (F émeraude): OF esmeralde: VL smaraldus, an easement of L smaragdus: Gr snaragdos, int of Gr maragdos: app from India, for cf Prakrit magarada, Skt marakata: ? ult Sem, for cf H bāreqeth, ? 'the glistener', from bāraq, to glisten, and Akk barrakta, emerald.

emerge, emergent, emergence, emergency. See MERGE, para 3.

emeritus. See MERIT, para 3.

emersion. See MERGE, para 3.

emery, smear.

Emery=late MF-F émeri, earlier esmeril: It smeriglio: Gr smiris, smiris, (the basic form) smuris, akin to Gr muron, unguent: IE r,smor-, var smēr-: cf ON smyr, fat, butter, OHG smero, grease, OHG-MHG smirwen (G schmierer), ON smyrva, to smear, Go smaithr, fatness (cf Lith smarsas, fat), OIr smir, marrow; perh also L medulla, marrow. The OE cognate smeoru, or smeru, grease, fat, becomes ME smere, whence E smear, n; 'to smear' derives from OE smerian, from the OE n.

 angular—equidistance (perh from OF équidistance) and equidistant (EF-F équidistant, LL aequidistans, o/s -distant-: cf DISTANCE)—equilateral (EF-F équi- latéral, ML aequaliterālis, from LL aequaliterus: cf LATERAL)—equipoise (cf POISE)—equipollent (MF-F équipollent, L aquipollens, o/s -pollent-: L pollēre, to be powerful: ? akin to posse, to be able)—equipotential (cf POTENT)—equivalent (MF-F équivalent, LL aequalens, o/s -ualent, ML
-valent-, from aequalēre, to have equal power: cf

VALUE) and equivalence (via MF-F équivalence from ML aequivalentia—equivocal (LL aequiuocus, ML -vocus: cf VOICE) and equivocate (ML aequivocatus, pp of aequivocāre, to call by the same name, from LL aequiuocus) and, perh via MF-EF, equivocation (ML aequivocātiō, o/s -vocation-: from the ML pp) and equivoque (MF-F adj, hence, EF-F n, équivoque, from LL aequiuocus, ML -vocus).

1. The key to all these words is the L aequus, (of ground, etc.) even, (of things, then of abstracts) equal: o.o.o.; but perh (Webster) of Lith aikstus, level, wide, for aequus has s and r aequ-, and the IE r is perh aikw-; which, esp if aikw- is for waikw-, the etymon being aikwos, ? for waikwos*, leads one to surmise a possible kinship to Gr isos (s and r is-), Arcadian and Cretan wiswos*, s and r wisw-*.

2. L aequus has the following derivatives relevant to E: aequālis; aequāre (pp aequātus, derivative adj, aequābilis); aequitās; and c/f aequi- (becoming E equi-).

3. L aequālis becomes E equal; its subsidiary aequālītās becomes MF-EF égalité, whence E equality; its opp, L inaequālītās, becomes MF inequalitē, whence E inequality; E equalize derives from EF equaliser, which=EF equal+-iser (L -izāre).

4. aequālis becomes OF-EF equal, whence F égal, whence égalité, equality, whence égalitaire, whence E egalitarian.

5. L aequus has derivative v aequāre (vt), to level, to render equal, hence to equal, to equalize. Its pp aequātus yields 'to equate'; subsidiary L aequātīō, o/s aequātīōn-, yields equation, and subsidiary agent LL aequātor, an equalizer, becomes E equator (cf the MF-F équateur). Also from aequāre derives aequābilis, equal in all its parts, capable of being equalled or equalized, hence equitable, (of temper) constant: whence E equable. Derivative aequābilitās becomes E equability.

6. L aequus has the further derivative aequitās, 'equalness', but usu in the sense of its E (via MF-F équitē) derivative equity; MF équitē (F équitē) has the EF derivative équitable, whence E equitable. The neg inequitable is adopted from EF inequitable, itself from EF inequitē, whence E inequity—contrast iniquity, ME iniquitee, OF-F iniquité, L iniquitās (o/s iniquitāt-), unevenness of ground, hence general inequality, from iniquus, uneven, hence of unequal, hence unfair, dealing: in-, not+-iquus, c/f of aequus. The E iniquitous=iniquity+adj suffix -ous; contrast MF-F inique, direct from L iniquus.

7. The L aequāre of para 5, with its pp aequātus, has a cpd adaequāre, to render truly level or equal, ad- (to) being int; its pp adaequātus yields E adequate, whence adequacy—cf accuracy from accurate. E forms the neg inadequate, whence inadequacy.

8. The (except to a 'Classic') non-obvious cpds of prime importance are these:
equanimity, EF équanimité, L aequanimitās (o/s -animitāt-), from L aequanimis, of an equal animus or mind or spirit; from the LL var aequanimus comes the E equanimous; equilibrate, LL aequilibrātus, equally balanced, from LL aequilibrāre, to balance equally, from libra, a balance (cf LIVRE); derivative LL aequilibrātīō, o/s -librātīōn-, yields E equilibration; derivative ML aequilibrātor becomes E equilibrator which prompts the adj equilibratory; equilibrium, L aequilibrium, from aequilibris, equally balanced, from libra; L aequilibrium becomes EF-F équilibre, whence F équilibrisme, whence the E equilibrist, a tight-rope walker; equinox, (perh via MF-F équinoxe, from) L aequinoctium, night (nox: cf NOCTURNAL) equal to day, with adj aequinoctiālis, whence E equinoctial.

essay (n and v), essayist; assay (n, v), whence assayer, assaying.

1. An essay=OF essai, a trial, an attempt, EF the literary composition, from OF-F essayer, to weigh, test, attempt, whence E 'to essay': and OF essayer derives, via VL exagiāre*, from LL exagium, a weighing, hence a balance and also a fig testing, prob with ref to L exigere in its sense 'to weigh', but imm from Gr exagion, an assaying or testing. Cf EXACT and see ACT.—Essayist attaches agential -ist to E essay, n and v.

2. OF essayer (essaier) has ONF var assaier, whence 'to assay'; derivative ONF asai or assai yields the E n assay.

esse, in; essence, essential (adj hence n), essentiality; quintessence, quintessential—adsum—interest (n and v), whence pa interested and pa interesting; disinterest (n, v), pa disinterested; uninteresting—absence, absent (adj, v), absentee, and presence, present (adj, n, v), presentable, presentation, presentative, with represent, representation, representative (adj hence n); prosit; entity—is.

1. The phrase in esse, in actual as opposed to potential being, exemplifies the L esse, to be, contr of essere: es+euphonic -s+inf suffix -ere. The r es- is very widely represented in the IE languages—Gr, L, Gmc, Sl, Skt, Hit, etc.—and is linked with ETYMOLOGY and SOOTH: that which is, exists; that which exists, is true.

2. Esse lacks both presp and pp; but presp essens*, o/s essent-, is presupposed in certain words, and presp ens is a Phil creation (see para 12). On essent- is formed L essentia, being, whence OF-F, whence E, essence; its derivative LL adj essentiālis (of, by, for being) yields OF-F essentiel and E essential, whence the neg inessential; subsidiary LL essentiālitās, o/s essentiālitāt-, yields essentiality.

3. The fifth (and last, as well as the supreme) essence, i.e. power, of a natural body was, in medieval scholastic philosophy, known in ML as quinta (fifth) essentia: whence MF quinte essence, whence F quintessence, adopted by E, with adj quintessential—obviously after essential.

4. L esse has several prefix-cpds relevant to E: abesse, adesse, interesse, praeesse, prodesse.

5. Abesse, to be ab or away, has presp absens, where -sens is influenced by sum, I am; the o/s is absent-, whence, via MF-F, the E adj absent; derivative absentia passes through MF-F to become E absence. MF-F absent has derivative MF-F (s)absenter, whence 'to absent oneself', whence absentee.

6. Adesse, to be ad or at, hence present, has adsum, I am here.

7. Interesse, to be inter or between, hence to be vitally concerned, hence to be important, esp in (e.g., mihī) interest, it is important—of interest—to (e.g., me): whence, via MF-EF interest (F intérêt), with intervention of ML interesse, usury (also, compensation), the EE interest, E interest. EE interest has derivative 'to interest', whence, via the pp interest'd, the E 'to interest'.

8. Praeesse, to be prae or before, hence in view, has presp praesens (with -sens as in absens), o/s praesent-, whence, via OF-MF (F pré-), the E adj present; from the n use of the OF-MF present comes the E n; the L derivative praesentāre becomes OF-MF presenter (F prés-) whence 'to present'. OF-MF presenter has derivative presentable, adopted by E. L praesentāre, pp praesentātus, has derivative praesentiō, o/s praesentiōn-, whence, via MF, the E presentation. Presentative is an E anl formation.

9. Praesentāre has subsidiary repraesentāre, whence OF-MF representer (F repré-), whence 'to represent'. Derivative L repraesentiō, o/s repraesentiōn-, passes through MF-F to become E representation, with derivatives representational, representationism, etc. The ML repraesentiō becomes, perh via EF-F, representative.

10. Like adesse, prōdesse (to be prō or forward, to be for, hence to be useful) affects E in a survival: Prosit, May he prosper, esp as a toast.

11. Disinterest, n, v=dis+E interest, n, v. The v yields disinterested, free of ulterior motives.

12. The Phil presp ens, as in para 2, has o/s ent- and is used as a Phil n (gen entis, pl entia), thing, material object; derivative ML entitās, o/s entitāt-, yields—perh via EF-F entité—the E entity. Cf Gr ta onta, existing—hence real—things, as in ontology: indeed, the L presp ens was created to translate the Gr presp ōn, gen ontos.

13. Akin to L est, he is, hence to syn Gr esti and Skt asti, is the E (from OE) is: cf OFris and OS is, and Go ist; also Lith est or esti, and Hit ēszi.

esteem (v hence n); estimable; estimate (v hence n), estimation, estimative.

L aestimāre, to fix the price or the value of, or to calculate it, has s aestim-; the L derivation from aes, brass, hence money, is prob the correct one. Aestimāre becomes MF-F estimer, whence 'to esteem'. L derivatives include aestimābilis, whence, prob via MF-F, the E estimable, and aestimātiō, o/s aestimātiōn-, whence, via MF-F, the E estimation; E estimative is an anl formation. Aestimātiō is built upon aestimāt-, s of the pp aestimātus, whence 'to estimate'.

ethane=ether+Chem -ane.

ether; ethereal, whence ethereality and etherealize; etherize; ester.

1. Ester is a G blend of āther, ether+saure, acid: āther=L aether, whence E ether: aether=Gr aithēr, the upper air, clear sky, whence imaginatively by Sci for the liquid and the anaesthetic. Gr aithēr (s aith-) is akin to aithēin (s aith-), to burn brightly, and to Skt īdhryás, of or like the brilliance of a clear sky; IE r, aidh-*, to burn. Cf ESTUARY.

2. 'To etherize'=ether+-ize; but ethereal substitutes -al for -eous and derives from L aethereus, var of aetherius, trln of Gr aithērios, the adj of aithēr.

ethic, obsol adj—now usu ethical—and current n, now usu ethics (cf mathematics, politics, etc.); ethicize (ethic, adj+-ize); ethos.

Ethic, n, derives, via MF-F éthique and L ēthica, from Gr ēthika, ēthikē, elliptical for ēthikē tekhnē, the moral art, from the adj ēthikos (whence, via L ēthicus and EF-F éthique, the E adj ethic)—itself from ēthos, character, whence L ēthos, adopted by E, esp in sense 'character and spirit of a people': intimately akin to Gr ethos, custom, Skt svadhā (IE r suedh-*), prop one's own doing or action: sva, self (cf suicide)+dhā, to set.

Ethiop, an Abyssinian: L Aethiops: Gr Aithiops, prob from aithēin, to burn+ōps, face: 'a sunburnt, hence swarthy, man'. The derivative Gr adj Aithiopios accounts for Aithiopia (khōra), whence L Aethiopia (regiō), the E Ethiopia; and syn Gr Aithiopikos becomes L Aethiopicus, whence E Ethiopic. The E adj and n Ethiopian app derives from Ethiopia. Gr Aithiops, however, is perh f/e for Eg dthiū-dbu, robbers of hearts, ? conquerors, from āthu, robber, conqueror.

ethnic (with extn ethical); c/f ethno-, q.v. for ethnology, etc.

Ethnic, racial, derives, via L ethnicus, from Gr ethnikos, the adj of ethnos, a nation, a race, prob akin to ēthos, character, and ethos, custom (qq.v. at ETHIC), their s and r being ēth- and ethnos prob consisting of r eth-+infix -n-+formative -o-+nom -s; perh cf Hit udnē, udni, or utne, utni. etymology, etymological, etymologist, etymologize; etymon.

Etymon, the orig form of a word, is L etymon, trln of Gr etumon, the 'true' or lit sense of a word adjudged by its origin, prop the neu of etumos, real, hence true, an extn of syn eteos, intimately akin to etazein (s etaz-), to prove, to establish as true, with r et-, formed by psilosis from IE set-, etymon setos, being, existing, therefore true: cf ESSE and SOOTH.

Etymon, Gr etumon, c/f etumo-, figures in the notable cpd etymology: OF-F étymologie: L etymologia: Gr etumologia: etumo-+-logia, discourse, c/f from logos, word, speech (f.a.e., LOGIC). The derivative Gr adj etumologikos becomes L etymologicus, whence EF-F étymologique and E etymological; OF-F étymologie has derivatives EF-F étymologiser and EF-F étymologiste, whence E etymologize, etymologist.

eucalypt (approx, gum-tree) anglicizes Sci L Eucalyptus: Gr eu-, well+kaluptos, covered, the pp of kaluptein (s kalupt-), to cover or conceal: cf CALYPSO. The buds are well covered.

Eucharist, eucharistic. See YEARN, para 2.

euchre, orig AE (euker, 1841; euchre, 1845), with v senses deriving from the n, is variously said to be G (etymon carefully unnamed) and F (écarté corrupted!) and o.o.o. At a mere guess, I propose derivation from EUREKA: cf, sem, the origin of card-game snap.

Euclidean (or -ian) is the adj of Euclid: L Euclides: Gr Eukleidēs, ? 'The Glorious', app a mdfn of eukleios*, glorious, attested by Eukleios, epithet of Zeus. The famous Gr geometer flourished c300 B.C.

eugenic (whence eugenics, eugenist, etc.): Gr eugenēs, well-born: eu, well+-genēs, c/f of genos, offspring, race, stock: cf GENERAL, para 2.

2. OE āefre becomes ME aefre, later ever, extant in E: it is prob a mdfn or extn of ā, always, cf OHG io or eo, G je, ever.

3. OE āefre, ever + āelc, each (cf EACH), combine in ME to form everilk, everich, later everi and, as in E, every.

4. OE gehwāer (int ge + hwāer, where) becomes ME ihwer, which occurs also in the ME phrase ever ihwer, very soon apprehended as every where, whence E everywhere.

eversion, evert. See VERSE, para 15.

every; everywhere. See EVER, paras 3 and 4.

evict, eviction. See VICTOR, para 5.

evidence (whence evidential), evident. See VIDE, para 14.

evil (adj hence n): ME evil, evel, ifel, ufel: OE yfel, yfil: cf OFris evel (adj and n), OS ubil, OHG ubil, MHG-G übel, Go ubils, MD evel, D euvel: o.o.o., but perh akin to OVer (OE ofer) and UP (OE up, upp); 'basic idea: transgressing' (Webster).

evince. See VICTOR, para 5.

eviscerate, evisceration. See VISCERA, para 3.

evitable; inevitable, inevitability.

1. Evitable, avoidable, comes, perh via OF-F, from ML ēvitābilis, L ēvitābilis, from ēvitāre, to avoid: ē, out of, used int + uitāre, to avoid, s uit-, perh (E & M) a freq of uiere (s ui-), to weave or plait.

2. L ēvitābilis has neg inēvitābilis, ML inēv-, whence (perh via late MF-F) inevitable, whence anl inevitability.

evocable, evocation, evocative, evocatory, evoke. See VOCABLE, para 10.

evolute, evolution, evolutionary; evolve. See VOLUBLE, para 4.

evulse, evulsion. See VELLICATE, para 6.

ewe: OE ēwe, usu ēowu: akin to syn OHG ouw or ou MD ooye, oye, ooy, D ooi, and to Go awēthi (? s awe-), a flock of sheep; to ON aer, ewe; to OIr oi, ewe, óisc, sheep (Ga disg); to L ouis, Gr ois (for owis*), Skt ávis, a sheep, esp a ewe—cf OSl ovinū, ram, ovica, ewe, Lith avis, ewe: IE etymon, ouis*, s oui*, r ou*-; Gmc etymon, awi*. ewer. See aqua, para 4. exacerbate, exacerbation.

The latter comes from LL exacerbātiōn-, o/s of exacerbātiō, formed on exacerbāt-, s of exacerbātus—whence 'to exacerbate'—pp of exacerbāre, to irritate very much: int ex + acerbāre, to irritate, from acerbus, extn of acer, bitter: f.a.e., EAGER.

exact, adj, derives from L exactus (prop, a pp), precisely weighed or determined, precise, from exigere, to weigh, to achieve, but also to drive out, hence to cause to come out, whence, via the pp exactus, the E 'to exact', the derivative L exactiō, o/s exactiōn-, yielding, via MF-F, the E exaction. L exigere=ex, out, here partly int+igere, a c/f of agere, to drive: f.a.e., ACT. Exactitude, adopted from EF-F, is an -itude derivative from F exact. Exactive=ML exactivus, LL exactivus, extn of adj exactus.—Cf EXAMINE.

2. L exigere has presp exigens, o/s exigent-, whence E exigent; derivative ML exigentia yields exigency; exigence is adopted from MF-F exigence. Exigere (s exig-) has derivative adj exiguus, strictly weighed, hence too strictly weighed, whence E exiguus; subsidiary L exiguitās, o/s exiguitāt-, yields exiguity.

exaggerate, exaggeration, exaggerative, exaggerator.

'To exaggerate' comes from L exaggerātus, pp of exaggerāre, to heap up: ex, out (of)+aggerāre, to heap, from agger, a heap, from aggerere, to bring (gerere, s ger-) to (ag- for ad): f.a.e., GERUND. On pps exaggerāt- arise exaggerātiō, o/s exaggerātiōn-, whence E exaggeration (cf the EF-F exagération); LL exaggerātiuus (ML -ivus), whence exaggerative; LL exaggerātor, an increaser or a spreader, whence E exaggerator (cf EF-F exagérateur).

exalt, exaltation.

'To exalt' comes, via OF-F exalter, from L exaltāre, to raise high: ex, out of, used int+altus, high+inf suffix -āre: f.a.e., ALTITUDE. The derivative LL exaltātiō, o/s exaltātiōn-, yields, via MF-F, the E exaltation.

examine (whence examinee, examiner, examining), examination.

'To examine'=MF-F examiner: L examināre, from examen, the needle or tongue of a balance, hence a weighing, a control, an examination: exagsmen* (? rather exagmen*), from exigere, to weigh: cf EXACT, para 2, and for the r, ACT. On examināt-, s of the pp examinātus, is formed examinātiō, o/s examinātiōn-, whence E examination.

Exaudi. See AUDIBLE, para 4.

ex cathedra. See CHOIR, para 1.

excavate, excavation. See CAVE, para 3.

exceed. See CEDE, para 7.

excel, excellence, excellency, excellent; excelsior.

L excellere, to rise above—whence, perh via EF-F exceller, 'to excel'—is simply to rise (-cellere) out of (ex), hence above, hence above others: f.a.e., HILL. The L presp excellens, o/s excellēt-, becomes OF-F excellent, adopted by E; its derivative excellētia yields, directly, the E excellency and, via OF-F, the E excellence. The pp excelsus, used as adj, has comp excelsior, higher, loftier, hence the motto Excelsior, ever upward, ever higher.

except (prep, v), exception, exceptional. See CAPABILITY, para 7.

excerpt (v hence n)—whence excerptive, excerptor—comes from L excerpius, pp of excerpere, to extract: ex, out of+carpere, to pluck, to gather (fruit): f.a.e., HARROW. Derivative L excerptiō, o/s excerptiōn-, yields excerption.

excess, excessive. See CEDE, para 7.

exchange, exchangeable. See CHANGE, para 4.

exchequer. See CHECK, para 2.

excise, a duty levied upon goods (hence excise-man), is o.o.o.; but prob from MD excijis, var of accijis, assijis: OF acceis, var of accens: VL accensus*, from accensāre, to tax: ad, to+census, a tax+inf suffix -āre; f.a.e., CENSUS. B & W prefer to derive MD accijis, assijis, from OF-F assise, a tax, itself from asseoir, to seat: cf ASSIZE.

excitable, excite, excitement. See CITE, para 3.

exclaim; exclamation, exclamatory. See CLAIM, para 7.

exclude; exclusion, exclusive.

'To exclude' derives from L excludere, to shut (-cludere, c/f of cludere) out (ex): cf CLAUSE. The pp exclūsus, s exclūs-, has derivatives exclūsio, o/s exclūsion-, whence (perh via MF-F) the E exclusion, and ML exclūsivus, whence (perh via late MF-F exclusif) the E exclusive.

excogitate, excogitation, etc. See COGITATE, para 2.

excommunicate, excommunication. See COMMON, para 4.

excoriate, excoriation. See CUIRASS, para 2.

excrement. See EXCRETE, para 2.

excrecence, excrement. See CRESCENT, para 7. excrete, excretion, excretive, excretory; excrement, whence adj excremental, excrementitious.

1. L excernere, to sift (cernere: cf CERTAIN) out (ex), has Med sense 'to evacuate'. The pp excrētus yields 'to excrete'; its neu pl excrēta, used as n, is adopted by Med; but excretion (cf EF-F excrétion), excretive, excretory (cf EF-F excrétoire) are anl E formations.

2. Med excernere has derivative excrémentum, whence, prob via EF-F excrément, the E excrement.

excruciate, excruciation. See CROSS, para 4.

exculpate, exculpation. See CULPABLE, para 3.

excurrent. See COURSE, para 10.

excursion, excursive, excursus. See COURSE, para 10, at excurrere.

excreable, excrete, excretion. See SACRAMENT, para 17.

executant, execute, execution (whence executioner), executive (adj hence n), executor, executrix. See SEQUENCE, para 9. exegesis, exegete, exegetic(al). See SEEK, para 8.

exemplar, exemplary, exemplify. See para 5 of:

exempt (adj, v), exemption (in para 4); emption, emptor; preemptory; pre-empt, -emption, -emptive; premium; prompt (adj, n, v), prompter, promptitude, promptness, promptuary—cf pronto and impromptu; redemption, redemptive, Redemptorist, redemptory—cf redeem, whence redeemable (neg irredeemable) and The Redeemer (cf ransom (n, v)—cf also irredentism, irredentist; sample (n, hence v), sampler (para 5)—ensample—example (n, hence v, whence, in turn, unexampled), exemplar, exemplary, exemplify, exemplification (para 5); cf, sep, the as-, con-, pre-, re-, sub-sume vv and their corresp nn in -sumption and adj in -sumptive.

1. At the base of all these words: L emere, (orig) to take, esp to take for—in exchange for—money, hence to buy: akin to OSi imō, Lith imù, I take, and Lith imti, OP imt, to take; C affords several cognates; the European (rather than IE) r is app em-*, to take.

2. L emere, to buy, has pp emptus, s empt-, whence both emptiō, a buying, a purchase, o/s emptiōn-, whence E emtion, and agent emptor, as in Caveat emptor, let the purchaser beware!

3. Several L prefix-cpds are relevant to E: eximere, perimere, prae-emere*, prōmere, redimere.

4. Eximere, to take aside (ex, out of), hence to put aside, hence to remove, to chase away, to deliver, to free. Its pp exemptus yields the MF-F adj exempt, adopted by E; MF-F exempt has the MF-F derivative v exempter, whence 'to exempt'; derivative L exemptiō, o/s exemptiōn-, yields—perh via MF exempcion, EF-F exemption, the n exemption.

5. Eximere, pp exemptus, has a derivative exemplum, whence MF-ĒF example (F exemple), adopted by E. The earlier essample (OF) has var ensample, whence E ensample, whence 'to ensample'; OF essample also becomes ME asample, later—by aphasis—sample, adopted by E, whence 'to sample'. L exemplum has derivative adj exemplāris, whence both the E exemplary and the L n exemplar, adopted by E; L exemplar becomes OF esemplaire, essamplaire, whence, by aphasis, the ME sampler, whence E sampler, orig a pattern. Exemplum has the ML cpd exemplificāre (facere, to make), whence 'to exemplify'; derivative exemplificātiō, o/s -ficiātiōn-, yields exemplification.

6. Perimere, to take thoroughly (per, through, used int), to destroy, has pp peremptus, s perempt-, whence peremptōrius, destructive, (in Law) decisive, final, whence peremptory.

7. Prae-emere*, to take before (prae), has derivative prae-emium*, whence L praemium, the first-fruits (of booty) offered to the victory-granting divinity or to the victorious general before the distribution of spoil takes place, hence legitimate reward, profit; hence the E premium.

8. Prae-emere* links with F prēemption and the prob independent E pre-emption, whence, by b/f, 'to pre-empt' and, by anl, pre-emptive and pre-emptory.

9. Prōmere, to take—hence, put—forward (prō), hence to bring up to date, to publish, to express, has pp promptus, used also as adj, rendered available, readily available, hence agile, prompt; hence MF-F prompt, adopted by E, with derivative nn prompt, promptness, and derivative ME prompten, whence 'to prompt', whence prompter.

L promptus, adj, has derivatives LL promptiūdō, whence late MF-F, then E, promptitude (cf the suffix -itude), and LL promptuariū, available, with neu promptuariū used as LL n, 'storehouse', whence, as E promptuary, a book of ready reference.

10. The L adj promptus becomes Sp pronto, adj hence adv, the latter adopted by coll AE.

11. Promptus, adj, has the derivative n promptus (gen promptūs), occurring only in in promptu, ready to hand, usu with esse, to be, or gerere, to bear, carry, or habēre, to have or hold; hence EF-F impromptu (Molière, 1659), immediately, (esp) without preparation, hence an improvised theatrical act or short piece (B & W); hence E adj, adv, n.

12. To revert to the L prefix-cpds: redimere, to take back (re-), hence to buy back, hence, in LL, to buy back from the Devil; hence—cf MF-F redimer—'to redeem'. Redimere has pp redemptus, s redempt-, with derivative redemptiō, a buying back, o/s redemptiōn-, whence OF-MF redemption (later ré-), ME redempcioun, E redemption, the Christian sense dating from early LL; redemptive is an E anl formation; the derivative adj redemptōrius (L -ōrius, E -ory) leads to redemptory; Redemptorist = F redemptoriste, from the L agent redemptor (cf emptor in para 2).

13. L redemptiō also becomes OF raençon, contr to raençon, whence ME raunson (or -soun), whence the E n ransom; 'to ransom' prob derives from raençonner, itself from MF-F raençon.

14. L in-, not + redemptus combine to form It irredento, unredeemed, as in Italia irredenta, whence irredentismo, irredentista: E irredentism, irredentist. exequies, exequy. See SEQUENCE, para 10.

exercise, exercitation. See ARK, para 3.

exert, exertion. See SERIES, para 13.

exeunt is the pl ('they go out') of exit.

exhalant, exhale, exhalation. See HALITOSIS, para 2.

exhaust (v hence n), exhaustion, exhaustive; inexhaustible.

'To exhaust' comes from L exhaustus, pp of exaurire, to draw or drain (aurire) out (ex): aurire, s aur-, r hau-*, is akin to Gr auēin (s and r, au-), to drain, and exauster, a hook for pulling flesh out of a pot, and ON ausa, to draw out, to drain. Derivative LL exhaustiō, o/s exhaustiōn-, yields E exhaustion; exhaustible and exhaustive are E anl formations, the former with neg inexhaustible.

exhibit (v hence n), exhibition (whence exhibitioner, exhibitionism, exhibitionist), exhibitory. See HABIT, para 11.

exhilarate, exhilaration. See HILARIOUS.

exhort, exhortation, exhortative, exhortatory; hortation, hortative, hortatory.

1. L hortor (s hort-, r hor-), I urge, encourage, is the freq-int of OL horior (s and r, hor-), I cause to wish, I urge, akin to Gr khairō, I rejoice, kharmē (s kharm-, r khar-), warlike ardour, Skt hāryati, he takes pleasure in, is fond of; akin also to OHG gerōn, to desire, and OHG gerno, MHG gerne, G gern, willingly; IE r, gher-, var kher-, to desire. (E & M; Hofmann; Walshe.) The pp hortātūs, s hortāt-, has derivatives hortātiō, o/s hortātiōn-, whence E hortation—hortātiuus, ML -ivus, whence hortative—hortātōrius, whence hortatory.

2. The cpd exhortāri is an ex int of hortāri; whence, via OF-F exhorter, the E 'to exhort'. On exhortāt-, the s of pp exhortātus, are formed exhortātiō, o/s exhortātiōn-, whence, prob via OF-F, the E exhortation—exhortātiuus, ML -ivus, whence exhortative—and LL exhortātōrius, whence exhortatory.

The pp explōrātus, s explōrāt-, has derivatives explōrātiō, o/s explōrātiōn-, whence late MF-F, then E, exploration, and explōrātōrius, whence E exploratory.

and v, whence intimation)—cf the obs intimous; intrinsic.

1. This intimate set of complementaries originates in L (with several very close parallels in Gr and Skt); and they stem from L ex, out of (connoting 'outside'), and in, in, into (connoting 'inside'): cf, therefore, IN and the prefix ex-.

2. Whereas the L adj exterior, adopted by E (cf the late MF-F extérieur), is the comp of exter (var exterus), placed on the outside, L interior, adopted by E (perh via MF interior, F intérieur), is a comp of adj interus*, placed on the inside, from the prep inter, in between. Exter has mdfn externus, whence E extern, with extn external (whence externality, externalize, etc.); inter has adj-mdfn internus, whence (like extern, prob via late MF-F) E intern, with extn internal (whence -ity, -ize, etc.)—perh inm from the ML subsidiary internālis.

3. Exter has sup extimus, outmost, with neupl extima, balanced by (the sup of inter, viz) intimus, inmost, with neupl intima; extima and intima are techh of An and Zoo. For intimate, see para 7.

4. But whereas L exter has another sup, extremus (? for exterrimus*), whence MF, hence E, extreme, with L derivative extremiās, o/s extremiāt-, whence MF-F extrémité, whence E extremity, L inter, interus*, has no such subsidiary. But then intestīnus (see INTESTINE) has no counterpart extestinus*.

5. The correspondence, however, continues in the L advv extrinsecus, intrinsicus, on the outside, on the inside, resp from exter and inter (interus*), with -secus prob deriving from sequi, to follow: 'outside-following' and 'inside-following'. Extrinsecus yields the LL differentiated adj extrinsicus, external, whence the MF-F adj extrinsèque, whence, though perh direct from L, the E extrinsic; intrinsicus yields the LL adj intrinsicus, whence MF-F intrinsèque, whence E intrinsic.

6. The MF-F adj interne (cf para 2) has derivative F interner, whence 'to intern', whence—unless from F internement (from interner)—internment.

7. The L adj intimus, inmost, becomes MF-F and EE intime, which becomes the adj intimate—whence intimacy (for intimatecy*: cf accurate-accuracy)—as if from L intimātus, pp of intimāre, to make inmost to, hence to make known to, itself from intimus: and this pp intimātus accounts for E 'to intimate', to notify. On the pp s intimāt- arises LL intimātiō, o/s intimātiōn-, whence, prob via MF-F, the E intimation.

root stirp-* would, in IE, be surprising' (E & M): nothing would surprise me in IE; moreover, what of Lith stirpti, to grow up, and tirpti, to become stiff (Webster)? Derivatives ex(s)tirpātiō, o/s ex(s)tirpātiōn-, and extirpātor yield E extirpation, extirpator; E extirpatory is an anl formation. Cf TORPID.

extricate (Zoo adj; ordinary v), extrication, extricable and its neg inextricable;—intricate (ordinary adj, rare v), intricacy, intrigue (n, v), intriguer.

1. Both the ex- and the in- words rest upon L tricae (pl) trifles, (? hence ironically) embarrassments, sources of annoyance or causes of impediment; perh orig a farming term for weeds (E & M): o.o.o.; ? a dial var of trivua, trivial matters; more prob from Eg tchāa, a weed, straw (cf tchā, a stalk).

2. L extricāre (s extric-) would then mean, to free from weeds, hence to free from embarrassment or worry, with pp extricātus, whence both the adj and 'to extricate'; derivative LL extricātiō, a disentangling, o/s extricātiōn-, yields E extrication; derivative extricābilis yields extricable.

3. LL inextricābilis yields inextricable.

4. L intricāre, to entangle, has pp intricātus, whence the E adj intricate, whence (for intricatecy*) intricacy. L intricāre becomes It intrigare, whence EF-F intriguer, whence 'to intrigue', whence an intriguer; F intriguer has derivative EF-F n intrigue, adopted by E.

extrinsic. See EXTERIOR, para 5.

extroversion, extrovert (adj hence n), with var extravert.

These are E formations in L extrō-* (from extrā, beyond)+-version, -turning, -version, and -vert, -turned, -changed: ML vertere, pp versus (L uertere, uersus): f.a.e., VERSE. They connote 'outward-looking', as opp intro-, or inward, -looking.

Fabian: L Fabiānus, of or like Fabius Cunctator, Fabius the Delayer, foiler (by delaying tactics) of Hannibal, c210 B.C.

fable (n, v), fabular, fabulist, fabulosity, fabulous; confabulate, confabulation; affable, ineffable.

1. 'To confabulate' derives from confabulātus, pp of confabulāri, to talk (fābulāri) together (con); derivative LL confabulātiō, o/s confabulātiōn-, yields confabulation.

2. Fābulāri, whence OF-MF fabler and E 'to fable', derives from fābula, a fiction, a tale, from fāri, to speak, say, tell: f.a.e., FAME. Fābula becomes OF-F fable, adopted by E; derivative adj fābulāris, fābulōsus, yield fabular, fabulous (cf MF-F fabuleux); derivative fābulōsitās, o/s fābulōsitāt-, yields fabulosity; erudite EF-F fabuliste (from fābula) becomes E fabulist.

3. Fāri has another cpd derivative v: affāri, to speak to (af- for ad), with derivative adj affābilis, speakable-to, easy to speak to, whence MF-F, then E, affable. Derivative L affābilitās, o/s affābilitāt-, becomes MF-F affabilité, whence affability.

4. LL effābilis, utterable, from effāri, to speak out (e), yields the rare effable, and the neg ineffābilis, yields late MF-F, then E, ineffable; derivative LL ineffābilitās (o/s -fābilitāt-) yields ineffability.

fabric, fabricate, fabrication, fabricative, fabricator.

L faber, a workman in hard materials—f.a.e., FORGE—has gen fabri, o/s fabr-, whence the adj fabricus, f fabrica, used for a workshop, also for a fabric, whence MF-F fabrique, whence E fabric. Fabrica has derivative fabricāre, to make with one's hands, to build, to forge, with pp fabricātus, whence 'to fabricate'. On the pps fabricāt- are formed LL fabricātiō, o/s fabricātiōn-, whence (perh via late MF-F) fabrication, and fabricātor, adopted by E, which an coins fabricative.

façade. See para 3 of:

face (n hence v), facer, facing; façade; facet; facetious; facies, facial;—deface, defacement; efface, effacement, (self-)effacing; surface (n, hence adj and v);—superficies, superficial (whence superficiality), superficiary.

1. The imm base is L faciēs, form or shape, esp that of the front of the head—the face; faciēs (s faci-, r fac-) derives from facere (s fac-), to make: f.a.e., FACT. Faciēs is retained by Bio and Geol.

2. Faciēs has LL adj faciālis* (cf LL faciāle face-towel or handkerchief: Souter), ML faciālis, whence EF facial, adopted by E, whence as n.

3. Faciēs becomes LL and VL facia, whence both OF-F face, adopted by E, and It faccia, whence facciata (cf the E suffix -ade), whence EF-F façade, adopted by E. The derivative 'to face' yields the pa and vn facing and the agent facer.

4. Akin to L faciēs is L facētus (s facēt-, r fac-), finely made, elegant, witty, whence the obs E adj facete. Witty sayings, also humorous, esp if coarsely humorous, sayings are, in L, facētia (pl of facētia, from facētus), partly adopted by E. Facētia becomes late MF-F facētie, with derivative adj facētieux, f facētieuse, whence E facetious.

5. E face has cpd vv ouface and reface; L faciēs occurs in two vv:

deface, ME defacen, OF-EF desfacier: des- for L dis-+L facies+inf -er; hence defacement; efface: OF-F effacer: es- for L ex, out+F face+-er; hence MF-F effacement, adopted by E. OF-F effacer has another derivative borrowed by E: EF-F ineffaçable, whence ineffaceable.

6. OF-F face has the OF-F dim facette, whence E facet, used derivatively in, e.g., 'many-faceted'.

7. L faciēs has cpd superficiēs, the fact of being placed above, hence surface, external aspect; adopted in tech E. LL derivative adj superficiālis, superficiārius, yield E superficial (cf the MF-F superficiel) and superficiary.

8. L superficiēs becomes EF superface, duly contr to surface, adopted by E.

Cf the sep AFFAIR, FACE, FEASIBLE, FIAT, and perh OFFICE.

1. The base, clearly, is L facere, to make, facio, I make, (secondarily) I place; preterite, fēci, s fēc-; pp factus, s fact-; presp faciens, o/s facient-. The predominant c/f is -ficere, with pp -fectus and presp -ficiens, o/s -ficiant-. L fac- (fēc-) is ult akin to Gr tithēmi, I place, L dō (inf dare), I give, (but also) I place, and E do; the IE r is dhc-, var dho-.

2. Pp factus has neu factum, used also as n 'thing done', whence E fact. Cf artifact, a thing made by man's skill: arti-, c/f of ars (o/s art-), skill, art + fact.

3. On fact-, s of factus, are formed the foll derivatives directly relevant to E:

facticius, made by art, whence both the F adj—hence the E n—factice and the E adj factitious; cf E fetich or fetish, from Port feitico, sorcery, a charm, n use of adj 'artificial', from L facticius; factiō, action or manner of making or doing, (but also) position, o/s factiōn-, whence, prob via MF-F, the E faction, esp a group taking up a political position; derivative LL n factionārius has form-suggested both the F factionnaire and the E factionary; the cognate adj factiōsus (facti- + -osus) becomes, perh via late MF-F factieux, f factieuse, the E factions, much influenced, in sense, by the E n; factor, adopted by E, perh influenced by MF-F facteur;

LL factorium (suffix -ōrium), an oil-mill or -press (Souter), has suggested at least the form of E factory, usu derived from late MF-EF factorie (cf F factorerie), itself from L factor; factūra, a making, whence MF-F, hence E, facture, now rare outside of manufacture, derived, via EF-F, from ML manūfactūra, a making by hand (manu, abl of manus: f.a.e., MANUAL: cf LL manūfactilis, hand-made); the F n manufacture has the derivative EF-F v manufacturer, whence 'to manufacture', whence manufacturer; manufactory blends manufacture + factory.

4. L factiō, acc factionēm, becomes OF fazon, MF-F façon, whence ME facioun, fasoun, whence E fashion; the F n has the derivative OF v fazonner, later façonner, whence 'to fashion', whence fashionable, (lit) capable of being fashioned. The predominant social sense of fashion arose early in C16, via the sense 'a special manner of making' clothes.

5. E fact has its own derivatives: factive (adj -ive)—contrast the similar -ive formation factitive, causative, from L facitare, the freq of facere; factual, being fact + adj -ual, after actual.

6. Reverting to fac-, the s of L facere, we find several L derivatives directly relevant to E:

adj facilis (s facil-), 'doable', makable, hence easily done or made; whence MF-F facile, adopted by E derivative facilitās, o/s facilitāt- yields

MF-F facilité, therefore E facility; o/s facilitāt- has an It derivative, facilitā, whence facilitare, to render easy, whence late MF-F facilliter, which prompts E 'to facilitate', whence, anl, facilitation and facilitative; facilis has a further derivative—facultās, ability, aptitude, o/s facultāt-, whence, via late OF-F faculté, the E faculty; the derivative late EF-F adj facultatif, f -ive, accounts for E facultative.

7. L factum (n) becomes OF-F fait, with OF-MF var fet, both adopted by ME, the latter emerging as E feat.

8. L factūra (as in para 3) becomes OF-MF faiture, whence ME feture, whence E feature, whence 'to feature'.

9. L facere has gerundial neupl facienda, things to be done, form-adopted by OSp and thereby sense-adapted to 'employment, hence a place of employment, hence an estate', which duly becomes Sp hacienda (cf hacer, to make or do), esp a large estate, adopted by AE.

fad, faddist, faddy; faddle. See ADDENDA.

fade, adj and v; whence fadeless, unfading.

The obsol adj fade, adopted by ME from OF-F, comes from VL fatidus*, a blend of L fatuus, insipid + either L apidus, tasty (B & W), sem more prob, L uapidus (ML vapidus), stale (Webster), unless perchance the L origin be simply fatidus*, mdfn of fatuus. OF fade has the derivative OF-MF v fader, whence ME faden, whence 'to fade'.

faecal, faeces—AE fecal, feces; defecate, defecation.

1. L faex, occ fex, pl faeces, occ feces, wine-lees, hence impure residue, hence, in Med E, faeces, feces, excrement, is o.o.o.: ? of Eg origin. Faecal, fecal, is an E formation, as if from L f(a)ecālis*.

2. Derivative L dēfaecāre, to remove (dē, down from) the lees or residue from, has pp dēfaecātus, whence 'to defecate', as in L but with special vi sense 'to void excrement'; derivative L dēfaecātiō, o/s dēfaecātiōn-, yields defecation.

faerie, faery. See FAIRY at FATE.

fag, n (hence fag-end) and v (hence pa fagged).

The n app derives from 'to fag', to become, hence to cause to become, weary: o.o.o.; but perh from FLAG, to grow weary, to droop. The coll fag, a cigarette, derives from the 'loose end' nuance of the n; the school fag (n hence v) comes prob from the v, perh as abbr of (esp the military) fatigue.

faggot or fagot (n hence v, whence vn fag(g)ot-ing in embroidery and ironwork): OF-F fagot derivative MF-F v fagoter): OProv fagot (cf It fagotto), perh from Gr phákelos, a bundle, a fagot, s phakel-, r phuk-, with phak- becoming fag- and another suffix substituted for -elos. fail, whence the pa and vn falling; failure;—fallacious, fallacy—fallible, fallibility (negg infallible, infallibility);—false, falsification, falsify, falsity;—fault (n hence v), whence faultless and faulty;—faucet; faux pas.

1. The keyword is L fallere, to deceive, to escape from, hence the vr se fallere, to be deceived, to commit a fault; the s is fall-, the r fal-: prob cf OHG fallan, to fall (E FALL), and Gr sphallein (s sphall-), to cause to fall, and phēlos, deceitful.

2. L fallere has VL derivative fallire*, to deceive, esp to commit a fault, to fail, whence OF-F fallir, whence E 'to fail'; fallir, used as n, becomes, in ONF, failer, whence EF failer, whence E failure.

3. L fall(ere) has derivative adj fallāx, deceptive, and ML fallibilis, deceivable, capable of mistakes. Fallāx has derivative n fallācia (pl fallāciae), whence E fallacy; derivative LL fallāciōsus yields fallacious.

4. ML fallibilis yields fallible, whence, anl, fallibility; the ML neg infallibilis yields infallible, whence infallibility.

5. Fallere has pp falsus, used also as adj, whence OF-MF fals, whence E false; derivative LL falsitās, o/s falsitāt-, becomes OF-MF falsitē, fasletē, whence ME falste, whence the refashioned E falsity. On the L c/f falsi- is built the LL-ML cpd falsificāre, to make (-ficāre, a c/f of facere, to make) false, whence, perh via MF-F falsifier, the E 'to falsify'; derivative ML falsificātiō, o/s falsificātiōn-, yields, perh via MF-F, the E falsification.

6. L falsus becomes OF-MF fals, with MF var faus, whence F faux, as in faux pas, false step (lit and fig); for pas, cf PACE.

7. L fallere has LL mdfn (? caus) falsāre, to falsify, whence OProv falsar, to falsify, create a fault in, bore through, with derivative MF n fauset, whence EF-F fausset, whence E faucet, a water-tap.

8. Fallere has a VL fallita* (n from fallita*, f of fallitus*, pp of VL fallire*, as in para 2): whence OF-MF falte, MF-F hence ME faute, with -l restored in E fault. With the adj faulty, perh cf late MF-F fautif.

fain, adj hence adv; 'to fawn'.

1. Fain: ME fayn, earlier fagen: OE faegen: akin to OS fagan, ON fegenn, feginn, glad—to OE gefēon, OHG gi-fehōn, to rejoice, Go fahẽths, joy—to OHG fãgēn, to please: Gmc r, feh-*.

2. OE faegen has derivative faegnian, to rejoice, with varr fagnian and esp fahnian, whence ME faunnen, to rejoice, (later) to welcome or flatter, whence 'to fawn': for cognates, cf para 1.

faint, faintness. Cf feint; see FEIGN, para 3.

fair (1), adj hence adv: ME fair, earlier fayer, earliest faiger: OE faeger, faegr: akin to OHG and OS fagar, Go fagrs, ON fagr, fit, hence pleasing to the eye, beautiful, and, further off, Skt pajras in good condition, fit, strong: IE r pak-*, firmly placed, firm. (Feist.)

fair (2), n: ME faire, earlier feire, adopted from OF-MF (cf the F foire): L fēria, a holiday (very rare before LL), pl fēriae, holidays, holy days (of festival): akin to L festus, of a holiday, joyous, whence the n festum, usu in pl festas: see feast.—Hence, fairing, a gift at, hence from, a fair.

faury (n hence adj). See ADDENDA.

faith, whence faithful and faithless; fides, as in bona fides (good faith), fidelity; Fido; fiduciary; feal, fealty; fay and foy; auto-da-fé; cognates federal, federate, federation, treated sep.—Prefix-cpds: affidavit—cf coll davy; affiance—cf fiancé, fiancée; confide, confidence, confidant, confident, confidential; desance, desiant, defy; diffidence, diffident; infidel, infidelity; perfidious, perfidy.

1. Faith, ME fayth, feith, comes from OF feit, feid, from L fidēs (s fid-), intimately related to fidere (LL fidere), with s fid-, to trust. Note that fidēs has derivative adj fidēlis; fidere, derivative adj fidus. The IE r is app bheidh-, var bhidh-, to believe; cf Gr peithesthai, to have trust or confidence, caus peithein, to persuade, Homeric pf (aorist) epithon, and, for fidēs, the Gr n pistis (s pist-: perh for pitsis*).

2. OF feid, feit, faith, becomes MF fei, whence archaic E fay; derivative EF-F foi yields archaic E foy.

3. L fidēs becomes Port fé (cf Sp fe), as in auto-da-fé, (lit) act of faith, hence the burning of a heretic; auto=L actus (gen -ūs).

4. L fidēlis, faithful, becomes, via OF-F, both the obs E fidèle and the obs E feal (MF feal, var of OF-EF fēel, fēeil)—cf the obsol fealty, loyalty, from MF fealtē, var of OF-EF fēeltē, fēaltē, from L fidēlītās, o/s fidēlītāt-, itself from fidēlis.

5. L fidēlītās, faithfulness, yields, prob via MF-F fidēlītē, the E fidelity.

6. The L negg infidēlis, infidēlītās, become MF-F infidèle, infidēlītē, whence E infidel (adj, whence n), infidelity, with diverging senses.

7. L fidus, worthy of faith, faithful, reaches and survives in E only in the commonest of all dog-names Fido, prob via the It fido, trusty.

8. Perh from fidus (? via fidūsia*: fidus+abstract -ia), but perh direct from fidere, to trust, derives L fidūcia, trust, with derivative adj fiduciārius, whence E fiduciary; fiducial is an E formation, in -al, from L fidūcia.

9. The L prefix-cpds relevant to E are affidāre, confidere, diffidere, perfidus. ML affidāre, to give, or swear, faith to (af- for ad, to), make an oath, has affidāvit, he has made oath, adopted by Law as n 'a sworn statement', whence the coll davy (affidavit).

10. Affidāre becomes OF-MF afier, MF affier, to trust, whence MF afiance, affiance, whence the ME-E n affiance, trust, faith; MF afiance has derivative MF-EF v afancier, whence E 'to affiance', to pledge to marriage.

11. VL fidāre*, to entrust, becomes OF-F fier, whence the OF-EF n fiance, whence OF-F fiancer (prop to take a pledge), with pp fiancé, f fiancée, both used as nn and then adopted by E.

12. Confidère (int con-), to have trust or confidence, yields 'to confide'. Its presp confidens, o/s confident-, becomes It confidente, whence EF confidant, f confidante (F confident, -fidente), adj used as n and duly adopted by E. The E adj confident app comes direct from the L o/s confident-. On confident- is formed L confidentia, whence E (and MF-F) confidence, whence confidential.

13. D diffidere (dif- for dis, apart), to lack trust or confidence in, yields the obs 'to diffide'; its presp diffidens, o/s diffident-, becomes E diffident; derivative diffidentia becomes diffidence.

14. With L diffidere, cf the VL disfidāre* (cf fidāre* in para 11), to renounce or abandon (implied by dis-) trust or faith in, orig a feudal term, which accounts for OF-EF desfier (EF-F défier), whence E 'to defy'; derivative OF-EF desfiance (EF-F défiānce) becomes E defiance; the OF-EF presp desfiant (whence desfiance), EF-F défiant, becomes E defiant.

15. L fidēs has a derivative cpd adj perfidus (short i), perh explicable by qui per fidem decipit, (he) who deceives by means of faith or trust, as E & M point out; but (E & M) per- may connote derivation—unless per, through, with secondary sense 'across', connotes infringement. Perfidus has derivative perfidia, whence, prob via EF-F perfidie, the E perfidy; and perfidia has its own adj perfidiosus, whence E perfidious.

fake (v hence n, whence adj), derivative agent faker.

This orig underworld term comes perh from MD-D vegen, to sweep, prob from G segen (MHG vegen), to sweep, extensively used in sl (EW): cf, therefore, the obs E seague, to whip, of same Gmc origin. Cf the 2nd FIG.

fakir, a religious, vowed to poverty and often subsisting as a mendicant: perh via EF fakir (F saqir): Ar faqir, poor.

falcate; falchion; cf the element falc-.

Falcate, scythe- or sickle-shaped, derives from L falcātus, itself from L falx, a scythe or a sickle, o/s falc-: prob akin to L flectere, to bend, pp flexus (f.a.e., FLEX), s flex-, with falx a metathesis for flax-, s of flaxus, var of flexus; and perh to Gr phalkēs (s phalk-), a ship's rib, which is, naturally, bent or curved. L falx has derivative VL falcio*, o/s falcion-*, whence OF-MF falchon (var fauchon), whence E falchion, a slightly curved, broad-bladed sword. OF-MF falchon, fauchon, however, could be an aug of OF fals, MF-F faux, a scythe (DAF). Cf:

falcon is a reshaping of ME faucon (MF-F faucon, OF-MF var faulcon; earliest falcun), after the originating LL falcōn-, o/s of falcō, the hawk used in hunting other birds; OF-MF faulcon, MF-F faucon, has OF-MF derivative falconier, MF-F fauconnier, whence, via ME, the E falconer, and also MF-F fauconnerie, whence E falconry. LL falcō comes either from OHG falcho, cf ON falki, or, more prob—because of its curved beak and wings—from L falx.

fall, pt fell, pp fallen; hence fall, n; vt fell.

1. 'To fall' derives from OE feallan, akin to OFris falla, OS and OHG fallan (G fallen), ON falla, and also to Lith puólu, I fall, pulti, to fall, and prob to Gr sphallein, to fell, and Skt phálati, it bursts; IE r, pal-, var pel-, with extn phal-, phel-, and s-int sphal-, sphel-. (Walshe; Hofmann).—Fall, autumn, derives from 'the fall of the generic leaf'.

2. 'To fell' derives from OE fellan (cf OFris and ON fella), either the caus of OE feallan or, at the least, a caus from the r of feallan.

fallacious, fallacy. See FAIL, para 3. Cf:

fallible (and fallibility). See FAIL, para 4.

fallow (1), adj (pale-yellow): OE fealu or fealo: akin to OHG falo (G falb), MD valuwe, vale, vael, D vaal, ON fölr—to Lith palvas, L pallidus (s pallid-, r pal-), pale—to Gr polios, grey—Ve palitās, grey: f.a.e., PALE. Hence, fallow deer. Cf the 2nd FAVO(U)R. fallow (2), n (hence adj and v): ME falow, ploughed land: akin to OE faelging, fallow land, OE fea h, OHG felga, a harrow: prob influenced, perh even at the early ME stage, by prec.

false, falsify (falsification), falsity. See FAIL, para 5.

falter (v hence n), whence pa and vn faltering: ME falteren or faltren: o.o.o. If of Gmc origin, it is perh akin to ON faltrask, to be burdened, encumbered, puzzled; EW, however, derives the ME word from ME falden, to fold—falter would then be a mdfn of falder*, an -er extn of s fald-; if of Romance origin, it prob derives from VL fallita* or, rather, from the derivative MF-F fauter (to commit a fault), which may well have orig existed as faulter*, falter*.

falx, as used in An and Zoo: see FALCATE.

fame (n hence v, usu as pa famed), famous—infamy, infamous; defame, defamation, defamatory; —sep FABLE, FABULOUS, with AFFABLE, AFFABILITY, and INEFFABLE, INEFFABILITY; sep INFANT, INFANCY (whence enfant terrible); sep INFANTRY; —nefarious; preface, prefatory; sep FATE (FATAL, etc.; where fair).

1. Fame, adopted from OF-EF, comes from L fāma (s fām-), itself from L fāri, to speak: akin to Gr phēmē (s phēm-), a saying, report, rumour, (hence) public reputation, Doric phāmā (s phām-), phanai (s phan-), to speak, phēmi (s phēm-), I speak, and phēmis (s phēm-), conversation, renown; IE r, prob bhā-, to speak; etymon bhāmi, I speak.

2. Fāma has derivative adj fāmōsus, causing himself to be spoken of, (LL) renowned, whence (late MF-F fameux and) E famous.

3. The neg L infāmis (s infām-) has ML extn infāmōsus, whence E infamous; derivative infāmia (abstract -ia) becomes MF-F infamie, whence E infamy.

4. Other L prefix-cpds relevant to E are:

dēfamātus (dē-, down, from), infamous, has derivative v diffāmāre, (prob) to publish, usu, by confusion, to decry, whence MF-F diffamer, whence ME diffamen, later defamen, whence 'to defame'; LL diffāmātiō, publication, a making known, later confused to mean 'a decrying', o/s diffāmātiōn-, yields, prob via MF-F diffamatio, the ME diffamacioun, the E defamation—after defame; ML diffāmātōrius becomes, anl, defamatory; praefāri, to say or speak beforehand (prae-, before), has derivative praefātiō, a preamble, o/s praefātiōn-, whence MF preface (F preface), adopted by E; hence 'to preface'. E prefatory is an anl formation.

5. Akin to L fāri, to speak, is L fās, divine law—that which has been spoken by the gods; its neg nefās, wrong, sin, crime, has derivative adj nefārius (clearly harking back to fāri), whence E nefarius.

6. The Gr-derived cognates, such as anthem, blasphemy (blame), euphemism, phone, are treated sep.

familiar (adj, hence n), familiarity, familiarize, family; paterfamilias.

1. Family comes from L familia, orig the servants and slaves of a great house, then the house itself with master, mistress, children—and the staff; it derives from famulus, f famula, a servant, from adj famulus: o.o.o.; ? Etruscan (E & M); ? rather (Webster) akin to Skt dhāman, house or household, s dhām-, ? also to Hit dammaras, a temple-servant. Perh, however, the formation of L famulus is fa+euphonic m+dim suffix -ulus, the r being fa*- and of Medit origin: cf Eg ha, neighbourhood, whence hau, family, those in the master's immediate neighbourhood.

2. Familia has adj familiāris, of the (all-senses) family, hence intimate; hence also n, a friend of the family: whence OF-F familiier, adopted by ME, whence the refashioned E familiar. Derivative L familiāritās, o/s familiāritāt-, yields OF-F familiaritē, whence E familiarity; familiarize is an E anl formation (cf the EF-F familiariser)—perh of the LL familiārescere, to become intimate.

3. The master of the household is paterfamilias, (lit) father (cf PATER) of the family.

famine; famish.

1. 'To famish', usu as pa famished, derives, via ME famen, by aphesis from OF-MF afamer (a=L ad, to, used int), F affamer, itself from L famēs, hunger, s fam-, r fam-: o.o.o.

2. Famēs has VL derivative famina*, whence OF-F famine, adopted by E.

famous. See FAME, para 2.

fan. See WIND, para 8.

fan, sl become coll for 'enthusiast'. Short for fanatic.

fanatic, fanatical, fanaticism. See FANE.

fancy (n, hence adj and v), whence pa fancied, agent fancier, adj fanciful; fantasy, fantastic; phantasy—phantasm, phantasmal, phantasmagoria—phantom.—Cf the element phanero-—phaeton— phenomenon (pl phenomena), phenomenal, phenomenology; diaphanous—Epiphany—theophany, tiffany; pant (v, hence n); phase, phasis—emphasis, emphasize, emphatic; sep sycophancy, sycophant, sycophantic.

1. Fancy arises, in late ME, as a contr of fantasy, itself via OF-EF fantasie (EF-F fantaiste) from LL fantasia, var of L phantasia, idea, (but esp) apparition, adopted from Gr, where it means 'appearance, imagination', from phantazein (s phantaz-), to render visible, fig to the mind, an elaboration of phainein, to show, s phain-. Phainō, I show, is prob for phaniō*, with IE etymon bhanio* or bhenio*, and IE r bhan-* (var bhen-), itself a sem and phon extn of IE r bha-, to shine: cf Skt bhāti, it shines, is light, and, for bhan-, Skt bhānus light (of day, etc.).

2. The adj of fantasy is fantastic (cf the MF-F fantastique): ML fantasticus: LL phantasticus: Gr phantastikos, able to show or represent, from phantazein.

3. LL phantasticus accounts for obs phantastic; L phantasia for obsol phantasy.

4. Allied phantasm (whence phantasmal) is a reshaping of ME fantasme, adopted from OF-MF, itself from L phantasma, taken over from Gr, which derives it, by suffix -asma, from phant-, r of phantazein (as in para 1).—The Scil phantasmagoria, orig a magic-lantern show, combines either Gr phantasma+agoria, arbitrarily from Gr agora, an assembly (the predominant theory), or Gr phantasma+the -gory of allegory (B & W); E phantasmagoria (whence adj phantasmagoric), 1802, prob reshapes F fantasmagorie (adj fantasmagorique), 1801. L phantasma becomes, in OF-MF, not only fantasme but also fantesme and notably fantosme, adopted by ME and soon written and pron fantome (cf EF-F fantôme), refashioned by E to phantom, used also as adj.

5. Closely akin to Gr phainein (s phain-) is Gr phaein (s pha-), to shine, with var phaethin (s phaeth-), presp phaethōn, personified as Phaethōn, the Sun God (Helios), or, more usu, his son, who, one day, somewhat disastrously drove the chariot of the sun, hence, via F phaéton, the E phaeton, an open, four-wheeled carriage.

6. Phainein, to show, has passive phainesthai (s likewise phain-), to be shown, i.e. to appear, with presp phainomenos, neu phainomenon (pl phainomena), which, as n, passes into LL as phaenomenon (pl -na), adopted by E. Phenomenal (cf the F phénoménal)=phenomenon+adj -al; phenomenology=phenomenion+-logy, q.v. at the element -logia.

7. The Gr phan-, a c/f of phain-, occurs in:

Gr diaphanēs (from diaphainein, to show dia or through), transparent, becomes ML diaphanus, whence E diaphanous;

Gr epiphaneia (from epiphainein, to show epi or to, i.e. to manifest), manifestation, becomes LL epiphania, esp in eccl sense, then OF-MF epiphanie (EF-F \acute{e}), finally E Epiphany;

Gr theophaneia, physical manifestation of a theos or god, becomes LL theophania, whence E theophany; the OF shape was theophanie, often tiphanie, also tifenie or tiffenie, whence, prob because of its transparency, the very thin silk, now muslin, named tiffany.

8. L phantasia (as in para 1) is assumed to have generated a derivative VL phantasiäre*, for VL phantasiäre, to have a nightmare; whence OF-EF pantaisier, pantoisier, to be breathless (EF-F pantois), whence E 'to pant'.

9. Gr phainein has derivative phasis, adopted by SciL and SciE; whence late EF-F and E phase (of, e.g., the moon; hence, stage or aspect). Cf:

10. The Gr prefix-cpd emphainein, to show (em- for en), to indicate, has derivative emphasis, forcible expression, adopted by L and then by E (cf the EF-F emphase); derivative Gr adj emphatikos becomes LL emphaticus, whence E emphatic (cf EF-F emphatique); emphasize is an anl E formation.

fane, fanatic, fanatical, fanaticism.

1. Fanaticism is an anl E formation from the adj fanatic, whence, perh after the LL use of the L adj, the n fanatic, which duly takes its own adj fanatical: and fanatic, adj, represents L fänäticus, divinely inspired, lit of a fänum or temple, akin to L fēriäe, religious festivals and therefore to E FEAST.

2. L fänum has derivative prefix-cpd adj prö-fänus, lit before (prö) the temple, hence outside it, hence not holy, hence impious; whence, prob via MF-F, the E profane. Derivative pröfänäre becomes MF-F profaner, whence 'to profane'; on pröfänät-, s of the pp pröfänätus, arises LL pröfänätio o/s pröfänätion-, whence, perh via MF-F, profanation. Pröfänus has LL derivative pröfänitäs, o/s pröfänität-, whence profanity.

fandango is a Sp word: o.o.o.: ? a redup of the L r tang- in tangere, esp as in chordas tangere, to pluck the strings (of the lyre). Cf TANGO.

fanfare; fanfaronade.

Fanfare, adopted from EF-F, derives from the EF-F v fanfarer, itself perh from EF-F fanfaron, a boaster or a swaggerer, adapted from Sp fanfarrón, mdfn of fafarrón, from Ar farfar, garrulous: echoic. Fanfarrón has derivative fanfarronada, whence EF-F fanfaronade, whence the E fanfaronade, a swaggering, an ostentatious display.

fang, a seizing, hence a predatory beast's long, sharp tooth, derives from the now dial fang, to seize: ME fängen, varr fongen and fon: OE fön: akin to OE feng, OFris feng, fang, a seizing, a fang, OHG fahan (pp gifangen), G fängen, Go fahan (for fanhan*), MD vaen, MD-D vangen, ON fä; also to L pingere, to fasten, and Skt pasas, a noose: cf PACT.

fantail. See WIND, para 8.

fantasia (It); fantastic, fantasy. See FANCY, para 2 (adj), para 1 (E n).

far, farther, farthest; farness (far, adj + -ness).

1. Far, adv and adj, derive from OE feor, feorr, likewise both adv and adj: akin to OFris fēr, fīr, OS fer, ferr OHG ferro, adv, and OHG ferrana, G fern, adj, Go fairra, ON fjarri, adv—to Gr pera, further (adv), and peran, beyond—to Skt pāras, far (adv), and pāra, forth—and to Hit par(r)anda, parranta, beyond, besides.

2. The adv farther, farthest app derive from the adj farther, farthest; adj farthest is formed anl with adj farther, which—confused with further—stands for farrer, ME ferrer, comp of far; note, however, that farther equally well derives from ME ferther, a var of FURTHER.

farce (n and v), farical.

The n farce, orig stuffing in cookery, is adopted from MF-F; it derives from MF-F farcir, to stuff, whence ME farcen, whence 'to farce', orig to stuff with forcemeat: and farcir comes from L farcire, perh akin, by metathesis, to Gr phrassein (s phrass-), to fence, fortify, stop up; hardly to L frequens (see FREQUENT).

fare, to go, to journey; fare, a going, a journey, hence the charge made for it; thoroughfare; -farer, as in wayfarer; farewell (adj from n from v).

To farewell someone is to say Fare (thou, ye) well, 'Have a good journey!': cf VOLITION, para 15. A thoroughfare is a 'going, hence a way, through'. A wayfarer is one who wayfares (obs), from ME adj weifarende, journeying, from OE wegfarende, going one's weg or WAY. Fare, n, derives from OE faru, a journey, intimately akin to OE faran, to journey, whence 'to fare': akin to OFris fara, OHG, OS, Go faran (cf G fahren): Gmc r, far-; IE r, per-, var por-*: cf Gr poros, a thoroughfare, and poruein, to convey. Cf FERRY and FORD—POROUS and EMPORIUM.

1. The former comes from LL farināceus, adj of L farina, a fine meal—a term partly adopted by E. L farina is an -ina extn of L far (gen farris), a sort of grain, esp the wheat called spelt, with cognates in OGmc (e.g., ON barr, cereals) and in C (e.g., OIr bargen, Cor bara, bread).

2. Derivative L farrāgō (far+connective or euphonic -r-+suffix -āgō), (a mash of) mixed fodder for cattle, hence a medley, esp a hodge-podge, has been adopted by E.

farl or farle: EE farde: OE fēortha dāel, a fourth part (of an oatmeal cake): cf 'to DEAL' and FOUR.

farm (n, whence adj and v); farmer; farming. See FIRM, para 1.

farō, a card game, app derives from Pharaoh, generic title of the kings of ancient Egypt, perh because 'he' was formerly represented upon one of the cards: prompted by the earlier recorded F pharaon (cf It farao), the game, from Pharaon, Pharaoh, itself from LL Pharaon-, o/s of Pharao: Gr Pharāō (gen Pharaonos): H Par'oh: Eg pr-'o, a great house; Budge gives it as per-āa: per, house + āa, great.

farrago. See FARINACEOUS, para 2.

farrier (whence farriery): MF ferrier, OF ferreor: L ferrārius: ferrum, iron+agent -ārius: f.a.e., FERRIC.

farrow (n, hence v): OE fearh, a little, or young, pig: akin to syn OHG farh (cf G Ferkel from the OHG dim farhili): Gmc r, farh-; IE r, pork-—cf L porcus; see PORK.

fart, v hence n: OE feortan: akin to G farzen: ult echoic. Cf PETARD, s.f.

farther, farthest. See FAR, para 2.

farthingale. See FOUR, para 4.

farthingale. See ADDENDA.

fascēs; fascia; fasciate (whence fasciation); Fascicle; fascinate (whence pa fascinating), fascination, fascinate, fascinator; fascine (n, hence v); fascism, Fascist (n, hence adj)—Fascisti.

1. L fascēs, a bundle of authoritative rods, pl of fascis, a bundle, has s fasc-, prob akin to Mlr basc, a neck-band, a collar, and therefore perh to BASKET.

2. L fascis has It derivative fascio, a bundle, hence a political group, whence both fascismo, hence Fascism, and Fascisti, hence Fascists.

3. Intimately related to L fascis is L fascia (fasc-+-ia), a band (of, eg., cloth), adopted by E in senses 'band' or 'sash', also for tech terms in An and Arch; derivative fasciāre, to wrap about with a band, pp fasciātus, whence the E Bot and Zoo adj fasciate.

4. Fascis has dim fasciculus, whence E fascicle and fascicule.

5. Fascis has further derivative fascina (fasc-+-ina), a faggot, whence the EF-F, hence E, fascine of fortification.

6. Prob akin to fascis is L fascinūs, var fascinum, a magical, a usy pej, spell: fascinūs, -um, 'may orig have designated a magical operation in which one tied up the victim' (E & M). Derivative fascināre, to cast a spell over, has pp fascinātus, whence 'to fascinate'; subsidiarily derivative fascinātiō, o/s fascinātiōn-, yields E fascination—LL fascinātor is adopted by E—but E fascinate is an anl formation (cf the syn LL fascinātōrius).

fascinate, fascination. See prec, final para.

fash. See FASTIDIOUS, para 2.

fashion, fashionable. See FACT, para 4.

fast (adj—whence adv, n, v); fasten, whence agent fastener and vn fastening; fastness.

1. 'The sense swift comes from the idea of keeping close to what is pursued' (Webster), the orig sense being 'firmly fixed, firm': ME fast, firm: OE faest: akin to OS fast, OFris fest, OHG festi, fasti, MHG vest, veste, G fest, firm, solid, MD fast, vaste, (also D) vast, ON fastr, and prob Arm hast (for past-*), firm, and Skt pastya, home; IE r, past-*, firm. The adv fast derives, through ME faste, firmly, (but also) swiftly, from OE faeste, firmly: cf syn OHG fasto and OFris feste. 'To fast' or abstain from food derives from OE faestan (cf OFris fasta, to fasten, to abstain, OHG fastēn, ON fasta), itself from OE faest, firm; the n fast, abstinence, ME fast, faste, comes from the ON n fasta. Fast, a mooring rope, ME fest, comes from ON fastr, a rope; 'to fast' or bind derives from OE faestan, to render faest or firm; but 'to fasten' derives from OE faestnian, likewise from the OE adj. Fastness, orig abstract OE faestnes

fastidious derives, prob via MF-F fastidieuse, f of fastidieux, from L fastidiōsus, expressing aversion, disdainful, adj of fastidium, strong aversion, loathing, disgust, app a blend of fastus (gen- ūs), disdain, haughtiness, and taedium, disgust; fastus itself is o.o.o. (E & M.)

2. Sc fash, to vex or trouble (someone), represents late MF-EF fascher (F fâcher), to vex, from LL fastidiāre, from L fastidire, to repel with disdain, from fastidium.

fastness. See FAST, s.f.

fat, fatness, fatten (whence fattening, pa and vn), fatty—pine (tree); pituitary, pituitous—pome, pomade, pomatum, pomander; pomegranate; pom-mel (n, whence v).

1. Fat, n (whence fatty), derives, like fatness and fatten, from adj fat: OE fætt, from OE fæted, fattened: akin to OFris fatt, fet, OHG feizit (G feist), G fett, OS fētid*, ON feitr; to L opimus, abundant, fat, pinguis, fat, stout, and pinus, pine-tree; to Gr piōn, fat (adj), piar and pimelē, nn, fat; and to Skt payate, it swells or fattens, pīvaras, fat (adj), pītu-darus, pine-tree (cf the syn Gr pitus), the pine being resinous, gummy—therefore cf also the L piruita, gum, resin, (hence) mucus, phlegm. The IE r app veers from pa-* to pi-, with extn pat- and pit-, the latter with var pin-, pim-*.

2. Pine (tree), ME pine, derives alike from OE pin and from OF-F pin, both from L pinus, as above.

3. L pīuita (as above) yields the E adj pituitary (glant), and, via the L derivative adj pīuitōsus, pituitous.

4. Prob akin to the L pinus and pīuita is L pōmum (pl pōma), a fruit, in LL esp an apple, whence, via VL pōma*, the OF-MF pome (F pomme), whence E pome, an apple, now a Bot term.

5. L pōmum becomes It pomo, with derivative pomata, a cosmetic with an apple base, whence EF-F pommade, whence E pomade; pomatum is a Sci L formation (L pōmum+suffix -atum), prob suggested by the It word.

6. OF-MF pome, var pom, used also for the pommel of a sword, has dim pomel, adopted by ME, both as a surmounting 'ball' and as the knob on a sword hilt, whence E pommel, with predominant sense 'knob at front of a saddle-bow'; 'to pommel' was orig to beat with the pommel of a sword, and is, in C19–20, often spelt pummel.

7. Pomander, however, is a cpd: EE pomamber, for pomeamber: pome+AMBER: this is a mixed perfume, carried against infection.

8. Another cpd is pomegranate: ME pomgarnet: OF pome grenate or pume grenate (then grenade), lit a grained (i.e., large-pipped) apple: cf grenade at GRAIN.

fate (n, hence v, esp in pa fated)—whence fateful; fatal, fatalism, fatalist, fatalistic, fatality.

Fate is, by ME, adopted from OF-MF: VL fāta: L fātum (pl fāta): orig the neus of fātus, spoken, pp of fāri, to speak (*for, I speak): 'that which has been spoken, hence decreed', hence 'a divine statement'. The derivative adj fātālis, whence MF-F and E fatal, bears the dual senses 'of fate, fateful' and 'deadly, resulting in death'; the further derivative, LL fātāliūs (fātālis+ abstract-n suffix -itās), o/s fātālitāt-, becomes late MF-F fatalité, whence E fatality. Fatalism and fatalist (whence fatalistic) are hybrid formations from E fatal.

father (n hence v), whence fatherhood; fatherless; fatherly, whence fatherliness; godfather and grandfather; Vaterland.—II, Romance: padre; père and compère.—III, Latin: pater; paternal, paternity; patrician; patristic; patron, patronage, patronal, patronize—pattern (n hence v);—2nd-element cpds: (Jove, Jovial, and) Jupiter, q.v. sep at DIANA, paras 4, 3; perpetrate, perpetration, perpetrator—cf the literary impetrate, impetration, impetrative, impetrator; repatriate, repatriation—Romance repair, to go, resort—cf expatriate, expatriation;—1st-element cpds: paterfamilias, q.v. sep at FAMILY, para 3; paternoster—patter (v, hence n), chatter; patriarch (LL from Gr), patriarchal, patriarchate, patriarchic, patriarchy; patriicide, parricide; (app cpd) patrimony, patrimonial; cf the element patro-, where see PATOLOGY and PATRONYMIC (LL from Gr).—IV, (Additional) Gr: patriot (compatriot), patriotic, patriotism, papa (cf pa; cf also poppa, pop); papacy, papal, papish, papism, papist, papistic, papistry; pope, popedom, popehood, popery—cf antipope.

1. Fatherless derives from OE faederlēas (cf the suffix -less); fatherly from OE faederlice (cf -like); father, therefore, from OE faeder, through ME fader: and OE faeder is akin to OFris feder, OS fadar, OHG fater (MHG-G vater), Go fadar (once only—usu aita, cf para 20), ON fathir—and to L pater.

2. Whereas godfather derives from OE godfaeder, grandfather merely combines grand, great, and father—cf the OF-F grandpère.

3. L pater, father, gen patris, o/s patr-, becomes OF-F père, with MF-F cpd compère, from LL compater, godfather: cf LL commater, godmother (MF-F commère).

4. L pater becomes Sp, Port, It padre, a father in the Catholic Church, hence as a term for any Armed Services chaplain.

5. L pater is very closely akin to and perh derived from Gr patēr. The E coll pater is prob, at first, Public School sl.

6. The main simple L derivatives affecting E are these:

LL-ML paternālis, whence MF-F paternel and E paternal; itself from paternus (cf maternus), of a or the father, with LL derivative paternitās, o/s paternitāt-, whence OF-F paternité and—prob from F—E paternity; from pl patres, (lit) fathers, hence senators, comes the adj patricius, whence MF-F patricien, whence E patrician—cf Patricia, from L patricia, a well-born woman; as if from LL or ML patrīsta*, a father of the Church, with adj patrīsticus*, come F patristique and E patristic, concerning the Church Fathers, whence the n patristics, a study of their lives, writings, doctrines; patrōnus (cf matrōna), a (usu powerful or wealthy) guardian or protector, ML a guardian saint, whence OF-F patron (OF patrun), whence ME patron—extant—and patroun; derivative LL adj patrōnālis yields patronal; derivative ML patrōnāticum becomes MF-F, hence E, patronage; patroness=patron+-ess; patronize (cf F patroner)=patron+-ize.

7. OF-F patron, a patron, gained in C14 the secondary sense 'a model', which reached E in late ME and became, in E, pattern (esp in dress-making), whence—after F patroner, (late C14 onwards) to reproduce from a model or pattern—'to pattern'.

8. The E 2nd-element cpds deriving from L include:

impetrāre, to obtain,=im- for int in-+patrāre, to achieve, bring to pass, conclude, from pater: patrāre, to be effectually pater or master of—cf ministrāre from minister. The pp impetrātus yields the literary 'to impetrate', to obtain by request; derivatives impetrātiō (o/s impetrātiōn-), LL impetrātius (ML -ivus), impetrātor, become impetration, impetrative, impetrator.

perpetrāre, to effect=per, thoroughly+patrāre, to accomplish; pp perpetrātus yields 'to perpetrate'; LL derivatives perpetrātiō (o/s perpetrātiōn-) and perpetrātor become perpetration, perpetrator.

9. Expatriate and repatriate come from L patria, fatherland, elliptical for terra, land, patria, f of patrius, of the pater or father, thus:

L expatriāre (ex, out of) to banish, has pp expatriātus, whence both the adj (hence n) and v expatriate; hence, by anl, expatriation, cf:

LL repatriāre, to restore (connoted by re-) to the patria or fatherland, has pp repatriātus, whence the adj, n, v repatriate; derivative ML repatriātiō, o/s repatriātiōn-, yields E repatriation.

10. LL repatriāre has a Romance derivative: 'to repair', to go (back), to resort: OF-EF repairier: ME reparen. The E n repair, resort, concourse, etc., derives from OF-F repaire, itself from OF-EF repairier.

11. First-element L cpds of pater result in the foll E words: sep paterfamilias; paternoster and patter; patriarch; patriicide; app cpd patrimony. Paternoster=L pater noster, our father: the Pater Noster, Our Father (, which art in Heaven). From the rapid or mumbling recitation of paternosters, we get 'to patter', chatter or mumble, whence the n patter.

12. Patriarch, ME from OF-F patriarche, derives from LL patriarcha, itself from Gr patriarkhēs, from patria, lineage+arkhos, a chief or leader—cf the element -arch. Derivatives LL patriarchālis, ML patriarchātus, LL patriarchicus (Gr patriarkhikos), ML patriarchia, a cathedral (LGr patriarkhia, a patriarch's office or diocese), yield E patriarchal, patriarchate, patriarchic, patriarchy.

13. Patricide, murder or murderer of one's father, derives from LL patricidium, murder of father; but parricide, the crime, derives from L parricidium, and parricide, the criminal, from L parricida, in both of which the 2nd element is -cide, from L -cidere, c/f of caedere, to strike down, (earlier) to cut down: cf CAESURA. The 1st element is prob, by assimilation, from L pater; improb from a lost L word akin to Doric Gr pāos, a parent. Parricidal=the L derivative adj parricidālis.

14. Patrimonial comes from LL patrimōniālis, adj of L patrimōnium, whence, via OF-F patrimoine and ME patrimoine, the E patrimony. L patrimōnium derives from L pater: c/f patri+suffix -mōnium: cf L matrimōnium and perh alimōnia, with modified suffix -mōnia. It is tempting to think that, for the -mōnium nn at least, the suffix might be -mōnium (s mōni-, r mōn-), akin to L monēta, money, s monēt-, r mon*-: but this theory, phon sound, is sem unsound, the basic senses being discrepant.

15. Besides the fundamentally Gr words (patriarch, patronymic) above, we have two notable derivatives from Gr: patriot and papa. Patriot comes, via MF-F patriote and LL patriōta, from Gr patriōtēs, an -ōtēs ('native; inhabitant': cf Cypriot), derivative from patrios, established by one's ancestors, from patēr, father. Derivative adj patriōtikos becomes LL patriōticus, whence EF-F patriotique and E patriotic. E patriotisme, like F patriotisme, is an anl formation.—LL patriōta has (prob suggested by LGr sumpatriōtēs) prefix-cpd compatriōta (com-, c/f from cum, with), whence late MF-F compatriote, whence E compatriot.

16. Gr patēr, father, has the nursery var papas or pappas, whence—or at least thereby prompted—L papa, likewise of the nursery; prob adopted from the L is late MF-F papa, in turn adopted by E. Hence pa; hence the AE pappy, var of poppa, with shortening pop. Now, Gr papas acquires, in the LGr period, the sense 'bishop': hence Papa, the Patriarch of Alexandria. Likewise, L papa acquires in LL the sense 'bishop', esp 'archbishop', and finally, as Papa, 'the Pope': whence both ML papātia, whence E papacy, and ML papālis*, of the Pope, deducible from ML papālitās, the Pope's office and dignity, whence, prob via MF-F, the E adj papal. App E anl formations, with some intervention by MF-F, are: papish (-ish, adj); papism, papist, papistic—cf the EF-F papisme, EF-F papiste, F papistique—and papistry (-ry for -ery).

17. LL papa (Gr papas), as above, is adopted by OE, whence ME pape, later pope—extant. The chief derivatives are popedom (OE pāpdōm); popehood (pope+-hood: cf OE pāpanhād); poper (pope+-ery);

18. Antipope, elected in defiance of the properly chosen Pope, was prob suggested by MF-F antipape, itself deriving from ML antipapa.

19. Gr patēr has acc patera and gen patros (whence the c/f patro-) and is akin to Skt pitṛ, father, pl pitṛas, which, like L patres, means also 'ancestors'; cf also Skt acc sing pitāram (cf L patrem) and dat sing pitrē (Gr and L patri). The IE etymon is app pater* (ə being 'neutral e'); IE r, pət*-.

20. The extremely complex relationships of Gr patēr, L pater, E father, with Gr and L tata, nursery word for 'father'; with Gr and L—and Go—atta and Hit attas; with such syn C words as OIr athir, Ga athair, but W, Br, Cor tād, and Cor varr tūs, tūt (and dās); with Skt attas, and ult with abbé, abbot (of Sem origin, with Ham parallels): these relationships have not yet been fully inter-distinguished either phon or sem. But, like mother, sister, brother, father seems, ult, to have both denoted an agent and perh also been of Medit origin (cf Eg ab, father).

fathom (n, v), whence fathomless.

'To fathom', orig to embrace, derives from OE faethmian, to embrace, itself from OE faethm, the embracing arms, hence the full, straight stretch of both arms, hence the measure fathom (6 feet): whence, through ME fethme, fadme, the E fathom: and OE faethm is akin to OFris fethem, OS fathom, fathom, and fathmos, the outstretched arms, OHG fadam, fadam, MHG vadem, G Faden, thread, fathom, ON fathmr, fathom; Gmc r, fath*-; IE r, pat-, cf L patēre, to lie open, pandere, to lay open, Gr petannuai (s petan-, r pet-), to spread out, petalos (s petal-, r pet-), outspread, hence flat (cf PETAL, patanē (s patan-, r pat-), a flat bowl or dish. Cf PATENT.

fatidical. See DICT, para 11, and cf the element fati-.

fatigue (n, v); indefatigable, whence indefatigability.

Indefatigable derives from MF-F indefatigable, itself from LL indefatigābilis: in-, not + dēfatigābilis*, from dēfatigāre, a dē- int of fatigāre, to exhaust, hence merely to weary: fatigāre has s *fati*g-, r fati-: prob from L fatis, a crevice, a crevasse, s fati-, r fat-. L fatigāre becomes MF-F fatiguer, whence 'to fatigue'; fatiguer has the MF-F derivative n fatigue, adopted by E.

fatten, fatty. See FAT.

fatuity, fatuous. See VAPID.

faucal, fauces. See SUFFOCATE, para 2.

faucet. See FAIL, para 7.

fault, faultless, faulty. See FAIL, para 8.

faun; fauna. See FAVOR, FAVOUR, para 2.

fauteuil. See STALL, para 9.

faux pas. See FAIL, para 6.

favel. See the 2nd FAVO(U)R.

(1) favor (AE), favour, n and v; favo(u)rable, favo(u)rite (whence favo(ur)itism).—faun (whence faunal), fauna, Faunus.

1. Favo(u)r, n, is adopted from OF-MF, from ML, favor, L favor, a kindly disposition towards, hence a mark thereof, an -or derivative of favēre (s fau-), to treat warmly, be kindly disposed to; IE r, prob bhau*-. OF-MF favor (F faveur) has derivative OF-MF v favore, whence 'to fav(u)r'. Favo(u)rable derives from OF-F favorable, itself from ML favorabilis, L faurabilis (from faur); fav(u)rite derives from EF favorit, f favorite (cf the F favori, f favorite), from It favorito, pp of favorire, to favour, from ML favor (L faur).

2. On the L s fau- is formed Faunus (s Faun-, r fau-), the god of herds and crops: whence faun. The god Faunus acquires a prophetic sister, the LL Fauna, prob evoked by—and to complement—Flora; hence Sci L, Sci E, fauna, animals in general: cf flora, plant life in general.

(2) fav(u)r, as in, and only in, 'to curry favour', has been corrupted (from 'to curry favel') by the 1st fav(u)r: it stands for obs favel, a pale-yellow horse, adopted from OF, where it is elliptical for cheval favel, a pale-yellow horse: OF favel, adj, usu falve, comes from Gmc—see the 1st FALLOW.

fawn (1), n, a young deer, hence a reddish-yellow hue of brown (the colour of its coat), used derivatively as adj: OF(-F) faon, var of feon: VL fēionem*, acc of fētō*: from L fētus, a new-born animal: f.a.e., FETUS.

fawn (2), v, to cringe or toady. See FAIN, para 2.

fay (1), a fairy: OF-F fée: VL fāta (cf Fāta, the goddess of fate): neu pl (fāta)—apprehended as sing—of L fātum, q.v. at FATE.

fay (2), faith. See FAITH, para 2.

feague. See FAKE.

feal, fealty. See FAITH, para 4.

fear (n, v), whence fearful, fearless, fearsome.

'To fear', ME feren, earlier faeren, derives from OE fāeran, to terrify, itself from the source of fear, viz. danger, OE fāer (also fear), whence, via ME ferē, feer, the E n fear, fright, dread: and OE fāer is akin to OFris forfēra (int for-), to terrify—to OHG fāra, MHG vāre, ambush, evil intent, MHG gevāre, treachery, G Gefahr, danger—to ON fār, misfortune: Gmc r, fāer-, fer-; IE r, pēr-, per-: cf L periculum, danger, and perh Gr peira, an attempt, and E PERIL. (Walshe.)

feasible (whence feasibility): MF faisible (perh suggested by ML facibilis), var of MF-F faisable, from fais-, s of faisant, presp of faire, to make, to do: L facere: f.a.e., FACT, para 1.

feast, n and v; festal, festival (adj, whence n), festive, festivity; -fest (AE), festas, fiestas, fête; festoon (n hence v).—cf the 2nd FAIR and also FANE.

1. The AE -fest represents G Fest (MHG vest); fiesta is It, fiesta Sp, fête F; and all four derive from VL fiesta, holiday, sing n from fiesta, pl of festum, neus of adj festus, of or for a holiday: from fēriae, holidays: r fes-+thematic formative -t-+declensional formative u++nominative s. The r fes-* does not occur outside of the Italic languages: perh fes-* comes from an IE r dhes-, extn of dhē- or dhē-*, to place, to establish. (E & M.)

2. VL fiesta becomes OF-MF feste (whence fête), with derivative OF-MF adj festal (-el), adopted by E. But L festum has its own adj festivus, ML -ivus, whence E festive; derivative festivitas, ML festivitas, o/s festivitat-, yields OF-MF festivité, whence festivity. ML festivus becomes the OF-EF adj festival (-al), adopted by E, which then converts it into n. VL fiesta becomes It, with aug festone, a holiday garland, whence F feston, whence E festoon.

feat (1), adj, ME fete, comes from OF fait, made, hence well made, pp of faire, from L facere: f.a.e., FACT.

feat (2), n. See FACT, para 7.

feather (n; hence v—cf OE gefitherian), whence the adj feathery.—pen, feather, whence, via the quill pen, a writing pen, whence 'to pen'; pennate; pennon and pennant; cf the elements ptero- and strepsi-.

1. Feather, ME from OE fether, is akin to OFris fethere (in cpds -fether), OHG fedara, MHG (and MD) vedere or veder, G Feder, ON fiöthr (fiöthr); to L penna and Gr pteron (also wing); to Skt pattra; and to Hit pittar, wing. Gmc etymon, fether*; IE etymon, peter* or pter*. (Walshe.) Cf FERN.

2. L penna prob stands for pet-s-na*, with r pet-, to fly: cf Gr petomai, Skt pātāmi, I fly. Penna becomes OF-F penne, whence ME penne, feather, hence a quill, whence E pen. Derivative pennātus, provided with feathers, hence winged, yields the pennate of Bio and Zoo.

3. OF-F penne has the OF-MF derivative pennon, penon, adopted by ME, whence E pennon, whence, in EE-E and app influenced by pendant, the alteration pennant.

4. For the matter of paras 2-3, see also the supplementary (and fuller) treatment at the 2nd PEN.

feature. See FACT, para 8.

febrifuge (cf the elements febri- and -fugal) and feverfew; febrile; fever (n, hence v), whence feverish (-ish, adj) and literary feverous (-ous).

1. Feverfew, a herb with juice thought to be efficacious against fever, derives from OE fēferfuge, a reshaping of LL febrifuga, var -fugia, the latter yielding late EF-F febrifuge, whence E febrifuge; with anl derivative adj febrifugal (cf centrifugal); febr- is the c/f of L febris, a fever, and -fuga is an end-c/f from fugāre, to put to flight, itself from fuga, flight, from fugere, to flee (f.a.e., FUGITIVE).

2. L febris has the LL adj febrilis, whence EF-F febrile and E febrile.

3. Febris itself becomes OE fēfer, whence E fever.

febrile. See para 2 of prec.

fecal, feces. See FAECAL.

feckless, shiftless, inefficient, complements feckful, strong, efficient: these mainly Śc words have base feck, orig effect, now usu force, efficacy: and feck represents fect*, aphetic for effect.

fecund, fecundate, fecundity. See FEMALE, para 5.

federal (whence federalism, federalist); federate (adj, n, v), federation, federative—cf confederacy, confederal, confederate (adj, n, v), confederation, confederative.

1. Akin to L fidere (s fid-), to have faith or trust (in someone), and fidēs (f.a.e., FAITH), is L foedus

(s foed-), a treaty, o/s foeder-, whence F fédéral, E federal (-al, adj); whence also foederatus, bound by treaty, whence E federate, adj, with derivative n and v; and LL foederātiō, o/s foederātiōn-, whence MF-F fédération, whence E federation; and F fédératif, f fédérative, whence E federative.

2. LL has the derivative prefix-cpd confoederāre, to unite by treaty (LL foederāre is a re-shaping from foederātus), with pp confoederātus, whence the E adj confederate (with derivative n and v). Derivative LL confoederātiō, o/s confoederātiōn-, yields MF-F confédération, whence E confederation; confederal is an anl formation, after federal, as confederative is after federative. Confederacy perh derives from MF confederacie, from the LL n confoederātus, but prob represents confederate + -cy, precisely as accuracy = accurate + -cy.

fedora: F Fédora (f PN), a Sardou drama published in 1882 and, in 1883, played in England and USA.; it became popular in America and there generated this name for, orig, a style of hat worn by the Russian princess, Fedora Romanoff. EW aptly compares TRILBY.

fee (n, whence v), a heritable estate (cf the legal in fee simple), hence a charge thereon, hence a fixed, monetary compensation: ME fee, fief, payment: (prob via AF fee, from) OF fius, fiuus, acc fiu, fiu, MF-F fief: akin to OE feoh, cattle, hence property, whence the obs E fee, (personal) property; OHG fihu, sehu, MHG vihe, G Vieh, cattle, and Go faihu, ON fǣ, cattle, (hence) property, money, cattle being 'the oldest form of wealth' (Walshe): cf L pecūnia, money, from pecū, pecus, cattle (f.a.e.c., PECUNIARY).

2. MF-F fief is adopted by E, esp in sense 'feudal estate'; the derivative v fieffer becomes AF seoffer, whence legal 'to seoff' (with var enseoff: AF enseoffer: MF ensieffer); the AF v has pp seoffé, whence legal seoffee.

3. Of the same general Gmc origin is ML feodum, feudum—cf OHG sehu, cattle, and OHG ōt, possession, (hence) property, akin to OE ēad—whence hist feud or feod, a heritable right, distinct from the 2nd FEUD, enmity, quarrel. ML feudum has adj feudālis, whence E feudal, as in the feudal system, whence feudalism.

4. In the Scan group of the Gmc languages, we find an important cognate: the ON fēlag, a laying (-lag) together of property (fē-), hence a partnership, whence ON fēlagi, a partner, hence a comrade, whence late OE fēolaga, whence ME felaghe, later felawe, whence E fellow (with derivative v); derivative ME felawscipe (etc.) becomes E fellowship (suffix -ship).

feeble, whence feebleness; enfeeble, whence enfeeblement; foible.

1. The adj feeble derives from ME feble, adopted from OF-MF, which has the OF-MF var foible, which becomes an E n, 'weak point or part (esp moral)'; now, OF-MF feble is a metathesis of OF febe, itself from L flēbilis, to be wept over, lamentable, an -ibilis derivative of flēre (s flē-), to weep (vi), to weep over: akin to OE bellan and cognate bylgan, and ON belia, (of cattle) to bellow, and OHG bellan, to bark—cf, therefore, BELLOW.

2. OF-MF feble (var feible, faible) has derivative prefix-cpd v enseblir, ensefbilir (en, in, used int), to derive of strength: whence 'to enfeeble'.

feed (v, hence n)—pt, pp fed—whence feeder and feeding; fodder (n hence v); food—foster, n (whence adj) and v, whence fosterage (age); foster-child, -mother.

1. 'To feed' = OE fēdan, akin to OFris fēda, OS fōdian, Go fōdjan, OHG fuottan, which are all akin to OE fōda, ME fode, E food—and to OE fōdor, food for animals, whence E fodder, and therefore to OHG fuotar, MHG fuoter, G Futter, and ON fōthr, and again, though less nearly, the L pābulum (s pāb-, r pā-), food, fodder, pānis (s pān-, r pā-*), bread, pāscere (s pāsc-, extn of pās-, r pā-), to pasture, therefore also to Gr pateomai (s pate-, r pat-, extn of pa*). The Gmc r is app fōd-; the IE r, pā-, to eat, with extnn pāb-, pān-, pās-, pat-. Cf PASTOR (and pasture and repast).

2. Akin to OE fōdor and fēdan is OE fōster or fōstor, a nourishing, a rearing, whence the syn but obs E n foster; the OE cpds fōstercild, fōstermōdor, become fosterchild, fostermother. OE fōster, which has derivative v fōstrian, whence 'to foster', is akin to the syn ON fōstr and OS fōster, and to ON fōstra, a fostermother. The OE words suggest that, orig, they were freq of fēdan, influenced by fōdor.

feel, v, whence n and feeler and pa, vn feeling (unfeeling, adj); pt, pa felt (unfelt, adj).—palm of hand (n hence v), whence, either from the leaf's resemblance to the hand's traceried palm (Webster) or from 'the spreading fronds' (EW), the palm tree; palmaceous; palmar, palmary; palmate; palmer; palmetto; palmist, palmisty; palmitic; palmus; palmy; palmyra.—palp, palpable (impalpable), palpate, palpation, palpatory; palpebral; palpitant, palpitate, palpitation; palpus, whence adj palpal.—psalm, psalmist, psalmody, psaltery.

1. 'To feel' derives, through ME felen, from OE fēlan, akin to the syn OFris fēla, OS gifōlian (gi-, G ge-, int), OHG fuolēn, MHG füelen, G fühlen, MD vuelen, volen, (as in D) voelen; to ON fālma, to grope, fumble; also to L palpāre, to touch, to stroke; Gr psallein, to cause to vibrate, to shake, psēlaphan, to stroke, grope, the 2nd element being haphaō, I touch, stir, excite; Skt asphālayati, he shakes, flaps, strikes.

2. L palma, palm of the hand, could derive from palpma*, 'the feeler', but is prob for palama*, deriving from or intimately akin to the syn Gr palamē, s palam-, r pal-. (Some etymologists relate the Gr and L word to the PLACE group, basic idea 'flatness'.) Its derivatives include E palm, G Palm (the tree), OF-F paume (OF-MF palme)—cf OProv palma. Derivatives include palmaceous (-aceous, perh after rosaceous); palmar, from L palmāris, of the palm of the hand; palmary, from L palmārius, of palm trees, hence deserving the palm leaves, anciently a symbol of victory—cf bear away the palm and the palm of martyrdom; palmate, hand-shaped, from L palmātus; the medieval palmer wore two palm leaves, crossed, to show that he had visited the Holy Land—from OF-F palmier, ML palmārius, n from the adj; palmetto, a fan palm, reshapes Sp palmito, dim of palma, a palm tree; palmist, hand-reading fortune-teller, is either a b/f from palmistry or short for EE palmister, and palmistry, ME paumestry (or pau-)=ME paume, palm of the hand+maistrīe (E mystery), adopted from OF-MF; palmitic=F palmitique, a fatty acid occurring in palm oil; palmy=palm (tree)+adj -y, from association with palmy and pleasant shores and countries; palmyra, a tall African palm, derives from Port palmeira, a palm tree.

3. Note, however, that SciL palmus derives from Gr palmos (r pal-+formative -m-+declensional -o-+nominative -s), palpitation: cf para 8.

4. L palpāre, to touch, stroke, feel, becomes late MF-F palper, whence E 'to palp'. Derivative palpābilis yields, via late MF-F, the E palpable, whence palpability, with neg LL impalpābilis, whence impalpable, whence impalpability; derivative palpātiō, o/s palpātiōn-, yields palpation, whence, anl, palpatory; Med palpate comes from the pp palpātus. But L palpus, the soft palm of the hand, (? hence) a caress, whence Zoo palpus, a feeler, is prob the origin of palpāre.

5. Palpebral (of the eyelids)= LL palpebrālis, adj of L palpebra, an eyelid, characterized by its repeated movements in blinking, fluttering, etc., and therefore, like palpus, indicating the close kinship of the Gr words.

6. L palpāre has freq palpitāre, to be briskly agitated, to flutter. The presp palpitans, o/s palpitant-, becomes the E adj palpitant; pp palpitātus yields 'to palpitate'; derivative palpitātiō, o/s palpitātiōn-, accounts for palpitation.

7. Gr palamē, palm of the hand (cf para 2), becomes Zoo Sci L palama, the webbing of aquatic birds' feet, whence Zoo palamate, web-footed (cf PALMATE in para 2).

8. Gr psallein, to pull briskly and repeatedly, to twitch, to pluck at the strings of, eg., a lyre, to make vibrate (cf para 1), LGr to sing religious hymns, is either an echoic freq of pallein*, to shake, IE r pal-, to move lightly, quickly, repeatedly, or a very early metathesis of syn palassein, extended from r pal-* and formed like malassein, to render soft or supple. Psallein has these derivatives affecting E:

psalmos, orig a plucking of musical strings, later a song accompanied on the harp, whence LL psalmus, whence OE-E psalm, with adj psalmic;

LGr psalmistēs, LL psalmista, E psalmist;

LGr psalmōidia, a singing (aeidein, to sing) of psalms to the harp, later a collection of psalms: LL psalmōidia: OF-F psalmodie: E psalmody; psaltērion, a stringed instrument: LL psaltērīum, whence both MF psalterion (F -ērion) and OF-MF psalterie, whence, via ME, the E psaltery, an ancient form of zither, and OE psaltere, E psalter, The Book of Psalms, with intervention, in the ME period, of OF salter (from the LL word), the two words affording an illuminating example of sense-differentiation arising so early as LL.

feet. See FOOT.

feign, whence pa feigned; faint (adj, hence v; from both, the n); feint (n, whence v); fictile, fiction (whence fictional), fictitious, fictive—cf figment; sep EFFIGY.

1. The base is the L figere, to model in clay hence to fashion in any plastic material, then to fashion or form, and finally to invent, imagine, even to pretend. Figere becomes OF-F feindre (in OF-MF, a vr), with presp feignant (s feign-), whence ME feinen or feignen, the latter surviving as 'to feign'.

2. OF feindre has pp feint, whence the obs E feint, feigned; the OF feint has f feinte, used also, in MF-F, elliptically for action (or chose) feinte, a false appearance, a trick, whence the E n feint.

3. The OF-F pp feint has the OF-MF var faint, adopted by ME and extant in E, (orig) feigned, hence cowardly ('Faint heart never won fair lady'), lacking in spirit, hence lacking consciousness, our faint.

4. Nasal figere has s fig-, but r fig-, as in the derivative figmentum, something fashioned, whence E figment, esp a thing fashioned by the imagination.

5. Figere has pp fictus, a fict-, on which arise: fictilis, (capable of being) moulded, whence E fictile; fictiō, a moulding or fashioning, o/s fictiōn- whence, via MF-F, the E fiction; ficticius, whence E fictitious; late MF-F fictif (f-ive), whence E fictive.

6. F.a.e.: FIGURE.

feint. See prec, para 2.

feldspar, earlier feldspath: both adopted from G: Feldspat, earlier Feldspath: feld (see FIELD)+Spat, earlier Spath, spar: and E spar, a non-metallic mineral occurring in a metalliferous vein, is adopted from MLG spar. The modern use of spar arises from a confusion of the MLG spar with G Spath, Spat. MLG spar is akin to OE spaerstan, chalkstone; this OE spaer, frugal, is the source of the E adj SPARE.

felicitate, felicitation, felicitous, felicity—cf infelicitous, infelicity; felix, felia.

1. The base is L fēlix (s and r fēl-), o/s fēlic-, fruitful, (specialized as) fortunate, prosperous, happy, whence the m PN Felix, with f Felicia. The L adj fēlix app derives from fēla*, breast—cf FEMALE; orig, therefore, fēlix would have meant 'milk-giving or -supplying'. (E & M.) Cf Arabia Felix, the fertile region, opp Arabia Deserta.

2. On o/s fēlic- arises fēlicitās, fertility, hence prosperity, happiness, with o/s fēlicitāt-, whence MF felicité (F fē-), whence E felicity, whence felicitous (felicity+adj -ous). On fēlicit- arises rare LL fēlicitāre, to render happy, with pp fēlicitātus, whence 'to felicitate,' esp to congratulate; fēlicitation derives from EF-(F) fēlicitation, erudite derivative of F fēliciter (from fēlicitāre).

3. L fēlix has neg infēlix (in-, not), whence infelicitās, o/s infelicitāt-, whence EF-F infelicitē, whence E infelicity, whence, anl, infelicitous.

feline, felinity. The latter derives, by suffix -ity, from the former; the former derives from VL fēlinus*, from L fēlineus, of a (wild) cat, from fēlēs (var fēlis), a cat, a wild cat: o.o.o.: perh cf Eg pekhat, the Cat-Goddess.

Felix. See FELICITATE.

fell (1), adj; felo de se, felon, felonious, felonry.

Fell, cruel, deadly, came into ME from OF fel (cfMD fel), fierce, cruel, the OF nom of OF-MF felo (F fē-), which, both adj and n, was adopted by ME for 'cruel' and 'a cruel man, esp a villain', whence E felon, whence the adj felonious (perh cf EF felonnieux, f -ieuse, treacherous, and EF felonneux, f -euse, cruel, wicked) and the n felonry (-ry for -ery); derivative OF-MF felonie (F fē-) becomes E felony. The legal felo-de-se is AL: felō, a villain + dē, concerning, of + sē, oneself. Now AL felō derives either from VL fēllō* (gen fēllōnis*), perh from L fel (gen fellis), bile, with basic idea 'bitterness', hence 'venom', or, via Carolingian L fellō, from a Frankish fillo*, a reduction of filljo*, a whipper, hence maltreater, esp of slaves, from a Frankish v that answers to OHG fillēn, to whip (B & W).

fell (2), n, a skin or esp a hide: OE fell: cf OFris fell, OHG fel, MHG vel, G Fell, MD velle, MD-D vel, in cpds Go -fill, ON fiall and, in cpds, -fell: corresponding to L pellis, skin, hide, and Gr pella, a milk-bowl or -pail, ? made of skin; Gmc r, fil-; IE r, pel-. (Walshe.) Cf FILM.

fell (3), n, orig a hill, now a (high) moor: ON fjall, mountain: akin to OHG felis, MHG vels, G Fels, a (great) rock; perh cf Gr Pēlion, a mountain in Thessaly.

fell (4), v, to cut down (a tree), beat or knock down (a person). See FALL, para 2.

felloe. See FELLY.

fellow, fellowship. See FEE, para 4.

felly, also felloe: ME feli, felow, felwe: OE felg: cf OHG felaga, felga, MHG velge, G Felge, MD velge, D velg: Walshe compares Skt pārśuś, a rib.

felo-de-se; felon, felonious, felony. See the 1st FELL.

felt (n hence v), whence vn felting: OE felt: akin to OHG filz, MHG vilz, G Filz. These words are akin to Gr pilos, L pilus, a hat, and esp to ML filtrum, var feltrum (whence OF-F feutre, felt, fulled wool, esp used for straining a liquid), whence EF-F filtre, whence E filter; derivative EF-F filtrer becomes 'to filter'. ML filtrum has derivative v filtrāre, with pp filtrātus, whence 'to filtrate'. Learned EF-F filtration (from filtrer) was adopted by E.

Cf PILE, hair.

2. Derivative EF-F s'infiltrer prob suggested 'to infiltrate' (in-, into); its EF-F derivative infiltration was adopted by E.

felucca. See LUG.

felwort. See FIELD, para 2, s.f.

female (n hence adj); feminine, femininity (femineity), feminism, feminist, feminize; femme (fatale); cf effeminate, whence effeminacy.—fecund, fecundate (whence fecundative, fecundatory), fecundity.

1. Effeminate anglicizes L effeminātus, pp of effēmināre, to make a fēmīna or woman ex, out of.

2. Fēmīna, woman (hence also wife), represents perh the reduction of a presp that answers to the rare fēmīnātus (pp used as adj), form-resembles alumna, f of alumnus, from alere, to nourish, and lit means 'milk-giving', hence 'milk-giver' (breast-feeder).

3. L fēmīna becomes OF-F femme.

4. Fēmīna has these derivatives affecting E: fēmella, little woman—OF-F femelle—ME femelle, whence, after male, the E female; fēmīneus, of a woman, whence E feminely; fēmīninus, of a woman, womanly—OF-MF feminin (F fē-), f -ine—E feminine, whence femininity. But feminism, -ist, -ize, come, perh with F encouragement, from fēmin-, s of fēmīna.

5. L fēmīna, s fēmīn-, has r fēm-, itself an extn of fē-, woman, essential physical femineity; this is the r of L fēcundus, (of land, crops, females) fertile, E fecund (via MF-F fēcond, f fēconde). Derivative fēcundāre, pp fēcundātus, yields 'to fecundate', to render fruitful, and derivative fēcunditās, o/s fēcunditāt-, yields fecundity. The adj fecundative, fecundatory, are E and formations in -ive, -ory, from L fēcundāt-, s of the pp fēcundātus. Fēcundus is app an ancient participle: fēc- (extn of fē-) + -und-, presp base (cf fācundus from fāri, to speak) + -u-, declensional formative + nom -s.

6. The r fē- occurs also in L fēlix, q.v. at FELICITATE, and in FETUS. It rests upon an IE r dhe-*, to give suck to, with examples, not only in L but also in Gr; in C and Gmc; and in Skt.

7. Cf FILIAL.

femoral, femur. See the element femoro-.

fen: OE fen or fenn, marsh, primarily mud: akin to OFris fene or fenne, OS fen, OHG fenna, G Fenn, ON fen, marsh, and Go fani, mud, and, further off, Skt pañka, mud.

fence; fencible. See last para of:

fend, fender—cf fence, fencible, fencing; defend (whence defender), defence (AE -nse), defensive (adj hence n); offend (whence offender), offence (AE -se), offensive (adj hence n).—gonfalon, gonfanon.

1. L fendere, to strike or knock, appears in three prefix-cpds, of which only dēfendere and offendere concern E. It has s fend-, r fen-, and is akin to Gr theinein, to strike, Skt gonim, I wound severely, hānti, he strikes, ghanās, a club, Hit kunanzi, they strike; to OP gunnimai, we push, OSi gūnati, Lith genū, to chase, pursue; to ON gunnr, combat, OHG gund, war (cf OE gūth, battle). The IE r is prob gwhen-*, to strike.

2. OHG gund occurs in the OHG cpd gundfano, a war flag (for fano, cloth, cf E VANE): whence MF gonfanon, a kind of gonfalon, a princely ensign or standard; MF-F gonfalon is a dissimilation of OF gonfanon.

3. L offendere (of- for ob-, in front of, over against, on account of), to knock against, shock, wound, becomes OF-MF offendre, whence E 'to offend'. The L pp offensus has derivative syn nn offensum and offensa, whence MF-F offense, adopted by ME with var offence; derivative EF-F offensif, f -ive, becomes E offensive. Inoffensive is likewise of F origin.

4. L defendere, to knock or strike away (connoted by de, down from), to repel, hence to protect, becomes OF-MF defendre (F dé-), whence 'to defend'. The L pp dēfensus has derivative syn nn dēfensum and dēfensa, whence OF-MF dēfense, adopted by ME with var defence; LL dēfensibilis (dēfensus+-ibilis), capable of defence, yields defensible; ML dēfensivus yields—perh via MF-F dēfensif, f -ive—defensive.

5. Defence acquired, by aphesis in late ME, the derivative n fence, orig an act, then a means, of defending oneself, esp in self-defence, usu with sword; the derivative v leads to the vn fencing and the agent fencer. Derivative fencible, able to defend or to be defended, now archaic, becomes n—'the fencibles', the Napoleonic Wars original of the Home Guards.

fenestella; fenestra, fenestral, fenestrate. See PENATES, para 3.

fennel: OE fenol: VL fēnuc(u)lum*, for L fēniculum (or faeni-), dim of fēnum (faenum), hay, s fēn, faen-, perh an extn of the r fē-* occurring in fēcundus, fēlix, fēmina, fētus, and therefore meaning 'product' (sc of the meadow), as E & M propose.

2. L faenum Graecum, (lit) Greek hay, an aromatic herb, becomes faenugraecum, whence MF fenegrec, soon fenugrec, whence E fenugreek.

fenugreek. See FENNEL, para 2.

feoff, feoffee. See FEE, para 2.

feral; ferine. See FIERCE, para 2.

Feringhee, Fering(h). See FRANK, para 10.

ferment (n, v), fermentation.

The latter derives from LL fermentātiō, a leavening, o/s fermentātiōn-, from fermentātus, pp of fermentāre, whence, via MF-F fermentar, the E 'to ferment': and fermentāre derives from fermentum, a leaven, esp yeast, whence, via MF-F, the E n ferment. Fermentum=fer- (as in feruere, ML fervere; cf FERVENT)+formative -mentum; IE r, bher-*. The Gmc shape is seen in E BARM.

fern (whence ferny): OE fearn: akin to OHG faram, MHG varn, varn, G Farn, MD varn and (as in D) varn, and esp Skt parṇa, wing, feather, hence a feathery plant, esp a fern—cf Gr pteron, feather, wing, and pteris, bracken: cf, therefore, FEATHER.

ferocious, ferocity. See FIERCE, para 3.

ferret (n, whence v—cf the F sureter), with adj ferrety: MF-EF fuiret, whence MF-F fuiret, an set dim of MF-EF fuiron, whence MF-F fuiron (s fuir-, fur-): VL furiōnem*, acc of furiō, debasement or enlargement of LL furō, a cat, orig a thief, itself from L fūr, a thief: f.a.e., FURTIVE.

ferric, ferrous, ferruginous; cf the element ferro-, and sep FARRIER.

Ferric=L ferrum, iron+E adj suffix -ic; ferrous=ferrum+adj -ous; ferruginous=L ferrūginus, adj of ferrūgō, iron-rust, o/s ferrūgin-, from ferrum (r fer-): o.o.o.: perh of Hit origin—cf Ass parzillu, iron; more prob Eg—cf parthal.

ferule. See WIRE, para 4.

ferry (v, whence n): ME ferien: OE ferian: akin to ON ferja, to ferry, and, further off, OE faran, to travel: f.a.e., FARE.

fertile, fertility, fertilize (whence fertilization and fertilizer).

Fertile comes, prob via MF-F, from L fertilis: fer-, r of ferre, to bear, carry+formative -t-+ the common adj suffix -ilis: f.a.e., BEAR, v. Fertilis has derivative fertilitas, o/s fertilitāt-, whence, prob via MF-F fertilité, the E fertility. MF-F fertile has EF-F derivative fertiliser, whence 'to fertilize'.

ferule, (obs) the giant fennel, hence a school master's stick; the fennel's stalks were anciently used as a cane for punishing schoolboys: L ferula, retained by Bot: perh from L ferire, to strike; perh akin to L festūca, a straw, a light rod, itself perh from ferstūca*.

fervent, fervency; fervescent, fervescence; fervid; fervor (AE), fervour;—effervesce, effervescence, effervescent.

1. 'To effervesce' derives from ML effervesce, L effervesce, an ex- int of feruescere, to begin to boil, inch of feruere, to boil, be boiling; presp (ML) effervesce, o/s effervescent-, yields effervescent, whence effervesce.

2. L feruere, s feru-, r fer-, goes back to IE bher-*, to bubble, to boil: cf Skt bhurāti, it is agitated, it bubbles; cognates in Gr, C, Arm, Alb. Cf FERMEN and BARM.

3. Feruere, ML servere, has presp servens, o/s servent-, whence, via OF, the adj servent; OF-F servent has the MF-EF derivative servence, whence obs E servence and, by anl, servency; the inch (ML) servescere has presp servescens, o/s servescent-, whence servescent, whence servescence.

4. L feruere has two derivatives affecting E: feruidus, ML servidus, boiling, whence fervid; feruor, ML fervor, a boiling, heat, ardour, whence OF-MF fervor or fervour (cf F serveur), E adopting the latter, AE the former (unless straight from the ML form).

-fest, festa; festal; festival, festive, festivity. See FEAST, para 1 for first two; para 2 for the others.

festoon. See FEAST, para 2.

festuca, adopted by Bot: see FERULE.

fetal. See FETUS.

fetch (v, whence n), to go and get (bring alor g, bring forward), derives, through ME fecchen, fr m OE fecan, var of fetian, akin to OE faet, a step, itself akin to FOOT. The presp is used derivatively as coll adj for 'attractive'.

fête. See FEAST, para 1.

fetich. See FACT, para 3 at facticius.

fetid (whence fetidity), evil-smelling: L fetidus, var of foetidus, from fetere, var of foetere, to smell bad, to stink, s fet-, foet-, perh akin to L foedus, repulsive, disgusting; both foetere and foedus are o.o.o.—nevertheless, foet- and foed-, with prob r foe-*, strikingly recall Eg hua-t (r hua-), stench, (adj) stinking.

2. Foetere, fetere has the further derivative foetor, fetor, stench, adopted by learned and Sci E. fetish. See FACT, para 3 at factitious.

fetlock. See FOOT, para 3.

fetor. See FETID, para 2.

fetter. See FOOT, para 4.

fettle (v, whence n, as in fine fettle, in excellent condition) derives from ME setten, setlen, to set in order, orig to gird up, from OE setla, a girdle, akin to ON setill, a strap, and OHG fezzil, a sword-belt, and fazzōn, to seize, equip, MHG vazzen, G fassen, to contain, grasp (cf OE fatian): f.a.e., VAT.

fetus, incorrectly foetus: L fētus, the bearing, the bringing forth, of a child, pregnancy, hence the newborn child, akin to—prob from—L fētus (adj), childbearing, fruitful, with s fēt-, r fē- (as in secund, q.v. at FEMALE), essential physical femininity. Derivative adj fetal.

2. For derivative L effētus, lit 'having ceased to bear children', see EFFETE. Derivative L superfētāre, to conceive during pregnancy (super, over), has pp superfētātus, whence 'to superfetate', with derivative superfetation.

3. Cf the sep FAWN (1).

feud (1), a heritable right. See FEE, para 3.

feud (2), continued, usu active, hostility: ME feide: OF feide, faide: OHG ga-fēhida (int ga-), whence G Fehde: akin to OHG gi-fēh. OE fāh, OFris fāch, hostile, OE fāeth, OFris fāithe, fēithe, enmity, Go -faihs, deception: f.a.e., FOE. The spelling has been influenced by the 1st FEUD.

feudal, feudalism. See FEE, para 3.

fever, feverish. See FEBRIFUGE, para 3; at para 1, FEVERFEW.

few (whence fewness): ME fewe, earlier seawe: OE seawe, the pl of sēa: akin to OE sēa, OFris fē, OS fāh, OHG fao, fō, ON fār, little, and to Go fawai (pl); to L pauci, few men, pauca, few things (and also to pauper, poor), and Gr pauros, little, in small number: cf, therefore, PAUCITY and POOR.

fey, doomed, hence—esp in Sc—appearing to be doomed to die, derives from OE fæge, akin to OE fāh, inimical, and ON feigr, OHG feigi, doomed to die, G feig, cowardly: perh akin to the 2nd FEUD; f.a.e., FOE.

fez: F fez (EF fes): Fez, the capital of Morocco, where this felt cap was first made.

fiancé, fiancée. See FAITH, para 11.

fiasco, a flask or bottle (esp of wine), hence—? from 'dead marines' and smashed bottles—a crash, esp a resounding or ludicrous failure: via F, from It, fiasco, bottle, crash, of Gmc origin. The 'failure' sense may have an independent origin: it comes, in F, from faire fiasco, from It far fiasco, to make a failure, and this It fiasco is not certainly the 'bottle' fiasco. (See esp B & W.) Cf FLASK.

fiat: L fiat, let it be done, from fiō, I am made, I become, used as passive of facere but app of same r as fiū, I have been.

fib (n and v; whence fibster) prob derives from fiddle faddle, nonsense, a redup of fable.

fiber (AE) or fibres; fibril, fibrillate (whence fibrillation); fibrin; element fibro-; fibrose, fibrous; fibrosis, fibrositis.

Fiber comes straight from L fibra (o.o.o.), fibre from the MF-F form. The ML adj fibrōsus yields both fibrose and fibrous, the latter perh suggested by fibreuse, f of EF-F fibreux, from fibre. SciL coins the dim fibrilla, whence fibril and, by anl, fibrillate; Biochemistry coins fibrin (chem -in); Med introduces fibrosis (suffix -osis, denoting a diseased condition) and fibrositis, which=fibroso-, Sci c/f of fibrōsus+-itis, 'disease'. This L fiber is distinct from L fiber, a beaver.

fibster. See FIB.

fickle (whence fickleness), orig deceitful: ME fikel: OE ficol: cf OE gefic, deceit or fraud, facen, deceit; L piget, it disgusts; and ult E FOE.

fico. See FIG.

fictile. See FEIGN, para 5.

fiction, fictional, fictitious, fictive. See FEIGN, para 5.

fiddle (n hence v, whence pa and vn fiddling); fiddler (Fiddler's Green); fiddle-de-dee; fiddlesticks.—vielle, viol, viola, violin, violinist, violoncello (abbr 'cello), violoncellist.

1. 'To fiddle', in all senses, derives from the modern n; fiddler, OE fithelere, derives from the OE form of the n: fithele (ME fithele, later fidele). OE fithele prob comes from ML fidula; but ME fidelle, prob from the ML var fidella; ML fidusa and fidella are dimm (cf L fidicula) of L fidēs, fidil, lyre or guitar, b/f of pl fidēs, the strings of a lyre, itself o.o.o.; the derivation from VL-ML vitula, a fiddle, from L Uitula, ML Vitula, Goddess of Exultation or Victory (whence uitulāri, to sing or rejoice), is ingenious but far less prob. (The goddess's name is perh Sabine: E & M.)

2. Fiddler's Green is the sailor's paradise, with junketing to tunes on the fiddle; fiddle-de-dee comes from the n fiddle, perh ref tuning-up thereon; fiddlesticks comes from fiddlestick, the bow, so much less valuable than the fiddle itself.

3. Vielle, a large medieval viol, is adopted from F, of imm Gmc origin but ult from L uitula, ML vitula (as in para 1); viol derives from ME vyell, from OF-F vielle, perh influenced by OProv viola; E viola is adopted from It viola, itself adopted from OProv viola, prob, like OF-F vielle, imm of Gmc origin.

4. It viola has dim violino, whence (late MF-F violon and) E violin; derivative It violinista has suggested E violinist.

5. It viola has also the aug violone, a double-bass viol, a term adopted by E; and It violone has dim violoncello, likewise adopted by E, which, in violoncellist, prob reshapes derivative It violoncellista. E violoncello, violoncellist, have aphetic derivatives 'cello, 'cellist.

fidelity. See FAITH, para 5.

fidget, v—hence n fidget, a restless person, and fidgets, restlessness, and fidgety, restless—is a freq of fidge (now only dial), varr fitch, fig, fike: ME fiken, to fidget: prob from, at the least akin to, ON fikjask, to desire eagerly, be eager.

Fido. See FAITH, para 7.

fiducial, fiduciary. See FAITH, para 8.

fiel, like faugh! and foh!, is merely echoic.

fiel. See FEE, para 2.

field (n, whence adj and v)—fieldfare—field marshal—felwort; sep feldspar; veld, veldschoen.

1. A field comes, through ME fid, earlier feld, from OE feld: akin to OFris, OS, OHG feld, MHG veld, G Feld, MD veelt, velt, (also D) veld; also, with mutation, ON fold, OS folda, OE folde, earth, land: Gmc r, feld-, var fuld-. If field is akin to E place and plane, the IE r is pelt-* or palt-, with metathesis plet-, plat-*, in Gr platus, flat, and mdfn plan-* in syn L plānus; cf Skt prāthati, it widens or broadens out. Cf FLAT and PLACE.

2. Fieldfare=ME feldefare=OE feldeware, ? for feldefare: app—but perh only app—felde, field+fare, a going (FARE); field marshal, orig a kind of quartermaster-general, merely anglicizes the slightly earlier G Feldmarschall, which merely translates F maréchal de camp;

feldspar, sep entry;

felwort: OE feldwyr (cf WORT).

3. D veld, field, becomes, in Afr, grassland, however extensive, esp the grass veld of Natal and Transvaal, and the bush veld in Cape Province; veldt is an obs spelling. Afr veldschoen, prop a shoe that is nailless and of untanned hide, is a f/e (after veld) refashioning of Afr velschoen: vel (E fell), skin, hide+schoen, a shoe.

fiend (whence fiendish: adj -ish): ME fiend, earlier feond: OE fēond, orig the presp of fēon, to hate (cf OHG fiēn, Go fijan, ON fiā): akin to OFris fiand, fjünd, OS fiond, OHG fiant (MHG viant, viēnt), G Feind, G fijands, ON fjände, all orig 'the enemy'; cf also Skt phyati, he scorns or abuses.

fierce (whence 'to fiercen' and fierceness); feral and ferine; ferocious, ferocity.—theriac; element therio-; treacle.

1. Fierce: ME fiers, fers, both adopted from OF, where they form the nom of fier, fer, fierce, savage (cf the derivative fier, haughty, proud): L ferus, wild (untamed), cruel, whence (elliptical for fera bestia) the n fera, a wild beast: akin to the syn Aeolic Gr phēr, Thessalian phēir, varr of Gr thēr, with elaboration—strictly a dim—thērion; IE etymon, ghēr*, ghuer*—cf OLith žverū, of wild beasts, Lith žveris, wild beast, OP swirins (acc), wild beasts. (E & M; Hofmann.)

2. L fera, wild beast, has LL derivative adj ferālis, bestial, cruel, whence E feral, and derivative L ferinus, of or like a wild beast, whence the learned E ferine.

3. L ferus, s fer-, has mdfn ferōx, savage and untamable (cf ātrōx and āter), o/s ferōc-, gen ferōcis, whence (cf the MF-F feroce) the E ferocious; derivative ferōcitas, o/s ferōcitat-, whence (cf the MF-F ferocité) the E ferocity.

4. Gr thērion, a (wild) beast, has adj thēriakos, whence the f thēriakē used as n, an antidote against snake-venom, whence LL thēriaca, adopted by (old) Med and often anglicized to theriac, the adj to both being theriacal.

5. But this LL thēriaca must have had a dim thēriacula*, whence VL triacula*, whence OF triacle, adopted by ME, whence E treacle, with 'molasses' sense (first recorded late in C17) arising from the fact that molasses formed an ingredient in many a C16–17 treacle or 'sovereign remedy'.

fig (1), the fruit: OF-F figue: OProv figa: VL fica*: L ficus, fig, fig-tree: app of Medit stock (sem cf uinum, vine). The It derivative fico, common in Elizabethan times as a term of contempt—as in Shakespeare's 'Steal! foh, a fico for the phrase'—whence the C19–20 'I don't care a fig', recalls the MF-F faire la figue à quelqu'un, to mock, prop. snap one's fingers, in a rude gesture, at someone; in L (cf Gr sukon) and It, F and E, 'fig' has obscene connotations, prob—despite the usu accepted etymologies—present, etym, in F 'Je m'en fiche de quelquechose', I mock at, don't care a fig for, something.

fig (2), as in the coll phrase in full fig, in full dress, derives from the obsol v fig, to dress (smartly), put (a horse) into good form, a var of feague, q.v. at FAKE.

fight, n, v (whence fighting, pa and vn); fighter; pt and pp, fought (OE feht).

Fighter derives from OE feohtere (cf OFris fuhtere), from the OE v feohtan, which becomes ME sehten, fihten, whence E 'to fight'. Also from feohtan comes OE feoht (cf OFris fuht), which becomes ME seht, later fiht, latest fight, retained in E 'a fight'. The OE feohtan is akin to OS and OHG sehtan, MHG vehten, G sechten, OFris fuhtta: Gmc r, seht-; IE r, peki-: cf L pectere (s pect-), to comb, and Lith pēsti, to pluck, and pēstis (reflexive), to fight; basic idea, 'to pluck', then 'to scuffle', finally 'to fight'. (Walshe.) figment. See FEIGN, para 4.

figura, figurable, figural, figurant, figurate, figuration, figurative, figure (n and v), figurehead, figurine; configuration; disfigure, whence disfigurement; prefigure, prefiguration; transfigure, transfiguration.

1. L figūra, a thing shaped, the shape given to something, a figure in most of the modern senses, is fig-, the n-less r of figere, to model in clay, to mould, to form or shape (q.v. at FEIGN)+suffix -ūra. The IE r is dheig-* or dheigh-*, to fashion in or with earth, clay, etc.: cf Ve dēhmi, I cement, and Go digandas, having moulded.

2. L figūra becomes OF-F figure, adopted by E. 'To figure' derives from OF-F figurer, from L figūrāre, to fashion, give form to, from figūra; figurable, from 'to figure'; figural, from LL figurālis, from figūra.

3. Whereas figurant, m, and figurante, f, are adopted from the F presp, the adj figurate comes, like the obs v, from L figurātus, pp of figurāre. Derivative L figurātiō, o/s figurātiōn-, yields—prob via MF-F—figuration; derivative LL figurā-tiūs, ML -ivus, yields—again prob via MF-F—figurative. L figūra becomes figura, with dim figurina, whence F figurine, adopted by E.

4. Figurehead is lit the figure at a ship's head or bow.

5. L configūrāre (int con-) becomes 'to configure'; pp configūrātus yields 'to configure'; derivative LL configūrātiō, o/s configūrātiōn-, yields configuration.

6. 'To disfigure' comes from MF desfigurer (des- for L dis-), from VL disfigurāre*, perh suggested by the sem very different LL dēfigurāre.

7. 'To prefigure' derives, perh via EF-F prēfigurer, from LL praefigurāre (prae-, before); pp praefigurātus becomes rare adj prefigureate; derivative LL praefigurātiō, o/s praefigurātiōn-, becomes prefiguration; derivative ML praefigurātivus becomes prefigurative.

8. LL transfigurāre, to transform (trans, across), becomes OF-F transfigurer, whence late ME transfiguren, whence 'to transfigure', with pa transfigurēd; derivative transfigurātiō, o/s transfigurātiōn-, yields, via MF-F, the E transfiguration.

Fiji—whence Fijian, adj, whence n—derives from native Viti, as in Viti Levu, the largest of the Fiji Islands; Viti is the original pronunciation, Fiji a corruption due to Tongan influence; Fiji and Viti, therefore, are identical. The name applied, in pre-European days, only to Na Viti, a small island in the NW, and to Na Viti Levu. In these two names, as in Na Vanua Levu, The Big Land, Na is the article 'the' (and Vanua is 'land'), occurring after transitive verbs. Viti, which survives only as a place-name, prob means 'Clear (a way) with your hands', in an order given by Ndengei, leader of that migration, perh East African, which conquered the original Papuan stock. A second theory is that Viti is an EAfr place-name, transplanted by Ndengei. (With thanks to Mr Erle Wilson, author of those remarkable Nature-stories Coorinna and Minado.)

filament (see para 3) whence filamentous and Sci L Filaria (whence Sci E filarial); cf filature; file, orig a thread, hence a line, a row or a rank, a collection of papers set in chronological order (in a row), whence 'to file', walk in line, set in order, etc.; fillet (n hence v), F var filet, filigrain or -grane, filigree;—cpds: defile, to march off, file by file, and military and Topo n defile, defilade; enfilade (n hence v); profile (n, v)—cf purfle (v hence n), with pa purfled.—Prob akin: hilum; nihil (contr: nil), nihilify, nihilism, nihilist, nihility—cpd annihilate, annihilation, annihilator.—Perh akin: L pilus, E pile, hair; pilose or pilous; pilosis; pilosity; cf the element pilo-; cpd depilate, depilator, depilatory (adj hence n), depilous.

General

1. The three L words concerned are filum, a thread or anything threadlike, hence a line; hilum, a trifle, said by Festus to be so named because grano fabae adhaeret, it clings to the grain of a bean, the orig sense being either that ('a tiny mark') of Bot or, equally well, the tiny slender funicle stalk (L funiculus, dim of fūnis, a cord or rope, itself formed r fū*+formative -n+declensional -i+nom -s) attaching the ovule to its support; and pilus, a single hair or bristle.

2. All three L words are o.o.o. Several facts and several probabilities, however, are suggestive: filum is prob akin to Lith gysla, OP -gyslo, OSI žila, vein, artery, tendon, and to Arm fil, tendon (E & M; Webster), the r being, in L, fi-, and the IE r being ghi-* or some var thereof; the L fi- is perh akin to the fū- of fūnis, cord; Latin f having multiple origins, an f-h alternation is valid—cf OL Fercles for Hercles (Hercules, Gr Hēraklēēs), a fact relevant to the linking of hilum to filum; pilus is prob akin to Gr pilos, felt—cf L pilleus, a felt cap, and the possibility of pilos orig meaning 'hair';—the sense common to filum and pilus, credibly also to hilum, is 'thread' (cf the use of threads to represent hair); an IE phil-, hair, (? hence) thread, could well become fil, as in filum—to hil-*, as in hilum—to pil-*, as in pilus; this phil-* is an extn of phi-, becoming fi- or hi-* or pi-*: the differing quality of the thematic vowel (i, I) establishing no insuperable obstacle.

L Filum

3. Filum, s fil-, becomes both the OF-F fil and, through the derivative LL filāre, to thread (hence to spin), OF-F filer, the late MF-F n file; most E senses of file come from the latter. Filum has derivative ML filamentum, whence, prob via EF-F, the E filament; and filāre, pp filātus, has ML derivative filātūra, whence F filature, adopted by E. The learned adj filose derives from ML filōsus*.

4. OF-F fil has the MF-F dim filet, a narrow band (for the hair), anglicized as fillet, the F filet being reserved for cookery.

5. From L filum+grānum, a grain (hence a bead), It forms filigrana, a kind of delicate ornamental work, whence EF-F filigrane, adopted by E and anglicized to filigrain, which, now archaic, has made way for the distorted filigree.

6. The first prefix-cpd to note is defile, to file off: EF-F dēfiler (dē-, L dē-)+F file, row, rank; the F pp dēfilé, used as n, becomes the E n defile, a narrow passage, e.g. a gorge, in which troops can march only on a narrow front, esp in single file; derivative F dēfilade becomes E defilade, n and v. Cf the suffix -ade and:

7. The MF-F ensiler (en, L in), lit to make a thread (fil) or line into, has derivative EF-F enfilade, adopted by E.

8. It profilare, which consists of pro-, L prō-, forward+filo (L filum)+inf -are, becomes 'to profile', to draw in vertical outline, esp laterally; the It derivative profilo yields the E n profile. Cf:

9. OF-EF porfiler, consisting of por- for L prō-, forward+fil, thread, line+inf -er, becomes (F pourfiler and) ME purfilen, whence the obs purfile, whence, by contr, 'to purfle', to trim (ornament) the hem or border of, whence the n purfle.

L Hilum

10. L hilum (as in para 1) is form-adopted, sense-adapted, by Bot and, with Sci L var hilus, by An and Zoo.

11. The derivative yet predominant L sense 'however little, a mere trifle', combined with ne-, not, to form nihilum, nothing, usu shortened to nihil and further to nil, accounts for E nil, nothing. Nihil occurs, as gen nihili, in the phrase nihili facere, to make, hence account, as nothing, to slight, whence E 'to nihilify'. ML nihilitās (nihil-+abstract -itās), nothingness, yields nihility. Other nihil derivatives in E—with aid from F—include nihilism, nihilist, nihilistic: cf the suffixes -ism, -ist, -istic.

12. LL has the prefix-cpd adnihilāre: ad, to+nihil, nothing+active inf suffix -āre; 'to bring to nothing', to destroy utterly. The assimilated ML form annihilāre (whence the E annihilable) has pp annihilātus, whence 'to annihilate'; derivative LL adnihilātiō, ML annihilātiō, o/s annihilātiōn-, yields, perh via MF-F, the E annihilation. E anl formations include annihilator, annihilatory, annihilative.

13. L pilus, a hair, has derivative adj pilōsus, whence E pilose and pilous, hairy, the former with derivative pilosity; Med pilosus, the condition of having excessive hair=c/f pil(o)-+Med suffix -osus.

14. Derivative prefix-cpd dēpilāre, to take the pilus, hair, dē, or from off, to remove (a person's) hair, has pp dēpilātus, whence 'to depilate', whence, by anl, depilation, depilator, depilatory (hair-removing). Depilous, hairless, is anl formed from de+pilous.

filbert is aphetic for Norman F noix de filbert, nut of Filbert, i.e. St Philibert, whose commemorative day falls on August 22, early in the nutting season; his name derives from OHG Filuberht: lit, very (filu, G viel) bright (berht, beraht, E BRIGHT).

filch, to steal, whence filchery, comes from the C16-17 underworld: o.o.o. The underworld n filch means a thief's hooked stick, but app derives from the v; nor can 'to filch' come from the considerably later syn 'to file', from a file or pickpocket (akin to EF-F filou).

file (1), row, rank. See FILAMENT, para 3.

file (2), the abrasive tool: OE fil (var fēol): akin to the syn OHG fthala, MHG vile, G Feile (also, polish), MD vile and, as in D, vijl, and perh OFris fial, wheel; cf, further off and uncertainly, L pingō, I paint, and Skt pimśati, he cuts (out) or forms. The derivative v has vn FILINGS.

file (3), to be foul. See FOUL, para 4.

filial (whence filiality, cf LL filiālitās), filiate, filiation; affiliate, affiliation.

1. Affiliate, adj and v, comes from L affiliātus, pp of affiliāre (af- for ad, to), to adopt as a filius or son; affiliation, from the derivative ML affiliātiō, o/s affiliātiōn-; affiliable=affiliate+-able.

2. L filius, with f filia, daughter, is prob for fēlius*: r fē-+extn -l-+formative -i-+declensional -u-+nom -s: and this fē- is that of fēcundus and fēmina—for both, see FEMALE. Orig, filius was common gender: 'he, she, whom the mother breast-feeds'. Filius, filia, have derivative LL adj filiātis, whence E filial; derivative LL-ML v filiāre, pp filiātus, whence 'to filiate'; derivative LL filiātiō, sonship, o/s filiātiōn-, yields—perh via F—filiation.

3. L filius becomes OF filz, then fiz (F fil), whence, since C12, its use in E surnames (esp of F origin): connoting 'son (esp if illegitimate) of', as in FitzHerbert. Cf the Ga and Ir Mac, as in MacDonald (OIr macc, son), W ap, archaic for ab, as in ap-Lloyd, from OW mab or map (cf Br ab, ap, Cor mab, map), son, and the similar Ir O', as in O'Mara, from o, descendant.

4. L filius becomes Sp hijo, as in hijo de algo, son of something (sc. important), whence, by contr, Sp hidalgo, son of a noble house (of the lower order), hence, a minor Sp nobleman.

1. All these words descend from L fnis, limit or boundary of a field or a farm or an estate, hence, in pl fnes, the boundaries of a large territory, the frontiers of a country or a state. L fnis is o.o.o.—unless it orig meant either 'mark on a tree' (trees often serving as limits of a field) or a stake driven into the ground to mark a boundary, for then it could be a contr of fnigis*, a fixing, a being fixed, something fixed, nasal derivative of figere, to thrust in, to fix firmly (f.a.e., FIX). The transferred sense 'end' appears in 'He wrote fnis to his book'.

2. L fnis has the foll simple derivatives relevant to E:

LL fnālis (orig Gram and Phil), limited, whence OF-F final, adopted by E, which acquires further senses; derivative LL finalitās, o/s finalitāt-, F finalité, E finality; finale, adopted ex It;

VL fninus*, brought to an end or a finish, esp if good: OF-F fin, f fine: ME fin, fine: E fine, adj; but the n fine, (obs) end, money paid as an end or a settlement, comes from L fnis, via OF-F fin, end, settlement, and ME fin;

L fnīre, to end or finish, becomes MF-F fnir (OF fnir), with such forms as presp fnissant and nous fnissons, we finish, leading to E 'to finish';

L fnītus, pp of fnīre, is used also as adj, whence E fnite; the neg fnītus yields fnite;

L fnītūus, ML -ivus, becomes fnitive; LL neg fnītūus, ML -ivus, E fnitive;

LL fnītās, o/s fnītāt-, becomes MF-F fnitūtē, whence E fnity, whence, anl, the rare fnity.

3. L fnītus has a learned L derivative fnītēsīmus, whence E fnītēsīmal, whence, anl, fnītēsīmal (Math); cf fnītude, neg fnītude, formed as if from L *(in)fnītūdō.

4. Whereas fnery is an E -ery derivative from E adj fnine, fnesse is adopted from MF-F (fin, adj + -esse). Fnancier is adopted from late MF-F (fnance + -ier), but fnancial=E fnance+-ial. 'To fnance' prob comes from EF-F fnancer, itself from the source of the E n—the MF-F fnance, which, owing something to ML fnancia, prob comes primarily from OF-EF fnier, to pay, a mdfn of OF fnir, MF-F fnir (L fnīre).

5. The Arch fnial, a knot or bunch at the upper end of a pinnacle or canopy, represents L fnis, end+n -al.

6. The adj fnical, excessively neat or dainty, has b/f 'to fnick', with pa fnicking, and dim-b/f fnicky, fussy over trifles; fnical=E fnine, adj + -ical, as in tactical.

7. There are, of L fnis, several prefix-cpds affecting E: adfnis, confnis, dēfnīre and prob refnīre*. Adfnis, later afnīs, related (by marriage), bordering (on), becomes, via F, the obs adj and n and, from derivative ML afnīndre, the rare v afnīre; derivative afnītās, o/s afnītāt-, becomes MF afnīte (F afnītē), ME afnīte, E afnity; afnition and afnitive are anl E formations.

8. Confine and define and their close relations are treated sep at those head-words

9. 'To refine' (re-, again+fine, to make fine) owes something to EF-F raffiner, as refinement does to EF-F raffinement and refinery to late EF-F raffinerie; refiner comes straight from 'to refine'.

The IE r is prob pu-, to flame, with predominant extn pur-, a fire. Cf also the fu- of Go funins, gen of fön, fire, syn ON funi. (Walshe; Hofmann.) The word is perh Medit: cf Eg pa, flame, fire, and perh gara, fire, furnace.

2. Fiery=ME fire, from ME fir (as above).

3. Gr pur (πύρ), fire, has derivative pura, whence L pyra, whence E pyre, esp funeral pyre for the burning of a corpse.

4. E pyrite is a b/f from E pyrites, adopted from the L trln of the Gr adj puritēs in puritēs lithos, a stone for striking fire; hence the adj pyritic.

firkin. See FOUR, para 5.

firm (adj, n, v), whence firmness; firmament (whence firmamental); affirm, affirmation, affirmative (adj hence n); sep CONFIRM, etc.; infirm, infirmity, infirmity.—farm (n, hence adj and v), farmer, farming.—Cf sep THRONE.

1. A farm comes, via ME ferme, lease or rent, from MF-F ferme, a lease, hence a leased farm, from fermer, to make a firm agreement, i.e. contract, from L firmāre, to make firm, to confirm, from firmus, well fixed or established, solid, strong. MF-F ferme, leased farm, has MF-F agent fermier, ME fermour, E farmer.

2. L firmus, s firm-, is prob akin to Gr thronos, a (royal) seat, and Skt *dharma*s, a thing firmly set, a law, and dhārayati, he holds fast or firm; firmus becomes OF-F ferme, whence E firm (adj); derivative firmāre (as above) becomes OF-F fermer, ME fermen, E 'to firm'; L firmāre becomes It firmare, with derivative n firma, signature, and Sp firmar, whence the n firma, and from both comes the E n firm, signature, hence, via the signatories, a business concern.

3. L firmāre has LL derivative firmamentum, firmness, hence authority and, in Eccl L, the prop of the sky, the sky itself, whence OF-F, hence E, firmament.

4. The prefix-cpd affirmāre (af-, for ad, used int) becomes OF-MF affermer, MF-F affirmer, ME affermer, E 'to affirm'; derivative L affirmātiō, o/s affirmātiōn-, becomes MF-F, hence E, affirmation; derivative affirmātius ML -ivus, becomes MF-F affirmatif, f affirmative, whence E affirmative.

5. L firmus has neg infirmus, whence MF-F infirm and E infirm; derivative infirmitās, o/s infirmitāt-, yields infirmity; derivative ML infirmāria, a hospital (cf LL infirmans, an invalid), yields infirmary.

first (whence firstly), adj hence adv and n, derives from OE fyrst, akin to OHG furist, first, the sup of furi, fora, cf E fore, and to furisto (G Fürst), prince: f.a.e., FORE.

firth. See 1st FRITH.

fisc, fiscal; sep confiscate, confiscation.

Fiscal (adj, whence n) is adopted from MF-F, from LL fiscālis, of the treasury, the adj of L fiscus, orig a basket, hence a lockable money-basket, hence a royal or other State treasury, whence MF-F fisc, adopted by E: o.o.o., but perh of Medit stock.

fish, fisher, fisherman, fishery, fishmonger, fishwife, fishy; piscary, piscator, piscatorial, piscatory, piscine, piscis; cf the element pisci-.

1. 'To fish'—whence vn *fish*ing and fishery (-ery)—derives, via ME fischen, fissen, etc., from OH fiscian (cf OHG fiscōn and OFris fiscia or fiskenia), itself from OE fisc, whence, via ME fisch, fisc, the E n fish: and OE fisc is akin to OFris and OS fisk or fisc, OHG visch, MHG visch, G Fisch, MD visc, (as in D) visch, Go fisks, ON fiskr; to L piscis (s pisc-); to OIr iasc (for piska*) or aesc, with gen éisc, Ga iasg (gen éisg), Cor pisc, pisk, pysc, pysk, Br pisk, pesk, W pysc, Mx east, eease, OC eiskos* for peiskos*.

2. The OE v has derivative fiscere, whence E fisher, with elaboration fisherman; fishwife=fish, n+wife in old sense 'woman'; fishmonger=fish, n+monger, vendor, merchant; fishy=fish, n+y, adj

3. L piscis is familiar as the horoscological Pisces (pl). It has derivatives relevant to E:

piscārius, of fish(es) or fishing, whence the legal n piscary; piscātor, fisherman, angler; piscātōrius, whence piscatory, with elaboration piscatorial; piscinus*, whence the adj piscine; the derivative n piscina, fishpond or -tank, is adopted as an Eccl tech.

fissate, fissile, fission, fissure (n hence v); cf the element fissi-.

1. All these terms derive from L fissus (s fiss-), pp of findere, to split or cleave: and findere (s find-) derives from fid-*, as in bifidus, trifidus, whence E bifid, trifid, cleft in two, in three; IE r, prob bhid-*, to split—Skt bhinādmī, I split, and bhindāntī, they split, representing the nasal infix of the present.

2. L derivatives formed on pp fiss- include ML fissilis, whence E fissile, splittable; LL fissiō, o/s fissiōn-, whence fission; LL fissūra, E fissure. Fissate is a Sci formation, as if from a VL fissātus* (for L fissus).

fist (n hence v), whence fisted and fistic; fisticuff(s).

1. Fist comes, through ME fist, var fust, from OE fyst, akin to OFris fest, OHG-MHG füst, G Faust, MD fuest, vuest, vuust, vust, MD-D vuist—and OSl pesti; Gmc r fust-, IE r pest-, varr pist-, pust-; the Gmc being perh for funst-, the IE perh for penst-, varr pinst-, punst-. If funst-, penst- (etc.) are valid, fist could be akin to (E FIVE and) G sinf, but there could also be a connexion with L pugnus, fist (? a metathesis for pungus*, itself from punstus*).

2. Fisticuff is euphonic for fistcuff*, a cuff or blow with the fist.

3. D vuist, fist, has a dial derivative vuisten, to take in the hand, hence to palm a coin or a gambling die, whence prob E 'to foist', to palm, hence to insert or introduce illicitly or surreptitiously.

fistula. See element fistuli-. The adj fistulose, fistulous, derive from the L adj fistulosus.

fit (1), adj and v. The adj fit, ME fyt—although sense-influenced by ME fete, E FEAT (adj)—prob comes from ME fitten, to array, whence, with late senses influenced by the adj, 'to fit'; and ME fitten prob derives from ON fitja, to knit together, itself akin to OHG fizza, G Fitze, a skein. Adj fit has derivative fitness, v fit the derivatives fitter and fitting (pa and vn) and fitment (suffix -ment).

fit (2), n (false-archaic fytte), canto of a poem, a strain of music, derives from OE fit, akin to G Fitze, skein, as in 1st FIT, and to Gr peza, an end, a border (therefore to E FOOT).

fit (3), n, (obs) a dangerous crisis, a paroxysm (e.g., epilepsy), comes from OE fit, strife, conflict; but the OE word is o.o.o., although prob akin to FIGHT.—Hence fitful.

fit (4), v. See 1st FIT.

fitch, polecat, is short for fitchew: MF fichau, var of fissel: MD fisse, visse: o.o.o.

fitful. See 3rd FIT.

fitment. See 1st FIT, s.f.

fitter, n. See 1st FIT.

fitting, suitable. See 1st FIT.

five, game of fives; fifteen, fifty; fifth, fifteenth, fiftieth.—Gr pente: pentacle, pentad, pentathlon, Pentecost (whence Pentecostal); cf the element pent(a-), pente-, where see pentagon, pentagram, pentameter, pentarchy, Pentateuch, penthemimer.—L quinque: 'quin'; quinary, quinate, quincunx, quinquagenarian, quinquagenary, Quinquagesima; cf element quinque-, where see quinquennial; L quintus (cf element quint(i-)), where see quintessence, whence quintessential, quint, quintain, quintan, quintet, quintic, quintuple (adj, whence v), quintuplet, quintuplicate, F quinzaine and quinze;—keno.

I. Germanic

1. Five, ME five and earlier fif, derives from OE fif, fife, akin to OFris and OS fif, OHG finf, funf, MHG-G fünf, MD vif, vive, MD-D viif, Go fimf, ON fimm; L quinque (see section II); OIr cóic, Ga coig Mx queig—but OW pimp, Cor pemp or pimp(pymp), Br pemp, piemp; Gr pente (see sec. III): f.a.e., see sec. IV.

2. Fives, a game similar to handball, is prob akin, as EW proposes, to the pugilistic bunch of fives, the fist, from the five 'fingers'.

3. Fifth=ME fifthe, earlier fifte: OE fifsta, from fif.

4. Fifteen comes, through ME fiftene, from OE fiftýne, five [and] ten; cf thirteen, fourteen, etc.; fifteenth represents ME fiftenthe (from fiftene), displacing ME fifetthe, fysietthe, from OE fiftiotha, fifteenth. Cf OFris fiftene, 15, and fiftēnda, 15th.

5. Fifty=OE fiftig, five [times] ten, from OE fif(e); derivative OE fiftigotha finally becomes fiftieth. Cf OFris fiftich, 50, and fiftichsta, 50th.

II. Latin

6. L quinque, 5, has the foll derivatives relevant to E:

quinquāginta, 50, whence the adj quinquāgēnārius, whence E quinquagenary, with elaboration quinquagenarian, now used mostly as n; quinquāgēsīmus, 50th (the ordinal of quinquāginta), with f quinquāgēsīma, used in LL as n, elliptical for q. diēs, 'the 50th day', Whitsunday, but now the numerically loose Sunday before Lent; quinquennīs, whence quinquennial—see element quinque-; and, with quincu- for quinque-:

quincunx, lit five-twelfths: quinque+uncia: orig a coin ($\frac{5}{12}$ of the as), marked with 5 spots, hence a figure bearing, as a gambling 'five-spot' die bears, a spot in each corner and one in the middle, hence its special uses in Bot and Horticulture.

7. Intimately akin to L quinque is L quīni, 5 each, with adj quīnārius, consisting of 5, arranged in sets of 5, whence E quinary (system); quini has suggested Bot quinate, growing in sets of 5.

8. The ordinal of L quinque is quīntus (cf the syn Gr pemptos), 5th, whence the PN Quintin, F and now predominant E Quentin; whence also the OF quint (elliptically from L quīnta pars, 5th part), adopted and sense-adapted by E. The mdfn quīntānus, of the 5th rank, has f quīntāna, which, used as n, meant that street in a camp which separated the 5th from the 6th maniple (larger than a platoon but smaller than a company) and served as the camp's business-centre, and came, in ML, to designate an object at which, in that centre, the soldiers tilted: whence OF-F quintaine, whence E quintain.

9. L quīntus becomes It quinto, with dim quintetto, whence F quintette and E quintet. Cf the tech quintic: L quīntus+adj -ic.

10. L quīntus has the LL cpd quīntuplex, five-fold: for the 2nd element, cf PLY. Quintuplex becomes late MF-F quintuple, adopted by E, whence—anl with triple—quintuplet, whence sl quin; quīntuplex has derivative ML quīntuplicāre (var of quīnquuplicāre), pp quīntuplicātus, whence—aided by duplicate, triplicate, quadruplicate—adj (whence n) and v quīntuplicate, whence, again anl, quīntuplication.

11. There remain two Romance words. L quīndecīm, 15 (quinque, 5+decem, 10), becomes OF-F quinze, adopted by E in card-game sense; its OF-F derivative quinzaine, lit 15 days, the E fortnight, partly adopted by E.

12. L quīni, 5 each (cf para 5), has acc f quinas, whence OF-F quines, which, by b/f, becomes F quine, a run of five winning numbers, which has app suggested the gambling game of keno, whence prob, from its similarity to lotto, blends F quine, roughly pron keen, and lotto; this AE name (earlier kino, earliest keeno) perh came rather from a Louisianian or an ASp var of Sp (and Port) quinas, two 5's at dice, of same origin as OF quines.

III. Greek

13. Gr pente (πέντε), Aeolic pempe (πέμπε), has Skt and other ancient cognates—see next section. It has the simple derivative pentas, o/s pentad-, whence LL pentas, pentad-, whence E pentad, a group of five: cf duad and triad. The ML derivative pentaculum—prob influenced by LL pentagonus, 5-cornered (pentagon, at penta- in Elements)—becomes MF-F, whence E, pentacle.

14. The Gr derivative pentekonta, 50, has ordinal pentēkostos, 50th, whence the LGr pentēkostē (hēmera), the 50th day, whence LL pentecostē, Pentecost, whence E Pentecost, orig a Jewish festival.

15. Apart from the cpds noted at penta-, pente-, in Elements, the only notable one is pentathlon, adopted from Gr; for Gr athlon, a contest, see ATHLETE.

IV. Indo-European

16. The IE etymon is app pénkwe*; cf Skt pāñca, Av pañca, S, Skt pañcathās, 5th, Per panj, 5, Tokh A pāñ, 5, pan, 5th, Lith penki, 5; cf the C p- forms in para 1; L quinque stands for pinque*; Gmc finf* for finhw* (cf para 1). Cf also the merely app more remote C forms in c- (or q-) and the Arm hing, 5. Improb related is Eg pu-nu, 5.

17. Cf the sep CINQUE and PUNCH (the drink); fiver also related are FINGER and FIST.

'fiver', £5 (esp as banknote), hence $5 (esp as one bill): from FIVE; perh suggested by 'five-pounder'.

fives (game). See FIVE, para 2.

fix (v hence n), whence fixer; fixate, fixation, fixative (adj, hence n); fixity; fixture.—Cpds: affix, infix, prefix, suffix, transfix, all orig vv, whence also nn, with derivatives as for the simple.

1. 'to fix' comes either from the obs adj fix, firmly placed or fastened, ME from MF-F fixe, from L fixus, pp of figere, to set firmly, drive (a stake) into the ground, hence senses as in E, or from MF-F fixer, or from ML fixāre, extn of figere, or again from fixus, pp of figere. Figere, s fig-, app has a European r dheig-* (sense as figere)—cf Lith dygti, to sharpen to a point, and degti, syn with figere: cf, therefore, DIKE.

2. ML fixāre has pp fixātus, whence the Psy and Psychi 'to fixate'; derivative fixātiō, o/s fixātiōn-, yields late MF-F and E fixation; but fixative is an anl E formation. Fixity app derives from EF-F fixité (from adj fixe); fixture displaces obsol fixure LL fixūra, from fix-, s of pp fixus—cf mixture and mix.

3. ML adfixāre, assimilated as affixāre (cf L affigere), to attach firmly (ad, to), yields 'to affix', whence anl affixation; L infigere, to fix in, in, has pp infixus, whence late MF-EF infixer, whence 'to infix', whence anl infixion; L praefigere, to fix in front of, has pp praeifixus, whence late MF-EF prefixer, E 'to prefix', with anl derivatives pre-fixation and prefixion; L suffigere, to fasten under, hence behind, has pp suffixus, whence 'to suffix', the n perh deriving from L suffixum, neu of suffixus, used as n, with anl derivative suffixation; and L transfigere, to pierce, has pp transfixus, whence 'to transfix', with anl transfixation and with transfixion from LL transfixiō, o/s transfixiōn-.

fizz (v, hence n): echoic; perh influenced by ON fisa, to break wind, and OSw fisa, to fizzle. 'To fizzle'—whence the n—is a freq of fizz; fizzy, the adj of fizz, n.

flabbergast. See FLAP.

flabby (whence flabbiness). See FLAP, para 2. flabellate (whence flabellation), flabellum; flageolet; flautist, flute; flout (v hence n).

1. The base is L flāre, to blow, flō, I blow, s and r flā-: but for the direct derivatives (and their cpds) of flāre, see FLATUS (also f.a.e.). Flāre has derivative flābrum, a breeze, with dim flābellum, a fan, retained by E as a tech; flabellum has LL derivative v flābellāre, to fan, pp flābellātus, whence the E adj flabellate, fan-shaped.

2. Flābellum becomes VL flābeolum*, whence OF-MF flajol, var stageol, with MF-F dim flageolet, lit a small flute, adopted by E.

3. E flautist, flute-player, derives from It flautista (It-L agential -ista), from It flauto, flute, from Prov. But E flute, ME floute, floite, comes from EF-F flūte, OF-MF flaüte, fleüte, OF flehutes, from Prov flaüt, itself—though influenced by Prov laut (see musical LUTE)—from Prov flaujol (cf para 2); like OF-MF flajol, OProv flaujol perh derives from VL flābeolum*, but is prob echoic, as indeed flajol may be.

4. OF-MF flaüte, fleüte have derivatives flaüter, fleüter, EF-F flüter, whence ME flouten, floiten, to play the flute, whence 'to flute'. Now ME flouten prob yields also 'to flout', to mock: cf D fluiten (from the OF v), orig to play the flute, but derivatively to jeer.

flaccid (whence flaccidity) comes from L flaccidus, LL derivative of flaccus (s flac-), drooping, flabby: 'Flaccus has the doubled interior consonant characteristic of adjectives describing a physical deformity, cf broccus, lippus, etc.' (E & M); perh akin to Doric Gr blāx (gen blākos), soft, lazy, Ir bláith, soft, tender.

flacker. See FLICKER.

flag (1), plant: ME flagge; o.o.o., but prob Scan.

flag (2), in dial a turf or sod, in E a flagstone (prob a t/e elaboration): ON flaga, a flat stone, akin to Sw flaga, a flake, a crack, itself akin to ME flawe, later flaw, whence E flaw, a flake, breach, crack, hence a flaked or cracked part, hence a fault or defect, whence 'to flaw'; the n flaw is, at the least, prob Scan. ON flaga, flat stone, is akin to ON flō, a flat piece or surface, a layer, whence Nor flo, whence app E (ice)flöe.

flag (3), a standard or banner: o.o.o., but perh from next: without a wind, it droops. Hence, 'to flag', to signal with, or as with, a flag.

flag (4), to hang loosely down, to droop, hence to become unsteady or weary: o.o.o., but prob akin to the 2nd FLAW.

flagellant (adj, n), flagellate (adj, n), flagellation, flagellatory, flagellum; flog, whence agent flogger and pa, vn flogging; flail (n hence v).

1. L flagellāre, to flog, has presp flagellans, o/s flagellant-, whence E flagellant, a flogger, esp of himself, and pp flagellātus, whence adj and v flagellate; on the pp s flagellāt- is formed LL flagellātiō, o/s flagellātiōn-, whence E flagellation. L flagellāre derives from flagellum (prob a little whip), retained in Bio; flagellum is a dim of flagrum, a scourge, perh akin to ON blaka, esp the var blakra, to beat on this side and that, to beat to and fro, and to Lith blaškyti, to flog.

2. L flagellāre, s flagel-, therefore has r flag-, whence E 'to flog' could easily descend.

3. L flagellum becomes OF-MF flael, flaël, flaële (F fléau; cf OProv flagel), whence ME, whence E, flail (n).

flageolet. See FLABELLATE, para 2.

flagitious: prob via EF flagitieux, f flagitiouse: L flagitiōsus, scandalous, disgraced: an -ōsus derivative of flāgitium, a noisy moral protest, a scandal, hence the object of scandal, disgraceful conduct, disgrace: perh from, certainly allied very closely to, L flāgitāre, to demand bitterly or imperiously: both have the L r flāg-, make a din; IE r, the syn bhlag-: cf the bhlag-* underlying flagellum, flagrum, qq.v. at FLOG.

flagon. See ADDENDA.

flagrant, flagrancy; flagrante delicto; conflagrant, conflagrate, conflagration, conflagrative and conflagratory; deflagrable, deflagrate, deflagration.—fulgence, fulgent—effulgence, effulgent—refulgent, refulgent; fulgid; fulgor, fulgorous, fulgural, fulgurate, etc; fulminant, fulminate, fulmination, fulminatory, fulminic.

1. Flagrancy comes from L flagrantia, a flaming, from flagrant- (source of adj flagrant), o/s of flagrans, presp of flagrāre, to flame, burn (brightly), from etymon flagra*, a flame; perh cf Nor blakra, to shine (brilliantly), (of lightning) to flash; L flagrāre is akin to L fulgere—see para 4.

2. Cpd conflagrāre (int con-), to catch fire, be on fire (esp with flames), has presp conflagrans, o/s conflagrant-, whence E conflagrant; pp conflagrātus yields conflagrate, vi and vt; derivative L conflagrātiō, o/s conflagrātiōn-, yields conflagration; adj conflagrative, conflagratory, are anl E formations.

3. Cpd dēflagrāre, to be consumed in flame, to cease (connoted by dē-) to burn, s dēflagr-, accounts for deflagrable; pp dēflagrātus for 'to deflagrate'; derivative dēflagrātiō, o/s dēflagration, for deflagration.

4. Akin to L flagrāre is L fulgere, Classical fulgēre, (of stars) to shine, (of lightning) to flash. The IE r is app bhlag-, var bhleg-: cf Skt bhrājate, it shines. Fulgēre has presp fulgens, o/s fulgent-, whence the E adj fulgent, whence fulgence, fulgency, rare as simples. Cf both effulgence, LL effulgentia, itself from L effulgent- (whence effulgent), o/s of effulgens, presp of effulgere, to shine out (ē-), hence forth, and refulgence, L refulgentia, from refulgent- (whence refulgent), o/s of refulgens, presp of refulgere, to shine back (re-), to reflect brightly.

5. Simple fulgēre has other derivatives affecting E:

fulgidus, brilliant, whence fulgid;

fulgor, flash of lightning, thunderclap, adopted by E (var fulgour), with sense 'dazzling brightness' whence fulgorous; fulgur, lightning, whence E fulgurous and L:

fulgurālis, E fulgural;

fulgurāre (from fulgur), to flash (orig of lightning), with presp fulgurans, o/s fulgurant-, whence the adj fulgurant, and with pp fulgurātus, whence 'to fulgurate'; derivative fulgurātiō, o/s fulgurātiōn-, whence fulguration; cf Geol fulgurite (Min-ite attached to fulgur).

6. L fulmen (for fulgmen*), thunderclap, thunderbolt, lightning, o/s fulmin-, has derivative v fulmināre, to be or emit, or strike with, lightning, with presp fulminans, o/s fulminant-, whence the adj fulminant, and with pp fulminātus, whence 'to fulminate', esp in derivative sense 'to inveigh'. Derivative fulminātiō, o/s fulminātiōn-, yields fulmination; derivative LL fulminātor has been adopted; but fulminatory is an E anl formation.

7. Chem fulminic (acid)=L o/s fulmin-+Sci-ic; it has a derivative n—fulminate being fulminic+Chem suffix -ate.

flagstone. See the 2nd FLAG.

flail. See FLAGELLANT, para 3.

flair. See FRAGRANCE, para 2.

flak, anti-aircraft artillery, esp its fire: G Fliegerabwehrkanone, lit 'cannon protection against aircraft'.

flake (n hence v), a thin, flattish piece, scale, layer: ME flake: of Scan origin—cf Nor flak, a flat piece of ice, and L plaga, a flat extent or surface, perh orig something stretched out flat, itself o.o.o. The adj is flaky. Dial flake, a paling, is ult identical.

2. Akin, ult, is the flatfish named fluke, OE flōc, with several close Gmc cognates; fluke, the broad end of each arm of an anchor, is perh derivative—from its flatness. (Webster.) Prob from the derivative whaling fluke (lobe of a whale's tail) comes fluke, an accidental success or advantage, whence both 'to fluke' and the adj fluky.

flam (whence the redup flimflam) is perh short for Sc flamflew, a trinket or trifle: OF-MF fanfelue (whence by alteration, EF-F fanfreluche): ML famfalūca (It fanfaluca), var famfolūca, a bubble, perh via LL pomfolyx (zinc oxide) and almost certainly from Gr pompholux, bubble, (L Gr) zinc oxide.

flambeau. See FLAME, para 2.

flamboyant, whence flamboyance (or -ancy). See para 2 of:

flame, n and v (whence pa flaming); flambeau; flamboyant;—inflame, inflammable, inflammation, inflammator.

1. 'To flame', ME flamen, comes from OF-MF fiamer, itself from OF-MF flame (F flamme), whence E 'a flame': and OF-MF flame derives from L flamma: prob for flagma*, from flagrāre, to burn, s flagr-, r flag-: see FLAGRANT.

2. L flamma has dim flamula, whence OF flamble, whence OF-EF flambe, whence MF-F flambeau, a flaming torch, adopted by E. OF-EF flambe has OF-F derivative flamboyer, with presp flamboyant, whence the E adj, lit 'having flamelike curves', hence 'ornate', whence flamboyance.

3. Flamma has also, perh via simple flammāre, a derivative prefix-cpd v inflammāre, to put a flame into (in-), whence OF enflamer, whence 'to inflame'; derivative inflammātiō, o/s inflammātiōn-, yields, perh via MF-F, inflammation; inflammable, adopted from EF-F, and inflammatory, adapted from F inflammatoire, represent erudite F formations from L inflammāre.

flamenco; flamingo. See FLANDERS, para 3.

flan, archaic and dial flawn: the former adopted from MF-F, the latter adapted from the OF-MF source, flaon: Gmc: cf Frankish flado*, OHG flado, MHG flade, G Fladen, pancake, cake, flan: ult akin to Gr platus, flat: cf PLACE.

Flanders; Fleming, Flemish;—flamenco; flamingo.—Wal(l)achian; Walloon; Wales, walnut, Welsh (adj hence n), 'to welsh'.

1. Flanders owes something to F Flandre (cf G Flandern) and to the pl idea of D Vlandeerden, a count's domain formerly part of Belgium, Holland, France. F Flandre derives from ML Flandri, the inhabitans s of ancient Flanders, varr Flandrenses (prop a pt adj) and Flamingi: o.o.o.

2. Also lderivative are MD Vlaming, whence E Fleming, and MD Vlaemisch, Vlamisch (D Vlaamsch), whence E Flemish, adj hence n.

3. The Sp shape of 'Flemish' is flamenco, adj and n, adopted by E for 'Andalusian gypsy dancing (and singing)'; flamenco becomes syn Port flamingo, whence Po,rt flamingo, the bird, perh by a pun on Port flamma a flame, or by ref to medieval Flemish reputation for bright clothes and florid complexion (EW). But Sp flamenco, flamingo, could equally well have come from OProv flamenc, a flamingo (OProv flama, flame+suffix -enc, of Gmc origin), from its pinkish-and-scarlet plumage (B & W; Dauzat).

4. Inhabiting much of S. Belgium (the Flemings are mostly in the coastal areas) are the Walloons, from F Wallon, of Gmc origin: cf Walachian, occ Wallachian, adj and n, from G Wallache, Walache, a Wallachian, which, like ML Walachia, derives from OHG Walah, Walh, orig a Celt but here a Romance-speaker, Walachia being now a part of Rumania, whose language is based on Latin.

5. Thus we reach Wales, land of the Wēalas, Celts, Britons: OE wealh, a stranger or a foreigner (not of Saxon origin), hence a Celt, esp a Welshman. The adj of wealh is wēlisc, wāelisc, whence adj (hence n) Welsh. Cf OHG walh, a Latin, with adj walchisc, MHG welchisch, Latin-, then Romance-speaking, G welsch, foreign. The ON volskr, Celtic, is illuminating, for it recalls Caesar's Uolcae (ML Volcae), a Celtic tribe, itself obviously of C origin (? Uolk-).

6. 'To welsh', to cheat (someone) by failing to pay his race-course winnings, perh comes, as EW first suggested, from the old E nursery-rhyme:

'Taffy was a Welshman, Taffy was a Thief, Taffy came to my house and stole a leg of beef'

7. OE wealhnutu, a walnut (ME walnut), is lit a Celtic or a foreign nut (OE hnutu): cf ON valnhot, as rendering of L nux gallica, Celtic, esp Gaulish, nut, and G Walnuss, MHG walhesch nuss.

8. Cf—esp with Wales (para 5)—Cornwall (see the sep CORNISH) and its F form, Cornouailles.

flange (n hence v); flank (n hence v); flinch; flunk, flunky (n hence v); lank, whence the prop dim lanky; link (of chain; hence v).

1. Flange comes from OF-MF flangir, to turn or bend, of Gmc origin. Cf para 3 and:

2. Flank represents OF-F flanc, from Frankish hlanka*, hip—cf OHG flancha, hips, loins, and hlanca, side.

3. 'To flinch'—whence the n—comes from OF-MF flenchir, flenchier, prob of Gmc origin—cf MHG lenken, to turn or bend (G lenken, to guide), either from or akin to MHG lanke, side (of body), from OHG hlanca.

4. 'To flunk' (AE coll), to fail, e.g. an examination, is perh a blend of flinch+funk.

5. Flunk(e)y, pej for a liveried servant, is akin to—perh from—flank, and perh influenced by flinch. EW suggests that it is a dim (-ey, cf -y, -ie) from flanker, a side attendant.

6. Lank, tall and slim and lean derives from OE hlanc, lit flexible: akin to OHG hlanca, hips, loins, hlanca, side, OE hlence, link in coat of mail, G Gelenk, joint, MHG gelenke, waist ('where the body bends': Walshe). Cf:

7. Link (of chain) derives from ME linke, of Scan origin; akin to OE hlence.

flank. See prec, para 2.

flannel. See WOOL, para 3.

flap, n and v. The n derives from ME flappe, from flappen, whence also 'to flap': echoic: cf flop in para 5. Hence flapper.

2. From the adj flappy comes flabby, whence flabbiness; and flabby+aghost, i.e. flabbaghost, yields 'to flabbergast'—cf GHASTLY.

3. 'To flap' has the thinned derivative 'to flip', whence the n (including the drink); whence also the adj flip, nimble, lively, whence, in turn, flippant, whence flippancy; flipper is merely the instrumental (cf flapper) of 'to flip'.

4. 'To flip' has freq 'to fillip' (whence the n).

5. 'To flop'—whence both the n flop and the adj floppy—is a clearly echoic var (? influenced by plop) of flap.

flare (v hence n): o.o.o.; but, orig to flicker or flutter, it could derive from syn MD vlederen, D fladderen—cf MHG flatern, G flattern, to flutter; therefore cf flutter and flutter.

flash (v hence n and also the adj) is ME flaschen, prob imitative: cf ME flaskien, to splash; flash, orig to splash or to dash, partly owes its 'rapid brilliance of light' senses to flame. (EW notes the fl- of rapid movement and the -sh of sound.) Flashy, orig 'splashing', owes its later senses to the cant n flash (cf P³).

flask. See ADDENDA at flagon.

flat, adj, whence, in part, the n; whence entirely the v, with -en var flatten; flatter, flattery.

1. A flat or apartment = Sc flet: OE flet, ground, floor: akin to syn OFris and OS flett, OHG flezz, and to OHG flaz, level: all akin to ON flair, level, whence ME, hence E, flat: cf, further off, L plānus and esp Gr platus, level (f.a.e., PLACE).

2. Flattery is ME flaterie, adopted from MF (F flatterie): from OF-MF flater, to caress, whence EF-F flatter, to flatter, whence through ME flateren, the E 'to flatter'. OF-MF flater varies OF-MF flair, to flatten, esp by throwing to the ground, from Frankish flat*, level, of Gmc origin (as in para 1).

flatulent. See para 2 of:

flatus, flatulent.—Cpds in -flate, -flation, etc.: afflation, afflatus; conflate (adj, v), conflation; deflate, deflation (whence deflationist), deflator; inflate (whence pa inflated), inflatile, inflation (whence inflationary and inflationist); perflation; reflate, reflation; sufflate, sufflation—(cf exsufflate, exsufflation and insufflate, insufflation, insufflator.—souffle; surf.—Perh cf sep FLAVOR.

1. All these words rest upon L flāre, to puff or blow, flō, I puff, blow, pp flātus, s flāt-, whence the n flātus (gen -ūs), a breathing, puffing, blowing: flāre is remotely akin to OE blāwan, 'to blow', to E 'to flow', and to L folis, a wind-filled bladder, bellows: all are ult echoic.

2. From the L n flātus, esp flātus uentris, wind in the stomach, learned EF-F derives flatulent, whence F flatulence: both of them get into E.

3. L afflāre, to blow at (L ad), hence upon, has derivative n afflātus (gen -ūs), applied esp to inspiration by a god; the anl E afflation is rare.

4. L conflāre, to blow con- or together, to (re)unite, pp conflātus, whence both adj and v conflate; derivative LL conflātiō, o/s conflātiōn-, yields conflation, esp a composite reading of texts.

5. Not the rare L dēflāre, to blow dē, down, upon, but dē-, down+flātus, pp of flāre, to blow, accounts for 'to deflate', to blow (the wind) de, out of; whence anl deflation and deflator.

6. L inflāre, to blow in-, into, or upon, hence to blow wind into, to cause to swell, has pp inflātus, whence 'to inflate'; derivative LL inflātīlis becomes E inflatile, wind-(instrument); derivative L inflātiō, o/s inflātiōn-, becomes inflation.

7. L perflāre, to blow per or through, pp perflātus, has derivative perflātiō, o/s perflātiōn-, whence the Med perflation.

8. Not LL reflāre but re-, again+flāre, as in inflate (currency) explains commercial reflate, reflation.

9. L sufflāre, to blow sub, from below, hence to blow up, has pp sufflātus, whence 'to sufflate'; derivative L sufflātiō, o/s sufflātiōn-, yields sufflation. Both are commoner in insufflate, insufflation (and anl insufflator): LL insufflāre, to breathe or blow upon, pp insufflātus, derivative insufflātiō, o/s insufflātiōn-. Cf LL exsufflāre, to blow away, pp exsufflātus, derivatives exsufflātiō and exsufflātor: whence E exsufflate, exsufflation, exsufflator.

10. L sufflāre becomes OF-F souffler, pp soufflé, which is used as cookery n and adopted by E.

11. Here, perh, is the origin of surf, the swell of the sea as it approaches the shore, the breaking waves, esp their foam: late C16–17 suffe, suff, late C17–20 surf, with r perh (EW) from surge. Suffe could be a confused blend of OF-F souffle and It soffio, breath of wind, both ult from L sufflāre; far more prob, however, suff is a var of sough, a hollow moaning (as it were of the surf), with r intervening to form surf.

flaunt (v whence n and flaunter, flaunting, adj flaunting);—planet, planetary.

'To flaunt' (vi, ? hence vt) is akin to Nor flanta, OScan flana, to gad about—cf the EF-F flāner, to dawdle or idle; akin also to Gr planasthai, to wander about, itself perh imm from planos, vagrant, wandering.

2. Gr planasthai has derivative adj planētēs, wandering, hence n, wanderer, whence LL planēta, whence OF-MF, hence ME, planete E planet. OF-MF planete, EF-F planète, has the EF-F adj planétaire whence E planetary; the n planetary comes rather from LL planētārius, an astrologer. The IE r is perh pela-*, to wander.

flautist. See FLABELLATE, para 3.

flavor AE, flavour (n hence v), whence vn flavo(u)ring and adj flavorous.

A flavo(u)r comes from OF-MF flaor, flaur (both dissyllabic), an odour good or bad: VL flātozem*, acc of syn flātor*, either from flāt-, s of flāt-, pp of flāre, to puff or blow, or from syn LL flātāre, mdfn of flāre: cf therefore FLATUS.

flaw (1), a crack. See the 2nd FLAG.

flaw (2), a short, sudden gust of wind: of Scan origin—cf ON flaga, an onset or attack, and Nor flaga, sudden gust, squall; cf MHG (and MLG) vlage, onset, gust, and MD vlage, vlaech, D vlaag, gust, flow.

flawn. See FLAN.

flax, whence flaxen: OE fleax; cf OFris flax, OHG flahs, G Flachs, and OHG flehtan, MHG flehten, G flechten, to plait: f.a.e., PLY.

flay, to skin: OE flēan: cf ON flā and MD-D vlaen, and several cognates in Sl.

flea: ME fle or flee: OE flēa or flēah: akin to OHG-MHG flōh, G Floh, MD vo, vloe, (as in D) vloo, ON flō: Gmc r, flauh-*: 'Prob related to L pūlex [IE plouk-* for poul(e)k-* ?]. Not related to [G] fliehen, Fliege': Walshe.

fleam. See PHLEBITIS.

fleck (n, v), whence pa flecked.

'To fleck' comes from ON flekka, from ON flekkr, a spot (esp a freckle), whence, via ME flek, the E fleck: cf OHG flecko, MHG flecke G Fleck, and MD vlecke, vlec, D vlek; cf also OFris flekka, G flecken, to spot. Cf FLICK.

flection, flector. See FLEX.

fledge. 'To fledge', to feather, to rear until plumage is mature, derives from the obs adj fledge, feathered, able to fly: ME flegge, var fygge: OE flycge, akin to OHG flucchi, G Flügge: f.a.e., FLY. Unfledged derives from OE un-flycge; fledg(e)ling = fledge, adj + dim -ling.

flee, pt and pp fled; flight.

1. Flight derives from OE fiht, flyht, a fleeing, a flying, from the OE forms of flee and fly: even in OE (esp as flyht), flight is a coalescence. (Walshe.)

2. To flee, ME feen, feon, OE fleon (for fleoan*), is akin to OFris flia, OS and OHG flihan, MHG-G fliehen, ON flyia, flyja; cf also Go thliuhan, 'which shows that this word [G fliehen] is not primitively allied to fliegen [to FLY], though similarity of meaning has later caused them to be partly confused' (Walshe): o.o.o.

fleece: ME flees: OE flēos, akin to MHG fliēs, flius, flius, G Fließ, MD vluēs, vluys, (as in D) vliēs; perh also MLG flus, G Flaus, woollen material; cf also L plūma, down: f.a.e., PLUME.

fleer. See JEER.

fleet (1), adj 'swift': prob from—at the least, akin to—ON flōtr, fljōtr, swift: cf the 4th FLEET.

fleet (2), n, 'inlet, estuary; brook; drain': OE flēot, a place for vessels to float (see 4th FLEET), hence, an inlet, a river, akin to MD-D vliet and G Fließ, a small brook, therefore to fließen, to flow.

fleet (3), n, 'a naval force': ME flete, earlier fleote: OE flēot, a ship, from flēotan, to float, to swim: f.a.e., next.

fleet (4), v, 'to float' (now dial), 'to flow, hence glide, swiftly', hence vt, as in Shakespeare's 'fleet the time carelessly': ME fleten, earlier fleten, to swim; OE flēotan, to swim, to float: cf OFris flīata, OS flīotan, OHG flīozzan, MHG fliesen, G fließen, to float, to flow, MD vlieten, vliēn, MD-D vlieten, to flow, ON flīōta, fljōta, to float, to flow; cf Lith plūsti, to float, L pluit, it rains, Gr plēō, I sail, and esp Skt plu (var pru), to swim or flow; cf also

2. Akin is 'to float', ME floten, earlier flotien, OE flotian, to float, to swim (cf flēotan, to swim or float), akin to ON flota. The n float derives, through ME flote, from OE flota, a ship, a fleet, akin to ON floti, a float or raft, also a fleet, and OHG-MHG flōz, G Floss, a raft; OE flota prob derives from OE flotian.

3. ON floti, raft, fleet, accounts for OF-F flotte, a fleet, and the Gmc group exemplified in para 2 has, with Frankish intervention, led to OF-MF floter (F flotier), to float, whence MF flotaison, lit a floating, whence EF flotsan, -en, -on, finally E flotsam.

4. Reshaped F flottation, a floating, yields—as if for floatation—the E flotation. E flotage, a floating, etc., prob blends E float + F flottage (MF flotage).

5. But flotilla is adopted from the Sp dim of Sp flota, a fleet, from syn F flotte (para 3).

Fleming, Flemish. See FLANDERS, para 2.

fleñae: (perh via D flenzen) Da flense: cf Sw flänsa, Nor flinsa.

flesh (n, hence v); flesher; fleshly; fleshy, whence fleshiness.

Whereas fleshy = flesh, n + adj -y, flesher = flesh, v + agent -er; fleshly derives from OE flāesclic, flesh-like, adj of flāesc, whence, through ME flesc, later flesh, the E flesh: and OE flāesc is akin to OFris flask, flesk, OS flēsk, OHG fleisc, MHG-G fleisch (flesh, meat), MD vlees, vleis, vleysche, vleesche, vlesch, D vleesch, ON flesk, pork, bacon: o.o.o.; perh cf FLITCH.

fleur-de-lis, fleuret, fleuron, fleury. See FLORA, para 8.

flex, flexibility, flexible (cf inflexible, etc.); flexile; flexion or flection; flexor, flector; flexuous, flexuosity; flexure, whence flexural.—circumflex; deflect, deflection (deflexion), deflective, deflector, deflex, deflexure; inflect, inflection (inflexion), inflectional (or -x-), inflective (or -x-), inflector, inflex; reflect, reflectance, reflection (whence reflectional), reflective (whence reflectivity), reflector, reflex (adj, n, v), reflexible, reflexive. Cf sep falchion, q.v. at FALCATE.

1. The root word is L flectere, to bend, curve (inward), pp flexus: perh akin to plectere, to plait, or interlace, pp plexus: IE r, perh plek-, var phlek-.

2. 'A flex' derives from 'to flex', itself from L flex-, s of pp flexus. On L flex- are formed these simple L derivatives affecting E:

flexibilis, whence, prob via MF-F, flexible; derivative LL flexibilitās, o/s flexibilitāt-, becomes MF-F flexibilitē, whence E flexibility; flexilis, whence flexile; flexiō, o/s flexiōn-, whence both flexion and flection;

Sci L flexor, with anglicized var flector; flexuōsus, whence flexuous; derivative LL flexuōsītās, o/s flexuōsītāt-, yields flexuosity; flexūra, whence flexure.

3. L flexibilis has neg inflexibilis, whence inflexible, whence, anl, inflexibility.

4. The first L prefix-cpd, among vv, is circumflectere, to bend or curve about, pp circumflexus, whence n circumflexus (gen -ūs), whence 'a circumflex accent'; derivative LL circumflexiō, o/s circumflexiōn-, becomes E circumflexion.

5. L deflectere, to turn, or be turned, away, yields 'to deflect'; pp deflexus has derivative deflexiō, o/s deflexiōn-, whence deflexion, anglicized var deflection; deflexus itself yields 'to deflex', whence, anl, deflexure; deflective (deflexive) and deflector are E anl formations.

6. L inflectere, to bend inwards, produces 'to inflect', whence, anl, inflective (-flexive) and inflector. Pp inflexus leads, anl, to E 'to inflex'; derivative inflexiō, o/s inflexiōn-, becomes—perh via late MF-F—inflexion, anglicized to inflection, whence inflectional (-flex-).

7. L reflectere, to bend back, to turn again (to refract light), becomes, prob via OF reflector, 'to reflect', whence reflectance (-ance)—reflective, reflexive (cf the F reflectif, réflexif)—reflector; reflexible goes back to the L pp reflexus, whence directly LL reflexiō, o/s reflexiōn-, E reflexion (also the ME and MF form), anglicized to reflection. L reflexus, pp, accounts for E reflex, adj; derivative n reflexus (gen -iūs), for the E n reflex; pp reflexus, for 'to reflex'. Reflexology=E reflex, n+connective -o-+logy, discourse, science.

click, n hence v, is imitative—and akin to FLECK.

clicker (v hence n, including the woodpecker so named): OE flīcorian, akin to OE flacor, a fluttering, and OHG flagarōn, MHG-G flackern, to flicker, cf ON flōkra and, further off, L plangere, to beat, a nasalization of plag-*: cf PLAIN, v. Dial flacker=ME flakkeren, from r of OE flacor.

clier. See FLY.

flight, a flying: see FLY; a fleeing, see FLEE, para 1. The former yields FLIGHTY.

flimflam. See FLAM.

flimsy (adj hence n) is app metathetic for flimsy, for filmy, adj of FILM.

finch. See FLANGE, para 3.

flinder. See FLINT, para 1.

fling (v hence n), pt and pp flung (cf far-flung): ME flingen or flengen; (vi) to rush, (vt) to hurl: ON flengja, to fling, (but also) to hurl; cf Nor dial flanja, to hurl, to throw, and Sw flanja, to dash or rush: ? echoic. Cf the 2nd FLAW.

flint (whence flinty); flinder, usu pl flinders; plinth; splint—splinter (n hence v); split (v hence n), with pa and vn splitting;—splice (v hence n).

1. Flinder, ME flender, is akin to D flender, Nor flindra and ult to flint.

2. Flint, OE flint, is akin to OHG-MHG flins, and LG flint, flint, and LG flinse, flise, a stone slab, MD-D vlint, flint, MLG vlinstēn, flint stone; cf also Nor flint and, as 'splinter', ON flis: clearly there are nasal and n-less forms: cf the Gr plinthos.

3. Gr plinthos, a brick or a tile, becomes L plinthus, whence E plinth, with Arch sense: and plinthos, s plinth-, is app of extremely ancient stock (perh not IE).

4. Akin to E flint and the other words in para 2 is splint, from MD splint (var splinte), of which MD splinter (var splenter)—whence the E n splinter—is app an extn. Cf:

5. Without n is E 'to split', from MD splitten: cf MHG splitter, a splinter.

6. Akin to all the words above is 'to splice', from MD splissen (D splitsen), akin to MHG splizen, G spleissen.

flip. See FLAP, para 3.

flippancy, flippant. See FLAP, para 3.

firt (v hence n), orig to throw rapidly or jerkily; whence, anl, flirtation, flirtatious.

To firt'—whence F flirter—comes from EF fleureter, to talk sweet nothings, F conter des fleurettes, fleurette being the dim of fleur, a flower: cf, sem, 'to say it with flowers': f.a.e., FLORA.

flit (v hence n), which has freq flitter (v hence n), derives through ME flitten, var fluiten, to go (or to carry) away, from ON flyja (cf ON fljóta, fljóta, to float or swim): perh cf also MHG flittern, to flutter. Hence flittermouse: flitter, vi+mouse: cf G Fledermaus, MHG fledermus, OHG fledarmus, a bat (for 1st element, cf MHG fledern, to flutter).

flitch: ME flicche: OE flicce, akin to the syn ON flikki, MLG vlicke, Lith paltis; prob ult to FLESH, for OE flicce seems to be both a 'thinning' of the form and a narrowing of the sense of OE flāesc, flesh.

flitter. See FLIT.

flivver, whether a small, cheap car, or a failure or 'fizzle', is sl (AE): o.o.o.: perh from failure via filure and filyer and metathetic filyer.

float (n, v). See the 4th FLEET, para 2. Hence floater and floating.

flocculence, flocculent, flocculus, floccus. See the 2nd FLOCK.

flock (1), orig a large company, hence esp of sheep or geese: OE floc, company, flock: cf ON flokkr, a crowd, and MLG vlocke; perh cf MD vloc, which, however, is a var of MD volc, later volk, E FOLK—was OE floc perh orig a metathesis for OE folc, folk, tribe, nation?—Hence 'to flock'.

flock (2) of wool, whence flocky: ME flocce (cf MHG flocke, OFris flokk-): OF-F (obsol) floc: L floccus, which, like its LL dim flocculus, is adopted by tech E. L floccus has derivative LL adj floccōsus, whence both floccous and floccose; flocculent—whence flocculence—is an anl E formation from flocculus. Floccus itself, s floc-, is a picturesque word and therefore it requires no other origin. Cf FLOSS.

floe. See the 2nd FLAG, s.f.

flog. See FLAGELLANT, para 2.

flood (n, whence v, whence flooding): ME flood, a flood, a stream, a flowing: OE flōd, a flowing, hence a stream, hence esp a stream in spate: akin to OFris and OS flōd, flood, OHG-MHG fluot, flood, river, sea, G Flut, flood, Go flōdus, ON flōth; cf also 'to FLOW' (cf ON flōa).

floor (n hence v, whence flooring, vn): OE flōr: cf MHG fluor, G Flur, m 'threshold, entrance-hall', f 'field', ON flōr, flōrr, floor, esp of a cow-stall; also OIr lár (for plár*), Ga lár, W llawr, Cor lear, lér, OC lār-, plār-, and L plānus, level (E PLAIN)—and FIELD.

floosie or -zie, floosy or -zy. See FLORA, para 15.

flop. See FLAP, para 5.

Flora, flora, floral; florate; floreal; Florence (Florentine), florence—florin; flores; florescence, florescent; floret (cf floscule); floriation; c/f flori- (esp floriculture, floriferous), q.v. in Elements; florid, whence floridity; Florida; florist, floristics, floristry; element florous; floruit;—fleur-de-lis, fleuret, fleury, almost direct from F.—E words from F: flower (n hence v), whence pa and vn flowering, flowers and adj flowery; cf flour (n hence v), whence adj floury;—flourish (v hence n), whence pa and vn flourishing.—Cpds: deflorate (adj, v), defloration, deflorescence, deflower; effloresce, efflorescence (-ency), efflorescent; inflorescence, inflorescent.—Coll and sl: Florrie, Flossie—floosey, -sie (var floozy).—Sep FLIRT.—For Gmc cognates, cf BLOOM, BLOSSOM, (of flowers) 'to BLOW'.

1. Of all the L words and L derivatives, as of the R offshoots, the easily recognizable root is L flōr-, o/s of flōs (gen flōris), a flower, a word common to the whole of ancient Italy; no f- cognates exist outside L and R, but C and Gmc have r bhlo-* (C var bhla-*), which we see in bloom, blossom, BLOW (to blossom).

2. L flōs has pl flōres, used in Chem and Pharm, and the derivative Flōra, goddess of flowers and of all blossoming vegetation, with adj Flōrālis, of Flora, hence Flōrālia (neu pl), her festival, but F and E have vulgarized Floral to common floral, of flowers; the general L adj flōreus affects E only in the rare floral (cf the F Floréal, April 20–May 10). Goddess Flora becomes generic flora or plant life, opp fauna, animal life; cf the Bot florate (as in triflorate, three-bloomed), perh form-influenced by ML flōrātus, adorned with embroidered flowers.

3. L flōridus, flowery, yields florid. The State of Florida was so named because the Sp explorer, Juan Ponce de León, 'reached its shores in 1513 during the Feast of the Flowers (Pascua Florida): Collier's Encyclopedia.

4. Flōs, flōr-, has derivative v flōrēre, to grow like a flower, hence to flourish: cf flōruit (abbr fl.), he flourished—at a certain period. The presp flōrens, o/s flōrent-, has derivative flōrentia, a blooming, hence prosperity, whence the city of Flōrentia, anglicized as Florence: cf the It Firenze. Hence, florance, a gold coin first minted there. It fiorino (from fiore, a flower, from L flōs, flōr-), the same Florentine coin, was reshaped by MF-F to florin, adopted by E; the value decreased. L Flōrentia has adj Flōrentinus, whence E Florentine, n and adj, with several derivative n senses.

5. Flōrēre has inch flōrescere, to begin to bloom, or, hence, to flourish, with presp flōrescens, o/s flōrescent-, whence E flourescent, whence flourescence.

6. L flōs has dim flōsculus (-culus), whence F, hence E, floscule; more usual in E is floret, from OF-MF flōrete (cf F fleurette), dim of OF-MF flor, from L flōrem, acc of flōs.

7. Of L form, although not of L origin, are floriate (or floriated), floriation; florist, influenced by late EF-F flouriste—whence both floristic, whence, in turn, floristics, and floristry.

8. Almost pure F are:

fleur-de-lis (var -lys), lit flower of (the) lily, the royal emblem of France, with corrupted E form flower-de-luce; fleuret, a light fencing-foil, adopted from EF-F; as a small flower, E fleuret adapts EF-F fleurette (OF-MF flōrete); floury (Her) = F fleuri, covered or ornamented with flowers, prop the pp of fleurir in its sense 'to cover with flowers, render flowery'.

9. Of the remaining simple E words coming, altered, from F are flower, flour, flourish.

10. Flower derives from ME, from MF, flour, var of flor (as in para 6). 'Flowers' (menstrues) anglicized MF-F fleurs, which comes from LL flōres, which, influenced by L flōres, flowers, represents L (menstrui)fluōres, monthly flowings. Cf:

11. Flour, fine-ground wheat-meal, derives from ME flour, var flure, from MF flour de farine, the flower—i.e., the best—of (wheat-)meal, itself from L flōs farinae. Flour is therefore a doublet of flower.

12. 'To flourish', ME flourishen or flurishshen, derives from such parts of OF-MF florir, var flurir (cf EF-F fleurir), as pp florissant (flurissant) and 'ils florissent' (flur-), they bloom, hence flourish; OF-MF florir, flurir, comes, via rare LL flōrire, VL flōrire*, from L flōrēre (as in para 4).

13. L prefix-cpds include dēflōrēre, with LL int dēflōrāre, to pluck, hence to devirginate (a woman), with pp dēflōrātus, whence adj and v deflorate; derivative dēflōrātiō, o/s dēflōrātiōn-, yields E defloration and late MF-F dēflōraison, learned F dēflōration. LL dēflōrāre becomes MF desflor, later dēflor, whence ME desflor, whence, after flower, E 'to deflower'. The inch L flōrescere has cpd dēflōrescere, to begin to lose its flowers, to fade, with presp dēflōrescens, o/s dēflōrescent-, whence E deflorescent, whence, in turn, deflorescence.

14. The L inch flōrescere has also the cpds:

LL efflōrescere, to begin to break out (ef- for ex) into flower, whence 'to effloresce'; presp efflōrescens, o/s efflōrescent-, becomes efflorescent, whence efflorescence, var efflorescency;

LL inflōrescere, to begin to break into (in) blossom, has presp inflōrescens, o/s inflōrescent-, whence inflorescent, whence inflorescence.

15. The goddess Flora becomes any woman's first name, with pet-forms Florrie (and Flo) and Flossie (and Floss); the latter is so proletarian that it leads to the sl AE flossie (-ey, -y, flossie, etc.), a girl or woman of light character and usu of little breeding.

florist. See prec, para 7.

floscule. See FLORA, para 6.

floss, whence flossy, comes from F (soie) floche, soft or downy silk, floss silk, floche deriving from OF-(obsol)F flōc: see the 2nd FLOCK.

flotage, flotation. See 4th FLEET, para 4.

flotilla. See 4th FLEET, para 5.

flotsam. See 4th FLEET, para 3.

flounce (1), vi, as in 'to flounce out of the room', is app of Scan origin (cf Sw flunsa, to plunge): ult, prob echoic; perh, however, a blend of flōp+bounce (EW).

flounce (2), vt, in dressmaking, whence the n, the pa flounced, the vn flouncing, 'eases' the earlier frounce, to gather into, hence to adorn with, pleats, itself coming, via ME frouncen, froncen, from OF-MF froncier, froncir (MF-F froncer), from OF-F fronce, a wrinkle, of Gmc origin, prob Frankish krunkja* (cf ON hrukka), a wrinkle.

flounder (1), n, a flatfish: AF floundre: OF-MF flondre, of Scan origin: cf Sw flundra and, ult, Gr platys, level, flat.

flounder (2), v, orig to stumble: perh a blend of founder, to sink+blunder.

flour. See FLORA, para 11.

flourish. See FLORA, para 12.

flout. See FLABELLATÉ, para 4.

flow (v hence n), whence pa flowing, derives from OE flōwan, akin to ON flōa, to flow, L pluit, it rains: cf the 4th FLEET, FLOOD, FLUENT.

flower. See FLORA, para 10.

flown (1), adj, as in 'flown with wine': from 'to FLOW'.

flown (2), pp. See FLY.

fluctuant, fluctuate, fluctuation. See FLUENT, para 4.

'flu. See FLUENT, para 8.

flue (1), obs a chimney, now an enclosed passage-way for conveying air or gases: o.o.o.; prob connected with FLUENT and FLOW.

flue (2): cf FLUFF, see VELVET.

fluent, fluency; fluid, whence fluidity; flume; fuor, whence fluorescence, fluorescent, fluorite; fluvial; flux, fluxion;—fluctuant, fluctuate, fluctuation.—Prefix-cpds: affluence, affluent; confluence, confluent; effluence, effluent, effluvium, efflux; influence, influent, influenza ('flu), influx; reflux, refluent, influx, and with adj effluvial. E efflux, anl with afflux and influx, was perm prompted by LL effluxiō, a flowing forth.

1. Firmly at the base stands L flu-, s of fluere, to flow: cf Gr phluein, to flow abundantly, overflow; IE r, perh bhleu-, to flow (abundantly), prob orig to swell up (as water when boiled) and flow over. Perh, ult, this group is akin to that of the 4th FLEET, FLOOD, PLUVIAL (Jupiter Pluuius), where pla-, ple-, plo-, plu-* app means 'to cause to flow'.

2. L fluere has presp fluens, o/s fluent-, whence the E adj fluent; derivative L fluentia accounts for fluency.

3. L fluere has derivative adj fluidus, whence the adj (hence the n) fluid, whence fluidity: cf the MF-F fluide and EF-F fluidité. The derivative n flūmen, a stream, a river, becomes OF-MF, whence ME, flum, whence, ult, the AE flume, a rivered gorge: derivative fuor, a flowing, has Min derivative fluorite; derivative L fluxus, a current, a wave, becomes MF-F, whence E, flux, and var fluxiō, likewise formed upon flux-, s of pp fluxus, has o/s fluxiōn-, whence MF-F, hence E, fluxion; derivative fluuius (orig an adj), a river, has adj fluuiālis, ML fluviālis, whence MF-F, hence E, fluvial.

4. L fluxus represents earlier stuctus, current, wave, which has derivative stuctuāre, (of the sea) to swell, be agitated, with presp stuctuans, o/s stuctuant-, whence the E adj stuctuant, and with pp stuctuātus, whence 'to stuctuate'; derivative stuctuātiō, o/s stuctuātiōn-, yields, perh via OF-F, stuctuation.

5. L affluere, to flow towards (af- for ad), has presp affluens, o/s affluent-, used also as adj, whence, prob via EF-F, the E affluent, flowing with goods and money; derivative L affluentia becomes EF-F affluence, adopted by E. On the pp affluxus arises ML affluxus, a flowing towards, whence EF-F and E afflux.

6. L confluere, to flow con- or together, has presp confluens, o/s confluent-, whence the E adj (hence

n) confluent; derivative LL confluentia yields confluence.

7. L effluere, to flow outwards, has presp effluens, o/s effluent-, whence the E adj, hence n, effluent; derivative LL effluentia yields effluence. Effluere has the further derivative effluuium (influenced by fluuius), ML effluuium, adopted by E, mostly with adapted senses and with adj effluvial. E efflux, anl with afflux and influx, was perm prompted by LL effluxiō, a flowing forth.

8. L influere, to flow in, has presp influens, o/s influent-, whence the E adj, hence n, influent; derivative LL influentia becomes both MF-F, whence E, influence and it influenza, a malady induced by the influence of the heavenly bodies, adopted by E, with coll shortening 'flu; LL influsus (on the pp s) yields influx.

9. L refluere, to flow re- or back, has presp refluens, o/s refluent-, whence the E adj refluent, whence refluence; reflux is anl with influx.

10. L superfluere, to flow super or over, has presp superfluens, o/s -fluent-, whence E adj superfluent, flowing—or floating—above; superfluere has the derivative adj superfluus, overflowing, whence E superfluuous, and the derivative LL superfluitas, o/s -fluitat-, whence, perh via OF-F, the E superfluuity.

fluff, fluffy. See ADDENDA.

fluid, fluidity. See FLUENT, para 3.

flake, whence adj fluky. See FLAKE, para 2.

flume. See FLUENT, para 3.

flummery, orig soft food (pap): W llymrud (var of llymru), a soft, sour oatmeal food.

flummox (coll), to bewilder: cf dial flummock: echoic.

font (2), a spring of water, fontanel, Fontaine-bleau; fount, fountain.

Font, OE fount, represents L font-, o/s of fons, whence also, via OF-EF font, the E fount, which gathers special-senses. Fountain, however, comes from OF-F fontaine, from LL fontāna, prop the f (sc aqua) of fontānus, of a fons or spring; and fontāna acquires, perh via ML fontānella, the EF-F dim fontanelle, adopted by E, which adapts it to fontanel, now only a tech of Med, An, Zoo. Fontainebleau is, as to the 2nd element, o.o.o.: perh -bleau is a contr of [de] belle eau.—L fons is f/e derived from fundere, to pour out; prob akin to Skt dhanāyati, dhanvati, it runs or flows.

food. See FEED, para 1.

fool, n whence v and foolery and foolish; folly.

Folly, ME folie, is adopted from OF-F folie, itself from OF-MF fol, foolish, mad; as n, OF-MF fol (cf the F adj fou, fol, folle) is adopted by ME, whence E fool. OF fol, a fool, derives from LL follis, a fool, from L follis, bellows (hence a wind-bag): f.a.e., FOLLICLE.—That size of paper which is foolscap is so named because of the orig watermark of a fool's cap (fool's-cap, foolscap) and bells.

foot (pl feet), hence v, hence vn footing; such obvious cpds as football (whence sl footer); -fall, -hill, -hold, -loose, -man, -note, -pad, -step, etc; afoot; sep FETCH; fetlock; fetter; sep FIT (of verse).—Latin: pedal, adj and n (whence v)—sesquipedalian; pedary and pedate; pedestrian (adj hence n); element pedi-, q.v., as in pedicure; pedicel, pedicle, pedicule; element pedo-, q.v., as in pedometer; peduncle, whence peduncular; petiolate, petiole; pawn—peon.—biped, quadruped; expedience (and -ncy), expedient (adj hence n), expedite, expedition (whence expeditionary), expeditious; impede (whence impedance), impediment (whence impedimental), impedimenta; impeach, impeachment—apeach, apeachment—peach (v) and sl 'peach';—cap-a-pie; pedestal; pedigree; piedmont, piepowder;—repudiate, repudiation;—cf the sep IMPAIR (v) and PEJORATIVE (with PESSIMIST).—Greek: elements -pod, -poda, pod-, qq.v.; pilot (n, v), pilotage; podium and pew;—podagra; antipodes, whence antipodal, adj, and antipodean, n; octopod, octopus (pl octopodes); trapeze, trapezium, trapezius, trapezoid (whence trapezoidal); tripod.

Germanic

1. Foot: ME foot, pl feet, earlier fof, pl fet: OE fōt, pl fēt: cf OFris and OS fōt, OHG-MHG fuoz, MD voot, vuet, MD-D voet, Go fōtus, ON fōtr: Gmc r, fōt-*. The sense 'measure of 12 inches' exists already in OE and OHG.

2. The adv—hence adj—afoot merely=a-, on+foot.

3. Fetlock derives from ME fetlak and its var fitlok: cf MHG vizlach, vizzeloch (G Fissloch): 1st element, akin to foot; 2nd, to LOCK of hair.

4. Fetter=OE fetar, feter, fetor: cf OFris fiteria, to fetter (OHG fezzarōn, OE feterian, whence 'to fetter'), OHG fezzara (or -era), ON fiōturr; cf L pedica (cf ped-, o/s of pēs, foot), Gr pedē, fetter.

Latin

5. L pēs (gen pedis), a foot, o/s ped-, is akin to Gr pous, o/s pod-: see next section. It has adj pedālis, whence E pedal, of the foot (or feet); the neu pedāle becomes the It n pedale, whence EF-F pedale, whence E 'a pedal', orig a treadle. Pedālis has cpd sesquipedālis, 'of, containing, a foot and a half', sesqui- being a mdfn of semi-, half, and standing for semisque*; hence Horace's sesquipedālia (uerba), words a foot and a half long, i.e. very long, whence the E adj sesquipedalian.

6. The rarer L adj pedārius, of the foot, becomes learned E pedary, esp 'of walking'. L pedātus, furnished with feet, yields Zoo and Bot pedate.

7. L pedester (occ pedestris, as p. orātiō, pedestrian speech), of the feet, hence lowly, humble, earth-bound, has o/s pedestri-, whence the E adj pedestrian (-an, adj). Cf the formation of equestrian from L equus.

8. L pēs, ped-, has dim pediculus, a little foot, hence a slender stalk, whence E pedicule, usu pedicel (mostly in An); Sci L has two dimm: pedicellus, whence E pedicel, used in Bot and An, and pedunculus, whence E Bot, An, Med peduncle. The L dim petiolus, esp a fruit stalk, becomes the petiole of Bot and Zoo, with adj petiolar; from petiolus, SciL derives petiolatus, anglicized as petiolate (Bot and Zoo).

9. L pēs, foot, has derivative LL pedō, a pedestrian, a foot-soldier, acc pedōnem, whence OF-MF peon (F pion), with var paon, with additional sense 'pawn' in chess, whence ME poune, later pawne, whence E pawn. LL pedō, o/s pedōn-, becomes (Port pedo and) Sp peón, whence E peon, (India, Ceylon) foot-soldier, ordinary policeman, messenger, but now predominantly S Am, farm or wine, then any, manual worker.

10. Thus we reach the cpds, both full and merely prefixal. The L prefix-cpds include expedire, to free (one's or another's) feet (ped-) from (ex) shackles or a trap, with presp expediens, o/s expedient-, whence, via MF-F, the E adj expedient; derivative LL expedientia, advantage, opportunity, yields E expedience (cf EF-F expédience) and expediency (perh ex expedient). The pp expeditus yields both 'to expedite', orig to set free, and the adj expedite; derivative expeditiō, o/s expeditiōn-, orig a freeing, yields, perh via MF-F, the E expedition, whence, anl, expeditious, prompt.

11. L impedire, to put (someone's feet: ped-) in (im-) shackles, hence to prevent from walking, hence to hinder, yields 'to impede'; impedimenta is prop the pl of L impedimentum (imped+connective -i+-mentum), an obstruction, whence E impediment.

12. Cf LL impedicāre, to tangle someone's feet (ped-) in (im-) a pedica or trap, hence fetter, whence OF empeechier, MF empechier, empechier (F empêcher), to hinder or prevent, whence ME empechen, whence E 'to impeach', esp in legal sense 'to charge with an official crime or misdemeanor'; OF-MF derivative empechement (F empêchement) helps to form E impeachment.

13. OF empeechier, empechier, becomes AF apecher, whence ME apechen, whence 'to approach' (whence approachment), to impeach, whence the equally obs 'to peach', to impeach, surviving as sl peach (on), to turn informer (against), to blab.

14. A less obvious L prefix-cpd is repudium, a 'back-footing', a (rejection indicated by) pushing back (re-) with the foot (pede, abl), esp a rejection of wife by husband, f/e related to pudet, it is a shame (me pudet, I am ashamed)—cf PUDECY. Repudium has derivative repudiāre, to reject (esp a wife), with pp repudiātus, whence 'to repudiate'; derivative repudiātiō, o/s repudiātiōn-, accounts for late MF-F répudiation and E repudiation.

15. Full or true cpds include cap-a-pie, pedestal, pedigree, piedmont, piepowder. Cap-a-pie, (armed or dressed) from head to foot: adopted from MF (de) cap a pié, EF-F (dé) cap à pied, now de pied en cap: L pēs, pedem, and caput, head.

16. Pedestal: EF-F piēstallo: It piēstallo (or -istallo), foot of a stall, a place for sitting or standing: = pie (for piēde: L pēs, pedis), foot+di (L dē), of+stallo, a support or a stall (see STALL).

17. Pedigree (n whence v, whence pa pedigreed): ME pedegru: MF pié de grue, lit 'foot of crane' (the bird: L grus): ref the resemblance of the three-line mark of descent to the three 'toes'.

18. Geog piedmont, adj and n, '(district) formed or situated at the base of mountain or mountains': from the Piedmont region of Italy (cf It Piemonte, F Piémont): L Pedimontium: L (ad) pedes montium, at the feet of the mountains, here the Alps. Cf MOUNTAIN.

19. Piepowder 'anglicizes' piepowdre, lit dusty-footed (traveller, esp an itinerant vendor): OF-MF pié (F pied), foot+poudreux, dusty, from poudre, dust (see POWDER): now only hist, in court of piepowdre (-powder), a fairground or market-place summary court.

20. Midway between prefixal and full cpds stand biped and quadruped. Biped comes, perh via EF-F bipède, from L biped-, o/s of bipēs, two-footed; quadruped (adj hence n)—perh via late MF-F quadrupède—from quadruped-, o/s of L quadrupēs, four-footed.

Greek

21. Akin to L pēs, gen pedis, is Gr pous, gen podos, which has dim podion, a base or a pedestal, whence LL podium, under-part (of a structure), adopted by Arch for 'substructure'; the LL pl podia, apprehended as f sing, becomes OF puie, a raised place, MF puye, a parapet, later balcony, whence—perh via AF pui, a platform or stage—ME puwe, later pewe, then E pew, orig a preacher's stall.

22. Akin to Gr pous, o/s pod-, is Gr pēdon (s pēd-), an oar-blade, with pl pēda, a rudder, whence Byz Gr pēdōtēs*, whence obs It pedota (var -otta), whence It pilōta (-l- perh from It pilleggiare, to navigate). Prati less convincingly derives obs It pedota from obs It pede, foot. Either way, It pilōta yields MF-EF pilot, EF-F pilote, whence E pilot; F pilot, pilote, has derivative EF-F piloter, whence 'to pilot'; derivative late MF-F pilotage becomes E.

23. One Gr cpd has, via L, come unchanged into E: podagra, a seizure or catching (agra) of the foot (podos), gout.

24. In the other cpds, Gr pod- occurs in the 2nd place. Let us take them alphabetically, the 1st being (the) antipodes, orig the people, now the lands: L antipodes: Gr hoi antipodes, the people with feet (podos) opposite (anti): pl of adj antipous (gen antipodos).

25. Octopus (pl octopodes, anglicized as octopods; true E pl, octopuses): Sci L from Gr oktōpous, eight-footed (hence -tentacled): oktō, 8 + pous, foot.

26. Trapeze comes from EF-F trapèze: LL trapezium (adopted by Geom): Gr trapezion, an irregular 4-sided figure, lit a little table, dim of trapeza, a 4-legged table, for tetrapeza, a 4-footed object: tetra, 4 + peza, foot, mfn of pous. Trapezium is an An Sci L derivative from trapezium. Gr trapeza, a 4-legged table, has derivative adj trapezoeidēs, table-shaped, trapezion-shaped, with -eidēs, -like, a c/f of eidōs, form, shape, resemblance.

27. Tripod: LL tripoda: L tripos, gen tripodis, a tripod: Gr tripous, gen tripodōs, a three-footed seat, n from adj; tri-, c/f of Gr treis, 3.

Indo-European

28. Whereas the Gmc r is ſt-* (para 1), the L is ped-, the Gr pod-; and the IE r is pod-* or pōd, with varr ped- or pēd-, and perh pād-. Notable cognates not already mentioned include: Skt pāt, acc pādām, gen pādas, foot, pādm, footprints, pattis (cf OPer pastis), foot-soldier; Tokh A pe, Tokh B pai, foot; Lith pėda, foot, and peščias, on foot.

'footling' derives from FUTILE, q.v.

foozle, to bungle, perh owes something to FUTILE, but prob far more to G dial fuseln, to work very slowly, or clumsily, akin to G fuschen, better pfuschen, to bungle, with cognates in Da and Sw (Kluge).

fop, whence both foppery and foppish, derives from ME fop, foppe, a fool, akin to G underworld foppen, to jeer at, to cheat: cf the 2nd FOB.

for (prep; hence—elliptical for for that—conj): OE for or fore: akin to OFris fora, fore, fori, for, OS fora, firi, for, OHG fora (whence MHG vor, MHG-G vor), furi, MHG-G für, Go faur, saura, ON fyr-ir; OIr ro (for pro*); L and Gr pro; kindred L prae; OSl pro, Lith pra-; Skt pra-, Av fra-: IE r of the prep, pro-*. Cf also FORE and PRIOR.

forage, n and v (whence forager). 'To forage' comes from MF-F fouirager, itself from F fouirage, OF-MF fouage, var fORAGE, whence the E n: OF-MF fouage, fORAGE derives from OF fuerre (var feurre), which is of Gmc origin, prob the Frankish fōdare: cf OHG fuotar and E fodder (q.v. at FEED, para 1). Cf FORAY.

foramen, foraminate (adj and v), foramination, Foraminifera.

1. Foramen, orifice, adopted from L, derives from forāre, to pierce (cf BORE, to pierce), akin to Epic Gr pharoosi, they plough. Derivative LL forāmināre, to perforate, has pp forāminātus, whence foraminate; foramination is an E anl formation; SciL coins the cpd Foraminifera (usu pl), a Zoo order: cf the element -fer, -bearing, -bearer.

2. Forāre has cpd perforāre, to bore, or pierce, per or through, with pp perforātus, whence the adj and v perforate; derivative ML perforātiō, o/s perforātiōn-, yields, perh via MF-F, the E perforation.

foray (v hence n): OF-MF forer, forrer, to pilage, from forre, var of fuerre, q.v. at FORAGE: orig to plunder for food.

forbear (whence forbearance): ME forberen: OE forberan: 1st element, adversative prefix for-; 2nd, see the v BEAR.

forbid, pt forbad(e), pt forbidden. See BID, para 2.

force (n, v); from n, forceful, forcible;—enforce, whence enforcement.—fort; forte; fortissimo; fortify, fortification—cf fortress; fortitude.—comfort (n, v), comfortable (neg uncomfortable), comforter, comfortless—discomfort (n, v); effort, whence effortless.

1. The n force, adopted from OF-F, derives from LL fortia, strength, from neu pl fortia (apprehended as f sing n) of L fortis, strong; and fortia has derivative VL fortiāre*, whence OF-F forcer, whence 'to force'. L fortis, s fort-, perh stands for fortis*, s fortc-, with IE r dherg-, dherg-. (E & M.)

2. Derivative MF-EF forcible is adopted by E.

3. 'To enforce' comes from OF-MF enforcier (en, L in): VL infortiāre* (cf para 1).

4. Fort, adopted from MF-F (sc lieu, place), represents L fortis, strong; derivative OF-F forteresse (from adj forti) becomes E fortress; E forte, one's strong point, derives from F le fort (à qq n), one's strong point; Mus forte is adopted from It (L fortis), as also the sup fortissimo.

5. L fortis has LL derivative fortificāre, to strengthen (c/f forti-+ficāre, c/f of facere, to make): hence F fortifier, whence 'to fortify'; derivative LL fortificātiō, o/s fortificātiōn-, becomes MF-F, then E, fortification.

6. L fortis has derivative fortitudō, whence E fortitude.

7. The chief prefix-cpds are comfort and effort. Comfort, n, derives from OF-F confort, from OF-EF confortier—whence 'to comfort'; and conforter derives from LL confortiāre, to strengthen considerably (int con-), from fortis. Comfortable=OF-EF confortable, from conforter. The MF-EF cpd desconforter (des-, L dis-) yields 'to discomfort'; the derivative MF-EF n desconfort yields the E n, and derivative MF desconfortable becomes obsol discomfortable.

8. Effort is adopted from F; MF-F effort derives from OF-MF esfort, for esfors, from esforcier, to force oneself (es-, L ex, out of, sc oneself): VL exfortiāre*: cf fortiāre* in para 1.

forceps. See CAPABILITY, para 8.

forcible. See FORCE, para 2.

ford (n hence v): OE ford: cf OFris forda, OS ford, OHG-G furt, MD voort, vort, D voord, a ford, ON fjörthr, a bay: cf FARE, FIORD, 1st PRITH, PORT (harbour).

fore, adv (hence adj and n): OE fore, adv and prep: akin to OFris fora, fore, fort, for, OHG fora, furi, G faura (cf FOR), and, further off, Skt puras, in front, and purā, formerly. Cf FOREMOST and FROM.

forebear, ancestor: fore, formerly+(to) be+ agential -er.

forebode, foreboding. See BODE, para 2.

forecast (v hence n): to CAST or calculate beforehand (FORE).

foreclose (whence foreclosure): OF-F forclos, excluded, pp of forclore: for- for fors (F hors), outside, L foris, out of doors+close, to close (cf CLOSE).

foregather. See FORGATHER.

forego, to precede. See GO, para 2. forehead: OE forhēafod: the front (FORE) of the HEAD.

foreign, adj, whence foreigner, foreignness, etc.: ME foreine or forene: OF-F forain (f foraine): LL fordanus, situated on the outside, esp beyond one's own country: an -anus adj from forēs, foris, out of doors, hence abroad, from fora*, a door,—akin to L foris (occ forēs), pl fores, doors, esp outer doors: IĒ r, dhwer-*, cf DOOR.

2. Akin to L foris is L forum, a market-place (out of doors), the centre of public business: adopted by E.

3. Forum has adj forensis, of the forum as the orig centre of law business; hence forensic, legal—esp in relation to speech.

4. The L adv foris, outside, has LL derivative forestis, usu in silua (ML silva) forestis, a wood outside, hence for the use of all, hence, by ellipsis, the ML n forestis, a wood, a forest, whence OF-MF forest (F forêt), adopted by ME; but app the ML silva forestis or forestis silva was orig applied, in so far as OF is concerned, to Charlemagne's royal forest, with forestis deriving—cf forensis—from forum in its special early ML sense 'court of the King's justice'. (B & W.) Hence OF-F forestier, whence E forester, orig a forest warden; and MF-EF foresterie, whence E forestry.

foreknowledge. A knowledge (see KNOW) beforehand (FORE).

foremost: OE formest (fyrmost), sup of forma, first, itself a sup from the r of FORE: akin to OFris and OS formest, forma, Go frumists, fruma: in E, drastically influenced by MOST.

forensic. See FOREIGN, para 3.

forerunner: a runner (see RUN) in front (FORE).

foresee. See SEE, para 2. Pt foresaw, pp foreseen.

foreshow: OE forescēawian.

foresight: late ME cpd of FORE and sight (q.v. at SEE). Cf the G Vorsicht.

forest. See FOREIGN, para 4.

forestall. See STALL, para 3.

forester, forestry. See FOREIGN, para 4.

foretell: to TELL before (FORE) the event.

forethink: OE forethencean. Extant in derivative forethought.

forewarn: to WARN beforehand (fore).

forfeit (adj, n, v); forfeiture.

OF-EF forfaire, to transgress, hence to forfeit, comes from ML forisfacere, lit to act (facere: see FACT) out of doors (foris: see FOREIGN), hence to act beyond (one's rights), to transgress; forfaire has pp forfait (cf ML forisfactum), which, used (OF-EF) as n, 'crime', becomes ME forfet, crime, hence the penalty for it, whence E forfeit, whence 'to forfeit'; the OF pp forfait becomes E adj forfeit; and OF forfaire, through its derivative forfaiture (MF-EF), yields forfeiture.

forgather, later often foregather: earliest (C16) as forgad(der), mostly Sc: for-, predominantly 'forward, to the fore'+gad(der), obs form of GATHER.

forge ahead: a corruption of FORCE (oneself) ahead. Influenced by:

forge (n and v), forger, forgery.

The 2nd and 3rd derive from 'to forge', from MF-F forger, OF forgier, L fabricari or -cāre, from fabrica, a hard-material workshop (potentially a factory): f.a.e., FABRIC. L fabrica becomes OF-F forge, adopted by ME.

forget, pt forgot, pp forgotten; hence forgetful. forget-me-not, etc. See GET, para 3.

forgive (forgave, forgiven). See GIVE, para 3.

forgo (forwent, forgone). See GO, para 3.

fork (n hence v); bifurcate, bifurcation.

A fork comes, through ME forke, partly from OE forca (L furca) and partly from ONF forque, from L furca, s furc-, o.o.o. The derivative L adj bifurcus, LL bifurcis, in or of two branches, was blended with LL furcātus, fork-shaped (whence E furcate), to suggest EF-F bifurquer, E 'to bifurcate', (of roads) to fork; the anl EF-F bifurcation is adopted by E.

forlorn; forlorn hope.

1. ME forlorn is the pp of forlesen, to lose (lesen) utterly (connoted by for-): OE forlēosan (pp forloren): cf OHG farliosān, MHG verliesen, G verlieren, and O fraliusan: see LOSE.

2. Forlorn hope derives, in C16, from D verloren hoop, lost band (of soldiers or sailors), e.g. a storming party: D verloren, pp of verliezen, to lose +hoop, akin to E HEAP.

form, n (whence formless, and v); formal, whence formalism, formalist, formalize; formality; format—formation (whence formational), formative;—formula (whence adj formular), formulary, formulate (whence formulation).—Cpds: conform (whence conformable), conformation, conformator, conformity; deform (whence pa deformed), deformation, deformity; inform (adj—and v, whence informer), informal (whence informality), informant, information, informative; reform (v hence n), reformation, reformative, reformer, reformist; transform (whence transformer), transformation, transformative; uniform (adj and n), uniformity.

1. The group rests firmly upon L fōrma, s fōrm-, shape, that which shapes, that which has been shaped, but esp the shape imparted to an object: o.o.o., but perh by metathesis from syn Gr morphē, s morph-. L fōrma becomes OF-F forme (OF-MF var fourme), whence E form; derivative OF-MF fourmer, later former, yields 'to form'.

2. L fōrma has both the adj fōrmālis, whence E formal, whence, aided by MF-F formalitié, the E formality, and the derivative v fōrmāre, with pp fōrmātus, whence It formato, which, used as n, accounts for F format, adopted by E. On pp s fōrmāt- arises fōrmātiō, o/s fōrmātiōn-, whence OF-F, whence E, formation; formative is an anl E formation, abetted by F formatif, f formative.

3. L fōrma has dim fōrmula, a pattern form, hence a regulation, adopted by E—L pl fōrmlae, E pl formulas. Derivative L fōrmlārius occurs esp in LL fōrmlāria (sc ars, art), the science of legal formulae, whence E formulary. L fōrmula becomes late MF-F formule, whence formuler, which prob suggested 'to formulate', as if from L fōrmulātus*.

4. L fōrmāre has prefix-cpds, the first being confōrmāre (int con-), to fashion, arrange, whence, via OF-F conformer, E 'to conform'; on confōrmāt-, s of the pp confōrmātus, arise confōrmātiō, o/s confōrmātiōn-, whence EF-F and E conformation, and confōrmātor, a fashioner, a framer, adopted by E in new sense; conformity derives, via MF-F conformitē, from LL confōrmitās (confōrm-+-itās). Conformist (conform+-ist) occurs mostly in nonconformist: cf the complementary nonconformity.

5. Dēfōrmāre, to disfigure (dē, down from, hence away from+fōrma, the shape+-āre), yields, perh via MF-F, 'to deform'; derivative dēfōrmātiō, o/s dēfōrmātiōn-, accounts for deformation; but deformity comes from MF-EF dēformitē, from L dēfōrmitās, o/s dēfōrmitāt-, from the adj dēfōrmis, disfigured, hideous.

6. The adj infōrmis, shapeless, hence of ill shape, becomes late MF-F informe, whence E inform; but 'to inform', ME enformen, derives from OF-MF enformer (MF-F informer), from L infōrmāre, to put into (in-) shape (fōrma), give shape to, hence, in F and E, to a person's thoughts, i.e. to instruct or tell him of.—Informal=in-, not+formal, but owes something to E adj inform.—Infōrmāre has presp infōrmans, o/s infōrmant-, whence the E adj and n informant; the pp infōrmātus has s infōrmāt-, on which arises infōrmātiō, o/s infōrmātiōn-, whence MF in- or enformacion (F information), both adopted by ME, the in- form ending as E information; informative is an anl E formation.

7. L refōrmāre, to re-form or to reform, becomes OF-F reformer, whence 'to reform', whence reformer and reformist; the n reform, deriving from the v, is influenced by EF-F réforme (from the v); derivative L refōrmātiō, o/s refōrmātiōn-, leads, prob through MF-F, to E reformation; reformative is anl E.

8. L transfōrmāre, to change (connoted by trans, across) the fōrma or shape of, becomes MF-F transformer, ME transformen, E 'to transform'; derivative LL transfōrmātiō, o/s transfōrmātiōn-, becomes MF-F, then E, transformation; derivative ML transfōrmātīvus becomes transformative.

9. L ūnifōrmis, single (ūni-: cf ONE) in form, hence unvarying, becomes MF-F uniforme, whence the E adj uniform.—Used as n, F uniforme becomes the E n uniform.—Derivative LL ūnifōrmitās, o/s ūnifōrmitāt-, becomes MF-F uniformitē, whence E uniformity.

formic, formaldehyde; pismire.

Formaldehyde=form(o)-, c/f of formic+aldehyde (alcohol+dehydrogenation+euphonic -e); and formic=L formica, an ant+Chem-ic. Formica is a dissimilation of IE mormi-*, as in syn Gr murmēx—and as in the archaic pismire, so named from its ejection (pis=PISS) of the acid we call formic.

formidable (whence formidability); marmoset.

1. Formidable, arousing fear, hence impressively deterrent, is adopted from late MF-F, which takes it from L formidābilis, from formidāre, to dread, from the hunting-term formidō, a scarecrow, hence dread: a picturesque redup (cf the Gr mormō, a scarecrow, bugbear, hence a monster): cf L formica q.v. in prec.

2. Gr mormō app issues ult into the—orig a dim—MF-F marmouset, a grotesque carven image, hence an ape: whence E marmoset. Perh from MF-F marmouset comes, by contr, MF-F marmot, adopted by E; B & W, however, derive marmot from the echoic EF-F marmonner, to mutter (chatter mumbingly), and Webster less convincingly derives it from late OF-F marmotte, LL musmontānus, lit a mountain mus or mouse.

formula, formulary, formulate, formulation. See FORM, para 3.

fornicate, adj and v; fornication (Arch and sex); fornicator; fornic.

The base is L fornix (gen fornicis), o/s fornic-, s forn-, an arc, an arch, hence an arched vault, hence a vault, esp underground, hence an underground brothel, hence a low brothel: cf L furnus, an oven, and esp fornāx (o/s fornāc-, s forn-), a furnace, an oven, both an oven and a furnace being usu vault-shaped: cf, therefore, FURNACE. Some authorities, however, relate L fornix to L firmus, strongly placed or based. L fornix, an arch, a vault, adopted by E as an An and Bot tech, has L adj fornicātus, vaulted, whence the Arch adj fornicate; L fornix, a brothel, has the LL (esp Eccl) derivative v fornicāri, to frequent brothels, with pp fornicātus, whence 'to fornicate'; on fornicār-, s of pp fornicātus, are built both LL fornicātiō, brothelling, hence unmarried sexual intercourse, o/s fornicātiōn-, whence—perh via OF-F—fornication, and the LL agent fornicātor, adopted by E. forsake, pt forsook, pp forsaken. See SAKE, para 2.

for swear (forsook, forsworn), to swear for-against: OE forswerian (cf SWEAR).

fort, forte. See FORCE, para 4.

forth, OE forth, is akin to OFris and OS forth, MHG vort, G fort, and to the Go comp faurthis, formerly: cf FORE. It has many cpds, e.g. forthcoming, forthright, forthwith.

fortieth. See FOUR, para 3, s.f.

fortification, fortify; fortitude; fortress. See FORCE, paras 4–6.

fortuitous; fortunate. See:

fortune, n (whence misfortune) and v; Fortuna; fortunate (whence unfortunate), Fortunate Isles; fortuitous (whence fortuitism).—Cf sep BEAR, v.

1. The base is L fors, chance, o/s fort-, perh akin to L ferre, to bear, to bring, s fer-: fors, chance, is that which life fert or brings: cf BEAR, v.

2. Fors has a c/ɛ fortu-, which we see in fortuitus, of or by chance, whence E fortuitous.

3. On fort-, o/s of fors, arises fortūna, chance, esp if lucky, Fortūna, the Goddess of Chance, esp if favourable, whence OF-F, hence ME, whence E, fortune. L fortūna has adj fortūnātus, whence fortunate; the neg L infortūnātus yields the obsol infortunate. By b/f from fortūnātus derives fortūnāre, to happen by chance, whence, perh via MF-EF fortuner, the now rare ‘to fortune’.

4. Fortūnātus occurs notably in Fortūnātae Insulae, The Fortunate Isles, displacing Fortūnatorum Insulae, The Isles of the Blest, a rendering of Gr τῶν μακάρων νήσων, Isles of the Blest, whither, westward, passed the souls of the brave and the good.

forty. See FOUR, para 3.

forum. See FOREIGN, para 2.

forward, adj—whence n and v; forwards, adv, orig the gen of the OE adj foreweard or forweard, whence the E adj: or(e), q.v. at FORE+ward, implying direction, q.v. at WORTH, v.

fosse; fossil, adj hence n (whence fossilize).

The adj fossil comes, through EF-F fossile, from L fossilis, which can be dug out, from foss-, s of fossus, pp of fodere, to dig (up), excavate, whence also the n fossa, a ditch or a trench, whence, through OF-F fosse, the E fosse, occ foss. L fodere has IE r bhod-*: cf OSi bode, I thrust or prick or pierce (pt basū), Lith bedū, I prick or excavate, Lett badu, I excavate, OP em-baddusisi, (pp pl) plunged in misery; Lett bedre, a trench, W bedd, OW bet, Cor bedh, beydh, beth, Br bez, OC bedh*, a grave, and Ga leabaidh, a bed: cf also, therefore, E bed, G Bett (OHG betti, MHG bette), Go badi, ON bedr, a bed: the first ‘beds’ having been hollows dug in the ground? (E & M; Walshe.)

foul (adj hence v), foulness; befoul; filth, whence adj filthy (whence v); file, to befoul—to defile, whence defilement; fulmar.—pus, purulent; putrid, putridity.

1. The adj foul, filthy, disgusting, derives through ME foul, earlier ful, from OE fūl; cf OFris fūl, OHG-MHG fūl, G faul, Go fūls, ON fūll; cf also Lith pūti, to decay or rot, L pūtēre, to rot, be decayed, and pūs (gen pūris), Gr pūon, pūos, pus, and Skt pu-, to stink (pūyati, it stinks or rots), pūtis, rotten; IE r pu-*, to stink or be rotten.

2. Foulness derives from OE fulness (from fūl): cf OFris fūlnisse.

3. ‘To befoul’ is a be- int of ‘to foul’.

4. OE fūl has both a -th derivative n fylth, whence ME fulthe, var filthe, whence E filth, and a derivative v fylan, whence ME fulen, later filen, whence EE ‘to file’, befoul, (hence) dishonour, now obsol dial and obs E, but fully extant in the only by f/e connected, rather literary ‘to defile’, to befoul, to ravish (a woman), strictly from ME defoilen, defoulen, from OF-MF defouler, defuler, defoler, to crush, lit to trample (fouler) down (de)—cf the v FULL (cloth).

5. OE fūl has ON cognate fūll, which, preceding ON mār, a sea mew (cf MEW, the bird), yields E fulmar, a gull named ‘foul’ because it ejects foul-smelling liquid in self-defence.

Latin

6. As para 1 has shown, pus, a foul exudation, is adopted from L; on the L o/s pūr- arises the L adj pūrentus, whence E purulent; derivative LL pūrentia yields E purulence.

7. L pūs has r pū-, which recurs in the intimately cognate pūtēre (s pūt-), to decay, be decayed, to stink, whence the adj pūtīdus, whence literary E putid. Pūtēre has another derivative adj: pūter (o/s putr-), rotten: whence pūtrēre, to rot, be rotten, s pūtr-, whence the adj pūtrīdus, whence E putrid, whence—cf arid, aridity—putridity. L pūtrēre has inch pūtrescere, presp pūtrescens, o/s pūtrescent-, whence E putrescent; whence putrescence. Putrescibile, subject to decay, esp to rottenness, derives from LL pūtrescibilis, from pūtrescere. Pūtrēre, moreover, has cpd pūrefacere, to cause (facere) to go rotten, whence late MF-F putréfier, whence ‘to putrefy’; derivative LL pūrefactiō, o/s pūrefactiōn-, yields MF-F and E putrefaction; putrefactive is an anl E formation, perh suggested by F putréfactif.

found (1), to set or place solidly, to base or establish; foundation; founder (an establisher); ‘to founder’, to go to the bottom;—fund (n hence v, whence pa funded), whence funds, money—fundament, whence fundamental; profound, profundity.—bottom (n hence v), whence bottomless—bottomry.

1. To found, establish, derives from OF-F fonder, from L fundāre, to base firmly, from fundus, base, foundation, s fund-, IE r prob bhund(h)-*: cf W bon, a base, OIr bond, sole of the foot, Ga bonn, bunait, foundation. But there is an unnasalized IE r bhud(h)-*: cf Skt budhnaś, ground, base, and OHG bodam, G Boden, bottom, ground; also a form bhat-, var bhot-, eased in ON botn, OE botm, foundation, base; again, a p- nasal var in Gr pundax, ground, bottom, foundation, and pushmēn, base (e.g., foot of a mountain), bottom of the sea.

2. L fundus has derivatives affecting E:

fundāre, as above, whence fundamentum, base, foundation, whence E fundament, with further senses ‘groundwork’ or ‘underlying principle’; hence also the part on which one is most firmly based, one’s seat, the buttocks (hence esp anus); derivative LL adj fundamentālis, of the foundation, accounts for E fundamental;

LL fundātiō, from fundāt-, s of fundātus, pp of fundāre: whence MF fundacion (later fondation), whence E foundation;

LL fundātor, likewise from fundat-: whence OF-MF fondeor, fondere, whence—though partly direct from ‘to found’—E founder, an establisher or originator.

3. ‘To founder’, basically ‘to go to the bottom’, hence to fall, stumble badly, (of a ship) to sink, derives from OF-MF fondre, to fall in (cave in), from fond, bottom, base, from L fundus.

4. ‘To fund’ derives from ‘a fund’, orig any basis or foundation, hence one’s resources (energy, courage, but esp money): late MF-F fond, base, bottom, with E monetary sense from F pl fonds: OF fonz, MF fonds, base, bottom: VL fundus* (gen funderis): L fundus (gen fundi).

5. L fundus has derivative prefix-cpd adj: profundus, whence EF-F profond, whence E profound; derivative LL profunditās, o/s profunditāt-, whence EF profonditē, whence E profundity.

6. OE botm (cf, further, OFris bodem, OS bodom), cited in para 1, becomes ME botme, botum, whence bottom, with all the many E senses developing quite naturally. In MD the shape is bodom, bodum, (as in D) bodem; MD-D bodem, as in E, is applied also to (the lower hold of) a ship, with cpd bodemerij, which is anglicized to bottomry, the mortgaging of a ship.

found (2), to melt and mould, to cast, whence (metal-) founder; foundry; AE font, E fount (in printing); fuse, fusible (fusibility), fusil, fusion and foison; futile, futility.—L cpds: confound, confuse, confusion; diffuse (adj and v), diffusible, diffusion, diffusive (whence diffusivity); effuse (adj, v), effusion, effusive; infundibulum, infuse, infusible, infusion (whence infusionism), infusive, Infusoria (whence infusorial); interfuse, interfusion; perfuse, perfusion, perfusive; profuse, profusion, profusive; refund, to pour back again, hence to return (money)—refuse (adj, n; v), refusal; suffuse, suffusion, suffusive; transfuse, transfusion.—Gr: chyle, chyme; sep alchemist, alchemy, treated at CHEMICAL (CHEMIST, CHEMISTRY).—Gmc cognates: geyser; gut (n hence v); ingot (whence obs lingot: F l'ingot, the ingot).

1. ‘To found’, cast metal, comes, through OF-F fondre, from L fundere, basically to pour, hence to melt and mould (metal), with IE r gheu(-d)-, ghud-, var dheu*, var de-* or do-*: cf OE gēotan, OS giotan, OFris giāta, Go giutan (pp gutans), OHG giozan, MHG giezen, G giessen, Gmc r gut-*; Gr khecin, to pour; Skt juhōti, he pours (in libations). The L fundere shows an n-infix, absent in pt fūdi and pp fūsus. For other Gr cognates, see para 16.

2. Whereas foundry comes from MF-F fonderie (from fondre), a fount or font, orig a process of casting or founding, now a set of printer’s type of one style and size, represents MF-F fonte (from fondre).

3. The L pp fūsus, poured, melted (and moulded), yields ‘to fuse’; on s fūs- arise late MF-F fusible, adopted by E—LL fūsilis, molten, whence the E fusil, made liquid by heat—L fūsiō, o/s fūsiōn-, whence fusion, of which foison (archaic ‘abundance’ and dial ‘vitality’), adopted from OF-F (from the L acc fūsiōnem), is a doublet.

4. L fundere, pt fūdi, has derivative adj fūtilis, flowing easily, esp frivolous, whence MF-F and E futile; derivative fūtilitās, o/s fūtilitāt-, yields late EF-F futilité and E futility.

Latin Cpds of fundere, fusus

5. L confundere, to pour con or together, hence to mix utterly, to confuse, becomes OF-F confondre, whence ‘to confound’, with pa confounded. The pp confūsus yields, perh via the OF-F adj confus, the E ‘to confuse’, whence confusable; derivative confūsiō, o/s confusiōn-, yields, prob via OF-F, the E confusion.

6. L diffundere (dif- for dis-, connoting dispersion), to pour out, has pp diffūsus, whence—perh via the MF-F adj diffus—both the adj and the v diffuse (whence diffusible); derivative LL diffūsiō, o/s diffusiōn-, leads to EF-F and E diffusion; diffusive is an anl E formation.

7. L effundere (ef- for ex, out), to pour out, has pp effūsus, whence both adj and v effuse; derivative LL effūsiō, o/s effusiōn-, accounts for effusion; with effusive, cf diffusive.

8. L infundere, to pour in(to), has an -ibulum (basically dim) derivative infundibulum, a funnel (esp for pouring grain), adopted by An, Zoo, Bot for a funnel-shaped part or organ. The pp infūsus yields ‘to infuse’, with various natural sense-developments; whereas infusibile=in, into+fusible, infusion—whence, anl, infusive—derives from infūsiōn-, o/s of LL infūsiō, from the LL pps; the Zoo Infusoria (pl) owes something to LL infūsōrium.

9. L interfundere, to pour inter, between or among, has pp interfūsus, whence ‘to interfuse’; derivative LL interfūsiō, o/s interfusiōn-, explains interfusion.

10. L perfundere, to pour throughout (per), hence all over, has pp perfūsus and derivative LL n perfūsiō, o/s perfusiōn-, whence resp ‘to perfuse’ and perfusion (whence, anl, perfusive).

11. L prōfundere, to pour pro, forth, esp freely, has pp prōfūsus, whence the E adj and v profuse, the former deriving from the derivative LL adj prōfūsus, lavish, unbounded; the derivative prōfūsiō, o/s prōfusiōn-, becomes, perh via late MF-F, profusion, whence, anl, profusive.

12. L refundere, to pour re, back, becomes MF-EF refunder (var -fonder), whence ‘to refund’, (obsol) to pour—hence, give—back, hence to return (money), reimburse, the latter sense (whence ‘a refund’) being influenced by funds, money (cf 1st FOUND, para 4).

13. Refundere has a VL freq refūsāre*, to refuse, formed upon L refūsus, pp of refundere, which, in LL, has the additional sense ‘to reject’: whence

OF-F refuser, whence E 'to refuse', whence refusable and (-al, n) refusal. The n refuse, something rejected as worthless, hence leavings or rubbish, derives from ME refuse, either from OF 'chose refuse', f of pp refus, refused, rejected, or from OF-F refus, refusal, hence the subject of refusal, that which is rejected; the adj refuse, ME refus, prob derives from OF-F refuse, f of pp refus.

14. L suffundere, to pour below, hence from below, hence to overspread with or as with a liquid, has pp suffusus, whence 'to suffuse'; derivative LL suffusiō, o/s suffusiōn-, yields suffusion, whence, anl, suffusive.

15. L transfundere, to pour trans, across, hence as from one vessel to another, has pp transfusus, whence 'to transfuse'; derivative LL transfusiō, o/s transfusiōn-, leads to EF-F and E transfusion.

Gr Cognates (other than alchemist, chemistry, etc.)

16. The khu- var in Gr—cf L fūdi, fūsus—occurs in khulos, juice, sap, from kheīn, to pour; hence, via LL chylos, chylus, the late MF-F and E chyle; the var khumos becomes Sci L chymus, E chyme.

Gmc Cognates

17. Akin to the Gmc words for 'to pour' mentioned in para 1 is ON gjōta, to pour, with freq gjōsa, to gush; cf Ice geysa, (e.g., of water) to rush, whence Ice Geysir, a particular hot spring, whence E geyser, any hot spring.

18. Gut, an intestine, is a b/f from guts, OE guttas, bowels, akin to OE gēotan, to pour (cf para 1), and MD goto, D goot, intestine.

19. Ingot was formed in ME: OE in, in+OE goten, pp of gēotan, to pour, a mould for metal-casting, hence the metal there cast.

four, fourth; fourteen, fourteenth; forty, fortieth.

1. Four, ME four, earlier fower, earliest seower, derives from OE fēower, akin to OFris fīwer, fīr, fīuwer, OHG fior, MHG-G vler, OS fiuwar, fior, Go fidwōr, ON fīrir; L quat(t)uor; Gr tessares, Attic tettares; Skt catur-; C and Sl cognates; IE r, app kwetwor-*. OE fēower, contr fēor, has ordinal fēortha, ME fourthe, E fourth.

2. Fourteen, ME fourten, earlier seowertene, derives from OE fēowertȳne or -tēne, lit 4+10. Derivative OE fēowertēotha becomes ME fourtethe or sourtend, which blend into E fourteenth.

3. OE fēower has the further derivative fēowertig (lit 4×10), akin to OS fiwartig, contr to fiartig, Go fidwōr tigjus, ON fīrutlu: whence ME fowerti, later fourti, latest forti, whence E forty. Derivative OE fēowertigotha ends as fortieth.

4. OE fēortha, 4th, has derivative fēorþung, lit a 'fourthing': ME farthing: E farthing.

In D, 4 is vier, with derivative vierde, 4th, whence, with dim -kyn (later -kin) attached, prob comes the EE ferdekyn, later firkin, the 4th part of a barrel.

6. L quatuor becomes OF-F quatre, whence EF-F quatrain, a set of 4, esp a stanza of four lines, adopted by E.

7. For the other Romance derivatives, see QUARTER and CARILLON (where also quaternion) and QUIRE (of paper).

8. Gr tessares, neu tessara, 4, has cpd tessara-gōnos, 4-cornered, hence oblong or square; whence, by abbr, the L tessera, a square piece, e.g. of marble, with dim tessella, whence the adj tessellātus, whence E adj and v tessellate, with derivative tessellation.

fowl (n, v), fowler.

A fowler derives from OE fugelere, agent of fugelian, to seek, catch, kill wild fowl, whence 'to fowl': OE fugelian derives from OE fugol, whence ME fugel, fowel or foule, whence E 'a fowl': and OE fugol is akin to OFris fugel, OS fugal, OHG fogal, MHG-G vogel, Go fugls, ON fugl: Gmc r, app fugl-, dissimilation of flugl-, as in OHG fligan, MHG-G fliehen, and E 'to FLY'. L fractūra, whence, prob via MF-F, fracture; cf the 2nd FRITTER.

4. On the n-less s frag- arise:

fragilis, easily broken, hence brittle or delicate, whence, prob via MF-F, the E fragile; derivative L fragilitās, o/s fragilitāt-, leads—very prob via OF-F fragilité—to fragility; both adj and n have doublets: frail, frailty, L fragilis becoming OF-MF fraille (varr fresle, frele), which, via ME, produces frail, and L fragilitās becoming OF-MF fraileté, which, again via ME, produces frailty; fragmen, a piece broken off, whence LL fragmentum, whence late MF-F, hence E, fragment, whence, by anl, fragmentation.

Compounds

5. L diffringere (dif- for dis-, connoting dispersal +fringere, c/f of frangere), to break into pieces, has pp diffRACTUS, whence 'to diffract'; derivative diffRACTiō, o/s diffRACTiōn-, yields diffraction, whence, anl, diffRACTive. Diffringible is an E formation: dif-, as in diffringere+frangible (para 2).

6. Effringere (ef- for ex-, out), pp effRACTUS, has derivative LL effRACTūra, which perh suggests MF-F, hence E, effraction, a forcible breaking open (of house, chest, etc.).

7. Infrangible, unbreakable, derives from LL infrangibilis (in-, not+frangibilis*); infringe comes from L infringere, to break into, pp infrACTUS, whence infrACTiō, o/s infrACTiōn-, whence E infrACTion; infractor is adopted from LL-ML infractor.

8. L refringere, to break back, has presp refringens, o/s refringent-, whence refringent, whence refringency, and pp refRACTUS, whence 'to refract'; derivative LL refRACTiō, o/s refRACTiōn-, becomes E refraction, whence anl, rather than from LL refRACTiūs, ML -ivus, the E refractive. L refRACTārius may have prompted E refractory (-ory, adj), stubborn.

9. The L n-less s frag- occurs in several E words (refractory is perh one of them) not, by most, imm associated with frangere; they end in -frage or, derivatively, -fragable and -fragan. In ossifrage and saxifrage the sense of 'breakage' can be detected: whereas ossifrage, familiarly, for the osprey, 'break-bones', is L ossifraga or -fragus (os, bone, c/f ossi-), saxifrage, lit 'rock-breaker', is L saxifraga, from adj saxifragus (saxum, a rock, c/f saxi-: cf SAXON), perh because it grows in crevices.

10. L refragāri, to break back, esp to oppose, is a -frag- var of refringere (para 8); it has ML derivative refragābilis, opposable, hence controvertible, much less used than the neg irrefragābilis, incontrovertible, LL irrefragābilis (ir- for in-, not).

11. ML has suffringere (suf- for sub-, below), which is paralleled by the earlier suffragāri, to support, esp with one's vote, whence prob suffragium, (political) support, whence OF and E suffrage; some etymologists, however, relate L -frāgāri to the E v bray. Aided by suffragant-, o/s of suffragans, presp of suffragāri, but deriving imm from ML suffragāneus, an -āneus adj-become-n from suffragium, is OF-F suffragant, adj and n, whence E suffragan, any bishop in an assistant subordinate role.

fragile. See prec, para 4.

fragment, fragmentary. See FRACTION, para 4, s.f.

fragrance, fragrant; flair.

1. Fragrance, adopted from MF-EF, derives from LL fragrantia, an -ia derivative of fragrant-, o/s of fragrans, presp of L fragrāre, to smell sweet, s fragr-, perh akin to Skt ghrdī, it smells (good or bad). From L fragrantem, acc of fragrans, derives MF-EF fragrant, adopted by E.

2. L fragrāre—prob via VL flagrāre*—becomes OF flairer, whence the n flair, whence, via ME flaire, odour, the E flair, with modern F sense.

frail, frailty. See FRACTION, para 4.

frame, v hence n; derivatively the Am sl frame-up, and framework.

'To frame', ME framen, earlier framien, to be useful or profitable, hence to shape or fashion (in building), derives from OE framian, to profit, from OE fram, var of from (cf FROM), forth, (as prep) from, the idea being that of furthering: akin to OE fremman, fremian, OFris fromia, OHG frummen, ON fremja, frama, to further.

frank, adj (hence v), whence frankness; Frank, whence Frankish; frankfurter; frankincense; franklin; frankpledge, cf frankalmoign.—franc; France and French (whence Frenchify); franchise, n, whence disfranchise (whence disfranchisement), cf enfranchise (whence enfranchisement); Francis (cf Francois, Frances) and Franciscan; c/f Francos-, as in Francophil(e) and Francophobe, cf the elements -phil(e) and -phobe; francolin; lingua franca; Feringhee.

The frank Forms

1. The adj frank comes from OF-F franc, free, hence frank, from OF-F Franc, a Frank: ML Francus, a Frank, hence francus, free: (Francus, from) OHG Franko, a Frank—member of a Gmc people on the Rhine. 'The Frankish conquerors in early France (Frankreich) were the only "free" men or nobles, hence OF franc generally means "of noble birth". The name OHG Franko of the Franks is derived from OS franko "spear" (ON frakke); cf the name of the Saxons from sahs "sword" (Walshe). Cf also OE franca, a javelin, and ON frakka, frakkr, brave, bold.

2. A frankfurter is a Frankfurter sausage, orig made at Frankfurt, Frankfurt, in Germany, at 'the Ford of the Franks': frankincense=OF-F franc, free, hence pure+encens (cf INCENSE); frankpledge = a frank, free, pledge, perh by misapprehension of OE frithborh, peace surety or pledge; frankalmoin, a free almoign, from AF almoign or almoigne, app from OF-MF almosne (cf ALMS), this term belonging, like the prec, to English history.

3. Equally historical—but extant in the surname Franklin—is franklin, a freeman, later a freeholder: ME frankelein, prob ult from ML franchilanus, the AF fraunclein forming app the intermediate stage.

The franc Forms

4. A franc derives from 'Francorum rex', the device borne by the coin first struck in 1360 by 'the king of the French'. (B & W.)

5. French derives from OE frencisc, adj of Francia, a Frank; France, however, is the F name, from ML Francia, from Francus, a Frank (para 1).

6. OF-F franc, free, has derivative OF-F franchir, to free, whence OF-F franchise, a freeing, hence freedom, but also magnanimity; the political sense, adopted by E, comes much later. Franchir has a MF cpd enfranchir (en-, L in, used int), to set free, with a var pp enfranchisé, whence 'to enfranchise'.

7. François is the F, Francis the E, derivative from OF Franceis, a Frank, from LL Franciscus, of Gmc origin: cf Frank in para 1. Franceis has f Franceise, whence Frances. In ML, Franciscus has become a font-name; St Francis established monasteries and nunneries; hence Franciscanus, of St Francis, whence the Franciscāni, E Franciscans.

8. Obscurely connected is francolin, a genus of partridge: MF-F francolin: It francolino, perh elliptical for ucello francolino, with francolino a dim of franco, free, from OF franc. The 'freedom' has been explained thus: the birds becoming rare, it was forbidden to kill them, and so they were free to fly and live unmolested; but there is no record of this prohibition. (Prati.)

9. It franco occurs also, but in the orig sense 'Frankish', in la lingua franca, the language of the Franks: consisting basically of It, but containing also Sp, F, and also Gr and Ar, it served as the common language of the Mediterranean sea and ports. Cf:

10. OF Franc, a Frank, became Ar Faranji, var Ifranji, whence Per Farangi, Firingi, whence, in India, the Hind Feringi or Feringhee, a European. The virility and energy of the Franks has caused the widening sense implied in Feringi and in lingua franca.

frater, fraternal, fraternity, fraternize; cf element fratri- (as in fratricide); fratry;—friar, friary;—pal (n hence v), whence adj pally;—phratry.—brother (n hence v)—archaic pl brethren (ME bretheren)—whence brotherhood (cf suffix -hood) and brotherly (adj suffix -ly);

Indo-European

1. L frāter, brother, is akin to Gr phratēr, var phratōr, member of a brotherhood, a clansman, and to Skt bhrātṛ, Av brātar. Apart from L and Gr, the predominant form is b(h)r-: cf OSl bratrŭ (OP brāti; Lith brolis, note the bro-; Cz bratr); W brawd, pl brodyr—Cor brodar (or -er), bruder, breder—Br brér, pl bredér—Mx braar—Ga bráithair, pl bráithrean—OIr bráthir—OC brāter*; ON bróthir (Da, Sw broder); Go bróthar, OHG-MHG bruoder, G Bruder, OS brothar, OFris bróther, OE bróthor: Gmc etymon, bróther*; IE etymon, bhrāter*, and IE r bhrāt-*. Note the remoter cognates Tokh A pracar and Tokh B procer.

Sanskrit

2. Skt bhrātṛ becomes Gypsy pral (European continent) and pal (England), the latter getting into cant and finally into sl.

Greek

3. Gr phratēr has an -ia derivative phratría, a clan, later a political brotherhood: whence E phratry.

Latin

4. L frāter, retained in the Catholic Church, has derivatives frāternus, which in ML becomes frāternālis, whence E fraternal (cf OF-F fraternel), and which has derivative frāternitās, o/s frāternitāt-, whence, prob via OF-F fraternité, the E fraternity; fraternize, fraternization, owe much to F fraterniser, -nisation, erudite EF formations from fraternel. The hist fratry, religious brotherhood, derives from ML frātria, from frātr-, o/s of L frāter.

5. L frāter becomes OF fradre, fredre, MF frere, whence F frère and ME frere, whence, with sense-change, the E friar. The friar bird is bald. A friary is a collection of friars: cf priory from prior, but cf also OF frarie, MF-F frairie (ML fratria).

English

6. As para 1 shows, OE brōthor has many Gmc cognates. It becomes ME, whence E, brother.

American English

7. In the southern (not SW) United States, brother was, by the Negroes, contr to br'er, usu written brer, as Brer Rabbit in Joel Chandler Harris's Uncle Remus stories.

fraud, whence fraudful, fraudless; fraudulence (or -cy), fraudulent; defraud, defraudation, defraudment; perh akin to sep FRUSTRATE.

1. Fraud comes, through MF-F fraude, from L fraus, o/s fraud-: o.o.o., the relationship to L frustra (see FRUSTRATE) being prob f/e. Fraus has derivative v fraudāre, whence the adj fraudentulus, EF hence E fraudulent; derivative fraudentia becomes EF, hence E, fraudulence.

2. Fraudāre has cpd dēfraudāre, to cheat, esp of money: whence MF-EF defrauder: E 'to defraud'. Derivative LL dēfraudātiō, o/s dēfraudātiōn-, passes through MF-EF to become defraudation; defraudment prob derives from 'to defraud'—cf, however, MF defraudement (from defrauder).

freak (whence adj freakish and freaky), orig a caprice, is o.o.o.: but perh cf ME frek, quick, bold, from OE frec, bold, whence EE freck, insolent, eager, whence dial freck, lusty, hale. Akin to OE frec is Go -friks, -greedy, whence MD frisc, fresh, whence MF frisque, lively, whence 'to frisk', whence both 'a frisk' and friský.—Cf the distinct G frech (OHG freh).

freckle (n hence v) is an E dim of ME freken, from ON pl freknur, spots, freckles, cf ON freknotr, freckly: o.o.o.

free, adj—hence adv and n; to free; freedom, freeman, freemason, freestone, akin to sep Friday and friend and defray.

Free, ME fre, var freo, derives from OE frēo or frēoh, var fri: cf OFris, OS, OHG-MHG fri (G frei), Go freis, cf ON friithr, love, peace, OE friþu, OHG fridu, peace, Go frijōn, to love: cf remotely yet significantly Skt priyās, beloved, and priyate, he loves. 'To free', ME freen, earlier freoien, derives from OE frēogan (contr frēon), from frēo: cf OFris fria, contr (?) of friaia, from fria. Freedom=OE frēodōm (cf the suffix -dom), akin to OFris fridōm; freeman=OE frēoman, akin to OFris frimann; freemason, from the freemasons' former independence of local guilds; freestone is easily cut—cf the F Pierre franche.—Cf FRIEND.

freebooter. See BOOTY, para 2.

freedom; freemason. See FREE.

freeze, v hence n, pt froze, pp frozen; frost (n hence v), whence frosty (cf OE fyrstig).—prurient (whence prurience), prurigo.

1. 'To freeze', ME fresen, earlier freosen, derives from OE frēosan: cf OHG friosan, MHG friesen, G frieren, and ON friosa, to freeze, and Go frius, frost, cold.

2. OE frēosan is akin to OE frost (var forst), frost: cf OFris (var forst), OS, OHG, ON frost.

3. Go back to L, we find the expected p- forms: pruina, hoar frost, and, the basic idea being 'a tingling sensation', prūrīre, to feel hot, hence to itch, and prūna, a live coal: cf Skt pruṣvā, hoar frost, and pruṣṭa, burnt. Prūrīre, to itch, has presp prūrīens, o/s prūrīent-, whence E prurient, and a derivative prūrīgō, an itching, the itch, adopted by Med.

freight, n hence v (whence freighter); fraught.

The adj fraught, laden, like the archaic 'to fraught', derives from fraught, a cargo, (earlier) freight: ME frauht, fraucht: MD vraht, a var of frecht, whence ME freyte, whence freight (cost of transportation): cf OHG frēht, earnings, compensation, reward, fee, as if for Go fra-āhts*: cf the E prefix for- and own—Go āih, I have; G eigen, OHG eigan, one's own. (Walshe.)

frenzy, n hence v (whence pa frenzied); frantic—phrenetic; phrenic; cf the element -phrenia, phreno- as in phrenology.

1. Phrenic, like F phrénique, derives from Gr phrēn (o/s phren-), the heart, usu the mind. The Gr adj is phrenitikos, from phrenēsis (var phrenitis), a disease of the mind, from phrēn; phrenitikos becomes L phreneticus, whence E phrenetic, own used only in Med and Psy.

2. L phreneticus becomes late OF-MF frenetique (F fréné-), whence ME frentik, whence E frantic. Gr phrenēsis becomes LL phrenesis, whence ML phrenesia, whence MF frenesie (F fréné-), adopted by ME, whence F frenzy.

frequency, frequent (adj and n), frequentation, frequentative; infrequent.

Infrequent derives from infrequent-, o/s of L infrequens, neg (in-, not) of frequens; derivative L infrequentia yields infrequency. Now L frequens, o/s frequent-, dense, abundant, hence crowded, numerous, much-visited, is o.o.o.; its kinship with L farcire, to stuff (see FARCE), is extremely doubtful. The o/s frequent- yields (MF-F fréquent and) E frequent, orig crowded; derivative frequentia becomes E frequency. The derivative L frequentāre becomes (OF-F fréquenter and) E 'to frequent'; on frequentāt-, s of pp frequentātus, arise both frequentātiō, o/s frequentātiōn-, whence E frequentation, and LL frequentātivus, ML -ivus, whence (F fréquitatif, f -ive, and) E frequentative, gram adj and also as n.

fresco. See para 4 of:

fresh (adj hence adv and n), whence freshen, freshet (-et, n), freshman, freshness, freshwater; afresh; refresh (whence refresher), refreshment; fresco—cf al fresco.

1. The adj fresh derives, via ME fresch, from OF-MF fresche, f of fres, freis (cf F frais, frâche): O Gmc frisk*, fresh of temperature, hence unfaded, unwithered, also recent: cf OHG frisc. The var ME fersch derives from OE fersc, akin to ON ferskr, and OHG frisc, MHG-G frisch, prob to Lith prieskas, perh to L priscus. Note that AE fresh, impudent, comes from the quite distinct G frech, insolent (OHG freh, greedy).

2. The adv afresh, again=a-, on+fresh, adj; cf anew from NEW.

3. Refreshment comes from MF refreschement, itself from OF-MF refreschir (var refreschier), whence ME refrechen, refreshen, whence 'to refresh'; and OF-MF refreschir=re-, again+fresch-, c/f of fresche (para 1)+inf suffix -ir.

4. From Gmc comes It fresco, fresh; al fresco is 'in the fresh (air)'—in the open air; the fresco of painting is, like F fresque, from It fresco, from dipingere a fresco, to paint upon a fresh, still moist plaster. (B & W.)

fret (1), n, whence fretwork, was, in ME, applied esp to ornamental network, esp that used as a hairnet: ME fret, earlier frette: OF-F frette, lattice-work: OF-F freté (pp), freté, fresté, adorned with interlaced work: fret*, an ornament or an adornment: OE fraetwe, ornaments.

fret (2), n, the ridge set across the fingerboard of a stringed instrument: app from OF-MF frete, MF-F frette, a ring, a band, from OF-MF freter (MF-F fretter), perh a metathesis of ferter, to fasten, from VL firimtäre*, to secure, from L firimtäs, firmness, from firmus, solidly fixed: f.a.e., FIRM. (Dauzat.)

fret (3), v, orig to eat or consume, hence to eat, or gnaw, away, hence vi to be worn by either irritation or anxiety, hence a state of irritated agitation, whence fretful: ME freten, to eat: OE fretan: cf Go fra-itan, to devour, OHG frezzaan, MHG frezzaen, G fressen, to eat greedily: OHG fr-, Go fra-, is the int G prefix ver- (cf the syn MHG verezzen); and -ezzen, -itan, is G essen, E EAT. (Walshe.)

friable (whence friability): prob via EF-F, certainly from L friabilis, from fridäre, to reduce, rub, grind, to little pieces: f.a.e., FRICTION.

friar, friary. See FRATER, para 5.

fribble, a trifter, to trifle. See FRIVOLOUS.

frication, fricative. See para 1 of:

friction (n hence v), whence frictional; frication, fricative (adj hence n); fray, to wear or rub into shreds, to ravel, whence pa and vn fraying; frazzle, v hence n; fry, young fish (fishes).

1. L fridäre, to rub small (see FRIABLE), has what is app an enlarged form: fricäre (s fric-), to rub, with pp fricätus and com, fricius: on s fricät- arise LL fricätio, o/s fricätion-, whence E frication, whence, anl, fricative (adj -ive). But, fridäre and fricäre being o.o.o., the latter is prob the original and very prob echoic.

2. On frict-, the comonomer pp s, arises frictio, o/s friction-, whence EF-F and E friction.

3. L fricäre becomes OF-MF freier (EF-F frayer), to rub, whence both F frayer and E 'to fry'.

4. 'To frazzle' is app a freq (-le) of 'to fry'. Influenced perh by fraze, unevenness of edge, itself prob from 'to fry'; the n frazzle occurs mostly in coll worn to a frazzle, utterly exhausted.

5. OF-MF freier (para 3) has varr frierer and froiier, with further sense 'to spawn', whence MF fri (varr frai, frol, froie; F frai), whence ME fri, later fry, extant in E for 'young fishes'. A less prob origin has been proposed: ON frae (cf Go fraiwi), seed.

Friday: OE frīgedaeg, the day (cf DAY) of the goddess Frig: cf the ON goddess Frigg (cf OHG Fria), Odin's wife, akin to OE frēo, free (cf FREE). With OE frīgedaeg, cf OFris frīgendei, frīadei, OHG friatag, MHG fritac, G Freitag, ON frīadagr.

friend (n hence v), friendly (whence unfriendly), friendship; befriend, an int (be-) of friend, v.

Friend, ME frend, earlier freond, derives from OE frēond, n from the presp of frēon, contr of frēogan, to love: cf the other nn from prespp, OFris frīōnd, frīūnd, OS frīund, OHG-MHG frīunt, G Freund, Go frijonds, ON fraendi. Derivative OE frēōndlic (cf OFris frīōndlik) becomes E friendly; OE frēōndscipe, E friendship (cf OFris frīōndskip). Akin to FREE.

Friesian. See FRISIAN, para 1.

frieze (n hence v). See FRIZ.

frigate (whence frigate bird, long-flighted and rapacious): EF-F frégate: It fregata: prob aphetic for L aphracta, pl—apprehended as sing—of aphractum (var -actus), trln of Gr aphrakton, orig aphraktos, elliptical for aphraktos naus, an undecked (lit, unguarded, uncovered) ship: a-, not+phraktos, pp of phrassein, to fence, to guard.

fright, n and v (whence frighten); from n: frightful, whence frightfulness; affright, v hence n.

'To affright' comes from ME afright, orig a pp from OE afyrhtan, to terrify, int of OE fyrhtan, to frighten, whence ME frighten, whence 'to fright', whence 'to frighten': cf OE forhtian, to fear, itself akin to OS forhtian, OHG furhten, Go faurhtjan. The n fright, ME frigt, aberrant freyht, derives from OE fryhto, var of fyrhto, akin to OS and OHG forhta, G Furcht, Go faurhtei, fear.

frigid, frigidity—frigidaire; refrigerate, refrigeration, refrigerative, refrigerator, refrigeratory (adj hence n).

1. Frigidity comes, prob via F, from LL frigiditas, o/s frigiditāt-, from L frigidus, (very) cold, an -idus adj from frigere (s frig-), to be cold, from frigus, cold, coldness, o/s frigor-, c/f frigori-, as in L frigorificus: cf the element frigo-, frigori-. L frigus answers exactly to Gr rhigos (ῥίγος), for srigos*; with L frigeō, cf Gr rhigeō. The Gr word is o.o.o.

2. As 'any electric refrigerator', frigidaire is loose and coll, deriving from the trade-name Frigidaire, prob suggested by L frigidarium, a cooling-off room, orig the neu of frigidarius.

3. L frigere, to be cold, has caus frigeräre, to render cold, superseded by its prefix-cpd refrigeräre, where re- has a vaguely int force. Presp refrigerans, o/s refrigerant-, yields the E adj, whence n, refrigerant. Pp refrigerātus accounts for

'to refrigerate'; derivative refrigerātiō, o/s refrigerātiōn-, for refrigeration; derivative LL refrigerātius (ML -ivus), for refrigerative; refrigerator is an E anl coinage; but refrigeratory comes from the L adj refrigerātōrius (suffix -ōrius) and LL n refrigerātōrium.

frijol or frijole (occ frejol) = Sp frijol (var fréjol), earlier frisol: L faseolus (var phasēlus): Gr phasiolos, mdfn of phasēlos, a haricot bean, prob akin to—perh from—Gr phakos, a lentil; ? cf Alb bathē, a kind of bean, and OP babo, a bean, and, if so, then L faba, F fève.

frill (n, whence v), whence adj frilly (whence coll n frillies), is o.o.o. To relate it to F frileux (OF frileuse, MF frileux), shivery, is far-sought: why not, both the sem and the phon resemblances being so much closer, relate the n frill to F vrille, tendril (of vine)? Vrille, influenced by virer, derives from EF ville from MF velle from ML viticula, L viticula, tendril of vine, dim of uītis, vine, as in viticulture.

fringe (n hence v): ME from OF-MF frenge (F frange): VL frimbia*, by metathesis from LL fimbria, b/f sing from L fimbriae, fringes of garment, o.o.o.; derivative L fimbriatus, fringed, accounts for Bot and Zoo fimbriate, whence fimbriation.

frippery (cheap finery; orig, cast-off clothes) derives from EF-F friperie, from MF freperie, from OF-MF freper, to crumple (clothes), from OF frepe, metathesis of ferpe, var of felpe, a fringe, (collectively) old clothes, from ML faluppa*, fibre, straw, hence anything worthless, recorded (C10) only in pl faluppa, o.o.o.

Frisian is adj and n, esp for the LG language of Friesland (OFris Fresland); Friesian is adj and n for the cattle; and both go back to the ancient Gmc tribe of Frisii, whence Frisia, their country. ML uses the forms Frisones, var Fresones; the name perh means 'The Brave'.

2. The name recurs in EF-F cheval de frise, usu in pl chevaux . . .; 'horse (horses) of Frise or Friesland': mistranslation of D friese ruiter, 'horseman or cavalryman of Friesland', this defensive device (esp against cavalry) being reputed to have originated there. Cf the syn G spanischer Reiter, 'Spanish cavalryman'. (B & W.)

frisk, frisky. See FREAK, s.f.

frith (1), a narrow inlet of the sea, is a metathesis of ME firth, whence firth: ON fīōrth, whence, via Nor fiord, the E FIORD. Cf FORD and, f.a.e., PORT (harbour).

frith (2), wooded country, occurs in ME and derives from OE fyrhthu, woodland—cf OE frith-gæard, enclosed land. OE frith, peace, is akin to FREE.

fritter (1), n, portion of fried batter: OF-F fritiure: LL frictūra, from frigere, to fry: f.a.e., 2nd FRY.

fritter (2), v, to waste piecemeal, derives from the obsol n fritter, a fragment: OF-MF frature, var of frature: L fractūra—cf fracture at para 3 (s.f.) of FRACTION.

frivolity, frivolous; fribble, n and v.

Fribble derives, humorously, from 'to be frivolous', perh influenced by the 2nd FRITTER; frivolity from F frivolité, from the OF-F adj frivole, which, like E frivolous, derives from ML frivolus, L friuolus, perh akin to friäre, to rub away, q.v. at FRIABLE.

friz, usu frizz, v hence n (whence frizzy); hence the freq (-le): frizzle, v hence n, whence frizzly; frieze, a coarse, shaggy woollen cloth; prob also the Arch frieze.

'To friz(z), to curl (hair), derives from EF-F friser, to curl, crimp, dress the hair, from MF frise, frieze, this being also the source of frieze, the woollen cloth. The Arch frieze derives from EF-F frise, app from ML frisium, var of phrygium, broidery, fringe, prob prompted by L phrygiae (uestes), lit 'Phrygian garments', garments, or garment-fabrics, embroidered with gold, the Arch ornament being likened to such embroidery.—As for friz(z), however, it is possible to derive friser, as B & W derive it, from fris-, the late MF-EF r of certain forms of frire, to fry, ref meats (esp if fine-cut) tending, while they fry, to curl up like frizzly locks of hair.

fro. See FROM.

frock, n—orig a coarse monastic gown—whence v, esp in neg pp unfrocked: OF-F froc: Frankish hrok*: cf OHG-MHG roc, G Rock, OFris rokk, and also OE rocc, coat: ? of C origin—cf OIr ruckt, jacket.

frog (n hence v), whence frogman and leap-frog or leapfrog, derives from OE frogga: cf the syn OE forsc, frosc, OHG frosch, MHG-G frosch, ON froskr; perh cf ON frauth, frotha (see FROTH), if the basic idea is 'slimy'; perh rather cf Skt právatē, he hops (Walshe), with basic idea 'the hopper'. Prob the frog in a horse's hoof and perh the frog on a military coat derive from the jumping amphibian. Cf:

frolic, adj, whence n (whence frolcsome) and v, comes from D vroolijk, a -lijk elaboration of MD vřō, akin to syn MHG frō (OHG frao, frō, G froh), joyous, whence G fröhlich; cf also ON frār, nimble, and esp Skt právatē, he hops; therefore cf prec.

from; fro, whence froward (cf the dial from-ward(s), away, away, from: OE framweard).

1. Fro, ME fro, earlier fra, both prep 'from' and adv 'away', derives from ON frā, intimately related to ON fram, forwards (cf framr, very brave), and to OFris fram, from, OS fram, out, OHG fram, ON fram, forwards, and to Go fram, from, and esp to OE fram, var from, the latter surviving into E. The basic idea of the prep from is 'forwards out of'; of the group, 'forward' (adj)—cf Gr promos, lit one who is forward, in the van, a leader; therefore cf FORE.

frond, frondage, frondescent, frondose; cf element frondi-.

Frondose comes from L frondōsus, leafy, from frons (gen frondis), o/s frond-, leaves collectively, a leafy branch, foliage, whence E frond, whence collective frondage (-age). The adj frondescent derives from frondescent-, o/s of frondescens, pp of frondescere, to put on leaves, inch of frondère, to be in leaf, from frond-. L frons, frondis, is o.o.o., kinship with L gramen, E GRASS, being very dubious; a more likely cognate is C brond-, to swell, increase (cf Cor bron, breast, udder, Br bronn, breast), 'the coming of leaves being a true swelling of the trees' (Malvezin).

front, n whence adj and v and also frontage; frontal, adj, n; frontier (n hence adj), whence frontiersman; frontlet; cpd frontispiece; cf element fronto-.—Prefix-cpds: affront, v hence n and the adj affrontive; confront (whence confrontment), confrontation; effrontery.

1. L frons (gen frontis, o/s front-), forehead, is o.o.o.; perh it is akin to MĪr broine, prow of ship; possibly frons, frondis, and frons, frontis, were orig identical, with basic sense 'swelling' or 'projection', esp a 'swelling or swollen projection'. From L frontem, acc of frons, derives OF-F front, forehead, adopted by E, with derivative senses rapidly developing, parallel to those of F.

2. Frontal, a forehead ornament, comes, prob via EF-F, from L frontāle, prop the neu of the adj frontālis, whence E frontal. Cf frontlet, from MF frontelet, dim of OF-F frontel, var of frontal, from L frontāle.

3. Frontier derives from MF frontiere (F -ière), from front, forehead, from L frontem, acc of frons.

4. Frontispiece anglicizes (after PIECE) the EF-F frontispice: LL frontispicium, a small wavy moulding at edge of a table, the façade of a building (Souter), esp of a church, in short the part first meeting the eye: fronti-, c/f of frons, brow + -spicium, from -spicere (c/f of specere), to look at—cf SPECULATE.

5. LL has the cpd affrontāre, to knock one's forehead ad or against, to strike against, whence—prob aided by OF-MF afronter (EF-F aff-)—E 'to affront', whence, perh aided by EF-F affront, 'an affront'. ML confrontāre, to come front to front (con-, together), yields, prob via MF-F, 'to confront'; derivative ML confrontātiō, o/s confrontātiōn-, becomes MF-F and E confrontation. LL effrons, without (ef- for ex, out of) forehead (to blush with), shameless, becomes MF effronté, whence EF-F effronterie, whence E effrontery.

frontier. See prec, para 3.

frontispiece. See FRONT, para 4.

frost, frosty. See FREEZE, para 2.

froth (n hence v), whence frothy (-y, adj): ME froth, earlier frothe: ON frotha, frauth: cf OE āfrēoþan, to froth, and prob Skt prothati, he snorts; perh, therefore, cf FROG. Ult, it is prob echoic.

frounce, n, v. See the 2nd FLOUNCE.

froust, frouzy. See FROWST.

froward. See FROM.

frown, v hence n: ME frounen: MF froignier (F se renfrogner): prob from MF froigne, a scowling face or expression: Gaul frogna*, nostrils: cf W ffroen, Ga sròn, OĪr srón, nose, Ga sròin, a huff, OC srokna*, nose.

frowst, occ froust, stale air, musty odour, is a b/f from frowsty (frousty), musty or fusty, var of earlier frowzy (frouzy), musty, slovenly and unkempt, perh from EE frowy, rank-smelling, itself app from OE thrōh, rancid. (EW.)

frozen. See FREEZE.

fructify, fructification. See FRUIT, para 4.

frugal, frugality. See para 6 of:

fruit (n hence v), whence fruitful, fruitless, fruity; fruition;—fructure, fructification, fructify; frugal, frugality; cf the element frugi-; usufruct.

1. L frui (s fru-, short for frug-*), to have the full use, hence the enjoyment, of, akin to OE brūcan, OFris brūka, OS brūcan, OHG brūkhan (G brauchen), Go brukjan, to utilize, and OE bryce, Go brūks, usable: cf frūg-, the o/s of L frūx, fruit. The IE r would be brugh-*, with a formative -we-.

2. Frui has pp frūctus, s frūct-, whence the n frūctus (gen frūctiūs), a full use, hence enjoyment, with further senses 'fruits, i.e. products, of the earth, esp of trees and shrubs, hence fruit in the modern sense'. L frūctus becomes OF-F fruit, adopted by ME and preserved by E. The doubly agential E fruiterer (cf MF-F fruiter) prob originates in the now rare fruiter, from EF-F fruiterie, a fruit storehouse, from MF fruiterie, fruit collectively.

3. Frui has a secondary pp fruitus, s fruit-, whence LL fruitiō, o/s fruitiōn-, whence, prob via late MF-EF, the E fruition, full use and enjoyment, hence a successful realization.

4. L frūctus, n, has adj frūctuosus, whence literary fructuose, which perh suggested the Chem fructose, strictly L frūctus+Chem -ose; it also has the cpd frūctificāre, to render fruitful, bear fruit, whence OF-F fructifier, whence 'to fructify', the derivative LL frūctificātiō, o/s frūctificātiōn-, becoming fructification.

5. L ūsus et frūctus, use and enjoyment, shortens to ūsus frūctus, thence ūsusfrūctus, thence, via the abl ūsūfrūctū, LL ūsūfrūctus: whence E usufruct, the beneficiary being a usufructuary (LL ūsūfructuārius).

6. The L frūctus, fruits of the earth, fruit, has syn frūx, usu pl frūges, s frūg- (cf para 1), r fru-; on its dat frūgi, for fruit, hence fit for fruit, hence fit to be used and enjoyed, esp temperately, arises LL frūgālis, whence, prob via EF-F, the E frugal; derivative L frūgālitās, o/s frūgālitāt-, yields, prob via late MF-F, the E frugality.

frump (n, v), frumpish. See RUMPLE.

frustrate; frustration, whence, anl, frustrative, frustratory.

Both the adj and the v frustrate derive from L frustrātus, pp of frustrāri, var frustrāre, to drag things out, (vt) to render (an action) vain, to circumvent, deceive, a person, from the L adv frustra, in vain, uselessly, itself o.o.o.—though, just possibly, akin to L fraus, q.v. at FRAUD. Derivative L frustrātiō, o/s frustrātiōn-, and LL adj frustratōrius, account for E frustration and frustratory.

fruticose, shrub-like, derives from L fruticōsus, adj of frutex, s frut-, a shrub, o/s frutic-: o.o.o.; but frut- could, like frug-, be an extn of fru-, r of frui, to use and enjoy; fruticose, therefore, is perh akin to FRUIT.

fry (1), young fish(es). See FRICTION, para 5.

fry (2), v, pt and pp fried; sep fritter.

'To fry' comes, through ME frien, from OF-F frire, from L frigere, to roast, grill, fry, s frig-, perh echoic: cf Gr phrugin, to grill, and Skt bhṛjjati, he grills or roasts, which, full parallels, are imperfect cognates.

fuchsia (whence fuchsine: Chem -ine) is a flowering shrub named after the G botanist Leonhard Fuchs (1501-66); cf FOX.

fucic. See FUCOID.

fuck, v hence n, is a SE word classed, because of its associations, as a vulgarism. The derivative expletive Fuck (It)!—derivative agent fuck—and vn and pa *fuck*ing, except when lit (then, they are likewise vulgarisms), belong to low sl. Fuck shares with cunt two distinctions: they are the only two SE words excluded from all general and etym dictionaries since C18 and the only two SE words that, outside of medical and other official or semi-official reports and learned papers, still could not be printed in full anywhere within the British Commonwealth of Nations until late 1961.

That fuck cannot descend straight from L futuere (whence OF-F foutre) is obvious; that the two words are related is equally obvious. That it cannot derive unaided from G ficken, to strike, (in popular speech) to copulate with, is clear; it is no less clear that the E and G words are cognates. 'To fuck' app combines the vocalism of futuere+the consonantism of ficken, which might derive from ficken* (only dubiously attested).

Now, L futuere is formed similarly to L battuere, to strike, hence to copulate with a woman. With both, cf Ir bot, Mx bvoid, penis; battuere, says Malvezin, is borrowed from C and stands for bactuere*; and futuere recalls the C r buc-*, a point, hence to pierce (Malvezin); cf also Ga batair, a cudgeller, and Ga buail, Elr buaim, I strike. Both L battuere and L futuere (cf L fustus, a staff, a cudgel: ? for fustis*) could have got into L from C, which, it is perh worth adding, had orig no f: basic idea, 'to strike', hence (of a man) 'to copulate with'. Nevertheless, the source prob long antedates both L and C: a strikingly ancient etymon is app afforded by Eg petcha, (of the male) to copulate with, the hieroglyph being an ideogram of unmistakably assertive virility. The Eg word has a close Ar parallel.—A Medit word?

fucoid (fucus+adj suffix -oid), like the acid fucic (fucus+Chem -ic), derives from L fūcus (s fūc-), rock lichen, used as a dark-red, or purple, dye, and adopted by E, esp in Bot for a genus of Algae (seaweed): akin to Gr phūkos (s phūk-), seaweed, itself app of Sem origin—cf H pūk, paint.

fuddle, to confuse, render tipsy, esp in pa fuddled, tipsy, is o.o.o.; like the obs syn fuzzle, it is prob echoic.

fudge!, Nonsense!, is prob of Gmc origin; fudge, to contrive, to counterfeit—whence the sweet or candy fudge—may be for 'to forge' but is prob a var of obs fadge, to get on well, itself app of LG origin.

fuel. See FOCAL, para 2.

fug is orig Sc for E fog.

fugacious, fugacity. See para 3 of:

fugitive, adj and n; fugacious, fugacity; fugue, whence adj fugal; centrifugal; refuge, refugee; subterfuge;—for feverfew, see FEBRIFUGE, para 1.

1. L fugere (s fug-), to flee, vi and vt, has derivative fuga, a fleeing, whence fugāre, to put to flight: cf Gr phugein (s phug-), to flee; IE r, bheug-*, to flee.

2. Fugere, pp fugitus, has derivative LL adj fugitiuus (ML -ivus), whence MF-F fugitif, adopted by ME, whence the reshaped E fugitive; the derivative n fugitiuus, ML -ivus, becomes, again via F, the E n fugitive.

3. The further derivative L adj fugāx, o/s fugāc-, yields E fugacious, tending to flee, hence evanescent; the LL derivative fugācitas, o/s fugācitat-, yields fugacity.

4. L fuga (as para 1) becomes It fuga, whence EF-F fugue, with a special Mus sense, adopted by E.

5. The cpd centrifugal, fleeing the centre=centri-, c/f of centrum (see CENTER)+-fugal, as if from L fugālis*, adj of fuga.

6. The obs v 'to refuge', whence refugee (unless from F réfugie), derives from L refugere, to flee (fugere) back (re-), hence to safety, whence L refugium, a place to which to flee back, a place of safety, whence OF-F refuge, adopted by E.

7. A subterfuge, adopted from MF-F, derives from LL subterfugium, a secret flight, from L subterfugere, to flee subter or under, hence secretly, adv from prep sub, under.

fugue. See prec, para 4.

fulcrum, whence the adj fulcral, is adopted from L fulcrum (s fulc-, r fulc-), a support, from fulcire (s fulc-), to uphold, support, prop (up): o.o.o.; but the IE r bhelg-*, to prop, has exact cognates in OE bealca, ON bjalcki, E BALK.

fulfil. See FULL.

fulgence, fulgent. See FLAGRANT, para 4.

fulgid. See FLAGRANT, para 5.

fulgural, fulgurant, fulgurate, fulguration, fulgurite. See FLAGRANT, para 5.

full (1), adj, whence fulness and fulsome; fulfil, whence fulfilment; fill, v and n.

1. The adj full, straight from OE, is akin to OFris and OS full (OFris var fol), OHG fol, MHG vol, G voll, MD vul, volle, MD-D vol, Go fulls, ON fullr, with Gmc r full-; the IE r veers between pler- and plen-*, as in Gr plērēs and L plēnus, with E derivatives, e.g. PLENARY, treated sep.

2. OE full, var ful, has cpd fulfyllan, ME fulfullen, var fulfillen, whence 'to fulfil'.

3. OE fyllan becomes ME fullen, var fillen, whence 'to fill'; and OE fyllan has derivative n fyllo, whence 'a fill'.

full (2), v, 'to full cloth', ME fullen, comes from OF-MF fuler, MF-F var fouler, from VL fullāre*, from L fullō, a cloth-fuller, o.o.o., but perh akin to Skt bhāla, lustre, and, if so, akin to BALD. L fullō has an OE agent in -ere (E -er): fullere, whence E fuller, a cloth-fuller, whence fuller's earth, an earthy clay-like substance used in fulling cloth.

fulmar. See FOUL, para 5.

fulminant, fulminate, fulmination, fulminic. See FLAGRANT, para 6.

fulmaric; fumarole; fumatory. See FUME, para 3.

fumble, to feel, or move, or otherwise act, clumsily, whence pa and vn fumbling and agent fumbler, is a derivative of the now only dial famble, to stutter, from ME famelen, influenced by LG fummeln and D fommelen.

fume, n (whence fumy) and v; fumaric, fumarole, fumatorium, fumatory; fumet; fumigant, fumigate, fumigation, fumigator, fumigatory; fumitory; fumose (and fumous), whence fumosity;—perfume (n and v), perfumer, perfumery.—The Gr cognates—thyme, thyrbile, typhoid, typhoon, stew, etc.—are treated sep at THYME.

1. L fūmus, smoke, s fūm-, is akin to Skt dhūmas and OSl dymū, and app to Gr thumos, spirit: f.a.e., THYME. Fūmus becomes OF-MF fum (OF-F fumée), whence E fume. The derivative L fūmāre becomes OF-F fumer, whence 'to fume', orig to smoke (vi).

2. The foll L derivatives concern E:

fūmōsus, smoky, whence fumose and fumous; LL fūmāriolum, chimney-pot, smoke-vent, whence F fumerolle, whence E fumarole, such a hole in lava as permits gases to escape; fūmigāre, to expose to smoke, with presp fūmīgans, o/s fūmigant-, whence E adj, hence n, fumigant, and with pp fūmigātus, whence 'to fumigate'; derivative fūmigātiō, o/s fūmigātiōn-, yields fumigation; fumigator, fumigatory, are E anl formations.

3. Fumaric, a crystalline acid, represents L fūmāria, the plant fumitory+Chem -ic: and fumitory itself=ME funetere, MF-F fumeterre, i.e. L fūmus, smoke, (of) terra, the ground (cf TERRACE). Cf funet, adopted from EF-F, an -et derivative of OF fum, smoke: 'fume, hence odour, of meat, esp game, and occ of wine'. Fumatory is the adj (whence n) of SciL fumatorium, an airtight compartment for the generation of smoke.

4. The n perfume derives from EF-F parfum, itself from EF-F parfumer—whence 'to perfume'—from It perfumare: L per, through, hence thoroughly+fumare. E perfumer, perfumery, though coming straight from 'to perfume', owe something to EF-F parfumeur, F parfumerie.

fumigate, fumigation, fumigator. See prec, para 2. fumitory. See FUME, para 3.

fumosity, fumous. See FUME, para 2.

fun. See FOND, para 2.

function, n hence v (? suggested by F fonctionner) and functional; functionary; fungible;—defunct; perfunctory, whence perfunctoriness.

1. Function derives from functiōn-, o/s of L functiō, the performing of a task, from funct-, s of functus, pp of fungī, to acquit oneself of, to perform, s fung-, akin to Ve bhuikté, he has the enjoyable use of, he enjoys, and, without -n-, bhūjam (acc), enjoyment; perh of Go usbaugjan, to sweep out; IE r, bhreug-*, to have full use of.

2. Functiō yields also—via the acc functiōnem—the EF-F fonction, whence the agent fonctionnaire, which prompts E functionary; the legal adj fungible, however, comes from ML res fungibiles, fungible things.

3. Fungī has two prefix-cpds affecting E:

dēfungī, to complete (dē- used int) the performance of, with pp dēfunctus, applied esp to one who has wholly done with life, is dead, whence E defunct; perfungī, to discharge in detail, the int force of per- becoming lost, so that the sense becomes 'to perform merely as a duty'; whence the LL adj perfunctōrius, whence E perfunctory.

fund. See 1st FOUND, para 4.

fundament; fundamental. See 1st FOUND, para 2.

funeral, adj and n; funerary; funereal; funest.

L fūnus (s fūn-), a funeral, o/s fūner-, is o.o.o.; just possibly, fūnus is ult akin to DEAD. LL adjj fūnerālis, fūnerārius, lead to funeral (adj), funerary; L adj fūnereus leads to E funereal, with -eal substituted for -eous. The n funeral comes from MF-F fūnerailles (pl): ML fūnerālia, the funeral rites (hence a funeral), prop the neu pl of the adj fūnerālis. Fūnus has a further derivative adj: fūnestus, tending to a funeral, hence mortal, deadly, whence, prob via MF-F funeste, the literary funest, portending death.

fungi. See FUNGUS.

fungible. See FUNCTION, para 2.

fungus, pl fungi; fungoid; cf the element fungi- (as in fungicide); sponge, n (hence v, whence sponger), whence spongy (cf L spongius); spunk, whence spunky.

1. Fungus (s fung-), adopted from L, was orig applied to mushrooms, toadstools, puffballs, etc.: either deriving from or akin to Gr sphongos (σφῳγγος), var of spongos (σπῳγγος), sponge, s spong-, itself akin to syn Arm sung, var sunk. The adj fungoid=fungus+-oid, -like.

2. Gr spongos has the further var spongia (σπῳγγια), whence L spongia, whence MF esponge (F éponge), whence the E n sponge.

3. L spongia becomes EI r sponge, tinder, whence Ir sponcc (cf Ga spong), sponge, hence—by superficial resemblance—touchwood, a tinder made from fungus, hence a spark, hence the coll mettle, pluck, (obsol) anger: sem, cf G Feuerschwamm, lit fire-fungus, hence touchwood, tinder, spunk. (MacLennan.) Spunk comes from the Ir-Ga words.

funicle, funicular, funiculus.

The 1st anglicizes the 3rd, which, adopted by An, Zoo, Bot, is the dim ('little cord') of L fūnis

(s fün-), a cord, a rope: o.o.o.; if for fulnis*, it could be akin to L filum, a thread. Funicular, adj hence n, represents funiculus+adj -ar.

funk (coll), n—with adj funky—hence v, app comes from Flemish fonck, perturbation, perh akin to obs E funk, smoke, steam, stench. (EW.)

funnel (n hence v): ME fonel: Prov founil: L fundibulum, var of infundibulum, q.v. at 2nd FOUND, para 8.

fur, n (whence furry) and v (whence furred).

The n fur derives from ME furte, itself from furren, whence 'to fur': and ME furren comes from OF-MF fuerrer, *fuere*r (varr forrer, forer), from OF-MF fuere, fut, of Gmc origin; cf OHG fōtar, fuotar, MHG fuoter, G Futter, the lining of a coat, and Go fōdr, sheath of sword; perh ult cf Skt pātra, a container.—Furrier=fur+euphonic r+agential -ier: cf the MF-F foureur.

furbish, to scour, or rub, bright, to burnish, hence, esp as refurbish, to renovate: through late ME (fur-, for-), from OF-MF furbir, forbir, esp in such forms as presp furbiſsant and 'Nous furbiſsons', we furbish: Old W Gmc furbian*, MHG furben, to clean. (B & W.)

furcate. See FORK.

furibund; furious. See FURY.

furl (v hence n): F ferler: EF frêler, orig fresler: o.o.o.—perh (Webster) from OF-MF fermier, to tie (lier) fast, firmly (ferme, adj, firm): cf FIRM+LIGAMENT.

furlong; furrow.

ME furlong derives from OE furlong (var -lung): a furrow long, this being the average length (220 yards, roughly the side of a 10-acre square) of a furrow in old English farming. E furrow—whence 'to furrow'—derives from ME forow, earlier forgh, earliest furgh, from OE furh, akin to OFris furch, OHG furh, MHG furch, G Furche, furrow, ON for, trench, W rhych, furrow, L porca, the raised part between furrows; prob IE r, pork-*.

furlough. See the 1st LEAVE, para 2.

furnace: ME fofnais (var fofnais): OF fofnais, fofnais: L fofnāx, furnace, acc fofnācem: L furnus, oven, akin to L formus, warm, Gr thermē, heat: f.a.e., WARM.

furnish, whence agent furnisher and vn furnish-ing; furniture.

'To furnish' derives from OF-MF furnir (F fournir), var fornir, to furnish, to do (completely), esp in such forms as presp furnissant and (nouns) furnissons, we furnish: OHG frumjan, to further, to do completely, akin to OE framian, to further, to profit. OF fornir has derivative MF forneture, later forniture, F fourniture, E furniture.

furor, furore. See FURY.

furrier. See FUR, s.f.

furrow. See FURLONG.

furry. Adj of FUR.

further, adj, adv, v; furthest; furtherance, from further, v, and furthermore, from the adv.

1. The adj fu.rther, ME further, forther, derives from OE furthra, a comp from the s of FORTH; the adv derives from OE furthor, furthur, likewise from the s of FORTH. Cf OFris farther, further, OS furthor, adv, and OHG furdur, adv (G furder), comp of fort, forwards, and OHG fodar, MHG-G vorder, adj. OE furthra has derivative v fythrān (var -rian), whence ME furthren (var forthren), whence 'to further'.

2. Late in ME, there arises, to balance the comp further, the adj and adv furthest (early varr fyrthest, forthest).

furtive derives, prob via MF-F furtif, f furtive, from ML furtivus, L furtivus, theft-, hence thief-, like: L furtum (s furt-), a theft: L fūr, a thief, akin to Gr phōr (φῶρ): prob fūr derives from ferre, to carry (implication 'away'), precisely as phōr derives from pherein, to carry. IE r bher-*: cf 'TO BEAR'.

2. Fūr has dim fūrunculus, a little thief, whence that thief of health, a furuncle or boil.

fury; furibund, furious; furor, furore; infuriate, infuriation.

1. Fury comes, through MF-F furie, from L furia, itself, like furor (whence It furore) and furibundus (whence obsol furibund—cf the suffix -bund), and furiōsus, whence, via MF furieux (F furieux), the E furious, from furere, s fur-, to be mad, to be agitated and profoundly angry, akin to Gr thorein (s thor-), to rush or dart forth, and thorubos (s thorub-, r thor-), a great noise, tumult, and Skt dvaraiti, he rushes forth. (E & M.)

2. Furia has derivative furiāre, to render furious, with ML int infuriāre, with pp infuriātus, whence 'to infuriate', whence, anl, infuriation.

furze: ME firse: OE fyrs: cf Gr puros, wheat, OSl pyro, spelt, Cz pýr, furze, OP pure, broom (the shrub), and also, because made from wheat, Skt pūras, bread: prob IE etymon, purs*.

fuse (1), n, impregnated cord (etc.) for detonating: It fuso, from L fūsus, a spindle: from the shape. L fūsus, said to be o.o.o., prob derives from syn Eg khes. Occ spelling: fuze. Cf FUSEE.

fuse (2), v, to melt, hence to merge. See 2nd FOUND, para 3.

fusee, occ fuzee: MF-F fusée, a fusee, orig a spindleful: ML fūsāta: ? elliptical for fūnis (cord) fūsāta: from L fūsus, a spindle—cf the 1st FUSE. Cf:

fuselage, adopted from F, derives from MF-F fuselé, spindle-shaped, from OF-F fuseau, a spindle, from OF fus*, from L fūsus. Cf prec.

fusible. See the 2nd FOUND, para 3.

fusil (1), adj. See the 2nd FOUND, para 3.

fusil (2), a light flintlock. See FOCAL, para 4. OF-F fusil has derivatives fusiller, whence fusillade, adopted by E, and EF-F fusilier, likewise adopted.

fusilier. See prec.

fusillade. See 2nd FUSIL.

fusion. See 2nd FOUND, para 3.

fuss, n, whence both 'to fuss' and fussy, is o.o.o.—but prob echoic; perh, however, cf G fusseln, to walk unsteadily, to 'play feet ("footy")': EW, more prob, proposes Nor-Da fjas, foolery, nonsense—? rather the obs Da fas.

fust. See FUSTY.

fustian (n hence adj): ME fustyan, var fustane: MF fustaïne: ML fustāneum, a blend,? rather a confusion, of ML xylinum (Gr xulinon, neu of xulinos, of or from xulon or wood)+L fustis, a wooden club, a cudgel, itself o.o.o. B & W treat ML fustāneum as a translation of Septuagint Gr xulina lina, cotton, lit tissue of wood: cf the ML definition of fustāneum as lana de legno, lit wool coming from wood, and cf sem the G Baumwolle, cotton, lit wood-wool. This etym is more prob than that which derives MF fustaïne from Fustat, a suburb of Cairo.

fustic. See PISTACHIO.

fusty, musty, derives from the now dial fust, a strongly musty smell, from the obs fust, a wine-cask (made of wood), adopted from OF (cf F fût), from L fustis, a staff or stave—cf FUSTIAN.

futile, futility. See the 2nd FOUND, para 4. Futilitarian blends futility+utilitarian.

futtock, a crooked timber in lower part of a ship's compound rib, prob eases foothook.

future, adj hence n (cf F le futur), derives from MF-F futur, itself from L futūrus, future participle of esse, to be: cf fūit, he has been, Gr ephu, he has grown, Skt ābhūt, he has been. Futurity is an E formation, as if from L futūritās*; futurism, futurist (whence futuristic) derive from F futurisme, futuriste, trlnn of It futurismo, futurista, themselves from futuro (L futurus).

fuze. See 1st FUSE.

fuze. See FUSEE.

fuzz, fuzzy.

The former is a b/f from the latter: and the latter app comes from LG fussig, loose, fibrous, spongy (perh cf D vezel, fibre, filament). Kipling's Fuzzy-Wuzzy is a rhyming redup of fuzzy, the wuzzy being prob suggested by woolly, these Sudanese tribesmen having thick, abundant, woolly hair.

fytte. See 2nd FIT.

G

gab, v hence n, coll for '(to) prattle or chatter', is perh echoic, but cf gab, Sc var of the dial and sl gob, mouth (Ga and Ir gob); the freqq are 'to gabble', whence the n, and the echoic 'to gobble', whence gobbler (a turkey cock). Gobble, to eat hastily, is a different word.

gabardine. See GABERDINE.

gabble. See GAB.

gaberdine, gabardine.

The fabric, usu gabardine, derives from the medieval coarse woollen frock or coat, now usu gaberdine: Sp gabardina: MF gaverdine, var of MF galvardine: ? from MHG wallevert (G Wallfahrt), lit 'wandering journey', i.e. a pilgrimage: ? because such garments were affected by pilgrims.

gabion. See CAVE, para 1.

gable (n hence v): MF-EF gable: ON gaf, akin to OHG gibil, MHG gibel, G Giebel, gable, and Go gibla, battlement, pinnacle: cf also OHG gebal, Gr kephalē, head: Gmc r, gebhal-; IE r, gebhal-. (Walshe.)

Gad! See GOD, para 5.

gad (1), n, a spike, a goad, whence gadfly. See the 1st YARD.

gad (2), v, to roam, wander about: perh by b/f from the now dial gadling, a wanderer, a vagabond; OE gaedeling, a companion, ? a -ling derivative from, or from the r of, OE gaed, companionship; f.a.e., GATHER.

gadfly, a goading fly. Cf 1st gad, q.v. at 1st YARD.

gadget is o.o.o.; perh a dim of gage (var of gauge), an instrument for measuring, gaget* (dim -et) becoming gadget; perh, however, cf GASKET.

Gael, whence Gaelic (adj hence n); Goidelic.

Both the 1st and Goidel-, s of the 3rd, derive from Ga Gāidheal, which, like Ir Gaedheal, Gaoidheal, derives from MlR Gōedel, OIr gōidel, OC goidelos*, a Celt, esp if Irish—cf Gaul (L Gallus), a Celt, esp of ancient Gaul, L Gallia, esp Gallia Transalpina (approx France). L Galli, the Gauls, whence sing Gallus (whence Gallia), is prob of C origin: ? 'The Strangers' (? OC gallos*), perh because they came to W Europe from much further east.

gaff (n; hence v—cf the EF-F gaffer), an iron spear for striking, hence an iron hook for securing and lifting, heavy fish, turtles, etc.: MF-F gaffe: OProv gaf: prob of C origin (OC gab-, to catch, seize), perh (B & W) from Go gaffan, to catch or seize.

gaffer and gammer are mainly dial contr of grandfather (via granfer) and grandmother.

gag, to retch, to cause to retch, hence to silence, whence a gag, orig something thrust into the mouth, hence a joke, etc.: echoic.

gage (1), n. See GAUGE.

gage (2), n, something deposited as security, hence (obs) to pledge, (archaic) to wager; engage (whence pa engaging), engagement; wage (n and v), wager; wed (whence pa wedded), wedding, wedlock.

1. 'To gage' comes from OF-MF gagier (MF-F gager), from OF-F gage, a pledge: Frankish wadi*, cf Go wadi, a pledge, and OHG wetti, a pledge, MHG wette, pledge, contract, stake, G Wette, pledge, bet: cf WED in para 4.

2. OF-MF gagier has the cpd OF engagier, MF-F engager (en, in, into, used int), whence 'to engage', whence—unless from OF-F—engagement.

3. The OF-F n gage has the ONF var wage, adopted by ME and retained by E, orig as a pledge (obs), later a recompence (obs), finally money paid for work or other service, now usu in pl wages. Derivative ONF wagier (cf OF gagier) becomes ME wagen becomes 'to wage', orig to pledge, later to stake, to hazard, hence to engage in (a struggle, esp a war). ONF wagier has derivative wageure (cf the MF-F gageure), whence ME wager, orig a pledge, hence a stake, a wager, a bet.

4. The OHG wetti, a pledge (as para 1), has an exact cognate in OE wedd, whence the now dial wed, a pledge, a wager. This OE wedd derives from OE weddian, to pledge, covenant, promise to marry (vt), to marry, whence ME wedden, to pledge, to marry, whence 'to wed'. OE weddian has derivative wedding, a pledging, hence a marriage ceremony, whence E wedding. Wedlock, however, ME wedlok, earlier wedlac, derives from OE wedlāc, betrothal: OE wedd+abstract-n suffix -lāc, akin to OE lāc, a game, sport.

5. OE weddian is akin to OFris weddia, to pledge, to promise, Go gawadjōn, to betroth, ON vethja, G wetten, to pledge, promise, vow, cf the OE and OFris nn wedd, OHG wetti, Go wadi, ON veth, ML vadium, L uas (o/s uad-, as in gen uadis), all meaning 'a pledge', cf L uadimōnium (s uadi-, r uad-), a security; cf also L uadāri (s uad-), to receive a pledge, accept a security, and Lith vaduōti, to redeem a pledge. The L words perh come from OGmc.

gaggle, to cackle, with derivative n, a cackling, hence a flock of geese on the water, is echoic—and obviously akin to, ? a thickened form of, CACKLE.

gaiety. See GAY.

gain, n and v, gainful; regain.

1. Gain, n (whence gainful), is adopted from EF-(F) gain, contr of OF gaain, itself from OF gaaignier, whence OF-F gagner, whence 'to gain' (whence gainer); and OF gaaignier derives either from Frankish waidanjan*, to procure food, take booty, or from OHG weidanōn (G weiden), to pasture, to hunt for food, from OHG weida (G Weide), pasture, itself akin to ON veithr, OE wāth, a hunting; cf OIr fiadach, the chase, and Skt veti, he pursues; ? cf L uenāri, to hunt.

2. 'To regain', whence the nn regain and regainer, prob=re-, again+ 'to gain', but perh derives from OF-F regagner (re-+gagner).

gainly, graceful, is taut, the adj suffix -ly being added to the now dial adj gain, direct (of roads), convenient, useful, (of persons) deft, ME gayn, earlier geyn, from ON gegn, straight, direct (cf AGAIN); the commoner ungainly, clumsy, derives from the ME adj ungeinliche, from ME ungein, inconvenient, the un- neg of ME geyn.

gainsay, to contradict: ME geinseien, aphetic for ageinseien: to 'say against'.

gait. See the 2nd GATE.

gaiter (n hence v): F guêtre: EF guietre: prob Frankish wrist*, ankle—therefore cf WRIST.

gala (n hence adj): F, from It, gala: MF gale, merry-making: MD wale, wealth: f.a.e., WEAL. OF gale perh derives rather (B & W) from MF-EF galer, to make merry: Gallo-Roman walāre*, to live pleasantly: Frankish wāla, akin to the E adv WELL, therefore to WEAL.

2. Now, MF-EF galer has presp galant, making merry, which, as adj, becomes in C17 'well-mannered, esp towards women', whence E gallant, in this sense often pron as F galant, the sense 'brave' going back to MF-EF. Derivative EF-F galanterie yields E gallantry.

galaxy; adj galactic; cf element galact(o)-. See LACTAM, para 2.

gale, 1 (of air), is ult akin to YELL; cf OE galan, ON gala, to sing, and Da gal, furious.

gale, 2 (tribute, licence). See GIVE, para 4.

gale, 3 (obs v, and n -gale in, e.g., nightingale). See YELL, para 2.

gall (1), bile, hence ult the Am sl gall, effrontery, impudence. See GOLD, para 3.

gall (2), excrescence or swelling of plant-tissue: ME, from OF-F, galle: L galla: o.o.o.; perh cf Skt glau, ball. Hence gallic (acid). Cf GANGLION and:

gall (3), a chafed spot, derives from ME galle, from OE gealle, a blister, ult from L galla, a gallnut. ME galle has derivative v gallen, to chafe, whence 'to gall'.

gallant, gallantry. See GALA, para 2. galleass. See GALLEY, para 3.

galleon. See GALLEY, para 2.

gallery; galilee.

Gallery descends, via MF-F galerie (cf the It galeria, later galleria), from ML galeria, app an -eria alteration of ML galilea, var of galilaea, vestibule or inner porch of a church, app from the PIN Galilaea, Galilee, ref the Scriptural 'Galilee of the Gentiles' (Matthew, iv, 15), the sem development being tricky, not impossible. At least we know that ML galilea, vestibule, became MF galilee, adopted by E.—LL Galilaea is a trin of Gr Galilaia, an -ia ('country') derivative from H Gālīl, 'the region or district', from gālīl, region, district.

1. A galley, a large, low, one-decked vessel (whence its kitchen), derives, in ME, from OF-MF galie, var galee (whence F galée, a printer's galley—from its shape), from ML galea, from Byz Gr galea (var galaiā), perh, by phon and sem change, from Gr galeē, a weasel.

2. OF-MF galie has MF aug galion, answering to Sp galeón, aug from ML galea: and the MF-F galion, aided by Sp galeón, or vice versa, yields E galleon.

3. ML galea, adopted by It, has It aug galeazza, whence MF galéasse (var -éace, -iace), whence obsol E galleass.

4. Galley combines with WASP to form galliwasp, ? orig 'a wasp that infested ships in WI ports' (Webster), but now applied to a lizard and a lizard fish of CA and the WI. Cf gallipot: app galley+POT.

Gallic=L Gallicus, Gaulish, of Transalpine Gaul (approx France); adj of Gallia, Gaul, and Galli, the Gauls: cf GAEL. From Gallicus, EF-F derives gallicisme, whence E Gallicism (or g-). L Gallicus, moreover, has the extrn Gallicānus, Gaulish, (ML) pertaining to the Church of France, whence E Gallican, whence—or from F gallicanisme—Gallicanisme. L Gallia, Gaul, participates in the Chem element gallium, which has adj gallic. Cf the element Gallo-.

gallic, adj, both of the 2nd GALL and of gallium (see GALLIC).

galligaskins. See GRECIAN.

gallimaufry, a culinary hash; hence any (absurd) medley: MF-F galimafrée: MF-EF galer, to rejoice, make merry (f.a.e., GALA)+Picard mafrer, to eat much, from MD maffelen. (B & W.)

gallinaceous, gallinule.

The latter derives from L gallinula, chicken, dim of gallina, hen, with adj gallināceus, whence gallinaceous: and gallina is the f of gallus, a cock, s gal-, r gal-, either from Gallus, a Gaul, or from the IE r present in YELL.

gallipot. See GALLEY, para 4, s.f. gallium. See GALLIC, near end.

gallivant, whence agent gallivanter and vn gallivanting, is app a dial deviation of 'to gallant', to play the gallant: cf gallant at GALA, para 2.

galliwasp. See GALLEY, para 4.

gallon: ME, from ONF, galon, with var OF jalon, jallon, prob an aug from gal-, r of LL galleta, a liquid measure: o.o.o.: ? C. galloon. See GARLAND.

gallop, n, derives from OF-F galop, itself from the source of 'to gallop': the derivative MF-F galoper, whence 'to gallop', is partly a var of ONF waloper: Frankish wāla hlaupan, to run (cf LOPE) well (cf the adv WELL). MF-F galoper has derivative EF-F galopade, whence E gallopade. ONF waloper leads to dial 'to wallop', to move quickly but heavily, hence, esp coll, to flog or thrash: whence wallop, (dial) a gallop, (coll) heavy blow (usu walloping, a thrashing, a heavy beating or defeat), hence, in E sl, beer, which used to 'pack a wallop'.

gallows (pl gallowses), n hence adj: ME galwes (pl): OE galga, gealga (sing), a gallows, a cross: akin to OFris galga, OS and OHG galgo, MHG galge, gallows, cross (of Christ), G Galgen, gallows, Go galga, ON galge, -gi, cross (of Christ): Gmc r, galg-, IE r ghalgh-: cf Lith žalga, Arm jalk, a pole. Cf GIBBET and nautical JIB.

galoché. See GALOSH.

galoot. See GILLIE, para 2.

galore, in plenty: Ir go leór, enough.

galosh, occ galoshe, often occurs in its OF-F form galoché, either (B & W) from Gaul gallos*, with r akin to gal-, as in OF-F galet, a pebble, or from LL gallicula, dim of Cicero's gallica, elliptical for L solea gallica, Gaulish sandal.

galvanic, galvanism, galvanization, galvanize: F galvanique, F galvanisme, F galvanisation, F galvaniser, all coined during 1797-1802 (B & W): after an It physicist, Luigi Galvani, who in 1780 discovered animal electricity. Cf the element galvano-.

gamb. See GAMBOL, para 4.

gambade. See GAMBOL.

gambit. See CHANGE, final para.

gamble (v hence n, hence also gambler and gambling) is app a freq from ME gamenen, to play, disport oneself, from OE gamenian, from gamen, a game, sport, whence ME gamen, later game, adopted by E; 'to game', orig to play, disport oneself, derives from ME gamenen; gamester, gambler=game, n+agential -ster. One object of sport is the quadruped or, later esp, the bird; whence gamekeeper. The adj game, plucky, comes from gamecocks used in cockfighting. The adj gamey, gamy, has developed a special sense.

2. ME gamen, a game, sport, becomes one particular indoor game, gammon, now backgammon, prob 'because the men are often set back' (Webster).

3. OE gamen, var gomen, a playing, a game, a sport, is akin to OFris game, game, ON, OS, OHG gaman, MHG gamen, mirth, fun, and Sw gamman, Da gammen, a playing, a game.

gambol (n hence v): EE gambolde, var of gambalde: (? influenced by GAMBLE, from) late MF-F gambade, a leaping or a skipping, adopted by E in sense 'a horse's spring': Prov gambado, an -ado derivative of Prov gambo, leg: LL gamba, var camba, fetlock, pastern, thin leg: Gr kampē, a joint.

2. LL gamba becomes ONF gambe (OF-F jambe), with ONF dial dim gamberel, whence E gambrel, orig a horse's hock, hence a large hook for the suspension of carcasses.

3. ONF gambe, leg, has an ONF derivative in -on: gambon (MF-F ja'mbon, adopted by culinary E), whence E gammon, now in specialized sense, 'flitch or ham of smoked bacon'.

4. ONF gambe becomes Her gamb. Cf the cant, then low s, gams, legs—esp a girl's.

gams (sl). See GAMBOL, para 4.

gamut; gamma.

Gamut, entire range, (earlier) the entire series of notes in music, (earlier still) Guido d'Arezzo's 'great scale', (orig) the 1st or lowest note of that model scale, devised c1040: Gr γ or gamma, prop the 3rd letter of the Gr alphabet; of Sem origin, gamma occurs in E esp in gamma rays.—In 'the great scale', the notes are named by letters—the syllable of the successive hexachords, ut (now usu do) being the 1st syllable; Mus ut is ML, from the L introductory conj ut, as in LL dico ut, I say that. Gamma ut becomes gamut. OF-F has gamme.

gamy. See GAMBLE, para 1, s.f.

gander; gannet; goose—gooseberry, gooseflesh, gooseneck, goose step—goosey, goosy (whence sl goo-goo); goshawk; gosling; gossamer—gosmore.

1. Gander, male goose, derives from OE gandra (var ganra), akin to G dial gander, var ganter, and OF-MF gante, var jante, wild goose, L ganta, small-tailed white goose, ? of Gmc origin.

2. Akin to gander is gannet, from OE ganot, a sea or fen duck, a goose-like seagull, akin to MD-D gent, OHG ganazzo, MHG ganzer, G Ganserich, gander.

3. Cf, therefore, OHG-G and D gans, goose, ON gās, OE gōs (pl gēs), ME gos, E goose (pl geese): cf also OIr gēis, wild duck, swan, Lith žąsis, OP sansy, L anser (for hanser*), Gr khên (Doric khan), Skt hamsī, hamśas, goose. The Gmc r is gans-; the IE ghans-; -s is app a suffix. (Walshe; E & M.)

4. OE gōs adds, in ME, the dim suffix -ling to form gosling, a young goose, retained by E. The adj of goose is goosey, goosy, like a goose, hence foolish, whence 'make goo-goo eyes'.

5. Of the goose-cpds, perh the most important are:

gooseberry, cf BERRY; perh gooseberry is f/e for a lost cpd of different form: cf OF-MF (and current dial) grosele, F groseille, from MD croesel, dim of kroes (var kruus), curly, cf MHG krūs, G kraus, curly, and G Krausbeere (dial Krauselbeere), curly berry (from its beard); gooseflesh, from a goose's rough skin; hence fig; goshawk, OE gōshafoc, (lit) goose hawk; gooseneck, anything resembling a goose's curved neck; goose step, a goose-like marching step.

6. A disguised cpd is gossamer, ME gossomer, gossamer, revealingly gossomer, app for gos somer, i.e. goose summer, ref both to a period of summer-like weather in November when, formerly, geese were habitually eaten, and to the filmy substance (cobwebs) floating, or settling on bushes and grass, in calm, esp in calm autumnal, weather; hence any filmy or gauzy fabric.

7. In certain E diall, gossamer means 'the down on plants', a sense contributing to gosmore, a weedy herb with hairy or feathery bristles.

gang, n and v (whence ganger); gangster; gangway.

Whereas the 4th derives from OE gangweg (cf WAY), a 'going' way, a passage, the 3rd merely adds agential -ster to the n gang: and the n gang, a going, hence those going together, comes straight from OE and is akin to syn OFris, OHG-G, MD-D, Da gang; to ON ganger and Go gaggs (pron gangs), a lane, a street. All these nn prob derive from the answering vv, e.g. OHG and OS gangan, Go gaggan (pron gangan), ON ganga: cf Skt janghā, leg, foot, Lith ženkti, to walk or step, and pražanga, trespass: perh ult akin to GO (OE gān: cf G gehen).

ganglion is adopted from LL ganglion, a subcutaneous tumour, a swelling, an excrescence, from Gr ganglion (γαγγλιον), ? a gutturo-nasal (-ng-) derivative from IE r *gal-, var *gel-, to swell, to form a ball: cf the 2nd GALL.

gangrene (n hence v): prob via late MF-F gangrēne: L gangraena: Gr gangraina: ? for gangrasnia*, from gangrōn*, greedy eater, corroder, canker, or gangrān*, to corrode or canker, from grað, I eat greedily, corrode. (Hofmann.) Adj: gangrenous, perh from EF-F gangrēneux, f -euse.

gangster; gangway. See GANG.

ganister. See GNEISS.

gannet. See GANDER, para 2.

gantlet, as in run the gantlet (not gauntlet), derives from earlier gantlope, from Sw gatlopp, lit a running (lopp) down a lane (gata), hence the military run the gantlet, through a lane of fellow-soldiers striking at the offender as he runs.

gantry (occ gantry); chantier; shanty.

1. The 1st and 2nd come from ONF gantier, MF-F chantier L cantērius, canthērius, a gelding, (later) any horse, hence a vine-prop, hence in house-building, Gr kanthēlios, a pack ass, dim of kanthos, a nag: sem cf BASEL and 'clothes-horse'.

2. In Can F, the F chantier takes the sense 'hut, or small, rough, temporary dwelling': whence E shanty.

gaol, gaoler. See CAVE, para 2.

gap (n hence v); gape (v hence n), whence gaper.

ME gap comes direct from ON: and ON gap derives from ON gapa, whence ME gapan, whence 'to gape'; derivative adj, gapy. The ON v is akin to MHG-G gaffen (? for gappen*), to gape: ult an expressive, almost echoic, word.

gar, elliptical for garfish, occ called gar pike; garlic; goad; gore of land and 'to gore', to pierce, now only of quadrupeds wounding with horn or tusk; cf sep auger; gerfalcon or gyrfalcon.

1. Gar derives from OE gār, a spear, which occurs in OE gārleac (cf LEEK), whence ME garlek, E garlic.

2. OE gār has derivative gāra, a small piece of land, shaped like a spearhead, i.e. triangular, whence ME gare, later gore, retained by E, as in Kensington Gore, with derivative Her, dressmaking, naut senses. Prob from ME gare, gore, comes 'to gore', to pierce as with a gār or spear. Cf OFris, OS, OHG gēr, ON geirr, a spear, and OHG gēro (G Gehre), ON geiri, gore of land; cf, ult, Gr khaios (for khaios*), a shepherd's crook, and Skt hēśas, a missile: IE r, perh ghais-, often eased to ghais-, a spear, a javelin, itself an extn of ghet-*, to pierce.

3. Gerfalcon (or gyr-) derives from ME, from MF, gerfaucon, an -on extn of gerfauc (F gerfaut), earlier gerfalc, girfalc, of Gmc origin: cf MHG gerfalc, gerfalc, and ON geirfalki, spear, falcon (cf FALCON).

4. Prob akin to OE gār, spear, is OE gād, spear, arrow, point, ME gode, E goad, esp a sharp-pointed staff to urge cattle: cf Langobard (Lombard) gaida, a spear, and Gaul gaiso-, spear, from IE ghais- (as in para 2, s.f.).

garage (n hence v) is adopted from F, which derives it from MF (? OF) garer, to protect, to pay heed to: Frankish warōn*, cf OHG biwarōn, MHG warn, to observe, G wahren, to protect, OHG wara, attention; f.a.e., the adj WARE.

garb. See GEAR, para 2.

garbage, offal, hence animal, then also vegetable, refuse, is usu said to be o.o.o.; but does it not derive from EF garbage (from its EF var gaburge comes, by metathesis, F grabuge), itself (Dauzat) from Genoese dial garbiūjo, from It garbuglio, a confused intrigue, hence confusion, a mess, garbuglio being (app as a gar- int) from It bugliare, to be agitated or confused, as Prati shows.

garble, whence pa garbled and n garble, derives from It garbellare (s garbel-), itself from Ar gharbala, to sift, from Ar ghirbal, a sieve, itself from LL cribellum, dim of L cribrum, a sieve, akin to L cernere, to sift (s cern-), q.v. at DISCERN.

garden (n hence v, whence gardener: cf the OF-F jardinier); whence PN Garden, whence gardenia, after the Am botanist Alexander Garden (1730–1791).

A garden derives from ME, from ONF, gardin (OF-F gardin), mdfn of ONF gart (OF gart), from Frankish gardo*, cf OFris garda, OS gardo, OHG garto, MHG garte (gen garten), G Garten, garden, OHG gart, OE geard, ON garthr (E garth), an enclosure, a yard. ML (C10) gardinium, prob Gallo-Roman, perh represents hortus gardinus*, an enclosed garden, cf Go garda, an enclosure.

F.a.e., YARD.

garfish. See GAR.

gargantuan, earlier Gargantuan, is the adj of Gargantua, the gigantic king and eponymous 'hero' of Rabelais's satirical romance (1535). Possessing a huge appetite, he naturally owes his name to his gullet: cf the Sp and Port garganta, gullet, throat: f.a.e., GARGLE.

garget. See para 1 of:

gargle and gurgle; gargyle; cf garget and sep GARGANTUAN.

1. Garget, ME var gargat, throat, derives from OF-MF gargate, throat, gullet, an -ate derivative from the echoic r garg-, with an ancient var gurg-, as in L gurgēs, whirlpool. Garget now means an inflammation of the throat in pigs and cattle.

2. This echoic garg- occurs also in MF-F gargouiller (-ouiller, pej suffix), closely akin to MF gargoule, EF-F gargouille, throat: from gargouiller comes 'to gargle', whence 'a gargle'; cf It gorgogliare, to gargle, from L gurguliō, gullet, which perh suggested 'to gurgle', prob an echoic var of gargle.

3. L gurguliō, gullet, windpipe, has s gurgul-, r gurg-; it becomes EF gargouille, a waterspout, esp a grotesquely carved waterspout, projecting from a gutter of the roof, whence E gargoyle.

4. Cf GORGE, para 1; cf also jargon at GORGE, para 6.

gargoyle. See prec, para 3.

garish, unrecorded before C16, is o.o.o.: perh (OED, Webster, EW) from obs gaure, to stare: cf garing (gauring, gouring)-stock, a gazing-stock.

garland, n hence v (with prefix-cpd engarland); galloon.

1. ME garland derives from MF-EF garlande (cf OProv garlanda), perh from Frankish weron*, akin to MHG wieren, to encircle, to adorn.

2. Akin, perh, is galloon, a tape-like trimming, from EF-F galon, from OF-F galonner, to adorn (the head) with ribbons—cf either, with Webster, MF galander, var galander, to adorn with wreaths, or, with B & W, MF galant (E GALLANT).

garlic. See GAR, para 1.

garment. See WARN, para 5.

garner. See GRAIN, para 5. garnet. See GRAIN, para 5, at end of granatus subdivision.

garnish, garnishment, garniture. See WARN, para 5.

garrotte. See GARROTE.

garret. See WARN, para 6.

garrison. See WARN, para 5.

garrote, garrotte, occ garrotte.

'To garrote (-otte)' derives from EF-F garrotter, to pinion, (C19–20) to strangle, itself from MF-F garrot, a staff or stick, var of MF guaroc, bolt of a crossbow, itself from OF garokier, var of warokier (-quier), prob from Frankish wrokkān*, to turn violently, to twist (e.g., the neck of). F garrot becomes Sp garrote, with sense 'a throttling instrument', duly taken back by F and taken over by E, and thus accounting for the -ote (as opp the F -otte) form.

garrulity, garrulous. See CARE, para 5.

garter: ONF gartier (OF gartier, MF jarretter, MF-F jarretière), from ONF garet (OF-MF jaret, MF-F jarret), the bend of the human knee, dim (-et) of dial ONF garre (dial OF jarre), cf OProv garra: of C origin—cf Cor and Br gar, leg, and W gar, shin, lower part of thigh.

garth. See the 1st YARD and cf GARDEN.

gas, gaseous, gasify. See CHAOS, para 1.

gash, n, derives from 'to gash', itself from EE garsh, from late ME(-EE) garse, from ONF garser (OF-EF jarser), to scarify, prob (B & W) from VL charissāre*, for charassāre*, mdfn of LL charaxāre, to carve, from Gr kharassein, to cut a notch in, hence, as in cpd enkharrassein, to scarify; IE r, perh gher-*, to scratch.

gasket, a line for securing a furled sail, is o.o.o.: perh from syn It gaschetta, cf EF-F garcette, rope's end, little cord, orig a little girl (fig from garce, girl, from OF-F gars, acc garçon, boy). Perh cf GADGET.

gasoline (or -ene)=gas+ol-, oil+Chem -ine.

gasp, v hence n and 'gasper' (cigarette): ME gaspen, earlier gaispen, to gasp, to yawn: ON geispa (for geispa*), to yawn—prob either a freq of ON gapa, to gape, or simply echoic.

gastric, gastronomy. See the element -gaster.

gate (1), an opening, for passage, in a barrier (wall, fence, etc.): ME gate, gat: OE gaet, gat, geat, akin to OFris gat, jet, OS and ON gat, and perh to:

gate (2), now mostly dial for way, path, going (esp walking), with var spelling gait, now the SE word for manner of walking on foot. ME gate derives from ON gata, akin to Go gatwō, OHG gazza, MHG gazze, G Gasse, a lane. 'Perh brought from Scandinavia by the Goths; prob an extn with suffix -wō of OS, ON gat "hole" (OE geat, E gate in usual sense)', says Walsh: therefore of prec.

gather, whence agent gatherer and vn gathering; cf sep gad, to roam.

1. 'To gather' comes, through ME gaderen, from OE gaderian (contr gadrian): cf OFris gaderia (contr gadria), MD gaderen (also D), gederen, MHG gate, gegäte, companion, (occ) husband, G Gaite, husband (marriage companion), OE gegada, companion, and gaed, companionship: ult akin to GOOD (f.a.e.).

2. Intimately akin to the OE and other OGmc terms just mentioned are OE gador, geador, OFris gader, MHG gater, together. Note that OE gador takes prefix to-, i.e. the OE prep ið, and thus forms OE tōgador (-ore), tōgaedre, tōgaedere, whence ME togedere, whence together: cf OFris to gadera.

gauche is adopted, together with its derivative gaucherie, from F, where orig (late C14) it meant 'left-handed'. F gauche derives from MF gauchir, to make detours, from syn OF guenchir, either from Frankish wankjan* or from syn OHG wanchan (MHG-G wanken), to waver, vacillate, in both origins influenced by OF gauchier, gaucher, to trample. (Dauzat.)

gaucho, a Sp-American cowboy of the pampas, is a S Am Sp word, app from Araucan cauchu, a wanderer.

gaud, gaudy. See JOY, para 4.

gauffer, gaufre, gaufrette. Cf gopher but see WEAVE, para 5.

gauge (loosely gage), a measure, an instrument for measuring, derives from ONF gauge (MF-F jauge), itself from ONF gauger (MF-F jauger), to measure exactly; perh, however, the ONF and OF vv derive from the nn, with origin perh either in Frankish galgo*—cf OHG galgo (pl galga*), a perch, a crutch, gallows, windlass, as B & W hold, or in gallicum (sc metrum), a Gaulish measure, as others maintain, or in Basque galga, a gauge, as I propose, the Basques being notably deft and ingenious.

Gaul (whence Gaulish, adj hence n). See GAEL.

gaunt (whence gauntness): C15 gawnt, C16-17 gant: prob of Scan origin. Cf dial (E and Shetlands) gant, a tall, thin person.

gauntlet: MF-F gantelet, double dim (-el, -et) of OF-F gant, a glove: Frankish wanth*, cf MD want and ON vantr*, vōtrr.—Also loose for GANTLET, q.v.

gauze (whence gauzy) derives from EF-F gaze, either from the Palestinian city of Gaza (Ar Ghazzah) or from Ar gazz, floss silk.

gavel (1), a sheaf-quantity of mown grain: ONF gavelle (OF-F avelle), orig a heap: of C origin—cf OIr gabál, a grasping, from gabim, I grasp or take, OC r gab-*, to take, to contain.

gavel (2); kevel.

Gavel, a presiding officer's mallet for ensuring silence, is o.o.o., but perh akin to kevel, a hammer for stone-shaping or -breaking, itself o.o.o., but prob akin to naut kevel, a strong cleat or timber for fastening a vessel's heavy lines. This naut kevel derives from ONF keville (OF-F cheville), from ML clāvicula, L clāuicula, dim of ML clāvis, L clāuis, a key: cf CLAVICLE.

gavel (3), a tribute. See GIVE, para 4, where also gavelkind.

gavotte, adopted from EF-F, derives from Prov gavoto, dance of the Gavots, as Provençals call the inhabitants of the Alps; gavot derives from Pyrenean F gave, pre-L gaba*, throat, gullet, goitre, perh of C origin; cf ML gabarus.

gawk, n whence coll v and the adj gawky: cf dial gawk, left-handed, and dial cack- (var of keck-) handed.

gay, gaiety.

The latter comes from OF-F gaieté, from OF-F gai, whence E gay: and OF gai derives from Frankish gāhi*—cf OHG gāhi, impetuous, sudden, sharp (MHG gāch, gaehe, G jäh), perh akin to OHG wāhi, good, beautiful; Walshe, however, suggests that OHG gāhi=g-ahi, akin to L ōcior, swifter.

gaze (v hence n), gazebo.

The latter prob=gaz(e)+-ebo, mock-L for 'I shall gaze', after L uidebo, ML videbo, I shall see. 'To gaze', ME gasen, is prob of Scan origin: cf Nor dial and Sw dial gasa, to stare; perh cf GAPE.

gazelle, adopted from MF-F, comes from Ar ghazāl, ghazāla.

gazette (n hence v), gazetteer.

The latter anglicizes EF-F gazettier, gazetier, from EF-F—whence E—gazette: It gazzetta: Venetian gazeta, orig a small coin, hence—from the price of the first news-sheet sold in Venice—a news-sheet (in full, gazeta delle novità), as B & W propose.

gear (n hence v); garb (n hence v).

1. Gear, ME gere, either derives from approx syn ON gervi or is worn down from OE gearwe, equipment, clothing, armour: cf OFris gare, OHG garwī, contr of garawī, dress; cf also OE gearu, gearo, ready, whence the obs and dial E yare, ready, lively, active.

2. With OHG garawī, garwī, cf It garbo, grace, graceful or beautiful form, whence EF garbe (now galbe), graceful contour or outline, whence E garb.

gebir. See KAFFIR, para 2.

gecko: Mal geko, from its cry.

gee (1), interjection: for Gee: from Jesus.

gee (2), n, coll for a horse:; ? from Gee up!, prob for Get up!, Get moving as addressed to a horse.

gee (3), v (mostly Am coll and E dial), to agree, to fit: o.o.o.: ? orig nursery aphesis and easement of agree.

geese. See goose in para 3 of GANDER.

geezzer (sl), old person: prob from obs guiser, an actor (see GUISE), but perh introduced by sailors and soldiers from Malta (? gisem, the human body, hence a man).

Gebenna, adopted from LL, comes from Gr Geenna, from post-Biblical H Gē Hinnōm, Valley of Hinnom (near Jerusalem), where the Jews had sacrificed to Moloch and thus caused the place to become accursed and later to become syn with 'hell'. (B & W.)

geisha, a Japanese professional singing-and-dancing girl, is adopted from Jap, where, deriving from Ch, it means 'artist'; it combines gei, art, esp of singing or dancing + sha, person.

gel. See JELLY (heading).

gelatin(e), gelatinous. See JELLY, para 2.

geld (1), a Crown tax. See YIELD, para 2.

geld (2), to castrate; gelding.

The latter derives from ON geldtgr, from ON geldr, barren, akin to OSw galder, OE geld, OHG galt, barren. ON geldr has derivative v gelda, whence ME gelden, whence 'to geld'.

gelid: L gelidus: f.a.e., COLD.—Cf glacial at GLACÉ.

gelnignite. See JELLY, para 3. gelseminine, Gelsemium. See JASMINE, s.f.

gelt, money. See YIELD, para 4.

gem (n, hence v): ME, from OF-F, gemme: L gemma, bud, the 'eye' of a vine, hence, from resemblance of form and colour, a precious stone, thence a jewel, indeed anything brilliant and valuable: either from IE gembhma*, cf Lith žemba, it buds or sprouts, or from IE r gem-*, to press, to press out, to bud or sprout. (E & M.)

2. Gemma, a bud, a bud-like formation, is retained by Bot. Derivative gemma, provided with buds, yields gemmate and 'to gemmate'; LL gemmafer, bud-bearing, gem-producing, yields gemmaferous; the dim gemma yields gemma.

3. Perh cf:

gemini; geminate, gemination.

Gemini, The Twins of Astr, is the pl of L geminus, twin, double, adj and n: prob, with 'popular' or f/e substitution of g for y, geminus (s gemin-, ? r gem-*) is akin to Skt yamás, yoked, linked, twin, Av yeṃō, twin, Lett jumis, double fruit, cf Ir emuin, twins; but perh akin to Gr gemō, I am full, OSI žimo, I press (cf GEM, para 1, s.f.), Ir gemel, a bond. (E & M.)—Cf GIMBAL.

gemmate, gemmation, gemmule. See GEM, para 2. 'gem', information, news, derives from that consecrated phrase of the fighting Services, 'for the general information of all ranks'.

gendarme, gendarmery. See GENERAL, para 28.

gender. See GENERAL, para 4.

gene. See GENERAL, para 3.

genealogical, genealogist, genealogy. See para 25 of:

general, adj, n, v (mostly in out-general), generality, generalize, whence generalization; genus, pl genera; gene; generable, generate, generation, generative, generator—degenerate, degeneration, degenerative—regenerate, regeneration, regenerative, regenerator; generic; generosity, generous; genesis, genetic (whence genetics, geneticist); genital (whence genitals); genitive, adj hence n (whence genitival); genitor, geniture—progenitor, progeniture; gender—engender; genre; genius, genial; gens—Gentile, gentility—gentle (whence gentleness, gentleman, gentlewoman)—genteel—gentry—jaunty; genuine (whence genuineness); germ, germen—german, germane—germinal—germinant, germinate, germination, germinative—germule.—Other prefix-cpds: congener, congeneracy, congeneric—congenial (whence congeniality), whence neg uncongenial—congenital (adj hence n); indigenous; ingenious, ingenuity—ingenuous (whence ingenuousness), neg disingenuous—engine (n, v), engineer (n, v), engineering, ingenious—cf gin, a contrivance; progeny.—Other cpds: eugenic, whence eugenics, eugenism; gendarme, gendarmery; genealogical, genealogist, genealogy; homogeneity, homogeneous; primogenitary, primogenitor, primogeniture—primogenous.—Cf sep the 'born' group: COGNATE, NATAL, NATION (NATIONAL, etc.),

NATURE, and, as the keyword, NATIVE.—Cf also the Gmc group, likewise sep: KIN (keyword), KIND, KINDRED, KING: a group running parallel to the genus group above.—Cf sep the less obvious BENIGN, MALIGN.

Indo-European

1. The base of the general group is L genere, to engender, s and r gen-; genere was displaced by the redup syn gignere (s gign-), with extended sense 'to produce, to cause'. The principal derivative of genere is the n genus, birth, stock, race, hence any group of beings having a common origin, esp if also possessing natural resemblances, hence class or kind: cf Gr genos. The IE r is gen-*, to engender, with implied derivative sense (as esp in the sep NATIVE group), to be born. With genos, genus, cf Skt jánas-; with Gr egenonto, they were born, cf Skt ajananta; with L gens (para 14 below), cf Skt ganus: indeed the relationships between Gr-L and Skt are strikingly numerous and intimate.

Greek

2. Cf genealogy (para 25) and homogeny (para 26) below. For hydrogen, oxygen, see the elements hydro- and oxy-. But Gr gignomai (for gigenomai*), I am born, which has r gen-, possesses the important derivative genesis, a coming into being or a natural development, duly adopted by L and incorporated by E (cf the EF-F genèse); cf Genesis, the first book of The Bible. Gr genesis has adj genētikos, whence, perh via F génétique, the E genetic.—Direct Gr descent occurs also in eugenic, which, perh influenced by genetic, derives from eugenēs, well-born.

Latin—mostly Simplex

3. L genus (gen generis, o/s gener-), pl genera, has been adopted by Logic and by Sci, esp Bio. The Bio gene derives from genus.

4. In F, the L o/s gener- becomes both late OF-F genre, orig esp le genre humain (prompted by the L genus humanum), adopted by E, and, in OF-EF, gendre, with excrescent d (excised by F); gendre becomes ME gender, sex of all animals, now mostly a gram tech.

5. L genus, o/s gener-, has adj generālis, (orig) generic, (then) general, whence OF-MF general (F général), adopted by E; MF capitaine general (C14) becomes, in C15, the elliptical n general (F général), likewise adopted by E. L generālis has LL derivative generālitās, whence MF-F généralité and E generality; F général has derivative EF-F généraliser, whence 'to generalize', whence generalization.

6. L genus, o/s gener-, has the derivative v generāre, to engender, to generate, with presp generans, o/s generant-, whence the Geom n generant. The pp generātus (s generāt-) yields 'to generate'. On generāt- arise generātiō, o/s generātiōn-, whence, via OF, generation; LL generātivus, ML -ivus, whence generative; and agent generātor, adopted by E, with derivative 'instrument' senses. Generable derives from L generabilis (generäre+-abilis).

7. generäre also becomes OF-MF gendrer (var generer), whence the obs 'to gender'; extant, however, is the cpd 'to engender', to beget: OF-F engendrer: L ingeneräre: int in+generäre.

8. L generäre has two notable prefix-cpds: dēgeneräre and regereräre. Dēgeneräre, to fall dē, off from, the genus or stock, has pp dēgenerātus, whence both the adj and the v degenerate, whence degeneracy, for degeneratecy*; derivative LL dēgenerātiō, o/s dēgenerātiōn-, accounts for late MF-F dégénération and E degeneration; degenerative is an anl E formation. Regereräre (re-, again) has presp regererans, o/s regererant-, whence regererant; pp regererātus (s regererāt-) explains both adj and v regenerate, whence regeneracy; derivative LL regererātiō, o/s regererātiōn-, leads, through OF-F, to regeneration; whereas regererative is an E formation, regererator is adopted from LL.

9. L genus, stock, has the specialized sense 'good (noble) stock', with adj generōsus, whence, via MF genereux (F généreux), f genereuse, the E generous; derivative L generōsität, o/s generōsität-, whence, via late MF-F, the E generosity.

10. L genus, in its tertiary sense 'sort or kind, class', acquires in erudite EF-F the adj générique, whence E generic.

11. L genere, pp genitus (s genit-), has derivative adj genitālis, pertaining to procreation, whence E genital; the n genitals, sexual parts, was prompted by L genitālia, prop the neupl of the adj.

12. On L genitus arise both genitor, adopted by E, and genitūra, adapted by E as geniture: both more common in the cpds progenitor, progenitūra, the former adopted, the latter (as progeniture) adapted, by E. Also on genit-, s of pp genitus, arises the adj genetivus, pertaining to sexual reproduction, original, generic, hence, in LL, applied to the 'of' or classifying case in L (and Gr) declensions, whence the E genitive, adj then—with its own adj genitival—n.

13. L genere, to beget, has derivative Genius, a god presiding over birth, esp of a potential great or talented or otherwise remarkable person, hence, as in Genius loci, the tutelary god of a place; finally, a person thus aided, as in the E adoption. L genius has adj geniālis, possessed of unusual powers, hence dedicated to those powers, hence joyous; L geniālis also harks back to its v, for an early sense is 'concerned with procreation, hence with marriage'. All these senses are known in E, but the 'procreative' and 'nuptial' senses are obs, 'of genius' is obsol, 'cheerful, happy-natured, jovial' predominates, with the allied sense 'favourable' (e.g., climate) still active.—L geniālis has LL derivative geniālitās, o/s geniālitāt-, whence geniality. Cf congenial in para 20.

14. Another important derivative of genere is the n gens, orig 'the group of all those who, in the male line, descend from a common (free) male ancestor' (E & M), hence a clan. The adj is gentilis, belonging to the clan, hence, in LL, a non-Roman, a foreigner, and, in LL-ML, a non-Jew, a non-Christian, esp in gentiles, Gentiles, the latter coming into E straight from L, the former through OF-F gentil (f gentille), itself from L gentilis. The derivative L gentilitās becomes E gentility, with its current sense influenced by OF gentilité (L gentilitātem, acc.).

15. It is OF-F gentil which accounts for E genteel, (orig) of good birth, (later) invincibly respectable; it also accounts for E gentle (ME gentil, direct from OF). Gentlewoman complements gentleman (whence gentlemanly, whence gentlemanliness), which derives from ME gentilman, a well-born man, prompted by syn OF gentils hom (whence F gentilhomme).

16. Partly from OF gentil (para 14) and partly from OF-(obso)l gent, well-born, hence gracious, comes OF-MF genterise (var gentelise), whence ME gentrise, whence ME genterie, contr to gentrie, whence E gentry. Certainly from OF-F gentil, perh also partly from OF-F gent, f gente, come EE (now only dial) genty and the var EE janty, whence E jaunty, (obs) gentlemanly, hence stylish, hence sprightly.

17. L genere perh has, through the n genus, the further adj genūnus (suffix -inus, E -ine), of the true genus or stock, native (not foreign), authentic, whence E genuine, with additional senses 'frank' and 'sincere'. E & M, however, convincingly derive genūnus, from genū, knee.

18. Obscurely from L genus rather than from L genere, derives L germen (s germ-), o/s germin-: clearly gener-, o/s of genus, and prob Skt janman, janiman, birth, hence origin (cf jānas, race, a creature), have operated: prob germen is a contr of genermen*. L germen, a seed, a bud, a shoot, hence descent, becomes, through its s germ-, the OF-F germe, whence E germ. Derivative germināre, to bud, has pp germinātus, whence 'to germinate'; the derivative germinātiō, o/s germinātiōn-, yields EF-F and E germination; presp germinans, o/s germinant-, accounts for the adj germinant, but adj germinal is adopted from F, which, taking it from LL germinālis, uses it mostly as n—Germinal, one of the Revolutionary months. Germinative is an E formation, and germule is a -ule dim of E germ.

19. This germ- s occurs also in germānus (adj suffix -ānus, E -an), of the same race, esp of the same parents, authentic, whence OF-F germain, adopted by ME with var german, as in brother-german, full brother, and cousin-german, first cousin. The var germane (cf F germaine, f of germain) predominantly signifies 'relevant'.

Latin: the other prefix-cpds

20. L genus, o/s gener-, has the cpd adj congener, of the same (implied by con-, together) race, adopted by E and used as n, with adj congeneric, congenerous, and with subsidiary n congeneracy. But congenial is of E formation: con-+genial (as in para 13). Congenial, influenced by genital (para 11), derives from L congenitus: con+pp genitus: present at birth, hence inborn.

21. L indigena, a native, lit one born (-gena from Gr -genēs) within (indu, var of endo: cf syn Gr endon) the clan, has LL adj indigenus, whence E indigenous.

22. L genus, rather than genere, has a cpd adj ingenuus, born within (in-) the clan, hence free-born, hence frank: whence E ingenuous. Its derivative ingenuitās (o/s ingenuitāt-) means frankness, candour, ingenuousness, but its E sense has, in C19–20, been predominantly that of a n answering to E ingenious, which derives, prob via MF-F ingénieur, f ingénieuse, from ingeniōsus, adj of ingenium, inborn quality, esp of talent or even of genius (cf genius in para 13). L ingenuus, ingenuous, survives in MF-F ingénu, f of ingénu, ingenuous; the F, hence the E, theatre employs ingénu as n.

23. L ingenium, natural ability, LL ingenious invention, becomes OF-F engin, with derivative senses 'skill' and 'machine'—esp 'engine': whence E engine, whence prob, by agential suffix -eer, an engineer, although the earlier engineer owes something to OF-MF engignier (or -neor), a contriver, adviser, from OF-EF engignier, to contrive, to invent, from VL ingeniāre*, from L ingenium. The adj ingenious, of or like an engine, sense-adapts the obs engenous, ingenious, crafty, from OF-MF engignos, itself from L ingeniōsus, esp in its LL sense 'ingenious'. From OF-F engin comes, by aphesis, ME gin, a contrivance, a device, whence E gin, a trap or a snare.

24. A cpd of gignere (para 1) is prōgignere, to engender prō or forward, hence to have offspring, whence prōgeniēs (s prōgeni-), bodily issue (a child), descent: whence OF-MF progenie, adopted by ME: whence progeny.

Full Compounds, Greek and Latin

25. Gr accounts for genealogy and homogeny. From Gr genea (var gennea), descent, akin to genos, derives genealogos (logos, discourse, disquisition: cf LOGIC), a genealogist, whence genealogia, genealogy, whence LL genealogia, OF-MF genealogie (F généalogie), ME genealogi or genelogie, whence E genealogy. Derivative EF-F généalogiste leads to genealogist; late MF-F généalogique to genealogic, extended to genealogical.

26. Gr genos, stock, race, has an adj c/f -genēs, as in homogenēs (homos, same), whence ML homogeneus, whence E homogeneous; derivative ML homogeneitās yields homogeneity; derivative Gr homogeneia yields Bio homogeny.

27. LL primogenitor, first (primo-, c/f of primus) genitor (cf para 1), is adopted by E; ML primogenitūra (cf geniture in para 11) becomes primogeniture, the right of the first-born, with anl adj primogenitary; ML primogenius and L primigenus combine to suggest E primogeneous.

28. The cpd gendarme, adopted from EF-F, is a b/f from the MF-F pl gensdarmes: gent, people +de, of +armes, weapons—as if a translation of L gentes armorum*. F gensdarmes has derivative late MF-F gendarmerie, a body or force of gendarmes: adopted by E, which often anglicizes to gendarmery.

The LL cpd genueflectere, to bend the knee, to kneel, becomes 'to genueflect', to kneel in worship; LL derivative genueflexiō, o/s genueflexiōn-, becomes genueflexion or -flection. L genū, moreover, has dim geniculum, adopted by An; derivative geniculātus, bent like a knee, yields geniculate, and the LL derivative geniculātiō, o/s geniculātiōn-, yields geniculation.

Geometric comes, via L geometricus and perh via MF-F géométrique, from Gr geōmetrikos; geometer is adopted from LL, the L form being geometra, var of geometres, from Gr geōmetrēs; and both are intimately related to Gr geōmetria (from geōmetrein, to measure (metrein) land—cf meter at MEASURE), L geometria, whence—perh via OF-MF geometrie (later géo-), the E geometry.

georgette is elliptical for crêpe Georgette, from a celebrated F modiste, Madame Georgette de la Plante.

Georgian is the E adj both of George and of the Russian and the American Georgia, the latter from King George II of England, the former being, in Ru, Grusia; the L adj georgicus (Gr geōrgikos) occurs in Virgil's Georgics or (carmina) georgica, songs of husbandry. The PN George comes, via OF George (F Georges), from LL Georgius, trln of Gr Geōrgios, from geōrgos, husbandman; gē, land (cf GEOGRAPHY, s.f.)+ergon, labour (cf ERG).

Perh the name is of C origin: ? 'The Noisy Men', from C gar*, to shout. But Holder derives L Germāni from Geramani*, Geramanniz*, 'The Greedy Men': OHG gēr, greedy (IE r, gher-*) +OHG man. The 'Spear Men' theory (OHG gēr, cf OE gār, a spear) is obs.

gerrymander recalls Elbridge Gerry, governor of Massachusetts, who so redistributed the electoral districts that a certain district accidentally acquired a dragonish outline; a famous painter compared this outline to a salamander and thus, in 1812, elicited from the editor of The Centinel the punning alteration Gerrymander, whence the Am n and v for the manipulation of electoral districts. (Thus John Fiske, cited by Webster; so too DAE and Mathews.)

gerund (whence adj gerundial), gerundive; gerent, esp vice-gerent; gest, geste—jest (n, hence v—whence jester); gestate, gestation, gestatory; gesticulate, gesticulation, gesticulator, gesticulatory; gesture, n, whence v (whence gesturer) and the adj gestural;—congeries—cf congest, congestion, congestive; digest (n and v), digester, digestible, digestion, digestive—cf indigestible, indigestion, indigestive; egest, egestion, egestive; ingest, ingestible, ingestion, ingestive; register (n and v), registrant, registrar, registration, registry; suggest, suggestible, suggestion, suggestive.—Cf the sep EXAGGERATE and perh CAST.

1. The base of all these words is L gerere (s ger-), to bear or carry, to take on oneself, take charge of, to perform or accomplish: o.o.o.: perh akin to CAST.

2. The LL derivative gerundium becomes E gerund; LL gerundius, ML -ivus, becomes gerundive. The presp gerens, o/s gerent-, yields the obs adj, whence the n, gerent, esp in vice-gerent, from ML vicegerens, o/s -gerent; derivative ML vicegerentia yields viceregency.

3. Gerere has pp gestus (s gest-), neupl gesta (things performed, deeds, exploits), which, apprehended as f sing, yields OF-(archaic)F geste, exploit, hence a tale of exploits, adopted by ME, with E var gest (obsol).

4. ME geste, deed, exploit, tale, has var jeste, which becomes E jest, duly specialized to 'humorous or witty tale, a joke', whence 'to jest', whence jester, perh slightly reminiscent of L gestor.

5. Gerere, pp gestus, has freq gestāre (s gest-), soon becoming virtually syn with its source. The pp gestātus (s gestār-) yields 'to gestate'; derivative L gestātiō, o/s gestātiōn-, yields gestation, a bearing, esp of child in womb; the similarly derivative L gestātōrius yields gestatory.

6. On the pps gest- arises another v: gestire, to make gestus or gestures; gestire is supplanted by gesticulāri, with presp gesticulans, o/s gesticulant-, whence the E adj gesticulant, and with pp gesticulātus, whence 'to gesticulate'; derivative gesticulātiō, o/s gesticulātiōn-, becomes MF-F and E gesticulation; likewise derivative gesticulātor is adopted by E; gesticulatory is an anl E formation.

7. Pps gest- occurs yet again in ML gestūra, way of carrying, mode of action; whence E gesture.

Prefix-Compounds

8. The s and r ger- appears in the n congeriēs, a carrying con- or together, a collection, adopted by E esp for an indiscriminate collection or aggregation.

9. L congeriēs derives imm from congerere, to carry, hence to bring, together. The pp congestus yields 'to congest'; derivative congestiō, o/s congestiōn-, leads to E—perh via MF-F—congestion; congestive is an anl E formation.

10. L digerere, to bring apart (di- for dis), to separate, arrange, hence to digest, has pp digestus, whence directly 'to digest' and, from the neu digestum (pl digesta), used as n, the n digest; as derivative LL digestibilis yields digestible, so derivative LL digestivus, ML -ivus, yields digestive (cf the MF-F digestif); digestion represents digestiōn-, o/s of digestiō-, from pp digestus.

11. Cf indigestible, from LL indigestibilis (in-, not); indigestion, via MF-F, from LL indigestiō, o/s indigestiōn-; and the anl E formation indigestive.

12. Complementaries are L ēgerere, to carry ē, out, to discharge, and ingerere, to bring in, esp for digestion: pp ēgestus becomes 'to egest', pp ingestus becomes 'to ingest'; as L ēgestiō, o/s ēgestiōn-, becomes egestion, so LL ingestiō, o/s ingestiōn-, becomes ingestion; egistible, ingestible, and egestive, ingestive are anl E formations.

13. Regerere, to carry back (re-), esp to a list or a book, hence to record or register, has pp regestus, whence the neupl regesta, used in LL for a list, a register, whence ML regestum, a list or register, altered to regestrum, var registrum, whence MF-F, hence ME, registre, whence E register; 'to register' comes from MF-EF registrer, from ML registrāre, var regestrāre, from the ML n. The ML v has presp registrans, o/s registrant-, whence MF registrant, whence the E n registrant; the pp registrātus accounts for the rare 'to register'; derivative ML registrātiō, o/s registrātiōn-, leads to registration; derivative ML registrārius, an official recorder, becomes registrary, now only in the University of Cambridge, the predominant term being registrar, influenced by the ML agent but deriving from EE registrer, itself from MF-EF registreur, from MF-EF registrer. Either by contr from late ME-EE registry or from 'to register' + -ry, comes registry.

14. L suggerere, to carry, hence bring, hence put, underneath (sug- for sub-, under), hence to furnish and finally, to suggest, has pp suggestus, whence 'to suggest', whence, anl, both suggestible and suggestive; derivative suggestiō-, o/s suggestiōn-, becomes, prob via OF-F, the E suggestion, whence Psychi suggestionism and suggestionize.

get, pt got, pp gotten (obs, except in AE and in al' cpds); beget and misbeget, pp misbegotten; forget, pp forgotten; cognate GUESS, v hence n.— Cf the sep -prehend of APPREHEND, COMPREHEND, REPREHEND, and, f.a.e., PREHENSILE.

1. 'To get' derives from ME geten from ON geta, akin to OE -gietan, -gitan, OS bigetan, OHG bigezzan, Go bigitan, to find, OB gadati, to guess, OIr gataim, I take or steal, L praehendere, to grasp or seize, praeda, booty, Gr khandanein, to hold: IE r, prob ghed-* or, with -n- infix, ghend-*, to hold or grasp. (Hofmann; Walshe.)

2. 'To beget' derives, via ME bigeten, bigiten, to beget, (orig) to get, from OE begitan, to get (be- + -gitan): 'to beget' is to get additionally or on the side, there being a collaborator. 'To misbeget' is modern: mis-, wrongly + 'to get'.

3. 'To forget' derives, via ME forgeten, soryeten, from OE forgitan, forgietan (for-, connoting omission or failure + -gitan): cf OHG firgezzan, MHG vergezzen, G vergessen, and OS fargetan.— The flower forget-me-not was prompted, not by G Vergissmeinnicht but by its original, the MF ne m'oublie mie and ne m'oubliez mie (F ne m'oubliez pas).

ghetto, adopted from It, derives from Venetian ghèto or gèto (It gètio), in C14 a foundry: in 1516, the Jews of the city of Venice were expelled to a Venetian islet named Ghèto or Gèto, from a foundry situated there, and all other ghettos took their name from this Venetian ghetto: prob from ML jectus*, for ML jactus* (L iactus), a casting or founding, from iacere, to throw or cast. (Prati.)

ghost (n hence v), ghostly—ghastly.

1. The third derives from ME gastli, earlier gastlich, from ME gasten, to terrify, from OE gāestan, from gāst; gastlich has var gostlich, whence ghostly. ME gastlich derives from OE gāstlic, ghost-like, where 'ghost' = spirit, soul, breath, the breath of God, OE gāst. OE gāst, which becomes ME gast, var gost, whence ghost ('spelling with gh- due to Caxton's Flemish composers—cf OFlem gheest: Walshe), is akin to OFris gāst, OS gēst, OHG-G geist, spirit, ghost; with OE gāestan, to alarm, cf the syn Go us-gaisjan. The Gmc r is prob gais-, the IE prob ghais-, with var ghois-*: cf Skt hédas (for hédas*), anger, as Walshe does.

2. Aghast derives from ME agast, agasted, pp of agasten, to alarm, to terrify, where a-, OE ā-, is an int.

ghoul (whence ghoulish) is Ar ghūl, a grave-robbing, corpse-eating spirit: from ghāla, to seize. giant, whence giantess and giantism; gigantic.

Giant, ME geant, represents ONF gaiant (OF jaiant): VL gagantem*, acc of gagas*, alteration of LL gigas, L Gigas, a Myth character (gen Gigantis): Gr gigas (rare), Gigas (gen Gigantos): o.o.o.; perh a redup (gi-ga-) of a simple ga-*, large (creature). Whereas gigantesque is adopted from EF-F, from It gigantesco (from gigante, from the L o/s gigant-), gigantic = that o/s + -ic; hence gigantism.

giour. See KAFFIR, para 2.

gib (1). See GIBBET.

gib (2), Gib, a male cat, derives from Gilbert (OF Guillebert, of Gmc origin—cf OHG Willibert, Bright Will); cf OHG Giselberht, OF Gilebert, whence the F G-. App from Gib, pet-form of Gilbert, is the surname Gibbon, whence possibly (Skeat) the ape gibbon; the ape's name, however, is adopted from F, where it is prob a distortion of Hind bojinā, from Per bōzina, monkey, as Webster suggests.

gibber, to speak with rapid unintelligibility, has derivative gibberish (-ish, n, connoting speech or language) and an origin that, like jabber, is echoic.

gibbet, a gallows, whence the v, derives from ME, from OF-F, gibet, dim of gibe, a staff, perh from Frankish gib-* or gibb-*, forked stick: cf E dial gib, a notched or hooked stick, whence perh the tech gib, a notched or tapered removable plate in a machine. Prob from E gibbet comes E jib, a crane's projecting arm.

gibbon. See the 2nd GIB.

gibbosity, gibbous.

The former comes from MF-F gibbosité, an erudite -ité (E -ity) derivative from LL gibbōsus, hunch-backed, whence MF-F gibbeux, f gibbeuse, whence E gibbous; gibbōsus derives from L gibbus, var gibber, a hump, both forms being also adj. L gibber, gibbus, are expressive words, with s gibb- and r gib-: cf Lett gibbis, hunch-backed, gibt, to be curved; perh cf Gr kuphos (κῦφος), hump, and kuphos (κῦφόος), bent forward; IE r, perh kub-, var kup-, to curve or bend. (E & M; Hofmann.)

gibe (1) or jibe, v hence n, sneer, scoff, is o.o.o.: but cf D gibelen, to giggle, to sneer, app the freq of a v giben*.

gibe (2), to agree. See JIBE.

giblets, a fowl's edible viscera, is the pl of giblet: ME gibelet: OF-MF gibelet, a dish of birds' flesh, an eased form of giberet*, dim of OF-F gibier, the chase (esp for birds), var of gibiez, from Frankish gabaiti*, cf MHG geneize, a hunting with falcons. (B & W.)

gid, a sheep's disease; giddy. See GOD, para 7.

gift. See GIVE, para 2.

gig, a whirling top, prob therefore—from its lightness and manoeuvrability—the light, two-wheeled, one-horsed carriage: echoic: cf Da gig, a whirligig (top). Whirligig = a whirly, or whirling, gig or top.

gigantic, gigantism. See GIANT, s.f. giggle, v hence n, is prob a thinning of gaggle and therefore prob akin to CKACKLE.

gigolo. See JIG, para 3.

gilbert, in El, derives from Wm Gilbert (cf the 2nd GIB), that E physician and physicist (1540–1603) who, in 1600, published De Magnete, a great work.

gild (3), to pay taxes. See YIELD.

gill (1), fish's: ME gile: cf ON gjölnar, gills, and Sw gel or gäl, jaw; more remotely cf Gr kheilos, lip, and khelane, lip, jaw: IE etymon, perh ghelnos*, r ghel-*. (Hofmann.)

gill (2), liquid measure: OF-MF gille, var gelle, a wine-measure: LL gillō, gellō, a water-pot, a large earthen vessel esp for wine, ML var gellus: perh cf Macedonian Gr gullas, a cup, and H gulla, a round (earthen) vessel.

gill (3), Gill, Gillian. See JILL.

gillie or gilly; galoot.

1. Gillie derives from Ga gille (var gillu), itself from EIr gilla (Ir giolla), all meaning boy or lad, and manservant esp if young.

2. Perh akin to these C words is galoot, varr galoot and early geloot, orig sl for a soldier (–1812), then in the Navy for an inexperienced marine (–1835). The form geloot, however, perh indicates a D origin: ? gelubt, eunuch, or (EW) a corruption of genoot, companion.

gillyflower: ME gilofre, clove: by metathesis from syn OF-F giroffe: L caryophyllon: Gr karuophullon, clove-tree: karuo-, c/f of karuon, nut (cf CAREEN) + phullon, leaf. Sem cf EF-F graflée, gillyflower, because it smells like cloves.

gilt, adj and n. See GOLD, heading.

gimbal is a mdfn (? after cymbal) of gimmel, n, which is a doublet of the adj gemel, twin, coupled, adopted from OF-MF (cf the OF jumel, MF-F jumeau), from L gemellus (s gemel-), twin, a dim of geminus (f.a.e., GEMINI). E gemel is used also as n, as in gemel hinge, but esp in pl, as in Her bars gemels, and as (obs) gemels, twins or pairs.

2. From gimbal, a pair—hence a series—of interlocking rings, and from gimbals, 'a contrivance for permitting a body to incline freely . . . or for suspending anything, as a barometer, ship's compass, etc., so that it will remain plumb' (Webster),—from these, either or both, prob comes AE (orig sl) gimmick, a secret, or a clever, device, app either influenced by gimcrack (Webster) or blended with trick.

gimcrack (n hence adj), a fanciful scheme (obs), a contrivance (obsol), a showy ornament, app cpds the now dial gim, spruce, neat + Sc and dial crack, showy or boastful lad (cf CRACK, n); gim prob eases the Sc (and dial) jimp, spruce, slender, itself o.o.o. EW, however, starts from earlier form jimcrack and ingeniously proposes an alteration '(after name Jim) from ME gibecrake, inlaid woodwork'.

gimlet: EF gimbelet: MF guimbelet, with F dim -et for D dim -kin: MF wimbelquin (F vilebrequin) or wimbelkin: MD wimmelkijn, dim of wimmel, an auger; from the MD var wimpel comes, through ONF, the ME-E wimble, gimlet, auger.

gimmel. See GIMBAL, para 1.

gimmick. See GIMBAL, para 2.

gimp. See WIMPLE, para 2.

gin (1), drink. See ADDENDA TO DICTIONARY.

gin (2), trap. See ENGINE, para 1; cf GENERAL, para 23, s.f.

gin (3), native woman, is an Aus aboriginal word.

ginger; gingerbread.

The latter is f/e for gingebras, mdfn of gingembras, from ML gingiber, from LL zingiberi, from Gr zingiberis (ζιγγίβερος), akin to—perh (Hofmann) ult from—the Pali shape (siṅgivera-) of Skt śṛṅgavera, itself perh from a Dravidian source. L gingiber is adopted by OE, to become E ginger, with intervention, in ME, from OF gingibre, gengibre, MF-F gingembre. (See esp Alan S. C. Ross's masterly monograph, Ginger, 1952.)

gingerly probably comes from OF genchor or gençor, the comp of gent, well-born, gracious, handsome, from L genitus, born, esp well-born: f.a.e., GENERAL.

gingham: F guingan: Mal giṅgañ, striped, hence a striped fabric.

gingival; gingivitis.

Gingival tacks adj -al to ML gingīva, L gingīua, usu in pl gingīuae, the gums: o.o.o. Gingivitis tacks -itis, connoting disease, to ML gingīva.

gip, to cheat. See EGYPT, para 4.

Gipsy. See EGYPT, para 3.

giraffe: EF giraffa (F girafe), adopted from It giraffa (cf Sp azorafa, a=Ar al, the): Ar zīrāfah, var zārāfah.

girandole; girasol(e). See GYRATE, para 3.

gird (1), pt and pp girded: to strike, to sneer at (also vi): ME girden: identical with the next entry: app 'first used of striking with a belt or whip, the lash circling round the one struck' (Webster).

gird (2), to encircle, esp with a belt, pt girded (or girt), pp girt: ME girden (gerden, etc.): OE gyrdan: akin to OFris gerda, OS gurdian, OHG gurtēn, G gürten, Go bigairdan, ON gyrtha: perh ult cf YARD. Hence the structural girder.

2. Intimately akin to—indeed, prob from—OE gyrdan, s gyrd-, is OE gyrdel: cf OFris gerdel, OHG gürtel, MHG-G gürtel, and ON gyrthill. The Hit gir, a girdle, suggests that OGmc gerd-, gird-, gurd-, perh represents a Gmc int -d extn of IE ger-*, gir-, gūr-, gur- (cf Gr guros), a circle, a ring.

3. Girth, orig a broad belt or strap, derives from ON girthi, gerthi, var gjörth (cf gyrtha, to encircle, gird): cf Go gairda, a girdle. Girth has an easement girt, esp in structural tech senses.

girder (structural). See prec, para 1, s.f. girdle. See the 2nd GIRD, para 2.

girl, whence girlish, derives from ME girle, varr gerle, gurle: o.o.o.: perh of C origin: cf Ga and Ir caile, EIr caile, a girl; with Anglo-Ir girleen (dim -een), a (young) girl, cf Ga-Ir cailin (dim -in), a girl. But far more prob, girl is of Gmc origin: Whitehall postulates the OE etymon gyrela* or gyrele* and adduces Southern E dial girls, primrose blossoms, and grolpp, a lout, and tentatively LG goere, a young pierson (either sex). Ult, perh, related to L puer, puella, with basic idea '(young) growing thing'.

gist. See JOIST.

gitano. See EGYPT, para 5:

gittern. See ZITHER.

give, pt gave, pp given; gift, n hence v, whence pa gifted; forgive, forgiveness; gavel (tribute), gaveler, gavelkind.

1. 'To give', ME given, is a N form of OE gifan, giefan; there has, in the ME period, been influence by ON gefa, to give. Akin are OFris jeva, OS gebhan, OHG geban, OHG-G geben, Go giban, MD-D geven: cf also OIr gabim, I take ('the same action regarded from the opposite point of view': Walshe). The C r gab-*, to take, to receive, is akin to L hab-, as in habēre, to hold, to possess.

2. The n gift, ME gift, derives from ON gíft, akin to OE gift (cf give above), OHG gift (preserved in Mitgift), OS gift, OFris jeft, jeftē, Go gifts (in cpds).

3. OE giefan, gifan, has cpd forgiefan, -gifan, ME foryiven, later forgiven, whence 'to forgive'; and OE forgifan has derivative n forgifnes, whence forgiveness.

4. Akin to OE giefan, gifan, is OE gafol, whence ME gavel, tribute, periodical fee (esp as rent), whence gavel(l)er, usurer (obs), a miner's licence (or gale, from ME gavel). ME gavel has cpd gavelkynde, E gavelkind, formerly a kind of land-tenure.

gizzard derives, with -ard substituted for -er, from ME giser: OF giser (later gisier, F gésier): VL gigērium: by b/f from L gigēria, poultry-entrails offered as sacrifice, (later) gizzard: perh of Iranian origin; perh also akin to L iecur, liver. (B & W; E & M.) glabrous, See GLAD, para 2.

glace, glacial, glaciate (glaciation), glacier, glacis.

1. L glaciēs (s glaci-, r glac-), ice, the base of this group, is akin to L gelū, a freezing, hence cold (n): f.a.e., COLD.

2. Glaciēs has relevant derivatives:

L glaciātis, icy, whence MF-F, whence E, glacial;

LL glaciāre, to freeze, with pp glaciātus, whence 'to glaciate', whence, anl, glaciation; glaciāre becomes OF-F glacer, to freeze, pp glacé, frozen, hence smooth as ice; also from glacier, glacer, comes MF-F glacis, sloping ground;

VL glacia*, ice, whence VL glaciārium*, whence F, thence E, glacier.

glad, gladly; gladden; gladness.—glade; Everglades.—glabrous.

1. The adj glad, whence 'to gladden' (-en, v suffix), derives from OE glæd, shining, bright, (hence) joyous, glad, whence both OE glædlice, E gladly, and OE glædness, E gladness: and OE glæd is akin to OS glad, OFris glad, OHG-MHG glat, shining, bright, smooth, G glatt, smooth, MD-D glad, glat, smooth, ON glathr, bright, glad; cf also OB gladiūkū, Lith glodius, smooth, and L glaber, (of face) hairless, hence smooth: perh ult akin to GLASS; cf GLIDE.

2. L glaber (whence EF-F glabre) has LL mdfns glabrus and glabrōsus, the latter prob originating the E glabrous, smooth, (of surface) hairless.

3. Glad, shining, bright, seems to have originated glade, an open—hence, sunny—space in a wood. Hence the A everglade, lit 'always, i.e. interminably, (a) glade', a low-lying, swampy region, esp in the Floridan Everglades.

gladiator (whence gladiatorial: cf LL gladiātoricus), adopted from L, derives from L gladius, a sword, with dim gladiolus (pl gladioli), little sword, hence the flower gladiolus or sword lily (cf the G Schwertlilie), so named from its sword-shaped leaves. L gladius, s gladi-, r glad-, is prob of C origin.

gladiolus. See prec.

gladly, gladness. See GLAD, para 1.

Gladstone bag. This sort of travelling bag was named in honour of W. E. Gladstone (1809–98), who, with Benjamin Disraeli (1804–81), dominated British political life for a generation. Cf the adj, hence n, Gladstonian.

glair, white of egg, hence a bookbinding paste, with adj glaireous (cf the MF-F glaireux) and glairy, derives, perh via OF-F glaire, from VL clāria*, from L clārus, bright, clear: cf CLEAR.

glamor (AE), glamour; whence adj glamorous and v glamorize.

Glamo(u)r was vogue'd by Scott for 'magic, a magical charm': on the basis of grammar in the sense usu attached to obsol gram(m)arye: 'magic, occult science', powers often, in medieval times, attributed to the learned.

glance, n, derives from 'to glance', orig to glide harmlessly from the object struck: app from OF-MF glacier, to slip or slide (prop, to freeze), from L glaciāre, to freeze: f.a.e., GLACÉ. There has app been a double intervention: prob by E GLINT (v, hence n) and perh by MHG glanst, brilliance, or MHG glanz, splendour, cf OHG glanz, brilliant, shining.

gland; glanders; glandular; glandule.

Glandular is the adj, both of gland (-ular) and of glandule (-ar), the latter from L glandula, dim of glans (o/s gland-), an acorn, hence any object shaped like an acorn. Glanders derives from MF glandres, from L glandulae, pl of glandula. Gland, an acorn (obs), whence the Bot and Aer senses, is adopted from OF-F, from L glandem, acc of glans; but the Med gland comes from EF-F glande, refashioned from MF glandre, from L glandulae. L glans (f) has r glan-: cf the balan- (contr to blan*-) of Gr balanos: IE r, perh glen*-, var guelen*- or gelen*-, as the Arm, Lith, OSI cognates suggest.

glare (v, hence n, whence adj glary; pa glaring), to shine dazzlingly, hence to look brightly and angrily (at someone): ME glaren: akin to, perh from, MD (and MLG) glaren, to glow, OE glæren, glassy, ON gler, glass. Cf glaze, q.v. at: glass (n, hence v; hence also the adj glassy); glaze (v hence n, whence adj glazy), glazier; cf the sep GLARE and, more remotely, GLOW and LURID.

ME glasier, whence glazier, derives, as also does ME glasen, whence 'to glaze', from ME glas, glass, whence obviously glass: and ME glas, var gles, derives from OE glæs, akin to OHG-MHG glas, amber, glass, G Glās, glass, OFris gles, glass, but also to OE glæor, amber, OE glæore, resin, ON gler, glass—cf GLARE; cf also L glæsum, glēsum, amber, of Gmc origin; doubtfully cf L lūridus, q.v. at LURID; less doubtfully GLAD and GLIDE.

glaucous, now usu yellowish-green, orig greenish-blue: L glaucus: Gr glaukos (? for gelaukos*), adj, bluish-green: ult from IE r gel*-, to shine brightly. glaze, glazier. See GLASS.

gleam (n, hence v); glim; glimmer (v hence n); glimpse (v hence n);—glisten; glisten; glitter (v hence n);—glee.

1. Gleam, whence the adj gleamy, comes, through ME gleam, glem, from OE glæm, akin to OS glimo, brightness, and OHG glimo, gleimo, the gleamer, i.e. a glowworm.

2. Dial and sl glim, n, is app short for glimmer, n, from 'to glimmer', from MHG glimmern—cf MHG-G glimmen, to gleam, to glow, and therefore OFris and ON glia, to glow, to shine.

3. MHG glimsen, app a freq of MHG glimmen, becomes EE glinse, whence—? influenced by 'peep' and 'appear'—'to glimpse'.

4. Akin to those E vv is 'to glisten', ME glistnen (? with t from ME gliteren), var of glisnen, from OE glisnian, to shine, esp to glisten, akin to—perh a mdfn of—the syn OE glisian, therefore to OFris glisia and OHG glizzan, MHG glizen, G gleissen, to gleam.

5. Akin to ME glistnen is ME glistren, whence 'to glister' ('All that glisters is not gold'): app glistren is a blend of glistnen and gliteren.

6. ME gliteren, whence 'to glitter', derives from ON glitra, akin to OE glitnian, OS glitan, Go glitmanjan, to shine, to gleam; also to OHG glizzan (cf para 4). With both glisten and glitter, cf MHG-G glitzern, to glitter, freq of glizen, to sparkle, itself an int of MHG glizen, G gleissen, to gleam.

7. Akin to ON and OFris glia, to shine, to glow (cf para 2), is ON glj, glee, itself intimately akin to OE glēo, ME gleo, later gle, E glee: cf also OIr glē, shining, bright, clear, and glēse, a gleam, and perh OB glēdati, to look.

8. The IE r is prob ghlei*-, to shine, with extn ghleid*-, itself with varr ghleim*-, ghleis*-, ghleit*-, with such elaborations as ghleimps*- and ghleist*-. For a notable cognate, cf Gr klidē, flashily luxurious living, hence arrogance. Ult, the word is expressive, esp pictorial.

glean, whence gleaner, derives from ME glenen: MF glener (EF-F glaner—cf OProv glenar): LL glenāre or glennāre, to gather the grain left by a reaper, hence fig: of Gaul origin—cf OIr doglinn, he gathers, dighlaim, I gather, Ga dioghlum, gleanings. The C r is glen*(n)-, to gather. glebe, with adj glebal (LL glēbālis), glebous (L glēbōsus), gleby (glebe+y): L glēba (or glæba), a small or smallish round mass, esp a clod of earth, hence soil, land: akin to CLIP, to embrace—cf Lith glebiu, I embrace. The important element is gl-: cf that of L glomus (cf GLOMERATE), app with var glemus*, any small, close-packed object (e.g., ball, skein)—that of L globus, ball, sphere—and that of L glūten (cf GLUE), as E & M have shown.

glee. See GLEAM, para 7.

gleet, Med for a morbid discharge, comes, through ME glet, glette, from OF-MF glete, glette, clay, earthy slime, pus, mucus, from ML glitem, acc of glis (o/s glit-; r gli-), clay, perh from Gr glia (r gli-), glue: akin to GLUE.

glen, a narrow (and secluded) valley: C: cf EIr glenn, glend, Ir and Ga gleann, Cor glen, glyn; OC glennos*.

glib (whence glibness), smooth or slippery, hence very, esp too, ready and fluent of speech: Gmc: cf D glibberig (r glib-), slippery, hence glib, and glibberen (r glib-), to slide. The r glib- is app a mutation from MD glid-, as in MD gliden, D glijden, to glide: cf next.

glide (v, hence n and the agent glider) descends from OE glidan, akin to OFris glida, MHG gliten, G gleiten, MD gliden, D glijden: cf OHG-MHG glat, G glatt, smooth, shining, and OE glaed, shining, joyous: therefore cf GLAD and perh GLASS.

glim; glimmer. See GLEAM, para 2.

glimpse. See GLEAM, para 3.

glint (v, hence n): ME glenten, to glance (turn aside), to gleam: of Gmc origin: cf Sw dial glinta, to slide, ON glan, brilliance, MHG glanst, brilliance, OHG glanz (adj), shining, MHG-G glanz (n), splendour.

glisten. See GLEAM, para 4.

glister. See GLEAM, para 5.

glitter. See GLEAM, para 6.

gloaming (with b/f n and v gloom): OE glömung, from OE glöm, dusk: cf GLOSS and GLOW.

gloat (v, hence n) derives from ON glotta, to smile derisively or scornfully: cf MHG-G glotzen, to stare, to gloat; perh cf OB glēdeti, to look. (Walshe.)

globe, whence global; globose; globose; globule, whence globular and globulin (Chem -in).

Globule, adopted from EF-F, comes from L globulus, dim of globus, ball, sphere, globe: f.a.e., GLEBE, s.f. Globus has adj globōsus, whence E globose, and derivative globāre, to make a ball of, pp globātus, whence E globeate.

glomerate, glomeration. See CLAM.

gloom, v, hence n, whence gloomy; glower, v, hence n; glum.

1. 'To gloom' derives from ME gloumen, akin to MD gloemen, glomen, (vi, vt) to obscure, and MD gloem, gloom, cloudy, hazy, MLG glomen, to render turbid; cf para 3.

2. Akin to MD gloemen, glomen, are D gluren, MLG glüren, to leer, and EFris gluren, to look sharply at: from this implied Gmc source app comes 'to glower'.

3. ME gloumen has var glomen, to look sullen: whence the E adj glum.

Gloria. See GLORY, para 1.

glorify; glorious. See paras 2, 3 of:

glory, glorious, glorify, glorification; Gloria, whence elaboration Gloriana.

1. Gloria, PN, merely personifies L glōria (s glōri-, r glōr-), renown, fame, esp if good: o.o.o.: ? for gnōria* (s gnōri-, r gnōr-), a being known—cf ignore, not to know.

2. L glōria becomes OF-MF, whence ME, glorie, whence E glory. (Cf the F gloire.) Its adj is glōriōsus, whence OF-MF glorious (var glorios), adopted by E; cf the F glorieux.

3. L glōria has LL cpd glōrificus, glory-making, glorious, whence LL glōrificāre, to render glorious, whence OF-F glorifier, whence 'to glorify'; cf the element -fic, L -ficus, c/f of facere, to make, to render.

gloss (1), lustre (n, hence v), whence the adj glossy: Gmc: cf MHG glosen, to glow, and Ice glossi, a blaze: perh an int of the OGmc r of GLOW.

gloss (2), interpretation, hence v: ME, from OF-F, glose: L glōssa, a hard word needing to be made clear: syn Gr glōssa, prop the tongue, hence language, Attic glōtta: akin to Gr glōkhis (s glōkh-, r glōk-), a (projecting) point, as is the tongue: orig an expressive, a pictorial word. The adj are glossal and glottal.

2. L glōssa has derivative glōssārium, a store (connoted by -ārium) of words, hence E glossary. 'To gloze' derives from ME glosen, to explain, from OF-F gloser, from OF-F glose.

3. Attic Gr glōtta has derivative adj glōttikos, whence glottic, and derivative n glōttis, whence SciL-ScE glottis, with cpd epiglottis (adj epiglottal)—Gr epiglōttis.

glossy. See the 1st GLOSS.

glottal, glottic, glottis. See the 2nd GLOSS, esp para 3.

glove (whence glover): ME glove, earlier glofe: OE glōf, akin to ON glōfi, glove—cf ON lōfi, palm of the hand: f.a.e., LUFF.

glow (v, hence n)—whence glow-worm—derives from OE glōwan, akin to OHG gluōen, MHG glüejēn, G glühen, MD gloeyen, gloyen, D gloeyen, ON glōa, and to OFris and ON glia. Cf GLOAMING.

glower, to look scowlingly. See GLOOM, para 2.

gloze, n and v. See the 2nd GLOSS, para 2. glucose, whence glucoside (Chem -ide); glycerin (or -ine).

Glucose, adopted from F, comes irreg from Gr gleukos (s gleuk-), must, sweet wine, akin to Gr glukos (s gluk-), sweet, which has mdfn glukeros (s gluker-, r gluk-), whence F glycérine, whence E glycerine (Chem -ine), with var glycerin. Gr glukus is prob for dhlukus*—cf L dulcis, q.v. at DULCET.

glue, n, v; hence adj gluey; gluten, glutinous, glutinate, glutinative; agglutinate, agglutination, agglutinative—cf deglutinate, deglutination.

1. 'To glue' comes from OF-MF gluer, itself from OF-F glu, whence the E n glue: and OF glu derives from LL glūs (s glū-), o/s glūt-; glūs derives from L glūtis, var of glūten, glue, adopted by E, with derivative sense 'the adhesive element in dough'. Now, the effective element of glūten is gl-, with varr gle-, glo-, glu-: cf GLEBE, s.f. Also cf CLAY.

2. Glūten, o/s glūtīn-, has two derivatives relevant to E:

glūtīnōsus, whence glutinous;

glūtīnāre, to glue, pp glūtīnātus, whence 'to glutinate', whence glutination; on pp s glūtīnāt- is formed LL glūtīnātīvus, ML -īvus, sticky, whence glutinative.

3. Two cpds of glūtīnāre concern E:

agglūtīnāre, to glue ad, to or against, with pp agglūtīnātus, whence the adj and v agglutinate, whence agglutination and agglutinative; dēglūtīnāre, to remove the glue de or from, to unstick, with pp dēglūtīnātus, whence 'to deglutinate', whence deglutination.

glum. See GLOOM, para 3.

glut (v, hence n), to satiate: ME glotten, to satiate: MF-EF glotir, gloutir, to swallow, cf the derivative MF glozier, to eat greedily: L glutire, glutire, to swallow, s glut-. The ME glotten was influenced by ME glut, a glutton, itself from OF glout, glot, glos, gluttonous, a glutton, the noun of OF gloton, glutien, glouton (extant), whence ME gloton, gluton, whence E glutton (whence adj gluttonous); derivative MF gloutonnie, glotonie, lead, through ME glotonie, etc., to E gluttony. OF-F glouton, OF gloton, gluton, represents L glutōnem, glutōnem, acc of glut(t)ō, a glutton, with o/s glut(t)ōn-. L glut(t)ō, akin to L glutire, to swallow, derives from L gluttus, throat, gullet, itself akin to glutire.

gluten; glutinate, glutinative, glutinous. See GLUE, para 2.

glutton, gluttony. See GLUT.

glycerin(e). See GLUCOSE. Cf the element glyco-, glyph, glyphic; glyptic.

The Gr gluphein (s gluph-), to carve, has pp gluptos, whence the adj gluptikos, concerned with carving, whence F glyptique, whence E glyptic. Gluphein has derivative n gluphē, a carving, whence E glyph, a carved figure, a sculptural pictograph. F.a.e., CLEAVE, to split.

gnarled, knotty, twisted, is a var of knurled, prop the pp of 'to knurl', from knurl, a small excrescent knot, dim of knur, (a tree's) hard, knotty excrescence, from ME knorre, of Gmc origin, with cognates in D and G: cf MHG knoche, knot in a tree. Of the various Gmc nn beginning with kno-, Walshe has remarked that they all mean 'something hard, prominent & lumpy'.

gnash: ME gnasten, gnaisten, with -h for -t-, prob an with late ME-E CLASH: cf ON gnista (? for gnaista*), Fris gnastern, to gnash, and ON gnastan, a gnashing: ult ehoic.

gnat; gnaw; to nag and to gnatter or natter.

1. Gnat (whence the gnat-catcher birds) comes straight from OE gnaet, akin to OE gnidan, to rub, ON gnit, and LG gnatte, a gnat.

2. Akin to gnat is gnaw (pt gnawed, pp gnawn), ME gnawen, OE gnagan: cf OHG gnagan, MHG gnagen, MHG-G nagen, and ON gnaga, to gnaw: ult ehoic.

3. Akin to gnaw, esp in its gnag-, nag- forms, is 'to nag', to gnaw (now dial), hence to irritate by petty scolding and fault-finding: prob imm of Scan origin.

4. Akin to dial gnatter, to talk much and idly, to grumble persistently, now usu spelt natter (also sl): clearly influenced by CHAT and its derivative chatter.

gnathal, gnathic, -gnathous: adj from Gr gnathos, jaw, as is gnathism: f.a.e., the element -gnatha.

gnatter. See GNAT, para 4.

gnaw. See GNAT, para 2.

gneiss; ganister.

The latter comes from G dial ganster, which, like G Gneiss (whence E gneiss), varr Gneis and esp Gneist, derives, because of its lustre, from MHG ganeiste, a spark, itself from OHG gneisto, akin to QN gneistl and OE gnást.

gnome (1), a fabled tiny being, is adopted from EF-F, which takes it from Paracelsus's C16 L gnomus, perh from Gr gnomē, intelligence: gnomes are reputedly intelligent (B & W). Therefore cf:

gnome (2), a maxim; gnomic; gnomon, gnomonic; gnosis, gnostic, Gnosticié, Gnosticism; agnostic (adj hence n), agnosticism; diagnose, diagnosis, diagnostic, diagnostician; prognosis, prognostic (adj and), prognosticate, prognostication, prognosticator.

1. Dissyllabic gnome, a maxim, is Gr gnōmē, intelligence, hence an expressed example thereof. Gnōmē has adj gnōmikos, whence, perh via LL gnōmicus, the E gnomic.

2. The s gnōm- occurs also in Gr gnōmōn, a knower, hence a sundial's index (knower of time) and a carpenter's square; hence the erudite, Sci, tech E gnomon. The Gr adj gnōmonikos becomes L gnōmonicus, whence E gnomonic.

3. The s gnōm- has r gnō-, as in Gr gnōsis, knowledge, a seeking to know, a means of knowing: hence erudite E gnosis and Med and Psy -gnosis.

4. Gr gnōsis has adj gnōstikos, excellent at knowing, whence LL gnosticus, whence E gnostic, esp in Gnostic, whence Gnosticism, a philosophico-religious cult.

5. Agnostic, however, is formed differently: Gr agnōstos, unknown, hence unknowing: a- not+ gnōstos, known, var of gnōtos (cf L nōtus)+E -ic. Hence agnosticism.

6. 'To diagnose' is a b/f of diagnosis, from Gr diagnōsis, from diagignōskein, to distinguish, lit to know dia, through. Derivative Gr diagignōstikos, able to distinguish, yields diagnostic, adj (hence n), whence diagnostician: cf technician from technic.

7. Prognosis, adopted from LL, derives from Gr prognōsis, a knowing pro- or beforehand, a forecast, esp in Med. Derivative Gr adj prognōstikos becomes ML prognosticus, whence the E adj prognostic; the n prognostic derives, through F and ML, from Gr prognōstikon, prop the neu of the adj. The ML prognosticum (prop the neu of the adj) has derivative prognosticāre, to foretell (a medical condition) from the symptoms, hence to predict in general; the pp prognosticātus yields 'to prognosticate'; derivative ML prognosticātō, o/s prognosticātion-, yields, perh via F, prognostication; prognosticator is an anl E formation.

8. The Gr ss gnōm-, gnōs-, gnōt-, all come from Gr gignōskein, (obviously a redup of the gnōskein attested by Epirote Gr), to know: cf the syn OL gnōscere, L nōscere, OIr gnāth (cf Gr gnōtos), known, OHG knāu, I know; cf Skt jānāmi, I know; cf also E CAN (where, at para 5, cf know).

gnomon. See prec, para 2.

gnosis; gnostic. See the 2nd GNOME, paras 3-4.

gnu comes from nqu in the language of the Cape Bushmen of Safr.

go, pt went (see wend), pp gone (OE gān); forego, whence foregoing, foregone; forgo, pt forwent, pp forgone; outgo (out, prep+go), whence outgoing, adj hence n.—Cf the distantly related, sep treated heir (hereditary, inherit, etc.).

1. 'To go' (whence the coll n go) comes, through ME gon, earlier gan, from OE gān: cf OFris and OS gān, OHG-MHG gān, gēn, G gehen (an extn), Crimean Go geen: IĒ r, perh ghē-*, as in Gr kikhēmi, I reach, cf Skt jihīte, he goes forth. (Walshe.)

2. 'To forego' (to go fore or before, to precede) derives from OE foregān; cf the G vorgehen.

3. 'To forgo' (to go for- or without) derives from OE forgān; cf the G vergehen, to go past, pass away, transgress.

goad. See GAR, para 4.

goal (whence goalkeeper, coll goalie) derives from ME gol, o.o.o.; but cf OE gāelan, to hinder. EW cfs, sem, L mēta, limit, boundary, hence goal.

goanna, occ goana, is an at first coll form of (a confused Bio confusion with) IGUANA.

goat, goatee, goatish.

Goatish merely tacks adj -ish to goat, as goatee tacks -ee thereto, this particular style of beard (tufted on the chin) resembling a he-goat's beard. Goat, ME goot, var gat, derives from OE gāt. akin to OHG-MHG geiz, G Geiss, she-goat, Go gāits (cf gaitain, kid), ON geit, the Gmc r being app gait-*: cf L haedus, he-goat, young goat (kid), the IĒ r being app ghaid-* (Walshe).

gob (1), mouth. See GAB. Cf:

gob (2), a lump: OF-MF gobe: app from a Gallo-Roman gob* (cf Ir gob, mouth), whence MF-EF gobet, a mouthful, whence E gobbet.

gobbet. See prec.

gobble (1), echoic, as of a turkey cock. See GAB.

gobble (2), to eat hastily, is a freq, formed from gob*, to swallow, from MF-F gober, from OF-MF gobe, as at the 2nd GOB. Cf:

goblet: ME, from MF-F, gobelet, dim (-et) of OF gobel, itself a dim (-el) of Gallo-Roman gob*, as at the 2nd GOB, this C origin (B & W) being more prob than derivation from LL cuppa (CUP).

goblin; ME, from MF-F, gobelin: ML gobelinus, app either a dim of VL-ML cobalus, from Gr kobalos, an outright knave, hence in pl mischievous sprites ('invoked by rogues': L & S), or, less prob, from MHG kobolt (G Kobold: cf COBALT), a familiar sprite, itself ult from kobalos.

goby; gudgeon.

The latter, ME gojon, comes from MF-F goujon, from L gōbiōnem, acc of gōbiō; the L var gōbius indicates origin in Gr kōbios, app of Medit stock (Hofmann). The L o/s gōbi- leads to E goby. Easily caught, the gudgeon acquires the secondary sense, a simpleton. The tech, esp naut, gudgeon app results from a confusion of MF-F gond, hinge, with MF-F goujon.

God, god (whence goddess); godhead; godlike, godly (whence godliness); godfather and godmother — goddaughter and godson; godsend; good-by (or -bye), good day and night; Godspeed; Golly, Gosh!; gospel; gossip (n, hence v) and sib; gid—giddy;—bigot (whence bigoted), bigotry;—such PNN as Goddard, Godfrey, Godwin, not treated here.

1. The Supreme Being God is 'the god': and god, OE god, is akin to OFris, OS, MD (var got) -D god, OHG-MHG got, G Gott, Go guth, ON goth, guth: perh orig 'the (one, the being, hence the deity) invoked': Walshe cfs the 'Skt -hūta (for ghūta*) "invoked" (deity)', huta being the pp of havate, he calls upon (a god); perh cf also Ga and OIr guth, voice, OC gutus* (r gut-*).

2. Godlike, which=god+adj -like, is a doublet of godly, which=god+-ly (OE -lic), like. So godless=god+-less, without. Godhead derives from ME godhed, which=god+abstract -hed, -head.

3. The god- relationships imply 'in God', not by blood:

goddaughter: OE goddohtor—cf DAUGHTER; godson: OE godsunu—cf SON; godfather: OE godfaeder—cf FATHER; godmother: OE godmōdor—cf MOTHER.

4. A godsend is for earlier God's send, God's sending or message (ME sande, OE sand, cf sendan, to send); cf SEND, para 2. As Godspeed or God-speed is a contr of God speed you, God prosper you!, so good-bye (later -by)=God bwy, for God bw'ye, for God be wi' ye, i.e. God be with ye! Cf good day, for God give you a good day; good morning (morrow), God give you a good morning (to-morrow's day); good night, God give you a good night; and so forth.

5. Exclamatory gosh, orig Gosh, is euphem for God; cf the old-fashioned Gad and its cpd begad (by God), the latter worn down to egad; cf the childish golly.

6. With begad perh cf bigot, adopted from OF-F. In C12, bigot was an insult addressed by Frenchmen to Normans; the word then went underground for three centuries. OF bigot prob, but no more than prob, represents OE-ME bi god (or God). The sense 'superstitious hypocrite' (hence that of 'religious fanatic') perh comes from the violent contrast between rough, uncivilized men's religious invocations and their crude behaviour; cf the C14 F godon, Englishman, from his addiction to God damn (it). Derivative late MF-F bigoterie accounts for E bigotry.

7. The god- terms are straightforward; the good-, easily discernible. But gid and giddy, like gospel and gossip, are much less obvious. Gid, a disease affecting sheep, is a b/f from giddy, a notable symptom being the animal's tendency to run about in circles until it falls: and giddy, ME gidi, silly, mad, derives from OE gydig, mad: lit, possessed (connoted by adj suffix -ig) by a god (gyd*, as attested in OE gyden, a goddess): cf, sem, enthusiastic.

8. Whereas gospel, ME gospel, earlier godspel, derives from OE godspell, perh god-spell, God's tidings, but prob god spell, good tidings (cf GOOD and SPELL, n), gossip (ME gossib, earlier godsisb) derives from OE godsisb, a person spiritually related to God. Obsol sib, related, derives from OE sibb; sib, a relation, derives from OE sibb, var gesib. OE sibb, -sib, is akin to OHG sippa, MHG sippe, consanguinity, G Sippe, one's kin, and esp to OFris siibe, cf OS siibea (or -ia) and Go sibja; perh cf also Skt sahā, a village community— notoriously inter-related. (Walshe.) goffer. Cf gauffer and gopher, but see WEAVE, para 7.

goggle, goggles. See JIG, para 6.

Goidelic. See GAEL.

goiter, goitre; adj goitrous.

1. The adj derives from F goitreux, f goitreuse, from goitre, adopted by E and Americanized as goiter. The EF(-F) goitre, borrowed from a dial of the Rhone valley, is a b/f from OF-EF goitron, throat, gullet, which, in the MF of SE France, took the sense 'goitre', a thyroid-gland protuberance on the neck. OF goitron derives from VL gutturionem*, acc of gutturio*, from L guttur, throat. (Dauzat.)

2. From L guttur, EF learnedly derives the adj guttural, adopted by E and derivatively used also as n. Guttur is o.o.o.—but (B & W) it strikingly resembles Hit kuttar (dat kuttani), neck, itself perh akin to Hit kuttas (dat kutti), side or wall.

gold (n, hence adj)—goldsmith; golden—Golden Age, the;—gild, v, pp gilded or gilt, the latter used derivatively, now usu as n; gall; guild, gulden.—yellow (adj, hence n and v); yolk.

1. Gold, OE gold, is akin to OFris, OS, OHG and G gold, Go gulth, ON gull; Gmc r, gulth*; IE r, gholt-, var ghelt-, extn of ghel-, var ghol-. The IE r ghel-* (var ghol-*) is seen in OS and OHG geolo, MHG gel, G gelb, yellow, akin to OE geolo, geolu, ME yelwe, later yellow, E yellow, and to ON gull, gold, gulr, yellow. Cf, further, L heluus (adj), pale-yellow, and Gr khloos (s khlo-, ? for khelo-*), a greenish-yellow colour (cf the sep CHLORAL-CHLORINE group), and Skt hari, yellow, and hiranya, gold.

2. OE geolu (s geol-) yellow, has derivative geoleca, contr to geolca, whence ME yelke, later yolke, whence E yolk, the yellow part of an egg.

3. Intimately akin to OE geolu is OE gealla, ME galla, gal, E gall, bile; cf OHG and OS galla, G Galle, ON gal; cf also L fel and Gr khole (cf the sep CHOLER and, at the element mela-, melano-, the cpd melancholy).

4. To return to gold: the cpds are self-evident; goldsmith, however, descends straight from OE and has an id OFris cognate.

5. ME gold has adj golden; the var ME gulden derives from OE gylden. E golden appears in many fig terms, as, e.g., the golden age, imitative of L aureus, golden, used with aetās, age, or saecula, centuries, or tempus, time.

6. OE gold has derivative v gyldan, to overlay thinly with gold, hence as if with gold; hence 'to gild'. (For gilt, cf heading.)

7. D and G gulden, golden, hence a gold coin, has—but only in E—the monetary var guilder. The MHG guldēn is elliptical for guldēn phenninc, lit 'golden penny'.

goldfinch. See FINCH.

golf first occurs in late ME and app comes from MD colf (var colve: cf D kolf), a club: cf MD colven, to play a game with clubs or sticks, and OHG kolbo, MHG kolbe, G Kolben, ON kolfr, a club: ult, therefore, golf is prob akin to CLUB.—Golf has derivative 'to golf', whence golfer.

Golgotha. See CALVARY.

golland. See GOWAN.

goliwog, better goliwogg, derives from Golliwogg, a fanciful name—? after polliwog, (now mostly AE for) a tadpole, ME polwige (it wiggles its poll or head)—for the shaggy-haired, rather grotesque black doll of the Goliwogg books illustrated, the first in 1895, by Florence K. Upton and written by her mother, Bertha Upton; the last of them appeared in 1909. Florence Upton was born, of British parents, in the U.S.A., where the Goliwogg books were first published.

Golly, golly. See GOD, para 5.

gombeen man. See CHANGE, para 1.

gondola, general It from Venetian, either (B & W) a dim from Gr kondu, a vase (cf, sem, OF-F vaisseau, E vessel, q.v. at VASE), or, more prob (Prati), imitative of the craft's motion, from Venetian gondolare*, to undulate, perh an alteration of dondolare, to rock or swing, vi dondolarsi. (The ML gondula occurs, at Venice, before the year 1094.) Derivative It gondoliere becomes EF-F gondolier, adopted by E.

2. It dondolare has an obs var dandolare, s dandol-, whence 'to dandle'.

gone. See GO, heading.

gonfalon or gonfanon. See FEND, para 2.

gong is either Javanese gon or the likewise echoic Mal gun; perh it derives from both.

gonidium; gonophore, gonorrhoea. See, in Elements, the 2nd -gon.

good (adj, hence adv and n), goodly, goodness.

The 3rd derives from OE gōdnes (cf -ness); the 2nd from OE gōdlic (cf adj -ly); both OE words from OE gōd, whence the adj good. OE gōd is akin to OFris and OS gōd, Go iōths, OHG-MHG guot (G gut), ON gōthr: basic gdea, 'suitable'—cf OSI godu, a suitable time, and goditi, to be suitable (hence, pleasing).

good-by(e); good day (night, etc.). See GOD, para 4.

goody, coll adj hence n, is a pet-form (-y, -ie) of the adj GOOD, perh influenced by goodly.

googly. See JIG, para 7.

goon, a thug: a word coined by comic-strip artist E. C. Segar (†1939), his Goons being subhuman creatures: prob a blend of gorilla+baboon, or perh of goof+baboon.

goose. See GANDER, para 3; GOOSEBERRY, id., para 5.

gopher. See WEAVE, para 8.

gore (1), of land. See GAR, para 2.

gore (2), slime, filth (obs), hence clotted blood: OE gor, dirt, filth, akin to OHG and ON gor, also Ga gur, a festering, and OIr gur, W gôr, pus, OC goru-*. (MacLennan).—Hence the adj gory (-y).

gore (3), to pierce or stab (obs), hence (of a horned beast) to wound, perh derives from ME gore, var of gare, OE gār, a spear.

gorge, n and v—cf disgorge; ? gorgeous; gorget; ingurgitate, ingurgitation—regurgitate, re- gurgitation; gurgle, q.v. at sep GARGLE, para 2; for garget, see GARGLE, para 1; for gargoyles, see id., para 3; jargon, n and v; sep DEVOUR and sep VORACIOUS.

1. 'To gorge' is to fill one's gorge or throat, gullet: MF-F gorger, from OF-F gorge, throat, from VL gorga*, from LL gurga, gullet, from L gurgēs, whirlpool, abyss, and, in popular L, gullet (to judge by, e.g., ingurgitāre), with s gurg-; IE s, gurg-*, var garg- (cf GARGLE), app an extn of gur-, gar-: ult echoic. Cf VORACIOUS.—Gorge, a rocky ravine, derives, via F, from L gurgēs, abyss.

2. 'To disgorge' comes from MF desgorger (F dégorger): des- (L dis-)+gorger.

3. 'To ingurgitate' comes from L ingurgitātus, pp of ingurgitāre, to pour into the gorges or gullet; derivative LL ingurgitātiō, o/s ingurgitātiōn-, yields ingurgitation: cf regurgitation, from ML regurgitātiō, itself from ML regurgitātus (whence 'to regurgitate'), pp of regurgitāre: re-, back+LL gurgitāre, to swallow, from L gurgēs.

4. OF-F gorge, throat, has the MF dim gorgete (cf F gorget), a piece of throat-armour; whence E gorget.

5. OF-F gorge, throat, has derivative gorgiās, a neckerchief, a ruff, with which late MF-EF gorgiās, vain, ultra-fashionable, might ult be id; DAF, however, derives the adj gorgiās—whence E gorgeous—from the Ancient Gr rhetorician Gorgias, notorious for luxurious living and ornate oratory.

6. The IE s garg- (para 1), has, in F, the var arg-, as in OF-F jargon, OF var gargon, any noise made in the throat, as the warbling of birds, the modern sense arising in late MF: the former sense was adopted by ME (e.g., Chaucer), the latter by E. OF-F jargon has OF-F derivative jargonner, whence 'to jargon', now obsol.

gorgeous. See prec, para 5.

gorget. See GORGE, para 4.

gorgon, any terrifying or very ugly person, esp woman, derives from Gorgon, one (esp Medusa) of three horrifying, snaky-haired sisters in Gr mythology: Gr Gorgō, gen Gorgonos: an -ō suffix (connoting 'person' or 'being') derivative of Gr gorgos, terrible, horrifying, s gorg-: akin to OIr garg, wild and fierce, and Arm karer, hard, bold, strong. (Hofmann.) MĪr and OSI cognates suggest an IE r greg-* (Boisacq). The adj is gorgonesque.

gorilla is a SciL b/f from Gr gorillai, 'hairy humans', mentioned, in C5 B.C., by Hanno the Carthaginian voyager as an African word—i.e., West African.

gormandize (n, hence v); gormand (adj, hence n), gormandize; gourmet; groom (n, whence v)—cf bridegroom, q.v. at BRIDE.

Gormandize, gluttony, is obs; gormandize, art and delight of eating, is rare for its original, the MF-F gormandise (abstract -ise), from the MF-F gourmand, greedy, perh an alteration of late MF gourmet, by metathesis from MF gromet, a servant, esp a wine-merchant's, whence gourmet, with derivative sense (first in C16) 'wine-taster, connoisseur of wine, hence epicure'. OF gromet, which is o.o.o., becomes late ME grome, then grom, whence groom, orig a servant, esp if young (cf, sem, KNIGHT)—but for the groom of bridegroom, see HOMO.

gossoun eases garsoon, 'English' for F garçon, boy, (young) manservant.

got. See GET.

Goth, Gothic (adj, hence n; hence also Gothicism and Gothicize); Ostrogoth and Visigoth.

1. Goth derives—prob not via F gothique—from LL Gothicus (for Gotthicus), adj of LL Gothi, better Gotthi, the Goths, from Gr Gothoi, better Gotthoi (Γότθοι), app from the Go s Gut- in Gutthiuda, the Gothic people: cf OSw Gutan- and ML Gutani: perh 'the good people'.

2. Ostrogoth, an East Goth, comes from LL Ostrogothae or -gothi, earlier Austrogoti, of Gmc origin—prob 'the splendid Goths, taken later as, the eastern Goths' (Webster). Cf Visigoth, from ML Visigothi, LL Uisigothi, of Gmc origin—lit 'the noble (or good) Goths' (LL Uisi—being akin to Skt vasu, good), apprehended later, by f/e, as the western Goths. (See esp Feist.)

gouge (n, hence v) is adopted from OF-F, which takes it from LL gubia, a hollowed chisel (Souter): prob of C origin—cf OIr gulban (s gulb-), var gulpan, OW gilbin, Ga guilib (gen gulbann), a beak; OC gulbanos*. (MacLennan.)

gourd; cucurbit.

Gourd comes from MF-F gourde, a contr derivative of L cucurbita, whence obviously cucurbit, a flask shaped like a gourd, also a common field pumpkin. L cucurbita is akin to—perh ult from—Skt carbhaṭas, this being no 'doubtless accidental coincidence' (E & M)! It is app a Medit word: Eg shows garagantesi, gourd, pumpkin.

gourmand, gourmet. See GORMANDIZE.

gout (whence gouty), orig as 'gout of blood', later in Med sense, OF-MF goute, var of OF-F goutte, from L gutta, a drop of water, blood, etc.: r gut-, ? akin to the syn Arm kat'n (E & M): prob imitative.

2. OF goute, a drop, has derivative OF-MF gutiere, goutiere (F gouttière), lit a receptacle (connoted by -iere, F -ière) for drops of water, a course—an open pipe—for rainwater on a roof or in a road: hence ME gotere, later gutere: hence E gutter (whence 'to gutter'). Hence the at first sl guttersnipe, a 'snipe' of the roadway gutters.

govern, -ance, -ess, -ment, -or; Gouverneur; gubernatorial; cybernetics.

1. 'To govern' comes from OF-MF governer (F gou-): L gubernāre (s gubern-), to steer or pilot, hence to govern: syn Gr kubernan, perh of Medit stock, if neither Thracian nor Macedonian; perh cf Skt kubhanyūs (s kubhan-), adj 'dancing, pirouetting' (steering one's steps). The derivatives MF governance, MF governesse, OF-MF gouvernement, OF-MF gouverneur, account for the next four words; Gouverneur (Morris) is the F gouverneur.

2. L derivative gubernāculum (suffix -aculum) is adopted by An; agent gubernātor leads to E gubernatorial (adj -ial).

3. Gr kubernan, to steer, control, has derivative adj kubernētikos, skilled in steering, etc., whence, as if from ta kubernētika*, the modern cybernetics, the science of vast computators and 'mechanical brains'.

gowan derives from North Country dial gowlan, gollan (whence E golland), varr of golding, a gold-coloured or -centred, usu field-, flower: f.a.e., GOLD.

gown (n, hence v): ME goune: OF-MF gone, var of OF-EF gonne: LL gunna, a leather garment, app of Gaul origin.

graal. See GRAIL.

grab (v, whence n); grabble.

The latter derives from MD grabbelen, freq of graben—whence 'to grab'. Cf ÖSI grabiti, to seize, and Skt grbhpati, he seizes.

grace (n and v), whence directly graceful and graceless—cf disgrace (n, v), whence disgraceful; gracious, graciously; obs adj grate, grateful, gratitude—cf ingrate (adj, hence n), ingratitude—cf also ingratiate, whence, anl, ingratiating, ingratiatory; gratify, gratification; gratis, gratuitous, gratuity; obsol gratulate, gratulation, gratulatory—cf congratulate, congratulation, congratulatory.

1. Grace, adopted from OF-MF (F grâce), derives from L grātia, gratitude, something that merits gratitude, a service rendered, hence influence, credit, favour, from grātus, received with favour, agreeable, (also) conscious of favour, prob akin to Skt gūrāds, celebrated (in religious sense), pleasing, dear, glr (gen girās), a song of praise, grādi, he sings of, praises, and Lith girtl, to praise, and girtas, celebrated, dear. (E & M, after Walde.)

2. OF grace has derivative MF gracier, whence 'to grace'.

3. L grātia becomes It grazia, whence disgrazia (L dis-), whence EF-F disgrâce, whence E disgrace; and It disgrazia has derivative disgraziare, whence EF-F disgracier, whence 'to disgrace'.

4. L grātia (s grāti-) has derivative adj grātiosus, in favour, amiable, whence OF-MF gracious (whence F gracieux), adopted by E. Derivative late MF-F gracieuseté leads to E graciously, much rarer than graciousness (gracious + -ness).

5. L grātus becomes the long-obs E grate, agreeable, grateful, whence grateful itself; gratitude, however, perh via MF-F, comes from LL grātitudō (from grātus).

6. L grātus has neg ingrātus (in-, not), whence MF-F ingrat, f ingrate, whence E ingrate; derivative LL ingrātitudō yields, perh via MF-F, the E ingratitude. But 'to ingratiate' is an E formation—a cpd of in, into + gratia, favour: to bring into favour, usu reflexively (ingratiate oneself).

7. L grātus has the cpd grātificus, favour-making, gratitude-causing (cf the element -fic), with derivative grātificāri, to render a service to, to please by doing so, whence MF-F gratifier, whence 'to gratify'; derivative L grātificatiō, o/s grātificatiōn-, yields—perh via MF-F—gratification.

8. L grātia has abl pl grātīis, with favours, graciously, freely; its contr grātīs, used as adv, has been adopted in various IE languages.

9. App from a lost s gratu- comes L grātūitus, freely rendered (cf fortūitus from fort-, o/s of fors, chance): whence E gratuitous (cf the late MF-F gratuit). Derivative ML grātūitās, o/s grātūitāt- (cf the late MF-F gratuité), accounts for E gratuity, orig graciousness, a gracious act, debased to a tip or even a bribe.

10. L grātia has derivative grātulāri, to render thanks (to the gods), to felicitate, with presp grātulans, o/s grātulant-, whence the literary adj gratulant, and with pp grātulātus, whence 'to gratulate'; derivative grātulātiō, o/s grātulātiōn-, becomes gratulation, and LL grātulātōrius becomes gratulatory.

11. Grātulāri has cpd congrātulāri, to felicitate warmly (con- implies 'thoroughly'), with presp congrātulans, whence the adj congratulant, and pp congrātulātus, whence 'to congratulate'; derivative congrātulātiō, o/s congrātulātiōn-, yields, perh via EF-F, congratulation; congratulatory is an anl E formation.

gracile, gracility.

The latter derives, perh via late MF-F gracilité, from L gracilitās, o/s gracilitāt-, from gracilis, slender, esp gracefully slender, whence, perh via F, the E gracile. Gracilis, s gracil-, app has r grac-; cf gracientes, presp pl of a v gracere: o.o.o.

grade (n, hence v)—cf gradus; gradate, gradation (whence gradational); gradient; gradual (whence gradualism, gradualness); graduate (n and v), graduation, graduato; gressorial.—Cpds: aggradation—aggress, aggression, aggressive, aggressor; congress (and Congress), congression (whence congressional), congressive; degrade, degradation—degree, degression, degressive; digress, digression, digressive or digressory; egress, egression; ingredience, ingredient—ingress, ingression, ingressive; introgression; progress (n, hence v), progession (whence progressional, progressionism and progressionist, cf progressism), progressive (whence progressivism, -ist); regress (n and v), regression, regressive, regressor; retrograde (adj and v), retrogradation—retrogress (v), retrogression, retrogressive; transgress, transgression, transgressive, transgressor.

1. Grade, a step, a stage, adopted from EF-F, comes from L gradus (gen gradūs; s grad-), intimately akin to L gradī (s grad-), to step, walk, go, seen in the -gradient, -gree, -gress cpds: both n and v are akin to Av aiwi-geredmahi, we begin, OSi grędo, I come, Lith grįdyti, to go, to walk; app there are cognates in C (gred-) and in Go. (E & M.)

2. Gradus survives in E mostly as an ellipsis of Gradus ad Parnassum, A Step to, or a Stage towards, Parnassus, the title of a once-famous book on Latin versification.

3. L gradus has derivative gradātiō, o/s gradātiōn-, whence (perh via MF-F) gradation, whence, by b/f, 'to graduate'.

4. Also from L gradus come the ML adj gradūlis, whence E gradual (adj, whence n), and the ML v graduāre, to admit to a ML gradus or degree, with gerundive graduandus, whence Sc graduand, one about to receive a degree, and with pp graduātus, whence both 'a graduate' and 'to graduate', the derivative graduātiō, o/s graduātiōn-, yielding graduation; graduator is an anl E formation.

5. L gradī, to step, walk, go, has presp gradiens, o/s gradiēn-, whence the adj—hence, in turn, the n—gradient. The pp gressus, s gress-, prompts the Zoo Gressoria and gressorial, adapted for walking.

Compounds

6. Aggradation (adj in -al)=ag- for ad-, to+ gradation. The L cpd agredi, to approach, hence to assail, has pp aggressus, whence 'to aggress'; derivative agressiō, o/s agressiōn-, becomes EF aggression (F agression), adopted by E—hence, anl, aggressive (cf F agressif); derivative LL aggressor is adopted by E (cf F agresseur, MF agresseur).

7. L concredi, to walk, go (hence, come), con or together, has pp congressus, with s congress-, whence the n congressus (gen -ūs), whence E congress, often particularized to Congress. Whereas congression, from congressiōn-, o/s of derivative L congressiō, is obs, its E derivative adj congressional thrives; congressive is an anl E formation.

8. Whereas degression (whence anl degressive) comes from L dēgressiō, from dēgress-, s of dēgressus, pp of dēgredi, to go down, degradation comes from LL dēgradātiō (o/s dēgradātiōn-), a reduction in rank, from dēgradātis, pp of LL dēgradāre, to reduce in rank, whence, via EF dēgrader (F dé-), the E 'to degrade'.

9. LL dēgradāre has derivative VL dēgradus*, whence OF degret, soon degré, whence, via ME degre, the E degree. More prob, however, the OF degret, degré=de+gret, gré, step, without recourse to LL or VL.

10. L digredi (di- for dis-, apart), to walk, go, apart, has pp digressus, whence 'to digress'; derivative digressiō, o/s digressiōn-, passes through OF-F and ME to become E digression, whence the adj digressional; digressive comes from LL digressiūus, ML ivus, but digressory is an anl E formation.

11. L ēgredi, to walk, go (hence come), ē or out, has pp ēgressus, s ēgress-, whence the n ēgressus (gen -ūs), whence E egress; derivative ēgressiō, o/s ēgressiōn-, produces egression.

12. L ingredi, to walk, go (hence come), in, has presp ingrediens, o/s ingrediēn-, whence the obsol adj ingredient, whence ingredientice; the E n ingredient comes from F ingrédient, used as early as EF as a pharmaceutical n.

13. L ingredi has pp ingressus, s ingress-, whence n ingressus (gen -ūs), whence E ingress; derivative L ingressiō, o/s ingressiōn-, yields ingression, whence, anl, the adj ingressive.

14. L introgredi, to go intro or within, has pp introgressus, s introgress-, whence, anl, the erudite E introgession (cf the LL n introgressus).

15. L prōgredi, to step, walk, go (or come) prō or forward, has pp prōgressus, s prōgress-, whence n prōgressus (gen -ūs), whence, perh via MF, the E progress, whence 'to progress'; derivative L prōgressiō, o/s prōgressiōn-, yields—perh via MF-F—progression, whence, anl, progressive, perh prompted by MF-F progressif, f -ive.

16. L regredi, to step, go, back, has pp regressus, whence 'to regress'; the E n regress comes from the L n regressus (gen -ūs), from the pp; derivative regressiō, o/s regressiōn-, becomes regression, whence, anl, regressive and regressor.

17. L retrogradi, to step, go, backwards (retro), yields 'to retrograde'; its derivative adj retrogradus yields the adj retrograde; derivative LL retrogradātiō, o/s -gradātiōn-, accounts for retrogradation. Retrogradi, to go backwards, has pp retrogressus, whence 'to retrogress'; derivative LL n retrogressus (gen -ūs) becomes the rare E n retrogress, whence, anl, retrogression (perh from F rétrogression) and retrogressive.

18. L transgredi, to step, go, trans or across, has pp transgressus, whence, perh via MF-F transgresser, the E 'to transgress'; derivative transgressiō, o/s -gressiōn-, becomes OF-F and E transgression, and LL transgressiūus, ML -ivus, becomes transgressive; LL transgressor is adopted by E.

graft (1) of tree; n hence v, whence graftage.

A graft derives (? influenced by craft) from ME graff: OF-F greffe, graft or scion (cion): OF greffe, var of grafe, stylus: LL graphium, a grafting knife: L graphium, stylus: Gr graphion, var of grapheion, stylus: Gr graphein, to write: cf graph, q.v.—f.a.e.—at GRAMMAR.

graft (2), sl for 'work' (hence the sl v): SE graft, a spade-depth, a spadeful: cf ON gröftr, a digging, and, f.a.e., the 2nd GRAVE.

grafter is the agent of 'to graft', as at GRAFT (1) and (2). Sl grafter has thinning grifter.

grall, var graal: OF graal: VL cratalem*, accof cratalis*, a chalice: L crātēra, that var of L crāter which is formed from Gr kratēra, acc of kratēr, a cup: f.a.e., CRATER.

grain (n, hence v); engrain, with anglicized var ingrain; gram, kinds of pea and bean; cf the elements gramini- (gramino-) and grant- (grano-); granadilla; granary; pomegranate; grange; granite, granitic; granose; granule, granular, granulate, granulation; gravy; grenade, grenadier;—garner; garnet;—sep CORN; kernel; churn; perh of the sep CHURL.

1. 'To engrain' derives from ME engreynen, to dye scarlet: OF en grainne, in(to) grain (seed), esp in sense 'dye', latterly influenced by sense 'texture'. OF-F graine derives from L grāna, pl (apprehended as f sing) of grānum (para 4).

2. Gram, a plant grown for its seed, derives from Port grão, from L grānum.

3. Granose derives from L grānōsus, adj of grānum.

4. L grānum, a grain, a seed, hence a particle, has s grān-, attested also in C, OSI, Lith, Go: cf OIr grán, Ga grán, Br gran or gren, Mx grain, W grawn; OSI grūno; by metathesis, Go kaurn.

5. L grānum has certain derivatives relevant to E:

grānārium (gran-+ 'receptacle' -arium), whence granary; in MF, granārium becomes grenier (as still in F) with MF metathesis gernier, whence ME gerner, with var garner, adopted by E, whence 'to garner'; grānātus, adj 'like or of grain or seeds', whence the n grānātum (sc L mālum, a fruit; ML, sc pomum, an apple), with LL var grānāta, f sing from L pl (māla) grānāta, both grānātum and grānāta meaning lit 'a fruit, esp an apple, rich in seeds'. ML (pomum) grānātum becomes OF pume (later pome, etc.) grenate, whence MF pume grenade, whence EF(-F) grenade, a pomegranate, a sense long obs in E, which, however, retains the EF-F derivative sense 'projectile', the F derivative grenadier being likewise adopted; note that the long-obs granate, a pomegranate, from both LL grānāta and L grānātum, survives in pomegranate, reshaped in EE from ME pomgarner, from MF pome grenate; note also that in OF pome grenate, grenate is f of the adj grenat, which occurs in OF jagonce grenat, lit 'grained hyacinth', whence MF-F grenat, that semi-precious stone the garnet, which, adopted by ME, acquires the metathesis garnet, retained by E;

VL grānica*, whence OF grange, adopted by E;

LL grānulum, a little grain or seed (dim of grānum), whence granule, whence, anl, granular; granulate is a b/f of granulation, adopted from late EF-F, which derives it from the v granuler (from L grānulum).

6. L grānum becomes It grano, with derivative granire, to render grain- or seed-like, pp granito, used as n for the 'rainy' rock, whence late EF-F granit and E granite (whence the adj granitic).

7. ML grānāta, pomegranate, remains granata in Sp, which forms the dim granadilla, passion-flower fruit—like the pomegranate, full of seeds; derivative is Sp granadillo, the tree bearing granadillas.

8. OF-MF grané deriving from graine but influenced by LL grānāta, means 'grained'—containing grains; used as n, it was misread, by English cooks, to become ME grave, whence E gravy: many gravies do contain grains of some sort. (OED; EW.)

9. From the sep treated CORN (cf Go kaurn—as in para 4 above), or rather from OE corn, derives the dim OE cyrnel, ME curnol, kirnel—and kernel, retained by E.

10. Perh akin to OE cyrnel is OE cyrin, ME chirne, cherne, E churn, whence 'to churn'. As Webster very neatly puts it, the basic idea is 'cream (cf G. dial. kern, cream), the kernel of the milk, becoming granular in churning'.

grammar, grammarian, grammatical, grammatist; gramarye; cf the element gram-, gramo- (as in gramophone, cf -phone); anagram, whence anagrammatic(al); epigram, epigrammatic(al), epigrammatist; program(me), whence, anl, programmatic(al); telegram; sep GLAMO(U)R.—graph (cf the element -graph), graphic, graphite; epigraph, whence, anl, epigraphic, epigraphist, epigraphy; telegraph (n, hence v), telegraphic, telegraphist, telegraphy.—sep GRAFT (1); sep CARVE.

1. Grammar, the Latin language (C14-16), the general subject (C14 onwards), hence a book of grammar (C16 onwards), derives from late ME gramer, gramere, from OF-MF gramaire (MF-F grammaire) a semi-learned, irreg derivative from L grammatica, trln of Gr grammatikē (elliptical for g. tekhnē, the art of alphabetical characters, the art of reading and writing), prop the f of grammatikos, skilled in grammar, adj from gramma, a letter of the alphabet, lit something written or for writing, hence also—from the marking—a small weight (whence F gramme, E gram), perh for graphma*, from graphein (s graph-), to scratch or carve, hence to scratch or carve marks or characters, hence to write: akin to OE ceorfan to notch, nick, cut (whence CARVE, q.v. sep), MHG-G kerben, to notch or nick, MHG kerve, a notch, Lett grebiu, I carve; IE r, gerbh-*.

1a. Late ME gramer(e) has varr gramery, gramory, whence gramary or gramarye, (obs) grammar or learning, (whence) magic: all learning is mysterious to the illiterate.

2. L grammatica has LL adj grammaticālis, whence MF-F and E grammatical; OF-MF gramaire has the MF adj, hence n, gramarien (cf the F grammairien), whence E grammarian; Gr gramma (o/s grammat-) has derivative v grammatizein, to teach the alphabet, to be a scribe, whence the agent grammatistēs, becoming ML grammatista, F grammaste, E grammatist.

3. The chief gram- cpds in E are anagram, epigram, program, telegram. Anagram (whence anagrammatic, anagrammatist, etc.) derives from EF-F anagramme, from LG anagramma, reversal (connoted by ana-) of letters.

4. Epigram: MF-F épigamme: L epigramma, epigram, from Gr epigramma, a writing epi or upon, an inscription, an epigram, from epigraphēin, to write upon (cf epigraph below); derivative LL epigrammaticus becomes epigrammatic; LL epigrammatista, from Gr epigrammatistēs, yields epigrammatist.

5. Program (E, often programme, adopted from late EF-F): LL proprogramma, a writing before (pro-) the public, a proclamation, adopted from Gr, from prographēin, to write before, i.e. in public.

6. Telegram is modern: tele-, from afar+-gram, as in epigram and program.

7. From the Gr c/f -graphos, comes E -graph, as in the two prefix-cpds below: from -graph comes E graph. The adj graphic=L graphicus, trln of Gr graphikos, of, by, for writing, from graphein, to write. Graphite=G Graphit, which, like F graphite, is a learned derivative from Gr graphein.

8. The two chief -graph prefix-cpds are epigraph and telegraph. Epigraph comes, perh via late EF-F épigraphē, from Gr epigraphē; cf epigram in para 4 above.

9. Telegraph derives from F télégraphie; telegraph and telegraphist prob derive from F télégraphique and télégraphiste; telegraphy is an an E formation.

grampus: EE grandepose, the 1st element deriving by f/e from F grand, big: OF graspeis, -pois, earlier craspois, -peis: L crassus, fat+piscis, fish: cf CRASS and FISH.

grand (adj, hence n); grandee; grandeur; grandiose; grandfather (whence granfer, whence gaffer) and -mother (whence grannam and granny), -daughter and -son, all from grand, adj,—but for grandfather, cf FATHER, para 2;—aggrandize, aggrandizement.

1. Aggrandizement derives from EF-F agrandissement, itself from MF-F agrandir, from whose presp agrandissant and other agrandiss- parts comes 'to aggrandize': agrandir=a- (F à), L ad, to +grandir, from L grandire, from the adj grandis (s grand-), whence, via OF-F grand, the E grand. The L grandis is perh a nasalized derivative of IE r grad-, var grad-: cf Lett graods, strong, and ? E GROW.

2. L grandis becomes Sp grande, which, used as n, fathers E grandee; OF-F grand has the OF-F derivative grandeur, adopted by E; L grandis becomes It grande, with extn grandioso, whence F and E grandiose.

grave (1), adj; gravamen; gravity; gravitate, gravitation;—aggravate, aggravation;—gravid;—grief, grieve, grievance, grievous; aggrieve.

1. The adj grave is adopted from MF-F, from ML gravis, neu grave, L gravis, neu græue, heavy, s grau-: cf the syn Skt gurús, Av gourús, Gr barus, Go kaurus, perh Ir bair, Lett grūts, L brūtus; also cf Skt garimā, Gr baros, heaviness; IE r, gur-, var gar-, there being either contr (? from garavis*) or metathesis (? grau- for garu-*) in L gravis.

2. L gravis has derivative gravitās, ML gravitās, whence late OF-F gravité and E gravity; and gravitās has the SciL derivative gravitāre, pp gravitātus, whence 'to gravitate'; the subsidiary SciL gravitātio, o/s gravitātiōn-, yields gravitation.

3. L gravis has also the derivatives:

LL grāūmen, ML gravāmen, adopted by E, esp in legal sense; gravidus, ML gravidus, heavy with child, whence E gravid;

grāūre, ML gravāre, to weigh upon, with cpd aggrāūre, ML -vāre, to make heavy or, esp, heavier, with pp aggrāūtus, ML -vātus, whence 'to aggravate'; derivative aggrāūtiō, o/s aggrāūtiōn-, ML aggrāvatiōn-, accounts for aggravation.

4. ML aggravāre, prob via a popular aggrevāre*, becomes OF-MF agrever, with il agrieve, he renders heavy: whence ME agreven: whence (cf 'il agrieve') 'to aggrieve', now mostly in pa aggrieved.

5. L grauāre (cf para 3, s.f.) becomes VL greuāre*, grevāre*, whence OF-EF grever, ME greven, E 'to grieve' (cf OF 'il grieve'); OF grever has derivative grevance, whence, anl, E grievance; the likewise derivative OF-MF n gref and its MF-F var grief are adopted by ME, whence E grief; MF gref has the derivative adj OF-MF grevos, MF grevous, whence, anl, E grievous.

grave (2), n, a burial place in the earth, derives from OE graef, intimately akin to OE grafan, to dig, hence to engrave (to dig in wood or stone), whence 'to grave', now mostly in cpd engrave (influenced by EF engraver); the artistic n gravure, adopted from EF-F, comes from OF-F graver, of Gmc origin. With grave, n and v, cf OS graf, OFris gref, G Grab (cf Graben, ditch, moat, MHG grabe, OHG grabo), ON gröf, OSl grobŭ, and the vv OFris grēva, OHG graban, MHG-G graben, Go graban, ON grafa, to dig, OSl pogrebŭ, to bury: Gmc r, grab-, var greb-; IE r, ghrebh-, ghrobh-. (Walshe.) Cf GROOVE and GRUB.

grave (3), v, to dig. See next.

grave (4), v, to clean. See prec., s.f.

gravel (n, hence v): OF gravele or OF-F gravelle, dim of grave, greve (F grève), a sandy shore: either of C origin (cf Br grouan, gravel, W gro, coarse gravel, Cor grou, grouan, grean, Ga grimmeal, MlR grimmel, Elr grian, gravel, the Ga and MlR words meaning also the sea-bottom) or (B & W) from a pre-L grava*, sand, sand-pit, hence a sandy shore. From EF grave, F grève, comes the naut grave (whence 'graving dock'), to clean a vessel of, e.g., barnacles and then pay it over with pitch (Webster).

gravid. See 1st GRAVE, para 3.

graving dock. See GRAVEL, s.f.

gravitate, gravitation. See 1st GRAVE, para 2. gravity. See 1st GRAVE, para 2.

graveure. See 2nd GRAVE.

gravy. See GRAIN, para 8.

gray (E and AE) and grey (mostly E), adj, hence n; hence also grayness, greyness (-ness); graylag, grayling, greyhound; grilse, grisette, grizzle;—roan.

1. Both gray and grey go back, through ME gray, grey, to OE; grāeg and græg. Cf OFris grē, which will account for both of the OE forms, OHG grāo, MHG grā, G grau, MD gra, grau, D grauw, ON grār; perh of L rāuus (ML rāvus), ? for hrāuus*. (Walshe.) IE r, ghra-, var ghre-.

2. The graylag or grey wild goose, app=gray+lag (goose), the last of a flock of geese; greyhound=ME grehound (or -hund)=OE grīghund, cf ON gryhundur; grayling=gray+ling, one of certain qualities.

3. Grilse, a young salmon after its first return from the sea, app derives, by metathesis, from OF-MF grisel, grisle, somewhat grey, from OF-F gris, grey; OF-MF grisel also explains the adj grizzle, now usu grizzled, (rather) grey-haired, whence 'to grizzle' or become grey, whence prob grizzle, to whimper or fret—prob from grizzling skies betokening rain. The adj grizzle has derivative adj grizzly.

4. OF-F gris, grey (of Gmc origin), has the OF-F dim grisette, orig dim (adj), then a grey woollen fabric, finally a young working-class woman, because affecting dresses made therefrom.

5. L rāuus, grey, tawny, has derivative rāuānus*, whence Sp roano, whence MF roan (F rouan), adopted by E.

graze (1), to feed on grass. See GRASS, para 2.

graze (2), to scrape, or to rub in passing, whence n: o.o.o.: Webster proposes source in graze, to 'cut the grass', but why not 'crop, eat, the grass'?

grazier. See GRASS, heading.

grease (n, hence v), whence greaser and greasy. See CRASS, para 2.

great (adj, hence adv and n), whence greatness; goat.

1. The silver coin named groat, ME grote, earlier groot, is adopted from MD-D groot, great, thick, MD var grot: and MD groot is akin to OE grēat, whence E great: cf OFris grāt, OS grōt, OHG-MHG grōz, G gross; Gmc r, grout-* (Walshe).

2. Note that E gross, massive, burly, (unpleasantly) fat, is independent.

grebe: EF-F grèbe, MF grebe: o.o.o.: perh because its nest, built of reeds, resembles a crib or manger; like crèche, it could derive from Frankish kripja* (G Krippe).

Grecian (adj, hence n), Grecism, Grecize; cf the element Grecor-; Greece; Greek (adj, n); cf fenu-greek at FENNEL.

1. Grecian derives from L Graecia, whence also Greece; Graecia is an -ia or 'region, country' derivative from L Graecus, both adj and n, whence Greek, adj and n; Graecus is a trln of Gr Graikos. Orig the Graikoi were a tribe in W Greece; the Italians applied the name to the inhabitants of Greece as a whole—Aristotle was the first Greek to do so. The name is thought to be of Pelasgian origin: prob, therefore, it is a Medit word.

2. Gr Graikos has derivative Graikizein, to speak Greek, whence, in part, E Grecize; Grecism derives from ML Graecismus, anl with other -ismus (Gr -ismos) formations.

greed; greedy.

The former comes, by b/f, from the latter, which comes, through ME gredi, from OE grāedig, akin to the syn OS grādag, OHG grātag, Go grēdags (cf grēdus, hunger), ON grāthugr: cf Skt gardha, greediness, and Lith gardus, palatable (worthy of greed).

Greek. See GRECIAN, para 1.

green (adj, hence n and v), greenery; greenback, greengage, greening.

1. Green, ME grene, derives from OE grēne: cf OFris grēne, OS grōni, OHG gruoni, MHG grüene, G grün, ON groenn: cf OHG gruoēn MHG grüejēn, to grow (green): akin to sep GRASS and GROW.

2. Green has an -ery derivative greenery and many cpds, mostly self-explanatory. A greenback is an A legal-tender note, with green-hued devices on the back. A greengage is a greenish-yellow plum, named after Sir William Gage, who, c1725, imported it from France: cf greening, a green-skinned apple, from MD groeninc (MD-D groen, green).

greet, greeting; regret (n, v), regretful, regrettable.

Regretful=regret, n+-ful; regrettable, adopted from EF-F, derives from OF-MF regreter, EF-F regretter (re-, back), whence also the OF-F n regret, adopted by E; 'to regret' comes from OF-MF regreter, var of OF regrater, of Gmc origin: cf ON grāta, to weep, akin to syn OE grāetan, grētan, ME gretēn, E 'to greet', now archaic and dial, and Go grētan and prob Skt hrādāte, he roars. With OE grētan, ME gretēn, E greet, to address, cf OFris grēta, OS grātian, Go grōtjan*, OHG gruozēn, to accost, MHG grüezen, accost, greet, G grüssen, greet, ON groeta. The basic sense of 'to greet' is either 'to call' (Webster) or 'to cause to shout (in reply)' (Walshe). Note that the n greeting, salutation, goes back to OE grēting, vn from grētan.

gregal, gregarian, gregarious, gregaritic;—aggregate (adj—whence n—and v), aggregation (whence anl aggregative and aggregator); congregant, congregate (adj and v), congregation (whence congregational, whence Congregationalism and Congregationalist), congregative, congregator; egregious; segregant, segregate (adj—whence n—and v), segregation (whence, anl, segregative, segregator); cf sep AGORA and ALLEGORY.

1. The base is L greg-, o/s of grex, herd, flock, hence company of persons: cf OIr graig, herd (of horses), W and Ga greigh, Br gré, OC gragis*, with greigh meaning esp 'stud of horses'; cf also Gr ageirō, I gather or assemble, and agora, an assembly—Lith *gurguly*s, a swarm—and perh Skt ganās, herd, flock, company, crowd, and grāma, company, community.

2. L grex, o/s greg-, has adj gregālis, whence E gregal, and gregārius, whence both gregarious and, with -ian for -ious, gregarian; Geol gregaritic=gregarious+adj -itic.

3. L grex has prefix-cpds aggregāre (ag- for ad-, to), congregāre (con- together), ēgregius (ē-, out of, away from), sēgregāre (sē-, apart from, aside).

4. Aggregāre, to bring together (at or to a given point), has pp aggregātus, whence adj and v aggregate; derivative LL aggregātiō, o/s aggregātiōn-, yields aggregation.

5. Congregāre, to gather together, has pp congregātus, whence adj and v congregate; derivative congregātiō, o/s congregātiōn-, produces—prob via OF-MF congregation—congregation; derivative LL congregātiuus (ML -ivus) and LL congregātor lead to congregative and congregator. Congregant, n, derives from L congregant-, o/s of the presp congregans.

6. L ēgregius, (apart from the herd, hence) distinguished, outstanding, excellent, becomes E ēgregious.

7. L sēgregāre, to separate (orig, from the herd), has presp sēgregans, o/s sēgregant-, whence the E n segregant; the pp sēgregātus yields adj and v segregate; derivative LL sēgregātiō, o/s sēgregātiōn-, accounts for segregation.

grenade, grenadier. See GRAIN, para 5. gressorial. See GRADE, para 5.

grew. See GROW.

grievous: OCC VAR OF GRUESOME.

grey, greyhound. See GRAY—the hound at para 2. grid and gridiron; griddle; grill, n and v; grille and grillage.

1. Grid is a b/f from gridiron: and gridiron derives from ME gredirne, a f/e mdfn (by confusion with ME iren, iron) of ME gredire, either slovenly or illiterate for ME gredit—var gridel, whence E griddle, a gridiron: and ME gredit prob comes from OF-MF gredit*, a var of OF grail: cf MF-EF grediller, to scorch.

2. 'To grill' comes from OF-F griller, itself from OF(-F) gril, a gridiron, a var of OF-F grille, OF varr grail, graille, from VL grāticula*, for L crāticula, although gril comes perhaps rather from VL grāticulum*, for L crāticulum; both crāticula and crāticulum are dim derivatives from L crātis, crātēs (strictly, pl), a hurdle, with LL var grātis, grātēs: cf CRATE. As a hurdle is openwork, though of wood, so a grille, or grating, is openwork, though usu of metal.

grief, grievance, grieve, grievous. See 1st GRAVE, para 5.

griffin, griffon, gryphon: resp the E, OF-F, imitation-L form: E griffin, ME griffon, OF grifoun, MF-F griffon, OHG grif, grifo, L gryphus, var gryps, Gr grupos, either deriving from or at the least akin to Gr grupos, curved, hooked, hooked-nosed: cf Ass kurub, a fabulous winged monster. (Walshe.)

grifter. See GRAFTER.

grig, earliest as 'boon companion' (merry grig or Grig), is Grig, pet-form of Gregory; modern sense 'cricket' or 'grasshopper' derives, by f/e, from merry as a cricket; with merry Grig, cf merry Andrew. (EW.)

grill; grille. See GRID, para 2.

grillse. See GRAY, para 3.

grim (whence grimness); grimace (n, hence v); grime (n, hence v), whence grimy; grum; grumble; grumpy;—chagrin, n and v.

1. Grim, OE grim, is akin to OFris and OS grimm, OHG-MHG grim, G grimm, ON grimur: app a thinning of such forms as ON gram, an enemy, the devil, OE gram, OHG-G gram, hostile (Gram, grief): Gmc r grim-, gram-; IE r, ghrem-, ghrom-.

2. Perh of Gmc origin is grimace, adopted from MF-F, from OSp grimazo, a grimacing countenance, prob from Go grima*, spectre, terror: of OE grima, a spectre, from OE grim. (Dauzat.)

3. OE grima, spectre, also a mask or a visor

(as ON grūma), is at least akin to MD begrimen, to sully, to dirty, and Fl grijm, both of which are intimately akin to E grime.

4. Akin to grim is grumble, from EF syn grumeler, var of MF-F grommeler, app a freq of OF-MF grommer, itself prob from MD grommen (cf Fl grommelen): cf the MD varr grimmen, grimmelen. OF-MF grommer, var gromer, is, however, perh a var of OF-MF gronir: see GRIN, para 5.

5. Clearly connected with grim is the mostly dial grun, morose or surly, either deriving from or at the least akin to Da grum, fierce, angry; cf the dial and coll grumpy, with dial var grumphy, app from the echoic grumph, a grunt.

6. Akin to the gram terms noted in para 1 is OF-MF graim, sorrowful, with var graing or grain, whence OF-MF graignier, to be sorrowful, perh with MF int chagraigner, chagrigner, whence EF-F chagriner, whence 'to chagrin'; the E n chagrin is adopted from EF-F chagrin, which comes either from chagriner or from the MF adj chagrin, sad, discomfited, much disappointed. (The foregoing is a merely provisional statement, the etymology of chagrin being obscured with doubts and inter-ventions; with cha-, if indeed an int, cf Gmc ge- and AE ker-.) grimace. See para 2 of prec.

grime, grimy. See GRIM, para 3.

grin (v, hence n): ME grinnen, earlier grennen: OE grennian: akin to ON grenja, to grin, to howl, G grinsen, to grin, and OHG grinan, MHG grinen, G greinen, to grin, to whine, and therefore prob to groan. A dog grins when it snarls, a boy when he laughs.

2. 'To groan'—whence 'a groan'—comes, through ME gronen, earlier granen, earliest granien, from OE grānian, akin to OHG grīnan (as above) and to OHG granōn, to grunt.

3. 'To grunt'—whence 'a grunt'—comes, through ME grunten, from OE grunnetian, extn of grunian, to grunt, akin to MHG-G grunzen, to grunt: orig, echoic—cf L grunnire (s grunn-, r grun-), with early var grundire (s grund-, r grun-), to grunt, and its derivative grunnitus (early var grunditus), a grunt.

4. 'Mrs Grundy', proponent of the proprieties, occurs in Morton's Speed the Plough, a comedy produced in 1798: the name is perh a blend of grunty, addicted to grunting (in disapproval), and the EF-F grondeuse, a female growling scolder, from MF-F gronder, vi to growl, vt to scold, from L grundire.

5. L grunnire becomes OF-MF grunir, gronir, EF-F grogner, to grunt or grumble; from OF gronir (s gron-) comes, by metathesis, OF gornart, gornard (pej suffix -art, -ard), whence the E fish gurnard, gurnet: 'it makes a grunting sound when caught' (EW).

grind (v, hence n), pt, pp (and pa) ground; hence grinder, grindery; grist.

Grist, OE grist, comes from OE grindan, whence 'to grind': and grindan is akin to Lith grėndu, I scrape, or rub violently, L frendere, to grind (esp corn), to gnash, Gr khrainein, to touch lightly, to smear (cf CHRISM), and khondros (for khronōros*), a grain; IE r ghren-, with extn ghrend-; ghren-* itself prob a mdfn of gher-*, to rub.

grip (n, v); gripe (v, hence n); grippe; grope;—grasp (v, hence n).

1. 'To gripe' descends from OE grīpan, akin to OFris grīpa, OS grīpan, MD grīpen, D grīpjen, Go greipān, ON grīpa, also OHG grīfan, MHG grīfen, G greifen, and Lith grībtī; Gmc r, ghreib-*, to grasp firmly, to seize.

2. OE grīpan has derivative OE gripe (cf OFris grīp), whence 'a grip'; 'to grip' derives from OE grīppan, app from the OE n gripe, perh however a thinning of the OE v grīpan.

3. Akin to the Gmc words of para 1 are Frankish grīpan*, to seize, and grip*, a seizing or grasping, whence the syn MF-F v gripper and MF-F n grippe. The malady (la grippe, approx influenza, arises in C18 and 'would be so named because it seizes (its victim) suddenly' (B & W); to postulate origin in Ru khrip, hoarseness—an echoic word—is supererogatory.

4. Akin to OE grīpan is OE grāpian, to touch, to handle, ME grapien, later gropen, whence 'to grope'.

5. Akin to OE grāpian is ME graspen, to grope, grasp at, whence 'to grasp': cf LG grapsen, to grasp, and MD grapen, to seize, grip, grasp.

grippe. See prec, para 3.

grisette. See GRAY, para 4.

grislly; grizzly (bear).

The grizzly, a large, powerful creature, Ursus horribilis, is a var of gristly, not from grizzly, rather grey. Grisly, inspiring horror, comes, through ME grisly, earlier grislīch, from OE grislīc, causing one to -grīsan or shudder: cf the syn OFris grislik, OHG grisenlich and MD griselijc and G gruselig.

grist. See GRIND.

gristle (whence gristly) comes straight from OE: cf OFris gristel, grestel, gerstel, MLG gristel.

grit (1), sand, esp if hard and rough, hence 'to grit' (e.g., one's teeth), hence also the adj gritty—this grit derives, via ME greet, var greet, from OE grēot, sand, grit: cf OFris grēt, OS griot, OHG grioz, MHG griez, sand, G Griess, gravel, groats, ON grīöt, pebbles, stones. Cf:

grit (2), coarse meal, now grits: OE (pl) grytta, gryttan: cf OHG gruzzi, MHG-G grütze, groats. Cf, therefore, E groats, ME groten (pl), OE gratan (pl), perh for groitan*—cf OE grot, a grain or a particle; cf also ON grautr, groats, and Lith grūdas, grain, corn, kernel, OSl gruda, a clod.

grizzle, grizzled. See GRAY, para 3. grizzly, adj. See GRAY, para 3, s.f.

grizzly, n, elliptical for grizzly bear. See GRISLY.

groan. See GRIN, para 2.

groat. See GREAT.

groats. See the 2nd GRIT.

grocer (whence grocery). See GROSS, para 3.

grog; groggy; grogram.

Groggy, unsteady on one's feet, suggests that the victim has had too much grog, orig rum and water, hence any intoxicant, so named because, in 1740, Admiral Vernon ordered the sailors' rum to be diluted: he was known as 'Old Grog', from the grogam cloak he wore in dirty weather. Grogam anglicizes F gros grain, large grain—hence, coarse texture—hence a coarse-textured fabric. Cf GROSS and GRAIN.

groin, varr groyn, groyne. See GROUND, para 3.

groom (1), an ostler. See GORMANDIZE, s.f.

groom (2), as in bridegroom. See HOMO, para 14.

groove (n, hence v): ME groof (var grofe), MD groeve (var grove; D groef), akin to ON grōf; OHG gruoba, MHG gruobe, G Grube, and Go grōba; akin also to GRAVE, n.

grope. See GRIP, para 4.

groper (fish). See GROUPER.

grosbeak. See heading, s.f., of:

gross (adj, whence v; n, from F gros used as n); engross (with pa engrossing and pa engrossed), whence engrossment; grocer, whence grocery; sep program, where grosgrain is implied; grosbeak (EF-F grosbec, big-beak).

1. The adj gross, relatively very large, hence coarsely big and fat, hence coarse, derives from OF-F gros, f grosse, from LL grossus, f grossa, big and fat, coarse (esp food or mind), prob of C origin, grossus being app for grossos*, itself eased from grosdos*, from the C r grod-* (var of grad-*), to increase (vt, vi) in size: cf Mīr, W, Br, Cor bras, Ir and Ga breas, large, bulky, corpulent, coarse.

2. OF-F gros has MF-F derivative engrosser (MF varr engrossier, engroissier) to make or render thick or large, whence 'to engross', esp to write large and fair.

3. OF-F gros has MF-F agent grossier, enlarger, late MF-EF vendor (merchant) in bulk, whence E grocer, orig a wholesaler; OF grossier was perh suggested by ML grossarius, an -arius derivative of LL grossus.

grot, grotto; grotesque (adj and n); cf the sep CRYPT.

1. Grot=EF-F grotte=It grotta, which, by and with the multitudinous It nn in -o, becomes E grotto: and It grotta derives from VL grupta*, alteration of VL crupta*, itself from LL crypta, a cave, hence a hidden underground passage, hence a vault: f.a.e., CRYPT.

2. It grotta has adj grottesco, whence n grottesca, elliptical for pittura grottesca, ref the decorated grottos once fashionable in Italy; the It n becomes EF-F grotesque, n, which acquires the sense 'ridiculous face or figure', whence the F adj; the F n and adj are adopted by E. (B & W.)

grouch. See GRUDGE, para 2.

ground (n, whence adj and v), groundling, groundsel; groin (groyn, groyne).

1. In Arch, groundsel=ground+SILL; the medicinal herb groundsel comes, through ME grundswilie, from late OE grundeswylige, var of grunde-swelge, mdfn of OE gundeswelge, app gund(e), pus + -swelge, swallower, from swelgan, to swallow: 'pus-absorber'—from its being used in poultices. Groundling=ground+ling, one belonging to or having the quality of: a groundling is a fish that, like the loach, keeps close to the bottom, hence a spectator that, frequenting the pit of a theatre, is presumed to lack judgement and taste.

2. Ground itself, ME ground, earlier grund, derives from OE grund, foundation, earth: cf OFris and OS grund, OHG-MHG grunt, G Grund, MD grunt, gront, D grond, Go grundu-, Scan grund, ON grunnr; Gmc r, grun-*.

3. Akin to OE grund is OE grynde, abyss, whence, app, ME grynde, whence the eased EE grine, whence—influenced by LOIN—the E groin, the depression between lower belly and upper thigh, hence its use in Arch and in Eng—where occ groyn, groyne, obs elsewhere.

groundling. See prec, para 1, s.f. groundsel, both senses. See GROUND, para 1; for the herb, cf the 2nd SWALLOW, para 3.

group. See CROP, para 4.

grouper, with a f/e var groper, is a kind of sea bass that frequents warm waters: and it anglicizes Port garoupa, o.o.o.—Webster cfs Galibi (F-D Guiana) groupy, a distinct species of fish. In the Sp of CA this fish is called garopa (Santamaria).

grouse (1), a game bird, is o.o.o.: perh (Webster) cf OF greuce, some unspecified food, from ML gruta, a vaguely domestic bird; perh rather (EW) the EE form grewys, pl used collectively, indicates a wrong-sensing of ME grewe, a crane, from OF-F grue (cf Port grou), crane, itself, through VL grūa*, from L grūs (gen grūis), s grū-, well represented, with varr, in IE. (Whitehall approves EW's suggestion.)

grouse (2), to grumble. See GRUDGE, para 3.

grove, a tree-group smaller than a wood, derives from OE grāf and app larks kindred, at least in IE.

grovel is a b/f from the ME adv grovelinge, grufelinge, on one's face, prone, misapprehended as presp of syn ME groffe, gruf, from ON grūfa in ā grūfa, grovelling, from grūfa, to grovel: ? from Gmc gruben*, to cower (down), as Holthausen suggests.

grow, pt grew, pp grown; growth.

Growth derives from 'to grow', much as ON grōthr (grōthi) derives from ON grōa, to grow. 'To grow' derives from OE growan, akin to syn OFris grōia, OHG gruoēn, MHG grüeiēn (both also 'to grow, become, green'), MD groyen, groeyen, D groeien, ON grōa: akin, therefore, to GREEN and GRASS.

growl (v, hence n), whence growler, SE agent and sl container, may be natively echoic but prob comes from MF grouler (MF-F var grouiller), itself from MD grollen: cf grumble, q.v. at GRIM, para 4.

grown; growth. See GROW.

groyn(e). See GROUND, para 3.

grub (v, whence app the n, whence both the adj grubby and the cpds grub-stake and Grub Street) derives from ME grubben, var of gruben, akin to OHG grubilōn, MHG grübilēn, to dig, grub, poke about, investigate, whence G grübeln, to rack one's brains; hence akin also to OHG graban, MHG-G graben, to dig: f.a.e., the 2nd GRAVE.

grudge (v, hence n), with derivative int (be-) begrudge; grouch (v, hence n; hence also the adj grouchy); grouse (v, hence n and the agent grouser). Sem: to give grumblingly.

1. 'To grudge' comes, through EE grutch, ME grutchen, var of gruchen, to grumble, from MF groucher, var groucier, itself a var of MF grocier, a worn-down var of OF-MF groucier, to growl; prob akin to grunt, q.v. at GRIN, para 3; ult echoic ?

2. 'To grouch' prob comes from ME gruchen.

3. 'To grouse' perh comes from OF-MF groucier (as in para 1).

grue. See GRUESOME.

gruel was adopted from OF gruel (F gruau), app a dim of the syn OF-EF gru: Frankish grūt*: cf OHG gruzzi, therefore cf GRIT, coarse meal.

gruesome, occ var growsome, tacks adj suffix -some to dial 'to grue', to shiver with fear: cf MD (and MLG) gruwen, with MD var grouwen (and freq gruwelen, gruelen); cf also OHG gruēn. Ult echoic.

gruff (whence gruffness): MD grof, groef, grouf (for gerouf): cf OHG gerob, thick, MHG grof, strong, G grob, coarse; perh ult akin to GREAT.

guillotine, n and v. 'To guillotine' represents F guillotiner, itself from (la) guillotine, which, adopted by E, derives, in 1790, from Dr J. G. Guillotin (1738-1814), who, in 1789, recommended its use. This surname derives from F Guillaume, William.

guilt, guilty.

The latter derives from OE gyltig, adj of gylt, (a) crime, whence ME gult or gilt, which app blend into E guilt. OE gylt is o.o.o.: ? akin to OE scyld, ON skuld, sin, guilt, and the approx syn OHG sculd, MHG schult, schulde, G Schuld, and therefore ult to E shall and should.

guimp(e). See WIMPLE, para 2.

guinea, a gold coin worth 21 shillings, is a Guinea (coin), reputed to be minted of gold from Guinea in West Africa; likewise the guinea cock-fowl-hen comes from Guinea; and Guinea is a Port form of Gineua, the name brought to medieval Europe by Arabs, who thus adapted a Negro word.—Note that guinea pig is prob f/e for Guiana pig, for this little quadruped comes from SAM; unless, perhaps, the guinea derives from Guineamen, those traders who, after taking slaves to the WI, picked up goods and oddities from the WI and from Northern SAM and conveyed them to Britain and the Continent of Europe.

guipure. See VIBRATE, para 5.

guise. See ADDENDA TO DICTIONARY.

guitar: MF-F guitare: Sp guitarra: Ar qitāra: Gr kithara. Zither, adopted from G (cf OHG zitera), derives from L cithara, likewise from Gr kithara, itself app imported: prob cf Hit katras, ? a tambourine-player; perh from PIN Kithairon (L & S).

gulden. See GOLD, para 7.

gules. See GULLET, s.f.

gulf (n, hence v); engulf.

'To engulf' = en-, in(to) + gulf, but was prob suggested by EF-F engouffrer (OF engolfer, engoulfer): and gulf Anglicizes MF-F golfe (cf MD-D golf), from It golfo, from LL colfus, from LGr kolpos, a gulf, from Gr kolpos, gulf, bay, orig bosom; akin to OE hwealf, (the sky's) vault, and G wolben, MHG welben, ON hvelfa, to vault or arch, Go hwilfrjös, a coffin. (Walshe.)

gull (1), the sea bird: app 'the (well-) beaked bird': OC gulbanos*, OIr gulban, OW gilbin, Ga gailb (gen gulbann), a beak, and W gwylan, Br gwelan, Cor guilan, gullan, a gull; OC r, prob gulb-*, a point (Malvezin).

gull (2), to deceive, trick, defraud, whence gull, one easily deceived, perh derives from the now dial gull, a young bird, esp a gosling ('The silly goose!')—prob from ON gulr, yellow: cf yellow at GOLD, para 1.—Hence gullible.

gullet and gully; gules.

Gully, a narrow valley, a ravine, derives from EE gullet, itself from ME golet, the throat, from OF goulet, dim of gole, goule, throat (MF-F gueule), from L gula, itself akin to E gurgle, q.v. at GARGLE. The MF pl gueules, lit 'gullets', becomes, in C13, an Her term for 'red', whence ME goules, E gules: from the redness of the gullet. (The Per gul-rose etymology is obs.)

gullible (whence gullibility). See the 2nd GULL, s.f.

gully. See GULLET.

gulp (v, hence n): D gulpen: clearly echoic.

gum (1), of the mouth: ME gome: OE gōma, palate (in pl: jaws): cf OHG goumo, MHG goume, G Gaumen, ON gōmr, Lith gomurys, palate; cf also Gr khaunos (adj), gaping, and therefore khaos, abyss, space: the IE r is prob gha-, with var ghau- and with nasal extn ghaun-, ghaum-. Cf CHAOS.

gum (2), a sticky substance, whence 'to gum' and adj gummy, derives from ME gumme, earlier gomme—adopted from OF-F, which thus adapts LL gumma, mdfn of L gummi, var cummi, trln of Gr kommi, itself from Eg qemāi (kmj-t), the exudation of the acanthus.

gumbo (AE), prop a soup thickened with okrapods, hence loosely any thick soup, hence, among tramps, a stew: either from the element -ngombo of such Negro words as kingombo and ocingombo (Webster) or, more precisely, from a Bu word of Angola (Mathews).

gun (n, hence v), whence gunner; many self-explanatory cpds, but note gunwale (often pron gunnel), which=gun+wale, ship's or boat's side, q.v. at WALL, 'because the upper guns were pointed from it' (Webster).

A gun derives from ME gunne, var gonne (1339), either from OF engon, var of engin, a device, f.a.e. ENGINE, as Webster proposes, or, more prob (as EW), from the f name Gunhild, applied, in ML of 1330–31 as Gunilda, to a mangonel (a military stone-throwing engine), for cf, sem, the famous C15 Mons Meg of Edinburgh and the no less famous 1917–18 Big Bertha that shelled Paris.

gurgle. See GARGLE, para 2, s.f.

gurnard, gurnet. See GRIN, para 5.

gush (v hence n), with pa gushing. 'To gush' is ME guschen, clearly echoic.

gusset: MF-F gousset, gusset, (orig) armpit: dim (-et) of gousse, a husk or a pod: o.o.o.

gust (1), of wind: ON gustr, akin to ON gjōsa, to gush: cf GEYSER. Ult echoic.

gust (2), taste, whence 'to gust' or relish; gusto; gustation, gustative or gustatory;—degust, degustation; disgust (n, v), whence pa disgusting and adj disgustful; ragoût, usu written ragout.

1. Gusto, adopted from It, derives from L gustus (gen -ūs), akin to Skt juṣāte, he enjoys (the use of), and ult akin to CHOOSE. Gustus becomes E gust. Derivative L gustāre, to taste, to enjoy the taste of, has derivative gustātiō, o/s gustātiōn-, whence E gustation; the E adj gustative and gustatory are formed anl.

2. Gustāre has cpd dēgustāre (int dē-), whence 'to degust'; derivative LL dēgustātiō, o/s dēgustātiōn-, yields degustation.

3. L gustus becomes OF goust, with MF derivative cpd v desgouster (des-, L dis-, apart), whence E 'to disgust'; desgouster has derivative n desgoust (F dégoût), whence the E n disgust.

4. F goût (L gustus), taste, has the MF-F derivative cpd v ragoûter, to restore (connoted by re-) one's taste, whence the EF-F n ragoût, a spiced stew, adopted by E; ragoûter was perh suggested by L regustāre.

gut(s). See the 2nd FOUND, para 18.

gutta(-)percha: Mal gētah, gum+percha, the tree exuding it. By a sort of erudite f/e—the kind of thing one gets in the ghostly 'abominable'—Mal gētah has been assimilated (as EW points out) to L gutta, a drop of water or other liquid.

gutter; guttersnipe. See GOUT, para 2.

guttural. See GOITER, para 2.

guy (1), a guide rope: OF gui or guie, a guide, from OF-MF guier, to guide, from Frankish uitan*, witan*, to indicate a direction: cf E guide, q.v. at VIDE, para 10.

guy (2), a ragged, ludicrous—even grotesque—effigy of Guy Fawkes of the Gunpowder Plot: F Guy, var Gui: LL Uitus (ML Vitus), as in 'St Vitus's dance', rendering F 'danse de Saint-Guy' (cf the E var 'St Guy's dance'): the child martyr Vitus was invoked by epileptics, said to have danced before his image.

guzzle (v, hence n) prob comes from MF gosillier, to vomit—by passing through the gosier or gullet, from Gaul geusiaie, attested in C5; the E -u- was perh suggested by L guttur, gullet, throat (cf GOITER).

gymnasium, gymnast, gymnastic(s) See NAKED, para 4.

gynecocracy, gyneocracy. See the element -gyn.

gyp, a swindler, to swindle. See EGYPT, para 4.

gypsum; gesso.

The latter, adopted from It, derives from L gypsum, adapted from Gr gypsos (γῆψος), chalk; the derivative LL adj gypseus yields E gypseous; Gr gypsos is of Sem origin—cf Ar jibs, mortar.

Gypsy. See EGYPT, para 3.

gyrate, gyration, gyratory; gyre; cf the element gyro-, but for gyroscope, see the element -scope; girasol; cover.

1. 'To gyre' or turn round derives from LL gyrāre, to turn (vi, vt), itself from gyrus, whence E gyre, a revolution or the path tracked by one: from Gr gyros, s and r gur-, as in IE, where it extends geu-*, to bend (vt): cf Arm kor (cuř), bent, crooked, kuřn, the back, and Ga guairsgeach, curled, curly, Ir gúaire, hair of the head, and Ga guairdean, vertigo, Ir gúairdean, a whirlwind.

2. LL gyrāre has pp gyrātus, whence 'to gyrate', whence LL gyrātiō, o/s gyrātiōn-, whence E gyration, whence, anl, the adj gyratory.

3. LL gyrāre becomes It girare, with two cpds affecting E: girandola, a cluster of radiating rockets, a radiating fountain, EF-F girandole, adopted by E; girasole, adopted, perh via EF-F, by E, with var girasol, the heliotrope, a sunflower, 2nd element from L sol, sun (cf SOLAR).

4. Akin to Gr guros is 'to cower' (to make oneself round and small, through fear): ME couren, prob of Scan origin—cf Nor kūra, Sw kura, to cower, themselves akin to syn G kauern, MLG küren; ? cf D (and MD) hurken, MD huerken, hoorken, horken, to squat.

gyrfalcon. See GAR, para 3. gyroscope. See the element -scope and cf GYRATE.

gyve. See WIRE, para 2, s.f.

H

h comes, through L h, from the Gr 'rough breathing' (', as in ἅγιος, hagios, holy), itself from a Phoen letter corresponding to H cheth, indicative of a very guttural 'breathing' or aspirate.

habeas corpus is L for '(See that) you have the corpus or body', a legal term: a medieval writ, implying that the person accused must be produced in court. For corpus see CORPUS; habeas is the subj of habēre, to hold, to have, as in HABIT.

habena, habenula. See HABIT, para 2.

habendum. See HABIT, para 3.

haberdasher (whence haberdashery) app derives from AF happetas, a stuff or fabric: o.o.o.: ? OF happetas* or happatas*, for OF happe a tas, hook (orig, scythe)+a (F ð), for +tas, heap (sc de draps, of clothes). OF happe derives either from Gmc happa*, scythe, hook, or from OF-F happer, of Gmc origin (cf D happen, to seize): ? an ult echoic hap(p)*-, to seize, take hold of, hold. EW proposes: haberdasher as agent, hence dealer, connoted by -er, in haberdash, small wares, with the haber- of EE haberdupois, avoirdupois, but he, like so many others, slides away from -dash-.

habile. See HABIT, para 4.

habillment. See HABIT, para 6.

habilitate, habilitation. See HABIT, para 7.

habit (n, v), habitable, habitant (whence habitaney), habitat, habitation—cf cohabit, cohabitant, cohabitation, and inhabit, inhabitable, inhabitant (whence inhabitaney), inhabitation; habile, hability—able, ability; habillment, whence habillmentation; habilitate, habilitation—rehabilitate, rehabilitation; habitual, habituare (whence, anl, habitation), habitude, habitué; habena (habenula); habendum.—The -hibit cpds: adhibit, adhibition; cohibit, cohibition; exhibit (v, hence n), exhibition (whence exhibitional, exhibitioner, exhibitionism, exhibitionist), exhibitor, exhibitory; inhibit (whence inhibitible, inhibitive), inhibition, inhibitor, inhibitory; prohibit, prohibition (whence prohibitionary, prohibitionism, prohibitionist), prohibitive, prohibitor, prohibitory; redhibition.—Less obvious derivatives of L habēre: aver, n; binnacle; sep debit (debt, etc.); sep gavel, sheaf of mown grain, bundle of hay, etc.; malady; prebend (whence prebendal), prebendary—cf provender.

1. The centre of this constellation of words lies in the L habēre (s habē-; r hab-), to hold (vt, vi), hence to occupy or possess, hence to have. 'L habē- is to [OIr gabim], Ir gabim [ss gab-, gaib-], "I take", what ÖHG habē- (habēn, "to have") is to L capio [s cap-], Go haffja': E & M. Akin to L hab-, therefore, is the gab- (gaib-) of OIr-Ir and of Lith gabenti (to bring); the IE r might be ghab-* or khabh-*.

2. L habē-, s of habēre, appears in habēna, a thong or other strap that controls, preserved in An, with adj habenal, habenar; its dim habēnula is commoner, even in An.

3. The legal habendum is form-adopted (and sense-adapted) from L: (which is) to be had: neus of gerundive habendus.

4. L habēre has adj habilis (-ilis, cf E -ile), able, hence well able, to hold, hence to control, whence MF-F, hence E, habile, adroit; derivative L habilitās (o/s habilitāt-) yields hability.

5. F habile has the MF var hable, often able, adopted by ME; hence 'to disable' and 'to enable'. The MF habilité, var abilité, becomes ability, whence disability and inability (perh influenced by ML inhabilitās).

6. MF-F habile, in nuance 'suitable', has, f/e, the derivative MF-F habiller, to make fit, hence ready, hence to clothe, whence MF-F habillement, equipment, clothing, whence E habillment. But habiller, earliest as abillier, is prop 'to dress a log of wood', from MF-F bille, a (dressed or hewn) log: cf E billet.

7. L habilitās has ML derivative habilitāre, to render fit, with pp habilitātus, whence 'to habilitate'; derivative ML habilitātiō, o/s habilitātiōn-, becomes habilitation. ML rehabilitāre, to render fit again (-re), pp rehabilitātus, and the derivative rehabilitātiō, yield rehabilitate and rehabilitation.

8. L habēre has pp habitus, s habit-, whence the n habitus (gen -ūs), state or condition, appearance, dress, whence OF-F habit, OF-MF var abit, both adopted by ME and the former surviving. The n habitus has ML adj habituālis, whence habitual (cf MF-F habituēl), and LL v habituāre, to condition, with pp habituātus, whence 'to habituare'; the pps habit- has the further derivative n habitudō, manner of being, hence of doing, whence MF-F, hence E, habitude. LL habituāre becomes MF-F habituēre, with pp habituē, later also n, adopted by E.

9. L habēre has freq habitiāre (s habit-), to have often, used also int, to dwell; hence OF-F habiter, whence 'to habit', to dwell (obs), to dress. Derivative LL habitāblis, in which to dwell, hence fit to dwelt in, becomes OF(-F) habitable, adopted by E. OF-F habiter, to dwell, has presp habitant, whence also n, adopted by E, where largely displaced by inhabitant: L habitat, he (she, it) dwells, becomes F and E habitat, natural abode. The pp habitatus, s habitāt-, has derivative habitātiō, o/s habitātiōn-, whence OF-F, hence E, habitation.

10. L habitāre has two L prefix-cpds: (a) LL cohabitāre, to dwell with another, esp in marriage or concubinage, whence 'to cohabit', the presp cohabitans, o/s cohabitant-, yielding the n cohabitant, and the pp-derivative LL cohabitātiō, o/s cohabitātiōn-, yielding cohabitation; and (b) L inhabitāre, to dwell in, whence OF enhabiter, whence ME enhabiten, whence, by reversion to the L form, E 'to inhabit'; derivative LL inhabitābilis becomes inhabitable; presp inhabitans, o/s inhabitant-, becomes the MF, hence E, n inhabitant; the LL pp-derivative inhabitātiō, o/s inhabitātiōn-, becomes inhabitation, an inhabiting.

11. The predominant prefix-v c/f of habēre is -hibēre, as in:

adhibēre, to hold ad or to, i.e. to apply, with pp adhibitus, whence 'to adhibit'; derivative adhibitiō, o/s adhibitiōn-, gives us adhibition; cohibēre, to hold co- (for con-, from cum, with) or together, to contain, to restrict, has pp cohibitus, whence 'to cohibit'; derivative LL cohibitiō, o/s cohibitiōn-, accounts for cohibition;

exhibēre, to hold out (ex) or forth, to offer, to exhibit, has pp exhibitus, whence 'to exhibit'; derivative LL exhibitiō (o/s exhibitiōn-), LL exhibitor, LL exhibitorius, yield resp exhibition (prob via F), exhibitor, exhibitory;

inhibēre, to maintain in, hence to arrest, and to exercise authority over, has pp inhibitus, whence 'to inhibit'; derivative inhibitiō (o/s inhibitiōn-) explains inhibition; derivative LL inhibitor gets itself adopted; derivative ML inhibitorius explains inhibitory, with an anl var inhibitive;

prōhibēre, to hold prō or forward, hence out of the way, hence to prevent (hence order the prevention of), has pp prōhibitus, whence 'to prohibit'; derivative LL prōhibitiō (o/s prōhibitiōn-) becomes MF-F, hence E, prohibition; derivative prohibitor is adopted; derivative prōhibitorius becomes prohibitory, with now predominant var prohibitive, app from EF-F prohibitif, learnedly formed in -if, f-ive, from the L pp prōhibitus;

redhibēre, to (cause to) hold again, hence to (cause to) take back (red- for re-), has pp redhibitus, with derivatives legal LL redhibitiō, o/s redhibitiōn-, whence legal E redhibition—LL redhibitor, adopted—and LL redhibitorius, whence redhibitory.

12. The less obvious E derivatives from L habēre, as listed at the end of the heading, are perh best treated alphabetically. Aver, property (obs), hence a cart-horse or a working ox, an old horse (now only E dial), derives from OF aver, var of aveir (F avoir), property, esp horses or cattle, from L habēre.

13. Habitāre, to dwell, has derivative habitā- culum (pl habitācula), a dwelling-place (whence, via OF-F, the rare E habitable), which, by aphesis, becomes Port bitacola, a binnacle, whence, prob influenced by E bin, the E binnacle, which 'houses' a ship's compass.

14. Habēre in its nuance 'to be in this state or that condition' (vi 'hold') occurs in the phrase male habitus, ill-kept, hence (of persons), unwell, whence OF-F malade, ill, whence OF-F maladie, whence E malady.

15. L has a prefix-cpd unmentioned in para 11: the Plautinian praehibēre, to hold prae or before, forth, to offer, to furnish. Far commoner is the contr praebēre, to present, to furnish, with gerundive praebendus, with LL neu pl praebenda, things to be furnished or supplied, a subsistence, whence MF-F prébende, whence E prebend, orig a daily allowance (at meals), hence a stipend granted by, e.g., a cathedral estate; derivative ML praebendārius, whence MF-F prébendier, accounts for prebendary, the holder of a stipend.

16. LL praebenda, a subsistence, becomes—by confusion of L prae with L pro—the OF-F provende, OF-MF provendre, both adopted by ME, with the latter yielding E provender.

habitable, habitant, habitat, habitation. See prec, para 9.

habitual, habituare, habituatio, habitude, habitué. See HABIT, para 8.

hachure. See the 3rd HATCH, s.f.

hacienda. See FACT, para 9.

hack (1), a riding horse. See HACKNEY.

hack (2), to cut roughly or irregularly, whence hacksaw; hackle—heckle; haggle; haggis; hatchel; —higgle, cf higgledy-piggledy; —hay, cf haywire; —hew, pp hewn; —hoe (n, hence v). —incus; incuse; cf the sep CAUSE and CODE.

1. 'To hack' (whence the n hack) derives from ME hakken, from OE haccian and, in cpds, haccian, akin to OFris hakkia, MD and MLG-MHG hacken; ult, prob echoic.

2. Perh a freq of hack is hackle, to comb (flax), with derivative n. With hackle, n and v, cf the syn n and v hatchel, resp from ME heckele (akin to MD hekel, MHG hechel, hachel), and from ME hechelen (akin to MD-D hekelen).

3. ME hechelen has syn var hekelen, whence 'to heckle', with derivative sense 'to badger'.

4. Akin to OE haeccan is the syn ON höggva, whence Sc hag, with freq haggle, to hack, hatchel, etc., hence to argue with a vendor, hence to wrangle, whence the agent haggler. Sc hag has derivative n haggis, a minced-meat dish.

5. Haggle has the 'thinned' derivative var 'to higgle', whence the rhyming redup higgledy-piggledy.

6. With 'to hack', cf 'to hew' (whence hewer), from OE hēawan, akin to the syn OFris hāwa, var houwa, OS hauwan, OHG houwan, MHG houwen, G hauen, MD hauen, D houen, ON höggva; cf also OSi kovati, to strike, hammer, forge, Lith kova, a battle, and káuju, I forge, Mfr cuad, to strike, (hence) to fight, Gaul col-*, to strike, to forge, L cūdō, I strike, stamp, forge, and incūs (? for incuds*), an anvil. The Gmc r is app hau-* or hauw-; the IE, kau-, to strike, forge, hew. (Walshe.)

7. OHG houwan has derivative n houwa, with Frankish var hauwa*, whence OF houe, ME howe, E hoe.

8. L incūs, anvil, lit that into (in) or upon which one strikes (cūdit), is adopted by SciE, esp in An and Zoo; akin to L incūs is L incūdere, to forge (by striking with a hammer), pp incūsus, whence the E adj and v incuse.

9. Reverting to the Gmc r kha-*, to strike, to hew, we find that akin are OHG houwi, hewi, MHG hōu, G Heu, hay, Go hawi, (cut) grass, ON hey, hay—and OE hieg, hig, hēg, whence, through ME hei, the E hay; the basic idea is 'grass that is mown or cut', 'the cut (grass)'.

hackle. See prec, para 2.

hackney (n, hence v); hack (n, hence v).

A hack or workaday riding horse is a b/f from the syn hackney, whence hackney (carriage) and hackney, a drudge, now hack, a literary drudge: and hackney, ME hakeney or hakenai (earliest as AL hakeneius), is elliptical for Hakeney (etc.) horse, a horse of Hackney, in Middlesex and now a borough of London; Hackney is OE Hacan ieg, Haca's isle. The derivative 'to hackney' orig meant to use a horse for common purposes.

hacksaw. See the 2nd HACK, in heading.

had, pt and pp of HAVE: resp OE haefde and OE (ge)haefed.

haddock: ME haddok or hadok: prob from MF hadot and EF hadou: o.o.o. The r is clearly had-: but whence?

Hades: Gr Haidēs (Ἅιδης), the god of the underworld, hence the realm of the dead, hence, in LGr-MGr, hell: prob for Haiwidēs* (Atfōdēs*) and from aianēs (αἰώνης), grim, terrible, itself from aiē (αιε), always: 'lasting for ever'. (Hofmann.)

haemophilia, haemorrhage, haemorrhoids (archaic emerods, from OF emmeroides—cf RHEUM, para 3)—see the element haema-, var haemo-; anaemia, whence anaemic, and AE anemia, whence anemic—Gr anaimia, a lacking (an-, without) of blood. The adj is haemal, of, for, with blood; AE hemal.

haft. See HEAVE, para 3.

hafnium is a Chem-element -ium derivative of L Hafnia, Copenhagen: it occurs in a Nor zircon.

hail (1), n, from the skies: OE haegel, hagol: akin to OHG hagal, MHG-G hagel, and ON hagl—prob also to Gr kakhlēx, a pebble, ? for kakhlōs* (Hofmann).

hail (2), v, to salute or greet. See WHOLE, para 3.

hair, whence hairy: ME her, earlier haer: OE hāer: cf OFris hēr, OS hār, OHG-MHG hār, G Haar, ON hār and several syn modern Scan words; cf also ON hadr, a woman's head of hair (Gmc khazd-, extn of khaz-; IE kēs-*). Walshe.

hake. See HOOK, para 4.

halation. See HALO.

halberd. See the 2nd BARB.

halcyon (n, hence adj); auk.

1. Halcyon, adopted from L, represents Gr halkuōn, a kingfisher, with h- caused by that of Gr hals, sea, the correct Gr form being alkuōn, which has the further derivative, the syn L alcēdō. Gr alkuōn is o.o.o.: ? a loan-word. This bird was fabled by the Greeks to nest at sea, about the time of the winter solstice, and, during incubation, to calm the waves; hence, a calm period, hence calm and peaceful.

2. Prob akin to Gr alkuōn is auk, of Scan origin: cf ON alka, Sw alka, Da alke, with several C cognates.

hale (1), adj, (robustly) healthy. See WHOLE, para 3.

hale (2), v. See HAUL.

half, adj (whence adv) and n: OE healf, var half, adj and n: cf OFris and OS half, OHG halb, MHG halp, G halb, Go halbs, ON hálfr, all adj, and Go halba, ON hálsa, n, cf OFris halfte and the Central G halfte, n: cf also Skt kīpṛás, cut, and L scalpere, to cut, s scalp-. The adj therefore is basically 'cut (off)'; the n, 'a part cut off'. (Walshe.)

2. Half has derivative 'to halve'—aided by halves, the pl of half, n.

halibut. See HOLY, para 2.

halidoml, by my. See HOLY, para 2.

halitosis; exhale, exhalant, exhalation; inhale, inhalant, inhalation.

1. Halitosis=hālitus, a breath+suffix -osis, connoting disease: and hālitus derives from hālāre, to breathe, also to emit an odour, itself akin to L anhēlare, to be out of breath, to puff, orig echoic.

2. Derivative exhālāre, to breathe ex or out, becomes OF exhaler, whence 'to exhale'; its derivative LL exhālātiō, o/s exhālātiōn-, becomes, via MF-F, the E exhalation; presp exhālans, o/s exhālant-, becomes adj, hence n, exhalant.

3. Derivative LL inhālāre, to breathe upon, becomes E 'to inhale', to breathe in; presp inhālans, o/s inhālant-, becomes adj, hence n, inhalant; derivative inhālātiō, o/s inhālātiōn-, becomes inhalation; inhalator is an anl E formation.

hall, whence, via Goldsmiths' Hall (where gold and silver articles were formerly stamped), hall-mark; hell, whence hellish and such cpds as hellcat, hellfire, hellhound (OE helle hund); hold of a ship; hole, n (whence adj holey) and v; hollow, adj, whence n and v, and hollowness; howe; hulk, n, hence v; hull, n, hence v (whence huller).—cell, cellular, cellule, Celluloid, cellulose; cellar (n, hence v), cellarage, cellarer; occult, adj (hence n) and v, occultation, occultism, occultish; clandestine.—Cf the sep: CALYPSO and CILIARY (and SUPER-CILIOUS) and COLOR (AE), COLOUR (n and v), COLO(U)RABLE, COLORADO, COLORATION, COLORATURA, and CONCEAL and HELMET.

1. The IE r of the entire group is kel-, to hide, varr kal-, kil-, kol-, kul-*, as in Gr kaluptein and L celāre, to hide, Gr kalia, a hut, Gr koleos, a sheath, L cella, small room, cellar, (LL) cell, L cilium, eyelid, L occultāre, to conceal. IE app has the varr khal-, khel-, khol-, khul-, whence the Gmc hall, hell, hole, hull, etc. Note, too, the var represented by Skt śāla, a house.

2. Hall, a large house, but esp a large, high apartment or room, comes, through ME halle or hal, from OE heal or heall, akin to OS and OHG halla, MHG-G halle, a hall, and ON höll, a large house.

3. Hell, orig the place of the dead, comes unchanged from OE and is akin to OFris helle, OS hella, OHG hella, hella, MHG helle, G Hölle, MD helle, hille, (as in D) hel, Go halja, hell, and ON Hel, the goddess of the dead; cf also OIr cel, death, and celim, I conceal (OE helan).

4. Although the -d is caused by hold, to contain, a ship's hold derives, through ME hol or holl, from MD hool, hole, (as D) hol, hole in the ground, hence hold of a ship (hole, or hollow part).

5. Intimately related to this hold, therefore, is hole, ME hol or hole, OE hol, a hole or a cavern, from the OE adj hol, hollow: cf MHG hol, a cave, prop the OHG-MHG adj hol, hollow, used as n, the G adj being hohl and the G n being the very closely related Höhle; cf also the ON adj holr and Go ušulōn, to hollow out, and esp OFris hol, hollow, also a hollow. The OE n hol has derivative v holian, whence 'to hole'.

6. Akin to the OE adj hol is the OE holh, a hollow, whence the ME adj holgh, later holow, E hollow.

7. Howe, a depression or hollow in land, e.g. a shallow valley, is a Sc derivative (adj before n) from OE hol, a hole.

8. Certainly akin to the prec Gmc words, esp to hell, is hull; prob akin, esp to hole, is hulk, orig a ship, esp if heavily built, now the carcass of a wrecked or dismantled or abandoned ship, hence any clumsily bulky person or thing, from ME hulke, a heavy ship, sense-shifted (cf RUM, adj) from OE hulc, a light and speedy ship, akin to MD hulc, hulke, holc, and OHG holcho.

9. Hull, orig a husk or a pod, hence the frame of a ship, derives, via ME hul, from OE hulu, akin to OHG hulla, MHG-G hulle, a covering, a sheath, a husk, G hullen, Go huljan, OS hullian, OFris hella, to cover, also OE and OS helan, OFris hela, to cover, conceal, hide; therefore cf E hell.

Latin

10. Akin to OE helan is the syn L celāre, affecting E mostly in the cpd concelāre: see the sep CONCEAL.

11. Either deriving from or intimately cognate with L celāre is L cella, whence, via OF-EF then ME celle, the E cell. The dim cellula becomes EF-F and E cellule and has, in F, the derivative adj cellulaire, whence E cellular; likewise F is cellulose (Chem -ose); Celluloid, with suffix -oid, is a trade-name.

12. L cella, in its sense 'a (small) store-room', has derivative adj cellārius, with neu cellārium used as n 'pantry', whence OF-MF cellier (EF-F cellier), whence ME celer, celler, whence E cellar, now esp a wine-cellar, whence cellarage (collective -age). Cellarer derives from OF-MF celerier, from cellier; perh prompted by LL cellārius, keeper of a (wine-)cellar, prop the adj used as n.

13. L celāre, to hide, has derivative adv clam (for celam*: complementary to palam, publicly, openly), secretly, very much in private. Hence the adj clandestinus (form-influenced by instētinus, internal): whence, perh via MF-F clandestin, the E clandestine.

14. The L s cel- has var cul- in occulere (oc- for ob-, as in obstruct), to cover up, obscure, hide, with pp occultus, whence the E adj occult. 'To occult' derives, however, from L occultāre, to conceal, hide, an int of occulere; on occultāt-, s of pp occultātus, arises occultātiō, o/s occultātiōn-, whence E occultation; occultism and occultist derive from adj occult.

hallelujah. See ALLELUIA.

halliard. See HALL.

hallmark. See HALL heading.

halloo (v, hence n): EE hallow: MF-EF halloer, to pursue (game) with shouts, an echoic var of MF-EF haler, to excite dogs by shouting halé!, var of hare!, itself with var haro!, clearly echoic. Cf HARASS.—Hence hallo!, with thinning hello!, and with var hullo!, itself with redup derivative hullabaloo, and var hollo.

hallow, hallowed, Halloween. See HOLY, para 3.

hallucinate (vt from vi), hallucination (whence, by suffix -osis, connoting a disease, hallucinosity), hallucinator (whence perh the adj hallucinatory, unless it=hallucination+adj -ory).

1. Hallucinator, a person erring because of hallucinations, is adopted from LL; like L hallucinātiō (o/s hallucinātiōn-, whence E hallucination), it is formed upon hallucināt-, s of hallucinārus, pp of hallucināri, to wander in one's mind, LL var of L alucināri, itself from the syn Gr alucin (s alu-, r al-), akin to Gr alē (s and r, al-), a homeless wandering, a restless roaming: o.o.o.; but cf the -ul- of L ambulāre (Boisacq).

halo (n, hence v); photographic halation; cf the element halo-.

Halation=halo+suffix -ation; and halo=L halo, acc of halos, trln of Gr halōs, a threshing floor, usually round, hence the sun's or the moon's disk, hence a circle about it: cf OSw lo, a threshing-floor, and perh Skt lānati (lū-na-ti), he cuts off or away. (Hofmann.) Cf also Hit halis (acc halen, dat halī), an enclosure, a halo about the moon.

halt (1), adj, lame, derives from OE healt, akin to syn OFris and OS halt, Go hals, OHG halz, ON haltr; more remotely to L clādēs, an injury, and Gr kolobos, kolos, mutilated; also to Ru koldyka, limping. Derivative OE healtian becomes ME halten, whence 'to halt' or limp.

halt (2), n and v, in or of marching. See HOLD, para 2.

halter. See HELVE, para 2.

halve. See HALF, para 2. halyard. See HAUL.

Ham. See the element Hamito-.

ham, a thigh and its buttock, hence a ham of bacon; cpds, e.g. hamstring, a tendon above and behind the knee, hence 'to hamstring', and ham-fatter, from a Negro song 'The Hamfat Man', whence the syn A sl ham, an inferior actor, whence 'to ham'. A ham comes straight from OE; cf OHG hamma, MD hamme (as in G dial) and ham (as in D); also Gr knēmē, lower part of leg, and OIr cnám, a bone.

hamadryad. Cf dryad, q.v. at TREE, para 2, s.f. hamartiology. See the element hamartio-.

hamburger (AE) was prompted by its syn, Hamburg steak, finely chopped beef, esp (hamburger) a sandwich containing a grilled cake thereof; reputedly from the great G port of Hamburg, lit 'the home city'—it being orig a centre of missionary work.

hame (in harness) comes from OE hama, a cover, a skin: cf MD hāme, a hame, OHG hamo, ON hamr, skin, covering; cf also OFris hamethe, hemethe, OHG hemithi, G Hemd, a shirt; therefore cf CHEMISE. Gmc r, ham-; IE r, kam-.

Hamitic. See the element Hamito-.

hamlet. See HOME, para 2.—The fish so named is o.o.o.: prob of Amerind origin.

hammer (n, hence v): ME hamer: OE hamer, var hamor: cf OFris hamer, OHG hamar, MHG hamer, G Hammer, MD-D hamer, ON hamarr (orig rock, the primitive ON hammer being made of stone, this being app the general IE origin): cf, further, OSI kamy, Lith akmuo, stone, Gr akmōn, anvil, Skt āsmā, stone, anvil, hammer. (Walshe.) hammock (1). Cf hummock, q.v. at HUMP.

hammock (2), a swinging, suspended bed: Sp hamaca, of Caribbean origin: cf Yukuna hamaca and Taino amaca, a sleeping-net (Webster, who aptly cfs macaw): prob via Sp contacts with Haiti. 'Haitian word': Santamaria.

hamper (1), n, is an easing of obs hanaper: OF hanapier, a sense-adapted -ier derivative from OF-F hanap, a drinking-vessel: Frankish hnap*: cf OE hnaep, OHG hnaf (ML hanappus).

hamper (2), v: ME hampren: cf LG hampern, happern, and D haperen: ? a nasal var of a r hap-*, to seize, capture, take (akin to L capere), as in ON haptr, a serf.

hamster, a marmot-like rodent: G Hamster, OHG hamēstro, field-mouse: o.o.o.; but cf OSI chomēstorū, Lith staras. (Walshe.)

hamstring. See HAM.

hanaper. See the 1st HAMPER.

hand (n, hence adj and v), whence the adj handy (cf D handig); very many cpds, mostly self-explanatory—but note handbook, -cuff, -fast, -ful, handicap (n, hence v), handicraft, handiwork, handsel (n, hence v), and var hansel, handsome, handspike; underhand, adj and adv; handle, n and v.

1. A hand comes straight from OE, which has var hond: cf OFris hand (var hond), OS hand, OHG-MHG hant, G Hand, Go handus, MD hant, D hand, ON hönd, Sw hand, Da haand: prob akin to OE hentan, ON henda, to catch, and E HUNT, the hand being then 'the grasper'. (IE r, ? kent-, varr kant-, kont-*. Walshe.)

2. Hand cpds worth noting etym include:

handbook: hand+book: prompted by G Handbuch (cf OE handbōc); handcuff: hand+cuff (of sleeve): app not by f/e from OE handcops, hand-rope or -fetter, manacle; handfast, a clasping of hands in agreement, esp of marriage (whence the archaic handfasted, betrothed): hand+fast, adj, n, v; handful: OE handfull;

handicap, with modern sporting sense (whence that of 'disadvantage') deriving from an old sport, characterized by forfeit money hand-held in a cap: easement of hand-in-cap; handicraft, form-influenced by next: EE handcraft: OE handcraeft; handiwork: ME handiwer: OE handgeweorc (OE geweorc, work, a ge- int of syn weorc); handkerchief. See CHIEF, para 8; handsel: ON handsal, handsale, a bargain ratified by a handshaking, ON sal being a var of ON sala (E sale); handsome (whence handsomeness), orig dextrous: hand+suffix -some, -like; handspike: influenced by E spike but deriving from D handspeak, lit 'hand-pole'.

3. overhand and underhand are advv, whence adjj, the latter implying concealment or, at the least, slyness.

4. OE hand has OE derivative handle, lit a little (connoted by dim -le) hand; preserved throughout E. 'To handle' comes, through ME handlen, from OE handlian, imm from OE handle and ult from OE hand: orig to touch, or to feel, with the hand or hands, OE handlian is akin to OFris handelia (var hond-) and OHG hantalon, to touch thus, MHG-G handeln, to bargain, to act.

handicap, handicraft or -work. See prec, para 2. handkerchief. See CHIEF, para 8.

handle, n, v. See HAND, para 4. handsel; handsome. See HAND, para 2, cf SALE, para 2.

hang, pt and pp hanged and (vi) hung; hanger; hangdog, hangfire, hangman, hangover; hank, hanker, hanky-panky; sep HINGE.

1. 'To hang' comes, through ME hengen, var hongien, from OE hangian (vi), hōn (pp hongen; vt): cf OFris hangia, hongia, vi, and OS hangōn, vi, and OHG hangēn, MHG hengen, G hängen, hengen, vi, and OHG hangēn, MHG hengen, G hängen, vt, and OHG hāhan, MHG hāhen, cf Go hāhan, OE hōn, all vt, and ON hanga, vi: Gmc r, khang-, IE r kenk-, varr kank-, konk-: cf Skt sañkatē, he hesitates (hangs in the balance), and perh L cunctāri, to delay (vi).

2. Of the cpds, the foll are worth noting:

hangdog (adj, n): (a person) fit only to be 'strung up' like a dog—or perh to hang a dog; hangfire, orig of a gun that is long in going off; hangman = a man to hang another; hang-over (n, hence adj): something hanging

3. The presp and vn hanging occur in var cpds; instrumental or agential hanger (the short, curved sword, perh influenced by obs D hangher) occurs, agentially, in hanger-on.

4. Prob akin to hang is the now mostly dial 'to hank', ME hanken, ON hanka, to coil; 'a hank' or coil, loop, naut ring, (dial) handle, is also of Scan origin—cf ON hanki, a hasp, hönk (var hangr), a coil, Da hank, a handle, but cf also MD hanc, var hang, a handle.

5. Hank, in its dial senses 'control, influence' and 'bad habit', has a redup derivative, the coll hanky-panky, syn with and prob prompted by HOCUS-POCUS.

6. Perh a freq, either of 'to hank' or of 'to hang', or, more prob, a derivative from Fl hankeren, to long (for), is 'to hanker': cf D hunkeren, to hanker, freq of hangen, to hang; to hanker for something is to hang about, eyeing or waiting longingly for it.

hangar is adopted from F, where earliest (1502) as hanghart in N France; o.o.o.: prob either from MD ham-gaerd*, an enclosed space (cf E -ham, a pasture, in PIN terms) or, more likely, from ML angarium, a shed where horses are shod, perh from the r of hang, horses being hung up for easier shoeing (B & W). hanger. See HANG, para 3.

hank, n, v.; hanker; hanky-panky. See HANG, resp paras 4, 6, 5.

Hansard, the periodic official report of British Parliamentary proceedings, long compiled (1774 onwards) by Messrs Hansard: lit 'member of the G Hanse' (or Hanseatic League), a vst league of merchants in the later Middle Ages: MLG hanse, merchants' guild: OHG hansa (id in Go), a troop.

hansel. A var of handsel, q.v. at HAND, para 2, and SALE, para 2.

hansom is elliptical for the Hansom cab, invented by Englishman John A Hansom, who patented it in 1834.

hap (n and v), hapless, haply—haphazard, mayhap and perhaps; happen (whence vn happening), AE happencance; happy, whence happily (adv -ly) and happiness (-ness), also happy-go-lucky and (one's) happy hunting grounds.

1. Hap, chance, an event exemplifying chance, comes, through ME hap, earlier happe, from ON happ, good luck, akin to OE gehaep, convenient or suitable; from the ME hap(pe) comes ME happen, to have the good luck to, hence to have any sort of luck, hence, impersonally, to befall or chance: ME happen yields the now archaic 'to hap'; it also, perh through its var hapnen, yields 'to happen'. The humorous happenstance = a circumstance that simply happens.

2. Hapless, unlucky, merely tacks -less to hap, good luck; haply merely adds the adv -ly. The now archaic and dial mayhap (var mayhaps—after perhaps) = it may hap (happen): sem cf maybe, perhaps. Perhaps itself = per, through, by + haps, happenings: sem cf perchance.

3. Hap in its orig sense 'good luck' has derivative happy: hap + euphonic p + adj -y. Happy-go-lucky is applied to one who is quite happy to trust to luck. Happy hunting grounds = the region occupied, after death, by hunters and warriors of the N Amerind peoples; hence, very loosely among whites, Heaven, or worse still, any place favourable to one's activities.

haploid; haplogy. See the element haplo-.

happen, happening; happily, happiness, happy. See HAP, resp paras 1, 3.

hara-kiri is adopted from Jap: lit, a belly-cutting.

harangue, n and v.

A harangue, adopted from MF-F, comes from MF areng: ML harenga: OHG hari, army + hringa, ring, hence an assembly. Derivative EF-F haranguer yields 'to harangue'. But EF-F haranguer was perh influenced by It aringare; and MF areng perh derives from It aringa, and both of the It words from It aringo, a public place for horse-racing and popular assemblies; if that be so, as B & W suggest, then It aringo derives from Go hriggs* (pron hrings*)—cf Frankish hring, whence F rang, rank. Cf HARBINGER.

harass (whence harassment) comes from EF-F harasser, an aug of MF harer, to excite hunting dogs, from the OF-F cry hare!: cf HALLOO.

harbinger; harbor (AE) or harbour (n and v), whence harbo(u)rage (suffix -age).

1. Harbinger, orig one who goes ahead and finds accommodation, hence one who lodges or acts as host, derives irreg from ME herbergeour, one who supplies lodging, from syn OF-MF herbergeor (agential -eor, cf L -or), from OF-MF herbergier (OF-MF hébergier), to provide lodging, from herberge, lodging, an inn (F auberge), from OHG heriberga, shelter for soldiers: heri, army (cf HARRY) + OHG bergan (MHG-G bergen), to preserve, bring to safety (cf Go baigan, OE beorgan).

2. Akin to OHG heriberga (MHG-G herberge) is ON herbergi, whence prob ME herberge, then herberwe, finally herbore, whence the E n harbo(u)r. 'To harbour' derives from ME herboren, herberen, earlier herberwen, earliest herbergen (from herberge). (Walshe.)

hard, adj, adv, n; harden; hardihood; hardly; hardness; hardy (whence hardiness);—Reynard;—? harsh, whence harshen, harshness.

1. The adj hard, ME hard, earlier herd, derives from OE heard: cf OFris herd, OS hard, OHG harti, MHG harte, herte, G hart, Go hardus, MD harde (cf D hard), haerde, herde, hart, ON hardr, Da haard, with Gmc r hard-; IE r, kart-, as in Gr kartos, strength, with metathesis kratos—cf the adj kratus, strong. (Walshe.)

2. OE heard has derivative adv hearde, whence the E adv hard, and the further adv hardlice, whence hardly; derivative heardness becomes hardness; but harden goes back only to ME hardenen, hardnen, from the ME adj hard—cf OFris herda, OS herdian, to harden.

3. Of the above-exemplified Gmc origin is OF hardir (cf OHG hartjan, Go hardjan), to render bold, with pp hardi, which, used as adj, becomes E hardy, whence hardihood (-hood).

4. Gmc hard (etc.) has the OHG cpd—a man's name—Reginhart, Strong in Counsel (cf Go ragin, counsel), which becomes MD Reynard, adopted by E and, through the C13 beast-epic, Roman de Renard, coming to mean a fox; OF-MF Renard (whence F renard, a fox) was orig Renart, from the OHG name, prob via Frankish.

5. Prob akin to E hard is E harsh: ME harsk, app of Scan origin—cf also MLG-G harsch and esp MD hars, harse, harst.

6. For the Gmc and IE rr, cf the r of CANCER.

hare (n, hence v), whence harrier (runner); haze (n, hence v), whence hazy; xanthic, xanthous—cf the element xantho-.

1. The hare, usu grey- or brown-furred, goes back to OE hara, akin to ON here, heri (cf Da hare, Sw hara) and to OFris hasa, OHG haso, MHG-G hase: cf also OE hasu, ON höss, grey, grey-brown, OHG hasan, grey, and L cānus (for casnus*), light-grey. The Gmc r is app has-* or haz-, with extn has(a)n-; IE r, app kas-, extn kas(a)n-. Cf Skt śāsas, OP sasnis, a hare. App orig 'the grey (quadruped)'. (Walshe.)

2. With OE hasu, heasu, grey, cf the otherwise unexplainable E haze, a light vapour or greyness or smoke that slightly lessens vision; cf dial haze, to be foggy. Decidedly derivative is AE haze, to bully: bullying produces haziness of mind.

3. App akin to the Gmc and other old words noted in para 1 is the Gr xanthos (ξανθός), fair, yellow, yellowish-brown, app from IE r kasn-* in var khasn*, for xanthos, s xanth-, prob has r xan-. Gr xanthos becomes E xanthous, yellow(ish); the var xanthic represents F xanthique, which=Gr xanthos+F adj suffix -ique.

harem: Ar ḥarīm, anything forbidden, hence the women's quarters in a (great) household, these being prohibited to strangers: harama, to forbid.

haricot (bean): EF-F haricot: Sp ayecote, ayocote: Nahuatl ayecotli. In transition to F, the Sp ayecote got itself involved with MF-F haricot, stew (? via a stew made with beans), itself from MF harigoter, to cut (esp meat) into small pieces.

hark; harken. See HEAR, para 2.

Harlequin, whence harlequin, harlequinade, harlequinesque.

1. Basic Harlequin is adopted from EF-(obs)F, the EF-F arlequin deriving from It arlecchino, itself from EF Herlekin or Hierlekin, var Hellequin, a demon or a goblin, the maesnie Hierlekin (Hellequin) denoting a retinue of evil spirits seen in the night air: Hierlekin is perh of Gmc origin and perh corresponds to a ME Herle king* (King Harilo), possibly one of the names of Wodan. (B & W.) I prefer DAF's derivation of Hierlekin from G-Fl hellekin, a devil, a dim -kin offshoot from the Gmc r of E hell and G Hölle. The modern conception owes much to the adaptation in the It Commedia dell'Arte.

2. EF-F arlequin has derivative arlequinade, whence E harlequinade; harlequinesque comes from It arlecchinesco, adj of arlecchino.

harlot (whence harlotry), a rogue, a male menial, hence a loose woman, esp a prostitute: ME harlot, herlot, both adopted from MF, which has var arlot, all with predominant sense 'young man, esp if debauchee or idler or rogue': o.o.o.: ? of C origin—perh cf Ga ál-óg, a young man (ál, offspring+óg, young, OIr óc).

harm, n (whence harmful and harmless) and v. 'To harm', ME harmen, comes from OE harmian, itself from the OE n harm, whence E harm: and OE harm is akin to OS and OHG-G harm, OFris herm, ON harmr, distress, grief; cf also Osl sramú, shame.

harmonic (adj, hence n), harmonica, harmonious, harmonist, harmonium, harmonize, harmony; disharmonic, disharmonious, disharmony—enharmonic.

1. Harmony descends, via ME and OF, from L harmonia, adopted from Gr: from Gr harmos, a joining or fitting, akin to Gr arthron, a (bodily) joint: IE ar-*, to fit, join (hence, add), as in L a ma, martial arms. Cf, therefore, the 2nd ARM and ARTHRITIS.

2. Gr harmonia has adj harmonikos, whence LL harmonicus, whence MF-F harmonique and E harmonic; the L adj has f harmonica, whence the E musical instrument; OF-F harmonie has, perh prompted by LGr harmonios, the MF-F adj harmonieux, f harmonieuse, whence E harmonious; harmonist is an E anl formation; harmonize derives from late MF-F harmoniser (from harmonie); harmonium is adopted from F (harmonie+-ium).

3. Disharmonic and disharmonious derive, anl, from disharmony, an E anl formation, perh suggested as opp to enharmonic, which, influenced by harmonic, derives from LL enarmonius, from Gr enarmonios (en-, in).

harness, v, derives from ME harnaisen, from ME harnais, whence the E n harness; ME harnais, adopted from OF-F harnais, var of OF-MF hernels: ON hernest*, provisions (nest) for an army (herr), on anl of ON veggest, provisions for the road—for a journey (veg). Cf HARANGUE and see HARRY.

harp (n, v), harper, harpist; harpsichord;—harpoon (n, hence v).

1. 'To harp' derives from OE hearpian (whence OE hearpere, E harper, dislodged by the mod E harpist, which=harp+agent -ist), itself from OE hearpe, whence ME harpe, E harp. OE hearpe is akin to OHG harpsa, MHG harphe, harfe, G Harfe, and ON harpa: o.o.o.: prob, either from crooked shape or from fingers crooked, from a Scan r akin to ON herpask (r herp-), to contract (e.g., one's fingers): perh cf Gr harpagē, a hook (LL harpāgō, grappling iron).

2. LL harpa, of Gmc origin, appears in the It cpd arpicordo (It corda, a string, L chorda, cf CORD), whence MF harpechorde, whence E harpsichord.

3. Prob akin to harp is harpoon: OF-F harpon: an -on aug of OF-F harpe, a claw: OF-MF harper, to grapple: app of Gmc origin—cf ON herpask (para 1, s.f.).

Harpy (whence harpy, a rapacious person, usu woman). See RAPT, para 10.

harridan is an -an alteration of F haridelle, a jade (worn-out horse): EF aridelle: from the r har- of the many F dial words for a horse (cf OF-F haras, a stud of horses).

harrer (1), runner=hare+euphonic r+ease-ment i+agent -er.

harrer (2), one who harries=harry, with i for y+agent -er.

harrow (1), farming implement, hence v; harvest, n hence v; whence harvester; sep CARPEL.

A harrow derives from ME harwe, akin to and perh deriving from ON harfr, var herfi, and akin to harvest: ME harvest or hervest: OE haerfest, itself akin to OFris herfst, OS herbhist, OHG herbist, MHG herbest, G Herbst, ON haust—and to L carpere, to pluck, and Gr karpos, fruit.

harrow (2), to distress or oppress: OE hergian, q.v. at:

harry, to raid or plunder: ME haryen, earlier herien: OE hergian, akin to ON heria, OHG -heriön, -herjön (cf G verheeren, to devastate), therefore also to OE here, OFris here, hire, OHG heri, MHG her, G Heer, Go harjis, ON herr, an army, and, further off, MÍr culre, a troop, cath, battle, battalion, Ga cath, battle, Cor and W cad, battle, with OC r cat-*, to fight, do battle; OP karjis, army, Lith káras, war; OPer kára, army; Gr kolranos (for korjanos*), a general: IE r, ? kár-, army: ? ult id with kar-*, strong.

harsh. See HARD, para 5.

hart, a stag; hartebeest. See HORN, para 6.

Harvard University: Harvard College (1639), founded by the Rev. John Harvard (1607–38), an Englishman; softening of Harward: OE Hereward (E Hereward), 'army-guardian', military general.

harvest. See the 1st HARROW.

hash, n, derives from 'to hash', to cut (meat) small: MF-F hacher: OF-F hache: f.a.e., the 3rd HATCH.

hashish. See ASSASSIN.

hasp, v, derives, by metathesis, from OE haepsian, from OE haepse, var haesp, whence ME hesp or hasp, the latter adopted by E: and OE haepse is akin to G Haspe, a hasp, MHG haspe, OHG haspa, a reel of yarn, and ON hespa, a skein: Gmc etym, ? hapsa* (Walshe): basic idea, ? 'to catch hold of, catch, grasp'. Perh cf APSE.

hassock, a tussock, as in OE hassuc (s hass-), hence a small cushion resembling one; cf the suffix -ock. Perh orig applied to coarse, very dry grass, grey in colour and therefore akin to OE hasu (s has-), grey: cf HARE haste, n and v; hasten; hasty, whence hasty pudding (quickly and easily made) and hastiness; hastings.

Haste, ME hast or haste, comes, as do OFris hást and G Hast, from OF haste (F hâte), which, however, derives from Gmc haisti*: cf OHG heisti, impetuous, violent, OE hāeste, violent, and hāest, violence; also cf Go haifsts. OF haste has derivative OF-MF v haster (F hâter), whence ME hasten, whence 'to haste'—whence, in turn, E 'to hasten'; OF-MF haste also has OF-MF derivative adj hastis (acc hastif, whence F hâtif), with var hasti, whence E hasty. 'To haste', presp hasting, has pl n hastings (now dial), early vegetables, esp peas.

hat, n—hence v (esp in pa hatted), whence hatter, whence, through folklore, mad as a hatter (cf Lewis Carroll's 'the mad hatter').

Hat descends from OE haet or haett, akin to ON hattr, hat, and hötrr, hood, OHG-MHG huot, G Hut, hat, therefore to OE hōd, E hood; prob ult to L cassis, a helmet (? for catsis*): if that be so, the IE r is perh khat-*. The E phrase a (or the) hat trick, orig and still applied in cricket to a bowler taking a wicket with each of three successive balls (from him), app arises in an old custom whereby, in recognition of his feat, the bowler received a hat.

hatch (1), n, door, gate, hatchway (hatch+way); hack, a frame or a grating; beck, a door.

Hatch, ME hacche, derives from OE haec, akin to MLG heck, MD hecke or hec (D hek): o.o.o. Hack is akin: it prob derives from OE haca. Heck is app a Sc, and N dial, var of hack.

hatch (2), to produce young from eggs: ME hacchen, akin to G hecken, MHG hecken, which Kluge derives from a Gmc r kak-*, the penis—cf MHG hagen, a bull. Hence then hatch, a hatching, the young that are hatched.

hatch (3), to mark with shadow lines (hence n), whence the vn hatching; hachure; cf sep HASH.

'To hatch' derives from MF-F hacher, to chop, from OF-F hache, an axe, from Frankish happja*—cf OHG happa, a sickle-shaped knife, and syn OProv apcha. (B & W.) OF-F hache has MF-F dim hachette, whence E hachet. MF-F hachure (from hacher) has been adopted by E. hatchel. See the 2nd HACK, para 2.

hatchet. See the 3rd HATCH.

hatching (in engraving). See heading of 3rd HATCH.

hatchment corrupts achievement: see ACHIEVE.

hatchway. See the 1st HATCH.

hate, n (whence hateful) and v; hatred;—heinous.

1. 'To hate', ME haten, earlier hatien, derives from OE hatian, intimately akin to the OE n hete, whence, through ME hete and later—strongly influenced by the ME v hatien—hate, the E hate: the OE n and the OE v are resp akin to OFris hat, Go hatis, OHG-MHG haz, G Hass, ON hatr, MÍr caiss, all meaning 'hate', and Gr kēdos (cf ACCIDIA), care, sorrow, affliction; and, for the v, OFris hatia, OHG hatan, hatjan, OHG hazzön, MHG hazzēn, G hassen, ON hata, to hate, and OS hatōn, hatan, to be hostile towards, also to OHG hezzēn (for hatjan*), MHG-G hetzen, to pursue, to hunt.

2. The ME v hatlen has derivative hatreden (-reden from OE ræden, condition, stipulation: cf kindred), later hatred.

3. Frankish haijan*, to hate, becomes OF(-F) hatr, whence OF-MF hatne (F haine), with derivative OF-MF adj hainos (F haineux), whence ME heynous, whence E heinous, hatefully bad.

hatter. See HAT.

haughty: OF-F haute, f of haut, high, from L altus (cf ALTITUDE): influenced by OS and OHG hoh (cf Go hauhs and see HIGH).

haul (v, hence n), whence haulage (-age) and haulier (agential-ier); hale, v.

'To hale' or haul derives from ME halen, whence also EE 'to hall', E 'to haul', cf halyard (halliard, occ haulyard), EE hallier, from 'to hall': and ME halen comes from OF-F haler, itself from ON hala, akin to OFris halia, OS halōn, OHG halōn, holōn, MHG holn, G holen, to fetch, pull, haul, and OE geholian, to get or acquire; perh cf Gr kalōs, a rope, a hawser. The Gmc r is prob hal-; the IE τ, kal-; and the basic idea, 'to fetch'.

haulm. See CULM.

haunch; ? hunch (v, hence n), hunchback; ? hunker, v, and hunkers, n.

1. Haunch (prop the hip; loosely haunches, the region of hips and adjoining upper thighs and buttocks), derives from ME, from OF-F, hanche, from Gmc hanka*, cf MD hanke, ED hancke.

2. AE hunkers, haunches, prob derives from ED hancke, as also prob does the AE hunker, to squat: so the o.o.o. hunch, to bow the back, (earlier) to push, as with shoulders or elbows or hips, is perh a dial var of 'to haunch' (from the n). Hunchback, a bowed, hence a humped, back, prob eases hunched back; cf humpback, q.v. at HUMP. The orig AE coll hunch, a strong, intuitive guess, derives, according to Webster, 'from the gambler's superstition that it brings luck to touch the hump of a hunchback'.

haunt (n, v). See HOME, para 3.

hautboy: late MF-F hautbois, lit 'wood (bois) high (haut)', esp in tone': cf haughty and, f.a.e., ALTITUDE.

Havana. See para 3 of:

have, pt and pp had; haven (n, hence v), whence havenage (-age)—cf havana; behave, behavio(u)r.

1. 'To have' derives, through ME haven, earlier habben, from OE habban, akin to OFris habba or hebba, OS habbian or hebbian, Go haban, OHG habēn, MHG-G haben, MD-D hebben, ON hafa; prob also to G haben, MHG heben or heven, OHG heffēn, OS hebbian, Go haffjan, ON hefia, OE hebban, E HEAVE, q.v. sep; and perh to L capere, to contain, hold, take, as in E captive. (Of G haben—therefore inferentially of E have—Walshe, voicing the opinion of every reputable scholar, says that 'the resemblance to Lat. habere, which extends to the terminations, can only be fortuitous': but to postulate fortuitousness merely because L h normally becomes Gmc and C g (as in Ir gaibim, I take) is to go perh too far: there may have been either conservatism or persistence or recalcitrance.) The IE r is app kap-*, to take.

2. Akin to OE habban, to have, is OE haefn or haefene, whence E haven: cf G Hafen, from MLG havene (MHG habene, ? extn of MHG habe), and ON höfn (cf Da havn).

3. A Havana is elliptical for a Havana cigar, made in or near Havana, Sp la Habana, the capital of Cuba: lit, 'the Haven'.

4. Have has the notable prefix-cpd behave, where be- is an int. Derivative behavior (AE) or behaviour has been influenced by the distinct archaic and dial havio(u)r, ME havour (with h- from ME haven, to have), OF aveir or avoir, n use of inf 'to have', L habere. Behaviour has subsidiaries behavio(u)rism and behavio(u)rist, whence, in turn, behavio(u)ristic.

haven, whence havenage. See prec, para 2.

haversack: EF havresac, earlier EF habresac (as still in F diall): G Habersack, sack, or bag, for oats: LG Hafer, G Haber (OHG habaro): cf syn OSw hafre and prob the Gr kakhrus, parched barley. (Walshe.)

havoc. See HEAVE, para 4.

haw, with such cpds as hawfinch (cf FINCH) and hawthorn (OE hagathorn, var haegthorn: cf THORN); hag, haggard—cf hagberry; hay, a hedge; hedge (n, hence v), whence hedgehog;—quay.

1. Haw, a hawthorn berry, derives from OE haga, whence ME hawe, whence the now obs E haw, a fence, a hedge (? orig of hawthorn), hence the yard or grounds of a house. The obs hay, a hedge or the space enclosed thereby, comes from OE hege, very closely akin to OE haga: and akin to both of these OE words is OE hegg or hecg, whence ME hegge, later hedge, retained by E: cf OHG hegga or hecka, MHG hegge or hecke, G Hecke, hedge, themselves akin to G Hag, an enclosure, orig a hedge, MHG hac, OHG hag, OS haga—cf ON hagi, hage, enclosure, pasture.

2. Akin to ON hege, OE hegg, etc., is ON heggr, cognately surviving in Da haeggebaer, so closely resembling the E hagberry, with its var hackberry.

3. Akin to OE haga, hedge, OHG hag, hedge, also a grove, is OE haegtesse, whence, by lopping off the 2nd element, the ME hegge, var hagge, whence E hag, a female demon, with basic meaning, hedge (or wood) woman, hence wild woman (cf, sem, 'the wild man of the woods'); cf OHG hagazussa, MHG hekse, G Hexe, of which 'the first element seems to be Hag [hedge], the second perh. as in Norw. (dial.) tysja "fairy"; Gaelic dusil "demons" (Walshe). The 1st element app occurs in MF hagard, prob of Gmc origin and possibly meaning orig 'of the hedges (and woods)', hence 'wild', applied esp to an untamed hawk, hence 'wild-looking'; perh influenced in EE by hag, a witch. With MF-F hagard, cf ME hagger, wild, untamed, an untamed hawk, clearly operative in E haggard; cf also MHG-G hager, lean, haggard. The MHG, ME word is o.o.o.

4. Of the same IE r as haw, hedge, but through C, is quay, ME key, OF kai or cay (F quai): cf

OBr cai (Br kað), Cor kea, ke, W cae, hedge, OIr cae, cai, house (enclosed by a hedge): the OF word prob deriving imm from a Gaul caio* (cf OBr caiou, ramparts, and L caulae, fence, hedge). The OF cai, hedge, developed the senses 'wall'—'embankment'—'quay'.—Derivative F quayage—cf the C12 ML caiatium—has been adopted by E. (B & W; Holthausen.)

hawk (1), the bird. See HEAVE, para 5.

hawk (2), to clear one's throat, is echoic.

hawk (3), to sell itinerantly; hawker, itinerant merchant, a peddler. See HOOK, para 2.

hawse: EE halse: ON hals, neck, hence part of a ship's bows: f.a.e., COLLAR.

hawser: OF-MF haucier (F hausser), to hoist: VL altidre*, to put high, to raise: from L altus, high: cf ALTITUDE.

hawthorn. See the heading of HAW.

hay (1), mown grass. See the 2nd HACK, para 9.

hay (2), hedge. See HAW, para 1.

hazard, n and v; hazardous.

Hazard, orig a game of chance played with dice, is adopted from OF hasart, MF-F hasard, from Ar al-zahr, the die, through Sp azar, unforeseen disaster, itself of the same origin. The derivative EF-F adj hasardeux prob suggested E hazardous; the derivative MF-F v hasarder certainly yielded 'to hazard'.

haze. See HARE, para 2.

hazel (whence hazelnut): ME hasel: OE haesel, akin to OHG hasala, MHG-G hasel, and ON hasl: Gmc r, xasala*; IE r kosolo*—; cf Ir coll (for cost*) and L corulus (for cosulus*). (Walshe.)

hazy. See HARE, para 2.

he, him, his; hence, here, hither; it, its; she—her, hers.

1. The personal pronoun, 3rd person sing, is, in OE, hē, m; hēo, f; hit, neu; whence, resp, he; not she, q.v. in para 7; and, through ME hit, later it, the E it, whence EE it's, whence E its.

2. OE hē is akin to OFris and OS hē, hi, OHG hē, cf MD he, hi, D hij; also to words in L and Gr—cf, e.g., the pronominal element e—in Gr ekei, there—and, more remotely, in other IE languages.

3. OE hē has dat him, whence the E him (orig the indirect object).

4. OE hē has gen his, of him, whence both the possessive pronoun and the possessive adj, E his.

5. OE hē has derivative adv (1) heonan, heonan, heona, hina, whence, with gen -s added, ME hennes, hens, whence E hence, with several Gmc cognates; (2) hēr, ME her, E here, with Gmc cognates; (3) hider, ME hider, later hither, E hither, with very close Gmc cognates.

6. OE hēo, she, has gen and dat sing hire, whence ME hire, here, hir, whence E her, pronoun, whence her, adj, whence hers (gen suffix -s).

7. But the E she comes from a different r: through ME she (earlier scae), varr sche, scheo, scho: ? from OE sēo, var sio, f of the article 'the', orig a demonstrative pronoun: cf OHG siu, MHG siu, sie, sī, G sie, OS siu; cf also Skt syā, this one.

head, n hence adj and v (whence header, head- ing); many cpds, all obvious; behead, whence beheadal; ahead.

1. Head: ME hed, earlier heved, earliest heaved: OE hēafod, akin to OE hafud, OFris hāved, hāft, hāud, ON hōfuth, Go haubith, OHG houbit, MHG houbet, houbt, G Haupt—to L caput—Skt kapālam (skull): f.a.e., CHIEF, para 1.

2. Behead: ME biheden, earlier bihefden: OE behēafdian: prefix be- + hēafod + inf suffix.

3. Ahead=a-, on + head: in the front, forwards.

heal, health, healthy. See WHOLE, paras 4–5.

heald. See HEAVE, para 6.

heap, n, comes, via ME heep, heap, from OE hēap, whence OE hēapian, whence 'to heap': and OE hēap is akin to OFris hāp, OS hōp, OHG hūfo, houf, MHG hūfe, houfe, G Haufen, MD hoep, houp, (as D) hoop, also to OSI kupū, Lith kaipās, all 'heap': cf Skt kaofa, mountain ('a great heap').—Cf HIVE.

hear, pt and pp heard; vn hearing, agent hearer; hearsay (from 'I hear say', I hear it said); hearken or harken; hark.

1. 'To hear', ME heren, derives from OE hēran, hýran, hieran: cf OFris hēra, OS hōrian, OHG hōrēn, MHG hoeren, G hören, MD horen, hoeren, MD-D hoeren, Go hausjan, ON heyrá: Gmc r, ? hauz-; IE r, ? kauz-: cf Gr akouein (? for akousein*), perh lit (Walshe) 'to have a sharp ear': IE r ak-, sharp + ous-, var aus-*, ear (cf EAR).

2. Akin to hear is the syn hark, ME herken, from that 'lost' OE v (cf OFris herkia, OHG hōrēchēn, MHG hōrēn, G horchen, MD horken, all prob intt of the simple 'to hear' forms) which accounts for OE heorcnian, often in contr hercnian, whence ME hercnien, hercnen, whence E 'to hearken', with var harken, influenced by hark.

hearse, herse; rehearse, whence rehearsal (suffix -al, connoting 'activity');—hirsute;—horrendous; horrent; horrible; horrid; horrify, horrific; horriliate, horrification; horrisonant; horror;—abhor, abhorrent (whence abhorrence);—gorge;—ordure, ordurous;—urchin—herisson; sep CAPRICE.

1. Herse, now rare, is a var of hearse: ME herse: OF-MF herce, a harrow, an ornamental framework over a coffin (whence, ult, the predominant modern sense), a portcullis (F, cf E, herse): L hirpicem, acc of hirpex (o/s hirpic-), a harrow, prob akin to L hirsutus, prickly (see para 3): L hirpex, var irpex, derives from Samnite herpus, irpus, a wolf: cf L hircus (cf Sabine fircus), he-goat.

2. OF-MF herce, a harrow, has derivative OF-MF hercier (cf ML hirpicāre), to harrow, with OF-MF prefix-cpd rehercier, to harrow re- or again, hence to repeat: whence ME rehercen, rehercen, whence 'to rehearse'.

3. L hirsutus, shaggy, bristly, is akin also to L hirtus, hairy, (esp) stiff-haired, whence Bot Hirtella, f of SciL dim hirtellus; hirsutus becomes E hirsute. All these L words are akin to L horrēre (see para 5).

4. With L hirsutus, cf Skt hr̥syati, he bristles, itself akin to Gr khēr, hedgehog, whence perh L her*, L er, with derivative syn extn ericius, second-arily a hedgehog-like, obstructive machine of war, whence, via a form ericiō*, acc ericiōnem*, the OF-MF her çon, whence F hérisson, whence E herisson, hedgehog (obs), the obstruction (hist). The MF var herichon, esp in the mdfn irechon, becomes ME irchoun, with var urchon, whence E urchin, orig a hedgehog, hence a mischievous boy, esp if raggedly dressed.

5. L hirpex, hirtus, hirsūtus, ericius are all, very prob, akin to L horrēre, (of human hair) to stand on end, esp with fright, hence to shudder with fear, itself perh (E & M) akin to Skt hárṣate, his hair bristles with joy, ghárṣus, excited—cf Arm garšim, I have a horror of.

6. Horrēre (s horr-) has presp horrens, o/s horrent-, whence the literary adj horrent, bristling, bristly; it also has the foll L derivatives affecting E:

horrendus, causing a shudder of fear or extreme disgust: E horrendous; horribilis: OF-F, whence ME-E, horrible; horridus, bristly, hence savage-looking, hence horrible: E horrid; horror, a bristling with fear, a shudder, extreme fear or disgust: OF-MF horror (F horreur): ME horroure: E horror.

7. Horrēre has several prefix-cpds; by far the most important is abhorrēre, to remove oneself with horror from (ab), hence to feel horror at or towards: whence 'to abhor'. Presp abhorrens became in LL an adj, meaning 'repulsive': from its o/s abhorrent- comes the E abhorrent.

8. The chief full-cpds of horrēre are perh:

horrificāre, to cause (-ficare, c/f of facere, to make) to horrēre or bristle, esp with fear, whence 'to horrify'; the derivative adj horrificus becomes EF horrificus and E horrific;

LL horripilāre, (of the pilus, hair) to bristle, esp with fear, hence to shudder, the pp horripilātus yielding both 'to horripilate' and, via the derivative LL horripilātiō, o/s horripilātiōn-, E horripilation; horrisonus, dreadful-sounding, whence, as if via a derivative ML pa horrisonans*, the E horrisonant.

9. There remain two notable E words: gorse and ordure. Gorse, from OE gorst, is akin to L hordeum (s hord-, r hor-), barley, app for horzdeum* or horsdeum*, much as horrēre is perh for horsēre*; with OE gorst, cf OHG gersta, MHG-G gerste, barley (Walshe.)

10. Ordure, adopted from OF-F, is a -ure derivative of OF ord, repulsively dirty, disgustingly filthy: from L horridus (s horrid-), prob through hord-*, contr of horrid-. E ordure has adj ordurous (cf the F ordurier).

heart, n (whence heartly, whence heartily and heartiness) and v (whence hearten, whence dishearten, with paa heartening, disheartening); numerous cpds, all self-explanatory, but notably: heartbreak (-broken), -burn, -felt, -less, -rending, heart's ease (lit and, of a flower, fig); heartsick (cf OE heortsēoc), Sc heartsome, -string, -whole.

Heart, ME harte, earlier herte, with var heorte, derives from OE heorte: cf OFris herte (hirte), OS herta, OHG herza, MHG herze, G Herz, Go hairtō, MD herte, hert, harte, MD-D hart, ON hiarta; cf also Gr kardia (and kēr), L cor (gen cordis)—and Lith širdis. See the sep cordial (-cardiac) group.

heart: ME harthe, herth: OE heorth, akin to OFris and OS herth, OHG herd, MHG hert, G Herd, MD hert, herte, heert, hart. Cf also Lith karstas, hot; L carbō (? for khardho-*), a coal—see sep CARBON; perh L cremāre, q.v. at CREMATE; perh Gr keramos, earthenware (fired in a kiln), with adj keramikos, whence E ceramic, whence the n ceramics.

heartly. See heading of HEART.

heat, n and v (whence heater and AE dial and coll het-up, excited); hot, adj (hence n and v), whence hotness (-ness).

'To heat', ME heten, derives from OE hāetan, akin both to OE hāetu (var hāeto), whence, through ME haete, later hete, the E n heat, and to OE hāt, whence, through ME hat, later hot, the E adj hot. The OE adj is akin to OFris and OS hēt, OHG-MHG heiz, G heiss, MD heit, MD-D heet, ON heir, and, further off, the Lith kaitrus: the Gmc r is app hait-; the IE, koid-. (Walshe.) The OE n hāetu, hāeto, is akin to OFris hēte, OHG hizzea, hizza, heizi, MHG-G hitze, Go heito (fever), MD heet, heit, MD-D hitte, ON hite, hiti; cf also Lith kaitrà, incandescence. In general, the nn derive from the adjj.

heath (whence the adj heathy), heathen, heathendom, heathenish; heather, whence adj heathery; ? hoyden, whence hoydenish.

1. Heath, ME heth, waste land (or heath), the plant heath or heather, from OE hāeth, waste land, heathland (heath), the plant; the plant app comes from the land, because it grows there. Akin to OE hāeth are MHG-G heide, MD hede and (as D) heide, ON heithr, waste land, a heath, cf Go haiith, a field, and, further off, OIr clad, OW coid, both for a forest; cf also L būcērum, a pasture for cattle (cf bucolic): Gmc r, haith-; IE r, koit-. (Walshe.)

2. App from ON heithr, waste land, a heath, comes ME hathir, var hadder: E heather.

3. Heathen, ME hethen, derives from OE hāēthen, prob 'he of the hāēth or heath', hence 'he of the (remote) country districts': cf OFris hēthen, OS hēthin, adj, OFris hēthenmann and hēthena, nn, OHG heidano (perh of Arm hethanos, from Gr ethnos, a people, a nation), MHG heiden, G Heide, MD heiden, n, and heiden, heidin, adj, Go haiithno (heathen woman), ON heidinn, heithinn, adj. The sem parallel to Pagan cannot be pushed very far.

4. The Go haiithnō, female heathen, suggests the not impossible derivation of hoyden, a lout (obs), a rough, bold girl, from D heiden, a heathen, (but also) a boor.

heathen. See prec, para 3.

heather. See HEATH, para 2.

heave, pt and pp heaved and hove (OE pt hōf); haft; havoc; hawk (the bird); heald—huddle; heavy, heaviness; heft (n and v), hefty.—For the numerous L capere cognates, see CAPABILITY.

1. 'To heave' (whence the n) comes, through

ME heven, earlier hebben, from OE hebban, (vt) to move up or along, to lift (now usu effortfully): cf OFris hebbā, OS hebbian, OHG heffēn (pt huob), MHG heven and, as in G, heben, MD-D heffen, Eastern MD heven, G hafjan, ON hefja, hefja: all corresp exactly to L capere (r cap-), to take, grasp, seize; cf also Gr kōpē, a handle; prob cf HAVE.

2. From, or at the least akin to, ME heven, is E dial and coil heft, to heave, and a heaving, the latter yielding the dial and coll adj hefty, weighty, somewhat roughly vigorous.

3. Akin to, perh from, OE hebban is OE haeft, a handle (now esp of a knife): E haft, that by which one raises an object. Cf OFris heft, hefte, OS hafta, OHG hefti, MHG hefte, D and G Heft, a handle, MHG haft, a holding, a hold, ON hepti—and Gr kōpē (as in para 1).

4. Prob of the same Gmc origin as heave is havoc, adapted from OE-MF crier havot, to cry havoc, havot being pillage or plunder, akin to—prob from—OF-MF haver, to take, prob from OF-MF hef, a hook, itself prob from OHG heffēn (as in para 1). (DAF.)

5. Akin to havoc is the predatory hawk: ME hawk, earlier havek, OE hafoc, dial var heafoc: cf OFris havek and hawk, OHG habuh, MHG habech, G Habicht, ON haukr: each Gmc n deriving very prob from the 'heave' v.

6. From the r of heave comes OE hefeld, whence E heald, a harness in weaving, also known as a heddle, from OE hefedl*, earlier form of hefeld. (OED.)

7. Akin to OE hebban is OE hefig, whence ME hevi, whence E heavy; derivative OE hefignes yields heaviness. The OE hefig is akin to OS hebhig (hefig), OHG hebig, hevig, MD hevich, ON höfgr, höfgr; cf also OE hefe, a weight.

heaven, heavenly.

The latter derives from OE heofonlice (cf -like), the adj of OE heofon, whence through ME heofene, later hefen, latest heven, the E heaven: and OE heofon is akin to OS hevan (hebhan), LG heven, heben, and also, at a simple remove, akin to OFris himel, himul, OS himil, OHG himil, MHG himel, G Himmel, Go himins, ON himenn, himinn. The Gmc r is app heman-, var himin-, and that r could even be akin to that of CAMERA.

heaviness, heavy. See HEAVE, para 7.

hebdomad, hebdomadal, hebdomadary. See SEVEN, para 3.

Hebe: Gr Hēbē, goddess, personification of hēbē, youthfulness, youthful strength: IE etymon, iega*, iegua*—cf Lith jegiu, I have the strength (to . . .).

Hebraic, Hebraism, Hebraist, Hebraize, Hebrew (n, hence adj).

The base is H 'Ibhri', 'one who is, or comes, from across' the river Euphrates (Webster), esp a Jew, from H ēbher, from beyond: whence Aram Ebrai, Gr Hebratos, L Hebraeus, ML Ebreus, OF-MF Ebreu (F Hébreu), ME Ebreu, E Hebrew. But since 'Ibhri' is orig an adj form (-i), 'Ibhri' might well, as Enci It proposes, derive from a remote ancestor

'Ebher. Gr Hebratos has adj derivative Hebralkos, LL Hebraicus, E Hebraic, and derivative v hebratzein, to speak Hebrew, whence 'to Hebraize'—cf the F hébraiser—to render or become Jewish. Hebraism and Hebraist add -ism and -ist to Hebraic, but owe something to F hébraisme and hébraïste.

hecatomb. See HUNDRED, para 2.

heckle. See the 2nd HACK, para 3.

hectic: late MF-F hectique: LL hecticus: Gr hektikos, consumptive, (orig and mainly) habitual, from hexis, a habit of body or mind, from ekhein, to have (f.a.e.: SCHEME): cf, sem, HABIT from L habere, to have. Cf:

hector, to bully, derives from hector, a bully, itself from L Hector, trin of Gr Hektōr, lit one who holds firm, from ekhein, to hold, to have: cf prec and, f.a.e., see SCHEME.

heddle. See HEAVE, para 6.

hedge. See HAW, para 1. The hedgehog, which is a hedge-haunter, resembles a pig only in its snout.

hedonic, hedonism, hedonist. See SUAVE, para 3.

heed, v—hence n, whence both heedful (-ful) and heedless (-less)—comes, through ME heden, from OE hēdan, akin to OHG huotēn, MHG huēten, to protect, OHG huota, protection, MHG huote, (esp) supervision of women to prevent illicit love-affairs, G Hut, a guarding, heed, OFris hēda, hoda, huda, watch over, guard, take care of. (The OE v prob derives from the Gmc r occurring in OHG huota.)

heel (n, hence v); hock (of, e.g., a horse), n, hence v; coxa.

1. Heel, ME heele or hele, derives from OE hēla, for hōhila*, dim of OE hōh, heel: cf OFris -hēl, hēla, MD hie or, as D, hiel, ON haell.

2. OE hōh, heel, becomes E hock: cf ON hā-sin, the sinew in the hock, and prob L coxa (? for cocsa*), hip, hip-bone, itself retained by An and Zoo, and akin to Skt kakṣā, kakṣas, armpit, and Elr coss, Ga cās, foot, and perh OHG ahsa, the part behind the knee-joint.

heft, hefty. See HEAVE, para 2.

hegemony. See SEEK, para 7.

Hegira, Mohammed's flight from Mecca: either via Sp hegira or via ML hegira: Ar hijrah, flight, departure, from Ar hagara, to depart.

heifer: ME hayfare: OE hēahfore: o.o.o.: ? 'high-farer' (EW).

height, heighten. See HIGH, para 3.

heinous. See HATE, para 3.

heir, heiress, heirloom; hereditary, hereditament, hereditary, heredity—heritable, heritage,heritance, heritor—inheritor, inheritable, inheritance, inheritor—disinheritor.

1. Heiress=heir+f suffix -ess; heirloom=heir+loom in its earlier sense of 'tool' (almost 'chattel'); and heir itself derives from ME heir, eir, both adopted from OF (cf the F hoir): from VL hērem* for L hērēdem, acc of hērēs, prob akin to Gr khēros, bereaved, and Skt jahāti, he leaves (e.g., an heir) or abandons.

2. L hērēs, an heir, o/s hērēd-, has derivative LL hērēditāre, to inherit, whence both ML hērēditābilis, whence, via MF, hereditable, heritable, and ML hērēditamentum, whence E herediment, heritable property. Hērēs has the further derivative hērēditās, o/s hērēditāt-, whence, via OF-F hērēditē, the E heredity; hērēditās, s hērēdit-, has derivative hērēditārius, whence late MF-F hērēditaire and E hereditary.

3. Hērēditāre becomes OF-MF heriter (F hériter) with OF derivatives heritable, heritage, heritance, all adopted by E; derivative OF-MF heritier becomes E heritor (L -or substituted for F -ier).

4. Hērēditāre has LL prefix-cpd inhērēditāre, to appoint (someone) as heir, whence MF enheriter, whence ME enheriten, to leave a heritage to, (also) to inherit, whence 'to inherit', whence inheritable and inheritor; derivative MF enheritance becomes E inheritance. Inherit has the dissociative off-shoot, disinherit.

heliacal. See SOLAR, para 4; cf SUN, para 3.

helianthus. See the element heli(o)-.

helical, helicine, helicoid (extn helicoidal); helicopter—see the element heli-; helix; cf the element heli-co- at heli-.

The first two adj are E formations from helic-, o/s of L helix, adopted from Gr helix, adj and n, (anything) twisted or rolled, (a) spiral, o/s helik-, c/f heliko-, whence the Gr adj heliokoidēs, whence the F hélicoidé and E helicoid. Gr helix and var helikē derive from elissō, Attic helittō, I turn about or around, twist, roll (vt), akin to OE wilwan (wilwian) and Go walwjan, to roll (vt); elissō is prob for ewelissō*, r ewel-, perh a vocalization of IE r wel-, varr wal-* and wil-*.

heliocentric, heliograph, heliotope. See the element heli(o)-.

Helios, helium. See SOLAR, para 4.

helix. See HELICAL.

hell. See HALL, para 3.

Helladic, Hellas. See HELLENE.

hellebore, a poisonous herb, derives from L helleborus (var elleborus), trln of Gr helleboros (var elleboros): o.o.o.: ? ult akin to L uerātrum, Bot Veratrum, occ known as 'false hellebore' and itself o.o.o.

Hellene, Hellenic, Heilenism, Hellenist, Hellenistic, Hellenize; Helladic, Hellas; Hellespont.

The Hellespont or Dardanelles is the ponos (s poni-: f.a.e., PONS) of Hellas or Greece; and Hellas, adj Helladikos, whence Helladic, is an -as derivative of Hellēn ("Ελλην), the o.o.o. eponymous originator of the Gr race: hence, Ελληνες*, Hellēnes, the Hellenes or Greeks, with derivatives Hellēnikos, E Hellenic—Hellēnismos, E Hellenism—Hellenistēs (-istēs), E Hellenist, whence Hellenistic, perh after Gr hellenistiki, in Gr fashion—Hellēnizein, E Hellenize.

hello! See HALLOO, s.f.

helm (1), rudder: ME helme: OE helma, akin to OFris, OS, OHG helm, ON hjalmr: PGmc helmo-* (Kluge): cf HELVE.

helm (2); helmet. Helm, helmet, comes straight from OE; helmet, however, is adopted from

OF-MF, where it is the dim of OF-MF helme (C8 helmus), from Frankish helm*, therefore id with E helm, akin to prec.

helot, a serf, derives from Helot, a serf of Sparta: L Helotes, Hilotai, trlnn of Gr Heilōtes, Heilotai, all pl: either from the enslaved inhabitants of the Laconian town of Helos or, more prob, from Gr haliskesthai, to be made captive, itself akin to L uellere (r uel-), to tear, or pull violently, away, Go wilwan, to take forcibly; haliskesthai has s halis-, r hal-. Hence helotism.

help, n (whence helpful and helpless) and v; helpmate, helpmeet.

Helpmeet rationalizes helpmate, which corrupts the Biblical 'help meet'—suitable—'for him' (Eve, for Adam). Help, n, is OE help, akin to OFris helpe, OS hempa, OHG hēlfa, hilfa, MHG hēlfe, hilfe, G Hülfe, Hilfe, ON hjalp. 'To help', ME helpen, is OE helpan, akin to OFris helpa, OS helpan, OHG helfan, MHG-G helfen, Go hilpan, ON hialpa (hjalpa); cf Lith šelpiū, I help.

helter-skelter, in confused haste, is an echoic redup: cf, sem, hurry-scurry and, phon, G holter-poller and D holderdeholder.

helve: ME helve, earlier helfe: OE helf, hielf, hylf: akin to the 1st HELM and prob to Lith kilpa, a stirrup.

2. Akin to OE helf is OE haelftr, ME helfter, later helter, latest halter, extant in E: cf MD halfter (as D), haelter, halter, and OHG halftra, MHG-G halfter.

hem (1), a border or edge, hence the v: OE hem or henn, akin to MD and MHG-G hemmen, to confine, hem in, hinder, whence E hem, usu hem in, to surround (e.g., a foe): perh cf OE and E dial ham, a pasture, and Gr kēmos (s and r kēm-), a muzzle.

hem (2), to hinder or confine. See prec.

hem (3), to clear one's throat ('to hem and haw'), derives from the echoic interjection hem! of warning, with its reinforced var ahem!

hemal. See HAEMOPHILIA, s.f.

hemicycle; hemisphere. See the element hemi-; for the latter, cf SPHERE, para 2.

hemlock: ME hemlok, hemeluc: OE hymlic, hymlice, hemlic: o.o.o. The suffix -lic ('-like') suggests that the OE n was orig an adj: perh hymlic(e) is a contr of hymeletic, '(a herb) like the hop-vine or the bryony or the convolvulus', the OE hymete being applied indifferently to all three vine-like or climbing herbs; there may even be some obscure pun on the deadliness of the hemlock—and of the products of the hop.

hemp, whence the adj hempen and the mostly dial hempy; cf the sep CANVAS, where also cannabis.

Hemp, ME hemp, is an easing of OE henep or haenep: cf ON hampr, OS hanap, OHG hanaf, MHG hanef, G Hanf, MD hanep, hannep, hennip, and, as in D, hennep; cf also Gr kannabis (L cannabis), OB konoplja, Pol konop, Lith kanāpės. The Gmc, Gr, OSI words app go back to 'some old E European language': Walshe cites a Chere-miss and a Zyrjān word, these two languages being Finno-Ugric: 'a wandering culture-word of wide diffusion'.

hen (whence henbane—cf BANE)—whence 'to henpeck' or nag at; cf the sep CANT, where chant, enchant, chanticleer, charm, are treated.

Hen comes straight from OE hen, which has varr henn, haen: the f of OE hana, cock: cf OHG henna, heninna, MHG-G henne, hen, and, for 'cock', OHG hano, MHG hane, han, G Hahn, OFris and Go hana, ON hani. The OGmc 'cock' words prob mean 'the chanter or singer', for they are akin to L canere (r can-), to sing, and its int cantāre—to Gr ēlkanos, cock, lit 'singing in the dawn' (ēōs)—and several C words: IE r, either kan-* or, more prob, khan-*, to sing.

hence (whence henceforth). See HE, para 6.

henchman: ME hencheman or henxman, a groom: app OE hengest, hengist, a horse+man. With OE hengest, cf OFris hengst and hanxt, OHG hengist, a stallion, a gelding, MHG hengest, G Hengst, stallion, and ON hestr (for henhistr*); prob akin to Skt śankus, (of horses) nimble. (Walshe.)

hendecagon; hendecasyllable. See the element hendeca-.

hendiadys. See the element hen(o)-.

henna, dye from the leaves of the tropical shrub henna: Ar hinna', whence with al, the, prefixed, the ML alchanna, whence—cf Sp alcana—alkanna, a herb of the borage family; Sp alcana has dim alcanela, whence alcanet, a herb and its derivative dye.

henpeck. See the heading of HEN.

henry, the unit of El inductance, is named from an American physicist, Joseph Henry (1797–1878): and Henry, surname from given name, is OF-F Henri, from G Heinrich, from OHG Haganrih, lit the 'ruler' (-rih: cf L rex) 'of an enclosure' (OHG hag, haga: cf HAW, para 1, s.f.). Given-name Henry has pet-form Harry, whence Hal.

hepar; hepatic. See the element hepato-.

heptad; heptagon. See SEVEN, para 2.

her. See HE, para 6.

Hera. See HERO, s.f.

herald, n, whence—after OF herauder—v and heraldic (cf the late MF-F héraldique) and heraldry (-ry for -ery, connoting 'profession' or 'subject').

Herald, already in ME (var heraud), derives from MF heralt (var heraut, whence F héraut), earliest as hirauz, from Frankish hariwald*, the chief (cf OHG waltan, to have power over, to govern) of an army (cf OHG hari, heri: see HARRY): cf Tacitus's Batavian chief Charioualda and OE Harald or Harold.

herb; herbaceous; herbage; herbal (adj, hence n)—whence herbalist; herbarium, herbary; herborize; herbose, herbous;—sep ARBO(U)R in a garden; yerba;—cf the element herbi-, where, e.g., herbivorous.

1. Herb, ME from OF-F herbe, derives from L herba; o.o.o.: 'doubtless a survival of some pre-Latin rustic word' (E & M).

2. In Sp, L herba becomes hierba, whence SAm Sp yerba, known in E as an ellipsis of yerba de maté or commonly yerba maté, from which maté (Sp mate, from Quechuan mate, calabash) or Paraguayan tea is made.

3. The following L derivatives of herba affect E: herbāceus, grassy, whence herbaceous;

LL herbārium, a grassy place, a herbal, adopted by E, with derivative herbary; herbōsus, grassy, LL green like, or as, grass, whence both herbose and herbous.

4. Through F come:

herbage, an adoption from OF-F: herbe+-age; herborist, from EF-F herboriste, which suggests herboriser, whence herborize, with subsidiary herborization (F herborisation).

5. But herbal=E herb+adj -al.

herculean derives from Herculean, of Hercules, L adaptation of Gr Hērakleēs (whence the L and E var Heracles), lit 'glory (kleos) of Hera', the Gr goddess.

herd, v, derives from herd (of animals), ME herd, var heorde, from OE heord, whence OE heorde, var hierde, ME heorde, herde, E herd, a herdsman (herd's man): and OE heord is akin to OHG herta, MHG herste and, as in G, herde—Go hairda—ON hiörth (hjóρθ)—and, further off, Skt sárdhas; cf Lith kerdžius, a shepherd. The Gmc r is herd-; the IE r, kerdh-. (Walshe.)

2. Shepherd derives; via ME schepherde or -irde, from OE scēaphyrde, the first element being the source of SHEEP.

herma; hermaphrodite; hermeneutic, whence hermeneutics; Hermes, hermetic, with extn hermetical.

1. A herma or pillar-shaped image with a head of the Gr god Hermes, Gr Hermēs (L Herma), the Olympian messenger and therefore a bearer of secrets. Gr Hermēs, o.o.o., has the ML derivative adj hermeticus, with esp ref to Hermes Trismegistos (thrice-greatest): whence hermetic.

2. Hermes and Aphrodite (cf APHRODISIAC) had a son Hermaphroditos, who, bathing, found himself uncorporally merged with a nymph, whence hermaphroditos, L hermaphroditus, E hermaphrodite, a person double-sexed.

3. Gr Hermēs has acc Hermēn, which perh suggested Gr hermēneus, an interpreter (? orig of Olympian messages), otherwise o.o.o.: Boisacq and Hofmann propose a PGr herma* or hermos*, a speech or a reply, with r wer-*, to say or speak. The derivative v hermēneuein has dependent adj hermēneutikos, whence E hermeneutic.

hermit, hermitage; eremite. See the 1st RARE, para 2.

heru. See HERON.

hernia. See YARN; cf the element hernio-.

hero, heroic, heroine, heroism.

The last derives from EF-F héroïsme from MF héros, trln of Gr hērōs, whence, via L heroes, pl of L heros (from Gr), the E hero. Gr hērōs has adj hērōlkos, L heroicus, MF-F hérolque, E heroic (whence n heroics); the derivative Gr f hērōinē becomes L herofina, EF-F héroïne, E heroïne. Gr hērōs, s hērō- r hēr-, is akin to L seruāre (ML servāre), to safeguard, s seru-, r ser-: cf SERVANT. Akin is the Gr goddess Hēra (Attic Hērē), app for Hērwa*, precisely as hērōs is for hērōwos*: cf Av haurvaiti, he keeps guard over. The basic sense of both Hera and hero would therefore be 'protector'.

heron (whence heronry), occ hern; egret and aigrette.

Egret, a white-plumed heron, derives from F aigrette, EF-F egret, tuft of feathers (sense and form adopted by E), from MF egreste, heron, from OProv aigreta, mdfn (-eta for -on) of OProv aigron, prob from Frankish haigiro* (cf OHG heigir), whence also OF-MF hairon (F héron), whence ME heiroun, heoun, heron, occ contr to hern; whence both E heron and E hern. Akin to OHG heigir, var heigri, are ON hegri and OE hrāga, heron; earlier history, obscure.

hesitate; hesitancy, hesitant, hesitation.

Hesitancy derives from L haesitantia, a stammering, LL delay, from haesitant- (whence E hesitant), the o/s of haesitans, presp of haesitare, int formed from haes-, p of haesus, pp of haerēre, to stick fast, hence to hesitate. Haesitare has pp haesitātus, whence 'to hesitate'; derivative haesitātio, o/s haesitātiōn-, accounts for hesitation. L haerēre has s haer-, perh akin to Lith gaisti, to hesitate, to temporize. The cpds adhaerēre, cohaerēre, incohaerēre, inhaerēre, occur in the sep ADHERE (adherent, adhesion, adhesive)—COHERE (coherent, cohesion)—INCOHERENT—INHERE (inherent).

Hesper, Hesperian, Hesperides, hesperidium, hesperis, Hesperus. See WEST, para 4.

hessian, coarse sacking, derives from Hessian (as in Hessian boots, often hessians), adj and n from Hesse, from G Hessen, a region of SW Germany; and Hessen derives from LL Hessi, var of Hessii, from C2 (A.D.) Assii, app id with Tacitus's Chatti, a Gmc tribe. (Enci It.)

hibernacle, hibernaculum; hibernal; hibernate, hibernation;—Himalaya (whence the adj Himalayan);—chimera, chimerical.

1. Hibernacle, winter quarters, derives from L hibernāculum, a winter residence, pl hibernācula, winter quarters, from hibernus, wintry, akin to L hiems (o/s hiem-), Gr kheima, kheimōn (s kheim-), OSl zima (cf Lith žėma), all 'winter', Skt hima, m 'winter', neu 'snow', and, in C, the OW gaem, Ir gaim, OC gaimo-* or gaiamo*; cf also Hit gimmanza. The IE r is app ghai-, var khai- (khei-).

2. In L, the r is hi-: cf hibernus, wintry, whence the neu pl as n, hiberna, winter quarters, whence hibernāre, to go into winter quarters, with pp hibernātus, whence 'to hibernate'; late derivative hibernātiō, o/s hibernātiōn-, yields hibernation. Hibernus has LL mdfn hibernālis, whence the erudite hibernal.

3. Corresp to L hi- is Gr khi-, as in khimaros, f khimaira, the latter a goat that has passed one winter (year) and has its first kids, whence Gr myth Khimaira, a goat-bodied monster, whence L Chimaera, whence E chimaera, usu written chimera, whence—perh from EF-F chimérique (from MF-F chimère, from L chimaera)—the adj chimeric (-ic), mostly in extn chimerical.

4. Skt hima, snow (cf para 1), joins with Skt ālaya, residence, to form Himālaya, the abode of the snows.

Hibernian, Hibernicism. See the element Hiberno- and, f.a.e., IRISH, para 2.

hiccup—often ŷe written hiccough—is EE hickup or hickock or even hicket: as clearly echoic as, say, the MF-F hoquet.

hick. See RICH (heading).

hickory (earliest as hickery) is short for C17 AE pokhickery (or -ory) or pokickery (-ory): Virginian Amerind powchickora or pawchiccora, prop the 'milk' pressed from the pounded kernels. (Mathews.)

hide (1) of land. See CITY, para 2, s.f.

hide (2) of a beast, comes, through ME hide, earlier hude, from OE hyd, akin to OHG-MHG hūt, G Haut, ON hūth: Gmc r, prob hud-* or huth-, IE r app ku- (? extn of ku-*, to cover or hide): cf OP keuto, hide, L cutis (s cut-), skin, Gr kutos (s kut-), hollow vessel—also L scūtum (s scūt-), a shield, and Skt skūti, skunāti, he covers: therefore of CUTICLE. Prob cf:

hide (3), to conceal, pt hid, pp hidden: ME hiden, earlier huden: OE hýdan, akin to OFris hūda, Gr keutheln, to conceal, Skt kuhara, prob Serbian kuća, a house, perh E HOUSE.

hideous: ME hidous (F hideux, f hideuse), adopted from OF, var of hisdos, the adj of hide, var of hisde, a great fright, horror, perh of Gmc origin (B & W) but perh rather (DAF) from hispidum, neu of L hispidus, bristling, bristly, shaggy, akin to hirsutus, E hirsute (cf HEARSE, para 3). hidrosis, hidrotic. See HYDRA.

hie, to strive (obs), to hasten: ME hien, earlier hien, earliest highen: OE higian, to strive, to hasten: cf MD higen, D hygen, to pant, be eager or desirous: perh ult echoic.

higgle; higgledy-piggledy. See the 2nd HACK, para 5.

high (adj, hence adv and n); many cpds (mostly obvious, e.g.: highboy (AE for E tallboy)—high-brow (adj, hence n)—high-flying and -flown—high-handed (hand held authoritatively high)—high hat, a topper, hence adj high-hat, aristocratic, snobbish, supercilious—high-jack (whence hijack), whence high-jacker (hijacker), prob f/e from hi, Jackl, a halting call—highlands—high light (high, therefore large and powerful), whence 'to high-light'—high-minded—the high sea, usu pl—highway, whence highwayman; highness; height, whence heighten; heyday.

1. E high derives, via ME high, earlier hegh or hey (surviving in heyday)—cf 'high days and holy days', later '... holidays'—earliest heh, from OE hēah, often contr to hēh: cf OFris hāch or hāg (adv hōge), OS hōh, OHG-MHG hōh, (contr of) hōch, G hoch, Go háuhs, MD hooch, hoge, D hoog, ON hār; cf also ON haugr, a mound or a highland, MHG houc, a hill, Lith kaukarà, hill, and kaukas, a swelling or a boil; cf also Go háuhei, OHG hōhī, MHG hoehē, G Höhe, height. (Walshe.)

2. OE hēah has derivative hēahnes, whence highness.

3. Either deriving from or, at the least, akin to OE hēah, hēh, is OE hēahthu, hēhthu, with var hēhthu, whence ME heighthē, later heighte, whence E height: cf Go hauhitha, OHG hōhida, MD hoocheit (D hoogte), ON haeth.

hijack, hijacker. See prec, in heading.

hike (v, hence n) is app a dial var of HITCH, the dial use preceding the coll: and dial hike means 'to move swingingly', hence, vi, 'to move oneself thus, to swing along'.

hilarious (cf hilarly), hilarity, exhilarant, exhilarate, exhilaration, exhilaratory.

1. Hilarious adds -ious to hilar-, s of L hilaris (or -rus), merry, whence hilaritās, acc hilaritatem, whence MF-F hilarité, whence E hilarity; the L adj, which has derivative Hilarius, whence Hilary, is a trln of Gr hilaros, via helaros*, from hilēmī* (I am gracious), well attested; the PGr r is prob hil- (Hofmann.)

hill (whence the AE rhyming redup hill-billy), whence hilly; holm, islet; sep COLUMN; sep CULMINATE (CULMINATION, etc.); sep COLOPHON; sep CELT, CELTIC; sep EXCEL, EXCELLENCE, EXCELLENT.

Hill, ME hil, var hul, derives from OE hyll: cf MD hille, hil, hul, Go hallus, a rock, OS holm, a hill, ON holmr, islet (cf the intimately related OE holm, hill, hence—'hill (arising from the sea)'—an island, whence E holm, islet); also, further off, L collis (? for colnis*), a hill, column, height, culmen, a summit, excellere, to excel, celsus, (very) high, Gr kolōnos, hill, kolophōn, summit, Litl kēlti, to raise, kalmās, a mountain, perh OB čelo, forehead. The IE r is prob kel-*, to rise, to reach up. (Feist.) hilt: OE hilt (hilde): akin to OS hilta, helta, OHG helza, ON hjalt: perh ult akin to the v HOLD. hilum, hilus. See FILAMENT, para 10.

him. See HE, para 3.

Himalaya, Himalayan. See HIBERNACLE, para 4.

hind (1), adj. See HINDER, adj.

hind (2), a farm servant: ME hine: OE hīne, hīna, prop the gen pl of hīwan, domestic servants: f.a.e., CITY.

hind (3), the female of the red deer (m stag): cf OHG hintā, MHG-G hinde, ON hind. The -d is perh a suffix, the root being him-* (cf Gr kemas "young deer", Skt sāmas "hornless"): Walshe.

hinder (1), adj; hind, adj, whence hindmost and hindquarters; hinterland; behind (adv, hence prep and n), whence behindhand.

1. Behind, adv, derives from OE behindan, an int cpd of be-+hindan, behind: and hindan, whence ult, though indirectly, the E adj hind, of the end or rear, as in derivative hindquarters, is itself intimately akin to the OE adv hinder, behind (OFris hintera): cf the OHG hintar, MHG hinter, hinder, G hinter, Go haintr, hindar, all prepp and prob orig a neu comp adj, with the OE hinder akin to OE hine, hence (? further hence)—further behind: Walshe adduces the IE neu comp element -terom and neatly cfs, sem, the Gr proteros, former, with neu proteron used as adv 'in front'. Cf HINDER (2).

2. The G prep hinter, behind, not the G adv hinsen, behind, occurs in the cpd n Hinterland, the land behind (the coast): adopted by E.

hinder (2), v, whence hindrance: ME hinderen, hindren: OE hindrian, prob from the OE adv hinder, behind, much as G hindern, MHG hindern, OHG hintarōn, to hinder, derives from the OHG prep hintar (MHG-G hinter). With OE hindrian, cf also the syn OFris hinderia, MD hindren, (as in D) hinderen, ON hindra.

hinge (n, hence v): ME heng, heeng: perh from MD henge (D hengel, hengsel)—vv hengen, hingen—cf LG henge: akin to E HANG.

hinny. See WHINE, para 2.

hint (n, hence v) is a thinned derivative of ME henten, to catch (cf the obs EE hent, a grasping), from OE hentan, to catch, to pursue: f.a.e., HUNT.

hinterland. See the 1st HINDER, para 2.

hip (1) of body (whence 'to hip'), whence prob the hipe of wrestling. See HIVE, para 3.

hip (2), berry: ME hepe: OE hēope, prob imm from OE hēopa, a bramble, a briar: cf OS hiopo, OHG hiufo, a bramble, and perh OP kaūbri, thorns.

hipe. See the 1st HIP.

hipparch; hippodrome. See the element hipp(o)-.

hippopotamus, adopted from L, comes from Gr hippopotamos, for hippos potamos, horse (hippos) of the river (potamos), the latter Gr word occurring also in Mesopotamia (cf the element meso-). Gr hippos has IE etymon ekwos*: cf L equus, with adj equinus, whence E equine; cf also OIr ech, OE eoh, Tok B yakwe.

hire, n and v; hireling.

The latter, although prompted by OE hýrling, = hire, n + n-suffix -ling. Hire, n, ME hire, var hure, comes from OE hýr, o.o.o.: akin to OFris hüre, a lease, MD-MLG hüre, G Heuer. 'To hire', ME hiren, earlier huren, comes from OE hýrian, app from the n: cf G heuern, LG hüren, MD huyren, hueren, MD-D huren.

hist. See HUSH, para 2.

histology. See the element histo-.

historian, historiated, historic, etc. See para 2 of:

history; historian, historiated, historic (extn historical), whence historicity; historiographer (see at element historico-); prehistoric, prehistory;—story (n, hence v), with differentiation storey.

1. History anglicizes L historia, adopted from Gr, where it derives (abstract suffix -ia) from the adj histōr, knowing, hence erudite, itself an agent (-ōr) from eidenai (for weidenai*), to know, r eid-: IE r, weid-*, connoting vision, which subserves knowledge: cf Gr eidos, form (IE etymon weides*), akin to Skt védas-, knowledge, aspect, and E wit: Gr histōr, therefore, is for wistōr*.

2. L-from-Gr historia becomes OF-MF estoire, whence MF-F histoire, whence MF-F historien, whence E historian; the derivative late MF adj historique (LL historicus, Gr historikos, from historia) contributes to E historic; L historia has derivative LL historiāre, to record in history, with pp historiātus, whence the adj historiate, now usu in pp form historiated; the rare E historial, historical, derives from LL historiālis (historia+-ālis, E -al).

3. E prehistory and prehistorical owe something to F préhistoire and préhistorique: F pré-, L prae-, before.

4. Story, (orig) history, a history, hence any narrative, whether true or fictional, derives from ME storie, prob aphetic and metathetic for OF-MF estoire (as in para 2), but perh direct from LL-ML storia, existing from C5 A.D. onwards and deriving aphetically from L historia.

5. Story (AE) or storey (E), the inhabited or inhabitable floor—or rather the set of rooms and passages thereon—of a building, takes its sense from C12-15 AL historia used thus and prob denoting, orig, 'a tier of painted windows or of sculptures on the front of a building' (OED)—a view anticipated by EW and shared by Webster.—Hence, e.g., E 'three-storeyed' and AE 'four-storied'.

histrionic. See the element histrio-.

hit (v, hence n): ME hitten (var hytten): OE hittan: ON hitta, to meet with, hit upon, find: perh akin to OE hentan, to seize, q.v. at HINT; prob akin to L caedo, I strike, cut down.

hitch, to move jerkily (hence n), prob derives from syn hotch, which likewise occurs, along with hatch, in late ME: and hotch perh derives from syn OF-F hocher (cf F hocher la tête, to nod one's head), itself prob through Frankish from the G r of MHG hotzen, to shake.

hither. See HE, para 5.

Hittite is a b/f from H Ḫittim (s Ḫitt-), the Hittites, with E suffix -ite(s) substituted for the H pl. -im. The H name adapts Khatti, as the Hittites called themselves; Khatti was used also by their Mesopotamian neighbours. (Enci It.)

hive (n, hence v); sep heap; hip of body—coop (n, hence v), cooper.—couvade, covey; cube (n, hence v), cubic, cubism—cubicle, cubicular—cubit; concubine (whence, unless adopted from MF-F, concupiscence); accumbency, accumbent; decumbency, decumbent; incumbency, incumbent (adj, hence n); recumbency, recumbent;—incubate, incubation, incubator; incubus;—succumb, succumbence, succumbent; succubus.

1. Hive comes, through ME hive, earlier hyve and huive, from OE hýf, akin to ON húfr, a ship's hull, Lith kúopa, a heap, L cúpa, a tub or a cask, Gr kúpē, cavity, kupellon, a beaker, Skt kúpas, cavity, pit, hollow, and kúpikā, a small jug: IE r, prob keu-, extn keup-, with basic sense 'a curving or an arching'.

2. L cúpa prob becomes ME cupe or coupe, a basket, whence E coop; ME cupe, however, could derive from OE cype, a cask, itself akin to the L word. Cooper, ME couper or cowper (cf the surnames Cooper, Couper, Cowper), app derives from MD cuper (var cuyper) or MLG kuper.

3. Akin to hive is the hip of the body, ME hip, earlier hippe, earliest hupe, from OE hype: cf OHG-MHG huf, G Hüfte, hip, Go hups, hip or loin, ON aptrhuppr, a horse's flank, Gr kubos, the hollow near the hips, L cubitus, elbow, and cubāre, to be lying down. Here, the basic idea has been modified to something like 'to bend at a joint, to form a hollow or a curve there'.

4. Both L cubāre, to be lying down, and its n-infix var -cumbere (easement of cumbere*), occurring only in cpds and connoting the accomplishment of the act, have considerably impinged upon E.

5. Cubāre has cpds concupina, a woman lying down con or with a man, whence, via MF-F, the E concupine, and incubāre, to lie upon (in-), with pp incubātus, whence 'to incubate', to sit upon (eggs) and hatch (them); derivatives incubātīō (o/s incubātīōn-) and incubātor become E incubation, incubator. Incubāre, s incub-, has LL derivative incubus, a nightmare, 'popularly supposed to be a demon lying on a sleeper' (Souter), hence any person or thing that burdens. Cf succubus, which ('a female demon sleeping with men') is adopted from ML and which, after incubus, derives from L succuba, a whore, itself from succubāre (for sub-cubāre*), to lie under. Cf succumb in para 8, s.f.

6. Cubāre becomes OF-MF cover (F couver), applied to birds sitting upon eggs, whence the OF-ML n covée, whence ME cove, covy, whence E covey. F couver has the EF-F derivative couvade, lit a brooding and hatching, esp, among primitive peoples, a father's going to bed while his wife is in childbed, adopted by E.

7. Cubāre has derivative cubiculum, a place to sleep (bedroom), whence E cubicle, with senses diverging from that of L; derivative adj cubiculāris becomes E cubicular.

8. L -cumbere (as in para 4) occurs in these cpds relevant to E:

accumbere, to lie beside, to sit down at (ad) table, has presp accumbens, o/s accumbent-, whence the E adj accumbent, reclining, leaning, whence accumbency;

dēcumbere, to set oneself down (dē) at table or in bed, has presp dēcumbens, o/s dēcumbent-, whence the E adj decumbent, lying down, whence decumbency; incumbere, to lie, or rest, upon (in-), hence, in LL, to be incumbent upon, has presp incumbens, o/s incumbent-, whence E incumbent, whence incumbency; recumbere, to lie back (re-), to recline, has presp recumbens, o/s recumbent-, whence E recumbent, whence recumbency; succumbere, to lie under (sub), hence to submit to discipline, to give way, yield, fall, whence 'to succumb'; presp succumbens, o/s succumbent-, becomes E succumbent, whence succumbency.

9. Associated, f/e, with L cubāre is L cubitus (gen cubitī), the elbow, with var cubitum mostly reserved for the derivative sense 'a cubit', whence E cubit: cf, sem, the relation of ell and elbow, qq.v. at ELL. The L word prob derives from Gr kubitōn, elbow, say E & M; but Hofmann and others hold that Gr kubitōn derives from L cubitum. Certainly, the elbow being that upon which one leans in reclining, the association of cubitus (gen -i) with cubāre might be rather more than merely f/e; the rare L cubitus (gen cubitūs), the fact of being recumbent, clearly derivative from cubāre, may be a learned differentiation from cubitus, (mostly) elbow, cubitum, (mostly) cubit.

10. Akin to L cubāre (s sub-) is L cubus, whence MF-F, hence E, cube; cubus is a trln of Gr kubos, a hip-hollow, vertebra, hence a cube, with derivative adj kubikos, whence L cubicus, MF-F cubique, E cubic. F cube has Art derivatives cubisme and cubiste, whence E cubism and cubist.

hoar (adj, hence n), whence hoarfrost (cf frost at freeze) and extn hoary (adj -y); horehound; Herr; herring; perh hue (n, hence v, esp in pp -hued), whence hueless (-less).

1. The adj hoar, ME hor, earlier har, derives from OE hār, grey, old (and grey-haired): akin to OFris hēr, grey, OHG-MHG hēr, old, distinguished, G hehr, distinguished, exalted, and ON hārr, grey with age; cf also EIr (and Ga) ciar, dark (OC kīro-*), and perh OB sērū, grey.

2. The OHG hēr, old, distinguished, has comp hēriro, contr to hērro, older, whence MHG hērrer, herre, hēr, whence Herr (pl Herren), master, lord; already in OHG used as n: a loan-translation of ML senior (lit 'older') as title of respect—cf F seigneur, sieur, It signor, Sp señor. (Walshe.) Note the cpd Herrenvolk, master race (lit FOLK).

3. OE hār, grey, has cpd hār(h)ūne, hārehūne, lit 'grey hūne or plant' (the Marrubium Vulgare): ME horehune: E horehound, with intrusive -d, by f/e, from hound.

4. Perh akin to OE hār is the s of OE hāering, hēring (? the 'greying', sc 'fish'), whence, via ME hering, the E herring: cf the OFris hereng (or hering), OHG hering and esp hāring (MHG herinc, G Hering). Less prob is a relationship with OE here, OHG heri (G Heer), army, 'owing to the fish's habit of travelling in shoals' (Walshe).

5. Prob akin to OE hār, grey, is OE hēow, hiew, hēw, shape, appearance, colour, ME heow, later hew, whence EE hew, form, colour, and E hew, colour: akin to Go hiwi, form, appearance, ON hǫ, bird's down (predominantly grey), OE hāwen, bluish-grey, blue, and, more remotely, to OSl sivŭ, grey, and Skt śyāva, brown; anterior etym, dubious.

hoard, n and v.

'To hoard', OE hordian, derives from OE hord, whence the E n hoard: and OE hord is akin to OS hord, OHG-MHG-G hort, Go huzd, ON hodd: Gmc r, huzda-, IE r kuzdhó- (? for kudhtó-*)—perh cf Gr kusthos, a hollow, and certainly cf HIDE, to conceal. (Walshe.)

hoax (n, hence v). See JOKE, para 5.

hob (1), a rustic, hence a sprite (usu hobgoblin). See ROBERT, para 5.

hob (2) of fireplace. See HUB.

hobble (v, hence n) has the prob derivative hobbledehoy, a clumsy youth, perh from his awkward movements, with hoy rhyming on boy and with euphonic de: for the formation of the cpd, cf D hobbeldebobbel, joltingly, bumpingly, redup of D hobbel, knob, hump, bump. 'To hobble', ME hobelen, hoblen, is akin to—? derived from—MD hobelen or, as in D, hobbelen, to hobble, app a freq of MD hoben*, D hobben, to be tossed, or swung back and forth, to rock, ult echoic. Either from MD hoben* (D hobben) or from MD hobelen, hobbelen, comes ME hoby (var hobyn), orig an ambling horse, hence, fig, a subject one is constantly riding; the elaboration hobbyhorse was at first a morris-dance figure of a horse. Prob akin to this hobby is the small medieval falcon called hobby: ME hoby: MF hobet (or hobé), dim of MF hobe, a falcon, prob from MF hober, to stir, from OF-MF hobeler, to skirmish, itself from MD hob(b)elen, to hobble.

hobby, both 'horse' and 'small falcon'; hobbyhorse. See HOBBLE, latter half.

hobnob, to be on familiarly intimate terms, perh derives from the obs drinking toast or catchphrase, Hobnob!, earlier Hob or nob (Hob and nob), roughly meaning 'Give and take', itself app from the obsol adv hobnob, at random, EE habnab, prob from ME habbe, have+nabbe, have not, themselves from OE haebbe+naebbe (ne, not+haebbe).

hobo (AE) is, according to Webster and Mathews (and EW and OED), o.o.o.; DAE, Godfrey Irwin and myself support the suggestion that hobo represents ho! bo, i.e. ho! beau (for hello! beau), known to have been a tramps' formula of address in the 1880's and 1890's.

Hobson's choice (no choice) derives from Cambridge livery-stables owner Thomas Hobson (d. 1631), who insisted that every customer should take the horse standing nearest the door. (Webster—after EW.)

hock (1), of a horse. See HEEL, para 2.

hock (2) is short for obs hockamore, from Hochheimer, adj become n: 'wine of Hochheim' in Germany.

hockey, o.o.o., perh comes from MF hoquet, a bent or curved stick, hence a shepherd's crook, from MF hoc, a hook, from syn MD hoek: f.a.e., HOOK: cf, sem, the origin of the game of CRICKET.

hocus; hocus-pocus. See JOKE, para 5.

hod (whence hodman), a bricklayer's handle-tray, comes from MD hodde, hode, akin to ME hotte, from MF hote (F hotte), a dosser, or basket carried on the dos or back, from Frankish hotta* (cf G dial Hotte, Hotze).

Hodge. See ROBERT, para 6.

hog (n, hence v), with obvious cpds, e.g., -back, -fish, -gum, -wash, -weed, and hogshead (a hog's head, prob from shape); hogget.

Hogget, orig a 2nd-year boar, then also a yearling sheep, is orig a dim of hog, a pig: OE hogg: ? of C origin—cf OIr torc, wild boar, Ga torc, W turch, boar, OC torkos*, (wild) boar.

Hogmanay, the Sc New Year's Eve, in C17 hogmane, hogmynae, is o.o.o.: prob not of British C origin, but perh cf OF aguilanneuf, New Year's Day or a new year's gift (OED): ? 'for this new year': OF a, F à, for +gui, L huc, dat of hic, this+an, year+neuf, new.

hoist, v hence n: EE hoise (extant in dial), earlier hyss: MD hischen: cf LG hissen, whence both G hissen and F hisser. Ult origin obscure: ? echoic from accompanying cries or shouts.

hoity-toity: ? for dial highy-tighy*, a rhyming redup (on high), app suggested by 'high and mighty'.

hokey-pokey; hokum. See JOKE, para 5, s.f.

hold (1) of ship. See HALL, para 4.

hold (2), to guard (obs), grasp firmly and long, retain, pt held, pp holden (archaic except in int beholden); hence hold, n, and agent holder and vn holding; dial var holt; behold; halt (n, hence v).

1. 'To hold', ME holden, earlier halden and healden, derives from OE haldan, with var healdan, to grasp, keep, retain, restrain, hence to hold, occupy, possess: akin to syn OFris halda, OS haldan, ON halla (for halda*), to hold, and Go haldan, OHG haltan, to keep or pasture cattle, G halten, to hold. The basic idea is perh 'to guide (as in tending cattle), to rule', with derivative 'to hold up, to check', as Walshe has suggested.

2. MHG-G halten, to hold, has derivative n Halt, a stop, whence late EF-F halte, whence E halt.

3. OE healdan has int behealden, to hold firmly, esp in one's sight: ME bihalden, later biholden: E 'to behold', esp to gaze at; the primary meaning survives in the pa beholden.

4. Perh akin to the Gmc vv are Gr kellein (s kell-, r kel-), to drive (esp cattle), and its cognate boukolos, cow-herd, herdsman: therefore cf CELEBRATE (and celerity).

hole. See HALL, para 5.

holiday; holiness. See HOLY, para 2. holism (whence the adj holistic). See the element hol(o)-, s.f.

Holland; holland, hollands.

Holland, adopted from D, derives from MD Holtlant: holt, a wood+lant, land: applied orig to the Dordrecht region, 'the nucleus of Holland' (SOED).—The fabric holland is elliptical for EE Holland cloth; hollands, Dutch gin, derives from the D adj hollandsch (cf adj Scots and liquor Scotch).

hollo! See HALLOO, s.f.

hollow (whence hollowness). See HALL, para 6.

holly; holm (oak).

1. Holly comes, through ME holi, earlier holin, from OE holen, or holegn, r hol-: cf OS-OHG huls or hulis (r hul-), MHG huls, MD huls or hulse, D and G hulst, ON hulfr (r hul-); cf also Ir cuileann (Ga cuilleann), W celyn, Cor celin, Br kelen, and the 'midway' Mx forms hullin, hollyn. The IE r is app kel-, to prick.

2. OE holen, holly, has ME deviation holm, holly (now dial), holm oak.

hollyhock. See HOLY, para 2, s.f.

holm (1), islet. See HILL.

holm (2), holm oak. See HOLLY, para 2.

holocaust. See CAUSTIC, para 2, and cf the element holo-.

holograph. See element holo-.

holster; housings (trappings).

1. Holster, adopted from D, comes from MD holfter: cf G Holfter, holster, from MHG hulfter, agential from OHG huluft, shell, case, sheath: IE r, kel-*, to cover.

2. With MHG hulfter, cf MLG hulfte, case, sheath, and its cognate—? rather derivative—the ML hultia, whence OF-MF houce (F houste), late ME-EE house, whence E housing, (an ornamented) saddlecloth (obsol), whence housings, trappings.

holt (1), a wood, comes unchanged from OE: cf OHG-MHG holz, a wood, a forest, timber, G Holz, wood, timber, MD holt, D hout, OFris-OS holt, wood, timber, ON holt, a wood, with cognates in C, SI, Gr: Gmc r, hult-; IE r, keld-, var kold-*. (Walshe.) Cf HOLLAND.

holt (2). See the 2nd HOLD (heading).

holy, holiness; holiday; hollyhock; halibut; by my halidom!; hallow, Halloween.

1. Holy, ME holi, earlier hali, derives from OE hālig, akin to OFris hēlich, OS hēlag, OHG heilag, MHG heilec, G heilig, MD heilich, helich, D heilig, GO heilags, ON heilagr—cf ON heill, a good omen, and OIr cél, omen, and prob OE hāl, whole, healthy (E hale, q.v. at WHOLE).

2. OE hālig, holy, has derivative hālignes, whence holiness; E holy+day=holy day, whence holiday; OE hālig has further derivative hāligdōm, whence halidom, holiness, esp in the 'Wardour Street English' by my halidom! The ME hall, holy, occurs in halibut, i.e. hali+but, var butte, a flounder—cf D heilbot; the ME var holi occurs in ME holihoc (whence hollyhock), i.e. holi+hoc (OE-ME), a mallow.

3. OE hālig, holy, possesses yet another derivative: hālgian, to make holy, to sanctify, ME halgien, later halwen, latest halowen, whence 'to hallow', with pa hallowed. The n hallow, a saint or a shrine, survives only in Allhallows, All the Saints (in heaven), hence All Saints' Day, and in Halloween, the e'en or evening preceding All Saints' Day.

homage. See HOMO, para 6.

hombre. See HOMO, para 13.

home (n, hence adj, adv, v), whence homeless, homely (whence homeliness), homer (agential -er), and such obvious cpds as home-made, -sick, -spun, -stead (cf OE hāmsiede), -ward (cf OE hāmweard), -work;—ham, in PINn; hamlet;—haunt (v, hence n).

1. Home, ME hom, earlier ham, derives from OE hām, home, house with land, estate, akin to OFris hām, hēm, OS hēm, MD heem, heim, OHG-G heim, home, Go haims, village, ON heimr, world, village, heima, home; also to OP seimins, a farm, Lith šeimā, a family, ? orig a homestead, and Gr kōmē, a village, and perh Gr keitai, he is recumbent, Skt kayati, he is lying down; IE r, kei-*.

2. OE hām acquires in PINn the sense 'group of dwellings', as in Nottingham, West Ham, etc. But hamlet derives from ME hamelet, adopted from MF hamelet, dim of MF hameau, hamlet, itself from OF ham, of Gmc origin (as above).

3. OE hām, an abode or dwelling, has derivative hāmetan, to house, which has cognate ON heimta, to bring (cattle) home (from pasture), whence OF hanter, to dwell in, hence to frequent: whence ME hauiten, E 'to haunt'.

homeopathy (cf the F homéopathie). See the element home(o).

homer. See HOME (heading).

Homer, Homerics.

Homer, L Homērus, Gr Homēros, prob neither Cumaeian for 'blind' nor a var of the Cretan PN Homaros, as two 'schools' have proposed, but simply a particularization of Ionic and Attic Gr homēros (ὄμηρος), a hostage, as the Enci It maintains. The derivative adj is Homērikos, L Homēricus, F homérique, E Hōmeric, esp in 'Hōmeric laughter', irrepressible laughter, suggested by and, prop, ref to the Olympian gods' asbestos gelōs, inextinguishable laughter, in The Iliad, I, 599: cf F rire homérique and G homerisches Gelächter.

homicidal, homicide. See HOMO, para 7.

homiletic, homily.

The adj derives, perh via LL homilēticus, from Gr homilētikos, from homilein, to be in the company of, akin to or derived from homilos, an assembly (itself from homos, identical: f.a.e., SAME), whence Gr homilia, assembly, LGr a sermon, adopted by LL, whence OF omelie (F homélie), adopted by ME, whence, after LL, the E homily.

hominoid. See HOMO, para 8.

homin, made from dry maize by removing the husk and then breaking the kernels into particles coarser than in corn meal, is aphetic for the obs but syn rockahominy, of Alg origin: cf Virginian roka-hamēn, meal derived from parched corn: a cpd of rok, meal (grain coarsely ground)+aham, pounded +mēn, grain. (Webster; DAE.)

homme de lettres. See para 13 of:

homo (h. sapiens); hombre and the card-game ombre, AE omber; homme (d'esprit); hominoid; homuncle, homunculus;—homage; homicide, whence homicidal; human, humane, humanism, humanist (whence humanistic), humanity (whence 'the humanities' and humanitarian—cf the F humanitaire and the suffix -arian), humanize (whence humanization); inhuman, inhumane, inhumanity—superhuman.—humus, humate, humation—cf exhumate, exhumation, exhume, and inhumate, inhumation, inhume; humiliate, humiliation, humility; humble, adj hence v.—camomile, chameleon; chthonian—autochthon, autochthonous; germander.—bridegroom.

1. Homo sapiens, man the sapient (cf SAPID), glorifies mere homo, generic 'man': L homō, s and r hom-, pl homines, o/s homin-, c/f homin- (see Elements), OL hemō (whence nemō, nobody: contr of ne, not+hemō): 'the earthy one, the earth-born', from L humus, earth (soil, ground), loc humī, on the ground.

Indo-European

2. L humus has r hum-: cf Gr kthōn (χθών), with loc khamai (χαμαί), on the ground; Ve kšás (loc kšámi), Hit tekan (cf takan, to the ground), Tokh A tkam, Tokh B kan; cf also Lith žėnie and OSi zemlja; perh OIr dū (gen don), earth. C affords for 'man' such cognates as Br dēn, Cor dēn and dhēn, W dŷn, Ga and OIr duine, OC dunjós*.—A perh merely accidental 'likeness' to the Gr, L, Tokh words occurs in Eg khui, earth, ground; cf Eg Kami, Egypt (? 'The Land'); the word is prob of Medit stock, for Semitic also affords a suspiciously close parallel. The IE r is app khem-, with varr kham-, khom-, khum-, with n occ for m: and this IE r for 'earth' is perh a nasal extn of Medit khe-, varr kha-, kho-, khu-.

3. Gr kthōn, earth, affects E, both by its derivative adj kthōnios, of or in or under the earth, the s kthōni- yielding E chthonian, and by its cpd auto-kthōn, of or from the earth, or the land, itself (autos, self: cf the element auto-), whence L autochthon, an aborigine, a native, adopted by E, with derivative adj autochthonous, indigenous.

4. Gr khamai, on the ground, occurs notably in three E words: camomile, chameleon, germander, resp from Gr khamaimelōn, 'earth apple' (from the scent of the bloom), whence L chamomilla (imm from the Gr pl -mela), LL camomilla, MF-F camomille, E camomile; Gr khamailōn, 'lion on the ground—dwarf lion', L chamaeleon, E chameleon, with derivative adj chameleonic; Gr khamaidrus (drus: f.a.e., TREE), LGr khamandrua, ML gamandra, further corrupted to germandra, OF gemandree, MF germandree, E germander, a wall plant.

Latin

5. L homō has dim homunculus, adopted by E and then anglicized to homuncle.

6. Homō has ML senses 'servant, vassal', with derivative homināticum (o/s homin-+ suffix -āticum: cf viaticum), whence OF-MF homage (F hommage), adopted by E: ML 'acknowledgement of oneself as another's vassal' develops the sense now current.

7. Homō has cpds homicīda, man-slayer, and its derivative homicīdium, a man-slaying: both become OF-F, hence E, homicide.

8. Homō itself has no direct adj, not even the expected hominālis* (cf nōminālis from nōmen), for hominoid is an E formation (L o/s homin-+adj -oid); but in its stead, with the senses of homō, out of humus whence it arises, the adj hūmānus (s hūm-+adj suffix -ānus). Hūmānus becomes OF-F humain, whence E human; the secondary humane descends straight from hūmānus. Hūmānus (s hūmān-) has the -itās (F -ité, E -ity) derivative hūmānitās, o/s hūmānitāt-, whence, via OF-F humanité, the E humanity. Humanité leads to EF-F humanisme, which leads to humanisme (cf G Humanismus): these two become E humanist, humanism. Humanize owes something to EF-F humaniser. The sense-evolutions of E human-humane have, in the main, followed the sense-evolution of L-LL-ML hūmānus.

9. Hūmānus has neg inhūmānus, MF-F inhumain, E inhuman, whence (after humane) the complementary inhumane; derivative inhūmānitās, o/s in- hūmānitāt-, becomes MF-F inhumanité, E inhumanity. But superhuman (cf EF-F surhumain) and suprahuman are E anl cpds: cf the prefixes super- and supra-.

10. L humus, earth, soil, is adopted by F and by E, both of which use it in a special sense.

11. L humus has several L derivatives relevant to E: e.g., humāre (s hum-), to bury (the dead), with pp humātus, whence the now archaic E adj humate; derivative hūmātiō, o/s hūmātiōn-, yields the rare humation. Humāre has the cpds (1) ML exhumāre, whence, via EF-F exhumer, the E exhume, with obsol var exhumate from the L pp exhumātus, the derivative exhumātiō, o/s exhumātiōn-, yielding EF-F and E exhumation, and (2) inhūmāre, to bury (in- being int), whence—cf the MF-F inhumer—'to inhume', the obsol var inhumate deriving from the L inhūmātus, s inhumat-, whence the n inhūmātiō, o/s inhūmātiōn-, whence late MF-F and E inhumation.

12. A more important derivative of L humus is the adj humilis (hum-+-ilis), on the ground or of the earth, hence physically, thence morally, lowly; whence OF-F humble, OF-MF umble, both adopted by ME, the former prevailing into E. Derivative humilitās, o/s humilitāt-, becomes OF-MF humilité, OF-F humilité, the latter becoming ME humilite, whence E humility. Humilis has the LL derivative v humiliāre, with pp humiliātus, whence 'to humiliate'; derivative LL humiliātiō, o/s humiliātiōn-, becomes MF humiliation, adopted by E.

Romance

13. F intervention has been noted in paras 6–9, 11–12. The L homō becomes OF huem, whence F homme, as in homme de lettres, anglicized as 'man of letters'. Homō also becomes Sp hombre, current also in SW U.S.A. as a coll; Sp hombre, adopted by F, takes, in its card-game sense, the more Gallic form ombre, itself adopted by E.

Germanic

14. L homō is akin to OHG and OS gomo, Go guma, ON gumi, OFris and OE guma; the last occurs in OE brydguma (cf OHG brutigomo, G Bräutigam, OFris bredgoma, OS brudigomo), ME brudgume, later bridegome, whence, under the influence of GROOM, the EE-E bridegroom.

homogeneity, homogeneous; homologous; homonym. See, for the 1st, GENERAL, para 26, and cf the element homo-, where also the 2nd and the 3rd.

homophone, homophonous. The latter derives from Gr homophonos, same-sounding, whence also F homophone, whence E homophone, with its own tech adj homophonic.

homuncle, homunculus. See HOMO, para 5.

hone (n, hence v): OE hān, a stone: cf ON hefn, whetstone, Gr kōnos, a cone, Skt śāna, whetstone (cf Av saēni-, top, summit). Cf CONE.

honest, honesty.

The latter derives, via ME honeste, oneste, honour, from OF honesté, onesté, from L honestāt-, o/s of honestās, respectability, honour, itself from honestus, respectable, honourable, honoured, a derivative of honōs (later honor): see HONOR. Honestus becomes OF honeste, oneste (cf F honête), whence ME honeste (onest), later honest, extant in E. Derivative MF deshoneste and deshonesté yield dishonest, dishonesty.

honest John. See JOHN, s.f.

honey: ME honi, earlier huni: OE hunig, huneġ, akin to OFris hunig, OS hunig, honeg, OHG honang, honag, G Honig, ON hunang, and, further off, Gr knēkos, saffron, saffron-hued (Doric knākos), yellow, and Gaul canecon, Skt kāñakam, gold, and perh OP cucan, brown. The Gmc 'honey', therefore, is prob elliptical for 'the yellow substance'. (Boisacq.)

OE has cpd hunigcamb, whence honeycomb, and cpd hunigsūce (-sūge), privet, from which the bee can suck honey, whence—cf SUCK, para 2—honey-suckle. Honeymoon jocularly refers to the fact that no sooner is the moon at the full than it begins to wane.

honk, n hence v, is echoic.

honor (AE), honour, n and v; hono(u)rible, honorarium, honorary, honorific (adj, hence n); dishono(u)r, n and v, and dishono(u)rible; sep honest, honesty.

1. The nn honor and honour, both already in ME, represent varr of the OF derivative from L honor, a b/f from honor-, o/s of honōs, an honour awarded to someone, an office of honour, hence a quality worthy of honour: s and r hon-, o.o.o.: perh from the IE r hen-, to swell.

2. L honor has the foll derivatives relevant to E:

honorāre, to show honour to, becomes OF-F honorer, whence ME honoren, honouren, whence 'to honour'; honorābilis (from honorāre), whence OF-F honorable, adopted by E, with var honourable prompted by honour; honorārius, done as an, or bestowing, honour, (later) honorific, whence—perh via late MF-F honoraire—the E honorary; the neu honorārium, with donum (gift) understood, is adopted by E; honorificus, honour-making (-ficus, from facere, to make), becomes—perh via late MF-F honorifique—the E honorific.

3. L honorāre has LL cpd dēhonorāre (dē-, away from), to dishonour, which prompted ML dishonorāre—whence OF-MF deshonoror (F dés-), whence ME deshonouren, whence 'to dishonour'; the n dishonour comes from OF-MF deshonor, from OF-MF honor (honour); dishono(u)rible represents MF-EF deshonorabile.

hooch is short for obsol hoochinoo, from Hoochinoo, the Tlingit tribe better written Hutsnuwu, lit 'Grizzly Bear Fort': orig applied to illicit strong drinks made by these Indians, hence by all Indians, hence to any liquor, esp spirits, made clandestinely. (Mathews.)

hood (n, hence v), whence the game of obs hoodman-blind (blindman's buff) and also hood- wink, lit to blind by covering someone's eyes (cf WINK).

A hood, ME hood, earlier hod, derives from OE hōd: cf OFris hōde, OHG-MHG huot, helmet, hat, G Hut, hat, MD huet, hoet, hoot, D hoed; cf the slightly remoter OE haett (E hat), L cassis, helmet, Skt chattrā, parasol.

hoodlum, orig and still mainly AE: Bavarian dial hodalum, var of huddellump, lit a ragged beggar or rogue, ragamuffin, hence a scoundrel; both elements of the G cpd mean 'rag(s)'.

hoofy. See BALLY, s.f.

hoof, pl hooves (now usu hoofs), whence 'to hoof it', whence dial and sl hooper.

Hoof, OE hōf, is akin to OFris and OS hōf, OHG-MHG huof, G Huf, MD hoof, MD-D hoef, ON hōfr, Skt śaphās, Av safa-: Gmc r, hōf-; IE r, kōph-, var kāph-, both also with short vowel.

hook (n, hence v), whence pa hooked and agential-instrumental hooker and adj hooky and such cpds as hook-up and hookworm; sep hockey; hawker, peddler (whence, by b/f, 'to hawk' or sell itinerantly), and huckster; hake.

1. Hook, ME hok, comes from ME hōc, akin to OHG hāgo, hāko, G Haken, MD hake, hoec, D haak, ON hake, haki; Gmc r, app hek-* or hōk-*, that which serves to hook on to, to catch.

2. Hawker comes from LG Höker, itself from MLG hōke (MHG hucke), a dealer or trader: cf the syn D heuker. The form hawker owes much to hawker, a falconer, (later) a peddler of hawks.

3. D heuker derives from MD hoeker, which has f hoekster, with var hokester, whence ME hokester, later hukster, whence E huckster, petty retailer, peddler, hence a petty mercenary fellow.

4. In E dial, hook has a var hake, whence, from its peculiar fin-development, the fish hake: cf Nor hakefish, the 'hook fish' or hake, and, both sem and phon, the OHG habbit, hechit, G Hecht and OE hacod.

hooligan arose, in the 1890's, from association with a rumbustious family named Houlihan in Southwark, London. (P.) hoop, n hence v; geog hope.

1. Hoop, ME hoope, earlier hope or hop, derives from OE hōp, akin to OFris hōp, a hoop, MD hoop, hoop, hoep, archaic D hoep, D hoepel: to Lith kabė, a hook; to Gr kuphos (s kuph-, r prob kup-).

2. Also akin to all those words are ON hōp, a small bay, and hōpr, a bay, and, in cpds, the OE hop, whence the archaic when not dial E hope, a small bay, an inlet, a sloping plain, a fen or a marsh.

hoopla. See WHOOP, s.f.

hoopoe. See DUPE, para 2.

hooray. See HUZZA.

hoosegow. See JUS.

hoot, v hence n, is echoic: cf ME hoten, huten, the Sc hoot! or hoots!, Sw and Nor huta, G Hupe, hooter (mechanical), and the Da var tude, a hoot.

hop (1), plant: ME hoppe: MD hoppe (D hop):

cf OHG-MHG hopfe, G Hopfen, and perh G hufo, a briar.

hop (2), to move by short, usu successive, leaps, hence such a leap, comes, through ME hoppen, to hop, to dance (cf the coll hop, a public dance or ball), from OE hoppian: cf MHG hupfen, G hüpfen, and its int hopsen, likewise 'to hop'; cf also MD huffen, with var (? orig freq) hubbelen, D huppelen, and ON hoppa; perh also Gr kubistan, to dance, to tumble, and Skt kubhanyúś (adj), dancing, both with ult r kub-; IE r, kub-, var kup-.

2. Hence hop-o'-my-thumb, a midget: perh imm from 'Hop on my thumb!'; hence also the agent hopper, as, e.g., in grasshopper. But hopper, a hop-picker, obviously derives from the 1st HOP.

hope (1), geog feature. See HOOP, para 2.

hope (2), in forlorn hope. See FORLORN HOPE.

hope (3), n and v, of expectant desire; whence hopeful and hopeless.

'To hope' derives from OE hopian, itself intimately akin to the late OE n hopa, aphetic for earlier tōhopa: cf the vv MLG hopen, rare MHG hoffen, G hoffen, MD hopen, and the nn OLG tōhopa, MLG hope, MD hope and, as in D, hoop, and, prob from OLG, the late ON hop, and G Hoffe. Jespersen connects G hoffen—hence E 'to hope' and the E n—with G hüpfen, hence with E 'to hop'; if rightly, the basic idea would be 'a leaping, or to leap, with expectation'. (Walshe.)

hopper. See the 2nd HOP, para 2.

hopscotch derives from 'to HOP a SCOTCH or line'.

hora, horal, horary (adj, hence n); horoscope—cf the 1st element horo-, q.v. for horologe; hour, whence hourglass and hourly;—yore; year (whence yearling—cf the n suffix -ling), yearly.

1. Eccl hora, a book of hours, is L hōra, an hour, with adj hōrālis, whence horal, and hōrārius, whence horary.

2. L hōra derives from Gr hōra (ὥρα), a season, hence a period of the day, an hour, whence Hōra, the three goddesses presiding over the seasons of the year, whence also the cpd hōroskopos, lit 'hour-surveyor' (cf SCOPE and the element -scope), that part of a zodiacal sign which comes above the horizon at a given moment, hence a diagram that, showing the twelve signs in position, enables astrologers to predict a person's life, a sense occurring already in Gr, whence the L hōroskopos (cf the LL hōroscopium, an instrument for casting nativities), whence EF-F, hence E, horoscope, the adj horoscopic going back, through LL hōroscopicus, to Gr hōroskopikos.

3. L hōra becomes OF hore, varr ore, ure, whence ME hore (varr ure, our), later hour, E hour.

4. With Gr hōra, a season of the year, of OE gēar, whence, through ME yeer, yer, the E year; the derivative OE adj gēarlic, 'year-like', becomes E yearly, and the derivative OE adv gēara, formerly, becomes ME yare, whence EE yore, extant only in of yore, lit 'from formerly', hence 'long ago'.

5. OE gēar, a year, is akin to OFris jēr (iēr), OS jar, OHG-MHG jar, G Jahr, Go jēr, MD jaer, jaar, D jaar, and ON ár (for jār*): cf also OSl jarā, Pol jar, Cz jaro, Spring, and Av yāre, Skt -yār- in cpds, Gr hōros, a year, pl hōroi, annals, which brings us back to Gr hōra, a season of the year (esp Spring), part of a day, esp an hour, L hōra, F heure (OF hore, ure, eure, etc.), E hour, as in paras 1–3, esp 2. The Gmc r is app jāer-; the IE, app jēr-, with varr jār-* and (as in Gr) jōr-*. The semantic 'contradiction' between 'year' and 'hour' arises by oscillation between the orig 'season of the year' and the derivative 'season of the day'; 'season of the year' increases to 'full year', and 'season of the day' decreases to 'hour'. Walshe aptly cfs Serbian god or godina, a year, with Cz hodina, Pol godzina, an hour. The derivation of IE jēr*, a season of the year, a year, from IE je-* or ie-, perh rather or also ei-, to go, as in L eō, I go, ire, to go, Gr eimi, I go, is conjectural, as Boisacq remarks; this derivation presupposes, perh correctly, that a season, a year, an hour, represent divisions of time—of that which goes by or passes.

horde; ordu—Urdu.

Horde, adopted from EF-F from G, comes from Pol horda, itself from Tu ordu, camp, army, used in E for a Tu military district or army corps. Besides moving west into horde, the Tu ordu moves east into Per urdu, thence into Hind urdū, prop the language of camps, hence the Per Moslemized form of Hind, hence any Hind, esp that spoken by Europeans: Urdu.

horehound. See HOAR, para 3.

horizon, horizontal; cf the element horismo-; aorist.

1. Whereas ME orisonte, MF orizante, derives from horizont-, o/s of L horizon, E horizon is reshaped by adoption of L horizon (gen horizontis), trln of Gr horizōn (gen horizontos), elliptical for 'ho horizōn kuklos', the bounding, i.e. limiting, circle, from horizein, to bound or limit, from horos, a boundary, perh for worwos*, with IE r ueru-, to draw. (Hofmann.) Learnedly from EF-F horizon comes the EF-F adj horizontal, adopted by E.

2. Gr horizein has pp horistos, used as adj 'definable', with neg aoristos, not (a-, privative) definable, hence indefinite, esp in relation to other past tenses: whence the E aorist, adj, hence n; aoristic, adj, recalls Gr aoristikos.

horme, hormic, hormone. See SERUM, para 2.

horn, animal's; hence anything horn-shaped, esp the musical instrument; hence 'to horn' and such obvious cpds as hornbeam (cf BEAM), -bill (BILL, beak), -blende (adopted from G; cf BLLENDE), -book (BOOK), -pipe (PIPE), -tail (TAIL), -work (WORK), and the adj horny (-y).—corn on foot; cornea, corneous; corner (n, hence v), whence cornerstone (cf stone); cornet; cornicle; cornu cornute; cornucopia and unicorn, and sep CAPRICORN, q.v. at CAPER.—hart; hartebeest.—Cf the sep CEREBRAL (and its group).

1. An animal's horn, straight from OE, is akin to OFris, OS, OHG-G horn, Go haurn, ON horn and, in a rune, horna, the Gmc r being hurn-* and the IE r being ker-, with varr kar- and kor-*: cf EIr and Ga cörn, a drinking-horn (OC korno*), and W corn (pl cyrn), Cor corn or korn (pl kern) Br korn, Mx cayrn, the animal's horn, W karn, a hoof, and Galatian (a C language) karnon, a trumpet, s karn-; cf also Gr krangôn, a crab, s krang-, a nasalized form of kran-, itself app a metathesis of karn-*, and Skt śrīga, a horn, r śrī-; cf the var in Gr keras, a horn, r ker-, as in sep CEREBRAL. (Walshe.)

2. L cornū, animal's horn, hence the substance of which horns are composed, hence a corn on the foot, becomes OF and hence, in the last sense, E corn. L cornū, adopted by An, has adj corneus, whence E corneous, horny, and the An and Zoo cornea, adopted from Med ML cornea, either as if from L cornea (pars), horny part, sc 'of the eye', or (B & W) more prob elliptical for cornea tunica—cf L tunica oculorum, lit 'the eyes' tunic'.

3. L cornū has ML derivative corneria, a place (or a point) where two converging lines or sides meet: whence OF corniere, whence ME-E corner.

4. L cornū has dim corniculum, whence E cornicle; and OF corn, horn, has the MF-F dim cornet, the musical horn, adopted by E, and the further dim MF-EF cornette, a cavalry standard, hence a cavalry officer bearing the standard, whence E cornet (obs); the C18 head-dress E cornet also derives from F cornette.

5. L cornū has derivative adj (pp-style) cornūtus, horned, whence E cornute, and the cpds capricornus, whence Capricorn, q.v. at CAPE; cornū copiae, LL cornūcopia, horn of plenty (cf COPY), adopted by E and other modern languages; unicornis, a trans of Gr monokerōs, one-horned (sc 'animal'), whence MF-EF, hence ME, unicorne, E unicorn—for the 1st element, cf the element uni- and see ONE.

6. Akin to Gr keras (s ker-), a horn, and kerasos, horned, are L ceruus (s ceru-, r cer-), a stag, and Lith karve (s karv-, r kar-), a cow, and esp the Gmc group represented by OFris hert, OHG hiruz, MHG hīrz, G Hirsch, Old D hirot, MD heert, herte, hart, hert, D hert, ON hiörtr, OE heorot, heort, ME heort, later hert, latest hart, E hart, a stag, esp the male of the red deer. ED hart combines with D beest (cf BEAST) to become Afr hartebeest, a large SAfr antelope.

7. Prob cf:

horse (n and v), whence the adj horsey or horsy and such obvious cpds as horseback, -block, -bush, chestnut (? formerly held either nutritious or medicinal for horses), -fish, -flesh, -fly, Guards, -hair, latitudes (naut humour), -leech, -man, marine (Service humour), -power, -radish (tall and coarse), -shoe, -tall, -weed, -woman; walrus; sep COURSE (where also CURRENT).

1. Walrus, adopted from D, which has var walros, is of Scan origin—cf ON hrossvalr (whence OE horshwael)—and is prop a kind of WHALE, known as a 'horse whale'; ON hrossvalr has been confused with OH rosmhvalr, a walrus.

2. E horse is OE hors, akin to OFris hors, hers, hars, OS hers, hross, OHG-MHG ros, G Ross, ON hross, themselves prob akin to L currō, for cursō*, I run. The v 'to horse' goes back to OE horsian, from the n hors.

Hose descends from OE hosu and is akin to ON hosa, a legging, a stocking, OHG hosa, MHG hose, a gaiter, G Hose, trousers, MD hoosse, hose, D hoos, legging, gaiter: perh orig 'a covering'—cf Skt kōśas, a container.

hospice; hospitable; hospital, hospital(ly), hospitality; hospitate; hostel, hostler (and ostler), hostelry; hotel, hoteller; spital; host (3), hostess; hostage—hostile, hostility.—guest (n, hence v).

1. Hospice, a house of shelter and sustenance for travellers, is adopted from MF-F: L hospitium, hospitality, an -ium derivative from hospes, acc hospitem, a receiver of strangers, a host, hence, by reciprocity, a guest. L hospes, hospit-, has further derivatives affecting E, as e.g.:

hospitāre, to receive a stranger, to receive as a guest, pp hospitātus, whence the now rare 'to hospitate'; whence also, as if from ML hospitābilis*, the MF hospitable, adopted by E; hospitālis, of or befitting the reception of strangers or guests, LL most hospitable, whence the now rare E adj hospital; L hospitālis has neu hospitāle, used in ML as n, a var of L hospitālis domus (house), a hospice, hence, in MF and late ME-EE, a place of refuge and maintenance for the needy and the aged: OF-MF hospital (F hôpital), adopted, as 'hospice', by ME, the modern sense arising in C16; hospitālītās (from hospitālis), o/s hospitālītāt-, whence OF-F hospitalité, whence E hospitality.

2. OF-MF hospital has OF-F derivative hospitalier, prob suggested by ML hospitālārius, a monk in a house affording hospitality to pilgrims and other travellers, hence E hospital(ler); also the erudite derivative (1801), hospitaliser, whence the horrible E 'to hospitalize'. In late ME, hospital was, by aphesis, shortened to spital; after EE, obs; and never applied to a religious house.

3. ML hospitāle becomes OF-MF hostel, adopted by ME; derivative OF-MF hostelier (osteler) yields ME hosteler, osteler, a guest in a hospice or hostel; ME hosteler, adopted by E, survives only in sense 'a student living in a hostel', but ME osteler becomes E ostler and—under the influence of horse pron hoss—'degraded' in sense to 'stableman'. OF-MF hostel has another derivative: OF-MF hostelerie, whence ME hostelrie, E hostelry.

4. OF-MF hostel becomes F hôtel, whence E hotel, and OF-MF hostelier becomes F hôtelier, hotel-keeper, whence E hotelier.

5. L hospes, guest, host, acc hospitem, became, by contr, OF-MF hoste (oste), adopted by ME, whence EE host, host, guest, E 'host, landlord', with a spec sense in Bot. Derivative MF hostesse (ostesse) yields E hostess.

6. L hospes has, prob as a contr of ML hospitāticum*, a ML derivative n hostāticus (var ostāticum), whence OF-MF hostage (ostage; F otage), lodging, shelter, hence a guest, esp if lodged as a hostage, hence a hostage, adopted by E.

7. L hospes, guest, host, has s hosp-; L hostis, a stranger, hence a guest, but hence also an enemy, this last sense predominating in L from c30 B.C. onwards, mainly because hospes successfully competes in sense 'guest',—hostis has s host-. The r common to both hospes and hostis is hos-, prob with basic sense either 'shelter, refuge' or 'food' or perh 'shelter, with food'. Perh, even more fundamentally, the orig basic sense is 'food (with shelter) as a means of preservation': if that were so, L hospes (? also hostis) might be akin to L sospes, safe and sound, (as n) protector, preserver—cf the Roman goddess Iunō (ML Iunō) Sospita, Juno the Preserver: perh, despite the generally accepted etym of the Gr words, cf Gr sōtēr, preserver, saviour, applied esp to Zeus (cf Eg Suter, the Saviour-God), agent (-iēr) from sōein, var of sōizein, to save (cf sōs, safe and sound), esp if the r be sōs-. Tentatively I suggest an IE r ksōs-, var ksos-, issuing into Gr sōs- (L sos- in sospes) and L hos-. (But cf the Gmc cognates in para 10.) The word may be Medit.

8. L hostis, in its later sense 'enemy', acquires, in ML, the sense 'army' (from the pl hostes, enemies): whence OF-MF host (ost), adopted by ME and, in EE, acquiring sense 'multitude'. The derivative adj hostilis accounts, perh via late MF-F, for E hostile; subsidiary hostilitās, o/s hostilitāt-, accounts—prob via MF-F hostilitē—for hostility.

9. App akin to L hostis, a stranger, an enemy, is

L hostia, an expiatory victim offered to the gods, a sacrifice, whence OF oiste, whence ME oyste, later oste, latest host, extant in E, now only for the Eucharistic wafer; L hostia becomes also MF-F hostie, which has perh intervened.

10. Akin to L hostis, a stranger, a guest, is the Gmc set of terms: OHG-MHG gast, stranger, guest, G Gast, guest—OS gast—OFris jest—MD-D gast—Go gasts—ON gestir, proto-Norse -gestir (Runic)—and, perh imm from ON, the OE gaest, giest, whence gumm. (Cf also OB gostl.) The Gmc etymon is gastiz*; the IE, ghostis*. (Walshe.)

1. 'To house' derives from OE hūsan, itself from the OE n hūs, whence ME hus, later hous, whence E house: and OE hūs is akin to OFris and OS hūs, OHG-MHG hūs, G Haus, MD hues, huus, huys, D huis, Go gudhūs, house of God, a temple, ON hūs: perh also cf G Haut, E HIDE and 'to HIDE'. Basic idea: a covering, a shelter.

2. The head of the house is normally the husband, OE hūsbonda, from ON hūsbōndi, householder, husband; bōndi stands for biandi*, from búa, to dwell. The householder in the country used formerly to be mostly a farmer, whence obsol husbandman, a farmer, and husbandry, farming.

3. ME husewif has var huswif, with dial var hussif, adopted by E as the pron of housewife, a little bag or case for needle, thread, pins, scissors, etc. Dial hussif has influenced the contr of housewife into hussy, orig, but long obs for, 'housewife'.

4. ON hūs, house, had a cpd hūsting, lit 'house assembly', hence a council, ON thing being 'assembly' (though also 'thing'—see THING): hence OE hūsting, a council, an assembly, ME husting, retained by E, orig for a council, hence a legal court, hence the Guildhall platform where the presiding officials sat, whence husting, usu pl hustings, in its political sense.

5. MD huus, a house (as in para 1), has a MD cpd huuskijn, a little (D dim -kijn, E -kin) house, whence ME huske, a fruit's or seed's 'little house', whence E husk, whence husky, of or like husks, full of husks, whence, husks being dry and therefore tending to rustle, a husky voice, whence, such voices often belonging to spirit-drinking toughs, a husky fellow, strong and hardy.

huckleberry is a dial var (whence Huckleberry Finn) of hurtleberry, which, arising in C16, has a C17-20 var, orig dial but now predominant, whortleberry, perh influenced by WHORL; -berry has been f/e added to ME hortel* or hortle*, substituting suffix -el or -le to the -e of OE horte, a whortleberry: o.o.o.: ? akin to OE wyrt, E wort, plant, herb, q.v. at WORT.

huckster. See HOOK, para 3.

huddle (v, hence n) is app a dial, orig freq, derivative of ME hoderen (contr hoden: cf LG huderen, to cover up), to huddle, wrap up, akin to ME huden, to HIDE: basic idea, prob to crowd together for protection, esp in a hidden—or at least a safe—place: ? cf, ult, HEED. The -le was perh suggested by the -els of ME hüdels, from OE hūdels, a hiding-place. App the sl oodles is of the same origin.

hue. See HOAR, para 5.

huff (v, hence n), is, like PUFF, echoic: 'huffed up with air' is syn with 'puffed up . . .'. Hence huffy, overblown, insolent, apt to take offence.

hug (v, hence n) app comes from ON hugga (s hug-), to comfort or soothe, as a mother hugging her child: prob orig echoic from the accompanying words of comfort or sounds of lullaby.

huge, ME huge, hoge, is prob aphectic for OF ahuge, ahoge, enormous, itself app a prefix-cpd of a (F à, in, on, at, L ad)+hoge, a height, a hill, of Gmc origin: cf OHG hōhē (G Hohe), Go hāuhei; cf also OHG hōh, hōch (G hoch), MD hooch, hoge, D hoog, high. Perh, however, OF hoge, hogue, ? huge, hill, eminence, derives from OC uc-, an eminence, whence uxellos, as in the PIN Uxellodunum; uc-* occurs in OBr uhel, Br huel, Cor ūghel, W uchel, high—in the obs Cor prefix ugh-, high-, above-, cf Br ahué, above (prep); seductive is Cor uthek, uthic, uthyc, huge, esp if it be akin to ūghel, high.

huggermugger (n, mostly in h-, hence adj and esp adv, clandestinely) prob completes the anglicization manifest in AIr cuggermugger, a whispering, a low-voiced gossiping, from Ir cogair!, whisper!: Cf EIr cocraim, I whisper or conspire, Ga cogair, a whisper, and cogair (var cagair), to whisper: ? ult echoic.

Huguenot. See OATH, para 2.

bulk. See HALL, para 8.

hull. See HALL, para 9.

hullabaloo; hullo! See HALLOO, s.f.

hum (v, hence n), whence, as in humming bird, pa and vn humming and the adj humdrum (redup, suggested by DRUM, of hum) and the sl AE hum-ding, which prob glances at the now dial ding, to strike, or, more prob, at the echoic dingdong—hum is no less echoic than the MHG-G hummen and the orig freq MD hummelen and, as still in D, hommelen. Cf HUMBLEBEE.

human, humane, humanist, humanism, humanitarian, humanity, humanize. See HOMO, para 8.

humate, humation. See HOMO, para 11.

humble. See HOMO, para 12.

humblebee: ME humbel-bee, humbylbee, hombulbe, which f/e adds bee to ME humbel* (humbyl*, etc.), itself from MHG humbel (later hummel, as in G), from OHG humal, humblebee: cf the syn MD hummel, homel, (as in D) hommel, and several Scan and Lith cognates: clearly 'the insect that hums'—see HUM.

2. The var humblebee (C16 onwards) was prob, at first, a nursery word, with assimilation of h to b perh suggested by buzz and ME bommen, to hum, and E boom. (Walshe.)

humble pie. See LOIN, both heading and para 4.

humbug, imposture, sham, hypocrisy, hence the person guilty thereof, hence to deceive, was orig (c1750) sl: o.o.o.: prob suggested by 'hum and haw', ref to temporizing, and perh also by bugbear.

humdrum. See HUM.

humdudgeon=C18 sl hum, a deception+DUDGEON.

humeral is the E-formed adj of L humerus, shoulder, adopted by An and Zoo, but, in L, better written umerus: cf the Go ams, Gr ōmos, Skt āmsas: IE r, am-*, varr ōm- and um-.

humid, humidify, humidity, humidor. See HUMOR, para 4.

humillate, humiliation, humility. See HOMO, para 12.

humming bird. See HUM (heading).

hummock. See HUMP.

humor (AE), humour, n hence v; humoral, whence humoralism; humoresque; humo(u)rist, whence humoristic; humorous.—humid, humidify, humidity, humidor.

1. Humour and humor, both in ME (with varr umor, umour), are adopted rom OF: L hūmor, better ūmor, from hūmēre, better ūmēre, to be moist, akin to L ūuidus (ML ūuidus), contr ūdus, Gr hugros, ON vōkr, moist, prob to Skt ukṣati, he sprinkles (cf ox), and perh OIr fūal, urine: IE r, prob ug-, with var udh-, moist.

2. In old Physio, animals had four fluids, which determined human temperament and health: hence 'in a good or a bad humour'.

3. From L hūmor, F derives humoral, of or by the humours, adopted by erudite E. The general E adj is humorous, from LL hūmorōsus, var of LL ūmorōsus, very moist, hence juicy, succulent (Souter), from (h)ūmor. Humo(u)rist is an E formation; humoresque comes from G humoreske—influenced by picturesque.

4. L (h)ūmēre has a derivative adj (h)ūmidus, whence, prob via MF-F humide, the E humid; derivative hūmiditās, o/s hūmiditāt-, yields—prob via MF-F humiditē—the E humidity. Humidify= humid+element -fy (to make); humidor, a receptacle for preventing cigars from becoming dry, merely adds agential -or to humid.

hump (n hence v), humpback; humpty-dumpty; hummock, Topo hummock; hunk.

1. Hump is of Gmc origin, prob either D or LG: cf D homp and MD humpelen, D hompelen, to hobble (walk with back humped), and LG hump, hump, hunk, humpel, hump, hill: prob cf Gr kumbē, a hollow vessel, therefore cf E hip (q.v. at HIVE).—Hence humpback—cf hunchback.

2. Hump has an altered redup: humpty-dumpty (from dump), glorified in a nursery rhyme.

3. Perh akin to hump is hummock, a rounded knoll: ? for humpock*, after hillock. It has an AE var hammock, used esp in Florida.

4. App akin to hump but perh influenced by hunch is hunk, a large lump: cf Fl hunke.

humpy (Aus), an aboriginal's, hence any primitive, hut: Aboriginal oompi.

humus. See HOMO, paras 2 and 10.

Hun, whence Hunnian, Hunnic, Hunnish.

Hun is a b/f from OE Hūne or Hūnas, the Huns, itself prob from LL Hūni (ML, usu Hunni), with less correct var Chūni or Chunni, prob from Ch Han (var Hiong-nu): cf Skt Huṇa, Gr Ounnoi or Khounoi, and also ON Hūnar and OHG Hūni (G Hunnen). These invaders from Asia overran and terrorized Europe c372–453 A.D., Attila dying in the latter year. Cf the G derivative Hune, MHG hiune, a giant. (Walshe.) hunch, hunchback. See HAUNCH, para 2.

hundred, whence hundredth; hecatombe.

1. Hundred, already in OE, is an elaboration of OE hund, 100, the 2nd element, -red, being akin to Go rathjō, a reckoning, as in ga-rathjan, to count: cf OFris hundred, var hunderd, OHG hunderit, MHG-G hundert, Go hund: Gmc etym hunda* or hundam*; IE etym, ? kentom*: cf L centum and E CENT.

2. Akin to L centum is Gr hekatōn: with both, cf Skt śatām, Av satem. Gr hekatōn has cpd hekatombē, the 2nd element deriving from r of Gr bous, an ox (cf bovine at BEEF: this sacrifice of 100 oxen became L hecatoombe, whence E hecatoomb).

hung. See HANG.

Hungarian, Hungary. See OGRE, para 2.

hungry (n, v), hungry.

The latter derives from OE hungrig (cf OFris hungerich), the adj of hungor, hunger, to which is intimately related the OE hyngrian, to be hungry, ME hungren (influenced by the n), E 'to hunger'. The OE hungor is akin to OFris hunger, OHG hungar (also in OS), MHG-G hunger, MD hunger, (as D) honger, Gr hūhrus (for hunhrus*), cf Go huggrjan (hugg-, pron hung-), to hunger; ON hungr; Lith kankà, distress, suffering, torment; Gr henkei, he suffers from hunger. The Gmc r is either hung-* or ? hunk-; the IE, kenk-, with varr kank-, konk-.

hunk. See HUMP, para 4.

hunker, v; hunkers. See HAUNCH, para 2.

hunkydory, AE sl hunky, in good condition, from AE hunk, a goal in children's games + -dory, a very approx rhyming redup.

hunt, v (hence n), whence hunter, huntress, and vn hunting (cf hunting ground—huntsman being a hunt's man.—Cf the sep HINT and HIT.

'To hunt' comes, by way of C12–13 hunen, huntien, from OE huntian, akin to Go -hinthan, to seize, and OE hentan, to try to capture, to capture; IE r, kent-* (Feist).

hurdle, n (hence v, whence hurdler), orig a movable frame, made of wattle twigs: ME hurdel, hirdel, OE hyrdel, prob a dim from the r of such Gmc words as ME hyrde, OHG-MHG hurt, G Hürde, MD hurde, D horde, a hurdle, Go haurds, ON hyrd, a door: basic sense, 'wickerwork': Gmc r, hurdi-; IE r, perh ker-, with varr kar-, kor-, kur-*, with exx in L (crātes, wickerwork: see CRATE), Gr (kartalos, a basket), Skt, C, OP.

hurdy-gurdy is ult echoic; imm, perh a blend of E dial hirdy-girdy, an uproar + hurly-burly (see next).

hurl (v, hence n), whence the game hurling and its player or hurlier; hurly-burly.

1. 'To hurl' derives from ME hurlen, var hourlen, app echoic: cf Fris hurreln, (of wind) to blow in gusts, E hurry, OF houler, to hurl: prob from the r of hurtle, q.v. at HURT; if that be so, the -l is a freq suffix.

2. Perh from hurl is hurly-burly; cf, however, the app echoic (obsol) hurly, uproar, confusion: cf the orig exclamatory EF-F hurluberlu, likewise a rhyming redup (G hurliburl!): ult echoic.

hurrah. See HUZZA.

hurricane: Sp huracán: Taino huracan, hurricán, an evil spirit of the sea, hence a hurricane. (Webster; Sp authorities prefer Carib huracán.)

hurry (v, hence n), with pa hurried and pa, vn hurrying, perh comes either from the echoic dial hurr, to snarl, or from ME horien, to befoul, but prob is akin to HURL, the r of both being app hur-. The redup hurry-scurry was prompted by SCURRY.

hurt (v, hence n), whence hurtful; whence also the freq hurtle (ME hurlten).

The basic sense of hurt is 'to strike': ME hurten: OF hurter (MF-F heurter), to strike, knock, thrust, etc.: prob (B & W) via Frankish, from OGmc hurt-, to butt (someone, something) as a ram does—cf ON hrutr, a ram (cf ON hjótrr, a stag); cf also MHG hurt, an impact, a shock, and hurtec (G hurtig), rapid, and prob ON hrjóta, to break or burst (something). Ult echoic.

husband, husbandman, husbandry. See HOUSE, para 2.

hush (v, hence n), hushaby; hist! and whist!

1. The ME hussht is thought to be 'silenced', pp of a lost v of echoic origin ('having been said hush! to'). Hushaby!, hush!, blends hush + lullaby.

2. Hist! is a weakened var of whist!, be silent!, whence both the AIR 'Hold your whist!', lit 'maintain your silence' but now mostly 'be silent', and the archaic when not dial adj whist, silent, (of,

e.g., woods) still: clearly echoic: cf the G psst! (bst! and weakened st!), existing also in E, usu as psst!—mostly, as by spivs, to attract attention.

husk. See HOUSE, para 5.

husky (1), adj. See HOUSE, para 5, s.f.

husky (2), n. See ESKIMO, para 2.

huso. See ISINGLASS.

hussar. See COURSE, para 9.

hussif. See HOUSE, para 3.

hussy. See HOUSE, para 3.

husteron proteron. See HYSTERIA, para 2.

hustling(s). See HOUSE, para 4.

hustle (v, hence n), whence hustler, derives, by metathesis (? prompted by BUSTLE), from D hutselen, to shake continually or continuously, the freq of hutsen, to shake; both vv exist already in MD; hutsen is prob the int of an echoic v (? cf HIT).

hut (n, hence v—whence hutment): MF hutte: either MHG hütte or OHG hutta (for huttia*): prob of OHG huota (G Hut), protection, and therefore E 'to HIDE'.

hutch: ME, from OF, huche: ML hutica (C8): o.o.o.: ? cf prec.

huzza (cf G hussa) is as clearly echoic as, say, hurrah (cf G hurra), with its frequent var hurray or hooray.

hyacinth, hyacinthine; jacinth.

The 3rd, ME iacynth, iacynt, derives from OF-MF iacinte, itself from L hyacinthus (whence E hyacinth), trln of Gr huakinthos, the flower, hence a gem, app for wakinthos*—cf the Cretan month-name Bakinthos; of Aegean but pre-Gr origin (Hofmann). Derivative Gr adj huakinthinios, L hyacinthinios, becomes E hyacinthine.

hyaline, sea-clear, hence, n, a clear sea: LL hyalinus: Gr hualinos, adj of hualos, glass: cf the element hyalo-.

hybrid, whence hybridity, is n, hence adj, and, like EF-F hybride, it represents L hybrida, the piglet resulting from the union of wild boar and tame sow: from Gr hubris, violation, excessive pride, adopted in latter sense by E as university sl. Hubris app cpds Cyprian Gr hu, upon + a cognate of Gr briaros, strong. (Boisacq.)

Hydra; hydrate.

The latter = hydr- (as in Hydra) + Chem n-suffix -ate. Hydra adopts the L form of Gr Hudra, a nine-headed serpentine monster, PN from hudra, hudros, a water-snake, akin to Skt udrás, a water-beast: cf otter and, f.a.e., WATER.

hydrant = hydr-, as in prec + suffix -ant.

hydrate. See HYDRA.

hydraulic (adj, hence n, whence hydraulics): late MF-F hydraulique; L hydraulicus, trln of Gr hidraulikos, adj of hudraulis (or -aulos), a water organ: element hydr(o)-, water + aulos, a flute.

hydro is short for 'hydropathic establishment', where hydropathic is the adj of hydropathy, a water cure: cf the element -pathic.

hydrochloric = the element hydro- + chloric, q.v. at CHLORAL.

hydrogen: F hydrogène, water (Gr hudōr) resulting—of the element -gen and, f.a.e., GENERAL—from the combustion of this gas.

hydrography, whence the adj hydrographic, derives from EF-F hydrographie, a description (cf the element -graph and, f.a.e., GRAMMAR) of water, esp of the ocean.

hydrometer is a meter (q.v. at MEASURE) of the specific gravity of liquids (Gr hudōr, water).

hydrophatic, hydrophathy. See HYDRO.

hydrophobia. See the element -phobe.

hydroplane is a motoboot that 'planes (see plane at PLAIN) over the water (Gr hudōr, c/f hudro).

hydrostat, whence hydrostatic (whence hydrostatics). See the element -stat.

hyena (EE hyaena). See the 1st sow, para 3.

hygiene—whence both hygienic (unless from F hygiénique), whence hygienics and hygienist—represents EF-F hygiène, from Gr hugieinon, n use of the neu of hugieinos, of or for (good) health, the adj of hugieia (var hugieia), whence the Goddess of Health Hugieia: from hugiēs, healthy, with IE etymon sug(u)ijēs*, lit 'well (IE su-) living' (Gr zēn, to live).

hygrometer is a meter of atmospheric moisture (Gr hudōr, water); perh suggested by EF-F hygromètre; cf the element hygro-.

Hymen, the Gr god of marriage; hymen, the virginal membrane broken during the consummation of marriage; hymeneal, of or by or for or at (a) wedding, a marriage; cf the element hymeno-;—hymn, orig a bridal song, hence a song of praise, esp of Deity; hymnal (adj, hence n), hymnary, hymnod (whence hymnodist), hymnology (whence hymnologist).

1. The general source is Gr humēn, a membrane, esp the virginal, akin to Skt syūman, a band, a suture, hence prob to E SEAM: and app this Gr physio humēn is id with Gr humēn, a bridal song, perh orig the cry greeting the announcement of virginity removed, whence Hymen as above; the Gr terms become L Hymen and L hymen. Wedding humēn has adj humenaios, L hymenaeus, hence—with -eal substituted for -eous—the E hymeneal.

2. Akin to, perh deriving from, Gr humēn, marriage cry, hence marriage song, is Gr humnos, whence L hymnus, whence OF-F hymne, whence E hymn, with derivative adj hymnal and hymnic. (OE ymen, hymen took a slightly different course.) Whereas L hymnus has the ML derivative hymn-ārium, -ārium connoting 'a receptacle of', whence hymnary, Gr humnos has the cpd humnōidos (a professional singer in a religious cult), which prompts humnōidia, hymn-singing (ōidē: cf ODE), whence hymnod. Hymnology prob derives from F hymnologie: cf the element -logy, discourse.

hyoid, shaped like a Y: F hyoide: Gr huoieidēs, of the form (-eidēs: cf the E suffix -oid) of the Gr letter 'upsilon' (bare or mere u).

hyperbola, hyperbole, hyperbolic.

The geom hyperbola is a SciL derivative of Gr hyperbolē, a throwing (bolē) beyond (hyper): cf the element hyper- and BALLISTICS, bolē deriving from ballein, to cast or throw. Hyperbole, in rhetoric, is adopted from the L trln of hyperbolē, which has adj hyperbolikos, excessive, exaggerated, LL hyperbolicus, EF-F hyperbolique and E hyperbolic.

hyperborean. See BOREAL.

hypercritical. See CRISIS, final sentence.

hyphen (n, hence v), whence hyphenate, whence hyphenation, is adopted from LL, which takes it from Gr huphen, prop huph'hen (ὕφ'ἔν), under one, hence into one, i.e. together: Gr hupo, under (cf the element hypo-)+hen, neu of heis, one (cf the en- of ENTITY).

hypnosis, hypnotic, hypnotism, hypnotist, hypnotize. See SOMNOLENCE, para 6.

hypochondria, hypochondriac (ML hypochondriacus). See the element chondri- and cf the element hypo-.

hypocorisma, a pet-name, and its adj hypocoristic.

The former, adopted from LL, represents Gr hupokorisma; the latter derives from Gr hupokoristikos. The Gr words=hupo-, c/f of hupo, under (E hypo-)+derivatives from korizesthai, to caress, s koriz-, r kor-: cf Gr korē, a girl.

hypocrisy, hypocrite, hypocritic, now in extn hypocritical.

The adj hypocritic(al) derives from Gr hupokritikos, the adj of hupokritēs, a stage actor, hence one pretending to be what he is not, esp a hypocrite, whence LL hypocrita, var ypocrita becoming OF ypocrite, ipocrite, both adopted by ME, whence, by reversion to LL hypocrita or to Gr hupokritēs, the E hypocrite. Hypocrisy, ME ypocrisie, ipocrisie, adopted from OF, goes back to LL ypocrisis, better hypocrisis, trln of Gr hupokrisis, a play-acting, hence simulation, hence hypocrisy, itself from hupokrinein, to play a stage-part, to answer one's fellow-actor: hupo-, from hupo, under (E hypo-)+krinein, to sift, hence to decide (krinesthai, to dispute): cf CRISIS and esp CERTAIN.

hypodermic is the -ic adj—cf hypodermal, the -al adj—of SciL hypoderma: prefix hypo+Gr derma, the skin (cf the element -derm): 'under the skin'.

hypogastric, from F hypogastrique, is the adj of SciL hypogastrium: Gr hypogastriōn, the lower belly or paunch: hupo, under, beneath+gastēr, belly (cf GASTRIC).

hypostasis (whence hypostasize), hypostatic.

The 3rd derives from Gr hupostatikos, the adj of hupostasis, subsistence, substance, LL hypostasis, adopted by E; Gr hupostasis comes from huphistasthai, to stand (histasthai, middle voice of histanai, to cause to stand) under (hupo); cf stasis and f.a.e., STAND.

hypotenusal, hypotenuse (incorrectly hypothenus). See TEND, para 27.

hypothec, hypothecary, hypothecate, hypothecation. See THESIS, para 10.

hypothesis (whence hypothesize); hypothetic(al). See THESIS, para 11.

hyssop: ME hysope, a re-shaping of ME ysope, adopted from OF-MF (F hysope): L hysopus, hyssopus, trln of Gr hussōpos, an aromatic herb: either from H ēzōb or from a Sem cognate.

hysteria; hysteric (whence hysterics), now in -al extn hysterical.

1. Hysteria is a SciL formation, in -ia, from E hysteric or from its L orig hystericus, a trln of Gr husterikos, the adj of hustera, womb, perh elliptical for hustera mētra, a later, or the latter, womb, where mētra is akin to mētēr, mother: cf L mātrix, womb, akin to L māter, mother. Gr hustera is the f of husteros, the latter (adj): IE etym uderos*—cf Skt uttāras, the higher, the later, and L uterus (perh for uderos*), womb, itself, like L mātrix, adopted by E. Uterus has LL derivative adj uterinus, whence—perh via late MF-F utérin—the E uterine.

2. Gr husteros has neu husteron, preserved in E in the phrase hysteron proteron (cf the LL shortening hysteroproteron), the later before the earlier, a rhetorical figure depending upon a reversal of sense, as in Webster's ex 'He is well and lives'.

I

I, pronoun. See EGO, para 1.

iamb, iambic (adj. hence n), iambus.

iambic comes, like EF-F iambique, from L iambicus, trln of Gr iambikos, adj of iambos, whence L iambus, adopted by E but there less common than iamb (EF-F iambe, L iambus): but Gr iambos is o.o.o.: perh (Hofmann) for wiambos*—cf Gr dithurambos, whence E dithyramb. Sturtevant has proposed a derivation from Gr iainein (s iaïn-), to warm, to cheer; iambs are an enlivening metre.

iatic, medical: Gr iatrikos, adj of iatros, a physician, from iasthai, to heal. Cf the element iatro-.

Iberia, whence Iberian (adj, hence n); Iberic; Iberis, a pepperwort.

Iberis represents Gr ibēris, prob from growing in Ibēria, the L name (var Hibēria) of the Sp peninsula, though also of Asiatic Georgia, an ancient and medieval kingdom lying between the Black Sea and the Caspian. The L adj is ibēricus, whence Iberic. The ancient Spaniards were the L Ibēres (Hibēres), trln of Gr Ibēres, itself, according to ancient Gr tradition, from Gr ibēr, the name of some undetermined animal.

ibex, adopted from L, is o.o.o.: prob of (Swiss) Alpine origin—like L camox (surviving in CHAMOIS).

ibis, adopted from L, comes from Gr: alteration, with Gr suffix -is, of Eg hab or heb.

ice (n, hence adj and v), iceberg, icicle, icy; Iceland, Icelandic (adj, hence n).

Ice derives, via ME is, iis, from OE is, akin to OFris, OS, OHG-MHG īs, G Eis, MD iss, isse, D ijs, ON íss, prob also to Av isav-, frosty. The cpd iceberg, lit 'mountain of ice', ult of Scan origin, perh comes imm from MD ijsberch (D ijsberg); cf BERG. Similarly Iceland is 'Land of Ice', the native name being Ísland; hence Icelandic. icicle derives from ME isikel, a f/e extn of OE gisicel, icicle, with ME is (OE īs) added superfluously; cf ON jökull, icicle. Icy represents OE isig.

ichneumon, a mongoose or a mongoose-like mammal, is adopted from L: from Gr ikhneumon, lit 'the tracker', sc 'of crocodiles' eggs': from ikhneuein (s ikhneu-), to track, hunt after or out, itself from ikhnos, a footprint, a track, s ikhn-, r ikh-, from IE eigh-, to go, an extn of ei-, to go (as in the Gr and L vv). The ichneumon being so very highly regarded in Ancient Egypt, I suspect a ichnology. See the element ichno-.

Gr f/e rationalization of Eg khatra, an ichneumon—cf Eg Khatri, the Ichneumon-God.

ichor: LL ichōr, bloody matter: Gr ikhōr (ἰχὼρ), the juice that, instead of blood, flows in the veins of the gods, hence various Med and Sci senses: o.o.o., app non-Gr: perh a pre-vocalization (i-) of khōr*, from Hit kar-, the r of Hit karimm- or karimn-, a god (gen karimnas, dat karimmi), which has adj karimnas, karimnas, of a god, divine (8sturtevant).

ichthyology, whence ichthyological, ichthyologist; ichthyosaurus. See the element ichthyo-.

icicle. See ICE.

icon (for cpds, e.g., iconoclast, see the element icono-), adopted from L, represents Gr eikōn, app for weikōn* (or -on): perh cf Lith paveiklas, an example, a pattern, and i-vykti, to hit upon, prove right, arrive at. (Hofmann.)—The adj iconic derives from L iconicus, Gr eikonikos.

id ('the ego and the id'): G Id, from G Idioplasmia (E idioplasm: elements idio- and -plasm). The Bio preceded the Psychi sense.

idea, ideal (adj, hence n), idealism, idealist (whence idealistic), idealize (whence idealization), ideate (whence ideation, whence ideational), idée fixe; ideology (whence ideological and ideologist); idol (whence idolize and eidolon, idolater; idolatrize and idolatrous from idolatry; eidetic; idyl or idyll, whence idyllic; cf the elements ideo-, eido-; cf also the sep WIT, esp f.a.e.

1. Idea, adopted from L, itself borrowed from Gr idea (ἰδέα), a concept, derives from Gr idein (s id-), to see, for widein*. L idea has derivative LL adj idealis, archetypal, ideal, whence EF-F idéal and E ideal, whence resp F idéalisme and E idealism, also resp idéaliste and idealist, and, further, idéaliser and idealize. L idea becomes MF-F idée, with cpd idée fixe, a fixed idea, adopted by E Francophiles; it also has ML derivative ideäre*, pp ideätus*, whence the Phil n ideatum, a thing that, in the fact, answers to the idea of it, whence 'to ideate', to form in, or as an, idea.

2. From Gr idea, F erudites formed the c/f idéo-, esp in idéologie (1796), whence E ideology. (For other ideo- cpds, see 'hat element.)

3. Akin to Gr idein, to see, hence to idea, is Gr eidōs (s eid-), that which is seen, hence the form or shape, hence a figure; whereas its dim, eidōlon an image in the mind, hence a physical image, hence an idol, is retained in erudite E, its derivative adj eidētikos becomes E eidetic, esp in Psy.

4. Gr eidōlon becomes LL idōlon, further latinized as idōlum, MF-F hence ME idole, E idol. Eidōlon has c/f eidōl(o)-, seen best in eidōlolatrea, worship of physical objects, esp of images or idols, whence, by contr, LL idōlolatria, OF-MF idolatrie, E idolatry; the cognate eidōlolatrēs becomes LL idōlatrēs, MF idolatre, F idolâtre, E idolater.

5. Gr eidōlon has a var, perh rather Gr eidōs has the secondary dim, the LGr eidullion, a short lyrical poem (a sense arising somewhat obscurely), whence L idyllium, whence E idyll (idyl)—cf the EF-F idylle.

idem. See para 1 of:

identic, identical, identify (whence identification, identity; idem.)

1. The base is L īdem (pron and adj), precisely that, hence the same: m īdem, f eadem, neu īdem: app from the L pron is, ea, id, that + particle -dem (of IE origin).

2. L īdem has LL derivative īdentitās (for īdemitās*), o/s īdentitāt-, whence, prob via MF-F identité, the E identity; īdentitās gains, in ML, the adj īdenticus, whence EF-F identique and E identic, usu in extn identical; the ML s īdem recurs in ML īdenticāre, to make or render identical, whence EF-F īdentifier and E identify.

ideology. See IDEA, para 2.

Ides (of March), seven days beginning, e.g., on March 15: L īdiūs (gen īduum), pl: prob of Etruscan origin, as Varro says, and app meaning 'division' of a month.

idiocy, idiot, idiotic; idiom, idiomatic; idiosyncrasy, whence, after idiomatic, the adj idiosyncratic; the element idio-.

These words derive from Gr idios, proper or peculiar to oneself, private: dial wīdios, for older whēdios* (Argive): IĒ r, sued-*, separated, separate, apart, akin to L sed and privative prefix sē-. Gr idios has the foll derivatives relevant to E:

īdiōtēs, a private person (not holding public office), hence an ignorant person, L īdiōtēs, īdiōtā, with additional sense 'a simple-minded person', MF idiote, ydiot, EF-F idiot, E idiot, with modern sense; whence īdiocy (cf accuracy from accurate)—cf F idiotie; hence īdiōtikos, L īdiōticus, ignorant, E īdiotic; īdioun, to make proper, render peculiar, whence īdiōma, LL īdiōma, EF-F īdiome and E īdiom; hence īdiōmatikos, whence F īdiomatique and E īdiomatic; īdiosunkrasia (ἰδιόσυνκράσια)—whence īdiosyncrasy—var of -sunkrasis, a blending, itself=sun, with +krasis, from kerannunai, to mix: cf the element -crase.

idle (adj, hence n and v, whence idler); idleness, whence archaic contr idlesse.

Idleness derives from OE idelnes (-nes, E -ness, abstract suffix)—cf the OFris idelnisse—from OE idel, vain, useless, empty, whence ME idel, E idle:

and OE idel is akin to OFris īdel (cf the adv īdle), OS īdal, OHG ital, MHG itel, G eitel, MD idel, ydel, D ijdel: o.o.o.: perh cf Gr aīthein (s aīth-), to burn, aīthōn, burning, smoky, with basic idea of a brightness that has little substance: cf EDIFY.

Idol, idolater, idolatry, idolize. See IDEA, para 4.

idyl (idyll), idyllic. See IDEA, para 5.

if, whence the coll adj iffy, extremely hypothetical, hence risky: ME if, earlier gif: OE gif, akin to OFris jef (occ jeft), ef, jef, of, OS ef, of, if, OHG ibu, uba, oba, MHG obe or ob, G ob, whether, if, MD of (as in D), off, ofte, ocht, ochte, Go jabai, if, whether, and ibai, lest, ON ef, if: orig, perh an instrumental of a Gmc n for 'doubt'—cf OHG iba, doubt—in sense 'on (the) doubt that', hence 'on condition that', as Webster and Walshe suggest; perh rather from the OG r of 'to give'—cf OFris jeft, if, alongside jeft, a gift—in sense 'granted that', hence 'suppose . . .', hence 'if'.

igneous; ignescent; ignite, ignition; cf L ignis fatuus, 'foolish [cf FATUITY] fire', the gleam (E will-o'-the-wisp) that, arising from marshy ground, tends to mislead travellers; cf the element igne(o)- or igni-.

L ignis, fire, a fire, IE etymon egnis*: cf Skt agnis, fire; Hit Agnis (? Fire-God); OSl ogni, Lith ugnis, Lett uguns, fire. Derivative adj igneus becomes E igneous; derivative ignītus, on fire, leads to LL ignire, to set on fire, pp ignītus, whence 'to ignite'; (from ignis) inch LL ignescere, to become hot, catch fire, has presp ignescens, o/s ignescens-, whence the E adj ignescent. Ignition, E and F, app derives from L ignītus, but as if from L ignītio*, o/s ignītōn-*.

ignoble. See NOBLE.

ignominious, ignominy. See NAME, para 10.

ignoramus; ignorance, ignorant; ignoration, ignore.

L ignōrāre, not to know, derives from ignārūs, not knowing, ignorant: ig-, for in-, not + gnārūs, knowing, well-informed, akin to OL gnōscere (L nōscere), to begin to know: cf gnostic and, f.a.e., KNOW.

Ignoramus is prop the L for 'we do not know'; ignorant=L ignorant-, o/s of ignorans, presp of ignōrāre, and ignorance=derivative L ignorantia; ignoration comes from L ignorātō, from the pp ignorātūs; ignore—prob via MF-F ignorere, from ignōrāre.

iguana; Aus coll form guana—carried still further in goanna; Iguanodon.

The last is a SciL cpd: iguana + -odon, connoting 'teeth'. Iguana, adopted from Sp, is of Caribbean origin, prob from Carib ihuana or iuana; cf the extinct Taino iguana.

Iliad (Homer's): L Iliad-, o/s of Ilias (gen Iliadis): Gr Ilias (gen Iliados), elliptical for Ilias poiësis, poem about Ilios or Ilion, Ilium, city of Ilos, son of Tros, the founder of Troy, poetically Ilium.

ilium and ileum, An terms, are adopted from L, where they represent varr of ile, refashioned from ilia, flanks, the groin: o.o.o.

ilk, n, arises from 'of that ilk', of the same (sc 'estate, property'): Sc ilk: ME ilke, the same: OE ilca, itself a cpd of the r in Go is, he (cf L is, that one)+ OE gelic, like (adj).

ill (adj, hence adv), whence illness, derives, through ME ill, from ON illr; the E n ill is adopted from the ON n ill, evil, bad health, intimately akin to illr, evil, in bad health, itself o.o.o., but perh either akin to OIr elc, worthless, evil, or deriving from ON ithila, akin to OFris, OE idel, worthless, vain (see IDLE).

image (n, hence v—cf the F imager—and imagist), imagery; imaginable, imaginary, imagination, imaginative, imagine; imago, imaginal;—imitable (and inimitable), imitate, imitation, imitative, imitator.—Cf the sep EMULATE (EMULATION).

1. Image is adopted from OF-F image, a shortening of OF imagene, from L imāginem, acc of imāgō, o/s imāgin-: from the r of imitāri (para 3). Derivative MF imagerie, adopted by ME, becomes imagery. The L imāgō is retained, but given new senses, by E Zoo and Psy, with adj imaginal, perh suggested by the LL adj imāginālis, figurative.

2. Imāgō has derivative LL v imāgināri (im- for in, into), occ imāgināre, to form an image of, whether in one's own or another's mind, whence MF-F imaginer, whence 'to imagine'; derivative LL imāginābilis yields, perh via MF-F, imaginable; LL imāginārius, imaginary, perh via late MF-F imaginaire; LL imāginātiō, o/s imāginātiōn-, OF-F imagination, adopted by E; MF-F imaginatif, f imaginative (app imagination+-if, -ive), adopted by E.

3. L imāgō=im-, to picture+-āgō* (cf uorāgō from uorāre). This r im-* (o.o.o.) occurs—perh rather, it recurs—in L imitāri (OL -are), to seek to reproduce the image of, to imitate. (E & M.) Imitāri has pp imitātus, whence 'to imitate'.

Derivative LL imitābilis and its LL neg inimitābilis become, via F, the E imitable, inimitable; derivative L imitātiō, o/s imitātiōn-, becomes MF-F and E imitation; LL imitātiuus, ML -ivus, becomes imitative; L agent imitātor is adopted by E—cf the MF-F imitateur.

imbecile (adj, hence n), imbecil(l)ity.

The latter comes, via MF-F imbēcillitē, from L imbēcillitās, feebleness, o/s imbēcillitāt-, from L imbēcillus, feeble, whence late MF-F imbécile, E imbecile: an im- for in-, not, derivative from baculum, a staff: lit, therefore, 'without staff' or 'unable to grasp a staff'. Cf BACILLUS.

 improve, whence improvement, improver; approve, to profit by; prow, adj, and prowess; prude, prudery, prudish.
 1. The archaic prow, brave, derives, as ME, from OF prou (var preu, F preux), acc of proz, from VL prōdis*, useful, profitable, from LL prōde, used for prō, forward, in prōde est, instead of L prōdest, to be useful. (B & W.) OF proz has derivative OF-MF proe, proesce (F prouesse): whence E pro.
 2. EF prude derives from MF preude femme, a strong woman, a modest one, preude being the f of preu, var of prou (as above); EF-F prude is adopted by E, whence prudish; prudery comes from EF-F pruderie, from EF prude.
 3. Legal approve, to profit by, derives from MF-E aprover, to cause to profit: a-, L ad, to + prover*, from OF proz or L prōd- (in prōdest)—as in para 1. Derivative MF-EF aprouvement yields legal approval.

 India (cf poetic Ind); India ink, Indianan, India rubber (now usu indiarubber); Indian, adj (from India), hence n; Indian corn—I. file—I. hemp—I. red—I. summer; Indiana, orig Indiana Territory (ref Red Indians); Indic; indic, indican, indigo, indium, indole, indolin(e), indulin.—Indus.—Hindi; Hindu (obsol Hindoo), Hinduism, Hindustan, Hindustani;—Scinde, Sind or Sindh; Sindhi; sendal, sindon.—tamarin.

1. India is L from Gr India, a Geog -ia ('region') derivative of Indos, whence L, hence E, Indus, the river; Gr Indos itself derives from OPer and Av Hindu, India, akin to Skt sindhu, a river, hence Sindhu, the river Indus, hence the region traversed by that river.

2. Skt Sindhu becomes both E Sindh, often written Sind, archaic Scinde, and Ar Sind, with adj Sindi, used as n, and usu represented by E as Sindhi.

3. Skt Sindhu, the region of the Indus, has Gr derivative sindōn, linen—later, cotton—of Sind, whence L sindon, a fine fabric, adopted by E, although now only hist; L sindon becomes, with different suffix (-al), the MF-EF sendal, whence E cedal or sendal.

4. OPer and Av Hindu, India, becomes Per Hind, with derivative Hindū, a native of India, adopted by AE, the E usage preferring the sense 'a follower of Hinduism' (Hindu+-ism), a non-Moslem native. Per Hindu has derivative Hindūstān, the country (-stan: cf Pakistan) of the Hindu: whence the Hindustani word Hindūstāni, an Indian, used in E as adj, hence as Hindustani, the most important dial (with sub-dialect Urdu) of W Hindi. Hindi represents Hind hindī (adj used as n), from Hind Hind, India, adopted from Per.

5. Hind, India, is also the Ar form, with adj hindī, which occurs in tamār hindī, the Indian date (tamar or tamr, prop a dried date): whence—cf the late MF-F tamarin (earlier tamarinde)—the Port, Sp, It tamarindo, whence E tamarind, the tree Tamarindus indica.

6. That indica is the f of L Indicus, belonging to India, from Gr Indikos, the adj of Gr India: whence E Indic.

7. But indic is the E adj of Chem E indium, itself a ScIL formation: L indicum (neu of Indicus)+Chem -ium.

8. Gr Indikos, Indian, has neu Indikon, which, used as n indikon, means either the indigo plant or its product: indikon becomes L indicum, whence Sp indico, with var indigo: whence E and F indigo. L indicum, indigo, has the Sc derivative indican: indicum+Chem suffix -an (-ane). E indigo has derivative indol or indole: indigo+Chem -ol (-ole); and indol(e) has subsidiary indolin or indoline, the suffix being Chem -in or -ine; cf indulin or induline, which suggests a loose blend—influenced by indolin(e)—of indigo+anilin or aniline.

9. India (para 1) has many cpds, the etym most notable being perh:

India ink, or Indian ink, orig came from China (whence China, or Chinese, ink)—prob via India; Indiaman, orig an East India Company sailing vessel—for the -man, cf 'man-of-war';

India rubber, caoutchouc or rubber, the rubber tree being traditionally associated with India, but mostly growing further E.

10. Indian, however, has far more cpds, some of them associated with the West Indies, so named by Columbus, who thought he had sailed so far W as to have reached the E Indies. Among them are these:

Indian corn, orig maize grown by the Red Indians;

Indian file, in, in single file—the customary Red Indian method of passing through a wood;

Indian hemp, the common hemp of India, whence a variety cultivated in NA;

Indian red, prop but less usu Persian red, is a pigment deriving from a reddish, iron-bearing earth coming orig from the Persian Gulf;

Indian summer, an, mild, sunny weather in late autumn (or even in early winter), comes from NA and perh orig referred to the longer period of activity afforded to the Indians.

indican. See INDIA, para 8.

indicate, indication, indicative, indicator. See DICT, para 14.

indict, indictment. See DICT, para 7 (at indicare).

indifference, indifferent. See DIFFER.

indigence, indigent.

Indigence, adopted from MF-F, derives from L indigentia, neediness, from indigent-, o/s of indigens, presp of indigere, to be in need of: indu, within+egere, to be needy, to lack or need: several dubious cognates in OGmc. Indigent, adopted from MF-F, comes from L indigentem, acc of presp indigens.

infancy, infant, Infanta; infanticide; infantile; infancy.

1. L infans, o/s infant-, c/f infanti- (as in infanticide: LL infanticidium, child-murder), is lit a non-speaker: in-, not+fans, presp of fāri, to speak (cf FABLE). E infant is a Renaissance re-shaping of ME enfaunt, from OF-F enfant, from L infantem, acc of infans; derivative L infantia yields infancy—cf F enfance. Infanta, daughter of a Sp or a Port king, is the f of Infante, son thereof: from L infant-. The L adj infantilis yields infantile.

In LL, infans came to mean youth, young man, son, whence It infante, with further sense 'foot soldier', itself having derivative infanteria, foot-soldiery, whence EF-F infanterie, whence E infantry.

Infatuate, infatuation. See VAPID.

Infect, infectant, infection, infectious, infective; disinfect, disinfectant, disinfection.

1. 'To infect' derives from L infectus, pp of inficere, to put in, hence to steep, hence to stain or colour, hence to corrupt, to infect: in-, in- + -ficere, c/f of facere, to put, to make: f.a.e., FACT. The L pp infectus becomes the MF adj infect, whence late MF-F infecter, with presp infectant, whence the E adj, later n, infectant. Derivative LL infectiō, o/s infectiōn-, leads, via MF-F, to E infection, whence—three centuries earlier than F infectieux—infectious; infective comes, perh via MF-F infectif, from L infectiuus, ML -ivus, of, by, for dyeing.

2. Late MF-F infecter has EF-F subsidiary désinfecter, whence 'to disinfect'; its presp désinfectant becomes the E adj, hence n, disinfectant.

Infelicitous, infelicity. See FELICITATE, para 3.

Infer; inference, whence inferential (cf consequence—consequential).

Inference derives from scholastic ML Inferentia, an -ia derivative from inferent-, o/s of inferens, presp of inferō, I carry in(to), ML I logically deduce: in, in(to) + ferō, I carry: f.a.e., FERTILE.

Inferior, inferiority; infernal; inferno.

Inferior is adopted from L, where it forms the comp of the adj inferus, situated below, akin to the syn Skt dāharas. L inferior becomes late MF-F inférieur, whence (reshaped by L inferior) EF-F infériorité, whence E inferiority.—L inferus has the doublet infernus, which in LL becomes Infernus, Hell, whence It inferno (as in Dante), whence the generalized inferno, adopted by E. LL Infernus has derivative adj infernalis, whence, prob via OF-F, the E infernal, orig as in 'the infernal regions', euphem for hell.

Infertile and infertility come, via Renaissance F, from LL infertilis and its derivative infertilitās: f.a.e., FERTILE.

Infest: MF-F infester: LL infestāre, to infest, L to attack, from L infestus, directed at (in-), esp against, hence hostile: cf L manifestus (E manifest), app 'taken in, or brought to, the hand (manus)', hence 'evident', -festus being prob akin either to Skt dharṣati he attacks, or to L ferre, to bring. (Webster; E & M; mdfn, E.P.) The derivative LL infestatiō, o/s infestatiōn-, becomes E infestation.

Infidel, infidelity. See FAITH, para 6.

Inflate, inflation. See FLATUS, para 6.

Infect, infection; inflex, inflexion. See FLEX, para 6.

Inflexible. See FLEX, para 3.

Inflit, infliction.

The latter derives from LL infectiōn-, o/s of infectiō-, itself deriving from the imm source of 'to inflict': L infectus, pp of infligere, to strike (figere) something onto(in-) somebody, to inflict upon or with: cf CONFLICT.

Inflorescence. See FLORA, para 14, s.f.

Inhabit, inhabitant, inhabitation. See HABIT, para 10.

Inhalant, inhalation, inhale. See HALITOSIS, para 3.

Inhere, inherence, inherent.

Inherence comes, perh through EF-F inherence, from scholastic ML inhaerentia, itself from inhaerent-, o/s of ML inhaerens, adj from L inhaerens, presp of inhaerere, to cling or stick or be attached (haerere) to (in-), whence 'to inhere': f.a.e., HESITATE. ML inhaerent-, perh aided by EF-F inherent, accounts for E inherent.

Inherit, -ance, -or. See HEIR, para 4.

Inhibit, inhibition. See HABIT, para 11.

Inhospitable, adopted from MF-EF, comes from ML inhospitabilis: in-, not + L hospitabilis, hospitable: f.a.e., HOSPICE.

Inhuman, inhumane, inhumanity. See HOMO, para 9.

Inhumation, inhumē. See HOMO, para 10.

Inimical. See AMATEUR, III, 3.

Inimitable. See IMAGE, para 3.

Iniquitous, iniquity. See EQUAL, para 6, s.f.

Initial; initiate, initiation, initiative, initiator, initiatory.

The L initiare, to set going, is an inch of initre, to enter, hence to begin: f.a.e., ISSUE. Its pp initiatūs accounts for 'to initiate'; derivative initiatō, o/s initiatōn-, for late MF-F and E initiation; the LL agent initiator is adopted by E —hence prob the adj initiatory. Initiative is adopted from a learned EF-F derivative from L initiāre. Initial (adj, hence n) comes from LL initialis, the adj of initium, a beginning, itself from inire.

inject, injection, injector.

'To inject' derives from ML injectus. L injectus, pp of inicare, inicare, to throw in(to): in, in, into+-ficere, -icere, c/f of iacere, to throw, very intimately akin to iacere, to be lying on the ground (cf adjacent). Derivative inectiō, ML inectiō, has o/s inectiōn-, whence E injection; derivative inector is, in its ML form, adopted by E.

inward (adj and adv), whence inwardness; inwardly; inwards, adv. Inwardly, adv, derives from OE inweardlice, from the OE adv inward, which consists of OE in (E IN)+the element-suffix -ward (E -ward).

iodic. See:

iodine, whence the nn iodate and iodide (Chem suffixes -ate and -ide) and the adj iodic (suffix -ic); cf the element iodo-.—Viola, violaceous, violet.

1. Iodine is an E chem (-ine) elaboration of F iodé, iodine: Gr adj iodēs, of the form (eidos) of, i.e. like, a violet; ion, for wion*, app of Medit stock.

2. Akin to Gr ion, wion*, is L uiola, ML viola, a violet (plant and flower), whence the girl's name Viola. Its adj violāceus, ML vi-, yields E violaceous. ML viola becomes OF-F viole, with OF-MF dim violette (F violette), whence E violette.

ion (in Phys Chem), whence ionium (Chem -ium) and ionize, whence ionization, represents Gr ion, neu of iōn, presp of ienai, to go: cf ITINERARY and ISSUE.

Ionian, adj hence n; Ionic, adj hence n. The former derives from L iōnius, var of Iōnicus, whence Ionic; and Iōnicus is a trln of Gr iōnikos, adj of iōnia, either the land of the legendary founder iōn or, more prob, a Grecization of Eg Ḥa-nebu, a very old name for those who lived in the Mediterranean islands, hence, later, esp the Ionians: perh a Medit word.

ionium, ionize. See ION.

iota; jot.

An iota, L iōta, Gr iōta, is Gr ι, the E i; the sense 'a particle' comes either from 'iota subscript', a tiny ι written under a long vowel, or from the fact that ι is the smallest Gr letter; hence E jot, n hence v. Gr iōta is akin to H yōdh.

I.O.U.—I owe you.

ipecac is a frequent shortening—cf the F ipéca—of ipecacuanha, adopted from Port: Tupi ipe-caa-goéne or ipekaaguéne, lit either 'small roadside emetic plant' (Webster) or 'knotty plant' (Dict of the Sp Academy).

iracund. See IRASCIBLE, para 1.

Irak or Iraq, whence the adj Iraqi, is Ar al-'Irāq, from Middle Per ērāk, Persian. Cf:

Iran, whence the adj Iranian, is Per Irān, Persia, akin to ARYAN.

Iraq, Iraqi. See IRAK.

irascible, whence irascibility; irate; iracund, ire.—oestrus, whence the adj oestrous, oestral.

1. L ira (s and r ir-), anger, becomes OF ire, adopted by E; hence Shakespeare's ireful. L ira has adj iracundus, with -cundus a var of the suffix -bundus, 'full of'; hence the rare E iracund. But it also has the derivative irāsci, to be angry, whence LL irāscibilis, prone to anger, whence, prob via OF-F, the E irascible; the pp irātus becomes the E adj irate.

2. L ira (? for elsa*) is prob akin to Homeric hieros, quick, lively (cf 'quick-tempered' and 'of a lively temper')—Skt iśirás, lively—ON eira, to rush forward; to Av aśmo, anger, and Lith aistra, a violent passion; and to Gr oistros, a gadfly, hence its sting, hence the sting of desire, hence (strong) sexual desire, latinized as oestrus, adopted by E Physio and Zoo, with var oestrum. (E & M; Hofmann.)

iridescence, from iridescent; iridium; iris, whence irisation; cf the elements irido- and irido-.

1. The iris of the eye, like that of the garden, derives from L iris, a rainbow, the plant, from Gr iris, a rainbow, the ocular iris: L Iris (gen Iridis): Gr Iris (gen Iridos), Homer's Goddess of the Rainbow, var Eiris: app for Wiris*, Weiris*, with IE r wei*, uei*-, to bend, bow, curve: ? therefore akin to E WIRE.

2. From L iris, o/s irid-, rainbow, SciL derives iridium (Chem -ium), with adj iridious and iridic (acid). App prompted by LL uiridescere, ML viridescere, to grow green, with pp uiridescens, o/s uiridescens-, whence E viridescens, is E iridescent, with b/f iridesce, to be iridescent, to display a rainbow-like range and interaction of colours.

Irish (adj hence n), whence Irishism, Irishry; Erse, adj hence n; Ireland; Eire—Erin; Hibernia, whence Hibernian (adj, hence n).

1. Irish, ME Irisc, an -isc adj from the s of OE Irás (cf ON Írar), the Irish, from OIr Ériu, itself from OIr Eire, Ireland, whence E Eire; the var Erin derives from the OIr dat Érinn—cf Ga Éirín; Ireland, however, comes from OE Írland, var of Írland, land of the Irish. Erse was orig a C14–15 Sc var (Erish, Ersh, etc.) of ME Irisc.

2. The OIr dat Érinn leads—app by confusion with L Hibēria (var of Ibēria), the Sp peninsula—to L Hibernia, Ireland, with adj Hibernicus, whence E Hibernic, whence Hibernicism, an Irishism. Yet the influence of L Hibēria in the formation of L Hibernia arises not entirely from a confusion: ult the two words are prob cognates.

irk, whence irksome (ME irksom), derives from ME irken, to weary (vt) or to become weary: o.o.o.: perh (Webster) cf Sw yrka, to urge, but prob (EW) from ME irk, distasteful, weary, from or akin to OE earg, timid, wretched (? cf Chaucer's erke, lazy), itself akin to OFris erg, OHG arg, MHG arc, and perh (Walshe) to Av eregant, disgusting.

iron. See ORE, para 2 for the n, para 3 for the adj.

ironic, ironical, ironist, irony.

Ironical is an -al elaboration of ironic, which, like MF-F ironique, derives from LL īronicus, ironical, Gr etronikos, deceitful, adj of eirōneia, dissimulation, from eirōn, one who, in speaking, dissembles, orig the presp of eirō (s eir-), I say or speak, perh by metathesis for weriō*; akin to Gr rhētor—see RHETORIC. Gr eirōneia becomes L īrōnia, whence—cf the MF-F ironie—the E irony; E ironist prob derives from F ironiste (tronie+iste).

irradiance; irradiate, irradiation. See RAY, para 4.

irrational. See REASON, para 4.

irreal, irreality. See the 1st REAL, para 1.

irreclaimable, irreconcilable, irrecoverable, irredeemable, are simply ir- for in-, not, negg of reclaimable, etc., themselves merely re-, back-, cpds from claim, etc. So, too, for all ir- negg not specifically entered in this dict.

irrevocable. See VOCABLE, para 10, s.f.

irrigable, irrigate, irrigation. See RAIN, para 2; cf RUN, para 3.

irritable, irritant, irritate, irritation. Ult akin, perh, to RUN, irritate derives from L irritātus, pp of irritāre, to arouse, hence to vex, perh akin to Gr orinō, I arouse: cf LL prōritātor, a quarrelsome fellow. L irritāre has presp irritans, o/s irritant-, whence the adj, hence n, irritant; the pp has derivative irritātiō, acc irritātiōnem, MF-F irritation, adopted by E; the inf has the LL derivative irritābilis, whence EF-F and E irritable.

irrupt, irruption. See RUPTURE, para 8.

is. See ESSE, para 13.

ischadic, ischial, ischliatic, ischium. See SCIATIC, para 2.

Isis. See OSIRIS.

isinglass: by f/e from ED huysenblas, bladder (blas) of the huso (OHG huso, G Hausen) or large sturgeon: a gelatin made from the air bladders of sturgeons.

Islam, whence Islamic, Islamism; Moslem, Muslim, Mussulman; salaam.

Islam=Ar Islām, submission (to God), from aslama, to submit (vi); Moslem is the E form of Ar Muslim, a believer (in Mohammed's faith), also from aslama; the syn Mussulman is Per and Tu Musulmān, from Ar Muslim. Aslama, to submit, to seek place, yields salam, peace, whence E salaam, n hence v.

island is taut, being OE iland, igland: ig, ieg, island+land. The -s has been influenced by:

isle, islet. See the 1st SOLE, para 7.

isobar. Cf the elements -iso-, equal-, and -bar, -weight (baro-, as in barometer).

Israel, Israelite, Israelitic or Israelitish.

Israel, LL (usu Israhel) from Gr Israēl, derives from H Yisrā'ēl, contender (yisra, from sārāh, to fight, contend) with God (El, God, orig a Syrian god, the word being common throughout the Sem languages). Gr Israēl has derivative Israēlītēs (-itēs, a descendant), whence LL Israēlita, whence E Israelite; and Israēlītēs has LGr derivative adj Israēlītikos (cf LL Israhēlīticus), whence Israelitic, usu anglicized to Israelitish.

issue, n hence v (whence issuable and, influenced by F, issuance, whence—again influenced by F—issuance); cf the sep ambition, circuit, coit, commence, county, errant (and aberrant), exit, eyre, initial, introit, itinerant, janitor, obituary, perish, preterit, sedition, sudden, transient, all from L īre, and also, these from Gr, the sep enema and isthmus.

The n issue is adopted from OF, which has var eissue, from issir (cf the OProv eissir), to go out, from L exīre: ex, out+īre, to go, with supine itum: cf it, he goes, and itur, there is a going, and iter, a going, a journey. L īre, to go (eō, I go), has such cognates as Gr ienai, to go (eimi, εἶμι, I am about to go), Skt émi, I go, éti, he goes, Lith eiti, he goes; C affords several cognates. The IE r is et-, var i-, to go. Cf:

isthmus; Isthmian, isthmian, isthmik, isthmoid.

Isthmus, adopted from L, comes from Gr isthmos, a narrow passage, a neck of land, an isthmus, akin to Gr eisithmē, an entrance, (lit) a going-in: eis, into+i-*, the r of iendi, to go (f.a.e., ISSUE)+-thmē: cf ithma (i+thma), a going. Cf also ON eiðh, isthmus.

Gr isthmos has adj isthmikos, whence isthmik, and isthmios, whence isthmian (-ian for -ious): Gr isthmios occurs mostly as Isthmios, as in the orig forms of the Isthmian League and the Isthmian Games, ref the isthmus joining the Gr mainland with the Peloponnese.

It. See HE, para 1.

Italian (adj hence n), whence Italianism (unless from It italianismo), Italianize; Italianate; Italic (adj, hence n), whence italic, whence italicize; Italiote; Italy, whence italite (Italy+Geol-ite).

1. Italian derives from It italiano, adj (hence n) of It, from L Italia, app for Uitalia* (cf Oscan Uitellū), from uitulus, a calf, ancient Italy being rich in cattle. (Gr Italia and italos, a bull, app derive from the L words.)

2. Italianate (or Italianized, cf F italianiser) derives from It italianato, pp of italianare, to render Italian, from italiano.

3. Italic, adj, derives from L Italicus (cf Gr Italikos), adj of L Italia: the printing type so named was first used by an Italian, Aldus Manutius, in a 'Virgil' he printed in 1501, and it comes into E via EF-F italique.

4. Italiote, a Gr inhabitant of Italy, derives from Gr Italiōtēs, from Gr Italia.

itch, n, derives from ME icchen, to itch, whence, obviously, also 'to itch': but icchen is a var of earlier yicchen, from OE giccan, with derivative n gicce, whence, partly, the n itch. OE giccan is akin to OHG jucchēn, MHG-G jucken, and MD juecken, jucken, jocken, joken, D jeuken: o.o.o.: ? echoic.—Hence itchy (-y, adj).

item, whence itemize.

L item, proleptic 'thus', is akin to L ita, both retrospective and prospective 'thus' and, like it, from id, it, the neu of is, ea, id, he, she, it; item has perh been influenced by idem, the neu of idem, eadem, idem, the same (person m and f, thing neu). Cf Skt iti (Av uiti) and Umbrian itek, thus. The IE r is prob id-, alternating with it-. Cf:

iterate, iteration, iterative.

1. Both the obs adj and the current v iterate derive from L iterāius, pp of iterāre, to repeat, hence to go on repeating, from the adv iterum, for the 2nd time, app orig the neu of an adj iterus*, another: cf the Skt adj ītaras, other, another. Iterum is akin to L item (see prec) and therefore to L is, ea, id, he, she, it. Derivatives LL iterābilis, L iterātiō (o/s iterātiōn-), LL iterātius (a gram term), ML iterātivus, yield resp iterable, iteration, iterative (perh imm from MF-F iteratif, f iterative).

2. The cpd LL reiterāre, to repeat (iterāre) again (re-), hence to say over and over again, has pp reiterātus, whence 'to reiterate'; derivative LL reiterātiō, o/s reiterātiōn-, becomes E reiteration; but reiterative is anl on iterative.

itineracy, itinerancy; itinerant; itinerary, adj and n.

Itineracy is an easement of itinerancy, itself for itinerancy (abstract suffix -cy), from itinerant, E adj from LL itinerant-, o/s of itinerans, presp of itinerāri (s itiner-), to go on a journey, from L iter, a going, a walk (esp if long), a journey, with o/s itiner-, whence the LL adj itinerārius (-ārius), of or for a journey, hence of or for a road, whence the E adj itinerary; itinerārius has neu itinerārium, which, used as LL n, the planned course of a journey, accounts for E 'an itinerary'. L iter, s and r it-, is intimately akin to L itum, the supine of īre, to go: cf L it, he goes: f.a.e., ISSUE.

its: orig, in EE, it's: it, neu pron+possessive 's (orig -es).

ivied. See IVY, s.f.

ivory. See ELEPHANT, para 2.

ivy: OE ifig: cf OHG ebihewe, ebahewi, by f/e for ebewe, ebawi, there having been interference by OHG hewi (G Heu), hay: MHG ephōu: G Efeu. (Walshe.)—Hence the pa ivied.

2. The MHG ephōu suggests kinship with Gr iphuon (s iphu-), spike-lavender: o.o.o.

j, J. Capital J follows, anl, from small j: and in E words, it usu indicates either a direct L or a Romance (mostly F) origin. L j was orig an elongated i and was 'first used in cursive writing to indicate an initial I [i]' ; 'in the semi-vocalic sense' it did not occur until c800 A.D. and, even then, 'only in S Italy and Spain' (Souter). In E, 'the regular and practically uniform sound of j, as in jet (= dzh), the same as g in gem, dates from the 11th century' (Webster).

jab (v, hence n); job (to stab, to jab), v hence n. App the former is a var of the latter: and the latter derives from ME jobben, to peck, itself o.o.o. but prob echoic.

jabber (v, hence n) is prob echoic: ? an altered freq of 'to gab': cf GABBLE.

Jacaranda: Port, from Tupi, jacarandá.

jacinth. See HYACINTH.

jack (1), an EI fruit: Port jaca: Mal cakka, this fruit: Skt cakra, a round object: ? ult akin to L circus and curvus (ML curvus)—CIRCLE and CURVE.

jack (2), a popular name for various quadrupeds (jackass), birds (cf jackdaw, laughing jackass) and fishes, and esp for various objects (cf jackboot), devices and contrivances, esp if mechanical (jack-knife): Jack, the very common pet-form of John, the world's commonest font-name. Jack, although used for John, derives from OF Jaques (F Jacques), James, ML Jacōbus, LL Iacōbus, LGr Iakōbos, H Ya'aqōbh, lit 'supplanter'. LL Iacōbus has adj Iacōbaeus, whence E Jacobean; ML Jacōbus has F derivative Jacobin, adopted by E, and ML derivative Jacōbita, whence Jacobite. The C17 coin Jacobus is named after James I of England.

2. The Jack cpds are self-explanatory: e.g., jack-in-the-box, Jack-of-all-trades, jackpot, jack rabbit. —'To jack' derives from the n.

3. In C14 F, Jacques or Jaques designated the F peasant, whence la Jacquerie, the great Peasant Rising of 1357. Jaques has derivative jaque, a peasant's short, close-fitting jacket, whence, 1375, the dim jaquette, whence E jacket, whence 'to jack'.

4. OF-MF Jaques is partly adopted by EE: hence Jaques' house*, Jack's house (a privy), whence, via Jakes (later Jake), an E pet-form of Jacob, Jakes'* (or Jake's) house, whence, by ellipsis, Jakes'* (Jake's), whence the C16 jakes, a privy:

cf Sir John Harington's punning title, The Metamorphosed Ajax, 1596.

jackal: Tu chaqāl (tchaqāl): Per shagāl (shaghāl): Skt śrgāla (śrgāla): ? 'the scavenger' (perh, however, cf Hit śaggal, fodder, forage).

Jacob, Jacobean, Jacobin, Jacobite, Jacobus. See the 2nd JACK.

jaculate, jaculation, jaculator, jaculatory; ejaculate, ejaculation, ejaculator, ejaculatory.

1. 'To ejaculate' derives from ML ējaculātus, L ēiaculātus, pp of ēiaculāri, to hurl forth: ē, out + iaculāri, to hurl, from iaculum, a dart, orig the neu of the adj iaculus, of or for throwing, casting hurling, from iacere, to throw, akin to iacēre, to be lying on the ground, orig because thrown there; the s and r are iac-. The IE r is app je-*: cf L iectus, thrown; prob cf also Gr hiēmi (for yi-yē-mi*), I throw, pt hēka. The c/f of iacere, to throw, is -iacere, often contr to -icere, and in E it occurs esp in the pp form -iectus, as in abject, deject, inject, object, project, reject, subject; cf the -iacent (whence -iacency) words from iacēre—e.g., adjacent.

2. L iaculāri has derivatives iaculātiō, o/s iaculātiōn-, whence E jaculation; iaculātor, tepidly adopted (as j-) by E; LL iaculātōrius, whence jaculatory; jaculative is an anl E formation.

3. E formations anl with those derivatives are these: ejaculation, ejaculative, ejaculator, ejaculatory.

jade (1), in Min; ileac, ileum, iliac, ilium.

Jade, adopted from F, is elliptical and aphetic for Sp 'piedra de ijada', stone of (the) side: ijada, flank or side of the human body, hence a pain in the side: the Middle Ages supposed this stone to be able to cure that pain. Ijada comes from L ilia, the flanks, a flank, the groin, whence, by b/f, the s ile, ileum, ilium, the 2nd and 3rd being adopted by Med; the adj of E ileum is ileac. The adj iliac, obs for ileac, is now, by An, used for 'of the ilium, but it owes something to EF-F iliaque, of or fo'r colic, from L iliācus, from L ileus, colic, trln of Gr eileos, an intestinal obstruction. L ileus, earlier ileos, is used by Med for a grave, painful complaint; the Gr eileos prob derives from eilein (s eil-), to roll up.

jade (2), a horse usu inferior or worn out, hence, usu pej, a wench; hence also 'to jade', to exhaust (a horse) or, usu by surfeit, a man or his appetite, mostly as pa jaded. E-ME jade is app a var of Sc yade, var yaud (also in E dial), from ON jalda, a mare, of Fin origin.

jag (n prob from v), orig a pendant notched into a garment's hem, thence both a sharp projection and the v to project sharply, the adj jagged app deriving from the n: o.o.o.: prob echoic; perh cf JOG. (See esp P⁴.) Jesus itself derives, through ML Jēsus, LL Iēsus, trln of LGr Iēsous, from H Yēshūa', prob 'Jehovah (or Yahveh) is salvation': cf YAHWEH. The mostly poetical Jesu was orig a voc jet (1), a glossy-black mineral: MF jet, contr of OF jayet (cf F jais): L gagātem, acc of gagātes: Gr gagatēs, elliptical for lithos gagatēs, stone of Gagas, a river and town of Lycia in S Asia Minor.

jet (2) of water, also v; jetsam and jettison (N hence v); jetton; jetty; parget.—jess.—jitney—jut (v, hence n).—For the -ject, -jection, -jective cpds, see sep abject, conject(ure), deject, eject, inject, interject, object, project, reject, subject, traject, etc.

1. A jet comes from OF-MF get (F jet), from OF-MF geter, a merely scriptural var of jeter, to cast or throw, whence 'to jet': and OF-F jeter comes from VL jectāre*, for L lactāre (ML jectāre), freq of iacere, to throw: f.a.e., JACULATE, para 1.

2. OF-MF geter has MF derivative getaison, a throwing, whence E jettison, now esp a casting of goods overboard; getaison also becomes the E doublet jetsam, that which is thrown overboard—sem of flotsam. OF-MF geter has another derivative relevant to E: the MF geton, F jeton, E jetton, a counter used in book-keeping, later in card-playing. Perh from F jeton comes also AE jitney, sl for a nickel (5 cents).

3. Jetty, however, comes from EF-F jetée, an -ée formation from jeter: something thrown out, from the land into the sea.

4. OF-MF geter has the OF cpd pargeter, to throw (something) all over (par=L per, throughout) a surface: hence ME pargeten, whence 'to parget', to coat or cover with plaster, with vn parget(i)ng.

5. OF-MF get—as in para 1—has the OF-EF var giet, with pl gies or giez, used as that Falconry n which becomes E jess.

Jew (whence Jewish), Jewry; Judaic, Judaism (whence, anl, Judaist), Judaize; Judas, Jude; Yiddish (n, hence adj), whence the sl Yid.

1. A Jew derives from OF juieu, var julu, both recorded in C12 and deriving from ML Jūdaeum, acc of Jūdaeus, LL Iūdaeus, trln of LGr Ioudaios, itself from H Yēhūdi, a person of H Yēhūdāh, Gr Ioudaia, LL Iūda, ML Jūda, E Judah. Lit '(The) Praised', Yēhūdāh from being the name of the founder becomes the name of his tribe; from tribe to kingdom, and, after the return (early C6 B.C.) of the Jews from Babylon, the new Hebrew state.

2. OF julu has derivative juierie, whence ME Jewerie, E Jewry.

3. LGr Ioudaios has derivative adj Ioudaikos, LL Iūdalicus, ML Jūdalicus, E Judaic—derivative n Ioudatmos, LL Iūdatismus, ML Jūdatismus, E Judaism—and derivative v Ioudalzēin, LL Iūdalzare, E Judaize.

4. H Yēhūdāh, Judah, has derivative LGr Ioudas, LL Iūdas, ML Jūdas, retained as the name of the traitor Apostle, Judas Iscariot, hence for any traitor and also, as Judas (F and E), for a peephole in wall or door; Judas becomes fully anglicized as Jude. The adj Judas, applied esp to human hair, derives from the medieval tradition that the Apostle Judas was red-haired; a Judas tree, because he reputedly hanged himself on one; Judas priest! is an A euphem for Jesus Christ!

5. ML Jūdaeus becomes G Jude, a Jew (OHG judeo, judo; MHG jūde), with adj jūdisch, whence jūdisch-deutsch (Sprache), Jewish-German (speech), whence the n Jüdisch, whence E Yiddish: cf the learned syn Judaeo-German. (Walshe.)

3. The chief cpds are John Bull, the typical-Englishman's name, the type being instituted by Dr John Arbuthnot in The History of John Bull, 1712: John, the commonest E male given-name+bull, the animal he has so successfully reared; John Doe (and Richard Roe), a convenient legal fiction, chosen for much the same reason; John Dory (or Doree), a fish good for eating, John because common, Dory for DORY—cf the old song John Dory, a F privateersman; John Hancock, AE for a signature, from the first (and very clear) signature of the A Declaration of Independence.—Cf the A honest John, an honest citizen. There are many other John or Johnny terms, but all self-explanatory, being based upon the fact that, throughout the IE world, John is easily the commonest given-name.

4. Cf, sem, the 2nd JACK.

Johnny-cake. See JOURNEY.

join (v, hence n), pt and pp joined; joinder; joiner; joint (adj, n, v), jointer, jointure; cpds: adjoin (whence adjoining)—conjoin, conjoint—disjoin, disjoint (whence disjointed), disjuncture—enjoin, enjoiner—rejoin, rejoinder—subjoin, subjoiner.—junction, junctive, juncture; cpds: adjunct (adj, hence n), adjunction, adjunctive—conjoin, conjunction, conjunctive, conjunctivitis, conjuncture—disjunct, disjunction, disjunctive—injunction, injunctive—subjoin, subjunction, subjunctive (adj, hence n).—junta, junto.—jugal, jugate, jugum; jugular, jugulum; conjugal, conjugant, conjugate (whence conjugacy), conjugation, conjugative; subjugate, subjugation, subjugator.—jumentous.—joust, occ just, n and v (whence joust, jousting); jostle (v, hence n).—yogi (whence yogism)—cf Yuga.—yoke, perh yokel.—zeugma (whence zeugmatic); zygomata, zygon, zygotis, zygote, zygous—cf syzygy.—Perh cf the sep JONQUIL and the sep JUS (as in JUST).

1. This constellation of terms is so clear that it would be a pity to disunite them: and they exemplify many of the interactions operating within the IE family of languages. Nor is the constellation so vast that it cannot be lucidly and conveniently treated under the one heading.

I. Indo-European

2. For most of the terms, the effective origin lies in L iungere, to join, s iung-, ML jung-; for many others, in the cognate L iugum, a yoke, s iug-, ML jug-; of both sub-groups, certain members come through R; Gr and Skt supply the remainder.

3. L iung-, with nasal-infix (-n), or rather the more basic iug-, is akin to Gr zug- in the n zugon, a yoke, and to its var form zeug-, as zeugma (see para 7) and zeugos, a yoke. With L iugum, Gr zugon, cf Skt yugám and Hit jugan, jukan, perh better yugan, yukan (dat yuki); other cognates are, e.g., OSl igo; Go iuk, juk, OHG joh, MHG-G och, OE geoc, E yoke; C affords several examples.

With the nasal L iungo (pp iunctus, ML junctus), Gr zeugnumi, I yoke, cf Skt yunákti, Lith jungti, he yokes, Skt yuhjánti, they yoke, Lith jungas, a yoke. With L iunctus, contrast the syn Skt yuktás, and with L iunctiō, a yoking, a joining, contrast the syn Skt yuktis. In short, the distribution of the nasal and the other forms is, as one would expect, irreg; the -n- forms predominate.

4. The IE r is app iueg-, to bind together, to yoke, to join, itself an extn of ieu-, var ieo-, to bind, with ult r perh ie- (ye-), varr io- (yo-) and iu-, to bind.

II. Sanskrit

5. The Skt yoga, union (cf para 3), becomes Hi yoga, a mental, hence also a spiritual, discipline of Hinduism, adopted, as a word, throughout the IE countries. Derivative Skt yogin becomes Hi yogi, a follower—a practiser—of yoga; hence E yogi.

6. Very intimately akin to Skt yoga, union, is Skt yugá- (Hi yug), a yoke, hence an age ('a yoke of years'); hence Yuga, one of Hinduism's Four Ages of the World.

III. Greek

7. Gr zeugma (o/s zeugmat-), a joining, from zeugnumi, I yoke or join, is adopted by L Rhetoric, hence by E.

8. Gr zugon, a yoke, is adopted, in its SciL form zygon, by E An, with derivative adj zygos; derivative Gr zugōsis, balancing, becomes E Bot and Zoo zygosis; derivative zugoun, to yoke, has n zugōma, whence An and Zoo zygoma, a yoking, o/s zugōmat-, whence the E and adj zygomatic; zugoun, moreover, has pp zugōtos, yoked, whence the Bio n zygote, with derivative adj zygotic.

9. Gr zeugnumi, inf zeugnunai, combines with sun-, with, to form the derivative suzugia, a joining together, whence LL syzygia, whence the E syzygy of Astr, Math, Zoo.

IV. Latin—Simple Derivatives

10. L iugum, ML jugum, is adopted by Bot and Zoo; its derivative adj iugālis, ML j-, becomes the SciE jugal; the derivative v iugāre has pp iugātus, ML jugātus, which becomes the SciE adj jugate. L iugum has dim iugulum, ML jugulum, the part which joins neck to shoulders and chest, adopted by Zoo; its SciL adj jugularis becomes E jugular.

11. L iugum has a derivative iugmentum*, eased to iumentum, a team of draught animals, hence a draught animal, esp the horse, whence the Med E adj jumentous.

12. The nasal form is iungere (s iung-), to yoke, join, with pp iunctus, whence E -junct: see para 14. Derivative iunctiō, o/s iunctiōn-, ML junctiōn-, becomes E junction; LL iunctivus, ML junctivus, becomes junctive; LL iunctūra, ML j-, becomes junctione.

V. Latin Compounds

13. The relevant cpds of L iugum, iugālis, pp iugātus, derivative n iugātiō (o/s iugātiōn-), LL agent iugātor, are these:

coniugāre, to join together, to marry, pp coniugātus, ML conjugātus, whence E conjugate, adj (hence n) and v; derivative coniugātiō, o/s coniugātiōn-, yields conjugation, whence, anl, the adj conjugative; the n conjugant, however, derives from coniugant-, o/s of coniugans, presp of coniugāre;—

coniux, ML conjux, husband, wife, each being joined to the other, app=con-, with + iugum + nom -s: coniugs* becomes coniux, gen coniugis, o/s coniug-, whence the adj coniugālis, ML conjugālis, F and E conjugal;—

subiugāre, to put under (sub) the yoke (iugum), hence under one's power, pp subiugātus, ML subjugātus, whence 'to subjugate'; derivative LL subiugātiō, o/s subiugātiōn-, becomes subjugation; derivative ML subjugātor is adopted by E.

14. The relevant L cpds of iungere are these:

adiungere, to join ad or to, pp adiunctus, ML junctus, whence the E adj adjunct; derivative adiunctiō, o/s adiunctiōn-, whence E adjunction; LL adiunctuus, ML adjunctivus, E adjunctive;—

coniungere, to join con- or together, pp coniunctus, whence E conjoint; derivative coniunctiō, o/s coniunctiōn-, OF hence E conjunction; LL coniunctuus, ML conjunctivus, whence both E conjointive and (suffix -itis) E conjunctivitis; ML conjunctūra, E conjuncture;—

disiungere, to unyoke (dis-, apart), to disunite, pp disiunctus, E disjunct; derivative disiunctiō, o/s disiunctiōn-, E disjunction; disiunctuus, ML disjunctivus, E disjunctive;—

iniungere, to join in-, into, hence onto, hence to impose, pp iniunctus, whence E injunct, rare adj; derivative iniunctiō, in LL an enjoining, an order, o/s inunction-, E injunction, whence anl injunctive;—

sēiungere, to separate (privative sē-), pp sēiunctus, whence the rare sejunct and, from sēiunctiō, the rare sejunction and its anl derivative sejunctive;—

subiungere, to join under (sub) the yoke, to subject to the yoke, LL to subjoin, pp subiunctus, whence subjunct; derivative LL subiunctiō, o/s subiunctiōn-, E subjunction; LL subiunctuus, ML subjunctivus, E subjunctive.

VI. Romance—Spanish

15. L iunctus, f iuncta, ML iuncta, becomes, as n, the Sp junta, a council or tribunal, partly adopted by E; hence, the corruption junto, a faction—prompted by the very numerous Sp nn in -o.

VII. Romance—French

16. L iungere, ML iungere, becomes OF-F joindre, which, used as n, accounts for the E n joinder; OF joindre, perhaps rather joignant, presp, or 'ils joignent', they join, produces ME joignen, later joinein, whence 'to join'. Derivative OF-MF joigneor becomes ME joynour, whence E joinder. The pp joint becomes the E adj joint; the derivative OF-F n joint or jointe becomes the E n joint, whence 'to joint', whence jointer. But E jointure, adopted from OF-F, derives from ML junctūra, LL iunctura (as in para 12).

17. The relevant F cpds, deriving from L but following the pattern of joindre, are:

MF-EF ajoindre (ML adjuingere: para 14), EF reshaping it to adjoindre—ME ajoinen—reshaped E 'to adjoin';

OF-F (archaic) conjoindre (ML conjugere)—'to conjoin'; the OF-F pp conjoint is adopted by E;

MF-F disjoindre (OF desjoindre, ML disjungere): E 'to disjoin'; the MF pp dísjoint is adopted by E, with anl derivative disjointure;

Late OF-F enjoindre (ML injungere) becomes both the E n enjoinder and, anl with other -join vv, 'to enjoin'; cf:

MF-F rejoindre (re-, again + joindre) yields both a 'rejoinder' and 'to rejoin';

MF-EF subjoindre (ML subjungere), whence—after rejoinder—subjoinder and, after other -join vv, 'to subjoin'.

18. A less obvious debt to F is 'to joust'; var 'to just'; ME jousten, justen: OF jouster, juster, earliest joster (cf F jouter): ML juxtāre*: LL iuxta, very close to (prep), L iuxta, so close as to touch (adv): from L iugsta*: iug-, r of iugum + formative s + adv suffix -ta. The OF v joster, juster, jouster has derivative OF-MF n joste, juste, jouste, whence ME just, joust, extant in E.

19. ME jousten, justen, have late ME-EE freq joustle, justle, soon jostle—orig, jousting terms—the 1st obs by 1700, the 2nd obsol by 1900 and obs by 1950, the 3rd extant.

VIII. Germanic

20. 'To yoke' derives from OE geocian, itself from the source of the E n yoke (ME yok): OE geoc, akin to OHG joh, Go yuk, ON ok (? worn-down from Gmc r juk-*): cf para 3. Unless a dim (-el) from yoke of oxen—perh he was orig a ploughman—yokel (at first, c1800, cant; then sl; by c1850, SE) is difficult to explain, the dial sense 'woodpecker', even if green, being unsatisfactory.

joint, jointure. See prec, para 16.

joist; gist.

The former app arises from a dial pron of the latter: whereas the former, ME giste, is adopted from OF-MF giste (F gîte), from ML-VL jacitum*, from ML-VL jacere, L iacere, to be lying on the ground (f.a.e., JACULATE, para 1), the latter is adopted from OF giste, (he) lies on the ground (F gît), from OF-MF gesir (later gésir), from ML jacere, L iacere: the latter is that foundation of a legal case without which it would not lie (be admissible), and the former is a beam lying from wall to wall.

joke (n, hence v, whence joker); jocose, jocosity; jocular, jocularity; juggle, juggler, jugglery; jewel (n, hence v), jeweller, jewellery or jewelry; sep JEOPARDY;—hoax (n, v)—hocus-pocus—hokey pokey—hokum.

1. Joke derives from ML jocus (s joc-), L iocus (s ioc-), a joke or a jest, orig a verbal game, app akin to Lith juokas, a joke, mirth; the Gmc cognates occ proposed are extremely doubtful.

2. L iocus has L adj iocōsus, ML iocōsus, whence jocose, whence jocosity, prob after jocularity, from LL ioculāritās, wittiness, from LL ioculāris, (as n) a wit, (also adj) witty, whence jocular.

3. L iocus has a dim ioculus, whence ioculāri, to jest, whence OF-EF jogler, with var jugler, to jest, hence to be a jester or entertainer, e.g. a tumbler or esp a juggler, whence ME juglen, E 'to juggle', whence 'a juggle'. L ioculāri has agent ioculātor, ML ioculātor, whence, via the acc ioculātorem, the OF-EF jogleor, varr joglere and jugleor, whence ME jogelour and juglur, whence E juggler; OF-EF jogler, jugler, has the OF-MF derivative joglerie, juglerie, whence E jugglery.

4. L iocus has the VL adj iocālis, ML iocālis, whence OF joel, var juel, a plaything, hence a trinket, hence a jewel, unless OF joel derives imm from OF-F jeu (ML jocus, L iocus): joel and juel become, in ME, resp jowel and juel, the latter becoming E jewel. OF juel has both agent MF juelier, whence E jeweller, and collective MF juelerie, whence E jewellery and AE and E jewelry.

5. The ML focus has app produced the prob orig jugglers' mock-L catch-phrase hocus-pocus (? sc 'what a jokus!'), whence hocus, n and v, and prob, by contr, hoax, n hence v; the sl hokum prob arose as a mock-L neu (hocum) of the hocus of hocus-pocus. Moreover, hokey-pokey is merely hocus-pocus anglicized, this being its orig sense, whence arises that of 'cheap ice-cream sold by itinerant vendors'. (The It O, che poco is f/e nonsense, for the phrase means, not 'Oh, how cheap!' but 'Oh, how little!'—hardly a good slogan.) jollification; jollity. See:

jolly (1), adj, whence jolliness; jollify, whence jollification; jollity.

The naut sl jolly, a marine, and 'to jolly', to render (someone) jolly, hence to banter, derive, the former prob, the latter certainly, from the adj jolly, itself from ME joly, from OF joli (orig jolif), merry (whence F joli, pretty), prob from ON jöl (q.v. at YULE). E jolly has the coll derivative jollify, to render (-fy) jolly, hence to make merry; and OF joli has the MF derivative jolieté (E -ety), whence ME jolite (three-syllabled), whence jollity (-ity).

jolly (2), n, is short for jolly boat, a partly f/e derivative from Da jolle, a yawl; yawl itself prob comes rather from MLG jolle (cf D jol), a ship's small boat; E yawl acquires the sense 'a light sailing vessel'. Hence yawler, one of its crew.

Jolly Roger, the. See ROBERT, para 6.

jolt (v, hence n); jowl.

The former, o.o.o., perh derives from jole, an EE var of jowl, and, if so, orig means 'to knock on the head' or 'to butt with the head'. Jowl, jaw, jawbone, cheek, blends OF-F joue, cheek, with ME chavel, itself for chavel, from OE ceafl, jaw, akin to the syn MHG kiver (G Kiefer) and ON kjaptr (kjaptr) and perh OIr gap, mouth; jowl, a dewlap, and jowl, a fish's head, are prob id with jowl, jaw, cheek.

Jonah, bringer of bad luck, derives from the Biblical Jonah (H Yōnāh, lit a dove), cast overboard by superstitious sailors.

jonquill: EF-F jonquille: Sp junquilla, jonquil, orig a reed: dim of junco, a rush: ML juncus (cf the OF-F jonc), L iuncus, s iunc-: perh from iungere, to join, s iung-: if so, cf JOIN. The jonquil has reed- or rush-like leaves.

jordan. See:

Jordan almonds: by f/e from ME jarayne almaunde: OF-F jardin, a garden + almaunde, q.v. at ALMOND. Jordan, (obs) a narrow-necked vessel for liquids, (dial and sl) a chamberpot, prob derives from Jordan bottle*, a bottle containing water brought by pilgrims from the river Jordan, famous in Biblical history.

Joseph, a riding-cloak, any C18 cloak, derives from Biblical Joseph's 'coat of many colours': ML Jōsēphus, LL Iōsēphus: LGr Iōsēph: H Yōsēph, 'He shall add' (? to the family). Pet-form: Joe, with dim Joey: both occurring in sl and coll E, ref some famous tenant's given-name.

joss. See DIANA, para 5. jostle. See JOIN, para 19.

jot, n hence v. See IOTA.

joule derives from an E physicist, James P. Joule (1818–89). Hence the Phys adj joulean.

journal, journalese, journalism, journalist. See DIANA, para 9. journey, etc. See DIANA, para 10.

joust, n, v. See JOIN, para 18.

Jove; jovial (whence joviality). See DIANA, para 4.

jowl, whence jowled and jowly. See JOLT.

joy (n, v), joyance, joyful, joyless, joyous; enjoy, enjoyable, enjoyment; rejoice, whence pa and vn rejoicing; gaud (n, v), gaudery, gaudy, adj and n.

1. The n joy, ME joye, OF-F jole, derives from L gaudia, pl of gaudium (s gaudi-, r gaud-), itself from gaudēre (s and r gaud-), to be joyous, whence, via LL gaudre* and OF-MF jotr (F joir), the E 'to joy': and the r gaud- is a -d extn of gau-, itself an extn of the IE ga- present in Gr gaietn and ganumi, I rejoice, and gauros, proud.

2. Joyful and joyless merely add the suffixes -ful and -less to the n joy; joyance, however, derives from OF-MF joiance (from jotr), and joyous from OF-MF joyous, var of joious (EF-F joyeux), itself a var of joios (from jole).

3. OF-MF jotr has cpds MF enjotr, whence 'to enjoy', whence enjoyable and enjoyment, and OF-EF esjotr, an es- (L ex-) int of jotr, this esjotr combining with re-, again, to form OF-EF resjotr, to rejoice (esp 'ils resjotissent', they rejoice), whence 'to rejoice'.

4. L gaudēre becomes VL gaudre*, whence OF-EF gaudir, whence app the ME n gaude, whence E gaud, (obs) a jest, (then) a trinket, whence 'to gaud' and gaudery and the adj gaudy; the n gaudy however, prob derives from L gaudium, joy, with the E university sense perh influenced by the imperative gaude, rejoice!

jubilance, from jubilant; jubilarian; jubilare, v, and Jubilare, n; jubilation, jubilatory, jubilée.—yodel (v, hence n); perh yowl (v, hence n).

1. Jubilant, adj, derives from jubilant-, o/s of ML jubilans, presp of jubilare, LL iubilare, to utter cries of joy, L iubilare, to shout, to shout after (domestic animals): IE r, yū-*: cf Gr iuzō, I shout or shriek, iugē, a cry or shout of either joy or woe, and, for the r, the echoic iū, a cry of wonder. L iubilare has pp iubilatus, whence 'to jubilate'; Jubilare is that psalm (100th—Vulgate 99th) which begins 'Jubilare', Shout ye with joy. Derivative L iubilatiō, o/s iubilatiōn-, yields OF-F, whence E, jubilation, whence, anl, the adj jubilatory. A jubilarian (-arian), ML jubilārius (-ārius), is one who is celebrating a jubilee: MF-F jubilé: ML jubilaeus, LL iubilaeus, better iobelēus: LGr iōbēlaios (suffix -aios): H yōbēl, a ram's horn, hence a trumpet: the LL iobelēus having been influenced by L iubilum, a shout, from iubilare. (Souter; E & M.)

2. ML jubilare acquires, ult, a G cognate: jodeln, whence 'to yodel'. The G word derives imm from the exclamatory jō, itself clearly, though remotely, akin to the Gr iū of para 1.

3. ML jubilare perh acquires the further cognate 'to yowl', imm from ME youlen.

Judaic, Judaism, Judaize. See JEW, para 3.

Judas and Judas; Judas tree. See JEW, para 4.

judge (n, v), judgement. See DICT, para 15.

judicable, judicate, judication, judicature. See DICT, para 16.

judicial, judiciary, judicious. See DICT, para 17.

jug (pitcher, ewer), n hence v, app derives from Jug, a pet-form of Joan or Joanna (cf Meg, for Margaret); hence jug, any woman, but esp a servant; Joan was formerly a common name among servants. Perh, sem, cf MOP.

jugal, jugate. See JOIN, para 10.

juggernaut derives from Juggernaut, an anglicized form of Jagannath, an idol of Krishna at Puri in Orissa, India: Hi Jagannāth, Lord of the World: Skt jagannātha. The E senses arise from the former, completely erroneous belief that devotees allowed themselves to be crushed beneath the wheels of the idol perambulating at an annual festival.

juggle, juggler, jugglery. See JOKE, para 3.

jugular, jugulum. See JOIN, para 10, s.f.

jugum. See JOIN, para 10.

juice, whence juicy; verjuice.

Juice, ME juis, earlier juse, derives from MF-F jus, juice, gravy, broth, from syn ML jūs, L iūs: cf Skt yās, broth. MF-F jus has the MF-F cpd verjus, for vert jus, green juice—the juice of green fruit. (Cf VERD.) MF verjus becomes ME vergeous, etc., whence E verjuice.

jujitsu is a var of and now commoner than jujutsu: Jap jūjutsu: jū, pliant+jutsu, art: the yielding art.

jubate, adopted from F (EF fajube), comes from LL zizufum, from L ziziphum, trln of Gr zizuphon, itself from OPer zizafūn.

juke. See JAZZ.

julep, adopted from F, comes into MF from OProv julep or OSp julepe, from Ar julāb, itself from Per gulāb, rose water: gul, a rose+āb, water.

julienne. See:

July; Julia, Julian, julienne, Juliet, Julius.

July, AF Julie, derives from ML Jūlius, L iūlius (mensis), the Julian month, a month named for Caius Iūlius Caesar, born in it: Iūlius was a clan name. L derivatives include Iūlia, whence Julia; Iūlianus, whence E Julian and F Julien, whence, presumably, after a famous chef, julienne; L Iūlia has LL dim Iūliitta, ML Jūliitta, whence F Juliette, E Juliet.

jumble (v, hence n) is perh an easing of the syn ME jompen: ? cf JUMP.

jumbo, any very large person or thing, cf Jumbo, a generic name for elephants, from Jumbo, a particularly large African elephant in the London Zoo of the early 1880's: prob from either MUMBO-JUMBO or Kongoese nzombo, a python. (Webster.)

jumentous. See JOIN, para 11.

jump (1), a loose jacket, an under-bodice, whence junper; jupe, jupon.

A jump is prob f/e (? after 'to jump') for earlier jup, from juppe, adopted from EF juppe, a var of OF(-F) jupe, a skirt, etc., itself perh via Sp aljuba, a long woollen Moorish garment, from Ar jubbah (al- being merely the Ar 'the'), such an outer garment; OF-F jupe has the MF-F derivative jupon, and both words have been partly adopted by E.

jump (2), to leap high, whence the n, derives from ML jumpāre: o.o.o.: perh ult echoic. Hence a junper and the pa, vn jumping; the n jump has adj jumpy.

junper (1). See the 1st JUMP.—junper (2). See the 2nd JUMP.

jumpy. See 2nd JUMP, s.f.

junction, junctive, juncture. See JOIN, para 12.

June: OF-F juin: ML Jūnius, L Iūnius, the name of a Roman clan: cf, sem and perh phon, JULY.

jungle, whence the adj jungly, derives from Hind jaṅgal, desert or forest, two senses merging, sem, in that of jungle: Skt jaṅgala, waste ground, wilderness, desert: cf the sem development of wilderness, q.v. at WILD.

junior. See JUVENILE, para 1.

juniper: ML jūniperus, L iūniperus (varr iūnīpirus and LL inīperus, ML ginīperus): OL ienīperus*: ? akin to L iuncus, a rush or a reed; perh of Medit stock. Cf:

junk (1), orig a piece of old rope, hence old cordage, hence any old materials, prob comes from Port junco, junk, earlier cordage, earliest a reed or rush: ML juncus, L iuncus, a reed, a (bul)rush: prob Medit—cf Eg ganu, reed.

junk (2), an Oriental, esp a Ch, sailing ship: Port junco: Jav joñ.

junket (n, hence v), orig a cream cheese, comes from It giuncata, a cream cheese served in a reed- or rush- or wicker-basket: an -ata derivative of giunco, a rush, ML juncus, L iuncus: cf the 1st JUNK.

Juno, whence (after statuesque) Junoesque, is L lūnō, the consort of Jupiter: o.o.o.

Jurassic: F jurassique, of the Jura mountains, with false suffix -assique (-assique), -assic, from F triasique, E Triassic, adj of the Geol system known as Trias (L from Gr trias, a set of three).

jurat: MF-F jurat: ML jūrātus (n from pp): L jūrātus, sworn, pp of iūrāre (s iūr-), to swear. Cf the LL adj iūrātōrius, formed in -ōrius upon iūrāt-, s of pp iūrātus: hence, via ML jūrātōrius, the E juratory. See, f.a.e., JUS, and cf:

juridic(al). See DICT, para 11.

jurisconsult; jurisdiction; jurisprudence. For juris- (L iūris, gen of iūs, law), see the element juris-; for the 2nd elements, cf CONSUL—DICT, para 11—PRUDENCE. The 1st and the 3rd prob come imm from late MF-F jurisconsulte and EF-F jurisdiction, both from L cpds.

jurist (whence juristic). See para 3 of the 2nd JURY.

juror. See para 2 of 2nd JURY.

jury (1), adj, as in jury mast and jury-rigged, occurs earliest in jury mast, a temporary mast, which app tacks MAST to an aphetic derivative of OF-MF ajurie, contr of OF-MF adjutorie, assistance, relief, from ML adjutōrium, assistance, support, L adiutōrium, from adiutāre, to aid, to support (cf adjutant).

jury (2), n, juror; sep JURAT and JURIDICAL; jurist—abjure, abjuration, abjuration; adjure, adjuration, adjuration; conjure, conjuration, conjuration, conjurer (and conjurer), conjury; injure, injurious, injury; perjure (whence pa perjured and perjurer), perjurious, perjury;—just (adj, hence adv and n; v justice (and injustice), justiciar, justiciary; justify, justifiable, justification, justificative, justificatory; adjust (whence adjuster), adjustment, with re- cpds; sep JUDGE, etc., q.v. at DICT, para 15, JUDICATE (ib, para 16), JUDICIAL and JUDICIOUS (ib, para 17) and PREJUDICE (18a).

1. The effective basis of all these words is L iūs, ML jūs, gen iūris, ML jūris (o/s iūr-, jūr-), orig a religious formula having the force of law, but, in L-LL-ML, iūs (jūs) is law, hence justice: cf the Ve formula yós ('Your welfare!'); perh cf also Alb jē, permission, and OIr uisse, huisse, just, right; ? ult akin to L iugum, a yoke, and iungere, to join. ML jus is retained in many European, incl E, legal phrases.

2. L iūs has o/s iūr-, whence iūrāre (s iūr-), ML jūrāre, orig to pronounce a ritual formula, but predominantly to swear on oath. From the pp iūrātus, s iūrat-, comes the agent iūrātor, ML jūrātor, whence OF-MF jureor, whence E juror. ML jūrāre becomes OF-F jurere, whence OF-MF jurée, an oath, hence a juridical inquiry, which becomes E jury, with the new sense 'a body of persons sworn to give a true verdict in a court of law'—adopted, late in C17, by F.

3. ML forms upon the o/s jūr- the n jūrista (-ista, Gr -istēs, E -ist), whence, app via MF-F juriste, the E jurist. More important is L iniūrius, unjust, whence—perh via MF-F injurious—the E injurious; derivative L iniūria, OF-F injure, E injury; thence the derivative v iniūriāri, MF-F injurier, E 'to injure'.

Compounds of L iūrāre, ML jūrāre

4. The cpds relevant to E are these:

abiūrāre, to swear ab or away, to deny upon oath, whence 'to abjure'; derivative LL abiūrātiō, o/s abiūrātiōn-, whence abjuration, whence, anl, abjuration.

adiūrāre, to swear ad or to, hence to adjure, whence, perh via EF-F adjurer, 'to adjure'; derivative adiūrātiō, o/s adiūrātiōn-, whence adjuration, and LL adiūrātōrius, whence adjuratory.

coniūrāre, to swear con or together, to conspire, hence, in LL, to beg urgently, hence, in ML, to exorcise, to avert by prayer, hence also by magic: whence MF-F conjurere, E 'to conjure', long obs in its orig sense; derivative coniūrātiō, o/s coniūrātiōn-, whence, via MF-F, the E conjunction; the ML agent conjurātor is adopted by legal E; MF-F conjurere has derivative conjureur, which perh suggested the E conjurere (modern sense) and conjuror, a co-swearer upon oath; conjury app='to conjure' + n-suffix -y.

periūrāre, to swear per-, thoroughly, esp against the facts, whence OF-F (se) parjurer, whence the reshaped 'to perjure'; derivative OF parjurie leads to reshaped E perjury, whence—unless from L periūriōsus—perjurious.

Just and Justice

5. L iūstus, ML jūstus, conformable to law, derives from iūs, law; hence, via OF-F juste, the E just. Derivative iūstitia leads, via OF-F, to E justice. The negg iniūstus, iniūstitia, pass through MF-F and OF-F to become E injust (obs—now unjust) and injustice. The OF-MF derivative v justiciere becomes 'to justice' (obs); its OF-F derivative justiciabile is adopted by E; ML jūstitiārius (-ārius), later jūsticiārius, becomes the E n justiciar, whence the Sc extn justiciary (cf the OF-F n justicier).

6. The derivative LL cpd iūstificāre, ML j-, to render just, to justify, becomes OF-F justifier, whence 'to justify'; derivative LL iūstificātiō, o/s iūstificātiōn-, yields—perh via OF-F—justification, whence, anl, justificatory; MF-F justifiable (-able) is adopted by E; EF-F justificatif, f -ive, yields justificative.

7. OF-F juste has derivative MF-F cpd ajuster (a-=à, L ad, to + juste + inf ending -er), whence 'to adjust'; derivative MF-F ajustement produces adjustment. The related OF-F rajuster (re-, again + ajuster) prompts, although it does not generate, the E readjust, whence, anl, readjustment.

laager. See the 2nd LIE, para 3.

labdanum. See LAUDANUM.

label, n hence v, is adopted from MF label, perh an 'eased' var of MF lambel, Her term, dim of MF-F lambeau, a kind of fringe, itself a nasalized derivative of Frankish labba*, presumed from OHG lappa, a hanging piece of cloth, a flap: f.a.e., the 1st LAP.

labelloid, labellum; labial, labiate. See the 2nd LAP, para 3.

labile. See LABOR at para 1; cf lapse.

labium. See the 2nd LAP, para 3.

labor (n, v), labour; laboratory; laborious; labourer, AE laborer; labo(u)rite;—belabour; collaborate, collaboration, collaborative, collaborator; elaborate (adj, v), elaboration;—labile; lapse (n, v); collapse, elapse, prolapse, relapse.

1. The effective base is L lābi, to glide, to slip, (hence) to fail: perh a denasalized cognate of Skt lambate, he leans. Lābi has derivative lābilis, tending to slip, whence E labile. The pp lapsus has two derivatives relevant to E:

lapsus (gen lapsūs), a slipping, whence lapse, n;

LL lapsāri (freq of lābi), to slip repeatedly, whether physically or morally, whence 'to lapse', with several new senses.

2. Lābi has many cpds; four notably concern E: collābi, to slip together (col- for con-, with), to collapse, with pp collapsus, whence 'to collapse'; ēlābi, to slip or glide away (connoted by ē-, out of), pp ēlapsus, whence 'to elapse'; prōlābi, to slip forward (prō-), pp prōlapsus, whence 'to prolapse'; relābi, to slip re- or back, pp relapsus, whence 'to relapse', whence 'a relapse'.

3. Closely akin to lābi and prob deriving from it is the n labor, a (heavy) weight, under which one totters or staggers, hence fatigue, hence work which causes fatigue: whence OF-MF labor, OF-F var labour (cf the differentiated OF-F labeur), whence AE labor, E labour, whence labo(u)rite. L labor has derivative laborāre, to bend under a (heavy) weight, to be engaged in heavy, hence difficult work, hence to be in difficulty or in pain, whence OF-MF laborer, OF-F labouret, ME laboren, labouren, AE 'to labor', E 'to labour', whence labo(u)rer. 'To labo(u)r' has int 'to belabo(u)r': cf the int prefix be-.

4. The L n labor has adj labōriōsus, whence OF-MF laborios, E laborious.

5. L laborāre has pp laborātus, s laborāt-, upon which arises ML laborātōrium, a place in which to work, whence EF laboratoire and the slightly earlier E laboratory, now always scientific.

6. Laborāre has two cpds important for E: collaborāre, to work col- or together, pp collaborātus, whence 'to collaborate'; derivative ML collaborātor, adopted by E, leads, anl, to collaboration, whence, anl, collaborative;

ēlaborāre, to obtain, or achieve, by hard work or with difficulty, pp ēlaborātus, used also as adj 'achieved with difficulty', whence the E adj elaborate and also 'to elaborate'; derivative LL ēlaborātiō, o/s ēlaborātiōn-, explains elaboration, whence anl elaborative and elaborator and the obs elaboratory, a laboratory.

laboratory. See prec, para 5.

laborious. See LABOR, para 4.

labour. See LABOR.

Labrador, whence labradorite (Min -ite), a feldspar found there, prob derives from the fact that Gaspar Corte-Real, partial rediscoverer in 1500, took back to Portugal a cargo of Eskimo slaves (labradores, mod Port lavradores)—cf the early It name, Terra del Laboratore (L laborātor, a toiler).

labrose; labrum. See the 2nd LAP, para 3.

labarum: L: o.o.o.: perh Etruscan.

labyrinth, whence labyrinthine, derives from L labyrinthus: Gr laburinthos, orig applied to Eg and Cretan palaces of many halls interconnected by tortuous passages, hence a maze: app a Lydian, possibly a Carian, word, deriving from Lydian labrus, a two-edged battle-axe: ? 'palace of the two-edged axe'. (Boisacq.)

lac (1) or lakh, 100,000, esp rupees: Hi lākh: Skt lakṣa, a lac, orig a mark or sign.

lac (2)—lacquer (n, hence v)—the colour lake; shellac.

1. Lac, an insect-derived resinous substance, is either Hi lākh or, more prob, Per lak, from Skt lakṣā.

2. Per lak becomes Ar lakk, whence OProv lacca, whence MF-F laque, whence the pigment lake. (B & W.)

3. Per lak becomes, prob via ML lacca, the Port lacoa, laca, whence Port lacre, a kind of sealing wax, whence EF lacre, whence E lacquer (obsol lacker).

4. F laque has the tech cpd laque en écailles, lac in 'scales' (thin plates), trans by E as '(thin-)shelled lac': shellac.

lace (n, v). See DELICACY, para 2.

lacerate, laceration (whence anl lacerative).

Laceration derives, perh via MF-F laccération, from L lacerātiōn-, o/s of lacerātiō, formed on lacerāt-, s of lacerātus—whence 'to lacerate'—pp of lacerāre, to tear into pieces, mangle, lacerate, closely akin to, perh from, the adj lacer, torn, lacerated, akin to Gr lakis, lakos, a tear, a rent, perh akin to Pol lach, Ru loxma, a rag, a tatter: IE r, ? lakh-*, to tear small.

lack; lackadaisical. See LANGUID, paras 14 and 15, resp.

lacker. See the 2nd LAC, para 3, s.f.

lackey: MF-F laquais, by aphesis from MF alacays: Catalanian alacay, a military man-servant (cf Sp alacayo), var of Cat alcay: Ar al-kaid, (military) chief. The semantic degradation arose when, the Christians reconquering Spain from the Arabs, the Moorish chiefs were reduced to subordinate positions. (B & W.)

laconic, laconism, laconize.

The adj laconic derives, perh via EF-F laconique, from L Laconic, LL Lacōnicus, Gr Lakōnikos, of a Lakōn—a Laconian or Spartan, hence pithily or tersely brief, in the Laconian manner. Gr Lakōn (whence Lakōnia, L Lacōnia) has derivative Lakōnizein, whence 'to laconize', to imitate the Laconians, esp in speech, whence Lakonismos, EF-F laconisme, E laconism.

lacquer. See the 2nd LAC, para 3.

lacrosee. See CROOK, para 6.

lactam and lactim; lactarene (or -ine); lactary, lactase; lactate (n), lactation; lacteal (adj hence n), lacteous, lactescent (whence lactescence), lactic, lactiferous, lactify (whence lactification); lactol, lactone, lactose, lactyl;—lettuce;—galaxy, galactic.

1. The prob base is Gr gala, milk, gen galaktos; the s and r gal- is perh metathetic for gla-, extn glak-, whence L lac; cf the Homeric glagos. Kinship with MILK, not proven, is at least possible.

2. Gr gala, gen galaktos, has adj galaktikos, whence E galactic, milky; the secondary adj galaxias occurs in galaxias kuklos, milky circle, whence the n galaxias, adopted by L, whence both F galaxie and E galaxy, the Milky Way, hence a vast assemblage of stars, hence an assembly of brilliant persons.

3. L lac, gen lactis, o/s lact- (cf the var lacte, potent in R), has the foll derivatives relevant to E: lacteus, milky, whence E lacteous and anl lacteal and (? prompted by galactic) lactic, whence lactyl (Chem -yl);

lactārius, supplying milk, whence lactary; lactescere, to be changed into milk, presp lactescens, o/s lactescens-, whence lactescens;

LL lactātiō, o/s lactātiōn-, whence lactation; formed upon lactāt-, s of lactātus—whence lactate v and n—pp of lactāre, to give suck.

4. E words anl formed include lactific, lactify, lactiferous: see the element lacti-.

5. App E yet L is lettuce: ME letuse: OF-F laitues (pl of laitue), apprehended as a sing; L lactūca (herba), the 'milky herb', from an unrecorded adj lactūcus*: its juice is milky.

6. Sci formations include:

lactarene, -ine: lactarius+Chem -ene, -ine; lactone: lact- (o/s of lac)+Chem -one: whence lactam (lactone+amino) and lactim (lactone+imido) and lactol (lactone+ol); lactose: lact-+Chem -ose: whence lactase (lactose+Chem -ase).

lacuna, lacunar. See the 1st LAKE, paras 3 and 4. lacustrine. See the 1st LAKE, para 2.

lad: ME ladde: OE Ladda, personal name: o.o.o. The equally obscure lass, ME lasse, is perh—via a glottal stop—a contr of laddesse (ladess).

ladder. See the 2nd LEAN, para 2.

lade, pt laded, pp laden; ladle (n, hence v); larboard; last, a load (obs), a weight; lathe. (But not load.)

1. 'To lade', whence the vn 'bill of lading', derives from OE hladan, to pile up or heap, to load: cf OFris hlada, OS hladan, OHG ladan, MHG-G laden, MD-D laden, Go -hlathan, ON hlatha, to load, also OSi klasti, to spread, klado I put: Gmc r, hlath-; IE r, ? klad- (Walshe).

2. OE hladan has further sense 'to draw (water), to drain', whence OE hlaedl, a large, cup-headed spoon: E ladle.

3. Derivative ME ladeborde, the loading 'board' or side of a ship, is influenced by 'starboard' to become larboard.

4. Akin to OE hladan is OE hlaest, whence last, a weight of approx 4,000 pounds: cf OFris hlest, OHG hlast, MHG-G last, MD-D last, ON hlass. Cf BALLAST.

5. Prob akin to lade is lathe, a rotating machine-tool, app of Scan origin: cf Da dreielad, a turning-lathe. Perh, however, lathe is, as EW suggests, a differentiated form of LATH, the primitive lathe being worked by a spring-lath.

lake (1) of water; lacuna, lacunar, lacunose—lagoon (whence lagoonal); lacustrine;—loch, lough.

1. Lake, ME lake, earlier lac, is adopted from OF-F lac: L lacus, s lacu-, r lac-, to which are akin the syn OE lagu, OHG lahha, MHG-G lache, a pool; ON lögr; Elr (whence Ga) loch, cf Mx logh, Br and Cor lagen, W llagad, OC laku-*; Gr lakkos, a reservoir, a hole in the ground; OSI loky, lake, marsh (cf W llagad).—Lake has derivatives laker, lakish, lakist, laky.

2. L lacus (gen lacūs) has adj lacustris, whence EF-F lacustre, whence, with suffix -ine otiosely added, the E lacustrine.

3. L lacus, r lac-, has derivative lacūna, a lake-like body of water as at Venice, a pool, a pond, prob orig the f of an adj lacūnus*; lacūna comes to mean a cistern, (in VL) a cavity, hence a gap, this last being adopted by E; the L adj lacūnōsus becomes E lacunose.

4. L lacūna has the Arch LL derivative lacūnar, sunk panels, adopted by E.

5. L lacina becomes It (orig Venetian) laguna, whence F lagune and E lagoon.

6. Elr—whence Ga—loch is adopted by E for Sc lakes and closely land-locked arms of the sea. Loch is also mod Ir, often, by E authors, re-written lough.

lake (2), pigment. See the 2nd LAC, para 2.

lake (3), to play or sport; coll lark, to play about, hence n (whence the adj larky).

'To lark', o.o.o., makes the best sense if derived, perh by a coll deviation, from 'to lake', itself now only É dial, from ME laken, laiken, from ON leika (cf OE lācan), akin to Go laikan and, further off, Lith laigyti, to run wild, and Skt rejate, he shakes (e.g., with laughter) or trembles (e.g., with pleasure).

lam, to thrash (now sl); whence, anl with 'bear it', to depart hurriedly, take it on the lam (A cant, then sl). To lam is ult akin to ON lemja, to beat, hence to the adj lame.—Lambaste merely adds BASTE.

lama: Tibetan blama. Hence lamaism.

lamb (n, hence v). See ELK, para 3.

lambency, lambent. See the 2nd LAP, para 2.

lame (1), adj, hence v, hence also lameness: OE lama: cf the syn OFris lam (var lom), OHG-MHG lam, G lahm, MD lam, laem, D lam, ON lami; cf also Ofr laime, an axe, and OB lomiti, to break.— Cf LAM.

lame (2), a thin, usu metal, plate or sheet; lamé; lamina, laminate (adj, v)—hence, anl, lamination; lamella—omelet; lamellule; laminose.

1. That rich fabric, lamé, adopted from France's 'la haute couture', is 'the laminated (fabric)', from MF-F lame, likewise adopted by E: L lamna, contr of lāmīna, o.o.o.—prob a loan-word, perh Chaldean.

2. L lāmīna, adopted by tech E, has Sci L derivative laminatus, whence both adj and v lamine (cf the F laminer). The derivative LL adj lāmīnōsus yields laminose, var laminous; the derivative dim lāmella (contr of lāmīnella*), adopted by SciE, becomes OF lemelle (F lamelle), whence MF alumelle, whence, with new suffix, MF alumette, whence MF alemette*, whence, by metathesis, late MF amelette, whence, influenced by ML ovum, an egg, the EF omelette, adopted by E, which anglicizes it as omelet. (B & W).—L lāmella itself acquires a dim, the LL lāmellula, whence E lamellule; the resp adj are lamellar, lamellular.

lament (n, v), lamentable (L lāmētābilis), lamentation.

Lamentation derives, via MF-F, from L lāmēntātiōn-, o/s of lāmēntātiō, from lāmēntāt-, s of lāmēntātus, pp of lāmēntāri (s lāmēt-), to lament, whence, via MF-F lamerter, the E 'to lament'; lāmēntāri derives from L lāmētum, whence the E n lament: and lāmētum is a nasal cognate of L lātrāre, to bark, the ult r of both being lā-: cf Arm lam, I weep; prob echoic.

lamina, laminate, lamination. See the 2nd LAME, para 2.

Lammastide). See LOAF, para 3.

lammergeier (-geyer): G Lämmergeier: Lammer, pl of Lamm, a lamb (cf ELK, para 3)+Geier, a vulture (MHG gire, OHG gir, app from OHG giri, greedy: cf YEARN).

lamp (n, hence v), lampadary; ? lampas (a textile); lantern (n, hence v).

1. Lamp, ME lamp, earlier lampe: LL lampada, orig an acc of L lampas (gen lampadis): Gr lampas (gen lampados), from lampein (s lamp-), to shine: a nasal form of an IE r lap-, to shine (brightly), with varr laip-, leip-, perh lep- and lop-*: cf ON leiptr, lightning, Lith liepsnà, OP lopis, a flame, Lith lōpe, light, OIr lassaim, I shine or flame, s lassa-,* r lass-, for laps-. (Hofmann.) L lampas has ML derivative lampadārius (lampad-+-ārius), a lamp-tender, whence the ML n lampadārium, an ornamental lamp-standard (or -post); hence E lampadary in its two resp senses.

2. The rich ornamental textile fabric lampas, adopted from F, is usu said to be o.o.o.: ? from LL lampas, brilliance, esp lustre; from L lampas, a lamp.

3. Gr lampein (s lamp-), to shine, has another relevant Gr derivative: lampēr, a torch, whence, influenced by L lucerna, oil-lamp (from lūx, light), the L lanterna, whence OF-F lanterne, whence E lantern.

lampas (1), fabric. See prec, para 2.

lampas (2), horses' disability, also lampers. See the 2nd LAP, para 4. lampoon. See the 2nd LAP, para 5.

lamprey; limpet.

Lamprey, ME from OF lampreie, derives from ML lampr(a)eda, by f/e influence from L lambere, to lick, from LL naupreda: perh of Gaul origin—? a nasal form of OC lap-* (var lab-*), to tear, the lamprey feeding by tearing flesh from the fish to which they attach themselves.

2. ML lampreda, lamprey, limpet, becomes OE lempedu (s lemped-), whence, by a further 'thinning' of the 1st vowel and by a natural transition from d to t, the E limpet.

Lancaster (whence Lancastrian, adj hence n), Lancashire.

The latter, late ME Lancastreshire, merely adds SHIRE to the ancient town of Lancaster, Domesday Book Loncastrre, a Roman castra (cf CASTLE) or fort on the River Lune (Ekwall).

lance (n, v), lancer, lancet; lancelet (-let dim of lance, n); lanceolate, whence anl lanceolation;—launch (v, hence n);—élan.

1. 'To lance' (Med from military) comes from OF lancier, itself from LL lanciāre (var lanceāre), from L lancia, lancea, whence OF-F lance, ME launce, E 'a lance': and lancia comes from Gaul lancia, lankia, from OC lanc-*, to throw or cast: cf Ga lann, lainne, Ir laigen, OIr lann, prob the MX slean. The C r lanc-, lank-, perh nasalizes an IE r lagh-*; cf the Gr lakkaino, I dig, and, with n and with vocalic change, the Gr lonkhē, a lance.

2. Lancer derives from EF-F lancier, from lance; lancet, from OF-F lancette, an -et(te) dim of lance.

3. Lanceolate derives from LL lanceolātus, adj from LL lanceola, dim of lancea, var of lancia.

4. 'To launch' derives from ME launchen, to throw (a lance): ONF lanchier (OF lancier): LL lanceāre, var of lanciāre, to handle, or to pierce with, a spear, from lancea, lancia.

5. Élan, a dashing eagerness, adopted from F, derives, in C15, from OF-MF-F élaner, to cast forth (é-, L e-, out of) as if a lance, from lancer (L lanceāre).

land (n, hence v), whence pa landed and pa, vn landing; such obvious cpds as landfall, land-grabber, landlady after landlord, landlubber, land-mark (OE landmearc), landscape (D landschap, akin to OE landscipe), landsmān (land's man: OE landes mann), landward (suffix -ward); landau, whence the dim landaulet(te); lande;—lawn (sward), whence, eg., lawn tennis (opp tennis, played on an enclosed, usu roofed, court) and the adj lawny.

1. Land, OE land (var lond), is akin to OFris land, lond, OHG-MHG lant, G Land, Go land, MD lant, MD-D land, ON land, land, region—EIr land, region, an open space, Ga lann (pron lawn), enclosure, land, W lann, Cor lan, enclosure, Br lann, a lande, OC landa*—OP linda, a valley, OSl leđina, ledo, waste land, a heath—F lande (Gaul landa*), heath, moorland (esp if infertile), partly adopted by E.

2. G Land, land, occurs in the G Rhenish city Landau (Au, water-meadow, OHG ouwa, akin to L aqua, water), where the four-wheeled, covered horse-carriage known as a landau was first made.

3. F lande had OF var launde, whence ME launde, later laund, whence E lawn (cf Br lann, Ga lann, as above), orig a glade.

landau. See prec, para 2.

lande. See LAND, para 1, s.f.

landscape. See the 2nd SCAPE and cf LAND (heading).

lane: ME-OE lane, varr lone, lanu: cf OFris lane, lone, MD lane, laen, D laan, a lane, and ON lön, a row of houses.

language (whence -language), langue d'oc (and langue d'oil), languette (usu anglicized as languet); lingua franca (see FRANK, para 9), lingual (whence bilingual, etc.), linguist, linguistic (adj, whence linguistics)—lingula, whence lingulate, linguloid; lingo.—tongue (n, hence v), whence -tongued, tongueless, tonguer, tonguing, tonguester; prob tang (a snake's or a knife's or a flavour's), whence the now dial 'to tang'; perh tongs.

1. The best starting-point is at L lingua, the tongue, whence OF-F langue, whence OF-F langage, ME langage, whence, influenced by F langue, the E language, for L lingua is either f/e—after L lingere, to lick—for OL dingua, or (E & M) a Sabine dial var thereof, with IE r dinghw-*: cf OPer hibbāna (Per zubān); Skt jūhvā, Av hizu-; OSl jezykū, Lith ležūwis, OP inzuwis; OIr tenga (Ir tenge, gen tengad), Ga teanga, Mx chengey, with Br and Cor cognates lacking the n; ON tungu (Sw tunga, Da tunge); Go tuggō (pron tungō), OHG zunga, MHG zunge, tongue, language, G Zunge, tongue, MD tong(e), tung(e), D tong, OS tunga, OFris tunge, OE tunge, ME tunge and tonge, jointly producing E tongue. The 'tongue-language' dualism is as widespread as it is natural.

2. OF-F langue has in MF-F the virtual cpds langue d'oc, langue d'oil: language of oc, Prov for 'yes'; language of oil, OF of the Loire basin and northwards for 'yes' (hence F oui). The MF-F dim languette, little tongue, has been adopted by E in its F sense 'anything shape-resembling a tongue'.

3. L lingua has ML adj lingualis, whence F and E lingual. On the learned F s lingu- arise F linguiste, whence E linguist, and the F adj linguistique, whence E linguistic; with E linguistics, cf F 'la linguistique'.

4. L lingua has dim lingula, adopted by An and Zoo.

5. L lingua becomes Prov lingo, form-adopted and sense-adapted by E.

6. With E tongue (para 1), prob cf E tang, a serpent's tongue (now only dial), a fang, a prong, the tang of a knife, hence, from stinging or pricking sensations, a sharp, lingering taste: ME tange: ON tangi, a pointed projection.

7. With E tongue, hence with E tang, perh cf E tongs: ME tonge, earlier tange: OE tange or tang, a 'biting' or gripping device: cf OFris tange, tonge, OHG zanga, MHG-G zange (cf OHG zangar, biting, sharp), ON tóng: prob cf also Gr daknō (s dakn-), I bite, Skt dasāti (? for dankhēti*), he bites, and Alb danē, tongue. (Walshe; Hofmann.)

languet. See prec, para 2.

languid, languish (whence languishing, languishment), languor (whence languorous); laches; lack (n, v), lackaday, lackadaisical—slack (adj, n, v), slacken, slackness, slacks—slake; lag (adj, n, v), laggard; laissez-faire; lax, laxation, laxative, laxity—relax, relaxant, relaxation, relaxatory and relaxative; lease (n, v), lessee, lessor—release (n, v); relish (n, v); relay (n, v)—cf delay (n, v); lea (a measure); leash (n, hence v); lush (adj).

1. Languid comes, perh via EF-F languide, from L languidus (s languid-, r langu-, an extn of lang-), adj formed from languēre, to be or feel faint or over-relaxed, s langu-, r lang-, whence also languor, a feeling of faintness, whence OF, hence ME whence E, languor. Languēre has a VL var languire*, whence OF-F languir, whence, esp from such forms as presp languissant and 'nous languissons', we languish, the ME languissen, languishen, E 'to languish'.

2. Akin to L languēre is L laxus, relaxed, slack, lazy, whence E lax. Laxus has derivatives laxāre, to loosen or slacken, pp laxātus (whence E 'to laxate'), whence both LL laxātiō, a slackening, o/s laxātiōn-, whence E laxation, and the LL laxātīvus, causing slackness, ML laxātīvus, esp in Med sense, whence MF-F laxatif, f laxative, whence E laxative, adj hence n; and L laxitās, whence F laxité and E laxity.

3. L laxāre, s lax-, has LL laxicāre, to become shaky, whence OF laschier, whence the adj lasche (F lâche), with derivative MF abstract n laschesse, whence E laches, laxness, negligence, hence, esp in Law, culpable negligence.

4. L laxāre has cpd relaxāre (re-, again), to let loose, to slacken, whence 'to relax', whence the paa relaxing and relaxed; the presp relaxans, o/s relaxant-, yields relaxant. On relaxāt-, the s of the pp relaxātus, arise relaxātiō, a slackening, o/s relaxātiōn-, whence, as in F, relaxation, and the adj relaxātōrius, loosening, whence relaxatory, with E anl var relaxative.

5. L relaxāre becomes OF relaissier, whence ME relesen, E 'to release'. Relaissier has derivative n relais, var reles, with legal sense (MF) influenced by LL 'freeing of a prisoner'; hence ME reles, E 'a release'. Releasement comes from 'to release'.

6. L laxāre, to loosen or slacken, acquires the LL sense 'to let or allow', whence OF laissier, to allow (also, to leave), var lessier (F laisser), whence E 'to lease', mostly in legal sense. OF laissier has derivative n lais, with var les, whence late ME lese, leas, whence E 'a lease', a legal permission to occupy or use.

7. OF lessier has var lessier, pp lessé, allowed, hence 'a person allowed' (the use or occupation of property); whence the E lessee, whence, anl, the agent lessor.

8. OF laissier, in its secondary sense 'to let go', has (cf para 5) the cpd relaissier, to let (someone) go back, to leave (someone, hence also something) behind, with derivative n relais, reles (as in para 5), what is left behind, hence the lingering taste of what one eats, ME reles, E relish, whence 'to relish'.

9. OF laissier has derivative OF-F n laisse, a leash, var lesse, whence, prob, ME leece, lees, lese, whence E leash; OF laisse perh, however, derives from ML laxa, a leash, from L laxus, loose, ? by ellipsis from corda laxa, a loose rope or cord; but, in either event, the n leash arises because it is a cord held loosely.

10. OF laissier has the OF derivative var laier, to let or allow, in itself of no consequence to E, Its two chief cpds are important:

OF deslaier (OF des-, L dis-, E prefix dis-), deslaier, to postpone, becomes ME delaïen, E 'to delay'; the derivative OF-MF n delai, F délaï, becomes 'a delay';

MF relaier (OF re-, L re-, back), applied to keeping fresh dogs in reserve, on a hunt, hence, in C16, to horses, becomes late ME-E 'to relay'; the derivative MF n relai, later relais, becomes 'a relay'.

11. The F laisser, to allow, has imperative laissez, which occurs in laissez faire, let (people) do (as they wish), hence the n laissez-faire, non-interference, adopted by E.

12. OF laissier, var lessier, lessier, has, as we've seen, derivative n lais, var les, whence E leas*, which, apprehended as pl, yields a b/f lea, a (varying) measure of yarn—usu 300 yards for linen, 120 for cotton: cf leash.

13. OF lasche, loose (as in para 3), becomes the ME, now only dial, lash, loose, hence (of persons) flabby and (of fruit or grass) soft and watery or wet, whence, prob, the adj lush, juicy, luxuriant.

14. Akin to L laxus, loose, is the E n lack, ME lac, prob from MD lac, a deficiency, a fault, but perh from the cognate ON lacr, deficient, inferior; the intimately related 'to lack', ME lacken, prob derives from MD laken, to be deficient in; certainly the MD n and the MD v are akin to the L adj, with which of the OIr-MIr lacc, Ir and Ga lag, feeble, W llag, loose (obs), sluggish. Prob of that implied C origin is the E adj lag, sluggish (obs), last, as in lag end, latter end. Hence, 'to lag', to linger, and the obsol lag, one who, or that which, is late or last; hence also laggard, adj hence n: lag, adj+euphonic g+pej suffix -ard.

15. Lack, in its earlier senses 'loss' and 'shame', has f/e influenced alas! to become alack!, esp in alack the (or a) day!, alas the day; alackaday! has, by aphaesis, become lackaday!, with f/e var lackadaisy!, whence the adj lackadaisical.

16. Lack and lag together bring us to the adj slack, whence the n and the v slack, with extn slacken, and the abstract n slackness and the loose, informal trousers known as slacks. Slack, loose (physically, mentally, morally), ME slak, is OE slaec, akin to OS slak, OHG schlack, slah, ON slakr, a group akin to ON lacr, deficient, MD lac, deficiency, MÎr lacc, feeble (as in para 14)—cf also Gr lagaros, slack, (of animal's flanks) hollow, s lagar-, r lag-.

17. OE slaec, slack, has derivative slaecian, slacian, to become slack, ME slaken, to become, but also to render, slack, hence to 'slacken' thirst, to slake it.

18. To the OE words in paras 16-17, add L laxus, slack, a non-nasal cognate of languēre (r lang-), to be faint, as in para 1: add also Gr lēgein, s and r lēg-, to cease, and the variously nasalized lagnos (s lagn-, r lag-), weakened by debauchery, langōn (λύγων) a sluggard, langazō (λαγρόζω), I lag or slacken. The IE r emerges as lag-, varr lēg- and lēg* (and app log-), with a prob int form slag-, varr slēg-* and slēg-* (also slog-*), to be loose or soft, hence flabby; both the lag- (etc.) and the slag- (etc.) forms have n-varr.

lanyard, occ laniard. See the 2nd NET, para 5.

lap (1), a garment's loose part, a fold, hence a particular part of the human body in sitting position, hence ME lappen, 'to lap' or fold; dewlap; lapel—cf the sep LABEL; lappet.

1. A lap derives from OE laeppa, akin to OFris lappa, OHG lappa, MHG lappe, G Lappen, a rag, MD lappe or, as in D, lap, a patch, a piece (of, e.g., cloth), ON leppr, piece (of cloth), a fold, and lapa, to hang loose, therefore to L labāre, to totter, intimately akin to L labī, to slide or glide, to slip: cf LABOR, para 1.—Note that many tech senses of lap, n, derive imm from the v.

2. ME lappe occurs in the cpd dewlappe, E dewlap (cf the Da doglaep), the 1st element being DEW, ref the moistness of this pendulous fold of skin under the neck of oxen.

3. Lap, n, has two dim derivatives: lapel (-el) and lappet (lap+euphonic p+et).

lap (2), v, to take up with the tongue and into the mouth, as a cat does, comes, through ME lappen or lapan, from OE lapan: cf OHG laffan, LG lappen, Ice lepja, Sw läppja, Da labe, also Gr laptein, to lap up, and, with nasal infix, L lambere, to lick, prob also, therefore, L labium, the lip; cf, further, Arm lap'el, to lick, and Alb l'ap, to lap (water). The IE r is prob lab-, with var lap-, to lick, to lap. (Hofmann.) Ult: echoic.

2. L lambere (s lamb-, ult r lab-*), to lick (orig of dogs, then of men), becomes applied to flames 'licking at', e.g., a building; hence, via the presp lambens, o/s lambent-, the E adj lambent, whence lambency.

3. L labium, a lip, is rare—and a b/f from labia, lips, intimately akin to L labra, lips (the sing labrum is rare and prob b/f), later applied mostly to vessels, as occ also labia. Both labium and labrum have been adopted by tech and sci E, with derivative adj labial (ML labiālis), labiose, and labral, labrose (L labrōsus). The L dim labellum has E derivative labelloid.

4. Akin, ult, to OE lapan, to lap, is OF laper, which, in EF, becomes nasalized to lamper, to guzzle, whence, app, the horses' disease lampas, adopted by E, which then adapts it as lampers.

5. EF-F lamper, to guzzle, has lampons, let us drink, whence lampon (C17), a drinking song, hence, such songs being often ribald and occ scurrilous, and usu abusive, a song satirically aimed at a person, whence the E lampoon, whence 'to lampoon'.

6. L labium has Gmc cognates, e.g. OE lippa, ME lippe, E lip (whence 'to lip'), OHG lefs (var leffur), LG lefze, MHG-G lippe, OFris lippa, MD leppe, then lippe, finally lip (as in D), Sw läpp, Da laebe.

lapel. See the 1st LAP, para 3.

lapidary, whence lapidarian; lapideon, lapideous; lapis lazuli; lapidate, lapidation—dilapidate, dilapidation.

1. E lapis lazuli, a precious stone of azure hue, is adopted from MF-F: lazuli represents Ar lāzaward, from Per lādjeward, lapis lazuli, the lapis being added tautologically.

2. L lapis, a stone, is o.o.o., although possibly akin to Gr lepas, a bare rock. From the o/s lapid- derives the LL adj lapidārius, full of stones (L lapidōsus), working with stones, hence ML lapidārius (L lapicīda), a worker in stone: hence resp the E adj and the E n. The derivative lapidāre, to throw stones at, has pp lapidātus, whence 'to lapidate'; derivative lapidātiō, o/s lapidātiōn-, yields lapidation.

3. Lapidāre has cpd dilapidāre (di- for dis-, apart), to scatter, as one scatters stones, hence to squander. The pp dilapidātus yields 'to dilapidate'; derivative LL dilapidātiō, o/s dilapidātiōn-, accounts for dilapidation; the LL agent dilapidātor is adopted by E.

lappet. See the 1st LAP, para 3.

lapse. See LABOR, para 1.

lapping. See LEAP, para 3; cf WENCH, para 4.

larboard. See LADE, para 3.

larceny (whence larcenous): a -y derivative from F larcin: contr of OF larrecin: L latrōcinium, robbery, theft; a -cinium derivative of latrō, a robber, but orig a (Greek) mercenary soldier, hence a brigand: akin to Gr latron, pay, e.g. a soldier's: s latr, r lat-, IE r la-* or le-*.

larch: G Lärche (MHG lerche): L laricem, acc of larix (o/s laric-), o.o.o.—prob either C or Alpine.

lard, v, derives from (OF-)F larder, itself from F lard, a pig's back-fat, OF-MF lard, bacon, whence the E n; L lārdum, contr of lāridum: akin to Gr lārinōs, fattened, fat: IE r, ? lar-*. Perh akin to LARGE.

Lares. See LARVA.

large (adj, hence adv, n, v), whence largeness—cf largesse; Mus largo;—enlarge, whence enlarge-ment.

1. It largo and OF-F large both derive from L largus, abundant, hence generous, hence, in LL-ML, large: perh akin to Skt dirghas, long. OF-F large, adopted by E, with sense '(by comparison) big' gradually predominating, has the OF-F derivative largesse, largeness (obs), generosity, adopted by E; AE usu spells it largess.

2. OF-F large has the MF cpd enlargier (en-, L in, in, into, used int), whence—unless from MF-F enlargir—'to enlarge'.

lariat: Sp la (the reata (rope or cord): reata, from reatar, to tie together: re-, again, back + atar, to tie (L aptāre): cf APT.

lark (1), the bird, whence, folklorishly, the plant larkspur, shaped like a lark's spur: ME larke, partly a contr of ME laverock: OE lāwerce, var lāferce: cf OHG lērahha, MHG lēwreche, lēreche, G Lerche, LG lwerke, MD lawerke, leewerke, leewerike, leuweric, D leuwerik, ON lāērvirk (cf Da lerne, Sw lārka): 'a cpd of obscure origin' (Walshe)—?, rather, echoic.

lark (2), to play about (hence n). See the 3rd LAKE.

larkspur. See the 1st LARK.

larky. See lark at the 3rd LAKE.

larrikin, a lawless and noisy, usu young or youngish, street loafer: Midlands dial larrikin, a mischievous youth, akin to rare dial larrick, lively, and Yorkshire dial larack, to be actively mischievous, to 'lark' about. (EDD.) App all these words are dial varr of 'to lark', q.v. at the 3rd LAKE.

larrup (coll) either derives from D larpen, to thrash (Webster), or blends lather and wallop (EW).

larva, larval, larvate; Lares.

Larval comes from ML larvālis, L laruālis, ghostly, the adj of ML larva, L larua, a ghost (of the dead, pursuing the living), hence a mask: s laru, r lar-, as in L Lares, tutelary gods of the fields and then of the house, esp of the hearth, as in Lares et Penatēs, household gods, partly adopted by E, with additional sense 'household goods': Lares (sing Lar) and larua seem to be either of Etruscan origin or of Sabine origin with an Etruscan suffix.—L larua has derivative laruātus, ML larvātus, masked, whence E larvate; and ML larva prompts the SciE dim larvule. The Ent and Zoo senses of larva derive, picturesquely yet naturally, from the L.

laryngeal, larynx.

The former derives from the o/s larung- of Gr larunx (λαρυγγίς), the larynx; cf LL laryngotomia (Gr larungotomia), laryngotomy. Gr larunx perh represents a nasal 'answer' to L lurcāre, to eat greedily. (Hofmann.)

lascar: Hind laskhar, prop an army, apprehended as laskhari, of the army, hence a soldier, whence loosely a sailor: Per laskhar: Ar al-'askar, the (al) army. Ar 'askar, army, has adj, hence n, 'askari, a soldier, whence Askaris, native soldiers that, in E Africa, serve a European power.

lascivious; list, (archaically) to be inclined or pleased (to do), hence (of a ship) to incline to one side; lust (n, hence v), whence lustful (cf OE lustfull, eager, desirous) and lustless and also lusty.

1. Lascivious, wanton, lustful, derives from ML lasciviōsus, LL lasciuīōsus, from L lasciuia, wantonness, lust, from lasciuus, wanton, orig merely 'playful' and applied esp to children and animals: akin to Skt lasati, he plays, and lālasas, desirous—to Gr lastē, a wanton woman, and lathē, mockery; also to Ru lasyj, desirous, and OSI laska, flattery, laskrūdī, desire; Go lustus and OFris, OS, OHG-MHG-G, OE lust, MD list, lost(e), lust(e), D lust, ON loste, losti, pleasure, desire. The IE r is lās-* or lās-*, to be eager or desirous.

2. The r of OE lust, pleasure, has derivative lystan, to be pleasing, whence ME lusten, whence, for form, 'to lust', which, however, takes its modern sense from lust, n, in its modern sense. OE lystan also becomes ME listen, whence the now, except naut, archaic 'to list'.

lash (1), adj. See LANGUID, para 13.

lash (2), stroke of a whip, the flexible part of a whip, whence perh eyelash, derives from ME lasche, from ME laschen, to move violently, to rush, to strike, prob imitative but perh from the next; laschen becomes 'to lash'.

lash (3), to bind. See DELICACY, para 3.

lass. See LAD.

lassitude. See LATE, para 4.

lasso. See DELICACY, para 5.

last (1), adj (whence adv). See LATE, para 3.

last (2), n, a load. See LADE, para 4.

last (3), of boot or shoe: OE lāst, var of lāēst, a footstep, a trace or a track, (late) a last: cf ON leistr, the foot below the ankle, esp the underfoot, Go laists, a track, OHG-MHG leist, G Leisten, a last, MD leist, (also D) leest. Cf:

last (4), to remain existent, to endure: ME lasten: OE lāēstan, to perform or achieve, to continue (one's, its) existence, orig to follow in the tracks or footsteps of: OE lāēst, footstep, track, course (see prec): cf OFris lasta, lesta, OS lēstian, OHG leistēn, MHG-G leisten, to perform. Hence the pa lasting.

latch, fastener; latch, to fasten; latchet. See DELICACY, para 4.

late; later, latter; latest, last.—lassitude; alas!

1. Late, adv and adj, derives from OE laet, slow, sluggish, hence tardy, hence late, ME lat, E late: cf OFris let, OS lat, MD late, laet, D laat, late; OHG-MHG laz, tardy, G lass, idle, weary, Go lats, slow, weary, ON latr, slow, tardy; cf the cognates of LET, to hinder, to allow; cf also L lassus (for lactus*)—see para 4.

2. The comp of late, adj and adv, is later, which, in its modern pron, dates only from C16; latter, sense-differentiated in E, answers to ME laetter, from OE laetra, the comp of laet. Cf the OFris letera, letora, and MD later.

3. The sup of late is latest (late ME onwards), with modern pron hardly antedating C16; last, sense-differentiated in E, is ME last, a metathesis of ME latst, deriving from OE, where it is a contr of latest, var of latost, the sup of laet, adj, and late, adv. Cf the OFris lest, OS lezto, MD latest, laest, lest.

4. L lassus, falling forward, bowed, esp with weariness or illness, hence weary or faint, has derivative lassitudō, whence MF lassitude, adopted by E. Lassus becomes OF-F las, whence the OF a las (alas), ah, weary or, esp, unfortunate (and unhappy), so that I am!; ME allas, alas: E alas—cf the F derivative hélas (via hé las).

lateen. See LATIN, para 2.

latent, whence latency (for latentcy*); lethargic, lethargy; lethe.

1. Latent derives from L latent-, o/s of latens, presp of latēre, to lie hidden, s and r lat-: akin to Gr lathros, hidden, and lēthē, forgetfulness, and the nasalized lanthanesthai, to forget, and lanthanein, to escape notice, both with s lanthan-, r lanth-; akin also to OSi lajati, to lie in wait for.

2. Gr lēthē, forgetfulness, whence L Lēthē, the River of Forgetfulness, whence E Lethe, forgetfulness (personified), is intimately akin to Gr lanthanesthai, to forget, itself the middle voice of lanthanein, to lie hidden, to escape notice (aorist elathon, perfect lelētha): IE r, perh ladh-, alternating with lēdh-, to be hidden.

3. The Gr adj lēthargos, forgetful, is very closely akin to the adj laithargos, secretly biting, the two words deriving from an IE r laidh-, var leidh-, mdfns of lād-, lēdh-. Lēthargos has derivative lēthargia, ML lēthargia, E lethargy, with rather doubtful MF-ME intervention; derivative Gr lēthargikos becomes LL lēthargicus, MF lethargique (F lēthargique), E lethargic.

later. See LATE, para 2.

lateral; cf the element lateri- (latero-); latitude, whence latitudinal and latitudinarian (adj, hence n).—Cpds: collateral (adj, hence n), equilateral; dilate—dilatant, dilatate, dilatation, dilatative.—Perh cf LATIN.

1. Lateral derives from L laterālis, the adj of latus (o/s later-), flank (of body), side: prob akin to lātus, wide, broad; indeed, prob—like later (o/s later-), a brick—deriving from it.

2. Laterālis occurs in such cpds as ML collateralis (col- for con-, with, hence accompanying), whence E collateral, and LL aequilateralis (aequi-, c/f of aequus, equal), equal-sided, E equilateral.

3. L lātus, broad, wide, is o.o.o.; despite authoritative opinion, lātus could be ult akin to Gr platus (cf PLACE). Its derivative lātitudō becomes (MF-F and) E latitude, which has, on the L o/s lātitudin- and anl, perh, with marginal, formed the adj latitudinal and also, with suffix -arian, latitudinarian.

4. Lātus, wide, has cpd dīlatāre, to widen by separation (connoted by dī- for dis-, apart), whence, app via MF, 'to dilate'. The presp dīlatāns, o/s dīlatānt-, yields the E adj, hence n, dilatant; pp dīlatātus yields the adj dilatate; derivative LL dīlatātiō, o/s dīlatātiōn-, yields, prob via MF-F, dilatation, whence, anl, dilatative.

latest. See LATE, para 2.

latex: L latex, a fluid; perh, via Sicilian Gr, from Gr latax, wine-lees: if so, cf EIr lathach, fluid mud (OC lātāka*), and OHG letto, G Letten, moist loam.

lath: ME laththe, latthe: OE laett: cf OHG latta, MHG-G latte, and D lat; cf also W llath, OIr slath, Ga slat, a rod or staff, OC slattā*.

2. OHG latta becomes OF latte, whence the late MF derivative in -is (cf OF-F treille—treillis)—lattis, lath-work, ME latis, E lattice lathe, a machine tool. See LADE, para 5.

lather, whence 'to lather' (cf, however, OE lēthrian, to lather): OE lēathor, washing-soda: cf ON lauthr and LAVE.

lathy: lath+adj -y.

Latin (adj, hence n: cf Greek, adj hence n), Latinism (or l-), Latinist, Latinize (or l-); Ladin; lateen;—Latium, whence the adj Latian.

1. Latium, the It region in which Rome lies and of which the Campagna di Roma forms the greater part (? therefore from lātius, wide, broad, s and r lāt-), has s Lati- and r Lat-; its adj, formed with -Inus, is lātīnus, s lātīn-, whence OF-F latin and E Latin. Derivative latīnitās becomes MF-F latinité, E Latinity; derivative LL latīnizāre becomes EF-F latiniser, E latinize; Latinism and Latinist are anl formations, perh aided by EF-F latinisme, late MF-F latiniste, and It latinismo, -ista.

2. The F 'voile latine', a 'Latin' sail, characteristic of the Mediterranean, yields E lateen: cf the It vela latina.

3. L latinus (adj) becomes It latino, Alpine It ladino, whence E Ladin, any Rhaeto-Romanic dialect.

laud (n, v), laudable, laudation, laudative and laudatory; lied, n; lyra (whence lyrate), lyre (whence, from the spread of the male's tail-feathers, lyre bird), lyric (adj, hence n), whence the extn lyrical and the nn lyrician, lyrist.—Cf ALLOW, which L allaudāre has influenced.

1. The n laud derives from OF laude, from L laudem, acc of laus, praise, esp if spoken, o/s laud-: o.o.o.: but prob akin to Ir lauaidim, I mention, esp in praise, OIr luad, news, speech, Ga luadh, a mentioning; perh cf also OE lēoth, ON liöth, OS lioth, Go liuth, OHG leod, liod, G Lied, a song, and Go liuthan, to sing praises.

2. L laus, o/s laud-, has derivative v laudāre (s laud-), to praise, whence 'to laud'. Derivative L laudābilis yields laudable; on laudāt-, s of the pp laudātus, arise laudātiō, o/s laudātiōn-, whence laudation—laudātiuus, ML -ivus, whence laudative—LL laudātōrius, whence laudatory.

3. Behind laus, there is r lau-; behind the Gmc words, the r lēu-, liu- (leo, lio-): perh cf lu-, the ult r behind Gr lura (s and r lur-), a lyre: L lyra, retained by Mus and An: OF, hence ME, lire: reshaped E (and F) lyre. Gr lura has derivatives lurikos, L lyricus, whence F lyrique and E lyric; lurismos, F lyrisme, E lyrism; luristēs, F lyriste and E lyrist.

laudanum, whence laudanin(e) (laudanum+Chem -in, -ine), is a SciL word, prob from ML laudanum, var of L lādanum, lēdanum, a resinous juice from the Cyprian shrub lada, leda, ledon: Gr lēdanon, from the shrub lēdon, itself o.o.o.: perh Medit. Paracelsus was app the first (early in C16) to apply laudanum to an opiate preparation; Thomas Sydenham (C17) to use it in liquid form.

laugh (v, hence n), whence laughable and the pa and vn laughing; laughter; clang (v, hence n), clangor or clangour, clangorous; klaxon.

1. 'To laugh', ME laughen, earlier laghen, lauhen, derives from OE hlaeħhan, varr hleħhan, hlieħhan and hlyħhan: cf OFris hlakka, OHG hlahhan, lahhan, MHG-G lachen, Go lahjan, MD-D lachen (MD var lachgen), ON hlaeja; also, much further off, L clangere. Laughter derives from OE hleahtr, itself from the OE v: cf OHG hlahtar, lahtr, MHG gelehter (ge-, orig an int), G Gelächter, MD-D gelach, ON hlatr. The Gmc r is hlah-; the IE r, klak-: cf OIr cluiche, a joke, and, nasalized, L clangere, clangor.

2. L clangor (s clang-), adopted by E, derives from clangere, (of large birds) to cry, (of the human voice, of musical instruments) to sound or resound, and has derivative ML adj clangorōsus, whence E clangorous. L clangere has s and r clang-, nasalization of clag-, var of IE klak-: ult echoic. Clangere yields 'to clang', prob akin to Gr klangē (κλάγγη), a clang or a loud twang.

3. Akin to those Gr and L words is Gr klazō (for klangiō*), I make a loud or piercing sound, presp klazōn and future klanxō (κλάγγω): hence, rather confusedly, Klaxon, a trade-name, hence klaxon, any similar noise-making device.

launch (1), a warship's boat: either (OED and Webster) Sp and Port lancha, a pinnace, app from Mal lanca, a three-masted boat; or (EW) Sp lancha, pinnace, from Port lanchara, from Mal lancharan, a swift warship, from Mal lanchar, swift; or (several reputable Sp philologists) Sp lancha, launch, pinnace, by alteration of LL planca, a slab, a plank, from planca, the f of the LL adj plancus, flat-footed, app a nasal cognate of Gr plax (gen plakos), anything flat: ? ult akin to plain, plane.

launch (2), v. See LANCE, para 4.

launder (n, hence v), laundress, laundry. See LAVA, para 4.

laureate. See para 2 of:

laurel (n, hence v, whence the pa laurellēd); Laura (whence Min laurite: suffix -ite), laurus whence the adj lauric and Chem n laurin—cf LL laurinum, bay-tree oil); laureate (ad, hence n), whence, anl, laureation; laurustine; Laurence, with anglicizing var Lawrence and the adj Laurentian.

1. Laurel derives from ME *lore*l, a var, with change of suffix, of lorer, var laurer, from OF-MF lorier, OF-F laurier, from OF lor, itself from L laurus (s and r, laur-), a laurel tree or shrub, hence, laurel leaves being sacred to Apollo and used for crowning triumphant generals, a triumphal crown: o.o.o.: but prob, like Gr daphnē, of Medit stock. Hence the It given-name Lauro, f Laura.

2. L laurus has adj laureus, whence laurea (sc corona), a crown of laurels, whence laureātus, crowned with laurels, whence the E adj laureate. Laurus, laurel tree+tinus, the laurustine, suggests to the scientists Laurustinus, whence laurustine, a laurel-like shrub with evergreen leaves.

lava, whence lavatic and lavic; lave, lavabo, lavage, lavation, lavatory, lavement, laver (seaweed; washing bowl); lavish (n, hence adj and v); latrine; launder (n, hence v), launderer (from the v), laundress (launder, n+f suffix -ess), laundry; sep lather; loment, whence lomentaceous; lotion, lotic; lye.—Cpds: abluent, ablution; alluvial, alluvion, alluvium; colluvial, colluvies; diluent (adj, hence n), dilute (adj and v), dilution—cf diluvial, diluvian (whence diluvianism), diluvium—cf, therefore, deluge (n, hence v); elute, elution, elutriate—cf eluvium.—Cf the sep LAVENDER.

1. Lava is an It word, orig Neapolitan for such torrential rain as overflows the streets, from It lavare, from L lavāre (ML lavāre), to wash oneself, to wash, s lav-, ML lav-, as in OF-F laver, whence—assisted by OE lafian (perh from ML lavāre)—the ME laven, whence 'to lave'. L lavāre is akin to the syn L luere, s and r lu-, itself akin to Gr louein, to wash, s lou-, r lou-, app a mdfn or extn of lo-; cf also Arm loganam, I wash myself—OIr lōathar, pelvis, Br louein, to urinate—OHG louga, MHG louge, G Lauge, OE lēah, lye, ON laug, a warm bath. The IE r is prob lo-, with var lu- and with extn low- or lau-.

2. L lavāre (s lav-), to wash, has the foll simple derivatives relevant to E:

lavābō, ML lavābō, I shall wash, occurs in the Psalm, Vulgate xxv, AV xxvi; verses 6–12, beginning 'Lavabo inter innocentes', are recited, at the Mass, by the priest while he washes his hands, hence lavabo, the liturgical act, hence the towel, hence the basin, hence a wash-basin and its fittings (Webster); lavātiō (from pp lavātus), a washing, ML lavātiō, o/s lavātiōn-, whence lavation;

LL lavātōrium, ML lavātōrium, a wash-basin, whence, in E, a wash-place, whence the combination of that with urinal and water-closet(s); hence also OF-MF laveoir (EF-F lavoire), ME lavour, E laver, a water-bowl or a wash-basin, (Jewish) a large vessel for water, baptismal water; cf lauer, ML laver, a water plant, hence, in Bot, several kinds of seaweed, hence a dish made of their pickled fronds.

3. Simple derivatives passing through F include: lavage, adopted from MF-F, from OF-F laver, from ML lavāre; lavement, adopted from OF-F, deriving from OF-F laver but perh suggested by LL lavamentum, ML lavamentum; lavish, adj, from the obs n lavish, from EF-F lavasse, late MF-EF lavache, a very heavy fall of rain, from Prov lavaci, from ML lavātīō (as in para 2).

4. Also through F comes launder, a washer-woman (obs), later a conduit, a trough, with derivative v 'to launder': ME lander, short for lavender: OF lavandiere, a laundress, from ML lavandāria, LL lauandāria, itself from lauandus, due or fit to be washed, from lauāre. Cf laundry, ME lavendrie (influenced by ME lavender), MF lavanderie, prob formed anl from OF lavandiere.

5. L lauāre, vi and vt, has a parallel, rather than a var, lauere, vt, with pp lautus, with var lōtus; on the pp lōtus is formed LL lōtus (gen lōtūs), a washing, with s lōt-, whence—prompted by E lotion—the E adj lotic. On the same L s lōt- arises LL lōtiō, a washing, o/s lōtiōn-, whence, perh via MF-F lotion, the E lotion.

6. The L pp s lōt- app rests upon the IE r lo-: cf the L lōmentum, something that serves for washing, a soap, a cosmetic wash, ? hence a bean meal (used as such a wash): hence the Bot loment, whence—anl with saponaceous—the adj lomentaceous.

7. L lauāre has, through pp lauātus, the further relevant derivative lauātrīna, usu shortened to lātrīna, orig a wash-basin, hence a water-closet, whence, lātrīna being apprehended as pl, the MF latrines, whence the rare F sing latrine; hence the E latrines (the earlier form) and latrine.

8. As we saw, late in para 1, L lauāre is akin to OHG louga, G Lauge, lye, itself akin to the syn OE lēah, whence E lye: cf also D loog, lye.

9. L lauere has c/f -luere, whence—so numerous are the prefix-cpds—luere, to wash. The chief cpds relevant to E are these:

abluerē, to remove (connoted by ab) by washing, hence to cleanse, to purify, with presp abluens, o/s abluent-, whence abluent, adj hence n, and with pp ablūtus, whence LL ablūtīō, o/s ablūtīōn-, whence, perh via MF-F, the E ablution; alluere, to wash against (ad, towards), to bathe, whence both alluīō, ML alluīō, o/s alluīōn-, whence, prob via EF-F, the E alluvion, and the adj alluivus, with neu alluivum, which, used as n (ML alluivium), is adopted by E, whence the adj alluvial; colluere (col- for con-, with, connoting extension), to sprinkle all over, to wash, whence colluīēs, ML colluīēs, a 'gathering' of washing-water, off-scourings, dregs, adopted by E, whence the anl adj colluvial; diluere, to wash away (di- for dis-, apart), hence to dilute, with presp diluens, o/s diluent-, whence the E adj, hence n, diluent, and with pp dilūtus, whence the E adj and v dilute, the derivative dilūtīō, o/s dilūtīōn-, yielding dilution;

diluere has the further derivative diluvium, ML diluvium, inundation, a deluge, adopted by E; the derivative LL adj diluvialis, ML diluvialis, yields diluvial, with var diluvian, whence diluvianism;

ML diluvium becomes OF-MF deluge (F dé-), whence E deluge, whence 'to deluge'; eluerē, to remove (ē-, out of, from) by washing, hence to wash, to purify, with pp elūtus, whence 'to elute'; derivative LL elūtīō, o/s elūtīōn-, yields elution; the inf s elu- has derivative eluuīēs, ML eluuīēs, an out- or over-flowing, whence, anl with alluvium, the SciE eluvium; eluerē has cognate elutriāre, to rinse out, to decant, pp elutriātus, whence 'to elutriate'.

lavabo; lavation; lavatory. See prec, para 2.

lave. See LAVA, para 1.

lavender is explained either (OED, EW, Webster) as from AF lavendre, from ML lavendula, var of livendula, a dim of ML lividus, L liuidus (cf LIVID), or as from AF lavendre, alteration of MF-F lavande, adopted from It, from (after B & W and Dauzat) ML lavanda, f of lavandus, serving to wash, hence cleanse, from lavāre, L lauāre, to wash (cf LAVA, para 1): because it perfumes a cosmetic wash. AF lavendre was prob influenced by ML lavandāria, var lavanderia, in the shortened form lavandria, the ML word meaning lit 'things applied to washing', neu pl of lavandārius, suitable for washing (hence, cleansing)'.

The adj leaden, OE lēaden, derives from OE lēad, whence, through ME leed and led, the E n lead: and OE lēad is akin to MD loot, lood, D lood, MHG lōt, lead (G Lot, a plummet): prob of lead (2), to guide (whence—cf OFris lēde—‘a lead’), pt and pp led, hence leader; leitmotiv.

‘To lead’ derives from ME leden, from OE lædan, itself akin to OFris lēda, OS lēdian, OHG leiten, MHG-G leiten (whence G Leitmotiv, lit ‘leading motive’, in Mus a strongly marked melodic phrase, adopted by E), Go laidjan, ON leiþa: prop a causative—‘to make go’—from the etymon (? liþan*) of that Gmc word for ‘to go’ which we see in OE liþan, ON liþa, Go -leiþan, to go, OHG galidan, to travel: cf (the IE r-l alternation in) Av raēth-, to depart, hence to die. (Walshe.) Cf the sep LOAD.

leaden. See the 1st LEAD.

leader, whence leadership. See the 2nd LEAD.

leaf, n (hence v and -leaved), pl leaves; whence leafage (prob after foliage), leaflet (dim -let) and leafy (adj -y);—libel (n, hence v), whence libellant, libelee, and libellous; librarian, library.

1. Leaf, ME leef or lef, derives from OE lēaf, akin to OFris lāf, OS lōf, Go laufs, OHG loub, MHG loup, G Laub, MD-D loof, ON lauf, and Lith lapas, all ‘leaf’, some also ‘foliage’: cf also L liber, bast, Lith lupti, to peel, OSl lubŭ, bark, and nasalized Skt lumpati, he breaks: basic idea, ‘to peel, to strip’ (Webster). The IE r is app lubh-, with varr lābh-, lēbh-, libh-, lobh-*.

2. L liber (s and r lib-), OL leber, representing a notable vocalic change, means primarily ‘bast’ (fibre between the wood and the outer bark of esp a tree), hence, because—before papyrus was introduced—‘that on which one writes, paper’, hence finally ‘book’. On the o/s libr- arises the adj librārius, of or for or in a book, hence librāria, a bookshop, and librārium, a library. The derivative L librārius, used with L scriba, a scribe, means a copyist or a secretary, whence MF libraire (OF livraire), copyist, author, whence MF librairie, a library, whence late ME librairie, E library, whence librarian, perh suggested by the L and F words. (The modern F senses ‘bookseller’ and ‘bookshop’ arose in C16.)

3. L liber has dim libellus, little book, pamphlet, journal, memorandum, letter, etc., whence OF libel, libelle, a legal document, whence MF libelle diffamatoire (cf ML libellus diffamatorius), whence, ult, the E libel, whence—perh aided by late MF-F libeller—‘to libel’.

league (1), a covenant. See LIGAMENT, para 4.

league (2), a distance usu of 3 miles: OF legue (whence F lieue): LL leuga or leuca: Gaulish, says St Jerome c400 A.D.: perh (Malvezin¹) for OC leuva*, from OC leu-*, to divide: ‘division (of a road or a journey)’.

leaguer, a camp. See the 2nd LIE, para 4.

leak, n (whence—cf ON lekr—leaky) and v (whence leakage); leach, v hence n (whence leachy).

1. ‘A leak’ derives either from ‘to leak’ or from ON leki; ‘to leak’, from ON leka, akin to MD leken: cf also OE leccan, to moisten, OIr legaim (r leg-), to moisten, W llaith, moist, OC lego*, I flow, ? from OC li-*, liquid, wet, moist (Malvezin), and therefore akin to L limus, mud, slime, perh ult to LICK.

2. OE leccan (s lecc-, r lec-), to moisten, aided by ON leka, to leak, yields ‘to leach’, now mostly in tech senses.

leal, lealty. See LEGAL, para 3.

leam. See the 3rd LIGHT, para 3.

lean (1), adj, whence leanness and the whaling v ‘to lean’: ME lene: OE hlæne, perh akin to Lett kleins, feeble, but perh to G klein (cf CLEAN).

lean (2), v, to incline, whence pa and vn leaning; ladder, n hence v.—Cf the sep CLIME.

1. ‘To lean’, ME lenen, derives from OE hlinian, var hleonian, akin to OHG hlinēn, MHG linen, lenen, G lehnen, OS hlinōn, MD lenen, D leunen, and, further off, L clināre, Gr klinein.

2. That which leans against a wall and is used for climbing is a ladder, ME laddre, OE hlaedder or hlaeder, from the Gmc r of ‘to lean’: cf OFris hladder, hlaeder, hlēdere, OHG hleitarā, leitara, MHG-G leiter.

leap, n, derives from—cf OFris hlēp—‘to leap’: ME lepen or leapan: OE hlēapan, to jump, to run, akin to OFris hlāpa, to go, to run (cf hlāpia, to jump), OS ahlōpan, OHG hlauffan, loufan, MHG loufen, G laufen, MD lopen, D loopen, to run, Go hlaupan, to run, Go ushlaupan, to jump, ON hlaupa, to run, to jump, perh cf Lith klubti, to stumble.

2. ON hlaupa leads through ME loupēn, lopen, to E ‘to lope’, to leap (obs), to canter, to run as if cantering; and ON hlaup, a leap, to the E n lope; with the derivative agent loper, cf MD loper.

3. Lope occurs in such E prefix-cpds as elope, gallop (treated sep), interlope, orlop, and, cognately, in lapwing, ME lap wynke or leepwynke, OE hlēapwince, lit ‘a wavering leap’ (OE wincian, to wink, and hlēapan, to leap).

4. ‘To elope’ comes, through AF eloper (a, F à, L ad, to), prob from ME lopen, loupēn, to run, to leap, or perh from some other Gmc syn (cf paras 1 and 2). Hence elopement.

5. ‘To interlope’ is a b/f from interloper, itself prob from D enterlooper: enter, from F entre (L inter), between+looper, runner.

6. Orlop, a ship’s lowest deck, comes from D overloop, (lit) a running over, hence a covering, from overloopen, to loopen or run over, over.

learn, pret and pp learned (whence the pa) and learnt, learner (OE leornere), learning (OE leornung); lore; sep last (of boot; v, to endure); deliration, delirious, delirium (e.g. tremens).

1. ‘To learn’ derives, through ME lernen, var leornen, from OE leornian, akin to OFris lernia, OHG lernēn, lirnēn, MHG-G lernen, OS linōn, MD lernen, lerenen: perh inch from the r of the caus Gmc v represented by OE læran, to teach, and the syn OFris lēra, OS lērian, OHG lērēn, lērran, MHG lēren, G lehren, MD leeren, D leren, Go laisjan: to teach is to cause to understand, (lit) to lead someone on his way. Cf also OE læst, a track, hence a last (cf the 3rd and 4th LAST), OHG wagan-leisa, a track (rut) caused by a wagon, OHG-MHG leist (G Leisten), a shoemaker's last, Go laists and MHG leis, a track, and prob Go lais, I know; cf, further off, the L lira, a furrow; OP and OS afford cognates. Clearly, therefore, the IE r is lī-* (varr lai-, lei-), with extn līr-, līs- (Go lais-, OHG leis-), varr lēr- (lāēr-), lor-.

2. Very closely akin to OE lāeran, to teach, is OE lār, a teaching, instruction, hence the knowledge taught: ME lare—var lore, adopted by E. Cf OFris lāre, OS and OHG lāra (G Lehre), MD lere, leere, (as D) leer.

3. L lira, a furrow, is retained by Zoo for a hair-like ridge. The derivative lirāre, to furrow, has the cpd dēlirāre (s dēlir-), to leave—connoted by de-, down from—the furrow, hence to get off the right track, to lose one's way, hence to go out of one's mind. Derivative dēlirātīō (from dēlirāt-, s of the pp dēlirātus), o/s dēlirātīōn-, becomes E deliriation; derivative dēlirium (suffix -ium) is adopted by E, as is the Med delirium tremens, trembling delirium; delirious=delirium+adj -ous.

leary. See LEERY.

leaze. See LAQUID, para 6.

leash. See LAQUID, para 9.

least (adj, hence adv and n); less, adj (hence n) and adv—lessen and lesser, both from the adj; lest.

1. The key-word is less. The adv less, OE lāēs—cf OFris and OS līs—prob derives from the adj less, ME lesse, OE lāēssa, akin to OFris lessa, var lessera (perh influencing E lesser): the comp of a lost Gmc positive, with an IE base implied by Lith liesas, thin (? earlier 'slight', ? earliest 'little'). Cf loose at LOSE.

2. The answering sup is least, ME lest, last, OE lāest, contr of laeast or laesest, akin to OFris lēst, contr of lērest.

3. The conj lest comes, through ME leste (for les te), from OE 'thī lāēs the', the less that: thī, instr of sē, the; lāēs, (adj)less; the, which, that—a relative particle.

leather (n, hence adj and v), whence leathery—cf leathern (OE letheren, from lether).

Leather is ME, from OE, lether, akin to OFris and OS lether, OHG ledar, MHG-G leder, MD ledder, ladder, D leder (leer), ON lethr; cf also EIr (and Ga) lethar, leathar, W lledr, OC lētō-* (MacLennan).

leave (1), permission ('by your leave!'), now esp permission to be absent; furlough; lief (var lieve; comp liefer, liever, sup liefest, lievest), adj hence adv—cf belief, believe (whence believer); leman; livelong; love, lovable, lovely, lover; libido.

1. Leave, ME leve, OE lēaf, is akin to MHG loube, ON lyfi, permission, OHG-MHG urloup, urlop, ON orlof, permission (esp to depart), G Urlaub, leave of absence, OHG ir-loubēn, MHG erlouben, G erlauben, Go us-laubjan, to permit or allow.

2. MHG erlouben has the var verlouben (whence prob the G Verlaub, permission), which has perh prompted the MLG vorlof and which is certainly akin to MD-D verlof, leave of absence, whence EE furlough, E furlough.

3. OE lēaf, permission (as in para 1), is akin to OE gelēafa, a believing, which, under the influence of OE belifan, belēfan (whence ME bileven, E 'to believe'), results in ME bileafe (var belive), whence E belief. With OE gelēafa, cf OHG giloubo, MHG geloube, G Glaube; with OE belifan, belēfan, cf OE gelifan, G galaubjan, OS gilōbian, MHG gelouben, G glauben.

4. OE lēaf, permission, is also akin to OE lēof, dear, pleasing, which, joined to OE mann, man, produces ME leofnon, later lesman, latest lemnan, whence EE-archaic E leman, orig a lover, then a paramour.

5. OE lēof, dear, pleasing, becomes ME leof, later lef and lese or leef, whence E lief, archaic as adj and obsol as adv ('He would as lief die as live').

6. ME lese (etc), dear, occurs in lese long, lit 'dear long', i.e. 'very long', lese being a mere int: hence E 'the livelong day, or night'—cf G die liebe lange Nacht (EW)—where livelong has gained the nuance 'tediously long', often debased to 'entire'. Livelong has perh suggested lifelong, as long as life, itself increasingly debased.

7. To revert to OE lēof, dear, pleasing, we find a cognate group of words rather more important than lief and livelong. 'To love' goes back to OE lufian; the n love, ME luve, to OE lufu. Lufu has adj luffic, loving, hence fit for or worthy of love, hence beautiful, lovely, etc. Lover comes straight from 'to love', as also does lovable.

8. Akin to OE lēof, dear, and OE lufu, love, are OFris liuf, OS liof, OHG liob, liub, MHG liep, G lieb, Go liufs, ON liúfr, OS ljubū, with IE etymon leubhos*, Gmc liubhaz* (Walshe); and, for 'love', OHG liubt, MHG liebe, joy, G Liebe, love—OS ljuby (n) and ljubiti (v)—L lubet (s and r lub-), it pleases, with var libet (cf libidō), desire, esp if sexual)—Skt lūbhya (r lubb-), he desires. The IE r is app leabh-, with varr leubh-, loubh-*.

9. The r lib- of L libet, a thinned form of lubet, it pleases, recurs in L libidō (o/s libidin-), lust, adopted by Psy; derivative L libidinōsus becomes, perh via MF-F libidineux, f libidineuse, the E libidinous.

lee (1), now always LEES, dregs. See the 2nd LIE, para 11.

lee (2), shelter ('in the lee of'—hence adj), ME lee, shelter, derives from OE hlēo (for hlēow), shelter or protection, akin to OFris hlē, OS hleō, D lij, ON hlē: ult akin to CALDRON.—Hence, leeway (cf WAY).

leech (1), edge of a sail. See LIGAMENT, para 4.

leech (2), a physician, ? hence, because so widely employed by early physicians, a blood-sucking worm: ME leche: OE lāēce, akin to OFris lētza, OS lakti, Go lēkets, ON laeknari: ? akin to OIr liag, enchanter, magician, conjurer, hence a physician, and consequently to Skt lapati, he talks.

leek. See LOCK (1), para 2.

leer (v, hence n), orig to look askance, ? particularly down one's cheek: perh from EE leer, OE hlēor, cheek: cf OS hlēor, hlēar, hlior, hlier, Frankish chleura, ON hlýr: cf also such C words as OIr and Ga clúas, W clust (cf OC kloustā*), ear, and Cor grūth, cheek or jaw: ? ult akin to Gr ous (prob for ousos*), ear.

leery or leary, knowing, sly, suspicious: orig cant, then low sl: perh from prec, but prob from dial lear (cf E lore), learning, hence cleverness, smartness: cf, sem, the older cant peery, sly, suspicious (P and P¹): EW proposes dial lear influenced by E leer.

lees, dregs. See the 2nd LIE, para 11.

leeway. See the 2nd LEE, s.f.

1. Left, on the left hand, hence the left-hand quarter, comes through the syn ME left, varr lift, luft, from rare OE left, lyft, weak, cf OE lyftād, palsy: perh an extn of OE lēf, weak (as also in OFris and OS), cf OE lēfung, palsy, paralysis.

2. Prob cognate to OE left, weak, is leper, from ME, from OF, lepre (F lèpre), leprosy, from L lepra—adopted by Med—from Gr leprā, itself perh from lepra, neu pl of lepros (s lepr-, r lep-), scaly, for in leprosy the skin flakes away in small scales: cf lepos (s, r lep-), a scale or a husk, and lepein, to scale or husk: IE r lep-*, to scale.

3. L lepra has LL adj leprōsus, whence OF-MF leprosus (var leprosus), adopted by E; whence, by b/f, leprosy—cf the EF léproserie from leprosus.

4. Akin perh to Gr lepos, a scale, leprosus, scaly, and esp to leptos (prop the pp of lepein), scaled, husked, hence thin or small, is L lepidus (s lepid-, r lep-), dainty, whence the obsol literary E lepid, charming, pleasant.

left (2), pt and pp of 'to leave', q.v. at LIFE.

leg, n, hence v, hence also the adj leggy; lizard and alligator; lobster and locust.

1. Leg, ME leg, earlier legge, comes from ON legg, the leg or merely its calf (cf ON armlegg, the arm), akin to Lombard lagi, thigh, OSl lakūt, lower arm. Gmc r, perh leg-, var of lag-; IE r, prob lak-*.

2. Prob akin to leg is L lacertus (s lacert-, ult r ? lac-), a muscle, mostly in pl lacerti, muscles of the upper arm, hence muscles in general: and app id is L lacerta (fem), lacertus (m), a lizard: cf, sem, the relation of muscle to mouse. Zoo has adopted L lacerta for the Sci name of a lizard; but lacertus has been more potent, for, via OF-MF laisard (F lézard) and derivative ME lesard, it yields E lizard.

3. L lacertus, moreover, becomes Sp lagarto, lizard, whence Sp el lagarto de Indias, 'the lizard of the [West] Indies' or the cayman (American alligator), which, prob in its debased shortening aligarto (1591), accounts for E alligator; alig-owes much to a 'learnèd' f/e ref to L alligāre, to tie or attach, as B & W suggest.

4. Perh akin to L lacerta, -us, lizard, is L locusta, var lacusta, a grasshopper or a locust, but also a lobster, both senses app ref, both phon and sem, to the cognates Gr lēkan, to jump, Lett lēkt, lezu, to jump, lēkat, to hop, lēkas, 'jumps' of the heart, and Lith lekiū, fly. The r lac-* (or lak-*), as in L lacerta, has varr lek-* (or lik-) and loc- (or luc-*): basic idea, ? 'to bend', hence esp to bend the muscles, etc., in jumping or darting and in flying, derivatively 'to jump, leap, dart about'—cf even the 'jumping' of muscles that ripple. These reptiles, crustaceans, insects, limbs have much in common.

5. L locusta, grasshopper, locust, becomes OF-F locuste and—perh therefrom—E locust.

6. L locusta, lobster, perh blends, phon, with OE loppe, spider, to produce OE loppestre (var lopystre), lobster, whence ME lopster and later lobster, the latter extant in E.

legacy. See para 5 of:

legal, legalism, legalist, legality, legalize—illegal, illegality; legist—cf lex; legacy, legate (cf LEGATEE), legation—cf delegacy, delegate, delegation, and relegate, relegation; legitim, legitimate (adj, hence v and legitimacy), legitimacy, legitimize—illegitimacy, illegitimate; legislate, legislation, legislative, legislator; colleague—cf college, collegial, collegiate, collegium—cf again privilege, q.v. at PRIVATE; leal, lealty—cf loyal, loyalist, loyalty, and disloyal, disloyalty.

1. The entire group rests upon L lēx (prob for lēgs*), o/s lēg-, law, orig religious and then governmental. Lēx is o.o.o.—unless, as is prob, it derives from L legere, to collect; for the latter group, see LEGEND.

2. L lēx occurs in several Law cpds; its ML derivative lēgista becomes F léviste, whence E legist, a jurist. The derivative adj lēgālis (lēg-+adj suffix -ālis)—later than lēgitimus (see para 4)—becomes, prob via MF-F, the E legal; derivative ML lēgālitās beomes MF-F légalité, whence E legality; legalize, legalization represent EF-F légaliser, légalisation, themselves from légal. ML illēgālis becomes MF-F illégal, whence MF-F illégalité: whence the E illegal, illegality.

3. L lēgālis becomes OProv and OF leial, (orig) legal, (then) loyal, whence the mostly Sc leal, whence lealty. But OF leial becomes MF loial and F loyal, adopted by E, whence loyalism and loyalist; derivative MF loialté (F loyauté) becomes E loyalty. Both disloyal and disloyalty are adopted from OF-MF desloial, desloialté (etc), where des- is L dis-, apart.

4. The L adj lēgitimus becomes MF-F légitime, which, used as a Law n, yields the E Law term legitim. The derivative ML lēgitimāre, to render legitimate, has pp lēgitimātus, whence E legitimate, both adj and hence n; derivative ML lēgitimātiō, o/s lēgitimātiōn-, leads to MF-F légitimation and E legitimation. The MF-F légitime has derivatives lēgitimiste, whence E legitimist (legitimize is an anl E formation), and MF-F illégitime, which perh suggested the E illegitimate, whence illegitimacy.

5. L lēx, law, o/s lēg-, has derivative lēgāre, by law, hence officially, to entrust to someone the duty, or the right, to do something, hence the right to inherit. The pp lēgātus is used as n, 'one who is so entrusted'—whence OF-F lēgat, whence E legate, an envoy. This lēgātus (gen lēgāti) and lēgātus (gen lēgātūs), an official mission, prob combines with lēgātiō, a diplomatic mission, o/s lēgātiōn-, whence OF-F lēgation, E legation, to form ML lēgatia, the office or dignity of a legate, whence MF legacie, whence E legacy, now only in legal sense.

6. Lēgāre has two cpds affecting E; with prefixes de-, re-, used int:

dēlēgāre, to send on, entrust with, a formal mission, to delegate, with pp dēlēgātus, whence both the n and the v delegate, whence delegacy; the derivative dēlēgātiō, o/s dēlēgātiōn-, accounts for delegation; and relēgāre, to send on a mission, a commission, a duty, with pp relēgātus, whence 'to relegate'; derivative relēgātiō, o/s relēgātiōn-, explains relegation.

7. Either from the r of lēgāre or directly from lēg-, o/s of lēx, come the interlinked collēga, a person elected along with (col- for con- for cum, with) another, or merely associated professionally with him, and collēgium, a body of such persons, prob orig in a religious college. Whereas collēgium, partly adopted by E, becomes MF college (F collège), fully adopted by E, collēga becomes late MF-F collēgue, adapted by E to colleague. Collēgium has adj collēgiālis, whence, perh via MF-F, collegial, and the ML collēgiātus, member of a college, whence E collegiate, now mostly an adj.

8. The gen lēgis, of (the) law, occurs in the L virtual cpds lēgis latiō, the carrying—hence passing—of a law or of laws, and lēgis lator, the 'carrier' of a law: whence resp the E legislation and the E legislator: whence, by b/f, 'to legislate'; legislative and legislature are anl E formations.

legate, legatee, legation. For the 1st and 3rd, see prec, para 5; the 2nd was prompted by both legate and legacy.

legend (n, hence v), legendary; lectern, lection and lesson (n, hence v); lectionary, lector; lecture (n, whence lecturette; hence v—whence lecturer); legible, legion, legionary; legume, whence, as if from L, leguminose and leguminous; ligneous, lignite, lignose (adj, hence n), lignum.—L cpds of legere: collect (n, v), collection, collective (whence

I. Latin: A, simple legere

1. L legere (s and r leg-), to gather (esp fruit), hence to collect, to assemble, hence to choose, hence—cf E gather, to form an impression (that), loosely to deduce—to read, perh (E & M) via such phrases as legere oculis, to assemble (the alphabetical letters) with the eyes, and scriptum legere, to gather or collect as being written, to find written: cf Gr legein (s, r leg-), to enumerate or reckon, to say (by choosing one's words),—legere has gerundive legendus (cf gerund legendum), fit, or needing, to be read, whence, via the neu pl legenda apprehended as n 'things to be read' and finally—perh aided by historia legenda—as a sing, the ML legenda, a life-story, the narrative of an important event, whence OF-MF legende (EF-F lé-), with additional EF sense 'explanatory inscription'; the orig senses pass into C14 ME, the additional into EE. ML legenda acquires the alternative legendarius (liber), a book of legends, which passes into C16 E for a collection of saints' lives, whence, later in the century, comes the corresp adj, which gradually develops the wider sense 'fabulous'. Legere has LL adj legibilis, whence E legible.

2. Legere has pp lēctus, s lēct- whence lēctiō (as in the varia lectiō of scholarship), a reading, with o/s lēctiōn-, whence both E lection and, from acc lēctiōnem, the OF-F leçon, with derivative sense 'a teaching', whence ME lessoun, whence E lesson. Lēctiō has the ML derivative lēctiōnarius, -arium, a book of Church 'readings', whence E lectionary. On the pps lēct- arises the agent lēctor, adopted by E, extant only as University lecturer, esp in G Lektor.

3. Pps lēct- has the early ML derivative lectōrium*, a place for reading, attested by the contr lectrum, a reading desk in a church, whence OF leitrun, letoren, letrun, ME letrun, letrorne, (with c from LL-ML) lectorn: E lectern.

4. Lēct- has yet another derivative relevant to E: ML lēcūra, a reading, esp of Scripture or of a University lecture: MF-F lecture, adopted by E.

5. But the inf s leg-, to gather or assemble, recurs in that important Roman word legiō, orig a choosing, hence, because only the best men were chosen, the Roman army's legiō or regiment, o/s legiōn-, acc legiōnem, whence OF-MF legion (F légion), ME legioun, E legion. Derivative legiōnarius, adj hence, as in Caesar, n, becomes MF-F légionnaire and E legionary.

I, B: Prefix-cpds of legere

6. The principal cpds affecting E are colligere, diligere, ēligere, intelligere, neglegere, sēligere. Colligere (col- for con-, with), to gather together, to collect, has pp collectus, whence 'to collect'; whence also, through the f collecta used, in LL and esp ML, as Eccl n, the Eccl E collect; both v and n owing something to MF. The foll L derivatives have influenced E: LL collectiō, o/s collectiōn-, whence, prob via MF-F, collection; LL collectivus (ML -ivus), whence, perh via MF-F collectif, the E collective; ML collector, adopted by E. L colligere becomes OF coillir, whence 'to coil', to gather together esp a rope. OF coillir has var cuillir (F cueillir), whence ME cullen, E 'to cull' fruit, hence flowers, etc., and fig, as indeed in OF and in LL-ML.

7. Diligere, to gather apart (di- for dis-), to prefer, to like very well, has presp diligens, o/s diligent-, whence OF-F diligent, adopted by E; derivative diligentia becomes OF-F, whence E, diligence, the obs 'stage-coach' sense being adopted from F, where it is elliptical for carrosse de diligence, where diligence bears the C17 F sense 'haste' (B & W).

8. Eligere, to gather out (ē-), to set apart, to choose, has pp electus, whence both adj and v elect; derivative electiō, o/s electiōn-, yields OF-F, whence E, election; derivative LL electivus, ML -ivus, yields, perh via MF-F, elective; LL elector is adopted by E (cf the MF-F électeur); LL eligibilis (elig-+ibilis) becomes, perh via MF-F, eligible.

9. L ēligere becomes VL exlegere*, whence OF-MF eslire, with pp eslit, f eslite, which, used as n (? elliptical for partie eslite), becomes OF-MF eslite, EF-F élite, adopted by E.

10. Legere must have had an int legāre*—attested by elegāre*, surviving in the presp ēlēgāns, o/s ēlegant-, whence OF elegant (F élégant), whence the E word; derivative L ēlegantia becomes MF elegance, adopted by E. The derivative L inēlēgāns, LL inēlegantia, become, perh with F aid, E inelegant, inelegance.

11. L. intelligere, to choose from among (intel- = inter, between, among), hence to understand, to know, to perceive, has presp-used-as-adj intelligens, o/s intelligent-, whence, or rather from the var intelligent-, the E intelligent; derivative intelligentia, -igentia, yields—prob via OF—intelligence. Derivative LL intelligentialis, var -ig-, becomes intelligential. Intelligentia, adopted from Ru, comes from It intelligentia (L intelligentia). The pp intellēctus, s intellect-, has derivative nn intellēctus (gen -ūs), whence, prob via MF-F, intellect, and ML intellectiō, o/s intellectiōn-, whence intellection; the derivative adj ML intellectivus, whence intellective, and LL intellectūālis, whence, perh via MF-F intellectuel, the E intellectual, the derivative LL intellectūālitās becoming intellectuality. LL intellegebilis (intelleg-+ibilis), var -ig-, becomes MF-F, whence E, intelligible. The L negg inintelligentia, inintellegebilis perh suggested unintelligence (and -ent), unintelligible: cf the corresp EF-F words.

12. L neglegere, var -ig-, combines neg- for nec (from ne), not, to mean 'not to gather or assemble', hence to disdain, to neglect. Presp neglegens, o/s neglegent-, var -ig-, becomes MF negligent (F nég-), adopted by E; derivative neglegentia, var -ig-, becomes OF-MF negligence (F né-), adopted by E. The pp neglēctus, s neglect-, whence 'to neglect', has derivative ML n neglēctus (gen -ūs), whence E neglect. Negligible derives from a non-existent L negligibilis; a woman's neglige, from EF-F négligé, pp used as n.

13. ML praediligere (prae-, before+diligere, as in para 7), to prefer, has pp praedilēctus, whence both the rare E adj predilect and the F prédilection, E predilection.

14. L praelegere, to announce or, esp, to comment upon what one is about to read, pp praelēctus, whence 'to prelect', has derivatives praelēctiō, praelēctor, whence E praelection, praelector, AE pre-.

15. L sēligere (sē-, connoting separation or privation), to choose from a number, to select, has pp sēlēctus, whence both the adj and the v select, whence AE selectman (chosen annually). On sēlect-, s of sēlēctus, arise both LL sēlēctiō, o/s sēlēctiōn-, E selection, whence, anl, selective, and LL sēlēctor, adopted by E.

I, C: L Cognates of legere, to gather

16. Prob deriving from legere, s leg-, is legūmen (suffix -umen), 'what one gathers or picks'—a vegetable, orig esp peas and beans; whence EF-F légume, E legume. On the o/s legūmin-, EF formed the adj legumineux, f -euse, whence E leguminous (and -ose).

17. One also gathers wood for the fire; prob L lignum, wood, derives from lig-, the predominant c/f of legere. Adopted by E (esp in SciL lignum vitae, (lit) tree of life), lignum, s lign-, has F, hence E, derivative lignite (Min suffix -ite) and L adj ligneus, whence E ligneous (cf F ligneux, -euse).

II. Greek: A, Simple legein and simple logos

18. Akin to L legere, to gather, to read, is Gr legein, to gather, hence to count, hence to recount, hence to say or speak, with its complementary logos, which, exhibiting the characteristic Gr alternation between -e-vv and -o-nn, means a counting, a reckoning—proportion—explanation, statement—rule or principle—a reason, reasoning, reason—continuous statement, a narrative, a story—a speech—verbal expression (often a sentence, a saying, a phrase, rarely a word)—a discourse or a disquisition. (L & S.)

19. Gr legein has simple derivative lexis (? for legsis*), phrase, word, with adj lexikos, whence E lexic, mostly in extn lexical; Gr lexikos has neu lexikon, which, elliptical for lexikon biblion, a word- or phrase-book, means a glossary, a dictionary, E lexicon: cf -lexia and lexico- in Elements.

20. Logos appears in E in most of its Gr meanings. At Element -loger are noted the chief *logo-*cpds, except logarithm, q.v. at ARITHMETIC, para 2.
